God Walks upon the Hills

"God walks upon the hills! I saw Him in the flight
Of wild geese winging south at morn; and when the night
Came running eager down the stairway of the trees
I found the hollow of His footsteps in the grass
Where yesteryear I watched the fires, devouring, pass.

"I heard Him in the brush when some young timid deer
Went down on little feet to drink the waters clear;
He laid His cool hand on my fevered soul, in rain—
God walked the hills today, and He will walk again!

"God walks the valley: closed by mountains round.
I saw His shadow tremble on the ground.
In flicker of that butterfly's bright wings,
And in the lark's sweet note I heard God sing.

"His breath blew from the river's bank across
The panting fields where ripened wheat-heads toss;
And in the dark His face shone there afar,
Reflected on the waters from a star.

"He pointed out the uptrail through my pain,
That I might walk the heights with Him again."

Surgery and Miracles

Modern achievements in surgery, far surpassing successes of yesterday, seem almost to vie with the miracles of Christ. Unless one is careful in his analysis, appreciation of surgeons may steal his devotion to the Lord.

About three years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Goudy, Rockford, Illinois, planned that Dr. Perritt, Chicago, should attempt a delicate operation whereby their blind daughter, Bette, might be enabled to see. Their hope was shaken, though, when Dr. Perritt entered the army. Shortly thereafter, they moved to Artesian, South Dakota. Bette there learned "to read Braille, to ride a bicycle, to swim, and to roller skate" (Rockford Morning Star—September 27, '46).

Following the war, Mr. and Mrs. Goudy again contacted Dr. Perritt, and, supported by the crippled children's division of the South Dakota Board of Health, arranged for the formerly planned operation. Accordingly, on September 12, the parents arrived with Bette in Chicago where the difficult operation was performed one hour later. Dr. Perritt transferred the cornea removed from the eye of a still-born baby to Bette's right eye. Then came a two-weeks' waiting—a bandage being required over the eye for that length of time. Slowly the two weeks passed; then nurses carefully removed the bandage. Would Bette see?

There had been fourteen years of blindness. Indeed, all her lifetime, Bette had lived in a world of physical darkness. She had never seen—not even her mother.

"Can you see anything?" asked the mother, as the bandage was removed—tears of anticipation entering her own eyes as she dared to ask the question.

"Yes," replied Bette. "Yes, Mother, I can!" . . . A grand new day has dawned for the blind!

Thus modern surgery moves forward, being amazingly successful. Thus far, however, only a very small percentage of earth's afflicted millions are benefited through this medium of science. Other adventures of science destroy and maim life more rapidly than surgery can atone. Moreover, persons who are so fortunate as to recover sight or hearing or use of a withered limb soon discover that, with rapidly passing years, the flesh tires, weakens, and pales into death. There science ends. There surgery offers no clues. There is the difference between surgery and miracle, the difference between human skill and the Great Physician.

When Christ ministered, nineteen centuries ago, He healed almost promiscuously. All afflicted ones brought to Him were healed—the lame, lepers, lunatics. Even the dead were raised. Witnesses "were astonished with a great astonishment" (Mark 5:42). They were "beyond measure astonished, saying, He hath done all things well; he maketh both the deaf to hear and the dumb to speak" (7:37). Others were "amazed, and glorified God, saying, We never saw it on this fashion" (2:12). Indeed, never again will men "see it on this fashion" if the Son of God, Christ our Lord, should not return. He only is "the resurrection, and the life" (John 11:25). He only is the One who "shall change our vile body" (Phil. 3:21). O! Glorious Day!—when Jesus comes!

"All the tribes of the earth . . . shall see the Son of man coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory" (Matt. 24:30). "Behold, he cometh with clouds; and every eye shall see him" (Rev. 1:7). We "shall see the glory of the Lord, and the excellency of our God" (Isa. 35:2).

"Be strong, fear not: behold, your God will come with vengeance, even God with a recompense; he will come and save you. Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened, and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped. Then shall the lame man leap as an hart, and the tongue of the dumb sing" (vv. 4-6). Then blessings of healing, no longer limited to hospitals, will be unfurled throughout the earth, for He, Christ, "shall speak peace unto the heathen: and his dominion shall be from sea even to sea; and from the river unto the ends of the earth" (Zech. 9:10).

None Sick When Jesus Comes

"Thine eyes shall behold the king in his beauty" in "the land that is very far off," and "the inhabitant shall not say, I am sick" (Isa. 33:17, 24). Come, thou Great Physician!

IN THE WAKE OF THE <sup>Great</sup> COMMISSION

James M. Watkins

What Is Evangelism's Place in the Church?

To what extent shall we use the term, "Department of Evangelism" when considering this particular part of our work? At its inception, the church was to go forth and "preach the gospel to every creature." By the very fact and method of its creation, the church, throughout every part and function of its make-up, was dedicated completely to the principles of one of two things: first, to fulfilling the Great Commission to carry the gospel message to the world, and, second, the teaching and pastoral oversight necessary to build those who accepted the gospel call. "In the unity of the faith, and the knowledge of the Son of God . . . unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ."

The obligation to "feed" the Church of God was a responsibility placed on local leaders and teachers. Anyone above these offices was devoted entirely to the labor of missionary and evangelistic work. Even then the primary work of the local units was to educate and win others to a place with Christ in the church, which in itself was a purely evangelistic motive. In short, the church, in its entirety, was a "Department of Evangelism" and dedicated its every function to this aim and purpose.

How Shall We Accept This Example?

With every branch of the early church centered in missionary effort, and every part of the work above the office of pastor devoted to this work, it would indicate that any national or international organization which we build must have as its justifying motive the sole purpose of serving the interest of missionary effort and extending the fellowship necessary to build the faith of those who have accepted a place with Christ. Every branch of any denominational effort is in the final sense merely a part of the "Department of Evangelism."

What Practical Application Shall We Make?

Are we not then justified in saying that missionary and evangelistic effort should be the number one item of any national work? Would it not be more nearly correct in the future to consider our entire budget a missionary and evangelistic budget, underwriting the needs of other departments to the extent that they serve the needs and purposes of this evangelistic aim? How much more in keeping with the avowed faith of any group who believes in the return of their Lord at a very early date this would be!

The Outlook a Missionary-Centered Aim Offers

Let us consider the minimum possibility of creating, in addition to the evangelistic effort of our Sunday school, Berean, and church work as a whole, at least ten new fields for pastoral work per year. This easily can be the simple part of our work, if we continue the practice of encouraging and assisting each state conference to maintain an evangelist over its own state in addition to our national workers. This effort, of course, must be based upon a sufficient amount of seed-sowing work, such as printing, tracts, HERALD subscriptions, possible radio work, creation of missionary classes, Sunday school work, etc. Such a budget, when the returns from workers are deducted, probably would be little more than we now plan, but consider its possibilities.

In addition to the outstanding development of our work as a whole, the requirements of this program would mean many things. First, it would mean that it would require an annual enrollment of ten or more new students, which would make our college entirely self-supporting and require no special contributions for its upkeep; second, it would mean that the much-needed enlargement of our printing facilities could be made, and, as a result, our print shop would become self-supporting; third, THE RESTITUTION HERALD could be developed as our best instrument of evangelism and its small deficit justified to support this aim; fourth, our publishing and sales department could be made to pay the cost of bookkeeping and office cost of the Institution, thus requiring no contributions for office overhead. Golden Rule Home, the Berean Society, and National Sunday School Association would easily be self-supporting. Then, we would require no contributions other than for missionary and evangelistic work and the expansion of other departments as may seem justified by the General Conference. A sound walk in the wake of the Great Commission offers plans that will make these things a reality, not in years to come, but as soon as we are willing to give them our whole-hearted support.

BIBLE LESSONS

By Norman J. McLeod (Pomona, California)

1—Abraham and the Promises of God

(7) Why are the promises of God to Abraham important to us?

Golden text:

"By myself have I sworn, saith the Lord, for because thou hast done this thing, and hast not withheld thy son, thine only son: that in blessing I will bless thee, and in multiplying I will multiply thy seed as the stars of the heaven, and as the sand which is upon the sea shore: and thy seed shall possess the gate of his enemies; and in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed; because thou hast obeyed my voice" (Gen. 22:16-18).

Text: Genesis 12.

Historical setting:

Abraham was born about two hundred years after the building of the last of the pyramids in Egypt. During his lifetime, and down almost until the time of Moses, Egypt was ruled in a feudal system under the Hittite kings. The Hittites were related to the Hebrews and were friendly to them. The "new king" who knew not Joseph was of the native kings. We would say a "new family of kings arose that had not known Joseph," or were not friendly to Joseph. For reference to historical works, see The Middle Kingdom, or Feudal Age in Egypt.

Events preceding the lesson:

Abraham had left Ur of the Chaldees with his father Terah and had not gone all the way to the Promised Land. After his father's death, he journeyed on to the Holy Land. Ur of the Chaldees was an important city under the old Babylonian Empire.

Questions on the text:

- (1) In the three verses at the beginning of the text, what three parts are there to the promise to Abraham?
- (2) Find other texts in Genesis that tell of each part of the promises. Were those promises fulfilled at any time in the past?
- (3) Why was Abraham chosen to be the "father of the faithful"?
- (4) Give as many references in Genesis as you can that tell about the promises to Abraham.
- (5) Find New Testament references to the promises to Abraham.
- (6) When will the promises to Abraham be fulfilled? (Acts 7:5.)

Discussion of the lesson:

Abraham was an outstanding man of his age: he believed God and did the things that God told him to do. Because of that, God made him certain promises that are the foundation of the whole Bible story. He made an agreement with Abraham which we find stated in Genesis 12 and repeated in many places. This agreement was interpreted by the Apostle Paul and others as referring to Jesus Christ. (Gal. 3:16.) Because of this statement of the Apostle Paul, we find the gospel, in a limited scope, stated in Genesis 12:1-3 and Galatians 3:27-29.

Readings for the week:

Genesis 12; 13:14ff; 15:18ff; 22; Hebrews 6; 11:8-16.

Practical applications:

Abraham's faith was a thing of growth. He did not spring forth fully grown in faith as did adherents in some of the pagan myths. There is no doubt that his faith wavered at times, even as our own, because he was human. When he left his established home, however, and went out not knowing where he was going, he did a thing that showed great faith. In contrast to others of his family and of his day, he was an outstanding man of faith. God has not asked us to leave our homes and go forth to a place we never have seen, but He has asked us to be faithful to Him in spite of all the attractions of this world, in spite of family often, in spite of friends frequently. Jesus said: "Who is my mother, or my brethren?" Then He "looked round about on them which sat about him, and said, Behold my mother and my brethren! For whosoever shall do the will of God, the same is my brother, and my sister, and mother" (Mark 3:33-35). Abraham realized that the affections of home and all that it signifies were not as important as to obey the Word of God.

Related topics:

- (1) There were eight covenants that God made with man. Can you name them? Edenic, Noahic, Abrahamic, Mosaic, in the Land of Moab, _____, _____,
- (2) The people who teach "Anglo-Israelism" say that

Joseph built the pyramids. How do we know that that is not so?

(3) Who were some of the rulers of other nations at the time of Abraham? What other nations were then in the world?

(4) How is the Book of Galatians related to the promises made to Abraham? (Gal. 3:26ff.)

Some additional references:

Genesis 8:20-22; 9:1-17.

Is the covenant mentioned in Jeremiah 31:31ff the same as that made with Abraham? or is it another? (Gal. 3:16, 17.)

Exodus 19. How did the children of Israel keep the promise they made in this chapter?

Is the Covenant in the Land of Moab any different from the Mosaic Covenant?

Deuteronomy 28:1, 2, 9-36, 37, 45, 61, 63, 64, 65-68; 30:1-3.

2—Abraham and the Problem of an Heir

Golden text:

"When God made promise to Abraham, because he could swear by no greater, he swore by himself, saying, Surely blessing I will bless thee, and multiplying I will multiply thee" (Heb. 6:13, 14).

Text: Hebrews 6.

Historical setting:

Among the Hebrews, the law said that the oldest son was the only heir. If there were no sons, the nearest oldest male relative was the heir. In Abraham's case, Lot was to all intents his heir until Isaac was born. When Ishmael was born, a new problem presented itself, because he would be the heir instead of Lot. God, however, told Abraham that Isaac should be the heir. A strange coincident of history is that the (Please turn to page 9)

Adam, a Type of Christ

By James A. Patrick (Ashland, Ohio)

IN ROMANS 5:14, it is said of Adam: "Who is the figure of him that was to come." In 1 Corinthians 15:45, it is said: "The first man Adam was made a living soul; the last Adam was made a quickening spirit." This shows that the likeness between Adam and Christ was very marked.

There are those who claim, however, that Adam was the Serpent that tempted Eve, and there are others who claim that Adam developed a Serpent mind in order to tempt Eve. It is strange how some people read their Bibles—or rather, do not read them. Let us turn to the record: "When the woman saw that the tree was good for food, and that it was pleasant to the eyes, and a tree to be desired to make one wise, she took of the fruit thereof and did eat, and gave also to her husband with her; and he did eat" (Gen. 3:6). If there was any tempting, Eve did it.

If Adam had to develop a Serpent mind in order to tempt Eve, and if Christ was tempted by His mental reactions, then Christ must have developed a Serpent mind in order to be tempted by those mental reactions. That would have made Him a sinner. That would have been entirely contrary to the record, "For he made him to be sin for us, who knew no sin" (2 Cor. 5:21).

In 1 Timothy 2:14, Paul said, "Adam was not deceived, but the woman being deceived was in the transgression." Thus we see that Adam believed God and ate, knowing what the consequences would be. Adam subjected the creation in hope. (Rom. 8:20.) It is sometimes said that God subjected the creation in hope, but that cannot be true, for "we are saved by hope: but hope that is seen is not hope: for what a man seeth, why doth he yet hope for?" (Rom. 8:14.) So then, God does not hope for anything. Everything is ready to His hand. He can reach out and take it at any time. He even "callesth those things that be not [the dead] as though they were" (alive) (Rom. 4:17). So then, Adam subjected the creation in hope. He believed God. When Eve had eaten of the forbidden fruit, he knew she would die and he would be alone. He loved his bride so much that he was willing to go into death with her and for her.

Christ's bride is made up of a multitude of individuals molded into one body by the Holy Spirit. Christ saw some of them in death and the others under the sentence of death, and He knew there was no remedy for them outside of Himself. He loved His bride so much that He willingly, gladly, went into death for her—having the power, also, to redeem His bride from the grave.

The Royal Aspect of Christ's Kingdom

OR

Present Aspect of the Kingdom of God

By Herbert F. C. Hill (Toronto, Canada)

"I go to prepare a place for you" (John 14:2).

THERE has been from time to time much controversy concerning the Kingdom of God. Let no one be disturbed or alarmed by any sudden thoughts that may arise at disclosure of the title of this article. In every way it coincides with Scripture. It is not a new doctrine, because the Apostle Paul received it from God and preached it. In Ephesians 3:1-6, we read:

"For this cause I Paul, the prisoner of Jesus Christ for you Gentiles, if ye have heard of the dispensation of the grace of God which is given me to you-ward: how that by revelation he made known unto me the mystery; (as I have wrote afore in few words, whereby, when ye read, ye may understand my knowledge in the mystery of Christ) which in other ages was not made known unto the sons of men, as it is now revealed unto his holy apostles and prophets by the Spirit; that the Gentiles should be fellowheirs, and of the same body, and partakers of his promise in Christ by the gospel." What grace! Much of this is explained in Romans 11.

From what source does all this blessedness emanate? Was not the gospel preached to Abraham? Was it not revealed that the blessing of Abraham would come on the Gentiles through Jesus Christ, that we might receive the promise of the Spirit through faith? I would not be a child of God through the Abrahamic faith (which is the basic ground for every Christian) if I did not believe all that the Angel Gabriel told Mary concerning Jesus and His Kingdom (future): that He would occupy that throne which had been overturned, and that it will be given to Him whose right it is.

Surely the Day of Rest is fast approaching—the Day which God promised from the beginning (in Type; Gen. 2:1, 2). We have words from the mouth of the Apostle Paul, too, in reference to this Day, quoting, "Today, after so long a time"—this in reference to "another day" of rest. (Heb. 4:8.) The coming of the "Desire of Nations" is in no wise a mystery. Our labor will not be in vain, brethren. The Lord says, "Seek, and ye shall find." There is a vast number of people without this faith, who, if the Lord should come today, merely would "enter" into the Kingdom, Christ's Kingdom. They would be subjects of the Kingdom.

It is no good, though, for one to believe the historical facts that Jesus died and rose again without manifesting the work of faith. "The devils believe and tremble." "Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling. For it is God that worketh in you, both to will and to do of his good pleasure" (Phil. 2:12, 13).

To publish all the facts in detail would fill a good-sized book. The Scripture has been carefully and sufficiently condensed to furnish readers enough evidence that will substantiate the authenticity of this disclosure. May it be to them in the future as an effective ointment to soothe and heal many an open wound and to give a complete vision of what Jesus and His disciples preached. May God grant you all sufficient grace and patience and an ardent desire to seek for yourselves truth, through the Spirit of God, which is the only means whereby one can see the Kingdom of God. "Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God. That which is born of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit. Marvel not that I said unto thee, Ye must be born again" (John 3:3, 6, 7).

Jesus came "preaching the kingdom." When He was asked when the Kingdom should come, He said: "The kingdom of God cometh not with observation. The kingdom of God is within you" (Luke 17:20, 21). The Emphatic Diaglott gives it as: "God's Royal Majesty is among you," and "The kingdom of God comes not with outward show." These are words of our Lord, and we shall see and understand them as never before as we advance in this article. This declaration of our Lord could not be referring to His Kingdom in the future. The language is quite definite, and it certainly portrays to our minds a spiritual aspect which corresponds to many sayings of the apostles. Paul referred to the church, for instance, as "an habitation of God through the Spirit" (Eph. 2:22). We read also in Romans 14:17: "The Kingdom of God is not meat and drink; but righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost."

Let us now interview John on the Island of Patmos. He was a prisoner on account of the Word of God. John said he was "in the affliction, and Kingdom, and patient waiting for Jesus" (Diaglott). John knew what the real and coming Kingdom of heaven meant, yet he spoke as being already in it—not, however, as the orthodox preach, waiting to go to heaven and there to be with Jesus. He, in a sense, was already there—in “heavenly places” with Christ Jesus. Are not you, dear brother?

Paul said: “What is our hope, or joy, or crown of rejoicing?” (1 Thess. 2:19.) When? Why? Now, of course! “Are not even ye in the presence of our Lord Jesus Christ at his coming?” Every soul who will obtain resurrection to life eternal must be an inheritor of the Kingdom of heaven. He must be in God’s house. He is one of the stones of the temple. His foundation is built on the Rock and he drinks of the water from the Rock.

The Kingdom of God is a refining pot, and every child of God is purified by its process. Peter remarked: “Seeing ye have purified your souls in obeying the truth through the Spirit unto unfeigned love of the brethren, see that ye love one another with a pure heart fervently” (1 Peter 1:22). In this dispensation of grace, God is taking out of the world a people for His name. He has shown us the way, a straight and narrow way leading to life everlasting. Jesus said, “I am the way.” Also, “I am the door: by me if any man enter in, he shall be saved, and shall go in and out, and find pasture.”

Now, dear reader, let Jesus take you by the hand. He will lead you gently along a path you have never trod; for in His Father’s Kingdom there are vast habitations and treasures. There is a path in that Kingdom which leads right up to the front door of the King’s Palace. Many have entered in by this door during the past centuries, and the door is still open for you. No one can enter without the guide. He alone has the combination which spells “rock,” which can be interpreted Royal Office of Christ’s Kingdom. The guide is Jesus—the Way, the Truth, and the Life. Just inside the door, there is a great fountain of living water. Unto all who drink from the Father’s hand (note Rev. 21:6), Christ promises, “I will give” (present). These are chosen ones in whom the King takes great delight. They are clothed in raiment of the very best. It cannot be duplicated, for it is unique and has been washed in the blood of the Lamb. These are the garments of the salvation which Jesus purchased with His own blood. The only way to obtain these garments is by presentation.

How the church has dwindled into semi-darkness on this most vital question which points the way to eternal life readily can be understood when one considers that the Lord Himself knew of the present apostasy, saying: “When the Son of man cometh, shall he find faith on the earth?” In Paul’s day, conditions in the church were bad. The lukewarm state of the Laodicean Church was an abomination to God. The Apostle informed that false brethren and enemies of the cross of Christ had already entered, “Wolves,” he called them! and said, “Of your own selves shall men arise, speaking perverse things, to draw away disciples after them”—and Paul even wept at its disclosure.

Jesus said to those people who shut up the Kingdom of heaven against men: “Ye neither go in yourselves [present aspect of the Kingdom], neither suffer ye them that are entering to go in” (Matt. 23:13). What did the Lord mean when He said to the disciples: “Unto you it is given to know the mystery of the kingdom of God: but unto them that are without, all these things are done in parables: that seeing they may see, and not perceive; and hearing they may hear, and not understand” (Mark 4:12). Do we understand the parables? “Go work in my vineyard,” says the Lord.

In 1 Corinthians 5:12, 13, Paul wrote: “What have I to do to judge them also that are without? Do not ye judge them that are within? But them that are without God judgeth.” Let us not look too much on temporal things of this life. Jesus said: “Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you: for every one that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened” (Matt. 7:7, 8). “If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children: how much more shall your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them that ask him?” (Luke 11:13.) The Lord here introduced the Holy Spirit, therefore from this verse I would gather spiritual things. “Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you” (Matt. 6:33). What are “these things”? Most readers, when reading this verse, apply it to temporal things of life, which God knows His children need. He has promised to supply all our needs by the riches of His grace in Christ Jesus. “I have been young, and now am old, yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed begging bread” (Psalm 37:25).

We read in Matthew 6:25: “Take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink; nor yet for your body, what ye shall put on. Is not the life more than meat, and the body than raiment? . . . (After all these things do the Gentiles seek:) for your heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need of all these things.”

According to Mark 12:28, one of the scribes, having listened to the Lord’s eloquence, asked, “Which is the first commandment of all?” Jesus answered him, “The first of all the commandments is, Hear, O Israel; The Lord our God is one Lord: and thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength: this is the first commandment. And the second is like, namely, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself. There is none other commandment greater than these.” The scribe then said to Jesus, “Well, Master, thou hast said the truth: for there is one God; and there is none other but he: and to love him with all the

ADVERTISING. There is a movement under way in the United States to stop the atrocious type of liquor advertising that is smearing the billboards, movie screens, radio channels, and almost countless columns in magazines and daily papers.

R. Lorne Cober, chairman of the Baptist campaign across the nation to stop liquor advertising, in an article in "The Watchman and Examiner," quotes Dr. R. H. Martin, who made a survey of the advertising done by the manufacturers of beer, wine, and distilled spirits, that these companies "expended about $100,000,000, for advertising during 1944. "It is estimated 1945 will exceed that of 1944. $40,000,000 was spent in magazine, newspaper, and radio advertising. Cober says: "In 1945, a popular pictorial weekly, a popular news weekly, received a total annual income from liquor advertisements of $4,409,175 and $1,335,266."

He then quotes Dr. Martin as follows: "The immediate purpose of this advertising is to create good will toward the industry, to lead people to believe that social standing depends upon the use of beverage alcohol, to associate it with that which is gracious and high and noble in life. Its ultimate purpose is to get those not drinking to drink, those now drinking to drink more, and this increases the sale of their products." It is a good campaign.

VIOLENCE. Jesus drew a comparative likeness between the "days of Noe" and the "days of the Son of man," these days being those preceding the Flood and the coming of the Lord. Usually, consideration is given to "eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage." Properly used these can be directed to the glory of the Lord. This, the Antediluvians did not do. They had corrupted the way of the Lord. Violence was the result. It is said: "The earth was filled with violence." This condition of violence can be expected to prevail in the "days of the coming of the Son of man."

Every paper one picks up and reads, if it concerns the course of daily events, is filled with stories of violence. Every news cast carries accounts of acts of violence. "Wars and rumours of war" cause one to shudder at the violence involved. The strife between capital and labor is punctured with violence. Juvenile delinquency carries violence into the ranks of small children. The divorce actions bespeak of violence in the homes. Wherever one looks he sees and hears of violence. It is a time of violence. Are we in the days of the coming of the Son of man?

MISSIONARIES. "The Free Methodist" reprints an item of interest from the Calendar of Central Church, New York City. It reads: "Edward Kimbal, Boston shoe merchant, never had much recognition, but the clerk he led to the Master was world-known Dwight L. Moody. An unknown servant girl taught her master's son to pray; he became Lord Shaftesbury, the great Christian philanthropist. Gypsy Smith, famous evangelist, never knew the name of the old gentleman whose message turned his face heavenward and sent him into the world with a ringing message of salvation."

CONVENTION. The 55th General Convention of the Episcopal Church of America was held in Philadelphia, September 10-20, the "city of its birth."

Dr. Geoffrey Francis Fisher, Archbishop of Canterbury, was special speaker to the Convention during his stay in America. Through his tact and high approach, he is reported to have brought a "great impact" on the delegates. One of the big issues before the Convention was the question of union with the Presbyterians. The conservative element was strong enough to prevent definite action on the proposal which has been under consideration for several years.

The Convention elected its first lay president, when former Supreme Court Justice Owen Roberts was given this office. Also, the first woman to be admitted as delegate was Mrs. Randolph H. Dyer of Saint Louis.

CHRISTIAN CHEMISTS. Addressing the American Chemical Society's 110th meeting on "Christian Chemists," John T. Chappell of Kankakee, Illinois, gave biographical sketches of the lives of the great Christian scientists so well known among men: Josiah Cooke, Robert Boyle, and Michael Faraday. Yet, in "a materialistic, often God-forgetting, atom-startled world" these men are overlooked, and scientists are considered mostly as being opposed to Christianity. He said: "We need to found all our scientific thought and work upon the eternal and never-changing faith, love and hope in God." Even many professing Christians would do well to follow this advice.

INDIA. There has been a great deal of criticism of Great Britain the past few years over her policy in India. She has been charged with imperialistic ambitions and treatment of the Indians. From many aspects, the case against her would appear to be well founded, but as one becomes familiar with the internal situation in India, it is apparent that the people of India are not ready for self-government. The two main factions—Hindus and Moslems—are constantly at loggerheads with each other. The waves of rioting that have broken out between these two groups, as Britain seeks to set up an interim government in India, indicates that there needs to be a strong arm over them or they would engage in an endless bloodthirsty struggle that would upset the whole life of the country. With all her faults, Britain has done a great deal for her "dominions beyond the sea." If all totals up to the age-long truth that men will mingle themselves together, but they will not cleave one to another. The rift that has recently occurred in the President's Cabinet is further indication of man's inability to get along with his fellows. The lusts of the flesh, which war in the body, creep out and start trouble on a larger scale, and incite other folk to similar action.

LAWLESSNESS. Disrespect for the rights of others and the laws which are enacted for the well-being of the greatest number of people are being mocked at today by those who seemingly are born for dissension and strife. In speaking before the Canadian Congress of Labor now in session, Bernard Doherty, organizer for the Mine, Mill, and Smelter Workers Union, stated: "We have told not only the provincial police but the federal police as well that we are prepared to breach the Criminal Code until such time as our strike has been won." This is anarchy. When people put selfish interests above the welfare of society and commit themselves to the policy of even committing crime in order to obtain the ends sought, it is not far from the work of the Beast that will require people to have his number or name upon them in order that they might buy and sell, and if they will not receive this mark, he will breach the Criminal Code and kill them that his policy may be carried out. Times and events are leading up to the day and work of the Lawless One that is to come—even the Antichrist.

A minister of this district was approached by one of his fellow ministers, who urged him to take a less radical stand on the issues of labor and capital, and presented the matter of introducing the principle of the Golden Rule into industrial relations. The radical minister thought that strikes were a better way of adjusting industrial disputes than the introduction of the Golden Rule. God's way is being corrupted and violence is filling the earth.

ESCAPE THITHER. The angel of the Lord took Lot by hand and led him and his family out of the cities of the plain, for, said he: "I cannot do any thing till thou be come thither." The reason was that God's judgments cannot be poured out while the righteous are present. God cannot destroy the righteous with the wicked. So will it be in the days of the coming of the Son of man. The earth vine will not be harvested by the sickle holder until the righteous are called thither. They are to be hid in the "secret chambers" during the time of the indignation when God punishes the inhabitants of the earth, and the wicked will try to hide themselves from the judgments by hiding in the caves and under the rocks. The great earthquake will shake them out. Among which group of hidlers will you be?

"As a snare shall it"—"that day"—"come on all them that dwell on the face of the earth. Watch ye therefore . . . that ye may be accounted worthy to escape" (Luke 21:35, 36).

BIBLE LESSONS

Hebrews and the English both had the system where the oldest son received all the property of the parent. The eldest son was supposed to provide for the rest of the family.

Events:

The prophecy of the birth of Isaac (Gen. 18); the birth and inheritance of Ishmael (Gen. 16:4ff; 17:18ff); the birth of Isaac (Gen. 21:1ff); the banishment of Ishmael; the sacrifice of Isaac. (Gen. 22.)

Questions on the text:

- (1) Why was Lot not an acceptable heir?
- (2) Why was Ishmael not to be heir to Abraham? Why was Abraham's prayer (Gen. 17:18) not granted? Are our prayers like that?
- (3) Explain Galatians 4:22ff.
- (4) Tell the story of the division of the land between Abraham and Lot. What does it show about the character of each?
- (5) What became of Ishmael?
- (6) What does the name "Isaac" mean? Why was he named that?
- (7) Explain Hebrews 11:17-19.

Discussion of the lesson:

Abraham was an old man who had no children, and yet God had promised him that his seed should bless the earth. The only heir according to the day was Lot, his nephew. Lot proved himself to be unworthy as an heir in many ways. First of all, he was greedy in that he took the best portion of the land when Abraham offered to share it with him. Then he went into the city of Sodom and became a part of the life of that wicked city. He did not fall into their sins, but was rescued only with difficulty. He showed himself to be unfit for the inheritance of the promised blessings of God. Ishmael also was rejected, not so much can we see because of his character, but because he was not an heir through Sarah. Ishmael was given many blessings, but they were not according to the promises made to Abraham. God had promised Abraham an heir through Sarah, and God will always perform His promises.

Readings for the week:

Genesis 16:4ff; 17:18ff; 13:5ff; Galatians 4; Hebrews 11:17ff.

Practical applications:

Abraham prayed to God, and I think sincerely: "Oh that Ishmael might live before thee!" That prayer was not granted. It was not in accordance with God's plan.

Jesus prayed, and I think sincerely, in the Garden, "O my Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me." That prayer was not granted. It was not in accordance with God's plan. How are our prayers answered? Do we pray in accordance with God's plans? That is why we are often foiled in our search for the way God would have us go. Our prayers should be for strength to endure the burdens of the day. They are prayers for understanding of God's will, they are not for acquiring worldly wealth to spend on our waywardnesses. When death strikes us, often our faith is undermined because we do not understand the purposes of prayer. Prayer does not change God's mind toward us. He is unchangeable. No; we change our own selves by our prayers.

Related topics:

- (1) Sodom and Gomorrah were very wicked places. Where in the Scriptures are they used as symbols? Have the archaeologists ever found their site?
- (2) Was Abraham "gullible" when he let Lot take the best of the land? Why did he not demand the best? Should we ask for the best? Is the apparent best always the best for us?
- (3) What were the blessings given to Ishmael? Have they been fulfilled in the descendants of Ishmael? Is the quarrel between the Arab and the Jew at present any way related to the friction between Isaac and Ishmael?
- (4) Do you think that there is any relation between the fact that the Jews and the British are the only ones who practiced the system of having the oldest son inherit everything?
- (5) Read the story of the men who came to see Abraham and told him of the birth of Isaac to come. Why did Sarah name the heir "Isaac," which means "laughter"?
- (6) Was Lot contaminated by living in Sodom? Should he have left there, voluntarily, when the evils of the city were so evident?

heart, and with all the understanding, and with all the soul, and with all the strength, and to love his neighbour as himself, is more than all whole burnt offerings and sacrifices." When Jesus saw that he answered discreetly, He said unto him, "Thou art not far from the kingdom of God." Was Jesus referring to something two thousand years thereafter? The one thing the scribe did not possess, and he was so near it, was the Lord Jesus Himself. His Royal Majesty was before him. Christ is in you the hope of glory.

Jesus Christ is in His Holy Temple. "Ye are the temple of the living God" (2 Cor. 6:16). "Ye are bought with a price" (1 Cor. 6:20). "I will dwell in them." "Ye are not your own." "Beloved, now are ye the sons of God [present], and it doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is" (1 John 3:2). Are we all sure of that dwelling place which He has gone to prepare for us? Jesus, speaking to His disciples of this place, said they were to be the foundation stones, which would be laid after He had finished the work God gave Him to do, being prepared, not only the place but also the stones, and we as living stones to fill other places, for that glorious house of God. (Heb. 3:6.)

There is today a lack of spiritual food in the church, yet the pasture land God has reserved for His children is very extensive and rich. All that are in the race for eternal life partake of the best for strength; for, to continue, we need strength, for the days that are to come. I pray for the babes in Christ. May God enrich them. The living bread is what we shall need. He who eats of that bread shall live forever. (O what grace!)

"Seek ye the Lord while he may be found, call ye upon him while he is near: let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts: and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him . . . for he will abundantly pardon." Christ has opened "a new and living way, which he has consecrated for us" (Heb. 10:20). "For this cause he is the mediator of the new testament, that by means of death, for the redemption of the transgressions that were under the first testament, they which are called might receive the promise of eternal inheritance. For where a testament is, there must also of necessity be the death of the testator" (9:15, 16).

Now Christ is our living Head, and we are the living stones prepared for His glory. How can people who profess Christ say that no one knows he is saved until Christ returns? I think these must be feeding on the husks as the prodigal son did before he returned to his father. O, that word "return" could certainly be used, with no uncertain sound today by our ministers of the Church of God, so many people have erred from the truth. Cannot we prove all things?

Jesus likened the Kingdom of heaven to "leaven which a woman took, and hid in three measures of meal, till the whole was leavened"—1, Jews; 2, Gentiles; 3, the church. Did not leaven begin in Christ's time with the Jews, and now the whole is leavened. You cannot apply this parable to Christ's future Kingdom.

Again Jesus said: "Every scribe which is instructed unto the kingdom of heaven is like a man that is an householder, which bringeth forth out of his treasure things new and old" (Matt. 13:52). In the Mount of Transfiguration, the final scene of the old things was manifested; Moses and Elijah representing the law and the prophets. Since then, Jesus (His Royal Majesty) is manifested by the New Covenant. (Heb. 1:1.) This is the Stone the builders rejected, and "whosoever falleth on this stone shall be broken [present], and whosoever it shall fall upon, it shall break to pieces."

It is wonderful to bring certain scriptures to bear on this study. If there is a right way, let us walk in it. Read Hebrews 8:13, saying, "Now that which decayeth and waxeth old is ready to vanish away." "This is my beloved Son; hear him [present]." Jesus was found alone. Moses and the prophets had vanished out of sight. "The law and the prophets were until John: since that time the kingdom of God is preached" (Luke 16:16). We have a "better covenant" now, under "better promises" (Heb. 8:6).

While addressing unbelieving Jews, who were living by the law and who said Abraham was their father, Jesus said, in substance: "Ye shall die in your sins, when ye shall see Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob and all the prophets in the kingdom and you yourselves thrust out" (John 8:33, 21, 24). Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob had the promises; the law came four hundred thirty years afterwards. "Know ye therefore that they which are of faith, the same are the children of Abraham. And the scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the heathen through faith, preached before the gospel unto Abraham" (Gal. 3:7, 8). What was preached? The main theme in the Old Testament, as well as in the New, was resurrection. Abraham "staggered not at the promise of God through unbelief; but was strong in faith, giving glory to God" (Rom. 4:20).

Do you believe that when you break bread in remembrance of Christ that He is (present) with you? Of course you do! Well then, is it very difficult to see that Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and all the prophets are there with you, and they (the Jews) thrust out because they sought not by faith? Listen, dear reader, to Scripture by Paul: "Ye are dead, and your life is hid with Christ in God" (Col. 3:3). "Ye are dead," and so is Abraham. ("We shall all sleep.") As you have the faith of Abraham, you are also the same in death. You are dead and buried, and "when Christ, who is our life, shall appear, then shall [we] also appear with him in glory" (v. 4). "If ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise" (Gal. 3:29).

Hear these words of the Apostle Paul: "Know ye not that the unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdom of God? (1 Cor. 6:9.) Most people stumble here. Stay with that word "inherit" which Paul mentioned more than once in his Epistle. The subjects will be unrighteous people that Christ will rule with a "rod of iron" (Rev. 2:27). We read in Daniel 7:18: "But the saints of the most High shall take the kingdom, and possess the kingdom for ever, even for ever and ever." The saints will be changed at that time—"clothed with immortality." Hence, Paul said, "Flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God" (1 Cor. 15:50). This is our hope. "Hope that is seen is not hope; for what a man seeth, why doth he yet hope for?" (Rom. 8:24, 25.)

This article is intended as an exhortation to pass through the open door into salvation. All who are "entering in" and partaking of the water of life proceeding from the fountain will the Lord bring with Him when He returns to establish His Kingdom. These are the saints who will possess the Kingdom. (Heb. 4:16.)

Just before Jesus ascended to the Father, the disciples asked Him, "Wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom?" (Acts 1:6.) Why could not the Lord give them a direct answer? They were no doubt a little confused. They had been present and heard Him say to the Jews, "The kingdom of God shall be taken from you, and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof" (Matt. 21:43). They also knew He was to be their future King of Israel, but when this would actually occur, they were not informed. They also had heard Jesus refer to the Stone which was rejected and now become the "head of the corner" (v. 42 and 1 Peter 2:7). Jesus had given them final orders to preach the gospel of the Kingdom to all nations, promising, too, "Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world" (Matt. 28:20). How was Jesus to be with them? Only in spirit? The tiny seed planted at Pentecost would grow and spread out its branches into all the world—to all nations. Have not all nations received it?

God's mighty plan of salvation for the ages must be made effectual in all generations, until the expiration of the "set time." That time was withheld in Jesus' answer to the disciples, because of the secrecy of the day which no man knows—"no, not the angels of heaven, nor the Son." So, how could Jesus tell the time of the restoration, if He knew not the time of His returning? He spoke to them accordingly. "It is not for you to know the times or the seasons, which the Father hath put in his own power. But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you" (Acts 1:8). Here was the actual start of what Jesus called the Kingdom of heaven—or the place to be prepared. (John 14:1.) We see the gospel of the Kingdom going forth in power. It is that power to which Paul referred—"not with enticing words of man's wisdom, but in demonstration of the Spirit and of power: that your faith should not stand in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God" (1 Cor. 2:4, 5).

"Let us go forth therefore unto him without the camp, bearing his reproach. For here have we no continuing city, but we seek one to come. By him therefore let us offer the sacrifice of praise to God continually . . . giving thanks to his name" (Heb. 13:13-15). Then "the Lord shall deliver [us] from every evil work, and will preserve [us] unto his heavenly kingdom: to whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen" (2 Tim. 4:18).

BOOK PARADISE

By Arlen Marsh

"We are living not merely in a state, but in a system of states; and it is inconceivable that the Soviet Republic should continue for a long period side by side with imperialistic states. Ultimately one or the other must conquer. Meanwhile a number of terrible clashes between the Soviet Republic and the bourgeois states is inevitable."—Lenin, "Collected Works."

Lenin's conviction is practically the text upon which William C. Bullitt, former United States Ambassador to Russia, founds his Approach to the Soviet Union (Charles Scribner's Sons; $2.50).

Mr. Bullitt, although a Roosevelt appointee, makes no bones about what he bluntly terms the "failure" of Mr. Roosevelt's effort to appease Stalin into international cooperation. Mr. Bullitt is, as a matter of fact, profoundly convinced that Russian policy is based on the earnest desire to see Russia not only dominant in the world, but universally dictatorial as well.

The Bullitt exposition of the theory of Communism is excellent and remarkably unbiased by personal opinion. Facts are what interest Mr. Bullitt, not theory. He quotes liberally from the works of the Communist hierarchy; alludes frequently to history, the science of economics, and the problems of military strategy; and devotes much time to a discussion of the place of religion in the Soviet cosmos.

Curiously, Mr. Bullitt believes war with Russia is not necessarily inevitable; and he says as much, the while he preaches on the Lenin doctrine and establishes its historic truth. The contradiction is one which adds the zest of unconscious humor to the book. Incidentally, Mr. Bullitt writes so interestingly that one wonders how much of the actual literary effort was performed by a ghost—or perhaps the ex-ambassador is one of those rarities: a politician with a genuine gift for authorship.

It is a book which no student of Bible prophecy can afford to do without reading. Mr. Bullitt, without knowing it, puts the finger on such passages as Ezekiel 38 and 39 with unerring skill; even he wonders "if there is to be a long run on this earth for the human race." The clash of Soviet and Anglo-American interests in the Middle East and elsewhere is definitely cataclysmic.

"God, who at sundry times and in divers manners spake in time past unto the fathers by the prophets, hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son" (Hebrews 1:1, 2a).

Joseph's Dream

When Joseph's brothers heard his dream they hated him even more. (Gen. 37:5).

Joseph dreamed that he and his brothers were working together in a harvest field. They bound sheaves together in those days. (Now we have binders to tie the grain into bundles.) This was, no doubt, an experience Joseph and his brothers had had: working together, binding sheaves of grain.

In Joseph's dream, his sheaf stood up tall. The other brothers' sheaves stood up, too, but they bowed to Joseph's sheaf.

This dream made Joseph's brothers so angry they said, "Shalt thou indeed reign over us?" or "Shalt thou indeed have dominion over us?" They hated him still more for his dream and because he told them about it. (Gen. 37:8.)

Another Dream

Joseph dreamed again. It was so very real he had to tell it. This time he dreamed that the sun, moon, and eleven stars bowed to him. Now he had eleven brothers. This time his father scolded Joseph. He said, "Shall I and thy mother and thy brethren indeed come to bow down ourselves to thee to the earth?"

There was a difference in the way his father felt toward Joseph and the way his brothers felt toward him. The brothers envied him. His father took note of the dream. It reminds me of the way Jesus' mother "pondered" the things Jesus said, "in her heart."

God Spoke by Dreams

Our golden text informs us that God did speak to men in dreams. It also tells us that now He speaks through Jesus Christ His Son.

God spoke to still another young man in dreams. Daniel was brave enough to tell the king he would tell the king his dream as well as what it meant. The king was to give Daniel time. Time for what? Daniel wanted to tell his friends. Then they wanted to pray for God's mercy to be given to them. They did pray and God heard them.

The dream of the king was made known to Daniel. His dream was called a "night vision" (Dan. 2:19).

What did Daniel do when God answered their prayers? He thanked and praised Him. Daniel prayed: "I thank thee, and praise thee, O thou God of my fathers, who hast given me wisdom and might, and hast made known unto me now what we desired of thee: for thou hast now made known unto us the king's matter" (Dan. 2:23).

God Speaks Today

God speaks to us today by His Son. Jesus said He spoke the things His Father wanted Him to say. He obeyed His Father. We have the Word of God today. If we have God's Word in our hearts and minds, it will help us to live pure, clean lives before Him. "Thy word have I hid in mine heart, that I might not sin against thee" (Psalm 119:11). "Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path" (v. 105).

BEREAN DEPARTMENT

ARLEN MARSH - EDITOR

HOW to provide a suitable "road back" for the children and young people who, during the war years, have been allowed to develop into holy terrors? How to control gangs of boys and girls from six to twelve, gangs that have stolen, smashed property, beaten old people, even committed murder?

Statistics that talk of this per cent and that per cent of criminals lying within this age group or that are group are largely worthless. We deal with individuals, not with masses. Masses take their tone from individuals.

What can the Church of God, and Bereans in particular, do about juvenile delinquency? James M. Watkins, when pastor of the Eldorado, Illinois, Church of God, found a partial answer when he began a kind of club for boys, followed by a similar arrangement for girls, in his home town.

It was sponsored by his church group. A garage was provided free of charge by one man. Boys met there, under the supervision of Mr. Watkins, to build things and do things and play things and talk about things of interest to boys. Not boys from the Church of God church and Sunday school exclusively—just boys. It was good advertising for the church; it was Christianity put into operation; it surrounded boys, who otherwise would be "on the town," with definitely religious influences, and turned their thoughts to God instead of to robbery and arson.

It really isn't worth it, boys—old and young! The average "profit" from theft is less than 25 cents a day. Prison records show that the average thief, counting the time lost in jail and at trials, "cleans up" in his illegal work less than the amount named—25 cents a day! And he can't strike for higher wages or better working conditions, either! Really, "CRIME DOESN'T PAY!"

There's a comment, too, adopted from the Brush Creek, Ohio, Berean paper, that can be used in teaching practical Christianity. We live amid materialism of the worst sort; we worship the high wage scale as men once worshiped Zeus. Boys—and girls—can appreciate Christian living now when they are taught that it "pays off" and is not simply for the goody-goody.

Mrs. Beth Hardesty, secretary of the National Berean Society, has chosen to act as a Girl Scoutmaster as her contribution to the welfare of her local younger set. There are still thousands of areas, however, without the influence of Christian leaders who can guide children and young people toward God. Almost invariably, the Church of God—and the Bereans—have managed somehow to pass up their opportunities for service.

Vit-Em-In classes have been created here and there by Mrs. Verna C. Thayer, child evangelist for National Bible Institution. Really, these are junior Berean groups, and nothing more—but groups with a purpose. Classes held after school, Saturdays, whenever time seems to allow, have helped build into children a desire to worship Jehovah—and have done their bit to provide that "road back" from the hysteria and immorality of war.

For a time, when it was possible, the Rockford, Illinois, Church of God Sunday school sponsored weekly classes in religion at the Rockford Children's Home. It was the only regular religious training, then, the children had. Perhaps your local Berean group, in co-operation with your church and Sunday school, can find a chance to serve some home like that.

Gospel teams, made up of young people with an experienced leader, have worked from Oregon, Illinois; Southlawn Park, Grand Rapids, Michigan; and other Churches of God—and they have aroused interest among others while they have strengthened their own faith and developed their own talents. Is there a closed church near your town? Possibly you can get it open for a weekly or a semi-weekly meeting.

Wherever the opportunity for service lies, seek it out. It's the only cure for juvenile delinquency; it's the road back to Jehovah.

PENNELLWOOD CHURCH OF GOD Grand Rapids, Michigan

Sunday afternoon, September 20, a baptismal service was held at Buck Creek about two and one half miles southwest of the Pennellwood Church. We pray God's richest blessing to rest upon them.

Rally Day at the Pennellwood Sunday School will be October 6. Our goal is one hundred fifty present that day. For several years, the Sunday School Rally Day offering has been given to the New Church Building Fund, and we plan to do the same this year. The goal is one hundred fifty dollars for the Building Fund on Rally Day.

Bro. and Sr. Cecil Koon and family have moved to Roseburg, Ore., where they plan to make their home. Roseburg is about 112 miles south of Corvallis.

Sr. Gerald Bradley and her husband have moved to Florida.

The fall quarterly Conference in Illinois is planned for October 27 at Dixon. Keep the date in mind, and come if you can. Program will be announced later.

NEBRASKA TO TEXAS

Leaving Oregon, Ill., August 23, a stop was made overnight with the Iowa Conference, meeting at Waterloo. The next day brought me to Omaha for the Eastern Nebraska Conference. This being my first visit to the Omaha church, the work there was a real pleasure. This is one of the small groups which in the last few years has grown into a full-time pastorate. Under Bro. Robert Hardesty's devoted leadership, this congregation is growing and doing a fine work in the community. It was an inspiration to work with the conference there in association with Bro. C. E. Randall.

Starting southward on Labor Day, it was a pleasure to meet with Bro. J. P. Green and his group of believers at Kansas City, Mo., for the first time. A brief stop was made at the home of Sr. S. P. Wilson in Topeka, Kan., and an overnight visit at the home of Bro. and Sr. J. M. Morgan at Bristow, Okla.

On September 4 and 5, services were held at the Arch Schoolhouse, near the home of Bro. and Sr. W. R. Simmons, Hartshorne, Okla. Attendance was sufficient to seem to justify further work in this community.

Meetings were begun at the Ater church, near Gatesville, Tex., on September 7, and continued over the 15th. There was a good interest shown, and attendance was consistent, except for three nights when we were rained out. On two of these nights, the meeting was transferred to Gatesville and was held at the McCorkle home. On both Sundays, three services were held with dinner on the grounds. Several from a distance came. Weather was ideal except for the rainy nights. These people have been working under many discouragements, and they need our prayers. We hope the work has been strengthened, and that they will forge forward with new zeal.

At Ater, a movement was started to reorganize a state conference in Texas, and the brethren were interested enough to contribute more than $40.00 to start a state conference fund. If other churches are that much interested, there is no reason why there cannot be a conference next year.

Goldthwaite was the next stop, where Bro. I. A. Dyches extended a cordial welcome, and has been giving invaluable assistance in locating brethren in this vicinity. Together, we visited San Saba on September 18 and met with the Christadelphian brethren there, who graciously offered their church and requested services for the rest of the week. So, four nights of preaching were held there with finest co-operation, and this was one of my most enjoyable places of work. There was a good attendance all through. These folks have been using our quarterlies for some time past.

A series of meetings is now in progress at Mullin, beginning with three services on September 22. Here, too, the work is disorganized and needs revival. We hope to get a Sunday school organized here, also.

It is my purpose to visit as many of the churches and isolated members in Texas as time will permit. The work in this great State is very much like the conditions in Jerusalem at the time they were reported to Nehemiah. Pray for the Church of God in Texas.

When the Lord's return is so near, yea, even

PRISCILLA AUXILIARY—1946

During the General Conference at Oregon, Ill., the Priscilla Auxiliary held its fifth convention. An hour was chosen (12:45 p.m.) which would interfere least with other meetings and the twenty members who attended the six sessions felt that the program committee had presented a helpful schedule.

"Should I Do It?" "Come and Dine," "Nature's Mirror," and "Keeping Secrets" were presented by Inez Gordon, Mayne Jones, Mary Krogh and Grace Marsh on different days; and the discussion following each topic showed the interest of the listeners.

A resolution unanimously passed reads as follows: "In order to promote a greater degree of interest in Oregon Bible College among the brotherhood throughout the country, the Priscilla Auxiliary goes on record as urging the governing board to require the teachers to stress Christian living among the students in class and in general activities, both on and off the campus."

Another resolution unanimously adopted reads: "Resolved that active members of the Priscilla Auxiliary be only those women who are the wives of the ministers on the recognized list of the Ministerial Association, thus putting us in line with our Ministerial Association."

"That only those thus recognized as eligible members of the Priscilla Auxiliary shall pay dues:

"That the secretary be instructed to make the list of Priscilla Auxiliary members and collect dues in accordance with this resolution."

The election held on August 7, 1946, resulted as follows: president, Inez Gordon, Cleveland, Ohio; vice president, Thelma Gockler, Hector, Minn.; secretary-treasurer, Grace Marsh, Tipp City, Ohio. Retiring officers were: president, Grace Marsh; vice president, Flora Graham; secretary-treasurer, Thelma Gockler.

A supper in Mix Park sponsored by the Priscilla Auxiliary for ministers families brought together a group of fifty six and the committee was given a vote of thanks for the delicious supper. The deep appreciation of the group also goes to Bro. and Sr. F. L. Austin who graciously opened their home for an evening of song and refreshment.

Twenty paid dues (25 cents per year) and after the expenses of the meeting were paid, the treasury shows a balance of $17.58.

Titus 2:3-5 was the keynote text of our meeting and may God grant that each has received the help most needed to make her a better minister's wife.

Grace M. Marsh, Secy.-Treas.

INDIANA QUARTERLY CONFERENCE

The Indiana State Quarterly Conference was held September 8 and 9 at the Hillsburg Church of God, near Michigantown.

The business meeting was opened by song, "Go Forward," and prayer by Bro. Alva Huffer.

The secretary's report was read by Sr. Mildred Macy, in the absence of our secretary, Sr. Erma McChesney. Report was accepted as read. Due to the absence of the treasurer, Bro. Dale Rouch, the treasurer's report was not read; however, the report later was given to the president.

All committee reports were called for. Our president, Bro. Willard Naylor, reported on new dormitory facilities at North Salem. The asbestos roll siding had been put on, and plans were being made to improve the bedding facilities, drive a new well, obtain a gas water heater, and overhaul the electric pump.

There was open discussion on church parking and recreational facilities at North Salem. Our president then appointed Bros. Rolland Stilson, chairman, Elmer McChesney, and Charles Warren to investigate the possibilities of obtaining more ground for conference parking and playground. Also, this committee, is to check on the probabilities of a four-lane highway on Road 31, in front of the church, and its effect on church and conference activities. Mention also was made of prewar discussion of possibility of purchasing the ground across the road, in event widening of Road 31 hampered church activities.

Bro. Delbert Jones suggested the Indiana Conference promote a youth rally. Perhaps a "good-will caravan" for the State, pepping up the youth and with churches giving special numbers, and teaching to relieve the local talent at local Bible schools. A committee was chosen: Bros. Delbert Jones, chairman; Alva Huffer, and James Watkins.

The Bible School for 1947 is in the making. Bro. Sydney E. Magaw has been engaged as visiting minister, and as teacher for one adult and one senior class daily. Bro. Naylor appointed Bro. Emory Maey, chairman, and all Indiana ministers as committee members, to map out definite class programs and subjects for these classes for the Bible School, and make recommendations and report at the next quarterly conference.

Bro. Maey asked that the Indiana State Conference Board and Program Committee give Bro. James Watkins a definite period to present his work, inasmuch as he has been hired as Promotional Director of National Bible Institution. This suggestion was accepted wholeheartedly, and Bro. Watkins is to receive a personal invitation to our State Conference and Bible School.

Bro. Alva Huffer was appointed to act as a one-man committee for Bible School recreation and possibly Dean of Boys for the Bible School. Sr. Nora Anderson, subject to her acceptance, was designated as Matron and Dean of the girls.

There is to be a musical director to plan special numbers and direct an orchestra.

Bro. Alva Huffer suggested that some slogan, policy, or plan be adopted by the Conference and that all churches work toward the one plan or program. Favorable discussion followed.

The meeting adjourned with prayer by Bro. Emory Maey.

(Mrs.) Erma McChesney, Secy.

COLLEGE NEWS

The College was the recipient of an extremely beneficial gift this past week. Miss Alta Samuelson, music instructor at the College, donated to us a Schiller upright grand piano. All the College is deeply grateful to Miss Samuelson for this most useful gift.

The staff for the College bulletin was appointed this past week by the editor-in-chief, Kirby Davis. They are: news editor, Milton Hall; circulation manager, Rand Smith; reporters, Shirley Lagsdon and Arnold Johns. The first issue will be published early in October. The staff for "Marnatha" also was appointed this past week by the editor-in-chief of the College annual, Howard Beemer. They are: business manager, Edwin Smith; art director, Gordon Laundry; sports editor, Timothy Pearson; circulation manager, Warren Sorenson. We hope to publish the annual early in May of next year. Anyone desiring an annual may write to Edwin Smith, Oregon Bible College, Oregon, Ill.

Three more students arrived, recently, at the College. They are: Harry and Irene Payne from Fonthill, Ont., and Raymond Brown, Baraga, Mich. We are all very pleased to have them with us, and hope that they will enjoy college life as much as we do. Harry and Irene had a bit of trouble getting here, due to red tape of one sort and another, but the main thing is that they are here.

The library is beginning to take shape again—at long last. There is much yet to be done, of course, but a start has been made. We find that the College library is lacking many necessary reference books. These books are essential to our class work in the religious studies. Many of them are no longer available at the book stores. Therefore, we would appreciate it very much if any reader having any of the volumes listed below, and not needing same, would send them to us. Some of the books most needed are:

Companion Bible, Bullinger.

A Critical Lexicon and Concordance, Bullinger.

Analytical Greek Lexicon, Bagster & Sons. Emphatic Diaglott, Benjamin Wilson's edition.

The Early Days of Christianity, Farrar. The Great High Priest (2 vols.), Sapphire. Figures of Speech used in the Bible, Bullinger.

Number in Scripture, Bullinger.

The Witness of the Stars, Bullinger.

Cruden's Concordance, Cruden.

Directed Speech, Whitney. Speech, Brigance.

Your Everyday Speech, Brigance. Speech-making, Brigance and Immel.

The Art of Effective Speaking, Gislason. Source Book of American Church History, G. P. Mole.

All of Bullinger's works probably are "out of print" and, therefore, cannot be bought. Since these books are so valuable to a student library, we would doubly appreciate any books along this line that could be spared. In fact, any reference books at all, whether they are listed above or not, would be extremely valuable to the students and much appreciated. Please send any books that you may have along to us, Oregon Bible College, Oregon, Ill. We, both students and faculty, will be very much indebted and grateful to you for any assistance you may be able to render.

W. Howard Beemer, Reporter.

THE AMERICAN AND CANADIAN NIAGARA FALLS

Niagara River (34 miles long) joins Lake Erie and Lake Ontario. Below the city of Niagara Falls, the River enters into a series of rapids, the great falls of the River, and a second series of rapids, totaling a drop of about three hundred twenty-six feet.

On the left of the picture appears the American Falls (165 feet high; 1400 feet wide), and on the right appears the Canadian or Horseshoe Falls (155 feet high; 2600 feet wide). Goat Island divides the River and separates the Falls. Since 1925, the Falls have been illuminated every evening (except during the War) by means of searchlights on the Canadian side. Cutting force of the current causes the Falls to recede about five feet per year, and the American Falls gradually are taking the shape of a horseshoe after pattern of their peer, the Canadian Horseshoe Falls. . . . Not far from this natural creation of God, two of His spiritual creations reflect His glory—Churches of God at Fonthill, Ontario, and Niagara Falls, New York.

Entered as second class matter at the Post Office at Oregon, Illinois, under act of March, 1879. Mailed weekly, except the fourth Tuesday of August and the last Tuesday of December.

Physical and Spiritual Beauty

The American and Canadian Niagara Falls comprise one of the wonders and beauty places of God's creation. Occasionally, a visitor to the Falls is disappointed, yet, as he watches the rolling and tumbling volumes of water, he is likely to become entranced. The Falls "grow on you." Similarly, spiritual beauty may not be overwhelmingly apparent at first, but it, too, grows on one. Many faithful members of the Church of God live within short distances from the Falls. Brother C. E. Randall, Fonthill, Ontario, is their leader for many years. His work is bearing a thousandfold more valuable to God than the waters. Greetings, Brother Randall! Greetings to members at Fonthill and Niagara Falls! In his writing, Brother James M. Watkins, Promotor of National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois, is assisting Brother C. E. Randall in a series of evangelistic meetings at Fonthill. May the Lord bless this effort. May His beauty constantly attract more people!

A Place to "Do Good"

Brother Gerald L. Cooper, 611 Maple Avenue, Tempe, Arizona, though enjoying a fair measure of health, is unable physically to work, and he is required to meet certain medical expenses. More than a year ago, the Executive Board authorized our presenting the name of Brother Cooper to our readers as one deserving financial assistance. Brethren responded well at that time. Recently, however, word has come to us that Brother Cooper's "monetary backing is running out fast."

Brethren may be assured that Brother Cooper has not requested this editorial. Indeed, he has no knowledge of it being written. His need is mentioned here only as an opportunity for interested persons to "do good," especially unto one who is "of the household of faith" (Gal. 6:10).

Grateful to God

Gratefully, we report an enrollment of seventeen young men and young women at Oregon Bible College. Notwithstanding problems, shortcomings, and disappointments, it is increasingly apparent that God has been good in blessing the College with many new lives. Following is a roll call of the students:

W. Howard Beemer, Saint Catharines, Ontario
 Mary Brown, Baraga, Michigan
 Raymond Brown, Baraga, Michigan
 Kirby Davis, Wenatchee, Washington
 Bud Goodwin, Milwaukee, Wisconsin
 Milon Hall, Oregon, Illinois
 Arnold Johns, Scribner, Nebraska
 Janice Johns, Scribner, Nebraska
 Gordon Landry, Hammond, Louisiana
 Shirley Logsdon, Oregon, Illinois
 Harry Payne, Fonthill, Ontario
 Irene Payne, Thorold, Ontario
 (Mrs.) LaVonne Pearson, South Bend, Indiana
 Timothy Pearson, South Bend, Indiana
 Edwin Smith, Tipp City, Ohio
 Rand Smith, Lincoln, Nebraska
 Warren Sorenson, Omaha, Nebraska

Instructors in the School are Otto E. Dick, F. L. Austin, Mrs. Benjamin Carpenter, Miss Alta Samelson, and your Editor. Brother and Sister Albert Logsdon are the campus superintendent and matron—Sister Edna Gruber assisting "Mom" Logsdon.

This first-semester course of studies includes: Religious Journalism, Old Testament Studies, Religious Psychology, Composition, Public Speaking (Otto E. Dick, instructor); Apostolic History (F. L. Austin, instructor); Religious Art (Mrs. Benjamin Carpenter, instructor); Vocal Lessons—private and group singing (Miss Alta Samelson, instructor); History of the Hebrews, New Testament Interpretative Studies, Office Work of a Pastor (Sydney E. Magaw, instructor).

There is a happy and optimistic spirit on the College campus—somewhat of a family spirit. Assisting in that family spirit are four brother and sister sets of students: Mary and Raymond Brown, Arnold and Janice Johns, Harry and Irene Payne, LaVonne Sorenson Pearson and Warren Sorenson.

For Oregon Bible College, we are grateful to God.

The Sabbath Question

In Two Parts—Part One

By Emma C. Railsback (Los Angeles, California)

IN A CONTROVERSY with a Sabbathkeeper some thirty-five years ago, we learned much about the erroneous claims made by that devout but deluded group of people. This man assumed the role of teacher and he labored long and diligently to impress upon our mind the importance of a strict observance of the seventh day. When we inquired about how he disposed of the Apostle Paul's statements that the Old Covenant law was "done away" (2 Cor. 3:6, 13, 14; read entire chapter), was "abolished" (Eph. 2:15), "ended" (Rom. 10:4), "fulfilled" (Matt. 5:17), "vanished" (Heb. 8:13), "nailed to the cross" (Col. 2:14), he became quite eloquent in his efforts to convince us that the Law of God and the Law of Moses were two different laws. The Law of God he said was the Ten Commandments written on the tables of stone, while the Law of Moses was the ceremonial law which had been done away, as Paul had stated. But, we objected, the two phrases are used interchangeably in the Scriptures and always refer to the same thing. In Luke 2:22 and 23, we find the Law of Moses mentioned in one verse and the Law of the Lord referring to the same circumstance in the next verse. Then, too, in Nehemiah 8:1, 8, 18, these expressions are used: in verse 1, the "book of the law of Moses," and in verses 8 and 18, the "book of the law of God." If we wish to know what this book of the law contained, we can find it in Exodus 24:3-7, where we are told that it contained all the words of the Lord. A careful study of the two phrases, "law of God" and "law of Moses," will show conclusively that it was all God's law, but was sometimes referred to as Moses' law because God had given it to Israel through Moses, he being the mediator between God and Israel.

When this fact has been established, the Sabbathkeepers' theory concerning what has been abolished becomes null and void. This man had declared positively that "the ministration of death written and engraven in stones . . . which was done away" (2 Cor. 3:7) could not possibly refer to the Ten Commandments, but that it referred to an altar of stones that Joshua (Josh. 8:30-32) had builded after entering Canaan. We informed him that if he wished to see it that way in order to defend a false theory, we could do no better than to point him to Paul's statement in 2 Corinthians 3:13 that Moses coming down from the mountain with the tables of stone, put a veil over his face, that Israel might look upon him. (Ex. 34:29-35.) Therefore, the unavoidable conclusion was that the tables of stone on which the Ten Commandments were written was "done away."

In other texts, we find the Apostle explaining that no flesh can be justified by the works of the law (Gal. 2:16), that no one can become righteous by attempting to keep it (Rom. 3:10), that it cannot make perfect (Heb. 9:9), nor give life to anyone (Gal. 3:21), that it is our schoolmaster to bring us to Christ, that it is impossible for sinful man to save himself by trying to keep the law. He declares that the law was holy and the commandment was just and good. He explains that the weakness was not in the law, but in the flesh. When men come fully to realize their utter inability to keep a perfect law, they will begin to look for the salvation that comes only through faith in Christ.

In Romans 7, we find Paul making further explanation to those who knew the law: that it had dominion over them as long as they live—that is, as long as they are in Adam, or until they have died a figurative death in being baptized into Christ. After which, he said, "Ye are become dead to the law" and are no longer married to Moses, but have taken Christ for a husband. Again, he said Christ is the "end of the law" for righteousness to every one that believes.

Sabbathkeepers have invented a clever dodge by making the above-mentioned unscriptural distinction between the Law of God and the Law of Moses. In Hebrews 10:28, where Paul declared that "he that despised Moses' law died without mercy under two or three witnesses," he called the Ten Commandments the law of Moses instead of the law of God as Sabbathkeepers claim. For proof, read Numbers 15:32-36, which is the account of an Israelite violating the fourth commandment by picking up sticks on the Sabbath day, for which he was stoned to death. Another emphatic statement appears in 2 Chronicles 33:8, to the effect that the whole law and the statutes and the ordinances were given by the hand of Moses.

We will deal with some other phases of this important subject in the next issue of our paper. We have been getting a number of inquiries concerning this subject and we knew that many unwary are being deluded into accepting the false teaching.

The Layman's Minister

By C. E. Lapp (Tempe, Arizona)

SEVERAL months ago, I sent a questionnaire to THE RESTITUTION HERALD under the title, "Let the Layman Speak." The primary purpose was to secure answers from a number of the brethren and present those answers to the Ministerial Conference for their consideration. The paper was sent to the Conference but failed to be read when it was resented to one of the ministers who had to leave Conference early.

These responses have been tabulated, and, while they cannot be said to show what is the mind of the whole church, they will serve to show general trends of thought among the brethren. They have been listed upon a percentage basis, and here they are:

(30) Should a minister be allowed extra money to buy books and office equipment? 68%, yes. 12%, no. 4%, yes, if books are left in church. 12%, pay sufficient salary so pastor can buy books.

(31) To whom should your minister be answerable in case of misconduct? Local church board, state conference, General Conference? 40%, local church. 32%, General Conference. 28%, to all. Balance, undecided.

(32) Do you feel your minister is in a profession the same as a doctor, lawyer, school teacher, or engineer? 76%, yes. 16%, no. 12%, above all others.

(33) By whom should a new minister be examined before ordination—ministers or laymen? 56%, by ministers. 32%, by both. 4%, laymen.

(34) If rigid examinations for other professions must be met, do you believe higher standards should be set for the ministers? 80%, yes. 8%, no. One answer: "The ministers of the Church of God need more spiritual consecration and not so much emphasis on head knowledge."

(35) Should a church, when seeking a pastor, ask a number of men, and then take the one who will come for the least money? 88%, no. 4%, yes. 8%, not as a rule.

(36) Do you think a minister should have a private study where he can discuss personal problems with members of the church? 88%, yes. Balance, undecided.

(38) Would you favor a uniform salary to ministers of equal experience and training to be paid from a central office? 20%, yes. 60%, no. 8%, possibly.

(39) Should a rural pastor receive the same salary as the equivalent of a city pastor? 48%, yes. 12%, no. 12%, depends on circumstances. One answer: "Mount Sinai is always up. Give the minister a high remuneration. Let him live!"

(40) Is a church ahead or behind by changing pastors often? 72%, behind. 12%, depends on circumstances. Some said, "It could be either."

(41) How much time of notice should the church give the pastor or the pastor give the church, if either is thinking of a change? [No answers submitted; may be a new question.—Editor.]

In tabulating these answers, I have tried to put in the full percentages, but many did not answer all the questions, so I had to leave out some. These answers may be interpreted to show trends in the thinking of our Church.

Some letters accompanied the answers and I will quote excerpts from some of them:

"Married ministers are desirable, for there are a lot less complications, and a wife is a great help."

"I think one way we could help our pastors more would be to pray for them, and, instead of being critical all the time about the things a pastor does not get done, we should help him more by making calls and entering whole-heartedly into the things he is trying to do. Most people sit back and expect the minister to do all the work (because he gets paid for it) and then criticize when the church does not increase by leaps and bounds."

"I would like to suggest more consecration and holy living on the part of the ministry. Our ministers (some of them) have been known to preach good sermons and then undo all the good gained by telling risque stories, etc. Of course, these same things apply to all of us who have named the name of Christ. Most of us do not take our 'high calling' seriously enough."

"I think a minister should do more than give a Sunday-night sermon. I would want a minister that would have a prayer service, Bible study, teacher-training class, choir if he had musical talent, a desire to interest youth in church work, and he would have to be missionary minded."

"Groups of people need to mingle—get 'em together often in homes, halls, on picnics, suppers, etc. If money is made, OK!"

"If a minister is paid at least a living salary by one church, this is his job; if part time, let him live!" "A minister should be paid by the term he serves—3 months or 30 years. One sent out to enjoy life will return greater more interesting, happier, alive!"

"Ministers should spend a week end at another church at least once every 3 months. Let the members get acquainted with their ministering brethren; then, should a change be profitable, a church would know where to look."

"Long-faced, fearful, cantankerous barkers of sin and evil are not needed in the pulpit—rather, Spirit-filled, educated, tolerant, courteous, courageous, Christlike heroes are!"

Sowing the Word

By P. W. Buzek (Cleveland, Ohio)

*"In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God" (John 1:1).
Let Christians sow that Word throughout the World!*

THE TITLE of our article, "Sowing the Word," derives from Christ's Parable of the Sower. There are three Gospel accounts of this Parable. We have chosen as a basis to this article the record appearing in Mark 4:3-8, 14-25.

In this Parable of the Sower, our Lord described the different ways men would receive His gospel. His teaching was then a new doctrine in the world. No one, unless inspired of God, could have foretold how men would receive it. It might have been thought that a doctrine so pure and so calculated to make men happy and to enjoy God's favor would have been embraced at once, and forever held fast by all who heard it. Our Lord, however, knew men's hearts too well to think thus.

While Christ, by His faithful ministers, sows good seed—the pure gospel—the Adversary by his servants sows the bad seed of false doctrine. If one does not possess and love the truth, he will cling to his own foolish imaginations—to whatever errors he has been taught. Bad seed is sown cunningly by the Enemy. He often employs persons who appear to be religious, so the hearers are deceived into believing they are receiving good seed. No seed is good, however, except the doctrines of the Scripture.

How carefully and prayerfully all Christians should study the Scriptures! Said Paul: "Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth" (2 Tim. 2:15). To become efficient in sowing the Word of God, it is necessary, therefore, to study. Read the Bible daily, endeavoring to understand its meaning. Above all, upon your knees pray to God to give knowledge, understanding, and wisdom, that you may not be ashamed when the Lord returns.

In one of the Gospel accounts, Jesus said: "He that soweth the good seed is the Son of man." In Mark 4:3, introducing the Parable, Jesus used the word, "Behold." He meant that men should hearken to what He had to say, to fix their eyes and ears upon Him and His message. He wanted them to observe with care the meaning of His message; to be interested in it; to love and cherish it as their greatest treasure.

According to verse 4, some of the seed "fell by the way side." How many people in these dark days are falling by the wayside! Jesus explained that persons who fall by the wayside are those who hear, then allow sin to enter into their hearts. Like those compared to the seed sown on stony ground, these, too, have only little root, receiving the Truth with joy, but because they lack interest, they do not study to show themselves "approved unto God." They are not deep-rooted in the Truth. They do not ask, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" Today, men reverse the ancient question. Having passed through the water of baptism, instead of asking the question, "What wilt thou have me to do?" they say, "I have been baptized; now what wilt thou do for me?"

Verse 6 reveals that, when affliction or persecution arises, certain Christians immediately are offended. If anything goes wrong, they blame the Lord. When they have health, strength, and home, do they thank the Lord?

Verse 7 speaks of some seed falling among thorns, where the thorns grow rank, choke the seed of truth as it tries to grow, so truth can yield no fruit. I like the way Luke recorded this part of the Parable, saying: "That which fell among thorns are they, which, when they have heard, go forth, and are choked with cares and riches and pleasures of this life, and bring no fruit to perfection." So it is today—no time, no time for the Lord's work! The gods of the multitudes are, as the Lord foretold, riches and pleasures and the things of this world. These are men's idols today.

Hear, then, the Apostle Paul's question: "What agreement hath the temple of God with idols? for ye are the temple of the living God: as God hath said, I will dwell in them, and walk in them; and I will be their God, and they shall be my people" (2 Cor. 6:17). Then Paul pleaded, "Wherefore, come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing; and I will receive you."

In Matthew 13:37-40, Jesus explained that "the field is the world; the good seed are the children of the kingdom; but the tares are the children of the wicked one. The enemy that sowed them is the Devil; the harvest is the end of the world; and the reapers are the angels." Then Jesus said, "As therefore the tares are gathered and burned in the fire; so shall it be in the end of this world."

Yes, wheat and tares often resemble, so it is difficult to distinguish one from the other. Why would the Lord forbid His servants to pull up the tares? It was for fear that SOWING THE WORD. "Hearken; Behold, there went out a sower to sow: and it came to pass, as he sowed, some fell by the way side, and the fowls of the air came and devoured it up. And some fell on stony ground, where it had not much earth; and immediately it sprang up, because it had no depth of earth: but when the sun was up, it was scorched; and because it had no root, it withered away. And some fell among thorns, and the thorns grew up, and choked it, and it yielded no fruit. And other fell on good ground, and did yield fruit that sprang up and increased; and brought forth, some thirty, and some sixty, and some an hundred. . . .

"The sower soweth the word. And these are they by the way side, where the word is sown; but when they have heard, Satan cometh immediately, and taketh away the word that was sown in their hearts. And these are they likewise which are sown on stony ground; who, when they have heard the word, immediately receive it with gladness; and have no root in themselves, and so endure but for a time: afterward, when affliction or persecution ariseth for the word's sake, immediately they are offended. And these are they which are sown among thorns; such as hear the word, and the cares of this world, and the deceitfulness of riches, and the lusts of other things entering in, choke the word, and it becometh unfruitful. And these are they which are sown on good ground; such as hear the word, and receive it, and bring forth fruit, some thirty-fold, some sixty, and some an hundred.

"And he said unto them, Is a candle brought to be put under a bushel, or under a bed? and not to be set on a candlestick? For there is nothing hid, which shall not be manifested; neither was any thing kept secret, but that it should come abroad. If any man have ears to hear, let him hear. And he said unto them, Take heed what ye hear: with what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you; and unto you that hear shall more be given. For he that hath, to him shall be given: and he that hath not, from him shall be taken even that which he hath." (Mark 4:3-8.)

they might be mistaken in their judgment and pull up wheat instead of tares. The servants in Christ's Parable represent God's ministers, but even God's ministers cannot always distinguish between true and false believers. Only God knows the heart. He knows them who are His and He knows with certainty. The hour will arrive when the true character of everyone will be made known. Today, a hypocrite may appear even better than the child of God, and he who seems to be a meek child of God may be a hypocrite. There is a difference in their hearts, though, and that difference will cause them to be separated from each other throughout all eternity.

God will give His angels wisdom to discern between the righteous and the wicked; the angels will separate persons who have partaken of the same ordinances and lived in the same family. "Be not deceived; God is not mocked; for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap" (Gal. 6:7). Indeed, even today the world is reaping, in a measure, what it has been sowing.

Have you ever found seed growing in your garden that you had not sown? You wondered, perhaps, as to how it came to be there. I have read of birds carrying seed for hundreds of miles, and how the wind blows seed great distances. Somewhat similarly, one may marvel at the manner in which the Word of God has been sown throughout different parts of the world. A member of the church, or even a friend of the true Faith, moves to some distant part of the country. Seeds of truth are sown. Soon, a church of the true Faith is established. It seems, indeed, that God sometimes scatters His children to the end that they will sow the Word of truth in earth's remote places. In Acts 8, we read that there was a great persecution scattering Christians throughout the land, and they sowed the gospel seed as they went. "Therefore they that were scattered abroad went everywhere preaching the word."

Christians must be very careful as to how and what they sow. Consider the following texts:

"This I say, He which soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly; and he which soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully" (2 Cor. 9:6).

"They that sow in tears shall reap in joy. He that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him" (Psalm 126:5, 6).

"Preach the word; be instant in season, out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort with all longsuffering and doctrine. For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine; but after their own lusts shall they heap to themselves teachers, having itching ears; and they shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables. But watch thou in all things, endure afflictions, do the work of an evangelist, make full proof of thy ministry" (2 Tim. 4:2-5).

Jesus once asked, "Is a candle brought to be put under a bushel, or under a bed? and not to be set on a candlestick?" (Mark 4:21.) The Lord (Please turn to page 11)

IMPEDIMENTS. The long struggle to break the bonds of marriage in the Episcopal communion met with success at the recent convention held in Philadelphia. It is now permissible for the bishop to declare certain marriages as being "inconsistent with canonical marriage" and thereby proclaim the former marriage contract as invalid and without any binding power. The list of impediments that constitute grounds for such a declaration is quite long and gives the bishop considerable latitude for rendering a decision to the liking of most anyone. The impediments are given as follows: "Consanguinity; mistaken identity; mental deficiency—sufficient to prevent the exercise of choice; insanity; failure of either party to have reached the age of puberty; impotence; perversion, or venereal disease undisclosed to either party; bigamy; a concurrent contract inconsistent with canonical marriage (such as companionate marriage agreement); fraud; coercion; duress, or such defects of the personality as to make competent or free consent impossible."

The church has yielded to the pressure of the times, and is giving the people what they want. The decision to fling wide the gates of the church on the divorce question was not inspired by an enlarged Biblical interpretation, but by urgings of apostate Christendom.

INTERNATIONAL COMMUNISM. Speaking in Montreal a few days ago, Msgr. Sheen, noted Catholic educator, lecturer, and prelate, declared: "International Communism is a menace more terrible than most imagine." At this point in his address he quoted the words of Stalin: "I shall never celebrate another birthday until I have achieved world revolution." One might suspicion the Mon-signor of being prejudiced due to the conflict between Catholicism and Communism, yet the facts which he brings forth are so bold and dangerously true one cannot help being impressed with the situation. He further said: "The fact that from July, 1945, to the fourth of August, 1946, Russia had dissolved twenty-seven treaties of peace and that while the armies of Canada, Great Britain, and United States are only a reserve force, over twelve and one half million men are under arms in Russia and the factories in Czechoslovakia are producing more arms than during the war."

WAR OF NERVES. Turkey's military forces are under orders to be on the "extreme alert" following Russia's latest demand for joint-defense of the Dardanelles. This latest note to Turkey, which was on September 24, was the same day that Stalin issued his statement that "No war is likely at the present." As the pressure on Turkey was renewed, the resistance movement in Greece by the Communists under the pseudonym of "freedom fighters" is renewed. All through the Middle East—Iran, Syria, Turkey, and Greece—a methodical war of nerves has been waged for months by Russia as she has shifted from "front to front" revolutionary activities of her adherents in these areas. The significant fact about all this is the place it has in the prophetic scheme of things. That Russia is to be the "chief prince" over these countries in the final gathering of the nations in the Valley of Jehoshaphat leads one to feel that this time is not far in the future, as the net of leadership is thrust around these same nations by the "chief prince." Every paper given to current events throws light on the shape of things to come as outlined in the "sure word of prophecy."

SUNDAY DINNER. This terse and to-the-point comment of the "Christian Advocate" is worthy careful reading by one and all. It follows:

"There is an uncomfortable bit of truth in the weary comment of an overworked pastor who sighed when he said, 'The membership of the average church is the greatest missionary field on earth.'"

"The police records of every city in America will show that the problem of juvenile delinquency is by no means restricted to the slum areas. Children from some of the best homes in every city are falling into the hands of the police and juvenile authorities, for no other reason than that parents are not accepting their responsibilities for their own children."

"We venture a positive assertion, in the confidence that hundreds of thousands of American parents need desperately to awaken to its truthfulness: No Sunday dinner, no Saturday night bridge club, no lodge meeting, no Sunday picnic, no out-of-town pleasure trip, no amusement is as important in the life of a parent as the responsibility for providing religious and moral training for his child."

"In our opinion there is a serious need for some extremely straight preaching, as well as for some courageous pastoral work at this very point. Thousands of church mothers need to be told in plain terms that no Sunday dinner is as important as their presence in the church school with their children. It may even be necessary for someone so far to trespass upon the privacy of some homes that they shall say to some parents, 'You have no right to a child you are unwilling to train.'"

MUSK OX. Last spring, the Canadian and United States Governments conducted joint operations in what was called the "Musk Ox Expedition" into the Northland to test certain army and air force equipment in the defense of the northern part of the Continent. Another trip is being planned by the two Governments. The military might of these two neighborly countries is being co-ordinated and the services of both nations will be trained according to the same rules and tactics and with the same equipment. Who do you suppose they expect might attack them from the north? and against whom do you think it is considered necessary to prepare the Northland? Could it be the Bear of the North?

NUERNBERG. The Nuernberg trials are finished. It is the first time in history that such trials have been held and war has been legally dealt with as crime. In all history, there has not been such atrocious crimes committed as those with which the Nazis were guilty. Of these the Jews were the worst sufferers. The punishment which will be meted out to the ring leaders will not be a "just recompense of reward." The final distribution of justice must await the day when the secrets of the hearts of men are made known. God will render even to the Nazis their just deserts.

THE PRAYER WAY. Some time ago, I listened to a talk by the head of the Toronto Bible College explaining the work of the School and the way the work was conducted by the responsible officers. He said the Board never voted on a matter that came before it. They talked the matter over—prayed about it and in this way came to a mutual and common agreement without a vote. Until this spirit of unanimity of action was reached, the matter before them was not acted upon. Surely this is "maintaining the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace." When people enter into the chambers of prayer with a will to discover the right thing to do—God will make the better way known.

IMMINENT RETURN. There seems to be no loophole for doubt that the return of Christ is at hand, even at the doors. Just when this event will become a reality is not for me to say. While believing in the nearness of the coming of Christ, there is one precaution for which we need to fortify ourselves, and that is indifference to activity because of our belief that the Lord's coming is near. People are inclined to say: "Why make plans for the future, if the Lord's coming is at hand?"

Some years ago, a leader in another denomination which believes strongly in the Lord's soon return, said to a pastor of his fellowship who was building a new church, "I cannot bestow my blessing on your work, for I believe the Lord is due to appear and it would be a sign of a lack of faith on my part." If the rest of the leaders of this group had taken such a view, they would not have today schools and colleges, missionary work, and an evangelistic effort that is carrying their message far and wide. The imminency of the return of Christ should inspire people to greater labor, built around the soundest of working principles and fill with a zeal that would energize every last soul. The worker for Christ is a better example of one who believes in the soon return of Christ than the advocate that whiles away his time.

Notes in an Old Bible

By Alfred Anthon (Corvallis, Oregon)

"Much more then, being justified by his blood, we shall be saved from wrath through him" (Rom. 5:9).

THE WRITER lives "way up and out" here in the great Northwest—all the way from "way down south" in Louisiana, and the "Jim Crow Law." Having been reared in the extreme South, early teaching and environment instilled into me that anyone not believing in Jim Crow Law is not a good white citizen. Now, with this introduction, we shall write, parabolically, to explain the text of Romans 5:9.

Suppose, while I am up here in the Northwest, a fellow should come to me with a paper to sign, a petition praying the governor of Louisiana to pardon an old man by the name of Askenaz. This old man Askenaz is the white man, let us suppose, who hanged a Negro at the "Hollow."

Because of my early training, probably very little urging would be required to induce me to sign the petition. Just suppose, though, that, instead of the petition praying for the pardon of a white man who hanged a Negro, the petition actually was praying for the pardon of a Negro who had hanged my only son, spilling my only son's blood in the ground, though my son had done only good deeds, and good deeds for that very Negro who committed the crime. Would it be easy for me to sign the petition for the pardon of that Negro criminal? Would I be likely to sign the petition?

Look, though! This is a paraphrase of the relationship between God and man.

The Man who by other men was hanged on Golgotha's cross was not one of their own class—not a sinful man, not the son of Joseph. The crucifixion of our Lord was not the spilling of a sinful man's blood into the dust. Had that been true, men reasonably might have gone to God in petitioning Him to pardon the murderers, for it could be reasoned that the One put to death "wasn't much anyway"—just another sinful man. In that instance, it would not have required such big-heartedness on God's part to pardon the criminals. Please notice, however, the Man slain was God's only Son—God's sinless Son. Now, will God pardon? If He does, surely God possesses the biggest possible heart.

One cannot imagine a severer test of a father's big-heartedness than to slay his only son, then immediately turn around and ask that father to forgive—to forgive the slayers who killed the one, too, who was doing good, and the father's will, for the murderers. Had the "only son" been doing something abusive to his murderers, one can conceive easily how that father could be induced to overlook their crime. Jesus, though, was doing good. He was doing the Father's will. He was healing all manner of diseases. He was pleading with men to accept His blessings.

Let us return, now, to our parable. Let us resurrect the Negro and ask him to sign the petition pardoning the old man Askenaz. . . . Did he do it? Or, let us resurrect my only son and ask him to sign a petition to pardon the Negro who murdered him. Would my son sign the petition to pardon his Negro slayer? Not likely!

Well, Jesus was God's only Son—God's sinless Son. That only and sinless Son was crucified by sinners. Then Jesus was resurrected, and His murderers did ask Him to sign a petition, praying God to pardon them. Did Jesus sign it? Yes, indeed! Hear our Lord's loving prayer! Hear Him sign the petition for their acquittal! "Father, forgive them"! cried Jesus,

"for they know not what they do." Indeed, Jesus did not wait until after His resurrection, and in a moment of glorious exultation, to offer such a petition. Being yet in agony on the cross, He prayed for His enemies!

In substance, Jesus was praying: "O God, let not this deed of my enemies decide their fate for eternity. Work among them a while longer. Let me work among them some more. Let us prove to them, though they are crucifying me, that we, Father, are big-hearted enough, and

I MET MY MASTER

"I had walked life's path with an easy tread,
I had followed where comfort and pleasure led,
Until by chance, one day in a quiet place,
I met my Master face to face.

"I had built my castles and reared them high;
Till their towers pierced the blue of the sky.
I had sworn to rule with an iron mace,
When I met my Master face to face.

"I met Him and knew Him and blushed to see
That His eyes full of sorrow were fixed on me,
And I paused and fell at His feet that day,
And my castles melted and vanished away.

"They melted and vanished, and in their place
I saw naught else but the Master's face,
And I cried aloud, "Oh, Lord, make me meet
To follow the steps of Thy wounded feet." — Selected.

love them enough, that we shall forgive them if only they will turn from their wickedness and ask forgiveness.

"Let us prove to them that, if they will repent and be baptized, and thereafter live daily in faith unto us, not wishing to crucify me again, that we are willing to give them eternal life in Paradise. Father, let our Spirit strive with them a while longer."

Jesus' blood and death and resurrected life avail no one any good, unless there is repentance, baptism, and newness of life. One must walk godly if he would be pardoned of God in the "Day of the Lord" or in the "Day of Visitation." Nevertheless, God already has proved His great love for us. While we were yet wicked enough to crucify God's only Son, God lovingly allowed us to reject His Son that we might later come to see our carnality and petition God for our own forgiveness. Jesus, too, allowed us to reject and crucify Him, that He later might influence us to appreciate His compassion, His sacrifice, and in sorrow and repentance turn unto Him for forgiveness and life everlasting.

ONE GOD

By R. H. Judd (Colborne, Ontario)

---

THERE are many believers in "conditional immortality" today. They number tens, yes, hundreds of thousands. They are connected and affiliated with almost all the well-known bodies that profess belief in the gospel of Christ. How did they come by that belief? Ask them, and they will tell you that it was through accepting the plain, literal statements of the Word of God regarding man's nature and destiny.

They refused to let the parabolic, the symbolic, and the allegorical, or even the inferential passages, to override that which was obviously meant to be interpreted by the literal meaning of the words contained. They were content to patiently wait until the great Author of the grand old Book should, by His spirit, little by little reveal to them the beautiful harmonies that existed in the seeming discrepancies. And they were not disappointed.

They found that the great Creator could, better than anyone else, describe His own creation; and that in language so simple and so clear, so evidently in accord with facts as they are, that they marveled at their former blindness in not having accepted the record in its literal sense long ago. Scripture after scripture opens up new vistas to their admiring gaze. They saw how God did indeed deal with men and women as such, as we know them and see them, and not with some mysterious, immaterial entity of which we know absolutely nothing.

To them, the life and death of our Lord Jesus became realities, and the fact of His resurrection, the great center of the world's history and the certain hope of the world's future, including their own. They no longer believe that a holy God could torment throughout endless ages any creature that He had formed. They learned that God is merciful even in judgment, and that in mercy He withholds life from those who judge themselves unworthy of it, for, "He preserveth not the life of the wicked." They believe that the "promise of life"—eternal life—is surely the unspeakable gift of God through our Lord Jesus Christ, that (in order that) "they might know thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent." They believed all this regarding man's past, regarding his present, and regarding his future, because the Word of God plainly declares it, and they found new peace and hope, a hope that can be, and will be, realized because God Himself is behind it.

Strange to say, though, while earnestly enjoining others to accept the Word of God in its literal sense in reference to man and his destiny—often at great loss of fellowship and friendships long cherished—they have failed to apply that same rule to Him who was man's Creator. That "God is one," that "there is no God beside me," that He is "the only true God" is repeatedly and emphatically asserted in language so explicit and in such variety of expression that there is left no room for honest doubt on the question. On no other subject (and it is obviously the most important of all) can we find more definite statement or more frequent repetition of it; yet in spite of this many still cling in mistaken loyalty to the belief in the confusing doctrine of the trinity.

Friends, I beseech you, take your Bibles and study this question. There is, and can be, "but one [true] God." When we believe this in all the wealth of the meaning of the words so easily understood, how much more precious becomes the promise, "I, even I, am he that blotteth out thy transgressions for mine own sake, and will not remember thy sins." You cannot, Friends, apply such words to a trinity, for then their force is divided. Let us believe God when He says, "Is there a God beside me?" "Yea, I know not any; there is no God beside me." "I" and "me" never yet stood for more than one personality.

has given us the light of the gospel of the Kingdom. He expects us to use it and not to hide it. "Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path" (Psalm 119:105). ## THE LAYMAN'S MINISTER

"When a pastor is employed full time, how much time is allowed for washing dishes, washing clothes, ironing, keeping up the house, working in the garden and yard? Most employees on full time have to do most of these things on their own time. When a pastor vacations most of the week, but preaches on Sunday, should he receive full pay? Should a minister be allowed to leave his work for two or three days a week without notifying anyone?"

"Actions speak louder than words, and the best sermons are lived, not heard."

"I think the Church-of-God ministers have dwelt too much on teaching doctrine when they should be teaching more Christian living. They have dwelt more on a 'head' conversion than a 'heart' conversion."

"One lady made the statement at Conference last year that the Church of God baptized her, but it took Billy Sunday to convert her and I think that is true of others. Our church needs a spiritual awakening and ministers who are not afraid to preach right living and a 'heart' religion."

"If the church fails to give a living wage to the pastor, we cannot expect the minister to give up other work, but if all would tithe, there would be no need of any underpaid pastors."

These lines in quotation marks are thoughts sent in by members of the church and are not ideas of the writer.

P.S.—Some brave layman might send in a questionnaire asking the ministers what kind of members they would like to have in their churches.

BOOK PARADISE

By Arlen Marsh

It's a bit early to think of Christmas, perhaps—but it's amazing how long it takes to find exactly what you want for gifts these days. Book Parade, consequently, is presenting its recommendations for gift books in time for you to make use of them. Other items will be listed later.

There's that perennial favorite, The Story of the Other Wise Man" (Harper's; 75 cents), suitable chiefly for the late teens and for adults—a top-notch story, and deeply religious.

There's the equally good, but not so well known, Husband of Mary (Lippincott; $1.00), a tale of Joseph and Mary and the Babe written from a new angle—and beautifully done it is, too, for teen-agers and those older.

For children, Egermeier's Bible Story Book (Warner Press; $2.50), wonderfully well illustrated and covering the entire Bible with brief tales that will interest children from six to twelve, will do as well as anything.

Also for children, the Standard Bible Hero Stories, just released in a new edition after years of being off the market, offer something really outstanding. There are several volumes in the series, each with a different character involved. Better write for full information about these; a whole column could easily be given each book in the group.

Almost anyone who has any interest at all in the Bible will like the Revised American Standard Version of the New Testament (Nelson; $2.00) or An American Translation of the whole Scriptures (University of Chicago; $4.00). Either version is excellent; both are in modern American English.

Finally, there's Behold Your King (Bobbs-Merrill; $2.75), the finest story about Jesus since Ben-Hur. It's for adults or older young people only, and too much good cannot be said about it.

"The Lord is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? the Lord is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid?" (Psalm 27:1.)

Joseph Finds His Brothers

After following his brothers for a while, Joseph found them. His father had sent him to find out how they were.

The brothers decided to kill Joseph because they envied and hated him so much. They said they could tell their father that an angry wild beast had eaten him. Then they said they would see what would become of his fancy dreams where they bowed before him!

Reuben, the oldest boy, begged them to spare Joseph's life. He had more reason to hate Joseph than did the others. His birthright had been taken away and given to Joseph. However, he showed Joseph more kindness than his brothers did. Reuben told them they should throw Joseph into a near-by pit, but not injure him.

They jerked off Joseph's coat of many colors, then took him and threw him into the pit. When they had done this, they sat down to eat their lunch.

Joseph's Fate

Another of the older boys suggested they sell Joseph to a group of Ishmaelites that were passing by on their way to Egypt. Judah, like Reuben, suggested they should not hurt Joseph. Yet they both wanted to be rid of him.

The brothers were all contented with the idea of selling Joseph. So that is what happened.

Jesus' Brethren Plot

Jesus, like Joseph, was hated by His brethren. Jesus' brethren were the Jews. They also gathered together and plotted against Him. They decided to put Jesus to death. (Matt. 27:1.) The Jews hated Jesus because He was doing His Father's will. Jesus told them of their sins. They did not like that. They found Jesus and led Him away to their governor, Pontius Pilate.

A Bible Game Test

Below is a list of favorite portions of Bible verses. Match them correctly. For example, draw a line from No. 1 in column one to No. 6 in column two. The correct statement reads: "The Lord is my shepherd" (Psalm 23:1a).

If We Could

"If we could be always smiling
Even though we may feel blue,
We would surely be a blessing
Causing others to smile, too:
There is nothing like good humor,
From sad hearts the gloom to chase;
We can make, by merely smiling,
This old world a better place.

"If we never would speak evil
Of the people that we know,
Telling always of their virtues,
On their good deeds, praise bestow,
Passing by all imperfections,
All their faults refuse to see—
Wouldn't this old world be better,
And much more than heaven be?"

—H. H. Ryland.

Seeing New Horizons

Berean Youth Forum

Conducted by

JAMES M. WATKINS—Promotional Director and Co-ordinator

General Conference Activities

We deeply appreciate these expressions on the part of our young people concerning our Berean work. It is especially significant to notice that, while all material used thus far in this exchange of ideas was submitted in advance without anyone having knowledge of the others' thoughts, there is such a unanimous opinion of the few simple things necessary to make our Berean work, locally and nationally, a success.

So far, our thoughts have centered largely around five thoughts: 1) greater activity on district and national scale; 2) more simplified and complete literature to serve not only our study but our social life and special activities as well; 3) having a lesser span of ages in class work; 4) providing greater variety in all local activities; and 5) the problem raised by the manifest disinterest on the part of young people themselves.

To these and kindred problems, we must turn our attention and search out answers, so we may go forward. Whether you are young or old, we appreciate your interest and expressions on this part of our work. Many suggestions already have been placed in operation by the Berean officers, and we are most appreciative of the forward surge that is already noticeable in our Berean work.

Marjorie Bauerle (Hammond, Louisiana)
Offers Sound Wisdom by Suggesting—

The first thing we must do to make our Berean young people's work more interesting and effective is to co-operate. By co-operating we will learn more, gain friendship, know the ways of people more, and thus we may help to bring someone into the church.

Another way we can make our work more interesting and effective is to encourage large meetings of Bereans from various states or cities. We could have such meetings at least twice a year. Then all could put their ideas together. Not only would we gain a lot from putting ideas together, but we could combine the books so as to make them stronger in word. I think we should do something to make our books more interesting. I think we should include studies on the geography of the Holy Land. Usually we know too little about it to make our studies interesting.

We should also have parties. If we have one occasionally, it will help to bring our society together more, and, if our members will bring their friends, it is a way to encourage others to join with us in our studies.

If everyone would take part in our class discussions, it would add much to our class. The teacher should study and know what he is going to talk about before he goes to class. The students should study also, so all can participate in the lesson.

Being to Berean on time every Sunday also makes our work more effective, because when someone comes in late, everyone turns around to see who it is. That often gets us away from the lesson.

Joe Fletcher (Fonthill, Ontario)
Says, "Bring Them In!"

To make our young people's work more interesting, we must have more attending our meetings and enrolled in our Berean work. How shall we get this larger enrollment? By sending groups of two or three members of the society around to canvas the neighborhood in which they live. In this way many who did not know about the Berean work may become interested, and you may be able to win them into the church.

You could also create more interest by having more recreation. Having a social once a month, having skating parties, weiner roasts, picnics, and so forth.

The music should follow along the aim of the lesson to get people in the spirit of the lesson to follow. The lesson itself should vary. If the same form of lesson is used week after week, the people become bored; but if the lesson is presented in a different form each week, the interest is aroused easier. The lesson should be easy for young folks to understand, so they will get something out of it. We should always "stick to the subject." If we go into other matters, many who come to learn the Word will be discouraged and stop. I hope that these ideas may be of help to others.

So We Add—

These sound suggestions from our young people themselves add to our growing list of forward-looking plans. We are still waiting for an interest from parents, also.

KOKOMO, INDIANA

The Annual Homecoming of the Church of God in Kokomo, Ind., was held Sunday, September 22. The Hillsburg Church dismissed its Sunday school and morning worship, that its members might visit with us. Bro. Delbert Jones was our morning speaker. Bro. Cantwell Drahenstott of our church in Roll, Ind., gave the afternoon message. A three-reel religious movie film entitled, "The Journey of the Israelites," was shown in the evening. Basket dinner was enjoyed at noon on the church lawn.

Mrs. Annetta Huffman of Poneto, Ind., was baptized by the writer, August 15, in Wildcat Creek. She is an isolated member of the Faith, living some sixty miles from Kokomo, and unable to attend services regularly. She has been a long-time subscriber to The Restitution Herald, which is her only regular contact with the Church. She was accompanied to Kokomo by her stepmother, Mrs. Anna Roll, and Mr. and Mrs. Ragal, all of Marion, Ind.

Sunday, September 29, the writer and family enjoyed the short visit of Bro. and Sr. Lora Pearson and family of New Paris, Ohio. Lora and Rose are members of the Brush Creek Church at Tipp City, Ohio. We are always pleased when the home church folk "stop in." Come again!

ATTENTION, PLEASE

The United States Bureau of Census is compiling figures for a 1946 census of religious bodies in this country. Accordingly, we are requested to submit to the census bureau "an accurate and complete list of all our churches in the United States, with the post office address of each church."

For several months, an effort has been made to compile an accurate directory of the Church of God, same being published from time to time in this section. That directory, however, is still incomplete. We appeal again, therefore, to our church secretaries, pastors, and evangelists, that they send to us the name and address of their respective churches, name and address of pastor, or, if there is no pastor, the church secretary or presiding elder. Only when we are fully informed regarding all our churches, will it be possible for us to relay authentic information to the United States Census Bureau. At present, the census bureau is asking only for a complete list of our churches and their post office addresses. Later, the Census Bureau will send a questionnaire to each church.

Please co-operate in this respect. Please do not delay! Send the information that will assist in completing our own church directory, and with the same stroke you will be assisting Uncle Sam.
Sydney E. Magaw, Secy.

COLLEGE NEWS

There have been a few changes and additions in the enrollment of classes since last reported to you. There are now a grand total of seventeen students. Of that total, eleven are freshmen. The classes have the following numbers of students: English Composition—13;

Religious Journalism—6; Apostolic History—12; Religious Psychology—9; History of the Hebrews—15; Religious Art—5; New Testament Studies—3; Old Testament Studies—15; Public Speaking—8; Pastor's Office and Work—6.

The social committee, under the leadership of Milton Hall, is planning a field day for the student body.

Our Chapel speaker on October 3 was Miss Jennie Mishler, a retired missionary to Puerto Rico. We were pleased to welcome her to our Chapel service.

The Campus Caller, our College bulletin, will make its debut soon. If you wish a copy, please send your name and address to Kirby Davis at the College.

The faculty is pleased with the interest the students are manifesting in the spiritual activities of the local church.

Milton Hall recently spent a day in bed with the "flu." We are glad to report he is better now. Kirby Davis preached at Graytown, Wis., in his stead, Sunday, October 6.

Edwin Smith, Reporter.

ROBERTSON-FLETCHER

The marriage of Doris Robertson and Joseph Fletcher took place at the Fonthill (Ont.) Church of God on Saturday morning, September 14, in the presence of a few intimate friends. Both parties are members of the Fonthill Church and their new relationship calls forth the best wishes of their companions in faith. The service was read by the pastor. Following a week's visit to several parts of the Province, the couple returned to Fonthill where they will make their future home. Our best wishes go with them.

C. E. Randall.

Gleanings From the Field

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

Sr. S. J. Lindsay, 606 N. 6th St., Oregon, Ill., enjoyed a month's vacation this summer with her son Ward and family at Oconomowoc, Wis. Sr. Lindsay is mentally alert, but not strong, physically. She will be eighty-two years of age on December 2—so reports Sr. Val Mattison, with whom Sr. Lindsay resides.

We Are Sorry. In compiling The Herald index (see issue of September 24), no mention was made of Bro. C. E. Randall's weekly page entitled, "News and Prophecy Digest." Bro. Randall's weekly messages are much appreciated and we regret the oversight.

"You may tell the world we are much encouraged by the interest and attendance thus far in our ministerial work. These 'Arkansawyers' are real people, and we feel that we always have known them."—Fred E. Hall, Cleveland, Ark.

Bro. L. W. Moore, Jr., pastor at Macomb, Ill., reports in a recent bulletin: "During August, the Doreas met at the pastor's home. Instead of sewing as usual, we canned forty quarts of tomato juice for Oregon Bible College."

"I pray that I may be found worthy to be in the Kingdom with any others whom God may choose, whether they may be black or white or yellow or brown or red in this present life."—Reoland Robinson, Rt. 2, Morrilton, Ark.

Back in print: "Bible Hero Stories" have been reprinted. They are a series of children's Bible-story-books covering the characters of Joseph, David, Moses, Daniel, Esther, Peter, Paul, Mark, and Jesus—Books 1 and 2. The price is 20 cents each; $2.00 per dozen. Order from National Bible Institution.

MACY - JONES

On Sunday afternoon, September 1, in the Brush Creek (Ohio) Church of God, Mary Ellen Macy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Macy of Covington, became the bride of Charles Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Jones of Cleveland. The writer performed the ceremony.

The couple was attended by Miss Evelyn Jones, sister of the groom, as maid of honor, and Paul Pearson as best man. James Lambert and Richard Lindstrom were the ushers.

Mrs. Ellis Onderdonk sang, "I Love You Truly," "Because," and "At Dawning." She was accompanied by Eunice Halls at the piano.

Mary Ellen graduated from the Saint Elizabeth Hospital School of Nursing, Dayton, and served a year in the Army Nurses Corps.

The groom served thirty-four months with the Army Air Corps in the European theater of operations. He is now a senior at Kent State University, Kent, Ohio.

After the ceremony, a reception was held in the basement of the church, where wedding cake and ice cream were served.

After the wedding trip to Niagara Falls, the couple will reside at 229 W. Riddle St., Ravenna, Ohio.

Both Mary Ellen and Charles ("Bud") are members of the Church of God, and we pray that the Father's blessing will be with them as they continue their lives together.

Ellsworth Routson.

MARTHA M. BRISTOW

She leaves to mourn her death, three daughters: Mrs. Waldo Wood, Frankfort; Mrs. Lorenzo Orr, Kempton; Mrs. Isadore White, Sikeleville, Ind., a host of friends, and five generations of relatives.

Throughout life, she maintained belief in the second coming of Christ and in the resurrection of the faithful. She now rests in sleep, waiting that great resurrection call.

Funeral services were held, September 21, 1946, from the home of Mrs. Lorenzo Orr. Burial was in the Baker Cemetery. Bro. Delbert Jones, local pastor, assisted the writer in the services. Alva G. Huffer.

DWIGHT H. LANING

Dwight H. Laning, son of William and Mary Laning, was born at Ripley, Ill. He died of a stroke at his home, 1043 N. Hayworth Ave, Los Angeles 46, Calif., September 28, 1946. He was married to Georgia Reid of Versailles, Ill., who patiently cared for him more than a decade in which he was unable to speak or care for himself.

Besides his wife, other near relatives are his brothers, Frank and Herman Laning, his sister, Mrs. Laurence Howell, and his mother, Mrs. Mary Laning. Mr. Laning was a member of the Los Angeles Church of God of the faith of Abraham.

"This gospel must first be published among all nations" (Mark 13:10).

An effective way of teaching the gospel is in the use of tracts. The cost of slipping a tract into a letter is negligible, yet doing so may "save a soul from death." Tracts and books listed below may be ordered from National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois.

Bikini Atom Blasts

Since the catastrophic bombing of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, the United States Navy has been experimenting with more terrific atomic bombs: two notable experiments being "Test Able" and "Test Baker" (June 30 and July 24, 1946, respectively) at Bikini Atol, operation crossroads in the Marshall Islands of the South Pacific. "Test Able" was of an atomic bomb bursting in the air, and "Test Baker" was of a bomb that exploded beneath surface of the sea. Both the front-page picture and the insert on this page portray the "Test Able" explosion—the cover picture being a later photograph when the atomic cloud had reached a height of at least thirty thousand feet. When the bomb burst, the spectacle was so intensely bright as to defy photography.

The very first atomic-bomb explosion was an experiment at Los Alamos, New Mexico, July, 1945—simply to see if the bomb would work. It did. The second atomic-bomb explosion was at Hiroshima, Japan, August 6, 1945, when the Oriental city of 343,000 inhabitants almost momentarily withered into ruins. The third atomic explosion occurred only three days later, August 9, 1945, when Nagasaki, Japan, was obliterated from the face of the earth.

The "Test Able" explosion sank five target ships, heavily damaged nine ships, and lightly damaged nine others. The "Test Baker" experiment (under-water explosion) was more destructive. In a moment, sea water was raised into a boiling-hot and huge column of water that shot upward hundreds of feet into the air, tossing target ships like toys. Ten ships were sunk and six were badly damaged. "Test Charlie," a deeper under-water explosion, is scheduled for next March.

The Bikini atom blasts killed many animals taken to the scene for experimental purposes, and many of the surviving animals have been dying of "radiation sickness" since the explosion. Thus, the atomic bomb is proved to be "a poison weapon." Will any of the surviving animals be able to reproduce? Will seeds of plants exposed to the blasts germinate when planted next spring? . . . No one was allowed within ten or twelve miles of the explosion. Airplanes carrying scientific instruments were guided by remote control into vicinity of the explosions; and only animals, not men, manned the target ships.

The white-cloud photographs reveal only the aftermath of the "Test Able" explosion. The atomic cloud, developing from a vast maze of fire, first appeared in variegated colors: orange, red, green, muddy browns, and occasionally a flash of crimson would "penetrate the boiling mass." Sailors thirteen miles distant were required to wear dark-lensed goggles until the fiery blast began emerging into the cloud effect.

Brother Norman Friebe, contributor of the photographs, reported: "There over the target, seeming to extend over three or four ships, was a huge red ball—an ionized cloud. Then it dissolved and a column of white arose and continued to rise. Within a few minutes, it had risen to some thirty thousand feet. It was huge and beautiful: containing all the colors of the rainbow, and few extra colors 'thrown in' for good measure." (Now, read page 3 for Biblical analysis of atomic power.)

"The Elements Shall Melt"

By A. N. Dugger (The Bible Advocate).

The Elements Shall Melt with Fervent Heat, and All the Works of Man Shall Be Destroyed

EDITORIAL INTRODUCTION. Having insufficient room on the Editorial Page to present Biblical thought relative to atomic destruction, we thought it well here to present a selected article that does give considerable Biblical interpretation to the modern weapon. This selected article was published shortly after bombing of the Japanese cities and considerably prior to "Test Able" in the South Pacific. The author, A. N. Dugger, is, we believe, a minister of many years' experience. His message is interesting and links well with current Church-of-God thinking.

IN SPEAKING of the day of the Lord, Peter propounded a question of utmost significance to the children of God. It reads: "What manner of persons ought ye to be in all holy conversation and godliness, looking for and hasting unto the coming of the day of God, wherein the heavens being on fire shall be dissolved, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat?" (2 Peter 3:11, 12.)

When reading this chapter, I recall how years ago the thought would come to mind of the apparent indestructibility of great steam engines composed of iron and steel, of the railway systems that girded our land, and the steel battleships which I thought could not be included in this statement of the Apostle. A complete revolution of thought has been aroused since the invention of the atomic bomb. That which we could but before accept by faith in God's Word is now an apparently easy task in the hands of man.

One newspaper reporter has written that seventy-five bombs of the type dropped on Japan would destroy the city of New York. Those in charge of the experimental bomb, dropped in the desert of New Mexico, stated the light of the bomb was equal to twelve suns, that its heat was felt twenty miles as it approached the earth, and people five miles away were knocked down when a steel tower, erected as a target, was blown up.

The account of the Japanese bombings told of the unbelievable destruction visited upon the two cities, Hiroshima and Nagasaki, where an estimated half million lives were obliterated.

The weapon is said by some to be ignited by a substance of which great deposits are found in the Dead Sea. It has also been said that a Jewish woman in Germany was greatly responsible for the development of the bomb there. In the experiment in New Mexico's desert, the fact was proved that steel was turned into a gas, instantly exploding. This might be likened to the fire that fell on Sodom and Gomorrah, which lie buried in the Dead Sea region since their destruction by unquenchable fire rained from God out of heaven, the record of which appears in Genesis 18 and 19.

It long has been understood that the rust collecting on iron or steel is simply oxidation, that it is nature's way of gradually turning these materials back into oxygen or their natural elements. No fire has hitherto been produced that would accomplish this work, but now it has been demonstrated that such has been achieved. The scientific way of explaining the decomposition is that one atom splits another atom, each piece of which splits another until the steel or rock is oxidized, or turned back into air, water, and dust. This is also the way of explaining the combustion which occurs when a stick of wood is oxidized by the common process of burning. This oxidation is much slower, however, than that which occurs when particles of this new fire touch a piece of steel.

Although man is receiving honor from the world as the developer of this strange and miraculous fire, which is partly due to him, God still holds the pre-eminence in that He was the Creator of all. It was merely man's discovery of a material already in existence by the hand of the Almighty.

Yes, we are truly "hasting unto the coming of the day of God . . . and the elements shall melt with fervent heat." That time is very rapidly approaching, and is much nearer at hand than many people suppose. If people knew just what was ahead of them, they would all do what a few are now doing: putting of their substance into the Lord's work in a last-moment effort to warn the world of its coming doom, with the sure way of escape. There is only one way to pass through the fire of the day of God, and that is to serve the Lord now, and get on His side. The material things of this life will perish, only that given unto the Lord will be preserved.

Brother, sister, God has called upon us to warn the world. The door is now open, but only for a very short time. . . . Let each one pray earnestly to God to be saved from the coming storm of destruction and directed, through the power of the Holy Spirit, as to what to do. He freely gives to all who ask Him. (Luke 11:11-13.)

Some "Mistakes" of Moses

By R. H. Judd, Colborne, Ontario

Did the ancient Hebrews believe "the heavens to be a solid vault"?

IN OUR last short article on the same topic of supposed mistakes of Moses, it was intimated that at some future date we would discuss the reliability of those who make the above charge concerning the remarks of Moses.

Voltaire, the renowned atheist, is credited with being the first to have formulated the attack—for the purpose of showing the supposed ignorance and gross conceptions of the Hebrew people. Weiner, Knobel, and others are said to have "patronized" the idea, and Mr. Goodwin, among more recent writers who have sought to discredit Moses, renewed the attack in the pages of "Essays and Reviews." The following scriptures are quoted by them as further evidence of the crude ignorance of these ancient people. In Job 26:11, the heavens are said to be supported by "pillars"; and, in 2 Samuel 22:8, "foundations" are mentioned. In Psalm 78:23, there are said to be "doors"; and Genesis 7:11 tells of "windows."

In a bold spirit of self-assertion, the writer referred to says: "No quibbling about the derivation of the word raḳia, which is literally something beaten out, and generally applied to express the hammering or beating out of metal plates, can affect the explicit declaration of the Mosaic writer contained in the words, 'The waters that are above the firmament,' or avail to show that he was aware that the sky is but transparent." He further says: "It has been pretended that the word raḳia may be translated 'expanse,' so as to mean empty space." If these objections were well founded, they would evidence somewhat strong presumptive argument against the Mosaic account. Fortunately, it is one of the weakest and most easily refuted objections that have been made against the veracity of the author of Genesis and other contributors to the books of the Bible.

In the quotation given at the head of this article from the writings of Mr. Goodwin, two assertions are made:

(1) That the Hebrews understood the heavens to be a vault.

(2) That they regarded the heavens as solid.

With reference to the first, if the word "vault" is accepted in one of its various dictionary definitions, and the ordinarily understood sense of everyday usage, not only the Hebrews but average persons of any present-day community very generally have considered the sky, or heavens, to be, in appearance, arched as a vault, and not even the most pedantic would raise objection on scientific grounds. It is similar to those common expressions concerning the sun rising and setting. But let us meet these pseudo-scientists on their own grounds. Professor McCaul of King's College, London, England, says, "The word raḳia, as all will allow, signifies, not vault, but an expanse, something spread out, whether solid or unsolid, and is therefore incompatible with the idea of vault or arch." Reference to Young's Concordance for the Hebrew word for "firmament" (raḳia or raqia) reveals but one definition, namely "expanse." He thus leaves no room for doubt or "quibbling" as to its meaning. The main purpose of the objector is to ridicule and disqualify Moses. Therefore, the force of his attack is mainly centered in the word "solid," and the charge made that according to the belief of the Hebrews the firmament of the heavens consists of a solid vault.

As we have said on previous occasions, Scripture itself very generally has the best answer to any attacks directed against it. Note the following: Scripture testimony declares the firmament, or heavens, is that space, or place, where birds fly—in "the open firmament of heaven." (See Authorized Version, Gen. 1:20.) Leeser's Version reads: "in the open expansion of heaven." In Genesis 1:28, birds are called "the fowl of the heaven" (not "air" as in A.V.; see McCaul, also Leeser's Version). Such descriptions would be impossible, were the heavens "a permanent solid vault" in which the heavenly bodies were fixed. "The fowl of the solid vault" would be nonsense, for no bird could fly in such an environment. So convinced were the translators of the Authorized Bible, the Revised Version, and The Complete Bible (S. & G.) of the fact that the heavens were the atmosphere, that they have translated the phrase "the fowl of heaven" as "fowl of the air" in Genesis 1:28 and elsewhere. In Deuteronomy 4:17, Moses called birds "fowl of the air" (R.V., "of the heavens") because they fly in the heavens. In Proverbs 30:19, all the above-mentioned translators give "air" as a reasonable rendering; and in Jeremiah 8:7 they are in unison in translating it "the stork of the heavens." According to Psalm 78:26, it is the place where winds blow.

The idea of expanse independent of solidity is also correctly inferred from other verbs (natah, mathach, and taphach) which mean simply to extend or spread out as applied to the heavens. For example, we mention Isaiah 48:13, "My right hand hath

The Sabbath, a Sign

(Second of Two Articles on the Sabbath Question)

By Emma C. Railsback, Los Angeles, California

TO WHOM was the Sabbath given? The first account of the Sabbath being given to man to keep occurs in Exodus 16:4, 5, 23-30. God gave it to the Israelites to prove them. This was approximately thirty days before the law was given on Mount Sinai. In Exodus 31:13-17, Moses was instructed of God to inform Israel that the Sabbath was a "sign" between Himself and Israel throughout their generations. In verse 17, He repeated by saying, "It is a sign between me and the children of Israel for ever."

In the Prophet Ezekiel's day (chapter 20), God was recounting to the Prophet some matters concerning Israel's failure to keep His covenant. He said in verse 12, "Moreover also I gave them my sabbaths to be a sign between me and them, that they might know that I am the Lord that sanctify them." But the Israelites rebelled against God and kept not His commandments, and they greatly polluted His Sabbaths. However, He said further to them:

"I am the Lord your God; walk in my statutes, and keep my judgments, and do them; and hallow my sabbaths; and they shall be a sign between me and you, that ye may know that I am the Lord your God."

We have these four texts where the Sabbath is shown to have been a "sign" between God and Israel. But Sabbathkeepers today teach that the Sabbath was given to man at creation. There is absolutely no Scripture statement to bear out the assertion. The fact is, that, if all mankind had been keeping the Sabbath for 2500 years to the time it was given to Israel, it could not possibly have served as a "sign" between God and Israel. Moses, in Deuteronomy 5:3, said: "The Lord made not this covenant with our fathers, but with us, even us, who are all of us here alive this day." In verse 15 of this chapter, he gave a reason for asking or commanding them to keep it, saying: "And remember that thou wast a servant in the land of Egypt, and that the Lord thy God brought thee out thence through a mighty hand and by a stretched out arm: therefore the Lord thy God commanded thee to keep the sabbath day."

Prior to the giving of the Mosaic covenant to Israel, God had made a covenant with Abraham, that he should inherit the land and dwell therein forever. (Gen. 12, 13, 17.) The Apostle Paul, in Galatians 3, after showing that the gospel had been preached to Abraham and that Christ was the promised seed through whom all families of the earth should be blessed, asked the following question, "Wherefore then serveth the law?" His answer to this question gives light on the purpose and length of time that the old covenant was to be in force. "It was added [to the Abrahamic promises] because of [Israel's] transgressions till the seed should come" (Gal. 3:19). In other words, it served Israel from Sinai to Calvary, to restrain, to hedge them in, as it were, from other nations until the promised Messiah should come. It served particularly as their schoolmaster to teach them and all mankind their inability to save themselves and their utter dependence upon Christ for salvation.

Paul stated that "Christ is the end of the law to every one that believeth," but since the Israelites as a nation did not believe on Christ, they are still subject to that law. When the promised Seed comes the second time without a sin offering to give salvation, a remnant of Israel will accept and will become subjects in God's Kingdom.

Beside being given as a "sign" between God and Israel, the Sabbath is also spoken of as a "shadow" of things to come. (Col. 2:17.) God rested on the seventh day and hallowed it. It became a type or shadow of the seventh thousand-year day, for Peter tells us that one day is with the Lord as a thousand years and a thousand years as one day. God's saints are looking for His great Millennial Sabbath.

Israel became God's shadow people. Their sacrifices were shadows of Christ, the great Sacrifice that "taketh away the sin of the world." Their Sabbath was a shadow of the rest to be found in Christ (Heb. 4:1-11), the Christians' spiritual rest in Christ, as well as being a shadow of the final Millennial Sabbath. Many shadows may be found by studying the history of God's shadow people, but since He who cast the shadow has come, we follow the substance, instead of the shadow.

Sabbathkeepers make another serious mistake by inferring that the commandments of the Decalogue are the only laws God gave. What law did Cain transgress? Genesis 4:7 and 1 John 3:4 will give an answer. What law (or way) did the antediluvians corrupt? (Gen. 6:12, 13.) The people of Sodom and Gomorrah? (Gen. 18:20.) What law did Enoch and Noah keep in walking with God? What commandments, statutes, and laws did Abraham keep? It most certainly was not the Mosaic law in any of these cases, but "God's (Please turn to page 11)

Millennial Glory

"I saw the souls of them that were beheaded for the witness of Jesus . . . and they lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years" (Rev. 20:4).

A TIME IS coming when the Lord our Saviour Jesus Christ will reign as King upon the earth, and when righteousness and peace and justice will be established to perfection. The first taste of this glorious time will come with the period known, to all who love their Bibles, as the Millennium, or the thousand years reign of Christ. There is only one direct reference to the thousand years reign, and that is in Revelation 20. Many of the prophets, however, foretold such a period of prosperity in which Israel and all the nations of the earth are to share, and in which all the inhabitants of the earth will find untold blessing.

It is the natural desire of each one of us, whether we be Christian or anti-Christian, whether we be for God or against God, to live in such an age when everything will be perfect. But nothing approaching perfection has ever been achieved; for so powerful has been the Devil's influence, and his original lie, that the hearts of mankind have been cantered with the blight of sin through the channels of falsehood and godlessness. Sin has so much abounded that complete indifference to God and His will has been manifest. The visions and glories mentioned by the old-time prophets have been scoffed at, and declared to be the hallucinations of doddering old men. The critics, however, never have succeeded in putting out the lamps of the Bible; the light that shines from its pages is the light of the Word of Truth. It is undimmed by all the ravages of time, or the hatred and enmity of wicked men. God granted to His servants the prophets such vision and inspiration that they were able to leave for us on the divinely given page, glimpses of the glories that are prepared for those who love Him.

Indeed, to those of us who are bound by the ties of a true and loving relationship with Jesus Christ, the coming of His Millennial Reign is one of the great and desirable things that we look forward to. I think it is true to say that in this world righteousness, truth, and justice will never come by man's efforts alone. Only by the coming conquest of the King of Righteousness, the Prince of Peace, and the One upon whose shoulders judgment is to be placed, will such a reign, or kingdom, ever be established. Evil first must be restrained, and man, being evil, cannot cast out evil in his own strength, for "Beelzebub cannot cast out devils by the prince of devils." This only can be done by the Spirit of God; only the rule of righteousness can overthrow the rule of evil.

Without being pessimistic, one has only to refer to Scripture for corroboration of this important fact. See how Christ referred to the continuing state of the present age: "Ye shall hear of wars and rumours of wars . . . For nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom: and there shall be famines, and pestilences, and earthquakes, in divers places. All these are the beginning of sorrows. . . . And because iniquity shall abound, the love of many shall wax cold" (Matt. 24:6-12).

The picture is grim. We have been passing through one of the grimmest of these times from which we are not yet completely released. Who knows what famine or pestilence may yet follow in the wake of the shed blood bath that has saturated the continent of Europe. Those of us who have remained in this country can read only about the "bestialities that have been practiced by the enemy upon its victims, and, as we read from Scripture about the coming "abomination of desolation," our hearts grow more fearful because the Devil is still at large, and because woe and tribulation must ever follow the course of Evil.

But oh! Praise God for the promise of the Son of Man! Praise God for the hope of the coming of Christ and the rapture of the saints, and for the joys that await the believer. The time will come when the "sign of the Son of man" shall appear in heaven and "they shall see the Son of man coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory."

"His feet shall stand in that day upon the mount of Olives . . . and it shall be in that day, that living waters shall go out from Jerusalem . . . and the Lord shall be king over all the earth . . . and his name one . . . all the land shall be turned . . . and men shall dwell in it, and there shall be no more utter destruction; but Jerusalem shall be safely inhabited" (Zech. 14:4-11).

So comes the Millennial Kingdom!

If you read between the scriptures that I have quoted, you will learn of the purge of the wicked, and of how the forces of evil will be subjugated, and, together with the account in Revelation, of how Satan shall be bound.

Yes, this time is coming, for God's Word has never failed and it never will. . . .

Just as every prophecy concerning Christ's first advent on earth, in His humble estate, was fulfilled, so will every prophecy relating to His coming reign on earth in glory be fulfilled likewise. When will this time be? No one knows but God Himself. Concerning His second coming, our Lord Himself said, "Of that day and that hour knoweth no man . . . but the Father." Certain it is that it cannot be before the rapture of the saints, the hour of which no man knoweth, neither can it be until after Christ returns again, when He sets foot upon the Mount of Olives. Then will Satan be bound for a thousand years, and then, indeed, will the Millennial Kingdom be set up. Then will be seen by all nations, the King in His beauty.

This shall be a great time of triumph. Literally, a day of victory such as has never been known before, the earth and its peoples will be celebrating the Day of Liberation, and all the hosts of the ransomed will rejoice together and proclaim Christ King.

"Holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty, Heaven and earth shall praise Thy Name,
In earth and sea and sky!"

Then will be sung the Great Song of Redemption, given in Revelation 5:12, 13: "Worthy is the Lamb that was slain to receive power, and riches, and wisdom, and strength, and honour, and glory, and blessing . . . Blessing, and honour, and glory, and power, be unto him that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb for ever and ever."

Then after that wonderful song, the first great act of millennial worship will occur, when all the congregation of the redeemed shall "fall down and worship him that liveth for ever and ever." (Rev. 5:14.) This great act of worship will, I have no doubt, be enacted again when Christ hands over His Kingdom to His Father, at the end of the Millennial Reign.

After this mighty opening event, we can expect Christ to set up His government. This time it will be a perfect government. In this poor world of ours, all kinds of governments have been tried, and again and again the same old pathetic story of failure has been written. There have been kings and despots, dictators and republics, democracies, autocracies, fascist and communist—but all have failed. Man has never, in all his history, been blessed with a rule of perfect righteousness and peace. But this time, "God will set his king upon his holy hill of Zion" to rule with a rod of iron in justice and equity throughout the Kingdom, and the perfection of righteousness, truth, justice, and peace. Such will be the virtues, the glories, and the grandeurs of the Millennial Reign.

The governments of this world have erred, because they have left God out of their reckoning. If they had only dipped into Scripture, and molded their administrations and their laws upon God's pattern, what a different story might have been told. Christ's government, too, will be shared by the saints of God, for they will administer His laws and His decrees. These saints are those who have been through tribulation for Christ, "those who have not worshipped the beast nor his image, neither have received his mark in their foreheads or in their hands." These "shall live and reign with Christ a thousand years."

Then, concerning the policy of His government. We find it outlined in Isaiah 11:1-5, but beginning at verse 4 will suffice. "With righteousness shall he judge the poor, and reprove with equity for the meek of the earth: and he shall smite the earth with the rod of his mouth, and with the breath of his lips shall he slay the wicked. And righteousness shall be the girdle of his loins, and faithfulness the girdle of his reins."

So righteousness, equity, and faithfulness will mark His Kingdom, together with His attributes, also mentioned in the passage, of wisdom, counsel, might, understanding, knowledge, and the fear of the Lord. The immediate result of these things becomes evident from Isaiah 32:17-18: "The work of righteousness shall be peace; and the effect of righteousness quietness and assurance for ever. And my people shall dwell in a peaceable habitation, and in sure dwellings and in quiet resting places." These blessings we have longed for and seldom found, but there in the pure glory of Christ's Millennial Kingdom will be experienced the things our hearts have yearned for.

Who are they that will inhabit this Kingdom? Why, "all who take part in the first resurrection." Those who died in Christ; those that are His at His coming! "Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection; on such the second death hath no power, but they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years."

Ah! but we go from glory unto glory, with the curse of death removed from all God's children.

Life, eternal life, the gift of God implanted now, will then be experienced in a new heaven and new earth, with "Jerusalem created a rejoicing, and her people a joy," and "the voice of weeping shall no more be heard in her." And furthermore, as the Prophet Isaiah continued to declare, "There shall be no more thence an infant of days, nor an old man who hath not filled his years." With long life will He satisfy.

What of industries and commerce of the Kingdom? There is to be a building program with a perfect assessment. "They shall build houses, and inhabit them." No exploitation there!

Produce will be sown and reaped. "They shall plant vineyards and eat the fruit of them." No black markets and exorbitant prices! The subjects of Christ will long enjoy the work of their hands—no unemployment problem, but rather length of em- (Please turn to page 10)

By C. E. Randall (Fonthill, Ontario)

SCHOOL BUSES. All over the country, the Roman Catholics have been making attempts to have public school buses serve the needs of the pupils attending their parochial schools. In November, the voters of Wisconsin will vote on the question of school buses giving free transportation to pupils of private and parochial schools.

In the State of Iowa, District Judge Harry A. Narey, in a thirty-four page ruling on the question of using school buses for private and parochial pupils, said: "It would be the equivalent of extending credit to an association or corporation in violation of the Constitution, and also would constitute a payment of taxes for the maintenance of a ministry of the church in violation of section 3, article 1."

During the war when buses were unobtainable, the Kennet Square, Pennsylvania, public school board permitted their buses to pick up pupils of Saint Patrick's school. With the cessation of the war, this privilege was discontinued. Parents and sixty children marched to the school with flags in a public demonstration. Priest in charge, Michael H. Crane, said: "There is no such thing as a public school bus, because Catholics as well as others, pay school taxes." To which principal E. W. Rupert replied: "There is no religious issue. If we carry parochial school students, then Friends' schools, Episcopal schools, and private schools have the right to ask that we do the same for them."

With the aggressiveness which the Roman Catholics are exercising these days, there must be an aroused Protestant sentiment, or they will find their ways into the public treasuries for the benefits of the church as they have done in other countries.

CIGARETTES. "Moody Monthly" quotes former President Herbert Hoover on the subject of cigarettes, as follows: "There is no agency in the world that is so seriously affecting the health, education, efficiency, and character of boys and girls as the cigarette habit. Nearly every delinquent boy is a cigarette smoker. Cigarettes are a source of crime. To neglect crime at its source is a short-sighted policy, unworthy of a nation of intelligence."

The habit of cigarette smoking is extremely hard to break off, and for the benefit of any who would like to rid themselves of this health and character destroying habit, we pass along the advice as given by the Ontario Woman's Christian Temperance Union. It will take more space than we usually devote to any subject, but we believe it worthy of the space. It reads:

"The first step in giving up the cigarette is determination to do so. Then keep away from smokers for about three weeks.

"Dissolve one teaspoonful of powdered alum in a large cup of water, and use frequently as a gargle and mouth-wash; do not swallow it.

"Keep some gentian root, camomile blossoms, an apple, or an orange in your pocket, and when the desire to smoke appears chew one of the above, swallowing the juice.

"To rid your system of the poison, take upon arising in the morning one-half teaspoonful of Rochelle Salts and Cream of Tartar dissolved in a cup of hot water. To help the skin in its work of carrying off the poison take a bath each morning with a brisk rubbing.

"Keep your mind occupied, and live outside as much as possible, walking a great deal.

"Change your diet. Do not use pepper, mustard, or highly seasoned foods, and for a while do without meat, tea, and coffee. For a few weeks, make your meals mostly of fresh vegetables, coarse cereals, whole-wheat bread, milk, cream, buttermilk, cottage cheese, and nuts. For dessert, use oranges, apples, pears, pineapple, peaches, grapefruit, figs, raisins, dates, applesauce, etc. Instead of tea and coffee, drink fruit juices, water, or milk.

"If the above is followed, it will be found that at the end of one week the craving for the cigarette will have greatly lessened, and at the end of three weeks almost entirely gone."

BIBLE TEST. Not long ago a Bible test was given to southern high school students and the results indicate the trend away from the teachings of the Word of God. From the "Pentecostal Evangel," the following is lifted: "A Bible test given to 18,434 southern high school pupils recently revealed that 16,000 could not name three Old Testament prophets; 10,000 could not name three disciples of Jesus; 12,000 could not name the four Gospels. According to Dr. U. W. Leavell, of Peabody, 66 per cent were not enrolled in any Sunday school. The average Sunday school attendance in the area was 50 per cent of its enrollment. Thus, less than 17 per cent of the population was receiving religious instruction."

This is a sad commentary on the spiritual life of a nation that is supposedly Christian. Where will this movement away from the Word of God lead us? Young people must be more thoroughly trained in the things of the Spirit if the church is to survive the great apostasy which is now upon us.

DRUNKEN DRIVERS. The Department of Motor Vehicles of the State of California, recently submitted its report, some of which the Los Angeles Times quoted as follows: "Accidents involving drivers under the influence of liquor gained forty per cent during the first five months of this year, compared with the same period of 1945, the State Department of Motor Vehicles reported today. The Department said 4,342 such drivers were involved in reportable accidents during the five months, including 289 accidents resulting in the death of one or more persons, and 4,053 in which there were injuries. In the same period, pedestrians who had been drinking were involved in eighty-seven fatal accidents and 803 injury accidents."

It is time for people to realize that the drink traffic which deluded people about the evils of prohibition are amassing millions at the expense of society. A drinking nation soon forgets God. Perhaps the appalling liquor situation in this country in no small way contributes to the growing disregard for the Word of God, especially among young people of the nation.

DISPLACED JEWS. The plight of the displaced Jews of Europe has been described by one writer as "the greatest crime against humanity since fascism was defeated." The problem of this dispossessed people is entirely separate from the issue of making Palestine a separate and distinct homeland of the Jews. Allowing one hundred thousand Jews into Palestine would take care of the worst cases of these homeless victims of Nazism. They have been moved from the concentration camps of Dachau, Krakow, etc., to the DP camps. Of course, their sufferings are not as acute now as when in the concentration camps, but they are deprived of liberty, family life, and normal pursuits. Sixteen months have passed since the Nazi hordes were defeated, and these poor folk are still enslaved. One hundred thousand of them in Germany! It is no wonder the underground in Palestine is moved to action, when political bartering keeps these people from the enjoyment of the blessings of being freed from Hitler's six years of persecution in which they were "physically, mentally, and morally shocked." The conscience of the world has been so seared the last few years, that people are not moved by the sufferings and afflictions of their fellows. The heart of humanity should cry out against this continued enslavement of one hundred thousand of Abraham's natural seed.

"EYE HATH NOT SEEN." We are told by Inspiration that "eye hath not seen, nor ear heard . . . the things which God hath prepared for them that love him." This is wonderfully true in the natural world as well as in the realm of the Spirit. There are many things around us that we cannot see. With the ultra-violet lamp, man is able to see things which he has never seen before. He is able to tell whether certain minerals are present in boulders and rocks. There is much in the natural world which we have never seen, although we are constantly peering into the visible spectrum. We are unable to see ultraviolet light, because its waves are too short for our eyesight. Yet this light thrown on minerals produces a fluorescent coloring of different hues. More than one hundred different minerals are known by the different shade of fluorescent coloring which they throw off when the "black light" is turned on. Surely we do see through a glass darkly today!

APPRECIATION

Dear Readers of THE RESTITUTION HERALD,

It was a pleasure to read the letter in a recent issue of THE HERALD by Sister Jessie Kauffman, addressed to her "Family in Christ" and at this time I also want to express my appreciation for the articles which appear on the pages of our paper from time to time.

As Sister Kauffman mentioned, "Essential Doctrines of the Church of God" was splendid, and, indeed, it should be in tract form if it is not already so. A more recent article entitled "Can You Believe?" was also quite to the point and I enjoyed reading it a great deal. Then, there was the one about the need for the Church of God to be united, in which the writer expressed her opinions in regard to the Communion and I can endorse her thoughts wholeheartedly, for it is certainly true that we may not be able to judge the worthiness of our brother, but we do know who is, or is not, our brother.

These are only a very few of the most outstanding articles which have been exceedingly interesting and provocative of thought, and I wish to thank the authors of them for their splendid efforts.

It seems to me that we should thank God daily that we have so much truth and we should be very diligent in our efforts to teach it to others. My young daughter recently attended services in one of the most popular churches in our big city. When she came home, she said while she was there listening to the minister and looking over the huge church, filled pretty well to capacity, the thought ran through her mind: "Oh, how I wish this were our church and the minister one of ours, giving a 'real gospel' sermon to these people!"

As I think of the work in our churches from another angle, however, I am led to wonder why our pastors are not a bit more zealous in their efforts, upon taking up their work in a new church, to make frequent visits among all the people who might be able to attend their church, both those who are actually church members and those who may be only remotely interested in its efforts. In almost every local church there are people who have been regular attendants of that church at one time, but for some reason (and there is always a reason of some kind) have lost interest and are no longer active members of that church. It seems to me it should be the business of the pastor, who is the leader of the flock, to make personal calls on those people and, if possible, find out what the reason is for their apparent lack of interest and try his utmost to renew their zeal, for the church needs them as badly as they need the church. In my experience with the Church of God for the past twenty-six years, I have known one such man. He was only a young man, just starting out as a minister of the gospel, but he was tireless in his efforts to make frequent calls on everyone who was at all interested in the Truth and urged them to come out to church each Sunday. As a result, he had good attendance almost every Sunday and he came to this particular church when conditions were most discouraging and one less diligent might not have accomplished what he did.

In closing this brief letter, let me again thank all the people who have contributed such good reading to our paper and ask that they keep up the good work in the future.

Yours in the hope of our Master's soon coming, spanned out the heavens" (A.V. and Leeser's), and "spread out the heavens" (S. & G. and Variorum, margin). Isaiah 40:22 says: "That stretcheth out the heavens as a curtain, and spreadeth them out as a tent to dwell in." The similes of curtain (literally, like fineness) and tent exclude the idea of firmness or solidity. The Hebrew word here used for curtain is dok and is cognate with dak ("fine dust") and, as Gesenius says, signifies "fineness—hence fine cloth or garment, or curtain." Young's Concordance defines it as "thin veil." In Psalm 104:2 we have, "Who stretcheth out the heavens like a curtain (yerihuh)." The Hebrew word here rendered "curtain" means "something tremulous," and, again according to Gesenius, its meaning is "a hanging-curtain, so called from its tremulous motion."

Hazel Crundwell Cripe.

SOME "MISTAKES" OF MOSES

Job 37:18 is often quoted as proof that the Hebrews believed the upper sky to be "strong (solid) as a molten looking glass." In this connection it may interest the reader to know that Luther, who (so far as the present writer is aware) made no pretensions to scientific knowledge, saw in this verse an expression of contrast. The word for "sky" in Young's Concordance is defined as "small dust," "thin cloud," thus being the very negation of solid. Neither "dust" nor "cloud" can properly be defined as "solid." "The expanse," says Luther, "is rarer and finer than the atmosphere in which we live, and yet through the power of the Divine Word is as strong as if it were metal."

There is much more that could be said on this particular phase of artfully designed attacks on Moses, but we think that we have made it specifically clear that Moses and true science do not conflict. There is, however, in the writer's mind a suggestion that here is another instance of the wonderful choice of words made use of by the Scriptures; so chosen as to fit not only the ascertained science of the past, but of today, and also of tomorrow. Without assuming the role of a didactic, he would call attention to recent discoveries of science mentioned in the press, which have asserted the atmosphere to be composite of atomic particles and even smaller particles. Is it not at least significant that some of the Hebrew words representing the heavens and the clouds of heaven have associated with them the thought of "fine matter" or "dust"? The wonders of radio, radar, and some as yet underestimated forces of our atmosphere and phenomena of intermediate space, have clearly demonstrated that there is still much, very much, to learn.

In a Toronto Evening Daily of September 28, 1946, there appears an item of news from England which is given considerable prominence in large type under the following caption—"Jet Hit Solid Wall of Air, Then Exploded, United Kingdom Thinks." The Daily Express of London, England, comments, "Was this the first air wall accident?" This news item is accompanied with the declaration: "At speeds approaching the speed of sound, scientists say, air tends to pile up like a solid wall, against which a plane could batter itself to pieces" (italics mine).

The air of our earth as God made it, and intended it to be used, is necessary to man, and of varied usefulness to him, and may increase in usefulness as its wonders are more fully understood; but misused it becomes a boom-crang of destruction. It is not impossible, and may even be probably, that Job's remark concerning the "molten looking glass" may be prophetic in the light of present-day findings in scientific research. It is not impossible nor improbable that the wonders that we are finding out today may have been even better known to the men of ancient times. The past holds many secrets that the present has not yet recovered. Thus a comparison of the actual statements of Moses with the discoveries and some of the conclusions of modern science is so far from shaking our faith in the accuracy of the sacred narrative that it confirms it; and on further points which we may not understand at present we are prepared to wait in confidence, feeling assured that harmony will eventually prevail.

Where did Moses get his knowledge, or Job, either? We are astonished to see how in the brief and rapid outlines given more than three thousand years ago, they have anticipated some of the most wonderful recent discoveries of science. Let science (true science) pursue her boundless course and multiply her discoveries in the heavens and in the earth. The believer is persuaded that they will show only more clearly that "the words of the Lord are pure words, as silver tried in a furnace of fire, purified seven times" (Psalm 12:6). Even the hostile and skeptical have involuntarily helped in the confirmation of the Biblical record.

MILLENNIAL GLORY

ployment and the contentment that comes of each day's work well done. The wages problem solved!

"There will be a feast of fat things unto all people and no more hunger or thirst" (Isa. 25:6). Isaiah 58:11 speaks of prosperity not known before, such as shall be "like a watered garden."

The Kingdom will be universal. All peoples and nations and languages will dwell there and serve Him. Jerusalem will be the metropolis, the seat of government, and the seat of worship, "and the name of that city from that day shall be Jehovah-Shammah,—the Lord is there."

Then will all nations throng up to that City, for (Isa. 62:7) it shall be "a praise in the earth," "a rejoicing and her people a joy" (65:18), and Jerusalem will be called the "throne of the Lord," "the city of God" (Psalm 46:4), "the city of righteousness" (Isa. 1:26), the "city of truth" (Zech. 8:3), the faithful city (Isa. 1:21), "the holy city" (Neh. 11:1), the beautiful city (Psalm 48:2), the "great city" (Jer. 22:8), the "joy of the whole earth" (Psalm 48:2), and "the perfection of beauty" (Lam. 2:15). All these names are given to it.

In contemplating the population of this City, let us not forget that converted Israel will be there. Brought into the New Covenant, they will continue as a nation before God, never again to be plucked up or thrown down, never again to be persecuted, tortured, or despised, "but in those days the house of Judah and the house of Israel shall come together," and the inheritance long promised to them will be their reward.

The Kingdom will be populated by God's chosen remnant, those who faithfully have served Him; the elect from all countries and nations and peoples of every age; all these shall reign with Him "a thousand years."

All the nations of the earth will be blessed. They will, one and all, come up to Jerusalem—"Jehovah Shammah"—and bring their offerings and their worship to the Lord their King, for they will say, "Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, for the word of the Lord goeth out from Jerusalem."

They shall traverse the Great Highway that leads up to the City—"the Way of Holiness." In this highway, the wicked shall never pass, nor the unclean, but only those who have been cleansed by the blood of Christ.

This highway will be built upon land that, once barren and desolate, in the Millennium shall "blossom as the rose." It shall "possess the glory of Lebanon and the excellency of Carmel and Sharon, and there shall be seen the glory of the Lord and the excellency of our God. The hills shall break forth in singing, and instead of the thorn shall come up the fir tree, and instead of the briar shall come up the myrtle tree; becoming unto the Lord for a name; for an everlasting sign, never to be cut off. Even the beasts of the field shall be tamed; no ravenous beast shall prowl and haunt the abodes of peace, for the wolf and the lamb shall feed together, and the lion shall eat straw like the bullock, and dust shall be the serpent's meat. "The leopard shall lie down with the kid; and the calf and the young lion and the fatling together, and the cow and the bear shall feed; their young ones shall lie down together . . . and the sucking child shall play on the hole of the asp, and the weaned child shall put his hand on the cockatrice den. They shall not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain"—"and a little child shall lead them." (Isa. 11:7-9.)

How wonderful is the prospect and how glorious the anticipation! Let us not forget that before the end of the thousand years Satan shall be loosed for a little season, during which time he will try to turn again the hearts of men. Man will have one last trial, and many shall fall by the way, rising with Satan in rebellion to dethrone our Lord. But the Devil's triumph shall be short lived; he shall rise only to be destroyed utterly, for Christ will put all enemies under His feet and His foes shall be His footstool. "The last enemy to be destroyed is Death."

Then—"there shall be no more death." The end of death will be the final triumph of Christ in His Kingdom. Then will He hand over His Kingdom to His Father at the climax of the thousand years. The peak of glory will be reached after the last Great Judgment, when the names of those that are written in the Lamb's Book of Life will be proclaimed, and then will be seen the renewed heavens and renewed earth with its Greater Jerusalem coming down from God out of heaven, and the marriage of the Lamb to His true and faithful bride.

THE SABBATH, A SIGN

eternal law of right and duty through love, having their origin in the will and attributes of Jehovah, and stamped upon man's mental organization at his creation."

If the keeping of the Jewish Sabbath is necessary to salvation in this Christian dispensation, why, why did not the Apostolic Conference in Jerusalem give instruction to that effect? No, it is never commanded in the New Testament.

Hear Paul's instruction: "Stand fast therefore in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free, and be not entangled again with the yoke of bondage" (Gal. 6:1). Do not be guilty of spiritual adultery by being married to Christ and continuing to live with Moses. (Rom. 7:1-4.) "Now therefore why tempt ye God, to put a yoke upon the neck of the disciples, which neither our fathers nor we were able to bear?" (Acts 15:10.)

BOOK PARADISE

By Arlen Marsh

"Follow you the star that lights a desert pathway, yours or mine.
Forward, till you see the Highest Human Nature is divine."

—Tennyson.

It is only with a good deal of mental trembling that John Erskine's The Human Life of Jesus is even mentioned by Book Parade.

Mr. Erskine, professor, philosopher, author, musician, diplomat, writes brilliantly. He thinks brilliantly. He is, in brief, a brilliant man. But his theology is so open to question that his study of the human nature of Jesus Christ is crowded with unacceptable conceptions.

The book is, nevertheless, worth reading. On nearly every page, you will find points in which you disagree with Erskine; but you will not find him dull, and you will discover that his ideas are stimulating, provocative of both study and thought.

It is a poor teacher, a poor preacher, a poor person of any kind, who reads and listens only if he agrees with the notions being expressed. Solely for this reason is The Human Life of Jesus recommended (Thomas Morrow; $3.00). Mr. Erskine believes Jesus was the Son of God; he believes Jesus was a part of God. But he is not concerned with the Trinity; he is concerned with the human attributes which displayed themselves in Jesus' life.

Like Albert Payson Terhune, who broke away from his marvelous dog stories long enough to write The Son of God, John Erskine believes Jesus must once have loved a woman, that He perhaps had been "disappointed in love." How else, Erskine and Terhune both ask, could Jesus have been "tempted in all points like as we are"?

The Human Life of Jesus is not suggested because you will agree with it, but because its ideas are new. It is suggested for reading because its conceptions will give you reason to think of Jesus as a man as well as Christ. Debate with Erskine all you will; the exercise may do you good.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

Prepared by Madge Savage

"The patriarchs, moved with envy, sold Joseph into Egypt: but God was with him" (Acts 7:9).

Joseph Sold

Joseph's brothers sold him to some traveling merchants. They were called Ishmaelites or Midianites. Another name we have heard, in the news broadcasts, that was given to them, is Arabians.

They wandered around the country. Some stole or plundered for a living. Some had herds and flocks. When Moses fled from Egypt, he went to the "land of Midian." His father-in-law was a Midianite priest. There were lawless tribes and peaceful, quiet tribes. What would be Joseph's lot, now that he was sold into their hands? They took him with them into Egypt. (Gen. 37:28.)

Pharaoh was the ruler in Egypt. Potiphar was one of his officers, a captain of the Egyptian guards. Potiphar bought Joseph from the merchantmen. (Gen. 39:1.)

Joseph's Brothers Return Home

Joseph had not been present when his brothers had returned home. He was very sad when he returned to them. They did not see Joseph in the pit where he had been hidden.

Joseph had been gotten rid of, the brothers decided to make up a story to tell their father. That is always the way: one sin often leads to another. Now they decided to invent a lie. They could not tell Joseph's father the truth.

They took Joseph's coat. Then they dipped it in the blood of a young goat they killed to get the blood. Although Jacob did not know it, his sons were deceiving him with a young goat. He, too, had prepared a young goat—for food—with which he deceived his father.

Jacob's Sorrow

Jacob knew the coat had belonged to Joseph. He had sent him to find his brothers. They did not have to say much. The coat told the story to the sorrowing father. He said, "It is my son's coat; an evil beast hath devoured him; Joseph is without doubt rent in pieces" (Gen. 37:33). Gone from his mind were the dreams Joseph had told his father and brothers. His son was dead, he thought. Jacob had no idea he was being deceived. He tore his clothing, which was a sign of mourning in those days. Sometimes they tore them from top to bottom.

Then he put on a garment made of sackcloth. That was a coarse material made of camels' hair. It was used to make sacks and bags. It was used, also, for clothing for those who mourned. Jacob said he would never get over mourning for Joseph. He said, "I will go down into the grave"—mourning for his son.

Slavery

There is no record of the beginning of buying and selling of people for slaves. It is talked about in our Bibles. Sometimes a man or one of his children became a slave to work out a debt. Paul speaks of servants and slaves in different parts of his writings.

Today, we as followers of Christ must be on guard all the time that we do not become slaves. Paul wrote: "Know ye not, that to whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey, his servants ye are to whom ye obey; whether of sin unto death, or of obedience unto righteousness?"

If we belong to Christ, sin has no more dominion over us. Sin is not our master. Christ is our Master. He freed us from sin. (Rom. 6:7, 9.)

We are told that the "desire" of the flesh and the desire of the eyes and the pride of life, are of the world. (1 John 2:16.) Uncontrolled, they cause sin and bring death. Christians are to try to be temperate in all things. (1 Cor. 9:25.) We should be the masters of our bodies, of our deeds, and thoughts: not slaves. Our bodies belong to the Lord. They are His temple.

Jesus said: "If a man love me, he will keep my words: and my Father will love him" (John 14:23).

National Berean Society Oregon, Illinois

FROM Delbert Jones, pastor of the Hillisburg, Indiana, Church of God, comes a description of a youth rally held early this fall in conjunction with the Indiana Quarterly Conference.

James M. Watkins, promotional director for National Bible Institution, was in charge of the rally. Other similar rallies are planned for a variety of locations during the year.

"The program," Mr. Jones reports, "was varied in nature. Vocal solos were sung by Kirby Davis, a student in Oregon Bible College, and Bonnie Huffer. Shirley Huffer and Joyce Ella Macy played piano solos. The congregational singing, led by Brother Watkins, was truly inspiring. There was lively singing and slow, thoughtful hymns.

"Following the singing was a message tuned to the needs and tempo of youth. Brother Watkins pointed out some of the problems of youth, and then he proceeded to show how they might best meet them.

"After the message, Brother Emory Macy, pastor of the Kokomo Church of God, showed a moving picture of Palestine."

A committee of three members has been chosen by the Indiana State Conference board to plan for future youth rallies to be held in the State. A rally is expected to be conducted at each quarterly conference and at the annual conference.

"We are anticipating," Mr. Jones concludes, "the day when the youth rally will be not only a local or state rally, but a national rally which will bring together Church-of-God youth from all states for a period of recreation and worship."

ABOUT the same time that Indiana was holding its first youth rally, Harold Doan, pastor of the Chicago Church of God, was promoting a new youth movement among Ohio churches.

As G. E. Marsh, writing in the Berean Bugler, put it, "Brother Harold Doan . . . who was guest speaker and young people's teacher at the Ohio Conference, held a 'gripe session' . . . in which members of the class were urged to state their criticisms of the way in which they felt they were being ignored by the older element in the church and crowded out of its activities.

"As a result of that session, under the inspiring leadership of their teacher, the young folk held a remarkable on-their-knees prayer meeting, after which in the spirit of devoted youthful enthusiasm they launched their movement in this state."

MORE will be said of the Ohio youth movement later on this page. The point to be made now is that, in both Indiana and Ohio, young people have found it necessary to ignore very largely the existing organizations which supposedly are devoted chiefly to young people's work: the Berean societies.

This is not as it should be. The National Berean Society and its affiliates are for everyone, but they mainly are intended for "young people . . . and their associates," to quote the national constitution. If it has become essential to create something new to reach the young people, then someone, somewhere, has failed to do his job.

Young people need to be led into the way of God, away from the way of the world. We all know that. But they cannot be attracted by the same sort of sessions that keep a grip, we hope, on their parents and grandparents.

Adult supervision is required for the success of any youth movement. On the other hand, young people themselves should do the great bulk of the planning and of the actual work. Berean groups everywhere should keep these facts in mind.

CHICAGO CHURCH OF GOD

On October 7, 1946, the Chicago Church of God held its annual business meeting in the newly made recreation room in the basement of Sr. Emma Coleman's home, at 553 N. LeClaire Ave., Chicago. This room was offered by Mrs. Coleman for the use of the church as a meeting place, principally for the use of the young people in their gatherings. It is greatly appreciated by the church group, and the thanks of all go to Sr. Coleman, as well as to Bro. Harold Dean, and many others, who worked tirelessly to make it an attractive, comfortable room for any kind of church social gathering.

A few months ago, we reported optimistic plans for building soon in a new subdivision of Chicago. Since this report was made, however, the price of property has increased more than thirty per cent, and the cost of building also has increased tremendously. Building has all but stopped in the subdivision we were investigating. In view of this critical situation, we have decided to delay action on this project, at least for the time being. We received many generous contributions from outside of Chicago to support this project. We are thankful for this support, and when the time comes that we can build, it will find good use. In view of these facts, however, if any contributor desires that his contribution be put to immediate use in some other field, please feel free to notify the treasurer, Mrs. Emma B. Coleman, 553 N. LeClaire, Chicago 44, Ill.

The annual election of church officers was held, and plans were made for the coming year. Special attention was given to the Sunday school, which is conducted during church services, with an average attendance of eight children, and consisting of two classes. It was decided to create a Sunday school department, which will work in co-operation with the executive board of the church.

The treasurer's report showed a grand total of $2,186.40, which includes both the general and building funds. Individual contributions for the past year have totaled almost $2,000. We feel that God has greatly blessed us in our progress thus far; and, although the way has not yet been opened for us to own a building, we know that if we work and pray earnestly, God will provide the opportunity in His own time, and will bless our efforts toward that end.

Jeanne Hall, Retiring Secy.

CASEY, ILLINOIS

The Restitution Church of God of the Abrahamic Faith, located six miles south and two miles east of Casey, is happy to report that it has a minister, Bro. John Mercer, Macomb, Ill., who will speak on the second Sunday of each month.

Sunday school is conducted at 10:00 a.m., preaching services at 11:00 a.m., and 7:30 p.m.

On Sunday, September 15, our church had a surprise for Bro. Mercer and family. A homecoming day had been planned. After the morning services, a long table on the church lawn soon was full of good things to eat. At 2:00 p.m., Bro. Charley Hickox presented a splendid talk on "Homecoming." Also, there was special singing, though our musical program was shortened because of sickness.

Sentenced from three to twenty years at hard labor, prison records show that the average thief, counting the time lost in jail and at trials, 'cleans up' in his illegal work less than the amount named—twenty-five cents a day! And I can't strike for higher wages or better working conditions, either! Really, 'Crime doesn't pay!'"—G. E. Marsh in "The Berean Bugler," Tipp City, Ohio.

ERRATUM—AND APOLOGY

Through a comedy of errors Shakespeare himself hardly could equal, lesson 4 (October 27) of the Truth Seekers' Sunday School Quarterly for young people and adults has been balled up pretty hopelessly.

As it appears in the Quarterly, the printed leading calls for "Forgiveness of Others," and the printed text is drawn from Matthew and Mark. Simultaneously, all editorial comments are founded on a lesson mentioned on page 3 of the quarterly as having the title, "Necessity of Prayer," and founded on texts from 1 Kings and Psalms.

The lesson is, supposedly, on prayer. The texts used by the editorial staff writers are, therefore, correct. The printed text is wrong; the golden text is wrong; the title is wrong; the aim is wrong.

The origins of this blunder, which will appear incomprehensible even to those who have had anything to do with the production of the Quarterly, lie in the early fall of 1945—the period before the present editor took over the quarterly. But the editor, in trying to straighten out the confusion that even then was developing, has apparently managed somehow to create that situation so aptly described by Milton as "confusion worse confounded."

Many of the difficulties which have arisen with the Quarterly during the past two years—including this one—will, we hope, be ironed out completely in 1947. New talent is working on lesson outlines, and changes in editorial handling of lesson comments are in preparation. All this, however, does no earthly good in studying the lesson of October 27.

At least the situation will give an opportunity to test the advisability of the recommendation made by the National Sunday School Association at its last annual meeting: that printed texts be eliminated from the Quarterly. Arlen Marsh, Editor, Truth Seekers' Quarterly.

SOUTHLAWN CHURCH OF GOD

The regular fall schedule of activities has been resumed at Southlawn Church of God, Grand Rapids, Mich., and all members are finding benefit in participating in them.

Especially outstanding this year has been the work of our high school young people, led by those who attended the Summer Bible Training School. Recently, they conducted both the morning and evening worship services, providing sermonettes, special musical numbers, and testimonies. It is their regular practice to conduct the opening exercises at the evening worship service on Sunday.

October 6 was Rally Day and was successful in all respects. The attendance was one hundred sixty-three. The program consisted mainly of the presentation of promotion certificates and special awards for faithful and regular attendance.

October 27 will mark our twentieth anniversary as a church organization. As usual, we hope to make a special observance of this event. Plans for a full day's program have been made, and we hope to have a guest speaker. There will be morning and afternoon services, with a potluck dinner at noon. Any who can come to help us celebrate our birthday will be very welcome to worship and fellowship with us.

Our sick list has been very lengthy this year, but we are very thankful that most of these members have been restored to health. At present, however, Bro. J. S. Lyon is quite ill and the prayers of the brethren on his behalf will be appreciated.

Ellen Van Fleet, Secy.

ATTENTION, PLEASE

The United States Bureau of Census is compiling figures for a 1946 census of religious bodies in this country. Accordingly, we are requested to submit to the census bureau "an accurate and complete list of all our churches in the United States, with the post office address of each church."

For several months, an effort has been made to compile an accurate directory of the Church of God, same being published from time to time in this section. That directory, however, is still incomplete. We appeal again, therefore, to our church secretaries, pastors, and evangelists, that they send to us the name and address of their respective churches, name and address of pastor, or, if there is no pastor, the church secretary or presiding elder. Only when we are fully informed regarding all our churches, will it be possible for us to relay authentic information to the United States Census Bureau. At present, the census bureau is asking only for a complete list of our churches and their post office addresses. Later, the Census Bureau will send a questionnaire to each church.

Please co-operate in this respect. Please do not delay! Send the information that will assist in completing our own church directory, and with the same stroke you will be assisting Uncle Sam. Sydney E. Magaw, Secy.

DOLL-KUHN

At three o'clock, Sunday afternoon, September 22, Miss Margaret E. Doll, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Doll, Culver, Ind., became the bride of DeVon L. Kuhn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer L. Kuhn, Bourbon, Ind.

Mrs. Elgie Gool played fifteen minutes of instrumental music and then accompanied Mrs. Albert Overmyer, who sang "Oh, Promise Me" and "Because" before entrance of the bridal party. Before the beautifully decorated altar, and in front of a painting of our Saviour, the bride and groom, two sterling young people, pledged true, loyal, and unending devotion to each other for the duration of their lives, symbolized in the double ring ceremony. Following the exchange of vows, the wedding party stood before the altar with bowed heads while Sr. Overmyer sang the "Lord's Prayer."

The bride was given away by her father, Miss Helen Kuhn, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid, and Miss Mary Louise Kemple was maid of honor. Henry Kroeg, Jr., was best man, with Donovan Overmyer and William Gutschalk as ushers.

Mrs. Kuhn is a member of our Burr Oak Church and has been our chorister for the past year. Mr. Kuhn was in the army for three and one half years, having served in both Germany and Japan. It was in the latter country that he purchased the beautiful silk for the bride's gown.

After a reception at the bride's home, the happy young couple left for a short honeymoon trip. Upon their return they will reside at 2281 1/2 E. Elliott St., Plymouth, Ind.

Thus a new family is established before God, and we are sure their home will be happy and God-fearing. May God guide them through every situation of life, using them to His glory, until they shall be blended into that greater family in the Kingdom of God.

OREGON BIBLE COLLEGE NEWS

Here is what happens to your letters that you send to students at Oregon Bible College. They are first delivered to National Bible Institution office. Bro. Sydney Magaw gets them from there and brings them to the college when he comes for his first class. The few students who are not in class upon his arrival check through the mail and relay the good news to lucky students as they come from classes. Your letters are then eagerly read between classes; and, if the five-minute intermission is not time enough, we usually find a way to complete the reading during class. Yes, we like to get your letters.

We appreciate very much the new fluorescent lights in our classrooms. Other lighting improvements are the placing of lights in the east porch, where we play ping pong, and in a formerly dark corner of the library.

Many of the students went to the Berean skating party held at Dixon, Tuesday night, October 8.

From evidence left in the library, we conclude that the art class has been busily engaged in making chalk drawings of flowers in a pitcher. Black Hawk across the river has been receiving some attention from the class, also.

The Apostolic History class is the scene of much activity. Our teacher, Bro. P. L. Austin, uses as his chief text the Book of Acts, but he also is using "The Apostolic Age," "The Emphatic Diaglott," and "Greek Lexicon." We find the study of Paul, Peter, and other apostles very interesting and beneficial.

Reported by Class in Religious Journalism.

“Bethlehem’s King”

Sister Madge Savage, Waite Park, Minnesota, recently wrote a song entitled “Bethlehem’s King,” contributing same to National Bible Institution, hoping that it might be included in the contemplated songbook. According to Sister Savage’s request, the song has been copyrighted in the name of National Bible Institution.

Though unable here to present the tune, we are pleased to present the words:

First verse:

“As shepherds watched their flocks that night;
As wise men saw the star shine bright:
We look for Him, and work, and pray
For Christ as King will come some day.

Chorus:

“For unto you is born in Bethlehem a King;
Lift up your heads,
And as with angels sing!
For He shall rule: Love will increase!
‘Wonderful,’ ‘Counsellor,’ ‘Prince of Peace!’

Second verse:

“The Holy Word foretold His birth,
And tells us He shall judge our worth;
As we before Him kneel and wait
By the Word He judges small and great.

Third verse:

“Still shepherds watch their flocks to see
That all the lambs safe-sheltered be;
And wise men search the Word, and pray
For this same Christ to come some day.”

A picture of the author appears weekly on the Children’s Page, Sister Savage now entering her ninth consecutive year as editor of this weekly feature in THE HERALD.

Thank you, Sister Savage, for your faithful service! Congratulations on your newly copyrighted “Bethlehem’s King”!

Call to Minnesota

As these lines are being written (October 11), we are clearing our desk prior to a trip to Minnesota for a short series of evangelistic meetings at Eden Valley. Accompanying us will be Mrs. Magaw and our son Jimmy. En route, we will preach at Waterloo, Iowa, on Friday evening, October 11; at Lester Prairie, Minnesota, October 12; and then speed onward to Eden Valley for the series of meetings scheduled for October 13-20.

While at Waterloo, Iowa, we will be guests of Brother and Sister Eldridge Ellis. At Lester Prairie, Minnesota, we will have a short visit with our parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer H. Magaw—back at our boyhood home, and, indeed, the very house in which we were born. At Eden Valley, we will be working with many former friends, the Eden Valley congregation having been our first pastorate (1927-1931). Present pastor of the church is Brother Walter Wiggins, with whom we will be working in this series of evangelistic meetings.

As Long As Children Pray

“The world has grown so dark with sin
That God seems far away—
But never comes an evening dusk
When children do not pray.

“All day men’s greed and hate and fear
Bring heartaches and despair;
But even when the day is through,
Small heads are bowed in prayer.

“Though tyrant lusts and vain desires
Have torn our faith in parts,
As surely as the twilight falls,
Prayers rise from little hearts.

“So much strange terror haunts the Night and bitterness the day—
But all of life cannot be wrong
As long as children pray.”

Their Wickedness Is Great

By Mrs. H. H. Kent, Pueblo, Colorado

ONE DOES not need to look far in these days to see that the Prophet Joel's statement (3:13, 14) applies to the days in which we live. Crimes and "fearful sights" abound in many places. All about us we see wickedness in one form or another. Our newspaper cartoons tell us that "the nations are angry," as Jeremiah said they would be in the last days of the gospel dispensation. Joel had much to say about the wrath that is to come upon the world in the last days. He tried to open the eyes of the people of his day to their needs so they would turn to God and repent and then they would observe what was going on about them. Though drought and famine conditions were prevalent in those days, the people's eyes were blinded to what the results would be.

Because they did not heed the warnings and pleadings of God's prophets, both Judah and Israel became so weakened as nations that stronger nations led them into captivity. Israel's captivity by Assyria (about 721 B.C.) is mentioned in 2 Kings 17:23, when they were lost to the world but not to God. Judah held out longer than Israel. We are all more familiar with the captivity of Judah than that of Israel. The last chapter of 2 Kings and the last chapter of 2 Chronicles give an account of this sad event, when they were besieged by Nebuchadnezzar and led into captivity. One hardly can read this account without being moved, as we realize what it must have meant to those Jews who saw that wonderful Temple, that Solomon had built, destroyed and all the valuables carried away to Babylon—about one hundred twenty-five years after Israel fell. Although the warnings of the prophets were not heeded by ancient Israelites, they seem to be ringing out louder and clearer with new accents and more comforting tones to people of our day who heed them. Many of them are now ready to heed the call their forefathers ignored.

Joel said there would come a day that would be "great and very terrible, a day of darkness." He showed them their need of being in tune with God and in the spirit of expectancy that they might be prepared to meet what was coming. While God gave this message to Joel for those living in that day, yet Joel's warnings take us down to the judgment day when the heathen (nations, R.V.) are to be awakened, and when God sits in judgment—that great time that all God's people are expecting which seems to be fast approaching.

"Put ye in the sickle, for the harvest is ripe: come, get you down; for the press is full, the fats overflow; for their wickedness is great. Multitudes, multitudes in the valley of decision: for the day of the Lord is near in the valley of decision." (Joel 3.)

Joel 3:13 tells of a "sickle" that is brought forth. A sickle indicates a "cutting down." It is always associated with the harvest time which, for the present world, has been going on more or less for a long time.

It is in connection with the harvest time and during the process of this harvest that Joel said: "Their wickedness is great." Then will follow the day of the Lord when "the Lord shall roar out of Zion, and utter his voice from Jerusalem." We who study our Bibles know that these dark days are not far off. Christians are told to "look up" when they recognize that these prophetic signs are in the process of fulfillment. Their is joy in looking beyond these times. The closing words of both the second and third verses of Joel three give us encouragement that we might endure, should we go through these places; for rays of light and hope are going to be needed, more or less, should Christ delay His coming much longer.

It is only through the love of God to sinful man and through the study of His Word that we are able to see the exceeding sinfulness of sin. Those who are worldly and associate with the world have their eyes blinded. They will be punished. Joel scored the sins of his people in no uncertain terms. Paul said, "The wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of men, who hold the truth in unrighteousness."

Looking at the world as it is today, after a carnage that has never before been equaled in history and when all attempts at peace seem like mockery, we come to the conclusion that all the prophets saw these days of trouble and desolation and that mankind has brought them upon themselves. They do not know that the Scriptures say: "Your sins will find you out." Jeremiah accused the Israelites of being "wise to do evil." Confusion abounds everywhere. "Lord, to whom shall we go? thou hast the words of eternal life," said one of the apostles of Christ's day. Paul said of the wicked, "They are willingly ignorant." Every man's hand seems to be against his brother. A Christian writer said recently, "In times of war, sin finds its results in the relaxed morals of men. People, like sheep, are willing to accept human leaders' opinions, ahead of God's Word. They appeal to all at first because they are beneficent and altruistic, but in the end may lead to the destruction of personal liberties." # Inconsistency? No!

By Harvey U. Krogh, Jr., Grand Rapids, Michigan

"The good that I would I do not: but the evil which I would not, that I do" (Romans 7:19).

IN CONSIDERATION of Romans 7:19, it seems the Apostle Paul was inconsistent in some of the statements which he made. For instance, in Philippians 4:13, he said, "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me." He led the Corinthians to believe that he was a man of discipline, by saying: "I keep under my body, and bring it into subjection: lest that by any means, when I have preached to others, I myself should be a castaway" (1 Cor. 9:27). Paul also told the Philippian brethren to follow him and gave them no hint that he was unstable in the smallest thing.

Paul showed his determination to do as he chose when he boldly said to the Corinthians: "Wherefore, if meat make my brother to offend, I will eat no flesh while the world standeth, lest I make my brother to offend" (1 Cor. 8:13).

It is not only the verse at the beginning of this article that seems inconsistent with the rest of Paul's life and writings but the whole paragraph beginning with Romans 7:14. "We know that the law is spiritual: but I am carnal, sold under sin." Paul was not carnal, else why should he have taught, "For to be carnally minded is death" (Rom. 8:6)? If Paul knew himself to be carnal, why did he give Timothy the assurance shortly afterward that a crown of life was laid up for him to be given when the Saviour returned? Neither was Paul "sold under sin," or else he would not have tried to teach the Corinthians that they were bought with a price. (1 Cor. 6:20; 7:23.) At one time, both he and the Corinthians may have been "sold under sin," but certainly not now since Christ had purchased them with His own blood.

Let us study this problem of apparent inconsistency. One of the first rules of Bible study is to consider the context. Sometimes this includes the whole Bible and sometimes just the book or chapter. In this instance, let us consider the Book of Romans.

In Romans 1:16, we have the theme of the Book. "I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek." The subject is the Gospel. On whom does the gospel work? On both the Jew and on the Greek. What made the difference between the Jew and the Greek? It was the law. Now let us see what Paul was talking about in all the Book of Romans up to and including the seventh chapter.

"Behold, thou art called a Jew, and retest in the law, and makest thy boast of God" (Rom. 2:17). Here Paul was showing the Jews that they were no better than anyone else, though they had the law.

"Therefore by the deeds of the law there shall no flesh be justified in his sight: for by the law is the knowledge of sin" (3:20). Why was there no difference between the Jew and the Greek as recorded in the following verses? Simply because the law did not save the Jew who had it any more than the Greek who did not have it. The law simply revealed sin, and all have sinned. What is it that saves? Paul said, "Therefore we conclude that a man is justified by faith without the deeds of the law." We are saved by faith in Christ, the One whom the gospel reveals.

"If they which are of the law be heirs, faith is made void, and the promise made of none effect: because the law worketh wrath: for where no law is, there is no transgression" (4:14, 15). Paul was not speaking disrespectfully of the law; but he was speaking of its ill effect upon the individual, for it works wrath in him.

"Moreover the law entered, that the offence might abound. But where sin abounded, grace did much more abound" (5:20). Again, we have the law mentioned as that which condemns us as offenders.

In Romans 6, we are told that by dying with Christ and symbolizing it by baptism "in the likeness of his death," we can get out from under the law. Paul said in Romans 6:14: "Sin shall not have dominion over you: for ye are not under the law, but under grace."

Paul then began chapter 7 by saying: "Know ye not, brethren, (for I speak to them that know the law,) how that the law hath dominion over a man as long as he liveth? For the woman which hath an husband is bound by the law to her husband so long as he liveth; but if the husband be dead, she is loosed from the law of her husband. So then if, while her husband liveth, she be married to another man, she shall be called an adulteress: but if her husband be dead, she is free from the law; so that she is no adulteress, though she be married to another man." What was Paul really talking about? The next verse tells us. "Wherefore, my brethren, ye also are become dead to the law by the body of Christ; that ye should be married to another, even to him who is raised from the dead, that we should bring forth fruit unto God." He simply was saying that we no longer are under the law but now are joined to Christ.

In Romans 7:7, Paul began to speak of himself when he was still under the law before he became a Christian. "I had not known sin, but by the law: for I had not known lust, except the law had said, Thou shalt not covet." Further, he showed how that although the law was perfect and holy, he was a sinner and the law condemned him. He then continued the rest of the chapter by speaking of himself as one under the law, telling of his experiences with the law. It was when he was under the law that he desired to do what was right but was unable to do so. The law could not be kept and, besides, no flesh could be justified by the law. There was no strength in the law to enable the individual to keep it. Therefore, when Paul was under the law, the good that he wanted to do, he did not do, and the evil which he did not want to do, that he did. He could not find how to perform that which was good. Why? "Now if I do that I would not, it is no more I that do it, but sin" (Please turn to page 10)

The World's Present Peril

By Benjamin Carpenter, Oregon, Illinois

---

PERHAPS NEVER, in the period of human history, has the earth been faced with as much peril and violence as at the present time. It is true that immediately prior to the Flood, the earth had become corrupt, and the earth was filled with violence; for all flesh had corrupted God's way upon the earth.

If the condition that prevailed at the time of the Flood caused the Lord to destroy all life except those saved by the ark, why would we not be expecting a like catastrophe to come upon the world for the ungodly deeds of man? Certainly this is a period when knowledge is being increased and many new inventions are coming into use and abuse. Paul stated in his writings to Timothy that days of peril should come, because men would become so infested with the love of pleasure that they would forget God.

It probably is true that the greatest effort put forth by a large majority of mankind today is to earn more money to use for selfish and lustful pleasures. Most of the new inventions created by man's knowledge soon are commercialized for selfish gain and crime.

If the Israelites polluted themselves with heathen idols and low standards of morals that went with them, how much more is the world becoming saturated in these last perilous times with violence and low morals? Perhaps the fastest mode of travel in the days of Noah was by boat or beast of burden. The distance people of that time covered in a day is no comparison to the extremely high speed attained today—the limit not yet having been reached. In the days of Noah, the most destructive armies moved slowly on foot for the most part, with very meager hand weapons. Today we have such dreadful missiles of destruction that travel with the speed of sound.

The comparison of destruction and devastation is hard to reconcile. One of the great perils of our day is that we are in such a hurry. More people are killed in highway and city traffic accidents than are killed by great armies. Usually we are in a hurry to get some place to have more time for pleasure; for not many of the speeding cars are taking people to places to worship God.

The days that were to be like Noah's time must be with us, because the pleasures of eating, drinking, marrying, and being given in marriage seem to be the uppermost thoughts in the minds of hurrying humanity. It is not that we think there is need to condemn all these things; but, when they crowd out of our minds other things of greater importance, then we become as the Israelites of old, when they sat down to eat and rose up to play. We become worshipers of things made by our hands and forget the One who made all things possible for us.

Much has been said and written recently about juvenile delinquency, but perhaps the delinquency of the children can be laid at the door of the parents in many of the cases. A large per cent of the crime committed in this nation is by teen agers, aggravated largely by filthy literature and immoral entertainment. So much of the entertainment allowed is not proper for anyone to witness, yet our children, with their undeveloped minds, are allowed to receive anything and everything. It is not an unusual thing to have our attention called to a murder committed by someone in his early teens, and some are most horrible and brutal crimes, which is, in a large measure, a reflection on the kind of home training that has been given. These conditions that are brought before us today are not as they are because God wants them that way. He knew all things from the beginning, however, and He inspired the writers of His Word to foretell the coming of such conditions.

The Apostles' Creed

(In the Words of the Apostles)

By G. E. Marsh, Tipp City, Ohio

I BELIEVE in God the Father Almighty, Maker of heaven and earth: and in Jesus Christ His only Son, our Lord: who was conceived by the Holy Ghost, born of the Virgin Mary: suffered under Pontius Pilate, was crucified, dead, and buried: He descended into hell; the third day He rose again from the dead: He ascended into heaven, and sitteth on the right hand of God the Father Almighty: from thence He shall come to judge the quick and the dead. The dead in Christ shall rise first" (1 Thess. 4:14, 16; the Apostle Paul).

Amen. "The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all. Amen" (Rev. 22:21; the Apostle John).

Origin and Value of the Apostle's Creed

SCHOLARS are agreed that The Apostles' Creed is the oldest and most widely accepted outline of early Christian teaching outside of the New Testament. In slightly different forms, it has been in constant use for more than fifteen hundred years. The chief value of this ancient statement of faith lies in the fact that it provides a reasonably full and authoritative declaration of what the church has for hundreds of years looked upon as of first importance in Christian belief and teaching.

Some Singular Omissions of The Apostles' Creed

DID NOT the Apostles believe in the Trinity, the immortality of the soul, eternal torment for the wicked, and going to heaven at death for the righteous as Christian doctrines vital to salvation?

If the revered Apostles' Creed is what Catholic and Protestant churchmen declare it to be, a complete statement of all truth the Apostles regarded as absolutely essential, then there can be only one answer to these questions: The Apostles did not believe in the trinity, immortality of the soul, eternal torment for the wicked, and going to heaven at death for the righteous as first "principles of the doctrine of Christ," for not one of these doctrines is named, nor even suggested, anywhere in this time-honored document!

Singular, isn't it, if the apostles, upon whose teaching the early church was built, believed these things that they did not include them in their Creed?

The Creed does more than to ignore the Trinity. It emphatically denies it, for it draws a clear and sharp distinction between the Father and the Son; and belief in the Holy Spirit is placed far down in the Creed, out of all immediate connection with the affirmations concerning God the Father and Jesus Christ the Son. Its reference to God contains a direct quotation from Paul, in which the Apostle defines his own belief and that of his fellow disciples on that subject in simple and unmistakable language. "To us," he says, "there is but one God, the Father" (1 Cor. 8:6).

Hope for a future life, according to the Creed, depends upon a resurrection of the dead following the coming of Christ, and, consequently, not upon the pagan doctrine of an immortal soul going away to heaven at death.

The only reference to hell in the Creed refers to Christ, the implication being that our sinless Saviour "descended into hell," but was not left in that reputed place of unending torment.

Let us not add to the simple faith of the apostles ideas that are entirely out of harmony with it.

FAITH COMES BY HEARING

By T. M. Ferrell (Holbrook, Nebraska)

WHOSOEVER shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved. How then shall they call on him in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? . . . So then faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God" (Rom. 10:13, 14, 17).

It seems to be true that whatever a person hears the most, that is the thing in which he has faith. This principle has been applied and used by some religious organizations for centuries in catechisms and parochial schools, realizing that if the children are taught continuously their beliefs and practices, it is difficult for them to turn to anything else.

The principle is sound. It is true that if we will teach our children the difference between truth and error and have them know the one true Faith, that is where their faith will be. We seriously doubt, though, that the right Faith can be obtained in so-called "Union Sunday Schools." If they hear nothing but "sky-pilot theology," they are likely to have faith or belief in just that.

"Faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God." How shall they believe in something they have not heard? Each believing parent is duty-bound to put his child in a good position to hear the Word of God. It is partially with this idea in mind that the Church of God has its many conferences every year: to give everyone an opportunity to hear the Word of God and to strengthen the faith already possessed, or to create faith in those who have not had it. Nowhere can anyone find an atmosphere of truth that will create in anyone a truer faith.

Faith does come by hearing. Hear the Word! Believe it! Accept it and be ready to meet Jesus when He comes again!

News and Prophecy Digest

By C. E. Randall (Fonthill, Ontario)

ZIONIST POLITICS. Dr. I. M. Rabinovitch, a Talmudic scholar, speaking before the Canadian Club in Montreal, charged that Zionist politics might be the spark that would start another war. He said there are two groups of Zionists—religious and political. Said he: "Throughout the centuries since the destruction of the Temple in Jerusalem, rabbis have repeatedly drawn attention to the fact that the Jews are a religious community only; Zionism is a symbol only of Israel's future and of mankind generally; that they would be committing suicide by becoming a political nation; and that the Jew must never forget the oath taken at the time of the exile that he will not only never attempt to re-enter Palestine by force, but that it will never even resemble force."

He believes the "terrorism that is being practiced is not only prolonging the sufferings of the Jewish people, but has fired a new train of events potentially disastrous to Jewry as a whole."

He stated that only "six per cent of the Jews of America were Zionists." He gave the membership of the Zionist organization of America as being 111,421, as given in the latest Jewish year book, with Hadassah, a woman's organization, as being 125,000 and young people's groups with 54,000, making in all, 300,000, whereas there are 5,000,000 Jews living in America.

We believe it would be hard to make a practical distinction between the political and religious aspirations of the Jewish people. There is much reasoning behind the arguments of those who contend that if the Jews were to become a nation in their own right, under present-day conditions, it would be more of a graveyard for them than a door of hope. In the end, their only solution is the Lord. He is the consummation of all their dreams—and hopes—until He comes, they will continue to be a people known throughout the world by bywords and hisses.

REFORM. Solomon's words, "There is no new thing under the sun," takes a strong body blow from the Retail Beverage Dealers' Association of Jamestown, New York. It has announced that women bar keepers will no longer be employed and women will no longer be served at the bars. And listen to this! "Bars, taverns, cocktail lounges, and other dispensaries of alcoholic beverages" will be closed on Sundays. If liquor dealers can see the need of keeping women away from the bars for moral reasons, and have found their presence behind the bars as unbecoming the dignity of womanhood—don't you think it is about time the church came out full force against this whole nefarious business? The only reason there is a movement on foot among the home-wrecking and life-destroying liquor dealers for reform is that they see the handwriting on the wall. The pendulum of public sentiment is beginning to swing against the gross evils of the whole liquor business. The church-going people are taking their positions on the battlefield to fight once again the enemy of all righteousness—the liquor business. All power to them!

BRIDES—$4.00. A pathetic aftermath of the war in China is seen in the following note from a news letter of missionary James P. Leynse, address from Peiping:

"Docile Japanese girls, anxious to avoid repatriation to a war-torn Japan, have registered with the municipality in an effort to find Chinese husbands. They are offered for sale at C.N.C. $5,000, which comes to U. S. $4.00."—Moody Monthly.

A GOOD RECORD. The State of Kansas has been in the dry column since May 1, 1881. It has one of the best records in respect to crime and insanity of any of the States. Here is what the "Topeka Daily Capital" had to say about Kansas: "In Kansas there are 105 counties, and of these 54 are without any insane; 54 without any feeble-minded; 96 without any poorhouses; 53 without any persons in jail; 56 without any representatives in the State penitentiary. In spite of the fact that we are told that repeal of Federal prohibition would bring added governmental revenue, statistics again prove that it costs more in crime bills than is received in revenue or taxes." Three cheers for Kansas!

"We HAVE always done it this way," is the excuse some churches give for not doing anything."

AN OUTRAGE. The arrest, trial, and conviction of Archbishop Alojzije Stepinac, head of the Roman Catholic church in Yugoslavia, has been termed "an outrage on justice" by Cardinal McGuigan of Toronto. This, of course, is the viewpoint of the Roman Catholic Church. There is little doubt but what the condemned man did participate in political machinations contrary to the ethics of the Christian order of life. It is hard to give a fair appraisal of the case from this distance, for the acts of the Tito government have been, in many cases, devilish to say the least, and seemingly made to order for the sole purpose of inciting trouble for the Western Democracies. In this case, it would not be far amiss to say it was an instance where one poison was used to counteract another poison.

CHURCH ATTENDANCE. Every church is interested in its attendance; perhaps it would be more correct to say in its non-attendance. "The Globe and Mail," Toronto, made a survey of the churches in the city of Toronto, which has a population somewhere around 800,000, and the comments of the ministers are typical of what most any minister would say in most sections of the country. It was found that Sunday morning attendance averaged around "40 to 75 per cent of the church membership." Evening attendance, except in certain cases, was below this average. It reported: "The evening turnout, it appears, is not more than one member in four, and often less."

S. H. Greenslade, pastor of Centennial United Church, said: "People nowadays go to church morning or evening, but not both. In fact, there are not so many who attend every Sunday morning. They come once in two weeks, once a month, or even less than that."

Saint Andrew's Presbyterian Church is one of the large downtown churches, and the minister, Stuart C. Parker, reported his attendance as being about half of the 1,200 membership. He said his evening congregation was "mostly strangers" and he felt many of them came out of kindness because they were "afraid the church might be empty."

One minister reported a larger evening attendance than a morning. It was the pastor of College Street Baptist church. Their resident membership is 650, and he gave his last Sunday's attendance as "175 people attending in the morning, and 186 in the evening."

P. W. A. Roberts, rector of the Church of the Incarnation (Anglican), stated: "I have never encountered hostility to the church, but so many people just tolerate it—they will not support it. They don't see the need."

"THE MAN who samples the Word of God only occasionally never acquires much of a taste for it."

PRAY TO ESCAPE. Jesus admonished those who had faith in, believed in, and practiced prayer, and were diligently seeking to make their calling and election sure, to watch and pray that "ye may be accounted worthy to escape all these things." The things to which He referred are mentioned in the previous verses and also are set forth by Matthew in his Gospel. They are the things which will make up and constitute "the time of trouble, such as never was since there was a nation even to that same time." For the praying and watching ones, there is promised an escape. We are not so much interested in the method of escape or where the pavilions of security will be located as in the fact that those who are doing the Lord's will will be succored and cared for by the Almighty in the day of trouble. Jesus knew the blessing of escape would fully compensate for the efforts put forth in prayer and watching. There is an hour of temptation coming on the whole world, and, if we can find the door of hope in Christ Jesus, the anchor will hold when the overflowing scourge passes over. God will put division between His people and the ones whose belly is their god. In that day, there will be two classes at least: one who will be hiding in the chambers of protection, and the others will be hiding in the caves and the rocks for defense.

On Washing of Feet

By John R. Fiske, South Haven, Kansas

IN PALESTINE and adjacent countries, people before and in the time of Christ wore sandals. The washing of feet was a necessity and was done from the earliest times. (Gen. 18:4; 19:2; 24:32; 43:24; Ex. 30:19, 21; Judg. 19:21; 2 Sam. 11:8; Cant. 5:3.) Sometimes it was done by the host or hostess. (2 Sam. 25:41; 1 Tim. 5:10.) Paul numbered it among the "good works" of hospitality. It therefore is not a church ordinance any more than any other "good works" that Paul named. In general though, in the time of Christ and His early followers, it was done by servants. The object was to cleanse the feet.

Once Jesus and His disciples were eating when a dispute arose among His apostles as to "which of them should be accounted the greatest" (Luke 22:24). Christ, hearing their unseemly debate, gave them a forcible rebuke. He, the mighty Son of God, arose and took a servant's place and washed their dirty feet! Then He told them, "If I then, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet; [surely] ye also ought to wash one another's feet. For I have given you an example" (John 13:14, 15). An "example" of what? Humility! Service to each other! This object lesson, washing the dirty feet, was not understood at the time (John 13:7), but was recognized later. This was one object lesson that needed no repetition on the part of the mighty Master, or anyone else. The thought, humility, service, taught by it is expressed too clearly to be misunderstood.

It is written, therefore, in the unerring Word of God for all time to come and for all after who believe on Him to read and observe. This was the second lesson in humility. The first lesson is recorded in Mark 9:33-36 and Matthew 18:1-4. A year before, when Jesus called a little child unto Him and set him in the midst of them, He said: "Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter the kingdom of heaven." By this He meant one should "humble himself as this little child."

Now some Bible students, overlooking the grand thought—humility, service—revealed in these two object lessons just discussed, insist that Christians should, as a church ordinance, observe the second of these object lessons now, that is, literally wash each other's feet. They are in error for these reasons:

(1) As "you must become as a little child" does not teach that you must literally "become a little child," but humility, so "you must wash each other's feet" does not teach the literal observance of such as a church ordinance but humility, service. If one is to be interpreted spiritually, then, why not the other?

(2) All must concede that the apostles understood the literal act of washing their dirty feet. The lesson, or command, underlying it, humility, service, the feet washing He meant, they understood not (John 13:8) but would later. Literal feet washing is one thing, and feet washing in the sense the Master was using it is another.

(3) There is no proof whatever in the Bible that the apostles or early Christians observed feet washing as a church ordinance. The Bible is silent on this point. Paul spoke of the Communion as being observed by Jesus and His apostles on the night of His betrayal, and urged Christians to observe the Communion in memory of Christ's death (1 Cor. 11:23-27) but omitted ceremonial feet washing.

(4) The fact is overlooked that Jesus often made abrupt changes from the literal to the spiritual. Consider these: "Water" (John 4:35-38); "blind" (John 9:25, 39, 41); "heaven" (Matt. 16:12); "dirt" (John 13:10, 11); and "child" (Matt. 18:2, 3). This fact, ceremonial feet washers overlook in John 13:14. His was literal; theirs, the one He enjoins, is spiritual.

(5) How often is ceremonial feet washing to be observed? Weekly, quarterly, or annually? Where, oh where, is there a command regulating such? In view of Matthew 26:17-21; Luke 22:1, 8-16; Mark 14:12-18, it must be conceded that "the supper" which preceded the scene described in John 13:4-15 was "the passover"—a ritual of the Mosaic law. Since the law was abolished (2 Cor. 3:11, 13; Eph. 2:15), the "passover" is now therefore no longer observed. Should feet washing be observed with the "eucharist" or sacraments which Acts 20:7, Syriac version, shows was observed "on the first day of the week"? Where in the Bible, or history, did any observe it weekly or any other time as a church ordinance? Seeing there is no Christ-given law to regulate the time of its observance, have we not therefore proof that its observance is not a necessity? We soundly are convinced that both object lessons the Master gave—becoming a "little child" and "washing each other's feet"—should be observed spiritually. The literal in both cases is out of the question.

In view of the foregoing, since it becomes a certainty that John 13:14, 15 does not teach ceremonial feet washing, it follows therefore that they who teach and practice such are adding to the commands of Jesus which in God's eyes is as sinful as omitting them!

THEIR WICKEDNESS IS GREAT

(often stealthily), it becomes public opinion. Personal opinions and ideas may lead us far away from the truth. They often come creeping upon us slowly and are dangerous, because they crowd out serious thought. Propaganda always has had power in times of war.

We have heard much about "one world" in the past few years. From the present course of events, however, it seems as though that has not been God's plan. Daniel said, in reference to the iron and clay stage of the end time, that "they shall not cleave one to another." The marks between totalitarianism and democracy are being seen now distinctly, and dangers seem to come up continually. The danger of losing the peace makes men fear, as Luke said they would. The different opinions are a long way from a peaceful solution.

While men are trying to form a world-wide organization, they find themselves facing the crashing political, economic, and social systems. Everywhere, we hear voices that are being raised against our present order. They tell us now that industrial organization will solve our problems. Communists tell us that democracy is at the bar of human government and that it will go down unless they can meet the problems that confront us. We know that neither industrial organization nor any other thing can solve our present crises unless it is founded upon God's plan. Recently, the war of the classes has broken out with new vim. It causes more and more discontent and unrest as the "have nots" express fierce demands from the "haves." That it will lead to a social upheaval, and possibly to a world explosion, seems inevitable, unless conditions become settled soon.

We see deepening discontent with things as they are. This problem is manifesting itself everywhere in the epidemic of strikes which seem quite fashionable now. These things mark our times as different from any other time. They impress the Christian deeply, for they fulfill the exact picture that the ancient prophets drew of the end-time. We hear of this trouble everywhere, for everyone is more or less affected by it. In James 5:1-8, God gave James a picture that foretold events down through the centuries. He saw a heaping together of treasures by fraud and unfair distribution. God only sees these things as they are. He knows how to handle the situation, for "their wickedness is great."

The Christian knows that this is a sign that leads to Armageddon. The message to the Christian is to be patient unto the coming of the Lord. They know that the problems of earth are too complex for man to solve. The only solution is the return of Jesus Christ to this earth as King of kings. We must keep our eyes on the Lord, and not mind the strikes, the increase of wickedness, or what ever may come. To the unrepentant, it will be a day of great distress. They will call for the rocks to hide them from the face of God.

INCONSISTENCY? NO!

that dwelleth in me" (Rom. 7:20). Paul was not yet cleansed from sin when he was under the law. Paul had not yet known Christ, nor did he know His saving grace.

In those days when Paul was under the law, he found "a law, that, when [he] would do good, evil was present with [him]" (v. 21). Indeed, Paul did delight in the law of God after the inward man. He could not have studied the law at the feet of Gamaliel without learning to love the ways of God. He could, however, see the warring forces within him, but the powerful lust of the flesh brought him into captivity to the law of sin and death. It was then that he cried out, "O wretched man that I am! who shall deliver me from the body of this death?"

Now in verse 25, Paul no longer was reliving his days under the law but joyfully said, "I thank God through Jesus Christ our Lord." Christ had delivered him from the hopeless condition in which one finds himself when trying to live by the law.

The Apostle continued, however, in verse 25, by saying that with the mind he serves the law of God (not necessarily the Mosaic law but God's will), "but with the flesh the law of sin." By this, we understand that there always will be a conflict within us to keep "our old man" crucified with Christ, to always follow His admonition: "Likewise reckon ye also yourselves to be dead indeed unto sin, but alive unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord" (Rom. 6:11). We can do this, however, even as Paul could, because he did not say for himself alone, "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me."

This assurance of strength was promised when Paul wrote to the Galatian brethren, "This I say then, Walk in the Spirit, and ye shall not fulfil the lust of the flesh. For the flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh: and these are contrary the one to the other: so that ye cannot do the things that ye would." Again this sounds like we cannot do the things we know we ought to do, but again Paul showed by the following verse that it is only when we are under the law that we are in this wretched state. "If ye be led of the Spirit, ye are not under the law" (Gal. 5:16-18). He already had admonished us to walk in the Spirit, and we would not fulfill the lust of the flesh.

Many Christians could joyfully overcome temptations if we knew that through Christ we have wonderful power to do His will. Be an overcomer!

SCIENCE AND THE BIBLE

By Harold J. Down (Chicago, Illinois)

UNTIL very recent years, so-called "scientific atheists" claimed the Bible was a forgery upon the assumption that Moses, author of the first five books of the Bible, lived in an age before men could write. Many people discredited the Bible on the basis of this "scientific" information.

The science of archacology, however, which bases its ideas upon actual evidence dug from the ruins of ancient civilization, and not upon a desire to ridicule the Bible, has disproved the theory that ancient men were illiterate nomads. Writing was in common use, even before the Flood. A Babylonian king, Ashurbanipal, who founded a great library at Nineveh, referred in writing to "inscriptions of the time before the Flood." Written records have been found in Ur of the Chaldees, the city of Abraham, which are of the year 2000 B.C., eight hundred years before Moses.

Long after the theories of science have been changed another dozen times, the Bible will still be the same true Word of God.

THE WORLD'S PRESENT PERIL

When Jesus told His disciples about latter-day conditions, He gave the sign of the fig tree and the other trees putting forth their buds, indicating the nearness of summer. Surely they are all budding now. There might be a condition arise that would retard the full leaf for a little while, but soon it must come.

Possibly one of the greatest perils of national life today is Communism and other isms that will retard religious teaching. The greatest peril to the individual is that in the face of all these things he might forget God, as did the Israelites of old, and thus be deprived of the life and the age that is to come. When the Israelites sinned, God told their leader Moses that the time would come when the whole earth would be filled with His glory. Today, most of the earth is filled with peril and violence, but that promise to Moses soon will be fulfilled. Many profess that a place in the tomorrow of God is the greatest desire in life, but by their actions deny their confession. Let us be on the alert for the perils that might deprive us of a crown of life.

BOOK PARADISE

By Arlen Marsh

"A little work, a little play
To keep us going—and so good-day!"

—Du Maurier.

Six hundred games, with more than a hundred illustrations, are provided by The Cokesbury Press Game Book (Abingdon-Cokesbury; $1.75). What is perhaps more important than mere power of numbers is the fact that the book covers practically every conceivable social situation, and is particularly planned to fit the needs of churches.

Not that the games suggested are religious; they are not. They simply are the kind that requires no editing to keep out suggestiveness. That, in case you weren't aware of it before, is almost a novelty among game books these days.

There are suggestions here that will be applicable to every age and to every place. If you have a sports-minded group, you will have at least fifty different outdoor games to choose from; if you have a group that prefers mental exercise to working up a tan, you will have a hundred mental games for your selection.

Special attention has been given by Author A. M. Depew to the problems raised by holidays and particular events. Something like one hundred fifty games are proposed for these occasions, to supplement the regular games and contests.

Puzzles, relay races for indoor and outdoor use, musical games, "cultural" games (do you realize how ignorant you are?), writing games—they all are in The Cokesbury Game Book, in abundance. Some are old-timers, quite well known; most, however, are new and different, yet remarkably easy to prepare and direct.

A good index makes every game instantly available by name. The book is classified so that general types of games are grouped together. There is an excellent bibliography included, to provide still further suggestions for meeting the problems of entertainment. Even hobbies are suggested, for the benefit of individuals.

"Evil pursueth sinners: but to the righteous good shall be repayed" (Proverbs 13:21).

Joseph's Fate

Joseph was sold to an Egyptian who was named Potiphar. Joseph lived in his home and became overseer over the house of Potiphar. In fact, he was so trustworthy that Potiphar left everything to Joseph to care for.

Potiphar saw that Joseph's God was with him. Whatever Joseph did for Potiphar came out well. "Joseph was a goodly person, and well favoured" (Gen. 39:6b).

Joseph's brothers would have been very surprised had they known how Joseph was being treated.

A person's "fate" is said to be what happens without his planning it. Joseph might have been sold to a cruel master. He might have had to work in the fields as many slaves did, and been beaten when he became tired. God, however, was with Joseph. Joseph was good and trusting. He had One who was watching over him and guiding him though he may not have known it always.

We know that Joseph became a blessing to his master. God blessed his master's home and land. (Gen. 39:5.)

Another Trial

Joseph was accused wrongfully. His master's wife told a falsehood about him. Potiphar believed Joseph had failed him. Joseph was thrown into prison. At first he was bound. (Gen. 39:20.)

Again, we read of the Lord God's mercy given to Joseph. As long as our hearts are pure and clean as was Joseph's, we can expect God's mercy and grace, too. It does not make any difference as to the place we are made to dwell in. God can be there, too. And He will be if we call upon Him with trust and love. He is able to put temptations and sins far away from us.

Joseph was made the favored one in the prison. The keeper liked him. He could trust Joseph. Joseph was given charge of all the prisoners. This, too, was a blessing to Joseph as we shall find when we study our page next week.

Let's Hide the Word

Perhaps you may wonder about hiding God's Word. Where should we hide it? In our hearts! Why? To keep us from sin! "Thy word have I hid in mine heart, that I might not sin against thee" (Psalm 119:11).

In thinking of our story of Joseph today, what thoughts might Joseph have hidden in his heart that helped to keep him from sin? Or, at least, what are the thoughts we have hidden to keep us holy and pure?

"Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly . . . but his delight is in the law of the Lord . . . and whatsoever he doeth shall prosper" (Psalm 1:1-3).

"I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help. My help cometh from the Lord, which made heaven and earth" (Psalm 121:1, 2).

"In thee, O Lord, do I put my trust; let me never be ashamed; deliver me in thy righteousness" (31:1).

Surely Joseph must have had these and other righteous thoughts like these, written by our Psalmist David. Joseph lived them though he never had read them. What a privilege we have today to have not one, but several Bibles in our homes! Let us hide this verse in our hearts, too: "I delight to do thy will, O my God: yea, thy law is within my heart" (Psalm 40:8).

Other thoughts we should know are:

"See that none render evil for evil unto any man; but ever follow that which is good, both among yourselves, and to all men. . . . In every thing give thanks . . . prove all things; hold fast that which is good. Abstain from all appearance of evil" (1 Thess. 5:15, 18a, 21, 22).

"I will bless the Lord at all times: his praise shall continually be in my mouth" (Psalm 34:1).

"Giving thanks always for all things unto God and the Father in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ" (Eph. 5:20).

"By him therefore let us offer the sacrifice of praise to God continually, that is, the fruit of our lips giving thanks to his name" (Heb. 13:15).

"Ye also, as lively stones, are built up a spiritual house, an holy priesthood, to offer up spiritual sacrifices, acceptable to God by Jesus Christ" (1 Peter 2:5).

May we have enough of God's Word hidden in our hearts to keep us from sin when we are tempted.

WE MOVE

JAMES M. WATKINS — Promotional Director and Co-ordinatorGeneral Conference Activities

The most forward-looking achievement of our Berean Work, as a whole, is the extent to which our membership is planning large-scale state and district rallies for the near future and continuing on as a regular part of their work. It is gratifying to contemplate the extent that this new outlook and interest will go in meeting the needs that have been suggested by our young people in this open forum. Indiana State Conference, as well as the Illinois State Conference, and many local groups already are planning for rallies, caravan trips, and many similar ventures that certainly will give new impetus to our Berean youth work on a national scale. Many qualified leaders of our older Berean groups and those interested in young people's work are volunteering their services to act as sponsors, promoters, and rally leaders for this type of our work. These also hope to be able to get together from time to time to plan and discuss ways and means of encouraging our young people and to participate in classes and lectures that will make the donation of their time most productive in Berean work.

A new enrollment crusade is under way to encourage our Berean young people to get soundly behind certain practical principles of Berean work and to unite and commit ourselves against certain principles of worldly practice. All in all, through the leadership of your interest and suggestions, we are indeed rapidly moving forward.

The final results, however, will be based on the interest, practical benefits, and fellowship you develop in your own local societies. The keynote of these local problems is reflected most clearly when

Joanne Blanchard of Oregon, Illinois, Calls Attention to the Fact That—

"To have an interesting and effective young people's meeting you must have the attention of everyone. No lesson presented will be effective if someone is distracting the attention of the others. Second, it is most necessary for the young people themselves to study the lesson ahead of time, so they will have some ideas of their own and will feel more interested and even eager to present them.

"This is often a hard thing to do. One effective way to arouse interest is by way of a contest. A contest that has something to do with the study of the lesson may encourage the habit of lesson study. Also some means of impressing upon them, more fully, the slogan of the Bereans, 'Search the Scriptures daily,' should be found. In this way we can build the desire to want to study.

"Young people's meetings should not be monotonous. I mean that they should not follow the same pattern week in and week out. There should be a constant variety. Every once in a while something new and different should be used, such as a chalk talk, a quiz, or a number of things to break the monotony. Special numbers are nice once in a while in place of hymns or choruses.

"As for our Berean literature, I don't know much to say about that, except that I think any lesson in any book can be made interesting and effective if presented in the right way. The lessons we now use at the Oregon Bereans can be very nicely presented and made most interesting if they are studied out properly by the leader.

"During the lesson, a hymn or choruses could be sung that have some bearing on the lesson. For instance, if the lesson was titled, "The Rainbow of God's Promises," it could be interrupted and added to by singing the chorus, "There's a Rainbow Shining Somewhere."

"Mostly, in order for a young people's meeting to be made more interesting and effective, you must first arouse the interest and attention of your members and then proceed with new ideas and plans to keep them interested."

So, Young Man, or Young Lady, What Now?

The logic of these remarks does make it appear that all the responsibility for success cannot possibly lie higher up: that there is no substitute for our own initiative and interest when it comes to supplying life for our local societies. First of all, Joanne suggests the need of interest and attention at study periods—and rightly so, for this is the secret of the success of any such gathering. But it is not something that you can receive from any textbook or Berean publication, nor something that is handed out like stick candy by national officers. It is something that is born solely from within by the interest and co-operation that we build within ourselves through devotion to God and to Christ.

OREGON BIBLE COLLEGE NEWS

Though the weather was cold, the various activities of field day were entered into enthusiastically by all students. The students extend to Bro. Milton Hall and his committee an expression of appreciation for the effective manner in which field day was conducted. A complete story will appear in our news next week.

The students, faculty, and Bro. and Sr. Albert Logsdon went to Dixon, Thursday night, October 10, for the purpose of having a college picture taken. Proofs have been received, and one of them has been selected.

In the absence of Bro. Sydney Magaw, Sr. Leota Hanson is teaching our classes in New Testament Interpretative Studies and The Pastor, His Office and Work. Bro. Otto Dick is teaching History of the Hebrew Commonwealth.

At chapel this week, we were favored with sermons by Bros. Howard Beemer, Gordon Laundry, and Timothy Pearson.

Bro. Dick began last Monday night an opportunity class in English for all those who felt the need of such a course. Eight students were in attendance at the first meeting. "Mom" and "Pop" are still on the job working long hours to keep things going. "Mom" works hard keeping house and trying to satisfy our appetites, while "Pop" has been busy of late raking and hauling leaves along with the many other tasks that must be performed in a place such as this.

PENNELWOOD CHURCH OF GOD

Grand Rapids, Michigan

"Fallsapoppin" at Pennellwood. The tinge of frost in the air puts a bit of zip under our summer tan, and our hot-weather inertia is falling with the leaves.

Do we need a new building? Ask any one of the one hundred fifty-five persons attending Sunday school on Rally Day, October 6. We topped the attendance goal, although the offering was a bit under the goal. The offering, plus the Sunday school tithe, added $136.00 to the Building Fund, raising the total to $8,595.00. We rallied with such enthusiasm that most of the new attendants returned the following Sunday.

On October 13, the Sunday school launched a six-weeks' Red, White, and Blue Hilltop contest with Maurice Fairbrother, Charles Knapp, and (Mrs.) Gertrude Card as captains. This promises to be quite interesting, as the first lap showed the teams had very close scores. If attending Pennellwood in the near future, ask your class teacher for a Red pin. (Could be the writer is on that side.)

Sunday evening church services were resumed on October 13, with good attendance. The pastor presented a sermon on "Strange Talk about Strange Things."

Mrs. Gladys Bultman, who underwent a minor operation recently, was able to attend Berean last week. All will be glad when health again permits her to resume her job as Berean superintendent.

Miss Martha Townsend has been very ill the past two weeks and is still confined to her bed. Know her! Why not send her a word of cheer? 24-32nd St., S.W., Zone 8, is her address.

Miss Betty Jane Cole received a fracture of the radius bone of her left arm while playing basketball last Thursday. She will be wearing a cast for about four weeks.

Mrs. L. F. Slocum, Secy.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD Published by

National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois
 The Restitution Herald is official organ of the General Conference of the Church of God. Subscription rate: 50 issues per year, $2.50.

The Restitution Herald advocates: the near return of Christ (Acts 1:11), and life only through Him (Col. 3:3); the literal resurrection of the dead (John 5:28); the immortalization of those in Christ (1 Cor. 15:53, 54); the destruction of the wicked (Rev. 21:8); the final restoration of Israel as the Kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ (Luke 1:32); the church to be joint-heirs with Him (Rom. 8:17), and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations (Isa. 60:1-3); the "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21). It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

BAPTISM AT ELDORADO

As a fitting climax to Rally Day, Miss Rita Lou Mosby was immersed in the name of Jesus by the writer. The congregation assembled along the banks of Bro. Herbert Edmister's creek for singing hymns of praise and witnessing the manifestation of a faith that preceded the service. Immediately after the baptismal service, the Lord's Supper was commemorated, and words of admonition were spoken to the brethren to nourish this new babe in Christ in the Christian walk.

E. H. Goit, Pastor.

HERALD RECEIPTS

James Mattison; Mrs. Olat Hammer (another); Tom White; Mrs. Minnie Porter; Betty Macy; G. B. McTeal; Mrs. Emma Coleman; Mrs. Frank L. Heaton; H. E. Drew; M. W. Lyon (7).

GLEANINGS FROM THE FIELD

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

"An article in 'The Evangelical Beacon' points out that when you say, 'The deuce, you really are saying, 'The Devil.' (Webster's Dict.) 'Dickens' is another euphemism for 'The Devil.' 'Damn,' according to Funk & Wagnalls, means 'to damn.' Webster says 'gosh' and 'golly' are substitutes for 'God.' 'Gee,' according to the same authority, is a form of 'Jesus.' Many say 'heavens' who wouldn't say 'hell.' Which is worse? (See Matt. 23:22.)"—J. R. LeCrone in "The Assistant Pastor," Woodstock, Va.

Sr. Leila E. Whitehead attended the State Convention of the WCTU at Quincy, Ill., October 15-18. She was a delegate from the Austin Union, Cook County.

The Paul Johnson family of Oregon, Ill., spent October 17-20 on a trip to Sae City, Iowa, to visit with relatives in that neighborhood.

"A daughter, Carol Elisabeth, was born to the Goits on September 3, in Ferro's Hospital, Eldorado, Ill. She is a very likeable girl and has a healthy appetite."—E. H. Goit, General Delivery, Eldorado, Ill. . . . Congratulations!

Bro. James M. Watkins, Promotional Director of National Bible Institution, spent Monday, October 14, in Chicago, contacting various firms in the interest of our work while on his return home from Fonthill, Ont.

Mr. and Mrs. L. D. McLain who have served so faithfully at Golden Rule Home for three years went to Mount Sterling, Ill., for a few days' vacation before going to Maywood, Ill., where Mr. McLain will be maintenance man and Mrs. McLain assistant matron at a Baptist home for elderly people.

HILLISBURG GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY

The Golden Anniversary of the Hillisburg (Ind.) Church of God was celebrated, Sunday, September 8, 1946. The following account is the reminiscence of Bro. William M. Huffer concerning the history of the church.

Prior to the building of the church, church services were held at the Cue Schoolhouse, which is about two-thirds of a mile northeast of the present building. Services also were held at the Seireleville Schoolhouse and the Burgetts Corner Schoolhouse. The early ministers who spoke for the congregation were Bros. J. Fennamore, J. M. Stephenson, Jerry Hatch. Bro. Hatch served the local church for a number of years.

Bro. J. F. Waggoner began his ministry here about 1894. During his ministry, many joined the church. Through his influence, the church was built.

Bros. Ephram Barnett, William Jenkins, and James Prier were the trustees when the church was built. The members of the church volunteered to haul the stone from Kokomo (25 miles northeast) for the foundation. The trustees hired Harrison Johnson to construct the building. The present condition of the church attest to the wisdom of the trustees in hiring Mr. Johnson to do the work. Mr. Johnson received $212.50 for doing all of the work in the construction of said building. The total cost of the church building was $995.00. The seats were selected by the trustees. They cost $288.62. Bro. Hook, a Church-of-God minister who then lived in Mechanicsburg, Ind., preached the dedicatory services in 1896.

Following the service of Bro. Waggoner (he served the congregation for approximately 15 years), Bro. George Smith of Culver served the church. Next, Bro. D. T. Halsted held the pastorate. Due to his vision, the first Indiana State Conference was held at the Hillisburg Church of God in 1901. Among the ministers present were: Bros. F. L. Austin, D. T. Halsted, and A. H. Zilmer. At this conference, Bro. Zilmer was hired by the church. He served until he united with another denomination.

Bro. George Neal was hired for a year. Bro. J. W. Williams then became our pastor. He served from 1908-1915. Bro. David Van Vactor preached for the local congregation and the Frankfort Church. (For a number of years there was a church in Frankfort.) Bros. VanVactor and F. L. Austin conducted a very successful series of meeting during which many joined the church. In 1922, Bro. J. H. Anderson was employed. He enjoyed a very successful ministry here. He remained as the pastor until 1941.

Since then, we have had Bros. Terry Ferrell, Celma Randall, and Delbert Jones, who is serving us at the present time.

The messages of Bro. James M. Watkins were greatly enjoyed by all of the members and friends of the church. We were pleased to have Bro. and Sr. Watkins with us from September 2-8. We did not enjoy as large a crowd as we should have, due to the attraction of the Indiana State Fair.

Bro. Watkins conducted a Youth Rally on Saturday night. At this rally, he proved the advisability of having youth rallies. We are looking forward to the time when we may have a National Youth Rally of the Church of God. The church must offer youth good Christian fellowship, a message suited to their needs, and lively music.

Sunday, September 8, was one of the biggest days in the history of the Church. It was Homecoming Sunday, the Golden Anniversary of the Church, and the Indiana State Quarterly Conference was meeting with us. There were representatives from the Morning Star and Hope Chapel Churches in South Bend, Plymouth Church, Rensselaer Church, Hedrick Church, and the Kokomo Church. More than one hundred twenty-five persons signed the register.

A community sale which was sponsored by the church building fund committee was held near the church on October 5. The Ladies Aid served one thousand hamburger sandwiches, plus coffee, sandwiches, and iced tea. The Ladies Aid made $275.00 for the building fund. From the contributions and commissions, the men made approximately $275.00. Our building fund is rapidly approaching the $2,000.00 mark. In ordinary times, that would be enough to dig and cement the basement and install a heating system. In all probability, the work will be begun on the basement in the spring.

Delbert Jones, Pastor.

FROM VIRGINIA TO OKLAHOMA

Immediately following General Conference, Sr. Ellen Van Fleet and I journeyed to the conference at Maurertown, Va. It is always a pleasure to work with these people; it seems like "going home." The attendance at this conference in the children's department was much larger this year. Sr. Van Fleet left me to return to her home.

After the Virginia Conference, a two-weeks' vacation was enjoyed with my son Lyle and family at Winchester, Va. After having conducted ten vacation Bible schools, this vacation period provided a much-needed rest.

My first work after vacation was at Cleveland, Ohio, where I worked from September 9-19. Two Vit-Em-In classes were organized, with Sr. Mary E. Elton as general superintendent. Sr. Hazel Stadden is sponsor for the class on the west side which is held at the Herbert Stadden home. Srs. Gordon and Smith have charge of the one at the church on the east side. Other classes are being planned in other sections of the city.

While working with the Cleveland brethren, it was my privilege on September 18 to be invited to meet with the group at Madison, Ohio. Here work for children was demonstrated, and they asked that they be given a vacation Bible school this coming summer. A most enjoyable evening was spent with these folks.

On September 20, the trip from Cleveland to Skelton, W. Va., was taken. I arrived about six o'clock in the evening, and at seven o'clock a class of eighteen children was assembled and a very pleasant evening was spent with these children at the home of Bro. and Sr. Clyde Poland. Sr. Poland plans to continue the work with these children.

September 21 found me in Morristown, Tenn., at the B. E. Holt home. At four o'clock that evening, a class of children was started at this home. What a fine time we had. On September 22, Bro. and Sr. Holt took me with them to visit the church and Sunday school at Galamore Gap, N. C. This was my first visit with these people, and it was indeed a pleasure to hear Bro. Williamson's inspiring sermon and to teach the children there. On September 23, Sr. Holt wanted to hold another children's class, and the attendance was double the attendance of September 21. Sr. Holt is continuing this class, which meets each Wednesday after school. She has been asked to teach one at Sweetwater, also. My predictions are that we may expect a new church in Tennessee before too long.

A stop-over was made at Cleveland, Tenn., to visit Sr. Marie Coverston at the Bob Jones College. It was an inspiration to me to see Sr. Marie striving earnestly to prepare herself to work for her Master. Marie is from our Fort Valley Church in Virginia.

The Marrs' home in Memphis was the next stop, on September 25. They desire so much to have more work there.

Little Rock, Ark., (rural) was visited September 26. Here a class was assembled, and a very profitable evening was spent with these people, but the class was mostly for children.

The next day, September 27, found me at the H. Scott Smith home. Here, too, I feel, "It's just like coming home." That evening was spent at the home of Sr. Smith's brother, John Evans, where work for children was demonstrated.

On September 29, Bro. Smith invited me to assist him with some work at Russellville, Ark., teaching a Sunday school class and speaking for the entire assembly in the evening.

Bro. Smith and I drove on to Arch, Okla., on September 30. Here a class for children was held each evening for two weeks. Bro. Smith and Bro. Simmons conducted services for the adults. What a joyous time we had! There were thirty-six children enrolled, with attendance close to twenty each evening. Future work is being planned at this place. Bro. Simmons is making a more complete report.

What a joyous journey this has been, and we pray God's blessing upon the seed sown.

Verna C. Thayer.

GLIMPSE INTO A FOREIGN CITY

The world is not the same size to all men. All too often, one's world is bounded by his own years, by his own possessions, or, perchance, by the walls of the factory, home, or office where he toils for copper or gold. Jesus, though living in a day of limited travel and limited education, saw into all the world and from creation to the end of the world—and beyond! Said He: "Go ye into all the world"; "Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world," and, "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne."

In keeping with Christ's world-wide vision and world-wide mission, it is a pleasure here to present a glimpse of a foreign city that seldom comes to one's limited and selfish mind, the city of Brisbane, Australia. Our Lord, we may be sure, is interested in its 386,000 inhabitants. Are we "moved with compassion" for earth's shepherdless multitudes?

Jehovah's Rival Gods

Accustomed to nomadic life in the wilderness, the Israelites were slow to become successful farmers in the Promised Land. When their crops were poor and their neighbors' crops were good, the Israelites were tempted to worship the false gods of their heathen neighbors.

Though attempting to worship Jehovah and the heathen gods at the same time, the Israelites soon forgot Jehovah and trusted increasingly in the rival gods. Thus, Israel invited doom, for her most important distinguishing and unifying factor had been her monotheistic worship of Jehovah.

The Church of God may profit well by Israel's history. We, too, as a people, are monotheistic. We want no trinity of gods. God is One! To accept the popular conception of God, Christ, and the Holy Spirit being one god would be to destroy one of our distinguishing and unifying principles. Certainly, it would discredit revealed truth.

There are other gods, possibly more dangerous—gods of our heathen neighbors, and gods less strict than is Jehovah. There is the god of pleasure, god of gain, god of popularity, and the god of false hope. The Church of God may be deceived into believing that any or all these gods are essential to our existence and success. The very opposite, however, is essential. Only by maintaining a pure faith in Jehovah and in His Son, the Christ, and in keeping ourselves "unspotted from the world" of false hope, can we hope to continue strong under God's favor.

We ministers of the Church of God dare not cease preaching the doctrines that have distinguished our work from that of the orthodox churches. Laymen of the Church of God, too, must continue to appreciate and support good, sound Bible doctrine. To forsake our distinguishing doctrines and to mingle with neighboring religions, inviting as all that may seem to be, would bring our work to nought in a few short years.

Fall Flowers

Notwithstanding cold rains and blustering days of snow, autumn often is bright and sunny. The wise Creator withholds some of His glory from springtime and summer to release it in the gloomier days of fall. Indeed it seems that in gloomier days the handiwork of God more apparent—more appreciated. God "hath made every thing beautiful in his time"—even flowers in fall.

In fall, the leaves are tenfold more gorgeous than in spring. Autumn's flowers, too, vie in beauty with those of the hotter months. Consider the asters, chrysanthemums, fall daisies, and phlox—and there is not a nuisance dandelion among them!

The appended verse, entitled "Fall Flowers," was written for this editorial by our mother, Mrs. E. H. Magaw.

"Clematis climb a trellis
In their dark-blue gown;
Petunias in sweet fragrance
Bloom till snow comes down!

"Golden rods in September
Wave their yellow plume;
Marigolds, not fragrant,
Drive away the gloom!

"Cosmos is a dainty bloom—
Waving to and fro;
Yellow is a flower
Called the 'golden glow.'

"Hollyhocks have their place,
As they nod and sway;
Sumac, tall and brilliant,
Make the roadside gay.

"California poppies,
Growing near the ground;
Dahlias, tall and stately,
Big and soft and round!

"Handsome are the asters,
Growing in a row,
With their many colors
Making gorgeous show."

God Anoints a King

By C. E. Lapp, Tempe, Arizona

WHEN it comes time for people of the United States to select another president, there will be considerable excitement for months in advance. Political parties will oil their machines with smooth promises until their favorite son is chosen, and then—the inauguration. Delegates will travel hundreds of miles for the brief service, and curious spectators will crowd near for a fleeting glimpse of our new leader.

After God had rejected Saul from being king of Israel, He commanded Samuel, "Fill thine horn with oil, and go. I will send thee to Jesse the Bethlehemite: for I have provided me a king among his sons." For fear of Saul, Samuel was hesitant to go, but yielded to the Lord's command and called at the home of Jesse. The sons were asked to pass before him, and, as the first came to him, God whispered to Samuel, "Look not on his countenance, or the height of his stature; because I have refused him; for the Lord seeth not as man seeth; for man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart."

The people had been deceived once in selecting Saul because of his great physique, but God did not intend they should again be fooled. The youngest son, David, was away keeping his father's sheep, and finally it was necessary to bring him, for all the others had been refused. When he appeared, the Lord again spoke to Samuel, "Arise, anoint him: for this is he." Then Samuel took the horn of oil, and anointed him in the midst of his brethren: and the Spirit of the Lord came upon David from that day forward. "But the spirit of the Lord departed from Saul." "And Saul was afraid of David, because the Lord was with him and had departed from Saul." Surely God has chosen the weak things of the world to confound the mighty!

A new king had been anointed; the Spirit of the Lord was upon him; and men feared a man on whom God had placed His sanction, power, and might. The word "anoint" indicated consecration of inauguration, and in this instance of David, both meanings surely were implied. David had not yet come to the throne, but was then consecrated to that office just as surely as he was some time later when he became king of Israel. The consecration and time of testing came first, and afterward came the glorious time of inauguration and power.

In the prophetic words of Psalm 45:7, God speaks of another King who was anointed and the reason for His being chosen. He loved righteousness (not being a lover of pleasure more than a lover of God), and hated wickedness. Again, God, who looks upon the heart, chose and anointed Him with the oil of gladness above His fellows.

Jesus came from Galilee to Jordan to be baptized of John. When He was baptized and came up out of the water, "Lo, the heavens were opened unto him, and he saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove, and lighting upon him: and lo a voice from heaven, saying, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased."

Oil is a type of the Holy Spirit. As oil was poured out upon the head of David and the Spirit of the Lord came upon him, so God poured out His Holy Spirit upon Jesus, anointing and empowering Him with the gifts and graces needed to fulfill His mission on earth. God gave not the Spirit by measure to Him, that is, in a restricted quantity; but all power in heaven and earth was poured out upon Him because He loved righteousness and hated wickedness. Jesus was consecrated and segregated from His fellows for this special work and anointing, because none up to that time had loved God with all his heart as He.

The anointing of Jesus as King already has taken place, but He has not been inaugurated as yet. Only God, who "callesth those things which be not as though they were," has seen the glory of His Son when He shall take the throne for which He has been anointed.

"Yet have I set my king upon my holy hill of Zion. I will declare the decree: Thou art my Son; this day have I begotten thee. Ask of me, and I shall give thee the heathen for thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession. Thou shalt break them with a rod of iron; thou shalt dash them in pieces like a potter's vessel" (Psalm 2:6-9).

Today, as always, men without the upward look are choosing kings by their outward appearance. Political gain, honor and power, greed and selfishness all steer them farther and farther from the Prince of Peace. Men do not choose Him, because they love darkness rather than light. Since God chose the opposite of their choosing, there is little hope for a solution of the world's ills and problems until He shall come to take the throne whose right it is!

Praise God! There is a great inauguration day coming! Christ shall come in the clouds of heaven to take His throne. John wrote: "I saw heaven opened, and behold a white horse; and he that sat upon him was called Faithful and True, and in righteousness he doth judge and make war" (Rev. 19:11). # The Second Miracle

By Harold J. Doan, Chicago, Illinois

JOHN, the beloved Apostle, recorded the life of Jesus from the spiritual standpoint. The Gospel of John treats Jesus' life as that of the Son of God, the Saviour of men. In John's life of Jesus are recorded eight miracles performed by the Saviour; seven before the crucifixion, and one after. We believe, with Dr. M. R. DeHaan, that these miracles were recorded to teach truths about Jesus and salvation. In the closing statements of John's writing, we read these words: "Many other signs truly did Jesus in the presence of his disciples, which are not written in this book: but these are written, that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God; and that believing ye might have life through his name" (John 20:30, 31). John's gospel message, including the seven miracles, was written that we might believe on Jesus Christ, and in Him find salvation.

The seven miracles performed by Jesus before His crucifixion teach various aspects of the plan of salvation.

Jesus' first miracle was the turning of water to wine at the wedding in Cana of Galilee. From here, Jesus went to Jerusalem, and then made a preaching tour through Samaria. He returned in time to Cana; and, when he arrived, a centurion from the city of Capernaum came to see Him.

The centurion was a Roman officer in command of one hundred men. We read in John 4:46, 47, "So Jesus came again into Cana of Galilee, where he made the water wine. And there was a certain nobleman, whose son was sick at Capernaum." This city was only seventeen miles from Cana. Remember this distance, seventeen miles! "When he heard that Jesus was come out of Judaea into Galilee, he went unto him, and besought him that he would come down, and heal his son: for he was at the point of death."

The centurion's son was dying, and having heard that Jesus the Healer was near, the centurion traveled to Jesus and begged Him to come immediately to Capernaum to save his son.

This is a revealing and practical statement. The noble centurion went in person to care for his son's salvation. He did not trust the matter to his servants or to the boy's school teacher or Bible teacher, but he went himself. The salvation of his son was his great concern, and he could not conscientiously delegate the task to another than himself.

The salvation of our children and their education in things of the Spirit should also be our personal concern.

Children are being reared the world over with no knowledge of Christ, because their parents are too busy to see to this vital part of their development. These children are in as dangerous a position as was the centurion's son, yet we would rather delegate the business of their salvation to a school teacher or Sunday school teacher, or let them find out for themselves, than to take time to perform our duty. The centurion went personally to Jesus.

The story continues thus: "Then said Jesus unto him, Except ye see signs and wonders, ye will not believe. The nobleman saith unto him, Sir, come down ere my child die."

The nobleman wanted Jesus to come down to Capernaum and save his son. Evidently he did not believe that Jesus could perform the miracle of healing except by direct contact. The man had faith. He believed Jesus could save the boy, or he would not have come to Him. He did not, however, have enough faith, because he lacked understanding of Jesus and His power.

The centurion must have thought Jesus to be some kind of mystic who would come to his home and perform weird ceremonies and rites in order to heal his son. Jesus chided him for this lack of faith by saying, "You will not believe I can save your son unless you see some visible, tangible sign. You cannot accept my simple statement that your son is saved." The man insisted, "Come down quickly before the boy dies."

This is the second practical teaching of this miracle. Some come to Jesus for salvation and yet lack simple faith in the fact that He can save. Some people must have a sign, they must see a miracle, have an emotional upheaval, a "feeling," or some tangible, visual sign before they will really believe that Jesus has the power to save.

Down in Kentucky, some of the natives use rattlesnakes in their worship services. They will not believe Jesus can save unless they see a man live after being bitten by a "rattler." This, contrary to common belief, is not a show of faith, but a demonstration of lack of faith. At least Jesus considered such displays so, by saying, "Except ye see signs and wonders, ye will not believe." Such faith is unstable, being based upon a poor foundation; emotion.

Then, there are the people who must hear the dead speak, or see a "spirit," or "get the power" and talk in tongues before they will believe in Jesus' power to save.

There is something lacking in modern religion, and that something is simple faith. Still, this faith, which allows us to believe Jesus because He is the Son of God, and not because of this proof or that proof, is a basic essential to salvation through Christ.

We must have faith that Christ can save us from our sins simply because He said He can. Faith is as simple as that. Only believe that Jesus is the Son of God and that His is "the only name under heaven" whereby man can be saved.

We doubt that all the conversation between Jesus and the soldier has been recorded here in John 4. John only told the high points of the story. Jesus must have explained Himself quite thoroughly to His listener, for in verse 50 we read: "Jesus saith unto him, Go thy way; thy son liveth. And the man believed the word that Jesus had spoken unto him, and he went his way." Jesus made the simple statement, "Your son lives," and the man believed it, not because he had received some special sign or "feeling," but because Jesus said it was so. He here displayed the perfect faith.

In this scientific, skeptical, cynical age, faith like this is needed. To believe the words (Please turn to page 10)

"Parousia"—The Coming of the Lord

By T. M. Ferrell, Holbrook, Nebraska

---

THE Greek word parousia is translated "coming" twenty-two times in the New Testament. To realize its meaning and use will add strength and beauty to the teaching of the second coming of Christ.

Robert Young, in his Analytical Concordance to the Bible, defines the word as "a being alongside, presence." Bullinger, in his Companion Bible, notes that "'from the Ptolemaic period down to the second century A.D., the word is traced in the East as a technical expression for the arrival or the visit of the king or the emperor,' also of other persons in authority." It is no mere coincidence, then, that this word was used in referring to the arrival of our King, Jesus Christ, to occupy His throne at Jerusalem.

In examining the texts where this word parousia is found, we would arrive at the following conclusions concerning Christ's parousia: 1) it will be a literal parousia; 2) it will be a visible parousia; and 3) it will be a personal parousia.

The fact that parousia is used in reference to others than Christ helps us to see its literality. In 1 Corinthians 16:17, we read, "I am glad of the coming (parousia) of Stephanas and Fortunatus and Achaicus: for that which was lacking on your part they have supplied." Also, in 2 Corinthians 7:6, 7, where the "coming (parousia) of Titus" is mentioned, as well as in Philippians 1:26, where Paul spoke of his own "coming (parousia)" to the Philippian brethren. No one would question the literality of these parousias, so why question the literality of the second coming (parousia) of Christ? The second coming of Christ is nothing to spiritualize or to make unreal in view of the fact that the coming of Christ will be just as literal as the coming of any of the men mentioned.

The similes used in speaking of the parousia of the Lord help us to understand that it will be visible. One of these instances is in Matthew 24. Verse 26, in speaking of the utterings of false prophets concerning the Christ, says, "Wherefore if they shall say unto you, Behold, he is in the desert; go not forth: behold, he is in the secret chambers; believe it not." Christ, in this verse, is denying a secret and invisible coming, and emphasizes the next verse in simile: "*As the lightning cometh out of the east, and shineth even unto the west; so shall also the coming (parousia) of the Son of man be.*" This saying might be used to prove that Christ was coming quickly; but, in view of the preceding verse speaking of the parousia of the Lord not being secret, the comparison to the lightning seems to emphasize the visibility of the parousia of the Lord. Can the flash of lightning be seen? Is it then unreasonable to conclude that the coming of the Lord will be visible? We think it is not.

So often in our teaching of the return of Christ, we forget to make it personal. This word parousia means actual presence. Paul, in speaking of the resurrection and the coming of Christ, said, "This we say unto you by the word of the Lord, That we which are alive and remain unto the coming (parousia) of the Lord shall not prevent [precede] them which are asleep. For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven" (1 Thess. 4:15, 16a). In verse 17 of the same chapter, it also says that the raptured saints are going to "meet the Lord" and "ever be with the Lord" at His parousia. He really is coming. He is going to be present with us literally, and we shall see Him and be with Him personally.

All our teachings of the second coming of Christ are strengthened and gain new beauty by the use and understanding of this one word—parousia. It signifies the "being alongside," "the presence of the Lord." Let us understand the coming of Christ, and realize more than ever that the arrival of the King is near. Are we, His people, ready for His coming? Prepare! Prepare!

Conditional Immortality

Selected by Glenn M. Birkey from the writings of S. M. Ohmart

"To them who . . . seek for glory and honour and immortality, eternal life" (Rom. 2:7).

We append a table of outstanding promises of God that are conditional. (Eccl. 2:1-5.)

Mercy is conditional. (Ezek. 33:9-19.)

Escape is conditional. (Luke 13:3-5.)

Forgiveness is conditional. (1 John 1:9.)

Cleansing is conditional. (1 John 1:7.)

Life is conditional. (1 John 5:12.)

Entrance is conditional. (2 Peter 1:5-12.)

Heirship is conditional. (Rom. 8:17.)

Partaking is conditional. (Heb. 3:14.)

Translation is conditional. (Matt. 25:10.)

Reigning with Him is conditional. (Rev. 2:26, 27.)

In the light of the foregoing conditional truths—and of many more that could be added—why not conditional immortality also, as per my text? Men have their theories about immortality—but what does God say about it? Immortality is the changing from a mortal, dying state, to an immortal, undying state, forever immune to wasting, decay, and death—the Scriptural objective and prize of all Christian seeking.

What do we understand by conditional immortality? We understand that immortality is not in any sense, and to any degree, a present possession of man—that God only has power to confer immortality upon mortal man—and that God has promised immortality to mortal man only on the conditions set forth in the Scriptures. Immortality is not due until the resurrection—when "this mortal" will put it on. (1 Cor. 15:52-56.)

Mankind is now in a probationary state—men being candidates for immortality—subject to character fitness to live forever before granted immortality.

This is the only rational solution of the problem of this present mortal life—that man is on trial for immortality. This was the final objective of Christ's redemptive work—that men might have life!—immortal life!—life forever immune to death!

God's choicest blessings now are conditional. The small word "if," so big in import, stands between us and much of that God has promised. Pardon and peace are conditional. Divine help in a time of need is conditional. Growth in grace and in knowledge are conditional. Nature's store of material treasures are conditioned upon research and labor. Measureless sources of vast and varied knowledge are conditioned upon study before they can be made to yield up their hidden treasures to man. Then why should not man be required to meet conditions to acquire a spiritual fitness to live forever before he is granted immortality?

The doctrine of conditional immortality would have commended itself to men of intelligence and of reason everywhere as the most reasonable solution of the objectives of the present life, if the unscriptural theory of the immortality of the soul—received from the heathen world and based upon inference and superstition—had not been read into the Word as truth, since no Scripture says the soul is immortal.

The doctrine of immortality of the soul became at once a leaven of corruption in the church—either the sole foundation of all devil-inspired delusions now sweeping the world, or a fundamental plank in their platform of doctrinal errors.

Take away the doctrine of the immortality of the soul, and you have destroyed the one foundation of spiritualism, Christian Science, reincarnation, purgatory, Mormonism, with its claim that God is begetting vast numbers of human spirits, making polygamy necessary to provide enough bodies for these spirits. The Protestant invention of a place of detention of disembodied and naked souls between death and the resurrection—patterned after purgatory but not half as reasonable—rests upon the assumed immortality of the soul and conscious state of the dead.

The doctrine of the immortality of the soul has led many to reject the doctrine of the resurrection as wholly unnecessary to a life beyond death. No doubt, the belief in a present immortality of the soul led thirty-three per cent of five hundred acting ministers, and sixty-nine per cent of two hundred theological students, in a recent canvass to declare their disbelief in the resurrection of the body.

Doubtless, also, the same doctrine of the immortality of the soul, upon which alone rests the doctrine of endless torture in an eternal hell for the lost, was responsible for thirty-four per cent of the five hundred ministers referred to above, and seventy-six per cent of the same two hundred theological students, rejecting the doctrine of hell—not because they denied just punishment—but it was because their sense of justice revolted at such a fiendish conception of justice as endless torture in fire!

But there is another side to this—a side not seen by those who do not think!—whose name is legion. It is God's part in creating these souls immortal—if He did!—since mortal man cannot beget immortal souls! In what light does God, the Creator of immortal souls in sin, appear?

If, as theology teaches—God has created and is constantly creating billions of immortal, never-dying souls, creating them without voice or choice on their part to exist and with no reference to their fitness to live forever; if, as theology teaches, God created them so they can never die, so God Himself cannot deprive them of being, cannot unmake what He has made!—the victim of His own creative power, making that which even He cannot destroy when it dishonors Him! then indeed God is the champion blunderer of the Universe.

If, as theology teaches, the vast majority of these so-called immortal souls are headed for an eternal hell of unending torture, and God!—God! mind you! not Satan, as one might reasonably suppose, but God who knew the end from the beginning!—knew it, and yet made them!—is constantly making immortal souls! deathless souls! foreknowing their doom—then indeed is such a God the most calloused Being in the universe!

If—as theology teaches—though countless billions of ages swell a measureless eternity, the unspeakable agonies of these assumed never-dying souls will never be lessened, or end! God is forever unrelenting.

Shame on those who do not know God is never appeased. Justice is never satisfied. Then, indeed, would such a God be the most vindictive Being in all the universe!

We thank God that such a God is not our God!

Shame on those who do not know God and the Bible too well to believe such a blasphemous slander of God and His Word. Shame on those who preach it. Shame on those who listen and endorse such teaching. Shame on those who support it.

Many thousands who hold the error of immortality of the soul, yet revolt at the horrible injustice of an eternal hell, have swung to the other extreme of the universal reconciliation of all. Other multiplied thousands have become infidels through the teaching of eternal torment—based on immortality of the soul, which they mistakenly believe the Bible teaches.

Conditional immortality teaches that only those who, under trial, become morally and spiritually fit to live forever will be made immortal—and all not fit will be utterly destroyed.

TESTIMONY

By Mary Mae Nedrow, Oregon, Illinois

---

CALAMITIES, suffering, temptations, can all be used for a testimony. The temptation of Jesus in the wilderness only enabled Him to emerge from there with greater strength, courage, and power, than before. Many tragedies of life can be turned into testimony, and instead of being weakened by them, we are made strong. The stoning of Stephen, though it meant his death, turned into a testimony when "they that were scattered abroad went everywhere preaching the word."

The Apostle Paul was not healed of his infirmity, though he prayed that it might be taken from him. The Lord's answer was this: "My grace is sufficient for thee: for my strength is made perfect in weakness." Paul understood the meaning and said: "When I am weak, then am I strong." His infirmity was used of God for some higher purpose.

There is a dear old lady, eighty-five years of age, who has been at the local clinic for the past few years. None of her people live near her. Many patients hear her sweet voice vibrating through the corridor, as she sweetly sings hymns, day after day, and night after night. While visiting with her the other day, she asked me why an old person should go on living when so many younger ones die. I told her perhaps it was for a testimony. Who knows how many hearts have been touched by her singing? She probably has been the means of drawing many closer to God.

Jesus was a kindly man. He was benevolent and sincere at all times. He lived a clean, wholesome life. All that came to Him were healed. One had only to "touch the hem of his garment," and she was made whole. We cannot expect to heal the sick, or raise the dead, as did the Christ, or to open the eyes of the blind, but we can manifest the same spirit of loving service and helpfulness to our fellow men.

Jesus was interested in the people about Him. His life was a testimony at all times. Should not ours be the same? Jesus was truthful in all that He said. Unless we speak the truth in love, what we say is like "sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal." We cannot make people love us. We must earn their love. The children loved Jesus and would gather around Him because (Please turn to page 11)

By C. E. Randall (Fonthill, Ontario)

FRANCE AND AMERICA. Gleanings from reports would lead one to believe that the people of France had turned away from the religious faiths of their forebears and were becoming a nation of unbelievers. A recent Gallup poll would indicate that there is still "a form of godliness" among the French, and that perhaps they are not much different than the people on this continent.

Here are some of the figures: 65 per cent believed in religion; 32 per cent were non-believers, and 3 per cent had no opinion. Of the political groups, 24 per cent of the Communists were believers, 47 per cent of the Socialists acknowledged belief, and among the Popular Republicans, 93 per cent were of some religious faith.

Among the older folk, 80 per cent witnessed to their belief. The younger element was wanting in their religious convictions. Among them, only 56 per cent held to a belief in religion. Those having abandoned faith gave four reasons for their decisions: 1) education; 2) temperament; 3) philosophical reflection; 4) deception by the churches.

Coming to America, would we find a much different condition? Bishop Fred Pierce Corson says there are 70,000,000 Americans without any church contacts, and 35,000,000 only give infrequent attention to religion.

In all this, it is religion that is concerned and not Christianity. One can believe in religion and still never have had a vital experience with Christ. If a poll was to be taken of those who had conviction of being a "new creature in Christ Jesus," the percentages no doubt would be entirely different, so much so, one would wonder if there is "any faith." "When the Son of man cometh, shall he find faith on the earth?" is a question of no mean importance these days.

MASS EVANGELISM. The Methodist Board of Evangelism had made plans for a city-wide evangelistic campaign in Los Angeles, but the effort was taken over by the Federation of Churches of the city. Starting October 13, a census of the city was taken. Personal work by organized teams and individuals will start on Sunday, November 3. From 17-24, there will be a central preaching mission in the city's largest auditorium, with a choir of several hundreds of voices assisting. This will be followed by preaching missions in all sections of the city. There will be Saturday-night youth rallies, shop meetings, luncheon club talks, and appeals in high schools and colleges.

This effort will be widely observed and no doubt will give rise to other similar endeavors in other cities. The doctrine preached may not be in keeping with some of the fundamentals of the gospel, yet the moral and spiritual impact will be of far-reaching importance.

UNITARIAN OUTLOOK. The Unitarian Commission on World Order for the United States and Canada submitted the following recommendation in respect to a world government: "World government, though not an immediate possibility, is the objective toward which we must work, gradually." The Commission saw in present-day developments progress toward this ideal state. Its report continued: "We rejoice that in such undertakings as the International Health Organization, the International Monetary Fund, and the International Labor Organization, the United Nations are generating a sense of world community. We will not yield in our conviction that this sense shall continue to grow, until all men everywhere acknowledge their primary allegiance to Man, legislating for their common life in the Parliament of Man, living their several lives in a world whose peace and abundance shall at last enoble men to differ without hate."

A world government seems to be necessary to set the stage for the world rule of the Man of Sin. World leaders are thinking in terms of a world government these days.

MORAVIANS. The Moravian Church met recently in their convention which was held in Bethlehem, Pennsylvania. Reporting on his recent trip to Europe, Bishop S. H. Gopp, said: "The splendid work of many long years in the three Baltic provinces of Estonia, Latvia, and Lithuania, now again under Russian rule, appears to have been definitely destroyed. Nothing is known about the people formerly in the care of Moravian pastors; the Russian iron curtain securely hides their fate from the rest of the world. . . . There are no more Moravians in Poland. They are either scattered to the four winds, or are in hiding, or have no means of traveling to see other Moravians, or they are dead."

The Moravians are better known as "United Brethren." They are congregational in form of government, and live a very simple and earnest type of life. There are four independent branches of the church, German, British, North American, and South American. The suppression of these people in the Baltics cannot be charged to interference with the State. They are law-abiding people.

MIXED MARRIAGES. There appears to be a growing indifference among Protestants toward marriages with Roman Catholics. These mixed marriages are bound to lead to trouble if religious conviction means anything at all to either party to the marriage. At the recent General Council meetings of the United Church in Canada, held in Montreal, the Commission on "The Christian Marriage and Christian Home" submitted a long statement on mixed marriages. Chief Justice J. C. McRuer was chairman of the Commission.

The requirements of the Roman Catholic Church in mixed marriages are set forth as follows:

(a) "The marriage must be performed by a Roman priest; otherwise the Roman Catholic partner is virtually excommunicated. Even then, the marriage can only take place in the presbytery, not in the church proper.

(b) "The Protestant partner must take a course of instruction in Roman Catholic doctrine.

(c) "The Protestant partner must sign an 'Ante Nuptial Agreement' as follows:

"I the undersigned, not a member of the Catholic Church, wishing to contract marriage with _____, a member of the Catholic Church, propose to do so with the understanding that the marriage bond thus contracted is indissoluble, except by death. I promise on my word and honour that I will not in any way hinder or obstruct the said _____ in the exercise of _____ religion, and that all children of either sex born to our marriage shall be baptized and educated in the Catholic Church, and according to the teaching of the Catholic Church, though the said _____ should be taken by death. I further promise that I will marry _____ only according to the marriage rite of the Catholic Church, that I will not either before or after the Catholic ceremony, present myself with _____ for marriage before a civil magistrate, or minister of the gospel."

(Signature) _____
Signed in the presence of Rev. _____
Place _____ Date _____

"The Roman Catholic partner must likewise promise that the children will be brought up in the Catholic faith. In addition, he or she must do everything possible to bring about the conversion of the non-Roman partner."

It is not necessary to add much comment to this report. It speaks for itself. Church leaders would do well to acquaint their young people with these facts. During the summer, I talked with two young ladies, one a Baptist the other of the Church of God, and both stated they had signed such an agreement.

FRIVOLOUS RELIGION. In the closing days of the race for the league pennant in the National Baseball Circuit, supporters of the Brooklyn Dodgers assembled on two different days when they were led in prayer by clergymen for a Dodger victory. Such may be in keeping with the spirit of Christianity, but we are inclined to think otherwise. Such a frivolous perversion of the use of prayer and the functions of the church may be in some degree the cause of the "breakdown" of church life in that city. There are 80,000 Protestants in this city of nearly three million. Less than half of these attend church regularly. There are some 320,000 Roman Catholics that attend Sunday mass out of approximately one million Catholic population. It is here that the largest Jewish community in the world exists, and of one million Jews, only about 400,000 ever go inside a synagogue.

ELDORADO, ILLINOIS

At a recent meeting of the Sunday school teachers, superintendent, and pastor of the Restitution Church, it was decided to have the four younger classes meet in the basement of the church where more time can be given for their opening songs. Other plans for future Sunday school work were discussed also.

The senior Berean class, which meets in the homes on Wednesday evenings, is starting the new Berean Book Six, "Building for the Ages," by Bro. Arlen Marsh.

This class took in three dollars extra one evening recently and had a lot of fun doing it. A precious, hard-to-get item was crudely wrapped and brought to class and auctioned to the highest bidder. The ladies bid high, hoping to get a pair of nylons, and the men, as usual, looked for steak or bacon. Bro. Edward Gott proved himself to be a very able auctioneer, and the rare package brought $2.50. Since everyone was so eager to see what it was, the buyer demanded a nickel from each one, and that boosted the amount to three dollars. With a lot of grace and good humor, he took home a ten-cent package of black pepper.

We do have serious moments, however, and were all made glad recently when Rita Lu Mosby was baptized into the name of Christ. She is the daughter of the Burdette Mosbys and her address is Rt. 1, Eldorado.

Mrs. Carl R. Davenport.

IOWA QUARTERLY CONFERENCE

The fall quarterly conference was held at Pleasant Prairie as planned on October 13. Although we were not able to secure Bro. Sydney E. Magaw, we had a very enjoyable and profitable meeting.

Sunday school classes were taught by the regular Pleasant Prairie teachers: J. Arthur Johnson, E. L. Swanson, and Kathryn Jacobson. Following Sunday School, Bro. C. W. Howe of Waterloo gave the morning message. Bro. H. S. Hunt of Clarksville, State president, preached in the afternoon on "The High Calling."

The bountiful basket dinner was served in the community building in Lake View. Guests who arrived on Saturday were royally entertained by the local members. The regular Lake View - Sae City congregation was re-enforced by members from Clarksville, Sioux Rapids, Osage, Stanhope, Cedar Falls, Waterloo, and Omaha, Nebr.

We enjoyed the food, both temporal and spiritual, and the fellowship, and we look forward to several such meetings in the spring.

FRANCIS SNOW

Bro. Francis Snow, popularly known as "Jonah" Snow, retired rural merchant and resident of Faulkner County, Ark., died at eight o'clock, Monday night, October 8, 1946, at his home at McGintytown.

Bro. Snow was a faithful member of the Church of God of the Abrahamic Faith and a member of the Woodmen of the World. He was an active member of the church until about a year ago, since which time he was not able to attend church. The writer visited him very often and always found him strong in the faith. He remarked several times that he was living on borrowed time and said he was ready to die.

Bro. Snow was born, March 4, 1861, at Mayfield, Ky., the son of Calvin Neely and Sarah Bridgenan Snow. He came with his parents, when they settled in Faulkner County, in 1871. He was married, January 11, 1883, to Emma Francis Cooper, now eighty-one years of age, who survives him. He also is survived by three sons: Roy Snow of Kansas City, Sam Snow of Alexandria, La., and Harry Snow of Conway, Ark.; four daughters: Mrs. E. W. Wooly of Greenbrier, Ark.; Mrs. George A. Alewyne of Conway, Ark.; Mrs. P. T. Hamilton of Black Fork Community near McGintytown, and Mrs. Charles Blythe of Kansas City; twelve grandchildren, ten great grandchildren, and a host of friends and relatives to mourn his death.

Bro. Snow was a community leader throughout his adult life and was loved by all who knew him.

Funeral services were conducted in the McGintytown Church by the writer, who spoke on the hope of a resurrection and the second coming of Christ, on which Bro. Snow based his hope. He was laid to rest in Antioch Cemetery near his home to await the coming of the Master and the resurrection.

H. Scott Smith, Pastor.

ARTHUR L. WHITE

Bro. Arthur L. White, Bennington, Nebr., suffered a stroke in March of 1945, and was confined to his home and bed almost constantly until he fell asleep in death, Saturday, October 5, 1946. A faithful member and worker in the Church of God, and a generous and likeable Christian man, his death brings sorrow to the Church of God in Omaha and all eastern Nebraska.

Bro. White was born, November 10, 1883, north of Blair, Nebr. He was united in marriage to Virdie Mae Williams on September 16, 1908. To this union were born four children: Mrs. Kenneth Nelson, Mrs. Russell Johns, Mrs. Harlan Dierking, and Gilbert A. White, all of Bennington.

In January, 1911, he was baptized into Christ.

He is survived by his widow, four children, seven grandchildren, one brother, Charles Lester White of Omaha, and one sister, Mrs. Emery Dixon of Omaha.

He resided in Bennington for twenty-eight years.

Funeral services were conducted by the writer, October 8, at the Hadam Mortuary in Bennington, and Bro. White was laid to rest in the Blair, Nebr., cemetery to await the call of the Lord in the resurrection morning.

GOD ANOINTS A KING

KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS" (Rev. 19:16). Christ will not be alone at that great inauguration ceremony, for:

"I beheld, and I heard the voice of many angels round about the throne and the beasts and the elders: and the number of them was ten thousand times ten thousand, and thousands of thousands; saying with a loud voice, Worthy is the Lamb that was slain to receive power, and riches, and wisdom, and strength, and honour, and glory, and blessing. And every creature which is in heaven, and on the earth, and under the earth, and such as are in the sea, and all that are in them, heard I saying, Blessing, and honour, and glory, and power, be unto him that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb for ever and ever" (Rev. 5:11-13).

God has anointed HIS King! While the nations of the earth talk of world government, UNO, peace, dictators, and democracy, God laughs, for it is a King of His choosing who will bring peace—for HE loved righteousness.

 THE SECOND MIRACLE

of Jesus and act upon them, not just because they sound logical, or because science has proved this or that to be true, but because Jesus spoke them, is the pure faith of real Christian experience. That is the kind of faith which moves mountains of doubt and fear. It is the faith of the fathers, who believed God's Word because it was God's Word, whether or not it happened to agree with the momentary fads of science and philosophy. The centurion believed and went his way.

James said, "Faith without works is dead." True faith will show itself in works! How then do we know that the centurion had faith in Jesus? How do we know that he was convinced, without any great show, that Jesus was able to perform His promise? By this one undeniable fact; his works! The centurion did not go home immediately, but lingered in Cana for a day before returning to Capernaum. We read this startling fact in verses 51-53: "As he was now going down, his servants met him, and told him, saying, Thy son liveth. Then enquired he of them the hour when he began to amend. And they said unto him, Yesterday at the seventh hour the fever left him. So the father knew that it was at the same hour, in the which Jesus said unto him, Thy son liveth: and himself believed, and his whole house."

This is what must have happened. It was one o'clock in the afternoon (the seventh hour) when Jesus told the centurion his son was well. The father had been very anxious about the lad, as evidenced by the fact that he had tried so valiantly to rush Jesus back to Capernaum. Had there been the slightest doubt in the centurion's mind about his son's health, after Jesus had pronounced him cured, the anxious father would have rushed at top speed back home to see if Jesus had really performed the deed.

It was only seventeen miles, you will remember, from Cana to the centurion's home in Capernaum. He could have made the trip easily in his chariot (which all centurions owned) in two hours. The centurion could have been home by three in the afternoon, yet he did not come home till the following day. This we know by what his servants said: "Yesterday, at the seventh hour the fever left him." When the servants said this, the centurion knew that it was the same hour in which he had spoken with Jesus.

Why did the man stay in Cana when his son had been left dying at home? Only one answer can suffice; he was either the most heartless man in the world (disproved by his personal concern) or he knew his son was well because Jesus had said it was so. The nobleman's mind was put at ease because he had real faith in Jesus' power to save.

When Jesus said, "Your son is well," the man believed Him. Why not stay in Cana, then, and take care of some business, or visit friends, then journey leisurely back to his home? We can even imagine what may have happened in the city. He went to an old friend's house.

"Well, Anthony, what are you doing in Cana?" said the friend.

"Oh, my son was dying this morning and I rushed over to see Jesus, that He might heal the boy."

Perhaps the friend was then a little puzzled. Anthony's son was dying, yet here he was making a leisurely call, apparently without a care in the world.

"Well, . . . at . . . ah, how is the boy?"

"Oh, he is well now."

"But Anthony, how do you know? You have not been home!"

Then he may have replied, "I know he is well because Jesus said he was."

We do not know just what the centurion did in Cana, of course, but one thing we do know; he had faith. He had not only the faith to say, "I believe you, Jesus," but he had the kind of faith which prompted him to demonstrate that he trusted and believed.

This recorded miracle teaches one principle—salvation comes by pure and simple faith in God's power to save through His Son. It is faith like that of the centurion, which can bring you and me to God. The faith which sets your mind at ease and gives you assurance that you are Christ's and He is yours is the required faith.

How many of us have that faith? How many of u can say, "I know Jesus can save," and then show by peaceful, kind, loving, daily service that we believe it?

Jesus has said, "God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life" (John 3:16). Do we believe it or are we filled with doubts and fears about what "may" happen? Do we accept Jesus' sacrifice wholeheartedly, in simple faith, or are we looking for a sign of some kind to drive away our doubts? The faith of the centurion is not only the ideal, it is the essential.

The nobleman came to Jesus, a little skeptically, wanting his son saved. He left Jesus, so soundly convinced that He could perform His promise, that he did not even go home to see if it was done. He knew it was, because Jesus had said so. John said, "These are written, that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God; and that believing ye might have life through his name" (John 20:31).

Do you believe? Then show your belief by your works, as did the centurion! Demonstrate to the world that you know the power of Christ to save you and all others who believe, from sin and its penalty.

TESTIMONY

They knew He loved them. You cannot fool a child. Little children know what we really are like. If we are what we profess to be, little children will turn to us, just as the flowers turn to the sun. Unconsciously they will slip their tiny hands in ours. Kindness always wins when dealing with children.

Our lives must be a living testimony of the truths we teach. Only then can we expect to bring others to Christ. It is through Christ that we may come to God. God has so very much to offer! Why choose the world's goods instead of God's? Today, evil is rampant in the world as in the days of Noah. Many seem not to be able to tell the difference between good and evil. Noah was laughed to scorn when he preached to the antediluvians. Jesus was nailed to the cross for pointing out the Way to an ungodly people. We entreat those who have wandered away to come back to the "household of God." Come out of the world and "walk circumspectly . . . redeeming the time, because the days are evil." May our lives be a testimony for Him!

BOOK PARADE

By Arlen Marsh

"Gladly wolde he lerne, and gladly teche."
—Canterbury Tales.

For the first time in really modern history, the Church of God has managed to produce a book that is not only worth reading, but really well printed.

Special attention was given by the National Sunday School Association, publishers of Putting Purpose in Sunday School, to the problems of appearance and legibility as well as to the more vital problems of having worthy contents. The 70-page result has come out in type this size, yet has a page small enough to fit a coat pocket easily. The price is 50 cents.

Author James M. Watkins has borrowed on wide experience in active church work and on wide reading in the psychology of education for his motif. The end product is not a teacher-training text, but an inspirational shot of spiritual adrenalin for ailing Sunday schools.

A good share of the book is idealistic. There is no better word to fit. The idealism is of a practical type; much of it can be put into practice, and most of the rest of it easily can be adapted to one's own needs. But the standards Mr. Watkins proposes for governing success in Sunday school—and church—activities are so high that they remind us of the exhortation, "Be ye perfect . . ."

"To educate for a place in the church." Ah, there's the whole idea of Sunday school, insists Mr. Watkins with a vigor that loses no force because of frequent repetitions. Without this aim, Sunday school is pointless.

Considerable attention is given the various age groups and the educational appeals that should be made to each one. Religious training, Mr. Watkins feels, begins properly even before birth. (If you're skeptical about that, read the book!)

Putting Purpose in Sunday School should stimulate the thinking processes and the work of any responsible church leader.

"The secret of the Lord is with them that fear him; and he will shew them his covenant" (Psalm 25:14).

Companions of Joseph

Pharaoh became angry with two of his servants. One of them was the chief of the butlers. The other was the chief of the bakers. The Word does not tell us why the ruler was angry at them. Nevertheless, he was very angry because he had them both thrown into prison. This prison was the one Joseph was in. They were thrown into the same place where Joseph was bound. (Gen. 40:3.) From that fact, we also would have reason to think that they also were bound. (See Gen. 39:20.)

We learned last week that Joseph had received favor with the keeper of the prison. (Gen. 39:21.) He had been put in charge of the others. Today we learn that he also had charge of the king of Egypt's officers who had displeased the Pharaoh.

Two Dreams

Both the baker and butler had dreams. No one was there to tell them what their dreams meant. So Joseph asked them to tell him their dreams. He said: "Do not interpretations belong to God?" He knew God was able to reveal the meanings of the dreams to him. Had Joseph not had strange dreams himself? His father asked Joseph if he thought his father, mother, and brothers would bow down to him.

Joseph heard the baker and butler's dreams. He told the butler that he would be restored to his position of cupbearer in three days. He also asked that when the butler was restored to the king's favor he would remember him. Joseph explained that he had been bought as a slave only because he had been stolen out of the "land of the Hebrews" or Canaan. He also told him that he had not done anything to have been punished by being cast into prison. (Gen. 40:15.)

The Interpretations True

The chief butler was restored to his work again, but the chief baker was hanged as Joseph had told him he would be.

God was with Joseph though he was in prison. Joseph's heart was right in God's sight. He had not sinned.

One would think the butler would have been so happy to have been restored, as Joseph had told him, that he would have pleaded for Joseph to be freed. Such was not the case. The chief butler forgot all about Joseph!

There is a sentence quoted in the Intermediate Truth Seekers' Quarterly comments that I want to be sure you read. It is very true: "Men too often write the record of grudges in marble and of favors in water."

What things should we forget? The bad or wrong things others do to us? What, then, should we remember? The good or right things others do to us.

The Word says it this way: "Whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things" (Phil. 4:8).

We will make mistakes; but, if we keep trying to do right, we will be able to overcome our failures and temptations. God's Word is a righteous judgment test. Prove that we will be "overcomers."

A story is told of a party who was climbing a mountain side and a terrific storm came on. "We must give this up," said the men to their guide. "Take us back." The guide smiled and said, "I think we'll soon be above the storm. Sure enough, it was not long before they were above the storm. All was quiet, and the sun was shining, though the storm still raged in the valley below.

Christians should do as this guide said—keep on climbing, don't stop or go back; go on and cheer others on. That they, with you, can rise above the storm and dwell in the sunlight of God's love.

JUNIOR CHURCH

The junior Bereans held junior church in the evenings during the conference at Oregon this summer. These services were supervised by Mrs. Verna Thayer. They served two purposes. First, the children had a church of their own while their parents or friends attended the regular services; and second, it helped us to learn to become leaders.

Perhaps you would like to know how these services were conducted. A day or two beforehand, Mrs. Thayer would appoint a master of ceremonies and one or more speakers so that they could have their sermons ready.

The master of ceremonies would open with two or three songs and a prayer. We usually had a special number. This summer we had vocal duets and violin duets.

In the sermonette, the speaker told us of a wrong deed that some Biblical character did. After he told the story, he told us how we could do better in our lives.

We took turns in everything. If we got through before the other church was out, Mrs. Thayer would tell us a Bible story. Then we closed with a song and a prayer.

—Wesley Somers.

JUNIOR BEREANS

Does it not seem wonderful to you to think that we now have a definite place in Berean work? We are indeed happy to think that we have a chairman, Wesley Somers, who is to have charge of our junior Berean activities.

The next step is to prove to Wesley that we can do our part. We need many more Vit-Em-In Bible classes for boys and girls.

These Vit-Em-In classes can be successful only when there is good leadership and the right subject matter. We are suggesting that one person be appointed as sponsor. This person should be one who is especially trained for teaching children. Her assistants should be those who want to become teachers of children.

There are several sets of lessons which have been used in our Vit-Em-In Bible classes. They are "In the Beginning," "A Ride on the Gospel Airplane" (part of which appeared on the Berean page), "Obedience, Disobedience—Which?" and "The Life of Christ." The sets of lessons may be obtained by addressing me at National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois.

If you are living in a community where there are children, why not start a small class in your home? We are recommending that in cities where the membership is widely scattered, several small classes be organized in various parts of the cities, with one person as general sponsor. Then at intervals these classes should be brought to the church for general work together.—Verna C. Thayer.

Jesus said to His apostles: "Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not: for of such is the kingdom of God" (Luke 18:16). Let us not forget.

EVANGELISM IN TEXAS

A week's series of meetings was concluded at Mullin, Tex., on September 29, on which date a Sunday school was organized, which we hope will continue and grow in interest and numbers. The attendance during the week was not too good, but enough to be somewhat encouraging. There are quite a number of members in the vicinity of Mullin. With regular pastoral work, it probably could be built up to a good active church. They have a good concrete building, recently erected, which should be used for regular services. Three services were held on the closing day, with dinner at the church, and a fine spirit.

Leaving Mullin, October 2, we went to Fort Worth, stopping at Comanche to visit members there. Visits were made with isolated brethren at Fort Worth and Handley, and a day with Bro. and Sr. Drinkard at Arlington was much enjoyed.

At Breckenridge, we stopped overnight, October 4, with a church family, and the following day visited several members at Abilene. Eight or more members live there, remnants of the church which formerly was at Lastra, northeast of Abilene. Services are to be held there over the week end of November 10.

On October 6, it was a pleasure to meet with the brethren at Sweetwater, Tex., when Bro. E. O. Stewart preached. There are seventeen or more brethren there. They meet in private homes, having no church building. This is a group that met years ago at Palava, northeast of Sweetwater, where there used to be a building. Services will be held at Sweetwater over the week end of November 23.

Bro. Dyches accompanied me as far as Sweetwater, from where he returned home, after visiting relatives in several of the places on the route.

Tokio, Tex., was the next stop, where two meetings were held, October 14 and 15, in the Nazarene Church. The large congregation that used to be there has dwindled down to a handful, but fifteen or twenty turned out each night. Meetings are being held October 16-18 at the Presbyterian Church at Brownfield, where there are about a dozen members. Tokio is seventeen miles west of Brownfield.

There are isolated members scattered all over the State of Texas, but very few places where enough are congregated to organize a work.

M. W. Lyon, Evangelist.

FONTHILL, ONTARIO

The Fonthill Church was led in a series of meetings from September 29 to October 13, by Bro. James Watkins, Oregon, Ill. Bro. Watkins may have felt somewhat strange in a foreign country, but he was not alien to the Word of God which he brought in a very forcible manner time after time. His easy manner of presentation and logical reasoning won for him many words of praise, but, more than this, he warmed the hearts of the hearers with a new sense of the Divine presence.

Early in the meetings, Sr. Henrietta Bank presented herself for immersion. This service was performed Sunday evening, October 20.

We appreciate the efforts which Bro. Watkins put forth and commend him to the churches as one who is able to set forth the "way" with a "thus saith the Lord."

C. E. Randall, Pastor.

INDIANA NEWS

Sr. Anna Cochran, 622 E. Lake St., Knox, entered the Kelly Hospital, Argos, the first part of October for an appendicitis operation. She progressed so well that the doctors predicted a very short stay in the hospital.

Sr. Louise LaMunion, secretary for the Burr Oak Church, is also a patient at Kelly Hospital. She was home for about four days but had to return. Altogether, she has been a patient for about a month. Doctors are still puzzled, so her stay seems indefinite.

At the morning service on the well-attended Rally Day, October 6, Mr. and Mrs. Asa Walker and Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Zechiel presented the Burr Oak Church with a lovely Communion set in memory of Mrs. Christian Enigh—Mrs. Walker's mother—and Mr. and Mrs. Simon Hatten—parents of Mrs. Zechiel. Harry Sheets.

HARTSHORNE, OKLAHOMA

Bro. H. Scott Smith and Sr. Verna C. Thayer arrived in Hartshorne, Okla., on October 1. On October 2, we began a meeting at Arch, Ark. Bro. Smith preached three fine sermons. He then went back to London, Ark., to keep his appointment with the McGinty-town brethren. Sr. Thayer and I continued the meeting until October 11. There was good interest.

Sr. Thayer had an average of twenty-two children in her class, with an enrollment of thirty or thirty-five. People here are well pleased with her work, and the children were proud to have Sr. Thayer as their teacher. Sr. Thayer preached one sermon for us.

She is doing a great work in teaching children who will be men and women of tomorrow. Let us keep her in the work.

After we closed the meeting here, we went to Clark Chapel (Ark.) Church of God, where I kept my appointment as pastor of the church. Sr. Thayer taught the children there. Bro. Smith and Sr. Thayer began work there on October 22. I will join them as soon as possible.

HAMMOND, LOUISIANA

Since General Conference, the Lord has prospered us here in Happy Woods.

The Summer Bible Training School in Oregon, Ill., benefited five of our young people immensely, as can be seen by their zeal in present church work. Zeal is contagious, and the rest of our young people are much interested.

The Bereans now take charge of the Sunday evening service the first Sunday of every month. Both adults and young people feel benefit from this arrangement. To date, two good programs have been given. The last service was based on "Love." Preston Landry was master of ceremonies. Mabel Marie and Elsie Barnum sang a duet. Margaret Bauerle gave us a sermonette entitled, "Love." To close the program, the Good Samaritan story was given as a play. Those in the play, not mentioned previously, were George Anthon, Marjorie Bauerle, Charles Gilbert Bortolfs, Lucy and Laura Bankston, Rita Landry, and Buddy Campbell. Next month, the Bereans plan to show the religious film, "Journey into Faith."

The church, as a group, by no means takes second place to our young people. During the past few months, our attention has centered on building additional rooms on the present church building at an estimated cost of $2,500.00. Plans have been drawn, and siding, flooring, and aluminum roofing have been ordered.

For the rest of the lumber, the church is greatly indebted to Bro. Albert Siple who donated enough trees from his land to make the additional 10,000 feet of lumber needed. Bro. Siple always has placed his love of church work first, which can be seen by this striking example. Let us all follow his example and put the Lord's work first.

But that is not the end of the story. Saturday, October 12, the men of the church, headed by Bros. C. Barnum, Warren Landry, and L. C. Anthon, collected their axes, cross-cut saws, and wedges, and felled the approximately thirty-five trees. There is nothing better than for brethren to work together in harmony.

At noon that day, we went to the Siple home, where the ladies of the church did their share of work by giving us a very good meal.

The only ill effects from the day's work—for God protected us from harm—were some aching muscles.

Today (October 16), the logs are being hauled to the mill to be made into lumber.

With thanksgiving, we mention that our Building Fund has reached the $1,400.00 mark. The Dorcas Society gave nearly a thousand dollars.

We pray that the Lord will continue to bless us and all who strive to do His will.

James Mattison, Pastor.

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA

Sunday, October 6, was Rally Day for the Los Angeles Sunday school. An auspicious start on the new fall schedule of work was made, many new members being added to our classes, though some have moved away. About seventy were present. An appropriate program was given by the younger members, a String Trio, and the choir. We were amazed and happy to have our Sunday school superintendent, Paul Overholser, back again on the tenth day after a major operation.

It is our custom to observe the first Sunday in each month by Communion, a basket dinner, and an afternoon service, in addition to the regular Sunday morning worship. One feature of the afternoon service, October 6, was a motion picture on the life of Christ, "Child of Bethlehem." We were happy to see so many out-of-town members and those who cannot attend regularly.

Dwight H. Laming, one of our members who has long been an invalid, died, September 28. He was born in Ripley, Ill., in 1891. Bro. J. W. McLain conducted the funeral service.

The Lyte Doan family is settled in their new home and are taking an active part in the various activities of the church. They operate a restaurant at 117 W. Center St., in Bellflower, serving breakfasts and lunches. Mrs. Doan has been an able assistant in the training of the church choir on Monday nights.

Our choir, though only six months old, is making excellent progress, under the able leadership of Bro. McLain. It already is doing four-part singing, a cappella style.

The Cabazon group and the newly formed group at El Casco Lake are meeting together and alternating their meeting places each Thursday evening. The latter is a resort ten miles southeast of Redlands, purchased by the Arthur Mock family early in the summer.

Some of our recent visitors include Roy Graham, pastor of the Fredericktown, Mo., church, and his wife, Leonard Manken, also of Fredericktown, Lillian and Alta King of Palo Alto, and Hiram Schier, Jr., of Oregon, Ill., now stationed in San Diego.

The Hobart Luper family has moved to 618 Cherry Lee, El Monte, to engage in the business of raising rabbits.

After November 3, our pastor's new telephone number will be Plymouth 5-7291.

Marian R. Richards, Secy.

HENLEY - LEWIS

The Church of God, Dixon, Ill., was the scene of a fall wedding at 2:30 p.m., October 5, 1946, when Miss Doris Henley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Henley, became the bride of Lyle A. Lewis. The single ring ceremony was performed, C. Alan McLain, pastor, officiating.

The church was decorated with fall flowers. Mrs. Robert Burrs at the organ played during the ceremony. The bride wore powder-blue street-length dress with matching accessories, and a shoulder corsage of pink carnations.

Dora Plock, twin sister of the bride, serving as maid of honor, wore a powder blue suit with a shoulder corsage of pink carnations.

The groom's best man was Merle Plock.

The new Mrs. Lewis has been employed at Borden's cheese factory. After a short wedding trip, the couple will make their home with the bride's parents. She is a member of the local Church of God. Mrs. Lyle Drew.

WATERLOO, IOWA

The members of the Waterloo Church of God enjoyed an inspirational sermon by Bro. Sydney E. Magaw on "The Types of Baptism," Friday evening, October 11. (Come again, Bro. Magaw; the sooner, the better!) The speaker was introduced by Bro. H. S. Hunt, Iowa Conference president. A basket dinner in the church basement preceded the sermon. Mrs. A. J. Eychaner, Mrs. James Prime, and Dr. Karl Eychaner, who presented the church three pulpits chairs in memory of Bro. A. J. Eychaner, were honored at this time in a talk by Mrs. T. J. Ellis, who described a bronze plaque which is to be placed on the back of one of the chairs.

The Foolishness of Preaching

By H. Gary France, Wenatchee, Washington

ONE IS amazed at the sickly, groping efforts of this "wise" world to produce happiness, contentment, and security. One is disgusted that, though the world appears to work toward these ends, the selfishness of mankind is the barrier always proving lethal to high ideals.

Paul wrote, "The foolishness of God is wiser than men" (1 Cor. 1:25), indicating that to men God seems foolish.

The wisdom of God is love and His plan. The seeming foolishness of God is preaching (2 Tim. 4:2), the Golden Rule (Matt. 7:12), and the love of neighbor as self (Luke 10:27). The worldly mind declares, "It is absolutely foolish to 'do unto others as I would have others do unto me.' Why, I would give them everything I owned!" In the Kingdom where the love of others instead of self will be practiced, to fight for one's necessities will be unnecessary, because everyone else, having the same spirit, will care for his necessities.

Man's wisdom is a peculiar cross between selfishness and happiness. Selfishness is manifested in his desire to obtain as much material wealth as possible, even at the expense of others. Happiness is an impossible goal when selfishness is present. One cannot have both. One cannot be happy when people are greedily fighting for every possible worldly gain. Therefore, selfishness and happiness are basically inconsistent ideals. The house of worldly wisdom is divided against itself and will ultimately fall. Though that fall is not yet complete, worldly wisdom has failed miserably in many respects.

As God is seemingly foolish in His principles, man is obviously foolish in his principles. Wars, strikes, sicknesses, and famines are principles rooted in man's wisdom—selfishness—that declare man's utter foolishness. Man's wisdom produces his foolishness. God's seeming foolishness produces within man God's pure wisdom: Love. As Paul wrote, "The foolishness of God is wiser than men."

One has said, "People will eventually die of civilization."

Another seeming foolishness of God was revealed when Paul wrote, "The preaching of the cross is to them that perish foolishness" (1 Cor. 1:18). Paul also wrote, however, "It pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe" (1 Cor. 1:21).

To illustrate the ridiculousness of the wisdom of man, one may consider the treaty at the end of World War I. Happiness demanded a world peace, but selfishness caused the laying of a groundwork for another war. The peace treaty demanded of Germany five billion dollars by 1921. Through the efforts of Woodrow Wilson, that sum was selected instead of higher considered sums ranging to one hundred twenty billion dollars. All of Germany's merchant ships that weighed over 1600 tons gross and half her merchant ships that weighed between 1000 and 1600 tons were given to the Allies. Furthermore, for a time her docks were to be used for the building of Allied merchant ships. The gluttony of this becomes apparent when one notices the following fact: These terms were largely in the interest of Great Britain! Why? Because England and Germany were industrial, commercial, and trade rivals before the war. Obviously, these terms made it impossible for Germany to compete with England—leaving the latter a clear field.

I wonder what kind of people Isaiah had in mind when he wrote, "Yea, they are greedy dogs which can never have enough, and they are shepherds that cannot understand: they all look to their own way, every one for his gain, from his quarter" (56:11). The temptation to be selfish is entirely too powerful for the men of this world system to overcome.

Oh, that the makers of war treaties could use the wisdom of God as revealed through (Please turn to page 9)

Jesus, the Bread of Life

To Jews who mentioned Moses' having given manna in the wilderness, Jesus said, "I am the bread of life: he that cometh to me shall never hunger; and he that believeth on me shall never thirst" (John 6:35). Jesus, as the Bread of Life surpasses in blessing the manna that fed Israel's multitudes over a period of forty years. The manna, sweet as "wafers made with honey," only typified the Christ who thoroughly satisfies. "Wherefore do ye spend money for that which is not bread? and your labour for that which satisfieth not?" "Except ye eat the flesh of the Son of man, and drink his blood, ye have no life in you."

Jesus, Light of the World

He who said, "I am the bread of life," said also, "I am the light of the world" (John 8:12). He added, "He that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life." To the Jews of His day, Jesus said: "Yet a little while is the light with you. Walk while ye have the light, lest darkness come upon you: for he that walketh in darkness knoweth not whither he goeth. While ye have the light, believe in the light, that ye may be the children of light." . . . "Yet they believed not on him."

Similarly today, the light of Christ continues to shine faintly in this world. "Walk while ye have the light, lest darkness come upon you." Light is essential to life and comfort. So also is Christ. Light uncovers mistakes and reveals the correct path ahead. So also does Christ.

Christ, Door of the Sheep

"Verily, verily," said Jesus, "I am the door of the sheep." He who would be member of God's fold must enter through the Door. Said Jesus, "No man cometh unto the Father but by me." "I am the door." "He that entereth not by the door into the sheepfold, but climbeth up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber." "By me if any man enter in, he shall be saved, and shall go in and out, and find pasture."

Christ, the Good Shepherd

"I am the good shepherd," said Jesus, and added, "The good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep" (John 10:11). "My sheep hear my voice, and I know them, and they follow me: and I give unto them eternal life; and they shall never perish, neither shall any man pluck them out of my hand."

Prophetically, Isaiah pictured the Good Shepherd, foretelling: "He shall feed his flock like a shepherd: he shall gather the lambs with his arm, and carry them in his bosom, and shall gently lead those that are with young" (40:11).

Jesus, the Resurrection

When heartbroken Martha and Mary had no hope of seeing their brother Lazarus until resurrection at the last day, Jesus said: "I am the resurrection and the life" (John 11:25). Then, proving His power to give renewed life Jesus raised Lazarus from the dead. Someday, Christ will raise all His saints into that immortal life. He now possesses. "As the father hath life in himself; so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself." "This is the will of him that sent me," said Jesus, "that every one which seeth the Son, and believeth on him, may have everlasting life: and I will raise him up at the last day."

We shall "obtain salvation by our Lord Jesus Christ who died for us, that, whether we wake or sleep, we should live together with him." Christ "shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body."

Jesus, the True Vine

Jesus said, "I am the true vine" (John 15:1). Only by being branches grafted into Christ, the True Vine, can one bear fruitage unto God. The strength of doing service acceptable to God comes through Christ, and He is able to supply sufficient strength for any and every need. "Herein is my Father glorified," said Jesus, "that ye bear much fruit; so shall ye be my disciples."

Russia in Prophecy

By J. W. McLain, Los Angeles, California

EZEKIEL 38 and 39 provide most of the basis for our study of "Russia in Prophecy." Although ancient names are used, there is considerable historical warrant for the use of the name of Russia as applying to Gog, chief prince of Meshech and Tubal. It is not necessary to the truth of Ezekiel 38, however, to be able to name Gog, Gomer, Tarshish, or any of the others mentioned. There is a greater truth to be learned than merely to identify Gog as Russia. In focusing our attention on this one power and what has seemed, to us, her insignificant companions, we have overlooked the powerful coalition of nations, yea, all the nations, that is revealed in the chapter. Also in keeping our attention on the individual nation, we have invented alliances and divisions and identities that do not have the support of Scripture. To indicate the inconsistencies, it is my purpose to use the current interpretations of the prophetic names and symbols.

The names given in the forepart of Ezekiel are the sons and grandsons of Japheth, as stated in Genesis 10:1-5. By these were the Gentiles divided. The pattern for the division of all the Gentile nations in the earth is to be found in the sons of Japheth. Ezekiel's vision saw not Russia alone, nor Russia with a few insignificant companions, but all nations of the Gentiles going down to the land of Israel to take a spoil. They are not divided into two Gentile camps, fighting each other for the possession of Palestine, but are in one powerful union of nations, Gentile against Jew. This is to be the United Nations' final use of their police-force army to subdue insurrection in their protectorate of Palestine. A one-sided war? Undoubtedly, until . . . "Then shall the Lord go forth, and fight against those nations, as when he fought in the day of battle. And his feet shall stand in that day upon the mount of Olives, which is before Jerusalem on the east" (Zech. 14:4).

The "Bear that walks like a man" has been widely used to describe Russia among the affairs of nations. The symbolism of the Bear has its source in Daniel 7. Four beasts were seen to rise from the sea in procession. The first was like a lion, commonly attributed to Britain and her allies because of the British national symbol of the lion. The second was like a bear, commonly attributed to Russia. The third was like a leopard, commonly attributed to the Asiatic group of nations. I have no fault to find with this interpretation, but those who use it are usually unmindful of certain truths contained in the same chapter. It is not the bear that makes war with the saints. Nor does the lion protect the saints at that last battle when "One like the Son of man came with the clouds of heaven." The truth is that all these three beasts are companions, having been absorbed in the fourth and last Beast. It is this last Beast that makes war with the saints. It is this fourth Beast that goes down to take a spoil. In Revelation 13, the description of this world-governing power is like a lion, a bear, and a leopard. The mouth of the Beast, full of blasphemies, is the mouth of a lion. The three great spheres of influence in the world, Russian, British-American, and Asiatic, are combined in world league at the time of the end. God has said, "I will gather all nations against Jerusalem to battle." Russia may dominate the league in the last days, but, "These have one mind, and shall give their power and strength unto the Beast." Let us not forget the British-American League has spoken the loudest and done the most to promote a world government over all nations. It is still the lion's mouth talking in the day of the Beast.

In the record of Ezekiel 38, there are only three that raise any protest against the invasion of Palestine. There is nothing, in the account given, to warrant saying that they go to war in defense of the Jews and that they are responsible for the overthrow of Gog at that time. Their protest is feeble, indeed, and is based not on concern for the Jews, but for themselves, as the language of action indicates, "Art thou come to take a spoil?" Being residents of the surrounding territory, they have a natural anxiety, not for the Jews, but for themselves and their own land. The map of ancient Bible lands and nations in the back of your own Bible should inform you that Sheba and Dedan are located in the Arabian land near to Mount Sinai. To locate Tarshish requires a bit more study from the Scriptures because of the prevalent notion that it represents Britain and America standing against Russia in Palestine. Some have said that Tarshish is the lost ten tribes of Israel represented by Britain and America. It is enlightening to note in the genealogy of nations, given in Genesis 10, that Tarshish is a grandson of Japheth, is not Semitic (from Shem), and could not as a Gentile power be representative of any part of Israel. There is no warrant in any case for declaring Tarshish as either Britain or America, because the Bible is clear in its identity of this people.

According to Isaiah's prophecy in chapter 23, Tyre and the ships of Tarshish are the same. When King Solomon was expanding his world trade (Please turn to page 9)

The Missionary Spirit

By Gordon Landry, Oregon Bible College

"Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world" (Matthew 28:19, 20).

THE INSTRUCTION of Jesus that we call the Great Commission, to go and teach all nations, was one of Christ's last thoughts to His disciples. Shortly after assuring them that they would not be alone after His ascension, "he was taken up; and a cloud received him out of their sight" (Acts 1:9).

The spreading of the gospel then rested upon the apostles. They must have felt incapable of continuing the work which Christ had started, because now they were leaderless. How could those who were fishermen become great orators or writers? How could comparatively unlearned men convey the good news to those who possessed knowledge? An impossibility? In our eyes, yes; in the eyes of God, no! Would God have allowed the death of His Son if that death were to be of no avail?

Jesus had informed His apostles that when He left them, a Comforter would come and they would receive power of the Holy Ghost (God's power). On the Day of Pentecost, that promise became fact. "There appeared unto them cloven tongues like as of fire, and it sat upon each of them. And they were all filled with the Holy Ghost" (Acts 2:3, 4a).

Now that the apostles had power, their duty was to follow the instruction of Jesus—"Go . . . and teach all nations." They did not hesitate to acknowledge their responsibility. Immediately Peter began to preach the death, burial, and resurrection of Jesus. So powerful was he in his discourse that about three thousand of his listeners were converted. They "gladly" received the word of life. The greatest conversion of all time occurred at the very beginning of the apostles' preaching lives. They were intensely zealous.

Shortly after that very successful beginning, however, those who preached Jesus and the resurrection met strong opposition from the Sadducees, who did not believe in resurrection.

Jesus had gone "about all Galilee, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing all manner of sickness and all manner of disease among the people" (Matt. 4:23). True, for a short time, He was received with open arms by the common people. He was opposed from every conceivable angle, however, by the Sadducees and Pharisees, who had "thrown to the winds" their internal disagreements, and "joined hands" to attempt to stop Him in any possible manner.

Seldom does one visualize Jesus as being a missionary. A missionary is one sent to preach to others. Usually, we think of them as being sent to a foreign country, but this is not necessarily so. Jesus "came unto his own, and his own received him not" (John 1:11). This was the Jews' first failure to take advantage of the opportunity granted them to accept their Messiah. It almost seemed for a time that they would heed the words of Christ and accept Him as their Saviour; for when He rode triumphantly into Jerusalem, the multitude cried aloud, saying, "Blessed be the King that cometh in the name of the Lord: peace in heaven, and glory in the highest" (Luke 19:38). Their zeal and overwhelming joy, however, was short-lived. Less than a week later, some of those same voices joined with others in the murderous chant, "Crucify him, crucify him."

The second failure of the Jews to heed Christ was when they imprisoned His missionaries. Thus, the gospel was held only for them no longer. After their first failure to repent, Jesus said to His disciples, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned" (Mark 16:15, 16).

The missionaries Jesus sent were imprisoned, murdered, scorned, and unheeded. Yet, though thousands lost their lives, Christianity lived.

If ever any move was doomed to failure in the eyes of men, it was Christianity. What political party of that day or of our day, could lose so many members and still flourish? What political party could exist being directly opposed to any church beliefs? Christianity was opposed—definitely opposed—to the popular beliefs of those days.

Because of the Jews' disbelief in Christ, the gospel was spread abroad to the Gentiles.

What is there about the "gospel" that caused some to die for it? that caused the then-known world to be in a state of chaos and turmoil? "It is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek" (Rom. 1:16).

If it is "the power of God unto salvation," then we can understand why many died for it. We can realize the reason they would not denounce it, even if burned at the stake, or ripped apart by wild beasts. If the gospel is "the power of God unto salvation," why is there so much indifference to it today?

The work at East Oregon (Illinois) began nine years ago when Mrs. Mary Mae Nedrow, affectionately called "Mom" by the East-siders, began teaching Jesus to one small boy under a tree near the highway. It has steadily developed since that time. Three years ago, the Chapel building was erected. A basement is now in process of construction. The Lord continues to bless East Oregon Chapel Church of God, as was witnessed by an attendance of 101 on Rally Day, October 13. An increase of faith in God will cause an increase of numbers in other churches, also. Truly, the missionary spirit is contagious.—Gordon Landry, Superintendent.

The missionary spirit in the time of the apostles was contagious. Paul, perhaps, had a greater amount of it than anyone else. Wherever he went, he left seeds of truth that "sprang up" and yielded fruit. Others traveled, anxious for others to hear the wonderful news that they had joyfully received with open hearts. Those who were unable to travel and thus spread the gospel sent money to help those in need and to help finance the missionaries.

There are far too many people today who not only are not helping spread the good news, but are not even interested in helping. Why? Is not the gospel of today the same as the gospel that Paul and Peter preached? Does it not still contain the same promises to them that believe and are baptized? Indeed, the news of Christ's return to earth should be even more joyous than it was when it was first proclaimed. Why? We are nineteen and one-half centuries nearer to that second coming than were the first believers. We can see those things coming to pass of which Jesus spoke. The world is hardly heeding the voice of Christianity. The world, through its own ingenuity, has placed itself in the saddest plight in which it ever has been. The greatest war in history has only been ended for a little over a year. What now? "Ye shall hear of wars and rumours of wars." There are rumors that another war is imminent. Rumors? Some of our best-known authorities on foreign affairs say that there is no hope for peace. "See that ye be not troubled: for all these things must come to pass, but the end is not yet" (Matt. 24:6).

We are in the last days. Time is short! One need not even read his Bible to notice that man cannot govern himself. He needs only look to the United Nations. It is accomplishing little more than the League of Nations did after the last war.

"When the Son of man cometh, shall he find faith on the earth?" We cannot lean back in our easy chairs and with contented looks on our faces say, "What can I do about it? Did not Jesus prophesy that the earth would be in a corrupt way in the last days?" We cannot! Instead, let us hear the Word of God and apply it unto ourselves, "I have made thee a

Report to Our Fellowship

For Quarter Ending October 1, 1946

By James M. Watkins
Director of Promotion and Co-ordination

THIS BEING the first quarter under the new division of accounts, there are no definite means by which the quarterly reports of various Departments to the Executive Board can be analyzed by comparison. Judged, however, by the standard of self-support that has been established as an aim for each Department, this initial report is very encouraging, although two months of this quarter were not under this definite aim. Because of its general interest, we are offering this brief summary of Departmental efforts to date.

General Office

The office, which includes general publishing and resale and is carrying the load of all overhead expense, is closing the quarter with a profit of $144.29 and an increased inventory of $201.37, a total profit of $345.66 after percentage for promotional work is deducted, although it has not as yet had the chance to benefit from new resale methods being developed as fast as possible. As in all Departments, expenses for the quarter include winter fuel that will not recur in later quarters.

Printing Department

The Printing Department is moving forward with a rearrangement of its equipment and is fast being brought to a sound basis. It is closing the quarter with a profit of $209.41 after deduction of promotional percentage.

National Sunday School Association

By General Conference action, the sale of quarterlies was transferred to the Sunday School Association at Conference time. Gross profit on sales for the period since stands at $71.36, with a gross profit after deduction of promotional percentage of $157.68.

National Berean Society

The Berean Society is our evangelistic organ for the young people and has not the business foundations of the other Departments. Its work, however, is entirely self-supporting, the complete amount of expense necessary to its work for the year having been deposited in advance to cover its budget. To its officers goes much credit for the obvious and almost unbelievable interest that is now being shown in our young people's work.

Evangelistic Department

It is, of course, not to be expected that the Evangelistic Department could be self-supporting. Besides the field work that has been done, the Junior Berean Society and Sunday school work that has been developed, and the many church services that are being held in various localities each month, the Evangelistic Department is rendering pastoral aid in assisting nine localities to have regular part-time work. In Evangelism, your contributions as a reflection of your interest in taking the gospel to others is in a sense a part of its income as it fulfills your desire. Earned income and contributions, although the Department is operating more than $1,000.00 under its estimated budget for the year as applied to the quarter, now has a deficit of $352.79. We have spent less than you authorized us to spend for this part of our work, so we know that the amount will be forthcoming and the deficit will be wiped out soon, rather than curtail any further our efforts. Chicago has reduced its aid voluntarily by $15.00 per month and other financial responsibility has been delegated to state conferences to ease this strain, but otherwise our work is still continuing as was planned.

The Restitution Herald

As everyone knows THE RESTITUTION HERALD, including printing and editorial work, operates at about fifty per cent of cost. The decision of the General Conference always has been to underwrite the deficit of the Paper on the basis of its service to the Institution, rather than accept even a select advertising list, which policy limits income from the paper to receipts for subscriptions. Gaining additional subscriptions will greatly increase the effectiveness of the paper and at the same time bring the cost per copy closer to the subscription price, although many more would be needed to equalize the two.

Our only aim at present can be to lower costs, but here again it is felt unwise to use such savings for any purpose other than to increase the quality and general interest of the paper. Our expense over cost for operation of THE HERALD for the quarter was $839.12.

Oregon Bible College

Under the guiding hand of our present faculty, all criticisms are fast being met and a studious, worshipful atmosthere is a recognized fact. With some special expense applicable only to this quarter, the College has a deficit for the quarter of $672.65.

A gradual increase of enrollment on the basis of fifteen freshmen per year is the answer to the problem of the College and will in the course of two or three years make it self-supporting. To attempt to advance faster than that is not practical. Co-operation of our people in the future can make it self-supporting without need of contributions.

Golden Rule Home

With fuel and some special expense that applies only to this quarter, the Home account operated at a loss of $363.72 for the quarter. The next report will likely show improvement, as Brother A. J. Hoke continues his good work of investment considerations. Special notice will be given this Department at a later time.

Promotion - Co-ordination Department

With earned income for personal work and the small percentage granted for the success of the various Departments, the Promotion - Co-ordination Department closed the quarter with a profit of $722.39 over all expenses. As a supplement to our office work and business calls, we have visited in fourteen localities since General Confer-

Perseverance Will Win

A TRUE STORY about a young minister recently brought to my mind the parable of our Lord recorded in Matthew 25. Inasmuch as I became acquainted with this young man, the story is all the more interesting. This young man was preaching in a fair-sized city in the State of Iowa. While driving along a road near that city, he saw a country church with all the windows boarded up and out of use. This scene so preyed upon his mind that he decided to investigate the cause of the closing of this country church. Upon making inquiry, he was told that a farmer living near was one of the trustees of this church, so he went to this trustee to get information. He was told the church was closed because the people had grown indifferent and there had been insufficient money to keep a preacher employed.

This young minister then asked if he might not come there to try to get the people interested again. The farmer replied, "Where do you expect to get your pay?" The young minister advised that he wanted no money, but would take time from his own work and do this for the good of the community. Finally, the farmer said he would see that the boards came off the windows by the following Sunday, if the young minister was coming out, but he would not promise to come for the service himself.

The minister made his appointment, and six people came to hear him. The next Sunday, more people came. By the end of the first month, about thirty were attending and the attendance gradually continued to grow. When this young minister had developed the interest to a certain point, he recommended that the congregation employ a minister of its own faith to take charge.

To my mind, here is a picture of real unselfish cooperation in Christian work. It could be a good example for many ministers to follow. Later, this young man transferred to a church in a large city of a neighboring state. When he took charge of this church, it had three hundred members. In eight years, it had grown to nearly three thousand members. The church has grown so much that, to accommodate the membership, three services have to be conducted each Sunday. A large Sunday school building has been erected to accommodate twelve hundred children, and the church charters four large buses. They bring in one thousand children each Sunday for Sunday school, and later return them to their homes. All the work I have mentioned undoubtedly requires much tiresome effort, planning, and perseverance, but it seems to have accomplished much—judging from what I have observed was in progress when I witnessed it. If we persevere and God favors what we are doing, the results are almost unlimited.

Now, let us consider some results of perseverance and untiring efforts at home. Recently, there was a Rally Day at the East Oregon Chapel. Here is a work built by faith on God's promises. Brother and Sister Floyd Nedrow of Oregon, Illinois, with an oil station and a determined effort, have changed the eternal destiny of many people residing in that part of Oregon. Somewhat similarly, Mr. Moody's work started from a class of boy bootblacks and newspaper boys. When we get discouraged, may we take fresh courage, seeing what perseverance with God's help will do.

In conclusion, I quote Paul in his Letter to the Galatians: "Let us not be weary in well doing: for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not" (6:9).

By C. E. Randall (Fonthill, Ontario)

PROTESTANT PEACE PROGRAM. For some time a Commission on a Just and Durable Peace under the sponsorship of the Federal Council of Churches has been making a study of world problems which stand in the way of a permanent peace. The report calls for a fourfold approach to the problems militating against the peace of the world. The preamble to the report would indicate that the Commission considered Russia the stumbling block in world adjustments. It reads: "War with Russia can be avoided without compromise of basic convictions. Tensions exist which constitute a serious threat to world peace. That fact must be faced realistically. . . . It demands a new way of international accommodation which will reckon with fundamental differences in outlook and practice. If the nations find that way in our time, they may set the pattern of a peaceful future."

The essence of the report is cooperation without compromise. It foresees that unless this is done there will be no "pattern for a peaceful future." The four main points of the report are:

(1) "Elimination internationally of methods of intolerance which make it impossible for conflicting beliefs to subsist."

(2) "Elimination from United States' national policy of certain prejudices and practices which unnecessarily create tension."

(3) "Co-operation of the American and Russian peoples at the scientific, economic, cultural, and religious levels."

(4) "Demonstration that democratic institutions which reflect the Christian doctrine of the sacredness of the individual personality can be made so vigorous and life-giving, that all peoples will want them."

The sincere and determined efforts of people of goodwill to bring into being a peace that will be permanent is commendable, but these attempts should not blind one to the prophetic predictions of the world situation when the curtain finally drops on Gentile times.

WALL OF IGNORANCE. Speaking before the Trades Union Congress in England, Prime Minister Atlee charged that the Soviet Government was building up a "wall of ignorance between nations." Said he: "It is one of the tragedies of the world situation that the Soviet Government appears deliberately to prevent intercourse between the Russian people and the rest of the world. They are not allowed to know what is being done and thought by their fellows in other parts of the world. The growth of personal friendship between individuals is frowned upon."

This is the way of dictatorship. The thinking of the people must be controlled if they are to be kept in solid line. When there is a deflection from controlled thought, a purge takes place.

In Catholic controlled countries, a similar situation prevails. Religiously, people must be kept in ignorance if they are to be kept obedient to one particular faith. Where this wall of ignorance is torn down, Roman Catholicism ceases to be the sole religious dictating force.

Oftentimes in our own circles someone rises up and calls for complete and unanimous agreement on all things taught. In this day and age, this cannot be done save by maintaining a wall of ignorance and a threat of purge. In the Millennial Day when the whole truth will be made plain and people will understand, there will be unity of thought. But where there is liberty of thought—there is divergence of conclusions. A wall of ignorance leads to mistrust, hatreds, purges, and war.

TWO MILLION. A million doesn't seem to be such a big number these days since we have been thinking in terms of billions and billions during the war years, yet two million men under arms constitute a large army. Former Prime Minister Churchill claims there are two million Soviet soldiers under full battle dress in Soviet-occupied Europe. Other informants have made similar claims. This is the price of dictatorship. No "ism" can be developed, held together and forced on the people except by coercion and force. Some have suggested that the Russian Government does not dare return the soldiers to civilian life because they have seen too much of the way of life enjoyed by the people of once free lands. There may be a great deal of truth in these observations. One thing is true, and that is the divine Word that points out the trend of events in the last days when force will be used to control the lives of people. Eventually, such a spirit will so predominate that all must worship the "prince that shall come" in order to buy and sell. "Live and let live" is a philosophy that will have little chance to be expressed in coming days. We are emerging into a time when the individual will be told whether he can work or cannot work, what he can say and cannot say, where he can live and cannot live—a regimented order of life. People have refused responsibility, permitting others to think for them and to act in their behalf and for this "mess" of leadership they have betrayed their "birthright" of liberty.

PRISONERS' PRAYER. The Protestants among the prisoners condemned to death at the Nuremberg trials were given spiritual consolation by H. E. Gesecke, of the German Lutheran Church, who led them in prayer with these words which the prisoners repeated after him: "Over an ocean of hatred, His forgiving love is spread . . . We may die at His side. . . . Lord Jesus, You have descended to human pain and felt death. You will not abandon us. Have mercy on us. Forgive us our sins. . . . We come from the erring . . . from the misery and the guilt of earth. Let us remain with You for all eternity."

While it would be wrong to question the forgiving love of the Lord, even for these men who have brought so much suffering to millions and millions of people in all lands, yet, we do raise a small voice of protest against encouraging hope to those criminals, who, as far as information has been given, made no confession of guilt, or indicated a consciousness of wrong-doing.

It is a growing practice among clergymen to preach all, regardless of the lives which they have lived, into the eternal presence of God. In their short talks, the chariots with wheels within wheels are made to swing low and carry the brother or sister home. The apostate Christianity has made it convenient for sinners to find the last mile an escape from all responsibility. We do not question the sincerity of those who preach and teach this philosophy of life—perhaps they do not know better, but we do question the earnestness of those who know better.

NATIONS ANGRY. The Revelation message predicts the day when nations will be angry and the wrath of God will be poured out without mixture. Apparently, the anger of the nations will be directed against each other in the first phase of the time of trouble and in the second phase they will blaspheme God for the scourge that falls on all that are upon the face of the whole earth. In other words, nations will be angry against everybody and everything. They will be possessed of the Devil. The spirit that works in the children of disobedience will not have the restraining influence which now works in the people of God to contest its right, for the church will have been translated. As iniquity abounds the love of many will become cold and indifferent and the spirit of the Antichrist will more and more take hold of people. Even now it seems humanity is being demonized if the atrocious crimes which are being committed are any sign. The Devil is to be more active as he realizes his time is short. Even boys and girls seem to be motivated by a spirit of devilishness.

The other day one of our young mothers had her three-months-old child in the baby carriage at the back door and she heard it crying and upon investigation found a four-year-old pounding its face with his fists and with all his might. Where do children learn this devilishness? They see in the shows, they hear over the radio, and see and have it read to them out of the comics. Such a spirit is becoming so widespread that it cannot be termed accidental or an unusual case. Within a radius of one hundred miles that same week some other little fellows attempted to hang a two-year-old, and in another case they were playing Indian and tied a lad to a post and were starting a fire at his feet when discovered. The inhumanities of man to man are finding outlets in little children. The world spirit which is made up of the individual spirit it is getting ripe for the day when nations will be angry.

RUSSIA IN PROPHECY

and influence, he built a navy in the Red Sea and one in the Mediterranean. To man his ships, he borrowed mariners from the most powerful navy in the world at that time, from Hiram, King of Tyre. Hiram's fleet was called the "ships of Tarshish" because of their traffic with the isle of Cyprus (Chittim or Tarshish). His traders were the "merchants of Tarshish." They were not residents of Tarshish, but those who traded with Tarshish. In the combining of Hiram's fleet with Solomon's, even Solomon's came to be called ships of Tarshish. These statements can be verified from a study of these scriptures: 1 Kings 9:26-28; 10:11, 22; Jeremiah 10:9; 2 Chronicles 9:21.

The location of Tyre (merchants of Tarshish) is in the northern coast of Palestine and is representative of the Syrian region to the north of Palestine. It is only natural that the Merchants of Tarshish, along with Sheba and Dedan, should become concerned with the invasion of their territory by the League of Nations.

At the time of this invasion, the Day of the Lord, neither Tyre nor Tarshish is on the side of the Lord as some would have us believe. They are brought under the same judgment that is meted to all the nations at that time. (Isa. 2:10-16; Joel 3:4-8.) Contrary to the idea that they are instrumental in saving Israel in that day, they are accused of selling the children of Judah.

After the judgment, among the Gentiles who go to the light of Israel, and among the sons of those who afflicted Israel, the ships of Tarshish will be useful in the final and complete regathering of Israel. (Isa. 60:9; 66:19.)

The truth most often overlooked in trying to align and identify the nations of the last days is that it is the same power that succors Israel in the time of the end that also turns against her. The one who makes the covenant takes away the daily sacrifice. The same Beast that carries the Woman (Jerusalem) also devours her. It is Israel's lovers, with whom she has lived deliciously, who are sent against her. (Dan. 9:27; Rev. 17; Ezek. 16:35-43.) When her friends have turned against her and come down to take a spoil, the only hope of Israel is in the miraculous intervention of God in the advent of Jesus Christ. (Dan. 7; Rev. 19.)

"In that day will I make Jerusalem a burdensome stone for all people: all that burden themselves with it shall be cut in pieces, though all the people of the earth be gathered together against it. . . . In that day shall the Lord defend the inhabitants of Jerusalem. . . . And it shall come to pass in that day, that I will seek to destroy all the nations that come against Jerusalem" (Zech. 12:3, 8, 9).

THE MISSIONARY SPIRIT

watchman . . . therefore . . . give them warning from me," else the "wicked man shall die in his iniquity; but his blood will I require at thine hand" (Ezek. 3:17, 18).

Our opportunity to warn the wicked is now, today! We can seize that opportunity and "go into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature," and thus save others; or we can sit idly by and watch people of the world go into destruction, in which case we may go into everlasting destruction with them.

The missionary spirit has been somewhat subordinated to other lines of thought. "Let George do it" is the excuse given by those who are indifferent to the cause of Christ.

Perhaps you cannot go yourself and preach to others. The churches in Macedonia sent money to help the poor in Jerusalem, and required that Paul subtract some for his own use in missionary fields. Can we count the cost in monetary value if even only one person is saved from eternal death by our helping to finance a missionary?

You can be a missionary through the printed word. "This gospel must first be published among all nations" (Mark 13:10). Perhaps you can convert another by an article in THE RESTITUTION HERALD. Send in a subscription for someone else—a non-believer.

There are other ways to preach the Word. You may have an easier, more convincing, and better way than any of these. But, whatever way you may choose, be a missionary. It will benefit Christ; it will help you; it may save another.

THE FOOLISHNESS OF PREACHING

Paul when he wrote, "We then that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to please ourselves. Let every one of us please his neighbour for his good to edification. For even Christ pleased not himself; but, as it is written, The reproaches of them that reproached thee fell on me" (Rom. 15:1-3).

Weak man, however, refused God's wisdom, preferring his own. The result was that an atmosphere of festering hatred was left in Germany which was conducive to the recent war. War—the telltale evidence of man's selfishness! Sure! Germany started the war, but only the most flabby-minded individual would think Germany was the whole cause of it.

Jeremiah wrote, "The wise men are ashamed, they are dismayed and taken: lo, they have rejected the word of the Lord; and what wisdom is in them?" (Jer. 8:9) Where is the pride of the "big four" today? Where is the peace that they were to give the world? How expensive it is to "reject the word of the Lord"!

The immortal words of Paul are ringing convictingly through the halls of time: "Hath not God made foolish the wisdom of this world?" (1 Cor. 1:20.)

ence; and since September 1 we have conducted 21 public services or Youth Rallies. We have held regular meetings with all Department heads and special boards and made 57 specific recommendations to the Executive Board or Department heads. In addition, we have handled all relations with our Evangelistic Department workers and special church relations as well as conducting our promotional work and special business arrangements. The results of our efforts in both advancement and outlook have been most gratifying. We hope that we may continue to receive the whole-hearted co-operation of all to the end that our entire organization may serve, in an ever-increasing way, its avowed purpose of winning individuals to Christ.

"ONE FAITH"

By Mary Mae Nedrow, Oregon, Illinois

There is just "one faith"—not two or three—
It satisfies both you and me.

Though oftentimes our faith was tried,
The door of truth He opened wide.

We pled the cause of God's Son
And many, many souls were won.

Christ Jesus made each burden light—
Made us triumphant in His might.

Above the din, God's voice we heard,
We listened to His every word.

God's glowing love upon us shone—
And never were we left alone.

Years added silver to our hair,
As we traveled the rugged thoroughfare.

We'll keep the "faith"—His "will be done"
Until our victory fight is won.

BOOK PARADISE

By Arlen Marsh

Here's a final discussion of books for Christmas—although almost any book will do for a Christmas gift if the person you want to remember likes to read!

For the minister or serious student: Strong's Exhaustive Concordance (Methodist Book Concern; $7.50) is tops among the Bible word-books, more complete and accurate than any other and far easier to use; with it available, nobody needs a Greek-English lexicon or a dictionary of Hebrew to do detailed analytical work on any portion of the Scriptures.

The six-volume unabridged Commentary of the Whole Bible by Jamieson, Fausset, and Brown (William B. Eerdmans; $25.00) is excellent, too—almost as good as Adam Clarke's six-volume commentary (Abingdon-Cokesbury $15.00). The J-F-B set is a brand-new edition of an old and very popular analytical commentary; in the one-volume condensation, it is available at $4.95 from Zondervan.

For anyone from the late teens on: Fireside Book of Christmas Stories (Bobbs-Merrill; $3.50) is really something; it has everything a collection of Christmas tales should have—and a great deal more than the tales all of us already are familiar with.

Lamsa's modern New Testament, English translation based on the most ancient Bible manuscripts known (the Aramaic Peshitta), is readable, but not the "American English" advertised by so many publishers; its ideas often are unique, and the language is exceptionally easy to understand; Holman ($2.50).

Our Roving Bible (Nelson; $2.75), a current religious best-seller, has something to entertain and educate everybody; Author Lawrence E. Nelson has presented a perfectly delightful, and frequently amusing, story of the impact of the Scriptures on Anglo-Saxon civilization.

Hurlbut's Story of the Bible (Winston; $2.50) is almost as good for children as Egermeier's; many think it is even better. It covers the whole Bible with 168 short stories, accompanied by 270 illustrations, many in full color. Doctrinal errors are at a minimum.

Prepared by Madge Savage

"Joseph answered Pharaoh, saying, It is not in me: God shall give an answer of peace" (Genesis 41:16).

Pharaoh Troubled

Two years after our story of last week, the chief butler was busy at his tasks, as usual, in Pharaoh's palace.

The Pharaoh, ruler of Egypt, had dreamed a strange dream. This troubled him. He called for his magicians. In fact, he sent for all the magicians of Egypt! He must have been anxious to learn the meaning of his dream. He also sent for all the wise men of Egypt. But alas! Not one could tell Pharaoh the meaning of his dream!

The Butler Remembered Joseph

Then the chief butler spoke to Pharaoh. He said, "I do remember my faults this day." He recalled the days he and the chief baker had spent bound in the prison with Joseph.

The butler continued: "There was with us a young man, an Hebrew, servant to the captain of the guard; and we told him, and he interpreted to us our dreams; to each man according to his dreams he did interpret. And it came to pass, as he interpreted to us, so it was; me he restored unto mine office, and him he hanged" (Gen. 41:12, 13).

Joseph Called

Pharaoh sent for Joseph. The guards hurried to get him out of the dungeon. He had spent two long years in the prison. When he had shaved himself and had changed his clothes, he went into where Pharaoh was waiting for him.

Pharaoh said to Joseph, "I have dreamed a dream, and there is none that can interpret it: and I have heard say of thee, that thou canst understand a dream to interpret it" (Gen. 41:15).

Now Joseph always was true and faithful. He said: "It is not in me: God shall give Pharaoh an answer of peace" (Gen. 41:16).

So Pharaoh told Joseph his dream. There were two parts to the dream, but Joseph told him they meant the very same thing. Joseph told Pharaoh God had showed him what He was about to do. The seven good cattle came up out of the river. Seven lean cattle followed and ate up the seven fat cattle. The seven good ears came up on the same stalk. Then seven ears withered and they followed them. The thin ears ate up the good ones!

Joseph told Pharaoh that the seven fat cattle and the seven good ears were seven years of plenty. The seven poor cattle and the seven poor ears meant seven years of famine. The seven years of plenty were to be followed by seven years of famine.

Joseph Advised Pharaoh

Joseph was ready. He had kept faith in God. God was with him. Now he not only acted as God's interpreter of dreams, but told Pharaoh how to get ready for the years of famine. He told Pharaoh to select a man who was wise and careful. This man should be set over the land of Egypt. Joseph also told Pharaoh to choose officers and the amount of grain to store for future use.

From reading this account, one almost would feel that Joseph had been working on this very problem for some time. By reading the whole story, however, we know that God had given him wisdom. How much God will do for those who trust Him! May we place our trust in Him who is all-wise, and full of mercy and grace!

God's Gifts

"God gives us hard things
To make us strong;
The hills are steep
The roads are long;
There's pain and trouble
And things seem wrong,
But through these hard things
Comes a new song."

BEREAN YOUTH— —CRUSADES FOR CHRIST

National Berean Society Pledge

That I may be a Christian example in word and deed, I will do my best to add to other Christian virtues the following self-building labors:

- I will read a portion of the Bible daily.
- I will attend at least two church services weekly.
- I will totally abstain from all tobacco or liquor.
- I will accept Christ as my guide in all personal conduct.
- I will endeavor to win at least one for Christ this year.

Signed .....

Everybody Talks About the Weather But Nobody Does Anything about It—

Although modern critics would like to cast doubts upon the authorship of this statement, we still are of the old school, willing to credit the assertion to Mark Twain and to affirm that truer words were never spoken, that is, up till the time of this writing.

The weather is a lot like our Berean work. For a long time, we have talked about doing something about our Berean work, but for some reason we have been slow in getting around to it. Now we are wondering if perhaps the weather may not have to give way to modern enthusiasm, for certainly our Berean work has responded to such enthusiasm.

Today's Berean young people are saying, "We are going to do something about it." The "it" meaning a definite commitment to themselves and their fellows that certain definite standards and actions will be upheld as the Berean standard throughout the international fellowship of the Berean society. It means that in no uncertain terms we are going forth by the dozens in a solid front to place ourselves on record to uphold certain definite things that are being neglected in this modern world.

"I WILL Read a Portion of the Bible Daily!"

This long has been a Berean standard, but, say they, we have done so little about it. Now, in company with several hundred other Bereans, we are going to make it work. No matter what I have been doing; no matter where I have been; no matter how late I get home, I AM going to read a chapter or several verses of the Bible before I go to bed. I AM going to keep the Word of God alive for myself and others by the example of reading it daily.

"I Will Attend at Least Two Church Services Weekly."

I AM going to be present at church services and in this way do all in my power to keep our churches open. The old excuse about a friend coming over, or studies to get, is out from here on. A Berean is saying: "Whenever anyone visits me, I'm going to politely say that I must attend church and insist that he come along or suggest that he share the hospitality of my home until I get back. I know that in this way my friends will know that my church means something to me.

"I Will Totally Abstain from All Tobacco and Liquor."

I know that those who use tobacco and liquor realize that there is no benefit in either, and there is plenty of harm. So I am not looking for Scriptural excuses to use them. I also know that the young person who refuses most definitely to use tobacco or liquor is the most respected in the long run by employers, neighbors, and friends. Likewise, a smoking Christian lowers the world's estimation of the cause of Christ.

Have You Signed the Pledge Yet?

Beth Hardesty, Oregon, Illinois, or your coming Youth Rally, has two pledge cards for you—one to return with your name and address, and one for your desk or room.

Let's Do Something about It!

MINNESOTA CONFERENCE REPORT

The Minnesota State Fall Conference convened at Eden Valley at 10:00 a.m., Saturday, October 19, with a Bible study. There were classes for all ages. Another such study was held at 2:00 p.m.

At 3:00 p.m., a business meeting was called to order by Walter Wiggins, Conference President. There was a discussion of evangelism within the State, and the majority of those present voted to begin work in the spring with the help of the National Evangelist. There was some discussion of trying to encourage work at Minneapolis and Crosby. Meeting closed with prayer.

At 8:00 p.m., Bro. Sydney Magaw of Oregon, Ill., guest speaker for the Conference, brought a timely message regarding Russia. Bro. Magaw had just completed a series of meetings at the Eden Valley Church.

The Sunday services opened with Sunday school at 10:00 a.m., with 106 persons in attendance. An even larger number attended the following service at which Bro. Magaw was the speaker. All enjoyed a dinner in the church basement at noon; and at 2:00 p.m., Bro. Wiggins led a dedication service at which time several new fixtures in the Eden Valley Church were dedicated to a work for the Word of Truth. Following this, short messages were given by Bros. Thomas Savage and Ernest Graham. The closing sermon was given by Bro. Harry Goekler of Hector, Minn., at 8:00 p.m.

It was a very spiritual Conference, with good fellowship in abundance. All enjoyed the fine music, and we are indeed very grateful to Bro. Magaw for the stirring messages he gave us.

S. O. Ross, Secy.

WELCOME TO OREGON

Bro. and Sr. Charles Pearson, as new caretaker and matron, respectively, of Golden Rule Home, and their two youngest children, Douglas and Joy Ann, arrived in Oregon, Ill., Thursday, October 31. Their former home was at West Milton, Ohio, and they come to Oregon from the Brush Creek Church of God. Oregon friends extend a hearty welcome and pray them happiness and success in their work.

IN THE TEXAS PANHANDLE

Leaving Tokio, Tex., on October 21, it was a pleasure to visit at the homes of Bro. and Sr. V. Y. Jeffries, who live south of Olton, Tex., and of Bro. and Sr. H. L. Bridge, who live in Springlake. We found all these brethren strong in the faith. Two sons of the Bridges in Springlake are also members.

The next place visited was Canyon, just south of Amarillo, where a number of former members live.

In Amarillo, there are three believers in three different families, whose interest seems good. I found a fine response at each home. This might be a good nucleus for future work.

M. W. Lyon, Evangelist.

OREGON BIBLE COLLEGE NEWS

If you can gauge the success of a field day by stiff legs and lame arms the day after, then ours was a success.

October 11 was the day. It opened with prayer by Bro. Otto Dick. Then came a frantic search for a dollar in dimes hidden on the College grounds. Raymond Brown found two and several others found one. The three not found were tossed into the air and there was a scramble for them. We know now who is the steadiest girl in College. The girls carried peanuts, and LaVonne Pearson won. Next the boys dashed 100 yards, and Edwin Smith won easily. Joan Hall threw the soft ball further than any of the girls; and Arnold Johns beat in the baseball throwing among the boys. We had a standing broad jump which Edwin Smith won. Arnold Johns won the running broad jump. The girls loosened one shoe, took one step and let the loose shoelace. Shirley Lagsdon had the heaviest shoe and the strongest kick. Big feet didn't count. Warren Sorenson outjumped the rest of the boys in the high jump. There were separate prizes for most of the events. The winners of the following were each given three throws on a dart board for the grand prize: boys shot put-throwing won by Edwin Smith, girls cracker-eating won by Mary Brown, girls balloon-blowing won by Joan Hall, boys' nail driving won by Milton Hall, boys' javelin throwing won by Bro. Dick, girls' bag-race won by Joan Hall, Gordon Landry won the ping pong (table tennis) contest. The rest of the day was spent playing football.

WHITE - DIERKING

On October 6, 1946, 7:00 p.m. in a candle-light service at the Church of God in Omaha, Neb., Miss Faye White, daughter of Mrs. Arthur White of Bennington, Neb., became the bride of Mr. Harlan Dierking, son of Mr. H. Alfred Dierking of Chambers, Neb., in a double-ring ceremony.

The bride wore a beautiful white satin wedding gown with a fingertip veil and carried a bouquet of red roses. Her pearls were a wedding gift from the groom. Her only attendant was her sister, Mrs. Opal Nelson, who wore a green taffeta gown and carried yellow mums. Kenneth Nelson, brother-in-law of the bride, served as best man, while Cleo Dixon and Glenn Appleby were ushers. Miss Alberta Appleby furnished the piano music, and Miss Shirley Karnett sang "I Love Thee" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Following the ceremony, wedding cake and ice cream were served at a reception at the home of the bride's mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Dierking will make their home in Chambers, Neb. Mrs. Dierking is a member of the Omaha Church of God, and has been active in local and National Berean work.

May God's richest blessing be with them in their life together. Robert O. Hardesty.

FONTHILL, ONTARIO

On Friday evening, October 25, the many friends of Mrs. A. Raitton gathered in the basement of the Church of God to show their appreciation of her thirty years of activities in the village, especially in her church, where she was a Sunday school teacher.

Sr. Raitton is leaving Fonthill for Oregon, Ill., headquarters of the Church of God, so she will be in close touch with the church work.

After a variety program under the able chairmanship of Bro. C. E. Randall, Sr. Raitton was presented with a large framed picture of the Fonthill Church, for which she expressed her thanks to all. At this same time, a beautiful floor lamp was presented to Bro. and Sr. J. H. Fletcher, Jr., as a wedding gift. The recipients thanked their friends for the lovely gift. At the close of the evening, lunch was served by a number of ladies.

The people of Fonthill, as well as those of the Faith, will miss Sr. Raitton in many ways, but their best wishes go with her, knowing that Fonthill's loss will be Oregon's gain.

Recently, Bro. C. B. Elliott celebrated his sixty-fifth birthday. A surprise party was given him by his relatives and, following the social evening, lunch was served by Sr. David Elliott and the Misses Dorothy and Beth Elliott.

On Tuesday, October 29, the young married people's group held a Halloween masquerade party at the parsonage.

On November 3, Bro. Grover Gordon of Cleveland, Ohio, a former pastor of our Fonthill Church, will occupy the pulpit, both morning and evening. Our pastor, Bro. C. E. Randall, will speak in the Cleveland Church on the same Sunday, stopping there on his way to Oregon with Sr. Raitton.

At our midweek gatherings this fall, we are studying of the early church in the Book of Acts.

We all feel richer here for our social and spiritual contact with Bro. James Watkins. We wish him Godspeed in all his endeavors.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois

The Restitution Herald is official organ of the General Conference of the Church of God.

Subscription rate: 50 issues per year, $2.50.

The Restitution Herald advocates: the near return of Christ (Acts 1:11), and life only through Him (Col. 3:3); the literal resurrection of the dead (John 5:28); the immortalization of those in Christ (1 Cor. 15:53, 54); the destruction of the wicked (Rev. 21:8); the final restoration of Israel as the Kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ (Luke 1:32), the church to be joint-heirs with Him (Rom. 8:17), and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations (Isa. 60:1-3); the "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21). It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY— PLANS NEW MONTHLY— PUBLICATION NEXT YEAR

At a meeting of the officers of the National Berean Society on October 27, authorization was given for publication of a new monthly magazine for young people and junior Bereans, the first issue to appear either January 15 or February 15, as circumstances allow.

Lesson material will appear in the magazine instead of in lesson books as heretofore. In addition, special features on how to teach, how to entertain, how to handle programs, how to plan unusual treatment of lessons, how to conduct junior Berean work, and other matters of interest to Bereans of all ages and to young people in general will be used.

Illustrations will appear as liberally as the budget permits. It may be possible to make use of full-color covers; but this cannot be stated positively just now.

The magazine will be launched with a contest sponsored by the publishers for selecting the paper's name. First prize will be Weymouth's modern language version of the New Testament; second prize will be the Revised Standard Version of the New Testament (if the latter is available at the time the contest ends).

The competition will be open to everyone, regardless of Berean affiliation. It will close December 15, 1946. Letters suggesting titles for the new paper should also state the reasons that the titles ought to be used. In case of ties, duplicate awards will be made. Entries should be addressed to the Society at Oregon, Ill.

Circulation will be arranged on a club subscription basis wherever possible, to save shipping costs. The magazine will be free on request. Pledges of at least $1.00 a month are being sought to support the paper through voluntary contributions. Initial circulation of about 500 copies is contemplated.

Editor of the paper will be the president of the National Berean Society. Suggestions regarding policies should be submitted directly to him.

Arlen Marsh, President National Berean Society 132 N. Gardiner Ave. Rockford, Illinois

COMING EVENTS IN THE LIGHT OF PROPHECY

Shortly before his death, Brother A. L. Corbaley wrote, "Coming Events in the Light of Prophecy," a sixty-page booklet that will interest the student of world events and Bible study. It would be well for every member of the Church of God to read this booklet, and to keep it in memory of one of our most loyal workers. Further, the booklet makes a choice gift to one who is either disturbed by present world evils or who may be looking for deeper insight into the mysteries and marvels of prophecy. Prices: each—10c; per doz.—$1.00; per 100—$7.50.

Fall Conference News—

The Dixon Conference was conducted successfully, Sunday, October 27. A large number of people were present for all the services. Brothers Sydney E. Magaw, James M. Watkins, and Arlen Marsh were the speakers at the three worship services.

The afternoon youth rally was especially enjoyed, due to the abundance of young talent displayed in song, instrumental numbers, and readings. May this be only the beginning of a long series of youth gatherings such as this, is our prayer!

Church News—

DIXON. Rally Day was conducted here September 29, with a responsive program by the congregation, and recitations by the children. Fifteen children were promoted. Doris Henley and Lyle Lewis were united in marriage, October 5, in a beautiful wedding at which Brother Alan McLain officiated.

EAST OREGON CHAPEL. Miss Eva Averill was baptized into the saving name of Jesus on Sunday, September 15. The long-contemplated Chapel basement is now in process of construction. Louis Kump, a faithful attendant at Chapel services, was seriously injured in an accident, recently. One hundred one people were present at Rally Day services, October 13.

MACOMB. The Macomb young people have acquired a recreation room and are very active. They enjoyed a hayride, October 11, and are planning a Halloween party. They have reorganized their choir and are conducting regular meetings each Sunday at 6:30 p.m. Oregon Bible College will assist the Macomb people in celebrating their fourth anniversary, November 17. Brother John Mercer of Macomb is now serving the Casey, Illinois, Church as pastor. He preaches there on the second Sunday of each month.

OREGON. A much-needed gas stove has been provided by the Dorcas Society for the church kitchen. A new bulletin board has been placed in the church entry. Average attendance for September was: Sunday school, 87; church, 93. October 6 was Rally Day and the all-day services were well attended. Rockford and Dixon friends fellowshipped in the dinner hour, and in the afternoon and evening services. The Bereans conducted a roller skating party in the Coliseum, October 18. For these parties, the Bereans charter the whole place for the evening so the crowd is their own. The pastor and wife are interested spectators at these ambitious parties. Howard Beemer of Saint Catharines, Ontario, was speaker for the Berean services conducted October 20.

Seal of Faith in the Gospel

By T. M. Ferrell, Holbrook, Nebraska

THE BIBLE teaches that baptism is to Christians what circumcision was to Abraham—a seal of faith in the gospel.

Of Abraham it is said, "He received the sign of circumcision, a seal of the righteousness of the faith which he had yet being uncircumcised: that he might be the father of all them that believe" (Rom. 4:11). In making a covenant with Abraham, God said that in him all families of the earth should be blessed, kings would come out of him, and he would be given all the land of Canaan for an everlasting possession, but to receive the things promised in the covenant, Abraham and all males in his household must be circumcised. The blessings were offered to him, but there were certain requirements that he must do. God required circumcision. In fulfilling that command, Abraham testified that he believed the promises and wanted to receive the blessings by sealing the covenant in the way in which God requested.

Abraham received the sign of circumcision as a seal of his faith in the gospel. The promises that God gave him are called "the gospel" in Galatians 3:8, where it says, "The scripture foreseeing that God would justify the heathen through faith, preached before the gospel unto Abraham, saying, In thee shall all nations be blessed." If Abraham had believed in the covenant, but had not sealed it with circumcision, would he have received the promises? Genesis 17:14 says, "The uncircumcised man child [who] . . . is not circumcised, that soul shall be cut off from his people; he hath broken my covenant." The agreement would have been broken and the promises would have been void, if Abraham had not sealed his faith by being circumcised.

The connection between circumcision and baptism is taught in Colossians 2:6-12. Verses 11 and 12 say, "In whom [in Christ] also ye are circumcised with the circumcision made without hands, in putting off the body of the sins of the flesh by the circumcision of Christ: buried with him in baptism, wherein also ye are risen with him through the faith of the operation of God, who hath raised him from the dead."

Thus, baptism as "the circumcision of Christ," or the New Testament circumcision, is our seal of faith in the gospel. Acts 8:12 says: "When they believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized, both men and women." Philip preached the gospel, for what is the gospel but the glad tidings of the Kingdom of God and Christ's sacrificial work for us. (See Luke 8:1 and 1 Cor. 15:1-4.)

T. M. Ferrell

This order of belief and baptism is expressed by Christ Himself, as recorded in Mark 16:15, 16: "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth [the gospel] and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not [the gospel, and is not baptized] shall be damned." Belief in the gospel and baptism are not independent; they are inseparable and interdependent. Belief in the gospel would be of no effect in obtaining those promises if the contract were not sealed by baptism. In Abraham's day, when a man child was not circumcised, he had broken the covenant and was to be cut off from the people. If a person knows of this covenant by hearing the gospel and believes in it, but is not baptized, he has broken the covenant and will be cut off from the inheritance.

These truths are certain: God has offered us a contract with untold benefits, but we must understand the contract and seal it before it can be made valid. An unsigned contract is void. Believe the good news of God's coming Kingdom. Have faith in God's contract. Sign the contract in baptism—your seal of faith in the gospel first preached to Abraham and now preached throughout the world.

Joyful Fellowship in Michigan

Recently, it was our pleasure to meet with many brethren at the Michigan Conference, November 2, 3. There we met many friends and brethren who are keeping the light of truth burning in their several localities. Though Blanchard, place of the Conference, lies some sixty miles north of Grand Rapids, many of the Grand Rapids brethren were in attendance. Brother Ellsworth Routson, president, other officers of the Michigan Conference, and the Blanchard Church had worked hard to make the Conference a success, and their efforts were well rewarded.

Thank you, Michigan. We had a good time!

The Dead Are Dead

The night of October 31, 1946, thirteen magicians met at a Halloween seance in Detroit, Michigan. It was the twentieth anniversary of Harry Houdini's death, and the magicians assembled in hope of communicating with Houdini's spirit—if he had one.

As the clock struck twelve, the thirteen magicians quietly seated themselves in a circle, leaving a fourteenth chair vacant. As if to invite their peer's spirit, certain articles reminiscent of the famous magician were placed on the chair: one of his books, a pair of his handcuffs, a magician's wand, and his autographed picture. The light was low. One of the magicians called on Houdini's spirit to appear or to speak. Everyone watched the vacant chair. Five minutes of silence—five minutes of erroneous expectation—passed eventlessly away, but added witness to God's revealed truth that "the dead know not any thing."

One of the attending magicians, Mr. Bob Underwitter, commented: "We didn't fail; we just haven't succeeded." . . . Well, there are now twenty years, Mr. Magician, in which you "just haven't succeeded," and twenty years of not succeeding approaches, surely, failure!

Plainly and repeatedly, the Bible presents death as death. In the Garden of Eden, God commanded Adam to forego eating of the tree of knowledge of good and evil, saying: "Thou shalt not eat of it: for in the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die" (Gen. 2:17). Thus, death was ordained of God to be punishment for sin. To this agrees the New Testament, the Apostle Paul saying: "The wages of sin is death" (Rom. 6:23). It is entirely incompatible with reason, therefore, that anyone should anticipate any reward or favor in death. Death is an enemy to man, as we read, "The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death" (1 Cor. 15:26). Life is the foundation upon which all joy and usefulness are built. When life is lost, all the faculties of life are lost. "There is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave, whither thou goest" (Ecl. 9:10).

The Bible speaks often about the "spirit," leading some who are unlearned in the Scriptures to believe that the "spirit" is a conscious part of man that escapes at death. Thus, men long have believed that a dead one can return in the form of his spirit, as a ghost. Accordingly, the Detroit magicians hoped to contact Houdini through his ghost. Well, there never has been a ghost of the popular conception, there are no ghosts, and never will there be any ghosts!

The spirit is to man what steam is to an engine, or what electricity is to a motor. When God created Adam, He breathed into Adam's nostrils "the breath of life"—the spirit of life. Thus, Job said, "The spirit of God is in man's nostrils" (27:3). When man ceases breathing, he has lost the spirit of life. The man, then dead, is buried, and there is no remaining part of him to go to heaven or to an infernal hell for reward, nor to return among living ones to haunt or entertain them.

Is there no hope, then, for the dead? Yes, but that hope lies in the second coming of Jesus Christ and the resurrection from the dead. Not until He returns will the dead be awakened and rewarded. (John 5:29.)

In the meantime, the dead are dead! Halloween practices and traditions notwithstanding, there are no ghosts. When you watch the vacant chair, O ye foolish magicians?

Jerusalem, a Place of Peace

By Florence Pease, Ashtabula, Ohio

"Look upon Zion, the city of our solemnities: thine eyes shall see Jerusalem a quiet habitation, a tabernacle that shall not be taken down; not one of the stakes thereof shall ever be removed, neither shall any of the cords . . . be broken."

ACCORDING to the plan of God, there is only one hope for those who love peace and security: the hope of the second coming of Christ when Jerusalem, under Christ's rule, will become earth's center of peace and righteousness. This hope for the weary, sick, and oppressed world looks beyond crumbling governments of the nations and beyond all material needs and standards. The Bible hope is not vested in the UNO, not in the power of frail, mortal men.

Today, humanity trusts more in money than in God's marvelous promises concerning the reign of Christ in Jerusalem. Money! That is the friend and god of the masses, but money cannot purchase peace for this world. Humanity, like a drowning man clings to a straw, grasps with a death-grip upon filthy lucre, attempting to pacify unholy pleasure.

Oh! troubled hearts, look beyond all present turmoil and sin, look to the peaceful Kingdom God soon will establish for His people. Trust not in man "in whom there is no help." "Thus saith the Lord: Cursed be the man that trusteth in man, and maketh flesh his arm, and whose heart departeth from the Lord" (Jer. 17:5). Trust, rather, in God, in Christ, and in the sacred promises concerning Jerusalem becoming a place of peace.

Notwithstanding God's plan of crowning Christ King in Jerusalem, a great conspiracy of Gentile nations soon will come against the Holy Land. (Zech. 14.) Even now, Jerusalem is a burdensome stone to the nations. (12:3.) Eventually, there will be a conflict between the evil forces of man's military might and God's power. Then Jesus will return to take the throne in Jerusalem and to exercise authority over the nations.

When Jesus returns to establish God's heavenly government on earth, He will complete the redemption of the righteous and immortalize them to be co-workers with Him. Then will "the righteous . . . be recompensed in the earth" (Prov. 11:31), and false teachers can no more have any object in teaching a heaven above the blue firmament for mankind. God never promised mankind a home above the blue sky, but He repeatedly has promised His people a home in the Restored Paradise that Adam and Eve lost. (Gen. 3:24.)

This hope of the coming of the Lord, of immortalization of the saints, and for rulership with Christ, is the only hope that will guide our feet in the way of peace and into everlasting life. That promised peace on earth will come, for God is true, but it cannot come through a confederacy of men or nations. By the might of God, He will destroy His adversaries. Wolves in sheep's clothing will be detected and rejected. False religion, outgrowth of the Serpent's lie that deceived Eve, will be defeated, though today it is mingled throughout Christianity. Only a faint spark of God's truth continues to burn on earth today. Satan's masses may continue attending churches where his angels mount to the pulpits, but truth will triumph when Christ reigns in Jerusalem.

The true Bible hope of the coming of the Lord to reign in Jerusalem is a wonderful comfort—and true comfort! While attending a funeral some time ago, I heard the minister say: "Now just imagine her soul floating up and up into the beautiful serene heaven above." How false a comfort was that to the mourners! The dead are asleep in death. They are in their graves. "They know not any thing" (Eccl. 9:5).

Once Moses stood on "holy ground" (Ex. 3:5). Daniel prayed thrice daily, toward Jerusalem—the Holy City. (Dan. 6:10.) Jesus once wept as he beheld the Holy City, saying, "If thou hadst known, even thou, at least in this thy day, the things which belong unto thy peace! but now they are hid from thine eyes" (Luke 19:42). Today, men seldom think of the ground upon which they stand as being holy. Who today prays thrice daily toward the Holy City? Who even considers that Jerusalem is the Holy City? Who today laments over Jerusalem—longing for its people?

According to Luke 23:43, Jesus will remember the penitent thief and resurrect him to eternal life. Thus, the thief died with comfort of foreseeing Christ coming in His Kingdom. Though the Gentile Age is fast passing away, God still holds out the offer of salvation to all penitent ones, even as it was offered to the dying thief. When the curtain rises on this new drama of life in the Kingdom of God, it will be too late to qualify for heirship with Christ.

Until our Lord returns, let all righteous ones rejoice in hope of Israel's Messiah who soon is to return to Jerusalem. "Be ye glad and rejoice for ever in that which I create: for, behold, I create Jerusalem a rejoicing, and her people a joy." This is our hope!—the true Bible hope!

Man As He Was, As He Is, and As He Shall Be

In Two Parts—Part One

A Lecture by Dr. J. H. Thomas

Contributed by (Mrs.) Virginia Kincheloe, Fairfax, Virginia

Brethren and Friends:

We purpose to examine this subject in the light of reason and Scripture: in the light of Scripture, because it is generally believed that the Scriptures teach that man is immortal, and must therefore live forever in happiness or misery; in the light of reason, that we may show that reason and Scripture are hand in hand. Before coming directly to consideration of the subject, I wish to say that out of a belief in the dogma of man's inherent immortality has grown two theories:

(1.) That known as the Augustinian theory—"Eternal conscious misery in hell fire for the wicked."

Augustine, the advocate of this theory of hell fire forever, was an ardent disciple of Plato. Plato flourished about three hundred fifty years before Christ, and taught that man has a soul which is a particle of Divine essence, and therefore immortal. Plato held, therefore, that for the good there was an eternal abode of happiness, or "Elysium"; and for the worst of mankind a place of eternal pain and suffering with its streams of fire, called "Tartarus." He also held there was a medium place, or purgatory, which he called the Acherusian Lake, into which all those too bad for Elysium, but not bad enough for Tartarus, were cast, from which they came forth again after a refining process in the fire.

Clement Athenageras, it is said, was the first to introduce it into Christian theology. He was followed, it is said, by Tatian in Mesopotamia, and still later by the famous Tertullian, called "the fierce African Theologian" who advocated the same theory.

About thirty years after Tertullian, arose Origen "the great." He discarded the burning hell theory, or "Tartarus," and introduced the theory of "Universal Restoration." He held on to Plato's immortal soul theory, and refining process, but rejected his eternal hell fire. Origen's theory of universal restoration did not take deep root, and some one hundred fifty years after his death, Augustine, Bishop of Hippo, in Africa, rose up in his mighty power and crushed it out of the Christian theology, and revived Plato's Tartarus, or eternal pain and suffering in hell fire. Since, the theories of Plato, viz., that man has an immortal soul, that there is "Elysium," or a heaven for the good, a "Tartarus," or burning hell for the very bad, and a "refining process," or purgatory for a medium class, have become the established doctrine of the "Orthodox churches," save the theory of purgatory which has been discarded by Protestant churches, but tenaciously held by the Roman Catholic Church.

The result is, that the world is divided into at least six distinct classes:

First, those who fully accept the theories of Plato, believing in a heaven beyond the bounds of time and space for the immortal souls of the good, a hell fire forever for the souls of the very bad, and a medium place, or purgatory, for the souls of those whose friends can afford to pay the priests for refining prayers, and are known as "Roman Catholics."

Second, those who have discarded a purgatory, and send the immortal souls of the good directly to a "heaven in the skies" at death, and the souls of the bad to a hell, and are known as Protestant Orthodox churches.

Third, those who have discarded the theory of everlasting hell fire, and received the universal restoration theory of Origen, and are known as "Universalists."

Fourth, those who reject the monstrous doctrine of everlasting pain and suffering in hell fire, and believing the Bible teaches it, reject it also, and are known as infidels.

Fifth, those whose minds being darkened by the ignorance that is in them, are without hope and without God in the world, and are known as atheists.

The sixth class comprises those who hold the truth, and believe the righteous will be

SKETCH OF THE AUTHOR

Doctor John Thomas was born in London, England, 1805, and died at Worcester, Massachusetts, March 5, 1871. At sixteen years of age, he studied medicine and later became a physician of considerable ability. He came to America in May, 1832, suffering a severe storm en route, during which he determined to study the Bible as never before. From New York City, the Doctor went to Cincinnati, Ohio; Wellsburg, Virginia; Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; and, in 1847 and 1848, worked with the Wilsons (whom he baptized) to establish the first Church of God in America at Geneva, Illinois. He started the "Apostolic Advocate" in 1834, assisted Benjamin Wilson to publish the "Gospel Banner," and in 1844 published the "Herald of the Future Age" at Richmond, Virginia. # Delivered unto Satan

By Emma C. Railsback, Los Angeles, California

THE APOSTLE PAUL instructed the church at Corinth to deliver a certain man "unto Satan" for the destruction of the flesh. (1 Cor. 5:1-7.) Again, in his first Letter to Timothy (1:20), he informed that young minister that he (Paul) had delivered Hymenaeus and Alexander "unto Satan," that they might learn not to blaspheme. Also, from his Second Letter to Timothy (2:16-18), we gather that Philetus was also associated with Hymenaeus, and that their sin was that of false teaching concerning the resurrection, which had overthrown the faith of some. In 2 Timothy 4:14, Paul stated, "Alexander the coppersmith did me much evil," and he asked the Lord to reward him according to his works. ("The wages of sin is death.")

While the sin of Hymenaeus and Philetus was that of teaching false doctrines in opposition to the truths being proclaimed by the inspired Apostle, that of Alexander seems to have been not only false teaching, but personal insults to the Apostle as well. For these sins they were "delivered unto Satan," or excommunicated from the church.

In the case of the fornicator (1 Cor. 5:1-7), the church by Paul's instruction "purged out the old leaven." A gathering was called for this purpose and Paul insisted that they put away from among themselves that wicked person.

The phrase "delivered unto Satan" is somewhat of an enigma to some students, especially to those who hold that Satan is a supernatural personality, so we will look briefly at a few instances where it is used and the meaning is clear.

First of all, we must keep in mind that "Satan" is a Hebrew word meaning adversary, or opposer. When we find it in the Old Testament, we know that it has not been translated, but has simply been transferred from the Hebrew manuscript to the English. In the New Testament, it has first been transferred to the Greek and then to the English.

Looking at a few texts in the Old Testament, we will take Numbers 22:22, first. Here the word "Satan" is properly translated "adversary." "The angel of the Lord stood in the way for an adversary against him." Yes, God sent His angel to oppose Balaam's mad course, in his effort to secure the "wages of unrighteousness." In this case, the Satan was a righteous supernatural being, so we must conclude that an adversary, or Satan, may be a righteous being.

Another instance is found in 1 Samuel 29:4. The Philistine army refused to allow David to go into battle with them, lest he be an adversary (Satan) unto them. If you are especially interested in learning how the word "Satan" is used further in the Old Testament, study 2 Samuel 19:22; 1 Kings 5:4; 11:14; 23:25; Psalm 38:20; 109:4, etc., where the word "Satan" has been translated; but in Job, some texts in Psalms, and in Zechariah, the word has only been transferred, and those having previous erroneous teaching on the subject can easily visualize in each instance a supernatural being. An interesting study along this line is to examine Jude 9, which quotes from Zechariah 3:1, 2; then to refer to Ezra 5:1-5, at which time Zechariah was prophesying, and thus satisfy your mind as to who was the devil of Jude 9, the Satan of Zechariah 3:2. There were many adversaries to the re-establishing of the "body of Moses" (the Israelites) in Palestine (Ezra 4:1), but this particular one was Tattai. (Ezra 5:3.)

In the New Testament, we find thirty-five texts where the Hebrew word "Satan" has twice been transferred, first to the Greek, then to the English, and it is generally easy to discover just who the opposer is.

In Matthew 16, after Jesus had made specific promises to Peter, He called him "Satan," or adversary. Why? Because Peter had opposed the statements of the Saviour concerning His death, burial, and resurrection, which the Saviour knew was God's plan of redemption.

Now, we return to the thought of the church delivering "unto Satan" those of its members who either blaspheme, teach contrary to fundamental truths, antagonize those who are promoting the truth, or commit fornication, or a number of other flagrant sins enumerated by the Apostle. This procedure was necessary in the apostles' day. Is it not fully so in the present time? Or should leaders permit such things to destroy churches, as has been done in many instances?

In the case of the fornicator, the course pursued by the Corinthian church seems to have produced the desired effect, for, by 2 Corinthians 2:5-10, we conclude that the flesh desires were destroyed, the man repented, was forgiven and reinstated in the church, and, therefore, "the spirit [life of the man] may be saved in the day of the Lord Jesus."

Being "delivered unto Satan" then is a severe punishment to transgressors in the church, but if the end justifies the means, should not the church be very watchful of such matters? "The carnal (Please turn to page 11)

"A Watch in the Night"

By Norman J. McLeod, Pomona, California

FOR many centuries, there has been a quarrel between vested religion and science. Such a conflict has been unnecessary, but has lost none of its bitterness because of that fact. Strange to say, vested religion has been forced to retreat at every crisis. Not once has science had to give way. Why? Because theologians have assumed that the Bible taught something that was not mentioned in the sacred Word, or, if it was mentioned, was so ambiguous on that particular fact that only a foolish person would cite its words to attempt to prove his point.

For many centuries, people believed that the world was flat and shaped much like a dinner plate. Furthermore, in Christian days, they thought the Bible taught that the earth is flat and that it also was the center of the universe. With the coming of such scientists as Galileo who showed definitely that the world was not the center of the universe, and Newton who showed how the planets and stars operate by the development of his system of celestial mechanics, both those theories were dropped. Nobody with a grammar school education today would contend that the earth is flat or that it is the center of the universe. Yet vested religion was the last group to give way to the truth.

Columbus' voyage to the new world made a great many atheists, because they could not see that the Bible was in accord with the fact that the earth is round. In fact, the Bible is silent on the subject, as it is on many such subjects. The Bible is not a treatise on science. It deals with the relationship of God to man and man to God, and, incidentally, with the relationship of man to man. It is not concerned with scientific matters as such.

To me, there is only one field where science and religion cross, and that is in regard to the matter of three eternal questions that man asks: Where did man originate? Why is he here? and, "Where does he go after death? Science, religion, and philosophy attempt to answer such questions, and hence come into conflict. On those particular themes, science is entirely speculative—does not pretend to speak with authority. Philosophy is vague and sterile in its conclusions. Only Christianity gives the positive answer.

One question of science which at present is in conflict with religion is that of the age of the earth. Someday, religion will have abdicated its position, as it has on that of

*"A thousand ages in thy sight
Are like an evening gone;
Short as the watch that ends the night
Before the rising sun."*

the sphericity of the earth, and geocentricity. Not one word in the Bible tells how old the earth is. As on many scientific subjects, the Bible is silent. All that Genesis says is: "In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth" (1:1). It does not say whether it required God five minutes or five million years!! After it was created, the Account proceeds to say that it "was void and empty." Any high school graduate who has studied chemistry knows how long it takes to make a few drops of water by burning hydrogen. The oxy-hydrogen flame is also the hottest flame of chemical reaction. If one burns hydrogen for several hours, he will obtain two or three drops of water. If the oceans were formed according to the cataclysmic theory held by most people who believe the Bible implicitly, then the water would all be vapor because of the intense heat of the process. Furthermore, the heat would also vaporize many other elements in the earth's crust. Many ages would be required for the heat to have been dispersed sufficiently for any oceans to be formed. Why, though, must one assume that all the earth was created in one instant, or in six days as the Account would lead us to believe if we did not analyze it carefully? We think of God as eternal. We cannot understand eternity—finite cannot comprehend infinity. God never had a beginning. Why should the many ages of creation be anything to balk at when we contemplate that fact?! In the Psalms, David said: "A thousand years in thy sight are but as yesterday when it is past, and as a watch in the night" (90:4). In other words, time is not counted by God. When a scientist says that so many million years elapsed in the formation of a stratum in the earth, I find nothing in the Bible to contradict him.

Why do we have so few college graduates who still are believers? Because the teachers at those institutions can see the reasonableness of scientific investigation and conclusion, and they do not realize the Bible is not in conflict with such investigation and conclusion.

When one contemplates the chalk cliffs of Dover, he is struck by a curious fact: those chalk cliffs are made of the shells of billions and trillions of tiny animals that lived and died. How many years were required to produce all the chalk cliffs of Dover? Anybody can do a little figuring to see that it was before 4004 B.C. Or, anybody who has seen the deposits of Diatomaceous earth near Lompo,

California, will be impressed by the myriads of tiny animals that produced it under water, and that now the aforementioned deposits are well inland. Anyone who has traveled into the Imperial Valley in Southern California has seen the old sea-level line along the base of the mountains to the west of the highway from Indio south. The Gulf of California used to occupy that district. When the Colorado River pushed its delta across the northern end of that Gulf and cut off the Salton Sea, then that sea began to dry up. How long did it take? Or how long did it take to push that delta across the Gulf of California? Certainly not within the last six thousand years! We can see how many tons of silt the muddy Colorado carries daily, and figure out how long it took to deposit that great barrier. We could multiply such cases ad infinitum. But why should we need to? ! The testimony is in the rocks and the floods. If a theologian is foolish enough to doubt such facts, he merely brings ridicule upon his cause and does little credit to himself. Why does he need to doubt such testimony when the testimony of the Word does not conflict? !

Many of our people have sung the song from which a stanza is quoted at the beginning of this article, yet they do not act as if they believed it. Some years ago, one of our ministers preached a sermon in Los Angeles in which he told of the vast distances of (Please turn to page 11)

The Growing Stone

A Story for Young People

By James Mattison, Hammond, Louisiana

---

THE Rock of Gibraltar is becoming smaller. All rocks and stones that we have seen become smaller every year. Pebbles in a stream, especially, become round and smooth, therefore smaller as they roll downstream.

Think, then, of a stone that could grow larger. It would be a miracle. Yet it is to be. Have you ever read the story of the Growing Stone in the Scriptures? This story teaches the most important truth in the Bible.

Of course, the growing stone is a figure of the world dominion of the Almighty Lord Himself. The story is found in Daniel 2:31-45, and is commonly called "Nebuchadnezzar's Dream," or "The Golden Image."

The huge and terrible figure of a man that Nebuchadnezzar saw in vision represents the world dominion of four great nations, we know, by reading verses 38-40. The Scripture also informs us that the Stone that destroyed this image and grew larger represents no other kingdom than that of the Lord God.

The scene, of course, is on the earth, for where else would men's kingdoms be? The Stone, which is the Kingdom of God, will destroy wicked governments and establish itself in their stead. When that comes to pass, righteousness will control the earth.

The message Jesus taught was concerning this Stone. He came "preaching the gospel [good news] of the kingdom of God" (Mark 1:14). His plea was, "Repent ye, and believe the gospel." Very simple, yet wonderful!

Jesus asks you and me to believe that God will someday rule on the earth. It is not hard to believe. Then He asks us to live a godly life, that we may be with Him in that future Kingdom. Living a godly life requires effort on our part. More, Jesus died so we might have the opportunity of living under the just rule of Almighty God. What love! What unselfish love! Yet, there it is in the Scriptures, plain and easy to understand.

Jesus went farther and revealed to us many wonderful features concerning this Stone which will fill the whole earth as completely as the waters fill the sea. He said that there would be no place, however small, where the wicked people could live. His very words are: "The Son of man . . . shall gather . . . all things that offend, and them which do iniquity; and shall cast them into a furnace of fire" (Matt. 13:41, 42). Nothing will be left of the wicked except a few ashes. (See Mal. 4:1-3.)

Furthermore, Jesus has said, through John, "There shall be no more death" (Rev. 21:4). Have you ever lost a loved one? When the Stone grows to its complete size and fullness, no one will die any more. No more will any have cause for sorrow, for that will be a time of happiness, with plenty for all. How good it will feel to have the strength of God coursing through our perfect bodies—no more mortality and corruptness!

The message of the Prophet Daniel and Jesus is not difficult to understand. Can we believe? We can. Can we live godly lives? We can.

The Stone is almost ready to roll toward the dreadful Image. Will you be living safely inside that day, so the falling timbers of men's governments will be broken on the stone and not harm you?

Remember the Growing Stone, believe, and live!

YOUTH CRUSADE. The "Youth for Christ"

has sent a five-man team to Great Britain to carry on a campaign to win 1,000,000 British young people into "Youth for Christ." This group of energetic young workers is to be headed by Billy Graham, vice president of "Youth for Christ" in America. Commenting on a previous trip made to England, Mr. Graham said: "Never before has Great Britain been in such a desperate spiritual depression as that in which she finds herself. . . . Less than one per cent of the young people are attending church" in the British Isles. He further said: "English political, social, and church leaders recognize that Great Britain will be pagan in the next generation unless a spiritual reawakening takes place."

This outlook on the present and future life of Great Britain is certainly anything but encouraging. If one were to stop and analyze the reasons for this lack of interest in spiritual matters by British young people, no doubt the results would indicate that the adults would be charged with a responsibility. The youth situation in Great Britain is not much different than that which exists in our own country. Unless there is an immediate awakening to the growing tendencies among young people in this country, the church here will be like it is in Russia, a church of old folk.

The leaders of the Church of God will do well to recognize the trend of youth and put forth a strong effort to keep our young people active and interested in our church life.

THE SQUEEZE. What has become of the Atlantic Charter? That great Magna Carta of human rights was conceived in the Atlantic and was hailed by men of good will and liberty-loving people everywhere as a new emancipation of the enslaved earth. The ideals that gave birth to the proposition of the four freedoms were sound and without doubt conscientiously conceived. The objective sought seemingly has been lost in the maze of political machinations that some greedy men have forced upon the nations of earth.

A recent committee report submitted to the United Nations Organization recommended that Finland pay to Russia $300,000,000 indemnity. Former President Herbert Hoover has since appealed to the justice-loving people of this country to rise in protest against this squeeze of the great iron curtain nation against this little country of Finland. Said Mr. Hoover: "Italy, with ten times the population, is required to pay little more than Finland. At present, there are 800,000 destitute persons in Finland, depending upon the other residents for their support." He also pointed out in proportion to national wealth this demand upon this little nation which was the only country that faithfully paid its war debt to this nation following World War I would be equal to a $200,000,000,000 demand on the United States.

Power politics and the principles of the Atlantic Charter are not compatible. We can expect political chicanery to triumph over the four freedoms until Christ returns to reign.

BIBLE READING. The American Bible Society has announced another Bible-reading project to be conducted between Thanksgiving, November 28, and Christmas. It has announced that there were 20,000,000 Bible markers distributed last year in the campaign. Already millions of these book marks with twenty-eight printed texts on them have been mailed to 115,000 clergymen. The effort is not only to get people to read the Scriptures but to get as many people as possible to read the same texts at the same time. We heartily commend this Bible-reading project to our readers and any encouragement which we can give to others in getting them to join in reading the Scriptures will be a most worthwhile effort.

MASADA. The young Jews of America have organized a society that corresponds to the Zionist organization. They call it "Masada," after a Jewish fortress in Palestine that was defended to the death during the time of the Roman invasion. Some of the objectives of these young people as expressed through their organization are:

1. The establishment of a Jewish State in Palestine.
2. The strengthening of a Jewish life in America.
3. Achievement of a democratic and progressive life in America.
4. The defense of Jewish rights everywhere.
5. The encouragement of personal patriotism in the rebuilding of Palestine.

PROTESTANT ERA. Has Protestantism arrived at the evening of its life? To Cardinal Stritch and John Dewey it has. The Cardinal recently said that "the end of the Protestant era is at hand." Writing in the "Church Century," Professor Arnold Nesh (Episcopalian) agrees with Cardinal Stritch that we have come to the end of the Protestant era, but he challenges the idea that we have come to the end of Protestantism. He believes that Stritch and Dewey are "in the realm of opinion, an erroneous opinion at that, when they think we have come to the end of Protestantism." He says: "The reformers believed that religion, in terms of a single type of worship as a lone eagle within a particular territory maintained by an authority of the state, should dominate all other forms of cultural life, and especially education." It is this type of Protestantism which Nesh believes has come to an end. He further says: "Today we would negate every proposition in such a proposal on the grounds that it is contrary to the American way of life. . . . Membership in the Christian church is the result of a self-conscious act of decision."

There are indications everywhere that Protestantism is awakening to a peril that is pressing on every side and with this consciousness of its internal condition, there appears to be a growing willingness among Protestant leaders to reaffirm the basic teaching of Protestantism and stand up and be counted.

Dr. Ernest Thrice Thompson, Presbyterian minister and professor at Union Field Seminary at Richmond, Virginia, in speaking at Montreal on Roman Catholicism in America expressed himself as being of the opinion that such would happen unless there was greater co-operation among Protestants. He felt union was not as essential as co-operation.

If the Protestant church in the United States is to meet the surge of Catholic propaganda and missionary effort, it will have to reassert its convictions and become Protestant.

MILITARY CO-OPERATION. Some months

ago, we called attention to the fact that the United States and Canada were co-operating in continental defenses by jointly strengthening the different branches of our national defenses and bringing the armed services of both countries into a planned program of co-operation through use of the same type of equipment: guns, ammunition, military terms and so forth.

It now has been announced that this process of co-operation has been extended to the entire Empire. Thus the western democracies are preparing themselves for the eventual role which these nations must fulfill when they take their stand against the invading northern confederacy of nations that will come against the mountains of Israel under the leadership of Gog of the land of Magog.

Early last spring, Canada and the United States carried out a joint military expedition into the Arctic to test various types of military equipment and to determine its effectiveness in the defense of the continent's northern boundary. This was called the Musk Ox expedition. Information, lately released states that a second and more extensive expedition into the northland must be held this winter. This does not mean that we are in danger of being attacked from the north but since the great north wastes have been opened up to civilization through the use of planes it has been discovered that there are vast quantities of oil and other natural resources in the great northwest territories and Alaska. Perhaps it is this oil that the armies of the United States and Canada are after, and maybe it is to keep someone else from the other side of the pole from tapping these great resources. At least one thing is certain. The democracies that have fought two world wars in less than a generation are not going to be caught napping for the third successive time. Then, too, they may be responding to Jesus' call: "Prepare war, wake up the mighty men, let all the men of war draw near." The day of war is not over.

MAN AS HE WAS, AS HE IS, AND AS HE SHALL BE

"rewarded at the resurrection of the just" (Luke 14:14), with eternal life, as kings and priests in the Kingdom of God, yet to be established on the earth; that the unbelieving and disobedient will perish in their own corruption—cease to exist and be known no more forever. They are not, however, recognized as Orthodox Christians, though they have always existed, here one, and there one, since the days of Christ.

Having set before you the various theories in reference to man, and their origin, we will proceed to examine the subject in the light of reason and the Scriptures; and we affirm, that man before he transgressed the law of God was sinless but mortal; that he possessed no inherent immortality, and could not live forever by virtue of his creation. These propositions we shall endeavor to sustain as we proceed.

That man was sinless will hardly be questioned; in fact, it was a necessity, as sin is the transgression of law—a departure from known duty, or the doing of that which is known to be wrong. All children are sinless and innocent, but by no means virtuous; as virtue is the withstanding of temptation, or the practice of what is right. So man in his infancy, or primeval state, which was in the infancy of the world, was sinless, like a child, he was without character; that, of necessity, had to be developed.

Having no knowledge of good or evil, he could become a sinner only by transgression of the law of God, which was simple, and appropriate to his understanding—"thou shalt not eat of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil." So long as he remained obedient to this command, he was without sin. This will appear from Genesis 3:22: "The Lord God said, Behold the man has become as one of us to know good and evil."

Not only was man sinless, he was also mortal; though contrary to general opinion, and contrary to the universal teaching of the so-called Orthodox churches. Yet I am bold to say it is the truth, sustained by reason, by facts, and by Scripture. It is in accordance with science; it is philosophical and sound.

I hold that it was impossible for man to have been created immortal, for immortality is the result of an incorruptible nature and life. Incorruptibility being the nature of God, it is therefore the nature possessed by those who are the children of God, upon the universally acknowledged principle of "like parent, like child," in nature. Therefore, as man can become a child of God only by the development of a godly character, by well doing or belief and obedience, he could not have been created incorruptible, as in that case he would have possessed the nature of God before he was godly; and not being incorruptible he could not have been immortal.

Again, there is no evidence outside of revelation, positively none, of man's immortality. Great minds have confessed to this fact. Therefore, if we find that revelation does not teach it, we must conclude that man was mortal.

Plato, who was among the first Greek philosophers who taught it, with all his reasoning failed to convince his greatest admirers. His argument was as "unsatisfying as it was flattering." Probably no one prized it more than Cicero, yet he says: "I have read Plato's book (the Phædo) over again and again; but I know not how it comes to pass. So long as I am reading I agree with it, but no sooner is the book out of my hands than I begin to doubt whether man is immortal." Why was this? Because, as I have already said, there is no satisfying evidence of man's immortality in the book of nature.

Although the doctrine was taught by Plato, and other heathen philosophers, it does not appear that the mass of the people believed it. One of the Greek poets lamenting on the death of a friend, says:

"The meanest herb we trample in the field
Or in the garden nurture, when its leaf
In autumn dies, forebodes another spring,
And from brief slumber wakes to lie again.
Man wakes no more, man peerless, valiant, wise,
Once chilled to death, sleeps hopeless in the dust
A long unbroken, never-ending sleep."

Look about us as we will, there is no evidence of man's immortality. The Greek poet felt this, and not understanding that Jesus Christ brought life and immortality to light through the gospel (2 Tim. 1:10), he naturally believed that man "once chilled to death, sleeps hopeless in the dust, a long unbroken, never-ending sleep."

All nature gives evidence that man is mortal. Decay, corruption, and death are in harmony with a mortal nature. All animal existence breathe out their breath of life and perish; and I hold it is reasonable with no evidence to the contrary, that man was made alike mortal and corruptible—subject to death. Like other animals, he lives by eating, drinking, and breathing. Like other animals, he dies. With this the Scriptures fully agree. In fact, Solomon was very plain and emphatic. He said: "That which befalleth the sons of men befalleth beasts; even one thing befalleth them: as the one dieth, so dieth the other; yea, they have all one breath; so that a man hath no pre-eminence above a beast . . . all go unto one place; all are of the dust, and all turn to dust again" (Ecc. 3:19, 20).

So we find reason and Scripture in harmony. The Scripture teaches that in death man has no pre-eminence over the beast, that all are of the dust, therefore mortal, and that they all turn to dust again, and reason accords. Moreover, the fact, which none can deny, that man dies and we lay him away to moulder back again to dust, in strict accordance with the words of the Eternal, "Dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return" (Gen. 3:19), proves the Scriptures true and our reasoning correct.

Man's desire for immortality proves a lack of it. How earnestly we long to live on, even subject to the almost innumerable ills of this present life! There is no desire to let go our hold on life. If there were a consciousness of immortality, would this be so? And with many of us does not every atom of our being go out for some assurance of a higher life? The Apostle wrote that unto those who "seek for glory and honour and immortality, God will render eternal life" (Rom. 2:7). Man certainly cannot possess that which he is commanded to "seek." Comment is unnecessary. Again the Apostle said, "The gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord" (Rom. 6:23).

We think every reasonable mind will see that if God gives eternal life through Jesus Christ, then man could not live forever by virtue of his creation—could not have been created immortal in any sense. This is in perfect harmony with what the Apostle said in 2 Timothy 1:10, that Jesus Christ "abolished death, and hath brought life and immortality to light through the gospel."

We see that in bringing life and immortality to light, it was necessary that death be abolished—that death brought upon the world by Adam's transgression. Man, being mortal, he was locked in the prison house of death, the grave, until Jesus Christ abolished death and arose triumphant, bringing with him the keys of death and the grave; thus opening up a way from mortality to immortality to all who believe and obey the gospel.

Here allow me to say it will not do to accept and believe anything, or everything, that is called gospel; neither will it do to be indifferent as to what the gospel is. There is but one gospel, as there is but "one faith"; and that is the gospel which Jesus and the apostles preached, which was the glad tidings of the Kingdom of God and things concerning the name of Jesus. Therefore, one must have a comprehensive knowledge of the Kingdom and things concerning the Name, believe and obey them, before he can obtain that immortality brought to light through the gospel.

To return: we find that reason and Scripture are hand in hand. Man desires immortality—desires to live forever, yet his own consciousness tells him that he is wasting away. The mystical dogma of immortal-soulism is unsatisfying; everything around him indicates that he is mortal, hence his longing for a higher and more enduring life. The Scriptures recognize this longing and assure him that death has been abolished, and life and immortality, which he so much desires, have been brought to light by Christ. Glorious hope! Who would not embrace it and live in the coming ages yet to be elaborated by a hand that is all Divine, when the whole earth shall be filled with the glory of the Lord, and men shall delight themselves in abundance of peace? (Isa. 11:9; Psalm 37; 72.)

I submit then that man, before his transgression was sinless but mortal being, that so far as we have examined the subject, the position is sustained by reason and Scripture; we would say further, that there is not a passage of Scripture from Genesis to Revelation that sustains the dogma of immortal-soulism, but on the other hand the Scriptures abound with passages plainly teaching that man by nature is mortal. (To be concluded)

ECHOES DOWN THE STREET

By Mary Mac Nedrow, Oregon, Illinois

Someone needed our help one day,
But a kindly word we forgot to say.
Somehow we just passed him by—
We did not as much as hear him sigh.

Shuffling of many tired feet
Stifled echoes down the street.

The sins of omission stay with us long,
When we feel we should right some glaring wrong—
We think in our hearts we are being wise,
Walking along with blinded eyes.

Shuffling of many tired feet
Stifled echoes down the street.

A gentle word might have pointed the Way
To promised joys of a better Day.
There are many crosses in the town,
Of folks who travel up and down.

Shuffling of many tired feet
Stifled echoes down the street.

said as a BAD ONE !...

mind is enmity against God" (Rom. 8:7). "The friendship of the world is enmity with God" (James 4:4). Those who are disposed to have friendship with the world are turned back into the world, which is always adverse to God's ways. However, as long as there is life there is hope, and we have seen that offenders may repent and turn to God.

As a last thought, we wish to warn also against the lukewarm condition foretold of the church in the last day. Do you, dear brother or sister, not fear being "spewed out" when the Saviour returns?

the universe. He spoke of such and such a heavenly body as being millions of light years away! At the conclusion of his sermon, many of the congregation congratulated him on the great profundity of his discussion, but some of those very people who congratulated him did not grasp the significance of the conclusions that must be drawn from that sermon. If a heavenly body is a million light years away, the light began traveling from that body a million light years ago. If the stars and the heavenly bodies were created six thousand years ago, how would that be possible? If a theologian is foolish enough to engage in argument with an astronomer or anybody who knows anything about celestial mechanics on the subject of light years, he will come away bested. Such scientific conclusions are equally as certain as the fact that the earth is a sphere.

Helium was discovered on the sun before it was discovered on the earth: that is where it gets its name! By means of light filters and the like, we know of what the sun is made, or at least what the flames are. Astronomy is not the inexact science that some suppose. Some of those astronomical facts are more certainly established than facts of history, because they are determined by scientific methods that are impossible with social sciences. None of the facts, or even the major theories, of astronomy conflict with the teachings of the Bible. So why not accept both?

BOOK PARADE

"Keep that which is committed to thy trust, avoiding profane and vain babblings, and oppositions of science falsely so called" (1 Timothy 6:20).

That You Might Believe (Good Books, Inc., 111 N. Wacker Drive, Chicago 6; $1.50) is a crackerjack piece of work. It is a shame that more will not read it.

Henry M. Morris is the author, and Mr. Morris' task is to point out the host of scientific accuracies contained in the Scriptures—and the host of Biblical inaccuracies contained in much of hypothetical science. He does both jobs admirably, with a writing skill that frequently is not found in strictly fundamentalist literature.

Naturally, here and there Mr. Morris becomes too fundamentalist for the Church of God; he makes it plain that he believes in the Trinity, for instance, and in the immortality of the soul. But this is minor in comparison with the major portion of his work; you can skip the concluding parts of theological commentary, if you like, and still have a volume well worth adding to your shelves—particularly worth adding if you have young people in your family who are coming in contact with scientific theory in school.

The astronomical evidence for Joshua's "long day" and the forty-minute delay in solar movements during the time of Hezekiah is given considerable attention. With the various hypotheses of evolution, Mr. Morris has no sympathy at all; and his arguments against them are not only Scriptural, but scientific. Without recourse to technical terminology, Mr. Morris presents the case against spontaneous generation of life and geological epochs as convincingly as it has yet appeared in print. His discussion of the various "missing links" is instructive, authoritative, and at times downright amusing.

The preaching in which Mr. Morris indulges in his concluding chapter is typical of the current "personal Saviour" vogue; it is the one serious lapse from smooth, logical, fact-animated writing.

Joseph's Advice Taken

Joseph had been his father's favorite son. His coat of many colors had caused his brothers to dislike him. His strange dreams also had made them angry with Joseph.

Though he was sold into Egypt as a slave, Joseph kept his faith in God. He was first given a place of leadership in his master's household. We are told that Potiphar trusted Joseph. He gave no heed to his affairs and "knew not ought he had, save the bread which he did eat" (Gen. 39:6). That was a great deal of trust to place in the hand of a slave, wasn't it?

When Joseph was put in prison, he again was given a work of leadership. Do you not recall reading that "the keeper of the prison committed to Joseph's hand all the prisoners that were in the prison"? (Gen. 39:22.) That was how Joseph was able to learn of the chief baker's dream. If he had not told the baker what his dream meant, Pharaoh would not have learned that Joseph interpreted dreams. So we see God's guiding hand throughout it all.

Thus it was that Joseph stood before Pharaoh. He had told Pharaoh his dreams meant seven years of plentiful harvests of grain. These years were to be followed by seven years of famine. That would be a great hardship, for the people would depend upon the harvest for food that would not be produced.

Joseph told Pharaoh to find a wise man and put him over the land of Egypt. He was to save some of the crops from each of the good harvest years and use them later.

Pharaoh said, "Can we find such a one as this is?" And best of all, Pharaoh and his servants could see that the Spirit of God was in Joseph.

From Slave to Ruler

God had told David the kind of men He wanted to rule over mankind. As our memory verse tells us, "He that ruleth over men must be just, ruling in the fear of God."

Joseph then was Pharaoh's choice to rule during the trying years to follow the good years. Joseph was God's choice, also.

Pharaoh was wise. He said that because God had showed these things which were to come to pass to Joseph, there was no one as wise as he. Therefore Joseph was to rule over Pharaoh's house; his word would govern the people. Joseph was to rule over all the land of Egypt. For the third time, Joseph was made a leader.

Only one place was Pharaoh greater than Joseph. Pharaoh still sat upon the throne. (Gen. 41:40.)

Joseph was given Pharaoh's ring. This was so he could place the official seal upon the orders or laws he would make. Letters and official papers today sometimes carry gold seals pasted on. In those days, they were sealed by pressing the king's ring in soft wax.

True-False Game

Place a "T" in front of the correct statements. Place "F" in front of the false statements.

1. Joseph's advice was good in the eyes of Pharaoh's servants.
2. Joseph was the wisest one Pharaoh knew.
3. Joseph was made as great as Pharaoh in all things.
4. All the land of Egypt was under Joseph's leadership.
5. Joseph was dressed in fine linen, with a gold chain and locket about his neck.
6. The people bowed before Joseph.
7. The people had to do as Joseph said.
8. A ruler should be just and fear God.

Boys Express Their Opinions About Smoking

BY SHEILA DALY

(Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune) When parents or teachers lift an eyebrow and give out with a little advice on high school gals and cigarets, the whole thing usually goes up in smoke. But here is some inside information from high school

Joes, dating characters who know what they do and do not like, which may make the gals pick up their smoke rings and take notice. Gives out this way:

"The majority of boys in high school do not like to see girls smoke. When we started to smoke we did it just to be 'big time,' so naturally when we see some of the girls do it we think, 'Big time gals!' And that's not the kind of girl we really like."

"I used to think that I didn't like to see girls smoking cigarets, but the other evening at a local drug store a couple of girls draped themselves on the stools, and if they didn't haul out painted corn-cobs and light up: Now I don't even like girls!"

"If my date wants to smoke I never say anything, but I do think it cheapens a girl, makes her look as if she's trying to 'pretend.'"

"I always figure—if it makes a girl feel grown up to smoke, let her smoke. As soon as she does grow up, she'll quit."

"Fellows never like to see their best girls smoke . . . makes a girl seem nervous and self-conscious, as if she's just trying to find something to do to cover up her awkwardness."

"Girls just don't know how they spoil themselves by smoking. If I see a girl smoking, my opinion changes automatically. And the way I look at it—if a girl is man enough to smoke, she's man enough to pick up her own books, open her own doors, wait her turn in line—and I'm just man enough not to want to date that kind of girl."

CARLSBAD, NEW MEXICO

The Carlsbad (N. M.) Church of God meets every Sunday in the home of Bro. and Sr. E. H. King, 1304 W. Shaw, for Bible study and Communion. Bro. King is our teacher.

On October 23-25, we were given the pleasure of a visit from Bro. M. W. Lyon, evangelist out of Oregon, Ill. Bro. Lyon gave us Bible lessons on the nights of Thursday and Friday, and following these studies we were shown pictures of the various churches and the congregations of each.

We are an isolated body of five members, only four being here to attend, one being in service and stationed at Memphis, Tenn.

At any time members and preachers will be coming through or near Carlsbad, we hope they will feel free to come and worship with us, and our doors and our hearts are open to all.

Marie King, Reporter.

EDEN VALLEY, MINNESOTA

The Eden Valley Church has just enjoyed a week of special meetings, with Bro. Sydney Magaw as speaker. The meetings began with a Sunday school Rally Day, October 13, ending with a two-day fall conference. An attendance goal of one hundred persons had been set, but only ninety-six were present. A special Sunday school program was provided in the afternoon. Our services were well attended, and we feel it was well worth our effort.

We thank Bro. Magaw for co-operating with us and look forward to having him with us again.

LONG - DIXON

The Church of God at Omaha, Nebr., was the scene of a beautiful service held at eight o'clock, Saturday evening, October 26, 1946, when Miss Marjorie Long, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ora M. Long of Hollbrook, Nebr., became the bride of Mr. Cleo Dixon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emery Dixon of Omaha.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Derryl Long, wore a gown of white satin trimmed with Valenciennes lace, with long sleeves and a sweetheart neckline. The full skirt swept into a long train. Her fingertip veil of illusion net was held in place by a richly beaded coronet cap. Her only ornament was a strand of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom. She carried a bouquet of red roses, centered with white pompons.

Her bridesmaids were Miss Alberta Appleby, maid of honor, who wore a net dress of aqua, and Miss Viola Welch, who wore a yellow dress. Both carried bouquets of chrysanthemums. Glen Appleby, cousin of the groom, was the best man. Ray Grawet and Jack Dixon, his nephews, were the ushers.

Miss Barbara Policz, who sang "Always" and "O Promise Me," was accompanied by Miss Shirley Karnett, who played the wedding music. The altar was decorated beautifully with candelabra, palms, and baskets of white chrysanthemums.

Following the marriage service, the couple was greeted by more than one hundred guests at a reception held at the home of Mrs. Elvera Edwards. The new Mr. and Mrs. Dixon then left for a short wedding trip to Chicago. They plan to make their home in Omaha.

Both Marjorie and Cleo are members of the Omaha Church of God, and we pray that God will richly bless them and guide them in a life filled with happiness.

Robert O. Hardesty.

"As ye have therefore received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk ye in him: rooted and built up in him, and established in the faith, as ye have been taught, abounding therein with thanksgiving."—Col. 2:6, 7.

B. F. RICHARDSON

Benjamin F. Richardson was born, February 8, 1867, at Nashville, Tenn., and died, October 10, 1946. He previously had lived in Morrilton, Ark., and Wichita, Kan., moving to Arkansas City, Kan., in 1924.

He was married to Miss Julia A. Black at Belton, Tex., and to this union were born four sons, B. F. Richardson, Jr., and Douglas Richardson, both of Arkansas City, Paul L. and Albert E. Richardson of Woodward, Okla., and one daughter, Mrs. R. C. Houston, also of Woodward.

In 1898, he was baptized into Christ by a Bro. Miller. Since then, he remained a faithful Christian. Like Paul, we can say of him, that he has fought a good fight and kept the faith; henceforth there is laid up for him a crown of righteousness.

Surviving him to mourn his loss are his wife, five children, fifteen grandchildren, nine great-grandchildren, and many friends.

Funeral services for the brother were conducted by the writer at the Grant Funeral Home in Arkansas City. Burial was in Memorial Lawn Cemetery near Arkansas City, where he waits the coming of Jesus.

Order from

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
OREGON, ILLINOIS

Beginning, it is hoped, in January—and no later than February—the National Berean Society will publish a monthly magazine edited particularly for young people, whether or not they are Bereans.

Lesson material for Bereans of all ages, articles on the best methods for conducting young people's and junior Berean work, perhaps even some fiction, plans for handling special programs, news of young people's and general Berean activities—all this will go into the paper.

Circulation will, for the present, be free. Support will come from voluntary contributions and the treasury of the National Berean Society. National Bible Institution will do the printing.

The paper will require that the Society, often slow about such things in the past, publish lessons regularly. It will meet a need long felt among Church of God young people. It will fill a place not filled, necessarily, by The Restitution Herald.

To secure the best name possible for the new paper, the Society is sponsoring a contest open to everyone, whether Berean or not. Officers of the Society will act as judges. In case of ties, duplicate prizes will be awarded.

First prize: Weymouth's New Testament in Modern Speech, a remarkably accurate and easily understood version especially suited to young people.

Second prize: A Revised Standard Version of the New Testament, latest modern-language edition sponsored by the Federal Council of Churches, and as suited to young people as Weymouth's translation.

Entries should be addressed to the Society at Oregon, Illinois. ## We Thank Thee, Lord

Judging from the first two months of school, this eighth term of Oregon Bible College will be one of progress and joy. There is an enlarged enrollment and an improved Christian spirit. At this Thanksgiving season, the College especially appeals to us as an outstanding blessing that should be cherished by all members of the Church of God.

At Oregon Bible College, consecrated young men and young women are studying for an enriched service to Christ. These young people, so seriously appreciating the call for Christian service as to spend four years in preparation, are underwriting and insuring success of the Church of God for many years to come. Even while studying at the College, most of the students take advantage of opportunities to preach the gospel. Brother Timothy Pearson preaches regularly at South Bend, Indiana. Brother Gordon Landry preaches each Sunday at the East Oregon Chapel and conducts a mid-week Bible-study-and-prayer service. Several students are assisting the Church of God at Rensselaer, Indiana. Brother Milton Hall has served the brethren at Graytown, Wisconsin. Nearly all students, including the young women, have assisted in conferences and other special meetings. This spirit of youthful interest fortunately is contagious among young people in all the churches assisted by the College.

Though there is only one senior student, that in itself favors a larger enrollment next year. Most of this year's students will return next year, and there is good reason to expect a large freshman class. A larger enrollment will cheer everyone, will reduce per capita cost of educating the students, will stimulate extra curricular activities and school spirit. More important, there will be more graduates, year after year, ever enlarging the corps of alumni now teaching and preaching the gospel of God's Kingdom.

A discouraged attitude has expressed itself in the thought that the contemplated Administration Building might well be forgotten. That is a dangerous, almost fatal, viewpoint to Oregon Bible College. As the enrollment increases—and it will increase—the College will need a better library, one or more sound-proof music rooms, separate dormitory accommodations for the men and women and, if at all possible, a gymnasium. The contemplated Administration Building is the surest and best solution to those prospective needs. Erection of the Administration Building, if planned for College needs, will create a stability to Oregon Bible College that is invaluable and not likely otherwise to be provided. Yes, the new building will require effort and sacrifice, but so much the better! Those are elements of the Christian life. Anything worth while is achieved only at considerable cost. The greatest heritage of the Church of God, in this dispensation, is her own young men and young women. We dare not fail in our obligation to Church of God youth, if we are interested in the future of the Church of God.

In all plans for Oregon Bible College, first respect must go to the Great Architect. As neatly presented by a student writer in this week's HERALD (page 5), God and one comprise a majority. Indeed, there can be no failure if God will bless the College. He is abundantly able to supply every need, and, in present thanksgiving for the College, we are thankful first to God.

Brethren of the Church of God and all friends of the College are invited to visit the School. There is no better way to become appreciative of your own church School than by becoming acquainted with its students and staff. Especially are visitors invited to attend chapel exercises. These periods convene at 10:15 a.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays. By visiting the College at a chapel hour, you will have opportunity to meet all the students and several members of the staff. You are welcome, always, at Oregon Bible College!

Brother Hoke Keeps Working

Following ten days at his home in Dayton, Ohio, Brother A. J. Hoke has returned to Headquarters where he is both Manager and laborer in duplexing a residence recently purchased by the Institution. Sister Hoke is with him on this trip, which indeed may be wise, as we feel Brother Hoke's zeal and zest are leading him to work too hard. "Take it easy," Brother Hoke, much as we appreciate your example of whole-hearted service.

OUR COLLEGE

By Otto E. Dick (Student Counselor)

KNOWING that our church people everywhere are interested in our Bible College, I shall attempt to make a brief report upon my early observations and reactions to the College project. Please keep in mind that further experience as one of the instructors may alter such reactions or opinions.

The building, grounds, and equipment are almost ideal for a small college. The setting is beautiful and conveniently located. Considering the small enrollment, the quantity and quality of the equipment compares favorably with that of other schools. In the purchasing of equipment and instructional materials, the Board has been liberal and progressive. Improvements in lighting and heating have been made recently, and the purchase of still more equipment has been approved. In general, the tools with which we have to work are quite satisfactory from an instructor's point of view.

The quality of work done by students will depend, of course, upon the quality of instruction, the student's educational background, his intelligence, his purpose, and general study conditions. We realize that there is room for improvement in any of the above factors affecting the quality of student attainment, but it seems to me that the lack of sufficient time for study is our major difficulty. A good teacher will challenge the student to study and will provide the student with suitable learning opportunities, but that is about as far as he can go. The student must have the will to learn and the opportunity to study if he is to accomplish what is expected of him. The lack of time for study, rest, and recreation in our College prevents a high degree of achievement on the part of our students. Nearly all our students work in town in the afternoon and are expected to attend meetings and worship services during a part of the evenings. This leaves little time for study unless the late hours of the night are used. As long as our students find it necessary to work their way through College, however, there seems to be no immediate solution to the problem. There is certainly a definite value in working to pay at least a part of one's expenses in college, but we should realize that the gain is accompanied by a loss in scholastic achievement. The point is that we should not expect too much. It seems very necessary that our College be operated in such a way that the students may work in the afternoons, but we should realize that we cannot expect them to accomplish as much scholastically as they would if they could spend more time in study. Compensating somewhat for this are the purposefulness, the sincerity, and consecration of the students. Student interest in the classes and the spirituality of the students are an inspiration to the instructors. Let us pray that this condition continues.

Problems arise occasionally, of course. We are by no means perfect. When any group of people live, eat, work, and go to class together almost twenty-four hours a day, differences and misunderstandings are sure to arise. Fortunately, the problems have been minor, and by keeping the spirit of Christ dominant in us we shall strive to deserve your faith in all of us. Everyone connected with the College is eager to see the school grow in numbers and in spirituality.

Frequent opportunities for Christian growth are provided through Tuesday and Thursday chapel programs, the after-supper worship service, the quiet hours, and in regular classes. In addition, students may attend worship services of the local Church of God and the East Oregon Chapel. Frequent opportunity to open or close with prayer offers essential training to students and assures that we are approaching our task in a spirit of thanksgiving and in recognition of our need for God's help. The presenting of students' sermonettes in classes and in chapel also provides opportunity for good training. It is significant that a greater number of the composition topics and public speaking topics chosen by students are pertaining to Christian living.

We would not have you believe that all is work, because we do have a time to play and very necessarily so. In fact, we need more time for organized play or recreation. The right proportions of work, sleep, and recreation make for health, happiness, and success. Properly directed recreational and social activities are a necessary part of religious training. We should like to look forward to the day when we shall be able to sponsor a reasonable athletic program and perhaps present a College play as a regular part of the school work. The subjects are selected for the primary purpose of training ministers, and each student is expected to major in theology.

A brief description of the courses offered this semester follows:

"The Book of Genesis" is the subject of the course in Old Testament studies. A rather thorough study of the Book is being made with frequent opportunity for written and oral interpretation and practical application. Much the same procedure is being followed in the New Testament interpretative studies (Please turn to page 10)

REPENTANCE

By W. Howard Beemer, Saint Catharines, Ontario

REPENTANCE—what is it? No doubt, everyone has some idea as to the meaning of this oft-used word. Webster states that it is the desire to amend or repair one's ways and life as a result of deep remorse for one's sins. The Bible gives us a much more detailed and illustrative definition than this. We shall now undertake, in a brief way, to discuss a very few of the numerous Bible texts on this subject of "Repentance."

Before turning to our first Scripture text, let us consider the different types of repentance. There are at least two types of repentance. True repentance is as different from "just being sorry" as day is from night or black is from white. The little boy caught at the jam jar or "snitching" apples may be sorry, but it is very doubtful if he is often truly repentant. The fact that he invariably tries again is fairly definite proof that he was only sorry that he was caught, not sorry that he was doing wrong. When one is truly repentant, the desire to commit that wrong—or sin—again is gone. This does not necessarily indicate that, because some person fails and commits the same sin more than once, he cannot obtain forgiveness more than once. Of course, he must be truly repentant and be trying his best not to let himself be tempted to do that wrong again, but it may take a little time to break oneself of a bad habit—or a sin, which too often are synonymous.

In Genesis, we read that Cain killed his brother Abel. Did Cain ever repent? Providing he did repent, was his repentance true repentance? These are rather difficult questions, as in at least one of them it is possible only to surmise. Cain definitely was sorry! This fact is very evident in Genesis 4:3, which can also be translated (from the original Hebrew) as, "Is my crime too great to be forgiven?" He was, however, driven over the face of the earth. This may be proof of the lack of true repentance; yet it may not indicate this conclusion at all. God punished David for his great sin, although it had been forgiven him. The fact that God allowed no one to kill Cain may be a proof that He was giving him a chance to repent and to seek the Almighty's forgiveness.

In 2 Samuel 12:13, we read a small part of the account of David's great sin. David was truly repentant and of this there is no doubt. Nathan the prophet told him that his sins were washed away. This was a very serious sin, yet God washed it out when David asked forgiveness and was truly repentant. This did not mean necessarily that David was not punished for his sin, as God did punish him by allowing the son born of this sin to die.

Judas perpetrated the most dastardly deed of all time! He betrayed his Lord and Saviour for a miserable thirty pieces of silver! Was He repentant? I believe he was. He flung the thirty pieces of silver at the feet of the priests. (Matt. 27:3-5.) Some think that he committed suicide. It is possible, however, that his grief was so great that he fell forward over a cliff—thus causing his death. Luke, in Acts 1:18, seemed to give this possibility of interpretation.

Matthew 26:75 tells of Peter's denial of Christ. Peter wept bitterly upon realization of his deed. It is safe to assume that Peter was truly repentant, both from his actions at the time and from his life and works in the following years. Yes, Peter was truly repentant—he wept bitterly! Need one weep to show true repentance? It certainly would not condemn one as a "sissy," but some do not—or cannot—cry even in the time of deepest grief. It is the heart that God judges, not any outward show.

Jesus, in Luke 24:47, told His disciples that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in His Name. The main fact for us to notice here is that repentance and remission of sins are closely connected. In fact, remission of sins cannot be obtained without true repentance. This thought is also brought out in Mark 1:4. John the Baptist preached the remission of sins through repentance, even before Jesus began preaching.

There are many places in the Bible that record Jesus as preaching repentance. Luke 13:2-5 records one of the times Jesus preached about "repentance." Regardless of the extent of sin, it will be forgiven us if we are truly repentant. We ought not to limit the power of God, and this we are doing if we ever think of something, some sin, as being too big for God to take care of. The Scriptures state that we shall be forgiven if we are truly repentant. This was true in the time of Jesus, and it is equally true today.

Luke 15:7 points out to us the fact that God is pleased by our repenting and wanting to live as He intended we should—that is, a righteous life. God does not want to see us lost in sin, and therefore is happy when we repent and accept Christ as our Saviour. It is through Jesus, and only through Him, that we can gain eternal life.

Peter tells us how to gain eternal life—or at least one step, which happens to be the most important step, since it is the initial one. In Acts 2:38, Peter stated, "Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost." This scripture is very plain and clear, yet many seem to think that there is another way of gaining eternal life. Jesus once said that anyone who did try to enter any other way was a thief and a robber. We must first repent, then be baptized in His name, and last, but not least, obey Him and do as he told us to do.

Jesus, in warning the people of the nearness of the Kingdom of Heaven, told them to repent. (Matt. 4:17.) Jesus, it would seem, was telling them to repent of their sins before it was too late. The Kingdom of Heaven is much nearer now than it was then. If those people had sins of which they needed to repent, do you not think that we, too, have sins of which we should repent? Yes, we all have sins! Therefore, we must all repent of them if we are to have hope of entering the Kingdom of Heaven. Also, it must be true, sincere, genuine repentance.

Jesus commands us to forgive (Please turn to page 11)

God and One Make a Majority

---

By Timothy Pearson, Oregon, Illinois

---

THE PRESENCE of God gives one a feeling of independence and authority that surpasses any satisfaction rising from personal accomplishment. Knowing that God will come to one's aid in any circumstance is wonderfully comforting.

Had you been in Moses' stead as he bowed before Pharaoh, king of Egypt, would you not have stammered a little when prophesying the death of all Egypt's first-born? Although Moses pronounced the death sentence upon the son of Pharaoh, who probably would have been the next king of Egypt, he did not become panic-stricken and flee again to Midian. Pharaoh and his cruel and mighty officials could not cow Moses, for God and Moses made a majority.

Gideon and his three hundred defenseless braves crept through the night and surrounded on three sides the mighty host of Midian. Ordinarily, one would think Gideon had no chance to win a victory against such overwhelming odds. With God on his side, however, Gideon so badly defeated the Midianites that the Israelites were never oppressed by them again.

The valley of Esdraelon, near the port of Haifa in Palestine, was once the scene of war between two gods—Jehovah and Baal. Elijah had challenged four hundred fifty prophets of Baal to prove which god was the true one. The test was made by putting dressed bullocks on an altar and calling upon God and Baal to consume by fire the sacrifices. Elijah gave Baal's prophets first chance to prove their false deity. When the prophets had called all morning to Baal and "there was no voice," Elijah began to chide the heathen. "Cry aloud: for he is a god; either he is talking, or he is pursuing, or he is in a journey, or peradventure he sleepeth, and must be awaked," mocked Elijah. Four hundred fifty to one are almost insurmountable odds, yet Elijah never feared. He must have laughed at the foolish barbarians as they "cried aloud, and cut themselves after their manner with knives and lancets, till the blood gushed out upon them." Baal must have been incapacitated, for nothing happened to the sacrifice. By this time, Elijah had endangered his life. He stood alone in the world, but God was with him. He instructed the frustrated prophets to pour twelve barrels of water on the sacrifice he had prepared, probably to rule out the possibility of spontaneous combustion. He even made a trench around the altar and had it filled with water. God, being on Elijah's side, sent a fire which consumed not only the bullock but even the wood, stones, dust, and ended the lop-sided contest with a smashing victory for Elijah by lapping up the water which was in the trench. God and one made a majority.

The Lord Jesus was hanged on a cross, rejected, spat upon, shamed, tortured, and crucified. He died and was buried; virtually forgotten by all, except God. In triumph, He arose victorious over death, sin, and all mankind. God and one made a majority.

Roland Hayes, a great singer who has performed for the royal family of England, who also has sung in France and other countries, accepted an invitation to sing at a great hall in Berlin. Immediately, threatening letters began to arrive. The "master race" was prejudiced against a negro. On concert night, he slipped unnoticed into the hall. When he appeared on the stage, the audience began to stamp and hiss. Mr. Hayes bowed his head. (Minute by minute only his silent prayer could be heard above the uproar.) After ten minutes, the noise suddenly stopped. He talked with God another minute before he began to sing. When the final note faded, the audience applauded, shouted, and carried him around the hall on their shoulders three times. God and one made a majority. (This story of Roland Hayes came to our attention through the Quiet Hour, a David C. Cook publication.)

All can win the battle for life. John has recorded the way of salvation, saying: "Whatsoever is born of God, overcometh the world" (1 John 5:4). Win with God!

Man As He Was, As He Is, and As He Shall Be

In Two Parts—Part Two

A Lecture by Dr. J. H. Thomas

Contributed by (Mrs.) Virginia Kincheloe, Fairfax, Virginia

WE HERE call attention to a few texts that show man to be of mortal nature. First we notice the account in Genesis 2:7 that tells about man's creation, saying: "The Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life [chayim—'lives'], and man became a living soul."

Here we are told that man was made of the dust, that is, he was of the earth, earthy (1 Cor. 15:47) and caused to inhale the breath of lives, that is, the breath of all lives, or breath which all living creatures breathe that live by breathing; in other words, the breath that is common to all living creatures. Hence, like all other living creatures, he was mortal. (Gen. 7:21, 22.)

Paul plainly sustained this position in 1 Corinthians 15:45: "The first man Adam was made a living soul; the last Adam was made a quickening spirit. The first man is of the earth, earthy, the second man is the Lord from heaven." Here Paul contrasted the earthy man, with the spirit man; in other words, the corruptible, mortal man, Adam, with the incorruptible, immortal man, Christ. What language could more clearly express man's mortality?

But some have said the breath of life was the immortal soul. I answer, The Word does not say so. It was, on the contrary, that which gave life to the man. Whoever will read it carefully will notice that Adam lived after receiving the breath; as soon as he inhaled the breath, he—the man, not the breath—became a living soul; therefore, it was the breath that gave him life. We are left in no doubt on this point. Job said: "The Spirit of God hath made me, and the breath of the Almighty hath given me life."

Isaiah said: "Cease ye from man, whose breath is in his nostrils." David said: "Thou takest away their breath, they die, and return to their dust." (Job 33:4; Isa. 2:22; Psalm 104:29.)

We need no further evidence that the breath of life is not an immortal soul, but rather it is that which gives life to all creatures. However the mortality of man is plainly proved by one passage alone. We do not require to look further. It is found in Genesis 3:22: "Behold the man has become as one of us to know good and evil; and now lest he put forth his hand and take also of the tree of life and eat and live forever, therefore the Lord God sent him forth from the garden of Eden, to till the ground from whence he was taken." Without partaking of the tree of life, he had no power to live forever. This must close the evidence on this point, being sufficient to show, not only, that reason and Scripture are hand in hand, but that the Bible emphatically teaches that man in his primeval state was sinless and mortal.

We will now proceed to notice man as he is since the transgression. We hold that a development of character was a natural and unavoidable sequence of man's existence. It was therefore necessary that he be placed on trial, and told what he ought to do. Accordingly, this was done. He was allowed access to the tree of life, but forbidden the tree of knowledge of good and evil. Had he continued to believe and obey God, he would have had constant access to the tree of life, which eventually would have constituted him immortal. His mortal and corruptible nature would have been changed to an incorruptible, immortal nature. This is clear from the passage we have just quoted (Gen. 3:23), for there we are told that after he sinned he was put out of the Garden, and the tree of life guarded lest he should take of it and live forever, showing most clearly that the eating of the tree of life would bring a change from mortality to immortality.

Man disobeyed God and did that which he was forbidden to do; he took of the forbidden fruit and so transgressed the law of God. Being cast out of the Garden and his access to the tree of life cut off, he became at once a son of death, and being mortal he in time returned again to dust.

We see therefore that man gained nothing by the fall, but on the other hand he lost. Before he transgressed, by continuing in obedience, he would not have died, for the reason already given; because he had access to the tree of life. Since he transgressed he must die, though he walk in obedience to the law of God, yet he must die and wait for a resurrection from the dead. We see then that Adam, by one act, brought upon himself and posterity the dark oblivion of an endless night. God in the plenitude of His mercy and loving kindness provided a new way of life—an escape from the gloom and darkness of death to incorruptibility and life—to an endless existence in the Paradise of God. Such then is man since he transgressed, a sinner, corruptible and mortal. Let no one flatter himself that he is immortal and will live hereafter; unless he seeks for immortality in God's own appointed way, he will be "brought to the grave and remain in the tomb."

I submit that this is reasonable, philosophical, and in accordance with all we know of man, and the plain teaching of Scripture, as I have already shown, and will further show by asking you to note this fact, that the word "immortal" occurs but once in the Bible, and is applied to God. It is found in 1 Timothy 1:17: "Now unto the King, eternal, immortal, invisible, the only wise God, be honour and glory for ever and ever."

Notice again: the word "immortality" occurs but five times, and is never applied to man, but to God, or held forth as something for man to seek after. It first occurs in Romans 2:7: "To them who by patient continuance in well-doing seek for glory and honour and immortality." Again, 1 Corinthians 15:53: "This corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality." Again, 2 Timothy 1:10: "By the appearance of our Saviour, Jesus Christ, who hath abolished death, and brought life and immortality to light through the gospel." And again, in 1 Timothy 6:14: "Until the appearing of our Lord Jesus Christ, which in his times shall shew who is the blessed and only Potentate, the King of kings and Lord of lords, who only hath immortality, dwelling in the light which no man can approach unto; whom no man hath seen nor can see."

Such is the plain Scripture testimony concerning immortality. It is inherent only in Him who dwells in the light which no man can approach unto, and which is held forth for man to seek after. Is it not strange that men will continue to teach that man is immortal, and must by virtue of his creation live forever in happiness or misery in the face of such Scripture testimony? ## Paul's Sermon on Mars' Hill

By Gordon Landry, Hammond, Louisiana

MARS' HILL was the scene of daily disputations, the court where many doctrines and philosophies were introduced into the life of the Greeks! Countless numbers of people entered that court with the sole purpose of arguing their beliefs and trying to persuade others of their plausibility. No one knows the number of new theories introduced there—theories that had no background except the person's own imagination. Even some of the Jews had been "carried away" with rhetoric of the debaters, and thus had let their own judgment dwindle to a point of nothingness. They had slipped from the guiding care of Jehovah, and, along with many Greeks, had fallen into the disgrace of worshiping idols. No longer did they rely upon God to help them in their distresses. No longer did they offer burnt offerings before Him for their sins. No longer were they "moved with fear" at the thought of the Supreme Being who had brought them out of the land of Egypt, who had rescued them from the yoke of bondage.

As Paul lingered in the city, waiting for Silas and Timothy, he noticed that it was wholly given over to the worship of idols. He was surprised at the laxness of their thoughts in regard to religion. The Scripture states that "his spirit was stirred in him." Why was this so? Because "all the Athenians and strangers which were there spent their time in nothing else, but either to tell, or to hear some new thing."

When Paul was encountered by "certain philosophers,"

he did not immediately denounce them for their beliefs, though they were wrong. Instead, he began with one of their altars which had the inscription, "TO THE UNKNOWN GOD," and preached Christ to them. He had the ability to adapt himself to any circumstances that arose. So good was Paul at this style of teaching, that he quoted their own poets to them—"in him we live, and move, and have our being." Even that great sermon, preached by one of the most zealous apostles Jesus had, persuaded only a few, however, for "some mocked," and others said, "We will hear thee again on this matter."

Are we zealous in things pertaining to the Word of God? We must be zealous, for Christians of today are surrounded by a pleasure-loving world. Money and pleasure have become gods to the people of the earth, and especially to those of the United States. We are coming more and more to see the conditions of which Christ spoke while yet on earth. We need not go far to notice that the world is thinking only of "eating, drinking, marrying, and giving in marriage." Woe unto this evil and adulterous generation! God "hath appointed a day, in the which he will judge the world in righteousness by that man whom he hath ordained," even Jesus, our Lord and Saviour. In righteousness shall He judge the wicked! "Come out of her, my people, that ye be not partakers of her sins," for "the wages of sin is death"—final, everlasting, complete cessation from life! But "the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord."

News and Prophecy Digest

By C. E. Randall (Fonthill, Ontario)

FRUITS OF UNBELIEF. The sons of Israel are going back to the Holy Land in unbelief. Their rejection of the Messiah constituted unbelief. In this state of unbelief, they will continue to be severed branches, cut off from their parts and their hope. With such a background, it is not surprising that they would leave in their midst radicals who would resort to unlawful tactics to accomplish their purpose. The terrorism that is being carried on in Palestine by these unbelieving radicals is alienating the sympathy and moral support in Christendom for the re-establishment of a Jewish homeland. It is hard to see what useful purpose these hoodlums hope to achieve. If the full truth were known, however, it would probably reveal a similar pattern of foreign conniving that is inciting trouble in most of the democratic countries. There appears to be a determination on the part of one "ism" to keep the world in constant ferment. In this, Communism is making good headway with its many stooges who love this ideology above country or religion. Unrest and physical combat, whether in Palestine or this country, have their roots in unbelief.

"I'M NOT CONTENT to be only a hearer of the Word. I want to be a doer—a Christian steward."

UNWALLED VILLAGES. The tenor of prophecy seems to indicate that Palestine will not be a fortified land when the nations finally gather there for the last great struggle. It is spoken of as being a land of "unwalled villages" where the people live at peace and dwell "without walls, and having neither bars nor gates."

Premier Pasha of Egypt has lately announced that within three years the British are to remove their military forces from Egypt. There are about 100,000 British soldiers stationed in Egypt. Already construction of British barracks is under way in southern Palestine to take care of a sizeable occupation force in the Holy Land. And it is rumored that the island of Cyprus is being prepared for additional men and equipment.

This does not fit into the picture given by the Prophet. It would seem that the British will have to get out of Palestine and leave it out of its Empire defense scheme, if prophetic prediction is to be fulfilled. Palestine and the adjoining Arab states will be a buffer area between the king of the North and the king of the South. At least, that is the way it appears to this writer. I would not wish to have any receive this proposition as a hard and fast condition which must be fulfilled. It is suggestive for study.

"BETTER TRY something and fail, than try nothing and succeed."

GERMAN YOUTH. In the Russian zone of occupation, a Youth Movement was organized when Marshal Zukov was military governor. This movement has grown until it is reported to have a membership of 200,000. The organization takes in those between sixteen and thirty. An article in "World Report" on "Russia Opens Drive to Win German Youth," carried this analysis of the aim of the organization: "Propaganda now being issued by the Russian-sponsored organization is designed to build pro-Russian sentiment among the young people throughout Germany. The youth movement has its own publishing house. Books and pamphlets distributed through the youth movement in the Russian zone are almost exclusively Marxist and anticapitalist publications. Thousands have turned up in the United States, British, and French zones."

The speakers are reported to be Moscow-trained. One, according to the article, stated in his speech, "Our foreign policy must be directed toward the East and Russia. Our entire economy must be directed and organized in conjunction with the East. If we were to deal with the West in any economic or political matter, we would again sink down into the gutter."

According to Ezekiel, Gomer (Germany) is to be allied with Gog in the last foray of military might. It is to be expected that previous to this last summoning of the nations to battle, that Russia and Germany will be allied together. Gomer will be under the leadership of Gog when they come against the mountains of Israel. In spite of the determined effort of the Western Democracies to restore Germany to the council of peaceful nations, her role in the last struggle must be fulfilled. German youth will some day goose-step under the banner of the hammer and sickle, and to the militant strains of the Red Internationale.

"IT IS BETTER to look ahead and prepare than to look back and regret."

MONORAIL TRAVEL. The past week before this copy was prepared, we made a 2000-mile trip by auto. The weather was ideal and the roads were good. It was twenty-five years ago that we first took a long trip by auto. A big change in cars has been made since then. Roads have been greatly improved. On that trip of twenty-five years ago, we spent one whole day making ninety-five miles on non-graveled roads with the gumbo well mixed with an all-day rain. Today, that same road could be safely covered in two hours during a steady downpour of rain. Time makes big changes. Greater changes are ahead of us in modes of transportation. In Europe, monorail cars are being operated at speeds up to 125 miles per hour. Such travel is comfortable, clean, and safe. Engineers are talking of 200 miles per hour by this type of travel. One could cross the continent in half a day by this mode of travel. Test flights have been made with a new 400-passenger plane. The tail of the plane stands as high as a five-story apartment building. Distances and time are becoming of little consequence these days. It is a great age!

"THE BEST WAY to get even is to forget."

AWOLS. There were several AWOLS here in Canada at the end of the war—servicemen who were away without leave of absence. In Richmond, Virginia, in a veteran's Sunday school class, a discussion centered around church attendance. Out of a confirmed membership of 1,000, there was only an average of 280 per service. These veterans thought something should be done about these church AWOLS. Said ex-Captain Charles Waltz, concerning these Lutheran AWOLS: "After all this talk about helping the veteran find himself, it's about time somebody rehabilitated the folks back home. We think there is quite a lot of fighting still to be done before we and our children can have a future which measures up to our yardstick. We think a church with fewer members AWOL offers a solution." These fifty Lutheran GIs went out in twos to round up the AWOLS of their church. The first Sunday showed an improvement in attendance of 70 per cent.

Every church has a large number of these AWOL members—people who feel secure in their relationship to the Lord through their inactive church membership. These lukewarm members are in danger of eternal condemnation. It would have been better for them not to have known the way of righteousness, than to be AWOL. The example of the Richmond, Virginia, boys may be one way of bringing these lost ones back into the fold.

"THE ONLY PEOPLE who enjoy hearing your troubles are lawyers. They get paid for it."

KINGS OF THE EAST. Revelation, which implements the prophecies of Daniel, speaks about the "kings of the East" and the way being prepared for them to cross the Euphrates. East here is in relation to Palestine. It takes in India and China as well as the lesser or smaller nations. That these countries are to have a prominent role to play in the final scene appears clear. The awakening that is going on in these nations is not without Biblical significance, and students of the prophetic Word will do well to keep in touch with developments in Asia or the Far East. Just what part these nations will play is not made plain or their line-up in the final battle of the age. The main thing that should concern us at the present time is the preparation that is being made by these countries to take their place in the affairs of the world. Many people look for the final clash between nations to be largely the orientals against the occidentals. This pattern finds little support in the Word. They are, however, awakening, and it may be the preparation for their westward march.

MAN AS HE WAS, AS HE IS, AND AS HE SHALL BE

We must hasten to the consideration of man as he is in death. It is evident if man is mortal that he must be unconscious in death, for no dead man can think; as consciousness, or mind, is the result of brain power or force in a living organism, unconsciousness must therefore result when that organism falls into decay, or is chilled in death. Our every-day experiences prove this to be the case; all thought and consciousness cease with the expiring breath. This is also the plain teaching of Scripture. Consider the evidence:

David said: "Return, O Lord, deliver my soul, oh save me for thy mercies' sake; for in death there is no remembrance of thee; in the grave who shall give thee thanks?" (Psalm 6:5.)

Job said: "As the waters fail from the sea, and the flood decayeth and drieth up, so man lieth down and riseth not; until the heavens be no more they shall not awake nor be raised out of their sleep" (Job 14:11, 12).

Again David said: "The dead praise not the Lord, neither any that go down into silence" (Psalm 115:17). "Shall thy wonders be known in the dark, and thy righteousness in the land of forgetfulness?" (Psalm 88:10, 13.) "His breath goeth forth, in that very day his thoughts perish" (Psalm 146:4).

Solomon said: "The living know that they shall die, but the dead know not any thing . . . their love and their hatred and their envy is now perished. Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might; for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom in the grave whither thou goest" (Eccl. 9:5, 6, 10).

No further testimony is needed to show that the Scriptures agree with me in saying that man in death is unconscious. What a fearful contrast with the ecclesiastical teaching of the day! I leave it with you to say which you will believe—God or man.

We now proceed to the consideration of the last point. Having found that man was and is mortal, corruptible, "a son of death"; that in death, or the grave, he is asleep—unconscious—knowing nothing—that immortality, or eternal life is a gift of God to those who seek for it—who by faith and obedience develop a Godlike character, it follows that whoever fails to comply with the conditions—fails to seek for it in God's appointed way, must perish—cease to exist forever. Paul said in Romans 6:23: "The wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life, through Jesus Christ our Lord."

Ezekiel said (18:4, 20): "The soul that sinneth, it shall die." James said (1:15): "Sin, when it is finished, bringeth forth death." Job said (21:27-32): "The wicked is reserved to the day of destruction. He shall be brought forth to the day of wrath . . . he shall be brought to the grave, and remain in the tomb." Paul said (2 Thess. 1: 8, 9): "They that know not God, and that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ, shall be punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord, and from the glory of his power." This agrees with the words of David (Psalm 145:20): "The Lord preserveth all them that love him, but all the wicked will he destroy." And with Matthew 3:12: "He will gather his wheat into the garner, he will burn up the chaff with fire unquenchable." Thus shall the end be of that part of mankind who fails to obtain that immortality which has been brought to light through the gospel. They shall go away into everlasting punishment, which is death, from which there is no release—"a land of forgetfulness," from which they will never return.

What a contrast with popular teaching, which consigns the wicked to conscious pain and suffering in hell forever; a doctrine founded on the lie of the serpent, "Thou shalt not surely die"; and that, too, in the face of thirty-two texts that say the wicked shall "perish"; thirty texts that the wicked will God "destroy"; forty texts that the wicked will be "destroyed"; eleven texts that the wicked shall be "devoured"; twenty texts that the wicked shall be "consumed"; fourteen texts that the wicked shall be "burned up" as thorns, as briars, as tares, as stubble, and as chaff; fifty texts which say the wicked shall become "extinct"—in all two hundred thirty times declared in Scripture that the wicked shall be destroyed without remedy—root and branch—cease to exist, and become as though they had not been.

But what awaits the righteous? I answer, Unspeakable joys, a wealth of life, an everlasting inheritance of all things. For, said the Apostle: "The wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life, through Jesus Christ our Lord." Paul said: "God will render eternal life to those who seek for glory, honor, and incorruptibility" (Rom. 2:7, Diaglott). The Saviour said: "This is the will of him that sent me, that every one seeing [discerning] the Son and believing into him may have aiōnian life, and I will raise him up at the last day" (John 6:40).

Such is the Scripture testimony, and I submit that it is reasonable. Every atom of our nature goes out after a higher life; a consciousness that we are corruptible, mortal, begets within us a strong desire for more enduring existence.

But not only is immortality, or eternal life the reward of the righteous, but more, far more. "He that liveth for ever shall inherit all things" (Rev. 21:7). Eternal life without a dwelling place, without a purpose, would be no reward; it is therefore inseparably connected with the "land" inheritance.

David said (Psalm 37): "The righteous shall inherit the earth and delight themselves in the abundance of peace";

"the righteous shall inherit the land and dwell therein for ever." Such shall be the reward of those who overcome evil with good; who obtain immortality by a willing obedience to God's appointed way of life. Such is the clear testimony of Scripture concerning man, as he was, as he is, and as he shall be.

In closing, I submit that it is a reasonable and philosophical solution of the great problem of man; not only sustained by reason, but emphatically taught by that book we call the Bible; which sets at naught the vain philosophy of men, and the foolishness of the Greeks, who attempted a solution of the problem by the dim light of reason alone, and instead of holding forth for the disobedient and unbelieving, a conscious existence of pain and suffering in the subterranean recesses of Tartarus, forever associated with spirits, hobgoblins, and devils, the Bible exhibits a death from which there is no release—an everlasting cutting off from life. Instead of the gloom and darkness of an endless night for all of Adam's race, it exhibits for the believing and obedient, an immortal crown of life, radiant with all the glories of an age made perfect by a "hand that is all divine."

Instead of a visionary Elysium, "beyond the bounds of time and space," for the good, it exhibits for the believing and obedient an eternal inheritance of the vine-clad hills of Judea's land, with a dominion which shall extend from the rivers that will then flow out of Jerusalem, to the ends of the earth, brought back from the blight of sin, and blossoming into the Paradise of God.

OUR COLLEGE

in which several letters of Paul are being studied.

The course in Public Speaking is intended to teach the art of speaking in public with emphasis upon practice in organizing and presenting oral compositions, which are usually in the form of sermonettes.

The course entitled, "The Pastor—His Office and Work," teaches the practical phase of preaching. Students are taught the pastor's work in relation to the church and community. Recently, students in this class have been preaching funeral sermons.

The course in Composition I emphasizes the mechanics of writing with plenty of drill in spelling, vocabulary study, and English usage.

In "Apostolic History," the Book of Acts is being used in an effort to understand the principles of Christianity as taught by the apostles. Practical Christian living is the chief aim.

The text, "History of the Hebrew Commonwealth," is used in the Hebrew history course. This is a study of the origin, trials, and progress of the Israelites, which is necessary for a proper understanding of the Old Testament.

"Religious Psychology" is a study of human behavior, the knowledge of which it is hoped will create a better understanding of ourselves and with those with whom we are associated. Much thought is given to a better understanding of our Christian experience and learning how to get along with people.

"Religious Journalism" is designed to train students in the art of writing, with emphasis upon preparing religious articles for THE RESTITUTION HERALD.

"Religious Art" teaches the fundamentals of art and the influence of religion upon art. The value of art in teaching religion is also studied.

In music, special training in solo and group singing is given.

The history of established colleges reveals that their growth was usually slow. Many of them operated for years as academies, before they sought recognition as colleges. Likewise, it will require time, patience, faith, and much prayer before we can grow substantially. We need more students before we can raise our standards to that point where we shall be able to compare favorably with other small colleges. More students will permit more economical operation and permit a more attractive college program through a wider selection of subject offerings. The number enrolled this year is encouraging, but we need many more students. Our college is a Bible College, so send us students who are interested in majoring in Bible. No one doubts our need for a Bible College. If we have a sufficient number of students, a competent and consecrated college personnel, and your loyal support, there is no reason why we cannot grow into an institution that will train all the ministers we shall need. The nearer we approach the coming of our Lord, the more convinced we should become that all of us should be majoring in spiritual education. It hardly seems that anything else is worth while.

THE TRUMPET CALL

By Mary Mae Nedrow, Oregon, Illinois

Loudly some day the trumpet will blow,
And all who wait for Him will know
The time has come to gather there—
At that happy meeting in the air.

The dead in Christ with cheeks aglow
Will greet their loved ones then we know.
They'll rally round their Lord and King
And hallelujah songs they'll sing.

Christ is the wide salvation Door—
Our hope of life forevermore.
When the trumpet calls in triumph song,
May we be numbered with the throng!

REPENTANCE

our fellow man. How can we expect to be granted forgiveness of God for some big sin if we refuse to forgive our fellow man—perhaps a friend—some very trivial offense? We cannot so do. We must forgive others if we wish to be forgiven ourselves. This very thought is expressed in the Lord's Prayer, which we use every day. Yes, before we can ask our heavenly Father for forgiveness for our sins, we must first forgive all those who have sinned against us. This is a command of God!

WATCH YOUR WORDS

"A careless word may kindle strife;
A cruel word may wreck a life;
A bitter word may hate instill;
A brutal word may smite and kill;
A gracious word may smooth the way;
A joyous word may light the way;
A timely word may lessen stress;
A loving word may heal and bless."

—The Bible Friend.

LIVING SERMONS

"There isn't a word that a preacher can say
No matter how lovely or true,
Nor is there a prayer that his eager lips pray
That can preach such a sermon as you.

"You vowed to serve Christ, and men know you did;
They're watching the things that you do;
There isn't an action of yours that is hid,
Men are watching and studying you.

"You say you're 'no preacher'; yes, but you preach
A wonderful sermon each day;
The acts of your life are the things that you teach
It isn't the things that you say.

"If Christians were Christians, as they do profess,
Men would notice their glorified mien;
And say, 'What wondrous things they possess
Who follow the meek Nazarene.'

"Oh, Christians, remember, you bear His dear name,
Your lives are for others to view.
You are living examples; men praise you or blame,
And measure all Christians by you."

BOOK PARADISE

By Arlen Marsh

"I do not see why we cannot all be friends and help each other and thus advance the whole basic standard of livelihood of the broad masses of people of every land."—Winston Churchill, statement to press, October 29, 1946.

Possibly the best answer to Mr. Churchill's hopeful utterance, dragged out of him by acrimonious name-calling on the part of Russia's Stalin, is to be found in Blueprint for World Conquest (Human Events, Inc.; $3.50).

Blueprint for World Conquest carries the official text of three major documents: the Theses and Statutes of the Communist International as adopted by the Second World Congress in July and August, 1920, in Moscow; the Constitution and Rules of the Communist International, adopted by the Sixth World Congress at Moscow on September 7, 1928; and the Program of the Communist International, also adopted by the Sixth World Congress during the 1928 sessions.

Senator Vandenberg wanted to know, after his return from the first meeting of the United Nations Organization in London this year, "What is Russia up to now? It is, of course, the supreme conundrum of our time."

The documents contained in Blueprint for World Conquest answer Mr. Vandenberg's query, as well as Mr. Churchill's idealism. From the third of the documents already mentioned comes the observation:

"The Communists disdain to conceal their views and aims. They openly declare that their aims can be attained only by forcible overthrow of all existing social conditions. Let the ruling class tremble at a Communist revolution. The proletarians have nothing to lose but their chains. They have a world to win."

In addition to the official documents, Blueprint for World Conquest includes a very much worth-while introduction by William Henry Chamberlain, internationally known authority on world relations. In brief, the book offers first-rate source material in the study of Bible prophecy, of diplomacy, of modern history, and of political science.

*Prepared by Madge Savage
Waite Park, Minnesota*

Jacob said, "Behold, I have heard that there is corn in Egypt: get you down thither, and buy for us from thence; that we may live, and not die" (Gen. 42:2).

A Young Food-King

Joseph, at the age of thirty years, was given control of the food in Egypt. He was a food-king, we might say. Whatever he said the people had to obey. He stored one-fifth of all the crops. (Gen. 41:34, 35.) This he continued to do until the seven good harvests were past. There were such large amounts of grain! The grain was stored in the cities. Then they also stored it right in the fields. At first, Joseph kept an account of the amount he had collected. It became "as the sand of the sea, very much" until he could no longer count it! (Gen. 41:49.) This grain Joseph stored would save the lives of the people during the seven years of famine.

Storing Treasure

Pharaoh was wise when he believed Joseph told him the true meaning of his dream. Otherwise there would have been no food stored for future use.

People are wise today who store treasure. The kind of treasure wise people store is Spiritual treasure. The Word of God is to be stored in the heart to keep one from sinning when "drawn away of his own lust, and enticed" (James 1:14).

If the Word is not continually stored there will likely be a famine for the "bread of life." Christ is called that "bread." He is to be our portion if we remain true Christians. So let us study the Word. Then by the "renewing" of our minds, we can bring forth fruits of righteousness and peace and love.

Years of Famine

The seven years of plenty were over. Crops failed. Famine was in "all the lands."

The people of Egypt cried unto Pharaoh for food. They had none and were hungry. Pharaoh said to all his people, "Go unto Joseph; what he saith to you, do" (Gen. 41:55).

The crop failures spread over "all the face of the earth" (Gen. 41:56). Joseph opened all of the storehouses in the cities and in the fields. The Egyptians came and bought food. How happy they were to have food to eat!

Not only the Egyptians, but "all countries came into Egypt to buy corn; because that the famine was so sore in all lands" (Gen. 41:57).

Was it not wonderful that God had revealed the meaning of Pharaoh's dream to Joseph? There were other godly men, but to Joseph was the dream revealed. Israel, Joseph's father, in the land of Canaan, had not been warned. Each one has some work to do for the Lord. All have not the same work. Israel was the father of the twelve "tribes" or families of Israel. Joseph here became the one who saved the lives of the peoples of the world.

Using Stored Treasure

When we discover a lack of God's Word in our lives, we also find we have drawn away from Him. But Christians have been promised that "sin shall not have dominion over you" (Rom. 6:14). In order to make that true in our lives, there must be a "spiritual check-up" every so often. We are told we should judge ourselves. (1 Cor. 11:31.) Then if we do what is right, we will not be condemned.

Let us try our very best to add to our faith, purity, knowledge, temperance, patience, godliness, brotherly kindness, and love. "If ye do these things, ye shall never fall" (2 Peter 1:5-11).

Be the Man God Would Have You Be

"Patient with others, but strict with myself;
Loving to give, and refusing all pelf;
Doing the right, though it brings me no fame;
Honoring Christ, because signed with His name;
Helping the downcast, and cheering the sad;
Living our creed, till it makes the world glad;
Fond of our work, of our friends, of our land;
Walking by faith, daily led by God's hand;
This is the pathway the saints all have trod;
This is the life hid with Christ's life in God."

ANOTHER GRAB IN OUR BEREAN IDEA BAG

JAMES M. WATKINS

- I think that to make the work of the Young People's Societies more interesting and effective we should, for one thing, have a new book that would have lessons written in such a manner as to give lesson variableness. That is, instead of having scripture and questions, we should have lessons in the form of quizzes, debates, etc.

I also feel that older people should be encouraged to take teacher-training so they will be better prepared to understand and help us.

I think, too, that the Bereans should be encouraged to have socials. Perhaps not too often, but certainly not too seldom, either. Socials provided by the church can provide recreation that will fill up our spare time, and we would have no interest in seeking pleasure somewhere else where the people we would likely come in contact with are those who may be less desirable companions. Or, if the church would have more activities for the young people in which they could participate, they would not become restless and disinterested. They could develop prayer groups, have guest speakers, or build up a choral group.

I feel also that National Berean Headquarters should keep in better contact with local organizations, making sure that all have the same opening procedure and order of business. A well-organized meeting has a certain atmosphere that is not present at a harem-scarem gathering.

Choruses also can add to the spiritual atmosphere of a meeting if properly planned and carried out. I think they should be planned ahead of time, and should pertain, of course, to the subject of the lesson.

Young people, especially in the summer, tire of long, tedious lessons even on the Word of God. If they are made more interesting I think that most of the younger people will become more interested in the Berean study and will be helped to lead a better Christian life.

Laura Bankston, Ponchatoula, Louisiana.

"Let us run with patience the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith; who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God" (Heb. 12:1b, 2).

There are many things that are needed to make a young people's meeting interesting. First of all, a variety of ways to present the lesson will help to give the meeting the lively attitude which is needed, also have the class help out in the discussion. Not only is a good study needed but also a snack after your meeting.

There are many ways a lesson can be given. To make a lesson interesting try to be original in the type you are giving. Some of the ways that will help in your planning is to base your lesson on the following types:

- (a) Panel discussion.
- (b) Debate.
- (c) Assignments of sub-questions.
- (d) A dramatized lesson.
- (e) A practical experiment or example.

There are also many other ways to present the thought of a lesson if just a little consideration is given.

To get the class to co-operate in the discussion, assignments can be handed out in advance or you can just wait until they come and "pop" the question at them. They will usually have a good answer. Sometimes they will surprise you and give a very wonderful thought that will help in putting the lesson across. My experience has been that after a while they will get to talking without being asked.

A small snack after class will add wonderfully to the fellowship with one another. If possible, it is nice to let everyone help in getting the snack. There will be no cost if everyone contributes a little of the materials. By a snack I do not mean a large meal, but pop corn, fudge, caramel corn, or ice cream. Any one of these or perhaps a "Dagwood sandwich" would be good for a starter.

The lesson material should be based on things that will interest young people and not on something that could be and is taught in church and Sunday school. The practical type lesson will interest young people and will be beneficial to them. In the material National Bible Institution prints, suggestions for giving the lessons would help, in perhaps several different ways. If class material was then based upon these suggestions, it would greatly improve the inspiration of the meeting

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CALENDAR

January 27-31—Midwinter Ministerial Conference at Oregon, Ill.

WRAY, COLORADO

In spite of snow and bad roads, several attended services at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Al Schakelar, Bro. and Sr. Schakelar live two miles north of Wray on the Holyoke Road. The writer, pastor of the Church of God of Moorefield, Nebr., had charge of the services. There will be services at this place again on the second Sunday of December—preaching at 11:00 a.m.; dinner at noon; preaching at 2:30 and again in the evening.

The writer began a series of meetings at Alliance, Nebr., on Sunday, November 10, and will continue these meetings over the third Sunday.

There will be preaching services at Moorefield, Sunday morning, November 24; at Jeffrey Queen the same afternoon; and again at Moorefield at 8:00 p.m. E. E. Giesler.

HAMMOND, LOUISIANA

Friday, November 8, it was our privilege to baptize Charles E. Landry and George Authon in the name of our Saviour for the remission of their sins. They are fine, sincere young men, and we pray God's blessing upon them. Charles is a soldier and now on his way overseas. George is finishing high school this year and planning to attend Summer School next year.

The Lord has blessed the young people here in Happy Woods. Sunday, November 3, they gave what we consider to be the best service they have given to date. Their theme was, "The Way to Salvation." Four sermons on "Faith," "Repentance," "Baptism," and "A Holy Life" were effectively presented by Rita Landry, Laura Bankston, Marjorie Bauerle, and Marie L. Walker. All the hymns concerned salvation and accepting Christ as Saviour.

May God continue to bless us all as we strive to do His will.

James Mattison, Pastor.

TEXAS-NEW MEXICO

Leaving the Panhandle section, October 23, I took a swing southward and westward into New Mexico to visit a few scattered members there. A brief stop was made at Royina, Tex., and another at Partales, N. M., where two church families live who showed a warm welcome.

The next stop was at Carlsbad, N. M., where there is a small group of interested people, including five members of the church. Preaching services were held, October 24 and 25, at the home of Bro. and Sr. E. H. King. We enjoyed the work at Carlsbad and found a good interest there.

A short stop was made at the Reeves home in Loving, N. M., nearby, then, turning back into Texas, a visit was made to two families living at Kermit. The next stop was at Westbrook, Tex., where I found a welcome at the home of Bro. and Sr. C. N. Adams. From here, we visited brethren at Lorraine and Colorado City, near by. There was once a good congregation near Westbrook, at Latam, but now only a remnant remains.

Two services were held at Big Spring on October 30 and 31. This might be made a center for building a work.

On November 3, I returned to Sweetwater and held services afternoon and night with the brethren there. There are twenty or more members, and almost that many attend when there is preaching.

At Rotan there are several members, and at Hubbs, a few miles southwest, three members. These places were visited on November 4 and 5. A short stop was made at McCaulley the next day, then a visit to Asperment, where some members of the Greer family belong to the faith, and one service was held on November 6. A good interest was found here, and plans are to hold a series of meetings sometime in December.

Arriving at Rule, November 7, I found the sad news of my father's death awaiting, and took the next plane to Grand Rapids, Mich., to be there for the funeral on the 9th.

Shortly, I plan to return to Texas to continue the work there.

DEVELOPING OURSELVES

By C. E. Randall

Our Talents

- are developed by use;
- should be used to glorify God;

1. In Days of Youth. Talents vary in different people. Some have one gift, some have another, but all have some special talent in some respect. Regardless of the nature of our special abilities, the time to use them for the Lord in the days of youth (Ecc. 12:1). If, when young, service to the Lord is begun, it becomes a habit that grows and becomes more pleasant as the years draw on. The largest percentage of those in Christian service today, started in early childhood.

2. Virtues. There are certain virtues that seem to be inherent in most people. These qualities of goodness, while in themselves they do not bring one into the grace of life, are brought to their highest degree of perfection when one does come into the Lord Jesus. Christian service is the finishing school for all virtues. Growing up in Christ, who is the Head in all things, develops one into the measure and stature of the Son of God (Eph. 4:13).

3. Spiritual Gifts. The Scripture speaks about "spiritual gifts" (1 Cor. 14:12). These gifts of the Spirit are many, but all are given to the end that they may be a "profit" to the called of God (1 Cor. 12:7). It takes these various gifts to make the body complete. If some fail to use their gifts, then the body must suffer. Usually people think of gifts in the sense of singing, teaching, praying, preaching, etc., which of course is true; but these are not all the gifts. According to 1 Corinthians 12, it is a gift to use the ears to hear; it is another gift to use the eyes to see. One can hear the things that are true, beautiful, and edifying. It is a gift to be a good listener. So it goes; many or the seemingly unimportant things become vitally essential in the Spirit-filled church.

4. Self-Denial. What greater gift could one desire than the desire and ability to deny self and take up the cross of Christ (Matt. 16:24)? Self-development comes through self-denial. The person who develops sound character is the individual who is able to discipline himself, and if one member of the body offends, does not permit it to defile the whole body (Matt. 5:29). Paul would have us mortify (put to death) the things of the flesh that work unrighteousness (Col. 3:5).

AS TAUGHT TO PRAY

By Charles W. Howe

Father (blessed Name), as heav'n's surround
The earth, o'en so, let men be found
In Thee, doing Thy perfect will;
For needs provide, but pardon, still,
Is needful too, when, so to live,
Men fail; forgive; help us forgive.
Though tri'ls may come, let them not stay,
Keep us within Thy perfect way.
Since Thou alone eanst truly reign
O'er men, with pow'r to cleanse sin's stain,
Though much there be we conquer o'er,
The glory's Thine forevermore. Amen.

PILGRIMS GOING TO CHURCH

America's Historic Thanksgiving Day

America's historic Thanksgiving Day was proclaimed in November, 1623, by Governor Bradford. Thanksgiving Day, now a national holiday in the United States, commemorates the bountiful harvest reaped by the Pilgrim colonists in 1623, after a winter of intense suffering, privation, and death. Indeed, the summer of 1623 had threatened another pathetic winter, intense drought seeming certain to ruin the crops. In desperation, yet in faith, the Pilgrim colonists prayed, as for their very lives, that God would send rain. God heard their cries. God sent the rain! Miraculously, their crops revived and yielded an abundant harvest. Then Governor Bradford issued his memorable Thanksgiving Proclamation. (It appears in full on the Editorial Page.)

Thus, though a minor thanksgiving was observed in 1621, America's grand and historic Thanksgiving Day came in November, 1623. Then Massasoit and many of his Wampanoag tribesmen feasted with the Pilgrims. Then God's people went to church! Then God was near and men praised His Name!

Entered as second class matter at the Post Office at Oregon, Illinois, under act of March, 1879. Mailed weekly, except the fourth Tuesday of August and the last Tuesday of December.

Thankful Most for Christ

The approach of Thanksgiving Day moves one to be meditative of his blessings, impossible as it is to "count them one by one." Life itself seems one's greatest blessing, for without life there could be no enjoyment of other blessings. Life is basic, and we know life originates with God. "In him we live, and move, and have our being" (Acts 17:28). One then meditates of his blessing of health, with quick thought of privation, disease, and suffering so rampant in many parts of the world. Health is closely linked with happiness. Closely related to life, health, too, comes from God.

Then one meditates of opportunities, especially those of serving Christ and fellow Christians. Within the past year, it has been our privilege to work with brethren in eight states: Ohio, Indiana, Virginia, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa, and Minnesota—this in addition to our routine work with THE RESTITUTION HERALD and Oregon Bible College.

We are thankful, too, for many friends, relatives, and for a happy, healthy family. Especially are we thankful that our children of mature age have been baptized into Christ, thus having endorsed the great hope of the coming of the Lord. As one continues to meditate the richer blessings of life, there is no escaping the thought, and the truth, that Christ is far more important—indeed indispensable—to fullness of life than is commonly recognized. Yes, most of all, we are thankful for Christ.

Jesus, Head of the church, is ordained of God to be "the head of every man" (1 Cor. 11:3). God intends of Christ that "in all things he might have the preeminence" (Col. 1:18). Christ will come as King to "speak peace unto the nations" (Zech. 9:10). Even now Christ is our "one mediator between God and men" (1 Tim. 2:5). "He is the propitiation for our sins: and not for our's only, but also for the sins of the whole world" (1 John 2:3). Pathetic, indeed, that the "whole world lieth in wickedness"! (1 John 5:19.) Fully knowing our limitations and aspirations, Christ continues as the best Friend of man. He is our pledge of eventual victory. "Now we see not yet all things put under him"—put under man—"but we see Jesus . . . crowned with glory and honour." He is our proof of eventual immortality! Yes, most of all, we are thankful for Christ! Without our Lord, all life would be empty—lost. With our Lord, there can be no loss! "He that cometh to me," said Christ, "shall never hunger; and he that believeth on me shall never thirst" (John 6:35).

Governor Bradford's Proclamation

"Notwithstanding all their great paines & industrie, and ye great hope of large cropp, the Lord seemed to blast, and take away the same, and to threaten further and more sorely the familie unto them, by a great drought which continued out any raine, and with great heat (for ye most parte insomuch as ye corne begane to wither away, though it was set with fishe, the moysture whereof helped it much). Yet at length it begane to languish sore, and some of the drier grounds were parched like withered hay, the parte whereof was never recovered. Upon which they set a parte of solemne day of humiliation, to seek ye Lord with humble and fervente prayer, in this great distress. And he was pleased to give them a gracious and speedy answer, both to their owne and the Indians admiration, that lived amongst them. For all ye morning, and greater parte of the day, it was clear weather and very hotte, and not a cloud or any signe of raine to be seen, yet towards evening it began to overcast, and shortly after to rain with such swete and gentle showers, as gave them cause of rejoycing, and blessing God. It came without either wind, or thunder, or any violence, and by degree in abundance, as ye earth was thorowly wete and soaked therewith. Which did so apparently revive and quicken ye decayed corne, and other fruits, as was wonderful to see and made ye Indians astonished to behold; and afterwards the Lord sent them such seasonable showers, with an enterchange of faire warme weather as through his blessing caused a fruitfull and liberal harvest, to their no small comfort and rojoycing. For which mercie (in time convenient) they also set aparte a day of thanksgiving."

God's Thanksgiving Day

By Paul Hatch, Oregon, Illinois

IT MAY SEEM a bit preposterous for one to think of God having a day of Thanksgiving. We Americans celebrate this fourth Thursday in November each year, for we have heard that the Pilgrims in Massachusetts Colony celebrated a day of Thanksgiving the first year after they had beached at Plymouth. They gave Thanksgiving its religious significance in feasting on the bounties of a Benevolent and Provident Hand. Being a religious group, it was most proper for them to do so, and Thanksgiving has come to be an annual occurrence and observance among the American public. For God the Provider to have a Thanksgiving is unique in its implication, yet it is not out of order.

The American public, if it thinks at all along religious lines, certainly gives over the day to thanking God for the providence of material things, and, of all earth's humans, we are the most blessed in this respect. God needs not anything provided and so His Thanksgiving will be of another nature. It will be a day when His association will be with mankind, in a Personal presence, a close association of Benefactor and Redeemer, as well as Provider.

The Pilgrim fathers felt grateful to God for friendly Indians and a good harvest that autumn of 1621, although old Mother Earth shrouded one half their number during that rough New England winter of 1620-1621. Death's invasion had brought its sorrows and its hard and bitter problems. Yet in their hearts, there was room enough for thankfulness.

God's Thanksgiving in benevolence and providence is expressed beautifully by the Isaiahian prophecy appearing in the sixth to ninth verses of the twenty-fifth chapter:

"In this mountain shall the Lord of hosts make unto all people a feast of fat things, a feast of wines on the lees, of fat things full of marrow, of wines on the lees well refined. And he will destroy in this mountain the face of the covering cast over all people, and the veil that is spread over all nations. He will swallow up death in victory; and the Lord God will wipe away tears from off all faces; and the rebuke of his people shall he take away from all the earth: for the Lord hath spoken it. And it shall be said in that day, Lo this is our God; we have waited for him, and he will save us: this is the Lord; we have waited for him, we will be glad and rejoice in his salvation."

The English translation is a beautiful transcript, but it beggars the expression contained in the Hebrew. Every word as far as the Hebrew wording is concerned is most comprehensive of that day and time. Space forbids the detailed analysis of the words contained therein, but a few thoughts will be expressed showing how short the English words are in revealing to us the full significance of the Hebrew words.

It is a celebration of victory: not man's victory, but God's victory! He will have overcome the Adversary, entered the beleaguered city, and set the captives free! It is the great celebration over Death! It is the Resurrection Day! Just as people, shut up tightly in a surrounded city stubbornly defended by the enemy, go delirious with joy at the final capitulation, so it will be when God breaches and breaks through the defenses of the enemy in the City of Death. From the dungeons and foul holds, there will pour forth the prisoners, wan and wasted, who will be revived by victory of God into new life. Truly a great Day of Thanksgiving! Not for one day, but forever! The Hebrew words for "victory," "vail," "covering," connote vision far away, that is endlessness, and so forever. God-given! God-promoted! God's promise fulfilled! God's Thanksgiving Day! "Then shall the Son also himself be subject unto him [unto God] that put all things under him, that God may be all in all" (1 Cor. 15:28). Then will be fulfilled the prophecy saying: "Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God. And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death" (Rev. 21:3, 4).

THANKSGIVING

By G. E. Marsh

To Thee from whose most gracious hand,
Rich blessings fall on sea and land,
We lift our hymns of praise!
When, after winter, cold and drear,
The fields lay barren, fruitless, sere,
Thou sendest spring our hearts to cheer,
And filled with hope our days!

Amid the treetop's bursting green
The forest choristers were seen,
Their music filled the air.
The sunshine and the soft warm showers
Awoke the woodland's sleeping flowers:
To thank Thee for these fragrant bowers,
We raise our voice in prayer.

In faith we sowed each fallow field,
And trusted Thee to bless its yield,
Our labor to repay.
We watched the blades burst from the mold,
The waving green transform to gold:—
O gracious Lord, for wealth untold
We offer thanks today!

But richer blessings far from these
That come from fruitful fields and trees,
Thou didst to us impart!
For Thou hast walked with us each day,
And talked with us along the way!
Accept the gratitude, we pray,
That wells within each heart!

A LIFE OF THANKS

By Emory Macy, Kokomo, Indiana

TO BE thankful is to be thoughtful or mindful of a benefit received. The various feasts of the Jewish economy were designed to teach the spirit of thankfulness and praise, especially after harvest, the feast of weeks, the feast of tabernacles, and the peace offering of thanksgiving. (Lev. 7:11-15.)

All the monuments recorded in the Old Testament were memorials of thankfulness for the goodness of God. The twelve stones that Joshua set up in the midst of the River Jordan were a memorial, and, said Joshua, "They are there unto this day" (4:9). The ark of the covenant contained monuments to the goodness of God, for in it was Aaron's rod that budded, and the tables of the covenant, or law.

We who follow Christ are under obligation to be thankful for all things, regardless of the circumstances. Many times we hear these words spoken, "Why does this happen to me?" We should always be reminded that "all things work together for good" (Rom. 8:28). When the "odds" were against the apostles, they rejoiced "that they were counted worthy to suffer shame for his name" (Acts 5:41).

The things that come into our lives do not come by chance. The Almighty did not plan that we should consider life a gamble, full of constant worry. Instead, it is to be considered a privilege and a blessing. If all things are to be for good, then we know there is an all-wise, kind, and loving God above it all. We never should say, "It is just my luck," "Thank my lucky stars," "Thank fortune," or anything of this kind. Our thanks should be given daily to God the Father, who of His own free will has made us His children. He alone is worthy of all our praise. A joyful heart always will find something for which to be thankful. True thanksgiving is thanksgiving!

Let us be "giving thanks always for all things unto God and the Father in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ" (Eph. 5:20). Let us respond to David's exhortation:

"O come, let us sing unto the Lord: let us make a joyful noise to the rock of our salvation. Let us come before his presence with thanksgiving, and make a joyful noise unto him with psalms.

"For the Lord is a great God, and a great king above all gods. In his hand are the deep places of the earth: the strength of the hills is his also. The sea is his, and he made it: and his hands formed the dry land.

"O come, let us worship and bow down: let us kneel before the Lord our maker. For he is our God; and we are the people of his pasture, and the sheep of his hand."

TRUE GREATNESS

By Glenn M. Birkey, Rochelle, Illinois

AS THE DAY of Thanksgiving set aside by our nation is again being observed, I wonder if people of the nation are truly grateful to the heavenly Father for all blessings received during the year. As the harvest moon rises over the eastern horizon, shining on fields where the "frost is on the pumpkin and the corn is in the shock," and the nation's bins are full of products of the soil, and housewives' shelves are lined with many cans of fruits and vegetables, I still wonder, considering all the mad scramble after the "almighty dollar," if people of the nation are observing the Day only as a matter of form or if they are humbling themselves and really showing their debt of gratitude.

It seems that all we Americans are too proud and selfish to realize that all things good for us, and all that we enjoy, come down from our heavenly Father. We get reports of people in other lands not so well favored as we are. Probably the reason for their sad condition is that greed and selfishness came into their land ahead of ours. For that very reason, we should shun those things all the more. Paul, in his Letter to the Ephesians, instructed them "always and for every thing let your thanks to God the Father be presented in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ; and submit to one another out of reverence for Christ" (Eph. 5:20, Weymouth).

It should be noted that throughout the Bible we who believe in God are admonished to give thanks. Christ, who is our Pattern, gave thanks to His Father in heaven. It ought to be natural for us to be thankful and contented. Paul, in his instructions to young Timothy, said: "Godliness is gain, when associated with contentment; for we brought nothing into this world, nor can we carry anything out of it; and if we have food and clothing, with these will we be satisfied." Many are not. "But people who are determined to be rich fall into temptation and a snare, and into many unwise and pernicious ways which sink mankind in destruction and ruin. For from love of money all sorts of evils arise; and some have so hankered after money as to be led astray from the faith and be pierced through with countless sorrows. But you, O man of God, must flee from these things and strive for uprightness, godliness, good faith, love, fortitude, and a forgiving temper. Exert all your strength in the honorable struggle for the faith; lay hold of the life of the ages, to which you were called, when you made your noble profession of faith before many witnesses" (1 Tim. 6:6-12, Weymouth).

Can one realize what the world would be like today if all people in it would live even near to Paul's instruction:

to the young man Timothy? A normal child is thankful to his parents. Should not we, who pretend to be normal Christians, be thankful to our heavenly Father who shows so much mercy to us, though we are so prone to be unthankful and unholy? As we sit in our homes, gathered around the festive board on this Thanksgiving Day in the year of our Lord 1946, may we consider what little we deserve and how many blessings have come our way during the year! May our thoughts prompt us to get down on our knees before our heavenly Father and give the thanks that are due Him, then rise up and resolve to serve Him better in the time that remains before His Son comes back to earth to judge the world in righteousness by the man whom He has ordained—Jesus Christ.

DESPONDENT?

By Otto E. Dick, Oregon, Illinois

EVEN IF there had not been a bountiful harvest, it would have been good for the Pilgrims to have set aside a day in which to give thanks to God. It was quite natural that religious America should set aside a day to be observed as Thanksgiving Day. No doubt, Thanksgiving Day helped the Pilgrims to consider and appreciate the blessings that were theirs and tended to promote a spirit of thanksgiving throughout the year. Nor were the Pilgrims the first to benefit from a special thanksgiving, because people from the time of Noah to the present have, upon special occasions, set aside a time in which to give thanks.

Although we seem to have lost much of the spirit of the Day, Christians should consider thanksgiving due unto God, "Giving thanks always for all things unto God and the Father in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ" (Eph. 5:20). Not only is thanksgiving due unto God, but it is highly beneficial to him who gives thanks. It helps him to realize how insignificant are his trials and troubles and helps to lift him above them.

Sometimes we become depressed and discouraged, and, because of a combination of factors aggravated by a self-pity complex, may sink to the lowest depths of despondency. In all such situations, thanksgiving and praise are an important means of defeating the adversary and helping us to rise out of our despondency. When we get to feeling that we are most unfortunate, we should contrast our lot with that of people of the world who are truly unfortunate, even unto starvation; then we shall have cause to be ashamed. In contrast to millions of unfortunate people on the earth, let us count our blessings and give thanks daily for what we do have. He who daily expresses his thanks from the heart will develop a thankful attitude of soul which will go far toward defeating any suggestions of a depressing kind. "It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord, and to sing praises unto thy name, O most High: to shew forth thy lovingkindness in the morning, and thy faithfulness every night" (Psalm 92:1).

Thanksgiving on our part also helps us to be more desirable associates, because it will make those around us happier. It will give us courage, increase our faith, and make our work easier. A sincere feeling of thanksgiving will make us optimists instead of pessimists.

Thanksgiving and prayer are closely connected in that a true Christian should be prayerful and his prayers should include thanks to God. In fact, if our prayer comes from the heart, it will be given in an attitude of thanksgiving, whether or not it is expressed. A thankful attitude is necessary for successful communion with God. "In every thing give thanks: for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you" (1 Thess. 5:18).

When we are inclined to feel that the whole world is against us, an invoice of our blessings will help. Let us examine the nature of those things for which we should be thankful. The Pharisee prayed, "Lord, I thank thee that I am not as other men are." (Please turn to page 11)

Pilgrims landing at Plymouth Rock

A Cause for Thanksgiving

By R. H. Judd, Colborne, Ontario

THE FOLLOWING statement (I know not by whom, and I am glad that it is so) appears in a recent issue of THE RESTITUTION HERALD which has been so earnestly seeking what is best both for pastor and members of his congregation. The question discussed is not new, and it is one that should be faced by all, irrespective of denominational differences.

"I think Church of God ministers have dwelt too much on teaching doctrine, when they should be teaching more Christian living."

Added to that remark is the following:

"One lady made the statement at Conference last year that the Church of God baptized her, but it took two Sundays to convert her."

The above statements have caused a good deal of re-echoing in the mind of the writer. Without in any way diminishing the good intentions of the author of the above quoted remarks, I would like to point out two things.

(1.) Is there not something at least out of place (not knowing the circumstances, one cannot say more; neither can one say less) when man or woman, young man or maiden has to confess that conversion came through one party, but baptism by another, each of the two parties being poles apart in their fundamentals of faith?

(2.) When it is taken into account the vast numbers of persons attracted to Billy Sunday's gatherings by his highly emotional and sensational methods, it would seem to the writer to be exceedingly doubtful if the proportion of genuine and stable conversions approaches anywhere near to those where the gospel of Jesus Christ is presented through the evidences of fact, rather than an appeal to the emotions of excitement or fear. These last mentioned traits were largely the methods of Billy Sunday and the late Dr. R. A. Torrey, and of such men as Dr. Smith, Haldemand, Ironside, and Anthony Zeoli.

This same question came up several years ago, causing our Brother G. E. Marsh to write an article on the subject of Doctrine, which, to me at the time, was a cause for thanksgiving—and has been ever since. It stimulated my thinking powers and intensified my study of the Word, and was at least one of the causes of earnest endeavor in God's service, and concerning which I have abundant reason for believing that God in His goodness has made my testimony a channel of blessing to many more.

We would invite the reader to study Luke's prelude to his Gospel in the first four verses of the first chapter. That they are a remarkable revelation of the strength of conviction with which Luke was possessed we feel assured that none will be disposed to deny.

In my Two-Version Bible which gives the King James Version in the text and the Revised Version in the margin, together with alternative readings which Dr. Scofield says are generally better than the Revised-Version text, we have three different readings of the first verse. These are not contradictory but complimentary to each other, each one imparting light on the topic that the other does not give. Instead of the text of the Authorized (or King James) Version which speaks of "the things for which I most surely believed among us," it calls attention to "those matters which have been fulfilled." Here apparently is a more or less direct reference to prophecy and its fulfillment, as the most convincing evidence that could be placed before a man of culture and knowledge such as Theophilus in all probability was; for The Complete Bible (S. & G.) addresses his as "Your Excellency," as language which it considers suitable to his attainments and station in life. Further, instead of the words "most surely believed among us," we are given the phrase "fully established" as an alternative rendering which to such a person as the one named and his implied characteristics, would have greater appeal than the mere information that certain persons who were probably unknown to him "most surely believed" in the new doctrine. Not that he would despise their belief without examination, but that "sincere belief" in any doctrine is no guarantee of its worth. Then again, there need be no dispute that Dr. Luke had a "perfect understanding of all things from the first," but it is comforting and important to know that he had traced the course of things "accurately."

The very opening of the narrative, which begins at verse five, brings out the strong natural traits of the author; and his evident desire to deal with facts is made plain in his very statement. Like his fellow companion Paul, he must know the certainty of the things whereof he writes. It is not enough for him to be "almost persuaded," his desire is that his hearers—and his readers—may be like him in everything else except "the costs" that inevitably follow the earnest seeker and promoter of the truth, ever pressing on to the prize of the high-calling of God in Christ Jesus. It is interesting here to note that the calling here referred to is identical in meaning to that of this present time. It is a commonly asked question—"What calling does he follow?" Paul had attained high position in various callings, as for instance, the law; and Dr. Luke was in all probability a man of equal repute as a physician. Yet, both these men were ready to count all these things as loss for the excellency—the preeminence—of the knowledge of God in Christ Jesus. Both these men realized from experience that specific and hard-earned knowledge was required before they could hope to be proficient on any of the various avenues of service to which these callings led. Further, they knew that the very knowledge gained as a reward for diligence in study became itself a motive force for still greater service and increased capacity for knowledge. Paul rightly recognized that knowledge and the power to act are closely related. The more he learned of Christ, the more he pressed forward that he might know the more, and that he might "gain the more" (1 Cor. 9:19).

I wonder if our younger brethren and sisters have ever taken up the study of the many references to those soul-strengthening words which occur in both the Old Testament and the New concerning "instruction in righteousness" (2 Tim. 3:16), wisdom and knowledge, and those oft-repeated appeals to certainty, (Please turn to page 11)

REMEMBRANCE

"That I may publish with the voice of thanksgiving, and tell of thy wondrous works" (Psalm 26:7).

ANOTHER Thanksgiving Day is approaching, a day set aside each year to offer thanks and praises unto our Lord for His loving kindness, protection, guidance, and safe keeping for the year just past. As the season approaches, I wonder how many of us think of the day set aside for Thanksgiving to our Lord? To many, it is a day only of feasting—not a thought being given to God. "That is old-fashioned. It was all right for our forefathers to offer prayers of thanksgiving and praise, but people of today do not have time to think of God's goodness."

When we fail to offer thanks to God, are we obeying His commandment? Paul, writing to the Ephesians, said, "Giving thanks always for all things unto God and the Father in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ" (Eph. 5:20). In 2 Timothy 4:3, we read of "meats which God hath created to be received with thanksgiving of them which believe and know the truth." This infers a definite commandment. When a stranger befriends us in a time of need, we do not hesitate to thank him for his kindness, yet many who profess to be Christians do not consider the necessity of thanking our Father for His care and bountiful provisions.

Christ thanked God for all things. He thanked God for insight, saying: "I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, that thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them unto babes: even so, Father; for so it seemed good in thy sight" (Luke 10:21). He thanked God for hearing His prayer. "Jesus lifted up his eyes and said, Father, I thank thee that thou hast heard me" (John 11:41). Christ thanked God for the cup. "He took the cup and gave thanks" (Matt. 26:27). Christ is our example. (1 Peter 2:21.) Should not we follow His steps in all things, if He is our Example?

Christ was not the only one to thank God. We find accounts of thanksgiving all through the Bible. The early Hebrews offered sacrifices for thank-offerings; the princes of Judah gave thanks (Neh. 12:31); Anna gave thanks to the Lord (Luke 2:38). There are similar incidents too numerous to mention throughout the Bible.

From earliest Old Testament times to days of Christ's ministry, God was foremost in the minds of God's people. They sought God's guidance at all times; they remembered to thank God for all things. They considered thanksgiving a commandment of God. They did not set aside one day a year and only on that day thank God, but they remembered His kindness every day. God blessed them for this remembrance. Shall we be blessed for our remembrance?

DECREASING GROWTH. In speaking to a group of Catholic women, Archbishop Cushing, Boston, said: "There are sobering indications that our future growth may not be as conspicuous as in the past. 1) The very low immigration rate of today; 2) the declining birth rate among Catholic families, and 3) the increase in mixed marriages." Other conditions which were deplored were the "lack of adequate Catholic education, and the social contempt of the educated non-Catholic." One of the significant assertions of the Archbishop was that the "many more than 25,000 priests" in the American church averaged no more than about "two converts."

It must not be construed by the readers that there is a feeling of despair among Catholic leaders concerning the future growth of their work in this country. It is, notwithstanding the Archbishop's words, making great gains on this continent. It does appear to be losing its hold on the peoples of Europe, and its heaviest support is coming from the West.

EXPERTS. A staff of experts has been assigned to the State Department to assist Secretary Byrnes in discussions with Foreign Secretary Bevin on the Palestine question. There are indications that the British are preparing to change their views in an effort to reach a settlement of the perplexing Jewish problem. From Cairo come reports that Egypt is going to attempt a go-between policy between the Arabs and the Jews in an effort to partition Palestine between these two groups. That some action must be forthcoming soon is apparent from all sources.

PURGATORY. Writing in Catholic Digest, Monsignor Fulton J. Sheen gives his reasons for believing in purgatory. The opening paragraph reads: "There is one word which to modern ears probably signifies the unreal, the fictional, and even the absurd in the Christian vision of life, and that is the word 'purgatory.' Although the Christian world believed in it for 16 centuries, for the last 200 years it has ceased to be a belief outside the Church, and has been regarded as a mere product of the imagination, rather than as the fruit of sound reason and inspiration."

"Product of the imagination" may be the way many Protestants look upon the teaching of purgatory, but it does have a more subtle background than the figments of the mind. The source of this evil teaching is to be found in the teachings of him who was, as Jesus said, "a liar, and the father of it." It was the teaching, "Ye shall not surely die," that gave rise to the invention of purgatory. Do away with belief in the immortality of the soul, and there would be no need of a purgatory. Belief of the lie in the Garden of Eden brought the curse upon the whole creation. Belief in it today is not unrobbed of any of its curse-resulting ends. It is still the same lie—with the same results. The fact that the teacher may be different does not change its untruth.

TROUBLE SPOTS. During the war years, there were many who expressed fear of the democracies being able to win the peace. This fear is much enlarged today. To call a roll of the places of earth where open warfare in civil strife is still being waged brings names that pretty well cover the earth. Here are a few: Poland, Trieste, Italy, Greece, Palestine, Iran, India, China, French Indo-China, Indonesia, and the Philippines.

There have been many attempts to bring these troubles before the United Nations Council, but mostly without avail. The struggling in the Dutch East Indies has been left to the British, Dutch, and Indonesian Nationalists to settle. In Iran, Kurdish tribes are rampaging in the north. Greece is rent with civil war. The Royalist Government is fighting the Communist-led guerrillas. Feeling persists among political writers that the Western powers have agreed to give this little bulwark of culture and democracy over to the Bear of the North. If this happens, and in time it will, it will be one more omen that signals the opening up of the way to the "mountains of Israel" for the Northern Confederacy.

In the Philippines, the anti-government Hukbalahaps are keeping those islands from the pathway of peace. And so the picture goes. The cries of peace are dimmed by the shouts of war. The sovereign rule of man is constantly beset with "wars and rumours of war," as the pathway of peace is crossed and criss-crossed, but never followed.

FAIR PROPOSITION. The Women's Christian Temperance Union of New Jersey has brought forth a new proposition which it will submit to the State Legislature. It proposes to force liquor interests by legislation to assume the cost of rehabilitating alcoholics. They make and sell the stuff that leads to alcoholism, why should they not be held responsible for the results? If a man drives a car down the street and causes property damage, he is held responsible. If the liquor and tobacco interests were held responsible for their casualties, they soon would go into bankruptcy. Billions of taxpayers' money is spent every year because of the crime and suffering which these two evils of mankind are permitted to blight under the guise of freedom. If Christians would take their stand against these fleshly habits, the injury which they do would be so immeasurably slashed the nation would have a new lease on life.

BROTHERLY LOVE. In Philadelphia, the city of brotherly love, the two branches of Quakers met in joint conference during the first week of November for the first time since they separated 119 years ago. The original split was largely a rural and city division.

The country folk felt some of the practices of the city churches were worldly and out of harmony with the teachings of the gospel. The country folk felt uncomfortable in the city churches. The dissident ones were led by Elias Hicks, and they were afterwards called Hicksites. Hicks denied the immaculate conception, the divinity of Christ, and the inspiration of the Scriptures.

The simple manner of life of the Quakers and their willingness to help in times of distress has made many friends for them. They have been consistent objectors to military service, but through the "American Friends Service Committee," they have carried on combatant work on a scale of great magnitude. Their coming together in conference after such a long separation is indicative of the trend among church groups.

DIVERSITY OF FAITH. The opening of the United Nations sessions in New York without prayer has provoked considerable comment in religious circles. The official reason given for not opening with prayer was "too much diversity of faith." There is a notion that should not be overlooked. They held in restraint and kept from duty because of "too much diversity of faith." Diversity of faith keeps one from that self-expression which is enjoyed where there is a unanimity of faith. People who worship where there is a diversity of faith must of necessity be constrained to speech. They do not have the liberty to teach the things which they know to be sound doctrine. Liberty to give "a reason for the hope that is in you" is wanting under such conditions. It is better to have a family where there is liberty to express faith in worship with hundreds where diversity of faith causes one to shackle conviction.

The only mention of God was in the closing remarks of President Truman. He said: "Almighty God, in His infinite wisdom and mercy, guide us and sustain us as we seek to bring peace everlasting to the world. His help we shall succeed."

DON'T SIGN. Cyril Forster Garbett, Bishop of York, in a diocese meeting urged Anglicans to refuse to sign a pledge of marrying a Catholic. He urged: "It is necessary to warn Anglicans against signing a document, and to ask them to do the most to dissuade members of our church from doing so. It means that Anglican fathers married to Roman Catholics are deprived of the right to influence the spiritual and religious upbringing of their children, means disloyalty to the church of their birth and of their fathers. It is a humiliating condition."

THE VOICE of heaven says, "Come ye her, my people, that ye be not partakers of her sins" (Rev. 18:4).

BLESSINGS FROM GOD

By Kirby Davis, Oregon Bible College

THE COMMON idea of blessings from God is that we are thankful for our Christian parents, Christian children, or for plenty of food and clothing. Often one hears in the announcement of a new arrival that Mr. and Mrs. Henry received a blessing from the Lord. True, children are blessings from the Lord. If children when of age choose, however, to go the way of the world rather than to enter the body of Christ, they become a curse to their parents. Each parent in the church wants his children to become faithful workers for Christ. We young people have that opportunity. Nothing will please our parents more than to see us shun the world and put on Christ.

God has blessed us with prosperity during the last few years. Few, if any, have had difficulty in finding work. People have much money to spend—more money than materials to buy. To many, this seeming blessing has become a curse. Some have left the church to fill their pockets with the "root of all evil." This blessing has become a curse to them. Anything that brings one into the guiding care of the Lord is a blessing; but, if that same condition keeps one away from the Shepherd's fold, he has changed a blessing into a curse. A crop or a business failure may be a blessing. Such an incidence may cause one to move elsewhere and come into closer contact with Christ—a seeming curse having become a blessing.

One's most horrible moments are sometimes blessings from God. Consider the thief who hung on a cross beside the Saviour Jesus. That man, suffering in anguish and pain, experienced the greatest moment of his life when he received the fruits of repentance, the words from Jesus, "To day shalt thou be with me in paradise." Though the thief was writhing in pain, he was receiving the greatest blessing from God ever given in his lifetime of sin. The converted thief will be in the Kingdom of God at the resurrection day. How many of us would not like to hear those words whispered in our ears, "To day shalt thou be with me in paradise"? What a blessing it would be!

Stephen received a greater blessing from the Lord at the time of his death than ever before in his life. Stephen achieved a blessing that you and I cannot hope to have. The heavens were opened and he saw the Son of God standing at the right hand of God. True, the Scripture says no man can see God and live, but here was a man who saw God and died. Was it worth it? After the resurrection day, Stephen will say, "The greatest honor that I ever received was seeing Jesus, Son of the living God, standing at God's right hand."

The time is coming when you and I may have opportunity to prove our faith to the world as well as to ourselves. Jesus told the apostles a few conditions to expect at the time of the end when He would return to this earth. Among conditions to prevail upon the earth, there is one that may include us: "Then shall they deliver you up to be afflicted, and shall kill you: and ye shall be hated of all nations for my name's sake. And then shall many be offended, and shall betray one another, and shall hate one another" (Matt. 24:9, 10). How many Christians do you suppose have made the supreme sacrifice in the European countries? Many probably were ordered to deny their God. The time is coming when we may have to "endure to the end"—which is death. Brethren, consider it a blessing to die for the Lord. When Jesus descends from heaven, your reward will be with Him.

David's and Our Thanksgiving

By Shirley Logsdon, Oregon Bible College

DAVID, perhaps more than any other person in the Bible, offered thanksgiving to God. In his Psalms, he continually was praising God for blessings given to him.

In 2 Samuel 22 appears one of the most beautiful psalms of thanksgiving that ever has been written. David was praising and thanking God for delivering him from many perils. David said: "The Lord of my rock; in him will I trust: he is my shield, and the horn of my salvation, my high tower, and my refuge, my saviour; thou savest me from violence. I will call on the Lord, who is worthy to be praised: so shall I be saved from mine enemies."

David had implicit faith in God that He would protect him. Appreciative of this protection, David offered the foregoing prayer of thanksgiving. Whether in joy or in sorrow, David praised God, realizing that only through Him do all blessings flow. "God is our refuge and strength," said David, "a very present help in trouble. Therefore will not we fear, though the earth be removed, and though the mountains be carried into the midst of the sea" (Psalm 46:1).

Consider our thanksgiving to God. Are we continually giving thanks to God? Or, do we wait until Thanksgiving Day each year to thank and praise God? We are admonished thus in Colossians 4:2: "Continue in prayer, and watch in the same with thanksgiving." In our prayers, let us be eager to thank God for our blessings, not only at the Thanksgiving season, but at all times.

We usually are willing to thank God for joyful blessings which we receive, but should we not be like David who praised God in the times of his afflictions as well as in times of joy? Let us be like David! "I will give thanks unto thee, O Lord. . . . I will sing praises unto thy name."

COME WITH THANKSGIVING

By Janice Johns, Oregon Bible College

ONCE A YEAR, our nation joins to give thanks to God for all the many and varied blessings it has received. The churches, from east to west and from north to south, throughout this country will be holding special services of praise and thanksgiving to God for His wonderful and marvelous blessings. Should we set aside one day for thanksgiving, or should not we as Christians be giving thanks continually? I believe we should do both.

God expects us to thank Him when He has blessed us. In Luke 17:12-18 is recorded the story of the healing of the ten lepers. It is told us there that only one of the lepers returned to thank Jesus for this blessing. Jesus said, "Were there not ten cleansed? Where are the nine?" Many people receive blessings and give thanks, but many others receive the blessings and never return thanks.

I believe our nation has received many blessings from God, and we should as a nation offer a prayer of thanksgiving to God. Once a year is really not enough, but it is well that we have that one day set aside for praising God and expressing gratitude for His blessings and tender mercies.

Certainly even once a day is not often enough for individuals to offer thanks to God. Psalm 136 would seem to indicate that we should give thanks to God many times in a day. If we were to thank God as often as we should for his innumerable blessings, we should be offering thanks continually.

We read in 2 Thessalonians 1:3: "We are bound to thank God always for you, brethren, as it is meet, because that your faith groweth exceedingly, and the charity of every one of you all toward each other aboundeth." Paul felt that he was blessed of God because of the increase of faith and charity unto those he was teaching, and he was bound to give thanks to God.

In Romans 1:20-24, we read of a people who did not give thanks to God and were forsaken of God. He retracted His loving care and protection, as they were turning to unrighteousness. "They glorified him not as God neither were they thankful." I do not believe we fully can realize a life without the loving care, mercy, kindness, and protection that we now have from God. For these blessings, we certainly should give thanks to God. Many times we ask God to strengthen and guide us. The answer to these prayers is certainly a blessing, for "the wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord."

We read in Psalm 95:2, 3, 6, 7: "Let us come before his presence with thanksgiving, and make a joyful noise unto him with psalms. For the Lord is a great God, and a King above all gods. O come, let us worship and bow down: let us kneel before the Lord our maker. For he is our God; and we are the people of his pasture, and the sheep of his hand." We should pray to God with humbleness and reverence, for He is the Creator of all things and through His Son we attain eternal life.

Thanksgiving Day should be observed in all solemnity. Revelation 7:12 states, "Thanksgiving be unto our God for ever and ever." We should give thanks to God for ever and ever for all things—from the least to the greatest, for all that is good comes from God.

GIVING THANKS TO GOD

By Irene Payne, Oregon Bible College

"O come let us sing unto the Lord: let us make a joyful noise to the rock of our salvation. Let us come before his presence with thanksgiving, and make a joyful noise unto him with psalms" (Psalm 95:1, 2).

ONCE A YEAR a certain day is set aside as a day of remembrance which is called Thanksgiving Day. Churches throughout the country will be holding special services in which they will be praising God and giving thanks for their many blessings. We as Christians should not only thank the Lord once a year but also should give thanks at least once a day for all the blessings we have received.

Noah was one of the first persons to give thanks. Immediately after the Flood, when God opened the door of the ark, Noah built an altar and offered thanks to God for saving his life and his family. (Gen. 8:20.)

We read in Luke 17:12-18 that there were ten lepers who asked Jesus to have mercy upon them, so He sent them to the priests and they were healed. Only one of the ten returned to Jesus and gave thanks for healing him. Most people today are like the other nine; they receive many blessings from God and never think to offer thanks for them.

In Matthew 26:26, 27, we read that Jesus took bread and blessed it, and broke it, and gave it to the disciples and said, "Take, eat: this is my body." Then Jesus took the cup, and gave thanks, and gave it to them, saying, "Drink ye all of it."

Ephesians 5:21 says we should give thanks to God always for all things in the name of Jesus Christ. We should thank God at every meal for the food we receive. God gives us so many blessings that it is very difficult to count them all. We often sing the song: "Count your blessings, name them one by one, and it will surprise you what the Lord hath done."

During the war, special days were set aside in which we went to church and offered prayer, asking God to guide and strengthen the leaders of our nation. We also thanked God for protection and guidance He gave during those trying days, and I believe He blessed us for doing His.

A CAUSE FOR THANKSGIVING

such as "that I may know," "that ye may know," and that "they may know." If they have not, they will find it profitable study.

To the Ephesians, Paul "gave thanks" that it was possible to have "the eyes of our understanding enlightened": in other words, have our knowledge extended that we might know what is the hope—the expectation—of His calling, and the exceeding greatness of His power toward them that believe. No one, it seems to me, could read the Epistles of Paul to the Ephesians and the Philippians without coming to the conclusion that Paul considered the edifying of the saints a vital and a predominant necessity. He knew, as we know today, that to whatever calling a man may be called it is impossible of realization without the objective of service to others through him. An engineer must of necessity serve others in order to serve himself, and the better he is equipped with the knowledge necessary to his calling, the greater the urge to use that knowledge in the service of others, and the effectiveness of his service made the more effective. When one is so equipped, the incentive and the desire to be a man such as he is, is often, very often, the means of inducing others to follow in his steps. It is so in the Christian life quite as truly.

In considerable correspondence with others, it has been made exceedingly clear to me that too many—far too many—base their belief on what others believe, with the consequent result that they in turn are unable to speak with the certainty of a "thus saith the Lord." God has given the head the control of the rest of the body—even the "heart." The eyes are there that we may see, and the ears that we may hear, and the mouth and the tongue that we may speak, and the brain that we may understand. Even the feet cannot move without direction from the head. It is the people who are instructed in righteousness that are blessed with right living; and it is because that instruction is lacking in our cities, in many of our churches in the so-called "great denominations," and in the homes connected with them, that evil is on the march.

He whose hope is built on "The Rock of Ages" (Isa. 26: 4, R.V. margin) cannot fail.

Humbly may I say it: Since through God's grace I have sought to follow in the footsteps of the Apostle Paul, like Brother Marsh and other members of the Church of God both in England and America, basing my conclusions on sure foundations, my life has been a new life to me in Christ Jesus. It has not been without its trials, but as far as I have had the knowledge, it has been a glad privilege to have been of service to many others. It is a happy life, one that does not count its remuneration in dollars and cents, or in titles of distinction.

"Take my life, and let it be Consecrated, Lord, to thee;
Take my hands, and let them move
At the impulse of Thy love.

"Take my silver and my gold,
Not a mite would I withhold;
Take my moments and my days,
Let them flow in ceaseless praise."

—Verse by Francis R. Havergal.

DESPONDENT?

His prayer was in praise of himself for his self-righteousness. Let us rather give thanks to God for what powers we have to serve Him and our fellow men. Let us give thanks to God for victory over sin through our Lord Jesus Christ. Let us observe this Thanksgiving Day by reconsecrating ourselves to God, giving thanks daily for our opportunity for service and for God's great plan of redemption through Christ. Why not make this Thanksgiving a red-letter day in our spiritual progress? "Thanks be unto God for his unspeakable [inestimable] gift" (2 Cor. 9:15).

Let's Play!

Today we are going to play some games. First, so that you may know the correct answers, read in your Bible Genesis 42:5-20 and 43:2-26. If you wish to be very bright in your games, read the rest of both chapters to get all the answers.

(A) An Easy One

Underline the word that makes the statement correct. Example: The sons of Israel came to buy (sheep, corn, silks) from Joseph.

1. There was a severe (wind, hailstorm, famine) in the land of Canaan.
2. Joseph was (king, governor, prince) of Egypt.
3. Joseph's brothers came to him in Egypt and (bowed, begged, laughed) before him.
4. Joseph called them (beggars, princes, spies).
5. Their (oldest, youngest, saddest) brother was to be brought.

(B) Let's Go!

Mark "T" or "F" before each statement for True or False:

1. Israel's sons made two trips for food from Canaan to Egypt.
2. They would not take Benjamin along at all, as their father wanted him with him.
3. The brothers took gifts to Joseph.
4. Joseph made a feast for them in his home in Egypt.
5. They bowed themselves before Joseph.

(C) A Game for Thinkers

Fill in the correct word, chosen from our lesson, to complete the story:

1. The famine was in the land of Egypt and in the land of _____.
2. Joseph _____ food to all of the people who came to him.
3. Joseph's _____ were without food in their land.
4. He remembered the _____ he had told them when he was a child.

5. They _____ before him as he had said _____ would.
6. They had left their _____ brother at home on trip.
7. They obeyed _____ in everything he told them to do.
8. Their youngest brother was called _____.
9. They would have starved if they had not taken _____ with them the second time.
10. Their _____ had been put back in their stomachs of feed.

(D) Matching Game

This is a game for those who know the part of the story not printed in our quarterly. Connect correct statements by drawing a line from one side to the other part of the correct sentence.

Since the administration of Abraham Lincoln there has been even a moment of war between the United States and Canada—and this, despite the economic and geographic facts outlined by the Winnipeg Free Press. Even before Lincoln, the border had not been fortified since the War of 1812.

It is a lesson which nations—and individuals as well—should take to heart. A member of the Canadian Parliament once commented, some years ago, that there were more than enough Americans in Western Canada to vote the provinces of Manitoba and the Pacific into the United States. Eco-

The undefended boundary between the United States and Canada is not 3,000 miles as so often quoted, but exactly 5,655 miles, and every inch of it undefended.

In Rock Island, Vermont, while sitting in a barber's chair, one can get his hair cut in Canada and his shoes shined in the United States. Near there, driving along the highway from east to west, the driver is in Canada; from west to east, he is in the United States.

The total trade between the two countries is greater than between any other two nations.

Americans have nearly one third of their total foreign investments . . . in Canada . . . Canadians have (large investments) in American securities.

During the war, Canada and the United States were the only two countries of the United Nations which did not give or get lend-lease or mutual aid to or from each other. All transactions were on a cash basis.

—Winnipeg Free Press.

God of heaven. Why should nations, with their faults, have to set the example for the Christian? Why should the relationship of Canada and the United States be any better than the relationship of church with church, of church member with church member?

Canadians care little for the way Americans parade their cars across the border, waving United States flags on the Fourth of July. Canadians care less for Americans who flaunt their money and their higher wage scales. And rock bottom in dislike is struck when visiting Americans

BEREAN DEPARTMENT

ARLEN MARSH EDITOR

conomically the two countries are, as the Free Press observes, inextricably interwoven; yet this economic situation has not served, as it too often has served in Europe and in Asia, to create really serious friction.

There are tariff barriers, immigration barriers, between the nations. Canadian money, even in the face of a Dominion government order of last July, is not always on a par with United States currency. In some respects, Canadian customs differ from the customs south of the Great Lakes.

But, somehow, Canada and the United States have managed to iron out their problems without recourse to threats and violence. Arbitration now and then has been more than a little difficult; but it has always been encompassed.

Yet the United States is more Anglo-Saxon in its origins than Canada. A bit more than 50 per cent of the Canadian people are descendants of the early French or of non-Anglo-Saxon races. To say that harmony has prevailed between the nations because their origins and ideologies have been the same is to ignore the facts.

The Berean Department is not particularly concerned with international relations; but it is concerned with personal relations. It seems a little odd that two powers like Canada and the United States can live at peace for 120 years when "Christian" churches must be torn by feuds and petty bickerings. It seems a little odd, especially, when we consider that a Christian, as an individual, is biblically instructed to be one whose light so shines before men that they will see his good works and glorify the try to tell Canadians how their government should be run.

These causes for dislike, however, are not permitted to generate an international incident. Canadians and Americans still live at peace together. Would God it were so among the churches! But instead:

"I don't like the way the preacher talks. I'm not going to church again until he leaves." "Our president let Bob sing that solo, when I should have done it. I'm not going to Berean meeting from now on." "I can't prove it, but I just know what the teacher said tonight about prophets wasn't so. You won't catch me going to a class he holds. Not ever!" "Imagine! Gus is going to the church now! I'll not go as long as he does."

Canada and the United States do these things better. They celebrate different holidays; their governments are different; their racial backgrounds are different; their standards of living are different; their histories are different. But they have not been childish; they have not used that ancient wheeze, "Play my way, or I'll not play on your cellar door!"

It is, we repeat, a lesson which nations and individuals should take to heart, with Christians paying particular attention. We can be wrong. We can be wrong. The emphasis, as we deal with others, should be kept in mind both ways. A monopoly on righteousness has been given to no man. Perhaps, sometimes, the other man is right.

"I will bless the Lord at all times: his praise shall continually be in my mouth" (Psalm 34:1).

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CALENDAR

December 8-15—Special meetings in the First Christian Church, Aspermont, Texas.

January 27-31—Midwinter Ministerial Conference at Oregon, Ill.

BAPTISM AT PERRYVILLE, KENTUCKY

On the afternoon of October 26, 1946, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Ray of Louisville, Ky., came up for a visit with the writer, and on Sunday morning attended Sunday school at the Church of God. On Sunday afternoon, several of the church members gathered at the home of Bro. and Sr. Vaughn Long. At three o'clock, we went to the water, where Bro. Long assisted Sr. Ray in baptism. After baptismal service, the Lord's Supper was made ready, and Sr. Ray received the right hand of fellowship.

Sr. Ray, before her marriage, was Miss Beryl Thomas, granddaughter of our friend, Sr. Amy Weaver. Perhaps some of the Oregon, Ill., congregation may remember Beryl, as she attended Conference with her grandmother in the year 1930.

We rejoice with Sr. Ray that she has taken this step. May she be a shining light to others in her Christian walk of life. We wish to add that we have preaching every first Sunday of each month. Then the Sundays following we have Sunday school, with Bro. Long as our efficient teacher. Sr. Ray's present address is 119 W. Oak St., Louisville, Ky. Quincy L. Carpenter.

OREGON BIBLE COLLEGE NEWS

Bro. and Sr. F. L. Austin entertained students of the college at their home, Friday evening, November 15.

Bro. Otto E. Dick, student counselor, Kirby Davis, Milton Hall, Raymond Brown, Arnold Johns, Irene Payne, and Mary Brown motored to Macomb, Ill., November 17, to help the Macomb brethren commemorate the fourth anniversary of their church building. Bro. Dick delivered the message and Kirby Davis sang a solo during the morning services. The college students took charge of the afternoon service. Bro. Arnold Johns was master of ceremonies. Bros. Milton Hall and Kirby Davis delivered sermonettes and the college quartette sang a selection.

Students of the college are thankful for the gift of canned pears from the Ripley, Ill., Church of God.

Bro. Paul C. Johnson was our guest speaker at Chapel on November 21. His topic was "Preaching the True Word."

As the Thanksgiving season approaches, students' thoughts have turned to this subject, as evidenced by the themes written in Composition I Class. It was the consensus that we should remember to thank and praise God at all times, instead of only during the Thanksgiving season.

Mary Brown, Reporter.

MICHIGAN FALL CONFERENCE

The fall session of the Michigan State Conference held at Blanchard, Mich., November 2, 3, is past, but the memory of it lingers as a very enjoyable time of fellowship.

Three carloads of Oregon Bible College students, teachers, and others from Oregon, Ill., came to help and conducted the service on Saturday evening. A truck loaded with Bereans from the Southlawn Church, Grand Rapids, also went for the Saturday evening service and stayed for Sunday.

On Sunday, the congregation enjoyed sermons by Sydney E. Magaw, John Denechfield, and Harvey Krogh, besides much special music furnished by the Oregon guests and the three State churches.

At a meeting of the evangelism committee, it was decided to give Bro. Leonard Brown financial backing for his work in Baraga and in the Indian settlement in Zela. It was brought to our attention by Bro. Watkins that Leonard has been paying his own expenses for this work. We are glad to have the privilege to help such a sincere worker for the Lord. A complete report of this work will be given by each church to its membership and to the isolated members by letter from the committee.

An invitation has been received and accepted to conduct the spring conference at the Pennellwood Church in Grand Rapids sometime in March. Watch for the announcement, and plan to come.

Ada C. Simpson, Secy.

CLEVELAND, OHIO

On November 3, Bro. C. E. Randall of Foothill, Ont., was guest speaker at Golden Church of God in Cleveland. A fairly large congregation in the morning was not satisfied with only one sermon, so an almost equally large group returned for an evening session. His prophetic messages are very enlightening. A two-way exchange sent our own Bro. and Sr. G. J. Gordon to Foothill, where, I understand, several fine sermons were held.

With Bro. Randall was Sr. Randall, Alice Sword, and Sr. Lillian Ralton.

On November 10, the church gave a fine dinner to its members. About ninety persons were served. In the afternoon, a business session was held, to take up pressing business (not connected with cleaning).

November 17 brought in another visitor, Sr. Guest, who is a sister of Sr. Ralton. Heartfelt sympathies and prayers go out to Bro. M. W. Lyon and his family from his Cleveland friends.

J. Don Swartz

APPRECIATION

We wish to thank all our brothers and sisters in Christ for their kindness, thoughtfulness, and prayers for us in our recent sorrow. Never is Christian fellowship more treasured and appreciated than in such a time of grief.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Dean

Gleanings From the Field

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

Sr. Lucille Wilnot, Mesa, Ariz., a member of the Tempe Church of God, is guest of Sr. S. J. Lindsay and the Val and Henry Mattison families, Oregon, Ill.

Funeral services for Bro. Charles Guge, Plymouth, Ind., were conducted, November 23, by the Editor.

Bros. Paul C. Johnson and Otto E. Dick recently addressed the College students in chapel services. Both messages were helpful and appreciated.

Bro. James M. Watkins, Director of Promotion and Co-ordinator for National Bible Institution, spent last Friday, Saturday, and Sunday with Bro. Harvey U. Krogh, Jr., and the Pennellwood Church at Grand Rapids, Mich., conducting classes in young people's work, also holding a Sunday evening youth rally.

"The church work is going forward nicely under the leadership of Bro. J. Mattison. The young people who attended Summer Bible School surely gave the work new boost."—Albert Siple, Hammond, La.

Sr. A. J. Eychaner, Omaha, Neb., preaching her ninety-fifth milestone of reports that she is now a great-grandmother. Stephen Mark was born, November 11, to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Flesher—the mother, Ann Patrice Prime, being Sr. Eychaner's granddaughter.

Bro. M. W. Lyon, National Evangelist, conducted a series of meetings, December at Aspermont, Tex. All brethren and interested persons within driving distance urged to attend.

The first quarterly Conference of the south church was held at Jordan, Nov. 16, 17. Brethren from Fredericktown, Co. ville, Kansas City, and Bosworth attended. Bros. Graham and Burnett were the speakers.

VAN NATTER - COVERDALE

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION

The Ladies Aid of Morning Star Church of God of the Abrahamic Faith, South Bend, Ind., entertained, Thursday evening, November 14, in the parsonage basement with a miscellaneous shower for Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rouch, who were married October 5, 1946. There were forty present and the ladies served a nice lunch. The newlyweds received many lovely gifts.

The marriage of George Coverdale and Emma Jane Van Natter took place at the parsonage the latter part of October, when the two plighted to each other their sacred troths. They were attended by Jack Coverdale, brother of the groom, and Vera Van Natter, sister of the bride. George is a member of the local church and the bride is a young lady of Christian ideals. They will make their home in a nearby community, and we trust their life will be graced by the Lord's blessing, and that His goodness to them will be reflected in their service to His church. C. E. Randall.

SORENSEN - SIMMONS

A quiet but very pretty wedding service was held at Southlawn Church of God, Grand Rapids, Mich., on November 9, at 6:00 p.m. With flowers and candles backing the rostrum and Miss Evelyn Barr playing Lohengrin's Wedding March upon the organ, Miss Barbara Sorenson of 212 Hines St., S.E., became the bride of Mr. Vernon M. Simmons, 411-43rd St., S.E., in a double ring ceremony.

Miss Jacqueline Sorenson and Mr. Richard Koning attended the couple. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

As these young folks look forward with joyful anticipation to the establishing of their new home, we pray the fullness of God's blessing and guidance upon them.

John L. Denchfield.

WALBRIDGE - LEDGER

Before an altar of large baskets of yellow and white chrysanthemums, Miss Belle Doris Walbridge became the bride of Jack L. Ledger, son of Mrs. Cora Truesdell of Sheldon Ave., in Klise Memorial Chapel, Grand Rapids, Mich., October 22, at 8:00 p.m., with double ring ceremony.

Mr. Nixdorf played the traditional wedding march and Shirley Rockwell sang, "O Promise Me" and "I Love You Truly." The bride, given in marriage by her father, carried a white Bible topped with roses and white streamers tied in lovers' knots.

Margaret Reas, maid of honor, carried a bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums.

Richard Blakesley served as best man, and Harvey Ledger and Roger Walbridge seated the guests.

The couple left on an extended wedding trip, and upon their return will be at home at 2349 Division Ave., S., Grand Rapids, Mich.

May God's richest blessings rest upon them in the establishing of their new home under His guidance. John L. Denchfield.

ELSIE JONES

On Monday, October 28, 1946, Sr. Elsie Jones, a long-time resident of Fonthill, Ont., and surrounding communities and member of the Fonthill church, died at the home of her daughter Ruth, Welland. Sr. Jones had been a long sufferer of diabetes, and death came as a happy release. Funeral services were held from the local undertaking parlors, with interment in a cemetery some distance from here, where her husband was buried a few years ago. Seven children, four girls and three boys, mourn her death. C. E. Randall.

MEETINGS AT TEMPE, ARIZONA

We at Tempe feel especially grateful for the privilege of having Bro. James Watkins with us for the past two weeks. Good crowds have been in attendance at all the meetings, and there is the general feeling that we have all been strengthened in faith and in appreciation of what Christ has done for us.

On the closing Sunday morning of the meetings, two school teachers were baptized in the name of Christ. They are: Miss Ethel L. Chitty, Wenden, Ariz.; and Mrs. Joe Pigg, 122 W. 8th St., Tempe. We are especially happy for the confession and obedience of these day-school teachers. If more of our regular school teachers were first obedient to Christ, there would be far less opportunity for their pupils to grow up as unbelievers in Christ or the church.

We are glad that Bro. Watkins has been chosen to co-ordinate the national work and pray that his ministry will be continued for the greater unity of the Church of God and the salvation of the lost. C. E. Lapp.

JUDD STEWART LYON

Judd Stewart Lyon was born on May 10, 1872, at Brighton, Mich. When seven years of age, his family moved to Sioux City, Iowa. His college education was finished later at the University of Wisconsin. In 1895, he moved to Hammond, La., and about two years later was baptized into the faith of the Church of God.

He was married at Chicago, Ill., October 25, 1898, to Louisa Mae Turney. Together they made their home at Citronelle, Ala., until 1941, when they came again to Michigan and Grand Rapids.

His faithful wife, four children: Melville of Oregon, Ill.; Mrs. Dorothy Siple of Grand Rapids, Mich.; Mrs. Margaret Duval of Skokie, Ill.; Mrs. Jeanne Hall of Elmhurst, Ill.; three grandchildren; other relatives; and a host of friends remain to mourn his death.

Always an ardent student and exponent of the Word of God, especially of His magnificent love and grace, we well considered God's grace to man in the prophecy and promise of resurrection "at his coming" during our last service of respect and farewell at Southlawn Church.

Interment was made at Restlawn Memorial Park on November 9, 1946.

May God's blessing be upon all as we, awake, and others, asleep, await His coming—and reunion. John L. Denchfield.

GIVING THANKS TO GOD

When we thank God for our blessings, it pleases Him to have us do this, just as it pleases us to have someone thank us for what we have done for them. If we did not have a special day for Thanksgiving, I am sure many people would never give thanks to God for their blessings.

2 Thessalonians 1:3 tells us that we are bound to give thanks unto God. God demands that we give thanks unto Him for our blessings; in other words, it is a commandment of God to do this. Ephesians 1:16 says: "Cease not to give thanks for you, making mention of you in my prayers." Let us not cease to give thanks to God, for Revelation 7:12 states that thanksgiving be unto God forever and ever.

PANORAMA OF AMERICAN LIFE AND PROGRESS

From days of the Mayflower until the present, the light of God's countenance has shone upon America. There has been struggle, but never without gain. Floods, famine, and pestilences have plagued our nation, but they have been limited in scope and of short duration. Travel has been developed amazingly. Educational facilities have multiplied. Electricity has simplified labor. Medicine and surgery have blessed millions. This, in part, is the Thanksgiving message of Sister Alice Carpenter, Oregon, Illinois.

BLEAK PACIFIC COAST OF CHILE

The Republic of Chile, lying more than twenty-six hundred miles along the Pacific coast of South America, presents a bleak, but scenic, barrier to the Sea. This long, narrow Country (its greatest width being less than three hundred miles) lies between the Andes Mountains and the Ocean. A lower coastal range skirts the Sea, holding the number of harbors to a minimum where rivers from the interior highlands have cut through the lower range into the Pacific — Valparaiso being her chief seaport.

Chile, having a population of about five million people, though predominantly Catholic, has been evangelized by several Protestant missions, particularly at Santiago (the capital), where a Union Training School and mission colleges are operated for both boys and girls.

Chile, though marked by so rugged and bleak a coast line, possesses an interior rich in nitrate fields, deposits of gold, silver, copper, cobalt, zinc, marble, tin, iron, and sulphur. Her farmland is unsurpassed in fertility, and there are many large dairy farms. Chileans are "a strong, virile nation," but Communism is growing and labor difficulties speckle her recent history. "Go ye into all the world," said Jesus. Chile? Yes! Communism? The gospel!

“Preach the Word”

Paul warned Timothy that the time would come when Christians would “not endure sound doctrine” (2 Tim. 4:3). Said Paul, “After their own lusts shall they heap to themselves teachers, having itching ears; and they shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables.” How tragic that Christians undervalue sound doctrine! It is the basis of Christian living, and when virtues of the Christian life are extolled at the expense of sound doctrine, even those virtues are endangered by their weakened foundation. Youth, especially, must not be confused by a clouded theology. Preach the Word!

College Approved for G. I. Benefits

During the past two months and more, Oregon Bible College has been waiting action on its application to be recognized as a school meriting government aid for its ex-service students. The so-called “G. I. Bill” provided for financial assistance to be given ex-servicemen, or ex-servicewomen, who may wish to attend college or industrial schools, but this assistance can be granted only when and where the “G.I.s” are attending an institution approved by its respective State Department of Education.

Though there seemed to be every good reason for anticipating that Oregon Bible College would receive this requisite approval, considerable time and “red tape” were involved. Formal application papers were filed with the State Department of Education. Then several weeks passed while waiting for an inspector to visit the School. Finally, on November 21, Mr. Ward N. Black, assistant to State Superintendent Vernon L. Nickell, came from Springfield, Illinois, to visit and investigate Oregon Bible College. A few days later, on November 25, 1946, Oregon Bible College received official notice of its approval “on the basis of its present standards, facilities, equipment, and courses”—approval for “the training of veterans for religious work and for the ministry in the Church of God.” The approval, moreover, was made retroactive to September 9, 1946, opening date of the present school term.

Three ex-servicemen, now attending Oregon Bible College, soon will be benefited, therefore, by the G.I. Bill.

The approval on Oregon Bible College is worded in such manner as to provide benefits for ex-servicewomen, as well as for ex-servicemen. While the approval is not “for advertising or recruitment purposes,” we do feel justified in making the foregoing announcement, as it should be encouraging to all our brotherhood. . . . Let every member of the Church of God continue to build Oregon Bible College in such a way as to keep God, His Son, and the true gospel foremost; then, just as rapidly as the College needs approval or recognition, God will bless to that end.

The Church Directory

From time to time, THE RESTITUTION HERALD publishes a “Church Directory.” As thus far compiled, the Directory is incomplete. Now, it so happens that the United States Census Bureau is asking for a list of all our churches. As soon as this list can be presented, the Census Bureau will contact our various churches to learn further details, especially the number of active members.

Appeal is made, therefore, that every church will report its name and location, also the name of its pastor or secretary. In turn, a copy of our Church Directory will be submitted to the Census Bureau to assist in its efforts toward compiling a “Religious Census.”

“Watch and Pray”

When Jesus found Peter, James, and John asleep in the Garden of Gethsemane, He said to Peter: “What, could ye not watch with me one hour?” Following that rebuke, Jesus said: “Watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation. The spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak” (Matt. 26:40, 41).

Similarly, telling of the last days and signs to precede His returning, Jesus charged His disciples, saying, “Watch ye therefore, and pray always, that ye may be accounted worthy to escape all these things that shall come to pass, and to stand before the Son of man” (Luk. 21:36). Yes, every disciple of Christ does well to watch and pray. Watch for opportunities to serve the Christ. Watch the signs so rapidly fulfilling. Pray always to be faithful. Pray to escape earth’s last sad plagues.

"In the Valley of Decision"

By Floyd A. Stilson, South Bend, Indiana

ONE NEEDS only to think briefly before realizing that a great part of one's life is consumed in making decisions, important or unimportant. Only this morning I had to make a decision before leaving for my work, as to whether I should wear my raincoat or my topcoat. I decided on the raincoat, but my decision was wrong. I had to decide which tie, which shirt, and so forth. I decide the way I walk to work, and whether I come home for lunch or not. I hear my wife say, "What do you want for dinner?" and I may answer, "Anything you want to get," and then she has that decision to make.

These foregoing decisions may be of little importance in the sum total of life, but it is of importance what I decide to do with my time after working hours, of what literature I shall read, in what pleasures I shall indulge, and numerous other things which have a very direct bearing on the course I pursue and the ultimate end of life's effort.

Decisions are of concern not only to grown-ups, but begin in early life and are of most importance in the years when life habits are most easily formed. Students in college must make decisions which, if rightly made, may carry them on to success, and vice versa. One student says to another, "Let's go to the show tonight." The other says, "No, let's go to the bowling alley. Let's flip a coin. Heads you win. Tails I win. If it stands on edge, we'll stay at home and study."

Decisions! Decisions everywhere! The business man makes them; the professional man makes them; the farmer makes them; yes, everybody!

The first great and notable decision was made in the Garden of Eden. We know of its far-reaching effect. On account of that decision, we are faced with an equally great decision if we would escape the judgment Adam and Eve brought on all.

We have record that Moses made a great decision by "choosing rather to suffer affliction with the people of God, than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season." "As for me and my house we will serve the Lord" was Joshua's decision. Likewise, his people who chose the Lord, to serve Him, said: "The Lord our God will we serve, and his voice will we obey."

A striking example of decisions appears in the story of Orpah and Ruth, but how different! Orpah chose to go back to her gods, but Ruth set her heart on the God of Naomi, saying: "Entreat me not to leave thee . . . thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God."

To Pilate came the question, "What shall I do then with Jesus which is called Christ?" He must make a decision. After vacillating between his own mind and the will of the people, he delivered Him to be crucified. There was no neutral ground.

True and great decisions are made not in a moment of time, but as the result of earnest and careful thought.

Then one must persevere in them throughout life. When a wrong decision has been made, it is doubly hard to reverse and make the true one. It is not human nature to admit that one has been wrong. It requires courage. The man who has voted in accordance with certain political views is not likely to reverse at the next election. To do so would be an admission that he had been in error. The longer a certain course or pattern of life has been pursued, the less the chance that there will be a change. For that reason, conversions become less frequent as age "creeps on," and we many times have seen individuals grow gray and never able to make the great decision. When Moses laid before the people all the words of the Lord, they answered with one voice, "All that the Lord hath spoken we will do." Then we have the decision of the successful farmer whose ground brought forth plentifully till he had no room to store the grain. His decision was to pull down his barn, build a greater one, and take life easy. But how foolish! For God said, "This night thy soul [life] shall be required of thee." Alas! how many have made the same decision!

Yes, there are "multitudes in the valley of decision." Great men are gathering around council tables for the sole purpose of making decisions. How true they are, we may know some day.

God has set before us life and death, as He did to Israel. "See, I have set before thee this day life and good, and death and evil; in that I command thee this day to love the Lord thy God, to walk in his ways, and to keep his commandments . . . therefore choose life, that both thou and thy seed shall live." Like Israel, it is ours to make the choice. Two ways are before us: the broad way and the narrow way, but we must decide which we will take. If you, dear reader, have decided on the narrow way, I pray that your faith may not waver, and that you may declare with Paul, "I am persuaded, that (Please turn to page 11)

Forsake Not God

By H. Gary France, Wenatchee, Washington

WHILE suffering miserably from boils, Job was advised to "curse God and die" (2:9). Job refused. He previously had voiced his philosophy by saying concerning trouble, "Naked came I out of my mother's womb, and naked shall I return thither: the Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord" (1:21). Job refused to forsake God.

Man has been warned often against forsaking God. The fact that the warnings have been repeated so often is evidence that this danger is more acute than it appears to be. God said through a prophet, "The Lord is with you, while ye be with him; and if ye seek him, he will be found of you: but if ye forsake him, he will forsake you" (2 Chron. 15:2). Thus God stated His policy. He would be present when sought, but He would forsake those who had forsaken Him. Indeed, how can one receive help from God, if he refuses to accept the help?

Israel is a living testimony of the consequences of forsaking God. Jeremiah said to Judah, "When ye shall say, Wherefore doeth the Lord our God all these things unto us? then shalt thou answer them, Like as ye have forsaken me, and served strange gods in your land, so shall ye serve strangers in a land that is not your's" (Jer. 5:19). Though cautioned, Judah forsook God, and this prophecy was fulfilled.

In forsaking God, one invariably has the purpose of worshiping other idols. Christians are admonished, "Little children, keep yourselves from idols" (1 John 5:21). Although John probably was writing of tangible idols carved from wood, his advice is yet pertinent. Professed Christians are worshiping idols today! That one will pray to wood is unlikely, but that one will spend his energies, time, and ambition—that is, worship these other idols—is likely. Today's idols are money, fun, and worldly friends. These idols are far more dangerous and cunning than tangible idols of the Old Testament, for one cannot see these idols, and he does not realize that he actually is worshiping them in preference to worshiping God.

One vitally interested in earning money spends his time and devotes his life to that ambition. He dedicates his body as a living sacrifice to money. He has little or no time to attend church or to engage in church activities. Church to him is no longer a necessity; it is a mere convenience. He becomes so engrossed with his money-making troubles that he does not think of God's principles. Money is legitimate only when earned and used correctly.

The small word "fun" is the mask hiding another small word "sin." In quest of new thrills, emotions, and activities, throngs clamor to the streets, highways, and byways. Indeed, are not fishing, duck hunting, horse racing, listening to radios, and playing ball common substitutes for attending church services?

God's purpose is not to deny fun or pleasure to man, but He guards man (and causes man to guard himself) against the sin of making "fun" an idol to be worshiped in God's stead. Sin—magnetic, attractive, brightly blazing—beckons invitingly.

"Aw, come on. It's O. K. to have a little fun once in a while." "Tomorrow's Gangsters" (Reader's Digest, July, 1946) tells of the development of nine-year-old criminals who instigated a crime wave "just for the fun of it." Fun?

"Morale" is a term used by modernists to justify promiscuity. "Morale" happens to have an entirely different accent from "moral." One should keep his morals high, and he should not keep his morale high at the expense of his morals.

Worldly friends are idols. A strong magnetic personality controls associates. If one is overcome by the powerful urge to associate with a "popular" person of the world, he will be sharply influenced by the ideals of the "popular" one.

God said, "Ye have forsaken me, and served other gods wherefore I will deliver you no more. Go and cry unto the gods which ye have chosen; let them deliver you in the time of your tribulation" (Judg. 10:13, 14). Paul groaned, "O wretched man that I am! who shall deliver me from the body of this death?" (Rom. 7:24.) Is money able to save us from death? Will fun have the power to give eternal life? Can our (Please turn to page 10)

A NEW START

I will start anew this morning with a lighter, fairer creed;
I will cease to stand complaining of my ruthless neighbor's greed;
I will cease to sit repining while my duty's call is clear;
I will waste no moment whining, and my heart shall know no fear,
I will look sometimes about me for the things that merit praise,
I will search for hidden beauties that elude the grumbler's gaze;
I will try to find contentment in the paths that I must tread;
I will cease to have resentment when another moves ahead,
I will not be swayed by envy when my rival's strength is shown
I will not deny his merit, but I'll strive to prove my own;
I will try to see the beauty spread before me, rain or shine;
I will cease to preach your duty and be more concerned with mine.

The City Foursquare

By Milon Hall, Oregon Bible College

Archaeologists, having discovered the ruins of old Babylon, report these findings:

"Built on a perfect square, fifteen miles on each side."

"Surrounded by a wall 315 feet high, and 87 feet thick."

"One hundred fifty gates of solid brass in the wall."

"Twenty-five streets running each way and each one 15 miles long and 150 feet wide. Each one paved and smooth—a super-highway in itself."

"Two hundred twenty-five square miles of beautiful homes, playgrounds, hanging gardens, and terraces built up to 315 feet high."

"The River Euphrates ran through the middle of the city with a wall similar to that that surrounded the city on either side of the river. There were bridges that crossed the river and large brass gates at the ends of each bridge."

"There were two large palaces, one on either side of the river. Each palace was eight miles around. There was a tunnel running under the Euphrates, connecting the two palaces."

What a city this must have been! Imagine, now, this perfect setting with a storehouse filled with food and provisions for five years, built on an easily defended site on solid rock, and maintaining a large standing army. No city today compares to old Babylon.

Now—though not to compare, for there is no comparison—let us consider what the City of God will be like. We read: "I John saw the holy city, new Jerusalem, coming down from God out of heaven, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband" (Rev. 21:2). First, this City will not be made with hands, but God will be its Maker, and it will be far superior to anything man could make. This City will have light of itself; it will have no need of the sun. This City also will have a great and high wall that nothing can break down. Whatever God decrees, that will be accomplished, though the walls of Babylon are no more. The twelve great gates of the New Jerusalem need not be of strong metal, for God's angels will stand at each to guard them.

"The city lieth foursquare, and the length is as large as the breadth: and he measured the city with the reed, twelve thousand furlongs. The length and the breadth and the height of it are equal" (Rev. 21:16).

Man has not yet erected a building even two furlongs high. What a sight such a building would be to behold, even from one side—a towering spectacle of sparkling beauty! The foundation of the huge wall will be made of jasper, a harmony of clear-colored red, brown, green, and yellow. The second layer of this wall is to be pure sapphire, taking all colors of the lower layer and blending them in a way that only God could accomplish, and sending them sparkling and flying in every direction with the light that shines forth from the city itself. The third layer will be of chalcedony, showing forth its individual colors in an easy-to-look-at grandeur. The fourth, of emerald, will send forth its eye-appealing green, without a glare, but still will be brightness befitting royalty. The fifth layer will be black mixed with the orange-red of the sardonyx stone. Next will come the sardius, with its mixture of orange-red and ruby. The seventh layer will be of chrysolite, which is of transparent olive green. The eighth will allow more light to pass through it, but will add to its own color of bluish-green, in hexagonal prism form, the shaded green of the previous layer. The layer of yellow, in the form of topaz, laying on the two layers of green will give a bluish effect to blend with the blue heavens beyond. The tenth layer will be of chrysoprasus, with its brilliantly colored apple-green, seeming to make the wall look twice as high, and still helping to climax its ultra-beauty. The eleventh, and next-to-the-top layer, will be of pure orange, called jacinth. It will seem to be a top dressing for such a magnificent creation. The twelfth and topmost layer will be superb in beauty. It will be of amethyst, with its clear crystal purple, bluish violet, and blue-red radiation.

No creation of God, as far as we know, will compare to the New Jerusalem. It will be the peak of construction and engineering. What will be still more important and stupendous in the completion of this City, however, will be the lives within its walls. Never-ending life, complete harmony, perfect love for one another, and a deeply rooted and long-maintained love and devotion for the King will be the attributes and conditions for living within this grand wall. Moreover, love must exist in us today if we expect to see the City whose streets are paved with pure gold and whose wall is garnished with all manner of precious stones. We Christians "are not come unto the mount that . . . burned with fire"—Mount Sinai where Moses said, "I exceedingly fear and quake"—but we "are come unto mount Sion, and unto the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem, and to an innumerable company of angels." That is the city, too, for which Abraham looked, the city "whose builder and maker is God."

3—Abraham, the Sacrifice of Isaac

Golden text:

"By faith, Abraham, when he was tried, offered up Isaac; and he that had received the promises offered up his only begotten son, of whom it was said, That in Isaac shall thy seed be called: accounting that God was able to raise him up, even from the dead; from whence also he received him in a figure" (Heb. 11:17-19).

Text: Genesis 22:1-19.

Questions on the text:

(1) Explain what is meant by the phrase: "That God did tempt Abraham," when it says, "Let no man say when he is tempted, I am tempted of God: for God cannot be tempted with evil, neither tempteth he any man" (James 1:13).

(2) Some people have complained that the Hebrews taught the virtue of human sacrifice as proved in the story of the sacrifice of Isaac. What do you think?

(3) If God knew in the beginning that Abraham was not actually to kill his son, was this whole story a farce as some infidels say? Was God justified in asking Abraham to make so great a sacrifice? Was that not asking too much of a man?

(4) What does this story show about the character of Isaac?

(5) How did the sacrifice of Isaac show belief in the resurrection? Explain the golden text.

(6) Why did God swear by Himself when He made the promise to Abraham? Quote the passage in the Book of Hebrews that discusses this promise.

(7) Explain the phrase: "And thy seed shall possess the gate of his enemies."

(8) Are the direct descendants of Abraham as numerous as the sands of the seashore? Or does that refer to something else? What else could it refer to?

(9) How are the nations to be blessed in the seed of Abraham?

Discussion of the text:

Abraham's descendants in the nation of Israel as well as those descended through Ishmael and through Esau are extremely numerous. They are the "temporal" or earthly seed. The seed which is spiritual is more numerous than they. In the visions of Daniel and the Revelation, they are a multitude which no man can number, ten thousand times ten thousand and thousands of thousands. If that had been written in modern English, it probably would have been trillions and trillions of people. Old English did not have the words for higher numbers, and so they spoke of thousands of thousands. Abraham was blessed here in this world of ours, but the true blessings that are mentioned in this chapter are those of God's Kingdom. The same is true of the blessing of his descendants. His physical descendants are blessed here and now, but the great blessings are those yet to come.

Then there is the other part of the promise which speaks of the Seed in whom all the families of the earth shall be blessed. That is interpreted by the Apostle Paul to mean Christ. By coming into Christ, we become heirs of the promises that God made to Abraham. That is why the story of the sacrifice of Isaac is so important to us. The three parts of the promises then are:

1. The Promised Land (Gen. 18).
2. The promised Seed (Gal. 3:16).
3. The promised blessings.

Each of these parts has the temporary application, and the eternal application: the limited application in the descendants of the flesh, and the unlimited application in the descendants of faith. Furthermore, the promise of the seed is in the multitude which no man can number, and in the single seed which is Christ.

Related topics:

(1) How is the sacrifice of Isaac related to the resurrection? See golden text. How had Abraham already received Isaac from the dead?

(2) Explain the apparent discrepancy between the two verses in Hebrews (speaking of Abraham) 6:15 and 11:13.

(3) What is the "anchor to the soul both sure and steadfast" referred to in Hebrews 6:19?

(4) Read all you can find in the Bible about Melchisedec. Do you find much? Why did the Apostle Paul talk about him?

(5) Read about Abraham as a warrior. Was he a great fighter?

Readings for the week:

Genesis 13:14-18; 15:18-21; 17:15-22; Hebrews 6; 11:1-19.

4—Isaac, the Obedient Son

Golden text:

"Sojourn in this land, and I will be with thee, and will bless thee; for unto thee, and unto thy seed, I will give all these countries, and I will perform the oath which I swear unto Abraham thy father; and I will make thy seed to multiply as the stars of heaven, and will give unto thy seed all these countries; and in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed" (Gen. 26:3, 4).

Text: Genesis 26:1-5.

The setting of the lesson:

Not only was Abraham's faith tried in the sacrifice of Isaac, but also the obedience of Isaac. There is an old English Miracle Play which deals with the story of the sacrifice of Isaac. In this play, the boy asks his father about how he is going to explain this episode to his mother. The old play is quite touching. It puts words into the mouth of Isaac which are those of wonderment that most of us have thought about. Just what kind of an explanation would Abraham make to Sarah when he came back without the boy. Of course, that discredits the power of God and the faith of Abraham, as well as not providing the proper sequel to the story.

Questions on the text:

(1) Why was Isaac not to go down to Egypt? (Gen. 26:1.)

(2) This chapter has an almost exact parallel in the life of Abraham. Read about it. (Gen. 20:1ff.) Was the "white lie" all right? What about other white lies, are they all right?

(3) What else is shown in the Scripture lesson about the character of Isaac besides his (Please turn to page 11)

T R E E S

ALL ARE familiar with the beautiful poem, "Trees," written by the famous American poet, Joyce Kilmer, who was killed in action in the first World War. He felt that what he did was so insignificant, compared to God's great creative power, when he observed the grandeur of a tree.

Beautiful trees in the forest grow straight and tall; majestic, as it were, with their branches held up toward the sky, as if praying to God. Just so, we find those, whom nothing can swerve, looking up with arms upheld to God in prayer and supplication. Among many of the trees in the forest, we find some that are dwarfed and small, bent down as if looking toward the ground instead of looking up. People, too, who look down instead of looking up to God become dwarfed and see only the material things about them. We see just what we are looking for!

We read so much about trees in the Bible. One who is strong in the faith is likened to a "tree planted by the rivers of water." He is firm and will not be swayed by every wind of doctrine. Our faith must be steadfast and true. Soon the final test will come. The stage is all set for the end-time. A world dictator will arise as is predicted in the Bible. No one will be able to buy or sell unless he is willing to receive the "mark of the beast." We have only to observe world conditions as they are today to realize the time is fast approaching. There is rapidly coming into being a world-state. All are beginning to feel that they must be all of one mind. From what is prophesied in the Bible, there will be one great power whom no one will dare oppose. How many will be able to stand in that day and be as a "tree planted by the rivers of water"? How many will not be moved? Are we truly so grounded in the "faith which was once delivered [to] the saints" that we will stand firm like the mighty oak when the final test comes? It is time for the true Christian to about face and check up on his stride.

Those who hurry along with the fast-moving throng will some day, without warning, find themselves on the brink of an abyss, and then it will be too late to turn about face. "Now is the day of salvation." Tomorrow may never come. Jesus said: "I must work the works of him that sent me, while it is day; the night cometh when no man can work." Do you believe that? The time is short and the work is great. What if He came in this very hour? Are we ready to give an account of our lives? Will He find us waiting and trusting? It is something to think about. To be grounded and rooted in the "faith," as the mighty oak, should be the aspiration of every true believer.

Thank God for all the lovely trees,
For gaily colored autumn leaves.

Be like a tree and be not moved—

Be faithful, steadfast, tried, and proved.

News and Prophecy Digest

By C. E. Randall (Fonthill, Ontario)

LET'S MOVE. An item occurring in the "Fraternal Record" on Iceland gives some amazing facts about this island that lies between the North Atlantic and the Arctic Oceans. It follows: "Iceland is without a single jail or penitentiary, or court, and has only one policeman. The system of public schools is practically perfect, and every child ten years old can read. There are seminaries and colleges, newspapers and printing establishments. No liquor is permitted to be imported, as all are total abstainers. There are 78,000 people on the island."

The secret of their contentment and high standard of morality is their temperate habits and religious background. The earth vine in this country is becoming ripe through widespread neglect of Christian principles and immoderate indulgence in the degenerating, fleshy habits of drinking and smoking.

MATERIAL FOR BREWERIES.

Both in the United States and Canada, building material has been scarce, and many worth-while undertakings have been held up for years due to the scarcity, and inability to get permits from the governments. The Saint Joseph County Ministerial Association of South Bend, Indiana, has expressed itself on the matter. It charged the Civilian Production Administration with "apparent discrimination against religious organizations in granting permits for construction." They claim applications by needy congregations have been turned down, while a brewery obtained a permit to build, and taverns have had little trouble in securing permits for improvements and extensions.

This past week, in driving through Hamilton, Ontario, we passed a new modern brewery building that has recently started operation. This building was constructed when materials for churches and schools were frozen.

Remember during the war years when gas was hard to get and tires were nearly off the market, and most people had to use retreads on their cars, yet the breweries were able to get all the gas and tires they needed!

BIBLES FOR JAPAN.

The American Bible Society has released a letter received from Toyohiko Kagawa in which he said: "No greater demand for the Bible and no more earnest desire for its study among the young and the old have we ever witnessed in the history of Japan than at present; and we are taking this unique opportunity to spread the Word of God most effectively. Schools and colleges are sending in orders for thousands of copies, and we are filling them as quickly as we receive your shipment. In a little village at Yose, near Tokyo, about one thousand non-Christian young people bought the Bibles, and they have organized by themselves study groups, secured teachers to teach them the Bible twice a week, paying three yen a month tuition. This is a remarkable example of the widespread interest in the Bible throughout Japan at present and of the earnest desire to study it."

It will take some great national defeat or pestilence or hardship of great length to turn the people of this country away from the hilarious plunge into dissipation which they have taken. Of Israel, it is written: "When he slew them, then they sought him; and they returned and inquired early after God." We need some heavy judgments from the Lord.

CHURCHWOMEN. In Virginia, the Council of Churchwomen have decided to do something concrete about the displeasing things in the world. They propose to write to Josef Stalin and other world officials and tell them what they think they should do. Maybe Joe will change his heart when he gets all of these feminine epistles. Then they intend to write to the radio stations protesting the beer and liquor announcements that are so frequently heard on most stations. Lord bless them in this! Magazine liquor advertisements will be clipped and sent to the magazine publishers with a note that they do not like such material in the papers which they purchase and read. Protests against such evils are always deserving commendation and support.

PRAGUE MUSEUM. Prior to the war, the city of Prague, which is located on the Moldau River, 160 miles southeast of Dresden, had a Jewish population of between thirty and forty thousand. After the war was over, there were only about three thousand left, the others were liquidated, most of whom were burned in the ovens at Auschwitz. The German commander at Prague during the occupation was a bitter enemy of the Jews and sought to carry out the aim of the Nazis and wipe out the race. Being an anthropologist, he started a museum of an "extinct race."

Writing in "The Jewish Layman," Harry A. Silbert, Toronto, who recently visited Europe on an importing mission, was in Prague, and of this museum said: "It is the most complete Jewish museum in the world as a record of an extinct race . . . There he assembled, what the present Jews of Prague declare is the greatest record of Jewish customs, documents, books, pictures, and religious paraphernalia in the world."

Like Haman, he who was bent on destroying God's people, was destroyed, and left a monument as evidence of his failure. Haman left a gallows; the German left a museum.

BIBLE PROPHETS II. Under this sub-caption, Dr. Ernest I. Jacob, writing in "The Jewish Layman," gives some very good thoughts which we are passing on to our readers. He says: "All men want to be happy. But the greatest human ideals have sprung up from adversity. This paradox is evident in the history of Israel. The humane legislation of the Bible which created sympathies of the Jew for the under-privileged of mankind arose from the sufferings of Israel in the first period of its history, from the bondage of Egypt. The Bible knows no better argument for a helpful attitude towards the stranger or the poor than, 'You have been strangers in Egypt and know how a stranger feels.'

Israel, when it became the prey of Assyria and Babylon, moved the prophets to pronounce the finest of all human hopes: Messianism. It was not the result of theoretical speculation, but grew from the practical needs of religious souls. Facing the contrast between tragic reality and the demands of idealism, they lifted their eyes from a sad present to a happy future. Israel did not succumb; this proved not only the vitality of the 'eternal' people; it is the triumph for all faith, for the superiority of mind over matter.

"It will always remain miraculous that the conception of world history was born in the little land of Palestine, in the confines of a narrow national life. Israel produced the idea of One world, One world under God. History was conceived not as the result of accidents but as manifestation of a divine plan, having meaning and aim. The prophets speak almost as much of other nations' destiny as of that of Israel. In their philosophy, the enemy too is an instrument in the hand of God even if 'his heart does not think so.' All history rushes to a final judgment, a day of wrath: the Day of the Lord.

"Yet, it is significant for the Jewish heart that the last word can never be doom. The end will be glory. Thus the prophets have hopes, first for their own people: restoration of Israel and the holy land, of Jerusalem and the Temple, renewal of the kingship in the Messiah, son of David; but interwoven with this are hopes for all men of righteousness: world of justice and eternal peace in which God that is the Good reigns and the rule of evil is terminated, in which there is even the hope of resurrection for those who have passed away."

It will be seen that this Jewish hope is much like our own, save that the doctor fails to see the work of the Messiah in His church today.

SHAMEFUL PRACTICES.

The Army and Navy departments of the United States Government are renewing pressure for national conscription. The only difference between the present proposed bill and the former one offered is that the length of service has been cut to six months instead of a year. There would not be so much objection to enforced military service for the youth, if the Government would safeguard the morals of the boys. Instead, according to very authentic reports, sanction is given to the licensing and control of houses of ill fame in military districts. No decent person can give approval to such temptations being thrown at youth.

FAITH

By Mary Brown, Oregon Bible College

DO WE, today, have complete faith in God? Could we, like Abraham, be willing to sacrifice our all if God told us to do so? Abraham had complete faith in God. He was willing to do as God commanded. When God told him to offer Isaac as a sacrifice, Abraham did not question God's judgment; he was willing to be tempted of God. God was satisfied. He had proved Abraham's faith.

God proves our faith today. When we have trials and temptations, many of us forget to go to God in prayer. If God asked us to give our all, would we do it without questioning His judgment? Would we ask the purpose? Many Christians are weak; they are lacking in faith. Instead of consecrating themselves to God, they are tempted by worldly things. It is a Christian's duty to obey God's commands. If a Christian does not obey His commands, how can he be an example to those outside of Christ? Christ is our example. "Even hereunto were ye called: because Christ also suffered for us, leaving us an example, that ye should follow his steps" (1 Peter 2:21). We are to be examples to non-Christians. Paul, writing to Timothy, said: "Be thou an example of the believers, in word, in conversation, in charity, in spirit, in faith, in purity" (1 Tim. 4:12).

We all can be examples of the believers. It is not hard to do. Our conversations show, more than we realize, the inner man, the believer. By careful observation of a person's conversations over a period of time, one can detect his personality, his true beliefs, his desires—whether they are to glorify God, or to seek worldly pleasures.

Our charity, or love, for our fellow men likewise is shown. If we truly love someone, we are willing to give all that we possess to show our love. God gave His all—Christ. In giving, a Christian receives joy and happiness as well as the best gift of all—the blessing of God. In the history of the Acts of the Apostles, Luke said: "It is more blessed to give than to receive" (Acts 20:35). What greater love can we show than to give our lives to Christ so that, through us, He might do His Father's work?

Our spirit, likewise, shows our faith in God. Only a Christian has the spirit and will to do what God would have us do. To the outsider, the life of a Christian is not easy. Often a Christian is ridiculed and mocked because of his beliefs. If we are not true Christians, if we do not put our complete faith in God, we are troubled by the ridicule of the non-Christian, but the true Christian is willing to give his all in service to God. Jesus said, "Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me, for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light" (Matt. 12:29, 30). Yet, many people hesitate to be Christians. They do not have the true spirit. A Christian has to depart from the world. "Come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord" (2 Cor. 6:17).

The life of a Christian should be a pure life. In the first Epistle to Timothy, Paul said: "Lay hands suddenly on no man, neither be partaker of other men's sins: keep thyself pure." Christ was pure. He is our example; we are examples to the non-Christians; therefore, we should keep our lives pure. If we do not lead pure lives, we cannot consecrate ourselves to Christ.

Abraham had complete faith in God. Do we? Sometimes it is hard to put our faith in something we have never seen, but "faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen" (Heb. 11:1).

Throughout the Bible, we find evidences of faith—Abel's sacrifice to God; Abraham's faith when he was called to go out to a place that he should receive for an inheritance; Sara conceived by faith; Isaac blessed Jacob and Esau by faith; Moses was hidden in the bullrushes for three months by faith. The prophets subdued kingdoms by faith, wrought righteousness, obtained promises. Is this not evidence enough that we should have faith? Do we have the faith of Abraham?

TWO NATIONS

By Shirley Logsdon, Oregon Bible College

BECAUSE Rebekah was barren, Isaac prayed to God that she might have children. God heard Isaac's prayer, and Rebekah conceived. Before the children were born, Rebekah felt them struggling within her. She became anxious about it and asked God for an explanation. God answered her, saying: "Two nations are in thy womb, and two manner of people shall be separated from thy bowels; and the one people shall be stronger than the other people; and the elder shall serve the younger" (Gen. 25:23).

The first baby that was born was very red and hairy, so he was called Esau. The second took hold of Esau's heel; therefore he was called Jacob, which means "supplanter," or "one that takes by the heel."

Esau was a skillful hunter, but Jacob stayed near his home. One day, when Esau came home from the field, he was ravenously hungry. Smelling pottage that Jacob was cooking, he asked for some of it. Jacob was ready to make a bargain. He said: "Sell me this day thy birthright." Esau consented without argument, for, he reasoned, "Behold, I am at the point to die: and what profit shall this birthright do to me?"

From this moment forward, the brothers had a breach between them. Jacob was seeking for greater accomplishments, while Esau was not particular. (Turn to page 11)

MOTHER SHIPTON'S PROPHECIES

*Selected by George Renner, Wheatland, California
Brother Renner submits this poem which was reconstructed by F. M. Lehman, the original prophecies having been made by one "Mother Shipton," who lived in Clifton, England, more than five hundred years ago.—Ed.*

A carriage without horses shall go,
Disaster fill the world with woe.
In London Primrose Hill shall be
Its center hold a Bishop See.
Around the world men's thoughts shall fly
Quick as the twinkling of an eye.
And waters shall great wonders do,
How strange and yet it shall come true.
Then upside down the world will be,
And gold found at the root of tree.
Through towering hills proud man shall ride,
Nor horse nor ass move by his side.
Beneath the water men shall walk,
Shall rise, shall sleep, shall even talk;
And in the air men shall be seen
In black, in white, as well as green.
A great man then shall come and go,
For prophecy declares it so.
In water, iron then shall float
As easy as a wooden boat.
Gold shall be found in stream or stone
In land that is as yet unknown.
Water and fire shall wonders do
And England shall admit a Jew.
The Jew that once was held in scorn
Shall of a Christian then be born.
A house of glass shall come to pass
In England—but alas! Alas!
A war will follow with the work
Where dwells the pagan and the Turk.
The States will lock in fiercest strife
And seek to take each other's life,
When North shall thus divide the South
The eagle builds in Lion's mouth.
Then tax and blood and cruel war
Shall come to every humble door.
Three times shall sunny, lovely France
Be led to play a bloody dance,
Before the people shall go free
Three tyrant rulers shall she see,
Three rulers in succession, be—
Each spring from different dynasty.
Then, when the fiercest fight is done,
England and France shall be as one.

The British olive then shall twine
In marriage with the German wine.
Men walk beneath and over streams
Fulfilled shall be our strangest dreams.

All England's sons that plow the land
Shall oft be seen with book in hand.
The poor shall now most wisdom know
And water wind where corn doth grow.
Great houses stand in far flung vale
All covered o'er with snow and hail.

And now a word in uncouth rhyme
Of what shall be in future time;
For in those wondrous, far-off days,
The women shall adopt a craze
To dress like men and trousers wear
And cut off all their locks of hair.

They'll ride astride with brazen brow
As witches do on broomsticks now.
Then love shall die and marriage cease,
And nations wane as babes decrease.
The wives shall fondle cats and dogs
And men live much the same as hogs.

In nineteen hundred twenty-six
Build houses light of straw and sticks;
For then mighty wars be planned
And fire and sword shall sweep the land.
But those who live the century through
In fear and trembling this will do.

Flee to the mountains and the dens,
To bog and forest and wild fens;
For storms shall rage and oceans roar
When Gabriel stands on sea and shore.
And as he blows his wondrous horn,
Old world's shall be and new be born.

FORSAKE NOT GOD

worldly friends save us from destruction? If one forsake God and turns to these other gods, he must depend upon them for his salvation.

How heart-rending it is to see a loved one face eternal death because he has been overcome gradually and unknowingly by idols of the world! Thanks be to God for the strength of His warnings and cautions against such a plight.

Christian, cling to God! Forsake not His law and His principles—His love. God's desire is to lead you past the dangers of life into eternal life; do not despise this helping Hand.

BIBLE LESSONS

obedience in submitting to the sacrifice? Could he have done otherwise than obey when his father was proceeding to sacrifice him?

(4) Look up other passages of Scripture where Isaac is mentioned, especially in the New Testament. What is said of him? Is he a character of as great color or importance as his father, or as Jacob his son? Read especially Romans 9:10-13.

Discussion of the text:

The same promises that were made to Abraham were confirmed to Isaac. As such, he becomes as important a symbol as his father Abraham, but we notice that God has said the same thing that was said of Solomon, the son was favored because of the father. (Gen. 26:5; 1 Kings 11:12, 13.) There is not so much written in the Bible concerning the character of Isaac as there is of many of the other characters of the Scriptures, either Abraham or Jacob or Joseph. It is only by reading between the lines that we learn a great deal about Isaac. His marriage to Rebecca is an interesting idyllic story, but tells very little of his real character. That seems to be the way with the Scriptures. How little is there said about even the great characters who associated themselves with Jesus during His ministry! For an interesting exercise, see just how little there is said about even Peter who was very prominent among the apostles. Such apostles as James the son of Alphaeus is just a name and nothing more. Isaac in the Bible stories serves more as a background to bring out in relief the characters of Abraham, Jacob, and Esau. Even Rebecca is more of a character in many ways than is Isaac. Even his affair when he told the king of the Philistines that Rebecca was his sister is a copy of his father's episode. So the average person is not attracted by the personality of Isaac; they say he is colorless. If he had been an ardent sinner, he would have received more attention than he does, because the average person can appreciate that.

neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor power, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord." If you have not made this great decision as yet, may you have no peace of mind until you have resolved to make your calling and election sure while you are still in the "valley of decision."

The Jews were like Esau. They were God's chosen people; they had a birthright because they were favored of God. They despised their birthright, however, and turned to the habits of neighboring nations. God finally thrust His people out. They had rejected Him; then He rejected them.

In many ways, these same characteristics of Esau and the Jews are found in people today. Many people do not care for their own spiritual birthrights—do not care for the higher ideals. Esau, aware only of his physical hunger, not having faith in God that He would feed him, sold his birthright for one morsel of meat. Esau was not looking into the future; he was thinking only of the present. Many individuals today are not looking into the tomorrow; they care only for today.

In contrast to Esau's followers, there are, also, followers of Jacob. As the Jews are like Esau, the Gentiles are like Jacob. The Gentiles did not have an inheritance or a birthright. It is said of them: "At that time ye were without Christ, being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without God in the world" (Eph. 2:12). The Gentiles were desirous of a birthright and a heritage. Therefore, when the Jews rejected Christ (despised their birthright), the Gentiles were joyous that they might have opportunity for a fuller and better life. At Antioch, for example, hearing that the Jews despised Paul's preaching, the Gentiles "were glad, and glorified the word of the Lord" (Acts 13:48). "Now therefore ye are no more strangers and foreigners, but fellowcitizens with the saints, and of the household of God."

Also, Christians, like Jacob and the Gentiles, are looking for higher ideals. They are preparing for a newer, fuller life. In hopefulness and faith, they are pressing "toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus" (Phil. 3:14). Jesus warned His followers that they would have tribulation in this world, but counseled them not to be discouraged, for He had overcome the world. (John 16:33.) Paul admonished his brethren: "Be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect, will of God" (Rom. 12:2). Christians are seeking to please God, not just trying to satisfy their carnal desires.

For what nation are we striving: Esau or Jacob? Jew or Gentile? Are we worldly or Christian?

Joseph's Example

Today we learn from our story of Joseph's love for his brothers. (Gen. 44:18-32; 45:1-5.)

The brothers had returned to Joseph for more food. After they had eaten with Joseph and their sacks had been filled with food, they started homeward. Joseph had had his silver cup placed in Benjamin's sack. Before they had traveled far, a servant came up to them. He told them that one of them had taken his master's own silver cup.

The brothers were so sure none of them had taken it that they agreed that the one who had taken it could be returned as Joseph's servant. When the cup was found in Benjamin's sack, they all hurried back to plead for his safe return to their father.

Judah told of his promise to his father: "If I bring him not to thee, then I shall bear the blame to my father forever." He wanted to stay in Benjamin's place.

Finally Joseph could not keep quiet any longer. He wept aloud as he told them he was their brother they had sold into Egypt. They were afraid at first; but, after Joseph had kissed them and showed them he was only loving and forgiving, they rejoiced with him. They had been sorry many times that they had treated him so cruelly. Joseph comforted them by saying: "Now therefore be not grieved, nor angry with yourselves, that ye sold me hither: for God did send me before you to preserve life" (Gen. 45:5).

STILL PRIMING

OUR BEREAN IDEA PUMP

OPEN FORUM CONDUCTED BY JAMES M. WATKINS

WINIFRED MASTAIN, South Bend, Indiana, adds a thought for the younger ages—

One idea for the Berean organization is to stress more the young people's part of the society. The name "Berean" almost scares the younger people because they think they will be studying the deep and heavy things.

David Holquist's suggestion of having a snack after the meeting seems all right, but I believe that if the young people had a party at the church to which they could invite other friends, also, more people could be interested.

As for study material, I feel that a teacher's notebook should be published giving a fuller outline of the lessons. Also, the students' books could be made more complete by not only giving the scripture readings but also the points that should be derived from them. This should be in the teacher's book, too, so he could tell if they have the right thought.

As for the Summer School, it would seem to me that Summer School should be more in the nature of a youth rally for youth only. If the older people come, they should have separate and different types of classes. The length of time should be shortened for the rally, and the deeper type of Summer School study should be taken at a later time.

These are just a few ideas I feel would benefit our work.

ALL PUMPS ARE NOT FROZEN in Colorado.

Listen to Letha Hammel of Wray.

I think, first of all, there should be some established age limits on our different groups so the difference in ages will not be so great. Everyone will do better and cooperate more if there is not too much difference in ages.

Books and literature have a great influence, also. Members of the class should have a vote on the kind of books they want to use. Naturally, the instructor should be consulted and his opinion secured as to whether or not they were properly selected.

It also helps if more people could be encouraged to take part in leading a class or in the discussion.

Music has a very beneficial effect on the class, and a variety of songs helps a great deal and adds enthusiasm to the singing. Some people like to make up songs, and I think it would be nice to have someone make up songs that could be sung to the tune of other songs.

Recreation has a part in the work, too. There is a saying, "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy." That is true. I do not think too much recreation is necessary, but a few parties, hikes, trips, or picnics can add to the inspiration of the work and can bring a greater spirit of cooperation and fellowship among the students.

is also working overtime elsewhere—

Up and down the U.S.A., and even over its borders, our young people and those interested in their eternal welfare are rallying, literally and figuratively, to make our Berean young people's work a vital and living part in the church.

On October 24, the Illinois State Conference sponsored a youth rally in connection with its quarterly conference at Dixon, being the guests of Brother Alan McLain and the local church. Here a large number signed our pledge cards and turned them in as a token of their uniting in a common aim for Christian service.

Over the week end of November 22-24, the Pennellwood church at Grand Rapids, Michigan, where Brother Harvey Krogh is pastor, conducted a series of lessons and services for the Berean young people and those interested in this work. In addition to the youth workers' classes which were held, a large number gathered for the rally on Sunday afternoon and also for a special evening service where, in addition to a short sermon, the sound motion picture, "No Greater Power" was shown. The Idea Well is not dry when we get the pump thawed out.

ELDORADO, ILLINOIS

At eight thirty on Thanksgiving morning, the church family at Eldorado, Ill., gathered at the church to offer thanks for the past year's blessings. The attendance was very good.

Songs of thanksgiving were sung, and Pastor Edward Goff spoke on "God's Providence Over Men," using Psalm 107 as a basis for his thoughts.

A special offering was received to establish a fund toward improving the church building.

We all are thankful that Sr. Ida Overton continues to improve in health and is able to attend services.

The Burdette Mosbys were present for the Thanksgiving service with their new son, William Michael, who was born October 31.

On Sunday evening, recently, we were privileged to hear the recording of Bro. Harold Dean's sermon, preached at General Conference last summer.

Plans are getting under way for our Christmas program. The young people will take an active part in this. They have had several parties and picnics this fall. At the present time, they are trying to decide how to spend their money.

At a meeting of the church board last Sunday evening, November 24, it was unanimously decided to raise the pastor's salary. For that, we know he is thankful.

Virginia Davenport, Reporter.

MARC JON DOAN

Bro. and Sr. Harold Doan, together with their many relatives and friends, were sorely shocked, on November 13, because of the sudden death of their infant son, Marc Jon. But moments previously, Sr. Doan had observed him peacefully sleeping in his little bed. The cause of death remained undetermined at first. It was not until too late to be included in the prior issue of The Herald that the report came that a thymus gland disturbance was the cause of death.

Marc Jon was born September 21, 1946, bringing much elation, and creating extended love in the home at 1908 N. Keystone Ave., Chicago 39, Ill.

In loving honor to the parents, a goodly number of grieving friends assembled at the funeral home on the 15th, when the writer enlarged, Biblically, on the promise to Rachel regarding her children, in Jeremiah 31:15-17 and Matthew 2:17, 18—"they shall come again from the land of the enemy." Then at Riverview Cemetery, at Oregon, Ill., an even greater number assembled in grief and loving tribute.

What thanksgiving to God should well up in every heart for the promise in God's Word that "the sting of death" . . . "shall be swallowed up in victory" . . . "through our Lord Jesus Christ." F. L. Austin.

CHARLES ELMER GUGE

Charles Elmer Guge was born in Tipton County, Ind., October 4, 1884, being the eldest son of David and Alice Guge. Death claimed him, November 21, 1946, at his home in Plymouth, Ind.

Mr. Guge united with the Burr Oak (Ind.)

Church of God, November 27, 1927. He was many years an employee of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Surviving are his wife, Ethel M. Guge; two brothers, Oliver Franklin, Kokomo, Ind., and Jessie D., Plymouth; one sister, Martha Hannah, Plymouth; and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services were conducted by the writer on November 23 at Plymouth, where also burial was made. The message was of hope through Christ. His second coming and the resurrection. We always shall remember Bro. Guge as one who gave loving care to his mother in her senior years.

Gleanings From the Field

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

Bro. M. W. Lyon, National Evangelist, was at headquarters a few days recently. At this writing, he has returned to Texas for evangelistic work.

Bro. and Sr. Otto E. Dick and family, Oregon, Ill., vacationed during the Thanksgiving holiday with relatives and friends near their former home, Frankfort, Ind.

"We are having good meetings, good sermons, and very good Sunday night attendance," so reports Sr. E. J. Demmitt, Troy, Ohio, about the special series of meetings at the Brush Creek (Ohio) Church of God, where Bro. Richard Smith is assisting Bro. G. E. Marsh, pastor of the church.

"At our all-day meeting, November 3, Mrs. H. S. Lasher, 819 S. Sixth St., Burbank, Calif., was immersed in the name of Jesus Christ. Communion and fellowship were extended to her after the baptism."—J. W. McLain, 230 W. 103 St., Los Angeles 3, Calif.

Bro. Timothy Pearson, student pastor of the Hope Chapel congregation, South Bend, Ind., was accompanied, November 30, on his weekly trip to the Hoosier city, by his father, Bro. Charles Pearson, and two fellow students, Rand Smith and Warren Sorenson.

Bro. Glenn M. Birkey's article in last week's Herald was written under the title of "True Gratitude," rather than "True Greatness" as published. Sorry.

"Grandma" Magaw is enjoying a brief visit—including Thanksgiving Day festivities—at the home of Bro. and Sr. Vivian Magaw, Tipp City, Ohio.

Bro. James M. Watkins, Director of Promotion and Co-ordination for National Bible Institution, spent last week end conducting services at the Hedrick (Ind.) Church of God.

Help Us, Historians. Was "Dr. J. Thomas" the same man as "Dr. J. Thomas"? In the November 12, 1946, issue of The Restitution Herald (page 4), we published a lecture by Dr. J. H. Thomas as tributed by Sr. Virginia Kincheloe, Fair Va.—same being submitted after she read Bro. John R. Fiske's review of John Thomas." Boxed in the article brief biography of Dr. John Thomas—we supposed was the same man as Dr. J. Thomas. Hence, we entitled the inserted biography, "Sketch of the Author." Bro. W. Tomlinson, Chagrin Falls, Ohio, believes names should not be confused as referring the same man. Bro. Tomlinson says: sketch of Dr. John Thomas is substantially correct, but he is not the author of the article published. Dr. John Thomas was a Chaldean from the time the name came into existence in 1865. Dr. J. H. Thomas was understood, always a Church of God man. . . . Who can give further information? Factors led us to believe the names referred the same man: 1) similarity of names; 2) similarity of vocation; 3) apparent similarity of time in which they lived; and 4) Kincheloe's obvious thought that Bro. Fiske had written about the author of the tract she submitted.—Editor.

PARTHENON — SIGNIFICANT REMNANT OF GREEK ARCHITECTURE

The Parthenon, sacred temple to the Greek goddess Athena, was built during the rule of Pericles (fifth century B.C.) on the Acropolis at Athens. The Acropolis is a hill about 260 feet high, having a flat oval summit 500 feet wide and 1,150 feet long. This oval top was walled as early as the sixth century before Christ, and it became adorned with several of the world's greatest architectural and sculptural monuments, chief of which was the magnificently colonnaded Parthenon.

Opposite the western end of the Acropolis was another elevation, Mars' Hill, known also as the Areopagus. There the Council of Areopagus, most ancient and venerable of all the Athenian courts, assembled before the days of Solon (639-559 B.C.) and long thereafter. The site is of interest to Christians especially because the Apostle Paul there preached his memorable sermon to the Athenians as reported in Acts 17:22-31.

Like her crumbling architecture, Greece lies today in physical prostration, 900,000 of her inhabitants having died of starvation during and since World War II. The Greeks, though, are striving desperately to survive as a nation, and, again like their surviving architecture, they may be expected stubbornly to withstand the tests of time and tempest—especially if they heed Paul's sermon!

Can You See the Christ?

Jesus said: "This is the will of him that sent me, that every one that seeth the Son, and believeth on him, may have everlasting life: and I will raise him up at the last day" (John 6:40). Persons living in the time of Christ, and near Him, had a wonderful privilege now removed from men: they were permitted actually to see the Christ. Apparently, though, the public in the days of Christ's ministry little appreciated that privilege, for many people saw nought else in Him than ordinary man. Now, Christ being absent, one feels that even a momentary vision of Christ would be sufficient to cancel all doubt and to inspire one to live free from transgression. There is a sense, though, in which one can see Christ—that is, seeing Him in the sense of understanding and appreciating Him.

Apparently, Jesus had this latter thought primarily in mind when speaking the words recorded in John 6:40, for He associated one's ability to see Him with one's ability to believe in Him. His words were: "Every one which seeth the Son, and believeth on Him, may have everlasting life." Indeed, if Christ were here in person today, we, His people, might become more like the people nineteen centuries ago who failed to see Him as the Christ. His absence, encouraging us to study His words and His life, tends to strengthen our mental vision and reception of Him.

Can we see the Christ? Yes! Ten thousand attractions of this world cannot obliterate or darken the light of the Son of God. Momentarily, we may lose sight of Him, but the duties and trials of life soon cause us to turn toward Him again. Wonderful is the promise, therefore, that "every one which seeth the Son, and believeth on him, may have everlasting life"—there being the further assurance that it is God's will, through Christ, to resurrect every believer at the last day.

Can you see the Christ?—in His marvelous majesty and purity? Can you see the Christ as exponent of God's grace and mercy? Can you see the Christ as the One whom God has ordained to "judge the quick and the dead"? Can you see the Christ as eventual "KING OF KINGS AND LORD OF LORDS"?

Christ in a Quaint Picture

Recently, through the kindness of Sister Stanley Ross, Litchfield, Minnesota, we received permission to publish the accompanying picture. It is a quaint picture, one that may have no appeal or meaning at first observation. Indeed, we studied the picture for ten minutes, at least, before it revealed any significance to us. Then, assisted slightly by a friend, we suddenly were amazed to see the likeness of the Christ emerge from the chaos. The picture was made, originally, of a snow formation on bushes, seen through a window. A woman happened to see the unusual formation, and, fearing it might soon be lost by wind or sun, took a snapshot picture of it from within her house. Since that time, the picture has been widely circulated: some people being annoyed, some feigning they see, and some really seeing.

Can you see Christ in the picture? If at first you meet with disappointment, continue studying. Ask another to help you. Surely, if eight or ten persons are in your presence—all studying the picture—two or three of the number will be able to see the likeness of our Lord, and they in turn, will assist you to find Him.

So it is in life: it usually is necessary to seek the Christ before one can see the Christ. Sometimes, one almost despairs of seeing the Christ. He seems so distant! so hidden! Then a friend may help, may lead, until in surprise and gladness one sees that "Jesus is always there."

Can you see Christ in the picture? He's there!

DO YOU SEE CHRIST, OR CHAOS?

Christ and His Second Coming

By W. R. Simmons, Hartshorne, Oklahoma

*"He which testifieth these things saith, Surely I come quickly. Amen."
Then follows the response, "Even so come, Lord Jesus" (Rev. 22:20).*

W. R. Simmons

WHY is the Church of God so anxious for the Lord to return? Oh! the power that will be revealed at Christ's coming! "All that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth" (John 5:28, 29). Resurrection, alone, is sufficient reason for all the church to desire the coming of the Lord. Should we not all say, as did John, "Even so come, Lord Jesus"? Every Church-of-God member who is ready for Christ's coming is praying, "Come, Lord Jesus, and come quickly." The return of Christ means everything to those who love Him, and their love for Him is evidenced by their looking for Him.

Why should not Jesus return to earth? As heir of God, all the creation eventually will belong to Christ, as we read: "The earth is the Lord's, and the fulness thereof; the world, and they that dwell therein" (Psalm 24:1). Puny man may think he owns the earth, but persons not belonging to Christ at His coming will discover that they own nothing. In that day, the ungodly, though land-owners prior to that time, will have only a free pass to "the lake of fire, which is the second death." (Rev. 20:15; 21:8.) The Christ Himself testifies: "Behold, I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to give every man according as his work shall be" (22:12). When the church, as the bride of Christ, is united with Christ at His coming, the church will become owners, with Christ, of "all the earth and the fulness thereof"—the bride and her bridegroom together inheriting all the blessings of God. Daniel prophesied of that day:

"The kingdom and dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven shall be given to the people of the saints of the most High, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all dominions shall serve and obey him" (7:27).

Yes, even as God is Possessor of all creation, Christ and His people will inherit the same. By inheritance, all the earth belongs to Christ, and we belong to Christ. Together, the bride and the bridegroom will come to this earth after the great wedding has been consummated in the air. (1 Thess. 4:17; Rev. 19:7-9; Zech. 14:5b, 9.)

Christ and His bride will inherit this earth, which is the Lord's, to cleanse it from all sin, to remove the curse of thorns and thistles, sickness and death, leaving nothing that causes pain or sorrow. All troubles, whatsoever, will be swept away, no more to return.

The bride and the Bridegroom will rejoice together in making this old earth new and beautiful as it was before the curse. Then, indeed, the earth in its beauty will surpass its glory when first created and made man's Eden home of peace and happiness. In the first Eden, there was temptation; but when Christ establishes the new Eden, Satan will be bound.

Would it not be strange if people should pray: "Lord, please do not come back, for we want a few more wars"? Are there any who could pray: "Lord, do not come back, for we want to see the living crushed under the wheels of destruction"? Well, until the (Please turn to page 10)

TILL JESUS COMES!

*"The grace of God be with you all Till Jesus comes"—What benediction!
It makes the cares and trials of life
Seem but a light affliction;
It brings the thought that He may come
Today, perhaps tomorrow!
It takes the hurt from pain, and leaves
A balm for all our sorrow.*

*"Till Jesus comes!" They thrill our hearts
Those words of expectation:
O Lord, Thy loved ones watch for Thee
With glad anticipation,
Of all Thy grace bestowed on us,
Help us to tell the story,
That others in this hope may rest
And meet with Thee in glory.*

5—Jacob: the Man of God

Golden text:

"When Rebecca also had conceived by one, even by our father Isaac; (for the children being not yet born, neither having done any good or evil, that the purpose of God according to the election might stand, not of works, but of him that calleth;) it was said unto her, The elder shall serve the younger. As it is written, Jacob have I loved, but Esau have I hated" (Rom. 9:10-13).

Text: Genesis 27.

Questions on the text:

- (1) Did Rebecca do anything wrong in stealing the blessing for Jacob when everybody knew that Jacob was to be ruler over Esau? (Gen. 25:23.)
- (2) Did Isaac do right in intending to give his blessing to Esau, when he had been told of God that the elder should serve the younger?
- (3) What was the relation of the birthright to the blessing? Could Esau have obtained the blessing rightfully after he had sold his birthright? (Gen. 25:29ff.)
- (4) Why was it such a wicked thing for Esau to sell his birthright? (Heb. 12:16, 17.)
- (5) Was Jacob a sinner in his obtaining the birthright by playing on the emotions of Esau, and in obtaining the blessing by deceit?
- (6) Did Isaac know that he was not blessing Esau when Jacob came by him in deceit?
- (7) Rebecca never saw her favorite son again. Was that just punishment for her deceit in obtaining the blessing for Jacob?
- (8) Was it not possible for Esau to obtain the same blessing with Jacob?

Discussion of the text:

Isaac and Rebecca both knew that Jacob was to be the favored son because of God's statements prior to the birth of the twins. Isaac, true to the old Hebrew custom, loved the elder better than the younger. In the matter of the birthright and the blessing, there seemed to be some knowledge on the part of Isaac that he was really blessing Jacob when all the time he was supposed to be blessing Esau. Under the system of that day, the birthright belonged to the eldest son, and the blessing went with the birthright. The father, however, could transfer that blessing to any son he wished. Jacob at a later time transferred his blessing to Joseph, though Reuben was the eldest. Later, we see that Judah obtained the birthright because of certain sins that the eldest brother committed, and because Judah offered himself in the place of Benjamin to be a servant to the unrecognized Joseph. Genealogists say that Jesus was descended both from Judah and Joseph, and by that fact obtained both the birthright and the blessing which came from Jacob.

Related topics:

- (1) Read Genesis 28:1-4, 10ff. Why did God give Jacob the promises though he had obtained the birthright and the blessing apparently in a deceitful way?
- (2) Were the promises as given to Jacob during his dream less valid because they were given in a dream? Were the promises as repeated to Jacob any different from those given to Abraham and Isaac before him?
- (3) The problem of taking a wife of Jacob's own people arises again. What should our attitude be?
- (4) The sojourn for a bride need not concern us for the major lessons of Scripture, but it is an interesting sidelight. Read the story out of class, and know the facts. (Gen. 29:1-30.)
- (5) The return of Jacob from Laban's place also has no direct bearing upon the teachings of the Scriptures. Only one incident is of importance: the change of Jacob's name to Israel. (Gen. 32:24ff; 35:10.)
- (6) Promise of the land reaffirmed to Jacob. (35:11, 12.)

Readings for the week:

Genesis 27-36; Hebrews 11:20, 21; Romans 9.

Practical applications:

When God does not do something just in our way, our reaction is to help Him. We are not willing to wait God's time and the development of His plans. That was the case with Rebecca and Jacob. God had promised that the younger should rule the elder. By doing things impulsively, we often help in God's plan, but in such a way as to cause ourselves a great deal of trouble. Both Rebecca and Jacob suffered for their deceitfulness. God blessed Jacob in spite of his scheming ways. God will likewise bless us if our hearts are right with Him, even in spite of much of our waywardness. (Please turn to page 9)

My Old Home

I hail once more my natal day,
Still in timent of clay,
With many favors blest.
Now He who placed the structure here
Can prop it up another year,
If He should think it best.

Long hath it stood through snows and rains
And braved life's fearful hurricanes,
While many a Stronger fell,
The reason why we cannot see,
But to us seems mystery
The Builder knows full well.

But now 'tis weather-worn and old;
The summer's heat and winter's cold
Pierce through the walls and roof;
'Tis like a garment so worn out—
To mend there seems no whereabout,
So gone is warp and woof.

The tottering pillars are all weak;
The poor old rusty hinges creak;
The windows, too, are dim.
These slight discomforts we'll let pass,
For looking darkly through a glass,
We catch a hopeful gleam.

Nature and reason tell us all
This withered frame ere long must fall—
When, where, or how, unknown;
We'll leave that to the Architect
And trust His wisdom to direct
The taking of it down.

And when you see it prostrate lie,
Let not a tear bedim your eye.
The tenant is not here,
But just beyond time's little space,
She'll find some quiet resting place,
No more to date her year.

And though she walks with you no more,
The world will move just as before.
'Tis meet it should be so!
Let each his house in order set,
That he may leave without regret
Whenever called to go.

As it is here reported by Brother J. R. LeCrane, their pastor, Brother and Sister Edward Coverston, Waterlick, Virginia, recently celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary. Lifetime residents of "Fort Valley," they have endeared themselves to everyone in that community. They are long-time and faithful members of the "Fort Valley" or "Dry Run" Church of God. Their hope is strong and their faith is firm, as they await the coming King.

Sixtieth Wedding Anniversary

The home of Brother and Sister Edward Coverston, located in the scenic and historical Powells Fort Valley of Virginia, provided the setting for a happy gathering on November 2, 1946. Relatives and friends assembled from near and far for the purpose of helping Brother and Sister Coverston commemorate the sixtieth anniversary of their marriage.

Fifty-one people came to offer congratulations to the bride and groom on their sixty years of exemplary married life and to take part in the festivities. Though the celebration was the occasion for many happy reunions and much reminiscing, the guests also much enjoyed the sumptuous feast provided for them.

Brother and Sister Coverston, together with the elder guests, were seated at the main table. This table held two beautiful special-occasion cakes; one a large three-layer anniversary cake, the other a huge three-tiered wedding cake. The balance of the guests were served from convenient smaller tables.

On their wedding day, October 31, 1886, Brother Coverston brought his bride to the place that has been their home ever since. Their lovely home and productive farm literally have been carved from the wilderness by means of their own courage and hard work. Though it has been replaced by a more modern house, their original log structure is still standing to remind them of the struggle of their earlier days together.

Both Brother and Sister Coverston were born in the Valley in which they now reside. Sr. Coverston was, before her marriage, Miss Ida S. Ritenour.

In 1897, husband and wife were baptized into the name of Jesus by Brother Ben Boyer, who, at that time, was acting pastor for the believers in Virginia. They established a Christian home and reared their children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. Throughout the years, Brother and Sister Coverston have been faithful and active members of the Church of God.

Of their six children (two sons and four daughters), five were present on this happy occasion. One daughter sleeps in death. There are also fifteen grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

The Word Made Flesh

Jesus Christ, Who Is He?

In Two Parts—Part One

By J. H. Thomas, M.D., Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania
Contributed by W. S. Tomlinson, Chagrin Falls, Ohio

IN THE FIRST chapter of John, we are told, "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word [Logos] was with God [Theos], and the Word was God. . . . The Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us, (and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father,) full of grace and truth."

In the consideration of this subject, we wish to notice first, that the Greek word logos, translated "word," means mind, reason, speech, or word, and hence wisdom; therefore the logos that was with God, and was God, was the mind, reason, or wisdom of God, expressed in His word of promise. As it is contended by some that God has "neither body nor parts," but is simply "primal energy" or "creative power," we will, before considering how the word was made flesh, endeavor to show the unscripturalness of such a contention. The very passage before us is a sufficient answer in itself; for the logos was with God as well as God. If there had been no God or Theos, there could have been no word or logos; there could have been no mind, reason, speech, or word, without a thinker, reasoner, and speaker. Pertinent to this thought is the passage in Isaiah 18, "Come now, and let us reason together, saith the Lord"! In all creation, wherever we discover reason or intelligence, we find living form or organism. The intelligence, reason, and wisdom of every man or woman is the result of living brain formation. As you lower the scale of this brain formation, you weaken the intelligence, reason, and wisdom. Therefore, as we are told that man was made in the image of God, we are logically bound to believe that God is a personal being. We, being in the image of God, can understand that, as our words are with us, and are us, so the logos, word, or wisdom was with God and was God. It is a common thing to speak of a man's words as himself. How often when we hear another repeating what some dear friend had said, we remark, "That's Robert," or, "That's James," as the case may be, because we at once recognize our friend in his words!

That it is in this sense that the word or wisdom was with God and was God is very clearly revealed in Proverbs 8. Speaking of wisdom, it is said: "The Lord possessed me in the beginning of his way, before his works of old. I was set up from everlasting, from the beginning, or ever the earth was. . . . When he prepared the heavens, I was there. . . . When he gave to the sea his decree, that the waters should not pass his commandments, when he appointed the foundations of the earth: then I was by him, as one brought up with him; and I was daily his delight, rejoicing always before him."

As is here spoken of wisdom, so John spoke of the logos, or word, and said it was in the beginning with God. Peter said: "By the word of God the heavens were of old"; while Solomon said: "The Lord by wisdom hath founded the earth; by understanding hath he established the heavens" (Prov. 3:19). It is clear, therefore, that the word, which in the beginning was with God and was God, was not a person—the second person in that conceit called trinity, nor yet the person of God, but was that which the word logos signifies, mind, reason, speech, hence the wisdom or purpose of God which was with Him as our words or purposes are with us.

Further, this divine person or God that John said in the beginning the word was with, is called Theos, a word signifying position, or place, hence to dispose a place in order, therefore a very appropriate designation for the Divine Being as the disposer or former of all things, as said Isaiah, "I am the Lord that maketh all things; that stretcheth forth the heavens alone; that spreadeth abroad the earth by myself." We learn, therefore, that the eternal, uncreated, self-existent Deity is more than a mere idea—more than "primal energy," or "creative force"; he is divine substance from which all things emanate. We are told that "God is a spirit," but we are not to understand by that that God is a mere phantom, or creation of every man's brain, but the very reverse. Paul told us that the last Adam, Christ, was made a Spirit—a life-giving Spirit; yet we know He was substance. If Christ, after He was made Spirit through a resurrection, was divine substance, then God, who is a Spirit, is divine substance.

Jesus said, "As the Father hath life in himself, so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself." When did the Son have life in Himself? I answer: When He became, through a resurrection from the dead, "a life-giving Spirit," or divine substance like his Father, who is a fountain of life. Thus we reason, and thus say the Scriptures

(Heb. 1:3.) Paul said of Jesus, that He was an effulgence of God's glory, and an exact impress of His substance; and again, in Romans 1:3, Paul spoke of Him as the "incorruptible God," or Theos; again, He is said to dwell in light unapproachable. Hence, light, incorruptibility, life, wisdom, and power, concentrated in one divine substance, is the great self-existing and controlling power of the universe, called a Spirit—the Creator and Upholder of all things, in whom we, and all things live, move, and exist, and "out of whom all things," whose Spirit radiates the boundless universe and pervades all space—its center Divine Substance, or Deity, its circumference, who can tell! Hence said Paul to the Athenians, "He is not far from every one of us"; and David exclaimed, "Whither shall I go from thy presence? If I ascend up into heaven thou art there, and if I make my bed in [sheol], behold thou art there."

Such is the Scripture teaching concerning God the Father of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, who only has immortality, whom no man has seen nor can see; whose radiant spirit pervades all things as the ruah, or spirit of life, and is the substratum of every existing thing, from the star of the greatest magnitude to the minutest insect of the air. By His Spirit, He garnished the heavens with glittering orbs, and spread out the earth beneath with lofty mountains and widespread plains, with rippling streams and broad oceans; he clothed the earth with beautiful flora and fitted it for the abode of man.

Such, then, was Deity before the appearance of Jesus, when the word was with God and was God. But we are told that the word was made flesh, and for a moment we may inquire, For what purpose? The answer comes, "To bruise the serpent's head, deliver those in bondage, bring many sons unto glory, and make all things new." (Gen. 3:15; Heb. 2:9, 10, 14, 15; Rev. 21:4, 5.) How was the word made flesh? I answer, By the logos, word, wisdom, or purpose of Deity being fulfilled, and thus manifesting Deity in the flesh. This "word" made flesh Paul called the "mystery of godliness"—God manifested in flesh; justified (or perfected) in spirit, seen of messengers, preached unto the nations, believed on in the world, received up in glory. Thus God was manifested in flesh by His word of promise being fulfilled, or His purpose to manifest Himself being accomplished.

As an illustration of how the word, wisdom, or purpose of Deity became flesh, we have but to consider how our words take form or are corporealized. Every man's words take form who builds for himself a residence if he be his own architect. The residence he builds is first in his brain as thought. Having perfected in his mind the kind of structure he will build in every particular, he puts his thoughts into words, which are then an expression of his purpose, and which in the hands of the builder take form, and the structure is his words corporealized. As we look at the structure, we see the wisdom of the architect.

So the word, or logos, that was made flesh, in the beginning was with God and was God, being His wisdom and purpose to manifest Himself in the woman's seed, or flesh, and when the wisdom and purpose of God was made known it was then His word, which in due time became corporealized in the person of the Son of Mary by the Holy Spirit vivifying the life principle in the womb of the handmaid of God, and in set time was born, the child Jesus, as recorded by John. The word was made flesh, and we beheld His glory (when He was transfigured on the mount), the glory of the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth.

That Deity would manifest Himself in flesh had been the word and purpose of God from the beginning expressed in the promise that the "woman's seed should bruise the serpent's head" (Gen. 3:15); in the promise of Shiloh from Judah (Gen. 49:10); in the promise of the sceptered star out of Jacob (Num. 24:17); in the promise of a seed to Abraham who should possess the gate of his enemies (Gen. 22:17); in the promise of the divine Son assured to David (2 Sam. 7:14); to be born of a virgin to rule on David's throne (Isa. 9:6, 7); and last, in the promise to Mary that she should bring forth a Son who should be called the Son of the Highest, to whom God would give the throne of David, and that He should reign over the house of Jacob forever (Luke 1:32-34).

Not only so, but, when God sent Moses down to Egypt to bring up Israel, Moses asked what name he should give to Israel. (Ex. 3:13-15.) As rendered in King James Version, it reads, "God said, I am that I am. Thus shalt thou say unto the children of Israel, I am hath sent me unto you." The Hebrew words rendered "I am that I am," are Yahweh asher yahweh, and, according to the best critics, is very improperly rendered. The passage should read, "I will be who I will be. Thus shalt thou say unto the children of Israel, I will be hath sent me unto you." Verse 15 states: "This is my name for ever, and this is my memorial unto all generations." We see then that Israel was to remember that God would from that time be known as Yahweh, or, "I will be." Again, in Exodus 6:3, God told Moses that He appeared unto Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob by the name of Ail Shaddai (Hebrew), rendered in our version, "God Almighty," but a better rendering would read, "The strength of the Mighty Ones, but by my name Yahweh, or I will be, I was not known unto them." It appears then that before God appeared unto Moses at the bush He was not known by the name of Yahweh, I will be; but by His name Ail Shaddai, the strength of the Mighty Ones; but, after that time, He was to be known by His name, "I will be." It was to be a memorial name unto all generations. (Turn to p. 10)

News and Prophecy Digest

By C. E. Randall (Fonthill, Ontario)

MINISTERS PICKET. The White House recently was picketed by thirty-six ministers carrying posters protesting the continued imprisonment of conscientious objectors. The posters read: "Free U.S. religious prisoners," and "Jail for conscience denies religious freedom." After parading Pennsylvania Avenue, calls were made on Congressmen and leading government officials. Two months ago, 300 ministers wrote President Truman, urging the release of 1,200 C.O.s still incarcerated. There seems to be no reason why these boys should not be freed, now that the war is over.

PAY FOR EXEMPTION. The Council of Industrial Relations for the Seventh Day Adventists has recently signed an agreement with the labor unions throughout the country, whereby members of the Seventh Day denomination will be exempted from membership in unions and participating in union activities. They will pay the equivalent of union dues to specific charitable and sick benefit funds. This agreement will free Adventists from participation in "conflicts and violence," although they affirm their approval of the "aims of organized labor." This policy would seem to be like refusing to eat pork, but relishing a good bowl of soup made from it.

GOSPEL OF SALVATION. It is doubtful if there is a man in America today who is in closer touch with the results of sin and crime than J. Edgar Hoover, head of the F.B.I. "The Pentecostal Evangel" quotes him as follows: "I am sure that if more emphasis were placed on the gospel of salvation, and less on social justice, the latter would become a greater reality."

There has been a great swing in the nominal church toward preaching a message solely devoted to our day and time. It is called a "Social Gospel"—a gospel that treats of the problems of labor, government, society, and human welfare in general. Worthy as such efforts are, the element of hope is completely removed, and, after all, the gospel of salvation is a gospel of hope. "We are saved by hope; but hope that is seen is not hope."

BAPTIST RESOLUTION. The Southern Baptist Convention, meeting in New Orleans, May 14, 1937, passed the following resolution: "It is the sense of the Convention that the prevalence of smoking among Christian people, especially among preachers, church leaders, and denominational workers, is not only detrimental to the health of those who participate, but harmful to the cause of Christ in that it weakens the message and lowers the influence of those charged with the preservation and spread of the gospel."

Writing in "Moody Monthly," William James Robinson, D.D., says, that women are now the largest users of cigarettes in the United States. "Statistics recently compiled show that women have superseded men as the nation's leading civilian cigarette smokers. They bought 69 per cent of the 329,000,000,000 cigarettes a year manufactured for civilian use." He further writes: "Dr. Raymond Pearl, of Johns Hopkins University, says that the death rate of heavy smokers, and that includes all confirmed smokers, between the ages of thirty and fifty is approximately twice as high as that of nonsmokers. Drs. Willus, English, and Berkman, of the Mayo Foundation have declared that coronary disease of the heart is six times more prevalent among heavy smokers than among nonsmokers. This unimpeachable testimony proves conclusively the culpability of tobacco in its causation of this terrible disease. It should make all smokers quit the use of tobacco instantly.

NEUROSIS. Men and women everywhere are getting jittery. Nervous disorders are rapidly increasing. Nearly everywhere one goes, he hears people talking about their nerves. It is not a matter that should be considered lightly. It is a disease, and a serious disorder at that. Oftentimes neurotic upsets are caused by physical ailments—more times by spiritual deficiencies. More and more, the medical profession is realizing that nervous disorders must be worked out with the minister's aid.

At a recent meeting in Toronto of the medical profession, the matter of treating neurotics came up for discussion. The doctors acknowledged their inability to deal with cases "whose symptoms indicated not a physical illness, but a spiritual deficiency." The indwelling of the Word, reliance upon God, and steady service in His church and interest taken in the welfare of others in the name of Christ will do more for shattered nerves and distracted minds than anything else.

ADVANTAGE OF A JEW. In an editorial in the December issue of "Destiny," the editor makes this statement: "A permanent Jewish state will never be established in Palestine, for God has already set forth in the Bible who shall possess Palestine." He further charges the President with meddling in affairs that are not this nation's concern, when he seeks to settle the displaced Jews of Europe in Palestine. He writes: "The Palestine controversy is no exception and so the President meddles in affairs that are not this nation's present concern for the sake of winning a few votes in support of his party's policies." This spirit of anti-Semitism pervades much of the writings of this paper. In their reasoning, the Jew is an outcast from the "covenants of promise." But to the plan of God, he has much advantage. Paul, speaking by inspiration, asked the question: "What advantage then hath the Jew? or what profit is there of circumcision?" He then proceeded to answer his own questions by saying: "Much every way: chiefly, because that unto them were committed the oracles of God." Jesus gave evidence to the favored position of the Jews, when He said: "Salvation is of the Jews." When the veil is lifted from the eyes of the people of Israel who are blinded through the reading of the law given at Mount Sinai, the whole house of Israel will be shepherded on the mountains of Israel by that "great shepherd of the sheep."

New Testament distinctions between two and ten tribes is man-made. On Pentecost, it was the "whole house of Israel." To Paul, it was "our twelve tribes." James wrote to the "twelve tribes which are scattered abroad." There are certain interpreters of the Scriptures who are moved by national loyalties that appropriate all the covenant blessings to the ten tribes and impugn all evil motives and resulting judgments to the two tribes. Such lays the groundwork for bitterness toward one segment of Israel out of which our Lord sprang. To speak against the "least of these my brethren" is to speak against Christ.

BREAKING THE IMAGE. The metallic image which Daniel recorded in his book represents the kingdoms of this world in the latter times as well as the four great empires that ruled over the covenant land of Palestine beginning with Babylon. The picture which is set forth for us in the great prophecies of this book is one of ultimate destruction of these kingdoms. The Kingdom of God is the smiting force that breaks in pieces the kingdoms of this world. If a person believes or lives as though the kingdoms of this world are always to continue more or less along the same lines as they now exist, he is in for a rude awakening. The stone of Daniel is the Kingdom of God. When it is set up, it is to smite the image on the feet and break in pieces all the kingdoms of the world. The stone that does the smiting becomes a great mountain and fills the whole earth. There is no place for man-ruled kingdoms in the first scene as given us in Daniel. In his pamphlet on "Daniel in Prophecy," Dr. Rice, speaking of God's Kingdom on earth, says: "It will be a kingdom not built by human hands, nor brought in by education nor civilization, nor even by the preaching of the gospel, but brought in by the King Himself. Jesus taught us to pray for His coming when we say, 'Thy kingdom come.' Christ will come to reign in person on this earth. That is not figurative; it is literal." Then, in his closing remarks, he says: "But beyond that day we see the gladside of prophecy! After the coming of Christ, we see God's favor restored on Israel, a government of Christ Himself on the earth, established with peace and righteousness when the saints shall rule with Him forever. The victory of righteousness in this world will not come until Jesus comes, but, thank God, it will come then!"

The kingdoms of this world around which the lives and hopes of most people are built must be ground to powder. God has warned us not to place our trust in these kingdoms.

6—Joseph: Purity of Character

Golden text:

"He dreamed yet another dream, and told it his brethren, and said, Behold, I have dreamed a dream more: and behold, the sun and the moon and the eleven stars made obeisance to me" (Gen. 37:9).

Text: Genesis 37.

Questions on the text:

(1) Why was the story of Joseph as told in Genesis voted by the national convention of English teachers to be the greatest single story in all literature?

(2) What kind of a character had Joseph as portrayed in his dealings with his brothers? Was he a "goody-goody"? Was a "tattle tale" liked any better then than now?

(3) Notice that Jacob loved Joseph more than any of the others and showed it by giving him a coat of many colors. How did that further complicate family relations?

(4) Why was Reuben more concerned about the welfare of Joseph than the others?

(5) Notice how the Lord was with Joseph in slavery: first with the captain of the guard, and then with the keeper of the prison. Was it just an accident that he was favored? What is the lesson to us in Joseph's conduct?

(6) Notice all through his time at Potiphar's house that he was a responsible individual. Had he had any training along the lines of responsibility?

(7) Joseph's purity of character is his outstanding trait. How did it stand him in good stead though he was thrown in jail?

Discussion of the text:

The story of Joseph is packed full of drama. The youngest son among elder brothers, who were grown men with families of their own, was likely to be despised by the older ones. Especially would that be true when he began to tell dreams that showed that he would rule over them, and also as he was the favored son of Jacob's favorite wife. As the eldest son of Rachel, Jacob looked upon Joseph as his legitimate heir and eldest son. He was probably about sixteen years of age and his elder brothers were men of forty-five or fifty years of age. Would he indeed rule over them? Reuben was responsible for Joseph's welfare because he was the eldest son, and Judah felt more or less responsibility some how or another though he was in no sense in charge. Judah did not show his real metal until later when Joseph had become ruler in Egypt. God showed Joseph favor in his slavery and brought favor to him in those that were placed over him. What must have been the feeling of Potiphar's wife later when Joseph became the ruler next to the king of all Egypt! We should learn the lesson that virtue is its own reward.

Related topics:

(1) Who were the Midianites and Ishmaelites to whom Joseph was sold? Was it their custom to deal in slaves?

(2) What was the significance of the "coat of many colours"? Do we show favoritism in our families as did Jacob, or was that rather a custom of the day when Jacob selected one of the number as his favored son?

Practical applications:

To the young man at the age at which Joseph was when he was in charge of Potiphar's house, we have a most remarkable lesson. If Joseph had reached forth his hand and laid hold upon the temptation that was offered him, he probably could have prospered a great deal. His master probably would not have found him out, and what a temptation that would have been to most young men! Joseph not only was a man of strong moral character from the point of view of physical attraction and moral control, but he also showed his integrity of character in his loyalty to his master. Though he was put in jail, he was faithful to his trust. He would not yield to the temptations that would have made him despise himself eventually. Joseph's integrity of character led him to jail, but virtue is its own reward. Our character is, as somebody has said, what we are in the dark. If we can do something and get away with it, that shows a weak character. The person who has a strong character is one who does the right thing though nobody will know whether he did the wrong thing or not. Virtue rewarded Joseph though he went to jail. The story is told of the lieutenant in the war of 1914 who came to an intersection in the battle zone where utter confusion had been wrought by the explosion of a German shell. The lieutenant straightened out the traffic snarl. Later, he was recommended for the distinguished service cross. Nobody could find out who he was. He was rewarded by the knowledge of a job well done. He did not need a decoration. He had the better decoration of a clear conscience, of the knowledge of a duty well done in spite of the fact that he stood a good chance of never being rewarded openly. That is the lesson of Joseph's conduct in the house of Potiphar.

Readings for the week:

Genesis 39. Notice how little mention there is of Joseph in the New Testament. Could you offer an explanation of that fact?

I MET GOD IN THE MORNING

"I met God in the morning,
When my heart was at its best,
And His Presence came like sunrise—
Like a glory in my breast.

"All day long the Presence lingered,
All day long He stayed with me;
And we sailed with perfect calmness
O'er a very troubled sea. . . .

"So I think I know the secret
Learned from many a troubled way;
You must seek Him in the morning,
If you want Him through the day."

CHRIST AND HIS SECOND COMING

Lord does return, that is exactly what will happen. It will continue to happen until Christ returns to destroy earth's oppressors. So, let us who belong to Christ continue to pray, "Even so, come, Lord Jesus." We want the Christ to come, so we can be "priests of God and of Christ, and . . . reign with him a thousand years" (Rev. 20:6). That will be the required length of time to subdue evil, though it is written, "Of his kingdom, there shall be no end" (Luke 1:33). Christ will possess the earth forever, and we, His people, will sit with Christ on His throne, being given "power over the nations" (Rev. 2:26).

During the time that Christ and His overcomers are subduing the evils of this world, they "shall rule" the nations "with a rod of iron" (v. 27). That simply means that Christ's rules will be strict and unbreakable. "As the vessels of a potter shall they be broken to shivers."

Concerning the day of Christ's return, it is written: "Then shall the king say to them on his right hand, Come, ye blessed of my father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world" (Matt. 25:34). That invitation will sound so much better than to hear the King say, as He will say to the unfaithful, "Depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels" (v. 41). As certainly, though, as men refuse or decline to cleanse themselves of sin by accepting and obeying the gospel, that certainly are they going to hear those sad words of rejection—"Depart, ye cursed." No one will be able to carry his sin over into the Age to come, lest the new world be filled again with sin. The very purpose of Christ's reign is to destroy sin. Why, then, should He allow sin to enter His Kingdom?

Everyone, therefore, who wishes a blessing and a share in the coming Kingdom of the Lord must depart from sin. The gate is too "strait" and the way is too narrow to provide passage for the sins of this life. Sin "just can't pass through this narrow way into eternal life! So "turn sin loose" and say, "Come, Lord Jesus, and come quickly."

"Behold, the Lord God will come with strong hand and his arm"—representing the church—"shall rule for him: behold, his reward is with him, and his work before him" (Isa. 40:10). Brethren, let us lay aside all sin and be ready to assist Christ, at His coming, to cleanse this old sin-cursed earth, making it into our everlasting home of beauty and holiness.

THE WORD MADE FLESH

In consideration of this memorial name given to Israel the question very naturally arises, I will be who? or what? The answer is given in Exodus 6:9: I will take you to Me for a people, and I will be to you Elohim, or Mighty Ones, and you shall know that I am Yahweh your Elohim—literally, I am He who will be your Mighty Ones.

This promise, or word of Deity, commenced to be fulfilled by the "word" becoming flesh in the person and substance of Jesus as the Captain, Head, Chief, of First-born of the Mighty Ones of Israel, in whom Deity has declared He will be manifested. Being justified or made perfect in spirit, or exalted to the high and heavenly estate of incorruptibility and life, they will constitute the rulers and governors of that new heaven and earth, or creation of which Jesus is the Alpha and Omega.

We discover then that Jesus was not the eternal, self-existent, uncreated God in person, but the Son of God—the logos, or word made flesh in fulfillment of the promise made to Israel that He who was known to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob as Ail Shaddai—"Strength of the Mighty Ones," would become Israel's Saviour. Though God made known His memorial name to Israel through Moses at the bush, yet it was to be a long time after before the Yahweh name would be manifested. Now, as Jesus was the first to manifest the name (see John 17:6), and as He was born of the Virgin Mary, He could not have pre-existed as a person. Mark, it was the eternal, and self-existent God that was to become Israel's Mighty One and not a pre-existent Son. It is clear, then, that the logos that was with God and was God became flesh in the person of Jesus as the Saviour of Israel, the promise had commenced to be fulfilled, and the Yahweh name was manifested by Him who is the first-born among many brethren; and being immersed by John in the waters of Jordan and anointed by the Spirit descending upon Him He became Jesus Christ, that is, Jesus the Anointed, and God declared Him to be His only begotten Son in whom He was well pleased. Thus Jesus in His flesh, bore the nature of man, in His mind the character of God. In other words,

He was human in nature but divine in character. Therefore, Paul said (Gal. 4:4): "When the fulness of time was come, God sent forth his Son, made of a woman, made under the law." He was begotten not of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God. "No man," said John, "hath seen God at any time, the only begotten Son who is in the bosom of the Father, he hath declared him."

AT PRAYER MEETING

There were only two or three of us
 Who came to the place of prayer—
 Came in the teeth of a driving storm;
 But for that we did not care.
 Since our hymns of praise had risen,
 And our earnest prayers were said,
 The Master Himself was present there
 And gave us the living bread.
 We knew His look in our leader's face,
 So rapt and glad and free;
 We felt His touch when our heads were bowed,
 We heard His "Come to me."
 Nobody saw Him lift the latch,
 And none unbarred the door;
 But "peace" was His token to every heart,
 And how could we ask for more?
 Each of us felt the load of sin
 From the weary shoulders fall;
 Each of us dropped the load of care
 And the grief that's like a pall;
 And o'er our spirits a blessed calm
 Swept in from the jasper sea,
 And strength was ours for toil and strife
 In the days that were thence to be.
 It was only a handful gathered in
 To the little place of prayer;
 Outside were struggle and pain and sin,
 But the Lord Himself was there;
 He came to redeem the pledge He gave—Wherever His loved ones be
 To stand Himself in the midst of them
 Though they count but two or three.
 And forth we fared in the bitter rain
 And our hearts had grown so warm,
 It seemed like the pelting of summer flowers
 And not the crash of storm;
 "'Twas a time of dearest privilege
 Of the Lord's right hand," we said
 As we thought how Jesus Himself had come,
 To feed us with living bread.

—Margaret Sangster.

 PARADISE

By Arlen Marsh

"Savage" comes from the Latin "silvaticus," which meant "coming from the woods, wild." Only later usage has corrupted it to signify fierce, untutored, pagan peoples, or unpleasantly angry temperaments.

South from Guadalcanal (Evangelical Publishers, Toronto; $1.50) is subtitled, "The Thrilling Romance of Rennell Islands"—and for thrills the book definitely lives up to it. For romance, no!

It is the story of Dr. Northcote Deck and his fellow workers in the formerly cannibalistic South Sea islands. Dr. Deck was—and still is—a missionary, a missionary who writes more of events early in the present century than of events of recent years. Guadalcanal is, for Dr. Northcote, less a scene of battle than a springboard for missionary travels.

"Today," says Oswald J. Smith in his Foreword, "twelve thousand Christians sing the song of Zion in the Solomon Islands." Christians frequently, you will recall, were responsible for saving the lives of American and Australian airmen who were shot down in the South Pacific island regions.

South from Guadalcanal is filled with stories—true stories. They are told with a cold, bald, statement-of-fact style that effectually abolishes the "romance" mentioned in the subtitle, but which still cannot destroy the essential adventure in the lives of the missionaries. Events run from around 1900 to 1945, and cover, naturally, an amazing number of changes, physical and spiritual.

There is the tale of Vouza, who won the George Medal from the King of England and a decoration from the President of the United States for his astonishing valor in the recent war. There is the tale of the three whites who were established on Rennell Island as missionaries in 1909—and who were promptly killed by natives who wanted their axes, tools, and iron; this tale kept the Rennell Islanders from hearing about God until 1934, when the government finally permitted missionaries to try again. There is the tale of the natives who told American airmen: "The best thing the white man has brought to us is the Bible, because it has changed our lives!" All told, the book has something—and for more than those whose chief interests lie in mission work.

Order this book—or any other now in print—from National Bible Institution, Oregon, Ill. Think of your own church publishing house first.

We're all familiar enough with it to be tired of it—that old saw that we have to hang together, or we'll hang separately. There's another platitude that's just as uninspiring, too—"A stitch in time saves nine."

But somehow, most of those hoary sayings have a germ of truth, and pretty solid truth, at that. These two are no exceptions. Nor are Christians any exception to the rules. They're quite as apt to fall down on the job for want of co-operation and understanding among themselves as labor unions or employers' groups or nations. They fall nia or whatever hasn't done right by our young Nells and Toms is to lack in—to put it kindly—keen perception.

There is, as has already been observed, room for improvement. Improvements now are being made. Promotion Director James M. Watkins of National Bible Institution feels, for example, that the youth of the Church of God is showing signs of effort it has not shown in lo, these many years. He may be right. He may be wrong. In any event, church young people are making more down, too, because, even when they see trouble in the offing, they fail to take the necessary steps to go around it.

Take the church's work with young people in particular. More than one of our ministers, new to the clerical profession and still dewy-eyed with enthusiasm, has told me in the last year or so that (a) the Church of God is doomed to extinction unless something is done about the young people, and that (b) nothing is being done about the young people. To round out the syllogism—a fancy name for argument—(c) will, naturally, have to be added: the Church of God is doomed to extinction.

Now this kind of pessimism is about as healthful for the church body as a shot of Prohibition Era "alky." Any student of the Bible is quite well aware that Jesus had far more call for pessimism than have we. After all, most of us, at least, haven't had the depressing experience of working a lifetime amid the knowledge that those who are helping most will shout the loudest for our executions.

Elijah went through pessimism like that of a portion of our ministry. He was, alas!—according to him—left alone to worship God out of all Israel. Somehow or other, though, God had managed to preserve seven thousand faithful whom Elijah hadn't bothered to find, he was so busy feeling sorry for himself.

The Church of God could have handled its young people better, to be sure. What church could not? We all could, if we really tried, do a great many things better than we have done them—could do them a great deal better than we shall go on doing them, quite probably. But to assume that the work of God will perish from the earth because the church of Ohio or Illinois or Californoise about their work than they have for a considerable period of time.

A new paper, previously announced in THE RESTITUTION HERALD, is scheduled for early production by the National Berean Society. Youth rallies have been held here and there . . . and here and there the local leaders have refused to hold them, too. Special efforts to establish children's classes (you've read of Vit-Em-In) have been made by Child Evangelist Verna C. Thayer, on behalf of the National Berean Society and National Bible Institution.

But all these things are only sound and fury unless they produce two things: first, knowledge; second, faith put into work. Wiener roasts and steak fries and song festivals and parties never gave forth a Paul, a Peter, or a Daniel. Characters like these derived their strength from studying and working, not from play.

Support, financial and journalistic, will have to be given the new paper to make it a success. The Society revenue is not sufficient to pay the costs at present. Contributions or pledges for regular contributions will speak more of the success of young people's work than a thousand hand-clappings and hurrahs. "Where a man's treasure is, there will his heart be also."

So with other youth work. Rallies aren't enough. Steady plugging counts. Attending classes and learning something count. Being baptized counts. That's all our co-operation and enthusiasm should produce.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

FONTHILL, ONTARIO

We were glad to have Harry and Irene Payne back with us recently and meeting Arnold and Janice Johns and Mary Brown was a pleasure. We enjoyed the part the Bible students took in the Sunday morning service. We did not see much of Bro. Howard Beemer, as he was busy elsewhere.

Last week, cradle roll superintendent Sr. Beemer, assisted by Sr. Holland, entertained the mothers and little folk of the cradle roll at the church. Bro. and Sr. C. E. Randall also attended, and Bro. Randall helped entertain with kodachrome pictures of the last cradle roll party and views of Washington. After this, a happy time was had together around the tea table.

Our junior choir is now receiving some special instruction from the senior choir instructor, Mr. Hamilton of Saint Catharines. We trust the younger ones will benefit from this opportunity and better fit themselves for service in the work of the church, should Christ's coming still tarry.

We all enjoyed Bro. and Sr. Grover Gordon's visit here, and wish to thank Bro. Gordon for his helpful Sunday sermons and the interesting study on Tuesday night of the image of Daniel's prophecy.

Bro. George Coverdale and his wife Jean, recently married at the parsonage, were guests of honor at last Tuesday night's Bible study social gathering. Songs, readings, as well as a stag chorus, in which the men even surprised themselves, formed part of the program.

Bro. Randall has a fine new projector and screen, and with these he showed kodachrome slides of many of our churches and ministers. Pictures of some of our local members were also appreciated.

The bride and groom then opened their attractive gifts, which were piled in, and around, a prettily decorated umbrella, on a specially appointed table. Luncheon was then enjoyed by all.

Friday night, November 22, the fellowship group of married folk, met at the Zavitz' home at Stamford Center. This group is presenting a pageant in the Church on Sunday night, December 22.

The story of Zachaeus was shown on the screen, along with sermon comments of the account, the last Sunday of November. From now until Christmas, "The Child of Bethlehem" will be the story, with pictures illustrating. The opening exercises for the evening services are being conducted by different persons.

Commencing the first Sunday of December, the Builders' Class met at 7:00 p.m. It is planned to organize them into a junior Beerman group.

Bro. and Sr. Irvin Barnhart's little son Clyde has been very ill for the past week, but good medical attention, strongly backed by sincere prayers of the members, finds him now, on the way to recovery. Praise the Lord! Irene Holland, Reporter.

ABILENE, TEXAS

Returning to the Texas work, it was a pleasure for me to meet with the brethren at Abilene on November 30 and December 1. There is a group of twenty or more interested people here, most of them members. Meetings were held at the home of Bro. and Sr. Phil Jefferies and at the Dalk Schoolhouse near by.

The brethren here are a very devoted band of believers. We wish it were possible for them to have regular preaching.

M. W. Lyon, Evangelist.

It was a pleasure for us to have Sr. V. C. Thayer with us for a two-weeks' school here at McGintytown, Ark. The classes were held in the afternoon at four o'clock. This was because the children were in school and their buses did not run until that time. Much interest in the children, as well as "grown-ups," was shown.

It was a pleasure for us to have Bro. Sr. W. R. Simmons from Hartshorne, Okla. here for a few nights, too. Bro. Simeon preached some interesting sermons. The attendance was bad, due to the weather.

We are looking forward to both Sr. Thayer's and Bro. and Sr. Simmons' return in the future.

DAVID F. BECK

Funeral services were conducted from the Littleton Funeral Home, Springfield, Ohio, November 18, for David Beck, faithful member of the Lawrenceville (Ohio) Church of God.

During a large portion of the seventy-six years of his life, which came to a close, November 15, he was a servant of his Lord and Master Jesus Christ, preaching and teaching the truths we love so much.

He is survived by his widow, Kathleen; a son, Karl; a brother, Albert; three sisters, Mrs. Alma King, Mrs. Margaret Poole, and Mrs. Ore Lotton; two grandchildren, and a number of nieces and nephews.

He was laid to rest in Ferncliff Cemetery to await the coming of Him who said, "I am the resurrection and the life."

Richard Smith.

PEARSON - PENSYL

Brush Creek Church, near Tipp City, Ohio, was the scene of a pretty wedding, November 3, when Dorothy Pearson became the bride of Gilbert Pensyl.

Mrs. Clark Ballentine played the wedding march, and Miss Betty Tyree sang "I Love You Truly" and "Because."

Mrs. Fred Pensyl, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor, and Fred Pensyl, brother of the groom, as best man.

Mrs. Roger Pearson and Rosella Pearson were bridesmaids, and Roger and Ezra Pearson served as ushers.

The newlyweds are now at home at Urbana, Ohio, Rt. 4, to share the blessings that we pray God will shower upon them.

Richard Smith.

WEST - SMITH

On Saturday, October 12, at the home of the bride's parents in Clayton, Ohio, Maxine West became the bride of James (Joe) H. Smith of Dayton, Ohio.

Maxine was attended by her sister, Jewel Schrawse. Clarence Puckett served as best man.

We pray that God's blessing will rest on them in their journey through life together.

One daughter, Sister Sam Boyer, and one son, Brother Garnet Coverston, have made their homes in the Valley, living on farms not far from the home of their parents. Both are active members of the local congregation. A grandson, Brother Fulton Ramsey, makes his home with his grandparents. He, too, is a member of the Church of God and takes an active part in its work.

We greatly enjoy Brother Coverston's stories of the early days in the Valley. The highway that now extends the length of the Valley was once a horse trail which crossed and re-crossed the stream which drains the Valley. The stream had to be forded by the traveler some twenty times in the course of a few miles. Wild game abounded in the forests which cloaked the mountains. Though herds of deer still emerge from the forests to graze in the pasture fields and to raid cornfields at dawn and dusk, the amount of game in the Valley has been reduced greatly since those early days. One still may see an occasional wild turkey, fox, grouse, quail, or even a bear, however, if his step is light and his eye keen.

In a world plagued with marital problems and divorce, Brother and Sister Coverston's long married life stands as an example worthy of imitation. At a time when there is a growing disregard of Christian obligations, their long and faithful service to the Master stands as a challenge and an inspiration to us all. May their faithfulness continue to bear fruit for many years to come!

MACOMB, ILLINOIS

Sunday, November 17, provided a grand day of worship for the Macomb brethren. It was the fourth anniversary of the church. Bro. Otto Dick and a group of students from Oregon Bible College helped us celebrate the day. There were about forty present in the morning to hear Bro. Dick's splendid message in which he contrasted Noah's day with our day. Bro. Dick provoked much good thought and urged entrance into our Ark now before the door is shut. Although he tells us that this is one of his first sermons, we commend him to all as a sincere preacher of the Word.

After the morning service, a beautiful pot-brook dinner was enjoyed by all. At 2:30 p.m., the church was again filled to hear the College hour. Visitors were present from Ripley and Bowen. Arnold Johns, serving as master of ceremonies, introduced a fine program. The highlights were sermonettes by Kirby Davis and Milton Hall. The male quartet was much enjoyed. On Anniversary Day, we at Macomb not only look back over four years' successful work, but we look forward to the time when we will be able to enlarge our present church to meet our needs.

Anniversary Day was also Family Day. To each of the ten complete family units present was given a gift. How good it is to see whole families worshipping together!

The Dorcas Society recently purchased ten tiny folding chairs for the Sunday school nursery class. The forty quarts of tomato juice, which the Dorcas had canned earlier for Oregon Bible College, were sent back with Bro. Dick.

OREGON BIBLE COLLEGE NEWS

We were glad to see so many visitors at our Thanksgiving chapel program. Timothy Pearson spoke on "Thanking God for the Ordinary." All students took some part in the program. A chalk talk was given by Shirley Logsdon and Mary Brown. A number of musical specials were given by other students.

The students enjoyed a two-day vacation from school for Thanksgiving, with just a few remaining at the College for the holiday.

Our two chapel speakers this week have been Bro. Sydney E. Magraw, who spoke on "Christ in the Old Testament," and Bro. James M. Watkins, whose subject was "The Christian Spirit." Both of these topics were of considerable interest to the students.

MRS. FERDINAND SITZENSTOCK

Mary Amidon, daughter of Perry and Estelle Amidon, was born, April 7, 1866, at Syracuse, N. Y., and died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Nellie Volney, in Euclid, Ohio, October 10, 1946.

She was united in marriage with Ferdinand Sitzenstock, in Cleveland, Ohio, on February 5, 1883. To this union ten children were born, one boy and nine girls. They also adopted two boys. Three daughters preceded her in death—Vera and Mabel in early childhood, and Minnie in 1917. Those who survive and mourn are her husband of Cleveland, Ohio; one son, John Sitzenstock, Medina, Ohio; six daughters, Hattie Agard of Mentor, Ohio; Florence Werner, Parma, Ohio; Hazel Shade, Columbian Station, Ohio; Myrtle Schuld, Garfield Heights, Ohio; Ella Prestwood of North Carolina; and Nellie Volney, Euclid, Ohio; the adopted sons, Ferdinand and Roy, Cleveland, Ohio; one brother, William Amidon, and a half brother, George Wiley; fifteen grandchildren and fourteen great-grandchildren; besides other relatives and a host of friends.

Immersed into the all-saving name of Christ more than fifty years ago by Elder Maurice Jablin, she was a faithful member of the Church of God. She awaits the return of Jesus Christ her Lord to give life and immortality to the faithful of all ages and to establish the Kingdom of God on this earth, even as we are taught to pray, "Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven."

Words of comfort were spoken by the writer in a funeral service at the Loree Wells Funeral Parlor, and she was laid to rest in the Garfield Grove Cemetery.

Season's Greetings, Illinois Conference members. This is Illinois Evangelist number four, of the present year, bringing you news of other churches and of your brothers and sisters in Christ. Our special message for this season is unity. Let us unite our efforts, as God's children, toward the goal of carrying the gospel tidings of "peace on earth, good will toward men" to all parts of our State. Let us work together and support the missionary work of our State Conference. What a Christmas gift, if your active support should enable some lost soul to hear the saving gospel truth of Jesus.

SEASON'S GREETINGS

FROM

ILLINOIS EVANGELIST

EAST OREGON CHAPEL. "Our Doreas Society meets once a month at the various homes in the community. It is unique in that we have no president, no secretary, and no treasurer. We collect no dues, we have no committees, and we do not serve lunch at the meetings. We do mending and other sewing for the family at whose home the meeting is being held. We help the widows first, then we go to the other homes. Our aim is to help one another. Nothing is said about what we did in the past. Making others happy and reaching out a helping hand is uppermost in the hearts of all. We talk 'Bible' and sing hymns while we sew, usually selecting subjects concerning virtuous women and their children, of long ago. It is surprising how many bring their Bibles with them, along with their needles and thread. We close our meeting with a prayer." Average Sunday School attendance for the month of October was 85.

CASEY. November services in the Restitution Church were conducted November 10 by Bro. John Mercer of Macomb. His evening sermon, "Return of Christ," was followed with a talk by Bro. Charles Hiekox on, "Christ, Our Only Hope," and the Communion service. Bro. and Sr. Foster Thayer visited the Chicago Church of God on November 10.

ELDORADO. A special Thanksgiving service was conducted Thanksgiving morning for a goodly number of worshipers. A Thanksgiving offering was taken to begin a building improvement fund. The young people's class, which meets every Sunday evening, is planning a large part of the church Christmas program. Sunday evening, November 17, the congregation listened to a recording of a sermon delivered by Bro. Harold Doan at last summer's General Conference. The senior Bereans have been enjoying a series of lessons by the pastor.

MACOMB. Sunday, November 17, was a special day in Macomb, being the fourth anniversary of the dedication of the church building. Bro. Otto Dick and a group of Oregon Bible College students helped celebrate the day. Bro. Dick preached the morning sermon, and the students presented an afternoon program. Anniversary Day was also Family Day. Ten complete family units were present at the morning services. The Doreas Society recently purchased ten tiny folding chairs for the Sunday School.

RIPLEY. The Co-workers class met October 29 in the Lewis home and canned 106 quarts of apple butter, and 63 quarts of apples. On November 12, they met again at the Wayne Laning home and canned 160 quarts of pears. All this fruit is to be given to Oregon Bible College, Sommer Bible Training School, and General Conference. . . . Three cheers for Ripley! . . . Several Ripley brethren motored to Macomb November 17 to attend anniversary services.

CHICAGO. Pastor and Mrs. Doan were sorely grieved by the death of their infant son, Marc Jon. Chicago's new recreation room is being much used by a newly organized men's class (which is developing a male chorus, and anticipating purchase of a sound projector), a newly organized young people's class, and the ladies' Doreas Society. A Thanksgiving service conducted November 27 had a good membership representation.

OREGON. Oregon has five new members by transfer: Bro. and Sr. Otto Dick, Bro. and Sr. Milton Hall, and Sr. Verna Thayer. Oregon young people are developing an orchestra for active service in church and Sunday school (the leaders hope). Doreas Society enjoys an average attendance of twenty-five ladies who "work, pray, and sing." Union Thanksgiving services were conducted in the church Thanksgiving morning with the pastor of the Nazarene Church as guest speaker. Bro. Billy Dick was speaker for the Berean-conducted evening service November 17. The Dixon and Rockford young people also participated. October's average prayer meeting attendance was 50.

“Star out of Jacob”

Balaam, one of the early prophets inspired to foretell coming of the Messiah, prophesied: “I shall see him, but not now: I shall behold him, but not nigh: there shall come a Star out of Jacob” (Num. 24:17). That prophecy pointed forward undoubtedly to the One who spoke of Himself as “the root and offspring of David, the Bright and Morning star” (Rev. 22:16). As a “Morning Star,” Jesus is earth’s assurance of a coming and better Day, and He is a guiding light toward that Day. The prophecy of Balaam testified that the Star, even the Messiah, would come from Jacob, grandson of Abraham, to whom promise was made concerning the Seed who would “bless all nations.”

Balaam knew also that the Messiah’s advent was scheduled for the distant future. Centuries passed. Then Wise Men from the East came to Jerusalem, being guided by an especially bright star. The literal star over the land of Jacob well typified the Bright-and-Morning-Star Messiah who was born in one of the cities of Jacob. “Bethlehem Ephrathah, though thou be little among the thousands of Judah, yet out of thee shall he come forth unto me that is to be ruler in Israel” (Micah 5:2).

“Sceptre . . . out of Israel”

Balaam, who foresaw the guiding Star as coming from Jacob, prophesied also of Him as the Scepter that would “rise out of Israel.” Thus, centuries before Jesus was born, and centuries before Micah spoke of the “ruler in Israel” coming from Bethlehem, Balaam foresaw the Christ as a mighty conquering King—smiting Moab, destroying Sheth, possessing Edom. Further prophesying concerning that Day of conquest, Balaam said, “Israel shall do valiantly!” (Num. 24:18). “Out of Jacob shall come he that shall have dominion” (v. 19). Yes, the Star of Jacob is He who will rule—literally, powerfully, gloriously.

Apparently, therefore, Balaam foresaw both advents of the Messiah: one typified by a star, the other typified by a scepter. If Balaam’s interest lay primarily in one advent, it must be conceded that it was the second advent, for the prophecy included Balaam’s assurance, “I shall see him!” By reason of death, Balaam was not permitted to see Christ’s first advent. Certainly, Balaam’s resurrection is implied, and necessitated, ere all his vision is fulfilled. “A Sceptre shall rise out of Israel,” and, said Balaam, “I shall see him.” Then, like David, he “shall be satisfied.” He will hear “the shout of a king” when Christ descends “from heaven with a shout.”

In “Fulness of Time”

Prophets came and prophets went, but all foretold the Messiah. Last of the prophets was Malachi. One, two, three, four centuries passed, following his prophecies, as Israel’s hope gradually waned. Then, suddenly and without warning, the heavens were ablaze and angels sang in joyful celebration of earth’s newborn King. “When the fulness of the time was come, God sent forth his Son.”

Century after century has passed since Christ and New Testament prophets told of His second coming. Gradually again, hope is waning. Christians think of their Lord only as Saviour, being unappreciative that He is ordained of God to “judge the quick and the dead at his appearing and his kingdom,” to “judge the world in righteousness.”

Again, suddenly and without warning, the heavens will be ablaze in glory and angels will sing and shout His coming. “Then shall all tribes of the earth mourn, and they shall see the Son of man coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory.” “The Son of man shall come in his glory and all the holy angels with him, and then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory: and before him shall be gathered all nations.”

How long it seems we wait! But “when fulness of the time” arrives, God will again send forth His Son. The prophecies of God will not fail. . . . “Watch and pray.”

What Is Christmas?

By Harvey U. Krogh, Jr., Grand Rapids, Michigan

ARE YOU worn and weary at this time of year? Is it partly from the strain of reconversion that the whole nation is experiencing more intensely than we thought? Is it our complex way of living—the hustle and bustle of the season's shopping, wrapping, mailing of gifts, the parties and programs? Is that why you are nervous, weary, and worn out? Lest we think of Christmas in the wrong way, let us pause and relax for a few minutes while we rethink the main events that led to the first Christmas. You will be surprised how much better you will feel and how much more Christmas will mean.

About six thousand years ago, the sin of the first man and woman was committed; but the sorrow of their sin was tempered by God's promise of the day when His Son would be born to destroy the works of evil.

God's promise may have been forgotten, had it not been renewed through the messages of the prophets. Abraham was called from his home, protected during a long life, given wealth and a son in his old age as a token that the Redeemer would be born. When Abraham was asked to sacrifice this son and God told him that it would not be necessary, it was as though he had received him from death, a token that the Redeemer would rise from death. Abraham's son Isaac was given two sons. To one of these sons, even Jacob, was the promise renewed. Jacob had twelve sons. One of these, Joseph by name, was a testimony that the Redeemer would come, in that he, though despised of his brethren, rose far above them and became a savior to them when he became governor of Egypt. Jacob and his family then went to live in Egypt; but, after many generations when they nearly had forgotten about the promise, God allowed their masters to afflict them until another reminder of the Redeemer was raised up. Moses prophesied that one similar to himself would arise whom the people should follow. He demonstrated in a small way what their real Saviour would do. He delivered them from the Egyptian bondage; they were baptized in the sea and under the cloud, and they were led to the Promised Land.

When they were being ruled by their kings, God raised up many prophets to tell the people of His plan. Isaiah spoke most eloquently of the Christ. "Therefore the Lord himself shall give you a sign; Behold, a virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel" (Isa. 7:14). "Unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder; and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The mighty God, The everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace. Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to order it, and to establish it with judgment and with justice from henceforth even for ever. The zeal of the Lord of hosts will perform this" (9:6, 7).

The entire fifty-third chapter of Isaiah tells of the work of the Redeemer. All the prophets have mentioned something about the Christ.

After the nation of Israel had been brought low by the sin of its people and almost all hope had been lost, the Christ was born in Bethlehem of Judea. God had kept His promise, but the Christ did not grant the nation the expected temporal blessings. God had a far greater work than just the redemption of a nation, although that shall be accomplished; for it was to Adam and all mankind that the Redeemer was promised.

When Christ made known the fact that God desired righteousness, the remnant of the nation then in the land rejected Him and crucified Him. Then, His followers, whom He had delegated to teach righteousness and to further announce the deliverance from sin, turned to all the world and proclaimed the second coming of the Redeemer.

You and I now are living under the teaching of Jesus and His followers. The experiences we have are to develop us and fit us for the day of Christ's return.

These are the things that we want to keep in mind at this season of the year. All the prophecy of the Redeemer's first coming has been fulfilled. There is no doubt but that God has kept His word.

As to the future, we who are Christians must remember that it is bright, as bright as the night of sin is dark. Soon Christ will come fully to redeem those who serve Him. Christmas is the important step in the complete fulfillment of God's beautiful plan.

Is Christmas a burden to you? Are the cares of this life bearing you down? They need not! (Please turn to page 10)

Jesus the Christ—a Christmas Message

By R. H. Judd, Colborne, Ontario

THERE can be no misunderstanding of the sense meant to be conveyed by Matthew 1:21. None can mistake that the "people" referred to are those known as the nation of Israel, and of which by reason of forthcoming birth Jesus was Himself due to be enrolled. It takes us back in thought to those memorable words of Moses which were uttered centuries ago, and recorded in Deuteronomy 18:15:

"The Lord thy God will raise up unto thee a Prophet from the midst of thee, of thy brethren, like unto me: unto him ye shall hearken."

No believer in the Word of God has any question that this prophecy of Moses has reference to the Messiah—the Christ. Ministers in their pulpits and students of theological universities are proclaiming today that Christianity is little different from, and is but one among many, other religions. No other religion, however, has ever yet pre-existed the birth of its founder, nor has anything whatever been revealed beforehand of the manner of His birth, or any details concerning the system which He afterwards brings into being.

The first portion of the next verse quoted above from the Gospel of John is remarkably similar in expression to that taken from Matthew, in that the people of Israel—the nation as a whole—is the predominant feature of the message. It then adds, "But his own received him not." Generally, these last words are assumed to have reference to later occurrences in the life of Jesus and to His final rejection before Pilate. The Apostle John may, of course, have had these in mind; but, unquestionably, the verse, like that of Matthew 1:21, has particular reference to the birth of the Christ, and by natural sequence of phraseology the second portion has reference to the same event. How, then, was it true, at this time, that "his own received him not"?

The answer will be found in the fact that the coming of the Christ had long been foretold, and for centuries had been the expectation of every mother in Israel who could claim lineage with David's royal line. Not only so, considering the frequency of prophetic utterance relative to the coming of the Messiah, and the definiteness of detail

"Thou shalt call his name JESUS, for he shall save [Syriac — cause to live] his people from their sins" (Matt. 1:21). "He [Jesus] came unto his own, and his own received him not. But as many as received him, to them gave he power [privilege] to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name" (John 1:11,12).

concerning both the place and manner of His birth, an event of such importance could not "be done in a corner." The very faithfulness of God to His predictions and promises required making it widely known that they had been openly and fully brought to fulfillment.

The event as recorded by Matthew noting this fact is brief, but intensely revealing. The king "was troubled, and all Jerusalem with him." Like any matter of public importance in the great centers of population in our own day, these matters soon became common knowledge, and were the main topic of conversation of every individual. Further, there was no misapprehension as to the event. By unanimous consent, including that of the king, the chief priests (or magistrates), and the people, it had certain reference to the Messiah. Prediction and events were so obviously conjoined, there could be no possible denial, and it is remarkable that none was given. True it was that political and national circumstances were not in their power to control, but it is also true that events of such outstanding significance could never have been forgotten during the lifetime of that generation, and the public life and miracles of Jesus must have often called them to mind, and both when considered together should have revealed to them the spiritual as well as the national character of His mission: indeed, as is so clearly stated in Matthew 1:21, that was the primary objective for the coming of the Messiah. Undoubtedly, there could have been, and there should have been a national recognition and national repentance for the sins which had brought them into the bondage of a foreign yoke. The message of John the Baptist—the "man sent from God"—was predetermined of God for this purpose of repentance, and for this reason, he was the forerunner of the Messiah. These are facts written into history and cannot be denied. Had there been national spiritual awakening unto repentance, resulting from this nation-shaking event of the birth of the Christ—for it was nothing less than that—the material aspects of the blessings promised, would assuredly have followed in due course, their prophetic fulfillment. Sadly indeed, John (Please turn to page 11

STARS OVER BETHLEHEM

By Timothy Pearson, Oregon, Illinois

ONCE every 805 years the planets Jupiter, Mars, and Saturn are in conjunction; that is, they appear close together in a straight line. You and I shall not witness this phenomenon in the present age. It will not reoccur until the year 2409 A.D. Astronomers have discovered that in the year 6 B.C., the probable date of Jesus' birth, these stars formed a horizontal column of light, one planet behind another. As Wise Men trekked from the East, they surely must have marveled at this wonderful sight. Above Bethlehem, forming the point of a heavenly arrow, sparkled the brightly beaming stars.

One of the stars that showed the way to Jesus' crib was called Saturn in honor of a Greek king who was supposed to have ruled during an ancient golden age. This era was marked by peace, happiness, and contentment. It seems significant that to the Wise Men this star meant a golden age to come.

God chose many signs to show He was with His Son. The dove descended at Jesus' baptism. When Jesus died, there was an earthquake which preceded darkness over the land. When Jesus arose, the guards were struck down. At the scene of the ascension, a cloud appeared and received up Jesus out of sight.

Knowing these facts helps one to appreciate the meaning in the stars over Bethlehem. Each of those three stars had a different light intensity. In this we see a symbol of the resurrection. Said Paul: "One star differeth from another star in glory. So also is the resurrection of the dead" (1 Cor. 15:41, 42). Not all Christians will be raised to the same station in the Kingdom. Some stars shine more brightly than others. Even so, the three stars appeared in the heavens as one star. Christians will do well to observe the harmony manifested in the heavens. The church will some day be known as a group of people working together instead of striving together. It will be one.

One may see a significance in the fact that Jesus, the Star of David, was heralded by these lesser stars. It reminds us of Joseph's dream in which the eleven stars bowed down to his star. Truly, Jupiter, Mars, and Saturn bowed to Jesus, the "Bright and Morning Star."

The age of signs in the stars has not ended. Jesus prophesied, concerning the last days, "There shall be signs in the sun, and in the moon, and in the stars" (Luke 21:25).

If you have wondered how the sky appeared the night Jesus was born, you may see it in Chicago at the Adler Planetarium during the Christmas season.

"TO SEEK AND TO SAVE"

By Gordon Landry, Hammond, Louisiana

FOR WHAT reason did Christ enter the world? Why was He born in a rustic atmosphere, instead of coming "in power and great glory" as "King of kings and Lord of lords"?

When the Saviour was brought before Pilate for trial, He was asked, "Art thou a king?" Jesus answered, "Thou sayest that I am a king. To this end was I born, and for this cause came I into the world" (John 18:37). This thought previously had been expressed to Mary by the angel in a slightly different manner: "Behold, thou shalt . . . bring forth a son, and . . . he shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest . . . and he shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever; and of His kingdom there shall be no end" (Luke 1:31-33).

According to these references, Christ was born to be King—specifically, King of the Jews.

In times past, the people of Israel had requested an earthly king—one they could see, and thus, they thought, follow more easily. Being carnal, they looked primarily upon the outward appearance in their choosing of a leader. They selected Saul, who was head and shoulders above any other in the entire camp. God allowed Israel to have her way. "Experience is the best teacher," so, since the descendants of Israel would not hearken unto God, He let them learn by experience that they were wrong.

After the Kingdom of Israel was divided, the two independent kingdoms steadily degenerated, until at last they were both overrun by heathen nations. Thus, the "reward" for turning from God was captivity. When, however, Jesus comes to reign as King, Israel will be regathered, and will see the wisdom of God in His choice of a King. God does not view the outward features of man with the purpose of judging, but He looks into the heart, searches the mind of individuals, judges and approves or disapproves them according to their character. When He appointed Christ to be King, it was not a "hit-or-miss" proposition, as was Israel's choosing of Saul. Jehovah definitely knew that the Eternal Ruler of Israel would judge from His (God's) standards.

Why was Christ born in poverty, instead of coming "in power and great glory" as "King of kings and Lord of lords"? If He had come the first time as He will come the second time, very few would have tasted His salvation. The Jews still would have been under the yoke of the Ten Commandments. The Gentiles still would not have known (Please turn to p. 11)

Jesus in the Psalms

By Paul M. Hatch, Oregon, Illinois

THE CHRISTMAS story is not found in the Psalms, but references are numerous of Jesus: His Sonship; His Kingship; His Messiahship; and His sacrificial offering are there. We can say to some extent that reference is vague, nevertheless true in numerous Psalms. Others are more clear and easily recognizable. It is the intent of this compilation to separate references unto themselves that have to do with a central thought and classify them under subheads.

The Baby's Birth

This is found in Psalm 22:9, 10:

"Thou art he that took me out of the womb: thou didst make me hope when I was upon my mother's breasts. I was cast upon thee from the womb: thou art my God from my mother's belly."

References to the Boy are not to be found. This fact seems strange, for the Psalmist David had a very interesting boyhood from which he could have drawn some of his songs.

The Man

Quotation is from three of the Psalms, and in their sequence. The man who does God's will, the selected man, and the exalted man.

"Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful.

"But his delight is in the law of the Lord; and in his law doth he meditate day and night.

"And he shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water, that bringeth forth his fruit in his season; his leaf also shall not wither; and whatsoever he doeth shall prosper." (Psalm 1:1-3.)

"What is man, that thou art mindful of him? and the son of man, that thou visitest him?"

"For thou hast made him a little lower than the angels, and hast crowned him with glory and honour.

"Thou madest him to have dominion over the works of thy hands; thou hast put all things under his feet." (Psalm 8:4-6.)

"Sacrifice and offering thou didst not desire; mine ears hast thou opened: burnt offering and sin offering hast thou not required.

"Then said I, Lo, I come: in the volume of the book it is written of me,

"I delight to do thy will, O my God: yea, thy law is within my heart.

"I have preached righteousness in the great congregation: lo, I have not refrained my lips, O Lord, thou knowest.

"I have not hid thy righteousness within my heart; I have declared thy faithfulness and thy salvation: I have not concealed thy lovingkindness and thy truth from the great congregation." (Psalm 40:6-10.)

The Son

The only Psalm in reference to the Son of God is the second. This Psalm, coupled with the first, shows us that all men doing the will of God are sons, but there is only One that will reach the peak of exaltation. We quote from Psalm 2:7, 12:

"I will declare the decree: the Lord hath said unto me, Thou art my Son; this day have I begotten thee.

"Kiss the Son, lest he be angry, and thou perish from the way, when his wrath is kindled but a little. Blessed are all they that put their trust in him."

The Saviour

Under this subhead, numerous selections could be made to show God's choice in the matter, but only one will be quoted. It is a verse that the Apostle Paul used (see Eph. 4:1-13) in reference to unifying the body (the church) in Christ Jesus. We quote Psalm 68:18:

"Thou hast ascended on high, thou hast led captivity captive: thou hast received gifts for men; yea, for the rebellious also, that the Lord God might dwell among them."

The Martyr

Quotations will be made of His double martyrship, for

He was doubly martyred — by His enemies and by His friend.

"I am a worm, and no man; a reproach of men, and despised of the people. All they that see me laugh me to scorn: they shoot out the lip, they shake the head, saying, He trusted on the Lord that he would deliver him: let him deliver him, seeing he delighteth in him.

"They gaped upon me with their mouths, as a ravening and roaring lion. I am poured out like water, and all my bones are out of joint: my heart is like wax; it is melted in the midst of my bowels. My strength is dried up like a potsherd; and my tongue cleaveth to my jaws; and thou hast brought me into the dust of death. For dogs have compassed me: the assembly of the wicked have inclosed me: they pierced my hands and my feet. I may tell all my bones: they look and stare upon me. They part my garments among them, and cast lots upon my vesture." (Psalm 22:6-8, 13-18.)

"Pull me out of the net that they have laid privily for me: for thou art my strength.

"Into thine hand I commit my spirit: thou hast redeemed me, O Lord God of truth." (Psalm 31:4, 5.)

"In mine adversity they rejoiced, and gathered themselves together: Yea, the abjects gathered themselves together" (Please turn to page 10)

How Christ Came to Bethlehem

By M. W. Lyon, Oregon, Illinois

LONG AGO, a Babe was born in Bethlehem of Judea. But the circumstances of His coming have been surrounded with so much mystery that the beautiful simplicity of that wonderful event has been well-nigh lost to minds of men.

He did not come as God from heaven. Many think that He did, that God clothed Himself with a mortal body and "became a man." Hence they speak of the "incarnation." And millions speak of the Lord's mother as the "mother of God." But it was not God who was born in Bethlehem that holy night.

Nor did He come as others are born into this world. Had He been born under the curse of sin, He could not have been our Saviour.

He was born as the Son of God. The record in the first chapter of Matthew is very explicit that Joseph was not His father. God was His father. Why should we make a mystery of that which is not? "Incarnation" is not a Bible word, nor is "trinity" a Bible word. Nor do either of these words express Bible ideas. When Jesus spoke, as He often did, of His Father, He could not have had reference to Himself. Had He actually been God, would He not have made that claim in His teaching? Repeatedly, in the Old Testament, God proclaims His deity, but Jesus never makes any such claim for Himself in the New. His claim was not that He was God, but that He was the Son of God.

How Christ came to Bethlehem He Himself explains in the reference to the manna in John 6:27-58. The Jews had demanded proof of His authority, citing the case of the manna that Moses had given in the wilderness, called at Exodus 16:4 "bread from heaven." Jesus replied that

He was the true Bread from heaven, since those who "ate" of Him should never die, whereas those who ate of the manna did. To make this mean that He actually pre-existed in heaven is to lose sight of the circumstances in which He was speaking, as much so as to say that the manna actually pre-existed in heaven.

He came from heaven exactly as others did. We are informed at John 1:6 that "there was a man sent from God, whose name was John." Moreover, David tells us in the hundred twenty-seventh psalm that "children are an heritage of the Lord." These did not pre-exist in heaven, but "every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father," we are told by James 1:17. So Jesus came from God because God was His Father in a way that He is not the father of anyone else. It was necessary for Jesus to emphasize His heavenly origin in order to convince the Jews that He was more than just another man.

So we know how the heavenly Babe came to Bethlehem. The Bible record is simple. He was not a man as other men are. Neither was He God descended to earth in human form. He was the Son of God, born of a woman, as it is written in Galatians 4. Read again, at this Christmas time, the simple and beautiful story free from the traditions which men have heaped around it. WORLD IS DRIFTING. Speaking before the inter-denominational meeting sponsored by Committee on Town and Country, Joint Agent of the Home Mission Council, The Federal Council of Churches, and the International Council of Religious Education in Des Moines, Iowa, Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam, New York, said: "The world is drifting toward war."

The trend of events throughout the world causes even the optimists to acknowledge that the era of peace has not arrived.

At this very moment, the Iranian government forces are marching on the northern province of Azerbaijan to bring this self-styled independent state back under the rule of the government in Teheran. This northern province attempted secession during the time Russian troops were stationed there, and the present government is strongly pro-Communist. The Communists of Azerbaijan are reported to be well supplied with military equipment left them by the departing Russians. On the other hand, it is reported that England is supplying Iran with equipment and supplies, as the Teheran government is strongly pro-British. Many authorities on the Middle East claim it is an indirect conflict between Russia and Britain—something similar to the Spanish civil war, when Germany and Russia were giving support to the opposing forces in that conflict. It is well to remember the words of Stalin: "Communism and Western Democracy cannot live alongside of each other." This area of opposing ideologies in civil conflict supported by two of the great powers of earth may not develop into much; then again it is always dangerous. England has withdrawn troops from India and has sent them to Iraq near her oil fields.

OVER CHURCHED. At the meeting of inter-church workers referred to in the previous topic, a report was submitted covering two separate surveys of the church situation in Iowa. One was made by Paul Douglas, director of co-operative research for Federal Council of Churches, and the other by Calvin Shucker of Dubuque University. Their reports stated that there are "too many competing small churches, and that rural Iowa is seriously over-churched, and that over half of the congregations are standing still or declining and that the effectiveness of the average church is rather low."

This picture in part fits into the prophetic prediction of the apostasy that will be present in the latter-day church.

JEWISH APPEAL. A goal of $170,000,000 has been set for the United Jewish Appeal, most of which will go toward alleviating the sufferings of displaced Jews of Europe. This huge sum has been made necessary through the discontinuance of UNNRA.

In a recent address, Major General John H. Hildring, State Department Aide, warned that the Army and International Refugee Organization were not able of themselves to care for the DPs. He said: "Let no one build false illusions that effective assistance could be given to the displaced persons by the military authority, or by the international organization without considerable outside assistance." He stated that the biggest disappointment sustained this past year had been "the lack of progress in finding permanent homes for Jewish DPs."

The spirit and zeal with which the sons of Israel exercise in taking care of their own is a lesson which the church would do well to emulate. This effort to care for their own commands respect.

ZIONIST CONGRESS. The 22nd Zionist Congress opened in Basel, Switzerland, on December 9. Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president, called upon the Congress to reject and oppose the so-called Morrison Plan for partitioning Palestine into four parts, which was recommended by the British-American experts. Parts of the Committee's report were praised by Dr. Weizmann. He expressed gratitude to the American Government for its support of the aims of Zionism—the establishment of a national Jewish home in Palestine.

EUTHANASIA. Charles Francis Potter, director of Euthanasia Society of America, has stirred up some heated discussion over the question of administering painless death to sufferers who are hopelessly afflicted. Mr. Potter is a minister in the Universalist and Unitarian denominations, and he says: "Fifty and more religious leaders of the highest reputation . . . have testified that voluntary euthanasia is compatible with the highest moral and religious principles." Monsignor Robert McCormick terms the matter "medical murder." He urges that all doctors who belong to this Society should be listed as members, so that the public would know of the nefarious practices in which they indulge.

The German doctors now on trial at Nurnberg are being tried for these very practices. Under Hitler's orders, thousands of the aged and the less strong were experimented on with various forms of inducing death painlessly. This has been termed "mass murder" by the Allied Nations. The abuses that would grow out of such practices would be so great, as evidenced under Nazi rule, it would be simply legalized murder.

BIOLOGICAL WARFARE. Men may talk and plan for peace, yet at the same time others are talking about future methods of warfare. Two forces are holding the attention of world leaders today, one of which is biological warfare, and the other is atomic power. The Journal of the American Pharmaceutical Association speaks of "Biological warfare as the use of bacteria, fungi viruses . . . and toxic agents derived from living organisms."

These can be sprayed from the air, and there is no way of perceiving their presence. Grain thus sprayed will continue to appear normal but will not yield. Whole continents can be wiped out or rendered impotent. Several of the plagues which the Scripture speaks of as coming on the wicked as punishment to bring them into subjection to the rule of the Christ, are of a character that might be the result of biological warfare.

CHURCH MODERNIZED. Following his election at Seattle, as president of the Federal Council of Churches, Charles P. Taft, Cincinnati, Ohio, said he intended to strive to bring the "church up to date in a modern world. I want to encourage studies by our churches in the problems of the people, in youth, and child psychology, and in marriage responsibility."

The resolutions committee for the Conference struck out all references to prohibition. Reason: Too many conflicting views on the subject.

Mr. Taft, as president of the Federal Council of Churches, would do millions of worshippers which he now heads a great service if he would encourage some study of the Scriptures as well as the social problems of our day. The power of the church is in the Spirit and Word which it possesses and uses, and not in its wrestling with the economic, social, and political problems of the hour.

STILL TRYING. Jews from the Displaced Persons Camps are trying to run the blockade of Palestine in old ships nearly every week. The last attempt up to this writing was made by 3,834 Jewish refugees. Really, they cannot be blamed. They have lost all. Property, positions, and in many instances their close of kin, and they are kept in DP camps that are not much better than those operated by the Nazis. They haven't anything to lose in their gamble for entry into the Holy Land. They are a curse to some of the Democracies, because they have been cursed by them in their treatment. God long ago said: "I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee." Israelites today are victims of a lot of double-dealing.

DIVORCES. The Federal Security Agency reports a twenty-five per cent increase in divorces for last year over the preceding year. It says: "502,000 divorces were granted in 1945, or 25 per cent more than in the preceding year, which also had set a record."

"Marrying and giving in marriage" was the way Jesus described the situation which is to prevail in the last days.

Birthday of Our King

By (Mrs.) Margaret Magaw, Oregon, Illinois—

THE BIRTH of Jesus in Bethlehem was the most wonderful event in the history of mankind, for the great King-to-be over all the earth had made His appearance. In some way unknown to us, the Wise Men from the East sensed this great fact. They traveled many weary miles to present costly gifts in true adoration to the infant King. They must have realized that at last the Kingdom of God on earth was getting a fresh start, for the true King was born!

The Kingdom of God, or the Kingdom of Heaven, had a very small beginning, but a very significant one. Jesus Himself, teaching in parable about the Kingdom of heaven, likened it unto a grain of mustard seed, "Which," said he, "a man took, and sowed in his field: which indeed is the least of all seeds: but when it is grown, it is the greatest among herbs, and becometh a tree, so that the birds of the air come and lodge in the branches thereof" (Matt. 13:31, 32).

When Jesus was active in His public ministry, the Kingdom of God was shown in miniature, so to speak. Though uncrowned, and without a throne or scepter, Jesus showed forth works of mercy and service which will be characteristic of His Kingdom when it is established on earth.

Christ has left His believers some very comforting words, among which are: "These things have I spoken unto you that in me ye might have peace. In the world ye shall have tribulation: but be of good cheer; I have overcome the world" (John 16:33).

Speaking to the Pharisees and others, Jesus said, "He that sent me is with me: the Father hath not left me alone; for I do always those things that please him" (John 8:29). Because Christ lived a perfect, obedient life, even unto His death on the cross, it pleased the Father to reward Him as recorded in Matthew 28:18—"All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth."

The King has made possible the way into His Kingdom to all who will believe and obey His words. Let us, therefore, at this Christmas season, more than ever before, lift up our heads and keep looking for the second coming of the great King to establish His Kingdom on earth. With this zeal and hope, we better honor the Christ than by usual Christmas celebration.

By G. M. Siple, Oregon, Illinois—

GOD so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life" (John 3:16). God manifested His great love to men when He gave His only Son in their behalf. Consider, therefore, the importance of Jesus' birth—birth of the Saviour, God's gift to men!

As the Christmas season approaches each year, one is reminded that this day (December 25) is the day that men celebrate as the birthday of the greatest man that ever lived, even the Son of God. It is customary at this time to give gifts to those who are near and dear to us. Jesus, being the Son of God, does not need our gifts of money or valuable presents, but He does need us to give our lives in service to Him and to the cause He represents.

The tendency of people today is to live only for this present life, working to accumulate all possible means to spend on their own pleasure. The Apostle Paul said, however, "If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable." All mankind has, as a natural possession, a mortal nature. All men, therefore, are subject to death. The life that we Christians should seek to obtain is one in which we shall receive immortality. That life can be obtained only by following Jesus' example and keeping His commandments in this life. Eternal life is not one that we naturally inherit, but one that is promised to the faithful after Christ's second coming.

God had a purpose, or plan, when He created Jesus the Christ. That plan seems to have been to make Him King of the whole earth. Christ's Kingdom will not be established until Jesus returns to earth the second time to call those who are asleep in death and to change those who are living. We read in Zechariah 14:9 that God purposed that Jesus should become King over all the earth. Also, Revelation 11:15 prophesies: "The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever." Standing before Pilate for trial, Jesus answered, "My kingdom is not of this world."

If one continues to serve sin until death, he can be very sure what his reward will be. Romans 6:23 says: "The wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." "If ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God" (Col. 3:1).

Having come to fulfill the will and purposes of God, Jesus often is called the second Adam, or second Son of God. By natural birth, we are sons of Adam who has been called the first Son of God. It is essential that we turn from Adam to Christ, for Christ was the proper One to redeem the race from sin where mankind had been left by the first Adam. To this end, Jesus lived, died, and rose again. He soon will come from heaven to raise the dead and to reign with judgment and justice over all the earth. May all who read these lines be among the number to reign and rule with Him!

JESUS IN THE PSALMS

gether against me, and I knew it not; they did tear me, and ceased not: with hypocritical mockers in feasts, they gnashed upon me with their teeth. Lord, how long wilt thou look on? rescue my soul from their destructions, my darling from the lions." (Psalm 35:15-17.)

"Yea, mine own familiar friend, in whom I trusted, which did eat of my bread, hath lifted up his heel against me." (Psalm 41:9.)

The Resurrection

The trust and hope of men were not to be found, so trust and hope were turned heavenward. Man's doing was undone in resurrection and salvation.

"I have set the Lord always before me: because he is at my right hand, I shall not be moved. Therefore my heart is glad, and my glory rejoiceth: my flesh also shall rest in hope. For thou wilt not leave my soul in hell; neither wilt thou suffer thine Holy One to see corruption. Thou wilt shew me the path of life: in thy presence is fulness of joy: at thy right hand there are pleasures for evermore." (Psalm 16:8-11.)

"Have mercy upon me, O Lord; consider my trouble which I suffer of them that hate me, thou that liftest me up from the gates of death: that I may shew forth all thy praise in the gates of the daughter of Zion: I will rejoice in thy salvation." (Psalm 9:13, 14.)

"He asked life of thee, and thou gavest it him, even length of days for ever and ever. His glory is great in thy salvation: honour and majesty hast thou laid upon him." (Psalm 21:4, 5.)

"O Lord, thou hast brought up my soul from the grave: thou hast kept me alive, that I should not go down to the pit." (Psalm 30:3.)

"As for me, I will behold thy face in righteousness: I shall be satisfied, when I awake, with thy likeness." (Psalm 17:15.)

The Anointed

"Why do the heathen rage, and the people imagine a vain thing? The kings of the earth set themselves, and the rulers take counsel together, against the Lord and against his anointed, saying, Let us cast their bands asunder, and cast away their cords from us." (Psalm 2:1-3.)

The King

Several Psalms contribute to vision of the King. The whole of the seventy-second is devoted to the King and His Kingdom, so it will not be quoted. Other beautifully expressed portions of Psalms herewith are presented:

"Yet have I set my King upon my holy hill of Zion." (Psalm 2:6.)

"My heart is inditing a good matter: I speak of the things which I have made touching the king: my tongue is the pen of a ready writer. Thou art fairer than the children of men: grace is poured into thy lips: therefore God hath blessed thee for ever. Gird thy sword upon thy thigh, O most mighty, with thy glory and thy majesty. And in thy majesty ride prosperously because of truth and meekness and righteousness: and thy right hand shall teach thee terrible things. Thine arrows are sharp in the heart of the king's enemies; whereby the people fall under thee. Thy throne, O God, is for ever and ever: the sceptre of thy kingdom is a right sceptre. Thou lovest righteousness, and hatest wickedness: therefore God, thy God, hath anointed thee with the oil of gladness above thy fellows. All thy garments smell of myrrh, and aloes, and cassia, out of the ivory palaces, whereby they have made thee glad." (Psalm 45:1-8.)

"Thou wilt prolong the king's life: and his years as many generations. He shall abide before God for ever: O prepare mercy and truth, which may preserve him." (Psalm 61:6, 7.)

"Also I will make him my firstborn, higher than the kings of the earth. My mercy will I keep for him for ever more, and my covenant shall stand fast with him. His seed also will I make to endure for ever, and his throne as the days of heaven." (Psalm 89:27-29.)

WHAT IS CHRISTMAS?

Remember how God assured men of Christ's first coming. Remember the assurance that we have of His second coming. If we keep these things in mind, we shall never be wearied in spirit, though we become weary in body, doing the things to make others know the true joy of Christmas.

JESUS THE CHRIST

recorded the words that still stand in testimony against them—"his own received him not."

The little words of the English language sometimes are loaded with promise that defies emotional expression. Following John 1:11, John 1:12 begins with one of these.

It introduces a new era into the life of Jesus, of Israel, and of the world. That little word is the word "but."

"But, to as many as received him to them gave he the authority to become children of God, to those believing on his name."

But, though the nation had rejected Him, the offer of salvation still stood for "as many as received him." It became a personal salvation to whosoever will. Thenceforth, John's Gospel is replete with the telling of such incidents as those of Andrew and Peter, Philip and Nathanael, Nicodemus, the woman of Samaria, and many others.

Paul asked the question, "Did they [Israel] stumble that they should fall?" "God forbid," he said. It was no fall. The word "fall" as used in the scripture just quoted is decisive and irrevocable. It is not the same in the Greek as that used in verse 12. This fact has been widely recognized by modern translators, for every one of them, so far as the present writer is aware, has expressed his understanding of the word by such terms as "trespass," "falling away—or aside," "lapse," "false step," "stumbling," "Through their trespass," said Paul, "salvation [life, Syria] is come to the Gentiles" and "is the riches of the world." Then he added, "If the rejection [or setting aside of] them is the reconciling of the world, what shall the receiving of them be but life from the dead?" "For God sent not his Son [at that time] to condemn the world, but that the world through him might be saved" (Syriac, "may have life").

"Whosoever heareth!" shout, shout the sound!
Send the blessed tidings all the world around;
Spread the joyful news wherever man is found:
Whosoever will may come.

"Whosoever cometh need not delay;
Now the door is open, enter while you may;
Jesus is the true and only living Way,
Whosoever will may come.

"Whosoever will!" the promise is secure,
'Whosoever will' forever must endure;
'Whosoever will,' 'tis life for evermore;
'Whosoever will' may come."

"TO SEEK AND TO SAVE"

of God and His merciful forgiveness of sins. Since God's purpose was to redeem Israel, the good news that the old law was no longer in effect, and that redemption could come only through Christ, was spread among the Jews. Jesus said, "The Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost" (Luke 19:10). Furthermore, He said, "Go . . . to the lost sheep of the house of Israel" (Matt. 10:6).

Throughout His ministry, Christ was seeking: seeking those who were lost, seeking Israel. In what way was Israel lost? She was trying fervently to keep the Ten Commandments law as interpreted by the Pharisees and Sadducees. The Sabbath day was corrupted to such an extent that there were over two thousand laws connected with it. For example, there was the law, "Thou shalt not wear nails in thy shoes on the Sabbath."

Jesus came to save the Jews from the Mosaic law. "Christ hath redeemed us from the curse of the law, being made a curse for us" (Gal. 3:13a). "When the fulness of the time was come, God sent forth his Son . . . to redeem them that were under the law" (Gal. 4:4, 5). Christ gave two new laws to His followers—namely, love God whole-heartedly, and love neighbor as self.

Jesus came to save the Gentiles from ignorance. Little did the heathen nations know of God, but they, too, were enveloped by the love of Jesus. At first, the gospel spread among the Gentiles like wild-fire, for never before had they been invited with outstretched arms to accept God. Today, that furiously burning fire has been almost quenched by perverted doctrines, such as: Mary being the mother of God; sprinkle baptism; heaven reward at death; and so forth!

Jesus came to save the Jew from the law, the Gentile from ignorance; and, molding them together into a unit working for Him, He came to save that unit from the power of the second death. "There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female: for ye are all one in Christ Jesus. And if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise" (Gal. 3:28, 29).

The seeking is continuing at the present time, and the saving is but a short distance in the future. Accept Christ while there is time! Hear the words of the Saviour of mankind, "Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me . . . for my yoke is easy, and my burden is light" (Matt. 11:28-30). These comforting words have rung down through the halls of time, but are still as fresh and full of meaning as they were when first spoken. Rely on Jesus, believe on Him, for He came "to seek and to save."

Prepared by Madge Savage
Waite Park, Minnesota

"In that day there shall be a root of Jesse, which shall stand for an ensign of the people; to it shall the Gentiles seek; and his rest shall be glorious" (Isaiah 11:10).

"For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord." (Luke 2:8-11.)

The host of angels praised God and said: "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men" (Luke 2:14).

The shepherds went in haste to Bethlehem where they found the King of glory. He was a tiny baby boy, sleeping in a manger bed! They believed the angels' story. They told the wonderful news all around the countryside. Would you have told your friends of the heavenly visit of the angels? Would you have worshiped the one who was born to be King? We can do it today. We can tell abroad the wonderful saving gospel story. We can worship and adore Jesus the Christ who is to be our King.

Prophecy of Christ's Kingdom

Give the king thy judgments, O God, and thy righteousness unto the king's son.

He shall judge thy people with righteousness, and thy with judgment.

"The mountains shall bring peace to the people, and the little hills, by righteousness.

"He shall judge the poor of the people, he shall save the children of the needy, and shall break in pieces the oppressor.

"They shall fear thee as long as the sun and moon endure, throughout all generations.

"He shall come down like rain upon the mown grass: as showers that water the earth.

"In his days shall the righteous flourish: and abundance of peace so long as the moon endureth.

"He shall have dominion also from sea to sea, and from the river unto the ends of the earth." (See Psalm 72.)

The Birth of Our King

"There were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night.

"And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them: and they were sore afraid.

"And the angel said unto them: Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people.

The Beautiful Gift

"What can a mother give her children
Greater today than this one great thing—
Faith in an old, sweet, beautiful story,
A star—a stable—a new-born King?
Shining faith in the young lad, Jesus:
Lover of high white things was He;
Jesus—straight as a Lebanon cedar:
Jesus—clean as the winds from the sea.
Faith in the young lad come to manhood;
Jesus—compassionate, tender, and true—
Oh, my children—what more glorious
Gift in the world can I give to you?
Carry it high like a lamp in the darkness,
Hold it for warmth when the day is cold—
Keep it for joy when youth goes singing,
Clasp it for peace when you are old.
What can a mother give her children
More than a faith that will not dim?
Take it, my dear ones—hold it forever;
A lamp for a lifetime—faith in Him.

“To Us Is Given the Keeping of the Lights Along the Shore”

A BEREAN MESSAGE

By James M. Watkins

Perhaps you never have had the privilege—or shall I say disaster?—of being alone in a small boat out in the darkness of midnight on shifting, restless waters that serve only to emphasize that sinking feeling of insecurity that is always present when you are never sure exactly what additional terror each succeeding moment may bring. If you have not, you cannot, of course, appreciate the sinking feeling of terrifying loneliness that is the immediate result of having the little blinking light, that was your last contact with shore and man, suddenly vanish.

They did not realize the earnest way that you were reaching out with every sense of your being tuned to the utmost to receive the last possible comfort from even its feeble, flickering presence. They did not know! So, as they had been doing day in and day out, year after year, when the time had come to retire, they had turned out the light and gone off to sleep with utter indifference to your plight and no thought of the consoling comfort the little shafts of light had brought to a very appreciative and needful individual as they had gone out into the darkness.

But what of you, tossing about out there in the despair of danger and darkness with the last opportunity of any last consolation gone? Did the unconscious bliss of their peaceful sleep bring any comfort to you? No, most certainly it did not, and their failure to appreciate your feelings brought no consolation or help.

Out there on the ever-shifting opportunities of eternal destruction, many of your neighbors, friends, or perhaps those you love are struggling along with the disquieting forces of their restless environment. Perhaps that little light of faith that they saw in your face when troubles were on every hand, although it may have been a little flickering and feeble at times, may have brought them also new strength and consoling satisfaction.

How easy it can be for us to be utterly indifferent to the little things that may have been of so much help to someone else and go off to sleep without any regard for their needs or their feelings! The responsibility for knowing and fulfilling that need is upon us. It does not excuse us by saying that the man out upon the water should have had a radio and let us know if he was getting any pleasure out of our light burning, so we could have kept it on. It is for us rather to realize the possibilities of the little things we do. Night after night, perhaps, we could leave our light burn until the break of dawn without a single individual being adrift or finding the least satisfaction in it. Finally, however, upon that night of all nights because of our constant fulfilling of our possibilities, our light is burning and stays burning when the need of someone is greatest. It is then that the work of a lifetime is rewarded and no thought is given to the long, long hours when our light has burned unseen and unappreciated.

Success in our Berean work is not the result of a few isolated moments of outstanding opportunity, but it is to be found in the constant devotion to every-day duty that brings about those opportunities. To those of your own age, you owe a responsibility and share an opportunity that is not the happy lot of anyone else in the world. They are your friends. They enjoy your company and are interested in your interests. They will be just as happy to work with you in the Cause of Christ, as to play ping-pong or volley ball. They do not share these things in common with me or with the National Berean officers, or even with your local church leaders. The light of faith that will be the only light to find a response in them is that which is shining in you. To avail yourself of its opportunity it must be kept shining in the every-day associations.

Berean work must have its periods of study and definite spirit of devotion; most certainly it must. It is only by continued Bible study that we are able to learn and to feed the fires that will serve to keep our own lamp of faith burning. It is only by spiritual devotion that we are able to put in operation the things we learn and thus cause others to appreciate them by the kindly consideration, the consoling faith in time of need, or the satisfying service they are led to experience by association with us.

Yes, our Berean work needs its periods of serious study and spiritual devotion that will build us to the place of worthy service in the Lighthouse Service of the Master. But it needs, also, the stability of continued and every-day associations. It must have a program that meets the need of daily associations that will permit us to have the light of our own faith shining at the right place and time.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

EL PASO, TEXAS

About a month ago, I received a communication from some brethren in El Paso, Tex., asking if I would be able to come and visit them for a week or so. After some difficulty in making arrangements, this was done, and I spent December 1-8 there. Four sermons were preached, and several Bible classes given.

I found only seven brethren there, who had been holding the banner of Truth aloft. They feel, and so do I, that there must be more of our church people living in or near El Paso. If such should be the case, or if any reader knows of one who does not take The Restitution Herald and lives there, contact can be made by writing Mrs. Dorothy Mitchellree, Rt. 1, Box 563, or Carol Juggers, 3817 N. Piedras, both of El Paso.

I was very thankful for this opportunity, as it was the first gospel work I had done since December, 1944. Also, I was enabled to meet these good people for the first time. Pray for this work. Gerald L. Cooper.

SOUTHLAWN CHURCH OF GOD

Thanksgiving morning found Southlawn Church of God, Grand Rapids, Mich., literally full of thankful people. In the absence of our minister, John Denchfield, Sr. Evelyn Barr and Bro. Robert Barr planned and conducted the service. Several beautiful musical numbers were presented, and expressions of thanks were given by many members of the congregation.

After an absence of two weeks, Bro. and Sr. Denchfield have returned from Minnesota where they went to get their furnishings. Although many things remain to be done, our annex is fast becoming a paragon.

Friday, December 6, was the date for our annual church election and business meeting. Those selected to fill the several offices for the coming year were: Elders, Bros. Virgil Mettert and Emil Holquist, and Sr. Lou Lyon; deacons, Bros. Lyle Alger, Leslie Niles, Harvey Hotchkiss, Lloyd Stevens, and Albert Christie; deaconesses: Srs. Alice McBride, Effie Mettert, and Norman Svlskar; secretary, Sr. Ellen Van Fleet; treasurer, Gerald K. Niles; superintendent of Sunday school, Juell Niles; superintendent of Dorcas, Sr. Edith Lyendecker; superintendent of Berean, Bro. Robert Barr; and minister of music, Sr. Evelyn Barr.

Among the decisions made were two important ones. One, to appoint a committee to supervise the purchasing of new hymn books; and two, to appoint a committee to hire an architect to make plans for the remodeling and enlarging of our present church edifice.

We are presently looking forward to the coming Christmas season with much anticipation. The Sunday school is planning a program to include all ages, and the choir is practicing for a candlelight cantata.

Southlawn Church and its members extend the most sincere greetings of the season to all

FIFTIETH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Bro. and Sr. Michael Fetters, Lucerne, Ind., will celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary, Sunday, December 29 (2:00-4:00 p.m.) with "open house" at their home in Lucerne. . . . Judging from the picture, they are still happy in their marriage bonds. (This bit of recognition is, we believe, a total surprise to them.—Editor.)

O SILVERY BELLS!

By G. E. Marsh

O silvery bells, ring loud and clear,
To aching hearts bring hope and cheer;
Send forth your message far and wide,
For love doth reign at Christmastide!

Chorus:

The Christ is come, hosannas ring,
Glad praises with the angels sing;
For He who came by lowly birth,
Returns in triumph to the earth!

Our Lord on Zion's mount shall stand,
Ring out the tidings o'er the land,
O'er mountain, valley, hill and plain;
For Jesus comes again to reign!

"Behold, I come!" The blessed word
Was spoken by our risen Lord;
Then let our lamps be trimmed and bright,
For He may come again tonight!

WORK IN ARKANSAS

The people at McGintytown, Little Rock, and Clarks Chapel, also at Mount Springs near Russellville, appreciate the work Sr. Verna Thayer has done for them, and we enjoyed having her in our homes. The writer worked with her some at McGintytown, Little Rock, and Clarks Chapel, and at Mount Springs on the fifth Sunday in September, also at Arch, Okla. Sr. Thayer closed a week's work at Mount Springs, Sunday, December 8, and left for Oregon, Ill., the following Monday.

We realize more and more the importance of a children's evangelist. I can remember when I was a child, we did not have anything to appeal to us in Sunday school. Sr. Thayer's work was appealing to the children and they were anxious to attend her classes. Her work also was interesting to the elderly people. We can see the fruits of her labor among the children. Let us all remember the church of tomorrow is the children. I consider the training of children spiritually to be, if not the greatest calling, one of the greatest callings at least. Let us remember Paul's words when he said, "Ye fathers, provoke not your children to wrath, but bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord" (Eph. 6:4).

We welcome Sr. Thayer to Arkansas and extend to her our congratulations for this splendid work she has done.

H. Scott Smith.

SOUTH BEND, INDIANA

Our class of young people of Hope Church in South Bend, Ind., is called "The Young Christians." We number about twelve and are a very lively group, being in the twenty-age group.

We do quite a bit for the church and enjoy every minute of it. We print a weekly church bulletin, including the morning and evening order of worship, the Berean topic, and the announcements for the coming week. We also sponsor the evening church service. Sr. Lott Pickler, our Sunday school superintendent, is the leader of this service. Every Sunday night is different. We sometimes have movies, guest speakers, music night, or anything we can do up that will be new and different.

We recently have organized a Berean class. This class is progressing very well and we take part in it.

Our biggest job, and most enjoyable one, is the printing of the monthly Sunday school church paper. We call this paper "Chap Chatter." If you knew our group, you would say it is a very appropriate name for the class. Each of us has a job to do on the paper: such as reporters, writers of special articles, typing, and printing.

We enjoy our work, and we hope to do even more. A few of the older members have told us they look forward to coming to Sunday school and church, as they never know what we will be doing next.

Evelyn Wert, President.

"HAPPY NEW YEAR" TO EVERYBODY

Happy New Year!

As 1946 sinks below time's western horizon, the world welcomes the approaching New Year. We pray that, throughout 1947, God will bless every member of the Church of God and every soul seeking for light and salvation.

The expression "Happy New Year," as commonly used on the first day of each year, means little more to the world than does a daily greeting. If one could be sure, however, that God is leading and guiding him throughout each day of the New Year, he could be sure of enjoying that peace of mind and soul inexperienced by the world. With that thought of God's blessing and its consequent peace, the Editor and his family extend abroad a very Happy New Year!

Time—a Mark of Mortality

Time—how precious it is! and how it flies! In present complexity of life, there seems to be insufficient time. When one's days are ended, he will feel, probably, that he needed more time: more time to accomplish work well planned, more time to appreciate friends and opportunities, more time to serve God and to prepare for the coming of His Son.

Time is characteristic of mortality, being somewhat of a token of the frailties and failures of man. It is encouraging to know, therefore, that the God of eternity is not limited nor hampered by this element of time. He is supreme; He is eternal. During the new year of 1947, when we as God's children fail to make proper use of our time, or when we have insufficient time properly to execute our services, we shall do well to petition God for His grace and assistance. The Eternal is able to supply in such way as to enrich every moment of one's time—forgiving and building. Thus, when the year will have ended, we should be able to say, unboastfully, It was a year well lived for God and man. That is the way we look upon the year now completing. That is the way we enter the coming New Year. . . . Help us each, Lord, to serve Thee in the spirit of humility and devotion.

Perilous Times

Increase of educational standards and facilities, world-wide travel and rapid transit, modernization of Palestine, world-wide confusion, and increasing difficulties between capital and labor indicate that the coming of the Lord draws near. Gentile times soon must close and give way to the Days of the Son of Man. The Bible tells that, in these last days, "perilous times will come" (2 Tim. 3:1). Looking into the future, one is buoyed with the hope of the coming of the Lord, yet he knows that sin and plague will shroud this world in a darkness heretofore unknown just prior to the breaking of the Day. "Perilous times shall come"! "Evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse! "When the Son of man cometh, shall he find faith on the earth?" Therefore, as 1947 opens her doors before us, we who are watching prophecy unfold should be armed in faith against "gross darkness" of the world.

Race Tolerance Is Necessary

By Otto E. Dick, Oregon, Illinois

IN SPITE of the many organized efforts to educate people to be tolerant of other races, there still is much race hatred throughout the world. Furthermore, prospects are that the race problem will get more serious as a result of the recent World War. People of many nations have been taught to hate as a necessity for a united effort against the enemy. The War also served to shrink the world, making it necessary for people of different customs, languages, beliefs, and colors to come into closer contact with one another. For various reasons, nations are so interdependent upon one another that all kinds of people are our neighbors. Modern means of travel and communication have brought all humanity much closer together.

Within the next few years, we may expect many absurd proposals and many fanatical schemes relative to our own race problem. We may expect much violence and bloodshed unless all available agencies are employed to teach the truth about race. People must be taught that race intolerance is the result of the lack of race knowledge and from the lack of spiritual approach to the problem. The church must accept its share of the responsibility in teaching the truth about race and the necessity for a sane and Christian understanding of people who may not look or act like us. Let us make this one of our New Year's resolutions. Let us examine some of the facts and resolve to become better informed as to our fellow men.

The Biblical account of the origin of man tells the same truth that science has shown today: that all peoples of the earth have a common origin. We are all of the same family: whether white, yellow, or black; whether Jew or Gentile; whether German or American. Paul said, "God . . . hath made of one blood all nations of men." Pope Pius IX observed, "The human mind is one. When men think deeply about life, they come at last to the same basic truths and faiths—however differently expressed."

As evidence that we are of common origin, science points out that the intricate make-up of the human body could not have "just happened" to be the same in all men if they did not have common origin. The bone structure and the make-up of the many organs of the body are the same in all men, regardless of race or outward appearance. They say, "Who can imagine finding the same arrangements in two human species if they were not one family?" The only differences in people are in non-essential characteristics such as hair, shape, size, color, or height, and even within any so-called racial group of people are found radical differences in the characteristics listed. It is quite generally accepted by science that certain "racial" differences are a result of nature's adapting man to his environment or surroundings. The Negro's dark skin and large nostrils enable him to live more comfortably in the tropics. The races of mankind are what the Bible and science say they are—brothers. In their bodies is the proof of this.

Otto E. Dick

Our modern conception of different "races" originated when the people of Europe began to travel to every quarter of the earth after the discovery of America. They met many people who looked and acted strange, as if they might be different creatures. Gradually, they classified these strangers according to the color of their skin, the shape of their head, the kind of hair, kind of lips, and their height. Today, we know that this classification into races by appearance was a false impression.

For example, height is not a race characteristic, because there are extremely short and extremely tall people almost everywhere in the world. As to shape of the head, long heads and round heads are not characteristic of particular "races" of people. One would suppose that there would be a difference in the brains of peoples of the earth, but upon closest examination as to size, shape, and structure, the best scientists cannot tell to what group of people a brain belongs.

For years, we have spoken of blood as something that distinguished one group of people from another, but we know now that this is pure superstition. All human blood is the same, except for the difference in the types of blood. This medical difference was discovered when doctors began to use blood transfusions to save life. It was learned that there are four types of blood and that one of them cannot be mixed successfully with any of the others without clumping. A child inherits his type of blood from his forefathers, but whites, Negroes, Mongols, and all races of man have all these blood types. On the battlefield, doctors gave blood "plasma" infusions without regard to race. Yes, even Germans were given Jewish blood, whether they liked it or not and, of course, experienced no biological change. No doubt, Japanese soldiers were given transfusions with blood from some colored persons, but they need not worry about (Please turn to page 10)

The Armor of God

By Harold J. Doan, Chicago, Illinois

EVER SINCE the creation of man, the world has been torn by quarrels, fighting, and war. Scarcely a generation of people has escaped the consequences of this ruinous national pastime. In fact, there are children in the world today who know more about war and implements of war than they do about oranges and bananas.

Wars between nations have come and gone, but one war, declared six thousand years ago, is still in progress. It has been steadily increasing in volume, and since it began nearly every person who ever lived has fought in it on one side or another. This war, of course, is between the forces of good and evil; and, in the final analysis, nearly all the battles of the world boil down to this endless war. The fight which goes on in the human mind between conscience and temptation, quarrels between individuals, and world wars all generate from this battle of the ages between the forces of God and the forces of evil.

The casualties of this war are naturally tremendous. Insanity, frustration, crime, broken homes, quarrels, and wars all result from victories by sin on the field of battle. The constant war in the human mind between good and evil has caused the downfall of many people who would rather "give in" to evil than become strong in the Lord until sin is finally beaten.

As Christian people, we have allied ourselves with God, through His Son Jesus. By following the Lord's example, we hope to win a victory over sin, and thus free ourselves from this war and its consequences. When we do become victorious over sin, we will be free from the frustration, indecision, and guilt which comes when we are not really a part of either side. When we do get on the side of good and defeat sin once and for all, the rest of our lives will be filled only with minor skirmishes in which we will have by far the superior forces.

How can we win this pitched battle? How can we, once and for all, become overcomers and take our stand firmly and securely beside Christ? You know, He fought in the battle, too! In the very beginning of His ministry Jesus won a great victory over sin during the wilderness temptation. Jesus overcome, once and for all, and from then on He was victor in every skirmish with evil.

The Lord has not left us unprotected! He, instead, has left us His armor, which we can don and wear into battle. It is armor which not only defends us against the subtle attacks of evil, but also allows us to take the offensive and destroy the fortresses of sin.

Paul, the Apostle, in his Letter to the Ephesians, explained to those Christian people his conception of the Christian soldier, his battle with sin and the protective and offensive armor left him by the Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ. Paul began his exhortation thus, "My brethren, be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might" (Eph. 6:10). The first requirement of a Christian soldier is courage, strength, and power in the Lord. Be strong and powerful in the Lord! There is courage and strength and power in real Christianity, because real Christians tap the resources of God. The reason sin has the upper hand today, and the forces of evil are ruling the world, is that most 1946 Christians are cowards, who dig a foxhole in the church the day after they are baptized, and never lift a finger to defend Christ or to go out and defeat His enemies. To be an overcomer, a real Christian soldier, requires courage and spiritual strength to stand up and fight for Christ, to take the blows of the Devil and keep moving forward. There is no place in the army of Christ for anyone who does not have the courage and strength which comes from God. The Bible story is filled with just such characters; men and women who were strong and courageous in the Lord, and who stood up to sin and defeated it.

Paul continued: "Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil. For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places. Wherefore take unto you the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand" (vv. 11-13).

When you have taken personal inventory and find yourself strong and courageous in the Lord, then don His armor and prepare for battle. Courage and zeal are not enough. The most courageous soldier is at a loss without weapons. The whole armor of God must be worn, so one will be protected and adequately supplied to meet a sly and subtle enemy. Preparation is essential, stated Paul, because Christians are at war with an unusual enemy: not merely at odds with other men. They could easily be overcome. You Christians, said Paul, are at war with more powerful and subtle forces. Principalities and powers come first. You have an enemy in the form of corrupt anti-Christian governments and rulers. One of the greatest enemies of Christianity has been the state which either corrupted religion by joining with it, or tried to annihilate it. Nations based upon false principles, and spreading anti-Christian propaganda among their people, have caused a general degeneration of Christianity in many places.

We Christians today are at war with rulers of darkness, or influential people and businesses, whose works are dark and sinful. These rulers of darkness are very clever and make darkness seem like light. They buy hours of radio time and hire well-known people to make "L.S.M.F.T." and "Meister Brau the Master Brew" family words. They hire politicians to pass laws favoring every kind of wicked, home-breaking vice which will net someone a profit. They have scores of followers who are duped by their subtle wickedness.

Then we are faced with spiritual wickedness in high places, or false religions. Evil finds followers in high places who organize hybrid religions which are a cross between truth and fable. With their good name and exalted position, they lead people into all kinds of ambushes, where they become easy prey for the Devil and his lieutenants.

With these subtle and influential foes facing us, is it any wonder that Paul warned Christians to be courageous, strong, and fully armed with God's armor? What is this armor that will not only protect us from the "wiles of the devil," but also helps us to rise up and begin destroying wickedness?

First, Paul suggested: "Have your loins girt about with truth" (v. 14). The allusion here is to the heavy armor of the Greek soldier, who wore a complete suit of mail called the "panoply." A part of this was the metal belt which held the armor together. To gird oneself with truth is Paul's first suggestion for armor. What can truth do to protect you?

Truth probably is here used in its broadest sense, implying first the gospel truth about God and His Son, and then truth meaning honest conversation and sincerity. The Apostle John, in his Gospel recording the words of Jesus, gave the true power of truth as a weapon of defense against evil.

Said Jesus, "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free" (John 8:32). Jesus was speaking to Jews who had accepted Him. They could not understand His words, saying that they were not in bondage — so why be made free? Then Jesus replied, "Whosoever committeth sin is the servant of sin . . . If the Son therefore shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed."

These Jews were casualties of war. They were prisoners of sin. Jesus came to set them free, saying that by belief in the truth concerning Him they could become free from sin. Thus they would overcome and be victorious over sin. What truth must you wear as part of your Christian armor? Belief in the truth that Jesus is the Son of God who can free you from your bondage to sin!

Honest conversation is just another phase of the truth which will ward off the attacks of Satan. One of the best ways for Satan to break through your defenses and begin his evil work is for you to let down your guard of truth and tell a lie. One lie calls for another. Guilt begins to creep in as the lies go on; then one day the battle grows to full force within your mind, and you find that a flood of evil has come in the hole in the dyke.

Truth about God and the freedom from sin which comes through Jesus, and honest thinking and speaking are parts of your Christian defense against the forces of darkness.

Then Paul said, "Put on the breastplate of righteousness." Righteousness, which boils down to holy living, is an active, strong, positive defense against sin. Righteousness is a positive quality. You live so fully for Christ that evil has no place to sneak in. Righteousness is active Christian living. You are so busy, doing and thinking good, that you just do not have time for evil. Righteousness does away with those three generals in Satan's army; Self-Reproach, Guilty Conscience, and Empty Lives.

Job gave a good illustration of how righteousness can protect one's spiritual well-being and keep evil from ruining his life. Satan was giving Job a real test, trying to break down his defenses and cause him to swing his allegiance from God to himself. All that stood between Satan and victory was the godly armor that Job wore. A part of this armor was Job's breastplate of righteousness, of which he said: "All the while my breath is in me, and the spirit of God is in my nostrils; my lips shall not speak wickedness, nor my tongue utter deceit . . . till I die I will not remove my integrity from me. My righteousness will I hold fast, and will not let it go: my heart shall not reproach me so long as I live (27:3-6). (Turn to page 9)

YOU TELL ON YOURSELF

- "You tell on yourself by the friends you seek,
- By the very manner in which you speak.
- By the way you employ your leisure time,
- By the use you make of dollar and dime.
- "You tell what you are by the things you wear,
- By the spirit in which your burdens you bear,
- By the kind of things at which you laugh,
- By the records you play on the phonograph.
- "You tell what you are by the way you walk,
- By the things of which you delight to talk,
- By the manner in which you hear defeat,
- By so simple a thing as how you eat,
- "By the books you choose from the well-filled shelf;
- In these ways and more, you tell on yourself.
- So there's really no particle of sense
- In an effort to keep up false pretense."

The Word Made Flesh

Jesus Christ, Who Is He?

In Two Parts—Part Two

By J. H. Thomas, M.D., Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania
Contributed by W. S. Tomlinson, Chagrin Falls, Ohio

IT BEING the purpose of the Deity to be manifested in persons of Adam's race, who shall be His name bearers—a multitude of mighty ones of whom Jesus is Chief, it follows, that whoever believes that Jesus was begotten by Joseph, or that He was a pre-existent Son, or second person in the Trinity, makes void the purpose of God, and virtually sets aside the only name under heaven whereby man can be saved—the Yahweh name, which is "the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit"; whereas those having a comprehensive knowledge of the things of the Kingdom and name, and evidencing a hearty belief of the same by being immersed for the remission of sins, are thereby introduced into the all-saving name, and become like Christ their Chief, and name-bearers of Deity.

From what we have written, it will, we think, appear clear that Jesus was not mere Son of man, not the self-existent Deity, but the product of Deity—the Son of God. In the flesh, He manifested the name and character of Yahweh, and being justified or perfected in spirit through a resurrection of the dead to the high and exalted estate of incorruptibility and life, or Spirit substance, He was the Yahweh or "I will be" manifestation of Him whom no man has seen nor can see, both in character and in nature. Being, as said Paul (Heb. 1:3, Diaglott), "An effulgence of his glory and an exact impress of his substance."

By the power of the Father Spirit, the body which was of Mary's substance was transformed to Spirit. Being born of Spirit, according to the words spoken to Nicodemus, He became Spirit—like His Father, a life-imparting Spirit, in fulfillment of His own words, as recorded by John 5:26: "As the Father hath life in himself; so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself."

Such, then, is the Scripture teaching concerning Jesus the seed of the woman and Son of God, in whom was manifested the moral attribute of Deity, and of whom John said: "He dwelt among us, and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father full of grace and truth."

As we already have seen, it was not only the purpose of Deity to manifest Himself in the person of Jesus Christ but in members of Adam's race; all those who become conformed to the image of His Son, and so become sons of God, and hence bear the name of their Father, and are therefore "gods," or "mighty ones." Jesus Christ is the God-designed pattern, or image, sent forth of God, to which all must conform who would be one of the Elohim of Deity—that great company of kings and priests—called by Peter, "a royal priesthood, an holy nation," to be established at Jerusalem in fulfillment of the words of Yahweh that He will place His name there. (See 1 Kings 8:20-29.)

David also said (Psalm 132), "The Lord hath chosen Zion; he hath desired it for his habitation. This is my rest for ever; here will I dwell, for I have desired it." This company of mighty ones established at Jerusalem will be the bearers of the name of Deity—that name called by Moses in Deuteronomy 28:50: "This glorious and fearful name—YAHWEH ELOHIM"—the glorious among the nations, God with man.

As Jesus was begotten by the Spirit and manifested the character of God in the flesh, so everyone who would become a constituent of this all-saving Name must also be begotten of the Spirit and manifest the character of God in the flesh by continuing in the apostle's doctrine and teaching that eventually he may be transformed to Spirit substance and become as Jesus is Holy Spirit nature—the exact impress of the nature or substance of the Father's person.

To be begotten of the Spirit, one must give a willing ear to the Spirit word, or words of the Spirit, which are the words of Jesus the Anointed, for Peter said: "Thou hast the words of eternal life," and Jesus Himself said, "The words I speak unto you they are Spirit and they are life." Again He said, "If ye continue in my word ye are my disciples indeed."

It is important, then, to know what are the Spirit-begetting words of Jesus. Matthew 6:33 will lead us in the right direction. "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness." Then in accordance with this general instruction, He commenced to announce the Kingdom of God, or glad tidings thereof, as something to be believed. Mark informed us that "after John was imprisoned, Jesus came into Galilee publishing the glad tidings of God, and saying, The time has been accomplished, and God's Royal Majesty has approached; reform and believe the good message" (Mark 1:14, 15, Diaglott). Again, in Luke 8:1, we are informed that Jesus "went throughout every city and village preaching and shewing the glad tidings of the kingdom of God." Afterwards He called His twelve disciples together, and "sent them to preach the Kingdom of God." When the people of Nazareth constrained Him to remain with them, He said, "I must preach the kingdom of God to other cities also, for therefore am I sent."

From the above citations, it is evident that the gospel, or things relating to the Kingdom of God, Himself as God's Royal Majesty, or King thereof, were the Spirit-begetting words of Jesus, which, if a man understands and believes begets within him a new mind or character and, having complied with God's formula or way of remission of sins, he is regarded as having been begotten of the Spirit and God is manifest in him by the godly character which results. This is still more evident from Peter's words (1 Peter 1:23-25): "Being begotten again, not of corruptible seed, but incorruptible, by the word which liveth and abideth forever . . . and this is the word which has been announced as glad tidings to you" (Diaglott). It is then the gospel, or glad tidings, which is the incorruptible seed by which a man is begotten. This agrees perfectly with the teaching of the Master Himself. He tells His disciples (Matt. 13) that the Son of man is the sower and the word of the Kingdom, the seed sown. If it falls in good ground, which Luke informed us is good and honest hearts, it brings forth fruit, or produces children of the Kingdom. An individual being thus begotten of the Spirit and being immersed for the remission of sins is introduced into the all-saving name—the name of the Father and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit—the one name of the one self-existent and uncreated God in multitudinous manifestation.

All such are a Yahweh manifestation in the flesh—"a new creation in Christ Jesus." When the hour of exaltation shall come and the Father Spirit that dwells in them shall transform their vile bodies of flesh or, if dead, raise them to incorruptibility and life, they then will have been perfected in Spirit and are therefore the manifestation of Yahweh in Spirit substance, and with Christ Jesus as their Head, are the beginning of the new creation of Deity, that new heavens and earth or constitution of things of which the Mosaic was a type. That having served its purpose has been abolished. The time came when, according to Paul (Heb. 12:26), the promise that God would shake not only the earth but the heaven also was fulfilled, and the heavens and earth of that constitution of things which was founded when the Mount burned with fire and the sound of the trumpet and the voice of God caused the people to tremble and Moses to fear and quake were shaken "once more" and passed away with a great noise, and the elements thereof melted with the fervent heat of God's judgment; "for," said Paul, "Our God is a consuming fire." "Nevertheless," said Peter, "we according to his promise look for new heavens and earth wherein dwelleth righteousness." And now that the long and dreary night of Gentile darkness and Jewish stumbling has nearly passed away, we may look for the new creation of Deity to appear. Then will Zion awake and put on her strength, and Jerusalem her beautiful garments; then will that great city, the New Jerusalem, the bride, the Lamb's wife—that great multitude, the name-bearers of Yahweh, who being a manifestation of Deity, having been born from above, are said to descend from God out of heaven—be established at Jerusalem, the "City of the great King," as the "new heavens," or ruling power of the new constitution of things or kingdom which Paul said "cannot be moved" (Heb. 12:28).

Then Isaiah 51:11, 15 will be fulfilled: "The redeemed of the Lord shall return and come with singing unto Zion . . . I have put my words in thy mouth, I have covered thee in the shadow of mine hand, that I may plant the heavens, and lay the foundations of the earth [new heavens and new earth] and say unto Zion, Thou art my people." This having been accomplished, Isaiah 65:17, 18 will have been fulfilled: "Behold, I create new heavens and a new earth; and the former [Mosaic] shall not be remembered nor come into mind. But be ye glad and rejoice for ever in that which I create, for, behold, I create Jerusalem a rejoicing and her people a joy.

Then will be accomplished the work of the Eternal in elaborating by His Spirit from Adam's race a nation of mighty ones—Jesus and His bride who, as the New Jerusalem, have descended from God out of heaven, a body corporate of God's kings and priests, a habitation of eternal wisdom and power. They will be the Abrahamic seed who is to possess the gate of his enemies and give the world a righteous government by which all nations of the earth will be blessed.

To this brief but Scriptural exposition of the word made flesh, and multitudinous manifestation of Deity as the beginning of the new creation, there are a few passages which by some are thought to teach otherwise by implying the pre-existence of Christ as a person. That mode of interpretation that makes a few isolated texts antagonize so prominently expressed doctrine as the "word made flesh" should have no countenance whatever. That the self-existent Eternal Ail, power, or God should be manifested in the woman's seed by the Spirit word becoming flesh is a doctrine underlying the whole plan and purpose of God. An examination of a few of the seemingly antagonistic texts will show the harmony of the whole with the spiritual exposition we have given. (Turn to p. 11)

Jesus, the Only Begotten Son of God

By Charles Lapp, Cashmere, Washington

"God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life" (John 3:16).

ABOUT nineteen hundred forty-six years ago, a little Boy was born to a virgin in Bethlehem of Judea. This virgin's name was Mary. The Angel Gabriel came to Mary and told her she should call His name Jesus. (Luke 1:31.) When the Child was eight days of age, "his name was called Jesus, which was so named of the angel before he was conceived in the womb" (Luke 2:21). In John 3:16, Jesus is called the only begotten Son of God.

We have approached the season when we celebrate the birthday of Jesus our Saviour. I am wondering if we really believe Jesus is the only begotten Son of God. I am wondering if we believe He was born of the Virgin Mary. I am wondering if we believe He was conceived in the womb of Mary. These are serious thoughts, and some of our brethren say it is not important to salvation, whether we believe that Jesus came into existence at the time of His birth, or if we believe He lived before He was conceived. The Scripture says Jesus was begotten, He was conceived, and He was the Son of God.

Some say Michael the archangel was Jesus before He was born and others do not know how He existed, but they feel sure He existed before He was born in spite of all the Scripture which shows He was made of a woman. To me, the Scripture does not teach any such confusion.

Let us consider some of the facts as they are presented by the Scripture. "Behold, thou shalt conceive in thy womb, and bring forth a son, and shalt call his name Jesus" (Luke 1:31). "The angel answered and said unto her, The Holy Ghost shall come upon thee, and the power of the Highest shall overshadow thee: therefore also that holy thing which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God" (v. 35). What caused Mary to conceive Jesus? The power of God came upon her, and she conceived. Mary "brought forth her firstborn son" (2:7). "When eight days were accomplished for the circumcising of the child, his name was called JESUS, which was so named of the angel before he was conceived in the womb" (v. 21). No human man was Jesus' father; and, as the above scriptures show, He was the Son of God, He was conceived, begotten, and born.

The word "son" means offspring. The word "born" means to beget and bring forth. "Begotten" means birth or born. We see by the foregoing scripture (Luke 2:7), that Mary brought forth her first son, which was Jesus.

We also see that He was begotten of God. Now when we read John 3:16, we must believe that Jesus did not exist before He was begotten or born, because "he that believeth on him [Jesus] is not condemned: but he that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God" (John 3:18). If we believe Jesus existed before His mother was born, then we do not honestly believe He is the only begotten Son of God. Brothers and sisters, be careful. That is the Word of God, not mine.

Let us consider a few more witnesses. Turn to Matthew 1 and read about the different people begotten, and by whom. Did Isaac live before Abraham? Did David live before Jesus? Did any of those people named in Matthew 1 live before their father begat them? Brothers and sisters, when we celebrate the birth of our Saviour, let us believe He was born as the Scripture says and not try to make God a liar, or worship a false Christ. Paul said: "Concerning his Son Jesus Christ our Lord, which was made of the seed of David according to the flesh" (Rom. 1:3). "When the fulness of the time was come, God sent forth his Son, made of a woman, made under the law" (Gal. 4:4). In both of these scriptures, Paul said that Jesus was of the seed of woman and that He was made of a woman. If Jesus created all things, He was not made of a woman, because the earth was created before the woman. God promised that Jesus would be born of the seed of Eve and of the seed of David, and it would be pretty difficult for a man to create the seed of which he was to be made.

Paul also said: "The first man Adam was made a living soul; the last Adam was made a quickening spirit. Howbeit that was not first which is spiritual, but that which is natural; and afterward that which is spiritual" (1 Cor. 15:45, 46). If Jesus had existed before He was born or conceived, He would have had to be spiritual, and Paul said the natural came first. Paul should know, because he received his information direct from Jesus Christ.

In regard to Jesus being Michael the Archangel, let us consider Hebrews 1:3-5: "Who being the brightness of his glory, and the express image of his person, and upholding all things by the word of his power, when he had by himself purged our sins, sat down on the right hand of the Majesty on high; being made so much better than the angels, as he hath by inheritance obtained a more excellent name than they. For unto which of the angels said he at any time, Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee? And again, I will be to him a father, and he shall be to me a Son?" In verse 6, when Jesus was born, God said, "Let all the angels of God worship him."

Why not let the Scriptures teach us, instead of us trying to teach the Scripture? Let us take the truth as it is, instead of supposing or believing some of the Catholic myths. Let us worship the true Jesus just as the Scripture says He is, and not a false Christ. Remember John 3:18: "He that believeth on him [Jesus] is not condemned: but he that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God."

THE ARMOR OF GOD

Here was an example of courage, truth, and righteousness combining in the man Job to stave off an unparalleled attack of Satan and win a great victory. Job lost everything he had but his life. Still he wore his protective armor and won the battle with Satan. For standing fast and overcoming, Job was rewarded fourfold with material blessings. The breastplate of righteousness preserves integrity and peace of mind.

A third piece of armor suggested by Paul was the sandals of preparation to carry the gospel. How can preparation to carry the gospel help one to ward off sin? Very simply! When one prepares himself to carry the gospel to others, he not only saves them, but he saves himself. He is strengthened, by his preparation, to the place where he can overcome sin more easily in his own life. Paul said to Timothy, "Till I come, give attendance to reading, to exhortation, to doctrine . . . meditate upon these things; give thyself wholly to them . . . take heed unto thyself, and unto the doctrine; continue in them: for in doing this thou shalt both save thyself, and them that hear thee" (1 Tim. 4:13-16). So, in preparing to teach others, you may save yourself. This preparation is not only your defense, but also (as sandals imply) will carry you forward to battle evil in its own territory.

Over all his armor, the Greek soldier carried a huge shield which deflected most knife, spear, and arrow thrusts before they had opportunity to reach the body armor, whence some harm might be done. To Paul, this shield represented Christian faith, for he said, "Above all, taking the shield of faith, wherewith ye shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked." Faith was to be the first line of defense, the armor which turns aside most blows before they can become dangerous to the Christian life.

A deep and whole-hearted faith in God, and in His ability to keep that which He has promised, will do that very thing for us. Faith will move mountains of doubt and fear. It will stop subtle suggestions of "errors, fallacies, untruth" in Christianity, even before they can begin to corrupt our minds. Faith will turn aside the missiles of slander and ridicule before they can blind us to our real purpose in life. Yes, faith is the shield of protection which turns aside the fiery darts of the wicked. Look what faith did for Moses!

Hebrews 11:24-26 tells us, "By faith Moses . . . refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter; choosing rather to suffer affliction with the people of God, than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season; esteeming the reproach of Christ greater riches than the treasures in Egypt: for he had respect unto the recompense of the reward." When Moses was tempted to forget his people, the Israelites, and to continue as Pharaoh's adopted grandson, it was faith in the promises of God to His people that turned aside the temptation and kept him true to his calling. Moses could have been ruler of Egypt, and would have been just another obscure king remembered by a pile of rock and an inscription, but faith in God made him accept his calling to lead a nation of slaves to the Promised Land, and today he is remembered among the world's great men. By faith, Moses overcame Satan's sly temptation of wealth and power. By faith came victory over sin, and by faith will Moses receive that reward of God he so respected.

Last of all, Paul said, "Take the helmet of salvation." Hope of salvation will be a protecting power, for that hope will keep you true to your calling and near to Christ. Hope of salvation is the reward which Moses respected in his final decision to accept the way of God, rather than the way of sin. This completed the defensive armor.

No soldier, however, is trained simply to defend himself. He is trained to go out and defeat the enemy. So it is with Christians! We have one offensive weapon, that being the "sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God." Using the Word of God, we can defeat sin on its own ground. We are to use the Word, as Paul told Timothy, "for reproof, for correction, and for instruction in righteousness" (2 Tim. 3:16).

The Bible is a powerful weapon, respected and feared even by those who boast immunity to its teachings. As the writer to the Hebrews said, "The word of God is quick and powerful, and sharper than any two-edged sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow, and is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart" (Heb. 4:12). Liberally using the Word of God will do more to teach good and to destroy evil than any amount of talking will do. This Bible is your offensive weapon to be used in destroying, wherever they may be, the works of the Devil.

This, then, was Paul's teaching. We Christians are at war with evil in all its devilish, subtle, camouflaged forms. To be good soldiers defending ourselves and carrying ahead the banner of Christ, we must have courage and strength in God. We must have the truth of the gospel instilled in us, plus honest and sincere speech. We must live righteously, being so busy doing for Christ that Satan cannot get an appointment with us. We must prepare ourselves to teach others, thereby saving not only them, but through preparation, ourselves. Before us we will carry a shield of faith which will ward off many blows of the wicked. We will have hope of salvation, to keep us true to our course and faithful to our goal.

As our offensive weapon, we will carry our Bibles, using the words of God to divide asunder the evil of our enemies.

This is the panoply, the whole armor of God, defensive and offensive. You, too, can wear it. You, too, can emerge from the battle with Satan, an overcomer, having gained victory over sin. You, too, can be free from your captivity to sin. God said, "He that overcometh shall inherit all things; and I will be his God, and he shall be my son" (Rev. 21:7). Overcome in the Christian way with truth, righteousness, preparation, faith, salvation, and the Word of God!

RACE TOLERANCE IS NECESSARY

a change in the color of their skin.

The color of the skin is the most noticeable of the differences between peoples. We all talk about the white, yellow, and black races of man, but most people in the world are not of these extremes. They are the in-betweens, who constitute about four fifths of the world's population. Recently, science found that skin color is determined by two special chemicals, which cause the skin to have a yellow tinge or a brown tinge according to the abundance of either chemical. These colors, along with the pink that comes when the blood vessels show through, give various shades to the human skin. People of browner complexions have more melanin in their skin; people of a yellowish color have more carotene. Your skin color is due to the amount of these chemicals in your skin.

We so often hear of the Jewish race, but the Jews are not a race. Jews are people who profess the Jewish religion. They are of all "races." Jews resemble physically the people among whom they live. The "Jewish type" that we hear so much about is a Mediterranean type, and no more Jewish than Hitler's "Aryan race." Under persecution, Jews develop a so-called "Jewish" trait, but these are not racial and disappear under conditions where assimilation is easy.

The Germans claim to be a pure race, but no nation of peoples is pure. We are all a mixture, and before we discriminate against others, it might be well to realize that unless we can trace our ancestors back to Adam, we do not know from what race we are descended.

If we make a still further study of races, we shall discover that there is no such thing as racial superiorities or inferiorities. A group of people are not born superior. They may only seem superior because of environmental and educational advantages. "Superiority" results from good food, good care, good education, an invigorating climate, and a good start in life. Native intelligence is difficult to measure, but insofar as scientists have been able to do so, they have found no appreciable difference in the intelligence of blacks, whites, or browns. Neither is ability to speak a language inborn. If you had been born and reared in China, you would have spoken the Chinese language as fluently as the Chinese do.

Character is not a racial characteristic; character is taught or learned. Therefore, we need not lay claim to racial superiority as to character. A generation ago, the Japanese people were a courteous, timid, peaceable people. Today, their blood, intelligence, color, and shape of head are not different from that of their forefathers. Neither is civilization or progress a racial trait. Inventions pass from one continent to another. Nations take their turns in cultural leadership. We owe many peoples of the earth for the ideas that have made possible our standard of living. All races have made their contributions to human knowledge. If we in America seem more progressive than others, it is because we have been enriched by people who have come here from every race and nation and because God has blessed us with the materials needed for progress.

Even our diet is the result of borrowing from other peoples. The American Indian contributed our corn, potatoes, and beans; Italy, our vegetables; Russia, our soups; France and Italy, our salads; Scandanavia, our appetizers; and the Mediterranean countries, our sea food.

Does not race prejudice seem rather ridiculous? When we know that the human heart is everywhere the same, having the same griefs, hopes, fears, and joys, it is our Christian duty to refuse to recognize such a thing as racial superiorities. If the Bible and science are right, if mankind is one family, then all racial discrimination is discrimination against our brothers and is pure nonsense. Let us as individuals and as a church body help people to realize that race superiority and inferiority are un-Christian. Let us tell the truth about race!

THE WORD MADE FLESH

In John, we are told that Christ said to Peter, "He that hath seen me hath seen the Father also, and how sayest thou then, Shew us the Father?" We cannot suppose for a moment that Jesus gave Peter to understand that by looking at Him with his eyes he would see the Father, for in that case it would be equal to saying that the flesh born of Mary was the person of the uncreated God, whom no man has seen nor can see; which would be absurd in the extreme. Besides, the context would not admit of such a silly conceit. The word "see" in the passage is used in the sense of discerning or seeing with the understanding, a sense in which it frequently occurs. For example (John 6:40), "This is the will of him that sent me, that every one which seeth [discerneth] the Son and believeth into him may have everlasting life, and I will raise him up at the last day."

So in the passage before us, he that had discerned or understood the Son had discerned or understood the Father also. A similar passage occurs in John 12:45: "He that seeth me seeth him that sent me." That is, he that had discerned, understood, or known the One had the other. This is made very plain in 17:3: "This is eternal life, that they might know thee, the only true God and Jesus Christ whom he hath sent." The context shows the same sense. "If ye had known me, ye should have known my Father also" (v. 7). "Believest thou not that I am in the Father and the Father in me" (v. 10).

As the disciples were on the Day of Pentecost filled with Holy Spirit which spoke through them as he had through the prophets, so Jesus, filled with the Father-Spirit without measure, so that the words He spoke were not simply the words of the child born of Mary, but of the Father which by His Spirit dwelt in Him. Hence He said, "The words that I speak unto you, I speak not of myself, but the Father that dwelleth in me, he doeth the works."

Understanding this, the few otherwise obscure passages are made plain. The passage so often cited to prove the pre-existence of Christ—"Before Abraham was I am"—loses all its force to sustain that fleshly conceit. The Father-Spirit speaking through Jesus could well say: "Before Abraham was I am"; or the child Jesus, knowing that He was the logos, word, or wisdom, in the purpose of God, made flesh, and that all things were on account of Him, could well say, "Before Abraham was I am"; that is, "I am the purpose of God before Abraham was." So of all kindred passages.

If it be remembered that the Son said, "I can of mine own self do nothing," but affirms all the doctrine taught, and all the miracles performed of the Father, whose effluence or Spirit rested upon and filled Him, it will make many of His "hard sayings" easily understood.

OREGON BIBLE COLLEGE NEWS

Warren Sorenson and Rand Smith accompanied Timothy Pearson to South Bend, Ind., for the week end of December 15. The boys returned with Bro. Watkins; and, judging from all reports, they had a very enjoyable time.

On Tuesday evening, December 17, there was a slightly larger group for dinner at the College than is customary. The reason for this increase in number was our formal Christmas dinner. The faculty, the student body, and a few friends comprised the group. After dinner, the singing of Christmas carols was enjoyed by all. Kirby Davis sang "O Little Town of Bethlehem," and Raymond Brown sang "O Holy Night." Irene Payne and Janice Johns entertained with a duet. Mrs. Austin favored us with a beautiful rendition of "The Gift." A portion of Scripture, telling of the birth of our Saviour, was read by Arnold Johns. The matron and superintendent were presented with a hassock, a gift from the students. This marked the beginning of the giving out of the gifts which had been placed under the Christmas tree. The opening of the gifts heralded the end of a very pleasant evening, which was brought to a close with prayer by Bro. Dick.

A vote of thanks is due the social committee, consisting of Irene Payne, Mary and Raymond Brown, Janice and Arnold Johns, and Warren Sorenson, who did a marvelous job of decorating the College, and arranging the entertainment, for the Christmas party. Mrs. Logsdon and Mrs. Pearson are to be congratulated for the extremely delicious dinner we all enjoyed so very, very much. Our superintendent did his part, as usual, in providing for our comfort and pleasure in other ways. One of the many ways was the picturesque fire in the big living-room fireplace, which greeted each guest upon arrival in true Yuletide spirit.

Christmas vacation will find the College a very quiet and deserted spot. Practically all the students are going home for Christmas.

Bro. Dick and Bro. Austin addressed the student body during chapel services last week. Bro. Dick pointed out the senselessness of racial intolerance in a very interesting and enlightening sermon. Bro. Austin spoke on Christ and Christmas and the need for keeping Christ in Christmas. His sermon was most inspiring and timely. Milton Hall conducted services at Rensselaer, Ind., on Sunday, December 22. W. Howard Beemer, Reporter.

MARY FRANCES COOK

With each passing year, our church records change, caused by deaths and baptisms. Such a change came this year to the record of the Browntown Church of God in Virginia when Mary Frances Cook fell asleep in Jesus on June 1. Since the notice of her death was not reported in our church paper at the time, I feel we owe her memory a debt of love and gratitude for her lifelong loyalty to the church and her firm belief in life and immortality only through Christ. She lived true to her faith in the gospel and developed a kind, Christ-like character which was a source of inspiration to many of us of the younger generation.

"Aunt Fanny," as she was familiarly known to us, was a faithful attendant at the Virginia Conference and Bible School from its beginning in 1928 until within the past few years when her eighty-odd years would not permit her traveling from her home in Bentonsville, Va. She once visited the General Conference at Oregon, Ill. Perhaps some whom she met there may remember her. She always spoke so enthusiastically about the pleasure of meeting others of like precious faith.

Mary Frances Updike was born February 17, 1860. She married Capt. J. E. Cook, reared a family of five children, two of whom with her husband have preceded her in death. She is survived by two daughters: Mrs. Lula Updike, Mrs. Eunice Williams; one son, Giles Cook, and their families; also one sister, Mrs. Alice Updike of Winchester, Va.

Her funeral sermon was preached by Bro. J. R. LeCrone at the Maddox Funeral Parlors in Front Royal, Va. She was laid to rest in the family burying grounds at Browntown, there to await the trumpet call of the archangel and the resurrection of the dead when Jesus comes in glory to establish God's Kingdom on earth and bring peace and good will to all people. "He hath remembered his mercy and his truth toward the house of Israel: all the ends of the earth have seen the salvation of our God" (Psalm 98:3).

What God Remembered

The king of Egypt died, and another man became king. Joseph had died, too. This new king did not know about Joseph. All that he noticed was that there were more of the children of Israel than there were of the children of Egypt. The Egyptians made the Israelites work very hard, but, the more the Israelites were burdened, the more they grew. Then the Egyptians tried to kill all the little boy babies. God watched over them and many were saved. God remembered His covenant with Abraham.

Seven Years Old

The ECE Club is seven years old the first of the year 1947. The club was introduced through a little story of a Sunday school class having dinner at the home of one of the members of the class.

The aims of the "Everyday Christian Expression" Club worked out and printed upon a Club card are:

To read the Children's Page in THE RESTITUTION HERALD every week.

To study the Sunday school lessons.

To study from the Bible every day. (The daily lessons given in the quarterlies are recommended.)

To study with as many of my family as I can.

To pray and sing.

To learn to love God more and more.

To try to do good deeds every day.

To have a Bible motto on my wall.

To attend Sunday school and church regularly.

Why not send for your Membership Card? Send the year, month, and day of your birth along with your name to Madge Savage, Waite Park, Minnesota. Have your name appear in the "Happy Birthday" corner and get a Club card.

Happy New Year

"I do not know, I cannot see

What God's kind hand prepares for me.

Nor can my glance pierce through the haze

Which covers all my future ways;

But yet I know that o'er it all,

Rules He who notes the sparrow's fall.

"Farewell, Old Year, with goodness crowned,

A hand divine hath set thy bound.

Welcome the New Year, which shall bring

First blessings from my God and King.

The Old we leave without a tear,

The New we hail without a fear."

The Message of the New Year

I asked the New Year for some motto sweet,
Some rule of life with which to guide my feet,
I asked, and paused; he answered soft and low,
"God's will to know."

"Will knowledge, then, suffice, New Year?" I cried;
And ere the question into silence died,
The answer came, "Nay, but remember too,
'God's will to do.'"

Once more I asked, "Is there no more to tell?"
And once again the answer sweetly fell,
"Yes; this one thing, all other things above,
'God's will to love.'"

We Started Something

We started something. In Ohio, a special youth crusade was put under way late last summer. In Illinois, district meetings of Berean groups have been held. In Indiana, a newborn youth movement shows signs of life. Youth rallies have been held in other sections.

These things, however, are only sound and fury, signifying nothing—unless we who participate in them remember to use them for God and not for our personal enjoyment. As James M. Watkins, who edits this page every other week, has said of the Sunday school, any young people's church activity is intended to educate for a place in the church.

We've started—yes. But starting is not finishing, and youth is notorious for its lack of staying qualities. Quick enthusiasm can die as rapidly as it arose. Youth has the right to handle its own programs, to develop its own leaders, its own methods; but it always needs the guidance of experienced (not dictatorial) church sponsorship.

Too many Church-of-God ministers regard their Berean societies as a rather nice sort of thing, but not very important, after all. Naturally, this feeling is communicated to the Bereans themselves. Naturally, too, the Berean societies do become rather nice, but not important.

Give the young people church support; let them know there's a place in the religious sun for them. They'll respond, eventually, with better service to the church, with greater faith.—Arlen Marsh.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

OAK GROVE CHURCH OF GOD

Little Rock, Arkansas

We wish to thank evangelism very kindly for sending Sr. Verna C. Thayer here to teach the children. It has been a wonderful inspiration to the church here. Sr. Thayer had an enrollment of 38 pupils and regular attendance of 22 to 25 each day. This also brought about three more added to our Sunday school.

We surely want her back in the spring. We hope to double the enrollment next time.

The grownups enjoyed Sr. Thayer's lessons, too. May God's richest blessings rest upon her and all other true followers of Jesus.

Again we thank evangelism for this work.
Annie McEntire, Secy.

ASPERMONT, TEXAS

In the early days of December, after leaving Abilene, a stop was made at Anson, where several interested people were found, including some children of the late Bro. F. P. Hestand, one of our ministers of former days.

Short visits also were made to Old Glory, where we once had a good congregation, Rule, Rochester, and O'Brien. These places are all close together, northeast of Aspermont. There are only a few members left in this whole area of the multitudes of members reported to have been there years ago.

On Sunday, December 8, we began meetings at Aspermont. Meetings were held, however, about nine miles southwest of town at a little community called Johnson Chapel, near which our members live, because the church in town did not prove to be available. Due to rain Monday and Tuesday, which made the roads impassable, no more services were held until Thursday night. Then, because of opposition in the community, the services were transferred Friday night to the home of Bro. and Sr. M. D. Greer, near by.

In spite of the difficulties thrown in our path, we rejoiced to witness the good confession of Mrs. Z. A. Greer, daughter-in-law of Bro. M. D., a young mother whose obedience will mean much to the home and mean a united family in the faith. She was immersed December 14 in the pond on their own home place. We pray that she may ever walk faithfully until the Master comes. Sunday afternoon a final service and Communion were held at the Z. A. Greer home. Five preaching services were held in all, during the week.

On December 8, I was called to go back to Hawley, near Abilene, to hold the funeral of Mr. Ruppert Young. He and his family had been attending our services there and had become quite interested. We sorrow greatly that he was taken in the prime of his life. May God's comfort and strength rest upon his wife and son and other dear ones in the days to come.

As this is written, visits are being made to members who are living at Breckeuridge, Cisco, Rising Star, and Brownwood, and a return visit is planned to Mullin, December 22.

M. W. Lyon, Evangelist.

TEMPE, ARIZONA

The annual business meeting and election of officers of the Church of God of the Faith of Abraham at Tempe, Ariz., was held at the church on the evening of December 11, 1946.

The pastor's report showed an increased interest during the past year. The membership has grown considerably, due mostly to transfers from other churches. We rejoice, however, that there have been four baptisms, two of them as a result of the meetings held by Bro. James Watkins in November. The treasurer's report showed good financial condition.

As a result of the election, the church board consists of the following officers: elders: Carl Bunch (holder), Almus Dimmick (two years); deacons: Harold Burnett, Clarence Bunch, Lawrence Miller; deaconesses: Florence Howell, Mrs. Olaf Lewis; trustees: Loren Burnett (three years); Ray Saylor (holder), Joe Bunch (one year—to fill vacancy); secretary, Gerald L. Cooper; treasurer, Carl Bunch; Sunday school superintendent, Lozelle Burnett.

The Tempe Church sends holiday greetings to all the household of faith, especially to those who have been our guests in past years.
Mrs. Julia Burnett, Retiring Secy.

CLEVELAND, OHIO

The young people of the Golden Rule Church of God, Cleveland, Ohio, had complete charge of services on Thanksgiving morning. A huge horn of plenty, emblem of our thankfulness, decorated the center of the platform. Bros. Kenneth Davidson, Charles Jones, and Richard Lindstrom read selected parts that pertained to the gratifying feeling that such a day promoted. John Hearp directed the services.

Bro. Grover Gordon, the pastor, gave a sermonee centered around the poem "Thanks Be to God." Immediately following the reading of the poem, Janet Swanson sang "Thanks Be to God" as a solo.

Sr. Patricia Hess read the poem "Thanksgiving" by Peter Pan. The choir, composed of young people and accompanied by Sr. Emile Halls at the Organ, sang two anthems, "Prayer of Thanksgiving" and "We Gather Together."

Gleanings From the Field

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

Thank you, Bro. Claussen! A word of thanks is due Bro. Frederick Claussen, Oregon, Ill. Frequently, he serves as a trouble-shooter at the College—and he invariably refuses pay. Frequently, too, he assists in obtaining cuts for use in The Restitution Herald.

Sr. Fanny S. Knight, 354 E. McKinley Ave., Sunnyvale, Calif., though eighty-five years of age, writes that she enjoys reading The Restitution Herald, especially articles about the second coming of Christ, and that she continues strong in the faith of the Church of God. She was baptized by Bro. Almus Adams in 1912, then being a resident of Sunnyside, Wash.

We are very sorry to report that Bro. Gordon Shrode, formerly a student of Oregon Bible College, is a patient in Saint Mary's Hospital (Room 48), Minneapolis, Minn. We understand that Gordon has been afflicted in his back and legs, his legs now being partially paralyzed. His physician is confident, however, of eventual recovery. For that, too, we pray.

We are grieved to hear that Bro. Robert Townsend, Mesa, Ariz., son of Bro. and Sr. Arlie Townsend, Grand Rapids, Mich., was killed in a motorcycle accident, December 17. Our sympathy goes to his wife, four children, also to his parents and others bereaved.

Your next Herald will be the one published on January 7, 1947. None next week!

The Chicago Church of God enjoyed a Christmas program by the children, a motion picture, "A Saviour Is Born," and general get-together on Sunday evening, December 22. Promotional Director James M. Watkins and wife and the Paul C. Johnson family from Oregon, Ill., enjoyed the time with them.

The Editor's home was a joyful place on December 27 when all members of the family were "home for Christmas."

"Baptisms at Los Angeles: Barbara Gay Stantial, age 13, 2335 S. Highland Ave., L. A. 16 and Esther Sylvia Carlson, age 13, 435 S. Ave. 51, L. A. 42, on December 1. On December 2, Shirley Rae Olsen, age 12, 178 S. Rowland, Temple City, Calif."—J. W. McLain, Pastor.

Bro. C. E. Randall's copy for the "News and Prophecy Digest" page was delayed by the heavy Christmas mail, arriving too late to appear in this issue. Sorry. He will be back with us in the next issue—January 7, 1947.

Bro. Elmer Guekler, Rt. 4, Corpus Christi, Tex., reports that Bro. George Waters continues faithfully in his Sunday school work and preaching services.

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA

We wish to supplement our secretary's (Sr. Marion Richards') recent favorable report of progress of the work in Los Angeles, for we are happy to see the local body developing in the various activities to such an extent that it has never reached before. The membership is still widely scattered, but those who have ever worked in a large city know that such conditions cannot be avoided. In Bro. J. W. McLain's first year with us, he had many trials in the way of family sickness and car troubles, but the members were loyal and sympathetic, and he came through with the love and respect of all. While we sometimes fear that he suffers much from nervousness, as the result of the long strain, he continues to carry the heavy load and is getting results that are very encouraging.

In the last two months, six have been added to the body by baptism. They are Betty and Bonnie Smith, Lorene Lasher, Esther Carlson, Barbara Stantial, and Shirley Olsen. Besides these, there came from other churches Mrs. Nadeen Burke and Mrs. Fern Rainey from Omaha, Lyle and Martha Dean from Grand Rapids, and June Parkhurst from Minnesota. These, together with the four members of the Paul Overholser family from Springfield, Ohio, who came to us last year, have extended our membership list quite noticeably. Those who came from other churches were active workers before coming, so they are assuming their share of the responsibility here.

We now have a Sunday school class of younger adults, taught by Sr. Martha Dean. They have organized, with Bro. Forrest Long as president and Mr. John S. McGowan as secretary-treasurer. They are manifesting zeal for doing something that will help to build up and strengthen the work. This is an encouraging situation, and we wish them God's blessing.

Some of our isolated members, who have been permitted to attend our services recently, are: Howard, Thelma, and Jerry Moore of Mineral, W. B. Ward and family of Red Bluff, Esther Holmes of Santa Paula, Bernice Roberson and son Allen Ray of Visalia, Georgin and Wayne Thompson of Tulare, and Herman Laning and wife of Illinois.

Sr. Minnie Fletcher of Omaha, Neb., has been with us intermittently for the past year, and we trust she is now permanently located here.

In a recent visit with Sr. H. E. Shepherd of Montone Health Haven, we found her much improved after her severe attack of sickness in September, when her life was despaired of by her doctor and her sons. Only recently has she recovered sufficiently to be her cheerful self again. Sr. Marie Schreiber of San Bernardino is slowly regaining her strength after a hard siege of pneumonia. J. A. Armstrong is now home from the hospital, recovering from a serious operation.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Wolcott are the proud parents of a son, known as Wane William, born to them on November 27. Mrs. Wolcott was formerly Kathleen Knott. Mrs. Marguerite Burton, whose life was despaired of in October after two major operations, is slowly regaining strength at her home.

The Clines, John and Nona of Whittier, have been forced to abandon their monthly attendance at services, owing to his inability to see well enough to cope with traffic congestion. The mother, Sr. Elizabeth Frier, now in her ninety-sixth year, continues to retain an active interest in the church, also in world events.

We are very happy to be able to report this promising condition of the Lord's work in this wicked city, after so many years of struggle, sacrifice, and bitter disappointment at times. We do it for the purpose of encouraging others to be steadfast, knowing that the days are evil. "If God be for us, who can be against us?"
 Emma C. Railsback.

MOOREFIELD, NEBRASKA

All-day services will be conducted at Moorefield, Neb., on the last Sunday of 1946. Preaching service is at 11:00 a.m., dinner at noon, sing-song at 2:00 p.m. Bring a covered dish for dinner, and be on time for ten o'clock Sunday school. The sermon topic for the eleven o'clock service will be "The Three Words Lead in the Rock." Special song service morning and afternoon.

Preaching services are conducted at Jeffrey Queen every third Sunday afternoon, and at Wray, Colo., every second Sunday. The Wray church members are now holding their second Sunday services at the Schakelaar home, two miles north of Wray. They are planning on a basement church building for the present. Only a few members are there, and it will take time to raise the needed funds. Any financial help from other members will be appreciated.

NIAGARA FALLS, NEW YORK

This is a delayed report from Niagara Falls, N. Y., nevertheless, an important one, at least, to the Niagara Falls Church.

The Niagara Falls Church had a real treat when, on November 1, Bro. and Sr. G. J. Gordon stopped overnight on their way to Fonthill, Ont., and Bro. Gordon gave a very interesting and inspiring sermon. Some reported that new thoughts were given—thoughts they had never had before. Many members of the congregation expressed the hope that Bro. Gordon would come back again and give us another good sermon.

Bro. Gordon was kept rather busy while here and surely his own church board has no reason to think him idle while in this area. After church service Friday evening, he, Sr. Gordon, and myself, were invited to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Reed, where he was asked many questions on baptism and other topics. He willingly and efficiently, as all who know him will agree, explained and proved many points. At the close of the conversation, Mrs. Reed asked how they could arrange for baptism.

On Monday evening, Bro. Gordon returned from Fonthill and conducted the baptismal service, at which time both Mr. and Mrs. Reed were baptized. It was a very pretty, sacred, and impressive service, in which he gave advice to the candidates and a charge to the congregation, showing them their responsibility to these people who are as "babes in Christ." Many remarked that it was the nicest baptismal service they had ever seen; full of reverence, spiritual warmth, and an inspiration to all. As our church now has no pastor, Bro. Gordon was asked to act as our pastor for the evening and to extend to this brother and sister the right hand of fellowship and receive them into our church. Communion followed, and it certainly was an evening long to be remembered and truly a good time in the Lord, knowing that according to the Word, as was brought out by Bro. Gordon, there was double rejoicing in heaven.

Since that time, we have sold our church property and are planning and saving for the time when we can decide on a suitable location and build a new church.

We had our last dinner and get-together in our church on Tuesday, November 26, after which an interesting program was given, under the direction of our Sunday school superintendent, Sr. Faye Brown. During this part of the evening, a letter from Bro. and Sr. Gordon was read. Our last Sunday school in our church was held Sunday, December 1, 1946. At present, we are holding our Sunday school in the Emmanuel Baptist Church, from 12:30 to 1:30. The arrangements made are very satisfactory. We are, as a congregation, very thankful that we have a warm and comfortable place in which to worship God.

Elsie M. Moore, Secy.

The Church Today

By Grace Noll Crowell

*The Church should be a lighthouse in this storm;
A beacon flung against the blackened sky;
A white, unfailing, steadfast light that shines
For men to steer life by.*

*The Church should be a home throughout these days,
Where bread of life is served, and we may find
The Father waiting there to soothe our ills
And give us peace of mind.*

*The Church should be a school where we may learn
The holy truths these hours before the dawn,
That we may be equipped to meet the days
And pass the learned truths along.*

*The Church should be a church forevermore;
A sure foundation, and a true reward
To all whose feet are planted on the rock
Of Jesus Christ our Lord.*

Unknown Factor in Life and Success

God—Jehovah—is the great unknown factor in life and success. The expression "unknown factor" seems irreverent of Deity, but it is used so commonly in seeking lesser unknowns that we dare to use it in application to the greatest unknown, God.

From the moment that life first appeared until the present, God, more than any other factor, has been the Great Unknown. Like life itself, God is inexplicable, yet as surely existent! "In him we live, and move, and have our being." The Athenians inscribed an altar with the words, "To the unknown God." Paul, the Apostle, chancing to see that inscription, began his sermon to them by boldly asserting: "Whom therefore ye ignorantly worship, him declare I unto you"—and he preached about "God that made the world and all things therein."

God wins races. "The race is not to the swift, nor the battle to the strong." "Time and chance happeneth to them all"—the unseen and oftentimes unknown God revealing Himself in unexpected time and manner. Pharaoh's cavalry was faster than Israel's multitude and oxen, but by "time and chance" the Red Sea parted and Israel escaped. God won the race. He won another at Dunkirk in 1940 when 337,000 British soldiers escaped the marauding Nazis. God was faster than blitzkrieg!

God wins battles, too. A Syrian host encompassed Dothan with horses and chariots, seeking the life of Elisha. Elisha's servant, Gehazi, tremblingly lamented, "Alas my master, How shall we do?" Elisha prayed for God to open his eyes. The Lord opened Gehazi's eyes and, "Behold, the mountain was full of horses and chariots of fire round about Elisha." Elisha prayed again and the Syrian host was stricken with blindness. . . . Sennacherib and an Assyrian host similarly besieged Jerusalem. "It came to pass that night, that the angel of the Lord went out, and smote in the camp of the Assyrian an hundred and fourscore and five thousand." God was superior to Assyrian strategy.

Centuries earlier, in the days of Joshua, the "sun stood still, and the moon stayed, until the people had avenged themselves upon their enemies." Facing the giant, David, too, depended upon that Power unknown to Goliath, and, foreseeing certain victory, disdained and taunted the uncircumcised Philistine. Cried David: "All this assembly shall know that the Lord saveth not with sword and spear: for the battle is the Lord's, and he will give you into our hands." . . . "This is the word of the Lord unto Zerubbabel . . . Not by might, nor by power, but by my spirit, saith the Lord of hosts."

Negatively: Napoleon, forgetting God, was whipped in Russia with snowflake and northern storm. Hitler never solved the equation of Jew and Genesis 12:3! . . . Positively: bleeding feet, faith, and prayer in Valley Forge were rewarded with colonial victory and American independence. On his knees, an unpopular president contacted the unknown Power and electrified his nation with the Emancipation Proclamation.

Charles Vedantachari, Madras, India, once a guest in my father's home, told of being the prey of a cobra, and, after fervent prayer, of seeing the reptile uncoil and slink away. God is in India—and everywhere.

Howard Pearson, Tipp City, Ohio, told of his barn being enveloped in flames. A strong wind was blowing those flames directly toward his house. He prayed. Abruptly the wind changed, and his home was spared.

We knew a lad who, early in public school, began praying for help in his tests. His grades improved. He completed the sixth and seventh grades in one term and was admitted into college after only three years in high school.

A conference of Christian workers was wrestling with a problem—continuing several days in criticism and debate. Finally, an elderly man was asked to lead in prayer. In less than sixty seconds, solution came.

A student, clinging to his boat midstream in Rock River, Illinois, was rescued only a few feet above a dam. He is preaching, successfully, today. . . . Another lad broke through the ice, and, too tired any longer to struggle, let his body down and, to his surprise, "struck ground."

"Seek ye the Lord while he may be found, call ye upon him while he is near" (Isa. 55:6). "Seek the Lord, if haply [you] may feel after him, and find him, though he be not far from every one of us" (Acts 17:27). Unknown factor in life and success, God can be found! "He is!"

Bible Testimonies to the Birth of Christ

By R. H. Judd Colborne, Ontario

THE RECENT Christmas season caused us to turn again in our thoughts to the birth of Jesus the Christ. We wonder, however, if that great event, the greatest event in human history, is really the pivotal center of interest in the minds of those who celebrate Christmas.

The Scriptures speak often of joy and gladness, and very often do they commend those whose privilege it is to give. God Himself was the first and greatest of givers, for "he giveth to all life and breath and all things." Some can count their gifts by hundreds, and some, indeed, by thousands, but God alone can reach "all" in heaven and on earth. Last of all, He sent unto them His Son; and in that Son is every need supplied. Here, indeed, is expression of love toward a perishing world.

Who is this of whom the Scriptures say that He was "declared to be the Son of God with power"? The Greek word here translated "declared" means more than the bare fact of announcement of some current happening; for it carries the sense that the person spoken of was "marked out" beforehand; predetermined for the high position chosen for Him. It is the same word that occurs in Acts 17:26—"determined the times before appointed, and the bounds of their habitation." Verily, Jesus the Christ did not just happen in history. By common Christian consent, the first intimation of the great part He would take in the affairs of men is given in Genesis 3:15, when the promise was made that the Seed of the woman should bruise the Serpent's head. This, very generally, is accepted as an allusion to the virgin birth of Jesus the Christ. It is, however, as already stated, no more than an intimation. Like all Bible prophecies, precision of detail is added from time to time as events and time progress toward the goal. Further prophecies occur in Genesis 12:7 (referred to by Paul in Gal. 3:16), Deuteronomy 18:15; and 2 Samuel 7:12-29. Each of these, in contrast to heathen legends, assigns His origin to human genealogies and relationships, instead of to mythical deities and problematical human personalities. The prophecy of Moses could hardly be more specific in this respect. From the first of His pronouncements, as given in Genesis 3:15, it evidently has been the purpose of God to use man to redeem man, but it must be a Man of His own choice. No angel (Heb. 2:16) could have been the instrument, for then God's purpose in creating man, and pronouncing him as "very good," thus would have been shown to have been failure. The failure was in man, not in God.

"Declared to be the Son of God with power" (Romans 1:4). "He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest" (Luke 1:32). "The Lord himself shall give you a sign; Behold, a virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, and thou shalt call his name Immanuel" (Isaiah 7:14).

Much thoughtless comment concerning evolution is being renewed in the pulpits of today, accompanied with the underlying thought that man of his own inherent power is working out his own unknown destiny. If the study of creation in the world of living things makes one thing more sure than another, it is the fact that neither in the vegetable world nor the animal kingdom can progress be made apart from a power outside of, and greater than, itself. The whole of the vegetable and animal kingdoms not only has no objective purpose, but it makes no advance apart from contact with man. In many instances, it retrogrades from the generations previous. Man is no exception. Created in the image of God for the purpose of serving his Creator, he invariably has started on the downgrade whenever he ceased contact with his Creator. We cannot here go into the early history of this fact; but it is unquestionably true, that from the commencement the very purpose of God in Christ was that "he might bring us [back] to God" (see 1 Peter 3:18; Rev. 5:9) as the only hope of any source of power for the future progress of man.

Again we ask, Who was this Man, this foreordained, "marked-out," Personality? Not some pre-existing deity, as was the custom in heathen lands, but One, who, in vision, was already "despised and rejected" of man, that the power of God might be made manifest. Two Messianic verses in Scripture make this remarkably clear. The first is Isaiah 7:14: "Behold, a virgin [R.V. marg., "maiden"] shall conceive and bear a son, and thou shalt call his name Immanuel; which being interpreted is God with us" (Matt. 1:23). This verse has never been successfully denied as having reference to the Messiah; yet from the human standpoint, no person in Israel was more "despised and rejected" than the person, whoever it might be, who was born out of wedlock. Upon no other, except those condemned to death, was the law in Israel so terrible in its process. Note the following from Deuteronomy 23:2: "A bastard shall not enter into the assembly of Jehovah; even to the tenth generation [approximately three hundred years] shall none of his enter into the assembly of Jehovah" (R.V.): Here surely is stated in the plainest of language God's hatred of the sin of misusing the gift of life committed to man.

That Joseph was not the father of Jesus is proved by Joseph's intention to divorce his wife; for such she was in the eyes of the law. (See Matt. 1:20.) Let us seek further; for, if the story of the virgin birth of Jesus is not true, then a stain is laid upon Mary that never can be purged, for some other man must have been the father of her Son. Who, then, was this other man? Neither history, legend, nor suspicion has ever yet, throughout the centuries, given voice to his name. What, then, are the resulting issues if the virgin birth is untrue? They are beyond computation; for, if the One who is proclaimed as the Saviour of men (Matt. 1:21) is Himself the son of an unknown father, He already is condemned to be shut out from the assembly of the Lord (Jehovah), as conceived in sin, and born in sin. Deny the virgin birth, and the very foundations of Christianity collapse; and there is left in the hands of the unbeliever one of the most cogent weapons—ridicule and scandal—that this world has ever known and used.

Jeremiah 31:22 is not so generally quoted as having reference to the virgin birth; but, when closely studied, it will be found to be equally emphatic as Isaiah 7:14. It reads: "The LORD hath created a new thing in the earth, A woman shall compass [R.V., "encompass"] a man." If it means only that a woman shall become a prospective mother, and give birth to a son, there is nothing new in the fact. If it means what Leeser's Version and The Complete Bible (S. & G.) make it to mean, namely, merely a change of custom, that instead of the man seeking the wife, the woman will woo the husband, then again we say it is nothing new in the earth. These things have happened, still happen, and will happen again. Then what is the new thing to which the Lord points? Solomon said, "There is no new thing under the sun." Was Jehovah mistaken? Indeed no! Let us see. The Hebrew word translated "woman" in this verse is negebah (a female), the same as is used in Leviticus 12:5 and translated "a maid child." Thus the woman in this verse is a virgin. One serious part of this inquiry is that it leads to the conclusion that both the translators referred to, failing to understand the real import of the passage, have, perhaps unintentionally, left the path of the translator for that of interpreter, and have substituted the word "woo" and "seek for" in place of the word "encompass" which is the rendering of the Authorized Version, the Revised Version, the American Revised Version, and Young's Analytical Concordance. Further, Leeser's Translation gives the word "husband," where all other versions, that we know of, correctly give the word "man." The Hebrew word is geber, and is never translated husband in Scripture. Young's Concordance gives the meaning as "a (mighty) man."

Putting all these facts together, it becomes clear that, in the main, the sense of the verse is the same as that of Isaiah 7:14, namely, that a maiden, or virgin, shall bear a son, and that son shall be a mighty man in the earth. Surely the prophecy has been abundantly fulfilled, for no name on earth has equalled the name of Jesus the Christ. It is also in agreement with Isaiah 9:6, where the phrase "mighty God" in the common translation may be quite properly rendered "strength of God" according to Gesenius. Further, it agrees with Paul's well-known words, "Christ the power of God, and the wisdom of God" (1 Cor. 1:24).

This is not, perhaps, in line with the usual Christmas message; it is rather a study concerning foundations. But, when foundations are secure, there is no limit to the value of the structure which may be buikled upon it; and consequently, no limit to the joy resulting therefrom. The Scriptures tell us: "Him [Jesus] did God exalt with his right hand to be a Prince and a Saviour, to give repentance to Israel, and remission of sins" (Acts 5:31, R.V.). "Him who knew no sin, he [God] made to be sin on our behalf, that we might become the righteousness of God in him" (2 Cor. 5:21, R.V.).

Tell with that voice of thine,
Till others, with the glad new song,

NOTES RE VIRGIN BIRTH

It is sometimes said that while the story of the virgin birth is contained in the Gospels of Matthew and Luke it is not mentioned in the Gospels of Mark and John, which is evidence that the two latter were ignorant of the fact. If such a contention could be fully sustained, there would at least be some ground for caution. But the objectors have overlooked two remarkable features, namely: (1) that Matthew writes for the Jews, and therefore because of their strong Mosaic objection to anything irregular in marital relations, he would be exceedingly reluctant to disclose the story unless strongly convinced himself of its veracity; (2) that Luke being a physician (probably of note), he would be in a similar position from a professional point of view.

But there is reasonable evidence that both Mark and John make unmistakable reference to such an event. Mark starts out with the bold assertion: "The beginning of the gospel of Jesus Christ the Son of God." In the italicized words, there certainly is an allusion to a manner of entrance into life that is not normal; for had Mark been writing of the birth of any other person, no such expression would have been made.

Now let us consider John's Gospel. Coming to John 1:13, we have at least two remarkable facts. Quoting from the commonly received King James Version, we read: "Which were born, not of" (Please turn to page

"NOT SLOTHFUL IN BUSINESS"

By Harvey U. Krogh, Jr., Grand Rapids, Michigan

MANY PEOPLE make New Year's resolutions because it is easier to start a new practice or end an old habit at one of the divisions men have marked in the passage of time. It is for this reason that we are asking all who may not now be tithing their income to begin the first of this new year to contribute one tenth of their income to the Lord's work.

Tithing, as we are using the term, is a systematic and orderly way of contributing to the Lord's service our share of our material gain. If we do not keep some kind of an account of what we return to Him, we do not know how much we give. We are not saved by our material service, but our promised salvation should mean enough to us that we would be sure that we are rendering a reasonable service. Most Christians who call themselves "tithers" usually set aside more than the tenth, but they feel that less than the tenth is too small a proportion since the tenth was deemed proper by faithful Bible characters and was required of God in the case of Israel.

Tithing is not specifically commanded in the New Testament, but no doubt the command was implied when Paul cited the Temple service and the support of those who ministered therein and then said, "Even so hath the Lord ordained that they which preach the gospel should live of the gospel" (1 Cor. 9:14). It is not for himself that a minister would teach tithing, but for the work of the Lord and for the blessing that will come to those who are as diligent in the Lord's work as they are in any other business that involves the exchange of money.

Some "tithers" use a small box or envelope in which they place the tenth of the money they receive and use from that for church contributions. Others find it more practical to keep their own books. If you cannot find an account book with four columns, it is not difficult to put a few lines in almost any account book. If you are not now keeping account of how much you contribute to the Lord's service, begin this new year and give at least a tenth.

REGATHERING OF ISRAEL

By Vivian Kirkpatrick, Brockton, Montana

"I will cause the captivity of Judah and the captivity of Israel to return, and will build them, as at the first."

THE PROPHET JEREMIAH lived in a critical time in his nation's history. To the east of Judah, there was arising a nation of power, one which Judah recognized as threatening her national existence. Already she had seen another power to the northeast arise and devour her sister, Israel, and still later had seen that great nation fall under the mighty armies now at her doors.

It was when Babylon was at the very gates of Jerusalem that King Zedekiah sent Pashur to Jeremiah (see 21:1-14) to determine what might be the outcome. The time for leading Israel's armies was ended, however. God could not lead a heathen people who were once called by His name. The answer was plain: Israel was to go into captivity; no resistance should be made; the kingly line was threatened if it did not perform its duty.

The results of this type of prophecy on Jeremiah were severe—imprisonment, the dungeon, threats of death from all parties. A traitor he seemed to the ordinary citizens of his day—a man who dared to place God and His teachings above all else—for he preached submission to a foreign power, advised surrender rather than an "all-out" fight for hearth and home.

He could see further, with the help of God, than all the short-sighted politicians of his day, and could see, as they could not, the rejection of the Almighty for those things of the moment.

A nation that forgets God cannot understand, always, the punishments that come to its people for their disobedience. Led by her kings, Israel had forgotten her God not many years before: forgotten Him to such an extent that the finding of the book of the law brought something new to the king and to the people.

Considering the fact that more than fifty per cent of the youth of our nation have never been inside the doors of a church, one wonders how long it will be until, like Israel, we are brought, through suffering, to an understanding of how wicked we are as a nation, and how superficial is the religion we have today—a thing of the lips and not of the heart.

Continuing our reading in Jeremiah, we cannot overlook another emphasized teaching: that of the rainbow after the cloud. Throughout his uncompromising charges of sin, with its ultimate punishment through captivity, was the growing thread of the future—much nearer fulfillment now. That promise of a return to the land, in the words of the text (Jer. 33:7) quoted at the head of this article, and others, carried a hope that fell upon deaf ears. All interest was upon the present, none on the future. How typically human! (Please turn to page 10)

An Exposition of John 17:5

By M. Joblin

Selected by Emma C. Railsback, Los Angeles, California

SEVERAL correspondents in Southern Ohio call for an exposition of John 17:5—difficult to many, and a stumbling block to some. It reads as follows: "Now, O Father, glorify thou me with thine own self, with the glory which I had with thee before the world."

1. We ask, Who offered this prayer? It was Jesus of Nazareth, who was born of Mary at Bethlehem, and named of the angel (Luke 1:31), and who increased in stature, in wisdom and favor with God and man, ate, drank, slept, wept, rejoiced, suffered, died, rose, and ascended. This is the only Jesus we know anything about. Do our correspondents know of any other?

2. It must be remembered from the outset that this same Jesus was called the Son of God because "the power of the Highest" overshadowed a virgin—no man being His father; and that there is absolutely no divine authority for separating the Son of God from the Jesus born of Mary, and thus making two persons, one human, and the other divine. And we hold it to be downright sinful to teach two natures in one Jesus, when we are distinctly taught in Hebrews 2:17 that He was "made in all things like unto his brethren"; His brethren have but one nature.

3. It must be remembered that the man Christ Jesus, made of a woman in fulfillment of promises to Abraham and David, is always mentioned, and no pre-existent Son is ever promised or mentioned.

4. ALL the offices and work of Christ are attributed to the Son made of a woman—nothing to the alleged pre-existent Son. It is He who had blood to shed, and shed it, that is set forth as the propitiation for our sins, and He who was tempted in all points as we are, that has become our great High Priest, and not a pre-existent Son of God; and to the Son of Man the Kingdom is to be given—not to a pre-existent Son of God. If in answer to the question why this is so we are told that it is a mystery, we append the word "Babylon."

5. The genealogy of Christ Jesus is traced to Abraham by Matthew, and to Adam and God by Luke; but no reference is made to a pre-existence. It is this very Son of Mary who says He had glory with the Father, before the world. We believe what Jesus said because He said it; but we do not take a meaning out of His words which is out of harmony with Moses, the prophets, and psalms He directed us to search, and who He said wrote of Him. They never wrote of His pre-existence. In a word, we understand His words in harmony with the immediate context and with revealed truth as a whole, and not as if this was the only passage in all the book which relates to Christ's origin.

For instance, this chapter records these words of Jesus: "I have finished the work thou gavest me to do." Literally this was not true; the bitterest cup was yet to be drunk. He said, "They have kept thy word," and "I am glorified in them"; yet in a few hours, Judas betrayed Him, Peter denied even His acquaintance with oaths and curses, and all forsook Him and fled. Again He said, "The glory which thou gavest me, I have given them." Indeed! glorified, were they, with Him? And yet a little while witnesses His agony in the garden, the indignities heaped upon Him by the rabble, and the mockery of the authorities, and the ignominious death of the cross.

Is this the glory the Father had given Him? and did the disciples run away from the glory when they forsook Him and fled? Nay, rather let us take the apostolic explanation in 2 Thessalonians 1:10 that He is coming again to be glorified in His saints! and also that of 1 Peter 1:10, where He shows that the glory follows the sufferings! At this point, we may be asked, "Then are not the words of Jesus misleading? and the Scriptures conflicting?" By no means! He takes for granted His disciples believe the promises relating to the woman's seed and Abraham's and David's; takes it for granted that those who have listened to His gracious message would be content to know they had found Him of whom Moses and the prophets did write, and knew that the glory of the kingdom could not precede the Kingdom itself, and therefore leave the heathen who supposed that man possessed two natures, to speculate about pre-existence. Jesus' words would only mislead those who were alienated from the life of God through ignorance. He was speaking to the little flock to whom it was the Father's purpose to give the Kingdom. Might it not be that this was the very way in which He had given them the glory the Father had given Him—given the promise of it, by revealing to them that it was the Father's good pleasure to give it to them, and that they should occupy seats at His table, in His Kingdom? The glory was certainly related to, and connected with the long-promised, but certain-to-come Kingdom. This was where their hopes centered, or else Peter's exclamation and question, "Behold! we have left all and followed thee, what shall we have, therefore?" have no point.

6. John 17:5 reveals what a oneness of mind and purpose existed between Christ and His Father—how unlimited His confidence, how vivid His hope, how ardent His expectations, and how His whole being merged into the loving purpose of God. To Him, the whole outlying future with its attendant glories were an accomplished fact, so rapt in transport of meditation was He. And, oh, what transcendent assurance, and comfort, and edification it is to those in Christ to mark how He identifies Himself with both God and those who had been given Him. If the inverted tenses referred to above be borne in mind in reviewing this subject, it will be clear that Jesus anticipates the glory to be when He comes again, when He spoke of the glory He had given them. 1 Peter 5:10 says they had been called unto His eternal glory by Christ Jesus. This makes it plain.

7. In what sense, then, did Jesus have glory with the Father before the world? Does it mean that Jesus was personally there, or that He had glory in the Father's purpose? Jesus was not personally there. There was no Jesus then; the person afterward so named was promised in the very infancy of the race, and the fleshly mind says He pre-existed; but as the Spirit nowhere says so, this expression had to be coined so that both the idea and the word are of the flesh. But when the Spirit has plainly taught us how to speak of the Promised One before He was manifested, and met set that aside and employ the terms which agree with their own notions, it tells a sad tale. First Peter 1:20, 21 speaks volumes of condemnation of that theory when it says to the strangers in Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia respecting the Christ of God: "Who verily was foreordained before the foundation of the world, but was manifest in these last times for you who do by him believe in God, that raised him up from the dead, and gave him glory; that your faith and hope might be in God."

8. God in sundry times and divers manners spoke in times past to His people concerning the coming One, but never a syllable of a then-existing One. David sang exultingly, and Isaiah joyously, and even the Weeping Prophet tuned his lyre and sang sweetly of the Branch in whose days Judah shall be saved and Israel dwell safely; and we challenge criticism when we say that for more than four thousand years God's people knew nothing of a pre-existent Messiah, but always spoke of Him as Abraham's or David's seed, or David. It was not long, however, after the ascension of our Lord, before the coming of the Anointed in flesh was denied. How was this heresy met by the Spirit? It was promptly stamped as a fleshly conception by saying it was deceptive and anti-Christian. (2 John 7.)

9. The expression "with thee" appears to favor the popular view, at first, and, indeed, if there were not many other divine statements that cannot be harmonized with this read literally, it would teach it. For instance, he that had the power of death could be destroyed only by one who could die. (See Heb. 2:4.) If Jesus as a Son of God pre-existed in heaven, He was possessed of divine nature of existence, because mortals cannot see God and live; even angels are not subject to death. The immortal Jesus, then, must be changed to mortal, or He cannot die. And, when changed to mortal, would He not be on the same plane of existence as we hold the Son of Mary to have been, being made of a woman? If the pre-existent Son was not changed to a mortal state of existence, He did not die for our sins according to the Scriptures, was not buried, was not raised again for our justification, was not fitted by trial to become our great sympathizing High Priest; and whoever He is, it is not He who speaks from heaven to say to us, "I am he that liveth and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore, amen, and have the keys of hades and of death." No; it is not He. But is it supposable that He became mortal when angels are not subject to death? If so, then, if we put on immortality, we may be liable to put it off again. These, however, are the emergencies of a false theory.

We understand the words "with thee" as we do where it says that one day "with the Lord, is as a thousand years"; that is, in His purposes, plans, and arrangements. Jesus asked to be glorified with the glory determined upon by the Father before the foundation of the world. This is in harmony with all revealed truth on the subject. We read in John 7:39 that the Holy Spirit was not yet given, because Jesus was not yet glorified. As the Holy Spirit was given shortly after His ascension to the Father, He must have been glorified then, insofar as perfection of nature was concerned, and exaltation to the right hand of the Majesty in the heavens; but only as an expectant of the Kingdom and Glory. He was made perfect through sufferings; the glory was not possible before perfection. To say that He was once perfect, and then become imperfect; and then AGAIN perfected, is simply religious nonsense, that no unbiased and sensible person can respect. To say that He was half perfect and half imperfect is monstrous, and entirely gratuitous, and only applicable to a nondescript of human origin, and not to the Son of God made of a woman, lower than the angels, for the suffering of death. Believers in pre-existence believe that only a part of the Christ was made of a woman; and, in order to believe that much, they have to construct an argument and then believe in it, because they find nothing that exactly suits them in the Book.

10. John 17:5, alone, cannot establish the doctrine of pre-existence, because, read literally, it is subversive of revealed truth in scores, if not hundreds of other scriptures. God never requires us to believe what runs counter to common sense, so far as we know. People who find no difficulty in understanding the washing of robes and making them white in the blood of the Lamb, when real garments are not meant, and not a drop of real blood comes in contact with them; and when the Lamb of God is said to have been SLAIN from the foundation of the world, when they know it was not so, they pass on as if there was nothing the matter, and yet when they read of the glory that was to follow in the same way they stumble clear over it. In the purpose of God, He was slain before the foundation of the world, not really. In the purpose of God who sees the end from the beginning, Jesus had glory with the Father, not really. The glory follows the suffering; the glory was set before Him as an inducement to suffer. Pre-existence involves the idea that Jesus, personally, had glory with the Father, and voluntarily laid it aside, or was deprived of it, and is to be everlastingly deprived of it unless He suffer. What had He done to deserve this treatment, seeing He knew no sin?

Again, did the apostles and brethren, who were chosen in Christ before the foundation of the world, pre-exist? This is too ridiculous to entertain for a moment, of course, and so we ask. For what purpose were they chosen in Him—was it not to be saved by HIS LIFE (which was obtained at the resurrection) in order to share the inheritance, together with the honor, power, and glory attached to it? This Kingdom of Glory is still a matter of promise, although SAID to have been prepared from the foundation of the world; it was prepared in Jehovah's purpose.

11. The pre-existent theory implies that God's immortal, pre-existent spirit Son, perfectly holy and incapable of sin, is set before us, who are born in sin, of the will of the flesh, with a warped, twisted, and biased organism, without any supernatural power, as an example. Let our correspondents read that He was tempted in all points like as we are, yet without sin, and is therefore able to succor us, and they will have the proper antidote. This may cause some to squirm, but we regard this a proper statement of the case: If Jesus pre-existed, He was divine in nature, and as GOD cannot be tempted, neither could He, and therefore not be able to succor us, because not touched with the feelings of our infirmities. As He is thus touched, He was not divine in nature, but in mind, character, disposition.

12. Paul, in 1 Corinthians 15:45, informed us that the first man Adam was made a living soul; the last Adam a quickening spirit. The word "Adam" means "earthly"—of the earth. The name gives His origin. (See Gen. 2:7.) The Christ who died for us is also called Adam; has the meaning been changed? Does it mean earthly whoever owns it? We mean, does it not mean that His foundation was in the dust? It certainly does if He was made of a woman, for the woman was dust. Thus it is seen that the Spirit has forestalled the popular delusion of pre-existence. He is called the last Adam; not that no other earthly ones were to come after Him, but He was the last of a series, the first of which was the first man.

It says, "The last Adam was a quickening spirit." So He was; but the same Apostle informed us in Romans 8:11 that His quickening powers were to be exerted in the future. And in the nature of things, He could not be a quickening spirit before He Himself was quickened. All can see for themselves when He became a quickening spirit by reading 1 Peter 3:18, where it says Christ was put to death in "flesh (not in spirit), but quickened (made alive) by the Spirit." That constituted Him a quickening Spirit. And how beautifully this is set before us in the immediate context: "There is a natural body, and there is a spiritual body"! Now let the Apostle tell us which was first, the natural or spiritual body, and that should end the controversy with the candid. First Corinthians 15:46 reads, "Howbeit that was not first which is spiritual, but that which is natural; and afterward that which is spiritual." Any theory which to sustain itself puts the spiritual before the natural, as does the pre-existence theory, is not the truth, because, as in Isaiah's day, the truth is turned upside down.

Lastly, the Eternal God placed man under a law, the penalty of which was death. Man violated that law, and the penalty was pronounced. Do our readers realize that that law has never been abrogated—is in as full force today as ever it was—and that God has never instituted any means by which its penalty could be evaded. We believe this to be the veritable truth of God whether they realize it or not. Jehovah's remedial scheme does not prevent men from dying, but it ransoms them from the powers of death. But how can this be done without dishonor to the law? It could not be done till one of the disobedient race fulfilled it by perfect obedience, and died without any sin of his own; such an one could, without dishonor to God's law, be raised to life again, and thus break the power of death. But it must be one made like his brethren in all things—tried in all points as they were, but without sin. Oh, thank God, such an One has been found, and is alive again—alive forevermore, and has the keys of death and hades, because He has been elevated to divine nature, and made the object of faith, so that all believing into Him may be saved by HIS LIFE; there is redemption in Him.

And now in conclusion, we make one more reference to John 17:5. Who is it that prays, "O, Father, glorify thou me, with thine own self with the glory I had with thee before the world"? It was Jesus of Nazareth. And our understanding of it is this, after much comparison of Scripture with Scripture: as if He had said, "Impart to me Thine ever-living glorious nature, that I may be eligible to all that Moses and the prophets have disclosed of Thy eternal purpose toward Me." (Eph. 3:11.)

Presuming to have found the key to this sublime subject, we see the Seed of the woman who grows in favor with God and man, and received the Father's approval at His baptism, and the Spirit without measure, on the eve of His crucifixion, able to say He had done the will of Him who sent Him, and pleased not Himself (Rom. 15:3), determined to stand the final test on the morrow, and in perfect confidence asking the Father for the rewards of obedience offered Him, and planned for Him before the world. Yes, here stands the sinless One on whom the destiny of the race hung, almost an overcomer, and about to become the beginning of the new creation, the foundation of the holy temple to be erected for Deity to dwell in; and on the night before the dreadful ordeal in vivid expectation of the glory to follow. Blessed Jesus, how we long to see Thee and cast our crown at Thy feet.

Our parting word to our correspondents is, we have done what we could under existing circumstances to harmonize the Scriptures, i.e., show their harmony, and we hope soon to hear that one and all have rejected a theory which practically teaches that God provided a Saviour WHO COULD NOT SIN, and then exalted Him with the oil of gladness above His fellows because He DID NOT SIN, and then exalted Him with the oil of gladness above His fellows because He DID NOT SIN, which is most derogatory to the character of God.

If it be replied to this, that it was the pre-existent Christ that enabled Jesus to live without sin, we say them nay, again. It was through the Eternal Spirit's sustaining power that He offered Himself without spot to God, and not His pre-existent self. (See Heb. 9:14.)

News and Prophecy Digest

By C. E. Randall (Fonthill, Ontario)

APPEAL FOR MERCY. The first Sunday in December, the Evangelical churches in Germany appealed to the 30,000,000 Protestant worshippers in the United States to petition the government to release as a Christmas gift the thousands of German prisoners held as slave laborers. The mercy plea stated: "Nineteen months after the end of international conflict, millions of men of the defeated armies are still held in the slavery of forced labor. Today, Russia holds between 3,000,000 and 4,000,000 German prisoners, Great Britain, 385,000, France 684,000, Belgium, Holland and Norway 10,000."

There are several angles to this question of releasing German prisoners, some of which even the Germans should not forget. One that is foremost is the colossal destruction of life and property which they deliberately destroyed. It is only right that they should be required to repair some of this material damage. Lives taken and homes broken cannot be restored. At the best, they will be able only in a very small way to make restitution. Sorrow for defeat seems more prevalent than sorrow for offense. Had the German churches stood up for justice when the Jews were being persecuted, tormented, slain, and deprived of all their political, religious, civil, and personal rights, they would not now be appealing for mercy for their fellow countrymen. Indeed, the way of the transgressor is hard.

FREE TRANSPORTATION. Prior to the fall elections, attention was called to the question of free transportation being given to the pupils of parochial schools, by various states and local governments, which was submitted to the voters. In Wisconsin, the matter was a state issue, and was defeated at the polls by a margin of 107,000. Writing to the editor of "The Christian Century," Charles Bell Jr., chairman of the Wisconsin Committee for Religious Liberty stated: "There is a great danger, in our opinion, that this may be dismissed by the Protestants of America as a local issue of no particular significance beyond the borders of Wisconsin. We would like to call it to the attention of church leaders within the Protestant fellowship that in 22 states some kind of public aid is being furnished to the parochial schools."

Protestants must be alert, or they will be paying the costs of transportation of Roman Catholic children to church schools. If any religious group wishes to operate a separate school, that is its perfect right. To do this at the expense of the public, who is not interested, is something different. Church and state should be entirely separate.

CONFIRMATION. The Catholic Church has been like the Anglican in respect to confirmation—it has restricted this service to the office of the Bishops. At a recent meeting of the Sacred Congregation of the Sacraments in Rome, a new rule was adopted which permits priests in cases of emergency to perform this service. The Sacred Congregation expressed itself as follows: "The Sacrament of Confirmation is not absolutely essential to salvation, but is a most wonderful means of fortifying the Christian soul in the daily fight against temptation." It further stated in the decree "that after January 1, priests may minister confirmation to those in danger of death from serious illness, lest the sacrament might be lacking to so many young adults in danger of death."

Without discussing the right and wrong of certain formal rites practiced by conformist churches, it is apparent that there is a "fortifying" element in outward forms that are wanting in the evangelical bodies. Counting of beads, reciting the rosary, clinging to a crucifix, do have, because of the teachings respecting them, soothing and comforting effects. The same is true with the prayer wheel used by the Lamaists in Central Asia, and the various images used in idolatrous worship. In Christ, however, there is a greater "fortifying" power than in rites and images.

SUN OF PEACE. As he was boarding the Queen Elizabeth to sail for home, Foreign Minister Bevin expressed his feeling over the results of the first UN meeting in New York. He said: "The sun of peace is rising; may 1947 see it come out in all its fullness."

Foreign Minister Molotov also felt happy over the results. Said he: "At all events, the decision taken by the General Assembly yesterday regarding the general reduction of armaments is of paramount importance to all people, both great and small."

These two great leaders summed up their appreciation of the first real gains made toward world disarmament by the UN. The world is calling for peace! The demand for world disarmament is taking on impetus. Will it come? Will nations cast aside their heavy weapons of war for the security of peace? It is a debatable question. There is one prophecy that would seem to indicate that nations will give up heavy armaments, for when the federated nations from the North come against Jerusalem, all will be riding on horses. "I will bring thee forth, and all thine army, horses and horsemen, all of them clothed with all sorts of armour, even a great company with bucklers and shields, all of them handling swords." Cavalry warfare as pictured by the prophets might indicate a scrapping of armaments for the sake of peace prior to the final conflict, which would necessitate the use of primitive methods in the sudden determination to go "against the land of unwallled villages."

MUST MAKE CHOICE. One of the great decisions which the 22nd World Zionist Congress must make at their sessions at Basel is what will their attitude be on the partitioning of Palestine, which was presented by the Anglo-American Committee on Palestine as a solution to the vexing question of what to do with the thousands of displaced Jews. It has been fifty years since the first Congress was held, and over which Theodor Herzl presided. At that time he predicted that fifty years later there would be a Jewish state.

David Ben-Gurion, chairman of the Jewish Agency, favors the partition plan as the best solution for the present. Dr. Abba Hillel Silver, Cleveland, terms the Agency's approval of the plan a "tactical blunder." These two men are the contenders for the leadership of the Congress. Chaim Weizmann, present leader, desires to turn over his work to a younger man.

One Jewish writer in Palestine has suggested that unless there was a solution to the Jewish problem "there would be no refuge for the wanderer in 1947." The decision of the Congress of Zionists on this grave issue will be awaited with eagerness.

SEVENTY WEEKS. The prophecies of Daniel are among the greatest in all the Scriptures. Well did Edward Denny term this account in Daniel the "backbone of prophecy." This great prophecy concerns Daniel's people and their city—the city of Jerusalem. There are three time periods in this prophecy. 1) From the commandment to restore to the building of the walls of Jerusalem. 2) From the building of the walls unto the cutting off of Messiah. These two periods comprise 69 of the seventy sevens of years. There has been a literal fulfillment up to the last week. 3) The seventieth or last week sees the consummation of all that is described in this prophecy. It touches on the coming of the false prince, and the setting up of the "overspreading of abominations" with the consummation coming with the ushering in of "everlasting righteousness."

Says Dr. Ironside in one of his lectures on Daniel: "It is plain then . . . that this last week of the seventy has not yet been fulfilled, for if it had been the Jews would now be in their land, a holy, happy people, their temple anointed for divine service, their transgressions finished, and the years of their mourning ended. But God only counts time with the Israelites while they are owned as His people in the land of Palestine. All the years of their subjection to Gentile rule are looked upon as wasted time. In this present age of their rejection, God is taking out from among the Gentiles a people to the name of the Lord Jesus—the church which will be His body and His bride for all eternity."

TEACHERS. At the Oak Tree School in New Jersey, permission has been granted teachers the right to smoke in the school's boiler room. The Board of Education agreed that "smoking is generally accepted today." It would be a good thing if all smoking could be confined to boiler rooms where there are smokestacks to carry off the smoke.

BIBLE TESTIMONIES TO THE BIRTH OF CHRIST

blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God." Reference to the margin reveals that "blood" should be stated in the plural, as it is in the Greek; for Christ was not born of "bloods," namely, of both parents, but of one only. We are informed that "some early writers used the expression the double blood, believing that the mingling of the blood of both parents was necessary for natural birth." The Authorized Version reading makes verse 13 to have reference to those who believe on his name. There are, however, strong reasons for believing that the verse should read: "Who was born, not of bloods . . ."; namely, the One on whom they believed was so born. This rendering of the verse is preferred by Griesbach, Zahn, Justin Martyr, Tertullian, and the Codex Veronicus, and is called to attention by the Emphatic Diaglott. Thus rendered, John made very definite reference to the virgin birth. It is further interesting to note that the negative aspect is repeated four times in the verse, as though John desired to dispel all doubt on the matter.

Yet another interesting fact is that the word for man in verse 13 is different from that of verse 9, but is the same as in 1 Corinthians 7:10, Ephesians 5:24, 25, and 1 Timothy 3:2. The word in verse 9 is anthropos, "a man, a human being." That of verse 13 is aner, "a man, a husband." The use of these two differentiating Greek words for man in the same chapter, is tantamount to specific denial by John that Jesus Christ was born of a human father. (See Weymouth.)

With reference to claims made that other religions had (supposedly) virgin births, and that Christianity has probably borrowed from them, we assert that no such parallel exists. The claim has been made that Krishna was born of a chaste virgin named Devaki. What are the facts? Krishna was the eighth son of his mother. Dr. Tisdale, noted orientalist, is authority for the information. Buddha is next brought forward as an instance of virgin birth. Again we quote from Dr. Tisdale: "The writings which deal with the miraculous incarnation of Buddha are of late date, and belong to several hundred years after the introduction of Christianity." That surely disposes of the false claims made that Christianity borrowed from Buddhism. Further, the same authority, Dr. Tisdale, says: "As the mother of Buddha was married at the latest when about twelve years of age, and had (when Buddha was born) been living with her husband some 33 years, it is hardly necessary to consider the question of Buddha's virgin birth any longer."

We call attention to just one more instance, namely, that of the Egyptian god Horus. Horus, born of Isis, is quite frequently quoted with the objective of discrediting Christianity. Osiris and Isis were brother and sister; and, according to ancient Egyptian practice, they were also husband and wife. Osiris was put to death, and his members scattered. When the parts became united he became united to Isis, and Horus was born. So it is after that manner that the heathen legends of virgin births have come to be.

The present writer believes in the virgin birth of Jesus the Christ. All the evangelists tell the story simply, without dissimulation. As previously called attention to, such precise details of the language they employed could not have been the result of collusion, for these often hang upon the special use of a particular Greek term. These are of such a nature that nothing but inspiration can account for the phenomena.

Reader, you and I are thirsting for knowledge; for the Scriptures enjoin us that "the heart of the prudent getteth knowledge: and the ear of the wise seeketh knowledge" (Prov. 18:15). In other words, the circle of light grows wider, but the surrounding darkness grows behind it in still larger circle and beckons the beholder on to still further search. In answer to this ever-present problem, the Scriptures again assure us that the purpose of eternal life is "that [in order that] they might know thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent" (John 17:3).

Thus a new mode of existence requires a new foundation. The Scriptures bear testimony that a new mode of existence is predicted for the sons of God in Christ Jesus, and that it has been provided for in the prophecy and the promise contained in Jeremiah 31:22. The Scriptures also inform us that "other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ" (1 Cor. 3:11).

Now just a word to those who lean upon "science" as they lean upon a staff. Most objections to the Bible story of the virgin birth of Jesus the Christ are founded on the supposition that virgin birth is a "scientific impossibility."

Speaking for himself, the writer believes in the virgin birth of Jesus the Christ as an absolute necessity. He believes that it was long predicted, a fact which is in itself miraculous. He also believes the event itself was miraculous and unique in history. There have been, on the other hand, men of learning such as Professor Huxley and Professor Romanes who affirm that so far as "science" is concerned parthenogenesis is not impossible. The latter named Professor says, "Even if a virgin has ever conceived and borne a son, and if such a fact in the human species has been unique, it would not betoken any breach of physiological continuity." It would thus appear that the Almighty had brought about the true virgin birth, not only for the purpose to which we already have called attention, but to show by contrast the utter falseness of the claims of heathen mythology, and of those who seek to oppose His word.

THE PENNY YE MEANT TO G'IE

There's a funny tale of a stingy man,
 Who was none too good, though he might have been worse;
 Who went to church on a Sunday night,
 And carried along his well-filled purse.
 When the sexton came with his begging plate,
 The church was but dim with the candle's light;
 The stingy man fumbled all through his purse,
 And chose a coin by touch, not by sight.
 It's an odd thing now that guineas should be
 So like unto pennies in shape and size.
 "I'll give a penny," the stingy man said;
 "The poor must not gifts of pennies despise."
 The penny fell down with a clatter and ring;
 And back in his seat leaned the stingy man.
 "The world is so full of the poor," he thought,
 "I can't help them all—I give what I can."
 Ha, Ha! how the sexton smiled, to be sure,
 To see the gold guinea fall in his plate;
 Ha, Ha! How the stingy man's heart was wrung,
 Perceiving his blunder, but just too late!
 "No matter," he said, "in the Lord's account
 That guinea of gold is set down to me.
 They lend to Him who give to the poor;
 It will not so bad an investment be."
 "Na, na, Mon," the chuckling sexton cried out;
 "The Lord is no cheater—He kens thee well;
 He knew it was only by accident
 That out of thy fingers the guinea fell.
 "He keeps an account no doubt for the pair;
 But in that account He'll set down to thee
 Na mair o' that golden guinea, me mon,
 Than the one bare penny ye meant to gie!"
 There's a comfort, too, in the little tale—
 A serious side as well as a joke;
 A comfort for all the generous poor
 In the comical words the sexton spoke.
 A comfort to think that the good Lord knows
 How generous we really desire to be,
 And will give us credit in His account
 For all the pennies we long to "gie."

REGATHERING OF ISRAEL

Even today, these promises are lightly read, and as lightly rejected, though we daily read and hear of those things coming to pass which should cause our interests to be centered on such teachings as never before.

Watch Israel; watch the attempts at world peace; read Jesus and the prophets' words as never before, if you would keep abreast of developments and be ready for the world-shaking events which soon are coming, that you be not caught napping.

BOOK PARADISE

By Arlen Marsh

A new edition of the history-making one-volume Columbia Encyclopedia (Columbia University Press, Morningside Heights, New York 27; $19.50) has just become available.

The book is "history-making," since it is the only worth-while one-volume encyclopedia ever produced in the English tongue. It is as large as a Merriam-Webster unabridged dictionary; yet it is bound sufficiently well to endure really hard use for years.

Practically every subject under the sun is given treatment. Inevitably, articles are brief; but this in itself is a distinct advantage for the average reader, who is less interested in research detail than in outstanding basic facts when he turns to a book of general information.

The supplement is definitely postwar, with a host of references to current events and new discoveries. The balance of the text is that of the older editions. Since the encyclopedia was introduced in the middle 1930's, even the older editions are reasonably up-to-date, certainly far more so than the majority of encyclopedias now on the market.

Thumb-indexing makes the contents of the book readily available. There is no comprehensive indexing such as is found, for example, in the Britannica; but for one-volume work, comprehensive indexing seems unnecessary. Cross-references are found in the text where they are required.

Although it is not primarily intended for school use the book should be of particular value in homes with children. The very absence of detail makes it easier for school researches to be accomplished than is the case with the huge multi-volume encyclopedias.

The book is the product of one of the best-known university presses, which has specialized in producing authoritative materials on a wide variety of subjects. Authenticity of the text, therefore, is assured; frequently, indeed, the text is more apt to be authentic than that of the larger sets.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN HARPER

The Omaha Church of God was saddened by the death of Bro. Frank Harper of Avery, Nebr., on December 4, after an illness of about one week.

Benjamin Franklin Harper was born near Mediapolis, Iowa, October 19, 1867, and died December 4, 1946. His parents were Hugh Coleman and Sarah Stahl Harper. He grew to manhood near his birthplace, and as a young man came to Omaha, where in 1895 he was united in marriage to Leona Andrews. After her death in 1931, he was married to Freda Harper, August 1, 1932. In 1912, he moved to the community in which he resided at the time of his death, and lived there continuously with the exception of short periods in Colorado and California, and at Herman and Blair, Nebr.

He was baptized in the saving name of Jesus Christ by Bro. Almus Adams in 1915, and remained a faithful member of the Church of God of the Abrahamic Faith.

He is survived by his wife Freda; a son Albert, and one grandson, Jack Harper, both of Omaha; and one brother, William Ellis Harper of Burlington, Iowa.

Funeral services were conducted at the Brewster-Korisko Mortuary in South Omaha, and burial was in West Lawn Cemetery.

Robert O. Hardesty.

ROBERT HAROLD TOWNSEND

Robert Townsend was born in Hastings, Mich., March 17, 1912, and died as a result of a motorcycle accident at Phoenix, Ariz., December 17, 1946. He went to Grand Rapids, Mich., while quite young and lived there until 1944, when he moved with his wife and children to Tempe, Ariz.

He was baptized into the Church of God in 1927 at Dutton, Mich., by Bro. James A. Patrick. On July 10, 1934, he was married to Elizabeth Hall.

He leaves his wife of 608 S. Newell St., Mesa, Ariz., two boys, Larry 10, Lynn 9; and two girls, Kay 7, and Carol 5.

Upon news of his death, his parents, Bro. and Sr. Arlie Townsend, a brother Richard, and a sister Martha, left immediately for Tempe to attend his funeral. He leaves, also, a grandmother, Edith Richardson, of Grand Rapids, Mich.

Our hearts are made heavy because of a young life that has been snuffed out, and because of a young widow with four small children. When our Lord comes, we have the promise that there shall be no more tears, and we pray for that Day soon to appear.

C. E. Lapp.

GOOD - HOFFMAN

East Oregon Chapel, Oregon, Ill., was the scene of a quiet wedding at eight o'clock, Monday evening, December 30, when Mary G. Good, Oregon, Ill., became the bride of Leo E. Hoffman, Polo, Ill. Delores Boyden was bridesmaid; and Reuben Barnhart, Jr., attended the groom.

Mary was one of the first in the East Oregon community to become a member of the Church of God. Her husband, serving in the United States Army, hopes soon to be released, whereafter the newlyweds will make their home at Oregon, Ill.

Bro. Gordon Landry, superintendent of the East Oregon work, assisted in the marriage rites, and Sr. Janice Johns played the piano. Sydney E. Magaw.

CHARLES E. ANDERSON

Charles E. Anderson was born at Dixon, Ill., October 31, 1883, and died in Saint Charles Hospital, Aurora, Ill., December 25, 1946. He was baptized by Bro. S. J. Lindsay and was a member of the Church of God at Dixon—his Grandfather John Anderson having been one of its founders. He made his home successively, at Dixon, Batavia, Aurora, and Downers Grove, Ill., for the most part living with his mother (the late Sr. Orpha Sanford) and with his sister, Sr. Edna Beck, who survives him.

Funeral services were conducted, December 27, at the Dixon Church of God, the writer preaching on "Hope beyond the Grave." Burial was made in the Dixon Cemetery. Sydney E. Magaw.

Prepared by Madge Savage
Waite Park, Minnesota

"Choosing rather to suffer affliction with the people of God, than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season; esteeming the reproach of Christ greater riches than the treasures in Egypt: for he had respect unto the recompense of the reward" (Hebrews 11:25, 26).

A Poem to Remember

"How would you like it if every night,
When you have gone to bed,
You had to listen to every word,
That day you had thought or said?

"If through all the day you say pleasant words,
And none that will make folks weep,
At night you can look through memory's book,
Then happily fall asleep.—H. O. Spelman.

God Calls a Leader

Joseph and his brothers had died. The new Pharaoh did not even know of Joseph. There were many descendants of Joseph's families. They were called Israelites. The Israelites were slaves in the land of Egypt. They worked very hard and were oftentimes sad. There were many who wondered if God had forgotten them. He had promised them many good things. When they prayed to God, He remembered. Today, we learn how He called a leader for them. (Ex. 3:1-12.)

Moses was taking care of the flock of Jethro, his father-in-law. He led the flock over the back of the desert and came to the mountain of Horeb.

It was there the angel of the Lord appeared to Moses in a flame of fire in the middle of a bush. Although the bush burned with fire, it did not burn up. This interested Moses. He went over to see what this unusual and great sight was.

God called, "Moses, Moses."

Moses answered, "Here am I."

The Lord God said, "Draw not nigh hither: put off thy shoes from off thy feet, for the place whereon thou standest is holy ground" (Ex. 3:5).

Then the Lord reminded Moses: "I am the God of thy father, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob."

The understanding holy Father said of the Israelites: "I know their sorrows; and I am come down to deliver them out of the hand of the Egyptians, and to bring them . . . unto a land flowing with milk and honey" (Ex. 3:7, 8). God told Moses He was going to send him to Pharaoh to lead the children of Israel out of Egypt. Moses was modest. He did not feel equal to the task God was placing upon him. God comforted him by saying, "Certainly I will be with thee." Someday they were to worship Him upon this very mountain of Horeb. The Lord God said that would be His token to Moses.

God Still Calls

God does not talk to us today in the same way as He spoke to Moses. Today, He talks to us through the Word and through His Son. He knows our sorrows and trials today. He sees His children. When their cries come up before Him through their prayers, He answers their pleas.

Many are called to the high calling of following Christ, but few are chosen. "Not many wise men after the flesh, not many mighty, not many noble, are called" (1 Cor. 1:26). We must have faith in God and Christ if we would be "the called and chosen."

When you hear God's call, answer it. You will not be chosen if you fail to heed His call.

DO DREAMS COME TRUE?

BEREAN
ROUND-TABLE

CONDUCTED BY
JAMES M. WATKINS

Here is the kind of a letter we have dreamed about for, lo, these many years yet never expected to live to see. Now that it has come, we, like Simeon, can now say, "Lettest thou thy servant depart in peace." We have now seen the unattainable. Read with us, as Marion Coulter of Eden Valley, Minnesota, asks:

"HOW MUCH DOES YOUR MINISTER MEAN TO YOU?"

"Perhaps that question has never entered your mind. It never entered mine until recently when the thought came to me, 'What would happen to us Bereans if our minister left our church?' Is there anyone else who could really take his place? Anyone we could confide in and who truly would understand us?"

"There are ministers just as capable as ours. Those that know their Bible from A to Z, but can they understand young people enough to help us? Could they keep us interested in Berean work? Could they help our group as much as our minister has? Could we have heart-to-heart talks with them as we do now?"

"Eden Valley might have been one of those inactive Berean groups if it had not been for our minister and his way with young people. I am proud to be a member of the Church of God, and I am proud that we have ministers like our own Mr. Wiggins all over the United States to help the young people."

We can hardly believe that no Berean has ever felt this way before about any pastor, but this is the first time we have ever had anyone say it publicly. Brother Wiggins may now surely take a bow. His face may be a little red by now, but he has no choice but to stand and receive the all-time Appreciation Orchid.

Many things came to mind as we read this expression of appreciation for what appears to be a very satisfying relationship between pastor and young people. How much it meant when we read, "We might have been one of those inactive groups if it had not been for our minister and his way with young people." There is absolutely no substitute for a spirit of co-operative fellowship between your Berean group and your pastor.

Because we are all different, every minister is not able to rate orchid status in the esteem of the coming generation, it is true. But certainly every minister owes a greater consideration for the success of the individual lives as well as the group of the young people he pastors. I recalled to mind young people's gatherings I have attended in the past where the problems of Berean work were to have first consideration and, thinking of the disinterested ministers idly visiting down the street, I could not help but wonder how many orchids could be won that way. Every minister dreams of the time when he may have a growing, live-wire young people's group in his church. We now have proof that dreams can come true, IF the proper spirit of co-operation and fellowship is present to guide them to maturity.

Likewise, it was impossible to keep from remembering other scenes. Places where friendly, well-intentioned ministers had devoted hours of study, preparation, and energy to the planning of a special occasion that could serve as an indication of their interest and good will. Places where those same ministers waited long and disheartedly for the Bereans who never came; who picked that particular night to go skating or to a show that ran the entire week. Perhaps it is that same failure to appreciate, or to show our appreciation in a tangible way, that has caused so much of the disinterest for which we condemn our pastor and deplore so greatly in our Berean councils.

It is a sure thing that you will catch more flies with sugar than with vinegar. A real spirit of interest and co-operation on the part of our young people—which means the members of your own society—cannot but help to create that spirit of fellowship so desired by the young people and pastor alike. Perhaps, after all, the orchid should go to the young people whose spirit of appreciation may serve such an incentive toward the goal of real progress.

Our thanks go to those willing to voice an appreciation for the part the church pastor can play in building an enduring relationship between the young people and the church, and for the spirit of loyalty that adds its own inspiration, to those endeavoring to promote this feeling of co-operative interest. There is no substitute for sound recognition of the part each plays in true service.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

WINTER BIBLE SCHOOLS

We have become so accustomed to thinking that Bible schools are only for summer months, that it is difficult for us to think they can be held at any other time. But they can! This has been proved at three places this winter.

The first Bible school was held at McGintytown, Ark. The first week, the class was held after school. The children would stop at the church when the school bus brought them from school. The second week, it was held in the evening in connection with the evangelistic services conducted by Bro. W. R. Simmons and Bro. H. Scott Smith. If you are planning to hold special services at your church, try having a special part for the children, also.

The second Bible school was held at Little Rock (rural), Ark. Here the enrollment was three times as great as it was last spring when a school was conducted. The attendance stayed very close to the enrollment each day. Many of these children were prospects for the Sunday school and were attending Sunday school at the close of the Bible school. This school was held each day after public school.

The last one was at Mountain Springs near Russellville, Ark. This was a new field and a most encouraging one. This was held at night, and parents accompanied their children to the school. The attendance on the first night (Monday) was twelve. The following Sunday night, the attendance had grown to seventy-one. We have promised this locality another week of work in the spring.

Yes, we can have winter Bible schools, but it takes work by the local church and co-operation from the parents.

During the month of November, there was only one day that some type of service was not held, either a children's class or a sermon for the adults. Each week, there were two days when two services were held, and one Sunday, four services were conducted.

THE DOCTORS THOMAS

Regarding the authorship of the excellent article that appeared in The Herald on November 12, to which reference is made in the issue of December 3, the following may be of interest.

Bro. W. S. Tomlinson's conclusion evidently is correct, that the article was not written by Dr. John Thomas, founder of the body "commonly known among men by the name of Christadelphians," to quote the Doctor's own words, but by Dr. J. H. Thomas who, as Bro. Tomlinson suggests, "was always a Church-of-God man."

In my files, I have listed three ministers of our faith who bore the name and title of "Dr. Thomas": Dr. John Thomas, Dr. J. H. Thomas, and Dr. L. C. Thomas. All were able Bible students and powerful defenders of the early church. It would seem that it was Dr. J. H. Thomas who wrote the article in question.

We have much interesting information concerning all three men and their contributions to furtherance of the gospel of the Kingdom both in America and abroad. Fifteen years before the followers of Dr. John Thomas assumed the name Christadelphians, as a result of his preaching in Scotland and England, an organization was formed known as the Church of Baptized Believers of the Gospel of the Kingdom of God. I have been in correspondence with this group and have been provided with a complete history of their work, publications, etc., covering a period of nearly one hundred years.

We have on file photographs of both Dr. John and Dr. L. C. Thomas, with a complete biography of the former. We still are searching for more information concerning the latter and Dr. J. H. Thomas. We are fortunate in having also a bound copy of the first volume of Dr. John Thomas' "Herald of the Kingdom and Age to Come," in which he reviews in the first number the changes of thought through which he passed from the time when he was associated with the "Reformed Baptists" (later the Disciples of Christ or Campbellites), and the time he was baptized as a real believer in the gospel of the Kingdom of God. ## Gleanings From the Field

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

Bro. John R. Fiske, South Haven, Kan. informs, as does also Bro. G. E. Marsh, Tipp City, Ohio, that Dr. John Thomas was not the same man as Dr. J. H. Thomas—this in answer to our recent question. Bro. Fiske submits quotations, too, showing that both men were Christadelphians.

"My Aunt Anna Amelia Eidemiller, a lifelong member of the Brush Creek Church of God near West Milton, Ohio, celebrated her eighty-fifth birthday, December 28, 1946."—Miss Laura Boyce, Box 605, Oklahoma City, Okla. . . . Congratulations, Sr. Eidemiller! Her address is West Milton.

"Daily prayers lessen daily cares."

Sr. Amy Dunbar Frye, Delta, Ohio, reports that her grandmother, Sr. Elizabeth Reighard, also of Delta, fell in her home on December 18, breaking her right arm in two places. "Grandma" Reighard, ninety-eight years of age, would much appreciate hearing from any of The Herald readers.

The second semester of Oregon Bible College will begin classes at 7:30 a.m., February 3, 1947. Youth interested in entering the College should address Otto E. Dick, Oregon Bible College, Oregon, Ill., requesting application forms.

See page 10 for list of registered ministers of the Church of God and more news.

"Gayle Elizabeth was born to Mr. and Mrs. Cecil A. Patrick on Christmas eve in Samaritan Hospital. The little lady weighed eight pounds six ounces. Mother and baby were home on Saturday (December 28) because there was no room in the inn (hospital). Both are doing well. Cecil had a very severe attack of kidney stone, Sunday, December 22."—James A. Patrick, Ashland, Ohio. . . . Congratulations and best wishes for the daughter, but we are sorry, Cecil, for your recent sickness.

The writer received a nice Christmas present from the Oak Grove Church of God, for which he is very thankful. H. Scott Smith.

HAMMOND, LOUISIANA

The Happy Woods congregation was pleased to hear Sr. Bessie Lee of the Blood River Church present a very good sermonette on the second coming of Christ, December 1. This was another of the programs sponsored by the Bereans. We hope to have Blood River with us again soon.

For those of you who are interested, the newly elected officers of our church for 1947 are: elders: Albert Siple (for life) and Sam Bottolfs; deacons: Martin Bankston, Elvin Campbell, Warren Landry, and Tom Robinson; deaconesses: Mrs. Gilbert Bottolfs and Esther Bottolfs; treasurer: Ella Siple; and secretary: Elvie Landry.

Our thanks goes to Bro. Henry Mattison, who donated three kegs of nails to us for our Sunday school classrooms. Three carpenters began laying the foundation, Monday, December 16. We pray that God will continue to bless us as He has in the past.

Handel's oratorio, "The Messiah," was given at Southeastern Louisiana College recently. We were proud of two of our boys, Ernest Barnum and James Siple, who had leading parts.

Sr. T. J. Ellis has returned home after a visit of a week here in Hammond. We were happy to see her again. Come back, Sr. Ellis. James Mattison, Pastor.

DRINKARD-HOBBS' DEBATE

There will be a debate, the Lord willing, on April 7-12, at Caldwell, Kan., between T. A. Drinkard and A. G. Hobbs. Following are the propositions:

I—The Scriptures clearly teach that the same Israel, as a nation that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations, will be restored again to their own Land of Palestine. Drinkard affirms. Hobbs denies.

II—The Scriptures clearly teach that the Kingdom of God shall be established on the earth at the second coming of Jesus Christ, when He "shall reign in Mount Zion, and in Jerusalem" (Isa. 24:23) "upon the throne of David" (Isa. 9:7; Luke 1:32). Drinkard affirms. Hobbs denies.

III—The Scriptures clearly teach that the Kingdom of Christ was established on the first Pentecost after the resurrection and ascension of the Son of God. Hobbs affirms. Drinkard denies.

IV—The Scriptures clearly teach that man is wholly mortal and is unconscious from death until the resurrection. Drinkard affirms. Hobbs denies.

V—The Scriptures clearly teach that there is a spirit in man that is immortal and is conscious from death until resurrection. Hobbs affirms. Drinkard denies.

John R. Piske, Jr.

PROSPECTIVE BOOKS

I am pricing the set of five volumes at $2.00 per set to secure the much-needed expense money for printing of one thousand sets and for postage on mailing them to the people. After I have mailed a set of five volumes to everyone who gives a donation, the remaining sets will be mailed out free to as many of our aged people and the sick and needy in homes, hospitals, or elsewhere, that ask for them. Please send addresses of anyone to whom you want the sets mailed.

The price is a small investment, but it will mean endless life, we hope, to many loved ones for whom Christ died. This price will not be raised until every set of the volumes is mailed out for the glory of God and His Christ. I thank God for the money you have sent for His glory. I pray God will so bless the truth contained in each set of the volumes that many with us will receive endless life with Christ in the endless age of joy.

J. M. Morgan, Bristow, Okla.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by

National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois

The Restitution Herald is official organ of the General Conference of the Church of God.

Subscription rate: 50 issues per year, $2.50.

The Restitution Herald advocates: the near return of Christ (Acts 1:11), and life only through Him (Col. 3:3); the literal resurrection of the dead (John 5:28); the immortalization of those in Christ (1 Cor. 15:53, 54); the destruction of the wicked (Rev. 21:8); the final restoration of Israel as the Kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ (Luke 1:32), the church to be joint-heirs with Him (Rom. 8:17), and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations (Isa. 60:1-3); the "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21). It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

"Ever hear of a gremlin? Well, I am one! My job, since I can no longer wreck airplanes, is to go to local churches and conferences and say, 'Impossible!' That's right, all I say is 'Impossible!' and you would be surprised what a monkey wrench that is in the gears. When someone, all full of spirit and zeal, stands up in the meeting and suggests something that would build a new church, open a new field, or cause someone to sacrifice for the gospel, I put my tongue in my cheek and murmur, 'Impossible!' Then someone repeats it, and before long the good idea is snowed under. The way things are going, however, I may soon be out of a job. I have enemies; some far-sighted people who say 'all things are possible with God.' Of course, they are right, and if they keep working, my friends Doubt, Fear, Wait, and I will soon be out looking for work. Have pity on a poor gremlin, will you?"

LOCAL CHURCH NEWS

CHICAGO. The Chicago congregation celebrated Christmas as a holy day with a special Christmas program in the church recreation room on Sunday, December 22. Forty-three people attended. While Pastor and Mrs. Doan are enjoying a three-weeks' vacation in California, various church members will have charge of the Sunday and midweek services. It is our aim to develop a church which is Christ-centered, not "minister"-centered, and which will operate smoothly and progress spiritually wherever, or wherever, the pastor may be. Our young people's class is now officially organized and is meeting each Sunday evening from six to eight o'clock. The young people are making many plans to incite interest and increase attendance.

EAST OREGON CHAPEL. The Thanksgiving Offering at the Chapel, which was to be used for the building fund, totalled $189.78. Thanksgiving was a success. We feel that a prayer mailed by Pvt. Billy Messenger, an attendant at the Chapel before going into the service, to "Mom" Nedrow, is worthy of reprinting here:

"Eternal and loving Father, protect and care for the little children in this community, my home. Show them the way that they should go. Guide them, and us, in all we do or say. Protect the Christian people in our great country. Grant that wherever we are, we may at all times put our trust in Thee, and commit ourselves and our loved ones to Thy loving care. Enable us to gain the victory over sin and temptation, that we may be 'more than conquerors' through him that loved us.' In the name of our blessed Saviour I pray. Amen."

MACOMB. The young people's class of the church has prepared and distributed church calendars. The Ripley church sent a Thanksgiving offering of $23.12 to the Macomb church to be put in the building fund. This is the true spirit of Thanksgiving. Once each month the Macomb congregation gathers at a member's home for pot-luck dinner and a business meeting. A group of the church folk went caroling on the eve before Christmas Eve, to the probable joy of people of Macomb who heard them.

OREGON. We neglected to mention in last month's report that the four Dick children have transferred their membership to Oregon. This makes twelve new members, since Conference. The church now has an orchestra under the direction of Bro. Billy Dick, which plays for Sunday evening services. The annual Thanksgiving Offering totalled $502.10, of which amount $189.78 came through the Chapel Sunday school. This offering was placed in our Chapel building fund, to be used for the new basement. Average attendance at services last month were: church, 87; Sunday school, 85; Berean, 20; Dorcas, 23. The Bereans presented an excellent cantata, The Lost Carol, which is the story of the writing of "Silent Night" by Franz Gruber. A unique candlelight service was held at the Presbyterian Church at 4:00 p.m. December 15, in which the five Protestant churches of Oregon participated. The choirs and ministers of the churches united to give glory to God.

MISCELLANEOUS

We still want pictures of the Illinois churches and their congregations for use on the Evangelist pages. We want to know what you are doing and see you doing it. We all want to know what your church looks like. Please send any pictures you have to H. J. Doan, 1908 N. Keystone Ave., Chicago 39, Illinois, as soon as possible. Thank you!

ON HOSPITALITY

Hospitality is a Christian virtue. (Heb. 13:2.) When strangers attend our services it is expedient for us to make them feel welcome. This is a practical, easy form of evangelism.

When a stranger is seen among us, make it your duty to introduce yourself and make it known to the person that he is welcome to the household of God. This is the particular duty of church officers, but how much better if each one of us would have a welcoming committee of one.

Think! Are there not people whom you see in church every day whom you do not know? Make yourself acquainted! It will be to your both.

“Looking for That Blessed Hope”

AS THE DISCIPLES “LOOKED stedfastly toward heaven,” as Jesus ascended, two angels asked them: “Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? this same Jesus which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven” (Acts 1:11).

“Denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously, and godly in this present world; looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ” (Titus 2:12, 13). “Christ was once offered to bear the sins of many; and unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation” (Heb. 9:28).

“The Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first: then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air” (1 Thess. 4:16, 17). God has provided that faithful Christians shall “obtain salvation by our Lord Jesus Christ, that, whether we wake or sleep, we should live together with him” (5:9, 10). “When the chief Shepherd shall appear, ye shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away” (1 Peter 5:4). “We look for the Saviour, the Lord Jesus Christ: who shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body” (Phil. 3:20, 21).

Jesus is the King who “shall reign in righteousness” (Isa. 32:1), whose kingdom shall extend into “the uttermost parts of the earth” (Psalm 2:8). Jesus, foretelling that Day, said: “All the tribes of the earth . . . shall see the Son of man coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory” (Matt. 24:30), and, “When the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory: and before him shall be gathered all nations” (25:31, 32). He shall be called, “KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS” (Rev. 19:16). In that Day, the Christ “shall be as an hiding place from the wind, and a covert from the tempest; as rivers of water in a dry place, as the shadow of a great rock in a weary land” (Isa. 32:2). “Thine eyes shall see the king in his beauty” (33:17). “The inhabitant shall not say, I am sick” (v. 24), but he shall say: “We have waited for him, and he will save us: this is the Lord; we have waited for him, we will be glad and rejoice in his salvation” (25:9).

Speaking of the Christian’s hope, the Apostle Paul said: “I reckon that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with (Please turn to page 10)

Biblical History and Byron's Poem

Shalmaneser IV, conquering king of Assyria, was threatening both Israel and Judah when Hezekiah began to rule in Jerusalem. In the fourth year of Hezekiah's reign, Shalmaneser besieged Samaria, capital of Israel, and three years later (722 B.C.) the city fell to Shalmaneser's son, Sargon II. Assyria continued her conquests westward to the Mediterranean and southwestward into Egypt, which hitherto had survived as little more than a "bruised reed" (2 Kings 18:21).

Hezekiah, the young king of Judah, watched with anxiety this shadow of Assyria as of a great destroying eagle swooping over all the land, for he had been trusting too much in this "bruised reed" of Egypt. Soon, he was compelled to pay vast sums of silver and gold to Sennacherib, the new king of Assyria. "In the fourteenth year of king Hezekiah did Sennacherib king of Assyria come up against all the fenced cities of Judah and took them." The "Cylinder of Sennacherib," describing eight of his campaigns from about 705 to 691 B.C., reports his wonderful success in Judah, saying:

"Then I besieged Hezekiah of Judah who had not submitted to my yoke, and captured forty-six of his strong cities and fortresses and innumerable small cities. . . . Hezekiah himself I shut up like a caged bird in Jerusalem, his royal city. . . . I despatched after me his messengers to my royal city Nineveh to pay tribute and to make submission with thirty talents of gold, eight hundred talents of silver, precious stones, eye paint, ivory couches and thrones, hides and tusks, precious woods . . . together with his daughters and the women of his palace."

Thus Hezekiah saved himself only by paying this large forfeit. Saved as it were "by the skin of his teeth," and encouraged by Isaiah to trust more in Jehovah, Hezekiah instituted reforms that soon won his people's loyalty back to Jehovah—thus preparing for the next and sterner onslaught of the Assyrian shadow. He "did that which was right in the sight of the Lord. . . . He removed the high places, and brake the images, and cut down the groves and brake in pieces the brazen serpent that Moses had made: for unto those days the children of Israel did bring incense to it. . . . He trusted in the Lord . . . and rebelled against the king of Assyria and served him not." (2 Kings 18:3-7).

Soon, Sennacherib was pounding again at the doors of Jerusalem. This time, God-inspired Isaiah gave Hezekiah every assurance of victory. "Thus saith the Lord concerning the king of Assyria, He shall not come into this city, nor shoot an arrow there, nor come before it with shield, nor cast a bank against it. By the way that he came, by the same shall he return . . . for I will defend this city, to wit, for mine own sake, and for my servant David's sake."

That assurance was all Hezekiah required. Refusing surrender, he waited upon the Lord. In a few hours "came to pass . . . that the angel of the Lord . . . smote the camp of the Assyrians an hundred fourscore and thousand: and when they arose early in the morning, behold, they were all dead corpses." That miraculous victory for Israel inspired Lord Byron to write his memorable verse—

THE DESTRUCTION OF SENNACHERIB

"The Assyrian came down like the wolf on the fold,
And his cohorts were gleaming in purple and gold;
And the sheen of their spears was like stars on the sea,
When the blue wave rolls nightly on deep Galilee.

"Like the leaves of the forest when Summer is green,
That host with their banners at sunset were seen;
Like the leaves of the forest when Autumn hath blown,
That host on the morrow lay withered and strown.

"For the Angel of Death spread his wings on the blast,
And breathed in the face of the foe as he passed;
And the eyes of the sleepers waxed deadly and chill,
And their hearts but once heaved, and forever grew still!

"And there lay the steed with his nostril all wide,
But through it there rolled not the breath of his pride;
And the foam of his gasping lay white on the turf,
And cold as the spray of the rock-beating surf.

"And there lay the rider distorted and pale,
With the dew on his brow, and the rust on his mail;
And the tents were all silent, the banners alone,
The lances unlifted, the trumpet unblown.

"And the widows of Ashur are loud in their wail,
And the idols are broke in the temple of Baal;
And the might of the Gentile, unsmote by the sword,
Hath melted like snow in the glance of the Lord!"

INVENTORY

By Howard H. Hawkins, East Rochester, Ohio

AROUND the first of the year, or at some other fixed date representing a fiscal year, all concerns transacting business usually take inventory: listing all articles with or without valuation, along with such special information which would be of help to the officers in compiling their annual report, as to profit or loss, as well as preparing a budget and offering some recommendations for the year ahead. I sometimes wonder if the "last days" are not creeping upon us so slowly that we are unaware of the things transpiring about us, unless we stop long enough to take inventory, so to speak, and to compare existing conditions as of today with those of a generation ago.

Jesus tells us in Matthew 24:38 that in the days of Noah people were "marrying and giving in marriage." We have not given it much thought, as marriage was going along with the usual proportion until a few years ago, or especially after the last two wars when divorce courts became filled with applications. Statistics reveal that for the year 1944 there were 400,000 divorces and for 1945 they increased to 502,000. We sometimes read in newspapers about some who have been remarried for the fifth or sixth time. Before the War, we had reached the startling figure of one divorce for every five marriages, and now the rate is one to every three. There seems, also, to be an increase of marriages among younger folks. In 1942, three times as many boys under twenty married as in 1939.

Having this picture before us, I believe we understand more fully the prophecy expressed in Matthew about "giving in marriage." Little heed is given to the injunction in Mark 10:9, saying, "What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder." Solemnity of the marriage vows are for the moment only; then life goes on at a rapid pace. Is not this one of the signs of the times?

The Apostle Paul warned of sad conditions "in the last days" when "perilous times shall come" (2 Tim. 3:1). In my boyhood days, everyone seemed to be happy and going about his own business. Movies and many other attractions were unknown; everyone knew or would take time to visit his neighbor. What a contrast today! Humanity seems to be very restless and will resort to most anything for amusement.

The year just ended has given this nation its greatest number of labor strikes. This spirit of striking seemed to be like a disease: becoming contagious and extending to all parts of the country—yes, even to some foreign countries! The recent coal strike illustrated how perilous conditions might have been, had the strike continued much longer. Many factories and schools already had closed and churches in the northern states soon would have been affected.

We Americans have experienced only a small fraction of the terrible conditions existing in Europe. For this we should be especially thankful to our heavenly Father, that this country has been spared from that great devastation. Knowing of the terrible conditions existing over there, it is all the more reason that we should long and pray for the coming Kingdom when "every man shall sit under his vine and under his fig tree; and none shall make them afraid" (Micah 4:4).

When World War II ended, nineteen countries lay prostrate and dying. Nearly fourteen million people were slaughtered, and nearly thirty-one million were wounded. Some fifteen million dwellings were destroyed, and three million more were seriously damaged. Tens of millions of peoples had no place to live, and thousands of children had been so completely lost that they did not even know who their parents were, where their homes had been, what their own names or nationalities were, or the mother tongues they had spoken. In an inland village in Greece where relief deliveries fell fifteen days behind schedule, one fifth of the people were found to be living entirely on roots and weeds. These conditions do not make pleasant reading, but sometimes one has to know the contrast to appreciate the better things "laid up" for us in the Age to Come.

Men and nations have been trying for peace, peace, and still there is no peace; all is not in harmony. Paul prophesied that in the last days "evil men and seducers will wax worse and worse." The writer is of the opinion that as time advances, perilous times will become more complicated each time they loom up, or as they continue toward the close of the Gentile Age.

As we take inventory of present world conditions, especially of the year just past, we should rejoice in the beginning of this New Year that we are one year nearer the coming of our Lord and Master. Then men shall dwell safely and "there shall be no more utter destruction."

What will bring the Gentile Age to a close? The coming of Christ from heaven as the (Please turn to page 10)

God's Tomorrow

By Paul M. Hatch, Oregon, Illinois

THE WORDS "God's Tomorrow is a day of gladness" starts a song, and a theme of gladness pervades the song from end to end. I am persuaded that "God's Tomorrow" will be better than today, yet, whenever I hear the song, emotions of sorrow and burning tears course their way down my cheeks. It brings forth thoughts, not of tomorrow, but memories of yesteryear: memories of a bitter past where to recall them heart and skull almost burst with pent-up emotion. I hope my readers will bear with me while I recite the things that so disturb me.

Back in the little town of Markham, Illinois, where so many years of my life were spent and where bitter and joyful memories were born, neighbor became attached to neighbor no matter what the creed or nationality. Death and trouble knit each other more closely than any other factor. Financial losses shook us and sympathy went out toward each other in our bereavements. None of us could claim opulence, but there were some poorer than others. It was among the extremely poor that first I heard the song, "God's Tomorrow." The occasion was at a mother's funeral that occurred a short while after the father had died from insanity. They were people of Holland and embraced one of the religious faiths of that people. The kindly minister spoke of the theme of "God's Acre," from whence the dead would rise in "God's Tomorrow," and this beautiful hymn was sung as a postlude. It burned deep into my heart at the time and still burns with a searing heat.

Then again in yesteryear of my life, I recall the death of my own father. How suddenly it came with little warning. Stricken on the street, he was brought home in unconsciousness. It is well recalled that Mother fretted over my late coming and was relieved when I appeared. There was no sleep to be had that night or the next day and the following night until he died.

Josie Hunter, the negress nurse that attended, remains in my memory: a young woman of sympathetic nature. She knelt in prayer with us when we felt there might be hope and she watched until the death hour arrived, and we watched together the shortened breaths to the last. The funeral came: Protestant and Catholic persuasion wept with us, and so we buried our dead.

Death traces its finger in every life, family, and nation. It upsets palace and hovel, alike. It is all-pervading, inescapable, and only by promise and hope do we have vision of "God's Tomorrow" where death shall be undone. By the inequities of today, the vision of tomorrow in hope becomes brighter. We are persuaded that those tomorrows shall be better than today. By comparison only can clear focusing be accomplished. As we experience the bitter dregs of today do we in measure taste of the sweet tomorrow.

If my readers will bear with me the second time, let me look at some of the inequities that have swept through the history that involved the nations of our times. I shall not burden you with the last great war, nor of the first, when inequities rose to mountainous heights. I am going to take you into the more quiet years and show some of the brutal nature of government upon their own subjects and some of the brighter aspects in each episode.

Two episodes will be related and we are done. The comparison will be as each and every one has experienced in his own life and the hopes that arise that "God's Tomorrow" will be better than today.

Some years ago, the religious group known as "Mennonites" lived in the Dominion of Canada. It is a well known fact that these people were denominationally opposed to war. They had petitioned the Dominion government to exempt them from service in the armed forces. The Canadian government, after duly considering the petition, decided that no exemption of military service would be granted these peoples. The Mennonite elders took counsel among themselves and decided, if it were possible, they would secure sanctuary in a more tolerant nation that would respect their convictions in this matter. The State Department of the United States of America was petitioned by these people of Canada. They were denied sanctuary within the States, but were granted visa if the need arose, to some port of embarkation.

Finally, after some search among the nations, sanctuary was promised, with all the respect of their consciences in the matter of military service, by the little South American country of Paraguay. Thither the Canadian Mennonites went and were settled in that vast forest region known as the Gran Chaco. They cleared the forest land, brought in their cattle, and were a great addition to the economy of little Paraguay. Being a thrifty and hard-working people, they caused little trouble and worshiped as they desired according to their conscience. The government of Paraguay respected these people greatly and gave assistance to their settlement as it was able.

Suddenly, almost without warning in 1932, war broke out in the Gran Chaco between Paraguay and Bolivia.

over the border line. In the next three years, bloody frays shook the district. As much as Paraguay needed man power to augment her armies, she respected the covenant made with the Mennonites and no military service was required of them. The Mennonites themselves seeing the peril they were in, being almost in the thick of the battle area, freely offered the Paraguayan Army their carts, wagons, horses, and oxen for the transport of army provisions and supplied food for the warriors. Paraguay was victorious and the war ended in 1935. My salute to you, little Paraguay, in the way you conducted yourself in respect to your covenants and acknowledging the Christian conscience of the Mennonites who were subject to you! I feel certain God will reward you for this in His Great Tomorrow. Your star in magnitude has become brighter, while the stars of some other nations in comparison have dulled.

The other episode that shows the brutality to which nations can stoop occurred earlier, but after the first World War. Turkey, one of the defeated Central Powers, finally after some delay was required to sign what she regarded as a humiliating treaty of peace. The Turks were required to surrender all their possessions in Europe and their capital city of Constantinople. The Dardanelles were to be internationalized under a joint occupancy and administration of the victorious Allies. The nation of Greece was to be rewarded for her part in the war by granting her the privilege of occupying the western part of Turkey in Asia. This district was predominantly of Greek extraction, people who had lived there and tended their vineyards, date and olive groves for many centuries before the conquering Turks came.

In 1921, the Greek armies were ready for occupancy of Western Turkey. They met little resistance by the Turks at first, but as they marched inland, troubles began to mount and, finally, they were confronted with a well-trained Turkish army under Mustapha Kemal. Disaster after disaster was inflicted upon the Greeks by the resolute Turks until the Greek army fled in disorder toward the seacoast and the city of Smyrna.

In the harbor of Smyrna lay several British warships, craft of other nations, and Greek coastal vessels ready to retrieve the shattered remnants of their armies. As the Greeks poured into the city along with the peasantry of the countryside, all semblance of order disappeared. The city was flame-swept from the torches of the Turks, and the general congregation of all these was at the waterfront of the harbor, where many hundreds of them perished by the massacring Turks. Among the vessels in the harbor was one lone American destroyer. The captain of this vessel courageously went about rescuing some of the hapless Greeks who were attempting to escape the murdering Turks, but the British warships turned not a finger in rescue—and this from a nation that had encouraged the Greeks at first to lay hold of Turkish territory!

The Turks, flushed with victory, turned toward Constantinople. As they marched eastward, the British commander within the city began digging trenches about the city and deployed his troops ready for battle. When, however, his six thousand were confronted with a Turkish army of one hundred eighty thousand, he consulted the French and Italian units of the occupying international force and found them unwilling to defend the city. A truce was arranged and the city once more came under the domination of the Turks. The shoe was on the other foot, and the new peace was dictated by the Turks this time. Constantinople again became Turkish domain, and Turkey in Europe was re-established.

We all recognize that in the stress and strife of war inequities do develop and they are not regarded so seriously as might be, but the peace that Turkey imposed on Greece and the Allies has gone down in history as one of the most abominable of modern times.

For over two millenniums, the Greeks of Western Anatolia had owned, tilled, and developed the orchards of dates, figs, olives, and other fruits of the district. Now in the peace treaty, they were to be uprooted from their homes, possessions, and culture, and sent to Greece, a land almost unknown to them and certainly not one of their culture. Over a million persons were thus transplanted to the soil of Greece. The Turkish people of Macedonia who had long been under Grecian rule were in order compelled to move to Turkey.

A reporter, witnessing the heart-rending distress that came in the uprooting of these peoples, said Greek and Turkish families, although of different religions, had lived for many years in peace and helpfulness, were now torn apart and separation was almost like death, for they knew they would never see one another again. Although the Greek nation did a fairly good job of absorbing the transfer, it is known that the Turkish government did little to help those who came (Please turn to page 10)

WHAT SHALL BE THE SIGN OF THY COMING?

"Oh, Church of God, awake and sing
Joyful praises to our coming King.
The fig tree is budding now;
He will soon descend on Olive's brow.

"Oh, Church of God, hope on and pray
And wait and watch for that coming day—
When back to Zion His throne to claim
We soon shall see our coming King.

"The signs He gave we now can see—
The budding of the dear fig tree,
The seed of Jacob returning home—
To greet their King of David's throne.

"Oh, Church of God, we see the dawn,
Of that bright, celestial morn
When all the saints shall awake and sing
The praises of our coming King.

"All hail! All hail! His coming's near,
The signs we now both see and hear,
Hark, listen! He is at the door
To rule and reign forevermore."

CHALLENGE OF THE NEW YEAR

By Delbert A. Jones, Michigantown, Indiana

ANOTHER YEAR is now in progress. According to newspapers and radio, this will be a profitable year. Great things are forecast in the world of science. There is promise of outstanding developments in national diplomacy.

As the New Year starts, let us ask God for blessings for the United States. We can expect blessings for the nation in direct proportion to the way the nation serves God. Throughout the Word of God, we see outstanding examples of this great truth. As long as the people of Israel, as a nation, served Him, He blessed them. When they turned from Him, He turned from them and cursed them by taking away His blessings. May the United States consider the example of Israel. May we serve God and go regularly to God for guidance.

This year holds great possibilities for you and me. We may anticipate chastisements and trials; however, we may also expect blessings if we are true to Him.

It is customary to take inventory at the beginning of the year. Have you taken inventory of your life? Have you carefully searched all the "closets" of your life? Are there any skeletons in the closets? If Christ were suddenly to say to you, "Let me search you," would you try to keep some of the closets locked? Whether we realize it or not, we are being watched constantly by the Saviour. We can hide nothing from Him, no matter how hard we may try. Every deed is seen by Him. Every word we utter is heard by Him.

Satan is trying by every means at His disposal to break up churches of the land. Because faith of the Russians was weak, Satan managed to cause the nation to turn from God. The world is now paying for having a Godless Russia. Because the people of Germany neglected God and permitted iniquity to creep into their lives, Satan managed to close nearly all the churches and caused the nation as a whole to turn from God.

We recently noted some alarming statistics. If the Sunday schools of the United States continue the present rate of decrease in attendance, in only thirty years there will not be a Sunday school in the nation? At first glance this fact is alarming in itself without the other implications. Can you imagine a nation which had no churches, no radio programs of hymns or sermons, no Christian burials, or no institutions for the betterment of mankind? The Sunday school is the backbone of the church. The church is the backbone of the nation. The church is the hub of everything that is good.

The world of 1947 needs God more than ever before. The world faces greater problems. The world needs to get back to God. We need to worship regularly. Churches should be filled. Will you resolve to worship God in His house, the church, each month, preferably each week? God will bless you abundantly if you do.

The Church of God needs you; and you need the Church.

ARE WE DEDICATED?

By (Mrs.) G. M. Siple, Oregon, Illinois

DEDICATE means "to set apart, by a solemn service, or religious act." In Exodus 3, we read how God called Moses to deliver His people Israel out of the afflictions of Egypt. Moses was set apart to do that work. Then, after Moses' death, we are told in the first chapter of Joshua that God called Joshua (dedicated or set him apart) to continue the work of Moses. In every plan that God had, there was someone dedicated to carry it out.

Likewise, dedication is an important element in our churches. When we build a church, we have a service of dedication; that is, we set it apart for worship. Sometimes, one wonders if we realize that our churches are dedicated for the service of God. We use the pulpit for news, or to show how witty we can be, and have the members of the congregation laughing and almost rolling in their seats as a result of what has been said in the pulpit—the pulpit that has been set aside for true worship. We do not recall an instance in all the Bible where the minister took time for news or jokes when he was called to preach the Word.

I cannot imagine Christ, when He was teaching in the synagogue, taking time out for wit. When Jesus was twelve years of age, Mary and Joseph were on their way home from the feast at Jerusalem. Jesus tarried behind. When they found Him in the Temple, He was sitting in the midst of the doctors, both hearing them, and asking them questions. When His mother spoke to Him, He said to her: "How is it that ye sought me? wist ye not that I must be about my Father's business?" He, no doubt, was teaching the way of salvation.

Paul, who proved to be one of the greatest missionaries in his charge to Timothy told him to "preach the word: be instant in season, out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort with all longsuffering, and doctrine. For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine; but after their own lusts shall they heap to themselves teachers, having itching ears" (2 Tim. 4:2, 3). Have we come to the point where we cannot endure sound doctrine? Is that the reason so many of our ministers entertain, instead of preaching sound doctrine?

Brethren, let us get back to the old-fashioned way of worshipping, and not use the house that has been dedicated for worship for a place of amusement. We can find that in the theater!

NOTES IN AN OLD BIBLE

By Alfred Anthon, Corvallis, Oregon

(1.) Stephen said, "Behold, I see the heavens opened, and the Son of man standing on the right hand of God" (Acts 7:56).

(2.) "In the midst of the seven candlesticks one like unto the Son of man, clothed with a garment down to the foot, and girt about the paps with a golden girdle" (Rev. 1:13). John said he saw this in vision.

(3.) "I looked, and behold a white cloud, and upon the cloud one sat like unto the Son of man, having on his head a golden crown, and in his hand a sharp sickle" (Rev. 14:14). This was another vision John saw.

These three texts are the only texts in the whole New Testament mentioning Jesus as the Son of Man, except when Jesus called Himself the Son of Man. No one in the New Testament except Stephen and John the Revelator used this name and title, though Jesus nearly always used it. . . . There is a reason!

The multitudes thought Jesus Christ was nothing but an ordinary son of an ordinary man. Therefore, Jesus, speaking to the multitudes, said, in substance: "This person whom you call 'son of man' is the Christ of God. I do works and fulfill prophecy to prove that I am more than an ordinary 'son of man.' Therefore, know for sure, that this 'Son of Man,' as you call Me, is the Christ of God." The Bible writers never dared, never thought of such a thing as naming Jesus "the Son of Man." It was a disrespect.

When Stephen said to his executioners, his murderers, "I see . . . the Son of man standing on the right hand of God," Stephen was not speaking disrespectfully. He was telling his executioners, "You are murdering me for being a disciple of that Son of God whom you call 'Son of Man.' That 'Son of Man' I see standing at the right hand of God. Therefore, that 'Son of Man' was not a 'son of man,' but Son of God."

John the Revelator had the same thought in his mind as Stephen had. . . . "I see a heavenly vision. . . . In it is a man 'like unto the Son of Man' . . . whom you crucified, though He proved He was not a son of man, but the Christ of God. That is the man I see in this heavenly vision."

For Scripture texts to prove that it is showing some disrespect to Christ to call Him "Son of Man," we go to the Old Testament. You see, Jesus Christ had no Bible except the Old Testament. The New Testament was not yet written in Christ's day. So we study the use of the phrase "son of man" in the Old Testament.

"God is not a [high, influential] man, that he should lie; neither the son of [a low-class] man that he should repent: hath he said, and shall he not do it?" (Num. 23:19). No man—king or slave, male or female—can say he will do a thing, and be sure he is going to do it, for there is with men this evil: "There is many a slip betwixt the cup and the lip." God is not like either of the two classes of men.

"Let thy hand [God's hand] be upon the man of thy right hand, upon the son of man whom thou madest strong for thyself" (Psalm 80:17). David was here speaking of himself, who was only an ordinary son of an ordinary, poor man.

THE THIEF ON THE CROSS

By Inez Titus, Salem, Oregon

THOUGH the account of the conversation between Christ and the thief on the cross is an old subject, we have a few thoughts that may be helpful in further study of this subject. We read in 2 Corinthians 13:1 that "in the mouth of two or three witnesses shall every word be established." In Matthew 27:44 and Mark 15:32, God's Word twice testifies that both thieves reviled Christ. The other place recording the conversation between Christ and the thief, where also Christ promised the thief a place with Him in Paradise, is Luke 23:43. Two of the three places, therefore, plainly present both thieves as revilers of Christ, and we suggest that this third text is not in disagreement with the other two texts.

All the way through the Scriptures, eternal life and the Kingdom of God are promised only to overcomers: those who through faith have obeyed the gospel, having repented and been baptized. There is no Biblical record that the thief ever had been anything but a thief: no record of his being repentant or baptized, nor even of having faith. Though this thief is commonly called "the repentant thief," the Scripture does not testify that he was repentant.

According to Luke 23:43, this one thief told the other thief that they were both receiving what was justly coming to them, but that Jesus was innocent. Then he asked Jesus for a place in His Kingdom. We suggest, on the basis of Matthew 27:44 and Mark 15:32, that his question was asked in sarcasm, being his way of reviling Jesus.

Jesus' answer was that the thief would be with Him "in paradise." The meaning of "paradise" is "garden," and for that reason many Bible students have interpreted Jesus' promise to mean that the thief would be with Him in the earth restored to its Garden-of-Eden beauty. We suggest, however, that Jesus was speaking of a different garden. John 19:41, 42 tells that Jesus was buried in "a garden" near "the place where he was crucified." Thus, Christ's promise was that they would be together in that garden—even the garden of death, the grave. Christ "made his grave with the wicked" (Isa. 53:9)—and "was numbered with the transgressors" (Mark 15:28).

The Saints or Christ?

By James Mattison, Hammond, Louisiana

WHY shouldn't I pray to Mary?" a man asked me recently. Unfortunately, thousands of persons, generally called Catholics, still believe in praying to Mary, the mother of Christ, and to other saints.

Scripture teaching is plain concerning this subject. There are four Biblical reasons why it does no good to pray to Mary. First, Mary is dead, and cannot intercede for us. Second, Christ is the only Mediator between God and men. Third, there is nothing in the Scriptures concerning prayers to Mary. Fourth, if Mary could hear prayer, she would not have the power to grant the wish. Let us consider these reasons.

First. Mary is dead. That a man's soul dies when he dies is a plain Scriptural teaching. Take, for example, the story of Joshua's slaying the inhabitants of Canaan, preparatory to Israel's settling in that land. "He took it [Lachish] the following day, and put it to the sword, and every soul that was in it" (Josh. 10:32, Douay Version—Catholic). Verse 35 reads, "And put to the sword all the souls that were in it." Joshua destroyed those souls. (V. 37.) Soul, here, means inhabitants, or people.

The New Testament does not differ from the Old Testament on this subject. Good King David did not go to heaven because that place was reserved for Christ. (See Acts 2:29, 34.) He is dead and buried. Why should we wish to pray to a dead man? If we pray to New Testament saints, why not pray to Old Testament saints?

"Every soul which will not hear that prophet [Christ] shall be destroyed from among the people." Thus reads Acts 3:23 from the Douay Version.

If souls die, by what means did Mary and the other saints escape death? If they are dead, why should we pray to them?

Second. Christ is the only Mediator. "There is one God and one mediator," said Paul, who was as good a saint as anyone. Christ alone can intercede for us before Almighty God. That is why we direct our prayers to God through Christ our Mediator. (See Heb. 7:25; Col. 3:17.)

"The Holy Spirit intercedes for us, also," say some persons who do not rightly understand Romans 8:26. Christ is called "a quickening [life-giving] spirit" in 1 Corinthians 15:45. Once we understand that Christ is called the "quickening spirit" ("spirit" because of His spiritual body), we can see that Christ is the "Spirit" that intercedes for us in Romans 8:26. Indeed, verse 34 states that fact. So we see there is only one Mediator, who is faithful to us and intercedes with "unspeakable groanings."

We now combine our first two thoughts. No saint, dead or alive, can forgive our sins. No dead saint can ask God to forgive our sins.

Third. There is nothing in the Bible concerning prayers to Mary. In fact, not much is written concerning Mary, the blessed one who was the mother of Christ. Scripture records Mary as a participator in nine different scenes: as 1) Joseph's wife, 2) Christ's mother, 3) conversing with Gabriel the archangel, 4) visiting Elisabeth, 5) going to Bethlehem to be taxed, 6) being visited by shepherds and wise men, 7) hearing Simeon's blessing for her Son, 8) watching at the foot of the cross, and 9) being with the brethren in prayer after Christ's ascension.

In none of the nineteen scriptures (several concern the same scene) that speak of Mary is there the slightest indication given that we should pray to her. Indeed, if praying to Mary is as important as some persons think, why is it not in the Scriptures?

Mary was a virtuous woman, and has been the most blessed among women, yet she can not hear our prayers.

Fourth. If Mary could hear prayer, she would not have the power to grant the wish. During Mary's lifetime no supernatural power was given to her. True, the miraculous conception of her Son was wrought by the power of God. She was, however, not the worker of the miracle, but the one on whom the miracle was worked.

Mary healed no leper nor blind man. She did not open one deaf ear or cure an epileptic. Mary forgave no sinner his sins.

There is no Biblical record of Mary's performing miracles.

If Mary were alive now, she could not influence the decision of Christ, either by love or authority. Was any person ever wiser than Solomon? Yes, Christ, only, was wiser. How could Mary, who was not as wise as Solomon, influence the One who was so much wiser than Solomon? Her love would not influence Him to have more mercy on men who sin, for in His wisdom, He has more mercy on sinners than we or Mary ever had.

In conclusion, let us remember that Mary held the most exalted position ever given to women—that of bearing and rearing the Messiah. Also remember that she is in the grave and cannot hear our prayers. Then, too, although she was once given special blessing, she was never given supernatural power. Also, no power on earth or in heaven can supersede Christ's judgment except Almighty God Himself.

Paul has written that Jehovah has set Jesus Christ at His own right hand, far above all power, above every name, and hath put all things under His feet. (See Eph. 1:20-23.) Christ is our Head. To Him we pray.

AT THE TABLE

By W. S. Tomlinson, Chagrin Falls, Ohio

WE CHRISTIANS are privileged to meet around the table of the Lord and to partake of the emblems that manifest His love toward us. I say we are privileged to meet around the Communion table, and so we are. Do we, however, really comprehend as we should the greatness and grandeur of the position we occupy? We have been called out of the religious darkness that is all about us into the glorious knowledge of the true gospel or glad tidings of the Kingdom of God, which Kingdom God purposes to establish upon this earth through His Son Jesus the Christ. This message of the Kingdom carries with it an invitation to all who have faith in it and who comply with the condition upon which it is offered, the promise of a joint inheritance in it. We who partake of the Lord's Supper have professed to believe the message of the gospel of the Kingdom and have complied with the first requirement, which is baptism into the name of Jesus the Christ. This step must be taken before one is entitled to sit at the Lord's table. It is the Lord's table; it belongs to Him, and He has the right to say who will meet with Him there.

Having united with the family of God through baptism into the name of Jesus, we are confronted with other requirements. We remember the commission Jesus gave His disciples—to make disciples of all nations and baptize them into the Name—then He added “teaching them to observe all things I have commanded you.” This was necessary, for we are required to develop a character that will be well pleasing to Him who has called us to the glory and honor of the Kingdom. How it may be accomplished is stated very many times and in different ways. Mortification and crucifixion of the flesh is chief among them. “Crucify the flesh with its affections and lusts,” said the Apostle, which means that serving the desires of the flesh is no longer to be the source of one's joy, nor the spring of his action, nor the main object of his life. He henceforth must live for the future, not for the present; for he now has a new hope, a new aim, a new purpose, all of which are centered in God. Hence, the Apostle said, “If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature.” Solemn consideration! The old ways of life are to be put aside, and one must bring himself under the transforming power of the gospel. Then only can it be said of him that he has been washed, sanctified, made accepted in the Beloved, and is worthy to partake at the Lord's table.

NO KNOWLEDGE OF GOD

By Mrs. Clinton J. Cox, Norwalk, California

THE APOSTLE PAUL spoke of God as One who would have “all men to be saved, and to come to the knowledge of the truth” (1 Tim. 2:4). Many people never think of studying the Bible, God's wonderful Word, for they do not realize that the purpose of the Bible is to instruct them in the way of salvation.

All over the world, too, there are people who know they are sinning, yet refuse to correct their lives. They may even confess: “I know I am sinning; I know I am doing wrong.” Others may read the Bible, yet fail to realize that disobedient ones will be rejected at the second coming of Christ.

With the foregoing conditions in mind, we quote Hosea 4:6, 7: “My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge: because thou hast rejected knowledge, I will also reject thee, that thou shalt be no priest to me: seeing thou hast forgotten the law of thy God, I will also forget thy children. As they were increased, so they sinned against me: therefore will I change their glory into shame.”

The world is so given to sinning today, that one question if people ever will set their minds to thinking in the right way. People prefer dancing, card playing, “snooker parlais,” and attending theaters, to donating a little time and means to the Lord and Saviour. Probably half the people who pretend to be living as Christians support these worldly pleasures. If they truly were God's people, they would turn away from their worldliness and study God's Holy Word that reveals the way of salvation.

Consider how much better it would be on the Judgment Day to be accepted of God, and of Christ, than to hear the Lord say, “I have no place for you.” Hebrews 10:26, 27 says: “If we sin wilfully after that we have received the knowledge of the truth, there remaineth no more sacrifice for sins, but a certain looking for of judgment and fiery indignation, which shall devour the adversaries.” Sinners think only of their own way, their own pleasure. God could help them, and would help them, if they would learn of Him and invite His help. More, those who obey the Lord receive His blessings and care, though many others are slipping away from God and associating with worldly people.

Asked to donate to the church, reply often is made: “I would like to contribute, but it costs so much to live and I can hardly ‘get by’ on what I make.” So, money, is withheld from the Lord's work. Proverbs 11:4 says: “Riches profit not in the day of wrath: but righteousness delivereth from death.” Riches cannot buy life in the Kingdom of God. God should be first in all one's thought and activities. So, through Christ and for His sake, let us put God first in everything, always.

GOD'S TOMORROW

from Greece. It is feared that probably one half, or almost a quarter of a million people, perished from the lack of helpfulness by a non-appreciative government of its own blood in a year or two after the order became operative.

This kind of conditions throughout the long pages of history can be multiplied by scores of incidents: death, loss, anguish, and heartbreak—sometimes done in the name of covenants, sometimes in the name of justice, sometimes in religious arrogance, and sometimes for political expediency. No matter what the reason put forth for such actions, none of them can be condoned by reasonable-minded people. They are great red splotches upon the record of time. They stand like judgment and cannot be erased, the brutality, death, loss, anguish, and heartbreak remain. Only forgiveness of a mighty Judge can dimly overcome these transgressions of nations.

Only in "God's Tomorrow" is there hope and assurance that these conditions shall be no more. No longer will mighty nations scour the faces of the poor and grind them to death in their lust for empire and dominion and domination of inferior peoples, exploiting them to their gain without return. Largely because of these lusts have present conditions been brought about—and look at the sorry mess that has resulted.

God's Tomorrow eventually will come, but many more years of this distress will engulf the world before the dawning of that Day. Let us be fervent, however, in supplication that this day of suffering may be shortened, and it may be that the Lord will be merciful.

INVENTORY

Stone that will strike the image of world kingdoms on the lower extremities: the present kingdoms of the world, even the feet and toes that are part of iron and part of clay. "In the days of these kings," said the interpreter of the king's dream, "shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed: and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and shall stand for ever" (Dan. 2:44).

People then living on the earth will be at peace among themselves. No armies or navies will be in existence either to carry on conquest or maintain peace by military force: no wars and no bloodshed, no jails, police, or cemeteries! National lines as well as national jealousies will have disappeared, and there will be only a single government over all the earth—"from Greenland's icy mountains to India's coral strand." The seat of government will be Jerusalem, which also will be the religious center. "At that time they shall call Jerusalem the throne of the Lord; and all nations shall be gathered unto it, to the name of the Lord, to Jerusalem: neither shall they walk any more after the imagination of their evil heart" (Jer. 3:17); and when they are thus gathered, it will be more than a geographical gathering. It will be "to the name of the Lord."

May we in these latter days heed Paul's advice to "watch . . . in all things," so we may follow the path that leads Zionward and be among those who are gathered in "the name of the Lord."

NOTES IN AN OLD BIBLE

"Lord, what is man [an influential man], that thou takest knowledge of him! or the son of [a poor] man, ~~that~~ thou makest account of him!" (Psalm 144:3). Listen people, "Put not your trust in princes [influential men], ~~nor~~ in the son of [a poor] man, in whom there is no help" (146:3).

"Thus saith the Lord, Keep ye judgment, and do justice: for my salvation is near to come, and my righteousness to be revealed. Blessed is the man [prince] that doeth this, and the [ordinary] son of [a poor] man that layeth hold on it" (Isa. 56:1, 2).

This is enough texts to show that "son of man" meant one from the lower, unimportant class of people.

Jesus was meek and lowly, appearing to be only an ordinary, poor man. He was born and raised among poor, common people, though they were very godly. Jesus' home town, Nazareth, was despised by all other towns of Judea, Samaria, and Galilee. Jesus, when speaking to the multitudes, named Himself "the Son of man" because the Scriptures foretold that the Christ would conduct Himself as if He were nothing but a son of man: He would not fight; He would not permit His followers to fight; He would not electioneer; He made no rebellious speeches to raise up mobs and violence. He made no man's-kind of campaign promises. All His promises were backed by Scripture promises of God. (John 18:36, 37.)

All persons who respected Jesus Christ addressed Him as Son of God, Son of David, the Christ, the Messiah, Master—never, "son of man."

"LOOKING FOR THAT BLESSED HOPE"

the glory which shall be revealed in us" (Rom. 8:18). Jesus spoke of Christians receiving "an hundredfold" in present life, and promised everlasting life in the world to come. (Matt. 19:29; Mark 10:30.) Sorrow and sighing shall flee away, and "there shall be no more curse" (Rev. 22:3). "Come, Lord Jesus!"

THE DIARY OF A BIBLE

Was It Yours?

Jan. 15—Been resting quietly for a week. The first few nights after the first of the year my owner read me regularly, but he has forgotten me, I guess.

Feb. 2—Clean-up. I was dusted with other things and put back in my place.

Feb. 8—Owner used me for a short time after dinner, looking up a few references. Went to Sunday school.

March 7—Clean-up. Dusted and in my old place again. Have been down in the lower hall since my trip to Sunday school.

April 2—Busy day. Owner led League meeting and had to look up references. He had an awful time finding one, though it was right there in its place all the time.

May 5—In Grandma's lap all afternoon. She is here on a visit. She let a tear drop fall on Colossians 2:5-7.

May 6—In Grandma's lap again this afternoon. She spent most of her time on 1 Corinthians 13, and the last four verses of the fifteenth chapter.

May 7, 8, 9—In Grandma's lap every afternoon now. It's a comfortable spot. Sometimes she reads me and sometimes she talks to me.

May 10—Grandma gone. Back in the old place. She kissed me good bye.

June 3—Had a couple of four-leaf clovers stuck in me today.

July 1—Packed in a trunk with clothes and other things. Off on a vacation, I think.

July 10—Still in the trunk—though nearly everything else has been taken out.

July 15—Home again and in my old place. Quite a journey, though I do not see why I went.

Aug. 1—Rather stuffy and hot. Have two magazines, a novel, and an old hat on top of me. Wish they would take them off.

Sept. 5—Clean-up. Dusted and set right again.

Sept. 10—Used by Mary a few minutes today. She was writing a letter to a friend whose brother had died, and wanted an appropriate verse.

Sept. 30—Clean-up again.

This is both pathetic and all too true.

PARADE

By Arlen Marsh

"Literature—the most seductive, the most deceiving, the most dangerous of professions."—Viscount Morley.

No book could more adequately point the moral in the Viscount's remark than The Story of Jesus in the World's Literature (Creative Age Press; $5.00). For herein Edward Wagenknecht, who gave us the remarkably versatile Fireside Book of Christmas Stories, has set forth quite the most astounding collection of literary treatments of Jesus, traditional and Biblical, that has, as far as I now know, seen print.

The big volume (it measures 8½ by 11 inches, and runs to 475 pages) is divided into sections: the coming, the hidden period of Jesus' childhood, young manhood, ministry—enough sections, in short, to cover the Christ's entire life and a good bit of His future work as well. The arrangement is chronological, so that one may follow the consecutive order of the Messiah's activities.

Much of the material is poetry—mainly, rather brief poetry, and all prepared by classicists and the best modern poets. There is, however, still a good measure of prose, including such magnificent favorites as Van Dyke's Story of the Other Wise Man and Coningsby Dawson's The Seventh Christmas. The prose is fiction, and it is exposition, and it is history, and it is fact. The verse varies from the simple meter of Longfellow to the more modern style of Alice Maynell. Wagenknecht is a genius for finding the very best of everything; he has edited a number of important collections, and this one on Jesus is perhaps his best.

The appearance of the book is considerably enhanced by the brilliant decorations and illustrations of Fritz Kredel, who supplies the drawings for section titles. At least one long play—Maxwell Anderson's Journey to Jerusalem, regarding Jesus' childhood—flings itself across the usual selections of prose and poetry, and does so delightfully.

The Story of Jesus in the World's Literature is not a Christmas book; it is not an Easter book. It is a book to be read and quoted and used in sermons and lessons throughout the year. (Just remember, if you do use it, that it is copyrighted; don't try reproducing it in your church bulletin!) It is heartily recommended to anybody.

"When they deliver you up, take no thought how or what ye shall speak; for it shall be given you in that same hour what ye shall speak" (Matthew 10:19).

The Rod of Moses

God called Moses to go to Pharaoh and lead the children of Israel out of Egypt.

Moses talked with God, and God talked with Moses. Moses was instructed to do certain things. He was to gather the elders of Israel together. God told Moses the people would obey his orders.

Moses answered and said, "Behold, they will not believe me, nor hearken unto my voice: for they will say, The Lord hath not appeared unto thee" (Ex. 4:1).

The Lord asked Moses what he had in his hand. Moses told Him it was a rod. "Cast it on the ground," said the Lord God.

Moses cast it down. It became a serpent. It must have been a very evil-looking snake, for the account tells us that Moses fled from before it. (Ex. 4:3.)

God told Moses to pick it up by the tail. Then it was a rod again in his hand.

This was to be Moses' proof to the people that God had indeed spoken to him.

Moses Not Eloquent

Moses spoke to God again. He said he was slow of speech and of a slow tongue. He had been well educated, for we know he had been found by Pharaoh's daughter. He was brought up in the palace with his own mother for his nurse. (How helpful it would be for more of us to be slow of speech and tongue.)

Moses said he never had been eloquent. Nor was he any different since God spoke to him, said he.

That is true of people today. They do not suddenly become what they would like to be when they learn to know Christ. Christians are told to "grow" from babes in Christ to grown men. Christians either grow or become weaker.

A New Mouthpiece

Moses was given a spokesman. Aaron, his brother, spoke very well. God said Aaron could speak to the people for Moses. Moses, however, was still the leader. He was to take his rod along to do signs before the Israelites and the Egyptians.

The Lord Jesus, who now speaks to men through the Word of God, has promised His followers today strength and whatever is needed. Sin is not to rule our lives. Paul said he could do all things through Christ who strengthened him. (Phil. 4:13.)

If our need is a new mouthpiece, God is able to help us. He has promised to provide for our every need if we abide in His will.

A Game: Your Choice!

News and Prophecy Digest

By C. E. Randall (Fonthill, Ontario)

SIGNS OF THE TIMES. According to an article in the "American Medical Journal" there are now 600,000 chronic alcoholics in the United States, 2,000,000 heavy drinkers, and 35,000,000 social drinkers. But the liquor interests are not having everything their own way. Only recently two of the most populous counties in Alabama voted dry. As a matter of fact, about 26,000,000 Americans now live in dry territory.

AFLAME WITH ANXIETY. Just before writing these lines, we were listening to a European reporter on a broadcast, and he said that "the people of Europe are aflame with anxiety over the dangers of another conflict." "Anxiety"! What a word! What a mental condition! It is a state of mental torment that plagues those who are living within its grips. All this at the end of the first full year of peace (?) since the cessation of hostilities of the second world war! With such a frame of mind ruling in the lives of millions of men and women—the promised "on earth, peace, good will to men" seems farther away than ever. Yet, its nearness may be closer than most of us anticipate. One thing is certain, it will not be realized until the "Prince of Peace" returns to earth to assume His rightful rule over men, and fulfills the purpose for which He was born—to be King over all.

While multitudes are living in the throes of anxiety, the child of God who patiently waits for His Lord's return can enjoy the first fruits of the Kingdom inheritance, which are "righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost."

THE REAL ROME. Without upholding many practices of Jehovah's Witnesses in their efforts to promulgate their teachings (I do admire their zeal), yet, the persecution which they are meeting in the Province of Quebec at the hands of the State and the Church of Rome calls forth righteous indignation from all who profess to love freedom of conscience and expression of conviction on religious matters.

There have been about one thousand Witnesses arrested in this one Province, which is predominantly Roman Catholic, on the grounds of distributing literature without a license. The real issue back of the wholesale arrests is the power of the Roman Catholics.

Various Roman Catholic prelates and societies have given their wholehearted support to Premier Duplessis of the Province of Quebec, who also is attorney general for the Province. Some of the matter to which strong exception has been taken is a paragraph in a pamphlet castigating the people of Quebec for burning of Bibles. It reads: "Is it love for God that moves Quebec mobs to tear copies of God's Word, the Bible, to shreds and burn them in the flames? Is it an evidence of love for Christ for these same religious mobs to dash and stone Christ's followers, hound them throughout the Province, damage property, and otherwise go on deliriously wild rampages of vandalism against Christ's brethren?"

This has been termed "libel against the Roman Catholic Church and clergy." Recorder Mercier, of Montreal, in imposing sentence on some of the Witnesses, which was the heaviest fine possible, said he would like to give them "life."

Did someone say something about the last war being fought for religious freedom? Wherever the Church of Rome has the power, she persecutes.

ECONOMIC JUSTICE. The three great religious organizations, The Federal Council of Churches, the Synagogue Council of America, and the National Catholic Welfare Conference, joined in drafting a pronouncement on matters concerning the economic life in the United States. The statement was released for publication on October 16. It reads in part: "Economic life is meant to be an organized and democratic partnership for the general welfare rather than a competitive struggle for individual or group advantage. The profit motive, while useful within reasonable limits, must be subordinated to the motive of the service of human needs and the dictates of social justice."

If these organizations can co-operate for the good of the people in economic matters, why can't they show as good a spirit in religious affairs? Oftentimes people will show a much better spirit in matters of secular affairs than they will in regard to religious matters. Why is it?

SUN SPOTS. Ralph DeLury, solar physicist at the Dominion Observatory in Ottawa, believes that the spots which have appeared on the sun have had a bearing on the incidence of disease. He associates the epidemic of polio with these sun spots. He says: "The number of cases of poliomyelitis in 38 States of the United States in 1937 was approximately three times greater than the average number for the preceding years back to the minimum of spots in 1923."

"Perhaps it is but mere coincidence that the epidemic of this disease of 1937 and other regions occurred at a maximum of sun spots. Coinciding with the spectacular peak in sun spots at the maximum in 1917-18, meningitis soared to abnormal peaks, subsiding to lows in 1922-25 and rising steadily to a lesser peak of a small maximum of sun spots."

Many health authorities believe that such cycles have great effects on plant life, and in fact on the people eating it.

WAR AND WORSHIP. The last chapter of Zechariah is one of the most interesting and instructive of last-day events in the Old Testament. Dr. Gaebelein described it as the "grand summing up and description of the events which stand at the close of the great tribulation." In his book on "Studies in Zechariah," he says: "It was stated not long ago from post-millennial sides that this in itself was beyond belief. How could it be possible that the progress of civilization could be arrested to such an extent, that the nations of Christendom would unite to march up against the Holy City? The Gospel heaven (?) was at work as never before, and it would be impossible that these nations who will become more and more thus leavened could be occupied with such a campaign."

These lines were written previous to the second world war, but with forces everywhere crying for peace, and nearly all church denominations putting on "Crusades for Christ" in an effort to win the world for Christ, it will not be long until men will be re-stating this line of teaching with greater emphasis than ever before. Of this type of message, we must be constantly guarding ourselves against. The great Jehovah has Himself said: "I will gather all nations against Jerusalem to battle." This has not been fulfilled—it will be fulfilled. It is after this time that unto Shiloh "shall the gathering of the people be." When Shiloh comes and the law goes forth from Jerusalem, it will be the fruitful time spoken of by the prophet when nations will beat their swords into plowshares and they shall learn war no more. From that point in history will righteousness find expression in the acts of nations. For the winter months, some very helpful hours can be spent in studying the great prophecies of Zechariah.

A GREAT PEOPLE. The people of Israel are much in the news these days, especially in relation to the Holy Land. With so much anti-Semitism abroad in the world, it is well for Christian people to remember the purpose which God has for Israel. It is not enough to merely be "tolerant," or to treat people of Jewish descent on an equality.

William Laing in "Life and Advent Truth" expresses a profound truth when he says: "It is the purpose of God to make the people of Israel the chief nation upon the earth; and their capital city, Jerusalem, the metropolis of the whole world." This is his statement in response to a question which introduces a chapter on "The Grand Future of the Israelitish People." The question: "Why do you make so much ado about Israel? In Christ Jesus there is neither Jew nor Greek; all such distinctions are done away in Him."

There are many who ask this same question today. Laing's answer is well-stated. Our attitude toward Israel and toward the un-Christian spirit of anti-Semitism should be guided by the knowledge that Israel is God's lost sheep, and that in His own good time He will regather them and be their eternal Shepherd; and they shall go in and out with great zeal as the "priests of our Lord." A wonderful future for thee, O house of Israel!

BRECKENRIDGE TO HOUSTON

Working south from Aspermont, Texas, one-day stops were made successively at Breckenridge, Cisco, Rising Star, and Brownwood, December 17-20, at each of which places there are a few interested members and friends. A pleasant visit was enjoyed with two Christadelphian brethren at Breckenridge, who made me very welcome. At Cisco, there are a couple members, among them a daughter of Bro. F. P. Hestand, one of our late ministers in Texas. I also met a grandson there of Bro. W. B. Hester, another of our ministers now sleeping. A Christadelphian family also lives there, whose members were very cordial in their welcome.

We have one member at Rising Star, and there is a Christadelphian congregation there, only one family of which I met, however.

Brownwood has a small group of believers, who have moved in from other places. It was a pleasure to meet these people, who, if their work schedules coincided better, might organize a Bible class or Sunday school.

Reaching Mullin on December 21, a preaching service was held that night and again Sunday morning. There was not a large attendance, since many of the people did not know of it in time. It was a real pleasure to be with these good people over the week end, who have learned to know and love in previous visits.

Leaving Mullin Sunday afternoon, I drove to San Saba for a short visit with the Pattons there, then drove to Lometa to the home of Bro. and Sr. Tom Conradt, who accompanied me the next day to Houston for the Christmas holidays.

At Houston there are about eight members and about ten interested families. Among these the Brown family constitutes the nucleus and I spent Christmas with them, as it is inexpedient to return north for Christmas year. In the Brown family there are Mrs. Eura Conradt, Eugene, Clyde, Mrs. A. Hampton, the latter two of Fort Worth, M. Winnie Pugh, Frank and Jack. All were present except Clyde. These are children of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Brown. A sister of Mrs. Brown, Mrs. A. W. Brown, has three sons, George, and Walter, all members. There in addition, there are two daughters of Mr. and Mrs. John Guthrie of Mullin, Mrs. Belle Moses and Mrs. Holly Dunaway. Mr. Joyce Hancock from Rising Star.

I spent two weeks in Houston. The brethren are widely scattered, but I believe there is a prospect of possible future work there.

M. W. Lyon, Evangelist.

Gleanings From the Field

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

Sr. Lydia Chapman, Camden, Ill., unable to attend church services, much enjoys the weekly visits of her Herald.

Sr. Jennie Salisbury, Cleveland, Ohio, enjoyed the picture study of Christ in The Herald of December 10, '46, commenting: "It seemed as a token to His people sent in advance of that Day when, with great power emanating from his clasped hands, He will command from Mount Zion the 'blessing, even life for evermore' (Psalm 133:3)."

January 27-31—Midwinter Ministerial Conference at Oregon, Ill.

"I do so enjoy the prophetic articles in The Restitution Herald. The second coming of our Lord is a very dear subject to me."—Mrs. M. E. Elton, 715 H St., Rupert, Idaho.

Bro. N. S. Westfall, 425 W. Water St., Troy, Ohio, one of our faithful senior members, writes that he is "looking for the return of our Saviour who will rule in righteousness."

Mr. and Mrs. Harper Koontz, Oregon, Ill., and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Doan, Chicago, Ill., are visiting Harold's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Doan, Hynes, Calif.

The prospect is good that the print shop of National Bible Institution soon will have another full-time man in its employ. We are thereby to be able to handle all our work more expeditiously.

By using a day for a year in interpreting Daniel 12:12, Bro. Lucian Murphy, Ash Okla., sees two lines of thought indicating that 1947 may witness the ending of Gentile times. He writes further: "It looks to me that Russia may soon start her march toward the Holy Land, and that the church will be taken out of the Tribulation just ahead." . . . Bro. Murphy also writes that his youngest daughter, Norma June, was baptized by Bro. Harry Gockler last August at Marshall, Ill., commenting: "All members of our family are now in the faith and looking for Christ's second coming Kingdom."

"We surely enjoyed Bud Goodwin's sermons last Sunday (January 5). He was a make a good minister if he continues his training, and I pray that God will bless him in his effort."—Mrs. Edwin Engebretson, Lake, Wis.

Sr. Lewis Lindsay, Oregon, Ill., is visiting her mother, Mrs. Martha Wilson, Saint Louis, Mo.

KOKOMO, INDIANA

The church was packed to overflowing the evening of December 15, when a piano instructor, Mrs. Sunshine Fitch, and her entire class of twenty-five students gave a religious musical recital in the church.

A watch party was held at the parsonage New Year's Eve. A feature of the occasion was the burning of the mortgage which was held against the parsonage for two and one half years. The house and lot were purchased in May, 1944, and paid for in December, 1946, which should encourage other churches to provide a parsonage. Emory Maey, Pastor.

ARABS FOR WAR. The call has gone forth to the Arabs of Palestine to prepare for a fight against the Jews of that country. The commander and chief of the Najada Arab army urged the members of the Najada to organize for a fight to the finish against the Jews. He said, "The Mufti will give you the signal when the hour comes." The Mufti of Jerusalem is the exiled Haj Amin Husseini. Hawari, the commander, further stated: "We will prove to the world that we—the Najada—are stronger than the world thinks we are. Therefore, prepare yourselves to win a decisive battle which will be fought on an unprecedented scale."

Those close to the explosive situation expect that shortly after the new year, the rioting and work of the underground forces in Palestine will burst out on a larger scale. C. E. Randall.

OREGON BIBLE COLLEGE NEWS

Christmas vacation is over and all are back at College again, and allegedly hard at work. A pleasant vacation was enjoyed by all. On behalf of the faculty and students, we would like to wish our friends all over the country a very happy and prosperous New Year!

Mabel Payne accompanied her husband, Harry, on a trip back to Oregon. She is enrolled as a student in the College. We hope that there will be others enrolling for the second semester also, but as yet have no definite information on this subject.

The "barbers" were at work here at the College the other night. They are Gordon Landry and Kirby Davis, who have an agreement whereby they cut each other's hair. No one has as yet discovered for certain whether this is the result of a dare or not. At any rate, the boys were doing a bit of "hair cutting" the other night when a catastrophe occurred. Gordon's car was nesting a bit too close to some locks of his hair, that Kirby was after, and now Gordon has a little less car as well as a little less hair. Did we say "a little less hair"?

The final exams for this semester are extremely close at hand, and approaching even closer at a terrifying speed for those who must write them. Our period of trial and tribulation will be from January 21-24. Ah yes, "To pass or not to pass, that is the question." The answer will come in a few short weeks.

The course and schedules for the second semester are now complete, excepting perhaps a few minor changes that may be necessary. We all are looking forward to an even better semester than last—and that is saying quite a bit—in every way, spiritually, educationally, and socially. Therefore, we urge all who can possibly come for the second semester to do so.

Milton Hall conducted services at Reusslaer, Ind., last Sunday. His sermon topics were "Self-Examination" and "Obedience." Tim Pearson travels to Hope Chapel Church of God in South Bend, Ind., each week end. He is student pastor there. Gordon Landry is continuing to do an excellent work at East Oregon Chapel. They expect to have the church basement completed this spring, which will greatly facilitate Sunday school services. "Bud" Goodwin preached for his home congregation at Graytown, Wis., January 5.

During our absence over Christmas vacation, several commendable changes were effected. We wish to thank the ones responsible for these improvements. Floors were repainted, new curtains put up, and a host of other things taken care of. Thanks once again for everything. W. Howard Beemer, Reporter.

"As ye have therefore received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk ye in him; rooted and built up in him, and established in the faith, as ye have been taught, abounding therein with thanksgiving."—Col. 2:6, 7.

ELDORADO, ILLINOIS

On Sunday evening, December 22, the Restitution Church at Eldorado, Ill., held its annual Christmas party for the Sunday school. The church was beautifully decorated with a lighted tree, branches of cedar, and candles.

Special musical numbers and recitations by the small folk were followed by a play, "When the King Came." In keeping with the theme of the play, Bro. Edward Goit made a short talk, after which the many gifts were presented, and a treat of candy and oranges was given to each person of the large gathering.

The recent offering received for the improvement of the church was very well spent to improve the heating of the church basement. The church board also discussed plans for new entrance steps as soon as the weather permits. Virginia Davenport.

MR. AND MRS. ALBERT C. WILDE

Matilda Shelly was born, October 8, 1858, in Butler Co., Pa., being the daughter of Henry L. and Margaret Drushel Shelly. She died at the home of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wilde, Oregon, Ill., January 6, 1947. She was of the Mennonite faith, her father being a Mennonite minister.

She was married to Albert C. Wilde, January 21, 1879, at Kankakee, Ill., to which union nine children were born, the living being Adolph and Frank, Oregon, Ill.; Clinton of Winter Haven, Fla.; Milton, Oregon, Ill.; Edna Canfield, Des Moines, Iowa. Besides these surviving children, she is survived by seventeen grandchildren, eight great-grandchildren, and many friends.

Funeral services were conducted, January 9, at the Farrell Funeral Home, Oregon, Ill., the writer speaking on "God's Tomorrow," and Bro. Kirby Davis assisting in song by the same title. Burial was made in Riverview Cemetery.

Albert C. Wilde was born, February 2, 1955, about one hundred miles from Berlin, Germany. When fourteen years of age, he came with his mother and stepfather, Anna C. and Carl E. Erkleben, to America, settling about five miles northeast of Oregon, Ill. In his early twenties, he met Matilda Shelly at Oregon, and they were married, January 21, 1879, at Kankakee, Ill. They farmed there a few years, then returned to near Oregon, where they farmed until 1912; then they moved into town.

From his early life in Germany, Mr. Wilde lived in faith toward God, his family being Lutherans. Until his last days, he cherished a certain old Bible that he insisted be near at hand in his room.

Death claimed this father of his community on January 10, 1947 (as he approached ninety-two years of age) at the home of his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wilde, Oregon, Ill., within a day after his wife was laid to rest.

Those surviving are the five children, seventeen grandchildren, and eight great-grandchildren as reported in Mrs. Wilde's obituary here appearing, also a host of friends.

The writer preached the funeral sermon, "The Temple of God," at the Farrell Funeral Home, January 12, 1947, burial being made in Riverview Cemetery. Kirby Davis, accompanied by Lois Carpenter, sang at the service. Sydney E. Magaw.

God's Great Cataract

By Paul M. Hatch

Down from Eric's Lagoon anon,
The rock-torn torrent wends its way;
Meandering, murmuring upon
Sharp edged, sight hid, stony melec.

Swift it flows toward destruction;
Loud it protests the obstacle path;
Last it seems in peace reluctance,
Ere it descends in abysmal wrath.

Placid pool beneath it lies;
Strange, strange that this fulfill,
That the soul before it dies,
Strongly strives and then is still.

Night's Niagara in grandeur gazing;
Naught it seems but Dante's well:
Falling, falling, eternally blazing,
Misty hued with the fires of hell.

Entered as second class matter at the Post Office at Oregon, Illinois, under act of March, 1879. Mailed weekly, except the fourth Tuesday of August and the last Tuesday of December.

Haggai's Four Sermons

When, under decree of Cyrus, the Exile Jews returned from Babylon to Jerusalem, they began in the year 536 B.C., to rebuild the Temple. Opposition and discouragement soon ended their efforts, however, and for sixteen years building was discontinued. Then came Haggai, the prophet, who, with four sermons, inspired the Jews to resume building the Temple. During the sixteen years' interim, the Jews had been erecting and beautifying their private dwellings, and they had worked hard to make a comfortable living. Crops, though, had been meager.

Sermon I—September 1, 520 B.C.

Haggai recognized the crop failures as God's punishment upon the Jews for their neglecting to rebuild the Temple. "Is it time for you, O ye, to dwell in your cieled houses, and this house lie waste?" "Consider your ways," cried Haggai. "Ye have sown much, and bring in little." "He that earneth wages earneth wages to put it into a bag with holes" . . . Ouch! when a Jew loses money through holes in his own pockets!

"Go up to the mountain, and bring wood, and build the house . . . and I will be glorified, saith the Lord. Ye looked for much, and, lo, it came to little; and when ye brought it home, I did blow upon it. Why? saith the Lord of hosts. Because of mine house which is waste, and ye run every man unto his own house. Therefore the heaven over you is stayed from dew, and the earth is stayed from her fruit" (Hag. 1:9, 10).

Haggai's sermon took root in the heart of Zerubbabel, governor of Jerusalem; in Joshua the high priest; and gradually in all the people. After twenty-three days, on September 24, 520 B.C., all "the remnant of the people" renewed building on the Temple. It paid to preach.

Sermon II—October 21, 520 B.C.

Zealous as were the builders, complaint soon filled the air. This structure would not compare in glory with the Temple as it was built by Solomon!—The "good old days"!

Haggai then pleaded: "Be strong, O Zerubbabel. . . . Be strong, O Joshua. . . . Be strong, all ye people of the land. . . . I am with you, saith the Lord of hosts"! Then, speaking as of the Lord, Haggai assured the Jews that God had not forgotten His thousand-year-old covenant made with them at the Exodus. In short, God of the Exodus was God of the Jews—was God of this new Temple. Moreover, God, the Owner of all gold and silver, assured: "The glory of this latter house shall be greater than of the former"—not necessarily that this rebuilt structure immediately would surpass the former, but interwoven with this revived spirit of the Jews was hope of the coming of the Messiah. "I will shake all nations," said God, "and the desire of all nations shall come" (2:7). How insignificant then will Solomon's Temple be! and how glorious the Temple of God! So build, Jews! Build!—and they did!

Sermons III and IV—December 24, 520 B.C.

As the Temple went up, the spirit of the people arose. God would bless them immeasurably, momentarily. In that expectancy, they were mistaken. By a parable from Israel's ceremonial law, Haggai showed that the Jews' earlier reluctance to rebuild the Temple had so displeased God, that they could not expect a speedy blessing. "From this day forward," however, Haggai prophesied that God would bless the builders. As choicest fruit grows in almost inaccessible and topmost branches, God's choicest favors are above the reach of normal effort.

Haggai's fourth sermon was one of Messianic comfort and cheer. This governor of Jerusalem, Zerubbabel, was proclaimed God's signet, God's seal or oath of a Better Day. Apparently, God recognized in the righteousness and loyalty of Zerubbabel, a temporary governor, those qualities of character that would enable earth's eternal King, the Messiah, to "destroy the strength of the kingdoms of the heathen," and to establish God's eternal and glorious Temple.

Haggai, everybody in America works hard to make a living. Most of us have well-finished homes. Sometimes, though, our crops suffer in need of rain; and, no matter how much money we earn, it slips away as through holey pockets. Thank you, Haggai, for your prescription!

Souls and Salvation

By Lyle Rankin, Cashmere, Washington

IT IS COMMONLY taught that when one dies, his body returns to the dust and an immortal entity called the soul or spirit separates from the body and returns to God. First, let us understand what the Scriptures teach concerning the word "soul." Is it used to denote the body, or something separate that cannot die?

In Genesis 46:18 we read, "These she bare unto Jacob, even sixteen souls." Therefore, souls are born. Job said, "My soul chooseth strangling, and death rather than my life" (7:15)—showing that souls have the power of choice. Isaiah 29:8 reads: "His soul is empty . . . his soul hath appetite." Souls may be empty and hungry. "The full soul loatheth an honeycomb; but to the hungry soul every bitter thing is sweet" (Prov. 27:7). Souls may be full or hungry, and souls may die as is shown in Ezekiel 18:4, 20: "The soul that sinneth, it shall die."

It was when Hezekiah was about to die, that he was near "the gates of the grave." There corruption takes place, and from that state the righteous dead are to be raised to incorruption. (1 Cor. 15:51-54). Concerning the time God spared Hezekiah and added more days to his life, he wrote, "Thou hast in love to my soul delivered it from the pit of corruption." Souls can die and corrupt. (See Isa. 38.) Now, if that righteous king Hezekiah expected to enjoy endless bliss in the presence of God a few seconds after death, why did he turn his face toward the wall and pray with weeping?

Moreover, Jesus said that souls may be destroyed. (See Matt. 10:28.) Acts 3:23 says: "Every soul which will not hear that prophet [Christ] shall be destroyed from among the people." A number of times the word "soul" is used to denote life, but never a deathless entity.

As to the word "spirit," sometimes it is used to denote the person, as in 1 John 4:1. It is used also to denote the breath which we breathe, as in James 2:26 (see the marginal reading). Job said, "All the while my breath is in me, and the spirit of God is in my nostrils" (27:3), and this is the spirit that "returns to God who gave it" (Eccl. 12:7). What was it God gave? Genesis 2:7 shows it was the breath of life that caused Adam to live. When one dies, he goes "down into silence" (Psalm 115:17); his "thoughts perish" (146:3, 4); also, "love, hatred, and envy . . . perish" (Eccl. 9:6). They remain thus until the dead awake in the resurrection. Then the righteous will enter the presence of Christ (1 Thess. 4:13-18). When the wicked are raised from the dead, it will be to damnation. (John 5:28, 29.)

Where will the saints go when they rise to meet the Lord in the air? Zephaniah 2:1-3 and Isaiah 26:19-21 answer these questions, showing that the saints who are sleeping in the ground shall awake and sing and enter into a place of hiding until the indignation of the Lord is overpast. Then they will be given authority over people of the earth, as co-rulers with Christ. (Rev. 2:26; 3:21; 5:9, 10; Luke 19:12-19.)

Yes, Jesus is to reign on the earth after His feet settle on the Mount of Olives. This rulership will be shared with His saints. (Dan. 7:27; Zech. 14:3, 4; Rev. 11:15.) Maybe human beings cannot tell exactly what the saints will be like in the resurrection, but the Word of God reveals certain truths about the change to take place. If we are told "we shall be like him" (Christ) (1 John 3:1-3), that Christ is the first-fruit of the dead or a likeness of what the saints are to be, and that "as we have borne the image of the heavenly" (Christ) (1 Cor. 15:49), then we should see if we can understand what Christ was like after His resurrection. Notice the following quotations:

"I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore" (Rev. 1:18).

"Behold my hands and my feet, that it is I myself: handle me, and see; for a spirit hath not flesh and bones, as ye see me have . . . and he . . . did eat before them" (Luke 24:39, 43).

Jesus was alive forevermore! He had hands, feet, flesh, bones, was able to eat, walk, talk, breathe, and could be recognized, because He looked like He did before He was crucified. Also, they knew that His hands and His feet had been pierced as He was nailed to the cross. Yes, the Jesus that walked and talked with them suffered death before their eyes, was buried while the women watched, and was the Jesus that showed Himself to them after His passion. This is the One the saints are to be like when they are changed, thus bearing His image.

Shortly after Jesus was resurrected, He was seen of Mary and spoke to her, saying, "Touch me not; for I am not yet ascended to my Father: but go to my brethren and say unto them, I ascend unto my Father, and your Father; and to my God, and your God" (John 20:17). Jesus had spoken, during His ministry, of going to the Father (John 14) which had not yet been accomplished when He spoke to Mary, but He reminded them He would go. The Record tells of His ascension. (Mark 16:19; Luke 24:51; Acts 1:9-11.)

It now remains for God to send (Please turn to page 9)

The Two Gates

By Mary Mae Nedrow, Oregon, Illinois

"Enter ye in at the strait gate: for wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat: because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it" (Matthew 7:13, 14).

ALL ARE admonished to "depart from evil, and do good," for to be "carnally minded is death; but to be spiritually minded is life and peace." Is not the fruit of the spirit "love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance"? We are warned that "he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption;

but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting." "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." "He that reapeth receiveth wages, and gathereth fruit unto life eternal; that both he that soweth and he that reapeth may rejoice together."

"Fear none of those things which thou shalt suffer; behold, the devil shall cast some of you into prison, that ye may be tried; and ye shall have tribulation . . . [but] be thou faithful unto death, and I will give you a crown of life." "Because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it." These are the words of Jesus, our blessed Saviour.

Dear Christian friends, let us not boast and glory in unrighteousness. So much is said today about not being able to tell a Christian from a person of the world. How sad that Christians will admit that it is so! Personally, I believe that true Christians live that kind of life that others can, and do, see Jesus reflected in them. Once Elijah was discouraged and thought he was the only one left who was trying to serve God, but God showed him that there were seven thousand in Israel who had not bowed down to idols. (1 Kings 19.)

Although obstacles seem to grow mountain high, tomorrow they undoubtedly will appear to be no more than molehills. Jesus said that unless we become "as a little child" we cannot enter into the Kingdom of God. Jesus used many similes in His teaching and preaching. A little child trusts us to lead him through dark places and will trustingly take us by the hand, fully believing he shall be brought into the light again. Unless we trust in God as a little child trusts in us, the way will ever be dark, and the storms of life will toss us to and fro. Oh that we might be trusting as a little child! The Scriptures make it plain that in the last days association with Christ will cause a believer much suffering. A Christian is not promised protection from suffering which will come upon him, but is promised that it will not be more than he can bear. In the first few centuries A.D., Christians were hunted like wild beasts and tortured and sometimes put to death. Today it is different. Christians are not tortured physically, but different methods are used, for times truly have changed. The works of evil continue through centuries, seeking to tear down and weaken that which others have built. God however, allows things to go on just so long, and then He intervenes. He always does! Christian friends, do not get discouraged, for God is still on His throne. When these things "begin to come to pass, then look up, and lift up your heads; for your redemption draweth nigh."

Our blessed Lord Jesus said we should love our enemies. We as Christians try to do just that, but we do not love the evil things they do. There is always forgiveness awaiting the repentant sinner, but there is danger in delay. Sometimes repentance comes too late. Esau "found no place of repentance, though he sought it carefully with tears." He did not experience godly sorrow, being only sorry for himself.

Haman the Agagite's downfall might be said to have come from his plan to destroy others. Success has turned the head of many a person. Headlong they have plunged to their doom. Haman had become a power behind the throne of Ahasuerus, the Persian king. He planned the destruction of the Jewish captives. Because Mordecai refused to bow in homage to him, Haman built a gallows right in his own back yard; but he was hanged himself on the gallows his own guilty hands had so cunningly devised for another. He had visualized Mordecai hanging there choking, but now the tables were turned; and he was being led to this very same gallows. Too late to make retribution! "So they hanged Haman on the gallows that he had prepared for Mordecai."

Those who sin the most really have the least excuse for sinning. Oftentimes it is one whom God has wonderfully blessed. Our thoughts go back to the incident in the Garden. Adam and Eve had everything to make them happy, yet the one thing they could not have they wanted. Because of their sin in disobeying God, they were banished from the Garden. It seems it is that way today. Those who know better wilfully sin. "The wages of sin is death" (second death). No one is safe and secure because of his great blessings.

Jesus the Son of God was betrayed by his friend and fellow worker. For 1946 years, the name of Judas has been used in connection with one who betrays another. Judas Iscariot, though professing the name of Christ, carried within him a wicked, black heart. To plan another's destruction is like walking on loose ground. Judas, in remorse, went back to those to whom he had sold his Lord for thirty pieces of silver, less than twenty dollars. His sorrow and remorse seemed more than he could bear, but

Good Neighbor Policy

By (Mrs.) Florence Pease, Ashtabula, Ohio

"Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself" (Matthew 22:39).

AN ANCIENT proverb says: "Love thy neighbor, but pull not down thy hedge." Is not this the attitude of nations and neighbors today? Nations do not wish to be unarmed; they fear their neighbors. Hark to these words of 1 John 4:18: "There is no fear in love; but perfect love casteth out fear: because fear hath torment. He that feareth is not made perfect in love."

Unwilling as they are to destroy their warfare, can the nations hope for lasting unity, peace, and love? Are they not filled with fear and distrust of each other? Where can one go to find the practice or custom of nations loving their neighbors as themselves? Or of individuals loving others as themselves? Get ahead of your neighbor is the game of life today. Yet, "Love thy neighbour as thyself" is God's second greatest commandment. Will a prosperous neighbor share worldly gains with his poor, unfortunate neighbor and expect no recompense? Ungodly profits off the poor is the mania of the times. Temptation to make excess profits off laborers in all industry is growing worse and worse: exacting out of their meager pay various taxes, dues, licenses, and profits, and the poor grind out only a meager existence, doing without many essentials of life and health.

One sees the following scripture fulfilled today as never before: "Ye have despised the poor. Do not rich men oppress you, and draw you before the judgment seats?" (James 2:6.) We quote next a scripture that will be fulfilled only when God's Kingdom Age comes on earth—"If ye fulfil the royal law according to the scripture, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself, ye do well" (James 2:8). My father once said, "No human being is capable of loving his neighbor as himself." At least, in my lifetime, I have never seen it practiced. Love of self and greediness have mounted the throne.

Indeed, how many love even themselves? Who loves himself if he walks the broadway of sin into the valley of eternal death? (Rom. 6:23.) Who cares for his own sins or his children's sins, let alone his neighbor's? Rather, he will lure his neighbors to a card game, a gambling den, a theater, a dancing hall, or a saloon, but never to a Bible study. It requires a social, a raffle, a pancake or chicken supper, or a dance to entice most people inside a church building, and then, of course, they are entering the church of the Antichrist. Carnal and money-making inducements are not used in the house of God. Such activities in church society are sin. (John 2:16.) Who can deny it? For shame on such things! Persons devoted to those activities seldom are hungry for that Spiritual Bread, our Lord and Saviour. If we would love our neighbors as ourselves, we would rebuke them for their sins. (Lev. 19:17.) Though it offends them, it is our Christian duty to teach them the truth. Though we be one on a street, one in a village, or a city, we who profess to hold up the light of God's great truth of His Kingdom on earth, so soon to be a reality, must not fail to light the way of our neighbors into this blessed Kingdom. Then will be fulfilled this wonderful prophecy:

"They shall teach no more every man his neighbour, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord: for they shall all know me, from the least of them unto the greatest of them, saith the Lord: for I will forgive their iniquity, and I will remember their sin no more" (Jer. 31:34).

Teach your neighbors the truth, for this is the greatest gift of love you can bestow on them: far surpassing any material gift that returns to dust. The gift of godly love reaches out into everlasting life. It behooves all Christians to practice the "Good Neighbor Policy."

BAPTISM

By Dr. L. C. Thomas

(Dr. L. C. Thomas' short analysis of baptism here presented was published several months ago by Brother C. E. Randall, Fonthill, Ontario, in his local church bulletin. The comments are timely and poignant.)

OUR SAVIOUR'S last command to His disciples, and which command constituted them Apostles—sent or deputed ones—was, "Go ye therefore and teach all nations, baptizing them into the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit" (Matt. 28:19, R.V.). Accordingly we find, as proof of their implicit confidence and strict obedience, a record of no less than nine cases of baptism—immersion—in the Acts of the Apostles, performed by them. In all cases, the persons baptized (and on one occasion there were three thousand of them) were adults who previously had believed in the Lord Jesus Christ, by hearing and believing His gospel.

Christ said, "Go teach." So in all these cases, the ones baptized were first taught, and when they believed, and made open profession of their faith, and confession of their sins, the apostles immersed them into the one Name and one body. They never baptized infants, nor any person incapable of understanding and believing the gospel, for baptism is the first act of obedience to the faith. Nor did they baptize until after the person had believed: first, the faith; then immersion—the obedience to the faith. This is the appointed order. Hence infants not capable of understanding and believing the gospel cannot obey the gospel. Hence, either sprinkling or immersion of an infant would not be Christian baptism, for Christian baptism is the immersion of a person who believes in Christ.

The person having become enlightened, convinced, changed in mind and heart, or affections, converted, or turned round, or "dead to sin," is then buried with Christ by baptism, "that like as Christ was raised up from the dead," to have a new body and life, so the believer by baptism "puts off the body of the sins of the flesh"—his old or former sinful character to "walk in newness of life." (Rom. 6:3-13.) Or, in other words, having been "begotten by the word of truth," the gospel (James 1:18; Col. 2:13; Eph. 2:1, 5, 6), he is quickened by baptism (Col. 2:13), raised up, "alive unto God"—"born of water"—as those (or like unto those) that are "alive from the dead" (Rom. 6:11-13).

Thus, baptism is a "likeness of Christ's death and resurrection."

"As many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ. . . . And if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise."—Paul.

Prophecy and Persecution

By W. R. Simmons, Hartshorne, Oklahoma

WILL THE SAINTS have to suffer persecution near the close of this Age? Let us consider what the Word of God says about this question. We read in Daniel 7:21, 22:

"I beheld, and the same horn made war with the saints, and prevailed against them; until the Ancient of days came, and judgment was given to the saints of the most High; and the time came that the saints possessed the kingdom." Verses 25, 26 further inform about this "horn," saying:

"He shall speak great words against the most High, and shall wear out the saints of the most High, and think to change times and laws: and they shall be given into his hand until a time and times and the dividing of time. But the judgment shall sit, and they shall take away his dominion, to consume and to destroy it unto the end."

Then verse 27 tells who will take the Kingdom under the whole heaven, which is an everlasting Kingdom. It will be given, finally, to the saints. "The kingdom under the whole heaven shall be given to the people of the saints of the most High."

This one horn mentioned in Daniel 7:11 is also spoken of in Revelation 13, not as a "horn," however, but as a "beast." Notice Daniel 7:11, saying: "I beheld then because of the voice of the great words which the horn spake: I beheld even till the beast was slain, and his body destroyed, and given to the burning flame." In this verse, the power is called both a "horn" and a "beast." He has the voice of great words. In Daniel 7:25, we still find him the same horn, or beast, speaking his great words. In Revelation 13:5, we read: "There was given unto him a mouth speaking great things and blasphemies; and power was given unto him to continue forty and two months." If that is to be interpreted literally, it means this power will be in authority a period of three and one half years. The time, times, and a half time, I understand to be three and one half years, also. This power is to continue that long when it comes into effect.

Now, let us notice the beast in Revelation 13:1-18. John saw a beast, just one, rise up out of the sea, but it is to have "seven heads and ten horns, and upon his horns ten crowns, and upon his heads the name of blasphemy." This beast is to be like "a leopard, and his feet . . . as the feet of a bear, and his mouth as the mouth of a lion: and the dragon gave him his power, and his seat, and great authority." John saw that one of these seven heads was wounded to death; and his deadly wound was healed: and all the world wondered after the beast, and they worshipped the dragon which gave power unto the beast."

Some students may think that the word "dragon" is applied only to Satan, the old Devil—that is, metaphorically applied to him. We read, however, in Ezekiel 29:3: "Speak, and say, Thus saith the Lord God; Behold, I am against thee, Pharaoh king of Egypt, the great dragon that lieth in the midst of his rivers, which hath said, My river is mine own, and I have made it for myself." Here the king of Egypt was called a dragon. Now, can we not realize that it is possible that the dragon of Revelation 13:4 is only an earthly government that will give this beast, who had the deadly wound and was healed, power to function? I believe John was speaking in Revelation 13 of literal powers of this earth.

Can we decide what beast had the deadly wound and was healed? Some students of the Bible think it was the Roman Government; others think it to be the Roman Catholic Church. Let us study the Scriptures for further light.

We notice, first, the Roman power was the iron power in that Image described in Daniel 2. His "legs were of iron"; then the feet were "part of iron and part of clay." In this part-iron-and-clay state, the little stone (representing the Kingdom of God) smote the Image upon the feet and toes. Then the whole Image was broken to pieces and "became like the chaff of the summer threshingfloors; and the wind carried them away"—and the stone "became a great mountain, and filled the whole earth." If the Roman Government was the iron government, it never has gone out of existence and will not until the little stone puts it out of existence; but there is also the clay power which we have now and did not have when this Image's legs were ruling; those legs being of iron and having no clay in them. So, judging from these scriptures, the Roman Government never will rule the whole world again—not as it once did.

We read of the Revelation power: "He opened his mouth in blasphemy against God, to blaspheme his name, and his tabernacle, and them that dwell in heaven. And it was given unto him to make war with the saints, and to overcome them: and power was given him over all kindreds, and tongues, and nations" (vv. 6, 7). Notice here it says "nations"—more than just one!

"All that dwell upon the earth shall worship him, whose names are not written in the book of life of the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world. If any man have an ear, let him hear. He that leadeth into captivity shall go into captivity: he that killeth with the sword must be killed with the sword. Here is the patience and the faith of the saints" (vv. 8-10).

Yes, this will be the hour that certainly will try our patience and faith. . . . Then John wrote:

"I beheld another beast coming up out of the earth; and he had two horns like a lamb, and he spake as a dragon" (v. 11). Like which dragon did he speak? Like the one in the second verse of this thirteenth chapter. I believe this beast that is to come up out of the earth may be the United States with its Democratic and Republican rulers: these two parties being the two horns like those of a lamb. That other beast came up out of the sea, which means "people," applying the word "sea" metaphorically. This power, however, was shown as coming up with only a handful of people, so to speak, yet it has become a great power, and it is going to exercise all the power of the first beast before him.

Moreover, this second-beast power will cause all to worship the beast that had the deadly wound and was healed. I can see that beast, who had the deadly wound by the sword and did live, making preparation speedily. The time is short! I now quote part of verse 14, saying "to them that dwell on the earth" that "they should make an image to the beast, which had the wound by a sword, and did live."

So, then, we shall have the same kind of church, and will have to worship that same church, or power, that Italy has and worships.

This image is both to speak, and to cause as many as would not worship the image of the beast to be killed. We all will have it to do—or else! This will be the same power, restored, that had so many of the saints put to death before it received the wound by the sword. Now, as it is recovering and almost healed, and is now about ready to take charge of all other religions in this world, according to my observation, there will be a great change inside of five years. I have been observing since 1937 the preparation that is being made by this country and others. The last three and one half years of time on this earth are going to constitute a trying time. "Here is the patience and faith of the saints"! Nevertheless, the "smoke of their torment ascended up for ever and ever: and they have no rest day nor night, who worship the beast and his image, and whosoever receiveth the mark of his name" (Rev. 14:11). #### ROSES WILL BLOOM IN THE DESERT

By Mary Mae Nedrow

Shall cease their arrogant sway,
God again will walk with man
Some happy, sunlit Day.
A Golden Age will then be born—

No hate will flourish there;
Transcendent joy, with "peace on earth,"
Will touch the fragrant air.
Then roses will bloom in the desert again,

Crimson roses expand
On emerald hills, and by silver streams—
Resplendent throughout the land.
There's solitude in the desert today,

And sandy wastes abound:
All desolate, and parched, and drear—
No myrtle or fir tree found.
But roses will bloom in the desert again,

"And the desert shall rejoice."
On sandy wastes will be silver streams,
And we'll hear our Saviour's voice.
Beside the streams we'll walk refreshed,

When Eden is restored:
And we shall see Him "face to face"
And crown Him King and Lord.
And when all enemies and sin,

TRIVIAL BICKERINGS. Trying to discover the causes of marital troubles and the many "fights" that take place in the ordinary home, Clifford R. Adams, director of the Marriage Counseling Service, Pennsylvania State College, has come to the conclusion that it is just "trivial bickerings that sometimes wreck a happy marriage." He has discovered that these little bickerings develop into "continued quarreling" which of course will in time wreck any home, at least as far as happiness is concerned.

Few people realize the effect that little things have on our lives. In themselves, they may not amount to anything, but allowed to multiply they become the source of a lot of trouble. Like the tongue, a little member, but full of deadly poison. Perhaps we all would do well to give more consideration to the little things of life and guard against allowing them to multiply into prodigious evils. On the other hand, the little things of life can be developed into great forces for good. Of such, it is well to "provoke" them into good works.

WHAT'S WRONG? Sitting in a church during a joint service of several churches during the International Week of Prayer, a writer in the Toronto Globe and Mail, queried self on "What is wrong with the church?" There were six churches uniting in the special service, but the attendance was much below the number that should have been present. Why were they not there? For the same reason that they were not in other special Week of Prayer services. Paul Rowntree Clifford, minister of the West Ham Mission, London, England, attributes the lack of interest to too many professing Christians having a type of Christianity that "is nothing more than a week-end hobby." Of the present-day church, he says it is "sick, feeble, and frail." Jesus looks upon it as being "lukewarm" with a faith void of works.

RED MENACE. Writing in February issue of "The American," J. Edgar Hoover, Director, Federal Bureau of Investigation, charges that "The objective of the Communist Party of the United States of America is the destruction of the American way of life." He quotes William Z. Foster, president of the American Communist Party as having said: "Our party considers religion to be the opium of the people . . . and we carry on propaganda for the liquidation of these prejudices amongst the workers."

The aims and objectives of Communism fit well into the pattern of end-time conditions. The rule of the "man of sin" at the close of Gentile Times is definitely anti-Christian, and those not willing to renounce the worship of God and worship the Beast will forfeit their lives.

That Communism is preparing the groundwork for this system of anti-Christian worship is so evident that proof is unnecessary. The apparent revival of interest in religion by the Soviet government has been forced upon them by the very fact that mankind innately demand worship of some kind. Russia's interest in religion is a controlled state kind. To this end, the Russian Orthodox Church is putting forth every effort to bring the R.O.C. throughout the world under the control of the Russian Patriarch. The 300,000 members in the United States, while reserving the right to free government, have accepted spiritual leadership from Moscow.

The Revelation pictures a state religion under the domination of the Beast during the tribulation period or the last week of Daniel's seventy. Both the Roman Catholic and the Russian Orthodox Churches are well patterned after such an order.

REEL TO AND FRO. The Prophet Isaiah predicted the time when the "earth shall reel to and fro like a drunkard." I have never taken this too literally in respect to drunkenness that apparently will be so commonplace during the end-time days. Neither have I interpreted the saying of Jesus of people "eating and drinking" in the last days as being limited to the use of intoxicating drinks; and yet, perhaps there is more literality in these statements than is usually credited to them. Reports covering the amount of liquor consumed by the Canadians during the year ending last March 31, have just been released. There were 5,864,000 proof gallons of hard liquor consumed, which was an increase over the previous year of 2,144,000 gallons, and an increase of 1,135,000 gallons above the previous high record. This does not cover the consumption of wines, beers, and proof spirits, neither does it include all that was manufactured, for there was a big export business. The total output of the brewing industry in Canada for 1945 had a total commercial value of $158,875,000. It should also be remembered that the population of Canada is around 11,500,000. What will the end of this intemperate condition be, if the increase in drunkenness continues? The moral decline can be noted on every front. One thing is certain, the great prophecies concerning the moral and spiritual condition of men in the last days are taking on more vivid appearance as the day of the Lord's appearing draws near.

METHODISTS' FEELINGS. A recent survey made by Dr. Murray Leiffer, Garrett Biblical Institute, Northwestern University, of Methodist laymen, reveals that ninety-eight per cent of them disapprove of ministers who "seem pessimistic and defeatist concerning the goals of the Christian church. . . . They expect their religious leaders to have . . . a belief that good eventually will triumph, and a consequent assurance and patience even in the face of disappointing conditions."

It will be seen from this that the great body of this membership still hold to the idea that the world is gradually getting better, notwithstanding, the Scripture declares that "evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse."

Eighty-eight percent of the replies were critical of the minister who "is not effective in winning decisions for Christ." On social problems, the main body of the laymen expressed themselves as being opposed to using church property for "social dancing." A little more than fifty per cent of the laymen felt that a pastor's call was more effective if prayer was offered during the visit. On the question of the minister smoking, seventy-five per cent were opposed to the preacher's smoking. It would be interesting to know how many of these opposed to the minister's smoking were addicts of the habit.

PALESTINE TODAY. Out of the Land of Promise comes the big news of the times. More and more the Holy Land is becoming the center of the chief news of the hour. Speaking of the "cradle of Western civilization" which has Palestine as the center, the National Geographic Magazine says: "Yet in another area on earth appears more frequently in today's newspaper headlines. A dozen international trouble spots remind us that the cradle of Western civilization holds one of the keys to world peace."

David Ben Gurion, Jewish Agency head, and Dr. Chaim Weizmann, former World Zionist president, are in London working for a settlement of the Jewish-Arab problem in Palestine. Palestine High Commissioner Cunningham has also been there to engage in conversations. It is reported that there is likelihood of a sixty-day truce to be called by the Jewish underground in Palestine pending settlement of the vexing problems. Britain is moving troops from Egypt into Palestine. This serves a double purpose. It fulfills her commitments to Egypt to remove most of her troops, and it gives her strength in Palestine to cope with the internal situation there. Britain will have to get out of Palestine, for the land of Israel is to be a land of "unwalled villages" when the armies of the North come against the land. This indicates an undefended and unfortified country. The peace that will come to the seed of Abraham in the Holy Land will be short lived until the Prince of Peace brings it in. The ancient land will become a "valley of Achor" to the children of Israel.

CHINESE BIBLE. Capper's Weekly recently carried a news item of interest to lovers of the Word, when it reported the splendid work of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek as bringing out a new Chinese translation of the Psalms and the New Testament. The manuscript contained more than 200,000 Chinese characters. Chiang is reported to have gone over the copy three different times. The work was under the guidance and effort of Dr. John C. H. Wu, a Chinese jurist.

THE TWO GATES

they were through with him, and would have nothing more to do with him: so he went and hanged himself. Although he had been with the Christ constantly for more than three years, he did not seem to understand that when no other way was opened, he might have turned to the Christ whom he had betrayed. Anyone will forgive another if he shows true repentance and godly sorrow for the evil he has done. Unless they do, all their works will avail them nothing. Yes! Judas might have found forgiveness if he had humbly gone to Christ. Christians are told not to let the sun go down until they right some wrong, but only a few follow that admonition.

Stephen was stoned to death, having been falsely accused of blasphemy. Sometimes it would seem that unrighteousness triumphs, but it does not in the end. John the Baptist went about telling the people to repent. In a kindly way, he told Herod the Tetrarch it was wrong for him to have his brother Philip's wife, Herodias. By a cunningly devised scheme, Herodias caused John the Baptist to be beheaded.

King Belshazzar felt secure in his magnificent palace. He had invited a thousand of his lords to a great feast. At his command, "they brought the golden vessels that were taken out of the Temple of the house of God which was at Jerusalem; and the king, and his princes, his wives, and his concubines, drank in them . . . and praised the gods of gold, and of silver, of brass, of iron, of wood, and of stone." That night as they were drunken with wine and revelry, and as he lifted a golden goblet to his lips, Belshazzar saw part of a hand writing on the wall. Since none of the wise men could interpret the writing, Daniel was brought to the king. Unafraid, Daniel pronounced judgment, telling the king the words meant that he was "weighed in the balances, and [was] found wanting . . . [that his] kingdom [would be] divided and given to the Medes and the Persians." It was in that very night the Persian army came, besieged, and took the beautiful city of Babylon by stratagem; and king Belshazzar was slain. Almost in a twinkling of an eye, he was struck down. There was no time for repentance. There may be an unseen hand writing on the wall today. Let us beware!

Let us not abuse the gifts God has so graciously bestowed upon us. The Garden of Eden someday will be restored, but there will be no place in it for those who wilfully sin and bring dishonor upon themselves. "Enter ye in at the strait gate: for wide is the gate, and broad is the way that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat: because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it." Two gates with paths leading to them! Which path do we choose to take? Please God, may it be the one that eventually will lead us to a place in the Kingdom, and to life immortal, when Jesus comes.

The Modern Mariner

By S. M. Russell

My Angel heard a war-torn knight
 Confess his secret woe:
 "What is the purpose of this life?
 Need mankind always fight
 High walls of Jericho
 To make them fall with drum and fife?"
 "I've roamed the world from end to end.
 I've read great books in lands
 Afar, and pondered heavenly heights
 While marching to defend
 The Cross on alien strands
 And desert sand, soft summers' nights.
 "I've plumbed the depths of tumbling seas,
 And sailed midst splintering ice!
 I've sought famed oracles beyond
 The distant Euphrates.
 Yet these did not suffice
 To lift me from my dark despond."
 "This Knight should know the Truth," began
 My angel, "I'll send aid.
 I'll send him men who now foresee
 Almighty Yahweh's plan:
 The Cornerstone is laid Within God's Kingdom soon to be "Inhabited by those on earth
 Whom He creates anew
 With spiritual bodies made
 At His command: a birth
 To live where no adieu
 Is heard; and none need be afraid."
 "A Stranger, wearing wisps of stars,
 Came to my tent one night,
 As if He knew His way around,
 And showed me several scars.
 He opened up my sight;
 And now I stand on solid ground."

Pause, and Look Up

By H. Gary France, Wenatchee, Washington

EVERY GOOD GIFT and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father" (James 1:17). For this, Father, we are thankful!

Hugon's The Modern Word Finder defines "to thank" as "to express gratitude for a generous act . . . requite somebody for a kind action by doing him a good turn." Webster's Dictionary includes "grace" and "favor" in the definition. These definitions suggest that "thank" is not limited in meaning to an expression of gratitude and appreciation, but that the word means "a good turn," an act of "grace," or a "favor."

The Bible uses the word "thankworthy," not in the sense that anyone is going to express gratitude for the act, but that the act is a commendable deed. (1 Peter 2:19.) Jesus asked, "If ye love them which love you, what thank have ye?" (Luke 6:32.)

One speaks of "returning thanks" to God for blessings. God gives man "thanks" or favors, blessings, graces, and good turns, so man should return thanks by returning acts of favor toward God.

Thanks to a man is occasionally expressed by, "Much obliged!" How much more should one desire to fulfill the obligation to One who has blessed man by giving "his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life" (John 3:16)?

Faith is associated with thanksgiving and was demonstrated by the Lord when He thanked God for hearing Him before raising Lazarus. Though Lazarus was yet dead, Jesus thanked God, because He was perfectly confident and content that Lazarus would come from the tomb. (John 11:41.) Faith accompanied thanksgiving.

In thanking God for gifts, one indicates reason for a confidence, contentment, and faith in God. The expression "rest and be thankful" signifies relief. Thanksgiving is linked with a contentment and a satisfaction. One thanking God expresses a faith that God has blessed and will continue to bless. Thankfulness is often expressed spontaneously with a feeling of relief, assurance, and certainty that life will be happier. Is not a feeling of relief the result of faith in God's Kingdom of righteousness? This relief genders thanksgiving.

Roget's Thesaurus suggests as typical of ingratitude and thanklessness the familiar phrase, "Et tu Brute!" Of the ten lepers whom Jesus healed, only one returned to express his appreciation. (Luke 17:16.)

To experience the power of thanksgiving, one should select his darkest hour and thank God (not thank his lucky stars, for stars neither create nor provide; they offer neither assurance nor certainty) for the blessings he has received. Sorrow will flee. Contentment and lifting faith will fill his heart. Thus protected against disappointment, sorrow, and unhappiness, one is prepared to "fight the good fight of faith."

David thanked God at the time of his death. He felt appreciation for blessings; and, though near death, David felt and expressed a deep thanksgiving spirit. (1 Cron. 29:13, 28.) Daniel knew he would face death, if he thanked God. (Dan. 6:10.) Though death in the lion's den was the threat, Daniel exercised his inalienable privilege of thanking God! The thanksgiving privilege was more important to David than was life itself!

Jesus thanked God for the cup and the loaf (Luke 22:17, 19), though that cup and that loaf were symbols of His approaching death! He was thankful for the symbols of that death, because He knew the full meaning and necessity of the death. David, Daniel, and Jesus felt the strong desire to exercise the indispensable privilege of thanksgiving. Each thanked God despite death!

Our purpose is not to solicit thanks for God; if one does not yearn for this expression of appreciation, his thanks will be meaningless and worthless. Our purpose is to emphasize the value of man's privilege.

Because the meaning of "thank" includes "favor," "grace," and "good turn," one may well "return thanks" to God by rendering that service which is proclaimed as "reasonable." Because of the mercies of God, for which Paul was thankful, Paul besought that "ye present yourselves a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God" (Rom. 12:1).

God's blessings toward mankind overwhelm one who searches for methods of signifying his appreciation to God. The gifts of God to man are so much more necessary, important, and larger than those which man can offer in return, that man can return only a comparatively small deed to God. One considers his own life as the most valuable gift he has; so, because nothing he can offer will equal God's gifts, he should dedicate his body to God to show his thankfulness.

PROPHECY AND PERSECUTION

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord!"

Then John wrote: "I looked, and behold a white cloud; and upon the cloud one sat like unto the Son of man" (v. 14). Yes, Jesus soon is coming on the white clouds of heaven, and with all the holy angels. Jesus tells us to "watch," which also means to "look"—as John said. "I looked, and behold a white cloud." "I looked, and beheld a white cloud."

John also recorded: "When he had opened the fifth seal, I saw under the altar the souls of them that were slain for the word of God, and for the testimony which they held: and they cried with a loud voice, saying, How long, O Lord, holy and true, dost thou not judge and avenge our blood on them that dwell on the earth? And white robes were given unto every one of them; and it was said unto them, that they should rest yet for a little season, until their fellowservants also and their brethren, that should be killed as they were, should be fulfilled." John saw those who died on the old Roman altar. They are to rest for a little season, until many of us experience the same. "He that loseth his life for my sake shall find it," said Jesus our Lord.

So, brethren, let us keep the commandments of Christ. When those trying hours come, and we have to decide between right and wrong, let us stay with the Lord who can give us life again—life that no power can take from us. Let us be ready at any time to die for Christ!

God's Will Is Best

"God's will is best; faith's vision may be darkened,
And tangling influence our feet arrest;
Yet to our cry for guidance One has hearkened;
God's will is best.

"We raise our tear-dimmed eyes with eager longing,
To pierce the clouds that crown the mountain's crest;
And watch the chill mists round the pathway thronging;
With hearts distrest.

"God's will is best—oh! tired heart and weary;
Each footfall finds you nearer to your rest;
And God prints on your pathway, lone and dreary,
'God's will is best.'

"Why seek to know the secrets of the morrow;
Or what new dangers may your way infest?
'Tis Providence apportioned joy or sorrow
To be your guest.

"God's will is best—seek not to do God's planning;
Nor of the future make untrusting quest;
He only of your whole life has the scanning;
God's will is best.

"Enough, for mortal feet, the step before them;
Enough, for mortal hands, life's next behest;
Enough to know Immortal Love is o'er them;
God's will is best.

"God's will is best—your first dawn may be over;
Life's noon be past, its sun low in the west,
And night be full nigh; but glorious morn will discover,
God's will is best."—Selected.

BOOK PARADISE

By Arlen Marsh

"Some to church repair,
Not for the doctrine, but the music there."
—Alexander Pope.

Englishman Pope had something there! In many churches, music—organ, vocal, choral, orchestral—has come to occupy so important a place in worship that it sometimes seems that religious education and genuine worship have passed entirely from the scene.

Yet in spite of the trend toward music—a comparatively modern trend, by the way, since music seldom was used in colonial and the earlier mediaeval European services—children usually are neglected. Hymns are planned for adults; the words are hard for small people to understand—and, not infrequently, they make little sense even for grown-ups.

So some Sunday schools and children's missions have come to use The Call to Praise (Rodcheaver Hall-Mack Co.; quotations furnished on request). This is a 139-page collection of songs, choruses, and hymns with special appeal for those of beginner, primary, and junior ages; but the collection has been so well chosen that adults will sing the numbers, too, without really appreciating that they are being children again.

What makes the book particularly unusual is its doctrinal accuracy. Most hymnals and song collections are only two-thirds usable by Churches of God, because of the frequent allusions to a heavenly destination or a triune God to be found in them. The Call to Praise is not in this general class; the thoughts of the songs are simple enough, instead, that the traditional theology of the common book has had to be omitted.

The music is easily played and quite as easily sung. Some runs to four parts; much runs to one part. A good many numbers concern the characters of children, but a good many more do not. There are special songs for all the religious holidays and for patriotic days. Suggested worship programs for juniors appear in the back of the book. These suggestions will be helpful either for use in junior churches or for use in Sunday schools.

The Call to Praise is substantially bound in cloth; it will endure the hard use that children will give it. It will not do for general church or evangelistic purposes; it is intended for a special job, and that it does do well.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

Prepared by Madge Savage
Waite Park, Minnesota

"So shall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth: it shall not return unto me void, but it shall accomplish that which I please, and it shall prosper in the thing whereto I sent it" (Isaiah 55:11).

God's Promise to Moses

Moses had tried to get Pharaoh to let the children of Israel go, but he would not. So Moses spoke again to the Lord God, saying, "Lord, wherefore hast thou so evil entreated this people? why is it that thou hast sent me? For since I came to Pharaoh to speak in thy name, he hath done evil to this people; neither hast thou delivered thy people at all" (Ex. 5:22, 23).

The Lord told Moses that He was the Lord. Then He reviewed that He had appeared to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

The Lord told Moses He had promised them the land of Canaan and that He had heard the cries of distress from the children of Israel.

This is what God told Moses to tell the children of Israel: "I am the Lord, and I will bring you out from under the burdens of the Egyptians . . . and I will take you to me for a people, and I will be to you a God. . . . And I will bring you in unto the land . . . I am the Lord" (Ex. 6: 6-8).

Freedom for the Israelites

Following God's instructions, Moses called the elders of Israel. He told them to kill the Passover lamb. Then the side (side posts) and the top (lintel) of the doorway were to have the blood of the lamb upon them. Then the Israelites were not to leave their homes until the morning.

For the Lord was to pass through the land. All the homes where there was no blood upon the doorway would be under the curse of God. In those Egyptian homes, death would smite the oldest, the first-born.

The Lord told the Israelites to keep this service as an ordinance forever when they came into the land of Canaan.

The obedience of the Israelites by applying the blood and staying within until the morning brought deliverance for them. The Egyptians who knew not the will of God were in sorrow. Sin brings sorrow and death.

A New Memorial

Christ began a new ordinance which Christians keep as a memorial instead of the Passover. It is called the "Lord's Supper" or "Communion." Jesus said of the bread: "This is my body which is given for you: this do in remembrance of me." And of the cup He said, "This cup is the new testament in my blood, which is shed for you" (Luke 22:19, 20).

Jesus also said, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, Except ye eat the flesh of the Son of man, and drink his blood, ye have no life in you. Whoso eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, hath eternal life; and I will raise him up at the last day" (John 6:53, 54). He also spoke these precious words, "He that eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, dwelleth in me, and I in him. As the living Father hath sent me, and I live by the Father: so he that eateth me, even he shall live by me" (vv. 56, 57). "These things said he in the synagogue, as he taught in Capernaum" (v. 59).

From these verses, we can see how important it is for those of us who are Christ's to observe this service as often as we can. When does your church have this memorial service? Usually there is a regular time, as the first Sunday of each month, as well as at special times.

PRAYER CHANGES THINGS

By Beth Hardesty

Prayer is a privilege that allows us to talk to God, who understands us. We can and should open our hearts to God as a friend to friend. He knows our needs and will not misunderstand us. He will share our sorrows if we but ask Him.

Are we too young to pray? God will listen to a little child who kneels at its mother's knee and repeats the words of a little prayer and makes small requests. A child should be taught to talk with God from the time he says his first word. He needs to understand that he is talking to a loving Father who is anxious to hear all his little problems and joys. No one is too young to pray. The younger we learn to talk with God, the easier it is for us to come to Him. The older we get, the harder it is to learn.

Young people sometimes feel they should not pray in public because they cannot express their feelings in the right words. Have you ever tried sentence prayer in your young people's group? The most timid person will not be afraid to say that he is glad to have a church to come to or that he is thankful for his Christian parents. We all need to learn to talk to God; so give every person in your meeting a chance to tell God what he wants. Do it often, because it will become easier each time, and soon you will find that no one stops at a sentence. Young people like to talk to God, and it strengthens them to know that other young people like and want to talk to Him. We have tested and proved this to be true in our Oregon, Illinois, Berean Society.

We talk to our earthly friends constantly, and yet none of them is the friend that God is. We often feel lost and lonely when one of our friends is not with us. We forget that God is there waiting, patiently waiting for us to talk with Him. Seek Him now! We gain strength through prayer— who wants to be weak when he can be strong?

Meditation and silent prayer help to put one in the proper attitude. What shall we say? Meditate, and give God a chance to work in our hearts, and we shall know what to say. God does not need an eloquent speech. He just wants us to pour out what is in our hearts in truth and sincerity. We must pray with a real desire in our hearts, and we must realize our dependence upon God for what we want and need. God does not change, but we can change our relationship to God through prayer.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

LADIES! PLEASE NOTICE!

The ladies of the Blood River Church of God, Hammond, La., are planning to make a quilt, and we would like for the names of all the women's organizations in each church to be autographed on it. The quilt, after completion, will be donated to the Oregon Bible College.

We are asking the president of each club to send her name and address to Mrs. Vernis Wolfe, Rt. 1, Box 8-18A, Hammond, La. You will receive more information after your name and address have been sent in. All names must be in by February 4, 1947.

Let us try to have a hundred per cent representation of our clubs on this quilt.

Mrs. Vernis Wolfe.

EDEN VALLEY, MINNESOTA

Among the activities of the Eden Valley (Minn.) Church, two funerals have been conducted by the writer.

Tuesday, January 7, services were held for Mrs. Alto Mills, seventy-seven years of age, of Eden Valley. The writer spoke to a full house, pointing to the hope of the Bible, using 1 Corinthians 15:1-26 as a foundation. Mrs. Mills leaves her husband and five children, all near here, except one son in Idaho.

It was our pleasure to receive many favorable comments on our hope as presented. We hope and pray the Word may find its way into hearts of others.

Friday, January 10, services were held for Benjamin Magedanz of Waukesha, Wis. Again the church was filled, many denominations being represented. We tried to point to the uncertainty of life, showing the contrast between the Bible hope and the modern one. Bro. Magedanz left the Catholic faith for the hope in Christ in 1922. He was the husband of Mrs. Beatrice (Mills) Magedanz of Lexington, Ky. They were soon to retire and enjoy life together on a little farm in Minnesota, as Benjamin's work had taken them to several points and the children were finishing their school work. This is the way of life. It was our pleasure to assist their youngest daughter, Joyce, in baptism some three years ago. Bro. Magedanz leaves his wife and four children, three in Lexington, Ky., and one in Chicago.

Our church has commended our governor on his stand against gambling in Minnesota.

The young people have started the new year with a burst of activities.

Our church activities are as follows: Sunday school (Elmo Gaspar, Supt.) 10:00 a.m.; morning worship, 11:00; evening worship, 7:30 (winter), 8:00 (summer); Wednesday evening Bible study (three classes) 8:00; first Thursday of each quarter, church board meeting, 8:00 p.m.; last Thursday afternoon of each month, Ladies' Aid meeting, 2:00-5:00; First Friday of each month, young people's meeting, social following, 8:00 p.m.

March 1, 2—Northwest Quarterly Conference at Corvallis, Ore.

BEAUMONT, TEXAS

Bro. M. W. Lyon visited in the home of my sister and me a few weeks ago. He showed us pictures Saturday night (January 11) and gave us a short talk in my home, Sunday evening, January 12, he gave us a fine lesson on "How to Study the Bible." He was ill while here, but left feeling quite well. Bro. Lyon seems to be putting to practice Paul's charge of Timothy. Please read 2 Timothy 4.

We pray God will bless and prosper him in his work and that he will be blessed with good health. Rachel (Humphreys) Morris.

BENJAMIN A. JOHNSON

Benjamin A. Johnson was born near Stillwater, Minn., January 10, 1890, and fell asleep in death, December 20, 1946. He spent his entire life in Minnesota and was a locomotive engineer of thirty-two years' service. He was on the honor roll of the Great Northern Railroad for perfect conduct, never failing to abide by rules of safety and being of fine moral character. He retired in August of 1944 because of a cardiac condition which kept him bedridden and a semi-invalid for more than a year. He had greatly improved in health, however, and was able to do light work and drive the car when death came suddenly on December 20.

Those left to mourn his death include his wife, Eva, and one son, Alden, as well as his father-in-law, Alfred Sahlberg, who has lived with Bro. and Sr. Johnson since their marriage. Also, four brothers and two sisters and many other relatives and friends survive.

He was immersed at the age of twenty-two years and lived a life of zeal and faith.

Funeral services were held at the Jones Funeral Home in Stillwater with Mr. Harold Strandquist, a brother in faith and friend of many years, officiating. Interment was in Fairview Cemetery at Marine-on-St.-Croix, Minn.

When the Hector Church of God was organized in 1943, he and his family placed their membership with the Hector group, and he was a most loyal and faithful supporter of all the church activities and contributed liberally in a financial way. One of his last contributions was a substantial sum to be used for the purchase of a parsonage.

He attended General Conference several years ago and was a member of the first Summer Bible Training School of 1938. He was a devout Christian and Bible student and loved to discuss and read the Bible. His one hope and desire was to be worthy to receive the "crown of glory that fadeth not away" when Jesus comes. Now he sleeps in death, awaiting the glad morn of the resurrection.

Harry Gockler.

National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois

The Restitution Herald is official organ of the General Conference of the Church of God. Subscription rate: 50 issues per year, $2.50.

The Restitution Herald advocates: the near return of Christ (Acts 1:11), and life only through Him (Col. 3:3); the literal resurrection of the dead (John 5:28); the immortalization of those in Christ (1 Cor. 15:53, 54); the destruction of the wicked (Rev. 21:8); the final restoration of Israel as the Kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ (Luke 1:32); the church to be joint-heirs with Him (Rom. 8:17), and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations (Isa. 60:1-3); the "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21). It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

JORDAN—

As was advertised in The Restitution Herald early last fall, the church at Jordan had a pre-Thanksgiving service on November 16 and 17. Though the weather was not as pleasant as it has been at other times, we feel that everyone had a very enjoyable time. On Saturday night, we enjoyed a religious motion picture which told the story of Zachariah. Sunday morning and evening brought forth sermons by Bro. Roy Graham of Fredericktown. We had visitors from Bosworth, Lockwood, Kansas City and Fredericktown, Missouri, and Oregon, Illinois.

On Christmas Eve, we enjoyed a short program given by the children, which was followed by the religious motion picture, King of Kings. Members of the congregation left for their homes after the program, having a deeper appreciation for God's Word and His wonderful gift, Jesus Christ, His Son. We are grateful to the W. A. Sundwall family for having purchased the 16 mm. projector which was used in showing both films previously mentioned.

Worthy of Mention—

Last spring when three of our church families—the L. E. Driskill, Orville Driskill, and W. A. Sundwall families—were informed by the turkey hatchery to which they were selling eggs that no more eggs were wanted, an agreement was made to set the eggs on hand for church use, primarily for a new parsonage. This was done, and three hundred fifty turkey poulters were hatched and raised for market. The pastor of the church fed and cared for the turkeys from October 1 until market time. Though the turkey market was not too good this fall, this project netted a profit for the parsonage of $400.00. We know that the three families did this not for their own interest but for the church. We tell it to you because we think it worthy of mention and because we felt that it might inspire others to do more work for the Lord.

It Can Be Done—

Last summer when it was decided that I should work for the Missouri Conference, giving half time to Jordan, the congregation at Jordan agreed to build a new parsonage. They already owned the land—a ninety-acre farm. It was purchased about two years ago for six dollars an acre. At that time, there were ninety-six acres, but since then six acres were sold. It is a beautiful spot for a homestead.

The work on the new parsonage was started in September; and, if weather permits, it soon will be completed and ready for occupancy. Some might wonder why it has taken so long to build this house. The reason is that most of the labor has been donated, being done by the church members, all of whom are farmers and have their own work to do.

The structure is 24 by 30 feet plus a breakfast nook, which is off the corner of the kitchen—it is a circular nook and extends 4½ feet out from the corner. There is a full basement. The walls, from the foundation to the comb, are built of concrete blocks. The inside walls and ceiling are covered with metal lath. All the house has been plastered. The windows are steel casement, most of them being homemade. One of the church members has an electric welder; and, because we could not obtain windows, we decided to make them. The outside of the house will be stuccoed in the spring. The subfloor is rough oak and this will be covered with ½ inch of concrete. The total cost of this house will be approximately $1,200.00.

We hope this brief report will inspire other churches to build homes for their pastors. If anyone wished to have more details about this house, we would be glad to furnish same.

Not only is this new house a credit to this community but also to the Missouri Conference. A minister will be able to live at Jordan and do work in other parts of the State. The Missouri church members should be proud and grateful to the members at Jordan for taking this forward step.

To members outside the State of Missouri, we would like to cite this church and its renewed efforts as an example of advertising for evangelism.

It was three and one half years ago that we came to Jordan under the supervision of evangelism of the General Conference. We now can see the results of that effort. In addition to paying for preaching half time and building the parsonage, this congregation spent over $400.00 in remodeling our church during this past year.

There is still some debt on the new house. Now, these people are very modest, but I believe that if anyone wished to contribute toward the new parsonage, the contributions would be accepted gladly. The treasurer is Mrs. Orville Driskill, Cross Timbers, Missouri.

Bible School—

We are planning now to have a Bible school. Sr. Verna Thayer will be with us May 18-28. As some of you will remember, she was here for a little visit last April. "Train up a child in the way he should go; and when he is old, he will not depart from it" (Prov. 22:6). Plan now to make preparations for your child or children to attend this Bible school. Perhaps your neighbor has some children who would like to attend. Tell them about it and invite them to come. The age group is from 3 to 15. Remember the date, May 18-28, 1947.

BOSWORTH—

We are glad to see the enthusiasm being shown by the Bosworth brethren. This church is one of the oldest in the State and the members are well grounded in the "faith." We hope for increased effort and work in the future.

We are sorry that there has been some sickness during the past weeks.

KANSAS CITY—

We regret that one of our oldest members in this group has not been able to attend the last two church services. He is S. J. Thayer, who is past eighty years of age and traveled about ten miles on a street car to attend church. We have one other member, J. L. Lawrence, of Raymore, who is past ninety years of age.

SORRY—

We have no news from Fredericktown. We know, however, that they are in their new church and undoubtedly the members there are very happy.

FORGET NOT—

"Bless the Lord, O my soul; and forget not all His benefits" (Psalm 103:2).

Have you sent your contribution for dollars today to our treasurer, Ralph Thomas?

Each one of us likes to receive anything that is beneficial to us. When there is a lack of sunshine, we hope for fair weather because it brings benefit. When there is no rain, we want rain for fear that we will lose our crops and suffer. Oftentimes one of these blessings or one of many others will be of much benefit to us. Also, the lack of one of these blessings can mean much loss. What I am trying to say is that each day of our lives we receive many blessings from the Lord our God. Do we forget His benefits? The blessings of the Lord—sunshine, rain, etc.—are gifts because we have done nothing to earn them.

One type of service in which almost every Christian is lacking is that of giving financially. We often use Israel for an example to our Christianity. We show that they had great opportunity but denied it. We know that this is true, but in the worship of tithes and offerings Israel far exceeded even the more-than-average Christian. When Israel did serve God faithfully and obeyed all the commandments she was blessed beyond measure. Israel is a type of the church. Should not the church be more than did Israel? It has a greater promise and a greater inheritance.

It seems to me that when we deny tithes we are a bit selfish, as though a tenth part would be too much for the Lord. If only we could remember that all we have belongs to the Lord! A tenth part of our increase in ability, is a small part to give. Of course, as long as we deny this tenet of faith and merely put in nickels and dimes and once in a while a dollar bill, regardless of what we make, we will not receive the full amount of blessing from God that we could receive. Paul said "Upon the first day of the week let every one of you lay by him in store, as God hath prospered him" (1 Cor. 16:2). When God rested on the seventh day, He took one-whole day out of seven. We still believe in keeping a day of rest. Why not, then, consider and Scripturally believe that God set aside the tenth as our part due Him?

There are those who say, "We cannot afford to give one tenth of what we make." The Scripture says, "He which soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly" (2 Cor. 9:6). If we fail to give unto the Lord what is due, we are not only lacking in service but are lacking blessings that we could receive. "Forget not the benefits of the Lord." Give to His work today.

PLAN NOW—

Plan now to attend the Missouri State Conference of 1947. It will be August 9-17. It is to be conducted at Fredericktown, which is located about seventy-five miles south of St. Louis. Do not miss it!

PORTENTOUS RUINS OF MIGHTY ROME

Naked and forlorn stand these ruins of Rome, dying embers of ancient glory turned to shame. Started by Emperor Vespasian in the year 75 A.D., the Colosseum was completed five years later by his son Titus. This vast four-storied oval, with tier on tier of marble seats, accommodated eighty thousand spectators. Gladiatorial combats here satiated the lusts of men, and countless Christians here were thrown to wild and ravenous beasts.

When these ruins are crumbled into dust, when record of the sins committed within their walls is obliterated from mind and printed page, the cause of Christ will be a hundredfold mightier than the Empire that made Christians her sacrilegious prey. Mightier than Vespasian, mightier than Titus, the Christ of God will rule the earth in unbroken and righteous sway. He will be the KING OF KINGS! As for Rome, her foul dust will witness against her. Innocent blood will cry for revenge. So, like Babylon, Rome is doomed to an abysmal fall. Then Jerusalem will rise, without a rival, as Holy City of the world. Come, Victorious Day!

Entered as second class matter at the Post Office at Oregon, Illinois, under act of March, 1879. Mailed weekly, except the fourth Tuesday of August and the last Tuesday of December.

Welcome, Ministers!

"Here's a welcome" to Church-of-God ministers arriving in Oregon, Illinois, for the Midwinter Ministerial Conference. Our homes are your homes; don't rush away!

Noachian Covenant

Following the Flood, Jehovah made a Covenant with Noah that should be of interest to Bible students in this late day when men fear atomic energy may wreck the earth. God said to Noah: "Behold, I establish my covenant with you, and with your seed after you . . . neither shall all flesh be cut off any more by the waters of a flood; neither shall there any more be a flood to destroy the earth" (Gen. 9:8-11). Common interpretation of this promise includes little more than the thought that there will be no repetition of a flood like that in Noah's day. Comparing this reading with Genesis 8:21, however, one sees further. There it is recorded, "The Lord said in his heart, I will not again curse the ground any more for man's sake . . . neither will I again smite any more every thing living, as I have done."

As God had cursed the ground with weeds, thorns, and thistles at the beginning, God also cursed the ground with the destroying Flood. Following that curse, God purposed and promised never to "smite any more every thing living." Not only will there never be another Flood; there will never be any similar catastrophic curse upon all creatures of the earth. God's people need have no fear of atomic energy, or any energy, exploding the earth—promised inheritance of the immortalized saints!

The foregoing thought is supported, we believe, with the Abrahamic Covenant in which God promised Abraham a Seed who would "bless all nations." Indeed, angels announced the birth of Jesus with thoughts of world-wide blessing upon earth, saying: "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men." Continuity of the earth is an emblem to doubting men of the eternity of God, earth's Creator. God laid the foundations of the earth, that it should not be removed for ever" (Psalm 104:5). "Thy faithfulness is unto all generations: thou hast established the earth, and it abideth." "One generation passeth away, and another generation cometh, but the earth abideth for ever" (Eccl. 1:4).

God's covenant with Noah included his children after him and "every living creature . . . for perpetual generations" (Gen. 9:9, 12). As a sign that God is keeping that Covenant, the rainbow, token of the Covenant, still appears in the sky. "I do set my bow in the cloud," said God, "and it shall be for a token of a covenant between me and the earth. And it shall come to pass, when I bring a cloud over the earth, that the bow shall be seen in the cloud: and I will remember my covenant, which is between me and you and every living creature of all flesh. . . . The bow shall be in the cloud; and I will look upon it, that I may remember the everlasting covenant between God and every living creature of all flesh that is upon the earth" (vv. 13-16).

If the Covenant were annulled, God would have no purpose in constantly spreading the rainbow in glorious token before men's eyes. A pot of gold at foot of the bow? Too trite is that! The gorgeous and blending colors of the bow are prophetic of that Golden Age in which there absolutely "shall be no more curse." Instead, immeasurable and blending graces of the Great Architect will stretch from one horizon to the other—knowledge of the Lord filling the earth as waters cover the sea! (Isa. 11:9.)

Lamech, under divine inspiration, had named his son "Noah," saying, "This same shall comfort us concerning our work and toil of our hands, because of the ground which the Lord hath cursed" (Gen. 5:29). The name "Noah," meaning "rest," was prophetic of Noah's work. He would give rest unto his people. In all that, however, Noah was only a type of One far greater than he—the Christ! Jesus, more than Noah, can say: "Come unto me . . . and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you . . . and ye shall find rest unto your souls" (Matt. 11:28, 29). There is a present rest in Christ, but His greater blessing will come in the future. "There remaineth . . . a rest to the people of God" (Heb. 4:9). "Let us therefore fear, lest a promise being left us of entering into his rest, any of you should seem to come short of it" (4:1). . . . What means the rainbow to you?

Studying "Godhead" and "Lord"

(A Question and My Reply Thereto)

By R. H. Judd, Colborne, Ontario

THE QUESTION: "In the course of my regular Bible reading, recently, I was unexpectedly arrested when reading 1 Corinthians 8 by a question which arose while reading verses 4-6. I would be glad if you can help me with an explanation, as the thought connected with one or two phrases you constantly have quoted in your letters—namely, 'There is no God but one,' and, 'There is one God the Father' ('but' not in the Greek). If I am right, you feel these and other similar statements in Exodus and Deuteronomy exclude any possibility of Jesus Christ having any place in the Godhead.

"Lower down in verse 6 of 1 Corinthians 8, the Apostle says, 'And one Lord Jesus Christ.' . . . I presume on the basis of the argument that 'there is one God, the Father,' excluding Jesus Christ from a place in the Godhead, to say that 'there is . . . one Lord [Greek, kurios] Jesus Christ' excludes God the Father from any place in the Lordship; yet Mark 12:29 says, 'The Lord [Greek, Kurios] our God is one Lord [Greek, Kurios]'—same word as in 1 Corinthians 8:6. There are many places in Scripture which designate God the Father as 'Lord.'—So inquired a correspondent of Brother Judd's.

NOT WISHING to burden the inquirer with too long an explanation involving all the phrases entering into the question, I used as a starting argument the fact (I here give only the gist, as I have not the original reply on hand, and write from memory) that Scripture informs us in Acts 2:36 that "God hath made that same Jesus, whom ye have crucified, both Lord and Christ"; that in a very real sense, according to Hebrews 7:7, God was the Greater, seeing that Jesus Christ was anointed by God (Acts 10:38), and that on that ground alone Jesus Christ could not be regarded as equal of the Father. Writing later to ask if my explanation was satisfactory, the reply was "No." Asked further why it was not satisfactory, so further information might be advanced, the correspondent refused point-blank to say where the cause of dissatisfaction lay. He thus shut the door to further correspondence.

Having recently turned up the question on my files, it occurred to me that it is seldom such a question crosses the mind of only one individual, and that perhaps by a further study of the question at issue I might be of service both to myself and others. The following exegesis is the result.

REPLYING to your question here inserted, suppose we begin first with a consideration of the word "Godhead," which you evidently mean to understand in accordance with the Presbyterian and Methodist declarations in reference thereto. Their statement is: "In the unity of the Godhead there be three Persons, of one substance, power and eternity: God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Ghost." Your whole theory re the question here submitted rests on this assumption concerning the "Godhead."

What is meant by the word "Godhead"? Where does the word have its derivation? Some commentators, such as E. D. Gifford, say: "The word 'Godhead' is a strange word, and why our translators ever put it into our English Scriptures we cannot tell, unless they wished to darken counsel by words without wisdom." Not only commentators, but ordinary readers of the Word, are, to say the least, puzzled as to its meaning, for it breathes of mystery. When traced to its source, it is evidenced that it was introduced from pagan Hindu sources of pagan trinitarianism at least six hundred years before Christ. That is a source to which Christ never appealed. Indeed, the glory of Christianity is that it is in immeasurable contrast to paganism.

You probably will accept a dictionary definition as unbiased and correct. Turning up the word "Godhead" in one dictionary, we find that its primary meaning is given as "divine nature or essence." Another gives it as "divine essence, nature, and attributes." Such definitions give no countenance to definitions given above from the Presbyterian and Methodist churches, and what are styled "the churches of Christendom." Indeed, the very use of the words "essence" and "attributes" is proof of this. Young's Analytical Concordance defines it in Acts 17:29 as "that which is divine"; in Romans 1:20, as "divinity," and in Colossians 2:9 as "deity," which, by the way, is singular.

These definitions are in practical agreement with the dictionaries, and offer no proof whatever of plurality of persons; rather the reverse. The Revised Version in Acts 17:29 gives as an alternative rendering to the word "Godhead" of "that which is divine." The word here is in the neuter gender. In Romans 1:20, the revisers have sensed the incongruity of the word and have substituted the word "divinity"; and the pronoun "his" in the context is sound evidence against plurality (Please turn to page 10)

"Born of the Spirit"

By C. Alan McLain, Dixon, Illinois

"Except a man be born again he cannot see the kingdom of God" (John 3:3).

AT FIRST, Nicodemus apparently misunderstood the words of Jesus about being born again, but later, according to some Bible students, he appreciated those words to such an extent that he became a disciple. The misunderstanding occurred over the Greek word that in the King James Version is translated "born." The Greek word for "born" in the third verse of this reading is gennao. In the Emphatic Diaglott, that Greek word is translated "may be born." The same Greek word in the fifth verse has the same rendering—"may be born." In the fourth and seventh verses, the Greek for "born" is translated in the Diaglott—"to be born." The Greek for the same word in the sixth and eighth verses of the same chapter is "having been born." (See John 3:1-9 in the Diaglott.) This information was obtained from the Emphatic Diaglott by Benjamin Wilson, who was a brilliant expositor. The Diaglott is a cross of the Greek text and the English text. For further references, turn to page 77 and then to page 79 of the Analytical Greek Lexicon for the Greek words and their meanings.

As it is in the natural world, so it is in the spiritual, but the natural is first and then the spiritual. As in the physical world, begetting occurs before the birth, so it is in the spiritual realm. Abortion often is found in the physical world and this is true, too, in a spiritual sense. We, as followers of Christ, were begotten of the Spirit when we were converted and baptized, but a miscarriage is not uncommon. Many have accepted Christ and followed Him for a while, but soon drifted back into wickedness of the world. As a fool goes back to his folly, and as a sow to the mire, so is he that is void of understanding. Many of the children of Israel, after they had been led out of the land of bondage (typical of the world), and had been baptized in the Red Sea and in the cloud, and had eaten of the bread from heaven and drunk of the water of life, turned from God and were destroyed in the wilderness of Zin. Let us pray that we may not fail of the grace of

"There was a man of the Pharisees, named Nicodemus, a ruler of the Jews: the same came to Jesus by night, and said unto him, Rabbi, we know that thou art a teacher come from God: for no man can do these miracles that thou doest, except God be with him. Jesus answered and said unto him, Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God. Nicodemus saith unto him, How can a man be born when he is old? can he enter the second time into his mother's womb, and be born? Jesus answered, Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God" (John 3:1-5).

God, but grow in grace and in knowledge of Jesus our Saviour. The Spirit works with the Word and apart from the Word, or when the Word is silent. He who has not the spirit of Christ is none of His.

We are not born of the Spirit when we are converted. Can animals produce offspring without the begetting? Neither can a person be born of the Spirit until after he has been begotten of the Spirit. A wise business man will not leave his business in the hands of incompetent men. Neither will God give great power to those who have not proved themselves to be good, competent stewards.

"The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh, and whither it goeth: so is every one that is born of the Spirit" (John 3:8). If we were born of the Spirit, we could go and come like the wind—like Jesus did after His resurrection. This does not refer to scientific means of transportation today.

We Christians grow in Spirit as we grow in faith. The Companion Bible gives the meaning of the word "born" as used in John 3:3 of the King James Version—"begotten." Then, commenting on verse 4, the Companion Bible explains: "Nicodemus misunderstands, and uses the verb gennao of the mother. The Lord uses it of the Father, as meaning begetting." Also, in 1 John 3:9, the word "born" is given as meaning begotten in the Companion Bible.

On the day of Pentecost, Peter gave answer to those wicked conscience-smitten men who inquired, "What shall we do?": "Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost [Holy Spirit]. For the promise is unto you, and to your children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call" (Acts 2:38, 39). In this reading, the gift of the Holy Spirit and the promise are synonymous. "Now if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his" (Rom. 8:9). The Spirit is necessary for Christian living.

It is the same Spirit that was with the Father in the creation. It has been given in every age for a special work, and in proportion to the work. The Spirit is the power of God. The disciples received more power, or more Spirit, to do miracles to confirm the Word.

When one is converted, he receives a portion of God's Spirit, a free gift. "You also have heard the message of the truth, the good news of your salvation, and believed in him, and through union with him you have been marked with the seal of the holy Spirit that was promised, which is the advance instalment of our inheritance, so that we may get full possession of it, (Please turn to page 11)

"We Shall Be Like Him"

By Kirby Davis, Wenatchee, Washington

---

MUCH as one makes plans for his new home, God made plans in the beginning for His created earth and for man to whom the earth was given. He was a God "declaring the end from the beginning." Let us consider the beginning to see what the end will be. God said, "Let us make man in our image, after our likeness." With these ten words God has told us what man will be like—in His image (in God's physical form) and in His likeness (mind of the same quality). Through God's plan, man not only will look like God, but will think and act like Him, and in every way be like Him.

How Is This to Be Accomplished?

"In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. The same was in the beginning with God. All things were made by him; and without him was not any thing made that was made" (John 3:1-3). God was going to make all things, including man, by His Word. It requires time for the Word, either spoken or written, to make man in the image and likeness of God. The Word is still doing this: every babe is in the image of the Creator, but it requires time to make the creature like its creative Father.

The Word was communicated to the prophets by angels, by visions, and by dreams. Now, however, God speaks by His Son—the Word to us. The Word came to Abraham, telling him to get out of the land in which he was living and go to another land. Also, the Word convinced Abraham that God is and that He is a rewarder of them that diligently seek Him. "I am the Almighty God; walk before me, and be thou perfect." The Word began to "make" in Abraham. Abraham began to do the will of God and, in so doing, became more "like" his Creator.

There was a vast difference, mentally, between Abraham and God. God knew what was good and what was evil. Abraham did not. God knew how all parts of creation should be used. Abraham did not. God made a temporary bridge across this difference by accounting Abraham's faith as righteousness.

Many fathers today have hope of their sons being like themselves. The new-born babe is in the image of its father, but lacks the mature mind of its father. Father talks to the child, plays with it, sends it to school, and educates it to be like himself at maturity. In this sense, Abraham was a babe. God talked with him, and later sent him to school (through his seed). The law was a schoolmaster which taught him what was good and evil. It required about fifteen hundred years for Abraham to take on his Father's likeness (which he did in his seed, Jesus). Jesus was the first man truly in the image and likeness of God.

The Word, when it was fulfilled or made flesh, invited us also to take on the same likeness. We have the assurance that we can be like Him. We, too, must be educated, and we can be educated to at least the same extent as was Israel during our short lifetime. We have the same schoolmaster, the same Word, and the experience of a nation with that Word. Because of our hope to be like Him, "we all, with open face beholding as in a glass the glory of the Lord, are changed into the same image from glory to glory even as by the Spirit of the Lord" (2 Cor. 3:18). You and I can look into a mirror, daily, seeing beyond this present time, and see ourselves bearing the glory or the likeness of God. The gaze is at an incline, or looking up, at the perfection of Christ. Looking up at Christ, we will grow from a child to a fully developed Son of God, being changed into the same Image.

During this life, none of us can attain the likeness of a full-grown son. The Father, however, has bestowed upon us this love. He has made us His children before we reach the perfection of His likeness. "Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is. And every man that hath this hope . . . purifieth himself, even as he is pure."

Father, impress on our hearts this wonderful promise, that we may be like You and Your Son. May we daily appreciate this likeness more and more as we learn about Your greatness. In Jesus' Name we pray. Amen.

The Great Physician

By Grace Skinner, Sauk Rapids, Minnesota

THE WORDS that come oftenest to my mind, when the privilege of leading Bible study comes my way, are these: "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, shall draw all men unto me" (John 12:32). So, I should like now to "lift up" Jesus as the Great Physician, that anyone in need of healing of any sort may be drawn to Him.

Why should men be drawn to Jesus? Because in Him is life: not mere physical life, for those to whom He spoke already had that, but a life that enlarges and enriches all that it touches. Jesus said, "I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly" (John 10:10). The "more abundant life" is the life that all men crave, consciously or unconsciously. Upon this deep, inner desire, whether or not it is satisfied, depends greatly whether or not one lives a well-balanced life. This may sound like too broad a statement, but take into consideration which is the more important, physical or mental health. I believe all will agree that mental health is far and away the more important.

Many boys in the recent war went through all phases of conflict practically unscathed—mentally, I mean. They may have been wounded; they may have suffered much physical discomfort, rigid discipline of body and will, and bore much of shock, yet came home happy, well-balanced individuals, ready to take their places in a peacetime world. Others, even before entering into battle, lost their reason and became maniacs in some degree. Psychiatrists say it was because of their lack of adjustment to living before experiencing the trying discipline of wartime.

A physician is one skilled in the art of healing diseases; a psychiatrist is one who treats diseases of the mind. Either of these will tell you that physical fitness depends far more than one might think upon mental fitness or peace of mind. This knowledge is comparatively recent among men; but, more than nineteen hundred years ago, Jesus understood this universal need of mankind. He often healed miraculously, it is true, overcoming natural laws and healing mind or body at a touch; but His time was given primarily to teaching men the principles of living which would make them whole and free.

THE CALL FROM GALILEE

*While mighty earthquakes rock the world's foundation,
And chaos threatens empires and their kings,
While men of strength lie stricken in the wreckage,
And men of wisdom cease their utterings,
While darkness menaces man's puny striving,
And new-born terror haunts the land and sea,
Still walks a lonely Peasant by a lakeside
And calls to His disciples, "Follow Me."*

What one thing causes more mental havoc than any other? Fear! It may be fear of a real danger or it may be only imaginary, but it haunts its victims with all the effects of reality, leading to errors in living all the way from unpleasant disposition to erratic actions. What was Jesus' remedy for this? The secret is in the first commandment: "Love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind." There are two excellent reasons why man should love God fervently: God is a loving, merciful, all-powerful Father, worthy of our love; and because "perfect love casteth out all fear," thus freeing man from his greatest inner enemy. Secure in God's care, no longer need he fear what man or circumstances can do to him. Many a man has fallen when faced with some trial or temptation simply because he feared he had offended God and his cry for help would bring no answer. Many, who have taken the name of Christian and then unthinkingly have committed some sin or failed to correct some fault, fear they have committed the unpardonable sin and take the attitude of "What's the use?" or grieve constantly because they believe they may be lost.

Let us digress a moment to see if we can decide what constitutes this "unpardonable sin" that worries so many people. In Mark 3:29, Jesus said: "He that shall blaspheme against the Holy Ghost hath never forgiveness, but is in danger of eternal damnation." If we look at this text alone, it does sound like a pronouncement of doom on unknown individuals who might never be sure whether or not they were guilty of this particular sin. No text, however, should be taken by itself, but the context should be studied with it. Looking at the situation reported here, we find that, though Jesus was healing many afflicted with plagues and unclean spirits, the scribes came and accused Him of casting out devils by the power of Satan. Instead of the gospel of life Jesus was bringing, they saw only deception and devilish teaching. His teaching of a new righteousness in the coming Kingdom of the loving Father they could see only a devilish plot to overthrow the established religion, and lead the people to ruin, and the work of the Holy Spirit they declared to be evil. Thus the sin which is unpardonable is the sin against the light of the gospel. It is unpardonable for the simple reason that impenitence is inevitable. The man who so sins cannot repent, for he deems himself righteous and does not believe in, nor feel the need of, a Saviour. This should make it clear to the man who is conscious of sin, and desirous of being saved from it, that he has definitely not committed the "unpardonable sin." Every man who is not Christ's should search his heart and beware, for the issues of the spiritual are as vital as are the physical and a man may keep his life or lose it here, as well as physically —but the man who has accepted the gospel and is repentant for sin need have no fear on this score. Christ came to save repentant ones, not to condemn them.

Chiefly, I wish to bring to your attention the similarity between the working of psychiatry and of Christianity, and ask you to note how the church, teaching as Christ taught, could be the means of helping people to develop a full, useful, satisfying, well-balanced life. Remember Jesus said to His disciples, "He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also," and Jesus' works were on this wise: (Please turn to page 10)

CHILDREN

By E. E. Giesler, Moorefield, Nebraska

---

MY FRIENDS, your children by right belong to God. Are you doing anything to decoy them away from the Lord? Is it not better to guide them into the path of light and everlasting life, than it is to leave them in ignorance of Christ and the everlasting promises God made to Abraham, and thus willfully expose them to the sin and temptation of this evil world?

"Lo, children are an heritage of the Lord" (Psalm 127:3). "Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not: for of such is the kingdom of God" (Luke 18:16). "Train up a child in the way he should go: and when he is old, he will not depart from it" (Proverbs 22:6).

Christ said, "Suffer little children to come unto me." Are we willing to obey His kind voice and place our little ones in His hands and in the care of the church? Or do we think it best for them to take their chance, unprepared, with the cruel, cold world, and maybe lose them forever? "Train up a child in the way he should go" means much more than a harsh scolding for a wrong deed, or to be taught to say, "Please," or "Yes, Sir," and "No, Sir." All children should be taught good manners and proper respect for their elders; still there is something far greater. Children should be taught the truth of life, the truth of creation, the truth of God and of Christ.

The home is a good place to train the child to walk in the path of light and life. Father, Mother, if you wish to safeguard your children against the evils of this world, you should begin their spiritual training very early in their lives. They should be taught loyalty to Christ and His church. The best way to teach loyalty to a child is to be loyal yourself. The average intelligent child could not have much confidence in Christ and His church unless his parents attended church. Children are bound to wonder why mother and father lie in bed too late Sunday mornings to attend ten o'clock Sunday school. They also probably wonder why their Christian parents put their non-church-going-Sunday guest above Christ. Actions, friends, speak with a more impressive language to your child than just words.

Why not bring that precious child to Sunday school? There is always an open church on Sunday morning, a warm building, comfortable seats, good Sunday school literature, and, best of all, able teachers.

Have you never thought that it may be discouraging to your pastor and Sunday school teachers to have to carry on the work without you? A good question, my friends, to ask yourself is this, Would there be a Sunday school if all Christians were like me? Sure, you console yourself by saying, I listen to radio sermons. Did you ever try calling your "radio pastor" in time of sickness, or ask one of them to come for the funeral service? Your home pastor is your best friend, if only you knew it, but he has some feeling and he is always happy when you attend church. What are you going to do about it the rest of this year? Are you going to let the church struggle along the best it can without your help? or will you "get in" there and help pull the heavy load as you should do?

For the church to grow and be the blessing it should be, it must have faithful members. A church without children is doomed finally to die. Yes, children are "an heritage of the Lord." Will you give your child to Christ now? Go to Sunday school and church services throughout this year.

News and Prophecy Digest

By C. E. Randall (Fonthill, Ontario)

INTERNAL STRIFE. The sons of Israel could well say today, "Unto us belongeth confusion of faces." There is a struggle within the forces of Zionism today that may render its effectiveness in pushing the battle for Zion's freedom. This difference of spirit and purpose is noted in the recent resignation of Rabbi Stephen Samuel Wise, founder of the Zionist Organization of America. He said, concerning his withdrawal: "I do not, I cannot withdraw from Zionism, but I withdraw from . . . Zionist Organization of America."

Also, in the recent World Congress of Zionism, the ousting of Dr. Chaim Weismann as president reveals an element of discontent there. The spirit of unrest is everywhere manifesting itself. Jewry has stood well united down through the centuries. Will it, at the most crucial moment of many centuries, permit radicalism to dictate its policies and frustrate its aims?

The prophets' cry of "peace in the homeland" may sound good to ears that have heard the cries of "persecute, persecute" for so many centuries throughout the world, yet those who know the Word of God's prediction know that such hopes are the hopes of false prophets. It is the cry of "Peace, peace, when there is no peace."

CHURCH ARCHITECTURE. At the recent conference of church architecture in New York City, it was stated that contracts for church construction were let amounting to $650,000,000. The outside architecture is mostly along standard lines, with the church appearance being maintained. The interiors of the churches are to be modernly arranged with "recreational halls, bowling alleys, kitchens, and parlors with cozy fireplaces."

It is not the structure that determines the spirit within. True, worshipful appointments contribute to reverence and a worshipful atmosphere, but it is the worship and conduct within that governs the spirit. The nominal church is going modern in its weekly program. The logic that it is better for young people and adults to play pool, bowl, and dance in the recreational hall or rooms of the church than at road houses and other places of worldly amusement, seemingly, sounds good to many. Candidly, folk, where do such things fit into the gospel work of preparing members of the body of Christ for the high calling and the work of the Kingdom in the ages to come?

BUYING PEACE. Peace is easily obtained, but it cannot be bought with money. Speaking before the Freedom House Forum in Wilkie Memorial Building, New York City, Chester Bowles, in reporting his recent survey trip in Europe, expressed himself as feeling that world peace could be obtained if Americans were willing to "invest their resourcefulness and at least 2 per cent of their national income, or $4,000,000,000 each year, for the next twenty years in helping to stabilize world peace." In this humanitarian effort, Mr. Bowles thinks Americans "might well change the entire tide of world history."

If world peace could be obtained at the figures which Mr. Bowles suggests, it would be a good investment and an inexpensive one, too. Why is it that people generally think of security and peace in terms of money? Just as though silver and gold could buy peace! There is no peace to the wicked, says God. The only peace that is of lasting value is that which is centered in the heart, branded "made in Jesus Christ." Jesus says, "It is my peace." How long is it going to take people to learn that peace is something in the heart and not in the pocket book?

MODEL COUNTRY. The heir apparent to the throne of Saudi Arabia, Amir Saud, is visiting America, as result of the recently negotiated oil treaty, between the oil interests of this nation and Saudi Arabia. He is being shown the urban and rural developments in this country for the purpose of interesting him in permitting Saudi Arabia to be made over with the royalties from the oil contracts. It is the desire of the State Department to make a model country out of Saudi Arabia through this new relationship under American tutelage. A six-point program is under consideration:

- 1) Opening of King Solomon's gold mines;
- 2) Development of road and rail networks;
- 3) Construction of a deep water pier on the Persian Gulf;
- 4) Electrification, water, gas, and sewage systems;
- 5) Educational program;
- 6) Air base rights (these have already been granted).

It is significant to remember that Arabia is going to be allied against the Northern Confederacy that is to come against the mountains of Israel. "Sheba and Dedan" will be the first to question the purpose of the hordes under the leadership of Gog in coming against Palestine. This oil contract, lately negotiated, may be a significant step in bringing the defenders of Israel into an alliance.

DISABLED. The New York Times, in a late issue, carried a story about the crippled in the United States, in which it was stated that there were 23,000,000 in this country disabled from infantile paralysis, cerebral palsy, accidents, arthritis, tuberculosis, strokes. What an army of "mained and halt"! Only the good Lord knows the physical suffering and mental anxiety suffered by these millions. When the Lord brought Israel out of Egypt, there was not one feeble person among them. Much is being done for the sick and disabled, yet the number is constantly on the increase. It is only the Lord who can reduce their big army until none will be sick or crippled. With such a magnificent work before Him in bringing into being a condition in which the inhabitant will not say, "I am sick," and the lame shall "leap as an hart," etc., why should not we daily sing the praises of the soon-coming Redeemer? Blessed event! Come, Lord Jesus, and come quickly!

CHINA REDS. Peace efforts with the Reds in China have bogged down. They have rejected the latest peace moves, and authorities feel that the possibilities of ending the civil war are very remote.

The China Inland Mission reports work in the area where the Reds are operating as being very difficult. It says: "Communism seems to have a strong hold in North China. Christian work is made almost impossible in Communist-controlled areas. Bibles are destroyed, churches confiscated, and innumerable difficulties put in the way of worship. Certainly there is need of prayer for poor old China."

This is characteristic of Communism. These militant godless are doing all in their power to stir up the nations and make them angry. Faith in God must be uprooted before the scene which John on Patmos saw, when "the nations were angry, and thy wrath is come, and the time of the dead, that they should be judged." It's coming!

A GOOD YEAR. The New York State Tax Department reports the liquor industry and tobacco trade as having a very good year. It reported 299,500,000 gallons of beer, liquor, and wine consumed in 1946, and 34,354,462,550 cigarettes sold, or a per capita of 122½ packages. If put end to end, the cigarettes smoked in New York State alone in 1946 would belt the earth at the equator sixty-five times. Just think of all the time wasted smoking all these fags, and all the fire losses incurred through carelessness of those smoking! I wonder what will happen to these two big industries when the "world passeth away, and the lust thereof." What do you think?

HOMELY TRUTH. In an address at the University of Pennsylvania on Founder's Day, Rear Admiral William S. Parsons, Navy Director of Atomic Defense, said: "In the atomic energy field, it is not the atom that may get out of control, it is the human."

This short comment is one of the best nuggets of truth concerning atomic dangers that we have read from any source. It is man we need to fear. The human, carnal, Adamite nature of man is the source of "wars and rumours of wars." These all come from the lusts that war in our members. The Atomic Energy Commission would make a worthwhile contribution to world welfare, if it would come forward and recommend to the world that nations adopt God's method of Atomic control—bringing man into subjection to the higher powers.

Will Israel Be Saved?

By B. F. Skeels, Perryville, Kentucky

WHY DO WE ASK this question? Well, there are people with whom we come in contact, who profess to believe the Bible, but say Israelites cannot be saved unless they do what the Bible plainly tells they cannot do—believe on Christ and be baptized. "Therefore they could not believe, because that Esaias said again, He hath blinded their eyes, and hardened their heart; that they should not see with their eyes, nor understand with their heart, and be converted, and I should heal them" (John 12:39, 40).

Someone said in my hearing, "They could see if they wanted to." The Word says "they could not," and I believe it. Do you? Would you say those that were murdered in the most brutal ways imaginable, suffering martyrdom because they were Jews, would go into everlasting destruction? Were they baptized? I do not think they were; do you? If not, were they all cast into everlasting destruction, with their eyes blinded so they "could not believe"? Is that your opinion of God's mercy? Does God sanction this attitude? Let us see.

"Therefore all they that devour thee shall be devoured; and all thine adversaries, every one of them, shall go into captivity; and they that spoil thee shall be a spoil, and all that prey upon thee will I give for a prey. For I will restore health unto thee, and I will heal thee of thy wounds, saith the Lord; because they called thee an Outcast, saying, This is Zion, whom no man seeketh after" (Jer. 31:16, 17).

"Again the word of the Lord came unto me, saying, Son of man, set thy face against Zidon, and prophesy against it, and say, Thus saith the Lord God; Behold, I am against thee, O Zidon; and I will be glorified in the midst of thee: and they shall know that I am the Lord, when I shall have executed judgments in her, and shall be sanctified in her. For I will send into her pestilence, and blood into her streets; and the wounded shall be judged in the midst of her by the sword upon her on every side; and they shall know that I am the Lord. And there shall be no more a pricking brier unto the house of Israel, nor any grieving thorn of all that are round about them, that despised them: and they shall know that I am the Lord God. Thus saith the Lord God; When I shall have gathered the house of Israel from the people among whom they are scattered, and shall be sanctified in them in the sight of the heathen, then shall they dwell in their land that I have given to my servant Jacob. And they shall dwell safely therein, and shall build houses, and plant vineyards; yea, they shall dwell with confidence, when I have executed judgments upon all those that despise them round about them; and they shall know that I am the Lord their God" (Ezek. 28:20-26).

"Thou, Israel, art my servant, Jacob whom I have chosen, the seed of Abraham my friend. Thou whom I have taken from the ends of the earth, and called thee from the chief men thereof, and said unto thee, Thou art my servant; I have chosen thee, and not cast thee away. Fear thou not; for I am with thee: be not dismayed; for I am thy God: I will strengthen thee; yea, I will help thee; yea, I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness. Behold, all they that were incensed against thee shall be ashamed and confounded: they shall be as nothing; and they that strive with thee shall perish. Thou shalt seek them, and shalt not find them, even them that contended with thee: they that war against thee shall be as nothing, and as a thing of nought"—like Hitler! (Isa. 41:8-14.)

"Thus saith thy Lord the Lord, and thy God that pleadeth the cause of his people, Behold, I have taken out of thine hand the cup of trembling, even the dregs of the cup of my fury; thou shalt no more drink it again: but I will put it into the hand of them that afflict thee; which have said to thy soul, Bow down, that we may go over: and thou hast laid thy body as the ground, and as the street, to them that went over" (Isa. 51:22, 23). "No weapon that is formed against thee shall prosper; and every tongue that shall rise against thee in judgment thou shalt condemn. This is the heritage of the servants of the Lord, and their righteousness is of me, saith the Lord" (Isa. 54:17). I would not expect any work that was directed against God's chosen people to prosper, for it is against God—whether it be the armies, or the government, or the church. I would not try it.

"Comfort ye, comfort ye my people, saith your God. Speak ye comfortably to Jerusalem, and cry unto her, that her warfare is accomplished, that her iniquity is pardoned: for she hath received of the Lord's hand double for all her sins" (Isa. 40:1, 2). After they pay double for all their sins, what next? Someone would say destruction. "Remember these, O Jacob and Israel; for thou art my servant: I have formed thee; thou art my servant: O Israel, thou shalt not be forgotten of me. I have blotted out, as a thick cloud, thy transgressions, and, as a cloud, thy sins: return unto me; for I have redeemed thee. Sing, O ye heavens; for the Lord hath done it: shout, ye lower parts of the earth: break forth into singing, ye mountains, O forest, and every tree therein: for the Lord hath redeemed Jacob, and glorified himself in Israel" (Isa. 44: 21-23).

I firmly believe these following scriptures: "I would not, brethren, that ye should be ignorant of this mystery, lest ye should be wise in your own conceits; that blindness in part is happened to Israel, until the fulness of the Gentiles be come in. And so all Israel shall be saved: as it is written, There shall come out of Sion the Deliverer, and shall turn away ungodliness from Jacob: for this is my covenant unto them, when I shall take away their sins. As concerning the gospel, they are enemies for your sakes: but as touching the election, they are beloved for the fathers' sakes. For the gifts and calling of God are without repentance" (Rom. 11:25-29). God does not repent of His promises, but keeps them.

"As ye in times past have not believed God, yet have now obtained mercy through their unbelief: even so have these also now not believed, that through your mercy they also may obtain mercy. For God hath concluded them all in unbelief, that he might have mercy upon all. O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! how unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out!" (Rom. 11:25-33).

When we have a "thus saith the Lord" in a direct promise to any people, would you think anyone should doubt or dispute it? "Therefore prophesy and say unto them, Thus saith the Lord God; Behold, O my people, I will open your graves, and cause you to come up out of your graves, and bring you into the land of Israel. And ye shall know that I am the Lord, when I have opened your graves, O my people, and brought you up out of your graves, and shall put my spirit in you, and ye shall live, and I shall place you in your own land: then shall ye know that I the Lord have spoken it, and performed it, saith the Lord." That promise sounds binding to me. (Ezek. 37:12-14.)

If anyone would study the foregoing scriptures, without prejudice, he could come only to one conclusion. Or—cannot a Jew get an unprejudiced consideration of any case? I realize that I am taking a very unpopular position on this subject, and will not make many friends, if I do not make more enemies, but I realize that I am presenting God's truths. Therefore, I am willing to risk it! "If God be for us, who can be against us?"

Under "Lord" list: triumphed, strong, powerful, holy, fearful, wonderful, merciful, guided, reign forever. The other words belong in the list under "Egyptian."

THE GREAT PHYSICIAN

PSYCHIATRY DEMANDS:	CHRISTIANITY DEMANDS:
1. Utter frankness, admission of need of help.	1. Confession, admission of sin.
2. No rationalization about maladjustment.	2. Recognition of need to change.
3. Confidence that integration can be effected.	3. Faith in the power of God.
4. Reliance on help of some better-adjusted person of stronger will.	4. Yielding to God's will.
5. Willingness to follow suggestions of superior will precisely.	5. Willingness to follow example of Jesus.
6. Gradual adjustment to living and inner peace.	6. A realization of forgiveness and a new start.
7. Full return to normal living.	7. Growth in useful living, helping others, and inner peace.

Knowledge so new to mankind was understood and used by our Lord many, many years ago. Truly, He is the Great Physician! Grasping these truths and applying them to daily living, one cannot but grow in knowledge of God and out of grateful love grow in service to others. Here all unaware and unsought, happiness comes; for happiness is not a goal to be sought. It is a reward for unselfish service.

I have no patience with those who would have us believe that followers of Christ will be spared all illness or misfortune. God has not promised that for this day is man's dominion. Now we are beset by the results of sin and mistakes in living; subject to all the ills to which flesh is heir, but praise His Name! the Day will come when all these things are past. Jesus will come, bringing rewards for all who have served Him faithfully here and now.

STUDYING "GODHEAD" AND "LORD"

of persons. Here the word is in the feminine gender. In Colossians 2:9, the revisers have inconsistently retained the word "Godhead." The word "bodily" (somatikos) is a derivative from the word soma (body). If it suggests anything, the suggestion is certainly physical, and would commit the "orthodox" idea and interpretation to the absurd conclusion that Christ Himself is the Trinity, with the consequent result that the other two members of the Trinity lacked even bodily personality as well as the personness mentioned, for the Christ had it "all" dwelling in Him. The word "Godhead" here is in the feminine gender, preceded by the article in the feminine gender.

Now, let us consider the word "Kurios," concerning which you inquire. Paul said in 1 Corinthians 8:5, the verse just previous to the one you mention, "For there be that are called gods whether in heaven or on earth, as there be gods many and lords many . . ." (italics) mine). With regard to the first, there can be no dispute, for there are thousands of gods (so-called). On the other hand, there can be no question that in its primary sense, God makes the claim many times that He alone is God in the most strict sense of the word—"I am the LORD, and there is none else." "Besides me there is no God." (See Isa. 45:5, R.V.) In no sense is He derived. He was neither "made" nor was He "created." Time and again, He claims unique distinction; and the titles "Most High" and "Most High God" are His and His alone.

The case of Kurios is entirely different. Kurios means—"Lord, Sir, Master," according to Young's Concordance. It quite properly may be applied to any personality of varying degree entitled to respect; and, because of that, the status implied by the word can be determined only by the connection in which it is placed. In Mark 12:29, it is linked with God, and its status is indicated thereby. In 1 Corinthians 8:6, it is linked to Jesus Christ. Here again the status of the word "Lord" is measured by the status of the person to whom it is applied. Jesus is the name of the Person; and Christ, which means "anointed," is testimony to His position in subjection to the Father who anointed Him. (Acts 10:38.) Your remark that "but" is not in the Greek in verse 6 does not in any way alter the numeral "one." However, the word "but" is in the Greek in verse 4. There was no necessity for its occurrence twice in verse 6.

"BORN OF THE SPIRIT"

and praise his glory for it" (Eph. 1:13, 14; Goodspeed's Translation). "You must not offend God's holy Spirit, with which you have been marked for the Day of Redemption" (Eph. 4:30; Goodspeed). Let us notice, also, 2 Corinthians 1:22, which reads: "Who hath also sealed us, and given the earnest of the Spirit in our hearts." The word "earnest," as defined in the dictionary, means: "A token of what is to come; a pledge." Shall we say a pledge of the Spirit? This is the thought presented in the Companion Bible; the word "foretaste" is given for the word "earnest," and I like it a little better.

The foretaste of the Spirit and being begotten of the Spirit are the same. We are now begotten of the Spirit. At Christ's coming, we shall be born of the Spirit, be motivated entirely by the Spirit or the power of God, will be able to go and come like the wind and like Jesus did upon occasion after His resurrection. "Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is" (1 John 3:2). Jesus was mortal as we are. He is now immortal. We, too, shall be immortal, if we do not have a miscarriage of faith. I do believe that we become "new creatures," begotten creatures of God. We should be more earnest in the Lord's work, knowing that our place in the Kingdom is conditional, based upon hope.

LIVING THE GOLDEN RULE

By W. G. Moffet, Magazine, Arkansas

THEREFORE all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them: for this is the law and the prophets" (Matt. 7:12).

Sometimes one sees members of churches representing different denominations living so close together that it seems they cannot approve of one another's actions. This should not be. Each member is worshiping God in a way that seems right to him, and he should not expect his neighbor to do differently than he does. One member should not "fall out" with another, for in so doing he is breaking the Golden Rule.

Why do people "fall out" over the way others worship God? It seems queer to me that they can discuss best methods of farming, stock raising, and other business projects, though they differ, and they enjoy the conversation and one another's advice, yet these same persons become unfriendly toward each other in Bible conversations. There is something wrong somewhere! It is a fact that if two persons differ on a Bible subject they cannot both be right, and they both could be wrong—one or both believing a false doctrine condemned by the Bible, but why "fall out"?

Every Christian should teach God's truths to others to the best of his ability. If one refrains from teaching truth as taught in the Bible merely to keep his friends from thinking hard of him, he does a serious wrong. God would style him as a man pleaser, and God really condemns that. (Gal. 1:1-12; 1 Thess. 2:4.) Always, in keeping with the Golden Rule, we should try to please others when we can please God, too, by doing so (Rom. 15:1-3), but one must please God, regardless. Every Christian, in attempting to teach other Christians and members of other denominations, should be kind. There should be a loving spirit manifested, as each is doing God's will as he understands it. It is the duty of every Christian, too, to learn more of God's will.

Let us all attempt to do God's work in God's way, in full love to those we serve. After the pattern of Paul, let us not shun to declare "all the counsel of God," and let us be friends one to another, standing for Jesus always.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

Prepared by Madge Savage
Waite Park, Minnesota

"Then believed they his words; they sang his praise" (Psalm 106:12).

They Thanked God in Song

"Then sang Moses and the children of Israel this song unto the Lord." (Ex. 15:1-13; 18.) They sang that the Lord "triumphed gloriously: the horse and his rider hath he thrown into the sea." The Israelites, in their song, claimed God as their strength and song. He became their salvation because He delivered them from the Egyptians. It was then they decided to prepare or build for Him a dwelling place or habitation. They wanted to exalt Him and have Him near them.

The Lord was praised as a "man of war." He caused Pharaoh's chariots and soldiers to be lost in the sea. The Lord's people were saved. You remember the story?

The pillar of the cloud which had gone before them now went behind them. Moses stretched out his hand over the Red Sea. In his hand, he held his rod. The sea was divided, and the children of Israel went across on dry ground. (Ex. 14:16, 19.) All the night long, a strong east wind, which was caused by the Lord, made the passage dry and divided the waters. (Ex. 14:20-22.)

God looked upon the Egyptians through the pillar of fire and of the cloud. He caused them to have trouble in their crossing after the Israelites. Their chariot wheels came off. The Egyptians learned to fear God at this time, but it was too late to save their lives. Moses stretched out his hand over the sea again at God's command. "There remained not so much as one of them." The Egyptians would trouble God's people no more. (Ex. 14:28.)

"Pharaoh's host and chosen captains were drowned," the Israelites sang. They sang, "Thy right hand, O Lord, is become glorious in power: thy right hand, O Lord, hath dashed in pieces the enemy."

Other praises they sang were, "Who is like thee, glorious in holiness, fearful in praises, doing wonders"; and "The Lord shall reign for ever and ever" (Ex. 15:11, 18).

Have You Forgotten?

When Jesus healed the ten lepers only one returned to thank Him. Jesus said, "Where are the nine?"

Have you forgotten to thank Him? Has He delivered you from sin or the enemy? Has He given you length of days? Even little girls and boys know sometimes how they are kept safe from some accident.

Just to say "Thank you" is not enough. Service is better than just saying thanks.

When we realize how much Christ has done for us, we can more fully understand what Jesus meant when He said to Peter, "When thou art converted, strengthen thy brethren." The weak are to be helped by the strong brethren. Study the Word, go where you have opportunities to strengthen the faith of the brethren. True service demands self-denial and carrying your cross in working for Him. Christ pleased not Himself, neither should we continually do as we please. (Rom. 15:1-3.) Live your thanks; do the will of God.

Let's Play!

Write these two words to head two lists of words: 1) Lord; 2) Egyptians. Separate the following words by putting them below the proper heading:

Triumphed, thrown, weak, strong, powerful, cars, horses, rider, holy, fearful, chariots, captains, wonderful, merciful, captains, covered, guided, enemy, drowned, reign forever. (See page 10 for answers.)

God's Care

"God takes very good care of His creatures, especially His faithful children, who repose all their confidence in Him and strive to do His will. At any rate, He does not allow them to go unfed, even if He has to spread a special table and get an angel to serve, as He did in the case of Elijah, who was both hungry and discouraged. Poor fellow, he was cut off from court favor and fellowship, and was tried within an inch of his life by the prevailing wickedness of the people. Finally, he sought the seclusion of the desert, where the rocky wilds afforded him rest. God sent an angel, who brought him a drink and baked him a cake, and sent him on a special mission rejoicing."

"It is not so much what comes to you as what you come to, that determines whether you are a winner in the great race of life."—Frances Willard.

A BEREAN MESSAGE ON

DOING THINGS

FROM THE BEREANS

James M. Watkins, Guest Editor

DOING THINGS is the keynote of this message from Don McBride, Grand Rapids, Michigan, who says—

"I think that Berean members should take turns preparing and giving the lesson. When each one's turn comes, he should be ready and willing to take part. I think most of them are willing to participate.

"There should be a meeting each week. I would suggest that this meeting be held on Sunday, so the members may assist in the evening services by helping with some of the following work:

- (a) Helping with the ushering.
- (b) Leading the singing.
- (c) Reading the Scripture.

"I feel, too, that members should have a part in the discussions of the church and the planning of the church board. The young people should have an older person for a leader who is on the church board to counsel with them, so they may share in one another's ideas. In too many churches, the young people are left out and forgotten by the older members, which I do not feel is right.

"Perhaps once a month or so, there should be some relaxation such as a skating party, all-games party, hike, picnic, or weiner roast. Also, to add interest after meetings, there should be a little snack. I do not mean a big lunch, but just a little popcorn or something in which all may join. Perhaps each member can bring something to add to this social period."

Don also suggests the value of attendance buttons and other campaign helps to encourage everyone to work harder at being present for all meetings. This thought is also presented by Leo Ray Lloyd of Eldorado, Illinois. Leo Ray also says:

"Every church should have a young people's club. They should work to help take care of the church, especially to help keep the yard clean and the lawn mowed. Young people can also help to usher and help to find chairs and seats for people when they are needed. Likewise, there should always be a junior choir of the young people,

"The young people should have a special leader selected to lead the prayer and other parts of the meeting. Leaders can be selected in the A-B-C order of their initials, or the leader can choose the one for the next meeting.

"There should always be an older leader present to help keep the meeting going right and to help out if it gets hard for the leader. At the end he should take over and add something to the meeting and offer the close. At the close, they should also have a paper to hand out and read."

Leo Ray also agrees with the many who have suggested the value of picnics and proper form of recreation. Incidentally, while we are speaking of papers, does your society receive the new Berean monthly with all its valuable suggestions on study, news, and activity suggestions? The name is The Guiding Star. A letter to Beth Hardesty, Oregon, Illinois, will put your society in line to receive as many copies as you need. It is our new publication devoted entirely to the interests of young people.

Jim Niles of Grand Rapids, Michigan, also seems to feel that the only route to a real interest in Berean work is by having interest enough to do something ourselves. He puts it this way:

"I think there are a few ways to improve our Berean societies: first by having all pupils take part in the lesson. By this I mean that one may lead the singing, one may offer prayer, and someone else teach, etc.

"We should also have more discussion between groups during the lesson. In order to have this, I think my first suggestion would be to encourage more of the pupils, if they are shy or afraid to say things in a discussion. The only way to get them over it is by having them take part in the lesson."

Jim also brings out the value of an occasional party and taking part in the Sunday evening service. But his prize suggestion is in working at the job at being friendly to the newcomers. So here we have it. We all seem to agree that we will never be interested with doing something ourselves.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CALENDAR

March 1, 2.—Northwest Quarterly Conference at Corvallis, Ore.

TEMPE, ARIZONA

Whenever any of our church people anywhere travel west, or east, for any reason, they usually manage to visit our church or some of its members. Among those who have done so recently are the following: Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Townsend, Richard and Martha, of the Pennellwood Church, Grand Rapids, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. Val Mattison of the Oregon, Ill. Church; Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Lasher of Los Angeles; and Mr. and Mrs. William Fey of the Ripley, Ill. Church. The latter plan to stop on their way back from California. We hear rumors of others planning to visit or locate here, and we welcome them heartily.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Howell and small daughter recently have arrived in Tempe and plan to make their home here. Francis is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Howell.

There has been considerable sickness among us recently, and some have been kept away from services. They were: Mrs. Mary Laning, Mrs. Don Mumford, Mrs. Joe Bunch, Mrs. Larry Miller, and John Edward Lapp. Little Carol Townsend had the measles which kept the entire family away. We pray that these and many others will be back in their usual places, even before these words are read.

In the absence of our pastor, Clarence Lapp, the writer conducted services on January 26 and February 2. Bro. Lapp attended the midwinter Ministerial Conference at Oregon, Ill.

A service for the children of the Sunday school recently has been added. The pastor makes a talk exclusively for them. In this way, many who do not stay for church are benefited. The adults listen quite attentively also.

Our church already is looking forward to a Bible school in June, which will be conducted, the Lord willing, by Sr. Verna Thayer.

Gerald L. Cooper, Secy.

LADIES! PLEASE NOTICE!

The Ladies of the Blood River Church of God, Hammond, La., are planning to make a quilt, and we would like for the names of all the women's organizations in each church to be autographed on it. The quilt, after completion, will be donated to the Oregon Bible College.

We are asking the president of each club to send her name and address to Mrs. Vernis Wolfe, Rt. 1, Box S-18A, Hammond, La. You will receive more information after your name and address have been sent in. All names must be in by February 4, 1947.

Let us try to have a hundred per cent representation of our clubs on this quilt.

Mrs. Vernis Wolfe.

Gleanings From the Field

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

Bro. and Sr. John E. Miller, formerly of Saint Jacob, Ill., are living now in their newly purchased home at 345 Teller, Rt. 8, Box 534, Lakewood, Colo. They extend a welcome to brethren who may be traveling within reasonable distance of their home.

"The very small group here in Carlsbad is doing its best to get a meeting place. If any member anywhere over the country have any offering whatsoever to help in such a way, it would be deeply appreciated. We meet at Bro. E. H. King's house for Bible study and worship every Sunday morning. We also have Bible study one night each week, usually Thursday night."—Mrs. B. Bartlett, 208½ S. Lake St., Carlsbad, N. Mex.

First three ministers to arrive in Oregon, Ill., for the Midwinter Ministerial Conference were James Mattison, pastor at Hammond, La., Linford Moore, Jr., pastor at Macomb, Ill., and Edward Goit, pastor at Eldorado, Ill.

We rejoice to learn that Bro. A. J. Hoke, business manager of National Bible Institution, recently returned to his home in Dayton, Ohio, from Saint Elizabeth Hospital where he had submitted to surgery.

Sr. Shirley Smith, a member of the Church of God at Oregon, Ill., now completing a nurses training course at Dayton, Ohio, was married, December 14, 1946, at the Broad Creek (Ohio) Church of God to Dyer E. Pappaw, New Madison, Ohio—pastor G. E. Mars' reading the service. We regret being late with this announcement, but data about the marriage came only recently to our attention.

Jon Paul Vanderwall was born to Mr. and Mrs. Richard Vanderwall (nee Erma Jane Hunt), South Bend, Ind., on January 28, 1947. Congratulations!

Sr. Ella Skinner, 4803 E. Washington, Indianapolis, Ind., recently visited at the Hatfield and Magaw homes in Oregon, Ill., again!

"Grandma" Magaw, Lester Prairie, Minn., still detained by sickness at the home of her son Vivian and family, Tipp City, Ohio, is well on the road to recovery and plans within a few weeks to be back in Oregon, Ill., en route homeward. She takes this means of thanking the many friends who remembered her with greetings during her sickness and at the holiday season.

THE POEM CORRECTED

The Restitution Herald regrets having pried the poem, "Roses Will Bloom in the Desert," by Mary Mae Nedrow, published on page 7 in last week's Herald. The poem is here published in corrected form. Thank you for it, Sr. Nedrow, and please forgive last week's jumble.

There's solitude in the desert today,
And sandy wastes abound;
All desolate, and parched, and drear—
No myrtle or fir tree found.

But roses will bloom in the desert again,
"And the desert shall rejoice."
On sandy wastes will be silver streams,
And we'll hear our Saviour's voice.

Beside the streams we'll walk refreshed,
When Eden is restored;
And we shall see Him "face to face"
And crown Him King and Lord.

And when all enemies and sin,
Shall cease their arrogant sway,
God again will walk with man
Some happy, sunlit Day.

A Golden Age will then be born—
No hate will flourish there;
Transcendent joy, with "peace on earth,"
Will touch the fragrant air.

Then roses will bloom in the desert again,
Crimson roses expand
On emerald hills, and by silver streams—
Resplendent throughout the land.

ELDORADO, ILLINOIS

On Sunday afternoon, January 19, 1947, Miss Beulah Murphy was baptized into Christ by Bro. E. H. Goit. At the close of the evening service, our pastor gave a short talk of admonition to us in our duty toward our new sister, and the right hand of fellowship was extended to her. As a fitting conclusion, the Lord's Supper was observed.

While our pastor is attending the Ministerial Conference, Bro. Edmister will deliver the morning sermon, and the young people's Berean class will have charge of the evening service, January 26. Virginia Davenport.

OREGON BIBLE COLLEGE NEWS

A week that is greatly dreaded is now past, and all are rather weak from the ordeal. Perhaps the worst is yet to come, though, and I do mean the results. All that can be done now is to sit and wait, which in itself is quite nerve-wracking. Oh well, we can hope—at least until the results are given out.

Progress, slow though it may be, is being made in connection with the securing of College pins. Certain delays are necessary, of course, but we are doing the best we can to speed things along. Should any of the alumni, or ex-students whom we have failed to contact, wish pins, they can be had by sending an order to Howard Baemer, Oregon Bible College, Oregon, Ill. Send $3.50 for pin and guard (giving year number desired on guard) or $2.25 for pin alone. Please send order immediately if pin is desired, as we have to complete the transactions by the first part of next month.

The students conducted one chapel service this week, Kirby Davis and Bud Goodwin being the speakers. Sr. Verna Thayer spoke at the other chapel service. She gave us some very inspiring and practical thoughts. Milton Hall preached recently in Reusslaer, Ind.

Dean Moore has sent his luggage through to Oregon, and it is hoped that Dean is not far behind. We hope very much to have you with us this coming semester, Dean.

The Student Council met last Monday night and discussed plans for the forthcoming semester and also the old business left from our last meeting. Plans are being made to put on a play this spring, and a search is on now for a suitable one.

Several new students are expected for the second semester. So far we have heard from only three. They are, Dean Moore, Calif., Bobus Holt; Tennessee; and Mabel Payne, Ont. It is hoped that more will be with us when classes commence on Monday morning, February 3.

We hear that a correspondence course in Sunday school teaching is being planned by the College faculty. Anyone interested in such a course should write to Bro. Otto E. Dick, in care of Oregon Bible College, Oregon, Ill.

The courses offered this coming semester are excellent, and we shall list them here for you, that a better picture of the work to be done in the second semester will be yours. The courses are: World Missions, Otto E. Dick; Principles of Teaching, Otto E. Dick; Voice Training, Alta Samuelson; Religious Journalism, Otto E. Dick; Proverbs and Ecclesiastes, Sydney E. Magaw; Religious Art, Mrs. Benjamin Carpenter; Major Prophets, Sydney E. Magaw; Public Speaking, Otto E. Dick; Expository Preaching, Sydney E. Magaw; Composition II, Otto E. Dick; Old Testament Studies, Otto E. Dick.

CHARLOTTE GUSTAFVA SEALINE

Charlotte Gustafva Samuelson, daughter of Samuel and Stina Lisa Samuelson, was born in Smoland, Sweden, March 31, 1856, and died at her home in Stanhope, Iowa, January 16, 1947.

When she was six years of age, her father died, leaving her mother with a family of six children, which in those days was a laborious task. In some way or another, they all survived the voyage across the water to the United States. At the age of fifteen years, she came from Sweden with her twin sister to Moline, Ill.

She came to the Stanhope community in 1880. On May 27, 1880, she was united in marriage to Oliver Sealine. They started housekeeping on the farm three and one half miles southwest of Stanhope where he was living with his parents—the place now occupied by their son Arnold.

To this union were born eight children. The seven children surviving are: three daughters, Nettie Lundquist, Elvira Berggren, and Esther Jenkins; and four sons, Arvid, Anton, Arnold, and Reuben. Eighteen grandchildren and twelve great-grandchildren also survive.

Her whole family was reared on this same farm. In the fall of 1929, she and her daughter Esther moved into Stanhope. For the past seven years, her daughter Nettie has lived with her, under whose care she was at the time of her death.

She was preceded in death by her husband, an infant daughter Nora, one grand-daughter, two great-grandsons, four brothers (Sam and Alfred Samuelson, John and Andrew Lindquist), and a twin sister, Matilda Gustafson.

Her religious life began in Sweden when she was confirmed in the Lutheran faith. Later in life, she became a member of the Church of God, to which she was faithful unto death. She led a quiet and peaceful life, gave full devotion to her home and family, and was loved by all who knew her.

Brief services were held at the home prior to the service at the Church of Christ in Stanhope, Sunday, January 19, 1947, officiated by E. O. Stewart and C. F. Schmidt. Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Kent sang, "Under His Wings" and "God Will Take Care of You." Also, a solo, "Just when I need Him Most," by Clayton, with Mrs. Clarence Ober as organist. Six grandsons acted as pall-bearers. They were Conrad and Eldred Lundquist, Alton Berggren, Donald, Melford, and Edward Sealine. Interment was in South Marion Cemetery.

Mrs. Oscar Jenkins.

ELIZABETH OLIVE FRIER

Elizabeth Olive (Thatcher) Frier was born May 22, 1851, in Fayette Co., Ind., and died, January 3, 1947, at her home, 323 E. College St., Whittier, Calif. ## PROPHECY

By C. E. Randall, Fonthill, Ontario

TO GET at the root of this great subject, one must first consider the prophet. The prophet (nabi) has been variously described as a "pouurer forth," to "bubble forth as a fountain," "an utterer of the will of God," "a fore-teller of future events." All these definitions are true, but they do not express the full mission of the true prophet.

In Samuel's day, the term used was "seer." This name came from the Hebrew raah, meaning "to see." In Chronicles, the term often used is that of chozeh, a "beholder of a vision," also, charah, a primitive root meaning to "glow, become warm," oftentimes, to blaze with anger at the sin of the people. Fausett speaks of these three messengers of Jehovah as "Samuel the seer (roeh), Nathan the prophet (nabi), Gad the gazer (chozeh)."

It has been said, "Nothing is more peculiarly characteristic of the religion and history of Israel than the mission of the prophets, and the exercise of their unique gifts. Greece is famous for its poets, philosophers, and artists; Rome for its soldiers, statesmen, and legislators; Israel for its prophets. The prophet was not simply, nor was he chiefly, a seer of the future. He was a messenger of Jehovah, a man inspired by God to see his Lord's will, and sent forth to declare it." Sanford, in his encyclopedia, puts them in this area of service. Says he: "God was the true King of Israel, and the prophets constituted His ministry. Austere and sublime, they stood out as the national conscience incarnate, as the voice of God pleading with the people." Bagster sees them in this light. He says: "The prophets, whose special function it was to interpret from time to time the meaning of Jehovah's dealing with the nation, may be distributed into five different classes, according to the part they played in the history of the theocracy, each affirming a principle and taking a step in advance of his predecessor, as well as defining more clearly the ultimate destiny of the nation, and the final purpose of God in its election." Dr. O. R. Jenks, in his study outline of Jeremiah, defines the role of the prophet as God's messenger speaking, first of all, to the people of his own time and generation and then to the people of all times.

Putting these purposes together, we see the prophets in the light of Jehovah's messengers, inspired, guided, and strengthened by Him, to reveal His will to His people

Israel (largely), to reprove them for wrong doing, encourage them in times of apostasy to renewed consecration to Jehovah and the strengthening of their faith, and the progressive revelation of His eternal purpose. Prediction was a leading function of the prophet. (Deut. 18:22; Jer. 28:9; Acts 2:30, 31; 3:18, 21; 1 Peter 1:10; 2 Peter 3:2.) It is with this phase of the subject that we present this message. Before entering into this part of the subject, there is another side of the prophets which we feel led to consider for a little time, and that is the "school of the prophets."

Though Abraham was called a prophet (Gen. 20:7), and Moses, of course, was so classed (Acts 3:22), it remained for Samuel to organize them into a "permanent order." He instituted the schools of the prophets: one being located at Ramah (1 Sam. 19:19, 20); another at Bethel (2 Kings 2:3); still another at Jericho (v. 5), and a fourth at Gilgal (4:8; 6:1). These official prophets seemed to have continued to the close of the Old Testament period and were much like the Levites, in that there appears to have been a lineal descent. "The law was the main study, it being what they were to teach," observed Fausett in his encyclopedia. They oftentimes reprovved priests and appeared to have been a supplement to the priesthood. There are two things concerning the order of the prophets that I would like to call to your attention: 1) There were prophets in the order that were false, given to a philandering type of message that tickled the ears of the people. People then were like folk (Please turn to page 3)

The Ministerial Conference

The Midwinter Ministerial Conference at Oregon, Illinois, January 28-31, brought together many active ministers of the Church of God in a series of meetings that were edifying, unifying, and inspiring. Every congregation whose pastor was present will be benefited, we believe, by a renewed faith and energy in its minister. Excellently prepared papers on various religious themes opened the way for discussions on practical and doctrinal questions, leading gradually to a unifying of faith and understanding. Two of these articles appear in this issue of THE RESTITUTION HERALD: 1) "Prophecy" on pages 1 and 3 by C. E. Randall, Fonthill, Ontario; and 2) "The Psychology of Preaching," on pages 5-8, by Otto E. Dick, Oregon, Illinois. Though these messages were prepared especially for this Ministerial Conference, they will be interesting and helpful to all our readers, serving also to give brethren at large a glimpse into the type of work and study that characterizes the Ministerial Conferences.

As heretofore, students of Oregon Bible College were guests of the Ministerial Conference. The ministers attending were:

(Mrs.) Lucille Appleby, Arlington, Nebraska,
 F. L. Austin, Oregon, Illinois,
 John Denchfield, Grand Rapids, Michigan,
 Otto E. Dick, Oregon, Illinois,
 Harold Doan, Chicago, Illinois,
 T. A. Drinkard, Arlington, Texas,
 T. M. Ferrell, Holbrook, Nebraska,
 H. G. France, Wenatchee, Washington,
 Harry Goekler, Hector, Minnesota,
 E. H. Goit, Eldorado, Illinois,
 G. J. Gordon, Cleveland, Ohio,
 Ernest E. Graham, Minneapolis, Minnesota,
 Robert Hardesty, Omaha, Nebraska,
 C. W. Howe, Waterloo, Iowa,
 Alva Huffer, Michigantown, Indiana,
 J. Arthur Johnson, Sac City, Iowa,
 A. M. Jones, Saint Cloud, Minnesota,
 Delbert Jones, Michigantown, Indiana,
 Harvey U. Krogh, Jr., Grand Rapids, Michigan,

C. E. Lapp, Tempe, Arizona,
 J. R. LeCrone, Woodstock, Virginia,
 M. W. Lyon, Oregon, Illinois,
 Emory L. Macy, Kokomo, Indiana,
 Sydney E. Magaw, Oregon, Illinois,
 James Mattison, Hammond, Louisiana,
 C. Alan McLain, Dixon, Illinois,
 Linford Moore, Jr., Macomb, Illinois,
 C. E. Randall, Fonthill, Ontario,
 C. R. Randall, Ripley, Illinois,
 (Mrs.) Verna C. Thayer, Oregon, Illinois,
 James M. Watkins, Oregon, Illinois,
 Walter Wiggins, Eden Valley, Minnesota.

In addition to all-day devotion and discussion meetings, three evening-preaching services were open to the general public—the speakers being Harold Doan, J. R. LeCrone, and C. E. Randall. Plans already are being made for the next Ministerial Conference, same to be conducted during the annual General Conference early in the month of August. We hope for even a larger attendance at that gathering. Let us see if we cannot reach an attendance goal of fifty ministers!

Brother J. R. LeCrone is staying at headquarters for a series of chapel talks to be given before the College students during the week of February 3-7. These Bible discourses will be presented at 10:15 each morning. Local members of the church who may be interested are invited to attend.

Standing for Christ

The recent Ministerial Conference, recognizing deploring social trends, adopted a resolution tending to unify brethren in standing more firmly for Christ. The resolution will be published later. . . . That clean living pays is illustrated by conditions in Iceland. Iceland's seventy-eight thousand inhabitants are total abstainers. That may explain in part why Iceland has no jail, no penitentiary, and only one policeman. Instead, there are well-developed educational facilities—"seminaries and colleges, newspapers and printing establishments," so reports Brother Glenn M. Birkey, Rochelle, Illinois.

PROPHECY

nowadays—they liked to hear what they wanted to know, and such as pleased their lusts; 2) The measure of a true prophet was the accuracy of his prediction in the fulfillment. (Deut. 18:22.)

Coming now to a specific treatment of prophecy, I wish to deal with the seventy weeks of Daniel. This has been described as the "backbone of prophecy." Dr. Ironside, in his treatment of this chapter in his book on Daniel the Prophet, says: "If the seventy weeks be misunderstood, then an effort will necessarily be made to bend all the other prophetic scriptures into accord with that misinterpretation. But if we have a correct understanding of the teaching of this chapter, we can then see readily how all prophecy, without any forcing, falls right into place and is intimately linked up with this the greatest of all time-prophecies."

In dealing with this prophecy, however, as with all other prophecies, for that matter, we should endeavor to get a message that will serve to invigorate our spiritual lives and quicken our interest in the great purpose of the Almighty. The beginning of this chapter reveals Daniel studying the great prophecies of Jeremiah, and as he does, he is led to see that the time of their deliverance from Babylonian captivity is drawing to a close, and he leads his people in confession of their sins and a sincere repentance. Our study of Daniel should do all this for us. If this purpose is not achieved, I am afraid our study has served little gain. . . . Read Daniel 9:20-27.

Gabriel came to Daniel to cause him to understand the vision. Daniel was engaged in prayer. Some of our greatest experiences come when we are lost in prayer. It is not necessary for us to interpret the vision—Gabriel did that for Daniel. All we need to do is to accept the interpretation of this heavenly champion of Israel, who came to Daniel to give him understanding and skill.

The first statement is that "seventy heptads" ("sevens"—generic term) of years "are determined," cut off, marked off, "upon thy people," that is, upon Daniel's people Israel, and "upon thy holy city"—that is, Jerusalem. This picture is an Israelitish scene in relation to God's eternal purpose. Seven distinct missions are set forth to be accomplished during these seventy sevens, or four hundred ninety years, all told.

1. Finish the transgression,
2. Make an end of sins,
3. Make reconciliation for iniquity,
4. Bring in everlasting righteousness,
5. Seal up the vision,
6. Seal up the prophecy,
7. Anoint the most Holy.

What a magnificent outline of God's great work with His people and His holy city! It almost staggers the imagination. Well did Nebuchadnezzar exclaim: "How great are his signs! and how mighty are his wonders!" This great prophetic time period was divided by Gabriel into three separate periods: the first into seven sevens of years, the second in sixty-two sevens of years, and the third in just one seven of years. The first period is well defined as to beginning and end. By adhering to Gabriel's instruction, we encounter little difficulty. Dr. Herbert Willet, University of Chicago, finds the four hundred ninety years here, but disregards the instruction of Gabriel as to the events when the first period starts and ends; so he becomes confused and, like so many other modern commentators, places the fault on the Word. He says: "It is easy to see that the numbers employed in the vision (i.e., sixty-two week-years, 434 years) do not fit the facts of history. Neither does any other scheme that has been proposed by the commentators. The writer's chronology is too uncertain to be squared with the events of those centuries as they are now known to the student of history." People are prone to charge the Word with inaccuracy when they are unable to explain some of its teachings, rather than admit their own weakness to understand.

The first marked-off period of forty-nine years was to start with the decree to restore and build Jerusalem until its completion, which would be accomplished under trying times. Under Astyages, in 454 B.C., according to Dr. Bullinger, the decree to rebuild was made. Forty-nine years later, the wall was completed—"in troublous times." See (Neh. 4:10-23.)

DANIEL'S VISION

"Whiles I was speaking, and praying, and confessing my sin and the sin of my people Israel, and presenting my supplication before the Lord my God for the holy mountain of my God; yea, whiles I was speaking in prayer, even the man Gabriel, whom I had seen in the vision at the beginning, being caused to fly swiftly, touched me about the time of the evening oblation. And he informed me, and talked with me, and said:

"O Daniel, I am now come forth to give thee skill and understanding. At the beginning of thy supplications the commandment came forth, and I am come to shew thee: for thou art greatly beloved: therefore understand the matter, and consider the vision. Seventy weeks are determined upon thy people and upon thy holy city, to finish the transgression, and to make an end of sins, and to make reconciliation for iniquity, and to bring in everlasting righteousness, and to seal up the vision and prophecy, and to anoint the most Holy. Know therefore and understand, that from the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem unto the Messiah the Prince shall be seven weeks, and threescore and two weeks: the street shall be built again, and the wall, even in troublous times. And after threescore and two weeks shall Messiah be cut off, but not for himself: and the people of the prince that shall come shall destroy the city and the sanctuary; and the end thereof shall be with a flood, and unto the end of the war desolations are determined. And he shall confirm the covenant with many for one week: and in the midst of the week he shall cause the sacrifice and the oblation to cease, and for the overspreading of abominations he shall make it desolate, even until the consummation, and that determined shall be poured upon the desolate."

(Daniel 9:20-27.)

The Reason for Church

By Harold J. Doan, Chicago, Illinois

DR. F. A. LOWERY of the Baptist Church says that today the American people spend less than thirty-nine cents apiece for evangelism, while the per capita debt for war is $2,300.00. The cost of the first atomic bomb would have financed 10,000 missionaries in the field for one hundred years at an average cost of $2,000.00 per year per missionary. The Metropolitan Church Life reports that 92 per cent of the young people in New York City have no church connections. Only 25 per cent of the people of the United States will attend church next Sunday morning. Less than 1 per cent will attend that night. Yet, in the face of these facts, some have the audacity to call this a Christian land, and maintain that righteousness is making progress.

The question which naturally evolves from these facts is, "Can a person be a Christian and not attend and support a church?" The answer is, "Yes, he can be, but nine times out of ten, he will not be." As attendance at church has decreased and people have become less interested in anything religious, morals have crumbled proportionately.

Notice the opinion expressed by the Chicago Herald-American: "The nation's moral standards are crumbling to dust, Chicago sociology authorities said. . . . A disintegration of religion was blamed for the shattered standards of the times by George Gibson, president of the Chicago Church Federation. . . . Dr. David Rotman, Municipal Court psychiatrist, believed emancipation of women was the greatest responsible factor. Alcohol was second."

As the church has been scorned (partially because it has lowered its own standards to conform to liberalism), crime, drunkenness, divorce, and other evils have increased in enormous proportions. Since the church has been sacrificed to so-called "individualistic" or radio-type Christianity, the Devil has been rubbing his hands in glee and reaping a harvest of new converts.

If we are to prosper as Christians, our church must be more than a week-end hobby; it must become a power in our lives and in the lives of others.

Many people are misguided as to the Scriptural purpose for maintaining a church and a pastor. The church is not an end in itself, but the means to an end. To join a church does not culminate your Christian experience, it only marks the beginning. You have united with others to increase the scope and benefit of your Christian service.

What are the reasons for church? Why must we work wholeheartedly with the church to maintain our Christianity?

The first purpose of the church and all its services should be worship. Since the beginning, God has desired that His people worship Him, and He has provided them a place and a time of worship.

In the creation story, Adam talked each morning with God in a place upon which he and God had agreed. The first indication of Adam's sin was that he was not in his accustomed place of worship in the cool of the day. Sin and failure to worship God at the accustomed time always have walked hand in hand. Of course, Adam had an excuse for not being there!

When God began His associations with the nation of Israel, one of the first things He required of the people was the building of the tabernacle. The tabernacle, a portable church, was the center of the camp, the unifying force of the people, the place where they went to find God. This is the point: Israel had a building, a priest, and a regular form of worship, so that the people would not forget to worship God.

Then, when Israel was established in the Land of Promise, God required the building of the Temple. This was a permanent place of worship with priests and regular services. The Temple, the house of God, was from then on the center of the whole life of the people. It unified them, reminded them of their obligations, and brought God near to them in a very tangible way.

All this was done under specific direction of the Father, because He knew, as we now know, that humans must have a definite place of worship, a time for worship, a form of worship, and a leader in worship, or they will drift rapidly away into neglect and indifference. Adam had the garden, Israel had the tabernacle and then the Temple, and we have our church.

Jesus recognized the spiritual need for a definite place, and a definite time for worship, and He regularly availed Himself of the opportunity offered. Luke 4:16 reads: "As his [Jesus'] custom was, he went into the synagogue on the sabbath day, and stood up for to read." Jesus was accustomed to going to the synagogue. It was His regular habit, His usual practice, to worship God on the day and in the place set aside for that purpose. Jesus was the Son of God and our Example in all things. Are we better than He? Are we so spiritual that we could be like Jesus without regular meetings when He so faithfully attended and assisted?

The apostles, who were truly spiritual men, we

The Psychology of Preaching

By Otto E. Dick, Oregon, Illinois

THE AIM of this work is to accumulate and organize current thought as to what contribution can be made to the profession of the ministry by the relatively new science of psychology. The subject has been limited to a discussion of how psychology can help the minister to understand himself and how he can better understand his congregation. No attempt will be made to discuss other specific phases of the subject; such as sermon writing, visiting, prayer meetings, Sunday school work, and counseling. I hope you will realize that the field is too large to be covered adequately in the time allotted and that you will be encouraged to read or study further. I trust that what is here presented will be of some help.

To the public at large, psychology is thought to be a branch of mysterious magic. The "psychologists" belong in the same category with clairvoyants, palmists, and astrologists. One "psychologist" describes himself in grand style as "numerologist, biographer, psychologist, astrologer, crystal seer, psychic, and prince of mystics." Like the witch doctor and the sword-swallower, the "psychologist" is supposed to have at his command secret powers which enable him to perform miracles. For reimbursement proportional to the remarkable abilities that he claims, the quack psychologist fraudulently promises to reveal to you the secret of getting what you want, be it money, luxury, success, or love.

Another view of psychology is that it is just merely common sense. The extreme of this view is expressed by Bertrand Russel when he says that "modern psychology consists of the discovery by the professors of what everybody else has always known." The most severe critics would have us to believe that it is a science invented by the professors by which they can discuss common sense in technical terminology and premeditated ambiguities. Psychologist Link confesses, "The findings of psychology in respect to personality and happiness are largely a re-discovery of old religious truths." To a certain extent this would seem to be true. Furthermore, every parent is a psychologist when he faces the task of rearing children; all husbands and wives are psychologists when they work out their mutual adjustments for the best interests of the family; and all are psychologists when they deal successfully with others in all walks of life. The "common sense" view of psychology has its drawbacks, however, because much "common sense" does not make good sense. Furthermore, much that seems sensible or reasonable is not scientifically true. For example, we have heard many times such contradictory "common sense" sayings as the following: "You can't teach an old dog new tricks" and "A man is never too old to learn"; "Out of sight, out of mind" and "Absence makes the heart grow fonder"; "He who hesitates is lost" and "Look before you leap"; "Don't put all your eggs in one basket" and "Jack of all trades and master of none"; "A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush" and "Nothing ventured, nothing gained."

In considering the psychology of preaching, it is essential that we recognize some of the rather contrasting effects of this science on religion. On the critical side, it has sought to prove that all religious experience is an illusion, that the idea of God is nothing more than a projection of man's struggle and need for protection or a regression to an infantile level of thought in which the Father-image plays an important part; and that the religious life of prayer and service is almost wholly due to auto-suggestion or self-deception. There are those who insist that psychologically religion is a handicap to free thought and progress, that it is an opiate to humanity.

A further criticism regarding the psychology of preaching is that psychology and true preaching are in conflict; that attempts to use psychological methods in preaching have often resulted in a perversion of the gospel. We are reminded that Paul, Peter, and Stephen, under the guidance of the Holy Spirit, boldly pointed out the sins of those to whom they preached with no attempt to be tactful. We are told also that psychology opposes negative teaching, while the Bible abounds in negative commands. Such critics point out that the words, "Blessed are ye when men shall hate you, and when they shall separate you from their company, and shall reproach you, and cast out your name as evil, for the Son of man's sake," is hardly in harmony with the principles of psychology.

It is significant that leaders in scientific thinking are not in themselves agreed as to the basic principles of psychology. They are opposed in their views of the basic impulse of life. There are three different views in this respect. The first contends that the basic impulse of life is sex; the second that it is self-preservation or the will to live; and the third that it is the will to power. We should not be too much disturbed about this, however, but should use the discoveries and findings upon which most of the leading psychologists do agree and resolve to keep informed as to authoritative trends of thought. If we examine the constructive contribution of modern psychology to religion, we shall find that the psychologists have brought light upon many difficult problems. They have made clearer and more accessible the roots of religion in man and have taught us much about human behavior.

True psychology is a scientific approach to a better understanding of human nature, so we may consider it an attempt to understand or interpret what God has tried to tell us about ourselves. If the man of the street is to benefit from a study of psychology; if the professional man is to benefit from a study of psychology he must learn to distinguish between true science and that dispensed by quacks. He should learn not to rely upon the thousands of self-styled counselors who write columns of advice in newspapers and magazines.

If the minister is to benefit from the discoveries of psychology, he should know enough about the subject to understand himself. He should know why he strives to achieve a feeling of pride, why he is sometimes envious of others, and why he seeks freedom from want, fear, and monotony. He should know enough about psychology to have a fair understanding as to why he behaves as he does. Through a study of the basic principles of human behavior, he should be able to make adjustments that will improve his personality and consequently increase his power as a minister of the gospel. Perhaps the answer to the whole question of power is to be found in a more diligent search of Scripture and more consecrated life, but surely psychology can make a contribution that will help us to become better Christians through a better understanding of ourselves and of others.

It should be comforting to you to know that few other professions are so psychologically inviting as is the ministry. This is because of the number of pride-sustaining activities associated with the ministry. Every normal person receives satisfaction from a feeling of personal pride. Since this is true, an activity which will sustain our pride will promote a feeling of satisfaction and be conducive to mental health. There is no such thing as human happiness without regard for oneself, no repose or peace in a feeling of worthlessness. It is interesting to notice how often Christ laid emphasis upon the worth of the individual no matter how young or how poor. We should have a sense of self-esteem. One should get genuine pleasure from having done a task well. One should be greatly sustained by the knowledge that through service to the Master he has enriched the lives of others. Everyone likes to feel that he counts for something to others, that they are better off because of him, or that they will be better off because he has lived. In the ministry, you have the chance to exercise your initiative by which you can achieve praiseworthy goals. The fact that the ministry is a profession of social service and winning people to Christ should impress you with your worth to society and bring you ultimate satisfaction. The fact that your work is more important than any other type of work should be a source of great satisfaction to you. Greatest of all is the feeling of the Spirit of God and the pleasure of imparting that Spirit to others.

Mr. G. W. Pepper, a distinguished American lawyer, defines preaching as follows: "Preaching is the revelation of truth through personality" or "the public use of speech with the intent to reveal God to man." While thus its purpose is to reveal God to man, that revelation comes through the expression of the preacher's inmost self; it is the unconscious self-revelation of the preacher. In this sense, preaching is the highest act of worship possible to man. The preacher is called upon to give himself fully to the impulses of the Spirit of God and to interpret God to others. Psychology can give the minister some light upon analyzing the congregation to whom he is to reveal God. It can throw light upon the elements of his own personality which give power to his appeal and upon the elements in personality of the congregation to whom the appeal is to be made.

A minister may know the Bible by memory and not be able to reveal God to his congregation. He may know the Scriptures and be a fairly good speaker; but if he has not given himself to God, if he has not attained a Christ-like personality, he cannot effectively interpret God to his congregation. The successful preacher must have that personality which will enable him to draw people to the truth; which will enable him to arouse in them a passion for Christ. Therefore, unless nature has blessed you with a magnetic personality, you should make personality training a must on your list of necessary improvements. It is in the improvement of one's personality that true psychology can help us most. Many good books have been written upon the subject. One should be sure, however, that he is reading from authoritative sources. To give an example, the widely read book "How to Win Friends and Influence People" has some good advice, but it is not well received by learned psychologists. Much of it seems to be unscientific and nonsense. We shall be upon safer ground if we rely upon the knowledge accumulated through definite rules of investigation and organization. If you have studied psychology, you probably have a good foundation in general psychology and will find interesting and profitable reading any of the many works on practical psychology or the use of psychology in one's daily living. One can learn a great deal about the effects of personal appearance, the danger of favoritism, the necessity of dignity, and the standards that the general public sets up for ministers.

There is ample ground for the psychological theory that there is an impact of one personality on another, a kind of outflow of personal influence, and that this influence is determined in the final issue, by the quality or character of the personality involved. Here, then, must rest the minister's power to stimulate in others the sense of God, and it must spring from the purity of his motive and the reality of his own contacts with God. Likewise, through intimacy with God the minister shares His life, receives His Spirit, and is thereby enabled to communicate His Spirit and presence to other men. It, then, behooves us to become the model for Christians. Furthermore, the spiritual depth of any congregation is in direct proportion to the spiritual depth of its leadership.

There are certain features and habits of ministerial life that either deepen the impression of the minister's personality, or detract from it. For example, his personal bearing at public gatherings may magnify his calling or detract from the dignity of his profession. At all such gatherings, the minister should remember that he stands for his church, and behind all this he stands for his Lord and Master, Jesus Christ. He must strive to fulfill his engagements and should be punctual at every gathering. He should be well prepared if he is to have any part in such gatherings. It would be wise to be prepared to say something suitable to the occasion in case impromptu remarks are called for. If he is righteously indignant concerning things said or done, he should protest in a dignified and Christian manner. He should remember that more is expected of him than of other men, because he represents a cause that stands for the making of character and the mastery over self.

Another psychological theory of preaching that might be worth our considering is as follows: A certain college professor advised his student pastors never to go home with members of their congregation immediately after preaching a sermon. He explained that when the tension of preaching is over, and the reaction sets in, there is a certain relaxation of emotional control, a loosening of the tongue, and a tendency to flippancy and light talk that may undo the effect of a good sermon. He contends that many a holy impulse has been dissipated under such conditions as these, and that it is better for the minister to relax in his own home. By this same line of reasoning, the congregation is confused by a minister who seems to have a dual personality, one in the pulpit and another out of the pulpit. A "comedian" seems out of character in the pulpit and is not taken seriously. Once a women's college asked Mark Twain to give the commencement address. He wrote out a serious address, and the young ladies refused to believe that anything he said was serious. When he took his manuscript out of his pocket, the audience giggled because they thought that was a signal for a laugh. When he started to read in a serious vein, thinking he was trying to be funny, the audience burst into laughter. It is said that Mark Twain pocketed the manuscript and gave a humorous talk. He resolved never again to try to be serious.

Emerson put manliness at the head of his qualifications for an orator. Cato defined the orator as "a good man skilled in speaking." Elizabeth Barrett Browning believed that pure motives were necessary to persuasion. She said:

SCRIPTURAL YARDSTICK

"Whoever aspires to the office of superintendent sets his heart on a fine work. A superintendent must be a man above reproach, only once married, temperate, sensible, a man of good behavior, hospitable, able to teach; not addicted to drink or pugnacious, but a man of moderation and peace, not avaricious, managing his own house well, and keeping his children under control and perfectly respectful—for if a man does not know how to conduct his own household, how can he look after a church of God? He must not be a new convert, or he may grow conceited and incur criticism from slanderous people. He must also be a man of good standing with outsiders, or he may get into disgrace and be entrapped by the slanderers."

(1 Tim. 3:1-8; Goodspeed.)

"It takes a soul
To move a body; it takes a high-souled man
To move the masses, even to a cleaner sty;
It takes the ideal, to blow a hair's breadth off
The dust of the actual."

The nobility of the Gettysburg Address and the Second Inaugural Address is partly explained by their utter sincerity. Downright good intention will carry a speaker farther into the good graces of a congregation than any artifice or technique the speaker can muster. Incidentally, you can render an invaluable service by assisting the College to enroll young men and women with seriousness of purpose, locating prospects who are sincere. This is said with no thought of doubting the sincerity of any former or present student.

In addition to helping the minister improve his personality, psychology can lead him to a better understanding of his congregation and to a better interpretation of his relationship to the congregation. Professor Thomas Hywel Hughes of London says in his book, "The Psychology of Preaching and Pastoral Work" that a Christian congregation differs from every other kind of crowd. He points out that Christians are in your congregation for two related purposes whether they realize it or not. The first is to receive something which will satisfy their needs. The second purpose is to give something, to offer themselves to God through Christ. He explains that this twofold purpose or attitude is the psychological opportunity of the minister. It is in his favor, and he should foster it.

Mr. Pepper, who has been mentioned before, says, "Irrespective of our church relationships, we men in the pews are, as a rule susceptible to the influence of the spoken word. What we in the pews need most of all is to be taught to see the spiritual and the material in true perspective." He maintains that the man in the pew does not have carefully conceived religious ideas, and that, "in the majority of instances, thoughts of God play no appreciable part in his daily life. . . . They have no reservoir of spiritual power upon which to draw in time of need." He explains that this is because the environment of life for most men does not tend to drive them to thoughts of God. Mr. Pepper points out that this very condition is the preacher's opportunity of interpreting life to each man in such a way that he begins to discover traces of God's presence all around him. He further insists that if the preacher is to succeed in this task, he must speak in a language that the man in the pew can understand; and he must strive above all to understand the point of view of the members of the congregation and their ways of thinking.

If we carry the analysis further, we shall find that members of the congregation differ widely. They differ in sex, age, attitudes, life interests, and in abilities. Professor Hughes points out that young people want "a minister who is alive and who has abundant hope and good cheer. The preaching that appeals to them is the vigorous advocacy of great causes, the fearless denunciation of social wrongs, the call to heroic endeavor and the adventurous giving of themselves to service and noble achievement. The aged, on the other hand, tend to live in bygone days; their golden age is in the past; and if they look forward, it is to the promise of a life that is to come. The kind of preacher they desire is one who is full of sympathy, rendered wise by experience and a safe guide; whilst the preaching they ask for is that in which the comfort of the gospel is the main ingredient, making clear the way of peace and carrying at its heart the promise of rest." We have noticed that the older members of the congregation are slow to accept radical changes. They often consider traditional practices in the church almost sacred, and changes must be gradual, almost imperceptible. Professor Hughes points out further that the middle-aged need a preacher who can be a friend, who with a strong hand and sure conviction can hold them to the eternal verities, making real to them the safe refuge and the conquering Christ. The women in the congregation, he thinks, "have a different attitude still, more emotional, less given to abstract thinking, dwelling more on persons and personal qualities than on ideas; they desire to be led to intimate personal contact with God through Christ."

Professor C. S. Gardner in his book "Psychology of Preaching" gives a lengthy discussion upon the psychological effect of occupational differences in the congregation. He believes that the man who labors with his hands is "definitely materialistic," that "the steady output of energy leads to mental inertia, as has been abundantly proved in countless psychological tests. . . . When his time of leisure comes, what he generally needs is excitement, a break in the usual routine, something sensational that stirs his torpid mind to wakefulness or makes him forget." He believes that this type of person needs that kind of religious service which will be of the rousing kind. The hymns must be enthusiastic and fervid of the simpler type, and the preaching must stir his emotions.

"The professional and business type are more intellectually keen and alert. Their own religious lives will be of the nonmystical type; they dislike high emotional outbursts and futile dreams and rely on plain, practical religious living. The ministers they value are the manly type with a certain element of worldly wisdom. Emotional appeals touch them on the surface only; but straightforward common sense and good advice gets home." To these specific classes in the congregation, we must add a number of other individual types: doubters, old attendants hardened to the gospel, backsliders, secret drinkers, and among them what Dr. Gardner calls "contrary" folk who will challenge everything that the preacher says.

"The introvert is the type that forever looks within. moody, retiring, and introspective; he shuns company, broods over things and problems, delights in abstractions, is slow to act, and seeks to live his life to himself. On the other hand is the extravert, who ever looks outward toward the larger world, active and energetic, a little fussy, perhaps, ready for any adventure, spending himself in many ways, rather quixotic and articulate, pushful and aggressive, with currents of life flowing outward." Incidentally, if a minister of the extravert type tries to work in a church where most of the members are "set in their ways," he is almost sure to experience difficulty, a conflict of purposes and interests. His aggressiveness will irritate the congregation, and their complacency will irritate the minister.

Preaching would seem to be an impossibility after considering the conglomeration of interests and characteristics, but fortunately there is a brighter side to the picture. Though the individuals in a congregation differ in many respects, they are united in the basic needs of their personal lives. The late Dr. Ian Suttio, a well-known medical psychologist, in his book, "The Origins of Love and Hate," suggests that these needs are the need for love, for significance, and for security arising from the instinctive nature of man. Professor Whitehead says that the instinctive urge of self-preservation has at its heart more than the urge merely to live; "it has the urge to live well and to live still better."

Mrs. Grace Stuart in her book, "The Achievement of Personality," sought to show that the three needs of human kind can find complete satisfaction only in God. The basic needs of man are due to the fact that "there is eternity in his heart," as the Bible says, and that God breathed something of His nature and likeness into man. Robert Browning said, "The acknowledgment of God in Christ solves . . . all questions in earth and out of it." Since the basic needs of man unite in God, the principal task of the preacher is to make God real to men.

There is another point of unity by which community of thought and life is established. The field of crowd, or herd, psychology reveals that in the realm of the emotions there is a measure of personal fusion and when the emotional reactions are deeply stirred, the congregation can become all of one mind and one heart. The task of the preacher is to appeal to the elemental instincts and stir the affections which are the basic factors of conscious life. A winning personality can gradually dominate the crowd and can be used effectively in moving people to greater consecration and more devoted service for their Lord.

The congregation looks to its minister not only for spiritual leadership but also for advice on many other matters. They expect a man of God to be able to give good counsel on almost any problem of life; therefore he should endeavor to become well-informed upon the psychology of occupational adjustment, marriage, education, and many other phases of life. He should make himself an authority on personal adjustment to family and community life. He should be able to advise young people how to select a life companion. Psychology has organized data upon these and many other vital problems of daily living, and the progressive minister will familiarize himself with such information.

I realize that this discussion has been incomplete, but trust that the importance of psychology in the minister's work has been established. My hope is that even a few will be benefited. May some of you be inspired to make a further study of psychology to the end of gaining power for the invaluable work that you are doing. We should feel that the slightest chance for improvement in our quest of souls for Christ is worthy of our careful consideration. As a parting thought, avail yourself of all the tested and proved techniques applicable to your calling but remember that "the best way to do good is to be good," and pardon the remark if it sounds too much like preaching to preachers.

PROPHECY

The second marked-off period starts at this point and reaches unto the cutting off of the Messiah, but not for Himself. This sixty-two sevens of years (or a total of 434 years) reaches from 405 B.C. to 29 A.D., when Messiah was rejected and His Kingdom refused. "He came unto his own and his own received him not." To them He said: "How often I would have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not! Behold, your house is left unto you desolate." (John 1:11; Matt. 23:37-39.)

Now, as this vision concerns Daniel's people in the land and the city of Jerusalem, we must wait for the next week of years until Daniel's people come back home and are re-established in the homeland without walls and gates. The seventieth week cannot take place while their house is desolate, without sacrifice and worship. A remnant must be in the city.

The work that is to be done during this last week is both destructive and constructive. The prince that shall come is the Man of Sin—the Antichrist whose end will be destruction by the brightness of Christ's coming. (2 Thess. 2:8.) Now it is said that the city will be destroyed by the people of the prince that shall come. Most commentators apply this to the destruction that was wrought under the siege of Titus in the year 70 A.D. Perhaps those seventy first years ending the clawing down of the Temple, so there was not one stone left upon another, were a part of this over-all prophetic picture, yet I am unable to see how the 70 A.D. destruction can fit into either of the two time periods—the sixty-two years or the seven years—for all that Gabriel revealed to Daniel was to be fulfilled in the three periods mentioned. My own thought is that the destruction of the city is that which will come under the last siege mentioned by Zechariah, when "the city shall be taken," "the women ravished," and so forth. (14:1-3.) There is to be a war in connection with the destruction, accompanied by "desolations" which will be upon Daniel's people. The half of the city that will go forth into captivity, as mentioned by Zechariah, I understand will be Daniel's people: as in this last war, the first people to suffer under the heel of the invader were the Jews. They were the first to be sought out and persecuted. So it will yet happen when the "city and the sanctuary" will be destroyed.

Our chief interest at this time in the interpretation is the "prince that shall come." He is designated as a "covenant breaker." Surely this cannot be applied to the true Messiah and the New Covenant, as so many prophetic interpreters have done. Christ is not a covenant-breaker. He keeps His covenant—even to every jot and tittle. This "prince that shall come" makes a covenant with Daniel's people for the remaining or last week. In the middle of the week, he breaks the covenant. Now, it does not say that the prince breaks the covenant, but the very work which he does in causing the "sacrifice and oblation" to cease in the middle of the week is to me evidence that he does betray those with whom he has entered into covenant relationship, which appears to respect the temple worship for the first three and one half years (the time, times and a half of Daniel, or the 1260 days of Revelation, or the forty-two months). This prince, to me, is the little horn of Daniel 7:8, 9 (read), latterly described as the eleventh horn in verses 24-27, also, the king of fierce countenance of 8:23-25. In all these references, this "prince" is outstanding in his opposition to the Lord and the Lord's people. Yes, he is going to overcome the saints and they will be given into his hand for a time, times, and the dividing of time, which is three years and a half. At this point, the Lord will help His people, and will nourish them in the wilderness for a time, times, and half a time. (Rev. 12:14.)

Now it should be noted that this division of time and the interposing of Jehovah in the midst of Israel's troubles has a rich background in the days when the Lord with a mighty hand delivered Israel out of Egypt. The first three plagues came on Israelite and Egyptian alike; then God put a division between His people and Egypt, and Israel was nourished by Jehovah. (Ex. 8:22, 23.) This interceding and protecting of Israel in the midst of trouble again will be enacted when "the prince that shall come" brings desolation and trouble on God's people. When the daily sacrifice is taken away in the middle of the week, it is then that the "abomination of desolation will follow" (Dan. 12:11), when this false messiah will set himself up as God in the Temple of God, "showing himself that he is God" (2 Thess. 2:4). It was when Belshazzar desecrated the vessels of the Temple that God brought his abomination to a close with the handwriting on the wall, "Mene, mene, tekel"—"thou art weighed in the balances and art found wanting."

Many in Israel will accept this false Messiah. Jesus said, "If one came in his own name ye would receive him" (John 5:43). Those who will not bow down and worship this man who speaks great swelling words against the great God will suffer death. Upon all his followers a brand mark will be placed, and to enforce people to receive this mark, the economic factor will be brought to bear. One will be unable to buy, sell, or barter, unless he has this number. It is the number of the beast.

Paul said the spirit or mystery of iniquity was working in his day. Certainly it is operating today. The conditions leading up to the rise, reign, and fall of the Antichrist is a long and progressive development of the forces of unrighteousness. The years of rationing through which we have been passing, while not a mark of the beast, have, nevertheless, been preparing the people for the day when the Antichrist will impose his own rationing system. The spirit of the Antichrist is being developed throughout the world. Personally, I do not believe that the man of sin has appeared yet. We are witnessing the falling away from the faith which must precede his rise. We are seeing the anti-Christian — the anti-God — spirit becoming bolder and more militant every day. I believe the Communistic spirit partakes of the spirit of the Antichrist and that it is preparing the way for the Man of Sin to come and set him-

THE REASON FOR CHURCH

grounded in faith and knowledge, receivers of the power of God, did not try to get along without attending church. Luke said in Acts 3:1, "Peter and John went up together into the temple at the hour of prayer." When worship services were conducted in the Temple, the apostles attended. They, too, recognized the necessity of a place of worship, a time of worship, and attendance at that worship. They knew that, leaders though they were, they might drift away if their faith was not regularly renewed by worship with other people.

Worship alone, however, is hardly sufficient reason for maintaining a small church and hiring a pastor. Actually speaking, we can worship any place, as Adam worshiped. We could worship as well in one large building, where all the people who felt the desire could gather, as we could in small groups scattered here and there.

Worship, however, is not the only reason for church. The second great work of the church is to promote Christian service. "Let us consider one another to provoke unto love and to good works: not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another; and so much the more, as ye see the day approaching. For if we sin wilfully after that we have received the knowledge of the truth, there remaineth no more sacrifice for sins" (Heb. 10:24-26).

The writer is here telling converts that they should never forsake assembling themselves together. Until the last days, no matter when that may be, we should band together regularly. For what purpose? To provoke one another to love and good works. This, to me, is one of the great values of the church. It encourages and promotes the concrete work of Christianity.

One of the first of these necessary Christian services rendered by the church is instruction in righteousness.

When Jesus and the apostles went to church, it was not to hear the political situation discussed, or to review the latest Roman novel, but it was to instruct and be instructed in righteousness. When Jesus went to the synagogue, He stood up to read; and Luke 4:17 says, "There was delivered unto him the book of the prophet Esaias." Jesus read a message, then preached from what He had read.

Second Timothy 3:16, 17 tells us, "All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness: that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works." The Word is to be used for instruction in righteousness. This is one of the primary purposes and services of the church. Here at a regular time in a regular place, we can hear the Word of God read and discussed. In the various classes of the church, we can study and discuss together the things of God. We have the benefit of various ideas and experiences which would otherwise be missed.

Another reason for the church, which comes under promoting Christian service, is works of charity and hospitality. This is one reason for our existence which we have not yet begun to explore and enlarge.

First Corinthians 12:25, 26, speaking of the church organization and in defense of it, says, "There should be no schism in the body: but that members should have the same care one for another. And whether one member suffer, all the members suffer with it; or one member be honoured, all the members rejoice with it." This is one of the most beautiful reasons for the organized church. The members are united in a common bond. They care for one another, helping to bear each other's burdens and rejoicing in one another's success.

When the church at Jerusalem became poverty stricken, it was the offerings collected by Paul from the other churches in the Roman Empire that kept the people alive. During the recent depression, the Christian Church of Holland, Michigan, cared for all its own members so none went hungry or was on relief.

We have a responsibility, as a church, to all men, as Galatians 6:9, 10 states, "Let us not be weary in well doing: for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not. As ye have therefore opportunity, let us do good unto all men, especially unto them who are of the household of faith." To assist charitable organizations and maintain our own works of charity and hospitality is one of the reasons for church.

The fourth and last good reason why it is necessary for Christian people to maintain active interest in church is in that it rebuilds personal faith and spiritual strength. We gain strength for daily living through fellowship and communion with one another.

It is natural for people of the same belief to band together in a strong union to promote those beliefs and to strengthen one another. In this union of kindred hearts is strength. We see it in politics, with different political parties. We see it in labor unions, where men of common ideas with similar work unite to promote their ideas. These facts alone are enough to justify different churches, where people of common goal and similar beliefs can unite to promote those ideas and strengthen one another's service.

Jude 19 says, "These be they who separate themselves, sensual, having not the Spirit." Those who say they do not need the church, more easily fall into sin. Jude implied as much in this saying. The ones who separated themselves from the early church soon drifted into sin and indifference.

Hebrews 10:25, 26 implies the same truth: "Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another; and so much the more, as ye see the day approaching. For if we sin willfully after that we have received the knowledge of the truth, there remaineth no more sacrifice for sins." As the days become darker and more sinful, draw nearer to one another to strengthen one another. Those who separate themselves will soon fall. There is a spirit, a common strength, knowledge, and comfort which is felt in the close communion of a church with a purpose, which is missed by one trying to be a lone-wolf Christian, or one spasmodic in his church work.

We are told that men cast away on desert islands soon forget how to speak their native tongue because they have no one with whom to talk. So it is with the Christian who lives in self-inflicted isolation. He soon forgets his worship and service, because he has no renewed strength from meeting with others like him.

Not only do we receive strength and comfort from one another, but from the Lord who is present in spirit when we meet. Matthew 18:19, 20 says, "Again I say unto you, That if two of you shall agree on earth as touching any thing that they shall ask, it shall be done for them of my Father which is in heaven. For where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them."

When we gather to worship, be instructed in righteousness and praise God; Jesus is with us in spirit to strengthen us and to help us.

There is a power in meeting together which the Christian cannot afford to miss. No matter how poor the speaker may be, you can worship God and be strengthened by your communion with others and with Him.

In this modern age when church has come to be considered a failure because it has lowered its moral and doctrinal standards, people think they can get along without it. Consequently, sin is increasing by leaps and bounds.

There are several reasons why church is indispensable to Christianity.

First, the church fulfills God's desire for a definite place and time of worship.

Secondly, church offers a place for instruction through sermons and class discussions.

Third, the church sponsors and promotes works of charity and hospitality, which would be neglected or impossible to the average single Christian.

Last, the church offers us a place and time for renewing faith and spiritual strength by communion with others of like mind and problems, and partaking of the power of the Saviour who meets with us.

Support your church, for it is your means of worshipping God regularly and serving Him more abundantly!

"These things were our examples, to the intent we should not lust after evil things, as they also lusted" (1 Cor. 10:6).

Our Examples

Let us discover some helps or hindrances from the lives of the Israelites to help us in our Christian living. The whole group sang in thanksgiving to God in our lesson of last week.

Today we find the whole group murmuring or complaining against God. God had chosen their leaders. He had guided their path. Now they were in the wilderness. They were hungry and thirsty. They forgot their God was able to provide for their needs. They forgot He knew what they had need of before they asked Him. They told Moses and Aaron they wished they had died in Egypt on the Passover night—"by the hand of the Lord in the land of Egypt" (Ex. 16:3). At least, they had food and were filled. Now, they complained, they would all die of hunger in the wilderness.

They Were Afraid

The Israelites were filled with fear because they forgot God's mercy and goodness. They would not have been afraid if they had kept their faith in God.

Is it not true today that we become filled with fear when we forget God's promises and way? When we do not grow in Christian graces (2 Peter 1:5-7), we become "blind, and cannot see afar off, and hath forgotten" that we have been purged from our old sins (2 Peter 1:9). But, when we grow and God's Word is in us, we need never forget, never fear. Then we will not be guilty of murmuring as were God's people Israel.

God's Mercy Shown

The Lord God told Moses He would "rain bread from heaven" for them. Then He gave exacting rules to them about gathering it and the amount each should take.

The manna God supplied was small, white, and seed-like. It tasted like wafers made with honey. (Ex. 16:31.) Each was to take only enough for one day.

Nevertheless, some tried to keep it over until the following morning. It was spoiled and worms were in it. The only exception was that they were to gather enough extra for their Sabbath so they would have food without working on the Sabbath. (Ex. 16:22-26.)

When Evil Seems Good

We say Eve only ate an apple. Now to eat fruit seems a good thing, but she was disobeying God's rule. That was why it was evil. We say the Israelites sometimes gathered a little too much manna, but God's rule was only so much should be gathered. To take more was evil.

To see a pencil a friend has is not evil. To desire it, however, so much that you plan how you might get it unlawfully for your own would be lustful and sinful. That is one reason we study the Old Testament. We want to know God's rules. Then we can help to keep ourselves from doing evil.

In itself, to desire food was not evil for the Israelites, but their lack of faith in God, their forgetfulness of His mercy and kindness was evil.

We know God will supply all our needs today.

THE QUESTION of social activities in connection with the work of the church has been a problem for many years. In the early days of our nation, with its Puritan tendencies, such activities were no doubt frowned upon. Later, the church became the very center of activity, for there was nothing else to claim the attention of the residents of a community during the long winter months. With the advent of the automobile and the movie, social activities of the church have become, in most cases, almost nil in number and in interest. It is not my purpose to state whether or not a church should necessarily have such activities as a part of its program, but rather to discuss pro and con their merits.

In the first place, the church must realize that it cannot enter into competition with the worldly places of amusement. These have too much money for decorating and for providing for the comfort of their patrons. On the other hand, we must realize that we cannot hope to isolate ourselves from the world altogether. It is my belief that the only person who could successfully do that would be a hermit who took to the hills and never saw a newspaper, heard a radio, or communed with his neighbors. He would be attempting to live according to the admonition to "be separate," but he would not be recognizing the admonition, "Behold how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity!" One of the outstanding characteristics of a Christian, especially a youthful one, is to "be in the world, but not of the world." That this is an impossibility is not true, for we have all known men and women, boys and girls, who have attained it.

Today the accent is especially on youth. In a recent page of church advertisements in a Phoenix newspaper, there were no fewer than five churches that were advertising youth rallies. All people are coming to recognize that unless the youth of the church is salvaged there is but little hope for the future. This is as true of the Church of God as of any other. It was gratifying to see so many young people in attendance at the last General Conference, but we realize that they were but a small percentage of our total potentialities.

How shall we accomplish our purpose in bringing young people into the church? Is increased social activity the answer? Several of our pastors believe so, and have arranged their programs to appeal to youth out of the church as well as to the youth in the church. Contests are held, games are played, and movies of an educational or religious nature are shown. Such activities serve to attract many who otherwise might become actual "juvenile delinquents." If some of these, because of their contacts with Christian people, are actually led to Christ, all the efforts put forth are more than worthwhile. However, when Jesus was teaching on the earth, multitudes followed Him to partake of "the loaves and the fishes" and to, perhaps, witness a miracle or two. When He told them to "take up your cross and follow me," the majority stopped following Him. So it is with social activities. Many are attracted by the contests, parties, and movies, but drift away when the study of the Bible is suggested, or at least ere they come to Christ.

Gerald L. Cooper

In conclusion, I think that social activities are necessary and will succeed in being an asset to the church in some places, while in many others they will be a hindrance. The pastor, church leaders, and the young people themselves must decide what course to follow. "Whatsoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God and the Father by him" (Col. 3:17).

Gerald L. Cooper,
Tempe, Arizona.

"The grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared to all men, teaching us that, denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously, and godly, in this present world; looking for that blessed hope, and . . . our Saviour Jesus Christ" (Titus 2:11-13).

OREGON BIBLE COLLEGE NEWS

An invasion of the College took place last week. It would appear that the ministers might well adopt that famous statement of Julius Caesar, "I came, I saw, I conquered," as they quite literally did! Seriously though, we all are most happy that they visited us, and hope they can come back again.

Dean Moore arrived last week, and has now enrolled for the second semester. Welcome back, Dean! Dean traveled here from the State of Washington with Gary France. Also traveling with Gary were his brother Clell and Alva Huffer.

The student body and faculty met, Monday morning, January 27, to discuss the courses being offered the second semester. The meeting was opened with singing and prayer. A short talk was given by each instructor dealing with his own courses, past and future, examination results, hopes and aims for the future.

The students have been attending Ministerial Conference this past week, and have gained much from listening to the many subjects discussed by the ministers. The papers presented by the ministers were excellent, and we intend to have them bound and placed in the College library. Wednesday evening, January 29, the Alumni Association met at the College for its annual meeting.

The "Campus Caller" came off the press a few days ago; and, in a few days, it should be in the hands of those who are on the mailing list. Anyone wishing to be placed on the mailing list need only to write to the circulation manager, Rand Smith, Oregon Bible College, Oregon, Ill.

Bro. J. R. LeCrone is to be at the College all this week, and will give one lecture each day to the student body. It is felt that these lectures will give to the second semester a unique and extremely beneficial beginning.

A Companion Bible has been presented to the College by the Parent-Teachers' Association and Dorcas Society of Southlawn Church, Grand Rapids, Mich. This is indeed a priceless addition to our library, as this book is practically unobtainable and it is held in high esteem by all Bible students. Thank you, Southlawn! We also would like to thank Bro. Harry Sheets for his gift of several books. They are excellent.

The second semester began on February 3, and we are once again back at our studies. We thank the Lord for His wondrous blessings in the past and pray that He will be with us and guide us in the future.

W. Howard Bamber, News Editor.

THE LOGSDONS RESIGN

Bro. and Sr. Albert Logsdon, caretaker and matron of Oregon Bible College during the last two and one half years, have resigned their positions. They have served faithfully and well. Their work has been heavy, and Sr. Logsdon's strength has been broken to such an extent that she felt physically unable to continue her work. Much as we regret losing Bro. and Sr. Logsdon's services at the College, we are happy to report that they will be living only a very short distance from the College. Bro. Logsdon has accepted employment at Mrs. Strong's castle on the bluff north of the College. They plan to move within a few days.

Oregon Bible College is grateful to you, Bro. and Sr. Logsdon, for your faithful and loving service. We pray now for your success and happiness in your new work, and hope you will have many occasions to visit your former home and family back at the College.

Sydney E. Magaw, Supt.

Bro. and Sr. James M. Watkins and Sr. Verna Thayer, all of Oregon, Ill., motored to Hedrick, Ind., February 1, where Bro. Watkins preached and Sr. Thayer introduced visual education especially for children.

According to present plans, the Editor will preach at the Morning Star Church of God, South Bend, Ind., the Sunday mornings of February 9 and 23 and March 9 and 23. Also, he will preach there Easter Sunday, April 7. On the February dates, at least, he will preach in the evenings at Hope Chapel Church of God, there addressing a young people's group.

FONTHILL, ONTARIO

As this is the first report since the holidays, I will mention some of the events leading up to the Christmas and New Year season.

Sunday night before Christmas the pageant, "The Child of Prophecy," was presented by the married fellowship group and some of the truth seekers' class. This play, and the accompanying music, were much enjoyed by all.

The next night, the Sunday school varied program was an enjoyable event. The teachers helped their respective classes to take their parts, and reports were to the effect that it was one of our most successful entertainments.

Awards for faithful attendance at Sunday school during the year were made during the evening, as well as distribution of gifts and cards of the two beautifully decorated Christmas trees. Music also was given by the senior and junior choirs.

On the evening of December 29, we were shown pictures of "Palestine Today." The accompanying interesting address showed the great prophetic importance of this country.

The annual New Year's watch service was held as usual. At this time, Mabel Payne was honored by the church group and given some suitable notebooks. We will greatly miss Mabel in our work here, but we bow to the greater and wider field of the Oregon Bible College.

On the two Sunday nights the Oregon Bible College students were home at vacation time, they conducted the church services. Bro. Howard Beemer, Jr., gave us two sermons from which we received good help. We could see various ways in which we could improve, especially in always giving all of ourselves in service to Christ, instead of just some part, at some time. Irene and Harry Payne gave us a very interesting chalk talk, as well as giving us pleasure with several musical numbers.

The annual Sunday school business meeting was held on Friday night, January 3. The reports were very gratifying. Average yearly attendance showed an increase over last year, of eleven per cent. This gain in attendance was one of the most encouraging features of the reports. Collections were up proportionately. The officers elected were: superintendent, W. H. Holland; assistant, Joe Fletcher, Jr.; secretary-treasurer, Maurice Anger; organist, Doris Fletcher; assistant, Betty Elliott; social committee chairman, Wilson Kirkwood; Bible roll superintendent, Mrs. W. H. Beemer.

Recently the junior Bereans did a splendid job of conducting the opening services of the evening service. This junior group meets every Sunday evening for an hour before the evening church service. Bro. Randall directs their studies at this time. I will not say more about the junior Bereans, as a little bird told me that they are thinking of giving their own reports.

A new cradle roll member has arrived. A daughter was born to Bro. and Sr. Orlin Bousfield, Wellandsport.

Those who recently have been on the sick list are: Granny Smith, Camie Elliott, little Joe Elliot, Dan McCombs; and Marilyn Jones. All are improving.

Friday night, January 17, the annual meeting of the Fonthill Church of God was held. Bro. Randall, chairman, opened the meeting by reading Ephesians 4 and offering prayer. Reports of various branches of the work were given. The treasurer's reports showed good balances at the end of the year, and all in all, a very much blessed year has been enjoyed by our church. This last year, we have given three more of our young people, making a total of four Canadians, at Oregon Bible College, in training for greater service in the Lord's work. The following people were elected to office for 1947: first elder, Bro. Joe Fletcher, Jr.; second elder, Bro. W. H. Holland; deacons, Maurice Anger, Ross Anger; assistants, David Elliott, Melvin Haines; deaconesses, Addie Haines, Thelma Barnhart, trustees (new) Howard Beemer, Sr., and Velmer Bousfield; those already in office, Arthur McClellan, Frank Lane, and William Anger; secretary, Horace Haines; treasurer, Irvin Barnhart; auditors, Doris Lane and Marion Brown; property committee chairman, Maurice Anger; kitchen committee chairman, Addie Haines; Herald reporter, Irene Holland; press reporter, Doris Lane; social committee chairman, Wilson Kirkwood.

The congregation extended to Bro. Randall an invitation to stay with us for another year. Bro. Randall has now given us sixteen years of the best of his life, and we have been greatly blessed. The meeting was closed by Elder Joe Fletcher pronouncing the benediction.

Friday night, January 24, we conducted a membership supper. A happy time was enjoyed together in Christian fellowship.

We have started our drive here for new Herald subscriptions.

Repeat to yourself every now and again: "What kind of a church would my church be, if every member were just like me?"

Irene Holland, Reporter.

CHARLES W. NOAKER

Charles W. Noaker died Thursday morning, January 16, 1947, at his home in Marengo, Iowa. A son of Henry and Isabelle Noaker, he was born January 13, 1864. His entire life was spent in Iowa County. He was affiliated many years with the Church of God.

Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon at the Methodist Church in Koszta, in charge of E. O. Stewart, assisted by the Methodist minister, F. B. Hebron. Three songs were sung by Miss Elette Scharbach, accompanied by Mrs. J. M. Kiger. Interment was in the Koszta Cemetery.

Those who survive are his wife, one son Claude, two grandchildren of Marengo, and three sisters, all of Koszta.

Mrs. Nora Wanamaker.

PROPHECY

self up as God. Communism is a godless society. It is opposed to religion. It despises the Book and hates the people of the Book.

What does this all mean to me? It indicates that we are in the day so often mentioned in Daniel as the "time of the end." My admonition to brethren is that we pursue the course of Daniel when he understood by books that the time of their deliverance was at hand, that he confessed his sins and the sins of his people and led them in seeking the forgiveness of sins through genuine repentance. We should do no less with ourselves and our people. The day is at hand. Let us arise and purify ourselves ere the cry goes forth, "Behold, the bridegroom cometh, go ye out to meet him."

NORA BELLE CLAYPOOL

Nora Belle, daughter of William and Eliza Ann Combs, was born on January 29, 1868, in Dolson Township, Clark Co., Ill., and died January 27, 1947.

On September 12, 1897, she was united in marriage with Sperry Claypool. To this union were born three children: Ophir of Danville, Ind., Lolita Elizabeth who died, August 7, 1903, and Osby of Marshall, Ill. Her husband preceded her in death in 1933, and a stepson, Alpha, died two years ago.

She leaves to mourn her death besides her two sons, three grandchildren, two great-grandchildren, two sisters: Mrs. Lola Roberts, Seattle, Wash., Mrs. Clarice Jeffler, Saint Louis, Mo.; two brothers: Edward Combs, Emden, Ill., and William Combs, Marshall, Ill., also several nieces and nephews.

Mrs. Claypool was a member of the Salem Church of God of the Abrahamic Faith, located near her home, and attended church and Sunday school when her health permitted. Her hope was that she may be found worthy to receive a crown of glory when Jesus comes.

She now sleeps in death, awaiting the coming of the Master when the faithful will receive their reward.

Funeral services were conducted by the writer, Wednesday, January 29, 1947.

Harry Gockler.

ZIMRIS RAY MELROSE

Zimris Ray Melrose, born, March 1, 1875, died, January 14, 1947. Our beloved brother in Christ was born in the State of Indiana. He had one sister and five brothers, two of his brothers being in attendance at the funeral. Both of his parents died when he was quite young, and a family by the name of Galispie of Albany, Mo., gave him a home until he became able to take care of himself.

Soon after leaving this home, he began traveling about, visiting a number of the western states, then eastward to Omaha, Neb., where he spent some years. While living in this city, his eyes fell upon the large headline, "Hell caught fire and Pastor Russell put it out." Sufficient interest was created by this caption to start him thinking and investigating. Briefly speaking, he soon became a firm believer in Restitution and kindred truths. He came to Kansas City about fifteen years ago, where he died. He had much truth.

John F. Green, Pastor.

CAROLINE L. STEWART

The morning of January 22, 1947, Sr. Stewart, age of eighty-one years, fell asleep in death, the great enemy of God's creatures. She was a daughter of William and Sarah Mills who were of the Church of God. She moved to Washington in 1901. While living at Wenatchee, she was a faithful attendant at the Lord's house. She moved to Spokane in 1937, to be near her son Art, and remained there until her death.

She is survived by two sons: Art of Spokane, Wash., and Cliff of Portland, Ore., six grandchildren, and six great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted by the writer at the Jones and Jones Funeral Parlors in Wenatchee, Wash., Saturday, January 25. She was laid to rest in the Wenatchee cemetery, there to await the call of the great Life-Giver. May the call soon come to awaken the faithful.

Lyle Rankin.

"Suffer the little children to come unto me," said Jesus to His disciples, who thought religion was only for the wise and learned. Are we guilty, as were these disciples, of neglecting the children and the young people of our time?

The Sunday school is the seedbed of tomorrow's Church of God. We can, by our interest and work, make that Sunday school an important part of the Lord's work, or we can sit idly by while the Sunday school loses potential Christians, who feel the lack of interest shown in them.

Our Sunday school and young people's societies need your interested co-operation. The future Church of God is not entirely dependent upon today's youth, but upon how well today's adults train the youth for service. Are you doing your part, or do you, like the disciples, silently rebuke the children who are serving Jesus in their own little way?

EAST OREGON CHAPEL. "Attendance continues to grow, although we have had no social gatherings for almost a year, with the exception of our annual picnic. It only proves that people come to church for one purpose, and that is to hear the Word of God. We are, however, contemplating the joy of both old and young gathering together for a social hour or two, when the basement is completed. Gordon Landry, our superintendent, continues to preach the good old-fashioned gospel in the good old-fashioned way. Please God, may it continue to be that way."

OREGON. M. W. Lyon has transferred his membership to Oregon from Hope Chapel. (May others soon follow the example of these Oregon brethren, who transfer their membership to the church with which they work.—Ed.) Sr. Thayer and Bro. Watkins have been at home in Oregon the past month, working at National Bible Institution and assisting in the local church services. Sr. Thayer is teaching a class in religious education in the local school, as are Srs. Whitehead, Dick, and Austin. On January 6, there was a district meeting of Sunday school workers under direction of Sr. Frances Walls. (If such meetings are a success, could similar district meetings be organized in other places?—Ed.)

RIPLEY. A young people's party was given in the Herman Lewis home on December 27. Interest in young people is awakening! The annual Ripley business meeting was held, December 11, and the new officers met on January 3. A consecration service has been planned. Now is the time to begin planning to attend the Illinois Spring Conference to be held in Ripley late in March. You are welcome, as usual.

MACOMB. An attendance contest is being conducted in Macomb with Darrell Maddock, Jim VeNard, and Jean Dawson in the lead. A trip to Conference is evidently the prize. A calendar of average monthly attendance for the years 1945 and 1946 shows the following figures: Average attendance for 1945: Sunday school 31, morning worship 24, evening worship 14; average attendance for 1946: Sunday school 31, morning worship 22, evening worship 10. The young people enjoyed a Tangle Party, January 16.

ELDORADO. While Pastor Goit was attending Ministerial Conference, Bro. Herbert Edmister preached at the January 26 morning service. The junior Bereans had complete charge of the evening service, furnishing two speakers and special music. Good for the young people! On Sunday, January 19, Sr. Beulah Murphy put on Christ in baptism.

DIXON. The Christmas program was put on this year by the youngsters with the help of the adult choir. One of our oldest members, Charles Anderson, died December 25 and was buried December 27, with Sydney E. Magaw officiating.

Our Commission —

● *Art thou down-hearted, child of God?
If thou would'st courage seek FORGET thyself—go forth and tell
Glad tidings to the meek.*

*Is thy heart sad because of loss?
Go forth and take this token,
Tell all that mourn, that soon our God
Will death's great prison open.*

*For ashes, beauty—oil of joy,
And praise as garments strong,
Instead of hearts of heaviness,
Their hearts will fill with song.*

*While God today His vengeance shows,
'On nations great and small,
Teach them to pray "Thy kingdom come,"
God's blessings on them all.*

*This then is thy commission now,
Go forth and do thy part,
And thou wilt find the greatest joy
Lies deep within thy heart.*

The Boy Jesus and Youth Today

The Bible presents Jesus in such an exalted position that one sometimes overlooks the truth that He was mortal and subject to all trials and disappointments common to life. Though very little is said in the Bible about Jesus' boyhood, mention is made that He was subject to his parents. (Luke 2:51.) Like other boys, He needed the care and training that can come only from a well-ordered home. That He accompanied Joseph and His mother, Mary, to Jerusalem for a Passover service, and this when He was only twelve years of age, shows Him to have been schooled by His parents in their religion. Emphasis in this story usually is placed on His tarrying in Jerusalem to discuss the Scriptures with learned men of His day—and this much to the surprise and chagrin of Mary and Joseph—but it is well to observe, too, that He went with His parents to worship at Jerusalem and later returned to Nazareth for further care and training as He grew into young manhood. God's Son had Godly parents!

Fortunate is the boy or girl today whose parents are interested in religion and devoted in their worship of God. Happy is that youth who goes with his parents to worship God, tarrying perchance longer than they may think requisite, and then returning again with them for further care and training at home.

Today, myriad temptations may lead youth to believe they are having a struggle in facing life that separates them from the Lord's understanding and love. Jesus was not required to take dancing lessons in public school. His boyhood associates had no occasion to mollycoddle Him for His declining cigarettes. There were no night clubs, no drinking parties, no motion pictures in Jesus' day. The Scriptures assure youth of today, however, that the Lord does understand their problems. In various other ways, temptations attacked the moral fiber of Jesus as viciously as they attack youth today, the Word of God saying that He "was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin" (Heb. 4:15). "Wherefore he is able . . . to save them to the uttermost that come unto God by him, seeing he ever liveth to make intercession for them" (7:25). "Let us therefore come boldly unto the throne of grace, and find grace to help in time of need" (4:16). Jesus is the "one mediator between God and men," even "the man Christ Jesus" (1 Tim. 2:5).

Isaiah the Prophet presented a wonderful prophetic picture showing Jesus as one who loves youth, even a child. The prophecy reads: "He shall gather the lambs with his arm, and carry them in his bosom, and shall gently lead those that are with young" (40:11). This prophecy was inspiration of the painting of Jesus leading a flock of sheep and carrying a lamb in His arms. What a picture of tender care of the Lord for a boy or girl in need of "a lift"!

Jesus showed considerable attention to children during His ministry. Indeed, He was so considerate of them that critics frequently accused Him of wasting time upon them. Here is comfort, though, to youth of our own day who may feel somewhat neglected by their seniors. The Lord has not changed in His attitudes. He still loves boys and girls—"for of such is the kingdom of heaven."

At least two of the three persons whom Jesus raised from the dead, and whose resurrections are recorded, were young people: the daughter of Jairus (Mark 5:41, 42), and the widow's son. (Luke 7:12-15.) Jairus' daughter was only twelve years of age, and the widow's son was a "young man." . . . Once, Jesus turned to "a lad" for the "five barley loaves and two small fishes" with which He fed the multitude. Happy boy! . . . Once, Jesus instantly healed a girl "grievously vexed with a devil," though Jesus probably never had seen her, personally. Happy girl! . . . When Jesus returns, the "streets of Jerusalem . . . shall be full of boys and girls playing." Happy Day!

Youth in the Past and Today

By Glenn M. Birkey, Rochelle, Illinois

OFTEN, when in conversation with young people of today, they will tell you that the conduct of present-day youth is no different than when the writer and others of his age were young. They try to justify their position by saying that they do any questionable acts "out in the open," while youth of the past did the same under cover. Inasmuch as it has been my privilege to live during the past and the present, I feel justified in differing in this matter. I am not inferring that all youth were perfect in the past, but the percentage of God-fearing youth in relation to population in that day, contrasted to this, shows that morally and spiritually there has been a radical change. Headlines in the newspapers at the present time also show this change. What is the reason for this condition? Let us go to the Bible to learn the answer.

Goodspeed's Translation quotes Proverbs 23:13 as follows: "Withhold not chastisement from a child; for if you beat him with a rod, he will not die. Beat him with the rod and you will save him from Sheol." Of course, our young people and some older ones frown on this course of treatment. It is my sincere belief, however, if there is proper home environment and godly parents, the rod will not be needed to any great extent; but God's Word does say to use the rod if it is needed.

Proverbs 22:6 tells us: "Train up a child in the way he should go; and when he is old, he will not depart from it." This appeals to me as the true secret of success today in rearing youth. Let us take a look into a modern home: no Bible reading, no family altar, one or both parents out nearly every night to a bridge party, or even worse, in some saloon (modern name "tavern") where liquor flows and dancing is in progress. Here the parents stay until the wee hours of the morning. If the children are old enough, they are turned out into the streets after the evening meal to find their own entertainment and companions. If too young, the parents hire "baby sitters" to take care of their children for them. I know that both parents frequenting taverns and "baby sitters" were unheard of in my youth, which was in the "gay nineties."

In the last year, there has been an unusual amount of crime committed by American youth. There have been hideous crimes, such as murder, armed robbery, wrecking trains with loss of life, and these crimes have been committed oftentimes by those of tender years in their teen age. Why this change? Men who enforce the law say they know the reason—lack of parental discipline in the home! One could say these youthful criminals have no real home, but only a place to stay while they are not out in some malicious deviltry. Here is a statement by J. Edgar Hoover, Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation:

"Youths of today are restless. Excitement rules supreme throughout the land. Every boy wants to be a hero. Their vivid imaginations run riot as they hear guns and battle cries from across the seas brought to them by moving pictures and by returning heroes. Such is to be expected of red-blooded American boys. But their restlessness must not be allowed to smother their common sense. Their excitement must not give way to a desire to do something even if it is wrong. They must be guided subtly and gently—but firmly—into the paths of good citizenship and taught the difference between right and wrong."

Brother E. E. Giesler, in his recent article in THE RESTITUTION HERALD offers this good advice:

"The home is a good place to train a child to walk in the path of light and life. Father, mother, if you wish to safeguard your children against the evils of this world, you should begin their spiritual training very early in their lives."

There being so many homes in our land without Christian influence, and textbooks creeping into our schools with Communistic teaching of that way of life, our youth are in desperate peril. How different would be the picture of youth today if every parent could follow the advice God inspired the Apostle Paul to write in Ephesians 6! Here it is in part:

"Children, obey your parents in the Lord; for this is right. Honour thy father and mother; which is the first commandment with promise; that it may be well with thee, and thou mayest live long on the earth. And, ye fathers, provoke not your children to wrath: but bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord." Teach them, in keeping with Solomon's instruction, to remember their Creator "in the days of [their] youth." Every child would do well, also, to commit to memory Solomon's conclusion: "Fear God, and keep his commandments: for this is the whole duty of man. For God shall bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good, or whether it be evil" (Eccl. 12:13, 14). "Even a child is known by his doings, whether his work be pure or whether it be right" (Prov. 20:11).

Christian parents have a great responsibility in these last days. Non-Christian parents have still a greater responsibility: to get right with God themselves, then to rear their children as instructed in God's inspired Word.

The King of the North Who Is It?

By Grover Gordon, Cleveland, Ohio

THE FIRST thing to be remembered is that the Bible is not a complete history of any nation, with the possible exception of Israel. Rather, the Bible gives only the history of any of the other nations as they come in contact with Israel, or with God's Son, Jesus the Christ, or with the church in its infancy.

There are perhaps four different views as to who or what nation is called "The King of the North" (Dan. 11: 6-40). They are, in order, Syria, Rome, Turkey, Russia (future). All these views may be seen to be correct in a measure, as history changes boundaries and dominions in the course of time. Alexander's kingdom (Dan. 11:1-3) was divided to the four winds (to his four generals) at the time of his death (323 B.C.) and "not to his posterity" (Dan. 11:4). The four generals were:

(1.) Ptolemy, who ruled Egypt and was called "The King of the South" as seen in verses 5-8 (south of the kingdom of Israel).

(2.) Seleucus, who ruled Syria and to whom, in the second partition, was given Babylon, and later (305-301) a part of the kingdom of Antigonus Cyclops. Syria became a Roman province in the year 65 B.C. Of course, Syria being north of Israel, was at that time and until she became a Roman province, "The King of the North."

(3.) Antigonus Cyclops ruled Greater Phrygia, Lycia, Pamphylia (the region of Asia Minor, now Turkey), but after a series of conflicts in which he increased his power, the jealousy of the other generals was aroused. They joined in a coalition and Antigonus was overthrown (305-301). His territory was divided between Seleucus and Lysimachus (king of Thrace) who married the daughter of Ptolemy to strengthen the alliance, and at her request, put his son to death. The widow of his son took refuge with Seleucus and brought a new pretext for war. (He hardly could be considered as "King of the North.")

(4.) Lysimachus, king of Thrace, was one of Alexander's generals. We have already noted that, by the elimination of Antigonus, there was left in Asia only the two, Egypt and Syria, which no doubt represented the Kings of the "South" and "North." Now that part of Alexander's kingdom which was in Europe was divided into several factions, each trying to gain the mastery. Lysimachus seems to have been the one who was a confederate of the other generals. When he was killed in battle it left the regions of Greece, Thrace, and Macedonia open to the forces of the Romans, who were beginning to show their power. Eventually, these regions were incorporated into the Roman Empire, as was Syria, in 65 B.C. Therefore Rome was the only power which could have represented "The King of the North" at this period, and Egypt, which was independent of Roman authority, still as "The King of the South." So we shall consider events as pictured in Daniel 11:14-22 with this in view.

Daniel 11:14-19 seems to fit in with the history of Julius Caesar, and the wars between Rome and Egypt. Read the history of the Ptolemies, Pompey, Antony, Cleopatra (the "daughter of women"), Julius Caesar (corrupting her—v. 17). Cleopatra still is used as a symbol of the beauty of woman. She claimed that she gave birth to a son by Julius Caesar, and named him Caesarion, and that Julius lived with her and placed her on the throne, though they never were married. Also, she seems to fit in with what is said in verse 17. "But she shall not stand on his side, neither be for him." Verses 18 and 19 fit with the circumstances which occurred and caused Julius Caesar to go back to Rome where he met his death.

In verse 20, we have the greatest point of identity that Rome at that time was "King of the North." "Then (or after him) shall stand up in his estate a raiser of taxes." (See Luke 2:1-11, telling about the birth of Jesus, God's Son.) In the days of Augustus Caesar, there "went out a decree . . . that all the world should be taxed." Augustus was not destroyed in anger (as was Julius), neither in battle. He died in 14 A.D. He could not have commanded that "all the world should be taxed" if he had not first conquered Egypt, "King of the South," which he did when he defeated Antony and Cleopatra in the Battle of Actium (31 B.C.). Therefore, Augustus Caesar became ruler of the world, the first since Alexander, and therefore the only one up to that time who would be referred to as "a raiser of taxes." (No doubt, all countries had collected taxes of their own people, but here was an outstanding identification.) "And in his estate [placed—marg.] shall stand up a vile person" (11:21).

Tiberius Claudius Nero Caesar is said to have spent his later years on an island, giving himself over to satisfying his sensual appetites. He was the most vile of any of the Roman rulers. He was the adopted son of Augustus (because of his successful campaigns) and he transferred the election of magistrates from the popular assembly to the senate. (Probably that is how he obtained the kingdom by flatteries.) Tiberius Caesar was of a cautious and suspicious nature. He perpetrated many cruelties upon his friends, was feared as an arbitrary despot, and gave orders to watch for aspirants to the throne. No wonder Pilate yielded to the demand of the Jews when they said: "If thou let this man go, thou art not Caesar's friend: whosoever maketh himself a king speaketh against Caesar!" (John 19:12.) "When Pilate . . . heard that saying, he brought Jesus forth" again and said, "Behold your king!" (v. 14). "They cried out . . . We have no king but Caesar" (v. 15).

Thus, Tiberius was emperor at the time of the crucifixion of the Christ (Luke 3:1), having succeeded Augustus in 14 A.D. He ruled until 37 A.D. Read Daniel 11:22, describing how his powers were to overflow from before him, and shall be broken; yea, also "the prince of the covenant." We have here, therefore, two strong points of identity that Rome was "King of the North," and later she also could have been said to be the "King of the South," as well.

After the Roman Empire began to break up, it seems likely that Turkey or the Byzantine Empire more nearly fit the picture—or, in other words, the Eastern Roman Empire when Constantine established Constantinople as capital of the Empire (330 A.D.). He built it, after the pattern of old Rome, on seven hills and dedicated it to the Virgin. He had been cordial to the Christians (probably more as a compromise or for political reasons), but did not suppress paganism. Although sacrifices (by pagans) were discouraged, his object seems to have been to make Christianity into a unified, single establishment; to make his metropolis, Constantinople, a Christian capital; and partly to dissociate himself from the Roman democratic traditions. Constantine became sole ruler in 325 A.D. He claimed to have seen a flaming cross in the sky, and by that sign, he would conquer, but he was not baptized until late in life—some say, on his deathbed.

Constantine had convened the Synod of Arles (314), soon after the edict of Milan, to regulate the church in the West. (The edict was the tolerating of Christianity throughout the Empire.) In 325 A.D., he called the Council of Nicæa (Nicene Creed) to dispose of the questions raised by Arianism. Just before 320 A.D., the diocese of Alexandria was thrown into an uproar by the preaching of a priest named Arius. He taught that God, the Eternal Father, had created from nothing and begotten before the creation of others things a Son, the first creature, but also divine. Arius was excommunicated on the ground that he had made Jesus Christ, a divine creature, not the equal of God the Father, and that by implication he had set up a demigod besides God. It was at this Council that the Nicene Creed was adopted, including the "Trinity."

Constantinople was famous for more than a thousand years as capital of the Roman Empire (New Rome) and headquarters of the Eastern Church, even as Rome was capital of the Western Church. There was considerable rivalry between the two, and there still is a rivalry as evidenced by the present conflict between the Pope (who is head of the Western or Roman Catholics) and Russian Communism. Russia always has been head of the Greek Catholics. It may be well to bear this in mind, so as to understand who will be "King of the North" in the "Time of the End." (Dan. 11:40.)

Russia has claimed guardianship over Palestine in the past. Will she not try to establish herself in this role in the future? She has of late (1946) made demands of Turkey. Will she gain control of the Dardanelle Straits, and thus become, as she has long hoped, a Mediterranean power? If so, she is perhaps the best candidate to become "King of the North"—which is exactly what many people believe will happen. Others look for a revival of the Roman Empire under the Papacy. Watch, both!

Now, let us get back to the question of Turkey. Probably coming from Turkestan in Central Asia, it is said that four hundred families under the leadership of Osman or Othman (1231) sought safety among the Seljuks from the advance of the Mongols and their conqueror Genghis Kahn. The Seljuks granted them land in Phrygia and converted them to the faith of Islam. Out of this came the Ottoman or Turkish Empire. Those of the ruling class called themselves "Osmanli" from their chieftan, Osman.

These invaders captured Constantinople in 1453 A.D. (Mohammed II). For almost five hundred years it was capital of the Turkish Empire. The Empire extended into Europe and around the Mediterranean Sea, in the sixteenth century reaching its height under Sulcimen II. In the Crimean War with Russia (1853-1856), Turkey was aided by England and France and Sardinia. France objected to Russia's claim as guardian of the holy places of Palestine; England feared dismemberment of the Turkish Empire and entrance of Russia as a power into the Mediterranean area. (That is still the fear of the British.)

In the war of 1877-78 between Russia and Turkey, which grew out of Turkish misrule, Russia gained a complete military victory, but the Treaty of San Stephano (which gave Russia all fortified places north of a line drawn from San Stephano) was revised at the Congress of Berlin, by intervention of the European powers, in favor of Turkey. This may have been the "hooks," by which Russia was drawn back. (Ezek. 38:4.) If so, Russia will be brought back again from her place out of the north parts (Ezek. 38:15), and become "King of the North." (Turkey usually is referred to now as the Sick Man of the East.) Russia, with her vast resources almost untouched, and having a population of about one fifth of the earth's population, to say nothing of her allies or, rather, the satellite states she (Please turn to page 10)

Christian Colors

(1 Corinthians 13)

By E. H. Goit, Eldorado, Illinois

CHRIStIAN COLORS reflect the "light of the world." Jesus, the Son of God, is that light! Science teaches that red, green, and violet are the three primary colors of light. Jesus' words teach Christians that faith, hope, and love are the three primary colors of Christianity.

Red can well symbolize faith. Faith is a necessity of life. Faith is needed strength for daily living. Without faith it is impossible to please God!

Green can illustrate hope. Green, as an emblem of spring, portrays the fact that it is from the death of winter that new life springs. The empty branches receive green foliage, the flowers shoot forth anew, and life in general takes a new lease. It was in the spring of the year that Christ rose from the dead. His resurrection guarantees ours. A literal, visible, and bodily resurrection of a complete man "like unto his glorious body" is our hope. This hope is reinforced with an unperturbed faith in God. Without this faith, our hope would be only wishful thinking!

Violet is a color of royalty. It embraces the love of God for a "sin cursed" world. Violet well illustrates the authoritative love the Creator had for His creations in that He gave His only begotten Son as a propitiation (covering or release) for our sins. God did not have to give humanity a second chance; but thanks be to Him as a compassionate Father, He had love for His children. "He gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life" (John 3:16).

Now is man's second chance. There will be no third! If a man fails to hearken today, that man shall perish. To obey is eternal life.

The Apostle Paul said, "Though I speak with the tongues of men and of angels, and have not charity, I am become as sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal." If one could say more than mortal man and have not love, his saying would be but meaningless sound.

If there were a man living today who had the gift of prophecy, understood all mysteries, had all knowledge, and faith like a grain of mustard seed that could remove mountains, and had not love, that one would be nobody in the eyes of God. Recognition of God depends on love!

To many, charity means giving to the poor. To the readers of 1 Corinthians 13, it means love. Paul said, "Though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and though I give my body to be burned, and have not charity, it profiteth me nothing."

To feed the poor is to bear fruit. To sacrifice for Christ is great. To have love is much greater. No matter how great the gift, how much the sacrifice, if there is not love, the works profit nothing.

In Hershey, Pennsylvania, where that world-famous Hershey chocolate bar is manufactured, there is an orphanage. Mr. Hershey, founder of the Hershey chocolate plants, endowed this orphanage with his millions and shares of stock in the ever-pyramiding chocolate industry. He was giving his all to the poor. This was sacrifice. It was done in love! If he did not do this in love, it will profit him nothing, no matter how much fruit is yielded. Indeed, love is a powerful Christian color!

Love is peculiar in its characteristics. It suffers long, is kind, envies not, for it is free from jealous thoughts, and is not puffed up with self-conceit. It does not behave unseemly, is not choosy, is not easily provoked, for it is well fortified with self-control, and thinks no evil.

Love "rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth in truth." It rejoices in the triumphal joy of right. By its actions, it distinctly shows that there is no compromise between right and wrong. Wrong is wrong and right is right. "There is no compromise!

Love covers all things. Love is balm for a wounded heart, compassion for the mighty, and enduring to the aged. God is love! When love is instilled in humanity, there will be no more strife. When love is one's daily guide, there are no matters that cannot be met with courtesy. To receive love from God is, in turn, to radiate love in our homes toward those who serve us, and to the poor. He who radiates love, builds character!

There would be fewer broken homes, fewer divorces, and much more happiness in this world, if love were the basis of all marriages. Couples united before God are pledged to be one flesh. The little irritations, the ever-recurring bad points in one another would be satisfactorily covered with love as the cover. Love covers all! The million-and-one reasons given in the divorce courts would vanish before the threshold of love as the basis of all marriages. As musicians need to be in tune to produce harmony, two hearts must be keyed to the note of love to produce a wholesome marriage. As hope is wishful thinking without faith, so as a general rule, to have love without mutual faith is wishful thinking.

"Love never faileth"! Prophecies, tongues, and knowledge shall be destroyed, but love shall never fail.

There was a certain man who loved to hunt. One day this man gayly rode his horse into the woods, accompanied by his favorite hunting dog. After journeying a short way, he dismounted from the horse to inspect his guns. While doing this, his wallet, bulging with his life's savings, fell from his hip pocket, unobserved except by his dog. . . . The guns being inspected, the man mounted his steed and rode forth ready for game. His faithful dog remained close to the purse, however, seeking to attract his master's attention. This failed! Then the dog quickly ran to the front of the horse and started to bark vigorously to turn the master back. This continued until the master thought his dog was mad. Believing this, he raised his gun and shot the faithful animal. The animal's barks had failed. Being mortally wounded, the poor faithful animal dragged itself back to the lost wallet and lay down beside it to die. The dog's love succeeded. Love never fails!

Man in the nature of mortality can see only in part. When immortality is vested upon believers, then their mortality will be done away. Paul said, "When I was a child, I spake as a child, I understood as a child, I thought as a child; but when I became a man, I put away childish things. For now we see through a glass, darkly; but then face to face: now I know in part; but then shall I know even as also I am known."

As a child progresses in language, disposition, and mental process, so a Christian grows in love. As a babe in Christ, he speaks as a babe, he understands as a babe; but when he becomes a man he puts away milk and desires meat.

If one were to sail from Lake Huron to Lake Superior and observe the waters, he would be surprised. While journeying along Lake Huron, his eyes would accustom themselves to its muddy waters. Upon entering Lake Superior, if he looked over the prow of the boat into the water, he would think that the keel would strike the jagged rocks any moment. What this man would not know is that fifty to sixty feet of clear water was between the keel and the rocks.

Now in mortality, we endeavor in vain to fathom God's

A Headless Rooster Lives

By (Mrs.) Florence Pease, Ashtabula, Ohio

"I would have you know, that the head of every man is Christ; and the head of the woman is the man; and the head of Christ is God" (1 Corinthians 11:3).

THE STRANGE phenomenon, recently reported in the press, of a headless rooster living more than three weeks after its head was chopped off in preparation for a New Year's dinner brought to my mind lessons the world could get from this incident. (In several instances, Jesus used poultry to illustrate His thought, as in Matthew 23:37; 26:74, 75; Mark 13:35; 14:30.) Consider how the people of the world are fluttering about without any spiritual head. They are spiritually blind, though they have physical sight. (2 Cor. 3:14; 4:4.) They have wandered from God as blind men. (Lam. 4:14.) They have no spiritual hearing. (Eccl. 1:8; Matt. 13:13.) Men think not spiritually; they have no spiritual feeling. Their mind is controlled by evil in their hearts. (Jer. 17:9; Eph. 4:19.)

A spiritual mind gets its nourishment from the Word of God, through Jesus Christ, but the spiritually headless get their nourishment from their own evil hearts (the Devil). They are cut off from the spiritual light of God. They do not think or meditate on the ways of God, scarcely being susceptible to them. Like a chicken with its head cut off, they wander aimlessly over the earth. (Amos 8:12.) Man is born into this world with sight, hearing, thinking, and talking abilities as poisonous as the venom of a snake. It is no wonder that evil in human hearts is symbolized in the Bible as a serpent or snake!

Even a serpent is easier to tame than the tongue of man. "For every kind of beasts, and of birds, and of serpents, and of things in the sea, is tamed, and hath been tamed of mankind: but the tongue can no man tame; it is an unruly evil, full of deadly poison" (James 3:7, 8).

True, God created man with a head and brain, with power of sound and righteous reasoning, but man from the time of Adam chose to have a serpent head. (Gen. 3.) When Jesus comes to bruise the Serpent on the head (Gen. 3:15), mankind surely will be a headless wonder, even as this headless rooster. Mankind chose to receive poison of the Serpent, rather than the spiritual nourishment of God which gives eternal life, but poison of the Serpent leads him to death. "For the wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord" (Rom. 6:23).

By C. E. Randall (Fonthill, Ontario)

SPIRITUAL FOUNDATIONS. An open letter signed by 181 Greek scientists, artists, and men of letters, published in "Aktine," organ of the Christian Union of Scientific Men in Greece, says: "The future of humanity in general and Greece in particular depends primarily on laying spiritual foundations which are true and firm. It is impossible to lay such a foundation unless contemporary mankind makes use of the values preserved in the Christian faith . . . The need for the complete reconstruction of political and social life on a basis of justice and morality can be fulfilled only when the lives of individuals and the life of the community are inspired by Christian faith and the moral driving power derived from that faith."

Upon what are "spiritual foundations" to be laid? The inspired Word gives the answer: "Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." Christ is the only sure foundation, and yet, to build on Christ, one must be guided by the Word. It is the Word that reveals Christ. Apart from the Word of truth, there can be no building on Christ. The two go together.

MICROWAVE UNIT. Science is on the march and there does not seem to be any end to what can and will be accomplished. According to W. C. White, General Electric Company engineer, a microwave unit has been invented which combines characteristics of radar and the electric eye, which is a little larger than a large flashlight and weighs about four pounds. With this unit, it is possible to count passing objects by means of a hollow metallic pipe, even through thick walls and around corners. The possibilities of this new invention are numerous. There is one thing about it that appeals to me, and that is: if man with a little instrument can see through thick walls regardless of the nature of the wall and look around corners, why should folk allow doubt to rise in their minds about it being possible for "every eye to see" Christ when He comes in clouds of the sky? The curvature of the earth, even with man-made gadgets, no longer poses a problem.

THEIR CRUSADE. The Methodists are taking stock of the gains made during the first year of their "Crusade for Christ." According to their reports, 750 new churches were organized, and close to 1,000,000 new members enrolled. Complete reports are not as yet available, but every indication seems to support the conclusion that their extra effort for the Crusade brought big returns. Effort put forth in the Lord's work is never in vain. The more work invested, the greater will be the yield. We can learn a good lesson from this Crusade.

DISPLACED PEOPLES. In a press conference held in Chicago, Pastor Niemöller gave out this report on conditions in his homeland. Said Niemöller: "I have not slept in my own bed, or lived with my own furniture for ten years. Like millions of others, I live in my own country as a stranger. For me the sense of property is gone. The political consequences of this general state of homelessness are not yet apparent, but they may mean much to the future. Political Communism means little to the homeless, but the fact that life for tens of years to come will never become normal means much." He estimated that 20,000,000 people had been uprooted in the Communist-controlled areas; 3,000,000 had died; and 10,000's shipped to Russia as gifts. This is the price one nation alone must pay for putting its trust in man. Over the centuries, man has failed to learn by his experiences the hopelessness in the rule of mortal man. The solution to the problems of the world can be found in only one, and that is the Prince of Peace. He will soon come and put an end to the beastly rule of man.

"There is nothing that makes men rich and strong but that which they carry inside of them. Wealth is of the heart, not of the hand."—Milton.

SUNDAY SPORTS. The Ministerial Association in Lowell, Massachusetts, has entered a protest against high schools adopting the practice of professional baseball and football in playing their games on Sunday afternoons.

More and more, Sunday as a day of worship and rest is being used for pleasure and sporting events. This is not noticeable among the so-called worldly, but people who heretofore have given their time on Sunday over to a feeding of their spiritual natures are now devoting the day to a divided purpose—an hour or two to church and the remainder to pleasure that undoes all the effect of worship. One of the first signals of a "form of godliness" is the misuse of the day of worship. For spiritual growth and physical well-being, we need to keep our Sundays for the things of the Spirit.

MERGER. For several years, negotiations have been going on between the Episcopal Church and the Presbyterians with union in view. The unionists will be greatly aided by the recent election of Bishop Henry Knox Sherrill as Presiding Bishop. It is rumored that he is not opposed to contacting the Methodists, who have a rule by "bishops," in a move to unify the forces of righteousness. The unity of Protestant churches will be the big issue during the next few years. These unions cannot come about without a great deal of public discussion, thereby creating a unity of mind for the undertaking. For the larger groups, whose doctrinal views are quite alike on the great teachings of their churches—union does seem to be the better course to follow.

Where fundamental doctrines must be scrapped to form a basis of unity, then unity becomes an evil. To give up conviction for unity's sake is to destroy "love for truth." The simple principle of faith, apart from the teachings upon which the faith is founded, is not sufficient. There are certain fundamentals of doctrinal teaching without which it is impossible to please God."

SELFISHNESS. One of the trouble-makers of the last days, Paul described as being "lovers of their own selves." Recently, I was taking a forty-mile bus trip to make train connections; and, during this ride which required an hour and fifteen minutes, my mind was repeatedly called to Paul's indictment of selfishness of people and especially of its control over the majority in the end-time.

Just across the aisle of the bus sat a middle-aged woman with a little baby of a few months of age on her lap. At least half of the time I was on the bus, this woman was smoking cigarettes and blowing the smoke downward, and at times the little tot was so enveloped in smoke I could not tell there was a baby on her lap. During the time I was on the bus, that little baby, to say nothing about the other passengers, was forced to breathe that smoke. That woman was selfish. She did not consider the welfare of that little baby or its health. She was thinking only of her own satisfaction. In so many ways of life, people think only of self, and overlook or willfully disregard the welfare of others—just "lovers of self."

ARMAGEDDON. This is the title of a three-part story which Leonard Engel is writing in "Reader's Scope" on the supposed "war between America and Soviet Russia." The articles are strictly imaginary as he envisions the atomic war between these two countries. What interests me most is not his forecast of a coming struggle between these two great powers, neither his picture of the catastrophic results of the use of atomic energy, but rather the use of the Bible term "Armageddon." Every little while, writers find it necessary, or at least convenient, to refer to a great and dire struggle among nations as Armageddon. They may not and usually are not professing Christians, yet, they do see in the shape of things to come—the pattern of events as foretold in the Word and are forced for clarity's sake to employ exact Biblical terms. Then, too, there is force to argument when one can bolster his argument with a "thus saith the Lord," though such teachings do not form the basis of moral behavior in the individual's life. The day of battle called Armageddon is on the list of current news topics, and, try as they will, the improving-world theorists are unable to take it off.

"Man's conscience is immediately aware of the wicked desires of his own heart, and as promptly sounds an alarm."—Edwin Dummer.

Studies in Prophecy

Article I

By J. M. Morgan, Bristow, Oklahoma

Will the name of the Lord be called upon every one of the Gentile nations after Christ returns?

ACTS 15:15-18 records: "To this agree the words of the prophets; as it is written, After this I will return, and will build again the tabernacle of David, which is fallen down; and I will build again the ruins thereof, and I will set it up: that the residue of men might [may] seek after the Lord, and all the Gentiles, upon whom my name is called, saith the Lord, who doeth all these things. Known unto God are all his works from the beginning of the world." The Revised Version omits the words, "unto God are all his works." The Emphatic Diaglott renders verse 18 as: "Says the Lord, who does these things which were known from the age."

We make no more reference to Acts 15 in this first article, but we study the scriptures on God's judgment and His demands upon the Gentile nations left when the battle of Armageddon is ended. This battle is called, "The battle of that great day of God Almighty." (Rev. 16:14-16.) God, through Christ, will fight on one side in this battle; and the dragon, beast, and false prophet will fight on the other side. The unclean spirits, out of the mouths of the three (Rev. 16:13, 14), will be sent to the kings of the earth and to the whole world.

Joel 3:1, 3, 9 prophesies of the same battle: "Behold, in those days, and in that time, when I shall bring again the captivity of Judah and Jerusalem, I will also gather all nations, and will bring them down into the valley of Jehoshaphat, and will plead with them there for my people."

This is the time Zechariah 14:1-4 will be fulfilled. "Behold, the day of the Lord cometh . . . for I will gather all nations against Jerusalem to battle . . . then shall the Lord go forth, and fight against those nations." "Judah also shall fight at Jerusalem; and the wealth of all the heathen . . . shall be gathered together, gold, and silver, and apparel, in great abundance" (v. 14). Verse 12 tells the effect of the plague. It may be the effects of the atomic bomb. "This shall be the plague wherewith the Lord will smite all the people that have fought against Jerusalem; Their flesh shall consume away while they stand upon their feet, and their eyes shall consume away in their holes, and their tongue shall consume away in their mouth." Verse 13 tells that the great "tumult from the Lord shall be among them"; and tells how neighbor will rise up against his neighbor. This will be a great slaughter of people.

Psalms 110 describes this awful battle thus: "The Lord said unto my Lord, Sit thou at my right hand, until I make thine enemies thy footstool. The Lord shall send the rod of thy strength out of Zion: rule thou in the midst of thine enemies. . . . The Lord at thy right hand shall strike through kings in the day of His wrath. He shall judge among the heathen, he shall fill the places with the dead bodies; he shall wound the heads over many countries." This will be the last battle we have.

Also, in Revelation 19:11-23 is a full statement of how the Lord will fight. "In righteousness he doth judge and make war." Verse 15 says: "He shall rule them with a rod of iron, and he treadeth the winepress of the fierceness and wrath of Almighty God." Verses 17 and 18 tell of "an angel standing in the sun; and he cried with a loud voice, saying to all the fowls that fly in the midst of heaven, Come and gather yourselves together unto the supper of the great God; that ye may eat the flesh of kings, and the flesh of captains, and the flesh of mighty men, and the flesh of horses, and of them that sit on them, and the flesh of all men, both free and bond, both small and great." This war will be the last world war.

This same war is described in Ezekiel 38 and 39. God tells when and who will start this war and for what purpose and against whom it will be waged. I only can give a brief outline here. First: what will be the state or condition of Israel? Judah and Israel will be joined together in one nation in their own land, and "one king shall be king to them all." "And David my servant shall be king over them." (Ezek. 37:21-24.) In Ezekiel 38:8, we read: "After many days thou shalt be visited: in the latter years thou shalt come into the land that is brought back from the sword, and is gathered out of many people, against the mountains of Israel, which have been always waste: but it is brought forth out of the nations, and they shall dwell safely all of them." I here refer to verses 10 and 11, so you can see that at the time Gog and many people go up to the villages to take a spoil, the children of Israel will be at rest, dwelling "safely all of them," dwelling without walls, neither bars nor gates. To date, the Israelites have not been gathered, nor do they dwell safely. Therefore, Gog, Gomer, and Togarmah of the north quarters, and all Gomer's bands cannot now start the world's last war. Ezekiel 39 tells of the destruction of Gog and his allies, and how the beasts and fowls will eat their flesh, leaving only a sixth part of them living at the end of the war. In article two, we shall study the Lord's dealings with the nations that are left from this last war.

CHRISTIAN COLORS

judgments. It is in the great deep that they are hidden. Soon the muddy sea of mortality will pass, and we shall sail into the sea of immortality as clear as a crystal. It is through a mystery we shall see and understand.

In our lives, faith, hope, and love abide. The greatest of these is love.

Love is the key to service, truth, patience, happy homes, and life. There is a time to love and a time to hate. According to Amos 5:15, we are to hate evil and love good. It has been written that "the love of money is the root of all evil." I say, "The love of Christ is the root of all good." Let us have love for the Son of God. Let us as Christians be magnetized with His love, the greatest a man can have (John 15:13), and seek to attract others.

Life is a receptive canvas to the three primary Christian colors. These colors reflect the light to the world. Let us keep them in the path of true light. Even a Madonna can be turned into a daub of paint by not being in the right light. Christians, as one, let us radiate faith, hope, and love. To do this is to reflect the "Light of the World."

THE KING OF THE NORTH

gained in World War II, seems to be the big problem of the present.

It looks very much as though Russia may fulfill the role of "King of the North" in the "Time of the End," unless she is stopped by the rise of a power in the Mediterranean, such as the Roman Empire. What, though, if there be a coalition of the "East" and "West"? That really would be some empire! It would unite the Roman and Greek factions of the Catholic faith into a kingdom that would be almost world-wide.

At any rate, we have seen, one cannot apply the title of "King of the North" to any one power all through history, because the powers just do not last that long! Egypt may again emerge as "King of the South" (backed by the British). She is now leader of the "Arab League" and in ten years will be free from the occupation of British troops. At present, she seems to provide residence for the "Grand Mufti," who is spiritual leader of the Moslem peoples, or Moslem world. (The Arab League consists of seven Arab states, at present.)

It is fairly certain that England will keep her eye on Egypt because of her life line through the Suez Canal and her many interests in the Middle East. England can be counted upon to give aid to Egypt and the Arab League, if necessary to protect her interests. Therefore, England may be considered as a candidate for the role of "King of the South" at the "Time of the End."

Possibility of a coalition of the Eastern and Western church factions at present seems out of the question, but we have seen stranger things than that happen in the past. John the Revelator prophesied of "a two-horned beast" who will make all the world worship "the first beast" which had a wound with a sword and still lived. Something to watch! This seems to picture a revival of the old Roman power. (Rev. 13.)

WHAT IS SUCCESS?

By Edgar A. Guest

"Success is being friendly when another needs a friend;
It's in the cheery words you speak, and in the coins you lend;

Success is not alone in skill and deeds of daring great;
It's in the roses that you plant beside your garden gate.

"Success is in the way you walk the paths of life each day;
It's in the little things you do and in the things you say;
Success is in the glad hello you give your fellow man;
It's in the laughter of your home and all the joys you plan.

"Success is not in getting rich or rising high to fame;
It's not alone in winning goals which all men hope to claim;

It's in the man you are each day, through happiness or care;

It's in the cheery words you speak and in the smile you wear.

"Success is being of big heart and clean and broad of mind;

It's being faithful to your friends, and to the stranger-kind;

It's in the children whom you love, and all they learn from you—

Success depends on character and everything you do."

"WHERE IS THY BROTHER?"

By Milton Hall, Oregon, Illinois

THE LORD, knowing full well as to what had happened, inquired of Cain, "Where is Abel, thy brother?" God asked Cain this question, that He might teach Cain the true meaning of his crime and what was expected of him. Cain also was taught the degree of thought and consideration he should give to his fellow man in the future. If such responsibility was expected of Cain when God dealt and talked directly with people, how much more are we to respect and guard the well-being and moral standards of our associates.

Granting, now, that we are our brothers' keepers, let us ask ourselves these questions: "Who is my brother?" and "Where is thy brother?" First, who is my brother? Is everyone, anyone I meet, see, or hear, my brother? In Matthew 12:47-50, we read:

"Then one said unto him [Christ], Behold, thy mother and thy brethren stand without, desiring to speak with thee. But he answered and said unto him that told him, Who is my mother? and who are my brethren? And he stretched forth his hand toward his disciples, and said, Behold my mother and my brethren! For whosoever shall do the will of my Father which is in heaven, the same is my brother, and sister, and mother."

Christ's example is a good one to follow. This does not mean that any person outside of one's particular faith is not, or cannot become, his brother. One must use his faith in God to know whom to help to become his brother.

Now, where is thy brother? Is he keeping himself in the will of God? Are you doing anything to help draw him closer to God, or something that will hinder his growth Christward? Truly, we must first examine ourselves, but in so doing, let us determine whether or not our influence is helping to shape those who know us into true Christian workers. Is anyone who was your brother going the wrong way because of you? Examine yourselves to find where your brother is.

---

"These six things doth the Lord hate: yea, seven are an abomination unto him: a proud look, a lying tongue, and hands that shed innocent blood, an heart that deviseth wicked imaginations, feet that be swift in running to mischief, a false witness that speaketh lies, and he that soweth discord among brethren" (Prov. 6:16-19). . . . Sin not in these ways, but "give thanks unto the Lord."

BOOK PARADISE

By Arlen Marsh

"To make a happy fireside clime,
To weans and wife—
That's the true pathos, and sublime
Of human life."
—Robert Burns.

A very considerable number of books and pamphlets has been produced by marriage counselors and general psychologists within the last few years, all aimed at the about-to-be-married. O. O. Geiseman has done something a little different; he, in Make Yours a Happy Marriage, has centered his attention on those already wed. At the same time, he has provided worth-while advice for engaged couples, too. He has nothing to offer those still hunting husbands or wives.

Make Yours a Happy Marriage (Concordia Publishing Co.; $1.00) covers a wide range of material in amazingly small compass. The book is Bible-centered; Scripture quotations appear at frequent intervals. Two doctrinal errors appear: one, a mention of the "Triune God"; the other, a suggestion of the glory awaiting the Christian immediately after death.

"Marriage," in the Geiseman opinion, "is a divine institution and not, as you may have heard or read somewhere, the chance result of human experimentation." The entire tone of the book is founded on that one principle.

With certain ideas of Dr. Geiseman, we are forced, on Biblical grounds, to disagree; but these ideas are so rare that the book loses none of its basic value because of them. The practical aspects of inter-denominational marriages, the matters of adjusting to one another's whims and foibles, the problems of finance, the question of participation in social and church activities, the handling of what Havelock Ellis calls the "psychology of sex"—with these matters, there can be no debate.

A successful marriage, insists Dr. Geiseman, is made, not born. Like Dr. Wiggam of newspaper fame, he holds out love and pure emotion as having a major, but by no means all-inclusive, role in marriage. Marriage is, instead, plain hard work—work equally borne by both parties. It is not to be stumbled into as one would stumble over a stone and so accidentally find a buried treasure.

Prepared by Madge Savage
Waite Park, Minnesota

"The law was our schoolmaster to bring us unto Christ, that we might be justified by faith" (Galatians 3:24).

Meditation

"Who can understand his errors? cleanse thou me from secret faults. Keep back thy servant also from presumptuous sins; let them not have dominion over me: then shall I be upright, and I shall be innocent from the great transgression. Let the words of my mouth, and the meditation of my heart, be acceptable in thy sight, O Lord, my strength, and my redeemer" (Psalm 19:12-14).

God's Grace

Our lesson today lists some of the laws given to God's people, the Israelites. (Ex. 23:1-9.) While the laws were perfect (Psalm 19:7) and right, they could not bring salvation. They condemned all mankind because they told man what was right and what was wrong. If man disobeyed, he was under condemnation. The law is called our schoolmaster because it told us what sin was. When we understand, we are brought to Christ that we might be saved from sin. "By grace are ye saved through faith" (Eph. 2:8a). We are called to work for Christ (Eph. 2:10a), for we are all the workmen God and Christ have today. Let us, therefore, do "good works" and spread the gospel of Christ.

If a law could have been given that would have made us pure in heart and life that it could save us, such a law would have been given. (Gal. 3:21.)

But our righteousness is not holy or good enough. We need to accept Christ and His righteousness. When we accept Christ by believing in Him and accepting the seal of baptism, then we have His promise—"Sin shall not have dominion over you" (Rom. 6:14a).

Faith of Christ

"The scripture hath concluded all under sin, that the promise by faith of Jesus Christ might be given to them that believe" (Gal. 3:22).

As we are all under sin, we see then how much we need Christ in our lives. We need His faith. We need His righteousness. We need to be in a position of son and heir that we can go to God through our High Priest, Jesus Christ, for forgiveness.

"Ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus. For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ. . . . And if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise."

"Now in Christ Jesus ye who sometimes were far off are made nigh by the blood of Christ. For through him we both have access by one Spirit unto the Father" (Eph. 2:13, 18).

No longer are people under the law. Today we are under grace. We are saved by grace through faith. (Eph. 2:8.) God's grace must reign in our lives through righteousness, the gift of Christ Jesus our Lord. (Rom. 5:21.)

True - False

This game is based on our lesson: Exodus 23:1-9 and Galatians 3:13, 14, 24. (Answers may be found on page 11.) Place a "T" or "F" before each number.

1. We are justified by the law.
2. The law was our schoolmaster to bring us unto Christ.
3. We are children of God by faith in Christ (Gal. 3:26).
4. Kindness should be shown strangers, for the Israelites had been strangers in Egypt.
5. Christians should raise false reports.
6. It is best always to follow the crowd (multitude).
7. If we meet an enemy's ox that was lost, we should not return it.
8. It is wrong to accept a bribe.
9. Christ redeemed us from the curse of the law.
10. The Gentiles are blessed with Abraham through Jesus Christ.

But Once

"I shall pass through this world but once. Any good therefore that I can do or any kindness that I can show to any human being, let me do it now. Let me not defer or neglect it, for I shall not pass this way again."

EXPERIENCE

Relies on an Old Method

Maybe it's funny, when you think about it, but one of the biggest mistakes made in the average Bible class is that the teacher tries to cover too much ground.

It doesn't work. Especially, it doesn't work with young people and intermediates. It doesn't work, simply because people aren't built to think about a great many different things at the same time.

So, whether you're using a Berean lesson book, The Guiding Star, a Sunday school quarterly, or just the Bible, remember this: don't try to do too much at once.

Book Six, for instance, was deliberately planned to provide enough material in every lesson for at least two class sessions. If you use one class session to the lesson, you'll spend 95 per cent of your time reading—and 0 per cent of your time learning.

It's the same with other lessons, no matter what they are. So what if the lesson outline has three dozen texts? Do you have to use them all? Do you read every newspaper you pick up from the front page to the last, including the want ads and the death notices? Or do you read the things that particularly interest you?

Use the same idea in leading a class. Don't read all the texts; nobody will remember them. Read the ones you think are best; talk them over; try, at least, to pull some ideas about them out of your (and the class's) mental hat. That way, you'll do some good.

EXPERIENCE

Produces a New Book

From practical experience with especially outlined lessons for the Rockford, Illinois, Berean Society comes this newest in the series of Berean lesson books for young people and adults.

Senior Lesson Series Book Six

The book is illustrated with photographs and drawings.

It covers problems of practical living and problems of doctrine—and it shows the way the two must go together.

It is based on suggestions made by Bereans themselves over the last two years.

It contains more helps and lesson background material than any other book issued by the society up to this time, for young people and adults.

Enough texts and other helps are provided that each lesson easily may be divided into two or more parts for class or private study.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

ATTENTION, MULLIN AND ATER, TEX.

On Sunday, February 23, I will be at Mullin for preaching services, and at Ater, or Gatesville, on Sunday, March 2.

It is requested that brethren living near each place make a special effort to be there on those dates, for plans are to be made for holding a Texas conference, and we need the presence and counsel of every member far and near.

M. W. Lyon.

JANUARY ON THE GULF COAST

Early in January, I took a swing eastward from Houston almost to the Louisiana border, to visit several isolated members. La Porte, Goose Creek, Baytown, and Beaumont were visited. Shirley and Nell Guthrie live at Goose Creek.

Sr. Morris has already reported on the services held at Beaumont, where almost a week was spent.

Returning through Houston, I stopped at Edna, where Sybil Guthrie lives, whom many will remember from former years as National Berean treasurer. A short stop was also made at Bayside.

At Corpus Christie, I found a fruitful field. Here Bro. and Sr. George Waters have built up an active little Sunday school in a building of their own. Attendance was up to thirty or more, including many children. It was good to see Bro. Waters again and to meet his wife. They gave me a fine welcome, and assisted me in meeting the other members who live there. It was good also to meet again, after many years, Elmer Goekler, brother of Harry Goekler, who is superintendent of the Sunday school.

Bro. Waters is the pastor and conducts services each Sunday morning. At his invitation, I spoke there, January 19. He has a little flock of twelve members as the fruits of his ministry. In addition to these, I located five daughters of Bro. E. M. Wilson who lived at Goldthwaite years ago. These all live, with their families, in the Corpus Christie vicinity, and six of them are members and much interested in the work. Neither group knew of the existence of the other. This makes nineteen members there, and will greatly strengthen and encourage the church.

It was a pleasure much looked forward to, to stop at Riviera, where the last Texas conference was held. Sr. W. L. Robbins still lives there, whom some will remember meeting at General Conference in former years. One daughter and she are the only ones left of the good congregation that once flourished at Riviera.

Four families and four members live at Kingsville. Down in the Rio Grande valley, visits were made at Raymondville, Lyford, Combee, Harlingen, San Benito, and Brownsville, at all of which we have members and interested parties living. A good many of them are of the Robbins family.

Returning to Riviera, preaching services were held, January 24 and 25, at Sr. Robbins home, with several from a distance attending.

When I took the train, January 25, for the Ministerial Conference at Oregon, Ill., it was as warm and delightful there as it is in Illinois in June. Quite a contrast were the zero temperatures and snow-blocked streets that we met here in Oregon.

M. W. Lyon, Evangelist.

MINISTERIAL RESOLUTION

BE IT RESOLVED THAT:

We, ministers of the Ministerial Conference assembled at Oregon, Ill., January 31, 1947, recognizing need of a definite statement concerning dangerous social trends imperiling the Church of God, do hereby place ourselves on record as believing that dancing, drinking of alcoholic beverages, gambling, the use of tobacco, and attendance at taverns, night clubs, and other places of questionable amusement are detrimental to spiritual life.

Gleanings From the Field

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

Thank You, Bro. LeCrone: Oregon Bible College much appreciates a series of Bible lectures recently given by Bro. J. R. LeCrone, pastor of several Churches of God in Virginia. Thank you, Bro. LeCrone, and come again.

Sister Brewer's Return: Sr. Edna Brewer, a former matron of Oregon Bible College, has been re-employed as matron at the College. She arrived recently from Tempe, Ariz., where she had been visiting her daughter and son-in-law, Bro. and Sr. C. E. Lapp. Sr. Brewer, now as House Mother, will have general oversight of the College students and may shortly occupy a place on the College staff. Sr. Nora Pearson will continue her work at the College, too, making an ideal partner with Sr. Brewer, we believe, as they are old-time and long-time friends.

Sr. Leota B. Hanson spent last week end with her niece, Lois MacDonald, at Rochester, Minn., where Lois is in nurse's training.

"On January 23, 1947, a daughter, Nancy Lee, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Alden Casey, 718 Culver St., Compton, Calif. Mrs. Casey is known to Conference young people as the former Betty Luper."—J. W. McLain, Los Angeles, Calif.

February Birthdays at the Home. Four residents at Golden Rule Home, born in the Washington-Lincoln cycle of the Zodiac, recently celebrated their birthdays: Sr. Olive Wood (89) on February 3; Bro. Charles Pearson, caretaker (44), on February 4; and Srs. George Loudenslager (73) and Clara Chaffee (87) on February 6, 1947.

Bro. Fred E. Hall, employee of National Bible Institution doing evangelistic work in Arkansas, is receiving good co-operation from the local churches he serves, most of his financial needs for the month of January having been covered by contributions from the churches at Bear, Morrilton, and Cleveland.

"Bro. C. E. Lapp, Tempe, Ariz., spoke for the brethren at Macomb, Ill., after the Ministerial Conference at Oregon. A goodly number were present to hear their former pastor."—Linford Moore, Macomb, Ill.

"I have an hour's ride on the streetcar to work, so I read The Restitution Herald, thoroughly, and when I have finished reading I lay it in the seat or window for someone else to enjoy."—Mrs. D. D. Lawrence, 3418 Indiana, Kansas City 3, Mo.

"Christ was treated as we deserve, that we might be treated as He deserves. He was condemned for our sins, in which He had no share, that we might be justified by His righteousness, in which we had no share. He suffered the death which was ours, that we might receive the life which was His. 'With his stripes we are healed' (Isa. 53:5)."—Contributed by Mrs. Walter Croxton, Moline, Ill.

Accompanying the Editor on his trip to South Bend, Ind., for services, Sunday, February 9, were Bros. Charles Pearson, Moline, Ill., and Malcolm McLeod. Returning with Bro. Timothy Pearson also was with us.

Sr. Nora Pearson, employee at Oregon Bible College, reports that her son Ben, Dayton, Ohio, is recovering slowly from almost fatal injuries suffered several weeks ago from an automobile accident.

Bro. Arlen Marsh, pastor of the Church of God at Rockford, Ill., reports in "The Meeting Place" that the church's building fund has reached the figures of $3,343.75. The Rockford brethren, now handicapped without their own church building, are looking forward to a better day.

"I hope the Lord will soon come to gather his loved ones home"—where there will be no more sorrow, pain, or death."—Miss Edna Sissle, 1865 Ave. 27, Columbus, Nebr.

HONORING THE AGED

On November 14, 1946, my mother, Mrs. Mary E. Fike, 8534 S.E. 16th Ave., Portland, Ore., celebrated her ninety-fourth birthday. Open house was held in her home, and many relatives and friends called, bringing gifts, flowers, and cakes. Those present included her son, Jay V. Fike and wife of Gladstone, Ore.; her daughter (the writer) and husband of Yakima, Wash. Two sons, Freeman and Morell, of Phoenix, Ariz., were unable to be present.

Mother has been a shut-in for more than ten years but attends meetings and conference at Felida, Wash., whenever she has an opportunity to do so.

Mr. and Mrs. Fike came to Vancouver, Wash., in 1890, and for eight years were active workers in the Northwest Conference. Then they moved to Phoenix, Ariz. Mr. Fike died in 1915. Mrs. Fike has been a resident of Portland, Ore., since his death.

Mrs. A. H. Lindh.

REPORT OF SERVICE IN GOSPEL WORK

Receiving a long-distance telephone call from Bro. Fred Williams on Friday night, January 24, I went to Sallisaw, Okla., to hold funeral services on Sunday for Bro. William Eugene Rasey. I arrived in Sallisaw at 3:30 p.m. I spent the night in the home of Bro. Fred Williams' father, Bro. J. T. Williams. We enjoyed a Bible study with Bro. Williams and sons and grandsons.

Sunday afternoon, Bro. Fred and I visited in the home of Bro. Rasey, where we met his widow and sons and daughters. We went to a nearby schoolhouse where a large crowd had gathered and read the obituary, as follows:

Bro. William Eugene Rasey was born in the State of Oklahoma, May 19, 1878. He was a member of the Church of God. He died, January 22, 1947. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Katie Rasey; two sons, Clark, who is in the Air Corps stationed at Roswell, N. Mex.; and Haskell at home; five daughters: Josie and Charlotte, both at home, Geneva of Kitterman City, Calif., Mrs. Susie Trotter of Muskogee, Okla., Mrs. Ethel May Reeves of Kansas; two brothers: Mr. Charlie Rasey of Muskogee, Okla., and Mr. Clyde Rasey of Kitterman City, Calif.; and one sister: Mrs. May Hatfield, also of Kitterman City; six grandchildren, and other relatives and many friends.

I also spoke words of truth on the cause of death and the great need of being ready for a part in the first resurrection. We had splendid attention. After leaving the closing work in the hands of Bro. Fred Williams, I left for Muskogee, Okla. There, I visited in the home of Bro. Monroe Helleman and Sr. Frounie Ganns. They live in the home of their father, Mr. Joe Helleman, three miles out of Muskogee. After supper, we all engaged in a wonderful Bible study which all seemed to enjoy. They said, "Come again."

I will be happy to visit in the homes of the Williams and Helleman, and in homes of many others of the faith. Write or call me long distance and tell them to send a taxi to tell me. I live three miles east, one mile north of Bristow, at Mount Home School on Route 1. I will be glad to serve you. J. M. Morgan.

OREGON BIBLE COLLEGE NEWS

On Saturday, February 1, a few of the College students traveled to Chicago with Gary and Clell France to tour the Museum of Natural History. An interesting and enjoyable day was spent at the Museum.

Harry and Mabel Payne now are living in town. They have an apartment with Milton and Joan Hall.

Milton Hall preached last week end at Rensselaer, Ind.

The new courses are proving to be fully as interesting as we hoped, and all are enjoying them immensely. In major prophets, we are studying the first few chapters of Isaiah at the moment. The course includes also the Books of Jeremiah and Ezekiel. In the course, Proverbs and Ecclesiastes, the students are studying the first two chapters of Proverbs. Bro. Magaw is teaching both of these classes. Old Testament Studies, under Bro. Dick, is progressing favorably. This course is a continuation of the course in Old Testament given last semester, and we are studying Exodus 20 at the moment. Bro. Dick's class in World-Wide Missions promises to be one of the most interesting we have had for some time.

Last Tuesday evening, some of the students visited Golden Rule Home. A College quartet sang a few songs, and Raymond Brown related some of his experiences in Rome. We enjoyed the visit very much.

Bro. J. R. LeCrone delivered a series of five lectures to the College, faculty, and students, last week. Some of our friends from Oregon and other points visited us during these chapel periods. The subject of Bro. LeCrone's lectures was "The Beatitudes." He covered from one to two of the eight beatitudes in each lecture. We wish to thank Bro. LeCrone for some extremely interesting and beneficial thoughts.

The College is now receiving the Chicago Daily Tribune. Thanks to Bro. Glenn Birkey, Rochelle, Ill., for this useful gift. Also, we wish to thank Bro. Edwin Graham for his gift of the book, "History of World War II." This book will be a valuable addition to the history section of the library.

A surprise party was held in honor of "Mom" and "Pop" Logsdon last Friday night at the home of Bro. Magaw. The students presented them with a gift as a small token of their esteem and appreciation of the Logsdons and the service they rendered to the College during the two and one half years they served here. They sacrificed much to serve the Master in their work here, and we realize that mere words are inadequate at a time like this. Therefore, we shall conclude with these few words: simply and sincerely they are, "Thanks very, very much, Mom and Pop, for all that you have done, both for the College and for us personally."

"Mom" Brewer is coming to take over the position of matron for this second semester, and is expected any time now.

W. Howard Beemer, News Editor.

ALVIRA HAINES

The death of Mrs. Alvira Haines, Buffalo, N. Y., occurred on January 12, at the Millard Fillmore Hospital. For many years, she, with her husband Reuben, who predeceased her by several years, made her home in the Fonthill community, where many acquaintances and friends were made. The past twelve years she has been making her home with some of her children in Buffalo. Upon her death, in her eighty-sixth year, she was brought back to Fonthill, Ont., for funeral services and interment.

The funeral services were conducted by the writer, who spoke on the "Resurrection" as the only basis for hope beyond this life.

It was through one of the sons, Horace, of Fonthill, who for many years has been a steadfast member and officer of the local church, that Mrs. Haines was known to the church folk.

She leaves five children to mourn: Mrs. Jessie Marsden, Mrs. Bert Weirich, Helen, George, and Horace Haines. C. E. Randall.

ETHELYN ALLARD

Miss Ethelyn Allard was born in Ogle Co., Ill., February 24, 1867, and died at Los Angeles, Calif., Saturday, January 25, 1947. Her death was attributed to complications incident to advanced age. She was the daughter of Isaiah and Alice Allard. They moved to La Porte City, Iowa, in her early childhood, and thence to Eagle Grove, Iowa, where her father died. She resided in Waterloo for many years, where she was employed as a book-keeper until she and her mother went to Los Angeles twenty-three years ago.

She was preceded in death by her father, mother, a brother, and a sister, Mrs. James Cassen of 315 Denver St., Waterloo, Iowa, is her closest survivor.

Miss Allard became a member of the Church of God early in life.

Funeral services were conducted in Los Angeles, Calif., by J. W. McLain, Tuesday, January 28, and in Waterloo, Iowa, Saturday, February 1, by the writer. She sleeps in Jesus, waiting the resurrection of the dead. When God calls, she will answer Him and He will have His desire concerning the work of His hands. Charles W. Howe.

Christ, the Great Physician

Though the Bible nowhere speaks of Jesus as being the "Great Physician," men of all races and nationalities have come to appraise the Christ by that title. There is good reason for choice of that title, for Jesus healed all manner of diseases, irrespective of the prestige or purse of the ones afflicted. Christ continues to this day, also, as the world's Great Physician. Through prayer, many have sought and found His help when the resources of other physicians were exhausted.

That Jesus was the Great Physician in His own day is evidenced throughout the New Testament. Mark 5:25-34 tells of a certain woman who for twelve years had a bloody wound that stubbornly refused to heal. She trusted many doctors, but to no avail: she "suffered many things of many physicians, and had spent all that she had, and was nothing bettered, but grew worse" (v. 26). Then she sought Christ. Because of the throng about Jesus, she was able only to touch the hem of His garment, yet "straightway the fountain of her blood was dried up; and she felt in her body that she was healed of that plague" (v. 29). Who knows the names of those physicians who failed, yet took the woman's money? Whether they were honest or dishonest, their work was so fruitless that the Scripture says she "was nothing bettered, but rather grew worse." Then, instantaneously, she was healed by the Great Physician.

A physician of high reputation must work against several disadvantages. Most of his patients are persons who previously tried less expensive and less experienced physicians, during which time their ailments constantly grew worse. Finally, they come in desperation to the specialist. Because of his reputation, people expect almost the impossible from him; yet, because of the pathetic cases brought to him, he has a struggle to save the lives of any.

Work of Christ stands out so brightly, therefore, as never a life was lost that came in humble trust to Him. He healed everyone: the deaf, dumb, and blind; the lame, leper, and lunatic. "They pressed upon him for to touch him as many as had plagues" (Mark 3:10). At one instant, He healed ten lepers, though apparently only one leper, a Samaritan, deserved His attention. When that leper expressed thanks for his miraculously received health, Jesus cried, "Were there not ten cleansed? but where are the nine?" (Luke 17:17.) Nevertheless, the Great Physician allowed the ungracious nine lepers to continue their enjoyment of restored health—and He charged them not a dime!

Onlookers "were astonished with a great astonishment" when Jesus raised the daughter of Jairus. (Mark 5:42.) Again, they "were beyond measure astonished, saying, He hath done all things well: he maketh both the deaf to hear and the dumb to speak" (7:37)—this after Jesus healed one who was deaf and dumb. "We never saw it on this fashion," cried amazed critics when Jesus healed one who was sick with palsy, giving him strength to take up his bed and walk. (Mark 2:1-12.) "What manner of man is this, that even the wind and sea obey him?" exclaimed the disciples who first had feared in Galilee's storm, then saw the wind suddenly cease and the waves recline into "a great calm" (Mark 4:39).

A good physician may become so engrossed in relieving the sick and afflicted, that he neglects and endangers his own health and strength. Jesus, the Great Physician, foresaw the day that He, in love, would die for the highest possible degree of salvation for His people—for their eternal health and happiness. He prophesied: "Ye will surely say unto me this proverb, Physician, heal thyself" (Luke 4:23). There is no question but that Jesus could have come down from the cross. Legions of angels would have leaped to His rescue, had Jesus made that request. (Matt. 26:53.) Instead, the Great Physician, knowing our need of atoning blood, chose rather to suffer and die that we might be healed. The full force of Christ's healing will be experienced only when He comes again, when His saints are immortalized forever! "We shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet." "We look for the Saviour . . . who shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body." "When he shall appear, we shall be like him: for we shall see him as he is."

"Where are the nine?" "Where are the nine?"

Thankful and Responsible

By Grover Gordon, Cleveland, Ohio

Christians should be thankful for the privilege of studying the Bible and assume the duty connected with it, also.

FIRST, we Christians should be thankful for the reformation through Jesus and the apostles. For three centuries, Christianity underwent many and varied persecutions. When Constantine came to power in Rome, his principal distinction was his regard for Christianity. He did not suppress paganism, however, although sacrifices were discouraged. Curiously, he promoted the imperial cult, a thing anathema to Christians. When he became sole ruler of the Empire, his attitude toward Christianity seems to have been that of mere cordiality. He seems to have been anxious to make it into a unified, single establishment.

Soon after the Edict of Milan (313) granting toleration to the Christians, Constantine convened the Synod of Arles (314) to regulate the church in the West. In 325 A.D., he convened the Council of Nicæa to dispose of the questions raised by Arianism.

(Arianism had shown that the Father must be older than the Son and that there was a time when the Son was not. It taught that God the eternal Father had created from nothing and begotten before the creation of other things a Son, the first creature, but also divine. Arius was excommunicated on the grounds that he had made Jesus Christ a divine creature, not the equal of God the Father, and that, by implication, he had set up a demigod besides God—a "half god." . . . The Athanasian Creed does the same in Article 31, describing Christ as God of the substance (essence) of the Father; begotten before the worlds; and Man of the substance (essence) of his Mother, born in the world.)

Indeed, the idea of an ecumenical council seems first to have occurred to the half-Christian emperor. Constantine's interests, however, lay not in theology, but in condition of the church; hence, conformity was desirable to him. He was not baptized until on his deathbed. He removed the imperial capital to Constantinople and dedicated it to the Virgin (330). Theodosius established Catholicism as the state church (380-381).

From the time of Constantine, many un-Christian practices and doctrines were added to the true and simple teachings of Jesus and His disciples. Study of the Bible was discouraged. It was taught that the pope could not err in matters of faith and that he alone could interpret the Scriptures or confirm the interpretation of them. So there followed what is termed The Dark Ages, until authority of the pope and some of the practices of the Roman Church were attacked by Luther, Calvin, and others.

In 1534, during the reign of Henry VIII, king of England, "The Act of Supremacy" recognized the king as the only supreme head on earth of the Church of England. Thus the reformation in England under Henry and Wolsey was at first a matter of policy, not doctrine—the church still being state controlled. The theology of the church in England, as shown in Six Articles (1539) and the King's Book (1543), was unchanged in essentials. Henry authorized the Great Bible, a revision of the English translations of Tyndale and Coverdale, and some slight alterations in services. Changes came as rulers changed, the rulers being the heads of the church as well as heads of state. It is wonderful, indeed, that the message of Christ has been preserved down through the centuries!

Grover Gordon

The Puritans had no quarrels with the doctrine of the Church of England. They held (1565) that the Scripture did not sanction the setting up of bishops and churches by the state. In the year 1567, a group of lay rigorists began to worship in their own way in separation from the state church. Though the Puritans believed that if they searched the Scriptures long enough they would eventually agree, they differed very early on the nature of the church polity advised in the Scripture. The Presbyterians favored a central government, while the Independents defined the church as any autonomous congregation of believers, emphasized the point that a man could arrive at his own conclusion in religion, and opposed a national, comprehensive, coercive church.

(One often hears the statement, "according to the dictates of our own conscience," but it seems to me that religion based on individual conscience can very easily go too far in the opposite direction. "Dictates" means rule or precept. One's own conscience might allow for anything which anyone would choose, regardless of, or even in opposition to, the commandments or precepts of the Scripture. This very error seemingly has happened, each person having become his own judge in matters of faith and morality, oftentimes in direct opposition to plain, positive statements of Scripture.)

Sound Doctrine

By Mary Mac Nedrow, Oregon, Illinois

"My doctrine is not mine, but his that sent me."—Jesus.

DOCTRINE is teaching or preaching the principles of belief accepted as truth. There are doctrines of men, and there are doctrines of God. Timothy was warned by the Apostle Paul that in the last days some would depart from the faith, "giving heed to seducing spirits, and doctrines of devils" (1 Tim. 4:1). We who love the truth will adhere strictly to the truths Jesus preached and will not become confused. We will eliminate all man's theories that have no bearing on salvation. Teaching and proclaiming the gospel message will be uppermost in our minds at all times as we see the Day of the Lord looming in the distance, and each day drawing nearer and nearer. We will speak the things which become "sound doctrine."

Christ Himself was a missionary. He said that God sent Him. After His baptism, He was sent to preach the gospel. "From that time Jesus began to preach, and to say, Repent: for the kingdom of heaven is at hand. . . . And Jesus went about all Galilee, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing all manner of sickness and all manner of disease among the people" (Matt. 4:17, 23, 24). He said: "My doctrine is not mine, but his that sent me" (John 7:16).

Many have asked: "Now just what was this doctrine or teaching?" The Scriptures state the gospel was spoken by our Lord. Jesus called His disciples together and sent them to teach and to preach. (Matt. 11:1.) They were to teach the gospel of the kingdom, and to heal the sick. (10: 1, 5, 7.) When He stood on the Mount of Olives just before His ascension, He said to His disciples: "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved" (Mark 16: 15, 16). The people needed to be saved from their sins. The gospel was able to do this for them. It was good news; it gave them hope. It can do the same for us.

"I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth" (Rom. 1:16). Since we have received the true gospel, we are debtors to those who have not heard. "How shall we escape [condemnation], if we neglect so great salvation" (Heb. 2:3). It was the message Jesus preached. "Now after that John was put in prison, Jesus came into Galilee, preaching the gospel of the kingdom" (Mark 1:14). The gospel of the Kingdom and the "great salvation" message are one and the same thing. It was told by Peter to Cornelius and his family. Peter preached Christ to them, telling them Jesus was the One of whom the prophets had prophesied. He told them how Jesus was crucified, was buried, but that God raised Him from the dead and He became the first fruits of those who slept, and that "through his name whosoever believeth in him shall receive remission of sins . . . and he commanded them to be baptized in the name of the Lord." (Acts 10.) Philip, the deacon, likewise preached Christ to the Ethiopian; and when he believed, he was baptized.

The Christ is the subject of this gospel message. It all centers about Him. Said Jesus: "This gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations: and then shall the end come" (Matt. 24:14). The Apostle Paul warned the Galatians against those who would "pervert the gospel of Christ" (Gal. 1:7). He exhorted the Colossians to "continue in the faith grounded and settled, and be not moved away from the hope of the gospel" (Col. 1:23).

Said the Apostle Paul: "If our gospel be hid, it is hid to them that are lost: in whom the god of this world hath blinded the minds of them which believe not, lest the light of the glorious gospel of Christ . . . should shine unto them. For we preach not ourselves, but Christ Jesus the Lord: and ourselves your servants for Jesus' sake." Faith, repentance, and baptism are essential to salvation.

If we truly believe the gospel message, we shall manifest our faith in works of righteousness. In Hebrews 11: 1-3, faith is defined. In verses 4-40, faith is illustrated. In chapter 12:1, 2, faith is exhorted. Is not faith the assurance that something hoped for will come true? Is it not a belief that something unproved by evidence will surely come true? It is a conviction that something unseen will come to pass. We believe the promises God made to Abraham will come true. "Without faith it is impossible to please him [God]" (Heb. 11:6). There is only "one faith" (Eph. 4:5). "Faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God" (Rom. 10:17). How can one call upon the name of the Lord if he has not heard? Our faith must be built upon a sure foundation, and that foundation is Christ Jesus. The patriarchs of old all looked forward in faith to a Saviour. It is through "faith and patience" we inherit the promise. (Heb. 6:12.) If we have faith, we will exercise our faith in works. Let no one be guilty of speaking of different faiths. There is only "one faith, one baptism" (Eph. 4:5).

"Ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus. For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ. . . . And if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise" (Gal. 3:26-29). This is what constitutes saving faith. Jesus said: "My doctrine is not mine, but his that sent me." I want to teach and preach this same gospel that Jesus and the apostles proclaimed. Do you? Although the Bible was written by many different writers, God is its Author. We know it is true.

Today, the world is infamous for its idolatry and wickedness; but God still has a faithful few scattered throughout the land who are "like a tree planted by rivers of water." Nothing can swerve them. (Turn to page 10)

Christ's Second Coming

By W. H. Arrington, Russellville, Arkansas

"Christ was once offered to bear the sins of many; and unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation" (Hebrews 9:28).

THOUGH the day and hour of Christ's second coming is known only by the Lord, many signs are to be seen in the heavens and upon the earth, making clear to the student of divine prophecy when this great event is near at hand.

When asked concerning the time of His coming, Jesus replied: "There shall be signs in the sun, and in the moon, and in the stars; and upon the earth distress of nations, and with perplexity; the sea and the waves roaring; men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth: for the powers of heaven shall be shaken. And then shall they see the Son of man coming in a cloud with power and great glory" (Luke 21:25-27; Matt. 24). He informed them that as the leaves appearing in the springtime indicate when summer is near at hand, so also fulfillment of these predicted signs would reveal with certainty when the coming of Christ is imminent.

Through ages of the past, God has sent special messages of warning to those who were destined to experience some outstanding event in human history. Let us notice just a few examples in proof of this. When the wickedness of the world became so great that God proposed to destroy the ungodly with a flood of water, He first made known to Noah what He was about to do. Noah, being warned of the coming destruction, "prepared an ark for the saving of his house." As a "preacher of righteousness," he told all men then living of their approaching doom and how to avoid it. (Heb. 11:7-11.)

In 2 Peter 2:5-7, a similar warning message was proclaimed to the people of Sodom and Gomorrah before fire and brimstone were rained from heaven upon them. Lot lifted his voice in solemn admonition: "Up, get you out of this place; for the Lord will destroy this city" (Gen. 19:14). Forty years before the overthrow of Jerusalem, the people of that city had been warned of its fate, and had been instructed as to when and how they were to flee for their lives. (Luke 21:20-24.) A message of warning and reformation immediately preceded the first coming of Christ. Seven hundred years before His advent, the Prophet Isaiah had spoken of one, who, coming from the wilderness, would prepare the way for our Lord. (Isa. 40:3, 4.) At exactly the right time, John the Baptist appeared for the long-promised Messiah. (Matt. 3:1-11.)

John's work, as stated before, was "to make ready a people prepared for the Lord" (Luke 1:13-17). When the hour came for this preparatory work to be accomplished, the religious leaders of that day were silent. They were wholly ignorant of the very prophecies they needed to understand. When John the Baptist began his seemingly strange ministry and teaching, the learned doctors of religion scoffed at his work and tried to hinder those who would listen to him. They even accused him of being in league with the Devil. (Matt. 11:18.) This humble messenger of God spoke with such convincing power, however, that multitudes began to go out into the wilderness to hear him. (Matt. 3:5.)

Becoming alarmed at John's influence over the people, these religious leaders finally sent certain priests and Levites to him, inquiring as to who he was, and as to what authority he could offer in support of his teaching. (John 1:19-22.) John answered and said: "I am the voice of one crying in the wilderness, Make straight the way of the Lord, as said the prophet Esaias." (John 1:23; Isa. 40:3.) It is well to notice that John knew his calling and his place in the divine program. He understood the prophecies relating to his generation. He even could point to the very text wherein his work was divinely foretold. Will God leave us unwarned at the close of this Gentile age—before He sends His Son back to earth? No!

The Fear of the Lord

By E. H. Goit, Eldorado, Illinois

"The fear of the Lord is the beginning of knowledge" (Proverbs 1:7).

THE BEGINNING of knowledge is an introduction to God, and to know God is to fear Him. How should a man fear God? Should he hide in a corner, clutching his heart in terror of "hell fire," mount a post and stare into the sun, or tremble in each fiber of his body in worshipping of God?

When "fear of the Lord" is mentioned, many people say, "Yes, a man must reverence and respect his Maker." Every letter of what these brethren say is true, yet so often meaningless. Their actions deny their words as "lip service."

Surely, many brethren of the Lord are familiar with the occasion when the disciples washed not their hands when they ate bread. For their actions, Jesus was censured by the scribes and Pharisees, who said, "Why do thy disciples transgress the tradition of the elders?" Jesus, living not by bread alone, but by the Word of God, replied:

"Why do ye also transgress the commandment of God by your tradition? For God commanded, saying, Honour thy father and mother: and, He that curseth father or mother, let him die the death. But ye say, Whosoever shall say to his father or his mother, It is a gift, by whatsoever thou mightest be profited by me; and honour not his father or his mother, he shall be free. Thus have ye made the commandment of God of none effect by your tradition. Ye hypocrites, well did Esaias prophesy of you, saying, This people draweth nigh unto me with their mouth, and honoureth me with their lips; but their heart is far from me. But in vain they do worship me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men" (Matt. 15:2-9).

"Hell-fire" advocates terrify people into fearing God with a terrifying fear. Many of these converts fear God with their lips, but their hearts are far from Him. In vain do they worship God, teaching the traditional but unscriptural "hell-fire theory" and believing the commandments of men.

Numerous children fear policemen and tab them as "cops." These children have never been taught that a policeman is not their enemy but their friend, protector, and help in times of civil trouble. Likewise, these "hell-fire" advocates fail to recognize God as one who is not a monstrosity of torture, but a loving, helpful, and saving God. Indeed, parents' duty is to instruct their children that policemen are their friends and merit their respect, but much more it is parents' obligation to rear their offspring with a reverent respect for God Almighty, to whom they owe worship.

God did not sow the seed of terrifying fear through the gift of His Son, but gave Christ, His Son, through love for mankind. Man need have no heart-failing fear to qualify for salvation, but a godly fear that permeates with love and not dread. Such is how a man should fear God!

"Noah, being warned of God of things not seen as yet, moved with [godly] fear, prepared an ark to the saving of his house" (Heb. 11:7). Likewise, we, being warned of God of things not seen as yet (destruction of the wicked; salvation and restitution), should work out our "salvation with fear and trembling" (Phil. 2:12). When warned of God, Noah did much more than assemble the animals, food, and wood for the ark. He was a "preacher of righteousness" calling his sinning neighbors and friends to repentance. Christians have much more to do than believe, repent, and obey God through baptism. Theirs is a consecrated life dedicated to the service of God. Thus they will be preachers of righteousness, calling one and all to repentance.

"The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom" (Prov. 9:10). Wisdom has been defined as "the knowledge of how best to conduct oneself in God's world and action consistent with such knowledge." The Apostle Paul said, "Preaching of the cross is to them that perish foolishness; but unto us which are saved it is the power of God" (1 Cor. 1:18). Paul then elaborated that it is worldly wisdom that obscures God from the "worldly wise," and by the foolishness of preaching them that believe are saved.

"The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom": the beginning of a knowledge of God and, in turn, of His Son Jesus. When an individual fears God, he can begin to receive an insight into God's wisdom in that He gave His only begotten as a Lamb of sacrifice.

The Psalmist wrote, "I will come into thy house in the multitude of thy mercy; and in thy fear will I worship toward the holy temple" (Psalm 5:7). David worshiped God in fear. He respected the house of God. Today, there is very little respect for the house of God, even among Christians. It seems that people nowadays regard God's house as a convention hall for the preaching of everything but His Word. God's house is used as a gossip assembly where wagging tongues bear tales of all kinds and as a place of general confusion.

Perhaps some of the good brethren have observed the mumble-jumble turmoil that exists immediately prior to the services of your church. This is not confined to any one church of the Churches of God, but is general everywhere. For this, we cannot praise the brethren, but in the name of a righteous God, we must condemn.

God's house is a place dedicated for the worship of Him through prayer and the preaching of His Word. The hubbub that exists today is far from this. A spirit of quietness and worship is lacking. Men, women, and children are in no frame of mind to enter a service of worshiping God when aroused with devilous confusion. This ugly head of confusion must be decapitated, and in its place a spirit of reverence through the fear of God must exist. Unless it does, one cannot properly worship God.

"The fear of the Lord is to hate evil: pride, and arrogance, and the evil way, and the froward mouth" (Prov. 8:13). Mercy and truth shall purge iniquity; and, by the fear of the Lord, men will depart from evil. To depart from evil to do good is to leave the Devil his D-ue and give God your O-bedience. An individual who fears God will keep his lips from guile, (Please turn to page 10)

"Not Slothful in Business"

(Romans 12:11)

By Emma C. Railsback, Los Angeles, California

THE ABOVE admonition of the Apostle Paul is as important in the Lord's work as in one's own private business affairs. In fact, we think it is more important; as much more so as matters pertaining to our eternal welfare are more important than those of a temporary nature. Laxity or carelessness in the Lord's business, or the financial phase of the church work, has done much to hinder development and the spread of the gospel. Many times persons with little or no insight into the management of the financial program are given authority for expenditure of the Lord's money where little good results. Why do we so often hear the remark, "All ministers are poor financiers"? There are exceptions to this rule, of course. We personally have known a few ministers who were reasonably good financiers.

The apostles instructed the disciples that it was not reasonable for them to leave the Word of God to serve tables. Those who "give themselves to prayer and the ministry of the Word" cannot be expected to have as deep insight into the financial management, as others who do not specialize in teaching.

In former years, the development of Church of God work has been hindered in many instances, because leaders have chosen to ignore these principles. When the Lord comes, will He not declare us to have been unprofitable servants, slothful in His business?

We should give very careful consideration to the expenditure of funds coming into the treasury of our organizations, either local, state, or national. If this is not done, contributors are justified in withholding and placing their tithes and offerings where they are put to the best possible use.

Care also should be given to the solicitation of funds. If we divide and subdivide, the more important phases of the work are bound to suffer.

We recently received a copy of the Berean Guiding Star, which carried a statement that each issue would cost thirty-five or forty dollars. We fail to see the advisability of a movement of this kind. The Berean Society has been given one page of our RESTITUTION HERALD for many years. Just recently in two issues of the paper almost half the Berean Page was filled with heavy black lines. We know of no other reason for this but lack of copy to fill the space. Then, too, a silly cartoon which cheapens the paper appears occasionally.

Anyone capable of writing anything along Scriptural lines worthy of publication can have space in the columns of THE RESTITUTION HERALD any time. We have particularly enjoyed articles by Oregon Bible College students in the past and we understand that this is a permanent policy of our editor. Then why should an appeal be sent out for funds to support a new publication?

No one can have a stronger desire to encourage and promote the development of the talents of the young people in the church than myself, but we have seen so many efforts to draw them off by themselves to work independently of the older members prove to be a failure, that we have come to doubt the wisdom of the undertaking. Twice an attempt was made to separate them here in Los Angeles. Each effort resulted in failure and more than failure, as some never returned to the work in any way.

The Lord is coming soon. Let us pool our funds and our efforts to the honor and glory of our God and Saviour Jesus Christ.

News and Prophecy Digest

By C. E. Randall (Fonthill, Ontario)

ONE WORLD. The one-world theory continues to be a live issue of discussion among the folk who are seeking a solution to the ills of the world through the united efforts of mankind. Back in 1943, Wendell Willkie brought out a book that was really epoch-making, the "One World." In 1946, a group of atomic scientists became interested in promoting the one-world plan and put out a book called "One World or None." Later reading along this line can be found in William G. Carr's interpretation of the United Nations' accomplishments and aims in his book, "One World in the Making." Besides these three, there have been volumes and volumes written and sheaves of columns in the daily press on the necessity for one world, if the world is to be saved for mankind. This is the material outlook of man void of hope in the "times of restitution." This "one-world" plan will continue to receive the support of people, as such a set-up was foreseen by the prophets; and this "one world" will fall into the hands of the "Man of Sin" who will come into its leadership through flatteries, and will continue his leadership through deception and by means of the miracles which he will be able to perform.

A NEW SCHOOL. The Albert Einstein Foundation for Higher Learning, Inc., has been started in the initial stages, which will be located at Waltham, Massachusetts. The project will be financed by American Jews and enrollment will be open to students of all creeds. The purpose, as set forth in the official statement, will be to "found a university for students and faculty of all creeds and nationalities." The cultural and scientific life of our country has been greatly aided by the genius and humanitarianism of the Jews. Jealousy over their attainments in all fields of labor is to be found among so many Gentiles, who are wanting in the zeal and initiative which have carried the Jews of the dispersion to such heights of personal accomplishment and Samaritan labors. No doubt, this latest experiment of Einstein will contribute more than anything else he has done to the advancement of the welfare of his fellows.

SPIRITUAL PROBLEMS. In a late pamphlet issued by the Department of Public Affairs under the title of "The Most Serious Medical Problem Facing Our Nation," it is stated that "nervous and mental disorders reveal one in every twenty-two Americans as destined to spend some time in a mental hospital." It continues, "At least ten per cent of our population are emotionally or mentally maladjusted and require expert diagnosis and treatment."

Most mental and nervous troubles come from disordered and maladjusted conditions. Moral, social, economic, and spiritual upsets affect the mental balance and in turn create a nervous disorder and a physical disorganization that upset the whole normal functioning of the body. If people would take their mental and nervous problems to the minister, he, in the majority of cases, could provide a solution that would be permanent and definitely uplifting to the individual. The physical "thorns in the flesh" respond better and quicker to "my grace which is sufficient" than any other type of treatment. The proved and tested Word offers the nervous and mentally ill a means of obtaining a mental poise and a steadiness of nerves that drugs and herbs cannot produce.

OUR FAITH. In the "New Palestine" for January, 1947, there appeared an editorial which had been written for the "Occident" in April, 1864, by Isaac Leeser. He said in part: "We must ever be in the minority; and no matter how just our cause may be, we shall always have to complain of slights and insults, of being overlooked by accident or design, of being scorned by the many and denounced by zealots and infidels, all for the sake of our faith."

The power of faith is well portrayed in these few lines. True, the Israelites have failed to recognize the first advent of the Messiah, but their faith founded and grounded in the Old Covenant, and their waiting for the "consolation in the Messiah" have kept the Israelites through centuries of suffering. More, they have been willing to be scorned and denounced by "accident or design" for their faith. In this respect, we can learn many things from the faithfulness of Israel. It was this faithfulness on the part of Israel that preserved the Scriptures for generations, and today we must join in the words of Jesus and say: "Salvation is of the Jews." For their part in giving us the Word of Jehovah, may they be richly blessed.

STARS IN CONJUNCTION. "What kind of a star was it that appeared at the time of Christ's birth?" has been a question that scientists have studied for centuries. Johannes Kepler, German astronomer, identified the "Star of Bethlehem" in 1603 as a conjunction of Saturn, Jupiter, and Mars, which occurs every eight centuries. Many modern scientists have concurred in this decision.

That a special star appeared at that time, which led the Wise Men to the place of the birth, seems evident from the teaching of the Scripture. If science is unable to identify the star, that is no evidence that it did not exist. The fact that science has made attempts to identify the star according to natural events in the sky is indication of their belief in its appearance. All attempts to discredit portions of the Word have ended with the Word being proved true and the criticism found baseless.

ZIONIST CONGRESS. As reports are given of the recent World Zionist Congress held at Basle, Switzerland, in which 400 delegates took part, representing 2,500,000 Jews in all parts of the world, it becomes apparent that a "revolution" took place in this great policy-making body. Delegate representation in the Congress is obtained by buying a shekel. The great number of people that bought the shekel is indicative of the awakened interest in world Jewry. There were four great problems with which the Congress wrestled. 1) Decision on their attitude toward the London Conference. 2) Zionist's stand on the partition of Palestine. 3) Attitude toward the resistance movement. 4) Election of new leadership.

The deploring of bloodshed in Palestine was expressed, but approval of a militant resistance program to obtain a fair measure of adjudication of world opinion was a radical departure from former practices. The underground movement is becoming so widespread among the dissatisfied of all peoples, that responsible government and action is fast becoming an impossibility. The liberal element—perhaps we should say the radical section—of the Congress was so well entrenched they were able to direct the course of events leading to decisions of a militant nature. The Congress was unable to elect a president, so an alternative was adopted, in which an executive committee was chosen to serve in the capacity of a president. If the people of the covenant could only see that their best interests would be served if they would just ask God to do it for them and accept the Messiah of the covenant!

HIS NUMBER. In Revelation, the number of the Man of Sin is said to be 666. It is also stated to be the number of man. Especially, is six or its multiple associated with man when he is in opposition to God. When Nebuchadnezzar set up the golden image in the plain of Dura, the image was threescore (6 x 10) cubits high and six cubits wide. At the sound of six different instruments of music, all were to fall down and worship the image.

The story of Adonijah usurping the throne of David in the place of Solomon corresponds well to the Antichrist making a similar attempt. The numerical value of Adonijah was 666. He was a false heir of David's throne. He is a good type of the false Messiah that is to come. There are other examples in the Scripture that point forward to the prince that is to come, who will succeed in heading a world government, and in an attempt to insure the continuation of his rule will require all to worship him. His regime will fall with the coming of Christ. We quote:

"Then shall that Wicked be revealed, whom the Lord shall consume with the spirit of his mouth, and shall destroy with the brightness of his coming; even him, whose coming is after the working of Satan with all power and signs and lying wonders" (2 Thess. 2: 8, 9). May God hasten the day when the Lamb of God will conquer the Beast.

Studies in Prophecy

Article II

By J. M. Morgan, Bristow, Oklahoma

Will the Name of the Lord be called upon every one of the Gentile nations after Christ returns?

IN THIS second article, we shall study the Lord's dealing with the nations that are left after the last great war prophesied in Ezekiel 38 and 39. In Zechariah 14:8, we read: "It shall be in that day, that living waters shall go out from Jerusalem; half of them toward the former sea, and half of them toward the hinder sea: in summer and in winter shall it be. And the Lord shall be king over all the earth: in that day shall there be one Lord, and His name one." Scripture teaches that at that time the kingdoms of this world will have become the Kingdom of our Lord. Revelation 11:15 says, "He shall reign for the ages of ages" (Emphatic Diaglott). Verse 18 in few words tells of the same terrible conflict concerning which I gave so many Scriptural proofs in Article I.

We quote: "The nations were angry, and thy wrath is come, and the time of the dead, that they should be judged, and that thou shouldest give reward unto thy servants the prophets, and to the saints, and to them that fear thy name, small and great; and shouldest destroy them which destroy [corrupt] the earth."

Inasmuch as the Lord at that time will be King over all the earth, He then will fulfill His promises made in Matthew 19:28 and in Revelation 3:21:

"Verily I say unto you, That ye which have followed me, in the regeneration when the Son of man shall sit in the throne of his glory, ye also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel." (This scripture shows that the twelve tribes of Israel will be restored.)

"To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne."

This also will be the time that Jeremiah 23:6 is fulfilled, saying, "In his days Judah shall be saved, and Israel shall dwell safely." The Lord at that time will begin using His authority settling world conflicts. Psalm 46:8, 9 says: "Behold the works of the Lord, what desolations He hath made in the earth. He maketh wars to cease unto the end of the earth; he breaketh the bow, and cutteth the spear in sunder. He burneth the chariot in the fire." Zechariah 9:10 foretells: "The battle bow shall be cut off; and he shall speak peace unto the heathen [nations]: and his dominion shall be from sea even to sea, and from the river even to the ends of the earth." This will be the time, too, when Micah 4:2-4 is fulfilled. We quote:

"It is written, After this I will return, and build again the tabernacle of David, which is fallen; and I will build again the ruins thereof, and I will set it up: that the residue of men might seek after the Lord, and all the Gentiles, upon whom my name is called, saith the Lord, who doeth all these things" (Acts 15:15-17).

"Many nations shall come, and say, Come, and let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, and to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths; for the law shall go forth of Zion, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem. And he shall judge among many people, and rebuke strong nations afar off; and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruninghooks: nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more. But they shall sit every man under his vine, and under his fig tree; and none shall make them afraid: for the mouth of the Lord of hosts hath spoken it." Verse 7, speaking of the reassembled of Israel, says, "The Lord shall reign over them in mount Zion from henceforth, even for ever."

These conditions will come to nations and individuals in the time of the thousand-years' reign of Christ and His overcomers. "I saw thrones," said John, "and they sat upon them, and judgment was given unto them . . . and they lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years."

The foregoing scriptures teach that the nations will be judged and governed by the Word of the Lord that will go forth from Zion and from Jerusalem. The penalties and punishments will be inflicted upon nations and individuals who violate the law of the Kingdom. We next quote several scriptures that relate directly to the nations left over from the great Battle of God:

"Judah also shall fight at Jerusalem; and the wealth of all the heathen [nations] round about shall be gathered together . . . And it shall come to pass, that every one that is left of all the nations which came against Jerusalem shall even go up from year to year to worship the king, the Lord of hosts, and to keep the feast of tabernacles. And it shall be, that whoso will not come up of all the families of the earth unto Jerusalem to worship the king, the Lord of hosts, even upon them shall be no rain" (Zech. 14:14-17). Verse 19 says: "This shall be the punishment of Egypt, and the punishment of all nations that come not up to keep the feast of tabernacles." Psalm 72:7 foretells: "In his days shall the righteous flourish; and abundance of peace so long as the moon endureth."

Now, let us have a brief glance at the Age described in the Bible as "the times of restitution of all things." (Acts 3:19-21.) For many years after the fall of Adam, men lived to be many hundreds of years old, but none lived to be a thousand years old. The Scriptures teach that some men will live many long years after God creates Jerusalem "a rejoicing and her people a joy." (Isa. 65:18.) "There shall be no more thence an infant of days"—or there will be no such things as babies dying—"nor an old man that hath not filled his days: for the child shall die an hundred years old; but the sinner being an hundred years old shall be accursed" (Isa. 65:20). This scripture may well be applied to the Gentile nations, for they will be required to keep the feast of Tabernacles, as will the house of Israel, and they will sit under their own vine and fig tree. We have found nothing said about the name of the Lord being called upon anyone of these nations left over for the thousand years.

In Article III, we shall give scriptures showing the end of these nations.

SOUND DOCTRINE

They will be among the great company of the redeemed when Jesus comes. He will establish a Kingdom of righteousness here on earth. In apostolic days, Christians were called saints. A favorite song we love to sing at East Oregon Chapel goes like this:

"When the saints go marching in,
When the saints go marching in,
Dear Lord, I want to be in that number,
When the saints go marching in."

My earnest prayer is that we shall all strive to live the Christ-life, that when Jesus returns, we shall be among that great company who will be called to meet Him "in the air." "Even so, come, Lord Jesus."

THANKFUL AND RESPONSIBLE

The right and duty of an individual to study and rightly divide "the word of truth," to show himself approved unto God, is a Scriptural privilege and command, but he is not allowed his private interpretation of it, for the Bible is its own best interpretation. Therefore, let us as Christians in these last days thank God that we can enjoy without molestation the study of His Word. Let us realize, too, our obligation to God, taking advantage of the great opportunity while it is ours. Furthermore, let us be willing, if need be, to sacrifice some of the theories or practices which we previously have held, for the sake of truth and righteousness as revealed in the Bible.

THE FEAR OF THE LORD

do good, and seek peace.

In the year 1947, there are innumerable evils abroad, but one of the bitterest dregs in the Devil's cup is drunken women. God's Word denounces drunkenness as an evil before the Lord. To fear the Lord one must flee this evil. During the past ten years, women admitted to mental hospitals for alcoholism has increased from six and three tenths per cent to seventeen and three tenths per cent. Forty per cent of all women in United States jails are there because of drunkenness.

To check this rising crescendo of abnormal drinking, we require no restrictive legislation or moral appeals. These have been tried and have proved failures. We must think of this problem as not only a sin against God but also against humanity. This situation must be dealt with as a social menace to Homo sapiens and the people must be educated to realize alcohol has poisonous fangs.

Dr. Robert V. Seliger, M.D., world renowned psychiatrist, and a member of the psychiatric staff of John Hopkins Hospital and University Medical School for sixteen years, has most intelligently said, "Our best hope for controlling alcoholism is to prevent new cases, and not in trying to cure the old."

A family's treasure is not its dollars and cents, but its members—especially its youth. As Dr. Seliger says, "The best place to start is in the home. The mothers of America could greatly reduce tomorrow's crop of problem drinkers right now by providing their children with a more secure environment and sounder spiritual armor with which to ward off the blows of later life."

It is with these jewels of youth that our educators must labor. A sounder spiritual armor must be placed upon youth. Parents must use their Bibles and by example show their children that alcohol is not for internal consumption. Alcohol must be shown in its true colors as a narcotic and not as a beverage.

To fear the Lord, one must not only flee this evil of booze, but abstain from all appearances of evil. One cannot be temperate where evil is concerned. To flee evil is to fear the Lord. As the Wise Man said, "Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter: Fear God, and keep his commandments: for this is the whole duty of man" (Eccl. 12:14).

"The fear of the Lord is the beginning of knowledge" (Prov. 1:7). The beginning of knowledge is an introduction to God, and to know God is to fear Him.

Fear the Lord!

PERSONAL WORKER'S GUIDE

(A Sermon Brief)

By C. Alan McLain, Dixon, Illinois

Recently, Brother C. Alan McLain, pastor of the Church of God at Dixon, Illinois, addressed students of Oregon, Bible College in one of their chapel services. We are grateful to Brother McLain, an alumnus, for his interest in the College and for this brief of his sermon.—Ed.

1. Desire to win the lost for Christ. Have compassion on them.
2. Know and love Jesus as your Saviour. Know the Bible: love and believe it.
3. Know the person: as to his interests, habits, business, and characteristics.
4. As a salesman, you must "be sold" on your product, the Bible, and all it contains. Present Jesus, the Saviour of the world, the Son of God. Let Jesus and the Word of God be first in your lives.
5. Live righteously, "unspotted from the world." Practice what you teach.
6. Pray for the one you wish to win for Christ. Pray that God will help you in speaking to the sinner, and He will guide you. Pray for him after he accepts Jesus, and help him understand the Scriptures.
7. Be tactful in approaching the lost. Approach kindly, lovingly, mercifully, through his interests. Help him by deeds of thoughtful kindness—not like a show horse.
8. The Approach Spiritually:
  - (a) All have sinned. (Rom. 3:23; Isa. 53:6.) Therefore, all are sinners. The penalty for sin is death. (Rom. 6:23.)
  - (b) Help him to realize his need of the Saviour. Teach him Jesus is his only Saviour. (Matt. 1:21; Luke 19:10; John 3:16, 17.) God approves Jesus. (Matt. 3:17; 17:5.) No other one will do. (Acts 4:12; 10:43.) There is no other way. (John 14:6.)
  - (c) Repentance is necessary. (2 Cor. 7:9, 10.) Godly sorrow for sin leads to repentance. Read Luke 13:3, where Jesus speaks. Peter said, "Repent." (Acts 2:38; 3:19.) Confession.
  - (d) Faith in Christ and in His Word. Faith means belief. (John 3:16, 17; Acts 16:31; John 1:7.) Faith in God. (Heb. 11:6.) How faith is acquired. (Rom. 10:9-17.)
  - (e) Baptism. Jesus requires it. (Mark 16:15, 16.) Jesus is our Example. (Matt. 3:16, 17.) Typical of death, burial, and resurrection of Jesus. (Rom. 6:2-6.)
  - (f) Study God's Word. (2 Tim. 2:15.) It is powerful. (Heb. 4:12.) Be not ashamed (Rom. 1:16) of the gospel. Give tracts on what we believe.
  - (g) Christian living and growth. (2 Peter 3:18.)

(h) Faithfulness leads to eternal life. (Rev. 3:21; Matt. 25:21; Luke 19:17; Rev. 2:10.)

BOOK PARADISE

By Arlen Marsh

Light from the Ancient Past! It's a title that is fulfilled in almost every word of text. The book is new—brand new, published late in 1946, with the advantages of the latest archeological and historical researches to guide its author.

Light from the Ancient Past (Princeton University Press; $6.00) is by Jack Finegan, a Disciple minister who has studied in Berlin and has won a wide reputation for authority in the Biblical-archeological field. Mr. Finegan is, like most products of Berlin universities, frequently devoted to the quaint concept that the Old Testament is more a collection of Hebrew legends than an inspired compilation of facts; but this conviction lessens the worth of the Finegan writings only slightly.

For archeology is founded upon facts, and Mr. Finegan presents the facts with clarity and flavor. He covers the entire period of Biblical and post-apostolic history, from creation to about 1000 A.D. Because of this breadth of coverage, Light from the Ancient Past probably will be of more value to the average Bible student than the more limited (but also more Biblical) works of Petrie and Barton.

Liberal quotations from the royal records of ancient empires are included in the book, to act as support for the Old Testament narratives, or—occasionally—to point Mr. Finegan's faith in the legendary qualities of Genesis lore. Numerous photographs are shown in separate sections, with the general parts of the book which deal with the material illustrated by the pictures.

This is not a history; it is a study in archeology. Necessarily, it summarizes portions of Biblical history; but for pure historical narrative, you will have to look elsewhere. Mr. Finegan is concerned with inscriptions, pottery, ruins, cities, people, as they related to historical events, not as they created or were a part of historical events.

A top-notch book, all told, for those wanting information on how the ancients lived in the times mentioned by the Scriptures!

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

Prepared by Madge Savage
Waite Park, Minnesota

"If ye will obey my voice indeed, and keep my covenant, then ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto me above all people: for all the earth is mine: and ye shall be unto me a kingdom of priests, and an holy nation" (Exodus 19:5, 6).

God's Token to Moses

In lesson two, we had this verse of Scripture: God said, "Certainly I will be with thee; and this shall be a token unto thee, that I have sent thee: When thou hast brought forth the people out of Egypt, ye shall serve God upon this mountain" (Ex. 3:12).

Now this mountain was called the "mountain of God," Mount "Horeb," or Mount "Sinai." It was at this location Moses was watching his father-in-law's flock when God called him to lead the Israelites out of Egypt.

Today we see the fulfillment of this "token," or sign, that God had promised Moses. The children of Israel are camped at the foot of Mount Sinai. (Ex. 19:1-3.) Moses was getting instructions direct from God for teaching the children of Israel how to please God.

On the Mountain

Moses was told to bring some others with him, but Moses alone was to go near to God.

The "judgments" and all the "words of the Lord" Moses told the people. They answered together as one person, "All the words which the Lord hath said will we do" (Ex. 24:3). Moses wrote the words of the Lord. He read to the people from this "book of the covenant" (Ex. 24:7).

We notice especially that it was the desire of the people to do exactly all that God wanted them to do.

After writing the words from God, Moses built an altar to God. There were twelve pillars: one for each of the twelve tribes of Israel. The young men offered burnt offerings and peace offerings to the Lord. Moses took the blood and sprinkled it on the people. He said, "Behold the blood of the covenant which the Lord hath made with you concerning all the words" (Ex. 24:8).

When Moses went up into the mountain, a cloud covered it. When the Israelites were being led from Egypt, there was a cloud which helped lead them. They followed the cloud by day and a pillar of fire by night. (Ex. 13:21.) This cloud covered the mountain for six days. The seventh day God called for Moses to come into the cloud. The glory of the Lord upon the mountain looked like "devouring fire" to the children of Israel camped at the foot of the mountain. Moses was upon the mountain for forty days and forty nights.

The Golden Text

The Israelites forgot to listen to God's voice. They continually wandered into sin. Finally, God blinded their eyes and turned to the Gentiles. (John 12:40 and Acts 13:46.) Now we, too, can come to God through Jesus.

The blood of Jesus redeems all who obey and are overcomers of self and sin. These will become kings and priests and reign upon the earth. (Rev. 5:9, 10.)

God will again turn to the Israelites and remove their blindness. They then will accept Him: "Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel . . . I will put my law in their inward parts, and write it in their hearts; and will be their God, and they shall be my people" (Jer. 31:31-34).

Let's Play

Underline the correct words in each sentence, then check. Use your Intermediate Truth Seekers' Quarterly or Bible. (Ex. 24:1-5; 8:15-18.)

1. God called (Moses, Aaron, Nadab) to worship near to Him. (Ex. 24:2.)
2. The (people, elders, flocks) were to go part of the way with Moses. (Ex. 24:1.)
3. The people were told (some, none, all) the words of the Lord. (Ex. 24:3.)
4. All the words of the Lord were written by (the elders, Aaron, Moses) to keep them. (Ex. 24:4.)
5. Moses built an altar to God in the (evening, night, morning) and they worshiped God with burnt and peace offerings.
6. Moses took (water, blood, ashes) and sprinkled the people. (Ex. 24:5.)

FROM THE BEREANS

James M. Watkins, Berean Guest Editor

The following report from Margaret Coulter indicates a continued activity within the Eden Valley group:

The Eden Valley (Minn.) Bereans held their annual Berean election on January 3, 1947. Officers elected were as follows: senior president, Mr. Walter Wiggins; Berean president, Jim Gaspar; vice president, Ernie Hamilton; secretary-treasurer, Marion Otto. Margaret, Barbara, and Marion Coulter were appointed to make our yearbooks for our parties. Bible study is held at eight o'clock each Wednesday evening. Mr. Wiggins is the Berean teacher. The last Sunday evening in January, the Bereans will take over the church service.

As an answer to the many questions we receive, we can do no better than repeat this resolution of the recent Ministerial Conference:

We, ministers of the Ministerial Conference assembled at Oregon, Illinois, January 31, 1947, recognizing need of a definite statement concerning dangerous social trends imperiling the Church of God, do hereby place ourselves on record as believing that dancing, drinking of alcoholic beverages, gambling, the use of tobacco, and attendance at taverns, night clubs, and other places of questionable amusement are detrimental to spiritual life.

Church of God Ministerial Association,
Robert O. Hardesty, Secretary.

The Cigarette Speaks

By Elizabeth Hassell; selected by Marion Coulter

I'm just a friendly cigarette—
Don't be afraid of me!
Why, all the advertisers say
I'm harmless as can be!
They tell that I'm your "best friend,"
(I like that cunning lie!)
And say you'll walk a mile for me,
Because I "satisfy."

So come on, Girlie, be a sport!
Why longer hesitate?
With me between your pretty lips,
You'll be quite up to date!
You may not like me right at first,
But very soon, I'll bet,
You'll find you just can't get along Without a cigarette!

You've smoked one package, so I know
I've nothing now to fear;
When once I get a grip on girls,
They're mine for life, my dear!
Your freedom you began to lose,
The very day we met,
When I convinced you it was smart
To smoke a cigarette!

The color's fading from your cheeks;
Your finger-tips are stained;
And now you'd like to give me up.
But, Sister, you are chained!
You even took a drink last night!—
I thought you would, ere long,
For those whom I enslave soon lose
Their sense of right and wrong.

And should you e'er a mother be,
According to God's will,
Your offspring, poisoned with nicotine,
An early grave may fill,
Or following in your footsteps
Will add more poison to
The blood stream defiled already,
And thwart God's plan for you.

Year after year, I've fettered you,
And led you blindly on
Till now you are just a bunch of nerves,
With looks and health both gone.
You're pale and thin, and have a cough,
The doctor says "T.B."
He says you can't expect to live
Much longer, thanks to me!

But it's too late to worry now;
When you became my slave,
You should have known the chances were You'd fill an early grave.
And now that I have done my best
To send your soul to hell,
I'll leave you with my partner, DEATH!
He's come for you! FAREWELL!

ILLINOIS CONFERENCE HALL NEEDS

An inventory of the supplies at the Conference Hall shows that the following items are much needed before another annual gathering comes in August:

- 30 large sheets—80 x 99 (this allows only 8 for change).
- 2 dozen pillow cases.
- 2 dozen pillows—at least (it would help a great deal for them to have protectors).
- 4 large, flat-bottom cooking pans.
- Mirrors.

Does this give any ideas to the women's clubs of our many churches? or to individuals?

If anyone has feed sacks, the Oregon, Ill., Dorcas Society is willing to make them into sheets.

Any of the above-named items may be sent to Mrs. Myrtle Clausen, 402 S. Sixth St., or Mrs. Ethel Johnson, Box 231, Oregon, Ill.

GLEANINGS FROM THE FIELD

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

Coming! Bro. James M. Watkins, Promotional Director of National Bible Institution, is working on a catalog for the Institution. This, Sr. Dale Dunbar, will answer your recent inquiry and will be of general interest to our brethren.

Bro. and Sr. Frank Laning, Mount Sterling, Ill., recently moved into a newly built house. Their son, Bro. Wayne Laning, writes: "The surprise housewarming on the folks was really a surprise! There were thirty-six folks present in spite of the bad weather, and we had lots of fun. They are quite snug in their home."

"I surely have been enjoying articles in The Restitution Herald. The 'City Foursquare'! I read it three or four times."—"Grandma" Magaw, Tipp City, Ohio.

Bro. A. J. Hoek, Dayton, Ohio, having been home three weeks since hospitalization, reports that he "is feeling good" and that he "has a good appetite."

SAINT CLOUD, MINNESOTA

Sunday, February 9, our hearts were made glad when Joe Collins yielded himself to the command of Christ and was baptized—the writer officiating. With his family, he has been staying this winter with his wife's father, Bro. Victor Vase. He is a sincere Christian, an ardent Bible student, and we rejoice to have assisted him in this important step. Members of his family have returned to their former home, Garnett, Kan., where he expects soon to join them. There they again will make their residence. We pray God's blessing upon him; he intends to let his light shine for his Lord.

On Thursday, January 23, 1947, at five o'clock, occurred the marriage of Miss Nora Mae Hurley and Mr. Boyd Boyanovsky, both of Laurens, Iowa, at the Church of God, Saint Cloud, Minn. The single ring service was used. The couple was attended by Mr. and Mrs. Louis Veskna, the latter, Bonnie, being Boyd's sister. Boyd is the son of Bro. and Sr. Frank Boyanovsky, staunch supporters of the work near Albert City, Iowa. Both he and Bonnie have been carefully trained since early childhood in the truths of God's Word, and both yielded in baptism when they reached the age of understanding. We rejoice in the establishment of another Christian home, and trust the couple will have a long and useful life in the service of the Lord. May God bless today's young people, who are the hope of tomorrow's church! Both Mr. and Mrs. Boyanovsky and Mr. and Mrs. Veskna are making their homes in Laurens, Iowa.

All departments of the Saint Cloud Church of God are working well. The Sunday school, even in winter weather, which is often severe, has an attendance of from forty-five to sixty-seven. All church services are well attended, good interest of members is shown, and there is some outside interest. Dorcas Society meets twice a month: one meeting at the church from 10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m., "Work Day," with covered-dish lunch at noon. We are working at present on dishtowels, pillow slips, and aprons for the General Conference. One session each month is at one of the various homes. Every meeting is well attended. This is one community where cold or stormy weather does not keep people at home! Midweek Bible study classes on Wednesday evenings are always well attended. Although the temperature was subzero and a strong wind blowing last Wednesday evening, our attendance was twenty-six. We have two classes. The children under twelve years of age are taught with flannelgraph lessons under direction of Mrs. Jones. This group numbers from seven to twelve students—sometimes more. The adult class is taught by the members, each in rotation, and the study is deep and thorough, most of those present taking an active part in the discussion. Financially, all groups have been prospered beyond all expectations. When all work together, study together, and PRAY together, the work is sure to go forward.

OREGON BIBLE COLLEGE NEWS

On Saturday afternoon, February 8, Mrs. Edna Brower arrived in Oregon, Ill., ready to assume her duties as matron of Oregon Bible College. She flew via plane from Tempe, Ariz., to Chicago, and then took the afternoon Zephyr from Chicago. We all welcome her to the College, and hope she will not too seriously miss the wonderful weather enjoyed in Phoenix.

Last Monday morning, February 10, speakers in Public Speaking 1 Class were J. Lee Payne, Raul Smith, and Warren Scorsen. During their speeches, a roving reporter who "just happened" to be there at that time made good use of his camera. Taking of the pictures seemed somehow or other to confuse the students. It would appear that even students of the Public Speaking Class are camera shy. The pictures were taken, however, and will appear, along with other pictures of the students in various phases of campus life, in this year's Maramatha. We thank Bro. Dick for being so patient during the photographing.

Another class our roving reporter may wish to visit is the Expository Preaching Class. Bro. Magaw is instructing us in the art of expository preaching in this class, which means the giving of a fairly detailed explanation of the passage of Scripture under discussion. So far, Gordon Landry and Howard Beemer, two of the students, have given their first expository sermons. After a student preaches his sermon, the class and instructor go to the speaker constructive criticism.

Chapel services last week were both very unique and extremely enjoyable. Arnold Johnson, one of our freshmen, told us of his travels while in the Medical Corps of the United States Army. His talk was most interesting; he has definitely done some very extensive traveling as a guest of Uncle Sam. Thursday morning, Bro. C. Alan McLain, a graduate of the College and pastor of the Church of God at Dixon, Ill., gave us many beneficial thoughts in an extremely inspiring sermon. His subject title was, "Winning Souls for Christ." During the same service, a quartet composed of College students sang, "For You I Am Praying." Members of the quartet were Kirby Davis, Timothy Pearson, Warren Scorsen, and Milton Hall.

LOURDES. Nestled in the foothills of the Pyrenees Mountains lies a little town where the Shrine of Saint Bernadette is located. Last year, there were more than one hundred thousand pilgrims that visited this famous Shrine, where the Virgin Mary is supposed to have made an appearance during the nineteenth century. Among this large army of blessing-seekers were thousands of wounded soldiers who went there to pray for recovery and healing. Why do thousands and thousands of people visit these shrines each year? Some come for thousands of miles. There are what seems to be miracles of healing. Do these come from the faith of the individual as a result of prayer? Or is it the result of the mind having power over the body? It can be discounted at the outset, that there is any healing power in these particular places through the special appearances of people long since dead. The dead know not anything, according to Scripture and any belief which violates this proposition of inspiration is in error.

There are several factors which must be considered concerning pilgrimages to the various shrines. 1) The build-up through teaching and the propaganda that is circulated. 2) The faith which the individual has in the stories and accounts of healing which are supposed to have occurred. 3) The desire of the mind for a blessing. It is this last proposition which we wish to emphasize. Our blessings are largely controlled by our desires. If we desire fellowship with the brethren, we will put forth the needed effort to be in the company of the brethren. If we wish the consolation of meditation in the courts of God's house, we will plan for the time necessary to enjoy this blessing. It is the preparation of the heart that brings the blessings. Who knows but what the faith to journey long distances, and the preparation of the heart combined, forces the physical resources to lay aside the afflictions in accordance with well-trained mental desires!

At any rate, thousands of Frenchmen recently released from German concentration camps went to Lourdes to thank Saint Bernadette for their deliverance.—C. E. Randall

This course, conducted by Otto E. Dick, instructor and student counselor at Oregon Bible College, is especially designed for pastor, parent, or teacher. From the normal processes of child development, it considers the religious opportunities of the various ages that may be used as stepping stones in building a child of faith. Such understanding is a must for all those who would deal wisely with their own children or the children of others. It is offered at less than cost as a public service and carries College credit if desired.

Shake Hands, Texas

This week, THE RESTITUTION HERALD offers a special Texas Number. The front page presents a scenic view of downtown San Antonio. Page 3 presents a Scriptural message from an old-time friend, George A. Waters. Formerly a leader at Arkansas City, Kansas, Brother Waters now leads a church nucleus at Corpus Christi, Texas. Page 6 offers a sound doctrinal article by another faithful worker, Brother T. A. Drinkard, Arlington, Texas. Page 7 shows the historic Alamo. Brother M. W. Lyon, National Evangelist now working among isolated groups in Texas, prepared the interesting back page. Brother Lyon is requesting all Texas brethren to co-operate in an effort to organize a Texas State Conference—a conference devoted to Christ and zealous to “launch out into the deep” of gospel enterprise. Success to you, Brother Lyon!

Largest state in the Union, Texas stretches to a maximum diagonal surpassing the distance from Oregon, Illinois to Texas. We at headquarters are nearer to some of you Texas brethren, therefore, than some of you are to each other! So, reach out and shake hands, all ye Texans.

Though not yet privileged to visit Texas, we are interested in you and in your State: having learned of your brave struggles, your rich natural resources, your developing opportunities, your ideals and Christian faith. We can visualize the scenic Rio Grande that separates you from Mexico and gorges its way southeastward to the Gulf. We have heard of your steep Davis Mountains in the West, and of your Great Plains where once roamed the “thundering herd.” Occasionally, a winter’s southwestern wind reminds us of biting cold in the Panhandle. Though much of your territory is arid and blasting hot in the summer, your well-watered and rolling plains are productive of cotton and grain. Your ranching, lumbering, truck gardening, dairying, and citrus-fruit farming have convinced us, too, that there is vastly more to your State than limitless expanses of sand. Even they are dotted with derricks forgotten in our haste to burn gasoline derived from their wells. We have learned, also, of your cities, Texas: of San Antonio, Houston, Dallas, Fort Worth, Austin, Waco, Wichita Falls, and others. Pray for the Lord to help you start a church in every city. The Apostle Paul, if he were here, would seek an “Athens” and a “Corinth” for missionary centers in your State.

Come in, other States, for a review of Texas story. First Europeans to enter the Lone Star State were some Spaniards who, in 1528, shipwrecked on the Texas coast. Then came Coronado, crossing the western plains. In 1682, a Spanish settlement was made near El Paso. LaSalle, having sailed down the Mississippi in 1682, returned with French adventurers to colonize somewhere up the River. Failing, however, to find the River’s mouth, they landed in Texas, thus giving France a valid claim to the territory, though the Spaniards continued in control.

The Louisiana Purchase (1803) initiated a long-time problem between Texas and the United States as to correct boundaries—questionable territory becoming a rendezvous for outlaws. American colonists, encouraged by the Spaniards, pressed into Texas under leadership of Stephen F. Austin—now commonly called the “Father of Texas.” Tension became alarmingly taut with the Mexican rule and the Americans arose in armed resistance. At the Alamo in San Antonio, one hundred fifty Texans courageously withstood a besieging army of four thousand Mexicans. The siege ended, March 6, 1836, in a hand-to-hand encounter, resulting in annihilation of the Texans. The last surviving six men surrendered upon promise that their lives would be spared, but they were villainously slain. Then arose a frenzied but unifying cry. “Remember the Alamo!” and Mexican barbarity soon boomeranged! On April 21, near Santa Anna, General Sam Houston overwhelmingly defeated the Mexicans, and was made president of the new and independent Republic. Though northern states were reluctant to receive Texas because of the slave question, she was annexed in 1845 by the United States. Yes, England, on her own terms!

Texas, may your struggle for liberty typify your struggle for truth, righteousness, and the Church of God. “Remember the Alamo!” and more. “Fight the good fight of faith; lay hold on eternal life.” As true blue brethren of the Bluebonnet State, press forward for “the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus.” Onward! Forward!

Life versus Death

By George A. Waters, Corpus Christi, Texas

JOB propounded the greatest question of all time when he asked: "If a man die, shall he live again?" (Job 14:14.) Why was it the greatest question? Because its answer vitally affects all mankind.

The word "if" usually implies a doubt, but by reading the entire chapter of Job 14, one can entertain no doubt that Job believed a man does die, and that he will live again. It seems odd that people need to be taught that man and beast both die alike and all go to the same place, back to dust (Eccl. 3:19, 20), when death and decay are constantly present. There can be only one reason. They prefer to believe the Serpent, who said, "Ye shall not surely die" (Gen. 3:4), rather than to believe the Lord God who said: "Of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, thou shalt not eat of it: for in the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die" (Gen. 2:17). Adam's sentence also must be disregarded. It was: "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground; for out of it wast thou taken: for dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return." Furthermore, we read: "Lest he put forth his hand, and take also of the tree of life, and eat, and live for ever: therefore the Lord God sent him forth from the garden of Eden, to till the ground from whence he was taken. So he drove out the man: and he placed at the east of the garden of Eden Cherubims, and a flaming sword which turned every way, to keep the way of the tree of life." (Gen. 3:19, 22-24.) Language could not be plainer, or agree more perfectly with Genesis 2:7, as to what composed "Adam." Man was formed of dust and the breath of life made that formation a "living soul," called "Adam."

The precautions mentioned were taken to prevent man from living forever, and that they were effectual is proved by Genesis 5:5, saying, "All the days that Adam lived were nine hundred and thirty years: and he died." "Wherefore, as by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned" (Rom. 5:12).

That the dead are unconscious is proved by many references. Here are a few. "In death there is no remembrance of thee" (Psalm 6:5). "The dead know not any thing" (Eccl. 9:5). "His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth; in that very day his thoughts perish" (Psalm 146:4). If thoughts have perished, it is only natural that there is "no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave, whither thou goest" (Eccl. 9:10).

Job's answer to his own question was: "All the days of my appointed time will I wait, till my change come. Thou shalt call, and I will answer thee: thou wilt have a desire to the work of thine hands" (14:14, 15). "If I wait, the grave is mine house: I have made my bed in the darkness" (17:13). Daniel was told: "Go thou thy way till the end be: for thou shalt rest, and stand in thy lot at the end of the days" (12:13). Isaiah foretold, "The earth shall cast out the dead . . . and no more cover her slain" (26:19-21).

Ezekiel 37:12, 13 is very forceful as to the dead being in the grave. We quote: "Thus saith the Lord God; Behold, O my people, I will open your graves, and cause you to come up out of your graves, and bring you into the land of Israel. And ye shall know that I am the Lord, when I have opened your graves, O my people, and brought you up out of your graves." The rest of the chapter makes it plain that the living and resurrected dead of Israel and Judah will be joined into one nation and dwell in their land forever.

Jesus informed: "The hour is coming, in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth; they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation" (John 5:28, 29). This is confirmed by the Revelation given to John, who wrote: "I saw the dead, small and great, stand before God; and the books were opened: and another book was opened, which is the book of life: and the dead were judged out of those things which were written in the books, according to their works. And the sea gave up the dead which were in it; and death and hell [hades—grave] delivered up the dead which were in them: and they were judged every man according to their works" (Rev. 20:12, 13). Paul added his testimony in 1 Corinthians 15:22: "As in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive." Some think that because the definite article "the" is used—as "the dead in Christ" (1 Thess. 4:16)—only those "in Christ" (His followers) will be included in the resurrection, but Revelation 20:15 proves that both good and bad will be included. It reads: "Whosoever was not found written in the book of life was cast into the lake of fire." If more evidence is desired, consider the texts following.

Jesus tasted "death for every man" (Heb. 2:9).

"And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me" (John 12:32).

"Therefore as by the offence of one judgment came upon all men to condemnation; (Please turn to page 11)

Concrete Hearts Melted

By E. H. Goit, Eldorado, Illinois

ISRAEL'S concrete-hardened hearts testify to the first covenant God made with Israel, the stony-hearted law. From continued reading of this old covenant, the law, Israel in part has had a veil cast over her eyes. (See 2 Cor. 3:14-16.) This shroud is to be removed when the Deliverer comes out of Zion. With its removal, concrete hearts will be melted to hearts of flesh, and God's Word will be inscribed on Israel's heart instead of stone. Concrete hearts, melted, shall accomplish the new covenant in Israel!

The first covenant God made with Israel is plainly identified in the Scriptures as the law. A Levitical priesthood was the heart and core of this law. This priesthood had "ordinances of divine service, and a worldly sanctuary." The priests labored in a tabernacle pitched of man, "wherein was the candlestick, and the table, and the shewbread; which is called the sanctuary. And after the second veil, the tabernacle which is called the Holiest of all; which had the golden censer, and the ark of the covenant overlaid round about with gold, wherein was the golden pot that had manna, and Aaron's rod that budded, and the tables of the covenant; and over it the cherubims of glory shadowing the mercyseat" (Heb. 9:2-5).

As far as Israel was concerned, the law was external, superficial, and skin-deep. God made this testament with the nation of Israel. At Mount Sinai, a brief outline of the Mosaic law was delivered Israel in the form of Ten Commandments. This decalogue defined the Israelite's duties to God, to his parents, and to his fellow men.

After receiving these words from Jehovah, Moses "sent and sacrificed peace offerings of oxen unto the Lord. And Moses took half of the blood, and put it in basons; and half of the blood he sprinkled on the altar. And he took the book of the covenant, and read in the audience of the people: and they said, All that the Lord hath said will we do, and be obedient. And Moses took the blood, and sprinkled it on the people, and said, Behold the blood of the covenant which the Lord hath made with you concerning all these words" (Ex. 24:5-8).

The blood of animals dedicated the first covenant. It was of necessity that there be the death of the testator of the law, for "a testament [covenant] is of force after men are dead, otherwise it is of no strength at all while the testator liveth" (Heb. 9:17).

Under the first testament, yearly sacrifices of bulls and goats were made. These offerings recalled the sins of the Israelites and therefore could not make perfect or take away their sins, for "it is not possible that the blood of bulls and of goats should take away sins" (Heb. 10:4).

The tablets of stone, "written with the finger of God," were broken by the hand of man. The Israelites' idolatrous bull worship violated the chief premise of the first testament. Their love of God was but lip service and their faith valid only as far as they could see. No small wonder that "Moses' anger waxed hot, and he cast the tables out of his hands, and brake them beneath the mount"!

The first covenant and its precepts administered by a corrupt priesthood was but a shadow of good things to come. Jesus' work was to fulfill the law and in its fulfillment, "he taketh away the first, that he may establish the second" (Heb. 10:9).

Jesus Christ took away the "schoolmaster" by nailing it to the cross with Himself. (See Col. 2:14.) It became accursed of God! "Wherefore, my brethren, ye also are become dead to the law by the body of Christ; that ye should be married to another, even to him who is raised from the dead, that we should bring forth fruit unto God" (Rom. 7:4). To serve the law is to commit adultery. To serve Christ is to be faithful!

Jesus, the Son of God, has established the second of the new covenant. The old testament (covenant, law) was established by the blood of animals, whereas the new testament was established by the blood of the man Jesus.

The blood of bulls, goats, and the ashes of an heifer sanctified the unclean Israelites to the purifying of the flesh, whereas the blood of Christ serves to "purge your conscience from dead works to serving the living God. And for this cause he is the mediator of the new testament that by means of death, for the redemption of the transgressions that were under the first testament, they which are called might receive the promise of eternal inheritance" (Heb. 9:14, 15).

Our Saviour's offering was a better sacrifice, for He was of a better tabernacle, even the true tabernacle not pitched of man, but fashioned of God. His sacrifice was not to be an annual affair, but "once in the end of the world hath he appeared to put away sin by the sacrifice of himself" (9:26).

"By the blood of Jesus" (10:19), one can enter the new covenant. Jesus, when instituting the "supper," said of His sacrifice represented by fruit-of-the-vine symbol: "This is my blood of the new testament [covenant], which is shed for many for the remission of sins" (Matt. 26:28). It is possible for the blood of the "Lamb of God" to forgive sins, whereas it was impossible for the blood of bulls and goats.

The major part of the Book of Hebrews is devoted to contrasting the two covenants. Hebrews 3 is consecrated to the superiority of Christ over Moses as to law, priesthood, and consequent sacrifice. Hebrews 6 and 7 portray Jesus as a priest "after the order of Melchizedek."

Our Lord had no pedigree tagged "Levite," but was of the tribe of Judah. He was not made "after the law of a carnal commandment, but after the power of an endless life" (7:16). Jesus, raised from the dead, became our High Priest and changed the order of priesthood. "The priesthood being changed, there is made of necessity a change also of the law" (7:12). The letter of the old law killed and gendered strife, but the spirit of the new gives life.

Beginning Hebrews 8, the author very aptly pointed out: "Of the things which we have spoken this is the sum [chief point, climax]: We have such an high priest, who is set on the right hand of the throne of the Majesty in the heavens; a minister of the sanctuary, and of the true tabernacle, which the Lord pitched, and not man. . . . He is the mediator of a better covenant, which was established on better promises. For if that first covenant had been faultless, then should no place have been sought for the second. For finding fault with them, he saith, Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, when I will make [accomplish] a new covenant with the house of Israel and with the house of Judah: not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers in the day when I took them by the hand to lead them out of the land of Egypt . . . for this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, saith the Lord; I will put my laws into their mind, and write them in their hearts: and I will be to them a God and they shall be to me a people: and they shall not teach every man his neighbour, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord: for all shall know me, from the least to the greatest. For I will be merciful to their unrighteousness, and their sins and iniquities will I remember no more" (8:1, 2, 6-12).

The aforementioned is a quotation from the Prophet Jeremiah. (See Jer. 31:31-34.) God pronounced judgment on the old covenant when He made mention of a new: a covenant that shall be made with the house of Israel, internal in origin, and no mere observance of ceremony, but characterized by knowledge, love, and zealous fulfillment of God's plan. God's law is to be written, not in ink, but with His Spirit. Briefly, the new covenant with Israel consists of the following: (Please turn to page 10)

A Message to Texas

*By James M. Watkins
Director Promotion -Co-Ordination

WITH the compliments of National Bible Institution, this issue of THE RESTITUTION HERALD is being sent as an emissary of personal greetings to over three hundred Church of God homes in the great Lone Star State of Texas. For the past several months, our National Evangelist, Brother M. W. Lyon, has been calling upon every home or church community of which we have, or can secure, any knowledge. To the many with whom we have become acquainted as a result of this effort or those who may be meeting us the first time through this paper, we extend the most cordial Christian greetings.

What a wonderful thing it is to realize that the bonds of Christ have no limitations of distance; that the fellowship of a common effort provides its own introductions; and, those we meet for the first time in the course of our association with our Master are as those we have known all our lives.

We consider our efforts in Texas very worth while, justified by the renewing of old ties and the welcoming of new friends. In the closing of this Age, the strength of unity and the greatest possible extension of fellowship is most necessary to keep our faith alive. We can hope only that the possibilities of this great State can be realized. That your forward-looking plans of coming together in the inspiring fellowship of a Texas Conference will become a reality, and that under combined effort and the prayers of your people, the Lord of the Harvest may send forth workers for a determined gleanings to insure the greatest possible harvest when our Lord returns.

To you, the growing number of true friends in Christ in your great State, we extend the fellowship of our Conference for a united strength; the common bond of our publications for a dissemination of truth; the possibilities of our College in training your workers; and the friendly purpose of our Youth Rally and Berean effort for the interest of your young people. As you have led in the great work of a National past, we hope you may also lead in this greater service to a Coming King.

Conditional Immortality

By T. A. Drinkard, Arlington, Texas

THIS QUESTION has been asked by a certain sister: "If the Church of God does not make clear the vital truths of conditional immortality, how can we expect to hold fast to our doctrine?" She then said: "There is much coming over the radio and being printed to entrench the belief of a spirit existence immediately after death."

I am glad that this sister had the courage to speak her mind on this great and important question, because she has seen the danger of failing to "take heed . . . unto the doctrine" and faith that have made the Church of God an outstanding people. Others have voiced their sentiments in this way over a period of years. There is little, if anything, gained by hiding facts. Are we safe? Are we clean "through the word"? Are we all interested in teaching the Word of God as He would have us teach it, or are some of us willing to compromise for popularity's sake? The faith, doctrine, and practice of the Church of God have never been popular, and never will be. One of the most interesting things in this connection to me is this: I ask men if what they teach as the truth really is the truth. The answer, "I believe it is," has come to me, not only from those of other faiths but from some of my own brethren as well. But does your "I believe it is" prove it so? If your faith is supported by the Word of God, you may then say that the Word of God teaches it, and that is the reason you believe it. If I cannot prove what I believe by the Word of God, there is something wrong—with my teaching.

I am glad to see this challenge; I pray that there will be more of them, as it will help to warn those inclined to step aside. The truths of conditional immortality as taught by the Church of God have been a distinguishing mark between her and those teaching otherwise. To fail to teach these fundamental truths, simply because they do not meet with popular consent, or because it isolates its advocates, would be to prove unfaithful to the Author of all truth.

Regardless of popular consent, the ministers of the Church of God should go forward teaching these truths that characterized the work of Christ. The doctrine of conditional immortality conflicts with every doctrine that is based upon the immortality of the soul before the resurrection at the coming of Jesus Christ. Tell me, if you can and will, just one victory that can be won by those who believe in conditional immortality compromising with advocates of the contrary part; or fellowshiping them in order to have union? I submit that we lower our standards relative to truth by so doing. If we are not right, then let us change and get right. Why live in a doubtful atmosphere? I further submit that when we show the spirit of compromise we violate the spirit of Christ's teaching. Until someone finds at least one instance where Jesus followed this rule, I shall contend that faithfulness to the Master's command is imperative.

Conditional immortality is either right or wrong. I submit that it is true, and this affirms that everything pertaining to the immortality of the soul is wrong. The principles relative to conditional immortality teach that man is mortal, that immortality as such is promised to man upon the condition that he render obedience to certain requirements. This fact is clearly sustained by the Word of God. (See Eccl. 12:13; Matt. 7:21; 24:25; Rom. 6:23; 2:6, 7; Rev. 2:7.)

It is true that over the radio much is said relative to spirit existence after death, rather, between death and resurrection. All such teaching is based upon the innate immortality of the soul—the greatest religious fraud that was ever advocated, with one exception. If the immortality of the soul and what it stands for can be sustained by the Word of God, then I will affirm that I am a sinner without God and without hope in the world and never will be saved. Let us notice what it stands for, and then we can understand it better. I solemnly submit:

(1) It teaches that there is no death to the real person, but only to the shell or house in which the man was encased over a period of years.

(2) What is called death is simply a fiasco, a failure, and a fraud.

(3) It denies the necessity of resurrection of the real person.

(4) It opposes the necessity for the coming of Jesus Christ for the purpose of rewarding His people.

(5) It calls for eternal torment, another unscriptural doctrine.

(6) To briefly sum it up, it calls for and demands universalism, because, if one soul is immortal, all souls would be the same; therefore, every soul would be saved. If the souls are immortal, not one of them could be tormented; the fire could not scorch them—much less burn them.

When we know that such teaching is being broadcast over the radio and otherwise, how urgent and necessary it is that the Church-of-God ministers do their utmost to teach the people the vital and fundamental truths as clearly set forth in the Word of God!

Knowing that Jesus said: "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free" (John 8:32), I ask: If in order to be made free we must know the truth through teaching (John 6:45) of the Word of God, can we be saved through teaching of error? Is the doctrine of the immortality of the soul true? If not, how can a man be saved who believes it? Are we right in our teaching of conditional immortality? Admit that conditional immortality is true and you are forced to reject all doctrines based upon the immortality of the soul.

Of course, if there is no death, that what is called death is all transition, or the passing of the immortal soul through a fictional gate into the land of heavenly bliss; and, if the old fleshly body is nothing but added weight or an extra burden, why fool with it? There is another thing about this deception, i.e., If the soul or spirit can survive the death of the body as a living entity—can live without the body—why have a body? If those teaching

POLICY A FAILURE. Britain's mandate over Palestine has failed to bring about the desired results. She has been unable to satisfy her own ends, the wishes of the Jews, and the desires of the Arabs. The situation has become so complex and dangerous, the whole matter has been thrown into the lap of the United Nations. What will the Council of Nations do? Will they "do justly and love mercy"? Time will give us the answer.

Speaking in the House of Commons last November, Winston Churchill chided the present Labor Government for its failure to carry out promises to the Jews which it made during the pre-election campaign. He said: "It is impossible to avoid deep regret at the many changes of tactics and method, at the needless disappointment created throughout world Jewry by the failure to fulfill the hopes which the party opposite excited by their promises and convictions at the General Election, and above all, at the lack of any policy worthy of the name.

The Palestine question is not one of human welfare only. Above and beyond this consideration is the political issue; and with nations, political considerations take precedence over human welfare. The unrepentant Jew continues to be the scapegoat of political machinations, and his trust in the sons of men must be at the breaking point. It will not be long before he will ask the Lord to undertake for him.

SALES HONEYMOON. Speaking before the National Beer Wholesalers' Association in Chicago last November, Bert F. McCann, vice president, said: "The war years of 1942-1945 were a sales honeymoon, which the brewing industry, from brewers to wholesalers, to retailers has enjoyed since 1942."

These were the war years when 10,000,000 of our boys were sacrificing home, jobs, and many of them their very lives; and the booze industry was enjoying a "sales honeymoon." Just think of it! According to the Department of Commerce records, the gross income of the industry during the four war years was $10,680,000,000. This was an increase of 50 per cent over the beer trade of the four pre-war years. The world is getting better all right—for the liquor business.

"A lot of kneeling keeps you in good standing with God."

MARIOLATRY. On February 2, James Hill, D.D., Bishop of Victoria, opened a series of ten addresses on the theme of the Marian Congress to be held in Ottawa during June. He said in part: "Catholic life in Canada, from its earliest days, has borne the deep stamp and seal of filial attachment for Mary, the Queen of Heaven . . . the mother of God." Prayer to Mary as the "mother of God" is a common practice among Roman Catholics. The "Litany of the Blessed Virgin Mary" begins, "We fly to thy patronage, O Holy Mother of God; despise not our prayer in our necessities; but deliver us from all dangers, O ever glorious and blessed Virgin . . . Holy Mother of God, pray for us."

Where did the idea of Mary being the "Mother of God" get its start? The answer is in the teaching of the "blessed trinity." The teaching of the "blessed trinity" is not confined to R.C.'s. More and more Protestants are putting forth the idea that "Jesus Christ is God." If Jesus Christ is God, then the papist teaching that Mary was the mother of God is logical. The last World Council of Churches set forth this tenet of belief for its membership: "We believe that Jesus Christ is God." Faith in this proposition is all that is needed for membership. Thus Roman Catholic teaching that Mary was the "Mother of God" and Protestant affirmation that "Jesus Christ is God" is not far apart—just a short step.

RELIGIOUS WAR. Former Assistant Secretary of State, Archibald MacLeish, speaking before the Foreign Policy Association in New York, warned against the dangers of a religious war that was bound to come, unless there was a new international awakening of understanding and respect. He said: "The worst of all religious wars" is bound to come unless the world "achieves the international understanding and respect upon which alone peace can be built." He went on to explain what he meant by a "religious war," as being a "war between political and economic philosophies, and that he meant those of Russia and the United States."

Few people realize that back of our political and economic structure is religion. True, it may be unwholesome in many respects, but nevertheless—it is religion. Religion is the foundation upon which our whole national structure is founded. The Soviet form of government is the opposite pole—it is based upon the proposition that "religion is an opiate of the people." If these two systems of government ever come to a military clash, MacLeish's definition of a "religious war" will be more than a passing term.

VODKA PLEDGE. The Board of Temperance of the Methodist Church has asked all delegates to the United Nations to sign a pledge of total abstinence while serving as representatives of this nation on the United Nations Council. The pledge reads: "Do you promise, God helping you, to abstain totally from all alcoholic beverages, particularly vodka, until you are relieved of your duties and responsibilities as a member of this body?" When asked why the pledge was sought, it was stated, "Certainly theirs is not a task for alcohol-pickled brains." And the reason for singling out "vodka" was prompted by the results of Yalta and Teheran, when our national interests were not too well looked after. Reports indicate there was so much vodka served that some of our representatives were in a "swim" most of the time. At any rate, we are glad to note this great temperance body becoming militant once more.

"You don't need references to borrow trouble."

IONA COMMUNITY. The Iona Community project in Iona, Scotland, is commanding the attention of church leaders on both sides of the Atlantic. The leader of the group, Sir George F. MacLeod, is both clergyman and baronet, and is now touring Canada and the United States. The general plan in the community enterprise is to adapt the "church to 20th century life." A good example of church-sponsored community "Christianity" (?) is found in the youth movement in the Iona effort. A church which was in a run-down condition was taken over and "converted into a center where young people could learn cooking and other trades and have dances on a Saturday evening." This is the adaptation of church life to 20th century living. This type of church appeal to young people is being tried out in many places in this country, and in Canada there are several large church-sponsored community centers where the appeal is definitely to the flesh in an effort to harness the spirit.

Then another leading feature of this new type of appeal is in the "community of believers." Regardless of one's religious conviction, or whether he has any at all, recognition of the Divine is essential, and this may be expressed in any outward form. It is a sort of worship of which Jesus chided the woman about: "Ye worship ye know not what." In this type of program, there is no such thing as "essential faith."

YEARS OF EXPERIENCE. M. A. Sander, retiring president of the Toronto conference of the United Church, stated that during the year he was in office not a single minister in the conference was called by a Toronto church who was over the age of 38. Some of the younger ministers challenged this condition as tending toward a serious situation. They addressed an open letter in which they argued: "Congregations are insisting more and more that they have youthful and vigorous men to serve them, and with this insistence there can surely be no quarrel. But the false conclusion congregations have drawn that youthfulness and vigor are exclusively the possession of a certain age group is one which we younger ministers of the church challenge. We all know men in the ministry nearing 60, and over 60, who are more vigorous and more youthful than others in their 30's. Such qualities do not repose in numbers but in mind and heart. The discount which congregations put on experience is something from which none of the other professions suffers. Indeed, lawyers and doctors are recruited and sought out precisely because of their years of experience."

7—Joseph: Potentate and Deliverer

Golden text:

"Now therefore, I pray thee, let thy servant abide instead of the lad a bondman to my lord; and let the lad go up with his brethren" (Gen. 44:33).

Text: Genesis 42 - 50.

Questions on the text:

- (1) How did Joseph demonstrate the wisdom with which Pharaoh credited him?
- (2) How did Joseph's scheme change the whole economic situation in Egypt? How did it also alter the political situation?
- (3) How did Judah earn the right to be ancestor to Christ?
- (4) Explain Genesis 49:10. Of whom is the prophecy made?
5. What shows Joseph's magnanimity of character in the latter part of the story?

The historical setting:

When Joseph went into Egypt, it was ruled by the Hyksos kings which Breasted shows were none other than Hittites. The Hittites were related to the Israelites and naturally were friendly with them. Egypt was in a feudal state of society when Joseph went there. By his wisdom in purchasing all the land of Egypt for the king, he thereby did much to make the kingdom a united institution in the hands of the king. He reduced the power of the feudal nobles. In Egyptian history, the earliest known public work was a water system with its dams and canals. Oftentimes enemies to the south would make incursions and wreck the dams. That is supposed to have caused the seven years of famine which Joseph was able to predict. During the feudal period, the office of grand vizier which Joseph apparently held became hereditary, and the holder of that office was often more powerful than the king.

Discussion of the lesson:

That God was with Joseph throughout his sojourn in Egypt is apparent. When he was accused by Potiphar's wife, the ordinary punishment for a slave would have been death; but Joseph was given even a mild imprisonment, something similar to what we would call probation. He was at least a "trustee." His sudden elevation to the office of grand vizier did not "go to his head" as it would have with some people, but he used his talents to provide for the future. Then, when he made himself known to his brothers, he gave God all the credit for sending him down into Egypt to preserve the family of Israel.

Related topics:

- (1) The blessing of Joseph's two sons reminds us of the situation of Jacob and Esau. The elder was again to serve the younger.
- (2) The meeting of Jacob and Pharaoh (Gen. 47:7ff) is one of the most fascinating stories. What do great men talk about when they meet? Perhaps if we were to go behind the curtain at the meeting of the United Nations' diplomats, we would find that they talk about things just as non-consequential as did Jacob and Pharaoh. "How old art thou?"
- (3) Notice the charge that Jacob gave his sons. (Gen. 49:28ff.) The same charge also was given by Joseph to his brothers. (Gen. 50:24ff.) Jacob and Joseph thus became prophets in their last days.

Practical applications:

The moral of the story of Joseph might be expressed in two parts: 1) Your sins will find you out (referring to the guilt of the brothers); 2) God brings the evil works of men to work out for good. We are reminded that God said through Paul that "all things work together for good to them that love God" (Rom. 8:28). Oftentimes even when we mean to do evil things, God turns them about so that they work righteousness. We should not hold the idea that we should do evil that grace might abound. The Apostle shows that that idea is in error. Joseph's kindness to his brothers was not only on account of his father, either. When Jacob died, Joseph was equally as gracious to them. They still had a guilty conscience, but he did not hold their previous ill treatment to affect him.

8—Moses and His Times

Golden text:

"By faith Moses, when he was come to years, refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter; choosing rather to suffer affliction with the people of God, than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season" (Heb. 11:24, 25). (Over)

Text: Exodus 1, 2.

Setting of the lesson:

The new line of kings that came to the throne before the birth of Moses were the native Egyptians. They were not sympathetic with the Israelites. Arthur Weigle ("Personalities of Antiquity") thinks that the Pharaoh of the Exodus was none other than the famous Tutankamen. It is strange that out of all the long line of kings of Egypt, Tutankamen and his father were the only two who believed in only one God. Tutankamen was forced to take that name by the priests of Amen. His name was originally Tutankaton. He was only a boy when he became king. How is it then that his tomb is found in the cliffs of the Nile? Why was he not drowned in the Red Sea? The king probably did not follow his host in person. Anybody belonging to the royal house was called Pharaoh from the old Egyptian Pero, meaning the "Great House." If, as was formerly supposed, the Pharaoh of the Exodus was Rameses II, then the Exodus would come about the time of Solomon, instead of as early as the days of Moses. In fact, if we examine into the chronologies of the Bible, we find it very confusing. Many of the modern historians place the Exodus in the days of Solomon, explaining that not all the tribes went down into Egypt, and that they came out at various times instead of all at once under the leadership of a great man such as Moses.

Questions on the text:

- (1) Explain what covenant is meant in Exodus 2:24.
- (2) Did Moses' mother save him, or did God?
- (3) Explain the golden text in relation to Moses and Pharaoh's daughter. The next verse after the golden text in Hebrews mentions Moses' belief in Christ. Explain how Moses could be a Christian.
- (4) Arthur Weigle says that the Egyptians were the kindest people of ancient times. How does that harmonize with the treatment accorded the Israelites?
- (5) Why did Moses assume leadership of the Israelites? Did he have some knowledge that he was to be their chosen leader?

Discussion of the lesson:

Moses is thought of by most people either as the baby that was taken from the Nile, or as the old man giving the law from Mount Sinai. They forget that he was a young man who grew up in all the luxury of the court of the king's daughter. That that court was corrupt there is no doubt, but he left it all behind to become the leader of his people. At first as a fiery young man with all the impulses of reform, he set about in his own way to set the Israelites free, only for his plans to meet failure. Moses was forty years of age when he fled to Midian. Was he such a young man?

Related topics:

- (1) Where was ancient Midian? What relationship does it bear to the region of Mount Sinai?
- (2) Jethro is mentioned by the name of Reuel (Ex 2: 18) as a priest of Midian. Is that of any importance? We meet Moses' father-in-law again when the children of Israel were in their wilderness journeys.
- (3) How many were there of the children of Israel who went into Egypt? (Gen. 46.) It is estimated that about 2,000,000 left Egypt with Moses. How long were they in Egypt? Someone has said that it was impossible for so many people to have come from so few in so short a period. Discuss.

Related readings:

Acts 7:18ff; Hebrews 11:23-29; Hebrews 3.

Practical applications:

We see in the story of Moses, the young leader, what we find in our own lives: what we try to do impulsively without God's aid fails of its goal; but when we grow older, we see that we cannot reform the world by ourselves. Moses' old fire was not completely dead: it broke forth on several occasions, but he achieved a patience and a meekness that we all can emulate. His leadership of the rebellious children of Israel is a model of patience and endurance. It shows us that we can do likewise.

CONCRETE HEARTS MELTED

- (1.) God's law written in Israel's inward parts, even their hearts.
- (2.) God to be their God and Israel to be His people.
- (3.) No more teaching, saying, "Know God," for they shall all know God.
- (4.) Israel's iniquities forgiven and her sins remembered no more.

To accomplish (make) the new covenant in Israel, it is of necessity that Israel receive a change of heart. Israel "is a people that do err in their heart, and they have not known my [God's] way" (Psalm 95:10). As a nation, they hardened their heart by traditions and abominations. The shifting sands of idolatry, held together by a form of the rock of God, gave them a heart of concrete. In time, they became a people without a land, nation, and king.

To accomplish this new covenant, it is of necessity that Israel be regathered in her land as a nation and with a king. Ezekiel 36:22-28 is one testimony of many that this landless, nationless, and kingless people will be planted in the mountains of the Lord. They are not to be gathered for their sake, but "for mine [God's] holy name's sake" (36:22).

This concrete-hardened heart that the nation of Israel bears is to be dissolved, and Israel is to receive a new heart and spirit, for, "I will give them one heart, and I will put a new spirit within you; and I will take the stony heart out of their flesh, and will give them an heart of flesh" (Ezek. 11:19).

At present, Israel's concrete-hardened heart testifies to the law. Today, a veil, even the old law (testament, covenant) blinds Israel in part and recalls her sins. Paul said, "It is written, There shall come out of Sion the Deliverer, and shall turn away ungodliness from Jacob. For this is my covenant unto them, when I shall take away their sins" (Rom. 11:26, 27).

Jesus, the Deliverer, has yet to come out of Zion, but when He does, concrete hearts will be melted to hearts of flesh and God's Word will be inscribed on Israel's heart instead of stone. Concrete hearts, melted, shall accomplish the new covenant in Israel.

CONDITIONAL IMMORTALITY

these theories as truth are not entangled in a state of confusion out of which they are unable to extricate themselves, I am unable to understand their language. If men can and will be saved through teaching of the immortality of the soul, then why teach conditional immortality?

LIFE VERSUS DEATH

even so by the righteousness of one the free gift came upon all men unto justification of life" (Rom. 5:18). We do not understand this to be eternal life, but Adamic life, because God shall "bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good, or whether it be evil" (Eccl. 12:14).

"I am God, and there is none else. I have sworn by myself, the word is gone out of my mouth in righteousness, and shall not return, That unto me every knee shall bow, every tongue shall swear" (Isa. 45:22, 23). Surely no person will be excused from that call. All must answer.

Jesus told Nicodemus: "Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God," and, "Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God" (John 3:3, 5). To make it plain, Jesus then told him: "That which is born of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit," and as the wind comes and goes without being seen, "so [in like manner] is every one that is born of the Spirit" (v. 8). That Jesus spoke of the resurrection seems very plain, for He came and went as the wind after His resurrection. For example, we quote: "The same day at evening, being the first day of the week, when the doors were shut where the disciples were assembled for fear of the Jews, came Jesus and stood in the midst, and saith unto them, Peace be unto you" (John 20:19).

Concerning the resurrection, the Apostle Paul said: "It is sown a natural body; it is raised a spiritual body. There is a natural body, and there is a spiritual body. Howbeit that was not first which is spiritual, but that which is natural; and afterward that which is spiritual"—after the resurrection. (1 Cor. 15:44, 46.) Are all, therefore, to be raised spiritual? "That which thou sowest, thou sowest not that body that shall be, but bare grain, it may chance of wheat, or of some other grain: but God giveth it a body as it hath pleased him, and to every seed his own body." Paul then explained that there is a difference in bodies and taught, "So also is the resurrection of the dead." Different seed has different bodies. (1 Cor. 15:35-42.)

In the Parable of the Kingdom, as recorded in Matthew 13:24-30, Jesus explained how tares may grow up in the wheat, but at harvest they are gathered and burned. Those who must be born again to "see" the Kingdom, but are thrust out (Luke 13:28), well may answer as the "tares."

A water "birth," too, is essential for one to enter the Kingdom. Is it reasonable that Jesus would make a requirement with no indication of how it should be accomplished? Surely not! Water baptism (immersion) fulfills being born of (Greek: ex—out of) water, perfectly. It is a real birth. That baptism by the Holy Ghost does not take the place of water baptism is proved by Peter's ordering the household and friends of Cornelius to be baptized by water baptism after they had received the Holy Ghost. (Acts 10:48.)

In conclusion, our lesson teaches that, "The wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord" (Rom. 6:23). We pray that those who read this message may seek eternal life by a "patient continuance in well doing."

A Stiff-Necked People

While Moses was up in the mountain, God spoke to him about the Israelites. They were at the foot of the mountain. God told Moses they had already turned away from His commandments. They had made a molten calf of gold and worshiped it! How could they worship a god of gold after seeing God's power? God called them a "stiff-necked" people. He was very angry. His anger, or wrath, was so great He talked to Moses about destroying all of them. He said He would make of Moses "a great nation." Moses was an Israelite, but God was not angry with him, for he was trying to do God's will.

On the Morrow

The next day Moses told the people they had sinned greatly. He said he would go up unto the Lord and perhaps make an atonement for their sin. To make an atonement meant to make things right, though it might mean suffering.

Moses said to the Lord, "Oh, this people have sinned a great sin." He pleaded that God would forgive them their sin. He offered that his name be blotted out of the book God kept in order to atone for their sin. Moses, like Jesus, was ready and willing to die in their stead. In that way, he was a type of Christ.

God would not allow Moses to offer himself for the Israelites. God said, "Whosoever hath sinned against me, him will I blot out of my book" (Ex. 32:33). When the Israelites sinned, there was no Christ as mediator; there was only condemnation.

Today, we are not under the law but under grace. Christ made complete atonement for all who will accept Him and follow Him.

Today, Christians are given strength and power to be overcomers of sin. The Holy Spirit is given to those who obey Him and ask for it. (Luke 11:13; Acts 5:32.)

Jesus said: "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you" (Matt. 6:33).

"These things" refer to our daily needs. Jesus was ever teaching about the "kingdom of God," which is to be established on the earth. May each of us "diligently seek him" (Heb. 11:6) that we may have a place in that Kingdom.

VISUAL EDUCATION

The other day two teachers, widely experienced in both public and church school education, were talking to us about the problems of visual education.

It is a pretty fancy name for a rather simple thing, on the whole. Visual education is what Jesus used when He performed miracles. It is what Paul used when he shook off a poisonous serpent from his wrist into the fire. It is what Peter used when he blasted Ananias and Sapphira for defrauding God. More modernly, it is what your daily newspaper uses when it prints a picture or a diagram with X marking the spot.

But visual education, remarked these two teachers, can be abused. Too many have come to regard it as an end rather than a means. Really, it is intended to teach something, not to entertain; and, when it is left entirely on its own, with nothing to guide the watcher in its meaning, it loses 99.44 per cent of its force.

Slidefilms, handwork, movies, Kodachrome slides, maps, flannelboard work, diagrams, chalk talks, pictures, models—they all can occupy a vital part in teaching, but they cannot be left alone. They must be guided. In young people's work and work with children and intermediates, especially, they must be guided.

Do not, said these teachers, use visual education as the lesson; use it as a review of the lesson. For instance, teach children what happened to Moses; then present a Kodachrome or slidefilm picture story of what happened to him, and point out as you go along, the way the pictures correspond to the original lesson. Or teach young people a lesson on temperance; then show a movie on the effects of alcohol—The Lost Week End, incidentally, would be better on that score than most of the standard temperance lectures or W.C.T.U. slidefilms.

Map work, for children or intermediates, is not a lesson; it is only part of a lesson, to fix the places and people and events in young minds. Having children color pictures is a lot of fun, but having them learn something from coloring the pictures is the important thing. Building models of the tabernacle or the temple, or sticking pictures on flannelboards, is all very well; but unless these activities actually teach something, they may be discarded without losing a bit of educational advantage.

In short, visual education has to be combined with plain, matter-of-fact teaching before it gains meaning. Alone, unaided, it often is worse than useless. It is a help to teaching—nothing more. Very definitely, it cannot be expected to do the job of converting people to Christianity; it can help, but it cannot do the entire task.

At about the same time that our two teachers were addressing themselves to visual educational problems, we talked with—or, rather, listened to—another pair who were concerned with youth rallies. "Dead!" was the way one of them described a recent affair.

Now deadness or aliveness is purely a matter of personal opinion. Some people like chess and checkers; others like to ski jump and take the high hurdles. A rally, a class, a business meeting, is dead only if we make it so. Wesley Somers, chairman of the junior Berean work of the National Berean Society, hit the "nub" of the matter pretty squarely on the head in the first issue of The Guiding Star when he commented, "All lessons are interesting if you are interested."

It happened we had attended the rally the pair discussed. Personally, we considered it as "alive" as any other rally. If you happen to be worn, as radio's Lum would phrase it, "down to a frazzle," there is not much about any rally that is appealing, even if it comes equipped with neon lights and Coca Cola. But if you are full of zest yourself, you can turn even a lecture into a thing of interest and attraction.

All of which explains, in a way, why visual education is tricky stuff to handle. We are each interested in something different; we each possess a separate set of human moral standards; we have a yen for hamburgers with onions or a yen for hamburgers without. When we use visual education — rallies — songfests — meetings of any kind, we cannot expect to touch everyone alike; nor should everyone there judge the results on the basis of his individual reaction. Teachers need to do their best, to be sure—but, as Wesley Somers said, "All lessons are interesting if you are interested."

OMAHA, NEBRASKA

A week of special meetings was enjoyed by the brethren at Omaha, Neb., February 2-9, with Bro. C. E. Randall of Fouthill, Ont., giving a series of sermons on "Our Times in the Light of Prophecy."

Though that week was one of the coldest of the winter, we had good attendance, and the interest of those who attended was evident from their braving the cold winds to be there. On the last day, we had an all-day meeting, with Bro. Randall speaking in the morning, afternoon, and evening. Potluck dinner and supper were served in the church basement.

After the afternoon service, three young ladies were immersed into the saving name of Christ. They are: Mrs. Glen Appleby of Omaha, and Kathryn and Eleanor Paustain of Millard, Neb. We are grateful to the Florence Christian Church for so kindly permitting us to use their church and baptistry for the baptismal service.

We were sorry Bro. Randall could not have stayed another week, for we were just getting well interested when the week was ended, but we were well pleased with the interest shown, and feel that it was a very profitable week.

Robert O. Hardesty, Pastor.

ILLINOIS CONFERENCE HALL NEEDS

An inventory of the supplies at the Conference Hall shows that the following items are much needed before another annual gathering comes in August:

- 30 large sheets—80 x 100 (this allows only 8 for change).
- 2 dozen pillow cases.
- 2 dozen pillows—at least (it would help a great deal for them to have protectors).
- 4 large, flat-bottom cooking pans.
- Mirrors.

Does this give any ideas to the women's clubs of our many churches? or to individuals?

If anyone has feed sacks, the Oregon, Ill., Dorcas Society is willing to make them into sheets.

Any of the above-named items may be sent to Mrs. Myrle Claussen, 402 S. Sixth St., or Mrs. Ethel Johnson, Box 231, Oregon, Ill.

Wayne L. Laning, President,
 Illinois State Conference.

HOPE CHAPEL CHURCH OF GOD South Bend, Indiana

Having been asked to make a report about our Sunday evening services, I wish to submit the following:

Since October, we have opened our church on Sunday evenings for church services. With the help of God and the young adult group, who meet every Tuesday, to print a bulletin for the services, we have felt well repaid, and we hope God is pleased with our efforts. Each Sunday evening service is different. We have had guest speakers, both white and black; and whenever possible to have one of our own ministers, we are pleased to do so. On Sunday evenings when speakers are not available, we teach the Bible by use of visual aids, and these have been educational also.

Our average attendance for each Sunday evening, not counting the Christmas program evening, has been thirty-seven; so we feel that opening the doors for an average of thirty-seven people each Sunday evening is worth while, and we give God the praise.

Recently, we were very glad to have Bro. T. A. Drinkard of Arlington, Tex., with us. He took his scripture reading from 2 Timothy 4 and talked on the "Judgment." He also referred to Romans 2, Hebrews 2, Matthew 19, and several other Bible texts. He stressed the facts that we should "take heed," "that man is appointed once to die"; "what profiteth a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" and "there's an all-seeing eye watching us." Bro. Drinkard is a very forceful speaker and has a pleasing personality. We hope to have him again.

Another interesting speaker of late was Bro. Sydney E. Magaw who, also with his pleasing personality, gave us much food for thought. We have arranged for Bro. Magaw to be with us again on several Sunday evenings in the near future.

Besides the Sunday evening services, where everyone takes turn in helping with the service, we also have organized a Berean class and recently a junior Berean class was organized. Both are well attended and are very helpful to the young people. They meet at 6:15, closing at 7:15 in time for the church service at 7:30.

If you do not have a pastor for Sunday evenings you might like to try our plan.

Mrs. Lottie Picklerl, S. S. Supt.

GLEANINGS FROM THE FIELD "The field is the world."—Jesus.

Truth Seekers' Quarterlies, Sunday school not having standing orders for Truth Seekers' Quarterlies should order well in advance of the beginning of a new quarter to be sure of having the quarterlies by the first Sunday of the new quarter. Now is the time to place your order for the April, May, June, 1947, quarter.

Bro. Arlen Marsh, 132 N. Gardiner Ave., Rockford, Ill., will preach at Delta, Ohio, March 8 and 9. Bro. Howard Beemer, student minister, Oregon Bible College, will serve in pulpit duties for the Rockford pastor, March 5.

Bro. and Sr. D. W. Kirkpatrick have returned to Arizona for sake of Sr. Kirkpatrick's health. They may be addressed at Phoenix, general delivery.

Sr. Beth Hardesty, Oregon, Ill., is vacating at home of her parents, Bro. and Sr. C. E. Hoganson, Spanaway, Wash.

Bro. and Sr. Albert Logsdon, and daughters Shirley and Juanita, Oregon, Ill., visited last week end with friends and relatives at Ripley, Ill.

Sr. Elizabeth Reighard, Delta, Ohio, is grateful to brethren who have been remembering her with get-well greetings—since she fell and broke her arm. It is mending. Sr. Reighard (ninety-eight years strong) is cheerful and strong in faith, constantly watching the signs of the times and anticipating the coming of Christ.

Bro. Timothy Pearson accompanied the Editor, February 23, to South Bend, Ind., where both were engaged in pulpit duties. Bro. Milton Hall rode with them to Chicago, then boarding a train for Rensselaer, Ind., where he is serving as student pastor.

E. Claude Gardner, 708 N. Comanche, San Marcos, Texas, would appreciate information re Millennialism. He is doing research on that subject as a part of scholastic work in San Marcos State Teachers' College. Send tracts, booklets, or your own defense of the Growing-Kingdom-Age interpretation of Bible prophecy. Mr. Gardner is a minister of the Church of Christ and will appreciate help—especially from ministers who believe in Millennialism.

Bro. Gordon Shrode, Young America, Minn., hospitalized some time ago, is reported to be well on the road to normal strength.

Bro. and Sr. Otto E. Dick and family, Oregon, Ill., recently in Chicago on business, used their spare time by visiting Field's Museum and the Shedd Aquarium.

Bro. James M. Watkins was guest speaker for the Oregon (Ill.) Berean Society at its Sunday evening church service, February 18.

GOLDEN RULE HOME VISITORS

We were highly honored at Golden Rule Home the evening of February 20 by a visit from Bro. Milton Hall and Sr. Verna Thayer. Bro. Hall conducted a song service and Sr. Thayer showed pictures of the life of Jesus and of scenes around Jerusalem.

Charles A. Pearson, Reporter.

OREGON BIBLE COLLEGE

The Student Council met Monday evening, February 17. The Council meets every other Monday to discuss plans and activities of the College. Our Student Counsellor meets with us as an advisor and guide; however, he has no vote. Last week, we had several guests, among whom was our matron, Mrs. Brewer. It is the practice of the Council to allow one or two visitors to sit in on a meeting, providing all members are willing that the visitor be present. The main topics of discussion at the last meeting were the play, to be sponsored by the Council, and the changing of "devotions" from the evening to the morning.

Prior to last Tuesday, "devotions" have been held each day immediately following the evening meal, except on Sundays when the students attend Beream meetings. We now have "devotions" in the morning before breakfast. It was thought that "devotions" would be of more benefit at the beginning of the day. We all feel that the short period of prayer, reading of Scriptures, and singing of a hymn or two gives to us a spiritual uplift that can be obtained in no other way. Asking for the guidance of one's heavenly Father first thing in the morning helps immensely toward making the day go much better.

Mr. Dick gave us a little test in Religious Missions the other day. It is rumored that much all passed. This would indicate that much thinking was done that morning, as many a worried brow was noticed when the students walked into the classroom to find a test staring them in the face. Monday morning, first period, does not always find one at his best and this is our best excuse for not being any too brilliant in that particular test—that is—for those of us who did not do so well.

There has been a bit of moving going on around the College of late. Occupants of the "Freshman Room" are now: Arnold Johns, Warren Sorenson, Raymond Brown. The "Sunshine Room" contains Gordon Landry and Dean Moore. Gordon is almost a permanent fixture in that room, having been there nearly two years. In the "Blue Room" are Kirby Davis, Raul Smith, and this writer. There has also been a furniture-buying spree of late. Tables, desks, and chairs have been added to the three rooms, and much rearranging has been done. Bro. Charles Pearson is helping us with our rearranging by painting the floors of the "Sunshine" and "Freshman" rooms. The floor of the "Blue Room" was painted during Christmas vacation. Thanks for your kind assistance, Bro. Pearson.

Mrs. Brewer, College matron, was the speaker at Chapel service, February 18. She spoke to the student body, faculty, and several visitors from town about the special services conducted by a tribe of Indians, living on a reservation near Tempe, Ariz. These services are held at Easter, from Friday to Sunday. Her subject was an intensely interesting one, and all enjoyed the talk immensely. Bro. Dick was the speaker at the Thursday morning Chapel service of last week. He spoke to us about Naaman the leper. The Expository Preaching Class obtained special enjoyment from Bro. Dick's sermon, as it was an excellent example of narrative exposition.

We regret that Miss Samelson is sick this week and unable to be with us. We hope and pray that she has a speedy recovery. Miss Samelson is the instructor of voice training for the College.

Milton Hall preached an extremely interesting sermon to the residents of Golden Rule Home last Thursday evening. This is a Council project, that is, to present opportunity for students to do a bit of preaching. One or two students are to take charge of this service each week. We hope to visit the Home once a week, if they will have us. Milton is the first of the students to go under this new system. He was aided by Mrs. Thayer, who showed colored slides illustrating his sermon about prophecy and Palestine.

LARINGTON - RUTT

Miss Roene Larington and Mr. Kenneth Rutt, both of McCook, Nebr., were united in marriage by the writer at a beautiful candle-light ceremony at 6:00 p.m., February 14, 1947. The simple double ring service was held at the home of the groom in the presence of the immediate families of Roene and Kenneth. The bride was attended by Miss Jeanne Ward of Saint Ann, Nebr., and the groom by his cousin, Richard Rutt, of McCook.

Roene is the daughter of Bro. and Sr. Devere Larington of McCook, and is a member of the Holbrook Church of God. Kenneth is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Rutt of McCook.

We pray that they will look to God for guidance as they establish their new home.

is now presenting a special course in

CHILD STUDY

This course, conducted by Otto E. Dick, instructor and student counselor at Oregon Bible College, is especially designed for pastor, parent, or teacher. From the normal processes of child development, it considers the religious opportunities of the various ages that may be used as stepping stones in building a child of faith. Such understanding is a must for all those who would deal wisely with their own children or the children of others. It is offered at less than cost as a public service and carries College credit if desired.

REPORT TO TEXAS

By M. W. Lyon, National Evangelist

For five months now, I have been working among the Texas brethren, visiting the churches and isolated members and making a survey of the work in the State.

That you may know what has been accomplished thus far, I am making this report to the Texas brethren of what has been done and of the condition in which the work has been found. This special issue of The Restitution Herald is being sent to all the members of the Church of God and interested persons that I have contacted in my travels, whether subscribers or not, in order that you may keep in touch with the situation.

The following places, where we have members or interested people living, have been visited since early September, and in the order named: Ater, Goldthwaite, Lameta, San Saba, Mullin, Comanche, Fort Worth, Arlington, Breckenridge, Abilene, Sweetwater, Tokio, Brownfield, Whiteface, Slaton, Wilson, Springlake, Olton, Canyon, Amarillo, Lubbock, Kermit, Westbrook, Colorado City, Lorraine, Knott, Big Spring, Stanton, Odessa, Tarzan, Rotan, Hobbs, McCulley, Aspermont, Anson, Rule, Rochester, O'Brien, Cisco, Rising Star, Brownwood, Houston, Goose Creek, Beaumont, Baytown, Edna, Corpus Christi, Brownstown, Riviera, Kingsville, Raymondville, Lyford, Harlingen, San Benito, Brownsville, Combes, Odem, Boeville, Floresville, San Antonio, Gonzales, Yoakum, Luling, and Austin.

From this list of places, if you locate them on the map, you can see that our folks are pretty well scattered over the State. Some of these places have been visited more than once. There are a number of others not yet contacted. In addition to Texas, contact has been made with members just over the line in New Mexico, at Portales and at Carlsbad. It will probably be sometime in April before my survey of Texas is finished.

What Have We Found?

Here is a general summary of what I have found so far:

The strong churches which once flourished in the State have fallen into decay; all have declined in membership and activity, and some have died out entirely. There is no place in the State, except perhaps Corpus Christi, that has regular preaching. Most of the members have not heard one of our preachers for years. In a discouragingly large number of cases, our members, once strong in their faith, being cut off for so long from their own church, and attending some near-by church, have grown cold and lost their interest in the Church of God. Large numbers have united with other churches and have been lost to us permanently. There is little or no unity. I have found many times, to my surprise, that isolated members living very close to each other did not even know of each other's existence! Many never heard of the General Conference, do not know we have such a national weekly publication as The Restitution Herald, and are ignorant of the work of our church in many other states.

Texas itself has been all but isolated from the Church of God throughout the country.

On the other hand, there are many encouraging aspects of the picture. I have rejoiced many times to find isolated members and groups whose faith is still bright and whose interest is high. There may not be seven thousand in Texas who have not bowed the knee to Baal, but at least there are some hundreds who are still loyal. Up to February 1, I had located over three hundred interested members of the church and 229 interested families, in most of which there are one or more members. This is a hopeful fact for those of you who may have felt that the work was dead, and that you were the only ones left. There are more of us than we thought. Also, while established congregations have gone down, new centers of membership have been built up. There are ten places in Texas at which there are enough members living to form a nucleus for building up a church. These places, with the number of members at each, are: Ater, 48; Mullin, somewhat the same number; Sweetwater, 22; Corpus Christi, 18; Abilene, 16; Big Spring, 13; Rotan, 11; Houston, 10; the Dallas-Fort Worth area and El Paso, the last two not yet checked. At least half of these, I believe, are places where we have never had a church before. So the dark picture has its bright spots.

Why Has the Work Gone Down?

The answer is not hard to discover. There has been no state conference for some fifteen years, no opportunity for the people to get together. So it is not strange that they are strangers to each other. There has been very little preaching in the State; meetings have been held at very infrequent intervals, if at all. The noble work of Bro. Bradley and the other preachers of years ago, who converted and baptized multitudes of people, has not been followed up with pastoral feeding, and many of the new converts figuratively died of starvation. There has been but little contact with our work in other parts of the country. There has been no organization whatever. The remarkable thing is not that we have so little interest, but that we have any left at all!

What Has Been Done?

During the last five months some worthwhile beginnings have been made toward a revival of the work. Series of meetings have been held at Ater, San Saba, Mullin, and Aspermont, and preaching services held at Abilene, Sweetwater, Big Spring, Tokio, Brownfield, Beaumont, Corpus Christi, and Riviera. Sunday school work has been strengthened at Ater and Mullin. An accurate list of the names and addresses of Texas members is being compiled. Over eighty families have put themselves into contact with the church at large by becoming subscribers to The Restitution Herald. More than $300 has been contributed to start a Texas Conference fund.

Do you want to have a share in this work?

Do you want to see the work of the church revived? The time has come to do something about it! You can if you will. Plans are under way for giving the work in Texas a blood transfusion, but whether or not it will do much good will depend on whether the patient is willing to help himself. If our people truly to the support of the forward movement, great things can be in store for Texas. Watch this paper for further developments. Send me your suggestions for advancing the church, addressing me at Oregon, Illinois. Be thinking of ways YOU can help.

SCHEDULE OF SERVICES TO COME

On the dates given I shall be speaking at the following places, and urge that as large an attendance as possible try to be present. Come with suggestions for the good of the work, and let us lay plans for a definite program of action in which all can have a part.

March 9—Dallas, at the home of R. F. Robbins, 6323 Goliad, 10:30 a.m. and 7 p.m.

At the evening service motion pictures of our churches and conferences will be shown.

March 16—Abilene.

March 23—Sweetwater.

WOULD YOU LIKE TO HAVE A TEXAS CONFERENCE?

I have tried to find how the people all over the State feel about having a conference, and have found enough interest that I feel an effort to hold a conference would be well justified. Plans are now under way to arrange a time and place which will be most convenient to the largest number.

A state conference could keep in touch with the scattered members as no single church can do. It could support a full-time preacher or two, which no individual congregation can do. It could provide regular preaching for some of the churches, at least. It would make it possible for many of you to get together at least once a year. With such a large proportion of the members isolated, an annual conference would provide the only way in which they ever can get together. A new generation has grown up who need desperately the association of those of like precious faith.

DON'T YOU LIKE THIS PAPER?

Look over this Restitution Herald carefully. Note the many helpful departments, the well-prepared articles on Bible subjects, the news pages keeping you in touch with other places. It is the official organ of our General Conference, comes weekly, and will keep you informed on the activities of our church throughout the country. It should be in every Church-of-God home. We are glad that so many have subscribed in recent months. We hope that many more will soon do so. If you are not now a subscriber, send in your subscription promptly, so you will not miss future issues carrying important news for Texas members.

CHURCH OF THE OPEN BIBLE

628 William Street, Pomona, California

The Church of the Open Bible, Pomona, California, using the chapel here shown since 1916, traces its history back to the year 1890. Dr. Henry Usher and William Reid were the first builders of this congregation. They were followed by Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Adamson, who still are active, and James Young from Dundee, Scotland. Other ministers and officials have been O. J. Allard, Mr. and Mrs. George P. Lichty (still active), John Eagleston, Mr. and Mrs. J. Edgar Adamson (still active), the late Dr. Blanchard, and Norman J. McLeod. Cecil Smead and T. M. Ferrell, when young members of the church, assisted much in its progress, and today reflect the faith of their boyhood training by continued loyalty and service in Michigan and Nebraska. Brothers S. J. Lindsay, G. E. Marsh, and other visiting ministers also have preached for the Pomona Church. Though closely associated in its early days with Christadelphians, the Pomona Church has departed largely from that influence, now being affiliated with the General Conference of the Church of God whose headquarters are at Oregon, Illinois. Brothers J. E. Adamson, Norman J. McLeod, and George P. Lichty are present co-pastors, two of whom present articles in this number of THE HERALD.

Entered as second class matter at the Post Office at Oregon, Illinois, under act of March, 1879. Mailed weekly, except the fourth Tuesday of August and the last Tuesday of December.

Preacher Peter

The Apostle Peter, one of Jesus' closest friends, was also one of Jesus' most loyal workers—notwithstanding the times he erred. Certain experiences that Peter had with Christ apparently strengthened him to a steadfastness and zeal that developed him into one of the greatest preachers of the Christian Era. When Jesus called Peter to be an apostle, the net-breaking draught of fishes so surprised Peter that he "fell down at Jesus' knees, saying, Depart from me; for I am a sinful man, O Lord" (Luke 5:8). Though Jesus assured him that he thereafter would be a fisher of men, Peter's humility must not be overlooked as one of the reasons for his success. More, he recognized that any work he might accomplish would be the result of Christ's blessing, rather than of his own barren talent.

Another rich experience early in the ministry of Peter that knit him so closely to the Lord occurred one night on the deep and stormy Galilee. The disciples' boat "in the midst of the sea" was "tossed with waves" (Matt. 14:24). Suddenly, as if to add to the disciples' calamity, something appeared walking on the water toward them. They thought a ghost was approaching. "Straightway Jesus spake unto them"—for it was He—saying, "Be of good cheer: it is I; be not afraid" (v. 27). Peter answered, "Lord, if it be thou, bid me come unto thee on the water." Jesus answered in one word—"Come." Comment often is made about Peter's sinking in the water and being lifted by the Lord, but it is grand, too, to know that Peter actually did walk a few steps, at least, on the water. The Scripture says: "He walked on the water, to go to Jesus" (v. 29).

Never could that experience have been erased from Peter's memory. What fear could he have in the ministry, after so astonishing an evidence of Christ's love and power? Did ever any other than Jesus and Peter walk upon the water? Thus, the experience linked Peter with the Lord in a way that only he and the Lord could fully appreciate. Others saw; but they did not participate.

When Jesus questioned the Twelve, as to their success in preaching that He was the Messiah, their report was anything but encouraging. They had made not one convert! Then Jesus, testing their own loyalty, asked, "Whom say ye that I am?" While the other eleven disciples were meditating, Peter hesitated not at all in exclaiming, "Thou art the Christ, the son of the living God" (Matt. 16:16).

Peter was one of three disciples to witness the Transfiguration; one of three disciples permitted in Jairus' home when Jesus raised Jairus' daughter; one of the three disciples who went farthest with Jesus in the Garden of Prayer. Peter alone went fishing, at the Master's request, to catch the one and only fish of all history that swam about with a coin in its mouth, yet bit a hook without dropping the coin! After the ascension of Christ, Peter was leader of the disciples in choosing Matthias to serve in Judas' stead, as the Word of God instructed in Psalm 69:25. Peter explained the phenomenon of Pentecost, quoting again from the Word to prove his point. Peter explained to the inquiring Jews that they must repent and be baptized. With John, Peter healed the lame man and explained "to all the people of Israel" that the miracle had been accomplished "by the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, whom [they] crucified, whom God raised from the dead" (Acts 4:10). With John, too, Peter explained to their critics in Jerusalem, "We cannot but speak the things which we have seen and heard"—thus giving no moment of consideration to threats against their preaching. A little later, it was Peter who led the other apostles in saying, "We ought to obey God rather than men" (Acts 5:29). This was the preacher God used to lay much of the foundation of the true church.

One of Peter's main sermon themes was that of the second coming of Christ. The whole third chapter of 2 Peter is devoted to that subject. He spoke of having been an eyewitness of Jesus' majesty—of Jesus' kingship—having seen in the Mount a preview of Christ glorified. "When the Chief Shepherd shall appear," Peter assured his fellow ministers, "ye shall receive a crown of glory that fade-eth not away" (1 Peter 5:4). Consider, too, his plea to prepare for Christ's coming, saying: "Repent ye therefore, and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out, when the times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord," when God "shall send Jesus Christ" (Acts 3:19-21).

Watchmen on the Walls

America at the Crossroads

By J. E. Adamson, Pomona, California

"I have set watchmen upon thy walls, O Jerusalem, which shall never hold their peace day nor night. Ye that make mention of the Lord, keep not silence, and give him no rest, till he establish, and till he make Jerusalem a praise in the earth" (Isaiah 62:6, 7).

THE FOREGOING text (Isa. 62:6, 7) has one outstanding end in view: to make Jerusalem a praise in the earth. At the same time, it holds within itself a point of interest to the student and to those who have at heart the betterment of living condition for the people of the earth.

"I have set watchmen upon thy walls, O Jerusalem." In Daniel 4:17, we read, "This matter is by the decree of the watchers, and the demand by the word of the holy ones: to the intent that the living may know that the most High ruleth in the kingdom of men, and giveth it to whomsoever he will." Are these "watchers" the same as those set on the walls of Jerusalem? If they are the same, who are they?

The theme of Isaiah 62 is a continuation of the theme in the preceding chapter, which Jesus chose to introduce Himself to the Jews. He quoted: "The Spirit of the Lord God is upon me; because the Lord hath anointed me to preach good tidings unto the meek, he hath sent me to bind up the broken hearted, to proclaim liberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison to them that are bound." "The nation conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal" was new only in practice with the beginnings of our nation. It has been in the plan all through the ages: from the days when Moses proclaimed liberty throughout the land to the days of the prophets and to the time that Christ said, "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."

The great enemy of man has been the upstart leaders who have sought by oppression to enslave his fellow men for his own personal glory and profit. Psalm 72:4 prophesies of One who "shall judge the poor of the people, he shall save the children of the needy, and shall break in pieces the oppressor."

America is at the threshold of world domination, brought about by right thinking. May we not lose our sense of proportion.

"How beautiful for patriot dream
That sees beyond the years!
Thine alabaster cities gleam
Undimmed by human tears!"

America is great not only in itself; it is an inspiration for the world hope.

Never has it been known that the things most worth while come to us easily. God has never given liberty to men without asking them to wage a struggle. All the liberties we hold most dear come to us by the tears and sweat and blood of some patriots. (Heb. 9:18-24.) Even eternal life is not attained without a struggle, though not always unto blood. (Heb. 12:1-4.) Paul said, "Fight the good fight of faith, lay hold on eternal life" (1 Tim. 6:12). Even this comes by the blood of an everlasting covenant.

Where do we look for the right to our property? to worship as we desire in peace? to choose for ourselves those who will make our laws? Lord of our far-flung battle-line;
Beneath whose awful hand we hold
Dominion over palm and pine.
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,

Many times since man began to make history, great changes have come in successive waves like the in-rushing waves pouring in on the sands of the seashore, every ninth wave larger than the eight that had gone before.

For ages upon ages this has gone on. For generations upon generations of men, have come the periodic waves of social upheavals followed at regular intervals by larger waves, that seem to shake the very foundations of our institutions. But as each wave passed, there have emerged improved living conditions, improved opportunities for the development of the human (Please turn to page 11)

Did History Dawn?

By Norman J. McLeod, Pomona, California

IF ONE LOOKS over the books in practically any library, he will find in the history shelves a small volume, "The Dawn of History," by Myres. At first glance, that would seem like an innocuous sort of a volume that would not arouse any enthusiasm, let alone discussion, but it is loaded with dynamite for sociological-historical controversy. Immediately is raised the question: Was man created all intelligent and has he degenerated to his present "low" estate, or did he arise through the scale of civilization from the lowly savage to the "high" estate in which he is now found? If the former idea is true, then to speak of the "dawn of history" is rather ridiculous; but if the latter, it is a relevant subject. It also brings with it the question: Where did Cain get his wife? and many other questions too numerous to mention. Let us examine a few facts that are found in the historical and scientific side of the question to see if they harmonize with the Scriptures. It may seem irrelevant at first that such a subject should be discussed. When one realizes, however, that the concept of the "dawn of history" is taught in every public school throughout the land, there is necessity for discussion from an unbiased point of view—if that is at all possible.

Archbishop Ussher's chronology, used in most King James Versions of the Bible, gives the creation of Adam as 4004 B.C. Just how did he arrive at that date? Why is it not 4000 B.C.? In the year 500 A.D. lived a man by the name of Eusebius who wrote concerning the chronologies of history, particularly of religious history. Naturally, the dating of everything from the birth of Christ was not an ancient custom. The Hebrews did not date their calendar from that date. They have a system of reckoning that is supposed to be from Creation, reckoned not by our solar year, but by their own lunar year. The Romans dated everything from the founding of the city. Julius Africanus and Eusebius are generally given the credit for starting the system of dating everything from the birth of Christ. But what a peculiar system! Eusebius said that as he lived 500 A.D., then Adam was created in the year 5000 B.C. because: 1) Christ's second coming could be only five hundred more years away; 2) the date of Christ's second coming would then be 1000 A.D.; 3) the one-thousand-year reign of Christ was the seventh thousand-year period of man's day; 4) 2000 A.D. would then be the end of Christ's reign; 5) seven thousand-years prior to that date would make the creation of Adam 5000 B.C. Archbishop Ussher found these writings and liked Eusebius' theory of seven thousand years, but decided that Eusebius was one thousand years in error, because Ussher lived about 1600 A.D. He therefore struck off one thousand years from the date of Creation and set the date of the creation of Adam at 4000 B.C. When the calendar was changed from the Julian to the Gregorian, the four-year difference entered. Thus the date, according to Archbishop Ussher, is 4004 B.C. So far, so good!

Norman J. McLeod

I open, however, my volume of ancient history, which is a standard volume in most schools, Breasted's "Ancient Times." On page 45, it says: "He [the Egyptian] decided to use the moon no longer for dividing his year. He would have twelve months, and he would make his months all of the same length, that is, thirty days each. . . . This gave him a year of three hundred sixty days . . . This convenient Egyptian calendar was devised in 4241 B.C., and its introduction is the earliest dated event in history." In his larger-volume work on Egyptian history, Breasted says that the setting of that date (4241 B.C.) is more accurate than many of the dates of more recent history, even of modern times, because it is set astronomically. When your child goes to public school, he is going to be told that the introduction of the solar calendar into Egypt preceded the date at which Adam was supposed to have been created! Which is he going to believe? The way things have been going, it looks as if he will discard the view of the religious teachers and think that the Bible and everything with it is in error.

• Not long ago, one of my former high school students, unusually strong in history, returned to visit me after he had been graduated from university where I helped to send him. He was puzzled that I could be a minister and a university graduate at the same time! How could I still hold any faith in the Bible, having gone through university and majoring in history! In other words, how could I reconcile teachings of the scientific historian with teachings of the Bible?

First, Archbishop Ussher's chronology is not correct. The more recent dates in it are correct, but the farther back one goes, the more in error they are. So it is not difficult for me to reconcile the introduction of the solar calendar into Egypt with facts of the Bible. As to the dawn of history, the answer is not so simple. Already in the year 4241 B.C., Egypt had a high civilization. Was Adam an Egyptian? Probably not. Let us look at another situation.

Pastor Russell accepted theories of Eusebius and Ussher and added to them. He said each of the days of creation was one thousand years, except the sixth day. The sixth day would be seven thousand years long. The seventh day of creation will be the one-thousand-year reign of Christ. Just why the sixth day should be longer than the others, there is no explanation. There is nothing in the Scriptures, or in any other place, that would give a foundation for that teaching!

Then, according to this latter theory, there was no such thing as death in the world until after the fall of man. For well over five thousand years, according to this theory, there would have been no such thing as death. That would mean every seed would grow into a full-sized plant: nay, every pollen grain, because they all live on. One of our prominent ministers was once heard to say in a sermon in Los Angeles that he believed the deadwood in trees was a result of Adam's sin! Not long ago, I was observing an acacia tree with its millions and millions of grains of pollen. The thought occurred to me that if there were no such thing as death, then that species alone would be piled deep on the earth to such an extent that nothing else would find room. Even bacteria, which for the most part are not visible to the unaided eye, accumulate in such masses that they can not only be readily seen with the unaided eye, but will bulk large. Many varieties of bacteria will multiply twice within an hour! If there had been no such thing as death, even among the bacteria, there would be room for nothing else on the earth. Did the sword fish develop a sword on his nose for killing other fish because of the sin of Adam? Did the bee develop a stinger for killing other bees because Adam sinned? Or did they have those deadly weapons before man ever appeared on the scene? If there was death in the world before Adam, what then of the story as told in Genesis? Must we discard it, or choose between the Bible and science? Not at all.

Few people, even among good religionists, now look upon the days of Moses' creation account as literal twenty-four-hour days. Most (Please turn to page 10)

Blessed Are the Poor in Spirit

By Harry Payne, Oregon Bible College

AFTER JESUS had been baptized and tempted. He began to preach and teach the good news of the Kingdom of God. Not only did He preach and teach, but He also performed many miracles of healing the sick and raising the dead to life again. His fame went throughout all Syria. (Matt. 4:24, 25.) Great multitudes followed Him, both to be healed and to hear what He had to say. Seeing the multitudes, Jesus went up into a high mountain; and after gathering His disciples near Him, He began His famous sermon.

In the first portion of His sermon, Christ stated eight blessings (beatitudes), each one containing the thought of inward blessings which come to men who strive to follow God's guidance. In Matthew 23:13-29, by way of contrast, Christ pronounced eight woes upon the religious leaders of the land, the sects known as the scribes and Pharisees. Through their self-righteousness and hypocritical leadership, these men were closing the way of salvation for the Jewish people.

In the first beatitude, we read: "Blessed are the poor in spirit, for their's is the kingdom of heaven" (Matt. 5:3). The full meaning of the beatitudes would be more clearly seen if the word translated "blessed" were rendered "happy." The happiness is shown here by our Lord to consist not in what we have but in what we are—happiness which springs from within.

Persons poor in spirit are those who are willing to submit themselves to the will of God in obedience and trust. They have spiritual poverty and realize their need of that spiritual help and guidance which can come only from God. By this means, they are enriched in the fullness of Christ and become inheritors of the Kingdom of Heaven.

The scribes and Pharisees are examples of men who are self-satisfied, self-righteous, and self-centered to the extent that they do not realize their need of God. Hence Christ said that these will not enter into the Kingdom. Christ also told them in Luke 11:52: "Ye have taken away the key of knowledge: ye entered not in yourselves, and them that were entering in ye hindered."

Of which group are we? Do we realize our need of God's guidance and help? Or are we self-satisfied and content to trust in our own strength?

Let us always endeavor to let Christ be our strength and refuge, a shelter in the time of storm. Furthermore, let us remember the words of Christ: "Blessed are the poor in spirit, for their's is the kingdom of heaven."

Prophecy—History Foretold

By Grover Gordon, Cleveland, Ohio

HISTORY is prophecy fulfilled. The purpose of prophecy, as described by Peter, is to inform men concerning "the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ" (2 Peter 1:15-21), and to give them other witness than the testimony of the apostles. "We have a more sure word of prophecy." Therefore, we believe there is a reason behind all present movements of peoples and nations. We "do well" to "take heed." Peter also warned that there would be false teachers (1 Peter 2:1), even as Jeremiah had described the false prophets of his day. (Jer. 23:9-40.) Amos also told what the people said when they heard of the calamity which was prophesied of the scattering of Israel: "This evil shall not overtake nor prevent us" (9:10). That seems to be the attitude of people today. "It will not happen to us or in our day"—but why not? Prophecy will be fulfilled when the time comes, regardless of what people say or think.

Jeremiah gave a way by which one might determine if the Lord had truly sent the prophet. (It applies to teachers, also.) "When the word of the prophet shall come to pass, then shall the prophet be known, that the Lord hath truly sent him" (28:9). "The prophet that hath a dream, let him tell a dream; and he that hath my word, let him speak my word faithfully" (23:28).

As prophecy is fulfilled, one gains confidence in the Bible and receives it not as the word of men, but "as it is in truth, the word of God" (1 Thess. 2:13). Let us remember that there are many truths written in the Book for our admonition and learning other than prophecy, and they also need to be heeded that we might be worthy of the Kingdom of God. (2 Thess. 1:3-7; Gal. 5; Eph. 4:14-32; 2 Peter 1:5-11.)

Giving signs of His coming, Jesus said, "When these things begin to come to pass, then look up, and lift up your heads; for your redemption draweth nigh" (Luke 21:28). He also warned against letting that Day come unawares on you. (Vv. 34, 35.) The admonition was twofold: 1) to watch; 2) to be accounted worthy. Can we "look up," or "lift up our heads," if we fail in faith? "Take heed to yourselves."

The prophecy of Ezekiel 38 and 39, telling "when God will be made known to the nations and Israel" (38:23-39:7), seems to be almost in the process of fulfillment. The nations are moving in the direction foretold in that prophecy and elsewhere in the Word. Therefore, we believe that we are living in "the latter years" (Ezek. 38:8). In the Word spoken through Ezekiel about 2553 years ago, he said, "After many days . . . in the latter years" (v. 8) there would be a confederation of nations come against the mountains of Israel, the Israelites having been gathered out of the nations. When we see these things coming to pass at the time and in the way Ezekiel foretold, we can rest assured that God truly sent him.

We must remember that some of the nations mentioned in Ezekiel 38 and 39 have kept their names to the present, while others have changed. We must determine these latter ones, therefore, by the territory they now occupy, comparing it with that occupied by the ancient inhabitants. The "guard" (or "leader" according to Leeser; Ezek. 38:7) is said to be "Gog" (Magog, Smith's Bible Dict.) of the "land of Magog" (v. 2). The descendants of Magog occupied the territory that is now known as Russia; so we need not be surprised at the movements of that power, nor the fact that she has a number of satellite nations. The Prophet said, "And many people with thee" (v. 6). They are named: Persia (now Iran and somewhat smaller); Ethiopia (larger and probably at its height in the sixth century); Libya, an Italian province at the time of the Second World War (now?); "Gomer" and "all his bands" (embracing almost all Europe and colonized by the descendants of Gomer); the "house of Togarmah" (Armenia of the Bible) of which we will deal later. Neither should we be surprised at the present claim of the Russians as being "protectors" of their neighbors or satellites.

The history of Russia probably began with the coming of the Norseman, who set up an orderly government among the warring Slavic tribes (862), opening the country to trade and to influence of the Mediterranean civilization. Vladimir the Great was converted to Greek Christianity, and in 988 A.D., he and his followers were baptized. The next two centuries were marked by conflict among petty states, which made them an easy prey to the Mongols, who, in the thirteenth century took complete mastery of Russia (1238 A.D.). This Tartar conquest cut Russia off from contact with the western nations of Europe for three hundred years—including the period of Renaissance. The Renaissance (rebirth) was during the fourteenth to sixteenth centuries, or the period of transition from medieval to modern times. In other words, it was the period of enlightenment and emancipation after the darkness of the Middle Ages. Neither did Russia share in the Reformation.

The fourteenth century saw the rise of the Muscovy with its capital at Moscow. It gained supremacy in the fifteenth century under Ivan the Great (1462-1505), who united the rival principalities and threw off the Tartar yoke. His son, Ivan the Terrible, conquered western Siberia, and trade with England opened up. He took the title of Czar. After his grandson, Feodor, there was a long period of strife, resulting in the choice of Czar Michael Romanov, first of the dynasty which ruled until the Revolution (1917).

Modern Russian history began with the accession of Peter the Great in 1689. He enlarged his territory and built a new capital at Saint Petersburg—on land taken from the Swedes. After his death, his schemes fell in abeyance, until Catherine II came to the throne in 1762. In her reign of more than thirty years, she directed the division of Poland and secured the Crimea from Turkey. Alexander I freed the serfs in the Baltic provinces, and by a treaty with Napoleon was able to take Finland from Sweden (1809) and to wrest much territory from Turkey.

The reign of Nicholas I (1825-'55) was marked by liberal movements in Russia, and by a succession of wars with Turkey. The reign of Nicholas II was marked by intervention in the Chinese-Japanese War (1894-'95) which gave her Port Arthur and absorption of Manchuria, which she lost to the Japanese in the Russo-Japanese War (1904).

Russia also lost a portion of her territory because of the Revolution of 1917 and her (Please turn to page 10)

Temples of God

---

By Mary Brown, Oregon Bible College

---

"What agreement hath the temple of God with idols? for ye are the temple of the living God, as God hath said, I will dwell in them, and walk in them; and I will be their God, and they shall be my people" (2 Corinthians 6:16).

THE TABERNACLE built by Moses was God's first dwelling place on earth—a place where He could be with His people. God told Moses to build a tabernacle; and God gave him instructions for constructing it. The directions were explicit; there was no room for doubt in the building of the tabernacle.

Through the years, God's people continued to worship in the tabernacle. The Israelites carried His tabernacle with them at all times. When they would settle in new lands, or after a battle had been won, their first step was to reconstruct the tabernacle, so they could worship God.

After the Temple was built, the Israelites worshiped in it. At times, the Temple had to be cleaned. During Hezekiah's reign, idolatry had been rampant for fourteen years. Refuse from sacrificial altars had to be removed; rubbish which had been thrown into the temple court had to be destroyed. This task took eight days. (2 Chron. 29:17.) Less than a hundred years later, Josiah cleansed the Temple of idols. Nehemiah purified the Temple about two hundred years after Josiah's cleansing. (Neh. 13:30.) Christ, too, had to cleanse the Temple. "Jesus went into the temple of God, and cast out all them that sold and bought in the temple, and overthrew the tables of the moneychangers, and the seats of them that sold doves, and said unto them, It is written, My house shall be called the house of prayer; but ye have made it a den of thieves" (Matt. 21:12, 13).

We are God's temples, and the Spirit of God dwells in us. "Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you?" (1 Cor. 3:16.) God gives us explicit instructions for the building of His temple. "I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service. And be ye not conformed to this world; but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect, will of God" (Rom. 12:1, 2). We are to present our body as a living sacrifice unto God; we are to be transformed by the renewing of our minds. Paul's instruction to Timothy was, "Keep thyself pure" (1 Tim. 5:22). Is not this a commandment for us today?

When the Israelites neglected their temples and allowed them to become cluttered with idols, God could not live there. He could not be with His people because the idols were crowding Him out. Sometimes I wonder if we, too, have idols in our temples which crowd God out? Christ said, "My house shall be called the house of prayer" (Matt. 21:13), or the dwelling place of God—the place where the people could go to God in prayer. Our temples should be houses of prayer also. We should let God reign entirely; we should let Him dwell continually in our temples. When He completely reigns in our temples, we are filled with love, compassion, and brotherly kindness; for "if we love one another, God dwelleth in us, and his love is perfected in us" (1 John 4:12).

News and Prophecy Digest

By C. E. Randall (Fonthill, Ontario)

COMMUNIST EDICT. The anti-religious conduct of the Communist element in China is reported from many sources. The "Peiping Chronicle," for January 24, is reported in religious news to have carried a copy of an order issued by the Yenan Communist headquarters in which a call was sent out for the "elimination of all Christians from at least two provinces." The reason for the purge was that Christians were "enemies of the Communist Party." From other sources we glean this news: Mission buildings of the American Board of Missions at Teh-Chow in Shantung Province were burned to the ground. At Taim, south of Peiping, mission buildings of the Roman Catholics and Church of England were heavily damaged or completely destroyed. The struggle between the church of Rome and the Communists today may be changed tomorrow, and the two be found "pulling" together. Rome makes friends with any political power that will further her plans. The ruthlessness of the government has little bearing on the ties of friendship with this apostate church. Did not the Pope bestow his blessing on Mussolini and his Fascists when they marched into Ethiopia? Has not the Franco regime been in the good graces of Rome and given her a militant control over the religious life of the Spanish people? The pro-Nazi government of Argentina and Rome have been fast friends.

Papal Rome flirted with the bloodthirsty government of Japan long after Pearl Harbor. Her past and present behavior gives support to the possibility that she may yet establish friendship with Communism and become the false prophet of the Revelation. One thing seems certain: an organization with such world power for both good and evil will figure in the last-day scenes of apostate religion.

"No one can be truly educated who lacks a knowledge of the Bible."

PURPOSE OF GOD. The eternal purpose of God stands sure. What God has decreed will come to pass in the way and time which He planned. Man cannot in any way frustrate this eternal purpose. Every one in a while some person or segment of society or nation will rise up to question the reality of God's purpose or attempt to do things different than ordered by the counsel of Jehovah. How little it takes sometimes to overthrow the plans of men when such interfere with the purpose of God! In the case of a deliverer for the Israelites when they were in Egyptian bondage, the decree of Pharaoh for the slaying of the male children seemed to stand in the way of God's raising up a deliverer from among the people; yet all it took to overthrow the hindering decree was a tear from a baby's cheek. Pharaoh was led into a circumstance whereby he paid for the rearing and education of the one who was to deliver Israel.

Men's plans fail—God's plans are carried out in every jot and tittle. In England, the labor government was making big plans for the restoration of the economic stability of the country; and then almost overnight, the whole country became paralyzed through a heavy snow storm that brought about a crisis seldom paralleled in the history of the country. Man proposes—God disposes. It does not take much to defeat the purposes of men, but the eternal purpose of God is sure. May we all find our place in this plan and fulfill our part in it, lest we be found fighting against God.

REVERSE TREND. It is reported by Brig.

A. G. Kennington, British Military Government expert for displaced persons, that 5,000 German Jews in Palestine have filed petitions for entry into Germany. He said, "Conditions apparently are not so rosy in Palestine as many had anticipated." He gave bad housing conditions as the cause of the dissatisfaction.

AN EPITOME. The trend of the times among religious leaders is well illustrated in the report of John Hayes Holmes, pastor of Community Church in New York City. Dr. Holmes has been pastoring this same church for forty-three years, and is the oldest minister in point of continuous service in the same church in New York City. Of his membership, he said: "In 1929, we took an informal census of our members, and found 34 different nationalities among us. Our religious groups include, or have included, Protestants of many varieties, Roman Catholics, Jews, Mohammedans, Bahaiists, Theosophists, and Mormons."

There is no question but what Dr. Holmes is possessed of a magnetic personality, and his ability to hold together such a cosmopolitan group is an achievement of no mean importance; while on the other hand, can a man regularly give a message of conviction and one filled with gospel truth of salvation only in Christ that will make "Protestants of many varieties, Roman Catholics, Jews, Mohammedans, Bahaiists, and Theosophists" feel at home? How can a person be a Mohammedan and still be a member of Christ's church? The only way such a hodge-podge of believers can be brought together in a common church fellowship is to eliminate the great doctrinal teachings of Scripture, and this is the trend of the times everywhere. Unity has become more paramount than truth; church fellowship of greater concern than communion in the faith once delivered to the saints. The way of salvation is being made so wide—the broad and narrow ways have become joined by the liberal minded.

ABSTRACT CHRISTIANITY. Under the guidance of the Federal Council of Churches, a meeting of ministers, lay church leaders, labor representatives, and industrialists is being held in Pittsburgh with a view of working out a role for the church to pursue in bringing to our economic system a new vitality in ethical principles. In opening the conference, Charles B. Taft, who is acting as chairman, stated: "Abstract Christianity is giving way under the press of modern industrial society to a quickened understanding of the economics of Jesus."

What kind of a New Testament message would we have if Jesus and the apostles had invited the tax collectors, members of the Sanhedrin, Scribes, Pharisees, and representatives of Rome to discuss with them the type of message that would be most appropriate and fitting for the times? When the church looks to the world for counsel as to what it should preach and teach, it has reached a low ebb in its loyalty to the Word of God and its Founder—Jesus Christ. The natural or carnal man is alien to the things of the Spirit and, as Paul has stated, cannot discern them. When the leaders of the spiritual household so completely lose sight of their message that they are moved to seek those who are guided by the course of this world for instructions in what they do, the days of apostasy are upon us in full swing.

SECRET DOCTRINE. "The Canadian Theosophist," of January 15 issue, carried this announcement in bold type: "One of the privileges of living in the twentieth century is the opportunity of allying oneself with the Theosophical Movement originated by the Elder Brothers of the Race, and of making a conscious link, however slender, with them. Join any Theosophical society which maintains the traditions of the Masters of Wisdom, and study their secret doctrines."

"Traditions" and "secret doctrines," these are the offerings of Theosophy. In all the religions of the world—save Christianity—tradition plays a big part in the things believed and the rites practiced. Even with the Jews in Christ's day, traditions of the elders had made void much of the Word of God. Denominationalism is a nourisher of traditions.

"Secret doctrines"! How unlike the teachings of Christ! The Great Commission was to "tell" it everywhere. There is nothing secret about salvation. It is nothing to be told behind locked doors or shrouded in a mystical rite. Do not be ashamed of it. Bring it out into the open. It is good news for the weary of mankind.

PROPHECY. Many people look upon prophecy as something apart from the practical teachings of Scripture. This is far from the truth. Prophecy is one of the greatest means of creating faith. Jesus said: "I tell you before it come, that, when it is come to pass, ye may believe that I am he." The primary purpose of prophecy is to create faith. Then, too, it is a light for the believer. "Surely the Lord will do nothing, but he revealeth his secret unto his servants the prophets." This revelation of God's work is a "light that shineth in darkness."

Studies in Prophecy

Article III

By J. M. Morgan, Bristow, Oklahoma

Will the Name of the Lord be called upon every one of the Gentile nations after Christ returns?

WE SHALL refer again to Acts 15:15-17 and to Amos 9:11, after we have shown the complete end of nations and individuals who fail to make ready for endless life. Revelation 20:1-3 teaches that the "dragon, that old serpent, which is the Devil, and Satan" will be "bound . . . a thousand years . . . that he should deceive the nations no more, till the thousand years should be fulfilled: and after that he must be loosed a little season [time]." Verse 7 says, "When the thousand years are expired, Satan shall be loosed out of his prison." If, as some teach, there was no Serpent or Satan except an evil mind in Eve so that she just talked to herself, then Christ just talked to Himself when tempted by the Devil. If so, then the evil mind will just be sealed up for a thousand years, so the nations cannot talk to themselves. The Bible says, however, "Satan shall be loosed out of his prison, and shall go out to deceive the nations which are in the four quarters of the earth, Gog and Magog, to gather them to battle: the number of whom is as the sand of the sea. And they went up on the breadth of the earth, and compassed the camp of the saints about, and the beloved city: and fire came down from God out of heaven, and devoured them" (20:7-10). Now, what about people's evil minds? Will these evil minds continue to be tormented for the ages of the ages? The Bible says in verse 10: "The devil that deceived them was cast into the lake of fire and brimstone, where the beast and the false prophet are, and shall be tormented day and night for ever and ever." Let us consider some other scriptures that bear on this question—scriptures that will be fulfilled at the close or end of the thousand-years' reign.

Paul taught in I Corinthians 15:25-28 that Christ "must reign, till he hath put all enemies under his feet. The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death." At expiration of the thousand years of the reign of Christ, He will have raised the rest, or balance, of the dead. He will have "delivered up the kingdom to God, the Father." The time to view the great white throne will have come, and final judgment will be put into operation before God the Father.

I see in this final judgment, all the wicked nations

"It is written, After this I will return, and build again the tabernacle of David, which is fallen; and I will build again the ruins thereof, and I will set it up: that the residue of men might seek after the Lord, and all the Gentiles, upon whom my name is called, saith the Lord, who doeth all these things" (Acts 15:15-17).

brought forth to their destruction—when also Psalm 9:17 will be fulfilled. It reads: "The wicked shall be turned into hell [sheol]"—by dying the second death—with "all the nations that forget God." In that final judgment, the record as found in the books will be examined, and every man will be judged according to his works.

(Rev. 20:12-15.) These verses of Scripture give a record of all the dead, except the dead in Christ which will have been raised at the coming of Christ. Here is positive proof that all who die the first death will be raised. Verse 13 reads: "The sea gave up the dead which were in it; and death and hell [hades—grave or the unseen] delivered up the dead which were in them."

Jesus said in John 5:28, "All that are in the graves shall hear his voice [Christ's voice], and shall come forth; they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation [judgment]." The final test will be made at this, the only final judgment. The Book of Life then will be opened—and why? Because it will be the hour of God's judgment.

Now we are preaching the judgment to come. (Rev. 14:6, 7.) The commandment will be made by the angel of God, "having the everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation, and kindred, and tongue, and people, saying with a loud voice, Fear God, and give glory to him; for the hour of his judgment is come." At the close of this final judgment, all whose names are not found written in the Book of Life will "have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone: which is the second death" (21:8).

Some of the Universalists teach the wicked will be made white as snow by this fire and be saved. The Bible does not teach it! The state of the wicked, after they die the second death for their sins, is shown in Psalm 37:20, saying: "The wicked shall perish [die], and . . . shall be as the fat of lambs: they shall consume; into smoke shall they consume away." As to the "smoke," Malachi 4:1-3 says: "Behold, the day cometh, that shall burn as an oven; and all the proud, yea, and all that do wickedly, shall be stubble [or cut off]: and the day that cometh shall burn them up, saith the Lord of hosts, that it shall leave them neither root nor branch . . . and ye shall tread down the wicked; for they shall be ashes under the soles of your feet in the day that I do this, saith the Lord of hosts." They will be ashes for all time.

"He that believeth not the Son shall not see life; but the wrath [anger] of God abideth on him" (John 3:36). Isaiah 26:14 says: "They are dead, they shall not live; they are deceased, they shall not rise: therefore hast thou visited and destroyed them, and made all their memory to perish." This will be their state in the second death, for no one ever tasted the second death for them.

In Article IV, I shall answer the question, "Will the name of the Lord be called even upon every one of the Gentile nations after Christ returns? If so, why?"

DID HISTORY DAWN?

educated people adopt a broader view than that. Especially is that true when one reads such passages as this: "Let no man therefore judge you in meat, or in drink, or in respect of an holy day, or of the new moon, or of the sabbath days: which are a shadow of things to come: but the body is of Christ" (Col. 2:16, 17). That sabbath day that was set aside in the law of Moses was a shadow of the great rest of God about which so much is written in the Letter to the Hebrews. When Jesus was taken to task by the Pharisees for not keeping the Sabbath, he replied: "My Father worketh hitherto, and I work" (John 5:17). We do not use the word "hitherto" much any more. What does it mean? Up till now! Jesus was saying that God was still working at that time, and, therefore, it was perfectly lawful not to keep the Sabbath Day. God has not yet rested from His labor; that is still in the future. Why then does the account in Genesis speak of those things as if they were past? Because that is the graphic way of picturing them. That is what we might call the historical tense, used to show the certainty of God's Word by speaking of those things in the past tense.

What must we conclude regarding Adam? He was a selection from the race of man to carry out the Word of God. What did he bring into the world by his sin? Sin, and death by sin. There had been death in the world all the time since the beginning of creation, but not death by sin. The plants of the coal ages died through a long period of centuries to form coal, that we might burn it in our steel age. Giant reptiles of the reptilian age died through a long period of ages to form the oil which we pump from the bowels of the earth. There was murder and sudden death among the animals long before man appeared on the scene to bring in the sins that have caused the world to be such a miserable place ever since.

Through long ages, man crept up through the various stages of savagery, until he reached the point of the intelligent being who has left records of that rise throughout the world.

When the Spaniards explored South America, they found people of Patagonia who did not know that one could plant a seed and get a plant. Yet, when those people came into contact with the civilized people from Europe, they readily learned such primitive things. The peoples of Tasmania did not know the use of fire until it was shown them by European explorers. So we can find men in various stages of civilization even today in various parts of the world, though Europeanization of the world has gone on apace.

Did history dawn? My answer would be, Yes. Does that concept conflict with the Bible? No! Again, the Bible is not a treatise on history and biology. Many people think that the Bible is history! Much less than being a treatise on scientific subjects, it is not even history. It is in a historical setting, but it is not history. It is an account of relationship of God and man, and the other things are only read into it.

PROPHECY — HISTORY FORETOLD

separate peace with Germany: some sections receiving their independence and others being allotted to other nations. In World War II, however, she regained all, and more, than she lost. At present, Russia holds the strongest position among the nations—being stronger than ever before.

Russia did not gain possession of the Dardanelle Straits, as she had been promised for her part in World War I, because of her separate peace with Germany, and that has been her greatest desire from the time of Peter the Great. She occupies about one fourth of the land area, however, and has about one fifth of the population of the world.

After the Revolution, when the Czar abdicated, Kerensky formed a temporary government. Then came Lenin and Trotsky. After the death of Lenin, Stalin came to power. In 1933, Russia signed a non-aggression treaty with Turkey and eight other countries. About 1942, a treaty of non-aggression and mutual assistance was signed by Russia and England. Britain and France have been successful thus far in keeping Russia out of the Mediterranean, as stated before. Though Russia gained a military victory, she lost.

At the close of the first World War, the Dardanelles were placed under an international commission and were not to be fortified, but in 1936, with the support of Britain, France, Holland, and Russia, Turkey began to negotiate for a revision of the Straits' Convention. In that year, at Montreux, a new settlement was made, and Turkey, with the blessing of her backers, proceeded to fortify the Straits. It must be remembered, however, that at that time relations between Turkey and the Soviet Union were very favorable, and it seemed to the advantage of Russia for a friendly nation to be in control of this waterway. As in the past, time changes things: Russian now is making demands on Turkey that are not so pleasant to the Turks, and perhaps not to other nations either. These demands include:

(1) Return of the districts of Kars and Ardanan (across the border from the Georgian and Armenian Soviet Republics) to the Soviet Union.

(2) Granting of bases in the Bosphorus and the Dardanelles to Russia.

(3) Revision of the Montreux convention. (At Potsdam, Churchill agreed to the revision, but that is not enough, Russia asks for a base on the Bosphorus, which would result in virtual control of Constantinople—rather Istanbul.)

(4) Acceptance by Turkey of a number of territorial changes in the Balkans—these changes as yet undefined.

The reaction of the Turkish government has been negative, particularly in relation to the first, second, and fourth points. The third point may be open to discussion.

Next, we shall consider Togarmah (Armenia) and Persia (Iran). The interest Russia is taking at present in the affairs of these people is very interesting in connection with Ezekiel's prophecy. In the Bible, Armenia is called by several names: Ararat, Minni, and Togarmah. It was located in the regions of the Tigris and Euphrates rivers, a continuation of the Iranian plateau, and was divided by the Romans into Greater Armenia (east of the Euphrates) and Lesser Armenia (west of the Euphrates). Christianity had been introduced into the country, and upon acceptance by the ruler, Armenia became the first Christian state. It has remained Christian, despite the frequent attempts at forcible conversion by the Moslems. It was divided between Russia (north), Persia (south) and Turkey (west). Mount Ararat (17,090 feet high—37th in the world) is located as the boundary of the three divisions or frontiers. In 1895, the Turks began a series of massacres which continued until 1915 and seemed to be aimed at complete extermination of the race, numbering 2,500,000 at present, 1,120,000 in Russia, 100,000 in Persia, and the rest in Turkey.

The Kurds are coming in for their share of interest by the Russians. They are a Moslem people widely scattered over a large area of southeast Turkey, north Iraq, and west Persia (probably can be included in the house of Togarmah), extending somewhat west of the upper Euphrates and a little south and east of Kermanshah, Persia. There are upwards of one and one half million Kurds, and they are both pastoral and agricultural. They have gained an unenviable reputation for their part, probably greatly exaggerated, in the massacre of the Christians in Syria and Armenia.

Kurdistan is an extensive plateau and mountainous region of indefinite limits (about 74,000 square miles, and having an estimated population of 2,500,000). The Treaty of Sevres (1920) provided for the creation of an autonomous Kurdish State, but the Turks prevented fulfillment of the clause, and subsequent revolts in 1925 and 1930 on the part of the Kurds have had no definite result in the achievement of autonomy. They are expert horsemen, and that sort of training fits in with the terrain of that country. Most nations are abandoning the cavalry as a part of the army, but Russia is said to be keeping her "Cossacks" and training with the Kurds. Also, it is said that she has several thousand "horsemen" located in that section. If so, that also fits in with Ezekiel's prophecy—"horses and horsemen" (38:4) coming over the hilly terrain from Russia toward the mountains of Israel, "like a cloud" (v. 9)—via aircraft. "All sorts of (Please turn to page 15) mind. Until one hundred sixty-eight years ago, a group of men dared to say that all men have the "right to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness, and brought forth a nation conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created free and equal." Civilization is like a clock: the pendulum swings back and forth like the beat of the human heart, but the motion is translated into a continuous one-direction motion and always forward. The human race is subject to the same continuous movement, but the race moves ever on in a gradual upward and forward progress toward the goal—the upward calling of God in Christ. (Phil. 3:13.) Through ages, the race of men has moved slowly but surely to a Better Day. The movement has been more rapid in the past two centuries, but principally in the realm of invention and physics—not so fast in the moral qualities. These have progressed mostly since the influence of Christ has been felt.

What a wonderful heritage we have that we can own allegiance to a flag like ours, that we can fight and work to foster a freedom such as is assured under the Constitution of the United States of America, unhampered by the will of an overlord and able to work and worship according to our own conscience! The only nation in the world that has liberty as the basis of its Constitution!

"Blessed is he whose transgression is forgiven, whose sin is covered" (Psalm 32:1).

An Angel to Lead

The Lord God told Moses to take the Israelites and go to the land He had promised to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. He said He would send an angel before them, and He would drive out the enemies from the land.

The land was described as "flowing with milk and honey." God said He would not go in the midst of them lest He destroy them because they were so "stiff-necked."

Moses talked to the people. They mourned. They took their earrings, bracelets, and noserings. That was a to God that they were sad and sorry. ses moved the tabernacle from the middle of the and pitched it afar off. Those who would seek God out of the camp to the tabernacle where God dwelt.

's Goodness to Man

The Lord came down in a cloud and stood before Moses. He said He was "merciful and gracious, longsuffering, and abundant in goodness and truth, keeping mercy for thousands, forgiving iniquity and transgression and sin" (Ex. 34:6, 7a). Yet God said that His mercy will not clear the guilty, for their sins are visited on the children to the third and fourth generations.

In another Book, we read that the sins of the fathers are visited unto the third and fourth generation "of them that hate me, and shewing mercy unto thousands of them that love me and keep my commandments" (Deut. 5:9, 10). Here, again, we see God's mercy given to those who love Him and obey Him.

Joy and Gladness

Joy and gladness are found in His love, mercy, and grace to us. Then let us serve Him. We are to use our talents for Him. They will increase. Perhaps we have no special talent. Then be dependable. Be in your place of worship with the brethren. Jesus said to Peter that when he was converted he should strengthen the brethren.

The foundation is laid. It is Jesus Christ. Upon that foundation we work for Him. What kind of work are you doing for Him? How is your example as a Christian? Are you strengthening the brethren? Every man's work shall be tried by fire. (1 Cor. 3:13.) "Ye are the temple of God," and "the Spirit of God dwelleth in you" (v. 16).

When Christ returns, He will bring joy and gladness to His own who are watching for His coming. He is bringing the rewards with Him. Everyone will be rewarded according to His work for Christ. (Rev. 22:12.)

Jesus is coming soon. There will be a final gathering of God's people in the Promised Land of Palestine. God is calling out a people to be the bride of Christ. They will help teach the people to do His will. Think a few minutes. How are you using your time? Are you in training so as to be ready to be "approved unto God" for your studying? We are saved by grace through faith, yet the reward will be given according to our works. What are you doing for Him now? We cannot be selfish and try only to save our own selves. True Christ-likeness reaches out, strengthens the brethren, glorifies God.

FROM THE BEREANS

James M. Watkins, Berean Guest Editor

FRANCES SUGGESTS THAT SOME THINGS ARE UP TO US—

Our young people's societies do not have enough interest in volunteering and participating in their activities. Members should take part in presenting the lesson, without being forced into doing it. If you will do it willingly, you probably will be glad to do it again. If the lesson is forced upon you, you probably will take less interest in its preparation, and do a poorer job of presenting it.

The lessons given in our young people's classes usually have not been well enough prepared. We do not make them interesting enough, because we wait until the last minute to prepare them, and then expect to have a good lesson. The class often does too much joking and gives too little attention, when the leader is teaching the lesson.

The leader should have the whole meeting arranged and he or she should have the songs selected to go with the theme of the lesson. The leader also can have discussions and debates to keep everyone interested, and express his or her ideas.

The young people should not sing the same songs or choruses every week. Anyone gets tired of singing the same songs and soon loses interest in it. I think the leader should make sure that they haven't sung the same song too often before.

If the young people could have a little time after their session to play a few sensible games, or have a little refreshment, it adds interest. Young people also should help in the church services. They can put on plays or programs, read Scripture, lead singing, give solos, and do ushering. The first time they try, they naturally will be a little afraid, but they will soon get used to it if they make it a habit. They would also get the feeling that they were needed in the church. They could also start up a choir, and sing on Sunday evenings. I think if the young people would do a few of these, they might become more interested.

Frances Hotchkiss,
Grand Rapids, Michigan.

AS DOES JOHN TYLER OF ELDORADO, ALSO—

I think that part of this could be answered by picking a good leader. I do not think that you should make anyone take it. The society should be more nearly one age, because young people like the idea of not having an older person to dominate their class and thoughts. If the older people take too much part, the young people will think they know very little and will soon lose their interest.

The leader should have some outline to follow. It would be good if the leader could take a part of the lesson and give it to one of the students. Or better yet is the idea of the panel lesson, where the lesson is divided into three or four different parts and some of the students take a different part.

There must be questions about the lesson, and they must be stated so the people can understand, because young people don't like the idea of listening to a dictionary talk, or at least I don't.

I don't think that all of the trouble is just in the literature, but we have a lot of trouble because the leader does not prepare his lesson well enough to make it interesting.

I think that the music should be carefully chosen so everyone is in the mood for the lesson.

Young people should be given the opportunity to take over the service of the church once in a while. I think when they feel that they have a burden to carry or rather a part of the church work to do they will work much harder than if they are just passing the time away.

The Bible should be used often in young people's work. After all, where would we be if we didn't have the Bible to guide us? If we have some question, we should look to the Bible for the answer. I think that all the young people of our organization should have a chance to get together maybe once or twice a year.

Besides the study period, there should be recreational periods. The time and place of social activities should be set aside from the church work. We need more parties.

The topics of discussion should be about problems of everyday living and dealing with the young people.

If only there was some way of getting all of the class to discuss. Maybe if the question was stated so that it seemed very easy they might discuss it more readily.

AN ADDED THOUGHT—

Sometimes we tell another
All the things that he should do;
And say that successful effort
Is a gift to favored few;
But by very little searching,
One fact is proven true;
We find our greatest satisfaction,
In the little things WE do.

CENTRAL TEXAS

After Ministerial Conference, a few days were spent in Oregon, Ill., then I returned to Riviera, Tex., where I preached, February 9, at the Methodist church. Starting northward, February 10, I visited Odem, near Corpus Christi, where Mrs. H. W. Herndon lives, who is a daughter of E. W. Wilson, then Beeville, where there is a granddaughter of Sr. Robbins and her family. At Floresville, I found but one family, Bro. and Sr. J. B. Dismukes; several other members who once lived there have moved away.

One day was spent in San Antonio, February 11-12. We have five members there: Mrs. Arthur Ward, her mother, Mrs. W. W. Johnston, her son, Edwin, Mrs. T. A. Turner, and Frank N. Davis. One-day stops were made also at the following three places. At Gonzales there are four members: Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Johnston, Mrs. W. W. Patterson, and her daughter, Mrs. Carol Smith. At Yoakum there are Sr. W. H. Rose and her son Frank. At Luling, I found three: Mrs. Laura Davis, Jeff Davis, and Mrs. Bryan Conley.

Four most interesting days were spent in Austin, February 15-19. Here we formerly had a small church, but it was disbanded several years ago. Of this group there remain seven members still interested, and two additional members living there now, with several other interested people. There seemed to be some encouragement that this field might be developed in the near future.

A stop was made at Hye, between Austin and Fredericksburg, visiting some Christadelphian brethren. We also have five of our own members there, whom I did not know of at the time. At Loyal Valley I found Bro. H. W. Byerley and three other members of his family who are of the church. This is northwest of Fredericksburg. An interesting visit was enjoyed with them.

Brief visits were made at Llano, with Christadelphian brethren, and at San Saba, with two of our own members, Mrs. Emma Fleming and Eddie Ragsdale. Previously I had visited Christadelphians in San Antonio and Austin also.

At Mullin, in our own church, services were held February 23, morning and night. Sickness and other reasons cut down the attendance considerably. Plans for the state and local work were discussed at a short business meeting Sunday morning.

M. W. Lyon, Evangelist.

MICHIGANTOWN, INDIANA

John Bengé, son of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Bengé, was wounded in the navy last September while stationed in the Pacific theater. He is now stationed at the Great Lakes Naval Hospital for further treatment on his arm which he is still unable to straighten.

Mr. Luther Bengé is in the Lafayette Hospital for observation and treatment.

We are very happy to have Mrs. Vernon Plummer in our church family. She attended our church years ago, then moved to California, and now she has returned to her old home.

Each month the church members enjoy a fellowship supper. We meet in the church or homes. Last month, February, we had an oyster supper in the home of Bro. and Sr. William Hauffer. The March supper was held on March 3.

Jon and Ronnie Snyder, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Snyder, are happy to have a playmate in the form of a baby brother who was born in January.

Plans are progressing to start the digging and construction of the church basement as soon as the material and the workers can be secured. We hope that it will be started early this spring.

We are very happy to report that the attendance has been the best the past three months that it has been in the past several years.

Delbert A. Jones, Pastor.

ELDORADO, ILLINOIS

A very pretty affair occurred in connection with the Eldorado (Ill.) Church when a silver tea was given by the Berean class on Saturday, February 22, from 3:00 to 7:00 p.m., at the lovely home of Mrs. Ed White.

French doors opened off the long living room, revealing the beautiful tea table decorated with a centerpiece of mixed yellow flowers and candleabra with white tapers. Silver tea service was at both ends of the long table, both spiced and plain tea being served. Dainty open-face and rolled sandwiches, homemade cookies, and colorful mints added to the refreshments; and lovely favors of yellow miniature corsages were given, all helping to beautify the table.

The officers of the class, Mrs. Carl Davenport, Miss Bernice Leithliter, and Mrs. Ed White (president, vice president, and secretary-treasurer, respectively) were in the receiving line. Miss Elizabeth Martin and Mrs. Phil Leithliter poured, and all wore formal dinner dresses.

Mrs. Lillian Bontright brought her record player and graciously supplied several recordings of lovely classical music. These were played softly in an adjoining room and were very pleasing.

Interspersed throughout the afternoon were a few humorous readings, one of which was by Carl Randall Davenport. A young boy also entertained by singing and playing a guitar.

We had very good attendance throughout the afternoon, about sixty guests calling. There were representatives from nearly all the churches and two other local pastors and their wives were present. Everyone expressed that it was a lovely party and many commented that it was the nicest tea they ever attended.

Aside from having a nice social time, we are happy to report that our receipts totaled $24.65—this sum to be contributed to our church treasurer, as our expenses were donated by class members.

We are sorry to report that Sr. E. H. Goit and the two youngest children of Bro. and Sr. Goit are suffering from severe colds.

armour" (v. 4) evidently means these forces will be well prepared (v. 7).

In the Soviet Republic of Armenia, the Armenians are building a national life under the protection of the Soviet Union. Just how soon Russia will attempt to establish her claim as "Protector" of the holy places of Palestine, nobody knows, but she is in the best position of her national existence to attempt such a move. Judging by present manipulations, she is preparing for something in the near future. Watch!

Next, we consider Sheba, Dedan, and the Merchants of Tarshish, with all the young lions! It is quite evident that the Sheba and Dedan here are not those who were Cushites (Gen. 10:7) of the Kingdom of Ethiopia, because Ethiopia is said to be confederate with Magog. Instead, they were the sons of Keturah and Abraham (Gen. 25:3). They inhabited southern Arabia and the Persian Gulf. Therefore, being of Semitic origin, they will oppose those who come to pillage their fellow Semites in the Holy Land.

Miss Deloris E. Snyder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Snyder, Frankfort, Ind., Rt. 3, became the bride of Robert M. Wyrick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Wyrick, Michigantown, Rt. 1, Friday, February 21, at 4:30 p.m. The double ring ceremony was read by the writer at his home.

The bride was lovely in a powder blue street length dress with black and white accessories. Her corsage was white gardenias. Miss Gloria Snyder, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. She wore a pink dress with black accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. Wayne Wyrick, brother of the groom, was best man.

The bride is a graduate of Seireleville High School. She attended Oregon Summer Bible Training School in 1940. For the past four years, she has been employed in the General Electric office in Kokomo, Ind. The bridegroom graduated from Michigantown High School. He served in the United States Signal Corps for three years. He was stationed in Germany.

CHILD STUDY

This course, conducted by Otto E. Dick, instructor and student counselor at Oregon Bible College, is especially designed for pastor, parent, or teacher. From the normal processes of child development, it considers the religious opportunities of the various ages that may be used as stepping stones in building a child of faith. Such understanding is a must for all those who would deal wisely with their own children or the children of others. It is offered at less than cost as a public service and carries College credit if desired.

San Jacinto Monument

The front-page picture shows the San Jacinto Monument near Houston, Texas. This five-hundred-seventy-foot shaft, tallest of its kind in the world, commemorates the decisive victory that General Sam Houston won (April 21, 1836) in the Texas War for Independence against Santa Anna and his Mexican savages. Houston's forces were out-numbered by the Mexicans, and, after the horrible siege and slaughter at the Alamo early in March of that same year (1836), the Texas forces under Houston withdrew to the north. Santa Anna followed in over-confident pursuit. At the San Jacinto River, Houston suddenly attacked Santa Anna, capturing him and more than half his men, most of the other Mexicans first having fallen in the battle. It was the decisive battle of Texas' War for Independence. One hundred years later, this gleaming shaft, the San Jacinto Monument, was erected to commemorate Houston's victory.

Brother M. W. Lyon, National Evangelist now working in Texas, suggests this lesson from the struggle near Houston:

"If men prize so dearly the liberties of this life, which are so short lived, how much more should they prize the freedom men have in Christ, and be willing to sacrifice for that freedom and for the hope that is set before us! They gave up their all that their fellow Texans might live as free men. We might make application in respect to how much our brethren of Texas are willing to give up that their fellow Texans may live eternally in the Kingdom of God."

Another inspiration comes to us as we look at the majestic column, a lighted sentinel in the dark constantly reminding men of a horrible but victorious struggle. It leads us to think of our Lord who in this present dark night of sin, confusion, and death, stands tall, serene, and unshakenly the highest of His kind in the world: pledge of a victory significant not only to a state, but to all nations and to all races! He is Light of the World. He is His own monument of victory over sin. He is guarantee of ultimate victory that will bathe the world in righteousness surpassing all blessings of any present liberty.

Capital and Labor

The conflict between capital and labor is at least as old as Solomon, who said, "The rich and poor meet together: the Lord is the maker of them all" (Prov. 22:2). Drastic strikes of organized labor during the past year and more have incited the American public to think seriously on this question. The seven-to-two verdict of the Supreme Court of the nation against John L. Lewis well may represent the percentages of opinion at large—about seven against striking to two for Lewis.

That working men deserve good pay is not being disputed. Working men, representing the poor and middle classes, however, frequently overlook the value and necessity of capitalism—or of the rich. Whether or not the rich acknowledge Him, God is their Maker. Of both the rich and the poor, Solomon said: "The Lord is the maker of them all." Many, many workers in the poor and middle classes are totally dependent for their livelihood on enterprises of the rich. Destroy the capitalists, and you will have destroyed most of the salaries that feed men and their families.

Linking with the foregoing thought, we were interested recently in reading an advertisement of the Illinois Central Railroad. Fifty-two and one half per cent of this great company's income "goes to pay the wages for some forty thousand Illinois Central workers."

So, poor as most of us Christians may be, let us recognize both God's purpose in us and His purpose in the rich—for God "is the maker of [us] all." "Curse not the rich" (Eccl. 10:20).

Short Bed and Narrow Cover

Isaiah 28:15-20 tells of God's displeasure with "the drunkards of Ephraim" (v. 1). Though sinning, they thought they had "a covenant with death." They said, "With hell are we at agreement." Then Isaiah gave prophecy of Christ as man's only Life-Giver and said, "Your covenant with death shall be disannulled." False hope of immortality of the soul is a "bed shorter than that a man can stretch himself upon it: and the covering narrower than that he can wrap himself in it."

We Have a Message

By M. W. Lyon, National Evangelist

IN MEETING with people in many parts of Texas, one of the most surprising things to me has been the uncertainty of many even in our own church as to how our beliefs differ from those of other churches. For instance, I find a person whom I have been led to believe belongs to our church; I ask him if he is a member of the Church of God, and he replies, "I belong to the Church of Christ. It's the same church, isn't it?"

This has happened in so many cases that I feel there is a need to clarify what our church does teach and what are the differences between us and others. The Church of God and the Church of Christ are decidedly not the same church. Apparently many have been misled by the similarity of names, and have been attending and even uniting with Churches of Christ, thinking they were our own.

We have a message that none of the larger religious bodies is proclaiming. It is radically different from that being taught by almost all the other churches. Some of the principal ways in which our message differs from that of other churches are:

(1) We believe the Bible teaches that man is mortal and that the dead know not anything. (Gen. 2:16, 17; 3:19; Psalm 103:14-16; 146:3, 4; James 4:14; 1 Peter 1:24; Ezek. 18:4; Eccl. 9:4-6, 10.)

They believe that man is immortal and cannot die, that only the body dies, and that consciousness continues after the death of the body.

(2) We believe the Bible teaches that the wicked are to be eventually destroyed. (Psalm 145:20; 37:20; Mal. 4:1-3; Matt. 3:12; 13:37-40; Luke 13:3; Acts 3:23; Phil. 3:18, 19; 2 Thess. 1:8, 9; 2 Peter 2:12; 3:9.)

They believe that the wicked are to be preserved in endless misery.

(3) We believe the Bible teaches that immortality is a gift of God conditionally given only to those who are obedient. (John 3:16; Rom. 6:23; 2:5-7; 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; 1 Tim. 6:12; 1 John 2:17; 5:12.)

They believe that immortality is a possession of all men, and that salvation is a question only of where one will spend eternity.

(4) We believe the Bible teaches that the Kingdom of God will be an actual government, and will be set up on this earth at the second coming of Christ. (Psalm 2:6-9; Isa. 9:7; 2:2-4; Dan. 2:44; Luke 1:32, 33; Matt. 25:31.)

They believe that the Kingdom of God is the church of the present age, and was set up on the Day of Pentecost.

(5) We believe the Bible teaches that this earth will be the eternal home of the righteous. (Psalm 115:16; Prov. 10:30; 11:31; Matt. 5:5; Rev. 5:9, 10; 11:15; 21:1-4.)

They believe that heaven is to be the eternal home of the righteous.

(6) We believe the Bible teaches that God is One Being, immortal and from all eternity, that Jesus Christ is His Son, and that the Holy Spirit is their influence on men. (1 Tim. 1:17; Psalm 90:2; Matt. 16:13-17; Mark 12:28, 29; John 8:24-28; Heb. 1:5; 1 Cor. 8:5, 6.)

They believe that God is a trinity of three persons in one, and that Jesus Christ and the Holy Spirit are both God from all eternity.

Open your Bible, study these passages, and see if these things are so. Let no one think that other denominations teach almost the same as we do, just because the names are similar. There is scarcely a point of doctrine on which we are in agreement with the Church of Christ, except that of immersion, and the same can be said of almost all other churches.

M. W. LYON

"But," it is said on every hand, "are these doctrinal points of so much difference? Aren't we all seeking to do God's will, and isn't that the great thing?"

Well, can a person believe that Christ died for his sins if he thinks He was immortal from all eternity? Can immortal beings die?

Or, can we believe that Christ died according to the Scriptures, if He was a part of the eternal Godhead?

If it was only Jesus' body that died, then did Jesus Himself really die? And if He did not really die, who made the atonement for our sins? If only Jesus' body died, then is not only our body redeemed? And our soul still lost?

Again, can I believe in a wise, loving, and just God, if I believe that He is going to inflict everlasting torment on most of earth's population?

Or, how could Jesus be both God and the Son of God? Would He be either His own Son, or His own Father?

Since Christ's Kingdom is to be on earth, if we are to dwell eternally in heaven, shall we be, as the Scripture says, "ever with the Lord"?

Can we understand God's plan of salvation, if we are in error on some of the major points?

Should Christians Believe in Soul Sleeping?

By Glenn M. Birkey, Rochelle, Illinois

ACCORDING to Goodspeed's Translation, Genesis 3:19 reads thus: "By the sweat of your brow shall you earn your living, until you return to the ground, since it was from it that you were taken; for dust you are, and to dust you must return." It appears that the "you" in these verses is addressed to the real man and not only to his body. Recently, we listened to a sermon by an Orthodox preacher. In his remarks, he mentioned that in his earlier ministry he had met some people who believed in soul sleeping, and they were considered fanatics because of this belief.

Now let us look at the inspired writings of some noted Bible characters to see whether or not they were believers in soul sleeping concerning death.

Job 19:25-27 reads thus: "I know that my redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth: and though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God: whom I shall see for myself, and mine eyes shall behold, and not another; though my reins be consumed within me." Job could not have believed he would be alive in death.

David in the Psalms was inspired to write: "Consider and hear me, O Lord my God; lighten my eyes, lest I sleep the sleep of death" (Psalm 13:3). "O Lord, thou hast brought up my soul from the grave; thou hast kept me alive, that I should not go down to the pit" (Psalm 30:3). "The dead praise not the Lord, neither any that go down into silence" (Psalm 115:17).

Daniel wrote these words: "Many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt" (Dan. 12:2).

Here are the words of Solomon: "That which befalleth the sons of men befalleth beasts; even one thing befalleth them; as the one dieth, so dieth the other; yea they have all one breath; so a man hath no preeminence above a beast: for all is vanity. All go unto one place; all are of the dust, and all turn to dust again" (Eccl. 3:19).

In the New Testament, we have more about the state of the dead. Of the resurrection of Jairus' daughter, we have the following record: "While he [Jesus] was thus speaking, a ruler came up and profoundly bowing said, My daughter is just dead; but come and put your hand upon her and she will return to life. And Jesus rose and followed him, as did his disciples." After arriving at the house, He said: "Go out of the room; the little girl is not dead but asleep."

In the instance of the widow's son of Nain the Record says: "Shortly afterwards he went to a town called Nain, attended by his disciples and a great crowd of people.

And just as he reached the gate of the town, they happened to be bringing out for burial a dead man who was his mother's only son; and she was a widow; and a great number of the townspeople were with her. The Lord saw her, and was moved with pity for her, and said to her, 'Do not weep.' Then he went close to the bier, and the bearers halted. 'Young man,' he said, 'I command you, wake.' The dead man sat up and began to speak" (Luke 7:11-14, Weymouth).

Again, in John 5:25, 29, Weymouth states: "In most solemn truth I tell you that a time is coming—nay, has already come—when the dead will hear the voice of the Son of God, and those who hear it will live. . . . For a time is coming when all who are in the graves [not in heaven] will hear his voice and will come forth—they who have done what is right to the resurrection of life, and they whose actions have been evil to the resurrection of judgment." The foregoing scripture should clear all doubt where both the good and bad are in death. They are neither in a blissful heaven nor in a burning hell.

The Apostle Paul, in speaking of Christ's resurrection, had this to say to the Corinthian brethren: "If Christ has not risen, your faith is a vain thing—you are still in your sins. It follows also that those who have fallen asleep in Christ have perished. If in this present life we have a hope resting on Christ, and nothing more, we are more to be pitied than all the rest of the world" (1 Cor. 15:17, 18, Weymouth).

Again, the Apostle Paul in his Letter to the Thessalomians comforted his brethren with these words: "We would like you, brothers, to understand about those who have fallen asleep in death; you must not grieve for them, like the rest of men who have no hope. Since we believe that Jesus died and rose again, then it follows that by means of Jesus God will bring with him those who have fallen asleep. For we tell you, as the Lord has told us, that we the living, who survive till the Lord comes, are by no means to take precedence of those who have fallen asleep. The Lord himself will descend from heaven with a loud summons, when the archangel calls and the trumpet of God sounds; the dead in Christ will rise first [if they were awake in heaven, they could not rise], and then we the living who survive, will be (Please turn to page 10)

"HOW SHALL THEY HEAR WITHOUT A PREACHER?"

By Opal R. Hayse, San Benito, Texas

THE NEED for furthering the gospel work grows more pressing day by day. In this large State of Texas, there are doubtless many who are hungering to hear one of our own Church-of-God ministers preach. Until Brother M. W. Lyon came to preach a few sermons, we had not heard one of our ministers preach in nearly five years. Now, brethren, that is an awfully long time. We really enjoyed the sermons we heard. I admit a large part of the blame is ours.

Brother T. A. Drinkard has been working and willing, but it is impossible for him to carry on alone. He is "on the go" constantly, health permitting, but he cannot be everywhere. That is not humanly possible.

Let us try to do more. One way to begin, I believe, is to revive the Texas Conference. Our Conference died in 1932, if I remember correctly. Brother E. W. Moses headed it for many years. He and other faithful workers have been called by death to await the coming of our blessed Redeemer. It is "up to us," the living, to "carry on." Now, as never before, we need a great spiritual awakening. Any and all suggestions for such an awakening certainly will be appreciated. Material and moral aid, as well as spiritual aid, is needed. Let us all unite our efforts and help as much as possible in furthering the cause of Christ and in rebuilding our Church of God in the Lone Star State.

May God's blessings attend our ministers everywhere. Let us endeavor faithfully to help them to be sent wherever there are listening ears. Oh, how people need God today!

Through our diligence and prayers, let us help bring Romans 10:13-15 to pass. It reads: "Whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved. How then shall they call on him in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher? and how shall they preach, except they be sent? as it is written, How beautiful are the feet of them that preach the gospel of peace and bring glad tidings of good things."

That our united efforts may be multiplied and blessed by the soon coming Saviour is our earnest hope and prayer.

OUR YOUTH

By Mrs. G. M. Siple, Oregon, Illinois

AMERICA today is being filled with youth movements. Just how much is being accomplished cannot now be known: only the passing of years can reveal it, factually. Who is meant when one speaks of youth? The age ranges from ten years to thirty-five years in some places. All grant that nothing is more important than our youth, for on them the future depends. Thus, it is important that our church youth have the groundwork solidly laid, so they may hold fast and instruct others when their turn comes. Let us see what admonitions and examples we can find in the Bible. We quote:

"Children, obey your parents in the Lord: for this is right. Honour thy father and mother; which is the first commandment with promise; that it may be well with thee, and thou mayest live long on the earth" (Eph. 6: 1-3).

We know not at what age the Bible puts youth. When Isaac was offered for sacrifice, he was twenty-five years of age. The Bible speaks of him as being mature, but he was called a "lad" by his father. Jesus was baptized when He was thirty years of age, and when He called His helpers, they were men with families. Very few, if any, of our young people today are capable of carrying on the Lord's work without the help and advice of their elders.

The older people are responsible for the young of today. If they fail to instruct and advise, they will be held accountable. According to Exodus 31:32, Moses felt responsible for the children of Israel. When he came down from the mountain, after receiving the Tables of Stone, and found them worshipping the golden calf, he asked God to blot his name from the book, if God would not forgive their sins. Paul, one of the most noble characters in history, called Timothy his own son in the faith. Though Timothy was a minister, Paul felt responsible for him and instructed him.

In 1 Peter 5, Peter admonished the church elders to "feed the flock," then stated in verse 5 of that same chapter: "Likewise, ye younger, submit yourselves unto the elder. Yea, all of you be subject one to another, and be clothed with humility: for God resisteth the proud, and giveth grace to the humble." (Please turn to page 10)

Prophecy—History Foretold

By Grover Gordon, Cleveland, Ohio

THE MERCHANTS of Tarshish" present a difficult problem for identity. The several conflicting views on the subject can be clarified only when one realizes that, as in the case of the "king of the North," so here, this title changed as time and dominion changed.

Tarshish was the son of Javan, the son of Japheth; therefore he was the nephew of Magog and Gomer. (Gen. 10:2-4.) Tarshish and Kittim (ancient names for the isle of Cyprus) should give us a clue, in the face of what is said of them—"By these were the isles of the Gentiles divided." Smith's Bible Dictionary says of the word "isle"—"The radical sense of the Hebrew word seems to be 'habitable places,' as opposed to water, and in this sense it occurs in Isaiah 42:15. Hence, it means secondarily any maritime district, whether belonging to a continent or to an island: thus it is used of the shore of the Mediterranean." Compare that with the Bible account of "The burden of Tyre" (Isa. 23:1-18), and we see the first great naval power in the Mediterranean. It was called in ancient times, "The Sea of Tarshish" or "The Great Sea." Notice in verse 1 mention is made of "the land of Chittim" (Kittim or Tarshish, Cyprus). "Pass ye over to Tarshish; howl, ye inhabitants of the isle" (v. 6). "Is this your joyous city, whose antiquity is of ancient days? her own feet shall carry her afar off to sojourn" (v. 7).

The kings of Tyre and Sidon headed a sea-going people: the Phoenicians having been the greatest navigators and traders in the world. They seem to have built ships and sailed them on the Mediterranean Sea as early as 2000 B.C. (Columbia Encyclopedia.) This Sea always has been, and still is, the crossroad of the commerce of the world. Therefore, any power that controls it is doubtless designated as the "Merchants of Tarshish."

Main difficulty with the foregoing explanation seems to be that there was at least one other place—and more likely two other places—called "Tarshish." One of these was in the vicinity of the Red Sea where Solomon had a navy with Hiram, king of Tyre (1 Kings 10:22), which brought products evidently from Arabia, Africa, and India—products of gold, silver, ivory, apes, and peacocks. It would not be strange for a great sea power to have ships in more than one sea, and even to have a port named after one of the mother country. Of course, the Suez Canal now connects the two seas, but then they were separated by the Isthmus of Suez (72 miles wide) which joins Africa and Asia. The Isthmus of Suez is a desert with salt lakes and marshes, separating Port Said on the Mediterranean from Port Tewfik on the Gulf of Suez (an arm of the Red Sea, 187 miles long and 14 to 40 miles wide, between the Sinai peninsula and the main part of Egypt). "Water-borne traffic from the Mediterranean, in 2000 B.C., could reach Lake Timsah, in the center of the Isthmus, via the Nile Delta" (Columbia Encyclopedia), which would be a point only thirty-six miles from the above-mentioned port on the Red Sea, and from there out into the Indian Ocean. Later, there was a canal built from there to the Gulf of Suez via the Bitter Lakes, making a shorter route to India than around Africa.

Then the wares brought by the ships of Tarshish point to Spain, Lusitania, and Cornwall in Great Britain—Ezekiel 27:12 listing those wares as "silver, iron, tin, and lead." It was also the Phoenicians who colonized Carthage and Spain. In the latter was a city called Tartessus (the Seville of today) which many believe—and it seems quite likely—was a form of Tarshish. Carthage also became the center of the greatest maritime power of the Mediterranean and was in continual conflict with Rome in the Punic Wars for mastery of this sea. The conflict finally resulted in victory for the Romans, who called it "Mare Nostrum" (Our Lake).

After decline of the Roman Empire, it is not surprising to see Spain rise to a great naval power, for as previously stated, the Phoenicians had colonized there (far from where they started, even the other extremity of the sea) and she was just attaining the zenith of her power about the time of Isabella and Ferdinand (who furnished ships for Columbus). This opened up the New World for a refuge for the Jews who were being expelled from Spain, and which in turn was perhaps the cause of her downfall. "I will curse him that curseth thee" (Gen. 12:3). So Spain might well have fit the role of "Merchants of Tarshish" for that period.

At that time, however, there were other peoples rising up to dispute Spain's right on the seas and in Europe, among them being Great Britain. (Some ancient maps mark the British Isles or "Tarshish.") At any rate, when the Spanish Armada (1588) launched for the invasion of England, it was a vastly superior force compared with the British. The account of the battle as given in the Columbia Encyclopedia says:

"The English, by getting to the windward of the Spaniards and firing at long range, forced them up the Channel and somewhat damaged them in three engagements. At Calais, fire ships spread panic among the Spanish, who cut their cables and set sail. In the battle fought the following day, the English had the advantage; but, the wind suddenly changing, most of the Spanish ships escaped northward. In attempting to sail home by Scotland and the west coast of Ireland, they were dispersed and destroyed by storms; the provisions gave out; and many of the men were killed or captured by the Irish. About half the fleet reached home."

This account seems to fulfill the words of the Psalmist, "Thou breakest the ships of Tarshish with an east wind" (Psalm 48:7). The Queen of England is said to have remarked after the victory over the Spanish Armada, "God blew, and they were scattered." From that time until the present, England has been the dominating power in the Mediterranean, or Sea of Tarshish. Therefore, "The merchants of Tarshish" today may well refer to Britain.

For further evidence, we notice the prophecy of Ezekiel which speaks of "the merchants of Tarshish, with all the young lions thereof"—which would indicate the "young lions" were associated with, and were a part of, "the merchants of Tarshish" who, therefore, must be the parent lion. The symbol of Great Britain is the lion; her dominions would be "the young lions"—probably including the United States of America, as England is our mother country.

Still more evidence that England is the "Tarshish" of the last days may be noted in the prophecy of Isaiah, who said: "Surely the isles shall wait for me, and the ships of Tarshish first, to bring thy sons from far, their silver and gold with them" (60:9). Britain was first to promise a national home to the Jews in Palestine. More correctly perhaps, she was first to attempt to make a home for them there and the first to have the mandate over the "Land" after its being liberated from Turkey, "worst of the heathen" (nations) who had possessed their houses and defiled their holy places. (Ezek. 7:24.) "Their silver and gold" is building up the land at present, producing cattle on their farms and goods in their factories, the very attractions mentioned in Ezekiel 38 as causing the nations to think an evil thought "to take a great spoil" (vv. 10-12).

The British at present have not been true to their promise, because they have a great deal of interest in Arabian oil. There is no indication that Sheba and Dedan and the merchants of Tarshish, with the young lions, are going to do anything to stop Magog when she comes with her bands. All they seemingly will do is to say, "Art thou come to take a spoil? . . . to carry away silver and gold, to take away cattle and goods, to take a great spoil?" (V. 13.) These questions possibly refer to a treaty that both England and Russia will have signed, possibly to their non-aggression and mutual assistance agreement (1942), or to the United Nations' Charter, or even to fact of the aid given Russia to defeat Germany in World War II. God is the One who will win the victory and be made known in the eyes of many nations (39:18-23), also to His people Israel (39:7).

Britain, at present, is in a commanding position of all of the former places called "Tarshish." Britain controls Gibraltar, which commands the western entrance to the Mediterranean, not far from the Spanish Tartessus, or Seville. Britain controls the Red Sea, through which the Suez Canal passes, and, therefore, the eastern entrance to the Mediterranean. Britain controls the isle of Cyprus, which was the ancient island of Tarshish or Kittim (now used by the English as a concentration camp for Jews trying to enter Palestine); and thus far has been successful in her attempt to manipulate control of the Dardanelle Straits, or northern entrance to the Mediterranean, in such a way as to keep Russia from control of it.

The present Labor Party of Britain came to power by its promise to remove the restriction on immigration that had resulted from issuance of the White Paper. Thus far, however, she has failed to keep her promise. This probably will result in her being "brought low" (Isa. 2:12-16), even as Spain was humbled for her unkind behavior toward the Jews. The Day of the Lord will be "upon all the ships of Tarshish, and upon all the pleasant pictures" (v. 16). Many "pleasant pictures" have been painted in words as to how Britain, as the merchants of Tarshish, will preserve Israel, but Isaiah said, "The Lord alone shall be exalted in that day" (vv. 11, 17).

Some will say, Does not the Scripture say, "I will gather all nations against Jerusalem to battle"? (Zech 14:1, 2.) Yes, but it also says, "Then shall the Lord go forth, and fight against those nations" (v. 3). Joel also said, "When I shall bring again the captivity" (3:1), I "will also gather all nations, and will bring them down into the valley of Jehoshaphat, and will plead with them there for my people" (vv. 2-12), "for the day of the Lord is near (v. 14). "The Lord also shall roar out of Zion, and utter his voice from Jerusalem" (vv. 15, 16). "So shall ye know that I am the Lord your God dwelling in Zion, my holy mountain" (v. 17). Also, see Zephaniah 3:8.

At Armageddon (Megiddo), three unclean spirits like frogs will come out of the mouth of the dragon. They are the spirits of devils (Gr.—daimon, a deified spirit). The thought of "deified spirits," or deified beings, links well with the titles and offices of the "Pope" (Papa, or Holy Father); "Grand Mufti" (Judge, or High Priest); "Mikado" (Exalted Gate), etc. Evidently here are prophesied three leaders of different groups, the leaders being deified by their groups and possessed with evil devices. They will speak (words pop out of the mouth like frogs, sometimes) and cause the

TRIED FOR HERESY. A young minister in Truro, Nova Scotia, is being tried by a Presbyterian church court on what really amounts to a "heresy charge." Perry F. Rockwood is a young man of twenty-nine years, and the charge against him is "divisive teaching." He accepts the Bible as being wholly inspired, and has opposed the trend toward liberalism in the church and the move toward unity with other Protestant bodies. He has maintained that "spiritual leaders today who do not accept all the Bible are not in a position to carry on the true work of the church. They should admit their falseness to the people and find new fellowship. If liberalism has gained such a foothold in the church that the Bible cannot be preached without outside interference, then the only other alternative is for the believer to depart from their fellowship and remain true to God."

Everywhere in every denomination, there are those who would cast aside the basic teachings of the church for the sake of unity with other religious groups. Laying aside of conviction for fellowship with other believers is tantamount to saying that truth is not essential. The strength of teaching or preaching lies in the conviction that it is truth. To lay aside conviction, throws one wide open to the philosophy that "might makes right," and the individual becomes a pawn in the vicious teaching that unity is of more value than truth. The church needs more Rockwoods!

BALFOUR DECLARATION A number of anti-Semitic writers have argued in recent months that the Balfour Declaration, which was proclaimed after Palestine as a separate state had been placed under the protection of Britain, never contemplated the creation of a Jewish homeland in Palestine. Such propaganda is not in keeping with the facts in the case. In 1937, a British Royal Commission which had been studying the Palestinian question reported that the "primary purpose of the Balfour Declaration and the Mandate for Palestine was the establishment of a Jewish national home." The intention under the Declaration was, as Dr. Silver has stated: "To this end the Mandate obliged the British Government to facilitate Jewish immigration and settlement on the land, so that if and when the Jews became a majority, a Jewish state would be established."

The seeming disintegration of the British Empire that has been going on under the present Labor Government is in keeping with the prophetic words of David Lloyd George, when he remarked that if England ever failed to fulfill her mission under the Balfour Declaration, she would be freed of more of her overseas possessions. Had England implemented the Balfour Declaration as was intended when it was first given to the world, we believe many of the vicissitudes which are now besetting the country would have been restrained. It pays to keep one's vows.

UNPLEASANT CONDITIONS. The Federal Bureau of Investigation recently gave out a report on conditions in the nation; and in reporting some of the condensed facts, the "Christian Advocate" found that crime had increased during the first six months of 1946, 13 per cent over the same period in 1945. Based on findings in 1,997 cities with a total population of about 66,000,000, the increase in crime in the various categories was as follows:

	1945	1946
Murder	1,608	2,066
Rape	3,786	3,845
Aggressive assault	19,248	21,176
Burglary	100,960	118,120
Auto theft	70,469	81,398
Larceny	247,745	272,126
Robbery	15,236	20,085
Manslaughter	1,251	1,491
Total	460,303	520,207

To this we might add a Biblical statement on the trend of the times in the last days: "Evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving and being deceived."

WORLD OF TOMORROW. The internationally known United States industrial designer, Walter D. Teague, speaking before the Ontario Association of Architects, envisioned the cities of tomorrow as places of theaters, halls, and assembly places, with the people living in rural areas, and traveling to and from work in jet propelled planes at a speed of 1,000 miles per hour.

A very few years ago such predictions would have been sufficient reasons to judge a person mentally unbalanced. Today, the wonders of the atomic age make such fantastic modes of living and travel well within the range of probabilities. The tremendous changes in means of transportation and the safety and speed with which people can "run to and fro" make the day when people will go to the paradise restored to worship a reality without difficulties as far as "how" and "where" are concerned. No doubt, we are living in the "day of preparation" when all things are getting readied for the coming of the King.

EXPANDED EDUCATION. All the schools and colleges in the country are being taxed far beyond capacity to take care of the increased registration brought about through the G.I. Bill of Rights. In a recent survey made by W. Emerson Reek, Director of Public Relations of Colgate University, under joint sponsorship of the Society for the Advancement of Education, and the American College Public Relations, indicates that expenses of the average college has increased 78.6 per cent, and some have spiraled from 100 to 200 per cent, with a few showing an upward trend of 400 per cent.

To meet the increased cost of operation, the college presidents recommended four solutions: 1) increase in tuition; 2) seek larger annual gifts; 3) conduct financial campaigns; 4) obtain aid through congressional grants. This last source of income is being sought by Roman Catholic schools with all the vigor at their command. It is surprising by how many devious ways public treasuries are raided by the separate schools of Rome.

MACARTHUR AND RELIGION. The editor of the "Christian Science Monitor," in reporting an interview with MacArthur, found him very much interested in the Christian church taking a more active part in the rehabilitation of Japan. He reports MacArthur as feeling "deeply on religious and spiritual matters. He believes Japan is hungry for Christianity, and he has sought to give opportunities to missionaries of all faiths." He renewed missionary activity, the editor found Roman Catholicism taking a great deal more advantage of the new opportunities than the Protestants. This is usually the case. Why should it be thus?

CHURCH MESSAGE. Last week we reported the conducting of a conference of leaders from industry, labor, education, agriculture, and religion under the auspices of the Federal Council of Churches at Pittsburg. The purpose was to formulate a program for the members of the Council of Churches to follow in relation to our "economic life."

The following propositions were set forth as general principles to guide the church in its teaching and preaching on the "problems . . . in our daily living":

"Production exists to serve necessary and desirable consumption."

"It is desirable to work toward an economy which provides an assured adequate annual income for every family."

"Profits . . . of a money economy . . . are thoroughly defensible. . . Christians must be actuated more largely by a service motive than a profit motive."

"Property represents a trusteeship under God."

"Economic groups should have the right to organize." This, not to be extended to "monopoly over information, processes, natural resources, capital, or labor."

These propositions are abridged, but give an accurate trend of the thinking and conclusions of the conference.

More and more the emphasis of preaching and teaching of the church concerns "our daily living." "Doctrinal warfare is abating," with emphasis being placed on co-operative effort among the churches. Right or wrong, faith as expressed in doctrinal tenets is shrinking to a mere nothingness before the impact of the brotherhood of man among all believers. The shifting emphasis from difference of faith to points of agreement needs to be weighed carefully. "Take heed unto . . . doctrine . . . save thyself, and them that hear thee."

Will the Name of the Lord be called upon every one of the Gentile nations after Christ returns?

IN ANSWER to the question, "Will the name of Christ be called upon every one of the Gentile nations after Christ returns?" I am forced to answer, "No." In the many scriptures regarding God's dealings with all the Gentile nations at, and after, the coming of Christ, not one word is said about placing the name of the Lord upon even one person of all the vast numbers of people or Gentile nations left from Armageddon. Therefore, Acts 15:15-18 and Amos 9:11 do not teach that these verses will be fulfilled at the return of the Lord Jesus Christ. Then, why take Acts 15:15-18 and disconnect these verses from the subject matter, making them teach a falsehood that contradicts the very truth James quoted Amos 9:11 to prove?

For what purpose did James quote Peter and Amos 9:11? He quoted Peter to show who was speaking. He quoted Amos 9:11 to prove that God had fulfilled Amos 9:11. Just why have James put words in the Lord Jesus' mouth which Christ never spoke? It was the Father, not the Son, who spoke by Amos. Amos 9:10-12 reads: "All the sinners of my people shall die by the sword, which say, The evil shall not overtake nor prevent us. In that day will I raise up the tabernacle of David that is fallen, and close up the breaches thereof; and I will raise up his ruins, and I will build it as in the days of old: that they may possess the remnant of Edom, and of all the heathen, which are called by my name." James somewhat modernized the words of Amos to prove that the tabernacle of David was already being rebuilt by the gospel process.

Paul, writing to Gentiles in Ephesians 2:19, 20, said: "Now therefore ye are no more strangers and foreigners, but fellowcitizens with the saints, and of the household of God; and are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone." The subject matter the apostles and elders came together to consider was not the second coming of Christ. It was the question of whether or not Christian Gentiles should be circumcised and keep the law. (Acts 15:5-9.) In verse 7, Peter related how God made choice that by his mouth the Gentiles should hear the gospel and believe, saying that God "put no difference between us and them, purifying their hearts by faith." "Now therefore why tempt ye God," asked Peter, "to put a yoke upon the neck of the disciples, which neither our fathers nor we were able to bear?" Then Barnabas and Paul "declared what miracles God wrought among the Gentiles" (vv. 9-12). James answered, saying, "Simcon [Peter] hath declared how God at the first did visit the Gentiles, to take out of them a people for his name. And to this agree the words of the prophets." To what did the words of the prophets agree? The words of the prophets agreed with what Simcon had just said—that God did "at the first visit the Gentiles to take out of them a people for his name."

"After this I will return." After what? We turn to Amos 9:8-10 to find the answer to that question. We quote: "Behold the eyes of the Lord God are upon the sinful kingdom, and I will destroy it from off the face of the earth; saying that I will not utterly destroy the house of Jacob, saith the Lord, for, lo, I will command, and I will sift the house of Israel among all nations, like as corn is sifted in a sieve, yet shall not the least grain fall upon the earth. All the sinners of my people shall die by the sword, which say, The evil shall not overtake nor prevent us. In that day . . ."—in what day? It was to be in the day that God has destroyed the sinful kingdom, when He has sifted the house of Israel as corn among all the nations. This same Apostle James bore witness to the fact that Amos 9:9-11 had been fulfilled: "James, a servant of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ, to the twelve tribes which are scattered abroad, greetings" (James 1:1).

"In that day I will raise up the tabernacle of David" (Amos 9:11). Stephen, in his great discourse (Acts 7), spoke in verses 45 and 46 of this tabernacle of David, saying: "Which also our fathers that came after brought in with Jesus into the possession of the Gentiles, whom God drove out before the face of our fathers, unto the days of David; who found favour before God, and desired to find a tabernacle for the God of Jacob." "But Solomon built him an house" (v. 47). In Acts 7:46, the Revised Version renders "tabernacle" as "habitation." Paul, in Ephesians 2:11-22, taught that this habitation of God is made of Jews and Gentiles "for an habitation of God through the Spirit."

At the close of this Gospel Age, taking out of the Gentiles a people for God's Name will come to an end alike to Jews and Gentiles. "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world" (Matt. 28:19, 20). This commission will end with the end of the Age. "This gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come" (Matt. 24:14). The restored house of Israel will not be sons of God, but servants; and, if any of the Gentile nations are saved after Christ returns, they will not be sons but servants, for sonship is only in Christ and can be obtained only by obedience to the gospel and right living in this Age.

I pray God will bless all of like faith and give us endless life in the Age of Endless Joy.—Concluded.

OUR YOUTH

Many of our young people are "babes in Christ," living on the "milk of the Word." If they are encouraged to take charge of the Lord's work, while living on the milk of the Word, where will they get the "meat of the Word," without the counsel and advice of their elders? and will they be capable of carrying on the work as it is taught in the Bible? We older people must consider these questions, for the young people are the ones to carry on the work after the older ones are gone. If our youth do not know the truth, how will they be able to teach it?

The Lord's work is a joint work: it is important that the young and old work together. Youth gets inspiration from seeing what the faithful members have accomplished; the older ones see the work carried forward by a well-trained youth.

SHOULD CHRISTIANS BELIEVE IN SOUL SLEEPING?

caught up along with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, and so we shall be with the Lord for ever, Now then, encourage one another with these words" (1 Thess. 4:13-18, Moffatt).

Now let me ask, if Job, David, Solomon, Daniel, Christ, and Paul believed the dead are asleep, should any truth seeker be classed as a fanatic. To me, rather, he who tries to twist the Scriptures to adhere to tradition and pagan beliefs should be called the fanatic. In Galatians, the Apostle Paul used these words: "For other good news [gospel] there is none; but there are some persons who are troubling you, and are seeking to distort the Good News concerning Christ. But if even we or an angel from Heaven should bring you Good News different from that which we have already brought you, let him be accursed. What I have just said I repeat—if any one is preaching you a Good News other than that which you originally received, let him be accursed" (Gal. 1:6-9, Weymouth). Let us be careful what we believe and teach.

WE HAVE A MESSAGE

they be agreed?"

We cannot ignore right doctrine if we are to live acceptably to God. For the things we believe will automatically affect the way we live. Belief always governs action. For example, an English queen is said to have justified her persecution of "heretics" on the grounds that, since God was going to torment their souls through eternity, it should be proper for her to torment their bodies in this life. Many have been driven from all belief in God because they could not reconcile eternal torment with their concept of what God should be like. And where is the person who could ever give a rational explanation of the trinity? It is self-contradictory, defying the effort of any reasonable mind to understand.

Such things as these are the cause of many people thinking the Bible is hard to understand. It is not the Bible which is contradictory, but the preposterous creeds that men have identified with it. They put obstacles in the way of faith that make it well-nigh impossible for many to believe in or accept our Saviour.

We have a message that portrays our God in His true light, and that presents a plan of salvation that is consistent, reasonable, and Scriptural. Others teach contrary to us at almost every point. Does it make any difference what we believe? Does it make any difference to what church we belong?

Let those who believe in Church-of-God doctrines stand for the Church of God! Let us put our strength, our co-operation, our money, our loyalty, into our own church; not dissipate our strength by throwing our support to other bodies whose teaching we cannot endorse.

We have a message others do not have. Let it be heard throughout the length and breadth of the land!

whole world to gather men for the battle of that great day of God Almighty. (Rev. 16:12-16.) Judging from all appearances, the invasion of Palestine will be a surprise move when the world is saying, "Peace and safety." "Then sudden destruction"! (1 Thess. 5:1-3.) The words of the deified leaders will have performed the miracle of setting up a peace establishment, followed by a second miracle of undermining it by their own evil devices.

As soon as the news gets out that Magog and his confederates are coming, the "merchants of Tarshish" and the others named with her will say, "Art thou come to take a spoil?" The result naturally would be to mobilize and get over there as fast as possible, to protect the interests (financial) that are involved: oil, minerals, etc., not to protect the Holy Land nor the people of God.

God certainly knows how to gather the nations (made up of men) in placing the vast oil deposits in the Middle East. There, too, are minerals that have been depositing for centuries in the Dead Sea that has no outlet. God will reveal these minerals in their great abundance at a time when they are most needed and will have become a coveted prize to any nation. All this wealth flowing into, or through, the land of Israel is the means by which God will gather the nations. Remember, the victory is the Lord's! The confusion that is pictured will cause "every man's sword [to be] against his brother" (Ezek. 38:21). That is the way the Lord fought in the day of battle. (Zech. 14:3; see also Judges 7:22; 1 Sam. 14:20; 2 Chron. 20:22-24.) The weapons God used and will use again are as follows:

"The Lord . . . thundered in the heavens, and the Highest gave his voice; hail stones and coals of fire. Yea, he sent out his arrows, and scattered them; and he shot out lightnings, and discomfited them" (Psalm 18:13, 14). See also Joshua 10:10, 11. Perhaps more than eight hundred years later, Isaiah prophesied: "The Lord shall cause his glorious voice to be heard, and shall shew the lighting down of his arm, with the indignation of his anger, and with the flame of devouring fire, with scattering, and tempest, and hailstones" (Isa. 30:30). (See and cp. Ezek. 38:19-23 with Rev. 16:18-21.)—Concluded.

OREGON BIBLE COLLEGE

News for Two Weeks

Interest in the Old Testament Studies Class is not only continuing but also is growing. We are now studying Exodus 25, and concentrating our studies on the Tabernacle. It was at this point we ceased study the end of last week. There is much discussion among the students in this class about the various and numerous difficult texts. We feel that much is gained from these discussions in the knowledge of the Holy Word. These lively little discussions have prompted the bringing of many commentaries and translations by the students. Some of the students arrive in class quite exhausted from the burden of carrying their commentaries and translations. Need we mention any more convincing evidence of the intense interest shown by the students?

The Religious Arts Class is also one that all are taking the course, like immensely. The students have been drawing each other's portrait during the recent classes. This particular project is likely to continue for a while yet. Each student takes his turn at posing. Mrs. Carpenter is instructor.

Bro. Pearson spoke last Tuesday morning at Chapel. On Thursday, Bro. F. L. Austin spoke for the student body and faculty on "Sons and Daughters of God." Both sermons were greatly enjoyed, and we trust that Bro. Austin will visit us often. We wish to thank him for his patience and generosity in overlooking the interference of clicking shutters and blinding flash-bulbs during his sermon. That annoying individual with the camera was on the prowl again. It might be mentioned here, for the sake of the Public Speaking Class, that the camera did not affect Bro. Austin in the slightest.

The local Berean group has begun a very commendable project. Last Sunday, some of the members of the Oregon Bereans conducted the first session of a new Sunday school in a country schoolhouse, situated near Byron, Ill. Several of the College students are assisting in this project as teachers. Kirby Davis, a junior, is superintendent. Twenty-seven people attended the opening session.

Two new clubs are forming at the College these days. The one already has formed, and the other is still in the planning stages. The Glee Club is the one that already has been formed. The first practice, under direction of Kirby Davis, was Monday night, March 3. Fifteen of the students have joined this group, and we expect to hear a great deal from them in the future. The second group is the Student Players, which will be formed as soon as a suitable play can be found. Some difficulty is being experienced in finding the type of play we wish, however, casting will begin immediately upon finding a suitable play.

The College has purchased a new mimeograph, and delivery of the new machine was made last Thursday. Henceforth, the Campus Caller will be printed on this machine. A new paper cutter also has been added to the College equipment.

On Friday evening, February 28, two more of our students visited Golden Rule Home. Gordon Landry and Howard Beemer delivered sermonettes to the residents of the Home. Thank you all once again for allowing us to come and visit you.

Our chapel services were very interesting again this week. We had two outside speakers, who gave excellent thoughts in their addresses. The two speakers were Bro. Glenn Birkey from Rochelle, and Bro. J. M. Watkins of Oregon.

Dean Moore preached at Golden Rule Home last Friday night. The writer spoke last Sunday, March 9, at the Blessed Hope Church of God in Rockford, Ill.

The Student Players' group has now been organized, and the choice of the play made. Casting took place last week. The title of the play is "It Happened in June." It is a comedy in three acts, and will require nine players. Bro. Dick is to be director and producer of the play.

The students have placed a "work chart" on the bulletin board, which states the task, the pupil's name who is to do it, and the times when it is to be performed. This "work chart" was planned by the students and is entirely a voluntary gesture. It is being done to assist Mrs. Brewer and Mrs. Pearson, as the work is more than can be handled by two people. It does not take much of the student's time, and—so we are told—does help out considerably. We hope so.

W. Howard Beemer, News Editor.

ELIZABETH DAUBANTON

Elizabeth Radle was born in Germany on February 5, 1869. When a very small child, she was brought to America by her aunt and uncle, who settled at Roseco, Minn. When still very young, she came to Saint Cloud, where she thereafter made her home. On October 24, 1899, she was united in marriage to Peter Daubanton, and to them were born ten children, two of whom preceded her in death. The remaining three daughters and five sons were with her during her last brief illness. She fell asleep just a week after suffering a stroke. She also leaves fourteen grandchildren and fourteen great-grandchildren.

Her entire life was a ministry of love. She was always concerned by what she could do for the comfort and happiness of others, both in her family and in her church. For many years, she has been a staunch, faithful member of the Church of God in Saint Cloud, and she will be sadly missed by our circle, as well as by her family. The influence of a life of devotion such as she lived remains in the hearts and lives of those with whom she closely associated. Words of comfort were spoken by the writer, and she was laid to rest in North Star Cemetery, to await the sure call of her Lord and Master in the Resurrection Day. "If a man die, shall he live again?" asked Job. Then he answered his own question: "I know that my redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth . . . Yet in my flesh shall I see God" (Job 14:14; 19:25, 26). A. M. Jones.

"Moses verily was faithful in all his house, as a servant, for a testimony of those things which were to be spoken after" (Hebrews 3:5).

Close to God

Moses was very close to God. He lived in the mountain of Sinai and fasted for forty days and nights. (Ex. 34:28.) He not only had no bread but no water, also. Fasting helps to draw one closer to God. It generally is mentioned in connection with prayer. While on the mountain, God talked with Moses.

When Moses came before the people, his face shone so he wore a veil over it. The Israelites were afraid to come near him without the veil. Moses faithfully taught the people he was leading all that God had told him while he was on the mountain.

Close to Christ

We come close to Christ by obeying His teachings, through prayer and fasting, and spreading His word.

When a Christian has learned to know Jesus, His tender mercy and grace so freely given, then he is to "strengthen the brethren." That is what Peter was told to do when Jesus talked to him. Peter had followed Jesus for a long while. Jesus said when he was converted he was to "strengthen the brethren" (Luke 22:32). The call still comes today, "Repent ye therefore, and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out" (Acts 3:19a).

Christ Our Example

Jesus told the good news of the Kingdom of God. He said: "I must preach the kingdom of God . . . for therefore am I sent" (Luke 4:43). He especially preached the gospel to the poor. (V. 18.)

"Now is the accepted time; behold, now is the day of salvation," said Paul. (2 Cor. 6:2b.) Jesus also stressed that same fact. (Luke 4:19.) Paul also said, "If our gospel be hid, it is hid to them that are lost: in whom the god of this world hath blinded the minds of them which believe not" (2 Cor. 4:3, 4a).

Higher Education

The plan of salvation is so plainly taught in the Word that anyone who desires and reads can understand even with very little education. Sometimes it is even plainer to those who read little else than their Bibles. "Many are called, but few are chosen" are words of great weight. We are told to strive for the "mastery," to seek the "high calling" of Jesus Christ.

Those who master the first essential truths of the Word are ready to go on to a deeper study of the Word. That is truly higher education. Paul told Timothy to be an example of the believers. Paul told him, "That good thing which was committed unto thee keep by the Holy Ghost which dwelleth in us" (2 Tim. 1:14). What is "that good thing" he was to keep and to be mindful of? By careful study of verses in the first part of the same chapter, "that good thing" surely is the "gospel" which is still being preached.

We find that faith is needed before the gospel can be accepted. (Heb. 4:2.) That was the reason the Jewish people did not accept Christ. The Word preached was not mixed with faith. Bible studies, choirs, Sunday schools, are all "special talent" groups, perfecting workers for Christ's Kingdom. Do not miss any of these places of service if you are in a position to attend them.

"Study," "strengthen," "grow in grace and knowledge," forgetting no service you can do, or can learn to do for Christ. "Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another: and so much the more, as ye see the day approaching" (Heb. 10:25).

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Berean Department

Arlen Marsh, Editor

132 North Gardiner Avenue
Rockford - Illinois

One of the oddest conceptions that has yet crept into the Christian church is that which assumes that young people are sure to cause the body of Christ no end of disgrace.

Actually, as a middle-aged minister recently pointed out to us, it has, almost without exception, been the adult members of the church, Sunday school, or Berean society that has brought about the disgrace.

There is sound reason for this. Young people of themselves have not developed the influence of their elders; they are expected to be a little noisier, a little wilder, a little less conservative, than older ones. This very lack of standing protects the church against them when they do err—but adults, with the experience and accumulated influence of years behind them, have no such buffer to prevent an open scandal.

Young people gossip far too much. Their elders gossip more. For every young people's group broken up by reputation-stealing gossip and scandalmongering, it would be a simple matter to point to a half dozen churches broken up by the same evils among adults. Here, again, the power of the example and influence that inevitably accompany age is hard at work.

The bulk of Paul's writing was directed at these very facts. Corinthians committed adultery, became completely drunk in their Communion services, maintained one standard for the rich and another for the poor; this all, Paul said, was sin. His condemnation fell on those whom we, in our day, would call "old enough to know better," and it fell with a violent severity that most of us would not have the willingness to emulate.

So with Jesus. It was not the teen-agers and the children He condemned; it was the religious leadership—the adults, "Whited sepulchres." He called them; and, "Hypocrites," He called them, without minding any words and without effort at politeness. The Pharisees had no monopoly on hypocrisy; it still exists today, among both young and old.

Now why were the Pharisees, the religious leaders, hypocrites? Paul himself said he had worked harder at his Pharisaism than most others; he made a special point of saying it. Yet he was not acceptable until he had been miraculously converted. He had labored mightily; he had given liberally; he had learned much; he had taught a great deal. But he was still a hypocrite, and he was still misled.

Paul was a "young man" when his conversion came about; his influence in Judaism, however, even then was wide. He was still young after his conversion—and his influence became, almost immediately, equally great in Christian fields. Ability, sincerity, knowledge, training—these were what counted; years were no barrier to sin, and youth was no barrier to service. From youthful hypocrite and false teacher to youthful convert and genuine Christian was only one step on the road to Damascus.

Paul, like the other Pharisees, was hypocritical because he felt he was always right, because he failed to recognize his sins, because he plucked the mote from the eyes of others and overlooked the beam within his own. His broad influence and the strength of his example must have stirred Jews profoundly—as profoundly against Christianity in the first place as it stirred some of them in favor of Christianity later on.

Youth sins. So does old age. So does middle age. None can lay just claim to essential righteousness. We all are hypocrites; we all pretend to Christianity, and we all fall a good deal short of its high standards. We all must live together, and get along together as best we can in the face of differing temperaments and differing complexions and differing beliefs. This, really, is the backbone of Christianity; the closer we come to genuine co-operation, to genuine love of one another, to genuine practice of the golden rule, the farther we remove ourselves from hypocrisy.

There can be no classes in the church. This was one of the evils condemned by the Apostle Paul. Age is immaterial; faith, put to work in such service as may come our way, is the vital thing, whether we be ten or ninety. But we each have needs which are different from the needs of others and we must satisfy those needs if we are to build ourselves constantly stronger in character. Condemnation of others for not having those needs, for not having our individual reactions, is merely another mark of our lack of Christian feeling.

So what if some have disgraced the church? What if others disagree with us? It is not a matter of youth or age; it is a matter of human failure as a whole, of human inability to know everything and to understand everything alike.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CALENDAR

March 29, 30—Illinois Spring Conference at Ripley.
 April 27—Indiana Quarterly Conference at Morning Star Church of God, South Bend.

AN APPEAL TO TEXAS MEMBERS

I wish to add my appeal to that of Sr. W. L. Robbins of last summer.

It seems to me that if we are ever going to do anything for the building of God's work, it is now or never. Think of our children and grandchildren growing up, and no one to tell them about Jesus. How about ourselves? Will God's grace be sufficient for us, if we remain lukewarm toward Him? Will our Mediator, Jesus Christ, be willing to intervene to make up for our inaction?

Brethren out of the State are interested in us. Why cannot we get interested in ourselves? We can never hope to get another A. S. Bradley to pull us out of our lethargy. So why not face the facts and wake up? We need someone to help us, so why can't we employ an able minister, to stay in the State and work continually among the churches and isolated members?

Paul the Apostle went about teaching and preaching and making a living as a tent-maker, but in later years he hoped God would forgive him if he had not been a burden on the members. Before Bro. Bradley died, he, too, realized he had done wrong by not letting the members meet their obligations toward him in a financial way. So he did all he could to correct this mistake, as Paul did in his last days.

I am sure every member realizes the need of a leader in the State. I say a leader, because a minister cannot do the work in the State without plenty of help from every member, not only in a financial way, but also in a spiritual way.

In the past we have starved our ministers and let them "root-hog" or die. I was treasurer two years, and there was never a time but that we were several months behind with funds to meet our obligations. I am not willing that we start again without at least $1,000 in the treasury. There are surely at least ten in the State who can donate as much as $100 or more. We already have two $100 checks for that purpose, besides some smaller contributions, which makes a total of $309.50 now in the treasury.

Our temporary treasurer is Miss Wilda McCorkle, 215 W. Main St., Gatesville, Texas. Contributions for the State work may be sent to her.

Let me appeal to each and every member in Texas to help get things moving in Texas by next summer.

Who knows when Christ may come, and catch us asleep without oil in our vessels, as the five foolish virgins in the parable?

It seems to me the time is short to make amends for what we have neglected.

A. R. Wolfe, Gatesville, Texas.

MICHIGAN STATE CONFERENCE

The Michigan Spring Conference will convene at the Pennellwood Church in Grand Rapids, March 22 and 23, with the State's ministers as speakers. The program is as follows:

Saturday evening, 7:30, Ellsworth Routsou; Sunday morning, 10:00, Sunday school and 11:00, Harvey Krogh; dinner at noon; Sunday afternoon, 3:00, we hope to have Leonard Brown here to give a report of his work in Baraga and Zelon; Sunday evening, 7:30, John Demchfield.

A hearty welcome is extended to all to come and fellowship together.

Ada Simpson, Secy.

VIRGINIA NOTES

Funeral services for John H. Pifer, eighty-three years of age, were conducted by J. R. LeCrone on Friday, February 21, at the Christian Church in Strasburg, Va. Burial was in Riverview Cemetery, Strasburg. Death followed complications after a major operation. Mr. Pifer will be remembered as the husband of the former Emilie Boyer of Stevens City. Until recent months when illness confined him more or less to their home, he was a regular attendant at the Maurertown church. We shall miss him at our services.

We are glad to report improved health for our several members in the Fort Valley. Bro. and Sr. Ed Coverston and Bro. Funk are on the mend; and Sr. Marie Coverston who was forced to leave school because of poor health is also improved.

Sr. Ella Johnson is back at work following two weeks of flu.

Bro. Carmel Boyer is making a satisfactory recovery from a major operation at Winchester Hospital, February 20. Bro. Boyer is now at his home near Stevens City.

Our Valley has been "digging out," following a heavy snowfall, which blocked the roads to such an extent that schools were closed four days until roads could be opened. This abundance of snow is unusual for our section, and we are not equipped to move so much snow in a hurry.

Plans are being made for a daily vacation Bible school at Browntown the last week in June. Interest in this school was awakened last fall during a week of special meetings. Much interest was shown in Bibli-o-graph pictures used to illustrate stories for the children which we used each evening before the sermon.

Mrs. J. R. LeCrone.

"HAVING PUT HIS HAND TO THE PLOW"

Having begun an ever-increasing program of Christian service, National Bible Institution cannot look back. To look back to a lesser program or a decrease in service already being rendered is to fail in individual and collective stewardship.

Evangelism; Pastoral Aid; College and Summer School; Printing and Publishing; the ministry of The Restitution Herald—all combine to make a unit of service with a guaranteed future. To curtail the present program of any department means a loss in the effectiveness of all.

Our ability to serve is entirely dependent upon our free-will contributions. For the past few months, double costs and diminished contributions in some departments have exhausted our operating fund balance. We cannot operate below income. Only your immediate contributions can spare us the necessity of curtailing our present, most worth-while program.

Can we look back to a lesser aim and remain fit for the Kingdom of God?

National Bible Institution, Inc.,
 Dale Dunbar, Treasurer.

GLEANINGS FROM THE FIELD

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

Additional news items may be found on page 11.

Some weeks ago, we stated that prospects were good for securing another man for work in the print shop. It turned out that our estimate of the prospects were not so good. We are still without another printer.

Bro. and Sr. Charles Pearson, caretaker and matron at Golden Rule Home, speak in behalf of all the Home family in expressing thanks to the Dixon Dorens Society for gift of a new electric toaster.

Janet Marie arrived, March 2, at the home of Bro. and Sr. Earl B. Friend, Newkirk, Okla. Congratulations!

Bro. Daniel Judy, a former student of Oregon Bible College, is now a salesman in the men's clothing department of Julius Garbinkel & Co., Washington, D. C. Daniel also is working with brethren in Washington, and preaching for them twice monthly.

ILLINOIS CONFERENCE NEWS

Chicago. The Chicago church has been enjoying excellent attendance at its meetings, and added interest in its work. We are beginning to see some fruits now from the work begun two years ago. We pray and work earnestly for a building from which we can expand our efforts. A new sound projector has been purchased, to be paid for by private contributions. We are assured that visual education is one of the best ways to educate and interest young people (and adults, too) in the practical side of the Lord's work. Illinois' unusual weather has played havoc with our people, keeping some of them confined to home most of the winter. How wonderful God's Kingdom will be!

Eldorado. "On Sunday evening, January 19, Sr. Beulah Murphy received the right hand of fellowship, having been baptized that afternoon." The Average Sunday school attendance at Eldorado in 1946 was 53. This is a ten per cent increase over last year's average attendance. From the Eldorado church paper, "Some people grow under responsibilities, others merely swell."—Oliver Beacon.

Ripley. The church basement was recently painted, which adds much to its beauty and cleanliness. (Ripley is preparing for Spring Conference, March 29, 30. Are you?) A senior choir is organized, and practices each Tuesday evening, in preparation for future church singing. Church attendance is increasing in Ripley, too. Thank the Lord! Bro. C. E. Lapp, enroute home from Ministerial Conference, preached two evenings in the Ripley church.

Macomb. C. E. Lapp spoke in Macomb on January 31. The Macomb church has instituted a campaign to be "Just a bit kinder." What a splendid thought! From the Macomb Bulletin, "Our goal during February is to be 'just a bit kinder.' Kindness is a simple virtue, yet there is much that we can do to develop it in our lives. . . . Jesus gave His life, not only at the cross, but during the years that went before. He was never too tired to break the bread of life to hungry people; He was never too busy to love the little children that came to Him; He was indeed kind. We ought to follow in His steps."

Oregon. An afternoon district Berean rally was held on January 26. The evening service was centered around a sound motion picture. Mrs. F. L. Austin was in Grand Rapids, Mich., February 1-7 working with the General Conference Song Book Committee. We may have our own books, yet. The Oregon church played best again this year to the ministers gathered for Ministerial Conference. Hospitality is a wonderful virtue in an individual; how much greater in a large group. The Doreans Society has been very active during the past year. Average attendance was 20. Ladies—take notice. New projects—"pin-up" verses for memory work between meetings, and making sheets and pillow cases for Illinois Conference Hall. Golden Rule Home has made thirteen pillows for the Hall. Fifteen more are needed. How about that, ladies! Average Berean attendance for January, 33. February 16 Sunday school attendance was over one hundred.

East Oregon Chapel. The Chapel now has its new basement. Gordon Landry, superintendent, is now issuing the Chapel Monthly, a nicely printed four-page bulletin for Chapel members. Illness has been a source of sorrow to the Chapel, also. On Monday evening, Deember 30, "Mary Grace Good and Leo Hoffman were united in marriage in the Chapel. Mary has been a faithful member of the Sunday school since 1937. She was baptized last summer."

DIXON, ILLINOIS

The church enjoyed a Valentine party on the evening of February 13.

On February 19, Mrs. Verna Thayer, National Evangelist for children, showed some very beautiful pictures, demonstrating her work, as she talked. We were very glad to have her with us, and hope she soon will come again. Her demonstration of her work was very much appreciated.

The Doreans Society presented Golden Rule Home, Oregon, Ill. with a new automatic toaster.

The Young Ladies' Bible Class enjoyed a party at the home of Mrs. Lyle Drew on February 21.

Our Sunday school and morning worship service have increased in attendance and inspiration. The Young Ladies' Bible Class has been helping in the worship service. We recently have been printing programs for the worship service. C. Alan McLain.

MEDITATION

Wouldn't it be grand if each one of us would say something nice about the other one of us, instead of saying things that bring sorrow and tear at heartstrings? Wouldn't it be so much better to live in the spirit and not in the letter? There is no one of us above reproach that we should chide our brother. Rather, let us share the joy of telling good . . . about another.—Mary Mae Nedrow.

Texas News and Views

Counsel from the Brethren

Sr. W. L. Robbins of Riviera writes:

"Our hearts were made glad to hear that the church at Ater had made a start toward reviving the Texas Conference. We know that God is not unrighteous to forget their work and labor of love which they have showed toward His Name. 'The harvest truly is plenteous, but the labourers are few; pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth labourers into his harvest.' Let us show our faith by our works, and send our donations for the State work to the temporary treasurer, Miss Wilda McCorkle.

"We were also made glad by the coming of Bro. M. W. Lyon. He was with us a few days and gave us three fine sermons. He is very earnestly working to try to locate all the members in this State. Texas is a large State, and the members badly scattered over it, but he is doing a wonderful work, for which we are very thankful, and feel that much good will come from his effort and labor of love. I pray that God will bless every effort made in His Name. Pray for us and for the work in Texas."

Sr. John Guthrie of Mullin writes:

"I would like to send these words of exhortation to the brothers and sisters scattered abroad (and especially in the State of Texas), to be 'steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord.' We are promised that where two or three are gathered together in His Name, He will be in their midst. How much that gathering together will strengthen and encourage us to be steadfast in the faith! So let's not neglect the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is . . . and so much the more, as we see the day approaching.' If I could be granted any wish, it would be to be able to meet each Sunday with those of like precious faith."

Sr. Phil Jefferies of Abilene writes:

"It seems to me that we need leaders in the church work, more than anything. I know that is what we need here; and I believe, to take Texas in general, that is why we don't have more organized churches today. May Texas, and all other states, wake up to their Christian duties, and work as never before, as the coming of our Lord draws nigh."

How Many from Texas in the Summer School?

Texas should have a goodly number of both youth and adults at this summer's Bible Training School at Oregon, Ill. Leaders are needed as nothing else, and this is our opportunity to get leadership training. Read the announcement in another place in this issue. Begin now to plan attending.

If you think it is too far away, and the cost of travel too high, remember what has happened to Texas because of the lack of leaders. What good will our money do us if our young people are lost? This is an investment in salvation.

For those who go, it will be the experience of a lifetime. Not only the Bible instruction, but the rich fellowship, the fine friendships that will be made with other young people of the Church of God from many parts of the country, and the privilege of being in Oregon, and seeing the various institutions of the General Conference, will reward anyone who goes far more than the time and money necessary to make the trip.

Cannot we have at least ten young people from Texas in the Summer School this year?

Around the State

Here are some brief reports from various parts of the State where we have groups of members, to help familiarize you with them.

Mullin has something over fifty members, including Goldthwaite, which has twelve or more. They have a good concrete building. There is no organization, and they have preaching occasionally.

Ater has nearly fifty members, several of which live in Gatesville, ten miles southeast, and several at more distant places. They meet in a community building where Sunday school is held weekly and preaching occasionally. They have a partial organization.

Corpus Christi has nineteen members, and weekly Sunday school and preaching services are held at the meeting place, 3316 Ave. D, on the North Beach. Bro. George Waters, same address, is the pastor. The Sunday school, including a goodly number of children, numbers from twenty-five to thirty.

Sweetwater has twenty-two members, some in town and some at the old Palaya community about ten miles north. Preaching is held occasionally, usually at the M. V. Brantley home, 1210 N. Elm St. Bro. E. O. Stewart, who lived there for many years, moved to Marengo, Iowa, last fall, and is working for the Iowa Conference. Mrs. Stewart is still in Sweetwater, but may join her husband in the spring if he likes the cold weather well enough to stay.

Abilene has sixteen members. Some live in town, others at Hawley, twelve miles north. Preaching is held occasionally, usually at the Delk Schoolhouse at Hawley or one of the homes.

Rotan has eleven members, and there are three more at near-by Hobbs, and several others not members. This is one of the new centers where we might build up a work.

Big Spring is another new center that might make a good nucleus. There are thirteen members, including two at Knott, twenty miles northwest.

These last four places are all within a radius of about one hundred miles, and could be served in a circuit by one man quite easily.

Houston has ten members, well scattered over that large city. There has been no attempt to get together, but there are several interested people who are not members, so it might be worth while to try to have some kind of a meeting there.

El Paso has nine members at present, having lost several, like most other places. They meet each Sunday at the home of one of the members. There are twelve children in the group. The members are: Mr. and Mrs. Carol Jagers, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Jagers, Malcolm East, Mrs. Chas. Mahoney, Mrs. Zada De Busk, Mrs. M. G. Mitcheltree, and Mrs. R. D. Lindan. The latter family recently moved there from Greeley, Colo. Mrs. Lindan was Jessie Guthrie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Guthrie of Mullin.

The Dallas-Fort Worth area has fifteen members, although this section has not been checked over as yet. There are also several others in near-by localities.

Small groups of isolated members are scattered around the State as follows, listing places of more than one and less than ten members:

Arlington 3, Amarillo 3, Anson 5, Aspermont 5, Austin 9, Beaumont 2, Breckenridge 2, several in Brownfield, Brownwood 8, some in Canyon, Colorado City 3, Floresville 2, Gonzales 4, Goose Creek 2, Harlingen 2 or more, Kilbuck 2, Kingsville 4, Lamesa 2, Lathfield 2, Lameta 2, Loop 2, Lorraine 3, Lubing 3, Marfa 3, Matador 3, Merkel 3, Mertzon 2, Odessa 3, Plains 4, Raymondville 2, Riviera 2, Rochester 4, Ropesville 2, Rule 3, San Angelo 2, San Antonio 5, San Saba 2, Shallowater 2, Silverton 3, Springlake 4, Stanton 2, Tokio 5, Weatherford 2, Westbrook 6, Wilson 2, Yorkum 2.

This is according to information to date. A number of places have not yet been visited, and it is certain there are others not listed.

Don't let your Restitution Herald subscription expire. Many people overlook renewing when their time is up. Quite a large number have subscribed in Texas in the last few months. When your subscription expires, renew it promptly, so you will not miss this weekly "letter from home." All new subscriptions and renewals to The Restitution Herald during March will be given a free year's subscription to Pathfinder magazine. The price is $2.50 for the two papers for a year.

"My beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labour is not in vain in the Lord."

TEXAS CONFERENCE ANNOUNCEMENT

The Ater church has agreed to entertain the State Conference next Summer.

Accordingly, it will be held August 16 through 24, beginning Saturday night and closing the second Sunday night.

Ater is in Coryell County, ten miles northwest of Gatesville.

Plan now to attend. Let us make this a great gathering of God's people to carry forward His work as never before. This is what we have been praying for and hoping for.

Let all Texans rally to make this conference an occasion of great blessing to our people.

NUMBER 24

"They Knew Not"

By Francis E. Burnett, Jordan, Missouri

"Noah found grace in the eyes of the Lord" (Genesis 6:8).

AS JESUS and the apostles were leaving the Temple, the apostles sought to show Him the greatness of "the buildings of the temple." Jesus said to them, "See ye not all these things? verily I say unto you, There shall not be left here one stone upon another, that shall not be thrown down." The disciples came to Him privately, saying: "Tell us, when shall these things be? and what shall be the sign of thy coming, and of the end of the world?" (Matt. 24:1-3.)

The apostles associated the destruction of the Temple with the coming of Jesus and end of the world or consummation of the Age. As one can read in Matthew 24, Jesus proceeded to relate to the apostles certain happenings and circumstances that would be signs preceding His coming. Jesus gave many signs showing there would be tribulation; then the wrath of God would be followed with His actual "coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory" (Matt. 24:30). Then, as an afterthought, Jesus began to discuss the day of His coming. He told the most outstanding of all signs; and, brethren of the Church of God, we should awaken that it will be fulfilled, even now is being fulfilled, before our very eyes. We quote: "As the days of Noe were, so shall also the coming of the Son of man be. For as in the days that were before the flood they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, until the day that Noe entered into the ark, and knew not until the flood came, and took them all away; so shall also the coming of the Son of man be" (vv. 37-39).

In the days of Noah, we read that "God saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually. . . . The earth also was corrupt before God, and the earth was filled with violence. . . . for all flesh had corrupted his way upon the earth" (Gen. 6: 5, 11, 12).

It should not be difficult for us to realize how evil those people and days must have been. All about us we see all manner of evil and men devising evil. In our associations nowadays even with a group of Christians, we cannot avoid hearing evil stories or hearing of ways to "beat" the OPA, or something else of similar nature. There is far more evil than that, however, for many men are paid large sums of money to devise appealing advertisements for magazines or billboards, also to write stories full of filth. The days of Noah must have been extremely evil, for our God is a merciful God; yet He repented "that he had made man on the earth" (Gen. 6:6). Do you doubt that these days are as evil "as the days of Noe"?

Francis E. Burnett

God also saw the earth was corrupt, for "all flesh had corrupted his way upon the earth." Was this figurative language or literal? Was it possible that the earth had been made corrupt? We think it not only possible but also probable that the earth was made corrupt.

Is it possible to do the same today? Doubtless, many laugh at such a suggestion. More than this, many Christians are helping to corrupt the earth. It may be that it is done in ignorance, but we believe it is being done. For example: last fall, distillers bought thousands and thousands of bushels of corn, paying a premium to obtain it. Did the ones who participated corrupt the earth by selling its product for evil use? Again, at the present time there is great business in the lumber industry in selling stave bolts out of which are made barrel staves. The greater per cent of these barrels are filled with whiskey. I ask you, Is not that corrupting the earth? Is it right for a Christian to be a participant in such acts? Christians should be very careful to uphold righteous principles even if it costs.

Jesus told the apostles that as (Please turn to page 10)

Gethsemane

From the Jordan River, where His baptism prefigured His death, Jesus walked constantly in shadow of the cross, though His own disciples disbelieved He would come to that ignominious end. Gradually, that shadow deepened: friends forsook Him; priests plotted against Him; Gethsemane sensed a coming solemnity; men of His own craft nailed two timbers into a cross; soon would come quaking of the earth and three hours of intense darkness illumined only by forks of lightning.

Popular observation that the Scriptures nowhere record that Jesus laughed inadequately pictures the Man of Sorrows, for, indeed, the usual counterthought is that Jesus did laugh occasionally, though the Scriptures are silent regarding such times of His mirth. Well did Isaiah foresee the Burden Bearer as one whose loyalty to duty left little or no place for mirth. Said the Prophet: "Many were astonished at thee; his visage was so marred more than any man, and his form more than the sons of men" (52:14). Thus did men abuse Him who was the "express image of [God's] person"—marring divine beauty into a despicable visage worse than that of any other human. Then "we turned as it were our faces from him"! Our mistreatment of the Christ was so plainly reflected from His face, that we esteemed him "smitten of God and afflicted."

Judas already was involved in his cunning. Jerusalem was aquiver with Passover celebration. Only the Eleven were near. "Then cometh Jesus with them unto a place called Gethsemane, and saith unto the disciples, "Sit ye here while I go and pray yonder." Then, taking Peter, James, and John a little way farther with Him into the Garden, Jesus "began to be sorrowful and very heavy," saying to these three, "My soul is exceeding sorrowful, even unto death: tarry ye here, and watch with me." (Matt. 26:36-38.)

All too commonly, Christians have accepted thought of a famous painting, rather than thought of the Scripture, in visualizing Christ in Gethsemane: seeing Him kneeling there at a rock, having His hands clasped, and a ray of light shining down upon Him as He looked heavenward. That is a beautiful picture, but the true picture is one of intense agony—"He went a little farther, and fell on his face, and prayed." Hear His frenzied cry: "O my Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me: nevertheless, not as I will, but as thou wilt" (v. 39). Then "appeared an angel unto him . . . strengthening him."

Returning to Peter, James, and John, Jesus found them sleeping. Sleeping! "What," cried He, "could ye not watch with me one hour? Watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation: the spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak." Tired and unappreciative, they slept in very presence of an angel sent to save the Christ from untimely demise. Alone, Jesus went away again the second time, and prayed, saying, O my Father, if this cup may not pass away from me except I drink it, thy will be done." Returning to His closest friends, He "found them asleep again"! Without rebuking them, He left them, went away, and "prayed the third time, saying the same words" (v. 44).

Whether or not Jesus foresaw that His cup of sorrow in Gethsemane ever would bless men, such rich fruitage has resulted to all mankind. Throughout the world, men face trials that momentarily seem unbearable, insurmountable. Somebody is bargaining in the shadows. Clergymen may be "aplot." Close friends follow part way into the darkness; closest friends follow a little farther; then all slink into slumber. Despair often is near, yet in such trials one is electrified into faith and action by vision of the Christ in Gethsemane: fallen on His face—praying, praying—praying—then up and ready to carry His cross to the top of Calvary's hill!

What then of any betraying kiss? What then of swords and staves? "The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much." "The angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear him, and he delivereth them."

The Illinois Spring Conference

Brethren of the Church of God throughout Illinois have a joy and a responsibility awaiting them at the forthcoming conference at Ripley (Friday evening until Sunday evening, March 28-30). Always, there is a good conference at Ripley: good "cats," good meetings, good people.

Christ in the Garden

By Gordon Landry, Oregon Bible College

THE GOSPEL the Church of God believes is based upon the death, burial, and resurrection of Christ. All our doctrine, whether in agreement or disagreement with orthodox doctrine, emerges from this threefold foundation. The doctrines of mortality of the soul, the resurrection, the second coming of Christ, the establishment of God's Kingdom upon earth, and so forth, are all offsprings of the root; the superstructure added to the foundation.

To grasp the full import of the death, burial, and resurrection of our Saviour, one should understand the Garden scene. Leaving all His disciples but Peter, James, and John near the entrance to the Garden, He led them a short distance; then, feeling "sorrowful and very heavy," He left them and went on alone. "He went a little farther, and fell on his face, and prayed, saying, O my Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me: nevertheless not as I will, but as thou wilt" (Matt. 26:39). These words of Christ can be interpreted in three ways. The prevalent idea today is that He was praying that He might escape the agony of the cross. Yet the writer of the Hebrew Letter said we should look unto Jesus "who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God" (12:2). If Christ was looking forward to the joy that would be His after His resurrection (which joy He could receive only if He were crucified for mankind), why should one think He would ask the Father to spare Him that suffering, and thus endanger His own hope for eternal life as well as that of the world?

"Well," you say, "Christ was in agony at the time. He knew that one of His chosen friends would soon betray Him; another would deny Him, and the remainder would flee from before His persecutors. He had a great deal on His mind, and perhaps He did not realize what He was saying."

We know by the life of Christ, however, that He always spoke chosen words of wisdom. Why should one make this an exception?

"Well, then, if you will not accept that interpretation, perhaps you will accept this: Matthew was the writer of the words and he was left near the entrance of the Garden with seven of the other disciples. He did not actually hear the words of Jesus. Maybe Peter, James, and John overheard Christ (for they were not far away), and from their remarks to him, Matthew did the best he knew how to record the words."

Simple reasoning would uproot this theory. In verse 40, the verse immediately following the one recording His words, Jesus came to His disciples and found them asleep. The second reason we would give for not accepting this theory is the words of Peter as recorded in his second Epistle: "The prophecy came not in old time by the will of man: but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost" (1:21). Likewise, writers of the New Testament were guided by the Power of God to make authentic accounts of those things of which they wrote. For proof, read Acts 2:1-4.

Another person says, "I never did like the interpretation that Jesus was praying to escape the cross. That seems sacrilegious to me. That would seem to indicate that Jesus was opposing the will of God, saying, 'Father, I do not want to go to the cross, but if you want me to go, I suppose I can.' I think that Jesus was praying for God to relieve Him of mental anguish. He did have numerous problems on His mind. I think He wanted all of them removed, that He might have only the cross to worry about."

To the writer, this view seems to contain a half-truth. The only thing wrong seems to be this: Jesus was not mentally weak. Such trivialities as the problems and cares of the day did not even bother Him, much less worry Him. Any person with enough mental control to restrain from using power (though he had it) to turn stones into bread when he had fasted forty days and forty nights, any person who could resist being great in the eyes of mankind for vanity's sake, any person who would not yield to the temptation to accept all the kingdoms of this world, would surely have enough mental constraint not to let these ephemeral things bother him. However, I yield to the fact that Jesus had much on His mind (the nature of the burdens I do not know), so perhaps there was a little mental anguish on His part.

"Well, then, if you completely disbelieve my theory that Jesus was praying to escape the cross, and you believe only half of his theory, just what is your belief, and why?" asks the first person.

I believe that Jesus was praying to escape a premature death in the Garden. Luke 22:44 records the fact that Christ was in agony and that "his sweat was as it were great drops of blood falling down to the ground." The account does not say that Christ sweat blood, but that He sweat "as it were . . . blood." Science and medicine have authentic records that men have (Please turn to page 15)

Road to the Kingdom

By Howard H. Hawkins, East Rochester, Ohio

DOUBTLESS, most of us at one time or other have planned or taken a cross-country trip to some destination. Before starting such a trip, one usually goes into a certain amount of detail regarding luggage, stop-overs, and so forth, and last but not least, "counting the cost" of such a trip.

As one becomes interested in the truth concerning the Kingdom and all its greatness, through the study and aid of someone as teacher—covering possibly ten or twelve lessons on "the first principles of the oracles of God" (Heb. 5:12)—and then has taken the name of Christ through baptism, he is ready for the long journey on the "Road to the Kingdom."

When one travels across the country, he finds downgrades, upgrades, sharp curves, railway crossings, and so forth, which cause him to be on the alert at all times: not like the man who put his hand to the plow and looked backwards or sideways. This surely courts disaster.

To those willing to make the sacrifice to go aboard the wheel of time and journey onward, pleasures and beautiful scenery will not abound entirely. Joys and sorrows will be experienced in the Christian life, and trials will sometimes test the very elect.

The observing person will always heed the warning sign at a railroad crossing—"STOP - LOOK - LISTEN." It complies with the law requiring railroads to warn all people. Its warning is for everyone's good—to save the lives of people. There is exactly such a warning in the Bible.

Stop—"Now we know that what things soever the law saith, it saith to them that are under the law: that every mouth may be stopped, and all the world may become guilty before God" (Rom. 3:19).

Look—"Search the scriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life" (John 5:39).

Listen—"Incline your ear, and come unto me: hear, and your soul shall live; and I will make an everlasting covenant with you, even the sure mercies of David" (Isa. 55:3).

As the journey continues, there will be times when it becomes necessary to make decisions which will result in making a sacrifice to forego certain things. We are admonished to "present [our] bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable to God, which is [our] reasonable service."

We are told, also, to "love not the world, neither the things that are in the world." Then Paul tells us to "not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what that good, and acceptable, and perfect, will of God." The "world" here mentioned refers, I believe, to those groups of people who follow certain customs or fashions worldly affairs contrary to Christian principles.

If one is in doubt at any time as to what is popular habits or custom with the world, he soon will learn through cards, cigarettes, drinks (see Reader's Digest, February, p. 45), and various forms of profanity probably will head the list. Only a few years ago solemnity or reverence, due patients, pervaded hospitals. What a contrast now! Last summer finding it necessary to spend five weeks in hospital, the writer noted the many users of cigarettes—both men and women. Strange to say, patients who cared to, if able, were permitted to smoke. Once in a great while, one will hear someone say there is no mention of cigarettes in the Bible, so why worry about it? Jesus had something to say along that line.

Matthew 15:11: "Not that which goeth into the mouth defileth a man; but that which cometh out of the mouth this defileth a man." (Did you ever stop to think that both smoke and profanity come "out of the mouth.")

It is a sad plight on religion when we learn and see about cards being played in some church parlors by ladies' group, and no voice is raised against cigarettes in many church basements. I venture to assume that the popularity of card games in general are tainted with cigarette smoke. Humanity seems to glory in doing the things which seem to be popular.

Most of the vices are contracted before the victim is aware of it. No one puts the intoxicating cup to his lips with the intention of becoming a drunkard, but drunkards are made nevertheless. The tendency of all evil is to be made the moral perceptions. A wrong act once done, is easily repeated. The gambler who frequents the slot machines chance becomes more and more infatuated by every visit to the haunts of that vice, until his manhood is destroyed and he has become the slave of a passion stronger than himself. No matter how small these habits are, they constantly larger and become more destructive. All rivers start from small streams. A match costs only a fraction of a penny, but it can cause damage of millions of dollars.

Howard H. Hawkins

God's Word is a lamp to our feet, and a light to the pathway before us. Thus, we have been forewarned of the any so-called popular things of the world, and those traveling on the strait and narrow road expect to arrive in the Kingdom "clothed with white robes," not tainted nor riddled with worldly vices. Theirs will be the reward of eternal life beyond the grave, if they live the life God has revealed by which salvation alone can be obtained. Before the destination on the cross-country trip is reached, it often becomes necessary to stop for gasoline and refreshments. Likewise, on the spiritual journey, after a laborious week one always should aim to attend the regular church services to be refreshed and built up spiritually—"building up our most holy faith." As Paul said, we should "not forsake the assembling of ourselves together," but we should "stand fast in the faith . . . and be strong."

Oftentimes, it takes courage (Please turn to page 11)

The Law of Love

By Mary Mae Nedrow, Oregon, Illinois

"Love worketh no ill to his neighbour: therefore love is the fulfilling of the law" (Romans 13:10).

WHEN JESUS died on the cross at Calvary, the old dispensation, the law, was nailed to the tree, and a new dispensation, the law of love, was ushered in. Shortly before His crucifixion, He summed up the whole law in two short statements: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God," and, "Thou shalt love thy neighbour" (Matt. 22:37-39). James, the brother of our Lord, called it "the royal law" (James 2:8). It is the "law of the spirit of life in Christ Jesus." Our lives are changed. A Christian overcomes the works of the flesh and is a "new creature in Christ Jesus." "The fruit of the spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance: against such there is no law" (Gal. 5:22, 23).

If we truly love God and our neighbor, there is no need for a law, for a true Christian abides by the royal law of love. "The law is not made for a righteous man, but . . . for the ungodly and sinners" (1 Tim. 1:9). "God saw every thing that he had made, and, behold, it was very good" (Gen. 1:31). God made everything pure and good, but man abused it. "To the pure all things are pure; but to them that are defiled and unbelieving nothing is pure."

The Hebrews were God's chosen people. They were to be as lights in a world of darkness. They failed miserably. He turned to the Gentiles. Peter, writing to a church of Jews and Gentiles who had become Christians, said: "Be ye an elect race, a royal priesthood" (1 Peter 2:9, 10). Peter was now calling the despised Gentiles "the people of God." Christ had wrought a change in Peter's heart. All his prejudices had vanished, and he understood that there was now no barrier of race or color. John the Revelator, in speaking of the redeemed he saw in a vision who were purchased with the blood of Christ, mentioned "men out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation," saying also, "Thou . . . hast made us unto our God kings and priests: and we shall reign upon the earth" (Rev. 5:9, 10). It seems hard for many to understand Christ's estimate of men.

Devotion to God and to our Saviour should come before anything else. Then pride disappears. "God is no respecter of persons: but in every nation he that feareth [respects or reverences] him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him" (Acts 10:34, 35). True, sincere worship comes from the heart, and only then is it acceptable to God. Not only must our outward acts be above reproach, but also our thought and inner motives, too, must be pure. God knows the "intents of the heart." Said Jesus, "Blessed are the pure in heart."

If we strive to obey the royal law of love, we shall see our own unworthiness. God does not hear the prayers of the self-righteous. Jesus made this very plain in His Parable of the Pharisee and the Publican. There was no manifestation of love in the words of the Pharisee, either for his fellow men. He was measuring others by the yardstick of his own standards of right and wrong when he extolled his own virtues. Unlike the Pharisee, the publican saw only his own unrighteousness. In love for God, and in sorrow and repentance, he could say only: "God be merciful to me, a sinner." Jesus ended His parable by saying: "I tell you, this man went down to his house justified rather than the other: for every one that exalteth himself shall be abased and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted."

"Love worketh no ill to his neighbour: therefore love is the fulfilling of the law." Love will be the key to world-righteousness when Jesus comes. "Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ."

God's House in the Country

The Brush Creek (Ohio) Church of God

By Pastor G. E. Marsh

THE THUNDERS of the war between the States had scarcely died away when "a church with a purpose" was established in the country overlooking Brush Creek in lovely Miami Valley, Ohio. The work here was founded in the same year that the Indiana State Conference, the original constitution of which lies before me as I write, was organized; six years after the Blessed Hope congregation was set in order by M. Joblin in Cleveland; and twelve years after the first Church-of-God conference was held in Ohio. For, according to our records, "It was in the evening of October 29, 1857, that the first Ohio conference assembled. It was called to order by Elder Joseph Marsh" (granduncle of the writer and editor of the first Church-of-God paper published in America) "who gave an opening discourse on the text found in Romans 1:1-6."

Again turning to our historical files, "The Brush Creek brethren first organized their church in 1869. Brother J. F. Wagoner of Indiana" (whose family had moved from Ohio some years earlier) "had been holding meetings in the vicinity and it was largely through his efforts that the church was started."

By 1906 the membership, which now exceeds one hundred fifty, had increased to fifty-one. Elders at that time were Rufus A. Curtis, now resting in the cemetery beside the church he loved, and John Lehman, son of Henry Lehman, one of the founders of the organization, who, though well past fourscore years, remains a loved counselor and active supporter of its work. The deaconess was Anna Lehman (Mrs. Eidemiller), now residing with her brother John in West Milton. The deacons were David Pearson and Luther Worley, both of whom, having "served their generation" faithfully for many years, sleep in the Lord. The treasurer was Deborah Pearson, who also has found "a quiet resting place" in which to await the Master's summons to immortality.

Among the outstanding ministers who have served the church in a pastoral capacity through the eighty-eight years of its history are the following: J. F. Wagoner its founder; J. H. Anderson, who was one of the ablest expounders of the Scriptures our denomination has produced; James A. Patrick, first president of the General Conference; Sydney E. Magaw, its present secretary; H. U. Krogh, Jr., now its vice president; and M. W. Lyon, our national evangelist.

The Brush Creek Church is one of the most active, well-organized, and smoothly running congregations of which we have any knowledge. Its business affairs are carried on by an efficient board headed by three elders: the pastor, James Kessler, and A. J. Hoke, the latter being second vice president and business manager of National Bible Institution. This board meets monthly for the transaction of the constantly increasing business of the church. The elders alternate from year to year as its presiding officers, James Kessler occupying that position at the present time. In large matters of policy the congregation is asked to express its desires and preferences by which the final action of the board is governed. No one person or group dominates in the forming of such decisions. All speak freely in approval or in opposition; but, when a decision is reached, every member of the board together with the entire congregation stands loyally and unitedly behind it.

Among the signal achievements of this rural church, the following may be specially noted: In addition to showing its interest in the effort by paying some $2,500 to the purchase of the buildings and grounds, Brush Creek has sent more students to Oregon Bible College than any other in the country. At least four of these former members are now engaged actively in pastoral labor and others are preparing for such work. Furthermore, Brush Creek Church has always taken an enthusiastic and sustaining interest in the evangelistic and other general efforts of National Bible Institution.

Locally, since last August the church has purchased, furnished, and within $2,000 completed payment on a six-room modern home for its pastor's family in Tipp City. The Sewing Circle has bought a new electric range which will soon be connected in the kitchen of the church. The interior of the building is to be redecorated and stained glass windows installed this summer. Two of our five basement classrooms recently have been equipped with modern desk chairs and additional folding chairs secured for other classes. The entire church is carpeted and has an excellent automatically controlled heating system. This economic side of the picture but reflects the spiritual consecration and unity of its membership.

"God's House in the Country" carries on a full and comprehensive program throughout the year. Regular services are held on Sunday both morning and evening, with Sunday school preceding morning worship. Sunday school attendance ranges from seventy-four (about the lowest of the winter) to one hundred eighty-five when all records were broken on June Meeting Sunday last summer. Our vacation Bible school attendance exceeded that of the combined schools of two of our nearest neighboring churches. Attendance at morning preaching services is practically the same as that of the Sunday school.

Our Sunday school superintendent is Sam Hoke, a business man of Dayton, who drives about eighteen miles each way to be present on time each Sunday morning. The young people's and the younger married people's classes of course are organized. They have their own officers and plan and carry out their own activities which include monthly business meetings and social gatherings. The young people's class, "The Class of the Way," with nearly thirty on its roll has a regular attendance of from eighteen to twenty-four. It is taught by the pastor and closely associated with the Ohio state youth movement of our denomination. It is significant to observe that there are always more members of this class present at Sunday school than at the week day parties and soft ball and basketball games which are conducted under the auspices of the youth movement. This class forms our morning service choir, and on occasion it takes complete charge of the evening service, including the sermon.

Berean meetings are held on Tuesday nights at the church, some of the teachers (Please turn to page 11)

Temperance Plus

By Madge Savage, Waite Park, Minnesota

THE facts stated in Brother C. E. Randall's page in THE RESTITUTION HERALD of February 25, 1947, about an unusual "Honeymoon" are of great concern to the Christian.

Let us draw a line, vertically, on a sheet of paper. On one side write, "Right"; on the other write, "Wrong." We could make quite a list of things we could easily place in the proper column. There are some things, however, that are not so easily placed. It would appear that there should be a middle column, yet the Word of God says to be lukewarm is to be cast away from God. (Rev. 3:16.) Then those things we could put in a middle column—which does not exist—have to be placed in the proper "Right" or "Wrong" column.

We read, "Every man that striveth for the mastery is temperate in all things" (1 Cor. 9:25). Are there any exemptions, or conditions where temperance alone is not perfection? Consider the case of a man and wife. They still are individuals with their own tastes for relaxation. Yet, without exception, we would not consider a temperate "stepping out" one on the other. Why? Because they are under an additional rule. They have promised, "Forsaking all others"—while life lasts. Moreover, women are to be "obedient to their own husbands, that the word of God be not blasphemed" (Titus 2:5). The word "blasphemed" is from the word meaning "to speak injuriously" (Young's Concordance). Why would it injure the Word of God for a woman to disregard her husband's wishes? "For the husband is the head of the wife, even as Christ is the head of the church" (Eph. 5:23).

Christ and the church? Who are the "church"? They are the ones who answer the call of Christ to "deny" themselves, take up their crosses and follow Him. They are the ones who have accepted the high calling of Jesus.

They are subject unto Christ" and to the law of love.

Now, to Christians, Paul speaks, "Shew I unto you a more excellent way" (1 Cor. 12:31): Love "seeketh not her own" (1 Cor. 13:5). "Why do ye not rather take wrong?" (1 Cor. 6:7.) "All things are lawful unto me, but all things are not expedient: all things are lawful for me, but I will not be brought under the power of any" (1 Cor. 6:12). "It is good neither to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor any thing whereby thy brother stumbleth, or is offended, or is made weak" (Rom. 14:21).

Consider these foregoing scriptures in the light of temperate drinking of beer or anything which contains alcohol. A Christian has a duty to his brother in the Faith. The man of the world will not stumble by our drinking, because he perhaps drinks, too, but a brother will be hurt deeply or may be made weak and stumble.

Can we partake of these worldly things? We quickly decided where the wife's place was. Cannot we also see that a Christian's place is with Christ? "Wherefore, my brethren, ye also are become dead to the law by the body of Christ; that ye should be married to another, even to him who is raised from the dead, that we should bring forth fruit unto God" (Rom. 7:4). Married to Christ? Yes!!

Yes, we are Christ's, just as surely as a wife is her husband's. We are under the law of Christ, which is the law of love: love for God and love for man. "Know ye not that the friendship of the world is enmity with God? whosoever therefore will be a friend of the world is the enemy of God."

If you write "Temperance" in the "Right" column of our paper, put it this way: "Temperance plus love," which can be said in one word "abstinence." Christian friends, let our lives "strengthen the brethren."

SALARIES. In every vocation the question of salaries is a matter of concern and discussion. The income of all professions has been more or less geared to the rising cost of living—save the stipends of the ministerial profession.

An editorial in the "Watchman-Examiner" gives a short survey of the salary status of Baptist ministers in the Southern Convention. It reads: "The 1946 Southern Baptist Annual reveals that the average salary for full-time pastors increased 25 per cent in 1945 over 1944. The average Southern Baptist pastor's salary for full-time work in 1945 was $2,124 as with 1944's average of $1,693.

"A local church which pays its pastor too small a salary in comparison to its capacity will bring to itself leanness of soul. It is the duty of the local church to take care of its pastor and his family properly."

In comparison to the salary figures cited above, it is interesting to note the salaries of other professions. Henry Wallace in the "New Republic" gives the average teacher's salary as about $1,950, Federal employees $4,150, lawyers, about $4,700, and doctors about $5,000.

The average salary of our own ministers is not known, but we are sure it is far below the average wage of the membership.

RENEWAL OF VOWS. The Roman Catholic

Church is planning a renewal of marriage vows in corporate services throughout the United States. This action is sponsored by the Family Life Bureau of the National Catholic Welfare Council. The reason for taking the renewal of marriage vows is the tragic breakdown of the marriage relationship. It is hoped this move will serve to impress upon the Catholic couples the sacredness of their former vows.

FORWARD TO THE BIBLE. Under an editorial caption of "Forward to the Bible," an editor of a Unitarian paper writes: "Why do so many Unitarians eschew the Bible? It seems from our point of advantage as an itinerant preacher and editor that the hour has come to regain the Bible for the liberal church. We need more of it, not less.

"Of course we should not teach the imprecation Psalms to nursing infants, or the story of Sodom and Gomorrah to intermediates—or to anyone else for that matter. Of course, we will have none of the Biblical miracles as science or of the gospel nativity narratives as factual history."

It does not require much faith to accept the Bible in part as it harmonizes with our individual views. It is not so much a question of "Forward to the Bible," as "Forward with the Bible." Anyone who cannot accept the Bible as "factual history" or believe in its related miracles has no right to parade himself as a minister of the gospel. There are enough doubts in people's minds without religious leaders adding to them. Daniel Webster is reported to have said to his minister at the close of a sermon that was filled with doubts, "I came here to listen to your convictions, not your doubts." It is not strange that this Unitarian editor finds few of his fellow members seeking after the Bible, when he himself will accept only part of it. True, we do need more of the Bible—not less.

HORSE THIEF LAWS REVIVED. Ministers of Steubenville, Ohio, have taken a militant stand against gambling and prostitution and have endeavored to get police authority from the city council, but the civic fathers would not grant the request. However, the ministers were not to be stymied by the refusal of the council, so they organized a Society for the Prevention of Crime under an old State law passed to curb horse stealing. Under this State-chartered organization they will have legal right to make arrests for "felonies or misdemeanors" in their campaign to clean up the city of gambling and prostitution.

We doubt if their militant stand will add stature to their ministerial profession. It has long since been proved that people can not be legislated into doing what is right. For several hundred years Israel was under law. All the while, sin kept on becoming more pronounced in the nation, until the final destruction of the city in 70 A.D. The calling of the ministry is to preach the Word, but not to enforce with militant authority its demands.

SUPREME COURT. Atheism has a vigorous champion in the person of Mrs. Vashti McCollum, Champaign, Illinois. Her legal efforts to have religious instruction in the schools of Champaign declared unconstitutional have met with complete defeat before the State Supreme Court. A unanimous decision was handed down by the judges, with Justice Charles H. Thompson writing the decision. The decision reads: "Does either Federal or state constitution, or both, in their guaranty of religious freedom, prohibit voluntary religious classes in public schools under the plan as disclosed in this record?"

"Certainly such classes do not violate the freedom of conscience of any individual or group so long as the classes are conducted upon a purely voluntary basis.

"We do not find anything that would warrant us in finding that there has been any violation of state or Federal guarantees."

This is only a part of the finding, but it is the essence of the full report.

Mrs. McCollum says she will appeal to the United States Supreme Court, but that takes a lot of money and no doubt the highest court would refuse to hear the appeal. As Carl Howland, editor of the "Free Methodist," has suggested, it would have been a fine thing if all the money spent in this foolish litigation had been given to the spread of the gospel.

But it often is true that those who oppose the Word are more vigorous in their work than those who support it.

HISTORIC RIGHT. Speaking in Omaha, Nebraska, on Sunday, March 2, Mrs. Archibald Silverman, stated that "Palestine is not Britain's to give or take away. By historic right, it belongs to the Jews." Said she: "In 1917, Britain's Balfour Declaration clearly recognized the Jews' historic right to Palestine. Fifty-two nations, including the United States, indorsed it." Another important point in her talk was, when she referred to the now famous "white paper" issued in 1939. She stated: "In 1939, I saw England issue her so-called 'white paper' restricting immigration into Palestine and prohibiting the sale of land to Jews. Even the League of Nations ruled that this was a breach of mandate."

As I read this reported speech, I was struck by the force of the phrase, "historic right." Does history give them a right to this land? That they once possessed Palestine goes without contradiction. More, God gave it to them for an everlasting possession. This being true, why are they not there now? There is only one answer. Israel was a disobedient and stiff-necked people—ever rebelling against the Spirit of God. Because of this constant refusal to walk in "truth and uprightness of heart," Israel was scattered among the nations. This was their punishment for disobedience. Now, the question that has plagued my mind since reading the expression "historic right," is, Has Israel a historic right to possess the land given her of God as long as she continues in disobedience, which took her out of the land? God gave Israel the land—God took Israel from the land, and until God puts her back, has she a historic right to possess it? One thing is certain, no nation or people, unless it be the Arabs, has any right to hinder the Jews from settling in the Holy Land where there is ample room for more millions, and especially when there are hundreds of thousands being retained in D.P. camps.

MOSCOW. Every day now for the next few weeks, news from Moscow will hit the headlines. The Big Four conference is on. While it is stated that the settlement of the German problem is foremost on the agenda, yet, those in the know and who have freedom to express themselves, feel that the big problem is not Germany, but Russia. It is becoming increasingly apparent that unless Russia is stopped in her westward march, she is going to be on the Mediterranean. Britain is unable to carry on her responsibilities in this direction. She is pulling out of Greece. If Russia is permitted to move in, she will be on the Blue Sea. It will require more than the $250,000,000 by Uncle Sam to keep Russia out. Nations are moving toward the "valley of Jehoshaphat." The day of the Lord approaches! Bible prophecy is dependable, accurate—absolutely!

9 — Moses, Exile in the Land of Midian

Golden text:

God said to Moses: "Draw not nigh hither: put off thy shoes from off thy feet, for the place whereon thou standest is holy ground. Moreover he said, I am the God of thy father, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob" (Ex. 3:5, 6).

Text: Exodus 3 and 4.

Setting of the lesson:

Moses had fled from Egypt because of the knowledge that he had killed an Egyptian overseer having come to the ears of the king of Egypt. He was forty years old when he fled to Midian, and according to the chronologies of the Bible he was in Midian forty years. That would make him eighty years old when he was called to go back to Egypt by God's voice from the burning bush.

Questions on the text:

(1) How did God show himself to Moses when the latter was in the land of Midian?

(2) Recount all the miracles that God did for Moses to convince him that he should go to lead the children of Israel out of Egypt.

(3) Why was Moses now so hesitant about going back to Egypt?

(4) Would we be so hesitant if we saw all the wonders that God had done?

(5) Explain how Exodus 3:6 teaches the resurrection of the dead. (Matt. 22:23-40.)

(6) Explain Exodus 3:12: "Ye shall serve God upon this mountain."

(7) What is the meaning of the phrase "a land flowing with milk and honey"? (Ex. 3:17.)

(8) How would Moses be to Aaron "instead of God"?

(9) What was the purpose of God sending Moses to try to do something that the Egyptians would not let him do? Was God playing with the emotions of the children of Israel?

(10) Why did God say that Israel was His first-born? Was not Christ the only Son of God?

Discussion of the lesson:

Moses had changed a great deal in his days since he had left Egypt. He had married the daughter of the priest of Midian and had a son. He was living a life of peace and quiet as well as retirement, but God now was to take him away to be the leader of the Israelites during a most stormy time, for forty more years. From that time onward, Moses became one of the great men of all times. But how hesitant Moses was to do the thing he had started to do on his own account when he was younger! Moses was armed with all the weapons of miracle that were needed to do the work that God had laid out for him to do. The miracle of the burning bush was only one of the many given to Moses: the rod became a serpent; Moses' hand became leprous and then was restored whole; and if these two should fail to convince Pharaoh, he was to take water and pour it on the ground and it would become blood.

Related topics:

(1) Jesus said that Moses taught the resurrection of the dead when he said that God was the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. Though the word "resurrection" is not found in the Old Testament!

(2) When we contemplate all the miracles, we see that they were not convincing to people. When the Pharisees asked Jesus for a sign, He told them that no sign would be given to them "save the sign of the prophet Jonas." He said they would not believe though one would come back from the dead. That is the way with mankind. We shall see that in relation to the miracle of manna.

10 — Moses, the Deliverer

Golden text:

"This Moses whom they refused, saying, Who made thee a ruler and a judge? the same did God send to be a ruler and a deliverer by the hand of the angel which appeared to him in the bush. He brought them out, after that he had shewed wonders and signs in the land of Egypt, and in the Red sea, and in the wilderness forty years" (Acts 7:35, 36).

Text: Exodus 5 to 13.

Questions on the text:

(1) Name the ten plagues. Was the plague of frogs brought on by the plague of flies?

(2) Could the magicians of Egypt also cause plagues?

(3) Why did God bring the plagues on Egypt? (Over)

(4) Which was the last plague? Tell of the other events that went with it.

(5) What was the Passover? the feast of the unleavened bread?

Setting of the lesson:

In order fully to appreciate Moses and his appearance at Pharaoh's court, you should be familiar with Egyptian history and civilization. Shepherds never were accepted in high society. Think of the contrast of the two civilizations when Moses and Aaron came out of the desert into the corrupt effete court of a pampered boy king. Also think of a mature man with all the learning that Moses had, plus the power and authority of God with him as contrasted with this boy fretting under the domination of the priests of Amon: now yielding to Moses, now to the priests.

Discussion of the lesson:

Many scientists have said that as a natural cause the plague of frogs followed the plague of flies; but according to the Bible story, the plague of frogs came first. The most important part of the story is the last plague, the slaying of the first-born. With it are connected three other items of interest: (1) The Passover; (2) the feast of unleavened bread; and (3) the taking of the Egyptian gold. (Note the events of each.)

Related topics:

- (1) The Egyptian magicians also could cause plagues up to a certain point. Was that of any value to the Egyptians?
- (2) Does Moses' personality shine out in the contest with Pharaoh, or is it overshadowed by events?

"This is the bravest warrior
That ever buckled sword;
This the most gifted poet
That ever breathed a word:
And never earth's philosopher
Traced with his golden pen,
On the deathless page, truths half so sage
As he wrote down for men."

(3) Explain Deuteronomy 5:14, 15 to show how the Sabbath Day was related to the Passover.

(4) When Jesus was buried, you see much regarding the Sabbath in its relation to the Passover and the days of unleavened bread. Note in connection with all this. Remember also the seventh-year Sabbath and the Jubilee.

(5) The first-born who were saved by the Passover figure largely in the later story. (See Num. 35ff; 3:40ff; compare with Ex. 13:2, 12-16; 22:29, 30; 34:19, 20.)

"THEY KNEW NOT"

were the days of Noah so would "the coming of the Son of man be." To impress them, He pointed out some of the signs of that day—eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage. There is nothing wrong with eating and drinking. We need both to sustain our lives. Jesus was referring to riotous, gluttonous living. As to drinking, He could have had nothing else in mind except the consumption of liquor. We are thankful to Brother C. E. Randall for his item on the News and Prophecy Digest page, February 25, 1947, about the increased consumption of liquor. We condemn Germany, Russia, and other nations for their ungodliness, which is right; but I dare say that this nation is the filthiest of them all because of drunkenness. Where are the "days of Noe"? Are they years hence? How could they be?

One thing that Jesus did not mention is dancing. It is a companion of liquor. We are in accord with the stand taken by the ministers at the Midwinter Ministerial Conference. Many denominations have provided an auditorium for dancing and recreation for their members, primarily the younger set. It has been said that in the place where once our forefathers bowed their heads and knelt before God in prayer, our young people dance their lives away. To this truth could be added that the same young people know nothing about God and His wonderful promises.

Marriage was not being condemned by our Master. It was ordained of God in the beginning that man and woman should live together "and they [should] be one flesh" (Gen. 2:24). It was the lack of sincerity that Jesus was condemning. It is a common occurrence today for divorce and remarriage to take place in the same day. According to court records of our land, divorce is increasing at a fearful rate.

Today, the matter of church membership is not one of creed, sound doctrine, and faithfulness, but of social standing. Especially is this true in cities. It makes no difference what one believes, just so that one is a member of the social set.

People have lost faith in the Truth. It is quite probable that Noah had converts when he first began building the ark and preaching what God had told him. As time went on and there was no rain nor a flood, the people who might have believed lost faith. Today we see the same. Scoffers are saying, "Where is the promise of his coming?" (2 Peter 3:4.) Jesus said, "He that shall endure unto the end, the same shall be saved" (Matt. 24:13).

Do we know where we are? Can we overlook the events of our day? In Daniel 12:10, we read, "Many shall be purified, and made white, and tried; but the wicked shall do wickedly: and none of the wicked shall understand; but the wise shall understand."

Are you among the wise? Are you looking for the soon return of Jesus? Or are you saying, as are many, His coming will not be in our day. Bible students who study the Bible numerically are saying that the "end of the world" will be in five to eight years. Are you ready for the coming of Jesus? Undoubtedly, we are living in the days about which Jesus spoke. Can you truthfully say, "Come Lord Jesus; come quickly"? Are you doing what Malachi said, "They that feared the Lord spake often one to another: and the Lord hearkened, and heard it, and a book of remembrance was written before him for them that feared the Lord and that thought upon his name. And they shall be mine, saith the Lord of hosts, in that day when I make up my jewels; and I will spare them, as a man spareth his own son that serveth him"? (Mal. 3: 16, 17.)

"Awake, arise, O Church of God, the crowning day is near!"

ROAD TO THE KINGDOM

to stand up for what is right, especially when one stands aloof from the things that the world enjoys. One always should seek the good and avoid evil. Let your light shine and proclaim the good news, or glad tidings, wherever and whenever possible.

In the journey of life, one meets many unexpected and discouraging events. Were a person not fortified in the truth, these might result disastrously. Indeed, they often are disastrous: hence the wreckage one frequently sees strewn along the voyage of life. Here and there, a sunken barge is all that is left to tell the tale.

To a God-fearing man, who carries in his heart a conscience void of offense, it is very comforting to know that "God seeth not as man seeth, for man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart." This knowledge sustains him amid many of life's trials and perplexities, bears him up under adverse circumstances, and enables him to live above his surroundings. At the same time, it teaches him a lesson of humility and shows him the folly of leaning on the arm of flesh.

No amount of truth believed will save us if we continue in the infraction of the law of holiness. "Without holiness no man shall see the Lord." "Why call me Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say?" (Luke 6:46.) A true Christian man loves truth and justice; he must be upright before himself and before God. The Scripture rule is: "Do justly . . . love mercy, and walk humbly" (Micah 6:8). False representations and false promises are an abomination in the sight of God, and if unrepented, will exclude from the Kingdom of heaven.

Many trials will beset us. We often will feel that the flesh is weak and that we fall short. Let us rejoice that "we have not run in vain," however, and "press toward the mark for the prize" which is "laid up for [us] a crown of righteousness." To receive this reward requires perseverance and stamina. It means denying ourselves many things and being temperate. It means that we must keep our eyes on the goal and not become faint. Finally, at the journey's end, may we hear the words of our Master, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant . . . enter thou into the joy of thy lord."

GOD'S HOUSE IN THE COUNTRY

driving much over twenty miles round trip to help in the services. Four classes are maintained, each with its own teacher. The attendance this winter has been from thirty to forty. Like the organized Sunday school classes, the Bereans have their own officers and hold monthly business, devotional, and social gatherings at various homes. Owing to the large number of children and young people who attend, the general assembly on Tuesday nights looks more like that of a Sunday school rather than like many Berean meetings we have attended. This year the officers are: Mrs. Helen Brewer, president; Donald Klepinger, vice president, and Lois Huston, secretary-treasurer. The latter two are high school students.

The younger group has now formed an orchestra under the leadership of Mrs. Verna Stine, and are rendering very acceptable aid in our evening services, having had orchestral training in public and high school.

Sponsored by the Bereans, and supported by the church board, we issue a monthly paper, The Berean Bugler, that is sent by mail into between three and four hundred homes in our community as a "goodwill builder," for which purpose it has been found very effective. We print an edition of five hundred copies a month.

Speaking of our young people, of whom we have what is probably the largest group in the State, experience has shown that when given a free hand, always under the general oversight of the church, as is true of the Sunday school and all other departments, they can and will accomplish much more in the way of service and be more regular in their attendance at all services than when they are absolutely dominated in everything they do by the older ones.

Altogether, Brush Creek Church, "God's House in the Country," is blessed, not only because of the excellent organization it maintains, but because it is so thoroughly united from the oldest to youngest member in spirit and purpose.

Importance of the Word

Jesus said, "He that rejecteth me, and receiveth not my words, hath one that judgeth him: the word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him in the last day" (John 12:48). Jesus also said to a follower, "When thou art converted, strengthen the brethren." A Christian is to be concerned about his influence upon other Christians. Christians are to be their brothers' keepers and to love their neighbors as themselves. The Word tells us to hate evil; to prefer one another. (Rom. 12:10.)

Anything that draws us away from God and Jesus is evil. We cannot remain still. We are going either forward or backward in service to Him.

Little Ones, how do you stand? In what direction are you heading?

One great evil of our time is the evil of social drinking of alcoholic beverages. One glass of beer is supposed to slow up a person's ability to think quickly enough to avoid accidents. The Mayo doctors, famous the world over, said that three of every ten who drink alcoholic liquors become addicts—drunkards! They often acquire the habit though they greatly dislike the taste of it. In fact, some habitual drunkards have said they dislike the taste and did not know why they drank it. Drunkards are listed as ones not to inherit the Kingdom of God. The otherwise intemperate are not so listed, although we are to try to be temperate in our living.

The Bible says: "Know ye not that, to whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey, his servants ye are to whom ye obey; whether of sin unto death, or of obedience unto righteousness?" (Rom. 6:16.) Jesus said, "Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness: for they shall be filled" (Matt. 5:6).

Whose Servant Are You?

ALCOHOL'S

CHRIST'S

A—is for addicts or alcoholics.
(I get 30 out of every 100!)

A—is for abstinence, lest I walk not charitably toward all.
(Rom. 14:15.) (To be temperate in using alcohol might offend a brother.)

L—is for lasciviousness or lust-

L—is for love, which reminds me, ful desires I increase.

C—is for cares I multiply, although I am supposed to take them away! It's crowns I take away. (Rev. 3:11.)

O—is for option. I take away liberty of choosing what they should do; for after they take one drink, I take them for more!

H—is for Ha! Ha! Habit! That's what I form. I cause nerves to get dry and raw. They want me more and more! Ha! Ha!

O—is for offerings. Those who serve me, serve me well with their time and money. I am their idol. They put me first. They spend more money on me than on all their churches and schools.

L—is for laws. The laws of the land favor me. I'm happy, for I make many sad!

"It is good neither to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor any thing whereby [my] brother stumbleth, or is offended, or is made weak" (Rom. 14:21).

C—is for my cross I carry for Christ who said: "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me" (Matt. 16:24).

O—is for overcomer. "He that overcometh, the same shall be clothed in white raiment; and I will not blot out his name out of the book of life, but I will confess his name before my Father, and before his angels" (Rev. 3:5).

H—is for hands of Christ that reach out for us. He is our Hope. He tells us to "hold fast" (Rev. 3:11) to the Word of truth.

O—is for obedience. We are the servants of the one we obey, whether sin or righteousness. (Rom. 6:16.)

L—is for Liberty. "Brethren, ye have been called unto liberty; only use not liberty for an occasion to the flesh, but by love serve one another" (Gal. 5:13).

Sober Christians

We are to be judged by the words of Jesus? He said so! (John 12:48.) He said, "Strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it" (Matt. 7:14). Jesus said, "He that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven" shall enter the Kingdom of heaven. (V. 21.) Heed the words of Jesus, for they are the words of life or death. They will judge us.

BEREANS IN ACTION

James M. Watkins - Guest Editor

Sunday, February 23, 1947, the Oregon Bereans met at 6:30 p.m. as usual. It was evident that we, as a whole, lacked spiritual development and zeal for Christ and the gospel. We had no projects relative to helping those in need both physically and spiritually. We had become too satisfied with ourselves, doing our own will instead of God's will. At least this was the picture we got of ourselves through the none-too-critical eye of Brother Dean Moore, who led the class that evening. He called for suggestions to remedy the difficulty. The first suggestion was that of holding services at the Ogle County Home. The next suggestion was to find a country schoolhouse where a Sunday school could be started. Plans were laid to contact the County Superintendent of Schools on this matter as a start in the right direction. Prayer was made, asking God's help in this matter. At the end of the meeting, President Billy Dick appointed one of the College student members to investigate the possibilities of using a public school for a Sunday school.

Monday afternoon, two Bible College students investigated and found that this work could be done, if the Sunday school was kept inter-denominational. They secured a list of the schools where such a project could be started. They went to a school two miles south of Byron, Illinois, first, and talked with the teacher and ascertained how many pupils would come if Sunday school were started. Fifteen pupils raised their hands. Then the school directors' names were secured and their permission was secured for the project. By Tuesday night, the "Whitaker Sunday school" was virtually a reality, but without any equipment. Wednesday, a special Berean meeting was called to report the progress and to thank God for answering our prayers. Brother Kirby Davis was appointed superintendent of the new Sunday school, with Billy Dick, Betty Claussen, and Irene Payne as teachers. Sunday, March 2, 1947, at the first meeting of Whitaker Sunday School, there were seven youngsters waiting for us when we arrived at 9:30 a.m. Twenty-seven were present that morning and everything went like clockwork. We thank God for Sister Verna Thayer who was there to help us. Her counsel was of great value. God surely answers prayer when it is His work. Pray for its success.

These two College students also have contacted the Ogle County Home and received permission to hold meetings there. The first meeting was held on Sunday afternoon, March 9, 1947. There is work to be done. "Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth labourers into his harvest," because the harvest is great and the laborers few. (Matt. 9:37, 38.) You, too, can be a worker for Christ. With present training facilities for our young people, we can see no end to the possibilities for opportunity to serve Christ.

Arnold Johns, Oregon Bible College.

What a wonderful inspiration a report such as this can be! Study without the application of that knowledge to the needs of mankind is useless. Here is an example of Christian service that can find its counterpart in a dozen localities. How often we fail because we do not see the opportunity in evangelistic-centered activities. Our study and education of self cannot be for self alone but must always be to the end we may instruct others.

It is through the activities that we find in our own communities and our National assemblies that we are inspired to the proper incentive for study, that of taking the gospel message to others. Where there is no action there is no life, and it is life that adds interest and stability to our Berean effort. The Oregon Bereans and the College students who have so wholeheartedly co-operated with them deserve much credit for this opening of a new gospel opportunity. It is a commendable enterprise of Berean leadership, a credit to the local church effort, an opportunity for College experience, and an inspiration to all. The hours of effort Brother Arnold Johns has put toward this work should not go unmentioned, although he has been too modest to say so.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CALENDAR

March 22, 23—Michigan Spring Conference at Pennellwood Church, Grand Rapids.

TEMPE, ARIZONA

Our church has welcomed Mr. and Mrs. Arlie Townsend, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Townsend, of Grand Rapids, Mich., and Mr. and Mrs. Emil Fredlund and daughter Roselin, of Mora, Minn., at its services the past several weeks. The Fredlunds are seriously considering making Tempe their future home.

Mr. and Mrs. Olaf Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Stabler and son Tommie, have gone to Little Rock, Ark., for an indefinite period of time. It is hoped that they will be contacted by our church group there. They have promised to come back next fall.

The Deacons Society of the church, under leadership of its president, Mrs. Lucille Wilmot, plan to assist the Illinois State Conference in its bid for materials for the dormitory. This society is one of the most active of any of our churches.

A tract rack has been placed in the lobby of our church. In addition to tracts, there will be several copies of The Restitution Herald put there each week. The value of such was brought to our attention recently when a convert was largely led into understanding through the medium of a tract.

Yesterday (March 9) the church held an outdoor picnic in a nearby desert park. The weather was ideal for such and everyone who attended enjoyed the good food, the sunshine, and the fellowship.

We were hosts, Sunday evening, March 9, for a Community Hymn Sing, led by Mr. Edgar McFadden, a former choir leader in some of the largest churches in Saint Louis, Mo. In addition to singing many of the older hymns, there was special music consisting of a girls' sextette from one of the other churches and two violin solos by Fred Bonnie, formerly of the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra. Everyone was inspired to better Christian service after having attended.

Mr. and Mrs. Lozelle D. Barnett are the parents of a son, David Lozelle.

"HAVING PUT HIS HAND TO THE PLOW"

Having begun an ever-increasing program of Christian service, National Bible Institution cannot look back. To look back to a lesser program or a decrease in service already being rendered is to fail in individual and collective stewardship.

Evangelism; Pastoral Aid; College and Summer School; Printing and Publishing; the ministry of The Restitution Herald—all combine to make a unit of service with a guaranteed future. To curtail the present program of any department means a loss in the effectiveness of all.

Our ability to serve is entirely dependent upon our free-will contributions. For the past few months, double costs and diminished contributions in some departments have exhausted our operating fund balance. We cannot operate below income. Only your immediate contributions can spare us the necessity of curtailing our present, most worth-while program.

Can we look back to a lesser aim and remain fit for the Kingdom of God?

National Bible Institution, Inc.,
 Dale Dunbar, Treasurer.

Do you go to the house of prayer, where love permeates everywhere? There with others you'll kneel, and God's presence you'll feel. . . when you go to the house of prayer. ## ERNEST FREDERICK SHUTE

Ernest Frederick Shute, son of James and Louisa Shute, was born in Swindon, Wiltshire, England, January 28, 1889, and died at his home near Welland, Ont., February 22, 1947. He was the youngest of eight children, there having been six boys and two girls. The five brothers preceded him in death; the two sisters, Mrs. Alice Hewer of Fonthill, Ont., and Mrs. Louie Bridgeman of Swindon, Wiltshire, England, survive.

Mr. Shute came to Canada, March 11, 1910, and for a time made his home with Mrs. Hewer at Fonthill. He was united in marriage to Martha Ball on October 18, 1913, in the house which has since been their home. To this union three children were born: Frederick Ernest, who died in infancy, Margaret, and Howard. He was baptized into Christ by Elder P. L. Austin in February, 1913, and became affiliated with the Church of God at Fonthill.

He enjoyed talking of the things concerning the Kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, and especially the prophecies in regard to the signs which indicate the second coming of Jesus to establish His Kingdom, when the dead will be raised and the living changed from mortality to immortality. He now sleeps patiently waiting that day.

He was a true friend, a good neighbor, a kind, loving husband and father, and a Christian.

He leaves to mourn his death, his wife, Mrs. Mattie Shute; one daughter, Mrs. John Brown of Welland, Ont.; one son Howard, who is still at home; two granddaughters, and the two sisters previously mentioned; and other relatives, besides a host of friends—all showing their esteem by helping in every way possible and with words of sympathy to comfort the sorrowing.

The hope of eternal life, and the things connected with it, which Jesus termed, "Life more abundantly" and "The crown of life" which He promised to those who would be faithful unto death, was the theme taken by the writer at the funeral service which was conducted on Tuesday, February 25, from the home located between Fonthill and Welland, Ont. Bro. and Sr. W. H. Holland sang "The Beautiful Garden of Prayer" and "God Will Take Care of You." They were accompanied on the piano by Sr. Blanche Page. Interment was in Fonthill cemetery. G. J. Gordon.

The Restitution Herald advocates: the near return of Christ (Acts 1:11), and life only through Him (Col. 3:3); the literal resurrection of the dead (John 5:28); the immortalization of those in Christ (1 Cor. 15:53, 54); the destruction of the wicked (Rev. 21:8); the final restoration of Israel as the Kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ (Luke 1:32); the church to be joint-heirs with Him (Rom. 8:17), and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations (Isa. 60:1-3); the "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21). It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

CHRIST IN THE GARDEN

died from such a condition. This condition places a tremendous strain upon the heart, and even perfect physical specimens have succumbed to the attack.

As we already have stated, Jesus endured the cross for the joy that was set before Him. He went willingly to the cross and, "like a lamb dumb before his shearer, so opened he not his mouth." Christ at all times was subject to the will of the Father. He continually sought the approval and blessing of God for the works He did. It mattered not what men thought of Him; the important thing was that God's will be done.

Perhaps this explanation has flaws I am unable to see, but to me it is the most satisfactory of the three.

To grasp the complete meaning of the death of Christ, let us interpret His words in the Garden like this: "O my Father, if it be possible, let this premature death pass from me, that I may bear the sins of the world on the cross; nevertheless, if you think it better for me to die here, do not strengthen me to overcome this attack."

MANDES ALBERT REED

Mandes Albert Reed, youngest son of Jacob and Harriet Reed, was born, March 25, 1879, near Knox, Ind. He died, February 26, 1947. Funeral was at Attica, Kan., Saturday afternoon, March 1.

On July 31, 1901, he was united in marriage to Cora Hobson. To this union seven children were born.

He was a member of the Church of God (of the Abrahamic Faith), being baptized when a young man. He remained a faithful member until his death.

On February 11, he suffered a heart attack and was taken to the Community Hospital in Anthony, Kan. He was making a rapid recovery, when he had a relapse, February 26, and death came suddenly.

Four deaths in his immediate family, within the last five years, have been contributing factors to his ill health and death. He bore his sorrow bravely and silently, trusting in his Lord for strength.

Preceding him in death, were his wife whom he cherished dearly; two sons, Troy and Delmer; and Delmer's little daughter, Barbara Jean.

Those who remain to mourn his death are five children: Letha Rinehart of Wellington, Kan.; Lucile and Vesta of Anthony; Ferman of Kiowa, and Everett of Attica; four granddaughters; also two brothers: Edward of Santa Ana, Calif., and Clarence of La Junta, Colo., and several nieces and nephews, and many friends.

He rests from his labor of service and love for his Master and loved ones to await the resurrection, when there will be no more sorrow, no more death.

A well-filled church and many beautiful floral offerings testified to the high esteem in which he is regarded by all who knew him. Resurrection comfort and consolation were offered from John 11; Luke 24; 1 Thessalonians 4:13-17; 1 Corinthians 15; and many other kindred texts. Cantwell Drabentstoff.

COLLEGE NEWS

Last week was the week of the notorious "Six-Weeks' Tests." Needless to say, no one was very happy to see them come, and all were hilariously happy to see them go. We had tests in Principles of Teaching, Old Testament Studies, Religious Missions, and English Composition. All will have to admit they were fair—except perhaps for the odd, ambiguous question—and the tests not too difficult, if one knew his work. The above exception was noted for the benefit of those who missed on two certain questions in "Old Testament."

Brother Magaw preached a request sermon last Tuesday morning in Chapel. The subject of his sermon was, "Esther." The second half of the sermon will be given Tuesday of this week, and all are looking forward to it very much. On Thursday of last week, we had a bit of variety in our chapel service. The Public Speaking I Class, composed entirely of freshmen, conducted the service. Rand Smith was master of ceremonies. The four freshmen speakers were Warren Sorenson, Bud Goodwin, Arnold Johns, and Raymond Brown. Each spoke for about five or ten minutes. Their talks were, in a sense, part of their Public Speaking examination. It is rumored that Bro. Dick promised higher marks if they would speak for us. Thanks to both Bro. Dick and the speakers, as their sermons were excellent. We have one request, though; that the other members of the Public Speaking Class give us sermons in some future chapel period.

Bro. Magaw announced numerous assignments to members of the Major Prophets Class last Wednesday. Each student was assigned one or two subjects, and reports on these subjects are to be given in class. Kirby Davis was the last student to give a sermon in Expository Preaching Class. His subject was, "The Witch of Endor."

MRS. GILBERT BOTTOLFS

Sena Halverson was born in Iowa, November 7, 1879, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Halver Halverson. When she was young, the family moved to Louisiana. On November 6, 1897, Sena became the wife of Gilbert Bottolfs of Hammond, La. To this union were born six children, all of whom are living. After a brief, severe illness, she fell asleep in Christ the morning of March 4, 1947.

Those who mourn her death are: two brothers, Ben Halverson of Los Angeles, Cal., and George Halverson of Hammond; six children, Mrs. Elvin Campbell, Mrs. Lawrence Bollen, Esther, Sam, and Martin Bottolfs, all of Hammond, and Arthur Bottolfs of Ponchatoula, La.; eight grandchildren; numerous nieces and nephews, and many friends.

Sr. Bottolfs was well loved by all who knew her. Her faithfulness to her Lord will be remembered long. For years she prepared the Communion table. Perhaps the greatest tribute we can pay to her is to say that she was a true Christian. Bro. Vernis Wolfe, gave words of comfort and hope at the Thomas Funeral Home in Hammond. Burial was made in Greenlawn Cemetery. James Mattison.

Today's Big Question

How Can I Build a Child of Faith?

A Good Answer

A good answer to this and many similar questions is the foundation of this new course being offered by the newly organized Correspondence Study Department of Oregon Bible College.

CHILD STUDY

Is the name of the course, conducted by Otto E. Dick, instructor and student counselor of Oregon Bible College. Throughout the progress of your work, Mr. Dick will offer his personal interest and suggestions to help you better fulfill your duties as pastor, parent, or teacher. The textbook furnished for the course is, "An Introduction to Child Study" by Clarence H. Benson, outstanding in the field of religious instruction. The aim is for all students to return one assignment each week. Two assignments are given with enrollment, so study can be continued while one is being returned. At the satisfactory conclusion of the course, a credit of two hours will be given toward the Oregon Bible College, Bachelor of Theology Degree.

The cost is only $15.00, including textbook and supplies. The only additional cost to you is postage. If you desire, you may pay this amount $5.00 with enrollment and $5.00 each thirty days thereafter until the $15.00 is paid.

RESURRECTION

By James A. Patrick, Ashland, Ohio

BEFORE ME, I have a copy of Present Truth Messenger, the southern Advent Christian paper, in which is a very good article under the caption, "Will This Body Live Again?" In this article is one statement to which I wish to call attention. "Let me say this, from the teaching of the Scriptures the resurrection of Jesus is as essentially a part of the plan of salvation as the cross of Jesus."

While I do not wish to minimize the essentiality of the cross of Christ, I wish to say that the resurrection was more essential than the cross. Of course, we cannot separate the two, but without resurrection the cross would have been of no avail. Let us look at a few verses of Scripture:

"If there be no resurrection of the dead, then is Christ not risen: and if Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain, and your faith is also vain. . . . For if the dead rise not, then is not Christ raised: and if Christ be not raised, your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins. Then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished" (1 Cor. 15:13-18).

The "also" in this last verse connects those who are "fallen asleep in Christ" with Christ, so if there is no resurrection, Christ is perished as well as those who are "fallen asleep in Christ." Let me quote one more verse of Scripture in this connection. Paul continued to say in verse 19, "If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable." How true! If we give up all the world, and there is no resurrection, then we have lost everything. If there is no resurrection, there is no future life. "We are of all men most miserable."

Some years ago when I lived in Eden Valley, Minnesota, a friend called. He was a lay preacher of the Christian Church, or Church of Christ. Our conversation soon turned to the question of immortality and going to heaven at death. Finally, I quoted two foregoing texts: "If Christ be not raised, your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins. Then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished." Then I said, "Doesn't that prove that people do not go to heaven at death, and that they are lost and gone forever if there is no resurrection?" Although the old gentleman was a very mild-mannered man, he was angry at once and said, "No, it doesn't," and jumped up and got his hat and away he went. A year or two after that, however, I was called to preach his funeral sermon, and his daughter afterward united with our church.

Will This Body Live Again?

Many people will say, "Impossible!"—then go on to give some illustrations that they think will prove their point. They cite us to people who are buried at sea and are devoured by fish, one fish getting one part and another getting another part. Then they will point to people who are cremated, whose ashes are strewn to the winds of heaven and carried away. So they ask, "How is God going to raise these bodies?" I do not know, but I believe He will. If He does not, and takes new material to make the new bodies for those who have died and gone to dust, it will be creation and not resurrection.

I once used the following illustration in a funeral sermon: If you should drop your solid gold ring into a certain kind of acid, it would be dissolved. Take the acid to a chemist and he will recover every particle of gold that was in your ring. Then take the gold to a jeweler, and he can make you another ring just like the one you lost, and it will be the identical material that was in the other ring. After the service at the church, I rode to the cemetery with the undertaker. He said that point had always puzzled him, but the illustration had cleared it up.

The question naturally arises, Does the Bible sustain such an idea? I believe it does. Matthew 27:52, 53 seems quite clear, saying: "The graves were opened; and many bodies of the saints which slept arose, and came out of the graves after his resurrection, and went into the holy city, and appeared unto many." Isaiah 26:19 prophesies: "Thy dead men shall live, together with my dead body shall they arise. Awake and sing, ye that dwell in dust: for thy dew is as the dew of herbs, and the earth shall cast out the dead."

Again, Jesus said: "The hour is coming, in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth" (John 5:28, 29). Job said: "I know that my redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth: and though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God" (19:25, 26). . . . This means we shall receive back to life our dead loved ones. They will be the same ones we knew and loved; they will not be myths or will-o-the-wisps, but real flesh that we can take in our arms as of yore. Praise the Lord!

Meaning of Easter

By Glenn M. Birkey, Rochelle, Illinois

EASTER is defined by Webster, thus: "A festival of the Christian church to commemorate the resurrection of Jesus Christ. It is observed on the first Sunday after the full moon that occurs on March 21, or any of the twenty-eight days following that date." Easter is a world-wide evidence of the risen and living Lord.

As 1 Corinthians 13 is known as the love chapter of the Bible, so 1 Corinthians 15 is called the resurrection chapter. In this chapter, the Apostle Paul began with the thought that resurrection of the dead is a part of the gospel. The gospel of the Kingdom, as it had been proclaimed by both Christ and later Paul, in every instance included promise of reign of the saints with Christ in His coming Kingdom. If the saints are to reign, they must be resurrected. Paul wished to give the Corinthian brethren a clear idea about the resurrection, and this chapter goes into detail in all phases of that subject.

First, Paul told the importance of resurrection. He said: "Now if Christ be preached that he rose from the dead, how say some among you that there is no resurrection of the dead? But if there be no resurrection of the dead, then is Christ not risen: and if Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain, and your faith is also vain. Yea, and we are found false witnesses of God"—a serious charge—"because we have testified of God that he raised up Christ: whom he raised not up, if so be that the dead rise not. For if the dead rise not, then is not Christ raised: and if Christ be not raised, your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins. Then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished" (vv. 12-18). Verse 18 surely makes it plain that Christians who have died are not in heaven, but are "asleep in Christ." If they were in heaven, they should be awake!

After showing importance of the resurrection, Paul considered its order. We quote him in verses 20-23:

"Now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the firstfruits of them that slept. For since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead. For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive. But every man in his own order: Christ the firstfruits; afterward they that are Christ's at his coming."

Then Paul gave the method of resurrection, saying:

"Some man will say, How are the dead raised up? and with what body do they come? Thou fool, that which thou sowest is not quickened, except it die." Later, Paul stated: "Howbeit that was not first which is spiritual, but that which is natural; and afterward that which is spiritual."

Next, Paul gave his mystery of resurrection, saying:

"Behold, I shew you a mystery; We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump; for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed." Paul here used the word "shall," which is very definite—no guess work with him! He then prophesied final victory over death, saying:

"So when this corruptible shall have put on incorruption, and this mortal shall have put on immortality, then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written, Death is swallowed up in victory. O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?" Paul's answer was: "The sting of death is sin; and the strength of sin is the law. But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." As his last plea in the chapter, Paul admonished Christians: "Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye stedfast, unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labour is not in vain in the Lord."

As we see nature awaking from its long winter sleep at Easter time, we know it is a symbol of events to transpire at the resurrection: when the believers of all ages will come forth from their graves, just as we see flowers and grass and all vegetation springing from the earth where they have been hid in the ground during the season of rest. Nature's vegetation continues asleep until the warm sun of spring wakes it from its sleep; the dead will continue asleep until the Son of Man awakens them from their sleep. Therefore, resurrection is the Christian's supreme hope: not only at Easter time, but every day of one's life until the King comes. "God hath not appointed us to wrath, but to obtain salvation by our Lord Jesus Christ, who died for us, that, whether we wake or sleep, we should live together with him"—in the Great Resurrection Day!

“Very Early in the Morning”

Thunderings and lightnings and the quaking of earth had ceased; earth's most tragic night was ended. Then, “very early in the morning,” came women to the tomb. True, their intent was to anoint the body of Jesus, yet that early morning scene was typical of new life and a renewed hope of the Christian Dispensation. Legalism had closed in darkness and crucifixion of the Christ. Now, a new day was dawning. Indeed, this new day excelled any possible glories of literal day—the immortalized Christ transcending glory of the sun.

“The Stone Was Rolled Away”

As the women early approached Jesus' tomb, they said among themselves, “Who shall roll us away the stone from the door of the sepulchre?” It was a large stone, and, apparently, combined strength of the several women was insufficient to remove it from the tomb's opening. As they drew near, however, they saw “that the stone was rolled away.” Not being able to sense the nearness of God or His power, they were concerned about a problem that God little intended them to solve.

Christ is risen and the stone is rolled away. What if the combined strength of all God's people should be insufficient to accomplish certain self-imposed tasks? Let us go a little farther; then, seeing more clearly, we shall discover that our anxiety was needless and wrong.

“Entering into The Sepulchre”

“Entering into the sepulchre,” the women “saw a young man sitting on the right side, clothed in a long white garment”—an angel. Said he: “Be not affrighted: Ye seek Jesus of Nazareth, which was crucified: he is risen; he is not here: behold the place where they laid him.”

The resurrection of Christ does not lessen literality of death, but it does, in a sense, put light in the tomb. Though death overtakes one and he must be buried, he has the angel's words to inspire him to faith in resurrection. Jesus was in the tomb, but He did not stay in the tomb. Said Jesus, “Because I live, ye shall live also.”

The Angels' Taunt

Luke 24:4 and John 20:12 mention that there were two men (angels) who addressed the women at the tomb. These angels taunted the women, saying: “Why seek ye the living among the dead?” Their taunt suggests an error prevalent today: persons in search of Christ frequently throw obstruction in their own way by entering first into the hollow tombs of lifeless organizations. Jesus is Head of the church, but He did not even join other come-and-go societies, clubs, fraternities. “Ye are complete in him”!

“The Lord Is Risen Indeed”

The two disciples whose walk to Emmaus had been blessed by presence of the Christ reported to the Eleven, saying: “The Lord is risen indeed.” They were concerned not with the actual hour that He was resurrected, but they were inspired to know that He was living. Do not men at Easter think more about the morning of Jesus' resurrection, nearly two millenniums ago, than they meditate the glory and victory of His being alive today? The Lord “is risen”—is living!

“It Is I Myself”

Perish the thought that Jesus arose only as a spirit or a ghost! That erroneous whim was corrected long ago, the disciples first making the mistake. “They were terrified and affrighted, and supposed they had seen a spirit.” Replied the Christ of God: “Behold my hands and my feet, that it is I myself: handle me, and see; for a spirit hath not flesh and bones, as ye see me have.” Ghostology is not theology. Nobody ever saw a ghost. Many people—more than five hundred brethren at one time—saw the resurrected Son of God! Who wants a ghost to come from heaven. It is the Real Man, Jesus, who is coming back to earth.

Reward of Easter

By Harvey U. Krogh, Jr., Grand Rapids, Michigan

THIS MAY SEEM absurd to you at first, but really it is not. Suppose you were walking down the street some day and a well-dressed man with a very honest face and a sincere voice stopped you and said, "Do you have a dollar that I may borrow for a little while?" You are surprised that one appearing so prosperous would ask you for money and you hesitate for a moment. Then without realizing why, unless it is the confidence that his face and voice inspire, you give him a dollar fully expecting him to repay you sometime, and your confidence is increased when he asks for your name and address.

When you arrive home, you find that a messenger boy is waiting there for you with a bank draft for a thousand dollars and a brief note explaining that the man to whom you gave the dollar was an eccentric, rich man who takes much pleasure in greatly rewarding those few who will trust him. The reward is a thousand to one. It seems almost impossible, does it not? And rightly so, because this very likely will never happen to anyone who reads this—at least not in exactly this way.

Greater things than this have happened, however, for we read in the Bible that God asked a man to sacrifice his son on an altar. This man never would have done such a thing except that he had perfect confidence that God would restore to him his son alive. "Abraham stretched forth his hand, and took the knife to slay his son." Then God forbade him to go further and said He knew Abraham trusted Him, seeing he had not withheld his only son. Then God said, "By myself have I sworn, saith the Lord, for because thou hast done this thing, and hast not withheld thy son, thine only son: that in blessing I will bless thee, and in multiplying I will multiply thy seed as the stars of the heaven, and as the sand which is upon the sea shore." This has been done, and it is much more than a mere thousand to one, for who can number the stars or who can count the sand which is upon the seashore?

For one son, God gave Abraham millions of sons, but One of them was made a real sacrifice. God did not stay the hands that sought to take the life of Jesus. As this Son was also God's Son (Abraham being an ancestor of Christ's mother), God raised Him up, even from the dead, just as Abraham accounted that God was able to raise up the son whom he meant to sacrifice at God's request.

God gave Abraham much more than natural descendants, for He has called the followers of Christ the seed, or descendants, of Abraham also. Therefore, we who are Christians are counted, in a certain sense, as Abraham's sons. We also have the privilege of giving to God and receiving a reward which is also more than a thousand to one. For a few short years of service to God, He will reward us with that resurrection which He demonstrated when He raised His only begotten Son from the dead.

We not only shall have life restored, but it will be an unending life. By resurrection is the only way we shall have anything after death, and it is all dependent upon the power of God that raised our Saviour, Jesus the Christ, from death. We must believe, however, for it is written, "If thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved" (Rom. 10:9). Yes, we must believe and act on that faith, for believing is not real faith if we do not do what He has asked of us. True faith will not leave undone one thing that He requires and desires of us.

At Easter we celebrate the resurrection of Christ, the first to be born from the dead, an immortal being. All others raised before were simply raised to continue their natural life for a short time. To be raised as He was, or be changed to be like Him at His coming, is our hope.

At this time of year we again emphasize reality of the resurrection, but our greatest need is to stress greatness of the reward. To figure accurately the proportion, we need only to find the number of years in eternity and divide by the number of years of service that we have rendered in this life. Could He give us a thousand years for each one we have given Him? Just a thousand to one? No, more than that! Infinity divided by any number gives you infinity and the proportion is therefore too great for human comprehension. We are far more fortunate than if some rich man would reward us a thousandfold, because God's promise is far beyond our fondest imaginations. "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him" (1 Cor. 2:9). "The blessing of the Lord, it maketh rich, and he addeth no sorrow with it" (Prov. 10:22). Withhold not one thing from Him who so greatly rewards you!

Jesus Lives!

By J. R. LeCrone, Woodstock, Virginia

HEARTBREAKING grief and deepest gloom had invaded the ranks of those who had been disciples of Jesus of Nazareth. Their Master was dead!

Like a light shining in a dark place, Jesus had come into their lives. For three years He had moved in their midst, bringing relief to those who suffered and comfort to those who mourned. Under His tender ministrations, many a sin-cursed heart had found forgiveness and the "peace that passeth understanding."

Moreover, He had proved Himself Master of the physical universe as well as the spiritual. With eyes that could scarcely believe what they saw, His disciples had seen the sick and afflicted restored to perfect soundness, and on a few occasions even the dead had been restored to life. Even nature obeyed His voice. At His command, winds ceased their blowing and waves of the sea were calmed. When He cursed it, the fig tree withered and died. When He desired to ride thereon, the colt whereon never man sat became quiet and docile. To this Man nothing was impossible.

Apparently, though, His love for righteousness and truth had caused Him to go too far. He had dared to rebuke the priesthood and to expose their hypocrisy and greed. For this, leaders of the Temple could not forgive Him. They had carefully and successfully plotted His death.

With dramatic suddenness, they had sought Him out at night, hired false witnesses to testify evil of Him. After a hasty and flagrantly illegal and unjust trial, He had been led away to be crucified in the midst of thieves and malefactors. The innocent and righteous Jesus was put to death in the manner reserved for the most hardened criminals.

There upon the cross, in full view of the sadistic multitude, He had died. In order to make doubly sure, the Roman soldier had thrust his spear into the side of the crucified One. The Master's blood had stained the cross and the ground beneath it. No man could sustain such a loss of blood and live. There could be no doubt about it. Jesus of Nazareth was dead.

HE LIVES!

By Mary Mae Nedrow

Our Saviour knows the hurts we oftentimes suffer,
For cruel hands laid hold on Him that day;
When scourged and bleeding, every hurt He suffered—

The burden of our sins upon Him lay,
He died for sins that He had not committed,
But death at last brought surcease from all pain;

And in a sepulchre they gently laid Him,
For He had conquered over things mundane,
At break of day one glad and glorious morning,
An angel came and rolled the stone away:
Our Lord arose, and now He lives forever—
The resurrected Christ—our hope today!

When scourged and bleeding, every hurt He suffered—

The burden of our sins upon Him lay,

He died for sins that He had not committed,

But death at last brought surcease from all pain;

And in a sepulchre they gently laid Him,

For He had conquered over things mundane,

At break of day one glad and glorious morning,

An angel came and rolled the stone away:

Our Lord arose, and now He lives forever—

The resurrected Christ—our hope today!

Somewhat grudgingly, the authorities had permitted His disciples to take His body down from the cross, tenderly wrap it in grave clothes, and lay it away in a borrowed tomb to await the time the Passover and Sabbath should be past and they should be free to return and properly prepare the body for burial.

Fearful lest Jesus' disciples should steal away His body during the night, the priests had insisted that the Roman governor seal the tomb and set a watch. The disciples were to be given no opportunity to claim that Jesus was alive, for it would be very embarrassing indeed to have the people convinced that the priesthood was responsible for the crucifixion of the Son of God.

With what heavy hearts the disciples must have gone about the duties involved in the normally joyous festival of the Passover! Where their hearts were is revealed by the fact that at the earliest possible moment, "in the end of the sabbath, as it began to dawn toward the first day of the week" (Matt. 28:1), some of them began to seek the tomb of Jesus.

Soon, strange reports began to circulate. First came Peter and John indignantly reporting that the enemies of Jesus had removed His body from the tomb and hidden it from His disciples.

But Mary had lingered in the Garden. Soon she returned. Her face wore an expression of joy and inward peace in sharp contrast to the helpless grief which had been so evident there only a short time before. Into the ears of the incredulous disciples she poured her story. For as she "stood without at the sepulchre weeping; and as she wept, she stooped down, and looked into the sepulchre, and seeth two angels in white sitting, the one at the head, and the other at the feet, where the body of Jesus had lain. And they say unto her, Woman, why weepest thou? She saith unto them, Because they have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid him. And when she had thus said, she turned herself back, and saw Jesus standing, and knew not that it was Jesus.

"Jesus saith unto her, Woman, why weepest thou? whom seekest thou? She, supposing him to be the gardener, saith unto him, Sir, if thou have borne him hence, tell me where thou hast laid him, and I will take him away. Jesus saith unto her, Mary. She turned herself, and saith unto him, Rabboni; which is to say, Master" (John 20:11-16).

While the disciples pondered this new and seemingly incredulous turn of events, more witnesses appeared on the scene. The women of Galilee who early had set off for the tomb, bearing spices with which to embalm the body, now returned, still bearing their spices. They, too, had found an empty tomb and had seen angels who said to them:

"Why seek ye the living among the dead? He is not here, but is risen: remember how he spake unto you when he was yet in Galilee, saying, The Son of man must be delivered into the hands of sinful men, and be crucified, and the third day rise again" (Luke 24:4-7). All this they reported "unto the eleven, and to all the rest."

But minds that had known keen disappointment and had been numbed by grief were slow to accept reports that might lead to more disappointment and added grief. "Their words seemed to them as idle tales, and they believed them not" (Luke 24:11).

"Then the same day at evening, being the first day of the week, when the doors were shut where the disciples were assembled for fear of the Jews, came Jesus and stood in the midst, and said unto them, Peace be unto you. And when he had so said, he shewed (Please turn to page 11)

Baptism and Resurrection

By Gerald L. Cooper, Tempe, Arizona

IN MANY of our churches, it has become a custom to have a "candidates' class" during the weeks preceding Easter, where instruction concerning Christ and becoming a member of His body is uppermost. Then on Easter morning these candidates are baptized, together with others who may have chosen this great day for baptism.

It seems to me that this is altogether fitting and proper, for Easter is the day set aside for commemoration of the resurrection of our Lord, and baptism is a symbol of that resurrection. When the Pharisees asked for a "sign" from Jesus, He told them: "There shall no sign be given to it, but the sign of the prophet Jonas: for as Jonas was three days and three nights in the whale's belly; so shall the Son of man be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth." We know, from our study of the Scripture, that was exactly what happened—Jesus was three days and three nights in His tomb, being resurrected at the end of that time by His Father. That baptism by immersion (of course by immersion, for there is no other way) is a symbol of the resurrection, as has been suggested, is shown in Romans 6:3-5. At our baptism, we are buried in water as Jesus was buried in the earth; and we die to our sins and our way of living, even as He died to the natural life. Then, arising from the waters of baptism, we walk in a new way of life, just as Jesus arose to new, immortal life. If we are faithful in this new way of life, our reward will be new, immortal life (like that given Jesus) in the first resurrection—when Jesus comes for His church. "Our vile body" will be "fashioned like unto his glorious body!"

Sometime ago, I was talking with an interested one about baptism. The question was raised as to why it would not be all right for one to be baptized into an Orthodox church, one that believed in baptism by immersion. My answer was given by showing that baptism is a symbol of resurrection, properly the resurrection of Jesus, and that most Orthodox churches, and certainly the one to which reference was made, while making a form of believing in His resurrection, did not do so. "Why?" was the next question. My answer was, "They do away with the necessity of the resurrection of Christ or anyone else by teaching that 'there is no death.'" This is strong teaching, but I feel that it is correct and should be seriously considered by all, especially by those who tend to favor "union" with other churches. Would you consider your baptism valid if you had been baptized by one who did not properly believe in the resurrection? Would you consider your baptism valid if you had been baptized when you did not properly believe in the resurrection? These questions each individual must answer for himself.

Let us all be mindful of these things at this resurrection season. If you have not been baptized, is not this Eastertide a good time for it? Tomorrow, next week, or next Easter may never come! Obey today!

The Risen Lord

(John 20:1-17)

By Otto E. Dick, Oregon, Illinois

EASTER DAWNS! The stone is rolled away! Christ is risen from the tomb! At Easter time the whole world rejoices. Nature arrays herself in the bright hues of spring, symbolic of the resurrection to a new life. Animal and plant life seems to catch the spirit. Swelling buds tell the story of an awakening from Winter's sleep. New blood surges through our veins, and youth seems to come back to us again. Truly, nature declares the truth of resurrection from death to new life.

The miracle of the resurrection in nature, however, is nothing compared to the miracle of the resurrection of our Lord. During this Easter season while we are reminded through nature of the glories of the risen Lord, let us study with renewed fervor the story of the resurrection. Let us resolve to study with the view of gaining increased faith in Christ as our Saviour and reconsecrate ourselves to His service. For this purpose allow me to lead you briefly through a study of John 20:1-17.

After Jesus had been falsely tried, crucified, and buried, the Roman authorities sealed the tomb and set a guard to see that the disciples did not steal the body and then declare that He had risen from the dead. On the first day of the week while it was yet dark, Mary Magdalene came to the tomb and saw the stone rolled away. Mary Magdalene was the one out of whom Jesus had cast the devils. The stone which she found rolled away was the large stone which had been placed in the doorway of the tomb by Joseph of Arimathaea after he had placed Jesus there. Mark says that Mary, the mother of James, and Salome, were with her; and Luke mentions Joanna, "and other women that were with them." They had come with spices to embalm the body and were alarmed to find the stone rolled away.

Mary Magdalene ran to Simon Peter and that other disciple whom Jesus loved, which was John, the author of the account from which our study is chiefly taken. She probably went to them first, thinking that they would be most likely to know where Jesus was. Mary said, "They have taken away the Lord out of the sepulchre, and we know not where they have laid him." Apparently, she had no thought of His having arisen from the dead; neither did the disciples, though He had told them over and over that He would.

Peter and John then ran to the sepulcher. John outran Peter and reached the sepulcher first. Stooping down and looking in, he saw the linen clothes ("cloths," A.R.) lying; yet he did not enter. Then Simon Peter went into the sepulcher and saw the clothes. He found the napkin, which had been about the head of Christ, lying not with the linen clothes, but folded up by itself instead of lying by the other clothes. This latter observation indicated that Jesus rose, removed His burial clothes, and laid them aside in an orderly manner. If thieves had stolen the body, they would not have taken time to remove the clothing at all. Rising to immortal life, Christ came out of the tomb free from all incumbrances. It is interesting to note that Lazarus came forth in his burial clothes when Christ raised him, possibly because he was not raised to immortality.

Then John went into the sepulcher and saw and believed that Jesus had risen from the dead. Previously the disciples had not understood Jesus when He told them that He would be resurrected from the dead, but now John believed from the evidence that he saw. Then the disciples returned home, but Mary stood weeping outside the tomb. As she looked into the tomb, she saw two angels in white, sitting, one at the head and one at the feet, where Jesus had been. Nothing further is said about the position of the two angels, but they may be compared to the two cherubim placed at each end of the mercy seat on the ark of the testimony. (Ex. 25:28.) "Christ crucified was the great propitiatory, at the head and feet of which were these two cherubim, not with flaming swords, to keep us from, but welcome messengers, to direct us to, the way of life" (Matthew Henry's Com.). When they asked Mary why she was weeping, she replied, "Because they have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid him." "It was conjectured on chapter 19:42 that the body of our Lord was only put here for the time being, and that after the Sabbath, they might carry it to a more proper place. Mary seems to refer to this: 'And I know not where they have laid him.' This removal she probably attributed to some of our Lord's disciples, or to some of His friends" (Clarke's Com.).

"As Mary answered the angels, she heard a step behind or saw the tomb darkened by a shadow, and on turning discerned dimly through her tears a figure which, naturally enough, she supposed to be the gardener—not because Jesus had assumed the clothes or lifted the tools of the gardener, but because he was the likeliest person to be going about the garden at that early hour" (Expositor's Bible). She then turned around and saw Jesus; but she did not know Him, which "may indicate the change from the natural to the spiritual body. (1 Cor. 15:44)" (Abingdon Com.). Perhaps she was so absorbed in grief that she did not at first discern it to be Him. Furthermore, as she had no conception of His resurrection, she was not prepared to recognize a resurrected Christ. Her eyes may have been holden, that she should not know Him, as were those of the two disciples. (Luke 24:16.) Jesus rebuked her by the inquiry, "Woman, why weepest thou?" Supposing that He was the gardener, she said, "Sir, if thou hast borne him hence, tell me where thou hast laid him, and I will take him away" (John 20:15).

Christ revealed Himself to Mary by calling her by name. Immediately upon recognizing Him, she joyously exclaimed, "Rabboni," or Master. Perhaps it was because she was more affectionately attached to Him than were any of the others, that Jesus appeared to her first and made her the first herald of the gospel of our risen Saviour. Jesus told her not to touch Him, because He had not yet ascended to His Father. This last admonition was probably to encourage her not to dote upon His bodily presence, not to set her heart on this, but to look upon His resurrection as a step toward His ascension. Jesus then said: "Go to my brethren and say to them, I ascend unto my Father, and your Father, and to my God and your God." From Matthew 28:9 it appears that some women "held him by the feet and worshipped him." Mary may have been doing this when Jesus admonished her not to lay emphasis upon His bodily presence but to go and tell His disciples that He truly lives. Like a good disciple, she hastened to tell the good news of what she had seen and heard.

In this brief review of the resurrection of our Lord, let us observe why it was necessary that Christ rise from the dead. First, it was necessary to show that Christ was indeed the promised Messiah, the Son of God. It showed that Christ through power imputed to Him from His Father was victorious over death and was changed from mortality to immortality. His resurrection proved that Jesus was right when He said, in speaking of His life, "No man taketh it from me, but I lay it down of myself. I have power to lay it down, and I have the power to take it again" (John 10:18). Unlike Zoroaster, Buddha, Mohammed, and others who founded religions and are dead, Jesus died for the religion He founded, thus proving His genuineness. He then rose from the dead to verify it, thus proving His authority. At the close of World War I, a man explained to Gypsy Smith that the Christian religion, like all others, had failed; and the hour had struck for a new religion to be established around which all humanity could consistently rally. "Who will found this new religion?" asked Gypsy. "The one who founds it," he continued, "will have to die for it, to convince me that he is sincere; and will have to rise from the dead to prove to me that he is able to make good in his offer of salvation."

Second, it was necessary that Christ should rise from the dead to give us a sure foundation for our hope of being resurrected from death. If Christ had not risen, then we would have no hope beyond the grave. The Apostle Paul assured: "If Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain, and your faith is also vain . . . But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the firstfruits of them that slept" (1 Cor. 15:14, 20). "If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable" (v. 19). If the dead rise not, let us "eat and drink; for to morrow we die" (v. 32). Jesus said, "I am the resurrection, and the life" (John 11:25). He said to John on the Isle of Patmos, "I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore" (Rev. 1:18).

The resurrection of Christ was also essential to the success of the Great Commission. Without His resurrection the meaning of His death would not have been understood; men must perceive that Christ's life did not end in vain or in defeat. They must understand that He lived victoriously even unto death and unto a new life. For the success of the gospel, it was necessary that God raise His Son and our Saviour to immortality and that He ascend to the Father until He comes again to reign on earth as King of Kings. On that resurrection morning was born a glorious hope of eternal life through Christ. It was the beginning of the Great Commission, the beginning of seed sowing. His appeal to the multitude was now over. To the few faithful ones He would appear for just a little while that He might give them joy and comfort and strength to carry His great work forward.

Easter is a fitting time for the beginning of a spiritual campaign as we reflect upon the full significance of (Please turn to page 11)

UNWANTED SPIRIT.

The secretary of the freedom committee of the Spiritualist Union in England, on being interviewed about the spiritualists' mediums having contact with Hitler, replied: "We believe that the fuhrer is dead, but the less we have to do with that man even now the better." He further explained that if Hitler did attempt to communicate with anyone, it would be with a "close colleague." He stated: "Many of our 1,000 recognized mediums could make the attempt, but it would be for Hitler himself to determine the best avenue of communication and that would undoubtedly be through a close colleague of his own." The secretary estimated that 35 per cent of Britain's population believe in spiritualism, although few would admit it openly. The new converts were mostly from among those who lost relatives in the war. Said he: "A large majority of the new-comers are people who lost relatives in the war, but we also number many prominent personalities among our converts such as politicians and ministers of the church. Few of them, however, admit it openly."

Spiritualism is a logical and natural outcome of belief in the immortality of the soul. It, as orthodoxy teaches, the soul of man is a conscious entity after death and was able to return in certain Bible cases, as in the cases of Samuel and the Witch of Endor and the parabolic account of the rich man and Lazarus, then spiritualism is just the practical application of such teaching.

The whole system of soul-revival-after-death is under blanket condemnation of Scripture in the strongest language possible. It is the root of nearly all error in Christendom today.

RESOLUTIONS.

The Gallup poll recently taken regarding New Year's resolutions gives an insight into the things which most people are concerned. The resolution which stood first in the resolutions made by the majority was determination to save more money. The second resolution in point of importance to people was desire to improve their character. The third, which was most paramount, was the resolve to improve the disposition.

It is significant that "the love of money," which is the root of all evil, concerned more people than a desire to be more manly or womanly, or to have a disposition that would be more companionable. This poll confirms the trend of last-day events as foretold by the prophets.

NOVEL IDEAS.

The pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Bluffton, Ohio, struck on a novel way of raising $8,000 for church extension which is needed. He distributed nearly $2,000 in ten dollar bills and asked the people to follow the practice of the faithful servants in the parable of the talents and invest the money in hope of increasing it enough so that the desired amount would be realized.

The idea seems to be capturing the enthusiasm of the people, and it is expected that several thousand more than is needed will be raised.

If God's plan of financing His work was carried out there would be so much money available for the extension of the gospel message, it would be hard to find means and people to use up the money. It seems strange that folk will wax enthusiastic about man-made schemes for raising funds, but balk at the mention of God's plan, though the Lord challenges people to prove His method.

EAST vs. WEST.

The whole world has been agog since President Truman delivered his history-making speech before Congress. The United States has been the last great power to drink of the cup of internationalism. She has decided to embark on the road that will most definitely lead to participation in the final gathering of the nations. If the United States carries out this proposal to bulwark Greece and Turkey, and there is every reason to believe she will, it will be an outright challenge to the Communist regime in Moscow to halt its westward drive. The issues of war are being prepared—the battle lines for Jehoshaphat are in the making! The Day of the Lord is fast approaching! Communism is the Russian brand and democracy born of freedom of worship, freedom of press and freedom of speech cannot live side by side in unity of spirit. The world is not big enough for these two philosophies of life. There are those in this country who would like this nation to lie down as a lamb in the paws of the Russian bear—hoping that the little lamb would teach the bear how to live in peace. Prophecy gives us a different picture. "Flatteries, fury" and "destruction" are three characteristics given to this power from the North. None are peaceful attributes.

UNHEALTHY PHILOSOPHY.

Changes in habits and modes of living usually are brought about over a long period of time. Sometimes the changes are so gradual it is difficult to perceive them. Speaking of a change that has come over a large segment of labor in the United States, A. M. Sargent, president of the American Society of Tool Engineers, declared: "A new and unhealthy philosophy has crept insidiously into the thinking of many production workers." He defined it as "getting something for nothing."

People are never satisfied. The less hours they work, the less they want to work. The more wages they receive, the greater pay they desire. People are getting soft. With old age pensions, hospitalization, free dental and medical services, people are getting in the frame of mind that the world owes them a living. We are living in a different world than when we were born.

"Prayerless pews make powerless pulpits."

PEACE THROUGH EDUCATION. UNESCO

is the alphabet for United Nations Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Organization which is attempting to revamp the school texts of all schools throughout the world that "one world" may be brought about through "education." Dr. Howard E. Wilson, assistant director of Carnegie Endowment for International Peace and a member of UNESCO, says that this international organization can go into any country "whose textbooks might be inimical to the peace of the world and make a report to the Security Council. He feels that the thousands of teachers would be "a leavening influence" in a "one world in education." But the task which lies before this branch of the Security Council is herculean. As Dr. Wilson says, there are hundreds of thousands of "pupils living under a code of stealing, cheating, and lying taught them by resistance leaders during Nazi occupation." Then he continues: "Teachers have to unmake pupils before they can make them in the right mold." The teaching profession is a noble calling, but it takes more than the three "R's" to make character. The home and the church must contribute their share in the work of building peaceful citizens. All three of these institutions have been on the short end of their responsibilities, but the home has been the biggest failure of all.

Submitting his report on "Ontario Prisons and Reformatories" to the Ontario legislature, G. Hedley Busher, acting superintendent of the Guelph Reformatory, criticized parents, whom he believed had "failed dismally in their obligation." He said: "Never at any time in the past 25 years has youth been found so indolent, so defiant, or so determined to do what is wrong as at the present time." He continued: "It is not the fault of the boy that he finds himself in the custody of a reform institution. It is the fault of his parents, who have failed dismally in their obligations."

It is hard to make a boy or girl in the school room or Sunday school class when he or she returns home to have all the good done by the instructors undone by dissipated and irresponsible parents. Peace by education is a long way off.

Christ Arose

By W. Howard Beemer, Oregon Bible College

CHRIST AROSE! When Mary Magdalene told the apostles Christ had risen, Jesus having appeared first unto Mary after His resurrection (Mark 16:9), they did not believe her. Neither did they believe He had been raised when Peter told of having seen Him, nor did they believe when Cleopas and Luke told of having talked with Him. They did not believe until they, themselves, had seen and talked with Him. Most people seem to be of the same disposition today—being, as they say, "from Missouri." That is a weak excuse, as the Bible today does "show them"! The Word of God is beautifully clear and easily understood, if one honestly tries to understand concerning Jesus being the risen Christ.

Joseph of Arimathea asked for the body of Jesus, He, who had been a secret disciple of the Christ (John 19:38) because of fear of the Jews—being a counselor of the great Sanhedrin (Luke 23:50), became more bold and courageous than even the apostles. Joseph took the body of Christ and buried it in his own tomb, which had been hewn out in the rock. (Matt. 27:60.) This was a new tomb, wherein never had man been laid. (John 19:41.) In never had, Joseph was fulfilling Isaiah's prophecy of 53:9, 10. Though Old Testament prophecies of Christ are too numerous to mention, two that should be mentioned here are Zechariah 12:10 and Psalm 22:16-18. The people of Jesus' time were living in the midst of fulfillment of prophecy of Christ, yet only a very few believed. We of today are living when many prophecies are being fulfilled, and we also fail to believe.

"He is not here, but is risen" (Luke 24:6). These were the words spoken by angels to the women when they came to the tomb of Christ to embalm Him. The angels are here referred to as men, due, no doubt, to their earthly form. Their dress and general appearance, though, were like that of the Christ in the Transfiguration. The women included Mary of Magdala, Mary, the mother of James, and Joanna. Evidently the first embalming had not been done perfectly, due to haste necessary at that time. Therefore, a second was required. Christ was risen, however, and did not require their spices and ointments, but the fragrance of these will not be wasted. Their fragrance will sweeten and enhance the names of these women in the sight of God for this kindly deed they had desired to do for the Master.

Prior to Jesus' rejection, He had said to those who followed Him: "The Son of man must be delivered into the hands of sinful men, and be crucified, and the third day rise again" (Luke 24:7). Jesus prophesied His death and resurrection. Did it mean anything to His followers? Did they of Palestine believe Him when, in A.D. 33 and before, He told them of His coming death and resurrection? Did they, His own friends, comrades, and followers, believe Him? ?? Does it mean anything to us today, and if so, what? In this day of our Lord, nineteen hundred forty-seven, do we all sincerely believe that Christ arose? The foregoing use of three question marks is not a typographical error. The inference is that many Christians today do not appear to consider the Lord Jesus as anything but a great moralist and philosopher. Please do not be too horrified with this thought, as I do not believe that you or I believe this insult. The fact that even a few do should be cause for great concern, and events and statistics indicate that the number who believe this insult are more than a few.

Should the preceding thought seem entirely incredible, please read Luke 24:11 with me: "Their words seemed to them as idle tales, and they believed them not." This answer was given the women when they had finished telling the apostles of the resurrection of the Lord. Is it any wonder that men today do not believe readily that the Christ has been raised from the dead, when even those who followed Him doubted for a while? John and Peter went into the tomb (after the women had come to them) and found everything as the women had said. John "saw, and believed. For as yet they knew not the scripture, that he must rise again from the dead" (John 20:8b, 9). "And believed"! Does this mean that they believed the Christ had been raised from the dead. One would have to say, No, after reading the following verse (9), as it definitely states they knew not the scripture concerning His resurrection. (They believed, true enough, but they believed that the Christ was not there—that is all!)

The first Easter morning was indeed a bleak beginning for these men—the followers of Christ who were to be the first ministers of Christianity. This first Easter morn had none of the glory, the praising of God, or the great happiness that it should have had, as these men did not know the scripture, "He must rise again from the dead," and they were in the dark abyss of ignorance and superstition.

Luke 24:13 begins the account of Jesus' appearing to the two disciples traveling to the village called Emmaus. These two men were Cleopas (v. 18) and Luke. There is some dispute as to whether or not the second man was Luke. Lightfoot thinks it was Peter. Clarke states, however, that many learned men, both ancient and modern, think the second man was Luke.

In verse 17, we note that Cleopas and Luke were sad. This is not difficult to understand when one realizes they believed their beloved Master and great Friend was dead. Their sadness was so genuine that it was quite apparent to even a stranger. Of course, being Jesus, He would have known anyhow. He here appeared in guise of a stranger and thus made remarks only of the type that a complete stranger would make under similar circumstances. These two men loved the Saviour, trusted and followed Him, yet their finite minds were not able to comprehend God's divine plan in this matter, even when it was told them in simplest terms. They understood only in part (Luke 24:21), as they expected Christ to be the temporal Redeemer of Israel in that age. They needed to view Christ from a distance to get the true perspective. They were living too close to Christ, and must needs re-focus their views from aways off. Cleopas remembered about the third day and His resurrection, of which Jesus had spoken. However, the fact that Jesus was not there—in evidence—when they went to the tomb seems to have shattered their belief in this statement of the Christ's.

Jesus then began to teach them all over again: "Beginning at Moses and all the prophets, he expounded unto them in all the scriptures the things concerning himself" (Luke 24:27). Cleopas and Luke were greatly inspired and cheered by this Stranger, as He gave them hope again. Had He not used the term "Christ" (v. 26), which they had not dared to use since the death of Jesus? They had referred to Him as Jesus of Nazareth, thinking that since He was dead they had been wrong about Him being the Christ. They begged the Stranger to stay with them yet a while in Emmaus. He agreed, and in the breaking and blessing of bread the veil, which had hidden His identity, was withdrawn. Immediately, upon revealing Himself to them, Christ disappeared. The disciples were so excited that, instead of remaining in Emmaus to transact their business, they started back for Jerusalem that very night.

The sixty furlongs were as nothing to them, as they had news of the utmost importance to tell the Eleven. They hastened to the well-known meeting place only to find the Eleven, and those that were with them, already in a state of much excitement over a visit of the Lord to Peter. Their news of the visit which they had had with the risen Lord added to the excitement and confusion—yet some still doubted. While they talked, and perhaps debated, Christ again appeared to them. This time He came through, not only a closed door, but a locked door. It is only simple logic to suppose that if they took the trouble to close a door tightly in those troubled times, they would take the additional trouble to bar it. (John 20:19.) This did not prevent the Master from appearing in their midst, with the usual salutation—"Peace be with you." Even this old familiar greeting did not still their fears. He then showed them the nail prints and that of the spear. Christ asked for some meat, and, when given some fish left from the evening meal, ate it as He had previously eaten. He did not actually need this food, of course, but wanted to prove to them that He was still the same Jesus, and could indulge in earthly things as before though He was immortal.

Christ repeated the procedure that He had followed earlier in the evening, and opened the Word unto them. He, at this time, gave to them the priceless promise of the Holy Ghost. They were instructed to wait in Jerusalem until this "power from on high" would be given to them. The command to preach remission of sins in His name to all nations, beginning at Jerusalem, was given them at this time, also. (Luke 24:47.)

Jesus was seen many times during the next forty days by His apostles and followers, to whom He showed Himself alive "by many infallible proofs" (Acts 1:3). He spoke often of things pertaining to the Kingdom of God. At the conclusion of this forty days, He took the apostles to Bethany. Here was the final farewell of Jesus and His followers—in this life. The next time they would meet would be at the time of the Second Advent. The mood of the apostles and disciples was much different from that exhibited when they came away from seeing the empty tomb. This time they were rejoicing—being no longer in the dark abyss of ignorance and superstition. They saw at least a part of the divine plan concerning Jesus. They had received the Great Commission, and had a work to do for the Saviour. Those who serve the Master—both then and now—know that He always will be there to guide and lead them as long as they call upon Him. Would that all Christians today were aware of this fact. Those men continued in service of the Master until their deaths. Most of them died as martyrs. They served the Lord and Master as long as life remained in their bodies. We are also disciples of Christ. Can we afford to do less?

Christ died for us. He suffered all the barbs, insults, and degrading actions of the coarse, brutal Roman soldiers and insane Hebrew hordes. Jesus never once struck back, though He could have had legions of angels at His slightest call. Jesus did all this for you and for me. In fact, the Christ did it all for all mankind. What is mankind doing to show its gratitude? Do men honor His Name? Do they worship the Christ? Do they even give Him a kindly thought? Many neglect to do any of these things because they have not been told of Christ, or at least are not sufficiently instructed in the Holy Word. Mark 16:15, 16 states: "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned." This was Jesus' last personal command to His followers. It is as much a command to His followers of today as it was to those of that day in A.D. 33.

Thomas doubted, stating he would not believe until he could see the nail prints and touch them, also touch the wound in His side. (John 20:25-28.) Jesus granted him this request the next time He appeared unto the apostles. Then, Thomas believed! Naturally, it requires more faith to believe without seeing, but a blessing is to be granted to those who do believe without seeing. (John 20:29.) We can help to show those outside the faith the way they must go to find this blessing—if we will.

The decision is there for us all to make. We either can crucify Christ anew, or we can take up His cross, going out to preach the gospel to every creature we can find who will listen. The choice is our own. Christ came, He taught, was crucified on Calvary for the sins of the world, and died for all mankind. What does this all mean to us?—to you and me? Christ did all that He could do for mankind; now it is the duty of each individual to decide for himself. The decision is purely voluntary. Regardless of what mankind does, thinks, or believes, however, one truth stands out for all eternity—Christ arose!

The Triumphal Entry

By Richard Smith, Lawrenceville, Ohio

THE LIFE of Jesus was drawing to a close. Prophecies concerning His first advent were nearly fulfilled. Jesus knew there was yet one great work for Him to do—this to end His life. Scripture states: "From that time forth began Jesus to shew unto his disciples, how that he must go unto Jerusalem, and suffer many things of the elders and chief priests and scribes, and be killed, and be raised again the third day" (Matt. 16:21).

Through the period prior to His entrance into Jerusalem, Jesus prepared His disciples for the time He no longer would be walking with them on the earth. He walked with His disciples from Galilee and at last stood before Jerusalem. Then occurred what is often called the Triumphal Entry of Christ. The multitudes cried, "Hosanna to the Son of David." (Cp. Luke 1:32.) "Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord." It was a triumphal entry, however, only as it foreshadowed the day all Jerusalem will make the same cry. Soon thereafter we hear Jesus' impassioned cry:

"O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, thou that killest the prophets, and stonest them that are sent unto thee, how often would

I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not! Behold your house is left unto you desolate. . . . I say unto you, Ye shall not see me henceforth, till ye shall say, Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord" (Matt. 23:37-39).

Jerusalem, true to form, condemned the Lord Jesus to die on the cross, calling upon its children the blood of Jesus. The Christ was crucified and, by the power of God, was resurrected to become redeemer of mankind.

Today, as men the world over search for a solution to their problems—spiritual, domestic, national, and international—and as the Jew searches for a national home, Jesus sits by the throne of God interceding for man, awaiting the day when Jew and Gentile gladly will cry, "Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord." The great resurrection, foreshadowed by the resurrection of Jesus, will take place at the second coming of our Lord. Jerusalem in which once was heard the cry, "Crucify him, Crucify him," shall echo the cry, "Hosanna to the Son of David"! Jesus will not wear again the mocking crown of thorns, but shall sit in regal splendor ruling in righteousness with those who have been working for the opportunity to share in the ovation to the King of Kings and Lord of Lords. As He makes His true triumphal entry into the world, triumphant over sin, death, and the grave to be Lord forever over all, God grant that we may share in that glory!

THE BETTER WAY

I'd rather see a sermon, than hear one any day;
I'd rather one would walk with me, than merely show the way.

The eye's a better pupil and more willing than the ear;
For counsel is confusing, but example's always clear.
And the best of all the preachers are the men who live their creeds.

For to see the good in action is what everybody needs.

I can soon learn how to do it, if you'll let me see it done.
I can watch your hand in action, but your tongue too fast may run.

And the lecture you deliver may be very wise and true,
But I'd rather get my lesson by observing what you do.
For I may misunderstand you, and the high advice you give,

But there's no misunderstanding how you act, and how you live.—Selected.

THE RISEN LORD

that resurrection morning. It is a time to pray and rejoice as we behold the glory of the new day. True Christians will shed a few tears of gratitude and then resolve anew to go and proclaim the risen Lord in word and deed. Let us this Easter seek Christ fervently, walking and talking with Him, pledging our lives to His service. To have a part in the Great Commission is not merely our privilege but our obligation. It was a command, "Go ye." Let us highly resolve that, as Jesus rose from the grave, we shall rise from the sin of selfishness, surrender ourselves to Him and, through His grace, be His true disciples. If we do this, the glory of the first resurrection morn will be revealed to us. Only then shall we understand the full meaning of Easter.

JESUS LIVES!

unto them his hands and his side. Then were the disciples glad, when they saw the Lord" (John 20:19, 20).

The change that occurred in the attitudes of the disciples when they finally were convinced that Jesus had risen from the dead seems almost as miraculous as the resurrection itself. Numbing grief gave way to unbounded joy. Doubts yielded to certainties. Apathy became zeal. Inaction was replaced by active service. These changes took place for no other reason than the disciples' conviction that Jesus had come forth from the grave to die no more.

The opposition of the Jews was no less bitter, their persecution of Christians no less severe than they had been before. The priesthood continued to influence the might of Rome against Christianity. Increasingly cruel means were devised for punishment of those who confessed Christ. Yet Christianity continued to grow and to wield an ever-widening influence in the world. Men who had seen the risen Christ could not be intimidated. Jesus had proved that He had power over death itself! Never again would they permit themselves to become disheartened or discouraged, whatever difficulties and oppositions they might be called upon to face. They had glorious news to be proclaimed to the world, and proclaim it they would!

The message of the risen Lord is still the most vitalizing influence of Christianity. No one who truly believes that Jesus rose from the dead and is alive today can ever falter in his Christian service. Since Jesus is alive and even now at the right hand of God, it is impossible that His church should fail. Just as surely as He was delivered into the hands of sinful men, crucified, and the third day rose again as He said, just that surely will He come again to establish His Kingdom.

If we believe this, no opposition can prevent us from proclaiming that glorious news to the world! No persecution can discourage, lack of numbers cannot dishearten, limited finances cannot hinder. All that we are, all that we have, even life itself will not seem too great a price to pay for the blessed privilege of proclaiming the message of life eternal.

For those who are lost in sin, for those who are discouraged because of the increase in wars and rumors of wars, for those who fear that man may use his destructive weapons to destroy all life from off the earth, for those who can foresee nothing but increasing misery for the inhabitants of the earth, there is but one answer—Jesus lives!

He to whom the Father has given "all power in heaven and in earth" is coming again! He, and He alone, can restore the sin-cursed earth to the righteous condition that God intended it to have. Fear not, Christian! Only believe! JESUS LIVES!

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

Prepared by Madge Savage
Waite Park, Minnesota

"The Lord is longsuffering and of great mercy, forgiving iniquity and transgression, and by no means clearing the guilty, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation" (Num. 14:18).

Christ's Mercy

Christ's love and mercy were shown to Mary Magdalene. It was "Mary Magdalene, out of whom he had cast seven devils." She had been very bad, but He made her good. She loved and served Jesus because of her love for Him. She was one of the last to leave His tomb and she was the first to return to it, coming "when it was yet dark." She saw the stone rolled away. She only knew the Christ who had shown her mercy was gone from the sepulcher.

She Was Not Believed

Mary ran and met Peter and John. She said, "They have taken away my Lord out of the sepulchre, and we know not where they have laid him." The men ran. They looked. Then they went home. (John 20:1-10.)

Mary stayed near by weeping. As she wept, she stooped down and looked inside of the sepulcher. There were "two angels in white sitting, the one at the head, and the other at the feet, where the body of Jesus had lain" (v. 12).

The angels spoke to her, asking: "Woman, why weepest thou?" She told them the same she had told the disciples. When she finished speaking, she turned and saw Jesus, but she did not recognize Him. Remember she had come before daylight. She supposed He was the gardener. Mary said if he knew where they had taken Jesus she would go and get Him.

Then Jesus spoke to Mary. He simply said, "Mary."

Mary turned to him and answered, "Master!"

Mary went and told the disciples that she had seen Jesus and talked with Him. "They, when they had heard that he was alive, and had been seen of her, believed not."

The news of His resurrection was too wonderful to believe.

Some day He is coming back to earth again. Many will not believe that statement, either. What a wonderful day it will be for those who look for Him to return! Those who are waiting, watching, and praying for His return will be happy.

The ones who are not waiting and watching for His return will be sad. They will not be ready when He comes. "Unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation" (Heb. 9:28b).

So watch, live soberly, study the Word, and wait for His soon return. You want to be ready for the great reward He will bring to those who love and serve Him. "He is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him."

Caleb and Joshua

These two young men believed the Lord. They knew He would do whatever He promised. Many of the Israelites did not have faith in God. Their actions and words could not please God and they had no faith.

Caleb and Joshua were the only two who gave good reports when they explored the land of Canaan. (Num. 13:2.) The people murmured and complained against their leaders.

Caleb and Joshua said, "The land, which we passed through to search it, is an exceeding good land. If the Lord delight in us, then he will bring us into this land, and give it us; a land which floweth with milk and honey" (Num. 14:7, 8).

Then Caleb and Joshua begged the people not to rebel against God. Nor should they fear the people of the land, for the Lord was with the Israelites.

God punished the people for their unbelief, but Caleb and Joshua were given a reward. The Lord keeps His promises. (Num. 14:37, 38.)

Berean Department

As far back as January, negotiations began with Harold J. Doan, pastor of the Chicago Church of God and editor of the Illinois Evangelist, looking to his taking over the editorial work on the Berean Page of THE RESTITUTION HERALD each week.

Mr. Doan, it pleases us to announce, finally consented to this arrangement during the third week of February. He will begin his task as soon as a final conference of the general editorial committee of National Bible Institution can be held—which means he probably will start work almost as soon as this appears in print.

The Berean Department is not edited for the old, but for the young—for those accustomed to youthful ways, to modern methods of teaching and living, to modern conceptions of writing and advertising, to comic books and Sunday supplements and news magazines and The Saturday Evening Post. Naturally, it will not appeal to everyone; it is not intended to do so.

By specific command of the National Berean Society conference of 1946, the executive board of the Society was instructed to see to it that a new note was injected into the Berean Department of THE HERALD, a note which would—as one Berean put it to the president following the meeting at which the resolution passed—make the Department “stick out like a sore thumb.” It was better, in the estimation of the Society, to be “different” and have readers than to be antique and have none.

Mr. Doan goes into his new job knowing all this. We shall not invariably agree with him, any more than we shall invariably agree on politics or interpretation of the Bible. This is, however, no reason for not co-operating with him, no reason for failing to encourage him with letters, suggestions, manuscripts, news, articles, as the mood seizes us and as he himself requests.

It is unlikely that James M. Watkins, who has alternated with the president in editing the Department since the last General Conference, will continue to work similarly with Mr. Doan. This is by Mr. Watkins' own desire, a desire stimulated by the conception that the young people should take over their portion of THE RESTITUTION HERALD completely. To Mr. Watkins go the president's personal warm thanks for constant help.

The Guiding Star, providing monthly lesson material and news for teen-age and college-age young people, goes on, under the same editorial management as was chosen by the Society's executive board during the fall of 1946. Both it and the Department will, we pray, become doubly worth-while as the result of these contemplated changes.

 National Berean Society

BEAUMONT, TEXAS

Dear Readers of The Restitution Herald:

We surely have enjoyed the special Texas number of The Herald. The articles by Bro. T. A. Drinkard and Bro. George Waters are fine, and the "Report to Texas," by Bro. Lyon, is very interesting. May the Lord bless, lead, and guide Bro. Lyon in his important work; also all other workers for the Master.

I do believe a Texas Conference would be fine for our State. I may not be permitted to attend for years, as I am the mother of six children under eighteen years of age, and am in a very isolated place (so far as church members are concerned). The blood transfusion for Texas is needed badly, and let us do all for the glory of God.

I have never been permitted the pleasure of attending one of our church conferences, but can never forget how my father was spiritually renewed when he returned from the conference. Let us remember: to starve spiritually is more possible than to starve physically. Texas seems to have spiritual starvation.

"In unity there is strength." It seems to me we are being slack as to what the Church of God believes. I pray that we may be strong for Jesus and in one accord. If divisions must come, let us "rightly divide the word of truth"; and, if anyone is not willing to follow our "example" (1 Peter 2:21), let us cease to fellowship them. Let us "strive not about words to no profit." (2 Tim. 2.)

I pray we will never be guilty of being "lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God; having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof."

Please read Colossians 2:5-8. I do pray that we may all be steadfast in the faith of our Lord. "We are made partakers of Christ, if we hold the beginning of our confidence steadfast unto the end."

Let us each practice 1 Peter 5:6-11 and 2 Peter 3:17, 18. I would like to see a few articles by our ministers on "Doctrines of the Church of God Teaches" and also the history of our church. I have been told by Baptists, "Oh, you are just a branch from our church." That, I do not believe; but, if it is so, I am glad I am one of the branches. God grant that we may be strong like Moses, "choosing rather to suffer affliction with the people of God, than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season." "What is a man profited, if he gain the whole world, and lose his own soul?"
 Pray for me and my family.

Rachel H. Morris.

COMMENDATION OF LYON'S ARTICLE

The article by Bro. M. W. Lyon, on "We Have a Message," is one of the most cheerful signs of our church vitality that I have seen in a long time. The lukewarm attitude toward error in Christendom which has been engulfing the whole attitude of the religious leaders, and which has had its influence in our own ranks, has almost destroyed a "love for truth." If we are to justify our existence as an organic body, we must be willing to stand up and be counted for what we believe, and be able to give a Bible reason for our faith. Thank you, Bro. Lyon. How true your words: "We have a message that none of the larger religious bodies is proclaiming. It is radically different"! Let us stand behind our message one hundred per cent with conviction—with zeal, with full moral, spiritual, and financial support. Away with lukewarmness toward the importance of our teachings! — C. E. Randall.

WORK IN TEXAS

Services were held at the home of my father, R. F. Robbins, in Dallas, Tex., on March 9, by Bro. M. W. Lyon. We were all glad to hear two very inspiring sermons in one day. We are all interested in Bro. Lyon's sincere effort to revive the Texas Conference; and we pray the brethren all over Texas will help make this year's conference a joyous spiritual awakening for the Texas members of the Church of God. — Mrs. Eunice Garner.

KOKOMO, INDIANA

Sickness is still the main enemy of our church attendance. Bro. Robert Harvey was summoned to the hospital, March 3, for an appendix operation. He is at home now and mending rapidly. Sr. Parker is in regular attendance, now, after months of illness. The Fergusons have been under a long quarantine for scarlet fever. Sr. Macy spoke to them by telephone this evening, however, and they plan, D.V., to meet with us next Sunday (March 23). — E. L. Macy, Pastor.

WORD FROM J. M. MORGAN

Dear brethren who have helped so kindly on expenses of printing the thousand sets of five volumes each: I went to the Baptist University Press at Shawnee, Okla., to see why my books were not printed. I am sorry to tell you they had changed business management and the new man was not fully informed on my book job. For lack of help and material, publication will be delayed for some time. I hope you will be patient with me; for, if the Lord lets me live, you will receive your set of five volumes of good, interesting subjects of Bible study.

I will be happy to receive orders from others, with a small donation, so you, too, will have a part in this good work helping others to be ready for endless life when our King of Glory returns to earth again.

J. M. Morgan, Bristow, Okla., Rt. 1.

GLEANINGS FROM THE FIELD "The field is the world."—Jesus.

We are grateful to the many writers who contributed so well toward this special Easter issue of The Herald. We were unable to use all the copy submitted, some being delayed publication until next week.

Sr. Ida Vogel, Saint Louis, Mo., reports that her sister, Sr. Bertha Logan, Taborsville, Mo., has one hind in a cast as result of severe injury from a cow.

Lynda Sue was born, March 15, 1947, to Bro. and Sr. C. R. Randall, Ripley, Ill. Congratulations!

Bro. and Sr. James M. Watkins motored to Grand Rapids, Mich., March 21, to attend the Michigan Spring Conference at the Penellwood Church of God—March 22, 23.

"Plans are being made for a Youth Rally for the young people of the Churches of God in Indiana at the Quarterly Conference, April 27, at the Morning Star Church, South Bend. Bro. James Watkins has been invited as speaker. Further announcement will be made in The Herald through the Indiana Page."—Indiana Conference Board.

Bro. Fred E. Hall reports that he continues to enjoy his work in Arkansas. He and Bro. H. Scott Smith exchanged pulpits on February 9—Bro. Smith preaching at Bear, and Bro. Hall preaching at Little Rock. Bro. Francis Burnett and family, Jordan, Mo. visited with the Halls on the week end of February 16. Francis preaching twice at Cleveland and once at Morrilton. Mrs. Virgil Boston, Morrilton, granddaughter of Sr. Dora Seiggins and Sr. Molly Showmake, was baptized, February 16. Bro. Burnett officiating. Bro. Hall reports that the grandmothers had contributed to Sr. Boston's religious education, then adds: "Both grandmothers are active in the work, for which we praise the Lord."

Sr. Amy Young, Seattle, Wash., who three years ago suffered a broken limb, recently fell and broke the limb again.

Bro. and Sr. A. J. Hoke were in Oregon last week end. Brother Hoke having come on business for National Bible Institution.

According to present plans, a group of Oregon (Ill.) young folks will go to Brush Creek, Ohio, April 12, for a basketball game, staying for the morning church services, Sunday, April 13. There is possibility, too, that they may play a game at South Bend en route.

"The resolution passed recently by the Ministerial Association is very commendable. I believe, as it is very definite on moral standards much needed these days."—Howard H. Hawkins, East Rochester, Ohio.

APPRECIATION FROM THE PATRICKS

On February 27, Sr. Patrick and I celebrated our forty-sixth wedding anniversary. The children brought ice cream and cake and we had a very nice party and received several very nice and useful presents. My wife has endured me for all these forty-six years and is still going quite strongly. She celebrated her seventieth birthday on March 12. Our daughter took it upon herself, assisted by our two daughters-in-law, to give her a birthday card shower—and what a shower! So far, she has received 126 cards and letters. She also received many beautiful and useful presents. It can easily be seen from the number of cards received that it would be utterly impossible for her even to send a thank you card, much as she would like to do so. So she asks me to take this method of thanking each and every one. It has been a very happy week for her and she has watched eagerly for the mail every day. James A. Patrick.

AN OPEN LETTER TO CHURCHES AND STATE CONFERENCES

Ever since Midwinter Ministerial Conferences have been held, some of the churches and state conferences have been paying the transportation of their ministers to these midwinter conferences, also to General Conference. This is a most commendable spirit on the part of these churches and conferences. Many of the ministers would not be able to attend these conferences if they were not aided by their people. Our churches being widely scattered, ministers have little opportunity to contact their fellows in the ministry to talk over with them various problems with which they are confronted, and meditate together on the teachings of the Scripture. These meetings have proved to be a wonderful blessing—both to the ministers and to the churches and conferences.

At each midwinter conference, the traveling expenses are pooled, and all bear an equal share, whether coming from the most distant point or resident in Oregon, Ill.

Some of the younger brethren, especially, who had to bear their own share of the pool found it financially embarrassing. Then, there were some who were not able to attend at all because of the financial outlay involved.

To the churches and conferences which have overlooked this matter, we would like to commend to you the practice of the churches and conferences which have seen the need and recognized the blessing accruing from these ministerial conferences. If you have not helped your pastor or evangelist with the finances, we suggest you bring it before the proper officials for careful consideration and action. The impact of these ministerial conferences is being felt throughout our entire work. All profit by them.

May the grace of the Lord Jesus rest upon all of you.

Committee on License and Ordination,
C. E. Randall, Chairman.

RESTITUTION CHURCH OF GOD

Casey, Illinois

Sunday, March 9, was regular preaching day for Bro. John Mercer at Casey, Ill. Bro. Mercer was accompanied to Casey by his wife and daughter and Bro. and Sr. Walter Croxton. Bro. Mercer preached a very interesting sermon at 11:30 a.m., and at 7:00 p.m. Bro. Croxton gave us another wonderful sermon. We enjoyed having them with us and hope to have them back.

We also had with us that day Bro. and Sr. Sylvan Richey of the Salem Church of near Martinsville, Ill. Our attendance was not so good Sunday due to sickness and various reasons, but our attendance has been very good; and interest of our young people is wonderful. Mrs. Harrison Stephens.

OREGON BIBLE COLLEGE

Saturday morning, March 15, the basketball team from Brush Creek, Ohio, arrived in Oregon. That evening they played the Oregon Golden Rulers—and lost! The boys from Brush Creek were entertained by members of our church here in Oregon, and a few spent the night at the College. Bro. Magaw is planning to take his team to Ohio for a return game in the near future. We hope the Golden Rulers do as well in Ohio as in Illinois.

There have been quite a few sick with the "flu" in Oregon, and some of the students and faculty have contracted the disease. Among those sick were Miss Samuelson, Bro. Dick, and Dean, Rand, Tim, and Irene. We hope there will be no other cases, and extend our sympathy to those who were and are ill.

Mr. Philip Conard, associated with the Quakers, was guest speaker for chapel service last Tuesday. He is a very widely traveled gentleman, who has done much for the Lord. He just recently returned from Europe, where he was working with the Friends. The address he gave was extremely interesting and concerned relief work in Europe. Bro. Magaw completed his sermon on the Book of Esther in chapel period on Thursday.

Kirby Davis and Raymond Brown are singing in "The Messiah" which is to be presented in Rockford on Palm Sunday. The boys obtained parts in this musical presentation through the efforts of Miss Samuelson.

The Glee Club practices every Monday night, and the student players have rehearsals every Monday, Thursday, and Saturday evenings. With the addition of these two groups, the week is very completely filled for most of the students. The Council met last Monday night for its regular bi-monthly meeting. The business taken care of was for the most part of a routine nature. Various committees for a party in honor of Bro. Austin were appointed at this meeting.

Monday night, March 24, a party was given at the College in honor of Bro. F. L. Austin. A gift was presented to him as a small token of our esteem and appreciation of his service as an instructor. Hymns were sung, games were played, and much chatting was done. Refreshments were served, consisting of ice cream and cake. A special vote of thanks is due the members of the games and refreshment committees, who were Irene Payne, Mary Brown, Arnold Johns, and Kirby Davis. W. Howard Beemer, News Editor.

CLEVELAND, OHIO

We of the Golden Rule Church of God in Cleveland, Ohio, were so glad to have Sr. Verna C. Thayer with us again over the week end of March 9. She gave suggestions and instruction to our teachers for our vacation Bible school which will begin on June 23. She also visited our three Vit-Em-In clubs which she helped to start last fall. These three classes are taught by Srs. Grover Gordon, J. Don Swartz, and Hazel Stadden; one class at the church on the east side, one on the west side, and one at North Olmstead, Ohio. The thirty-one members had been anxiously looking forward to this visit from Sr. Thayer and much enjoyed her flannelgraph lesson.

May God's blessing go with her in her work. H. W. Stadden, S. S. Supt.

Illinois Brethren: Remember to attend the Illinois Spring Conference at Ripley—March 28-30. Also, remember the Dollar Day which precedes the Conference.

ANDREW AMOS STORY

Andrew Amos Story, son of Stephen and Cora Story, was born at Eldora, Iowa, October 24, 1885, and died, March 12, 1947, at Omaha, Nebr.

When Bro. Story was a year old, his parents moved to Nebraska and homesteaded in Furnas County, where he lived until about eight years ago when he moved to Cozad, Nebr.

He was united in marriage to Goldie Herman on February 14, 1912. To this union, eight children were born, two of which died in infancy.

About the year 1919, he was baptized by Bro. Amos Adams and became a member of the Holbrook Church of God.

Bro. Story had been in ill health for about a year, when he finally entered University Hospital at Omaha, in January. It was there that he died.

He is survived by his wife, Goldie; his five sons—Lowell, Leland, Gerald, Bernell, and Kermit; one daughter, Mrs. Audrea Mills, all of Cozad; by his mother, Mrs. Cora Story of Holbrook; two sisters, Mrs. John Baxter of Holbrook, and Mrs. Elvie Keep of Bayard; and ten grandchildren.

Funeral services were held March 15, 1947, at Cozad, from the Davis Funeral Home. Burial was made in the Cozad Cemetery. There he awaits the call to life. T. M. Ferrell.

Behind the Resurrection Scene

Luke 24:1-12

By Timothy Pearson, Oregon Bible College

THE BEAUTIFUL story of the resurrection of the Saviour holds much interest for us at Easter time. That He gave His life for humanity is enough to induce men to celebrate the day. Down under the surface, however, a little scrutiny will reveal several hidden facts. Behind the resurrection scene, one can find an unfolding of the Father's future plans. Current events of 1947 were forecast in A.D. 33.

On the first day of the week, the women came to Jesus' tomb to anoint His body. The week was just beginning—the first week of a new era. Christianity became a living, driving force when the Master rose victoriously. Behind this beautiful scene is a likeness to a certain week mentioned by the Prophet Daniel. "From the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem unto the Messiah the Prince shall be seven weeks, and threescore and two weeks," making sixty-nine weeks in all. It is on the first day of the week (the seventieth week) that the Lord will exhibit Himself in splendor and great glory. An event, which may transpire at any second, was foreshadowed as the Saviour arose from the dead.

The next fact that draws our attention is a symbol. As the women approached the tomb, "they found the stone rolled away." This stone was removed to permit the Resurrected One to emerge with ease. Symbolically, another stone, cut out without hands, will pave the way for the Lord again to be victor over the world. In contrast to the stone rolled away into obscurity at the resurrection, the stone that is the symbol of Jesus' powerful Kingdom will grow and become more important until it fills the whole earth. It requires a glimpse behind the scene to get this astounding prophecy not yet fulfilled.

Again our imagination is excited as we read that the visitors to the tomb were much perplexed to discover that the body of the Redeemer was missing. According to the Record, two angels appeared to relieve their fears that Jesus' body had been stolen. These men proclaimed the good news that the Saviour had risen. This suggests a time that Christians will proclaim the return of Christ. Through this resurrection scene, we are taught that we must testify the existence and approaching return of the Lord. Quoting God, the Prophet Isaiah wrote, "Ye are my witnesses and my servant whom I have chosen: that ye may know and believe me, and understand that I am he."

The gospel message for today was proclaimed by the messengers of God as they queried, "Why seek ye the living among the dead?" Why did the followers of the living Saviour seek Him among the bones of dead men? Ignorance was responsible. The same factor accounts for heathen worship of idols and man's quest for the blessings of life among the dead things of the world.

Another interesting fact behind the scene was the challenge angels gave the women at the tomb. Almost in irony they asked, "Remember how he spoke unto you?" The Lord had told them He would be delivered into the hands of sinful men, and be crucified, and the third day rise again. They had forgotten, had they not? Now, when it was too late, they remembered His words. There will come another day soon when people will be reminded of the time they heard about the gospel plan—they will remember, but too late. The challenge is ours to remind the forgetful, lest they be cast into outer darkness.

When these fortunate women finally became converted to the idea that the Christ had really risen, they went as faithful servants to tell others. As they approached the apostles, the lady evangelists found themselves faced with unwillingness to believe, much as the modern preacher does. As they preached the gospel to men who would have been receptive, "their words seemed to them as idle tales, and they believed them not." On Easter morning we see a preview of today's difficulties in spreading the gospel of Christ.

The final picture is not of complete despair, however. As the women told the story, at least one believed. This may be some encouragement to modern teachers of the gospel. Peter believed, for he arose and ran to the sepulcher. Even Christians are sometimes skeptical of Bible teachings. We find it difficult to believe all the unfathomable promises. The Lord practically draws us a picture, but we still cannot see the light.

We have observed types of the "seventieth week," the growing stone, modern witnesses of the gospel, the gospel message, a challenge to remember, discouragements to ministers, and the limited number of believers. All these subjects are taught in the simple Easter story. God's future plan is revealed behind the resurrection scene.

The Gospel in Resurrection

By Paul M. Hatch, Oregon, Illinois

CHRISTIANS use the term "Easter" today to commemorate the day of the raising of Jesus from the dead. Only in one place in all the Bible is this term used, and it evidently does not refer to the day of resurrection. The translators of the Authorized Version give it to us in the twelfth chapter and fourth verse of the Acts of the Apostles. Here it is recorded that Herod the king purposed to quarter the Apostle Peter in prison until after Easter and then bring him to trial for offenses against an order handed down, forbidding the preaching regarding Jesus. Authorities tell us the word in the Greek text is pascha, translated from the Chaldean language and meaning "pass-over." In that passage, the word refers to the Passover and not to Resurrection Day.

Resurrection, when applied to Biblical meaning, is the revitalizing again of the body with life, though that body had wasted away into dust. This was an incredible belief and required an incredible faith. Certain individuals did have this faith within them, such as Abraham when he was commanded to offer up Isaac on the altar, and Moses who looked beyond the law and saw the prophet greater than he, who was to save His people. David, in his songs, looked forward to resurrection—as did practically all the prophets, who expressed themselves in various manners.

In the books of the Maccabees, contained in the Apocrypha of the Old Testament, we have this testimony: the Israelites refused to surrender to the Syrians and suffered death (in the Syrian view, needlessly), expressing themselves to believe in resurrection of the body. This was an incredible belief to the Syrians and they marvelled at the stoicism that the Israelites met death, firmly believing that that was not the end.

Idolatrous nations about Israel could see no hope of ever living again in the body after death had occurred. The possible exception to this was that of the Egyptians who held to reuniting of the body and spirit in some future time. They went to great pains to preserve the dead bodies of their kings and families to that day. One can witness this in any museum where the caskets and mummies of these people are displayed. Others had no hope, but gradually the thought of immortality of the life or soul was born in the philosophies of Egypt and Greece, and has since spread in all the world as a fundamental belief. Upon this supposition, the Bible is in opposition. It declares that there is no release from death, except in resurrection.

The resurrection of Jesus was definite and positive corroboration of the belief of the prophets and the patriarchs. It was the impetus that sent men and women out into all the Roman world to declare the glad tidings of resurrection and that God had demonstrated this power in His crucified Son.

There were material witnesses to this fact that left no doubt of it. Paul the Apostle declared to the Corinthian church in these words:
