"I delivered unto you first of all that which I also received, how that Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures; and that he was buried, and that he rose the third day according to the scriptures: and that he was seen of Cephas, then of the twelve: after that he was seen of above five hundred brethren at once; of whom the greater part remain unto this present, but some are fallen asleep. After that, he was seen of James; then of all the apostles. And last of all he was seen of me also, as of one born out of due time" (1 Cor. 15:3-8).

Peter the Disciple witnessed in these words:

"Peter an apostle of Jesus Christ to the strangers scattered abroad throughout Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia, elect according to the foreknowledge of God the Father, through sanctification of the Spirit, unto obedience and sprinkling of the blood of Jesus Christ: Grace unto you, and peace be multiplied. Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which according to his abundant mercy hath begotten us again unto a lively hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, to an inheritance incorruptible, and undefiled, and that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven for you, who are kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation, ready to be revealed in the last time" (1 Peter 1:1-5).

Good news indeed have these men given us. There is no greater. If this is not so, we can say along with Paul:

"If there be no resurrection of the dead, then is Christ not risen: and if Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain. . . . But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the firstfruits of them that slept" (1 Cor. 15:13-20).

Good news of the past! Glad tidings for the future! Christ arose, yet lives, and will come again!

*"This same Jesus shall so come . . . as ye have seen him go into heaven."
(Acts 1:11.)*

*"Behold, he cometh with clouds; and every eye shall see him."
(Revelation 1:7.)*

“O Ye of Little Faith”

By Ellsworth Routson
Pastor at Blanchard, Michigan

WHAT MANNER of man is this, that even the winds and the sea obey him? (Matt. 8:27.) These were the words of Jesus' followers at one time during His earthly ministry. Today, men say the same thing, not realizing the power of this Miracle Worker. What does the faithful Christian say? "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God" (Matt. 16:16). Such were the words of faithful Peter. Yet in Matthew 14, we find the doubting Peter.

Jesus was walking on the water, going out to the ship where the apostles were. They, seeing Him, thought He was a spirit and cried out for fear. "Straightway Jesus spake unto them, saying, Be of good cheer; it is I; be not afraid." Peter answered him, "Lord, if it be thou, bid me come unto thee on the water." Jesus said, "Come." Peter did walk on the water, until he noticed the "wind boisterous"; then he found it necessary to call upon the Lord, crying, "Save me."

Peter, who was impetuous, was willing to dash headlong into whatever situation presented itself; then discovering an obstacle, he would reveal how little faith he had. Many who are Christians notice themselves following in this same order. We assure people we will stand for Christ; but, when we come face to face with the test, we falter as did Peter and begin to sink. Jesus asked Peter, "O thou of little faith, wherefore didst thou doubt?" Well may He say the same to us. When our "wind boisterous" arises, we should fortify ourselves with Philippians 4:13, which says, "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me." According to John 15:5, we can do nothing without Christ.

Matthew reveals the story of Christ and His disciples at sea during a great tempest. The waves were covering the ship in the midst of the tempest, and the men, being fearful, awoke Christ from His sleep and cried that He might save them. Jesus said unto them, "Why are ye fearful, O ye of little faith?" "Then he arose, and rebuked the winds and the sea; and there was a great calm" (Matt. 8:26). Jesus again spoke of their little faith. They were the apostles—the ones Jesus had called to teach others, and they lacked faith at times! We know they were faithful later, however, even unto death. That tempest can be likened to the trends of the times today and to their effect upon us. We must take heed according to Jesus' warning: "Take heed that no man deceive you. For many shall come in my name, saying, I am Christ; and shall deceive many." We also have Paul's warning in 2 Timothy 4:3, saying, "The time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine." We sometimes become discouraged, yes, even fearful, as we see the waves about to overtake us, and we, like the apostles, cry in prayer unto the Lord. He strengthens us, and we continue through life with the tempest calmed. He might well say to many of us today, "O ye of little faith."

Matthew 16 records a warning of Jesus' to His disciples to beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and Sadducees. These two sects, according to Jesus, could discern the signs of the sky, but could not [Please turn to page 11]

Blanchard Church of God

Largely through ministerial leadership of Brother and Sister B. W. Woodward, Dutton, Michigan, the Blanchard Church of God was organized, April 2, 1881, at the Decker Schoolhouse, Mecosta County, Michigan. For many years, it was known as the Millbrook Church of God. Sunday school and preaching services were conducted there until 1914, when the present church building was erected in Blanchard.

Shortly preceding and during the time of moving the church from the Decker Schoolhouse into Blanchard, Brother C. C. Maple of Elyria, Ohio, did much to encourage building of the new structure, and his preaching greatly strengthened the church body. Much credit is due, also, to the zeal and faithfulness of Brother Lorenzo D. Decker.

The present building, pictured on the front page, is a well-built and spacious brick structure that speaks well for loyalty of its members several decades ago.

Brother Ellsworth Routson, a member of the first graduating class of Oregon Bible College, is present pastor of the congregation. His wife (nee June Macy) is an able assistant. It is a pleasure to present articles, this week, both from Brother and Sister Routson, and from other members of the Blanchard Church of God. There are now fifty-two members—known throughout our brotherhood as outstanding in hospitality.

Former pastors of the church have been: C. C. Maple, Cecil Smead, Vivian Kirkpatrick, E. Richard Smith, and, at present, Ellsworth Routson. Other ministers who have served as evangelists include: S. J. Lindsay, F. V. Blakely, L. E. Conner, H. V. Reed, G. E. Marsh, James A. Patrick, Sydney E. Magaw, H. U. Krogh, Jr., John Denchfield, Harry Goekler, Gerald L. Cooper, J. R. LeCrone, and Harry Sheets. . . . Simply reading these names of the faithful workers who contributed of their strength to the Blanchard Church is adequate evidence that there have been wonderfully inspiring meetings where today faithful brethren are keeping the light of truth still shining.

God grant that the Blanchard Church of God may prosper until Christ returns.

Timothy Pearson Awarded Scholarship

In January, 1944, the Golden Rule Church of God, Cleveland, Ohio, established a scholarship at Oregon Bible College to be known as "The L. E. Conner Scholarship Fund." The scholarship was given in loving memory of Brother Conner who so long and so faithfully served Golden Rule Church as one of its pastors, also in appreciation of his services to National Bible Institution and Oregon Bible College. The scholarship provides financial assistance, annually, to that senior student who was outstanding in his junior year of College work—"one who has the highest honors as to scholarship throughout his junior year of training, also judged as to his preaching ability and spiritual qualities." It is a pleasure to announce that the scholarship has been given, this year, to Brother Timothy Pearson, student pastor of the Hope Chapel Church of God, South Bend, Indiana. Though Timothy is our only senior student this year, his ability, his achievement, and his general co-operative attitude toward the School well qualify him for the award. We pray him success and the blessing of God's guidance throughout life.

(Mention well may be made here that the Golden Rule Church left its scholarship fund open, all with the thought that it might be enlarged by other contributions.)

At Ripley and South Bend

The Editor enjoyed meeting again with the Ripley brethren, March 29, 30, during the Illinois Spring Conference. A good representation of brethren was in attendance, too, from other places throughout the State. Sunday school attendance reached the number of 135; the Sunday school offering was $36.63; and the morning church offering surpassed $129.

We are using the College Easter vacation to conduct a series of evangelistic meetings, April 2-6, at the Morning Star Church of God, South Bend, Indiana. Easter Sunday evening, we shall preach at "Hope Chapel."

A Balanced Diet

By W. M. Naylor, Nappanee, Indiana

JUST AS ONE must have a balanced diet of food for his proper physical welfare, so must one have a balanced diet of spiritual food for his proper spiritual growth. Throughout God's Word, man's spiritual life and growth are compared to his natural, or physical, life and growth.

We are taught in the Word that the newborn in Christ must first be given spiritual milk of the Word, and then stronger food in accordance with his growth. First Peter 2:2 reads: "As newborn babes, long for the spiritual milk which is without guile, that ye may grow thereby unto salvation" (R.V.).

Just as there is a period of growth or preparation before the physical birth, so also there must be a period of preparation before the individual can have a spiritual birth—baptism (not "born of the Spirit"). An individual who is baptized before he understands essential doctrines is as one with an untimely physical birth. Sometimes the incubator method can be used with an untimely birth, but usually the result is unsatisfactory. The Apostle Paul spoke of his conversion as of "one born out of due time" (1 Cor. 15:8), but his was a miraculous birth, so to speak, and was brought about by direct power of God, not of man. With the full power of God behind his nurturing, he was brought fully into Christ. Acts 9:4 records: "He fell upon the earth, and heard a voice saying unto him, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?" We should be sure, accordingly, that those who desire baptism have a sure knowledge of essential doctrines before immersion.

After the Christian grows, he should be given a stronger diet, in accordance with his growth. This diet should, of course, be a balanced diet. Meals can be top-heavy with meat to the neglect of vegetables, starches, and so forth, or they can consist of a majority of pastries and light foods, leaving out vegetables and meats. Either type of diet does not bring about proper nutrition and physical growth. Again comparing nature with spiritual life, we find that individual Christians, especially those who are comparatively new in the Faith, must be given a balanced diet of Scriptural food. A diet top-heavy with doctrinal teaching, to the neglect of practical application of the Scriptures to daily living, may cause spiritual indigestion among some who cannot digest such a heavy spiritual diet, and who then turn to other teachers, or churches, with a lighter diet. A diet of light spiritual food, however, gives a Christian little spiritual strength for reserve in times of trouble, sickness, or distress.

It readily can be seen, therefore, that ministers must give the Lord's people a balanced diet of religious teaching: stressing both doctrinal subjects and the application of Christ's teaching to daily life, along with a generous amount of prophetic teaching, both future and fulfilled, to "confirm the Word," as it were.

The Church of God (of the Abrahamic Faith) sometimes has been accused of stressing doctrine to the neglect of teaching good Christian living. James 2:17 says: "Even so faith, if it hath not works, is dead, being alone." So we who are leaders in the Church of God must be careful to include in our spiritual diet generous helpings of gospel application to daily life, so we may become living witnesses for Christ. Also, we read in 2 Timothy 4:3: "The time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine; but after their own lusts shall they heap to themselves teachers, having itching ears." Paul here emphasized the teaching of sound doctrine, pointing out that people will turn away from sound doctrine in the latter days. Many churches keep away from doctrinal teaching, emphasizing good moral living, regardless of what the individual "believes." They fail, therefore, to build a solid foundation of sound Bible doctrine for the newborn in Christ.

The Church of God should not take into membership those who still believe in the Trinity, Immortality of the Soul, and other non-Scriptural ideas, with the hope, possibly, of using the "incubator" method of teaching them sound doctrine after their (untimely) baptismal birth. A normal physical birth has the most likelihood of success, and the normal religious birth also has most likelihood of success. As we read about Philip and the eunuch (Acts 8), we find that Philip "preached unto him Jesus," after which the eunuch requested baptism. So, our policy should be to give the baptismal prospect a proper understanding of essential pre-baptism doctrines before baptism, so he will not need to be "converted" afterward. With a properly balanced diet of spiritual food after baptism, the newborn in Christ will have a normal spiritual growth, will not be carried away with every wind of doctrine, but will stand steadfast in the Faith until Christ comes.

Well did Paul counsel Timothy, saying: "Take heed unto thyself, and unto the doctrine; continue in them: for in doing this thou shalt both save thyself, and them that hear thee." To all, Paul says: "Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong."

Profit and Loss

By Mrs. Ellsworth Routson, Blanchard, Michigan

WILL YOU be weighed in the balances and found wanting? Do the records of your daily living show more profit than loss? Let us study some of the things that account for profit or loss in life.

Many themes, editorials, songs, and poems have been written on the subject, "It's the Little Things That Count." This theory can work two ways: not only can a number of little things banded together make a product of great value, but little things of the wrong nature may grow into an ugly product of worthlessness. "Little" bad habits may grow into deeper degradation. Even one lone bad habit, misdeed, or evil thought, though it may not grow, has been unprofitable, save to make one stronger through acknowledgment of it.

A loose tongue speaks idle words for which we shall give account. A habitually ambitious tongue sometimes says things besides prayers—things that are neither profitable to us nor to the Lord. "If any man among you seem to be religious, and bridleth not his tongue, but deceiveth his own heart, this man's religion is vain" (James 1:26).

Many times the children of Israel invested in idolatry and found it unprofitable so long as they dwelt therein. Their idols heard not their prayers; building and sacrificing to idols usurped their strength and wealth. During one of these periods of unprofitable living, they were asked, "Wherefore do you spend money for that which is not bread? and your labour for that which satisfieth not?" (Isa. 55:2.) Ask yourself these questions, and balance your budget. Idols are not comparable to God for power.

The prodigal son, whose desire was the pleasures of this life, spent all his inheritance for that which was not bread, and "wasted his substance with riotous living." Certainly that was not profitable.

The man who built his house upon sand (according to the parable in Luke 6:49; Matt. 7:26, 27) built it upon a false foundation, and "the ruin of that house was great." His accounts showed a great loss.

Yielding to temptation would not be a wise investment, for yielding to temptation is sin; and the wages of sin is death, according to Romans 6:23. "What is a man profited, if he gain the whole world, and lose or forfeit his own self?" (Luke 9:25, R.V.) Seeing one must reap what he sows, would it not be a loss to plant fruits of ungodliness? Those things and many more are reckoned loss on our records.

What, then, is profitable? How shall we live? Let us consider the bright side of the little things that count, those which grow into profit, not loss. A few pennies saved make bright dollars—a good thing. The same is true of our characters and our spiritual lives. We need to cultivate the single virtues, and to overcome the little obstacles, to make us strong Christians.

First, let us be humble. Both James and Peter assure us that "God resisteth the proud, and giveth grace to the humble." Already, then, we are on our way to a firm foundation—to the greater heights. Humility is profitable in any language.

Then, in our humility, let us seek One who can help us attain the worth-while things in this life, and lay up for ourselves "a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give [us] at that day." We also have the promise recorded in many scriptures that if we seek Him, we shall find Him. David wrote of God, "Those that seek me early shall find me." This suggests a time. According to Deuteronomy 4:29, we learn how: "Seek him with all thy heart and with all thy soul." It is well worth the effort.

Faith is another and a valuable "weight" in our scales; for without it we indeed will be found wanting. Jesus said, "If thou canst believe, all things are possible to him that believeth." "Faith is the substance of things hoped for," but "without faith it is impossible to please him." So it seems, faith is much to be desired.

Prayer and faith go hand in hand. "Therefore I say unto you, What things soever ye desire, when ye pray, believe that ye receive them, and ye shall have them" (Mark 11:24). Certainly prayer with faith can be accredited with much profit!

Godliness is profitable: Paul thought "godliness with contentment is great gain." In 1 Timothy 4:8, he brought out the point of this theme, "Bodily exercise profiteth little: but godliness is profitable unto all things, having promise of the life that now is, and of that which is to come."

The previously mentioned virtues are necessary to help us do these greater commandments. It may require a lot of courage to repent, but Jesus warned, "Except ye repent, ye shall likewise perish." What have we profited if we perish? Peter promised a gift in Acts 2:38: "Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost."

Loving our neighbors as ourselves is contrary to human nature. It may not be hard to love our neighbors, but to love them as ourselves requires help from God, and brings about that "peace that passeth understanding."

Likewise, we must be strong to forgive our enemies. Christ admonished that if we forgive men their trespasses, our heavenly Father will forgive us. He broadened this a little in His Sermon on the Mount, when he said, "Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you, and persecute you; that ye may be the children of your Father which is in heaven." What greater profit could a man desire than to be a child of the Father, and "if children, then heirs"?

Jesus was a godly man; He was humble; He sought God; He had faith, and prayed; He loved his neighbor; He forgave His enemies. Yet He accomplished one thing more—He overcame temptations. To each of the seven churches mentioned in Revelation 2 and 3, Christ promised a reward to those who overcome. If we can overcome our bad habits, and our temptations, we indeed will be blessed. We can overcome—we can do all things through Christ who strengthen us.

Then, "let us not be weary in well doing: for in due season, we shall reap, if we faint not." How is your account? Will you be weighed and found wanting?

Self-Righteousness

By Dale Ward, Blanchard, Michigan

---

IN WRITING this article, it is not our purpose to belittle righteousness, for we know that all Christians should live victorious lives over sin, but to show how one's self-righteousness sometimes can hinder, and will hinder, his work in winning people to Jesus. Also, we would show how older Christians are not the help to those young in the Faith that they should be, because in their own righteousness they sometimes do not show the spirit of love and tolerance that they should.

Those who have just accepted Jesus as their Saviour, and who have been baptized, need all the help that older Christians can give them, because that is the time their temptations are greatest. Therefore, let us beware lest we find ourselves in somewhat the same condition described by Paul in Romans 10:1-4. We quote: "Brethren, my heart's desire and prayer to God for Israel is, that they might be saved. For I bear them record that they have a zeal of God, but not according to knowledge. For they, being ignorant of God's righteousness, and going about to establish their own righteousness, have not submitted themselves unto the righteousness of God. For Christ is the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth."

Now, of course, each Christian has submitted himself, at one time or another, to the righteousness of God, namely, Jesus. It was with God's help that we became more victorious in our lives, but we sometimes forget that it is only through the righteousness of Jesus that we have hope of salvation. Looking back in Isaiah 64:6, we read in part, "We are all as an unclean thing, and all our righteousnesses are as filthy rags." Therefore, we can see that our own righteousness comes far short of the righteousness we shall have to plead when we stand before God. If we are to be a power for God in the world, we must not lose sight of this fact.

As we look about us and see what is transpiring in the world today, it is not a pretty picture. We see drunkenness and carousing all about us, and reports indicate that this condition is not peculiar to one's own locality. It is world-wide. We see the sad conditions prophesied in the Bible coming to pass as they never have before. We see wickedness in low and high places. We see the "marrying and giving in marriage" that Jesus prophesied. What is a Christian's reaction to all this? I fear many of us withdraw into our own small groups and look fearfully about us. Is that what we should do? Did Jesus call the twelve apostles and withdraw from the world, or did He not continue to try to draw all to Him that would come, and to teach His apostles to do likewise?

We know that doing Christian work looks like a hopeless task, if we attempt to do it in our own strength, but God is still on the throne! God grants power to do the task to those whose work is in accordance with His will and who will humble themselves to ask Him for help. Here again is where self-righteousness hinders us: we think we are too good to descend to some of the people who need Christ. We think some of them are too wicked to be brought to repentance. That is where we are mistaken. Jesus died to save sinners, and He made no distinction between the best and the worst of them. If, in looking back on our own lives, we can see where we have sinned, and since becoming Christians have overcome our sins through Jesus, so much the more should we be patient and loving toward those who do not understand and believe. Through meekness and humbleness and love on our part, we may help to bring others to Jesus.

The Resurrection

By H. Scott Smith, London, Arkansas

MANY of the prophets looked forward to a resurrection. We read in Job 19:25-27: "I know that my redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth: and though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God: whom I shall see for myself, and mine eyes shall behold, and not another; though my reins be consumed within me."

Notice that Job expected to see his Redeemer in his flesh. In other words, it was the fleshly man who expected to see his Redeemer, the one God created from the dust of the ground. (Gen. 2:7.) We read in Ecclesiastes 12:7: "Then shall the dust return to the earth as it was: and the spirit [the life-giving principle] shall return unto God who gave it."

When either a good man or a bad man dies, the spirit of that man returns to God who gave it. Nowhere in the Scriptures does it say the spirit of the righteous returns to God who gave it and the spirit of the wicked goes into hell to suffer endless torture, as is implied by many.

David looked forward to a resurrection, for it is written: "As for me, I will behold thy face in righteousness: I shall be satisfied, when I awake, with thy likeness" (Psalm 17:15).

We read in Isaiah: "Thy dead men shall live, together with my dead body shall they arise. Awake and sing, ye that dwell in dust: for thy dew is as the dew of herbs, and the earth shall cast out the dead" (26:19).

Jeremiah promised Rachel's children a resurrection, which was the only comfort He gave those women whom Rachel represented. (31:15-17.) God, speaking through Hosea, said: "I will ransom them from the power of the grave; I will redeem them from death: O death, I will be thy plagues: O grave, I will be thy destruction: repentance shall be hid from mine eyes" (13:14). Daniel prophesied a resurrection, saying, "Many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt" (12:2).

So, we understand by these scriptures that the Old Testament prophets were looking forward to a resurrection. This plan, however, had never been effected. Some people claim that to have a resurrection, one must have a death, burial, and resurrection in baptism. Not true, according to the foregoing scriptures, but there was a form of baptism before the resurrection was perfected. It is written: "Moreover, brethren, I would not that ye should be ignorant, how that all our fathers were under the cloud, and all passed through the sea; and were all baptized unto Moses in the cloud and in the sea" (1 Cor. 10:1, 2). Referring to the time of Noah, "wherein few, that is, eight souls were saved by water," Peter said: "The like figure whereunto even baptism doth also now save us" (1 Peter 3:18-21). So, you may readily see we had a figure of baptism in days of old.

Jonah was a type of Christ inasmuch as it is written: "As Jonas was three days and three nights in the whale's belly; so shall the Son of man be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth" (Matt. 12:40).

David foretold the resurrection of Christ when he said: "Thou wilt not leave my soul in hell [Heb., sheol, the grave]; neither wilt thou suffer thine Holy One to see corruption" (Psalm 16:10). He meant by this that Christ's soul would not corrupt in three days and nights.

Christ plainly foretold His resurrection in the following words: "From that time forth began Jesus to shew unto his disciples, how that he must go unto Jerusalem, and suffer many things of the elders and chief priests and scribes, and be killed, and be raised again the third day" (Matt. 16:21). While they abode in Galilee, Jesus said to His disciples: "The Son of man shall be betrayed into the hands of men: and they shall kill him, and the third day he shall be raised again" (Matt. 17:22, 23). "The Son of man must suffer many things, and be rejected of the elders and chief priests and scribes, and be slain, and be raised the third day" (Luke 9:22).

What did Jesus say when asked by the Jews for a sign of His Messiahship? He answered them, "Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up" (John 2:19). They thought He spoke of the temple at Jerusalem, but He was speaking of Himself. "When therefore He was risen from the dead, his disciples remembered that he had said this unto them" (v. 22). The chief priest and Pharisees informed Pilate of this saying about the temple: "We remember that that deceiver said, while he was yet alive, After three days I will rise again. Command therefore that the sepulchre be made sure until the third day, lest his disciples come by night, and steal him away, and say unto the people, He is risen from that dead: so the last error shall be worse than the first" (Matt. 27:63, 64).

"Pilate said unto them, Ye have a watch: go your way, make it as sure as ye can. So they went, and made the sepulchre sure, sealing the stone, and setting a watch" (vv. 65, 66). How very futile all this was! for when the time came, Jesus came forth! No power in earth could prevent His resurrection! (Please turn to page 10)

IS SPRINKLING BAPTISM?

By Mrs. Forrest Long, Beuna Park, California

THERE ARE among the readers of THE RESTITUTION HERALD many who do not belong to the Church of God, but to other denominations. Among these readers are many who believe in using sprinkling, instead of immersion, for baptizing. It is to those believing in sprinkling that I write.

At the time of the baptism of our Saviour Jesus Christ, the Bible gives us these words to show that he was immersed: "Jesus, when he was baptized, went up straightway out of the water" (Matt. 3:16).

Notice, it says "out of the water." It also says "baptized." This word comes from the Greek word baptizmos, meaning "to dip." If the Lord wanted us to be sprinkled, why does not the Bible use the word rhantizo which means to sprinkle? Is it not because only by immersion we can enter into the watery grave, signifying the death, burial, and resurrection of our Saviour?

Jesus said, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that entereth not by the door into the sheepfold, but climbeth up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber" (John 10:1). Except there be true repentance and baptism by immersion, we enter not by the door, but we climb "up some other way" and become thieves.

You say, "If we are not to be sprinkled, why do so many churches practice sprinkling?" The Encyclopedia Americana states that at the beginning of baptism, all churches baptized by immersion. Sprinkling originated as a means of baptizing those who were sick. Various churches, when breaking away from the so-called mother church, carried the rite with them—and it is merely a form. It is not true baptism.

To you who may remain doubtful, I make this suggestion: Get your Bible, encyclopedia, and any other reference book you can find, and make a thorough study of the word "baptism." Jesus said, "Ask and it shall be given you; seek and ye shall find; knock and it shall be opened unto you" (Matt. 7:7). The gift of God is everlasting life to those who seek it. But let us not be as thieves and robbers. Let us, by seeking the Word of God, find the truth and enter in by the door. "Seek ye the Lord while he may be found, call ye upon him while he is near. Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts: and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon" (Isa. 55:6, 7).

Do you think you are too old, or too young? When one is old enough to understand and believe, he is old enough to be baptized. Service to God should be begun when one is young, for "it is good for a man that he bear the yoke in his youth" (Lam. 3:27). It is a habit that grows more pleasant as the years go by. "Train up a child in the way he should go: and when he is old, he will not depart from it" (Prov. 22:6). Nicodemus asked Jesus, "How can a man be born again when he is old? Can he enter the second time into his mother's womb and be born? Jesus answered, "Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born of water and of the spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God" (John 3:3-5). Believe in Jesus and confess His Name, that you may have within you "a well of water springing up into everlasting life" (John 4:14).

"I WILL COME AGAIN"—JESUS

By Marion Ellsworth, Blanchard, Michigan

ANGELS ASKED, "Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven?" Then, they assured the apostles that this same Jesus whom they had just seen ascending into heaven would in like manner come again. Too long have men stood looking into heaven, forgetting that Christ will come again to establish His Kingdom upon this earth. The earth was made for man. His home is here and shall continue to be here. Man's mission as a follower of Jesus, like the disciples who watched Him ascend, is to teach in all the world the teaching of Jesus—what His death and resurrection mean to all mankind.

Why stand ye gazing heavenward,
Ye men of Galilee,
Have you so soon forgotten
His last command to thee?

He whom ye saw ascending,
In clouds of glory bright,
Shall come again to rule you
In all His power and might.

He burst Death's band asunder
And rose from out the grave,
And bade you tell the story
How He alone could save.

You have no part in heaven,
So why stand ye gazing there?
On earth, so oft He told you,
Shall men His glory share.

To man the earth was given,
Here shall Christ's Kingdom be
While He rules the true believers
Through all eternity.

Then no more stand idly gazing
Into heaven's dome unfurled;
Teach His death and resurrection
To all men throughout the world.

RELIGIOUS NEGLIGENCE.

Sir Bracewell Smith, Lord Mayor of London, charged the Londoners with "religious neglect." He stated only five per cent of the city's population attend church regularly. The last census taken was in 1931, and then London had a population of 8,203,942. Think of it: if the Lord Mayor is correct, 95 per cent of the people are neglecting their religious lives. No doubt this situation, if reports are to be believed, prevails more or less throughout the country. Is it to be wondered at that they are going through such a terrible time of trouble? It is only a few months since they were fervently praying for protection and deliverance from the bombing attacks. Have they so soon forgotten? The warning of the Psalmist, "The way of the ungodly shall perish," is as true today as when spoken.

If England is reaping a "time of trouble" for her sins, we need not expect that we will escape on this side of the Atlantic. "It can happen here!" More, we too, will see "perilous times" unless as a nation we chart for ourselves a different course. Sunday is becoming a shameful "runday." The house of worship is being forsaken for the pleasures of this world. If the whirlwinds are becoming fiercer, it is because we have brought forth the judgments of God in sowing to the winds. Said Jesus: "Distress of nations, with perplexity" will be a sign to you that the "times of the Gentiles" are nearly full. For the faithful in Christ, it is a time to "look up, and lift up your heads; your redemption draws near."

STEADY DECLINE.

The Roman Catholic Church has been a foremost opponent of indecent pictures on the screen. It has done more to keep objectionable immoral pictures off the market than any other organization. Patrick J. Masterson, assistant executive secretary National Legion of Decency, claims "there has been a steady decline in the so-called family picture and a constant rise in objectionable films. Of 115 movies, 90 per cent are love-making, 84 per cent as picturing crime, and 70 per cent as intense love making."

Allowing children to attend shows, without knowing what the picture is like, is a common practice of parents these days. That pictures provide an effective and one of the most potent agencies of modern education is recognized on every hand. That divorce is upheld and marriage lightly treated in most films is a well-known fact. The habits of drinking and smoking and dancing are commonplace. With these fleshly teachings constantly before the youth—is it strange that the habits of the young folk should be patterned after what they are weekly taught by education's most effective means?

ARBOR DAY. April 10, this year, will mark seventy-five years since Arbor Day was started by the people in Nebraska. That State was almost a "treeless prairie," until Nebraskans started planting trees. Two years later, Kansas and Tennessee adopted Arbor Day, with Minnesota following in '76. In 1885, the National Educational Association recommended general observance of Arbor Day in the schools.

Since then, hundreds of millions of trees have been planted throughout the country. It is not particularly with the history of this annual event that we wish to concern ourselves, rather, the place trees have in the Bible. There are at least twenty-three different varieties mentioned in the Scriptures, and most of these are used in an illustrative way, to teach some important truth concerning God's purpose with man. The two trees which we did not include in the foregoing count are the tree of life and the tree of knowledge of good and evil. It is hard to estimate the blessing which trees have brought to man. Even God will beautify His sanctuary with trees, and we are told that trees will replace thorns and briars. Who, of the children of promise, has not anticipated the time when the tree of life will be restored in the midst of the paradise of God, when the leaves of the tree shall become medicine for the nations! God's "Arbor Day" is not far off.

STRIKES.

The recent teachers' strikes in Saint Paul and Buffalo have provoked much discussion concerning the right and wisdom of those dedicated to the edification of mankind, using the power of the strike to correct grievances which they have in respect to remuneration. It is a type of militancy and warfare, which we are told come from the "husts that war in the strike members." Speaking in Cleveland, Dr. Willard E. Givens, Executive Secretary National Educational Society, stated: "When they (teachers) ally themselves with one group, do they not violate their duty to society as a whole. . . . Teachers in free public schools are hired by all the people, and are expected to foster the search for truth and good living without bias to class or creed or party."

There is no doubt but what teachers have been and are greatly underpaid for their professional services. But what effect on the minds of the children will these strikes have? Many of the pupils joined their teachers in the strike against the wages which their parents—the taxpayers—were paying the instructors. Will it not teach the children to be "strikers" against authority? In Toronto, Ontario, as these lines are being written, 1,200 school children are on strike against the school board which announced the discharge of the school principal at the end of the school term.

We are not attempting to discuss the issues at stake, but the results to which these things lead. They tend to confusion and unrest and are the fruits of the Old Creation. They are not in harmony with the life of the New Creation in Christ Jesus. The patient, meek, and long-suffering in Christ Jesus forbear being involved in the strivings of the flesh.

NEW ORDER.

Dr. Burr Bixler, editor of Present Truth Messenger, in a recent editorial, makes some very forceful comments on the New Creation, and we take this opportunity of passing some of his comments on to our readers. He writes: "The fact that 'the beginning of the creation of God,' referred to in Revelation 3:14, began in Joseph's tomb is at once the key to the entire plan of God in giving us the New Testament. It clears up the tragic conflict, made by those who insist that Christ had charge of or even a part in the Genesis story, between the story of creation as told again in Paul's letters to the Colossians and Hebrews. God created the things that now are and Christ is the Creator of (Heb. 2:5) 'the world to come, of which we speak.' As argued by those who hold to the personal pre-existence of Christ, a positive contradiction of Scripture obtains. This contradiction is man made. The Word is clear." He further states: "The Greek text of Revelation 3:14 is much stronger than the statement that appears in the Authorized Version. The rendering in the new 1,000-word Basic English text is correct: 'The head of God's new Order.'"

Adam headed the Old Creation—Christ heads the New Creation. Christ, being the "firstborn from the dead," becomes the Head of this New Creation. While He is the very beginning of it, the next step in its development is Christ's body—the church. "If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature (creation)." The church is a New Creation, and as such lives on a higher plane than does the Old Creation. "Old things are passed away" to the new creature in Christ Jesus.

GREECE AND TURKEY.

The papers are full of comments on the portents of the United States taking action to prevent Russia from planting her tabernacle on the shores of the Mediterranean. For many years the United States has aligned herself against aggression by any power. When Russia went into Manchuria, she proposed intervention but found no support from any other great powers. Roosevelt laid down the principle of "quarantining the aggressor," when Hitler was overrunning the small countries—but appeasement resulted. This policy against aggression was stated by Secretary of State Byrnes on February 28, 1946, when he said: "We cannot allow aggression to be accomplished by coercion or pressure or subterfuges such as political infiltration." A year ago, effort was exerted to get Russia out of Iran; now pressure is put forth to keep her out of Greece and Turkey. Russia will come to the Mediterranean, and if she is blocked through Greece and Turkey, she may by-pass them and come through the Holy Land. What's that I see—Gabriel getting his trumpet ready to sound!

Is Drinking a Sin?

By Bernard Lobell, New Orleans, Louisiana

ISAAIAH 5 pronounces God's judgment upon various sins. The entire chapter presents good thought, but my discussion regards only drinking of strong drink. Verse 11 says: "Woe unto them that rise up early in the morning, that they may follow strong drink; that continue until night, till wine inflame them!" In this verse, strong drink is singular, referring to only one drink. If one should continue drinking until night, he would be inflamed. One version of the verse gives the meaning as coming to a lack of knowledge. This is quite true: the more one drinks, the less knowledge he will have about Christ and His teaching. No drunkard can continue to drink after knowing Christ as his personal Saviour. Drinking will cause man to do things that will keep him from inheriting the Kingdom of God. (1 Cor. 6:9, 10.)

John 3:20, 21 says: "Every one that doeth evil hateth the light, neither cometh to the light, lest his deeds should be reproved. But he that doeth truth cometh to the light, that his deeds may be made manifest, that they are wrought in God."

Paul said in Romans 8:1: "There is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit." If we are in Christ Jesus, we must walk after the Spirit. We are not in the flesh but in the Spirit, for the Spirit of God dwells in us. "Now if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his" (v. 9). Paul continued: "Therefore, brethren, we are debtors, not to the flesh, to live after the flesh. For if ye live after the flesh, ye shall die: but if ye through the Spirit do mortify the deeds of the body, ye shall live. For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God" (vv. 12-14).

Paul also admonished that "if we live in the Spirit, let us also walk in the Spirit" (Gal. 5:25). He knew the inward trials of men, though, for he said: "The flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh: and these are contrary the one to the other: so that ye cannot do the things that ye would." One's character is distinguished by his fruits. "The fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance: against such there is no law" (Gal. 5: 22, 23). The works of the flesh manifest "adultery, fornication, uncleanness, lasciviousness, idolatry, witchcraft, hatred, variance, emulations, wrath, strife, sedition, heresies, envyings, murders, drunkenness, revellings" (vv. 19-21). The Word of God also says, according to Paul, that they which do such things will not inherit the Kingdom.

If we have friends who drink liquor, we should tell them what God's Word says about it. It is sin. It cannot be righteousness. That which is not righteousness is sin. If we deny this, we make God's Word a lie. A Christian's duty to his fellow men is to remind them of God's judgment upon this world for the righteous and the unrighteous. Those who live in sin will receive the reward of death, for the Scripture says, "The wages of sin is death." To the righteous will be given eternal life, for the "gift of God is eternal life."

More about God's judgment upon sin is written in Isaiah 5:20: "Woe unto them that call evil good, and good evil; that put darkness for light, and light for darkness; that put bitter for sweet, and sweet for bitter." Therefore, it is very important for us to know good from evil. "All unrighteousness is sin" (1 John 5:17).

God told Ezekiel to warn the people of Israel, so they would not be destroyed. If Ezekiel did not warn them and they were destroyed, their blood would be required at his hands. (Please read Ezek. 33:1-9.)

Paul, in writing to the Romans, plainly stated: "With the heart man believeth unto righteousness; and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation. For the scripture saith, Whosoever believeth on him shall not be ashamed. . . . For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved" (Rom. 10:9, 10, 13). Paul presented a great truth in verse 14, too: "How then shall they call on him in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher?" Paul only asked: How shall one know without being told, and how shall one be told without a teacher? In teaching a child, one must tell it what to do and how to do. Christ chose His disciples and taught them by telling them what to do and what not to do. In Matthew 28:19, 20, Jesus commanded His disciples to teach all nations "to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you."

Jesus said: "Whosoever doth not bear his cross, and come after me cannot be my disciples" (Luke 14:27). In John 8:31, Jesus said: "If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed." To continue in Jesus' Word, one must teach all things that Christ taught. To shun all manner of sin and to cleave to righteousness, one must believe and repent. Jesus said: "I tell you . . . except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish." Genuine repentance causes one to turn from his sins. If the sin be drunkenness, one must give up drinking.

By reading Hebrews 12:1, we see that it is necessary to put off "every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us." "Let not then your good be evil spoken of: for the kingdom of God is not meat and drink; but righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost" (Rom. 14:16-23). If we serve Christ in righteousness and peace, it is acceptable to God. We, therefore, should follow after that which makes peace. Drinking never does make peace; it causes only envy and strife. Verse 21 says that it is neither good for one to "eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor any thing whereby thy brother stumbleth, or is offended, or is made weak." "Happy is he that condemneth not himself in that thing which he alloweth" (v. 22). Therefore, one must not allow himself to drink strong drink, for usually one does not drink by himself. He is putting a stumbling block in someone's pathway of life. It may be only a boy or girl who would like to know what effect drinking would have on him or her. There is always a first time for drinking, and it is always the drinker who shows the boys and girls how to buy it, pay for it, and drink it. The followers of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ never do.

Now, if you can say that you never caused one to drink, because you always did your drinking the way God would have you do it, if you can say it was pleasing to Him ("Whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God"), if you can say no one ever became angry or did wrong when he drank with you, if you can say that you saw to that and there is no doubt in your mind that everything was carried on just as God would have it when you were drinking, you would have a better conscience than most men who drink. If this is not true, there is still some doubt in your mind. The Word of God says, "He that doubteth is damned . . . for whatsoever is not of faith is sin" (Rom. 14:23). Here we have an answer to the drinker: he has a reason sometimes to doubt. Most drinking men doubt everybody, because their minds are affected from the drink. To doubt is to be damned!

Turn ye, my brethren. "Be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might. Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil" (Ezek. 6:10, 11). "We wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places. Wherefore take unto you the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand." It is not for leaders to drink wine. (Prov. 31:4, 5.) In 1 Thessalonians 5:22, the Apostle Paul said, "Abstain from all appearance of evil."

THE RESURRECTION

The Jews would have prevented Jesus' resurrection, if it had been possible, just as they tried to prevent Him from doing His work while on earth. People are more and more trying to prevent the gospel being preached. As Paul foretold, there has become a great "falling away." That Jesus did rise we know from the Record, saying: "In the end of the sabbath, as it began to dawn toward the first day of the week, came Mary Magdalene and the other Mary to see the sepulchre. And, behold, there was a great earthquake: for the angel of the Lord descended from heaven, and came and rolled back the stone from the door, and sat upon it. His countenance was like lightning, and his raiment white as snow: and for fear of him the keepers did shake, and became as dead men. And the angel answered and said unto the women, Fear not ye: for I know that ye seek Jesus, which was crucified. He is not here: for he is risen, as He said. Come, see the place where the Lord lay, and go quickly, and tell his disciples that he is risen from the dead" (Matt. 28:1-7). Mark 16: 4-6 says: "When they looked, they saw that the stone was rolled away: for it was very great. . . . And he [an angel] saith unto them, Be not affrighted: Ye seek Jesus of Nazareth, which was crucified: he is risen; he is not here: behold the place where they laid him."

John recorded it thus: "The first day of the week cometh Mary Magdalene early, while it was yet dark, unto the sepulchre, and seeth the stone taken away from the sepulchre" (20:1). Mary said, "They have taken away the Lord out of the sepulchre, and we know not where they have laid him" (v. 2).

We learn from these scriptures that the Lord had risen when the Marys arrived at the tomb early in the morning. From these scriptures, how can one determine whether Jesus rose in the end of the Sabbath or really the first day of the week? As the Jewish calendar rendered a day from sunset until sunset, could it not have been possible that our Saviour rose in the end of the Sabbath? Remember they had an annual Sabbath, also, and a weekly Sabbath. From this, I am inclined to believe Thursday was the annual Sabbath, and they did not want Him to be hanging over that Sabbath. He was crucified on Wednesday, which would correspond to Matthew 12:40 concerning the three days and nights the Son of man was in heart of the earth. If one concludes Jesus was crucified on Friday and arose first day of the week, he cannot show how Christ could have been in heart of the earth three days and nights. I hope this at least gives you some food for thought. Remember that Jesus said through John the Revelator:

"I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore, Amen; and have the keys of hell [the grave] and of death" (1:18). Jesus' resurrection perfected the plan of our salvation. Paul declared that Christ became the first-fruits and that afterward they who are His will be raised at His coming. Then we shall become like Christ, if we are faithful unto death or until the resurrection. Paul said this vile body will be fashioned "like unto his glorious body" at the resurrection.

"O YE OF LITTLE FAITH"

discern the "signs of the times." When Jesus said to the disciples, "Take heed and beware of the leaven of the Pharisees, and of the Sadducees," they did not understand. They thought He was speaking of the bread which they had not brought. Jesus could see they did not understand, and said to them, "O ye of little faith, why reason among yourselves, because ye have brought no bread?" Had not they witnessed the feeding of the five thousand with five loaves, and the four thousand with seven loaves, and the baskets of fragments that were taken up? Then they understood that Jesus was speaking of the doctrine of the Pharisees and of the Sadducees. A Christian should beware of false doctrines today, and be drawn to Christ. "Take heed that no man deceive you. For many shall come in my name, saying, I am Christ; and shall deceive many." The time has come when people do not endure sound doctrine, but after their own lusts heap to themselves teachers having itching ears. "They shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables." Woe to those who are found guilty. Let us "stablish" ourselves with sound doctrine and Christian living, that the Lord need not say unto us, "O ye of little faith."

Another instance of lack of faith in the Scripture is in Luke 12. A man implored Jesus to see that the inheritance was divided. Jesus said, "Man, who made me a judge or a divider over you?" Then Jesus turned to His disciples with the lesson, "Take heed, and beware of covetousness: for a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth." Then, we need not heap store upon store of material things, neither tires, nor soap, nor nylons. Jesus would have us consider the ravens; and consider the lilies. "If then God so clothe the grass, which is to day in the field, and to morrow is cast into the oven; how much more will he clothe you, O ye of little faith?" Do we lack faith because we do not have many of the luxuries our neighbors possess? God knows what we need even before we ask it, and He will provide. Does He not sometimes provide the opposite luxury because we have need of it—"O ye of little faith"? "Seek not ye what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink, neither be ye of doubtful mind. For all these things do the nations of the world seek after: and your Father knoweth that ye have need of these things. But rather seek ye the kingdom of God; and all these things shall be added unto you." That is what Jesus was continually teaching His apostles and why He accused them of being of little faith. He was teaching them the things pertaining to the Kingdom. We, also, can profit by these same teachings, being faithful and acknowledging, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God."

"One day I looked at myself,
At the self that Christ can see;
I saw the person I was that day,
And the one I ought to be.
I saw how little I really pray,
How little I really do;
I saw the influence of my life—
How little of it was true!
I came from seeing myself,
With my mind made up to be
The sort of person that Christ can use,
With a heart He may always see."

SELF-RIGHTEOUSNESS

As we look about us and see the wickedness, we are likely to be in the same condition as the Pharisee described in the parable of Luke 18:11, 12. "The Pharisee stood and prayed thus with himself, God, I thank thee, that I am not as other men are, extortioners, unjust, adulterers, or even as this publican. I fast twice in the week, I give tithes of all that I possess." No matter how much we have overcome, we are never too good to pray as the publican prayed. His prayer was, "God be merciful to me, a sinner" (Luke 18:13). Let us never forget that Jesus is our righteousness, and thank God for that.

We also notice, as we speak to those outside of Christ, that self-righteousness prevents some from becoming Christians. They say of themselves, "I pay my debts, I am honest, I provide for my family, and as far as I can see, I live as good as, or better than, many Christians that I see about me." We should hasten to assure them that all these things are very good in their places, and that we are glad for each good moral person in the world, but we should tell them that the Word of God teaches us that good morals alone are not enough to give hope of salvation. If we are going to have a place in the Kingdom, we have to do things God's way, and not our own.

"Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labour is not in vain in the Lord" (1 Cor. 15:58).

He Is Risen!

"In the end of the sabbath, as it began to dawn toward the first day of the week, came Mary Magdalene and the other Mary to see the sepulchre. And, behold, there was a great earthquake: for the angel of the Lord descended from heaven, and came and rolled back the stone from the door, and sat upon it. His countenance was like lightning, and his raiment white as snow: and for fear of him the keepers did shake, and became as dead men. And the angel answered and said unto the women, Fear not ye: for I know that ye seek Jesus, which was crucified. He is not here: for he is risen, as he said. Come, see the place where the Lord lay. And go quickly, and tell his disciples that he is risen from the dead; and, behold, he goeth before you into Galilee; there shall ye see him: lo, I have told you" (Matt. 28:1-7).

A Gift for Us

God gave His Son to the world. (John 3:16.) Jesus was born to be our Saviour. He gave His life for us. He said, "I am the good shepherd, and know my sheep, and am known of mine. As the Father knoweth me, even so know I the Father: and I lay down my life for the sheep" (John 10:14, 15).

When many children are sitting together in Sunday school, the parents do not find it difficult to pick their own children from among those in the room. Jesus knows those who are His, too; and we know He is ours. He laid down His life for us. He laid it down willingly that He might receive it again and bring salvation to all who would follow Him. The life He received at His resurrection was immortal life from God. (1 Peter 1:21.)

Joyous Tidings

"Christ died for our sins according to the scriptures." He was buried, and "rose again the third day." Jesus was seen of many of His loved ones after His resurrection.

"Now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the firstfruits of them that slept" (1 Cor. 15).

"Man is not justified by the works of the law, but by the faith of Jesus Christ." "If righteousness come by the law, then Christ is dead in vain" (Gal. 2:16, 21).

"We know that the law is spiritual: but I am carnal, sold under sin" (Rom. 7:14).

"If the Spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead dwell in you, he that raised up Christ from the dead shall also quicken your mortal bodies by his Spirit that dwelleth in you. Therefore, brethren, we are debtors, not to the flesh, to live after the flesh. For if ye live after the flesh, ye shall die: but if ye through the Spirit do mortify the deeds of the body, ye shall live. For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God" (Rom. 8:11-14).

Then let us follow Jesus the Christ, to live after the Spirit, not the letter of the law, that we may have life eternal, immortal when Jesus returns.

REMEMBER now thy Creator in the days of thy youth," said the wise man Solomon in Ecclesiastes 12:1. This is one of the stock verses quoted time and again to young people to prove to them the advisability of beginning the Christ-life early. Have you ever wondered, however, why Solomon encouraged young people to begin early to use their talents for the Creator? When we know why, we will realize the fact that young people should be the backbone of the church, the hardest workers the Lord has.

There are many characteristics peculiar to youth, which can be used very profitably in the Lord's work. There is work which can be done best by the young. For this reason, we should remember the Creator in our youth (while before Father Damien died. Brother Joseph became the spiritual leader of the people. One day instead of beginning his sermon with the usual, "My brethren," he simply said, "We lepers." Brother Joseph served forty-four years on Molokai and died a leper. A young man with the courage of youth had remembered God.

Youth is never satisfied. It is reform-minded. This can be good or it can be bad, depending upon the direction in which the urge is led. You will notice that most of the

it is day), before the long shadows of age rob us of these peculiar powers.

Youth is active, energetic and courageous, never "too tired" or "too busy" for just a little more activity. Energy is unlimited, atomic, needing only to be inspired and aimed in the right direction. These youthful characteristics have won a war, invented a million gadgets, conquered the air, speeded up a nation; now why can they not be utilized by us to carry a message, build a church and put new interest and life into dying veins? You are challenged, young people! We know you can play, we know you are quick to learn, you have demonstrated that you can face an emergency with courage, but can you do a job of work for your Lord? My friends, that takes real energy and stamina and courage! Never will you have more of it than you do now, so when is a better time to begin working for your Lord?

It is the young people of the world who have remembered their Creator and consecrated themselves to Him while yet young, who have fired the world with a living Christianity. Witness young Brother Joseph of Vermont, who read about the lepers of Molokai and said to himself, "I want to help them." After preparing himself, he sailed for Molokai and arrived just riots and revolutions against ideas or governments are led by "students"; the young who demand progress. Again we challenge you, young people! It is an easy thing to riot, to strike, to complain and to petition against something. If you would like to put your reform urge, your desire to help someone, to a real test, why not remember your Lord's work? There is something that demands more than talk! Have you ever tried to lead a neighbor to Christ? Have you ever done missionary work among the down-and-out? Have you ever campaigned to enliven and revitalize your own young people's society? "Remember now thy Creator." If you want progress, make it! If you want to improve the world, teach it about Jesus!

Young people, never again will you feel as you do now. The urge to work and serve and reform, and the courage to do it, will never again be as strong in you as it is right now. You are challenged by your Lord, your Bible, your church, and an evil world to "remember now your Creator." Remember Him, with service!

"I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help. My help cometh from the Lord, which made heaven and earth. He will not suffer thy foot to be moved; he that keepeth thee will not slumber. Behold, he that keepeth Israel shall neither slumber nor sleep" (Psalm 121:1-4).

August 16-24—Texas State Conference at Ater.

BLANCHARD, MICHIGAN

As the old year is past and a new one begun, we of the Blanchard Church of God thank our heavenly Father for His loving guidance during the past year, and hope He still will be with us throughout the present one. We have Sunday school each Sunday at 10:30 a.m.; preaching at 11:30 a.m., and in the evening at 8:00 o'clock, also Bible study on Thursday evenings.

During the past year we had several social times together, meeting at different homes. We enjoyed Bible quizzes and games, followed by lunch. Last fall, we had a very good Michigan State Conference, which was held in our church. A large crowd attended from the Grand Rapids' churches, also from Oregon, Ill. Bible students helped in the services by their sermons and singing, their services being enjoyed by all.

Several of our members are on the sick list. Among them are: Bro. and Sr. Clarence Lake, Bro. and Sr. Chester Scott, and Bro. Wellhoff.

Our pastor, Bro. Ellsworth Rouson, has purchased a slide projector by help of friends and the church. He hopes it will be beneficial in showing Bible scenes of the Holy Land and other pictures in connection with the Bible.

Although our number is small, we hope that by God's help that which has been done will be beneficial to our community, both now and in the future.

Mrs. Jessie Marston.

COMMENDATION

Reading the Berman Page of the March 18 issue of The Restitution Herald should gladden the hearts of all the brotherhood, for Arnold Johns of Oregon Bible College has given us a very good account of both College students and young people in the local Oregon church as to missionary effort and what it can accomplish. To get the theory in school, and the practical work along with it out in the field in Christian work, seems to me to be a fine combination. Many large industrial concerns use the same method successfully, and it is also quite obvious that Christian missionary work will be equally successful. Judging from the present picture of world events, it would seem that we all should be making good use of our talents, whether they be many or few, for we may have to give an account much sooner than many expect. We are thankful for the interest our young people are showing in teaching the good news of Christ's soon-coming Kingdom.

DISTRICT SUNDAY SCHOOL MEETING Northern Illinois

To accommodate the Dixon Sunday school workers, the district Sunday school meeting which was announced for Monday evening, April 7, has been changed to the following evening. The gathering of Sunday school teachers and everyone interested in Sunday school will be held at the Oregon Church at 8:00 p.m., April 8. Leaders of the various groups will be James M. Watkins, Myrtle Claussen, and C. Alan McLain.

COLLEGE NEWS

Last Wednesday evening, immediately following Bible study the students traveled to Dixon to have official pictures taken of the various classes and groups in the College for Marmatha. The four classes, faculty and matrons, Student Players, Glee Club, Student Council, Campus Caller staff, and Marmatha staff were the groups photographed.

Bro. H. S. Bell, LaCrosse, Wis., spoke last Tuesday in chapel. He is a railroad engineer for the C.R.&Q. railroad. His talk was extremely interesting, as what boy does not like to hear of railroading. Even the girls seemed unusually interested. Thursday morning, another freshman from the Public Speaking Class, gave a very interesting talk. At the conclusion of his speech, the other students commented on his speech in the form of constructive criticism. Compliments far exceeded criticisms, however. Also, at this time on Thursday morning, Bro. Magaw presented the L. E. Conner Scholarship Award. The recipient of this honor was Timothy Pearson, a senior this year. This award is given by the Golden Rule Church of God in Cleveland, Ohio. It is awarded to the senior student who has excelled in scholastic work, preaching, and spiritual ability, the preceding year.

Rand Smith and Warren Sorenson left for Omaha, Neb., Thursday night, to spend their spring vacation there. Friday afternoon, Mary Brown left for Baraga, Mich., and the writer left the same day to spend vacation at home. Kirby Davis went to Indiana on Tuesday of this week. Sr. Brewer plans to spend the Easter week end in Ohio.

WOODSTOCK, VIRGINIA

We were privileged to have Sr. Verma Thayer with us at the Dry Run, Va., Church, Sunday evening, March 10. All enjoyed her presentation of religious slides, and her talk which accompanied the pictures. We look forward to having her with us for our Bible school.

MEDITATION

The home is a haven for weary feet, a place where we and our loved ones meet. Our cares are left outside the door . . . forgotten and remembered no more. Peace and joy await us there, where love is predominant and felt everywhere. Yes, home is a haven for weary feet, a place where we and our loved ones meet.—Mary Mae Nedrow.

GLEANINGS FROM THE FIELD

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

"I am looking forward to the soon coming of our dear Lord and Saviour Jesus the Christ. I will be eighty-five years young, June 24. I was baptized by Bro. D. T. Halstead, March 10, 1894, and am still steadfast in the faith."
—Susie Dow, Seattle, Wash.

"Orders from brethren throughout the States have come in for my booklet 'Through the Windowpane,' telling me what a wealth of Biblical knowledge is contained within its pages. One dear sister in Christ said: 'It is a beautifully designed booklet, and the poems I have read surely tell how your heart is filled with love for your heavenly Father and His Son, whose work you are carrying on spiritually and materially. May God bless you and your work. East Oregon Chapel is evidence of His blessing.'"—Mary Mae Nedrow, Oregon, Ill.

"Bro. Gerald L. Cooper has improved in health enough to be able to accept special appointments during the summer months. His one desire is to render service as much as he is able. If you can use him in your special meetings or summer conference work, he would be glad to hear from you. Address him at 611 Maple Ave., Tempe, Ariz.

"The Co-ordination Department maintains a list of those available for ministerial service and special occasions. We will be glad to send you suggested contacts upon request, if you will inform us of your needs."—James M. Watkins.

"Bro. C. E. Randall and Sr. Irene Holland, spearheading The Herald subscription drive in the vicinity of Fonthill, Ont., are now within four subscriptions of their one hundred per cent increase goal. We are anxiously waiting those other four so they may complete their goal work. We hope they will not be completely alone when the roundup is over."—James M. Watkins.

IN NORTHEASTERN TEXAS

At the invitation of the Christadelphian brethren in San Saba, preaching services were held there February 24 and 25, before going on to Gatesville. It was a pleasure to pay this return visit to San Saba, and the welcome of the brethren there was much appreciated.

Services were held at Ater, near Gatesville, March 2, at which time it was decided to leave the state conference there over the two week ends of August 16 to 24. Having consulted carefully with the brethren both here and at Mullin, it was thought best to hold the conference here. There is a large grounds affording plenty of space for camping and parking. We are looking forward to a wonderful season of good fellowship with brethren who have not been together for many years.

From Gatesville I went to Malone, where Bro. and Sr. M. E. Roberts live, made a stop at Mexia, then went to Ridge, contacting John and Clint Peterson, brethren from Goldthwaite, and stopped overnight at New Baden with relatives of Bro. E. W. Moses, the Easterly family. Turning back northeastward, I stopped at Buffalo for a fine visit with Bro. and Sr. C. C. Ezell and Sr. R. H. Kennard; at Palestine, where I visited Sr. W. E. Willhite; and at Longview, Sr. A. P. Legmon, I also stopped at Tyler to call on Geo. F. Battenfield, who many years ago was baptized by Bro. Shelton, but now belongs to another church.

Turning back westward from Gladewater, I reached Dallas, March 6. The next day, in a blinding snowstorm, I drove to Cleburne, where three interested families live. En route, I stopped at Alvarado, failing to locate four people whose names I had at that place. At Cleburne I had fine visits with Bro. J. C. Wilson, strong in the faith, with his daughter, Mrs. O. R. Eash, and with Sr. Nathan Cox, daughter of Sr. Willhite, of Palestine. Two other daughters live at Blum and at Godley, with the latter of whom, Mrs. Ed Lightsey, and her family, I spent a night. At Arlington I stopped to visit Bro. and Sr. T. A. Drinkard, both recovering from illness, and also Sr. Gordon Lewis, daughter of Bro. and Sr. M. V. Brantley, of Sweetwater.

Back to Dallas, services were held on Sunday, March 9, at the home of Bro. R. E. Robbins, where a small group gathered and two good services were enjoyed. Two days were spent contacting the Dallas people. There are five members, R. E. Robbins, son of Sr. W. L. Robbins of Riviera; his sister, Mrs. J. Ross Woodul; Mrs. Charles Dupree, daughter of Sr. A. A. Daniels of Westbrook, who fell asleep in Jesus only a few weeks ago; Mrs. A. A. Carrington, daughter of Bro. R. B. Taylor; and Mrs. Lola Danforth, daughter of Sr. Clara Chaffee of Oregon, Ill. In addition, there are four families interested, none of whom are as yet members, Mrs. Roy Crowell, daughter of Sr. Maude Williams of Harlingen; E. W. Clendenen from Mullin; Mrs. W. E. Hodge, daughter of Sr. Holdertield of Cleveland, Ark.; and Monte E. Stone, son of Sr. Gordon Lewis of Arlington.

At near-by Grand Prairie, there are two daughters of Bro. R. F. Robbins and a daughter of Sr. L. T. Reed of Mullin.

One day was spent in Fort Worth, where we have eight or nine members, Mrs. Jennie Hazelwood at Abilene; Clyde L. Brown and Mrs. Minnie Hampton, children of E. E.

Brown of Houston; Mrs. Charles Pine and her parents, Bro. and Sr. W. A. Shepherd, formerly of Grand Rapids, Mich.; W. E. Pippin, a former Baptist preacher and brother of J. T. Pippin of Tokio, Tex.; and Curtis Drinkard, son of Bro. and Sr. T. A. Drinkard. A few other people supposed to be in Fort Worth could not be located. The members in the Dallas-Fort Worth area are quite interested in getting together and having a meeting periodically, to get acquainted and study the Bible, also to have preaching when some minister is available. There are over twenty members in this area, in addition to several other interested families. Bro. R. E. Robbins will act as chairman of the group.

At Weatherford I enjoyed a visit with Sr. Otto J. Humphrey, formerly of El Paso, and a daughter of Bro. and Sr. C. C. Ezell at Buffalo.

I reached Abilene, March 14, stopping en route at Cisco to make a couple of calls. Services were held, March 16, at the Dolk Schoolhouse at Hawley, and at night at the Phil Jefferies home. We hope there will be some folks from Abilene in the Summer Bible Training School at Oregon.

After a few days in Abilene, I turned southward for a jaunt to San Angelo and beyond, stopping at Winters for visits with Bro. and Sr. G. T. Shott and their son, Bro. Dewey C. Shott. A pleasant visit was enjoyed with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Busher, interested folks at Ballinger. At San Angelo I found two interested members in addition to five other interested families. The members are Mrs. M. E. Davee, formerly of Mullin, and Mrs. Vince Holt. Three children of Sr. Davee and their families also live here. At Tankersley I found Sr. O. V. Lawson, also from Mullin, who has a number of married children living near by. At Mertzon a good visit was had with Bro. and Sr. Alton Brown, both from Mullin.

From Mertzon I turned northward again, to Sweetwater, but found on arriving, that so many were sick from an epidemic of the "flu" that no meeting was possible. Meetings have been handicapped at several other places for the same reason. Many schools are closed because so many teachers and pupils are sick. While at Sweetwater, I looked up several members who I had not contacted on previous visits. Also, plans were made for strengthening the local work.

A meeting planned at Rotan for March 25 also had to be cancelled because of so much sickness. Visits were made with a number of Rotan members who had not been seen on a former visit. There are about ten members in the Rotan vicinity, mostly members of the Seaton family. We hope a series of meetings can be held here in the near future.

At many places I found much enthusiasm for the coming conference, for so many are hungry for the Word, and rejoice at the prospect of meeting once again in a conference gathering with those of like precious faith.

If you want to see the conference succeed, plan to be there, August 16-24, and support it with your offerings, sending all contributions to Miss Wilda McCorkle, 215 W. Main St., Gatesville, Tex.

M. W. Lyon, Evangelist.

MARY MARILLA WHITE

Funeral services were conducted by the writer for Mrs. Mary Marilla White at Colo, Iowa, on March 21. Death had occurred on March 18.

Mary Marilla Brodie was born August 28, 1863, to John and Mary Brodie near Sandwich, Ill. The family moved to Kendall County, Ill., in 1867; Miss Brodie attended Illinois public schools and was graduated from the Fowler Institute of Art and Music. She taught music many years.

March 25, 1888, she married A. A. White and settled near Colo. For a long time, both she and her husband were active in the Colo Church of God, not now in existence. After moving into the town about thirty years ago, Mr. and Mrs. White became active in the Methodist Church, although maintaining their Church of God membership. Much of her later life, Mrs. White was pianist for the Order of Eastern Star.

Mrs. White is survived by her husband, two sons, four daughters, twenty grandchildren, and twenty-two great-grandchildren.

EVANGELIZE!!

—THIS WAS THE CALL TO SERVICE

If we are to accept wholeheartedly the example of the early church, we cannot ignore the degree to which every part was called to fulfill this aim.

—THIS WAS AN EVERY-MEMBER PURPOSE

Every person upon his acceptance of Christ was to be devoted to some phase of the effort of winning, teaching, or supporting individuals in this work of teaching others.

—IT SHOWED THEIR LOVE FOR CHRIST

The desire to carry, or helping others to carry, the blessing of the promise they had received to others was the smallest expression of appreciation that each felt he could offer.

—IT WAS THE LIFE LINE OF ETERNITY

Not only was it the only means of keeping that life line open to others, but it served as the greatest instrument for keeping faith alive within themselves.

—IT COST IN TIME AND DOLLARS

To this cause men gave not only themselves, but their entire substance. They brought to a common treasury all that they possessed, that through this common effort the gospel could go forth to greater lengths.

—IT WAS PLACED BEFORE RETURNS

They gave without question of their time and money—having, nor requiring, no assurance in the matter of returns. They gave as unto the Lord, asking no questions, knowing that of Him they would reap success if they did their part.

SHALL IT MEAN LESS TO US?

National Bible Institution is the satisfactory means by which an increasing number of consecrated Christians are having a self-satisfying part in training, helping, and sending out those who would carry this message to others. Every dollar of your contribution has a guaranteed return in dividends of Christian service and added opportunities for eternal life.

God's Salvation for His People

By Shirley Logsdon, Oregon, Illinois

FROM THE BEGINNING God has had a plan of salvation for His people Israel. Though they sinned and are scattered into all nations, their Lord has reserved a day of redemption for them. God, through His servant Isaiah, promised mercy and exaltation to His people. "I have blotted out, as a thick cloud, thy transgressions, and, as a cloud, thy sins: return unto me; for I have redeemed thee. Sing, O ye heavens; for the Lord hath done it: shout, ye lower parts of the earth: break forth into singing, ye mountains, O forest, and every tree therein: for the Lord hath redeemed Jacob, and glorified himself in Israel" (44:22, 23).

God will rejoice over Jerusalem's repentance as a bridegroom rejoices over his bride. The Prophet Isaiah, again talking for God, comforted Israel, saying: "Fear not; for thou shalt not be ashamed: neither be thou confounded; for thou shalt not be put to shame: for thou shalt forget the shame of thy youth, and shalt not remember the reproach of thy widowhood any more. For thy Maker is thine husband; the Lord of hosts is his name; and thy Redeemer the Holy One of Israel; The God of the whole earth shall he be called. . . . For a small moment have I forsaken thee; but with great mercies will I gather thee. In a little wrath I hid my face from thee for a moment; but with everlasting kindness will I have mercy on thee, saith the Lord thy Redeemer. . . . For the mountains shall depart, and the hills be removed; but my kindness shall not depart from thee, neither shall the covenant of my peace be removed" (54:4-10).

Though the Jews lacked understanding of God's promises, they have assurance of learning the truth in a future day. "Therefore thus saith the Lord, who redeemed Abraham, concerning the house of Jacob, Jacob shall not now be ashamed, neither shall his face now wax pale. But when he seeth his children, the work of mine hands, in the midst of him, they shall sanctify my name, and sanctify the Holy One of Jacob, and shall fear the God of Israel. They also that erred in spirit shall come to understanding, and they that murmured shall learn doctrine."

When Jesus returns to earth and establishes His Kingdom, God's plan will be accomplished. "Behold, the Lord hath proclaimed unto the end of the world, Say ye to the daughter of Zion, Behold, thy salvation cometh; behold, his reward is with him, and his work before him. And they shall call them, The holy people, The redeemed of the Lord: and thou shalt be called, Sought out, A city not forsaken" (Isa. 62:11, 12).

Entered as second class matter at the Post Office at Oregon, Illinois, under act of March, 1879. Mailed weekly, except the fourth Tuesday of August and the last Tuesday of December.

What Is "the Faith"?

Invariably, when one speaks of the true faith, critics accuse him of exalting one sect above another. In such tone as to imply no answer can be given, they ask, "What denomination has the true faith?"

Numerous scriptures speak of "the faith"—singular and positive. Jude exhorted: "Ye should earnestly contend for the faith which was once delivered unto the saints" (v. 3). Paul pleaded: "Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong" (1 Cor. 16:13). In Philippians 1:27, Paul specified what he meant by "the faith," saying: "Stand fast in one spirit, with one mind striving together for the faith of the gospel." This "faith of the gospel," in which we Christians are challenged to stand fast, which faith was once delivered unto the saints, must be that "one faith" of Ephesians 4:5, saying, "One Lord, one faith, one baptism." "Any old faith" neither satisfies nor saves!

What is this one faith that was delivered to the saints of old? Well, if Abraham suddenly were resurrected from the dead, he would be aghast with means of modern transportation, though he was traveler in his day. Streamlined trains, airplanes, and even automobiles would stagger his imagination. Indeed, all modern civilization would be so foreign to his concept, that he scarcely could converse on topics of the day. There is one theme, however, in which Abraham not only could converse, but in which he would be zealous and well informed. Abraham would know "the faith." "The scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the heathen through faith, preached before the gospel unto Abraham, saying, In thee shall all nations be blessed" (Gal. 3:8). If, therefore, Abraham were resurrected and brought into conversation with a member of the Church of God, there would be a happy discussion about the second coming of Christ, and about Christ's millennial rule to bless all nations. There would be little time for discussing transportation and myriad other topics of the hour. Indeed, Jesus positively said, "Abraham rejoiced to see my day: and he saw it, and was glad" (John 8:56). That is it! That is the true faith!—looking forward to see the Day of Christ. Rejoice ye in it!

Likewise, if David were to be brought back to life, he would be at a loss to understand modern life. The radio would seem like magic; television would seem like fairyland. Only one theme of importance could quickly cement David's thought with one living today—the thought of Christ, His redemption, and glory. Said David of his Lord: "I will behold thy face in righteousness: I shall be satisfied, when I awake, with thy likeness" (Psalm 17:15). Yes, David believed in immortality, in being fashioned like unto his Lord in the morning of the resurrection. David also foresaw that Christ "shall come down like rain upon the mown grass: as showers that water the earth," prophesying too:

"In his days [Christ's days] shall the righteous flourish; and abundance of peace so long as the moon endureth. He shall have dominion also from sea to sea, and from the river unto the ends of the earth. . . . Yea, all kings shall fall down before him: all nations shall serve him" (Psalm 72:6-11). . . . Thus David and Abraham believed alike. They embraced "the faith."

Consider, too, "the faith" of Job who knew that his Redeemer would "stand at the latter day upon the earth" (19:25). Certainly Job believed in the coming of Christ and kindred doctrines of the true faith. He knew, for instance, that though he died and corrupted in the grave, he would be resurrected at call of his Lord, prophesying: "Thou shalt call, and I will answer thee: thou wilt have a desire to the work of thy hands" (14:15).

Likewise, Daniel prophesied of "the latter days" and "the time of the end" when "many shall run to and fro, and knowledge shall be increased" (12:4). He prophesied of the resurrection and of "one like the Son of man [who] came with the clouds of heaven," and told of "the kingdom and dominion . . . under the whole heaven" which is to be "an everlasting kingdom."

No, the true faith means not that one sect knows all there is to be known. The true faith, rather, is that faith embraced from Eden unto today, embraced in the hearts of men and women who look forward to the coming of Christ and His blessing to all nations. Take warning: "Some shall depart from the faith." Paul "kept" it; "Examine yourselves, whether ye be in the faith."

Are God and Christ One?

By R. H. Judd, Colborne, Ontario

THERE have been several occasions in times past, as you are well aware, when China Inland Mission publications have advocated what has become known as Barthian Theology, by teaching that "Jesus Christ is God, and that He alone is to be worshiped and served." This last is a quotation from Dr. H. W. Frost's article in China's Millions—the italics being his. Probably the most outstanding instance was that occurring in Young China, where it was very definitely advocated that in the temptation in the wilderness, the Lord Jesus—the Christ—represented Himself to be "the Lord thy God." You will remember that I wrote to you on that occasion, and that you admitted the correctness of my understanding. Hence the reading of Mr. Contento's article brought these to memory.

Scripture Distinguishes between God and Jesus the Christ

The Scriptures which make clear and definite distinction between God and man, and between God and His Son—"the Son of God"—are so numerous that I fail to see how anyone who reads them can accept the illogical doctrine (which now for many years has been on the increase), that God and the Person whom He calls "his Christ" possibly can be one and the same individual. Mr. Contento probably has adopted the idea to escape the difficulty presented to him by the Chinese student. It would seem, however, that the student was not far amiss in his understanding of what all missionaries taught. Mr. Contento's explanation, however, does not answer the student's difficulty, for anything that denies the frequent Bible assertions that God and Jesus the Christ are each separate and distinct Personalities cannot be correct.

Contest with Evil

From the very beginning of the contest with evil, the wages of sin has been death. The first pronouncement of death is recorded in Genesis 2:17: "In the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die." Centuries after, in Paul's day, it was the same: "The wages of sin is death"—the death of the person. (See Rom. 6:23.) That law has never been rescinded. Because Adam did not die "in the

This article by Brother R. H. Judd was written as an open letter to the China Inland Mission (operating in Canada, the United States, Great Britain, China, and Australia), being a reply to an article by one Paul Contento. Mr. Contento's article (March-April issue of "Young China") asserted that "Christ was God incarnate, that is, God in human form. God was on the cross. Yes, God Himself hung on that cross." . . . Brother Judd here defends Bible truth that God and the Christ are Father and Son, two Persons, being one only in purpose.—Editor.

day," most people have thought that God went back on His word, or that death does not mean death. The majority, in their confusion, have accepted, at the hands of the ministers and missionaries, the latter explanation. These leaders have taught "that there is no death" and that man is not dead when he dies. The Scriptures teach that death is a terrible reality (See Psalm 146:4.)

Few, even ministers, seem to have realized that two separate and distinct pronouncements were made on this important matter. The first was the announcement of the penalty of death—"in the day that thou eatest thereof." The second was the commuting of that penalty of "in the day" to one of penal servitude for life. Compare Genesis 2:17 and 3:19. When circumstantial evidence had been taken, God in mercy commuted the penalty, but the penalty of death was not rescinded. "Adam lived . . . nine hundred and thirty years and he died" (Gen. 5:5). To quote more fully we read, "All the days that Adam lived, were nine hundred thirty years; and he died." Anyone who will read the record honestly will admit the facts to be as stated.

Because all men have sinned, "none of them can by any means redeem his brother, or give to God a ransom for him." Why? Because his own life is forfeited by sin. (Psalm 49:7.) The only way the death penalty may be redeemed is for one without sin to "offer" himself to God on our behalf. Hence Jesus the Christ is "the Lamb of God [hence not God] which taketh away the sin of the world." (John 1:29; see also 2 Cor. 5:21, R.V.) Thus it becomes possible that "whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life" (John 3:16). God promises to ransom the faithful from the grave—to redeem them from death.

"In that he died [Christ, not God], he died unto sin once: but in that he liveth, he liveth unto God." Here again distinction of Persons is clear and unmistakable. "He [Christ] liveth [now] by the power of God" (2 Cor. 13:4).

Another fact which proves that Christ is not God is that forgiveness may be had only through a God-appointed Mediator. Hence we read: "There (Turn to page 10)

God's Kingdom Is Not the Church

By E. H. Goit, Niagara Falls, New York

THE KINGDOM of God is not the church, that is, not the bride of Christ. Nominal Christendom asserts they are one and the same, whereas the Word of God proves they are two organizations.

Christ's bride, the church, is composed of a body of believers who are called out from the Gentiles and Jews. As Adam slept, a rib was removed to form his bride, Eve; so Christ also slept in the sleep of death, His life being given to purchase His bride, the "church of the first-born." This body of believers was founded upon Himself as a tried cornerstone. (See Matt. 16:18.) Its membership is limited to those who have been baptized into Christ. (See Gal. 3:27.) As a mission, the church is to "go . . . into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature" (Mark 16:15).

God's Kingdom will be a material kingdom. It will be tangible, visible, and world wide in scope. In this Kingdom, the "table of the Lord" will be established and Christ will drink the fruit of the vine with His bride. His apostles will judge the twelve tribes of Israel. (See Luke 24:29, 30.) Its membership will consist of those who are the body of Christ, also the sheep nations, and the whole household of Israel with the King of the Jews as its Head.

Ekklesia, the word translated "church" and meaning "assembly," appears one hundred fifteen times in the Bible, yet not once is it translated "kingdom." Basileia, the word translated "kingdom," appears one hundred sixty-two times, yet not once is it translated "church." To substitute the word "church" where the word "kingdom" appears, and vice versa, shows the folly of calling the Kingdom the church and the church the Kingdom. A few of the places with the substitutions are as follows:

(1) "Then shall the King say unto them on his right hand, Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom [church?] prepared for you from the foundation of the world" (Matt. 25:34). Does the church inherit itself?

(2) "Thy kingdom [church?] come" (Matt. 6:10). Does the church pray for the church to come?

(3) "Now this I say, brethren, that flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom [church?] of God; neither doth corruption inherit incorruption" (1 Cor. 15:50). If people who are in the church today are not flesh and blood, what then are they?

(4) "As for Saul, he made havock of the church [kingdom?], entering into every house, and haling men and women committed them to prison" (Acts 8:3). Does the Word of God teach that the Kingdom of God is to be violated as such? Is it not a Kingdom where "none shall make them [inhabitants] afraid"? (Micah 4:4.)

(5) "Likewise greet the church [kingdom?] that is in their house" (Rom. 16:5). Does a house hold a world-wide Kingdom?

(6) "He is the head of the body, the church [kingdom?]; who is the beginning, the firstborn from the dead; that in all things he might have the preeminence" (Col. 1:18). Is the body of Christ the Kingdom?

The church is a present-day organization, whereas the Kingdom of God is of future establishment. (See Acts 15:13-17.) To enter the church, baptism by immersion in the name of Jesus is the one and only way. A resurrection from the dust of mortality is not necessary. To enter the Kingdom of God, baptism by immersion and a literal, visible, and bodily resurrection from the grave is necessary. One that is baptized is still corruptible or mortal. Corruption or mortality cannot inherit the Kingdom. (See 1 Cor. 15:50.) Therefore, it is of necessity that these two agencies (baptism and resurrection) be utilized before one can be "born again" to enter the Kingdom. In other words, it is not possible to enter the Kingdom of God before the "resurrection of the just" and that yet has to take place. Therefore, the church and the Kingdom are not one and the same!

Those who claim the church and Kingdom are synonymous attempt to bolster their theory by perverting about eight passages of Scripture from the general tenor of the Word of God and wrenching them from their contexts. A careful examination of the Bible will unveil their false promise. Let us examine the Word.

Matthew 16:28, with similar accounts in Mark 9:1 and Luke 9:27, is quoted to prove that the Kingdom was literally established some time after the death of Christ, prior to the death of all the apostles, and mainly on the day of Pentecost. Jesus said, "There be some standing here, which shall not taste of death, till they see the Son of man coming in his kingdom" (Matt. 16:28). Immediately many persons conclude that the actual establishment of the Kingdom had to occur prior to the deaths of all apostles. We believe this to be a false conclusion for the following reasons:

(1) Some did see Jesus, the Son of Man, coming in His Kingdom.

(2) Approximately six days later, Peter, James, and John saw the Transfiguration of our Lord wherein Moses and Elias appeared in a vision of glory.

(3) Peter wrote of this vision as "the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ" in reference to the Transfiguration in the holy mount. (See 2 Peter 1:16-18.) Therefore, we declare that some of the apostles did see the power and coming of our Lord, with a view of the glory of His Kingdom, without the actual and literal establishment of said Kingdom.

Some say Jesus would never have said, "Repent: for the kingdom of heaven is at hand" (Matt. 4:17) if it had not been imminent. John the Baptist declared the same, and further said, "This is he . . . prepare ye the way of the Lord" (Matt. 3:3). This context would identify the "kingdom at hand" as synonymous with the one spoken of "this is he." Lexicons say the word basileia can be translated "royalty" or "royal personage" as well as "kingdom." The Emphatic Diaglott reads, "Reform; for the royal majesty of the heavens has approached" (Matt. 4:17). Therefore, Jesus was declaring, as was John, that He, the King, had come, and not that the Kingdom was immediately to be established.

Much ado is made of the text, saying, "The kingdom of God is come nigh unto you" (Luke 10:9). The work of Christ and His followers was to preach the Kingdom, not to establish it. After the United Nations Organization was conceived, it was necessary that it be presented to the nations for ratification. Thus, after the King was born, it was necessary that the message of the Kingdom be preached for the acceptance of the people. In this manner, the Kingdom of God came nigh unto the people alive at the time of Christ.

To spiritualize the Kingdom, some repeatedly quote that it "is not meat and drink; but righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost" (Rom. 14:17). Taking this one verse alone from the rest of the Kingdom message, they seek to portray a spiritual realm, rather than a kingdom with material values. Bible students must discern between fanaticism of ignorance and calm tranquility begotten by an intelligent belief and faithful obedience to the gospel. Many yell with temporary joy, some tumble in ecstasy begotten by delusion, and others fondle snake idols. Generally, the greater the ignorance the stronger the impulse of the flesh! Present experiences tend to be the opposite of peace and joy. Today we have the sorrowing and turmoils of the Spirit striving against fleshly desires. The life of Christ was a path beaten of sorrow, but for the joy set before Him, He endured. Thus, because of the hope of joy set before us, we endure much tribulation. Today is a day of preparation for future inheritance. (See Matt. 5:4; Luke 6:21; Heb. 12:2; Acts 14:24.)

Being questioned by the Pharisees when the Kingdom should come, Jesus answered, "The kingdom of God cometh not with observation: neither shall they say, Lo, here! or lo, there! for, behold, the kingdom of God is within you" (Luke 17:20, 21). Using a surface translation, many err in saying, "The Kingdom is within you." In rejecting a "heart kingdom," we do not deny that Christ dwells in the true Christian by faith, shaping his conduct, but we do deny that this companionship is the Kingdom of God established. The word "observation" is more properly rendered "careful watching." Israel at this time was "carefully watching" and searching here and there, saying, "Here is our Messiah," or "There He is." When the Messiah does establish His Kingdom at His second advent, there will be no need to search for Him, for "as the lightning cometh out of the east, and shineth even unto the west; so shall also the coming of the Son of man be" (Matt. 24:27). It was the Pharisees who asked Jesus when the Kingdom should come, and it was to them that Jesus replied. Certainly Jesus did not say the Kingdom of God was in the hearts of those wicked Pharisees, but that it was among or in the midst of them, as the word "within" is properly translated. King Jesus was in the midst of the Pharisees, was He not? The Emphatic Diaglott reads, "nor shall they say, Behold here! or there! for, behold, God's Royal Majesty is among you" (Luke 17:21).

Some, to prove that the Kingdom has been established, quote John, saying, "I John, who also am your brother, and companion in tribulation, and in the kingdom and patience of Jesus Christ" (Rev. 1:9). Then these "grasshopper-conclusionists" declare that John was in the Kingdom at the writing of the Book of Revelation. If John was in the Kingdom when in tribulation, there is no advantage to be in the Kingdom. John combined fact and hope as one might say, "I am your friend in adversity or prosperity"; or, "I deliver your mail, summer and winter." Surely it would be foolish to infer that one would be in adversity and prosperity at the same time, or that summer and winter occurred at the same time at the same place. So it would be ridiculous, if not absurd, to declare that John was enduring tribulation and enjoying the Kingdom at the same time. It was through much tribulation that John prepared to enter the Kingdom. (See Acts 14:22.)

Of a "microscopic few," Colossians 1:13 is proclaimed loudest to sustain the church-kingdom theory. It reads, "Who [God] hath delivered us from the power of darkness, and hath translated us into the kingdom of his dear Son." The words "hath" and "into" are vehemently emphasized. It is a very good rule not to build a "hope" on the tenses in the Bible, for God "calleth those things which be not as though they were" (Rom. 4:17). It would have been a great mistake to have emphasized "is" in Isaiah 9:6 (prophecy of Christ written seven hundred years before His birth) when it was written. There are many places in the Bible where the present tense is used, yet the future is predicted. Instead of sustaining a "heart kingdom," Colossians 1:13 proves (Please turn to page 9)

Homemade Poison

By Peter Rees Joshua, Aurora, Illinois
Selected by Glenn M. Birkey from "The Gideon"

THE WORLD today is facing an unprecedented inflation materially, and an equally unprecedented deflation spiritually. It is the backwash of the first World War which produced a forgotten generation of parents who today stand confused and indicted before the ills of juvenile delinquency. We speak today of juvenile delinquency and of illegitimate children, whereas in truth we should speak with more conviction of parental delinquency and illegitimate adults.

We are living in a day when it is considered smart to deal lightly with the Book that has made America the great nation she is. It would do us the world of good to silence our juke boxes and cheap modern mechanical escape gadgets and visit the historic centers of America's birth. How deeply is Scripture embedded into early American life! It is even embedded and read today in the masonry of her greatest buildings! This would have meant little had not these same Scriptures been hidden deep in the hearts and lives of those who built the nation, and who revered God.

I recall vividly attending a Rotary meeting . . . a few years ago with my beloved friend, the world-renowned Gypsy Smith. I was sitting next to him at the speaker's table when suddenly, just before he arose to speak, he asked me to mark carefully his closing words. When the moment arrived, he lifted high his well-worn Bible and with that unctuous tone of the Holy Spirit he asked, "How many of you men can recall a saintly mother and a godly father who loved this Book, read it, lived it, and seeped it into you, as a boy? How many of you can remember parents who prayed for you, and loved you with tears?" I can see now practically the entire group of leading business men raise their hands, with moist eyes, and not without some justified pride. Then quietly Gypsy swung home deftly this shaft, "Well, men, with all your influence today, how many of you are so living that your children will remember you for your faithfulness to this same Book, and the same power of prayer?" It was a tense moment, a searching moment, and I felt the impact more than Gypsy Smith did, for I knew a few there whose children are today's problem. You see, this happened in my parish! Wonderful Book the Bible! Wonderful privilege the Gideons have in making it known. Someone has well said, "The Bible will keep you from sin, or sin will keep you from the Bible." I wish I could tack this on every home in America.

I often think back to an old book in my father's library in Wales. I marked one page in it, and want to give it to you for real consumption. Its truth is graven into my mind like a mark made with a diamond on steel. Here it is, parents: "The mill-streams which drive the clappers of this world arise in solitary places." How desperately true; and what a thought to apply to the homes today! America never became a mighty nation through parents who spent their time in gin-mills and cast their children off to the movies, or the dangers of the streets, to allow them an escape from sacrifice. America never became a great nation through parents who treat their marriage vows as lightly as they treat a paper napkin; and loose living that substitutes license for liberty and immorality for things immortal and fundamental. There is a whirlwind for parents who sell the souls of their little ones for the cheap bubbles of self-satisfaction, and escape from responsibility.

One of the truest statements of our indestructible Bible was penned under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit by Paul to the fickle Galatians: "Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." My, how church-less, Bible-less, God-less, Christ-less parents are sowing a harvest for their children today! Filthy saloons are filled with mothers who go home to give the breast to their offspring, and thou-

IRRESPONSIBLE!

When farmer's sheep are hit by trains
The railroad pays the bills;
A motorist's responsible
For anyone he kills;
A workman, injured on the job,
Receives just compensation,
Which leads one logically to make
The following observation:
When liquor makes a man a slave
And fills his home with strife;
Leaves him a source of anguish to His friends, his child, his wife;
Impairs or stunts his mental powers;
Depletes his strength and health;
Deceives, deludes, distorts his life
Yet grabs his store of wealth;
When it deprives of livelihood
Or lands him in the jail,
What liquor dealer dashes up
And proffers needed bail?
When liquor dulls and deadens him
So much that he is willing To kill himself the painful way,
By slow and gradual killing,
When it has sapped ambition's urge
And multiplied his woes,
When all that life held dear is gone
And everybody knows
That liquor robbed him of it all
And left—a moral wreck,
The liquor dealer's attitude
Is only, "What the heck!"
In every other field, it seems
The culprit pays, and how!
Why should the liquor interests be
The nation's sacred cow?
In profiting, at public loss,
They show no mean ability;
Why need they always go Scott free
From all responsibility?

sands of little lives are in this hour being suckled on the mother-breasts of alcoholics drinking into their tiny systems the very hellish propensity possessed by their mothers. Fathers, too, think that discipline of Christianity is a sissy venture. Are they any improvement, with their cotton-wool streaks for backbones, on the rugged stalwarts whose faith-plow was plunged deep into the ways of righteousness and moral integrity? The children of the men who pioneered did not see their fathers turn the Lord's Day into a leprous carnival, or the House of God into a memory. I have said it often to audiences across the country, and I say it again and again—National destiny is not settled in Congress or in the halls of the United Nations. It is settled upon the common flagstones of the American kitchens. The solution of social problems, the purification of society, will not be accomplished at any academic or political wash tub. Dirty linen may be washed there, but the power to stop the linen becoming stained is in the hands of the mothers and fathers of the land who lead their children through the Word into the paths of righteousness.

There is a price to pay for synthetic living, and "synthetic" means "a substitute for the real thing." There is a price to pay for treachery to the obligations of holy marriage and disciplined living; and dull, indeed, is the mind if beneath the din of modern parental prodigality a voice is not heard, the voice of Jehovah, saying, "Whoso shall offend one of these little ones which believe in me, it were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and that he were drowned in the depths of the sea."

One cannot help but think of the Prophet Amos and the words of the Lord to him: "Behold, I set a plumbline in the midst of my people Israel." What if that plumbline could be set in the midst of the average home today, measuring family conduct against the principles of righteousness? What is to become of a world that shares with the late Jimmy Walker, ex-mayor of New York City, the feeling that those who want reform (Please turn to page 10)

Daniel's "Middle X" King

By Sterling Russell, Cleveland Heights, Ohio

EZEKIEL wrote about the destruction of Gog, prince of the land of Magog, in the thirty-eighth and thirty-ninth chapters of his Book. They are symbolical of the warring enemies of God.

In Jewish Scripture, both king and queen of the South were on the right hand of an eastward-facing Semite. Accordingly, south of Judea were Shur, Zin, Paran, Edom, Idumea, Arabia, Petra, Egypt, Ethiopia. The words "England," "Great Britain," "America" are not in the Bible.

The king of the North was at the left hand of the Semite, whence came invaders and foes. The word "Russia" cannot be found in the Bible. The future kings of the North and South are not revealed by name.

Is it not strange that just before Armageddon, the king of the North and the king of the South are to be allies joined together to crush a common foe? Is it not odd that during the previous century the brethren, who find no Scriptural existence of an everlasting fiery hell with its Dante-described playful Devil, who never denounced the warring Magog such as Germany or Japan, nevertheless affirm that Russia is the king bear of the North?

Suppose we examine the Word of God with clear eyes and the cool mind of Christ. Read Daniel 11:40-45, saying: "At the time of the end shall the king of the south push at him: and the king of the north shall come against him like a whirlwind . . . he shall enter into the countries, and shall overflow and pass over. He shall enter also into the glorious land . . . he shall have power over the treasures of gold and of silver, and over all the precious things of Egypt . . . and he shall plant the tabernacles of his palace between the seas in the glorious holy mountain; yet he shall come to his end, and none shall help him."

Just who, brethren, is this "him" and "he" that the kings of both North and South unsuccessfully attack at the time Michael stands up, when also "there shall be a time of trouble, such as never was since there was a nation"? "Many of them" (not all of them) "that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt" (disgrace), "and they that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars for ever and ever."

Let those brethren who affirm that Russia is to be the king of the North to pounce upon Israel consider just who Gog and Magog are in Revelation 20:7-10. Then, at the end of the thousand-year reign of Christ, another war is to break out. Can that be the king bear, Russia, who again fights the Prince of Peace?

Who among us will identify by the Bible just who Daniel's "he" and "him" is? This writer will mail a ten-dollar bank money order to the first brother or sister who Scripturally identifies Daniel's "Middle X" King.

News and Prophecy Digest

By C. E. Randall (Fonthill, Ontario)

FREEDOM INVADED. The recent decision of the United States Supreme Court upholding the constitutional right of a state to furnish free transportation for pupils attending parochial schools has aroused the Protestant leaders to the impending dangers to this country as result of this five to four decision of the Justices. If it is right to use taxpayers' money for the transportation of Roman Catholic children to and from their religious schools, then why is it not perfectly proper to use such funds for the purchase of textbooks and other school equipment? Already, the camel at the open door is wanting to be fed. In Franklin, New Hampshire, an attorney, encouraged by the Supreme Court decision, has started action to get the community to furnish free textbooks to the children attending parochial schools.

Sensing the dangers which are rolling in on this Protestant country, members of the Atlanta Baptist Pastors' Conference have pledged themselves to preach at least one sermon on the Supreme Court decision. They said: "The separation of Church and State and the religious freedom of the individual have been invaded."

A GOOD YEAR. In 1930, the American Bible Society distributed 12,000,000 copies of the Scriptures. 1946 was the most fruitful year since. Last year, 11,394,200 copies of the Scriptures went into circulation. Of these, 105,500 went to the Soviets. Distribution of the Word is a wonderful work, and may the blessing of the Lord rest heavily upon all such undertakings.

NODAL POINT. The Archbishop of Canterbury, in writing on the importance of Easter, said: "The historical evidence for the resurrection of our Lord is strong; the spiritual proof of it is in its effect upon those first disciples, who were converted by it from bankrupts of faith and hope to more than conquerors, turning the world upside down . . . Christ died. There is no gospel in that, until you can say, 'and rose again.' The resurrection is the nodal point of it all. Here we touch solid rock."

The resurrection of Christ is the center around which the whole gospel message gravitates. The resurrection of Christ insures the resurrection of "all that are in the graves." And the fact that those "in the graves" are the ones to be resurrected, discredits the notion some have that the "body" is not raised up. Writing in "The Harp of God," J. F. Rutherford denies the resurrection of Jesus' body. He says it was secreted away so as not to stand in the way of the faith of the disciples. "Our Lord's human body, the one crucified, was removed from the tomb by the power of God. . . . The Scriptures do not reveal what became of that body, except that it did not decay or corrupt (Acts 2:27, 31, 32). We can only surmise that the Lord may have preserved it somewhere to exhibit to the people in the Millennial Age." If you question the resurrection of the body—you should study carefully the Easter issue of The Restitution Herald, and the scriptures used in that issue will be made clear to you.

AMERICA. The benefits which people of America enjoy over the citizens of other countries are forcibly set forth in a comparative table as printed in "Capper's Weekly," under the heading of "America." It reads:

"A nation that numbers six per cent of the population of the world, has for its convenience:

70 per cent of all automobiles,
50 per cent of all telephones,
45 per cent of all radios,
34 per cent of all railroads.

It uses for its convenience:
56 per cent of all silk,
53 per cent of all coffee,
51 per cent of all rubber.

It produces for its convenience:
62 per cent of all the oil,
53 per cent of all the corn,
50 per cent of all the cotton,
34 per cent of all the coal,
32 per cent of all the copper,
30 per cent of all the iron.

"No other 'ism' but Americanism can better our present standard of living and no other way of life but the American way can create a world of better opportunity."

Mr. Capper's paper no doubt was comparing the American-way of life to the totalitarian way, when it stated that "no other way of life but the American way can create a world of better opportunity." In such a contrast, of course, we heartily can agree. But there is a "way of life" which will be far better than anything which the American way has or can produce. It is the Kingdom way, when the Lord Jesus Christ becomes King over all the earth. In that day, there will not need to be any subsidizing of the building trades, for one shall "not build, and another inhabit." Slum areas will be unknown. Labor troubles will be completely solved. People will "long enjoy the work of their hands. They shall not labour in vain." Hospitalization will be cared for by removing the need, for "the inhabitant shall not say, I am sick." Yes, Senator, the Kingdom way will be better than the American way. And to this, I believe you, too, would be ready to say, "Even so, let it be."

A GOOD THING. Every little while someone with wide influence and prestige speaks forth words of wisdom that deserve much wider circulation than is accorded to them. Speaking before the ministers of the Chicago Federation of Churches, Henry R. Luce, editor of "Life" and "Time," is reported by the "Presbyterian Tribune" to have said: "Oh, I'm in favor of telling Sunday school boys and girls about the birds and the flowers and the United Nations, but, wouldn't it be a good thing to tell them about God? I think they'd really be interested. I was, and many of you were when you were young. Surely there was never a child of seven who did not ask, 'Who made me?' Fail to answer that question and be sure you have mutilated the Church of God."

This son of a Presbyterian minister has thrust a challenge to the modern church. The prophetic day when "they will not endure sound doctrine; but after their own lusts shall they heap to themselves teachers, having itching ears; and they shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables," is upon us. If, as various polls have indicated, the children and youth in our schools today are ignorant of God's righteousness, their spiritual teachers are at fault. "Like people, like priest."

DO YOU KNOW? Under this title, the "Canadian Lutheran" gives out some interesting facts concerning the membership of the Lutheran League, which is a young people's organization of the United Lutheran Church of America.

"That there are 180,000 intermediate and senior youth on the U.L.C.A. records of which the Luther League membership claims only 25,000? Where are the 155,000?"

"That U.L.C.A. church records indicate that one out of every three youths falls away from Christ?"

"That out of the census figure of more than 400,000 Lutherans in Canada, only 135,000 are within the church! Out of every three Lutherans in Canada, only one is in the church!"

This is a sad commentary on the state of the church. Here is a large army that claims church membership, yet has practically nothing to do with the church. We do not wish to point a figure of indictment against the Lutheran Church, or cite these figures in any way to wound the conscience of a single Lutheran. What is true of the Lutheran Church, it no doubt more or less true of all other churches, our own not exempted. There are literally multitudes who have nominal church membership, but are totally disassociated from the work and welfare of the church. This great army of "once were" members of the church, by their indifference and do-nothing attitude, are undermining the very stability of the church. By a slow and lukewarm process the inactive members are blighting the work of the Lord.

WANTED, A PASTOR

Our church is in need of a pastor,
 Yes, we want a good man very much;
 And here are the qualifications,
 If you know of a man who has such.

He must have a first-class education,
 With degrees at the end of his name;
 He must be up to date in his thinking,
 A very good mixer his aim.

He must have a demeanor that's pleasing,
 When he stands in the pulpit to preach,
 Without any habits unseemly,
 Or any defects in his speech.

He must be a most excellent preacher,
 A man to his notes not confined,
 A third of an hour quite sufficient
 To tell what he has on his mind.

He must know how to hold the young people,
 Not above taking part in their fun;
 And yet he must govern his conduct
 So as not to offend any one.

He must be under forty, and married;
 And his wife must a paragon be.
 She must know how to work with the ladies,
 Using tact when they fail to agree.

She must never say "No" to the people,
 Whatever they ask her to do.
 She must know how to play the piano,
 Teach a class in the Sunday school, too.

She must always be willing and ready
 To entertain folks with a smile;
 And her house must be well-kept and spotless
 From cellar to attic the while.

The children must be little angels;
 Trained up in the way they should go,
 Well-mannered, and always at meeting
 Sitting quietly all in a row.

Both pastor and wife must be willing To exercise faith in the Lord,
 And be quite content with their wages,
 Whatever the church can afford.

Yes, our church is in need of a pastor,
 And we want a good man very much
 Who has all of these qualifications,
 If you know of a man who has such.

GOD'S KINGDOM IS NOT THE CHURCH

the Kingdom is something to enter into, rather than something that enters in.

Certainly we can expect Bible students to go deeper to establish their faith than a surface translation of a text that seemingly contradicts the Word. (See 2 Tim. 4:1.) When the question of translation is mentioned, some are likely to cry indignantly, "There you are, questioning the translation again!" We ask, "Why not? Why are there constant revisions made of the Bible?" Some will say, "How can a lay person be expected to critically examine the difficult texts?" We answer, "Many texts do not require examination. If one is as much in earnest about the meaning of a clause to his title to eternal life as he is about the title of a worldly estate, he would not consider it trouble to investigate." It is said, "What do common people know of Hebrew and Greek?" They need not know foreign languages to use lexicons. Concordances with Hebrew and Greek given in English are available, and they can be used easily as one uses an English dictionary.

In the Greek, the preposition rendered "into" in Colossians 1:13 is the same as in verse 16 (next to the last word) rendered "for." It is eis in both places. Now if eis can be translated "for" in verse 16, why not also in verse 13? The Diaglott reads, "Who delivered us from the dominion of darkness, and changed us for the kingdom of the Son of his love." This is Scriptural, and it agrees with the multitude of verses declaring a future Kingdom!

With the foregoing proofs, we say the church established at Pentecost was not the Kingdom of God. It was not the coming of Christ, but the coming of "another" comforter. (See John 14:16.) John wrote Revelation in approximately the year 96 A.D., and he placed the coming of our Lord as still future. If Jesus had not yet come, then how was the Kingdom established at Pentecost? At the time of Pentecost, the Roman Empire held sway and was not divided until four hundred fifty years later in 483 A.D. When the Kingdom of God is established, it is to "break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms" (Dan. 2:44). Was Rome consumed at Pentecost? Are the kingdoms of today?

In the Kingdom of God, people are to be reigned over. The church is not to be reigned over, but it is to be "heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ" (Rom. 8:17). This places a clear distinction between the church and the Kingdom.

At the time of Christ, certain ones "thought that the kingdom of God should immediately appear" (Luke 19:11). Jesus informed them this was not so by His parable of the "nobleman" who "went into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom and to return" (Luke 19:12). Jesus is that Nobleman, and He has gone to that far country to receive a Kingdom. He shall return as He promised. In the meanwhile, He has instructed His servants to occupy. When He returns, the books will be audited and the accounts balanced. His return to where He left still remains to be fulfilled. When that occurs, the Kingdom of God will be established.

Indeed, the Bible proves the church and the Kingdom are two organizations!

HOMEMADE POISON

"are guys who ride through a sewer in a glass-bottom boat"? What is to become of a nation when one of its best-known news magazines can pen of this gilded play-boy, "that he backed the right things when in office: Sunday baseball and movies, beer and freedom of books from censorship," adding this choice morsel, "No girl was ever ruined by a book"?

Recalling the late Mr. Walker, I was reading recently that distortion mirrors could make thin men appear fat, and tall men appear short, beauty appear grotesque; but they have never invented a mirror yet to make ugly people look beautiful. (The world, the flesh, and the devil, however, have organized life to make sin appear deceptively lovely. We are living in a day religiously, even, when God is humanized; Christ is patronized; man is deified; and sin is simonized.) Life is looked at by the majority of people only in the deceptive reflections of sin's destruction. The Bible, God's Word, is the only mirror in the universe which gives a clear picture of what man is, and you will find the foundation of man's character before a holy God in Jeremiah 17:9: "The heart is deceitful above all things and sick, desperately wicked, and who can know it?" We need a revelation today of man's total depravity that will drive him to prostrate himself in ashes before the Lamb of God who "taketh away the sin of the world."

What is the answer, then, for juvenile delinquency? In my travels, I have had unusual opportunity to witness the disturbing trend of parental faithlessness in all too many homes; parents, like Jehu, have thrown the reins to the winds and are driving furiously to spiritual destruction. The answer, you say? This is the answer to juvenile delinquency: Parental sanity and a return to the one Book which contains the one Name wherein we find salvation. May the purveyors and victims of home-made poison find their cure in the Great Physician, as they face the medicine of 2 Chronicles 7:14: "If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land"—and may I add—their homes, on which America is built.

I HAVE FOUND

When you can't get around
You always have good friends.
Those who are true,
And pray for you,
And then your worry ends.

"I thank the friends

Who sent me cards
And good wishes by the score;
It cheered my heart,
And had a part
In bringing me back once more.

"Our God did send

The dearest Friend
That man has ever known.
Through life or death
To our very last breath,
We are never left alone.

"He'll come some day

And take us away
To the home He has gone to prepare.
When the trumpet does sound
May we be found
Ready to reign with Him then."

—Selected by Sr. Elizabeth Reighard.

ARE GOD AND CHRIST ONE?

is one God, and one mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus." Unless a Mediator is insisted on, the sinner invariably thinks that something of his own merit has brought forgiveness. If he knows his forgiveness is through a Mediator, he realizes that he has no merit of his own. Read the Epistle to the Hebrews.

Man Is Not an Immortal Person

According to human teaching, man is said to be naturally immortal. Scripture declares, however, that eternal life cannot be had without conditions attached. (John 3:16.) Scripture declares that man is mortal, and that it is the man that is mortal. (See Job 4:17; 2 Chron. 14:11, marg.; Psalm 146:4; 37:10, R.V.)

The whole controversy between God and man, on account of sin, issues in life or death. Man's greatest need is life. No action can be done without it. John's Gospel makes it abundantly clear that Jesus the Christ came to bring life to men—even everlasting life.

Adam was turned out of Eden in sinful condition—"lest he put forth his hand, and take also of the tree of life, and eat, and live for ever" (Gen. 3:22). In other words, "lest" he should be immortal—an immortal sinner—Adam was separated from the tree of life. (Eccl. 12:1-7; Job 34:14, 15.) What does John say? "These are written, that ye might believe [what?] that Jesus is the Christ the Son of God; and that believing ye might have life through his name."

I very much question whether or not there is a single missionary in the China Inland Mission who really believes that some close relatives of his are now suffering, and will suffer, through endless ages in flames of everlasting fire in the hell depicted by the ministers and missionaries. Thank God, it is not the Bible hell. I have heard missionaries relate the tribulations they have suffered on behalf of the gospel (and many in the homelands have not gone through less), but I have yet to meet one minister or missionary who really seemed to care a "rattle" for the awful sufferings of those now (supposedly) in eternal flames of fire. "The wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life."

WHITEHEAD - WENRICK

At 2:00 p.m., Sunday, March 30, 1947, at Hope Chapel, South Bend, Ind., Miss Pamela Whitehead of Liverpool, England, became the wife of Christian Wenrick of South Bend. Before that time, the bride was without relatives in this country, but not without friends, for in the short period of about three weeks she had endeared herself in the hearts of all who were privileged to meet her. She spent several years in the service of her country as also did Christian for the United States in the European theater of war.

The solos, including the Lord's Prayer, were rendered by Miss Winifred Mastain, with Mrs. Lottie Pickert at the piano. The music contributed effectively to the double ring ceremony in which Miss Whitehead and Mr. Wenrick exchanged and pledged their vows.

The bride is a member of the Church of England and the groom is a member of the Hope Chapel Church of God.

A lovely reception was given in the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Wenrick. The newlyweds will be at home in their own apartment at 207 Notre Dame Ave., South Bend. Floyd A. Stilson.

MOORE - GRIMES

Janet Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Moore, became the bride of Dale M. Grimes, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Grimes of Green Mountain, Iowa, in a pretty candlelight ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, four miles north of Marshalltown, Iowa, Saturday evening, March 2, at eight o'clock.

Winifred Moore attended her sister as maid of honor. The double ring ceremony was read by H. S. Hunt, Clarksville, in the presence of twenty-one guests.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Grimes were graduated from Green Mountain High School with the class of 1943. Mrs. Grimes later attended Thompsons School of Cosmetology at Des Moines. For the past two and a half years, she has been working as a beautician in Marshalltown. At present, Mr. Grimes is attending Iowa State College at Ames. The couple will live at 534 Fifth Street in Nevada, where they have an apartment.

Janet has been active in Berean and church work in Iowa for many years. She was baptized at the State Conference in Waterloo in August of 1941 by Bro. Sydney E. Magaw.

Our very best wishes go to these young people as they establish a new home. May God's richest blessings be with them!

Blanche Harland.

MAURICE GOOD

A year ago, when we went to the home of Bro. and Sr. Charles E. Good at Kendall, Fla., it was to learn that their son Maurice had entered the county hospital a few weeks before, as a patient in the tuberculosis division. There was always hope that he would recover his health; but, on last March 7, he gave up the fight and had to be taken to the silent resting place to await the Life-giver's call. Maurice was baptized into Christ by Bro. Earl Thayer in 1937 and had to give up the fight while in the prime of life. His resting place is near South Miami, in which vicinity he had spent most of his active years.

Prepared by Madge Savage
Waite Park, Minnesota

"Thou art an holy people unto the Lord thy God: the Lord thy God hath chosen thee to be a special people unto himself, above all people that are upon the face of the earth" (Deuteronomy 7:6).

Special Service

Moses and Aaron were sons of Levi. They were of the family of Levites. When the other tribes of Israel were numbered for war, God had told Moses not to number the Levites for war. They had a special work. They were to be priests and workers in the tabernacle.

When the tabernacle was to be taken down to be moved, the Levites did it. When it was to be put together again, the Levites were to set it up. They were to do all the carrying of it also. There was a warning given: "The stranger that cometh nigh shall be put to death" (Num. 1:51). Anyone who was not a Levite was called a stranger to that tribe.

To safeguard the tabernacle the families of the Levites were to pitch their homes around it, keeping it in order and also keeping strangers from it so they would not be killed.

The Levites were ruled by Aaron and his sons. Aaron and his sons were the priests of the temple. No one else could perform the duties of the priest's office.

After the angel of death had passed over the Israelites in Egypt, God claimed the first-born for Himself. Afterwards the Levites were taken instead of the first-born. "The Levites shall be mine: I am the Lord" (Num. 3:45).

A Special Work for Us

As in the days of Israel God called a people for His own, so today a people are being called for Christ's own. They are to be the bride of Christ.

Today the "chosen," "called out" ones, are the ones who set themselves apart from the world to do "good works" for Christ. They are the "sanctified" who are "called to be saints."

All people today are not hearing this call of Christ. They must believe in Him, have faith in Him, and study to please Him. "Many are called," says the Word, "but few are chosen." In order to be Christ's, His will must be done in us, not our own will. We try to please Him. In so doing, we give up many things, for we are to shun even all that looks evil, though it may not be evil. We are "known and read of all men," as are the letters or papers that are published for all to see. We are writing an account before men, not in letters or numbers, but in the hearts and lives of men. Then let our lives give a good report for the cause of Christ.

A Christian's Armor

"Wherefore take unto you the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand. Stand therefore, having your loins girt about with truth, and having on the breastplate of righteousness; and your feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace; above all, taking the shield of faith, wherewith ye shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked. And take the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God: praying always with all prayer and supplication in the Spirit, and watching thereunto with all perseverance and supplication for all saints" (Eph. 6:13-18).

Invitation

Join our ECE Club. Get a membership card. See your name in print in the birthday corner. Send birth date, age, name, and address to Madge Savage, Waite Park, Minnesota. A postal card will do.

Psalm of Life

"Lives of great men all remind us,
We can make our lives sublime,
And departing leave behind us,
Footprints on the sands of time.
Footprints that perhaps another,
Sailing o'er life's solemn main,
A forlorn and shipwrecked brother,
Seeing, shall take heart again.
Let us then be up and doing,
With a heart for any fate,
Still achieving, still pursuing,
Learn to labor, and to wait."—Longfellow.

HOW IS YOUR MUSIC?

O SING unto the Lord a new song: sing unto the Lord, all the earth," wrote the Psalmist. Music in worship is almost as old as worship itself. The joyful sound of voices raised in praise of God, and instruments keeping time with feet marching to the place of worship have long delighted the ears of God. So much can be added to any service by good music that we feel the necessity of asking, "How is your music?"

Does the music of your Berean society fulfill its purpose, or only fill time? Does it add a spirit of joy and an atmosphere of worship, or does it lag and lack spirit? Young people, look to your music!

Torrey Johnson, international president of Youth for Christ, maintains that music can make or break a youth meeting. Lively, spirited singing can set the stage for a lively, spirited meeting; while a half-hearted, half-prepared song service can deaden even the meeting with the best of lessons.

Your song service, like every other part of your society's work, should have preparation. The pianist should be prepared, the song leader should be prepared and the minds of the singers prepared for the service. Too often, there is no pianist, or there is no leader, or the songs are unknown until a few minutes before the service, and are then sung with the only obvious end in mind being to use up a part of the hour. Be prepared to lead a peppy song service which has a goal; that goal being to elevate the mind for enthusiastic worship, study, and prayer.

Every young people's society should have a song leader, who can lead the singing. Some people can lead singing and some cannot. Let one person, or a group of people be trained for that phase of your service, and then be responsible for it. This is an age of specialists, and those who can and will do a specific task, should. There is a difference between leading a song service, and merely singing along with the crowd. A good leader who takes his responsibility seriously and prepares himself for his work is a boon to any religious service. We pray that the Lord will give us more of them!

"Variety is the spice of life," and variety of music can be the spice of your Berean society. We do not mean varying the service from week to week, but varying the type of songs you sing in each meeting.

Choruses are fine, but they can be overdone. The old hymns are wonderful, but can become monotonous. New songs should be sung, but not too many in one meeting. Vary your program with a verse or two from some old hymns, sprinkled with a few peppy choruses and a new song, and then top it off with a deeply moving and reverent prayer hymn. Make your own program of song, but keep it alive!

Your song service must serve. Let it present a thought or paint a picture or tell a story. Use it to emphasize the theme of your service. If you are studying prayer, let your music reflect the quiet, the power, and the beauty of prayer. Work the prayer theme into your song announcements. The same can be done for other themes. The song service must serve, to lift, enliven and teach, or it is a waste of time. Make your song service an integral part of the over-all program.

Special music can brighten your whole meeting, if it is timely, and if you demand preparation. Use the talent your society has to invigorate your service. Why reserve special music for large audiences? Who are we singing for, the people or the Lord? If a solo or a trio or a choir number would make your young people's meeting better, then do not spare any energy to supply that music.

Use music to lift, inspire, enliven, and build your service. Make it serve the purpose of your meeting to teach and emphasize the theme for discussion. Vary your music and allow it to brighten the Berean meeting.

HOPE CHAPEL CHURCH OF GOD South Bend, Indiana

It was our privilege to immerse Richard Mastain into Jesus Christ on March 29, which marks his Christian birthday and the beginning of the fight of faith which we pray he may wage to a victorious conclusion. Dick is a teen-age youth and was the first, we believe, of his family to come to Hope Chapel Sunday School. He is now the fourth of the family to be baptized, which includes the parents, Bro. and Sr. Royal Mastain. We pray he may find great joy in his service to our heavenly Father and that the Father's watchful eye and arms of love may be over and around him always.

GLEANINGS FROM THE FIELD

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

"Bro. Fred Hall of Cleveland, Ark. was guest speaker for the writer, Sunday morning, March 30, at Mount Springs, Ark. Bro. Hall is a good speaker and everyone seemed to enjoy his sermon very much. Sr. Verna Thayer began a week's work at Mount Springs, assisted by Sr. Mabel Barnum of Hammond, La. They were dinner guests in the home of Mrs. Smith and the writer."—H. Scott Smith, London, Ark.

Bro. James M. Watkins, Promotional Director of National Bible Institution, preached at the Hedrick, Ind., Church of God, Sunday, April 6.

Sr. T. J. Ellis, Waterloo, Iowa, was guest of Sr. Leota B. Hanson, April 1-4, thereafter leaving Oregon, Ill., on a trip to Louisiana, accompanied by Sr. George M. Siple and Ernest Barnum.

Word has been received that Bro. Charles P. Oliver of Attiea, Kan., died on March 24, 1947, at the age of eighty-two. He suffered a stroke about six weeks ago, but had recovered sufficiently to return home from the hospital. A few days later he became sick with heart trouble, which caused his death. Bro. Oliver, who was a faithful Christian, will be missed by his many friends.

"We want to welcome Bro. Olaf Lewis and family and Bro. Tom Stabler and family, who recently have moved to Arkansas, to the Oak Grove Church of God, Little Rock. The church is located as follows: Travel two miles from highway 167 west on Baseline Road; turn right from Baseline Road at sign saying that it is one half mile to church."—Mrs. R. D. Stanton, Little Rock, Ark.

"On March 30, we went to Mountain Springs, near Russellville, Ark., where Sr. Verna Thayer is starting her work. I preached in the morning to a goodly congregation of several denominations. Bro. H. Scott Smith preached in the evening."—Fred E. Hall, Cleveland, Ark. . . . Bro. Hall reports, too, a funeral, March 11, at Morrilton, Ark., for William Hamilton Wood whose faith was strong in the second coming of Christ.

Sr. Leona Marsh Conrad, Arlington, Calif., recently visited her mother, Sr. F. L. Marsh, and other relatives in Oregon, Ill.

Bro. A. J. Hoke, Business Manager of National Bible Institution, came up to headquarters from Ripley, Ill., where he had attended the State Conference. He returned, April 1, to his home in Dayton, Ohio.

Bro. James M. Watkins, Promotional Director of National Bible Institution, plans to be working among our churches in Arkansas.

ILLINOIS CONFERENCE NEWS

Chicago. Though illness has been very prevalent here in the "windy city," we have been enjoying very good attendance at our church services. We are conducting midweek Bible classes each Wednesday evening in our recreation room, and using slide-films to increase the value of our educational program. We are now studying the Book of Acts. It has been decided to make each first Sunday of the month Family Sunday, with worship and Communion at the Chapel, and potluck dinner and afternoon program in the recreation room, or a park. The Dorcas Society is working on quilts.

Dixon. "The Dixon Church-of-God Dorcas Society held a seramble supper, March 13. Little green socks were handed out a week before, and everyone was to put a sufficient number of pennies in her sock to match the total of both her stocking sizes. This little idea netted the Dorcas $22.42. The Dixon Sunday morning worship service is growing. Each Sunday the girls of the young ladies' Berean society present two special numbers, and the class attends church. Alan McLain, pastor, makes programs each Sunday, too, which adds to the service. The Dorcas Society presented the Golden Rule Home with a pop-up toaster, which members of the Home certainly enjoy.

East Oregon Chapel. "The basement is ready for use. The little iron stove has been taken out and an oil burner in the basement heats the building. The cost of the basement is more than we contemplated, but we know the Lord will provide. The young people took charge of Sunday school and worship service (except the sermon) on March 2. Average attendance for February was seventy-four. Sunday evening, March 9, a young people's society was organized. Fifteen attended the first meeting. The interest is keen."

Oregon. Prayer meeting attendance continues to be good. From week to week the north side of the church is pretty well filled, and sometimes an overflow to the south side. Average Berean attendance last month was twenty-seven. Dean Moore was Berean speaker for the evening service on March 16. His excellent sermon was entitled, "We Need Jesus." The church orchestra, organized and led by Billy Dick, continues to serve faithfully at the Sunday evening services.

Macomb. Macomb is planning an Easter park service and breakfast at Glenwood Park. The goal for Sunday school attendance on Easter morning is sixty. Jim VeNard and Bobby Potts are running a close first and second in the Sunday school attendance contests. Macomb church was the scene of a W.C.T.U. meeting, March 14. Pastor L. W. Moore, Jr., was the speaker. The Dorcas ladies are making pillows for the Illinois Conference hall.

Ripley. Church attendance is still increasing in Ripley. Bro. and Sr. Lewis Ralston, Bro. and Sr. Lawrence Lewis and son, and Mrs. Pauline Chapman are now residents of Ripley and are attending the church. Harold Lewis is home for thirty days. His wife and baby daughter arrived from Ireland on March 29. The C. R. Randalls are proud parents of a baby daughter, Lynda Sue, born March 15. Bro. Randall has been preaching an excellent series of sermons, "Portraits of Jesus." The Spring Conference, held at Ripley, March 28 and 29, was well attended. Rockford, Chicago, Oregon, Macomb, Casey, and Eldorado churches were represented and isolated members from various points in the State were there.

SAINT CLOUD, MINNESOTA

On Saturday, March 22, occurred the wedding of Mr. Myron Boggs of Lawrenceville, Ga., to Miss Carolyn Vose of Saint Cloud, Minn. A simple double ring service was used, in the presence of only a few witnesses, in the auditorium of the Church of God, the pastor officiating. Miss Elaine Erdmann and Orville Westlund were the attendants. Carolyn is the youngest daughter of Bro. Victor Vose of Saint Cloud. They came here a year and a half ago from Superior, Wis., where Carolyn graduated from high school. Mr. Boggs served in the Merchant Marine for two years during the war and has since been in the United States Army, having received his discharge, March 21. Monday evening, March 24, the ladies of the church gave a reception and shower in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Boggs, about forty persons being present. Early Tuesday morning, the newlyweds left for Lawrenceville, Ga., where they will make their home. We shall miss them very much, and will look forward to their return for an extended visit. May God's richest blessing attend them wherever they are, and may their newly founded home be conducted to His honor and glory.

Carolyn is the fourth of our girls to marry and move to distant states: Rowena Randall Reeves to New Mexico; Lucille Vose to Idaho; and Alice Brown Hill to Missouri. Adrian Johnson married a New York girl and is living in New York City. Yvonne Leistman is employed in Minneapolis. Consequently our young people's class has suffered loss. We look for Jerry and Rowena Reeves back among us this spring, however, and hope others will in time return.

March 30, being the closing Sunday of the first quarter of 1947, attendance pins were given those who had not missed a Sunday. Thirty-one persons qualified. The Thomas Savage family of six was the largest to have perfect attendance; then the Howard Hamilton family of five; John Savage family of three; and several where only two constituted the "family." There were several who missed only one Sunday because of sickness. Our rules provide that either State or National Conference is the only excused absence. This is our first venture with quarterly attendance pins, and it has proved a success. Our average attendance this winter has been sixty persons.

On March 30, 1922, occurred the marriage of George Savage, eldest son of Bro. Thomas M. Savage, to Vivian Thoms, daughter of Bro. Virgil Thoms of Emily, Minn. March 30, 1947, being the silver wedding anniversary, the church at Saint Cloud celebrated the event. At the close of the morning church service, the couple was introduced, much to their surprise, as guests of honor. A short program was given, then a fellowship dinner was served in the church parlors to about sixty-five guests. Bro. Savage has for years been deacon in our church, and Sr. Savage is secretary-treasurer of the local group, as well as treasurer of the State Conference, and is teacher of the young people's class. Both their fathers have preached the Word of God in Minnesota for many years, until the death of Bro. Thomas Savage, Sr., a few years ago. Although not actively engaged at present, Bro. Thoms carries the banner high for the upbuilding of God's work in the earth, in his part of Minnesota. Bro. and Sr. Savage are the parents of five children: George is in New York City awaiting assignment to a ship in the Merchant Marine, in which he served during the war; Richard, in the Navy, is stationed at San Francisco; Robert is attending State Teachers' College; and Mary and Bruce are at home. All Bro. Savage's brothers and sisters were present Sunday, including Mr. and Mrs. Frank Savage and daughter of Brainard. Many beautiful gifts of silver were presented, showing the high esteem in which they are held in this community.

It is of interest that Elder E. E. Thoms, grandfather of Mrs. Savage, performed the ceremony twenty-five years ago, and that he also married Bro. and Sr. Virgil Thoms and Bro. and Sr. Thomas M. Savage, Sr., all Church-of-God people, although the families were not acquainted with each other at the time. Bro. Thoms has not been well this winter, and was not able to attend Sunday's celebration.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by

National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois
The Restitution Herald is official organ of the General Conference of the Church of God.

Subscription rate: 50 issues per year, $2.50.

The Restitution Herald advocates: the new return of Christ (Acts 1:11), and life only through Him (Col. 3:3); the literal resurrection of the dead (John 5:28); the immortalization of those in Christ (1 Cor. 15:53, 54); the destruction of the wicked (Rev. 21:8); the final restoration of Israel as the Kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ (Luko 1:32); the church to be joint-heirs with Him (Rom. 8:17), and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations (Isa. 60:1-3); the "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21). It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

THESSE FOUR pictures depict four attitudes of Jesus which would be profitably copied by members of Illinois Conference as by members of the body of Christ everywhere. Here we see Jesus the Evangelist giving a message of God to a respectful listener. Jesus was a personal evangelist, with a message for a questioning man in the dead of night, a centurion in frenzy of fear, two men on the road, or five thousand gathered by the sea. Jesus was always ready "to give an answer to every man," a reason for the hope He had and the life He led. Illinois needs more personal evangelists who will talk Jesus in the home, office, market place, and church, 365 days a year.

Then we see the silent, prayerful, meditating Jesus. Why was He always so strong, so full of life, so ready to witness for God? It was because He was so often seen in just such an attitude as this, alone in a mountain to pray. (Matt. 14:23.) If we spent more time alone with God, praying, we would have more of those enviable attitudes of Jesus. When we can learn to take time every day to pray, the mountains of problems before us will melt away.

There is Jesus the Good Shepherd; Jesus who said, "All ye like sheep, have gone astray." There is pictured Jesus who "had compassion on the multitudes." To them He said, "I am the good shepherd, and know my sheep, and am known of mine . . . Other sheep I have which are not of this fold: them also I must bring" (John 10:14, 16). If we but had this love of mankind, this attitude of sacrificing for our fellows, and of helping them into the fold, we would not find ourselves in a spiritual depression, with empty churches and pulpits. Would that we could become less like Adam, and more like Jesus. (1 Cor. 15:46, 47.)

Last, but not least, is portrayed Jesus the lover of children. He wanted them to come to Him. He wanted them to know Him, and He showed them He did. Jesus loved them and blessed them, and rebuked His disciples because they did not want to be bothered. The life of a child was an important thing to Jesus. Is it to you? Do you exert yourself to make children welcome in your church and Sunday school? Do you show them you love them? Are you concerned about their lives; their eternal lives? More love, as Jesus had it, beaming from our faces, reflected from our singing, rising like a mist from our Sunday schools, that is what we need!

ILLINOIS EVANGELIST

Did you know that almost fifty per cent of the people receiving the Illinois Evangelist do not regularly receive The Restitution Herald? Those who do not are missing many timely articles and much interesting news. Keep up with the activities of the Church of God by reading The Restitution Herald.

It is to the advantage of your church, and indirectly to Illinois Conference, if many people can attend the summer Bible school being conducted by National Bible Institution this summer in Oregon. If this is impossible, encourage attendance at the General Conference and Illinois Bible School classes in August. Invite your young people and their friends to attend these schools for wonderful fellowship and Christian education.

Isolated members, the Oregon Bereans have given us an object lesson in evangelism. You say you have no church in which to worship; then become the nucleus of a new church. The young people at Oregon went out to a country school and began a new Sunday school which interested over twenty youngsters from the very beginning. We need more of this sort of activity in Illinois, if we expect to build new churches and open new fields of service. There are many places in this State of ours where families of the Church of God are looking without compassion on a community crying for the message of Christ. Pray that the Lord will help you and then go to work. Start a Sunday school! Organize a meeting and invite in a speaker! Force the rest of us to look at the work you are doing and say, "They could use some help, and we are going to give it to them."

Did you know that the Illinois Evangelist is mailed each month to 450 addresses? This is just one phase of your Conference work, being supported by contributions and Dollar Days.

GUTHRIE GROVE CHURCH OF GOD

(Near Piedmont, South Carolina)

THE GUTHRIE GROVE Church of God traces its history into the early nineties when Brother Enoch M. Anderson moved from western North Carolina to the vicinity of Piedmont and began preaching at homes and schoolhouses. First, only a brush arbor was built—about one quarter mile from present church site. Later, David Guthrie gave land for a permanent church building, and, following trade of this land for a better site, the first building was started on August 12, 1896. Elder Enoch M. Anderson served as pastor until his death (July, 1908), there being about one hundred members at that time. Next, his son, Brother J. H. Anderson, became pastor, serving until the latter part of 1911. Brother A. N. Durham then succeeded as pastor until his death (May 5, 1926), whereupon Brother M. O. Williamson, present pastor, was appointed. The building as here shown (36 x 40 ft.) was completed in 1936. There are now three hundred seventy-two members. . . . "When passing this way, pay us a visit," writes Brother Williamson, "and we shall try to make you feel welcome." Thank you, Sir. We hope to visit Guthrie Grove. A welcome to you, too, at Oregon.

Entered as second class matter at the Post Office at Oregon, Illinois, under act of March, 1879. Mailed weekly, except the fourth Tuesday of August and the last Tuesday of December.

Greetings, Guthrie Grove

Though you are hundreds of miles from headquarters, we extend heartiest congratulations to you, our brethren at Guthrie Grove, South Carolina, for success of your work during the past half century and more. We pray that God will continue to bless and prosper you until Christ returns.

In addition to information on the front page, we are pleased here to speak of other details about the Guthrie Grove Church of God. Members at the time the first building was started (August 12, 1896) were: E. M. Anderson (the pastor) J. H. Anderson, R. J. Anderson, Monroe Reams, W. M. Pack, Jessie Garrett, James Hammond, J. Dowthitt, and B. Z. Chandler.

Though many members were baptized during the long pastorate of Brother E. M. Anderson, only a few now survive, namely: Ruth Chandler, Mollie Harris, Mamie Vaden, Ida Guthrie, Emma Stone, Della Bowen, Sallie Guthrie, Cleo Williams, Evie Smith, Bessie Durham, Kattie Smith, Jane Anderson, Bell Picklesimer, Ila Leslie, Lovie Williamson, Mrs. Billie Hammond, George Durham, A. N. Durham, Frank Smith, R. M. Williamson (father of present pastor), John Brewer, Manning Pack, Jim Guthrie, Bub Elrod, Billy Hammond, and M. O. Williamson.

Brother Williamson preaches at the Guthrie Grove Church of God the first and third Sundays of each month. Sunday school services are conducted each Sunday, the teachers being: G. W. Durham (adults), Bonnie Martin (intermediates), and Tina Picklesimer (children).

Thank you, Brother Williamson, for your invitation and assurance of a ready welcome extended to any Church-of-God brethren passing near your church. We hope to see you some day and assure you and your members of a similar welcome whenever you can come to Oregon, Illinois. Brethren from far and near would be happy to meet you here at General Conference.

M. O. Williamson

N. H. Geiselman

Congratulations, Brother Geiselman

Recently, the accompanying picture of Brother N. H. Geiselman was submitted by Brother H. S. Lasher, Boca Raton, Florida. Brother Geiselman, in so far as we know, is our oldest living minister. He resides at 212 West Hillsborough Avenue, Tampa, Florida. Though eighty-nine years of age, he continues in good health and is reported as "going strong." Though unable for several years to preach regularly, he continues to be zealous in the gospel message, speaks about it to his friends and neighbors, and is happy to report that he has been telling the gospel message throughout the past sixty-four years. Brother Lasher reports, "Brother Geiselman is still doing a wonderful work among the sick people in Tampa," and, "He is a very forceful advocate of our Faith."

Brother Geiselman tells that several years ago when there were so many bank failures, he lost all that he had except fourteen cents in his pockets. At that time, he was distributing tracts free, among people of Tampa. His heart was so set on doing that work for the Lord, that he prayed one whole night, asking God to continue using him in that type of gospel work, praying too that a way would be made clear by which he could finance this work. Money immediately began coming to him "from sources he knew not where." Shortly thereafter, he was led to prepare a certain formula of oil for muscular soreness. Throughout the years since starting to sell this oil, he has benefited many people, and sales of the oil have made it possible for him to continue his tract work. Well did David say: "Trust in the Lord, and do good . . . and verily thou shalt be fed. . . . Commit thy way unto the Lord; trust also in him; and he shall bring it to pass" (Psalm 37:3-5).

Brother Geiselman would be happy to hear from friends and brethren, especially from brethren who knew him in the early years of his ministry. Send him a word of cheer and appreciation. From us—Congratulations!

"Get Thee Out"

By Paran W. Anderson (Mishawaka, Indiana), a grandson of E. M. Anderson, first pastor of the Guthrie Grove Church of God

The Lord said to Abram, "Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father's house unto a land that I will shew thee" (Genesis 12:1).

GET THEE OUT" is a commandment that God has been giving His people down through the ages. We read that Abram departed from his country and partly obeyed God, but not fully, as he took Lot with him. Moreover, God had nothing more to say to Abraham, until after he and Lot separated. (Gen. 13:14.)

When God gives orders, He is very specific. He created the earth to be inhabited by man, but man brought sin into the world and sin brought death. Nevertheless, God created the earth to be inhabited, and His work will not be in vain. There have been times when sin has been so rampant among the people that God has brought destruction upon them, but He always has planned a way of escape for His people—as He did with Noah. Noah preached and warned the people of what was coming, but they paid him no heed. Only his own family believed; consequently, all others were destroyed.

Another time in which God saved the faithful few was when the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah were destroyed. One day as Abraham sat in his tent door, he looked up and saw three men near. He ran to meet them and bowed down before them, for they were angels. He then invited them in, and went out to kill a calf from which his wife prepared a meal. While the angels were with Abraham, they told him that Sarah would bear a son. Abraham enjoyed their visit so much that when they left he went part way with them, talking with them. It was then that the Lord said, "Shall I hide from Abraham that thing which I do?"

So the angels told Abraham that the Lord was going to destroy the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah because of their wickedness. Abraham then asked, "Wilt thou also destroy the righteous with the wicked? Peradventure there be fifty righteous within the city: wilt thou also destroy and not spare the place for the fifty righteous that are therein?" The Lord answered, "If I find in Sodom fifty righteous within the city, then I will spare all the place for their sakes." Abraham, however, was not sure fifty righteous persons were there, so he began to ask about the possible salvation of fewer righteous persons, until he had inquired about the possibilities if only ten were found. God said He would spare Sodom, if there were ten. The angels next went down to the city, to Lot's house, and told him to get out, for the city was to be destroyed. Only four righteous were found. (Gen. 19:16). Moreover, God said, "Look not behind thee" (specific orders), but Lot's wife did look back, and immediately became a pillar of salt. When God told His people to "get out" they were to do just that.

Paran W. Anderson

Today, God is calling to you and me and all ("whosoever will may come"), saying, "Get thee out"—out of the worldly things. Is this a specific order? Yes! just as specific as it was in the days of Noah, Abraham, and Lot. We must come out of the world, wholly and completely, and not even look back, but keep our faces turned toward that Day which we know will soon come. We see the prophecies being fulfilled on every hand, and we are admonished to watch, lest we be caught unawares.

We are told that Jesus will come as a thief in the night, but the watchman who is faithfully watching will not be caught unawares. He will be ready, and will greet Jesus, and see Him as "the bright and morning star."

There is a plan outlined in the Bible whereby anyone may share in God's holy Kingdom which will be established when Jesus comes. Briefly, that plan is to believe the gospel and be baptized. Some of the essential truths one must believe are: that Jesus is the Son of God, that He died, that He arose, that He ascended to heaven, and that He will come again. Then the dead in Christ will arise, and with the righteous living they will be changed, will be caught up to meet Him, and will escape the time of trouble and the great battle that will be fought near Jerusalem. After this, Jesus and His bride will return to the earth, and will establish an everlasting Kingdom that will fill the whole earth.

Converts are to be baptized, and there is a specified form of baptism. It is just as dangerous to change that, as it is to try to change any of God's other plans or commandments. Please read Romans 6:3-5. One should read the whole chapter, but let us especially study the third, fourth and fifth verses. "Know ye (Please turn to p. 11)

TWO FATHERS

By E. H. Goit, Youngston, New York

FROM THE DAY of his creation, man has had choice of two fathers—God and the Devil.

Jesus, preaching to the Pharisees, said, "I am the light of the world: he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life" (John 8:12). Therefore, the Pharisees charged Jesus as bearing record of Himself and that His record was not true. Christ refuted their charges by declaring His record was true. He said: "Ye judge after the flesh; I judge no man. And yet if I judge, my judgment is true: for I am not alone, but I and the Father that sent me" (John 8:15, 16). Our Saviour then further strengthened His declaration, "I am the light of the world," by further testimony, saying: "It is also written in your law, that the testimony of two men is true. I am one that bear witness of myself, and the Father that sent me beareth witness of me" (John 8:17, 18).

Presentation of this testimony taxed the Pharisees to inquire, "Where is thy Father?" (John 8:19.) To this, Christ rejoined, "Ye neither know me, nor my Father: if ye had known me, ye should have known my Father also" (John 8:19).

Turning then to professing believers, Christ said, "If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." The Jews said, "We be Abraham's seed, and were never in bondage to any man: how sayest thou, Ye shall be made free?" (John 8:31-33.)

Then Jesus informed those bigoted Jews (who no longer continued in His word) that a sinner is a slave to sin and consequently in bondage; it was the Son who provided release, and, if He pardoned them, they were free indeed. He realized, too, they were the corporal seed of Abraham, but their works were of another, for they sought His life.

Concerning the aforementioned, Christ said, "I speak that which I have seen with my Father: and ye do that which ye have seen with your father" (John 8:38). Within this preceding verse, our Saviour designated man with "two fathers." From the day of his creation, man has had choice of "two fathers"—God and the Devil.

Again the scribes and Pharisees chanted, "Abraham is our father." Jesus, thinking on a higher plane than physical seed, on the plane of righteousness, declared that if they were Abraham's children they would do Abraham's works. Further, instead of rejoicing to see their Messiah, they were seeking His life because He had told them truth.

In the choicest garbs of hypocrisy, they said, "We be not born of fornication, we have one Father, even God" (John 8:41). Jesus denied their sonship with God by branding them with the stigma of not loving Him. He was their brother whom they could see and, therefore, if they hated Him and they did, they could not love God whom they could not see. He said plainly to these whited sepulchers that they were children of the Devil. "Ye are of your father the devil" (John 8:44). Being his offspring, you will bow to his bidding by obeying his beastly lusts.

The Son of God described the Devil as a "murderer from the beginning," one who "abode not in truth, because there is no truth in him"—a liar, and "the father of it [lie]."

Jesus said the children of the Devil would do the lusts of their father. By way of illustration, we cite you the story of a sorcerer named Barjesus who tried to hinder the faith of Sergius Paulus. When the Apostle Paul and Barnabas were preaching on the isle of Paphos, proconsul Sergius Paulus called them to him, desiring to hear the Word of God. Then a certain Barjesus withstood the men of God and tried to defer the faith of the proconsul. Then Paul called the sorcerer a "child of the devil," an enemy of righteousness, a perverter of the ways of the Lord, and, by the hand of the Lord, blinded that child of the Devil.

Barjesus was doing the bidding of his father by being an enemy of righteousness, a perverter of truth, and deferrer of the faith. These are lusts or desires of the Devil!!

Our Lord charged this father of the hypocritical scribes and Pharisees as being a murderer, criminal, and liar. We believe, and the Scriptures teach, that his tongue of perverseness wrought murder and branded him as a criminal. It is written, "He was a murderer from the beginning; and abode not in truth, because there is no truth in him. When he speaketh a lie, he speaketh of his own: for he is a liar, and the father of it [lie]" (John 8:44). In Revelation 20, the father of evil is called "the dragon, that old serpent, which is the Devil, and Satan."

Genesis 2 informs that God planted a Garden eastward in Eden and placed His creation, man, therein to dress (till) and keep it. God then commanded man, saying, "Of every tree of the garden thou mayest freely eat: but of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, thou shalt not eat of it: for in the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die [dying thou shalt die]" (Gen. 2:16, 17).

God, observing man's loneliness, formed woman to be a "help meet for him."

In process of time, the wily Devil (known in the Garden as "the Serpent") conversed with man's help meet.

He who "abode not in truth, because there is no truth in him," said subtly, "Yea, hath God said, Ye shall not eat of every tree of the garden?" Woman said to the Serpent, "We may eat of the fruit of the trees of the garden: but of the fruit of the tree which is in the midst of the garden, God hath said, Ye shall not eat of it, neither shall ye touch it, lest ye die." The crafty Serpent then said to the woman, "Ye shall not surely die: (Please turn to page 9)

Love and Faith Enjoined

IN GALATIANS 5:6, we read: "In Jesus Christ neither circumcision availeth any thing, nor uncircumcision; but faith which worketh by love." If we wish to accomplish anything for the cause of Christ, we must possess a living faith, one that works by love. It is written: "The grace of our Lord was exceeding abundant with faith and love which is in Christ Jesus" (1 Tim. 1:14). We should possess the faith and love that our Master had, for He is our example. "Some indeed preach Christ, even of envy and strife; and some also of good will. The one preach Christ of contention, not sincerely, supposing to add affliction to my bonds. But the other of love, knowing that I am set for the defence of the gospel" (Phil. 1:15-17).

A writer once said: "Condemn no man for not thinking as you think. Let everyone enjoy the full and free liberty of thinking for himself. Let every man use his own judgment, since every man must give an account of himself to God. Abhor every approach in any kind or degree to the spirit of persecution, if you cannot reason or persuade a man into the truth, never attempt to force a man into it. If love will not compel him to come, leave him to God the judge of all.

"Remember religion was intended to bring peace on earth and good will toward men, and whatever tends to hatred and persecution, however correct in letter, must be utterly wrong in spirit." Remember, if you cannot lead one into seeing the truth, you cannot drive him into it.

We should preach the gospel in all sincerity and love, and in its purity, if we would build for God. Love's effect is eternal. Love can transform a human life into a saint.

In Ephesians 5:2, we read: "Walk in love, as Christ also hath loved us, and hath given himself for us an offering and a sacrifice to God for a sweetsmelling savour." Every Christian should manifest to the world the fruits of the spirit, which are: "love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance" (Gal. 5:22, 23). We should express love for all men and try love in every contact of life.

Love never fails. We are commanded to love our enemies, because in Romans 5:8, it is written: "God commendeth his love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us." "There is no fear in love; but perfect love casteth out fear: because fear hath torment. He that feareth is not made perfect in love" (1 John 4:18). Love will continue to serve for Christ and His cause.

"That Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith; that ye, being rooted and grounded in love, may be able to comprehend with all saints, what is the breadth, and length, and depth, and height; and to know the love of Christ, which passeth knowledge, that ye might be filled with all the fulness of God" (Eph. 3:17-19).

If one is filled with the love of God, he will not do injustice to his neighbor, because love works the opposite. "Love worketh no ill to his neighbour, therefore love is the fulfilling of the law" (Rom. 13:10). If we have ought against a brother, it is our indispensable duty to first go to him and talk it over with him. We should not look for trouble; but, on the other hand, we should try to make peace, for it is written: "Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called the children of God" (Matt. 5:9).

"Brethren, ye have been called unto liberty; only use not liberty for an occasion to the flesh, but by love serve one another" (Gal. 5:13). In all our instructions to others, also in our activities, we should serve one another with love. "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one toward another" (John 13:35).

This should be our resolution: "I am persuaded that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord" (Rom. 8:38, 39).

Remember this saying, too: "Our best friends are not those who are always telling us of our faults, but are those who help us to mend them."

"Why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye?" (Matt. 7:3.) We should consider very carefully the foregoing question, and remember our first duty is to conquer self if we wish to influence others in the way of righteousness. We should so live that others can see Jesus in our lives.

God's Judgment Against Heathen Oppressors

*By Shirley Logsdon, Oregon Bible College
(A paper prepared in Major Prophets Class)*

ACCORDING to certain portions of Scripture, God seemingly exalted heathen nations. He went so far as to bring them against His own nation Israel. Isaiah 7:17-20 says:

"The Lord shall bring upon thee, and upon thy people, and upon thy father's house, days that have not come, from the day that Ephraim departed from Judah; even the king of Assyria. And it shall come to pass in that day, that the Lord shall hiss for the fly that is in the uttermost part of the rivers of Egypt, and for the bee that is in the land of Assyria. And they shall come, and shall rest all of them in the desolate valleys, and in the holes of the rocks, and upon all thorns, and upon all bushes. In the same day shall the Lord shave with a razor that is hired, namely, by them beyond the river, by the king of Assyria, the head, and the hair of the feet: and it shall also consume the beard."

God also permitted Judah to be taken captive by Babylon. Judah was there in exile for seventy years. The Southern Kingdom, as well as the Northern Kingdom, was sinful; she would not obey her God; she trusted in other nations and in their gods. To punish His people, therefore, God used the heathen nations.

God, however, did not love the heathen nations; they were not His chosen people. On several occasions, the foreign kings were proud, feeling they themselves had conquered the other nations. The Lord would not tolerate such conceit. The king of Assyria one time boasted, saying:

"By the strength of my hand I have done it, and by my wisdom; for I am prudent: and I have removed the bounds of the people, and have robbed their treasures, and I have put down the inhabitants like a valiant man: and my hand hath found as a nest the riches of the people: and as one gathereth eggs that are left, have I gathered all the earth: and there was none that moved the wing, or opened the mouth, or peeped." Because of this haughtiness of Assyria, God said: "Shall the axe boast itself against him that heweth therewith? or shall the saw magnify itself against him that shaketh it? or as if the rod should shake itself against them that lift it up, or as if the staff should lift up itself, as if it were no wood. Therefore shall the Lord, the Lord of hosts, send among his fat ones leanness; and under his glory he shall kindle a burning like the burning of a fire. And the light of Israel shall be for a fire, and his Holy One for a flame: and it shall burn and devour his thorns and his briars in one day; and shall consume the glory of his forest, and of his fruitful field, both soul and body: and they shall be as when a standard-bearer fainteth. And the rest of the trees of his forest shall be few, that a child may write them" (Isa. 10:13-19).

Not only was God going to destroy Assyria, but Judah, Assyria's little neighbor, was going to do the destroying. Just as Assyria had plundered God's Holy Land, Assyria would be plundered.

Zephaniah 2:12-15 also tells of desolation for disobedient nations:

"Ye Ethiopians also, ye shall be slain by my sword. And he will stretch out his hand against the north, and destroy Assyria; and will make Nineveh a desolation, and dry like a wilderness. And flocks shall lie down in the midst of her, all the beasts of the nations: both the cormorant and the bittern shall lodge in the upper lintels of it; their voice shall sing in the windows; desolation shall be in the thresholds; for he shall uncover the cedar work. This is the rejoicing city that dwelt carelessly, that said in her heart, I am, and there is none beside me: how is she become a desolation, a place for beasts to lie down in! every one that passeth by her shall hiss, and wag his hand." Ezekiel 31 presents a picturesque story of the fall of Assyria and the prophecy of the fall of Egypt who was patterned after Assyria.

In one instance, at least, destruction was promised because nations shed innocent blood. "Egypt shall be a desolation, and Edom shall be a desolate wilderness, for the violence against the children of Judah, because they have shed innocent blood in their land" (Joel 3:19).

The prophets repeatedly warned Judah's kings to make no foreign alliances. God would take care of His people if only they would put their trust in Him. One time when Judah was threatened by Syria and Ephraim, Isaiah said: "Take heed, and be quiet; fear not, neither be faint-hearted for the two tails of these smoking firebrands, for the fierce anger of Rezin with Syria, and of the son of Remaliah. . . . Thus saith the Lord God, It shall not stand, neither shall it come to pass. . . . Within threescore and five years shall Ephraim be broken, that it be not a people" (Isa. 7:4-8). In God's sight, these two nations were not worth worrying about. Because they had planned evil against God's people, they would soon finish their course. Also, Isaiah warned against trusting in Egypt:

"Woe to them that go down to Egypt for help; and stay on horses, and trust in chariots, because they are many; and in horsemen, because they are very strong; but they look not unto the Holy One of Israel, neither seek the Lord! Yet he also is wise, and will bring evil, and will not call back his words: but will arise against the house of the evildoers, and against the help of them that work iniquity. Now the Egyptians are men, and not God; and their horses flesh, and not spirit. When the Lord shall stretch out his hand, both he that helpeth shall fall, and he that is holpen shall fall down, and they all shall fail together" (31:1-3). . . . God will have no mercy upon those who work evil. He will destroy them as they have destroyed others.

While Hezekiah was king of Judah, Sennacherib, king of Assyria, threatened to conquer all Judah. Hezekiah was in a frenzy. He did not know what to do. The God-fearing Isaiah comforted Hezekiah, saying:

"Thus saith the Lord, Be not afraid of the words that thou hast heard, wherewith the servants of the king of Assyria have blasphemed me. Behold, I will send a blast upon him, and he shall hear a rumour, and return to his own land; and I will cause him to fall by the sword in his own land" (37:6, 7).

God's Word is sure. He fulfills His promises. Relative to Hezekiah and the fate of Assyria, read further in Isaiah 37:

"Therefore thus saith the Lord concerning the king of Assyria, He shall not come into this city, nor shoot an arrow there, nor come before it with shields, nor cast a bank against it. By the way that he came, by the same shall he return, and shall not come into this city, saith the Lord. For I will defend this city to save it for mine own sake, and for my servant David's sake. Then the angel of the Lord went forth, and smote the camp of the Assyrians a hundred and fourscore and five thousand: and when they arose early in the morning, behold, they were all dead corpses. So Sennacherib king of Assyria departed, and went and returned, and dwelt at Nineveh. And it came to pass, as he was worshipping in the house of Nisroch his god, that . . . his sons smote him with the sword; and they escaped into the land of Armenia: and Esarhaddon his son reigned in his stead."

God cautioned Judah not to trust in heathen gods. These man-made gods had no power whatsoever, let alone supernatural power. In Isaiah 46:1, 2, we glimpse God's disgust for idols. We read:

"Bel boweth down, Nebo stoopeth, their idols were upon the beasts, and upon the cattle: your carriages were heavy loaden; they are a burden to the weary beast. They stoop, they bow down together; they could not deliver the burden, but themselves are gone into captivity."

Bel was the chief god of Babylon, and Nebo was the chief god of Borsippa. Abingdon Commentary has a good thought on these verses. We quote: "The two great gods of Babylonia . . . are carried away on the backs of weary beasts. When the people who worshiped them are conquered they can only lift up the images of their gods and carry them away. Such gods could not deliver their people, but go off into captivity with them. On the other hand, Israel's God carries her, and has always so done, and ever will." . . . In Jeremiah 50:1-3, we read also of the destruction of Babylon's gods:

"Babylon is taken, Bel is confounded, Merodach is broken in pieces; her idols are confounded, her images are broken in pieces. For out of the north there cometh up a nation against her, which shall make her land desolate, and none shall dwell therein: they shall remove, they shall depart, both man and beast."

Neither the heathen nor their gods can stand against the God of Israel. He is more powerful; He rules and controls the earth. "There is none else beside him."

Though Babylon was one of the most powerful nations, she was destined to fall. Prophecies are numerous concerning her destruction. Besides being powerful, Babylon was beautiful; but her beauty was shortlived. Isaiah 13: 19-22 foretells of her complete annihilation:

"Babylon, the glory of kingdoms, the beauty of the Chaldees' excellency, shall be as when God overthrew Sodom and Gomorrah. It shall never be inhabited, neither shall it be dwelt in from generation to generation: neither shall the Arabian pitch tent there; neither shall the shepherds make their fold there. But wild beasts of the desert shall lie there; and their houses shall be full of doleful creatures; and owls shall dwell there, and satyrs shall dance there. And the wild beasts of the islands shall cry in their desolate houses, and dragons in their pleasant palaces: and her time is near to come, and her days shall not be prolonged." . . . Babylon shortly was destroyed completely. Today, archeologists find only the remains of magnificent Babylon.

Egypt, too, was brought low. In warning Judah not to trust in Egypt, Isaiah foretold (Turn to page 9)

I DO NOT KNOW

By Emma Smith, Arkansas City, Kansas
(Written on her eighty-eighth birthday)

I do not know what next may come across my pilgrim way;
I do not know tomorrow's road, nor see beyond today;
But this I know my Saviour knows the path I cannot see;
And I can trust His wounded hand to guide and care for me.

I do not know what may befall in sunshine or in rain;
I do not know what may be mine of pleasure or of pain;
But this I know my Saviour knows and whatever it may be Still I can trust His love to give what may be best for me.

I do not know what may await or what the morrow brings;
But with the glad salute of faith I hail its opening wings;
For this I know that in my Lord shall all my needs be met;
And I can trust the heart of Him who has not failed me yet.

SCHOOL AND RELIGION. Excluding religion from the daily curriculum of our secular schools comes under the condemnation of Dr. Luther A. Weigle, dean of Yale Divinity School. He said: "For more than two centuries the public schools had ample place for religion, but about 100 years ago a process of secularization began which has led to the present almost complete exclusion of religion from public education. When it omits faith in God from its teachings, the public school gives a distorted and untrue view of history and of literature and of human society. The public school may and should refer to religion as occasion arises, naturally and wholesomely, without affectation or strain. The public school seeks to pass on to children the great heritage of our founding fathers, but despoils it by eliminating all references to what they deemed to be their highest motive."

Public school is no place for the dissemination of dogmatic teachings. Since the child spends much of his formative years in school, the implanting of Biblical ideals, respect for the Word of God, and a general stabilization of belief in God and His Son Jesus Christ can be done without trespassing on the rights of any child, or any church teaching. The great moral teachings of Christianity need a re-birth in our day school teaching. Dogmatic untruths, such as, "There is no death," and "Christ's death" was just a make-believe which appear in the texts of the religious books furnished by the Province of Ontario, do much injury; but though some error does creep in, the harm done by ruling out all religious instruction works a moral havoc, of which this generation is paying a big price.

MEANS OF GRACE. Bishop Hannell in his "Philosophy of Stewardship of Money," says, "Giving the tithe is not a question of obeying a law but of employing a means of grace." Commenting on this proposition, Dr. Roy L. Smith, editor of "The Christian Advocate," says: "If you have found your sense of the nearness of God dimming, if you are losing your spiritual zest; if you are being troubled by doubts and misgivings, if your prayers do not seem to get anywhere, if your faith is waning and your Christian joy is receding, then try tithing systematically and conscientiously for a six-months' period. As a spiritual restorer it has no superior."

He finds three great blessings which come from tithing. These spiritual benefits he lists as follows:

(1) "To give the tithe systematically heightens one's sense of the reality and imminence of God.

(2) "To give the tithe introduces order and system into all of one's business relations.

(3) "As one becomes aware of God's ownership of all property, he also becomes aware of God's solicitude for all life."

Some years ago, we remember hearing Bro. O. J. Allard, in a series of meetings which he was conducting in Minnesota, offer to reimburse anyone, if he would faithfully tithe for six months, and at the end of the trial period felt he had not been richly blessed. Was the Bishop right in testifying to tithing being a "means of grace"? The only way to find the right answer is to prove it to see!

WARS AND WARS. In the December issue of the "Golden Rule Fellowship," it is pointed out that during the last 3,400 years there have been 8,000 wars reported, with 902 of them being classed as major struggles. World War I, which we entered as a "war to end wars," "cost more than all preceding conflicts." Then considering the cost of the Global War, it said: "A trillion dollars ($1,000,000,000,000) and more is the cost of a global war—not to mention the greater cost in priceless lives of ten million and more of the world's most promising youth, demolished cities, ruined cathedrals, hospitals, schools, irreplaceable libraries, art-shattered empires, demoralized commerce, and the creation of lifelong hatreds.

"Of this world total, three hundred billion dollars ($300,000,000,000), ten times the cost of World War I, is the direct monetary cost to the United States alone, exclusive of a million casualties to America's best young manhood."

If there was no other charge against the depravity of civilization, this one indictment would be sufficient to unmask the hogs of the world getting better and better. "Evil men and seducers [are waxing] worse and worse" until the major portion of the world is deceived by the "abounding of iniquity."

KEY OF DAVID. In the Revelation, where the sevenfold description of Christ is used, He is said to have in His possession the "key of David." The Prophet Isaiah termed this key as belonging to the "house of David." In several places in Scripture, the symbol of a key is used to indicate authority or power. Jesus is said to have the key to death and the grave. This key to the house of David is the key to the Kingdom of David—the Kingdom of God. With this key, the King of Kings has the authority to open or shut and to shut and open. He is the Door to the Kingdom. He can close the Kingdom against whosoever will not respond to the invitation to "seek . . . first the kingdom of God and his righteousness," and He will open to all who will take upon them the yoke and the cross and follow after Him. Christ is the rightful Heir to the throne which was overturned until He comes whose right it is. It is becoming daily apparent that the world is coming to its end very rapidly. Man is becoming so confused in his endeavor to order things after the counsel of his own sinful ways that he is coming to what the late Mr. Wells termed "an impasse" from which he cannot find any way out. The Kingdom of God is the hope of the world today. May the one who has the key of David soon unlock the Kingdom that shall become a great mountain and fill the whole earth.

CHERISHED BELIEFS. One of the popular religious magazines carried an editorial in which the following statements were made: "Let there be no doubt about it! Christianity is rooted and grounded in the conviction of man's immortality. Take that away, or even assume that it is of no special importance, and Christianity will crumble, for the most cherished beliefs and the most significant attitudes of the Christian life find their source in the conviction."

The writer is confusing Christianity and church orthodoxy. It is the nominal church, not Christianity, which is founded on the belief that man is an immortal creature and that death is just an incident. The early church founded by the apostles had nothing to do with such phantombology. They believed that the flesh and bone person was the man, and his hope of immortality was in the Saviour, and would not be received until the Life-giver appeared the "second time without sin unto salvation." The one who was a deceiver from the very beginning laid the foundation for "the conviction of man's immortality." He is the father of this teaching. His proteges are working hard to carry on the "conviction."

DYING AND NOT DYING. "The Road to Religion," an editorial in a recent issue of "Life," is an unusual type of article for a magazine of the character of "Life." It is really an appeal for man to become "God-intoxicated." With such an objective we heartily say Amen.

Underlying the whole article, however, is the thought that Jesus "who, by dying and not dying, revealed to believers the unity of the two worlds which we celebrate at Easter."

This philosophy of the sacrifice and ransom of Christ is a fairly accurate statement of what many folk believe. Jesus' death was not real. He merely left the tenement of clay and became a spirit without flesh and bones—so say the advocates of the immortality of man. These good folk leave no stone unturned to illustrate their belief. The article considered states: "Man does not die . . . When the body sinks into death, the essence of man is re-ventled."

As it is only a couple of weeks since Easter, our minds are still on the thoughts of resurrection. Inspiration, in speaking of death and resurrection, says: "Thou fool, that which thou sowest is not quickened [made alive], except it die." In order for Jesus to be quickened or made alive, He must first die. It was not a "make-believe." His death was real. He poured out His life unto death. Scripture is plain on life and death and resurrection—it is theology that has shrouded them in confusion and error. Jesus said, "Beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and Sadducees."

TWO FATHERS

for God doth know that in the day ye eat thereof, then your eyes shall be opened, and ye shall be as gods [angels, deathless beings], knowing good and evil" (Gen. 3:25).

God said to man, "Thou shalt not eat of it, for in the day thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die" (Gen. 2:17).

These statements of the two fathers are diametrically opposed: one is truth and the other is falsehood. If there was no truth in the devil, then one readily can see that his statement is a lie, and God's is truth. Indeed, is it not written that "lie [the devil] is the father of it [lie]"? That wily one was the father of "Thou shalt not surely die." It is his lie and is known as the "Devil's lie." It was this lie and the promise, "Ye shall be as gods" (angels, deathless beings), that deceived Eve and in turn caused the fall of man.

The Serpent's lie induced man to seek a deathless existence through unbelief and disobedience. Instead, man heaped death upon himself. This Devil's lie has characterized the Devil as a murderer and, consequently, criminal from the beginning. Because of his lie, he murdered Adam, Eve, and their posterity.

It is recorded that God, the Father of truth, banished Adam and Eve after their disobedience. They were cast from their Paradise, lest they eat of the tree of life and live forever. This was done in love, for if man partook of this tree, he would have been an eternal sinner without hope for a change. God, realizing this, acted and gave man an opportunity to seek forgiveness and eternal life without the blemish of sin.

Contrary to the Devil, God cannot lie (Titus 1:2) and has given us the hope for eternal life (Titus 3:7). This hope for eternal life or immortality was given through the gospel. (2 Tim. 1:10.) It is through this gospel, which "is the power of God unto salvation," that man can acquire eternal life. Immortality is something to be sought and "put on." (Rom. 2:7; 1 Cor. 15:53, 54.) It is not a present acquisition of man. According to John 8:24, belief on Christ is a necessity for life, else one will die in his sins.

The Devil stands for works of distrust, fornication, and evil. His evil is to live backwards. God stands for works of faith, righteousness, and good. His good is to go forth in righteousness.

From the day of his creation, man has had choice of two fathers—God and the Devil. The Devil has foisted his lie on humanity. Advocates of immortality of the soul say, "Ye shall not surely die." This is doing the work of the Devil—preaching his lie. To do so is to be a child of the Devil!

God has said man "shall surely die"—not only his body shall die. Also, God has promised man a resurrection of both the just and the unjust. This is the way of God. To believe is to be a child of God!

GOD'S JUDGMENT AGAINST HEATHEN OPPRESSORS

of Egypt's captivity by Assyria. As the Prophet had walked naked and barefoot in the streets of Jerusalem, so "shall the king of Assyria lead away the Egyptians prisoners, and the Ethiopians captives, young and old, naked and barefoot, even with their buttocks uncovered, to the shame of Egypt." (Isa. 20.)

Not only did God promise to judge these nations I have mentioned, but He also is going to judge the whole world. Egypt, Babylon, and Assyria now are destroyed. They have no more power. Because they had done wickedly, trusting in other gods and oppressing God's people, God took away their power and now they are known only through history. Isaiah prophesied of the judgment that would come upon the whole world. Why? For the very same reasons that God judged Egypt, Babylon, and Assyria. Isaiah 24 gives a picture of this judgment, also Zephaniah 2:8-11.

(Other references that are of interest are: Isa. 10:24-27; 14:4-25; 17:1; 23; 43:14; Jer. 50:1-3; Zech. 10:11; Rev. 18.)

Since God is willing that no one should perish, there is promise that some of the heathen will come to recognize that God is God and "there is none beside him." Isaiah 45:14 says:

"The labour of Egypt, and merchandise of Ethiopia and of the Sabeans, men of stature, shall come over unto thee, and they shall be thine: they shall come after thee; in chains they shall come over, and they shall fall down unto thee, they shall make supplication unto thee, saying, Surely God is in thee; and there is none else, there is no God." Notice that it will not be the poor heathen who come to God, but men who are rich in this world's goods. Why? They will recognize that "there is no God else beside me; a just God and a Saviour; there is none beside me. Look unto me, and be ye saved, all the ends of the earth."

TITHER'S SURPRISE

The Christian who begins to tithe will have at least six surprises. He will be surprised:

1. At the amount of money he has for the Lord's work.
2. At the deepening of his spiritual life in paying the tithe.
3. At the ease in meeting his own obligations with the nine tenths.
4. At the ease in going from one tenth to larger giving.
5. At the preparation this gives to be a faithful and wise steward over the nine tenths that remain.
6. In himself in not adopting the plan sooner.

Jesus the Great Teacher

By Ezra D. Gifford, Spokane, Washington
Selected from "The Way of Truth"

OF ALL THE GREAT teachers the world has ever seen, Jesus stands above comparison. Never man spoke as this Man. Even where others had taught the same or similar things, Jesus gave them new meaning and new force. It is not always what is said, but who says it, and how it is said.

In the background of Jesus' teaching, there stands out the great fact that He was the Son of God and God's Apostle to men. This at once gives His teaching a sanction that no other can claim.

The miracles also gave peculiar power to the teaching of Jesus. A man who could put sight into blind eyes, hearing into deaf ears, life into the withered hand and foot, sanity into crazy brain, life into dead bodies, and calm into the raging storm, also could put peace into the troubled conscience, wisdom into the benighted mind, love into the aching heart, hope into the despairing soul, and strength into the weakened will, by His divine and mighty teaching.

There was also a mighty spiritual power that accompanied the teaching of Jesus. Men felt it, and it gave them light within and moved them to emotion and inspired them to action.

The authority of His teaching made men exclaim, "Never man so spake." They felt as though God were talking to them. His words were the words of Him who sent Him. He spoke as one having authority, and not as the scribes.

The thing that commended His teaching most was that it was the Truth. What He said commended itself to every man's conscience in the sight of God, as being truth and right. His teachings have stood the test of nineteen hundred years and no one has ever impugned them or presented any teaching to compare with His. The brightest lights have been but reflectors of Jesus, and they have gladly acknowledged Jesus to be the Teacher of teachers and the Light of the world.

As a greater commendation of His teaching, He used the authority of the law, the prophets, and the Psalms. All His teaching was based in those holy books. There He found the types, shadows, promises, and prophecies of His gospel.

His teaching was more attractive and commanding, because it was a teaching of grace. All marvelled at the gracious words that fell from His lips. No sweeter words were ever uttered than when He said: "Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart; and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light" (Matt. 11:28-30). How tenderly He stood and cried: "If any man thirst, let him come unto me and drink"! (John 7:37.) How gracious His words when He said: "I am the living bread which came down out of heaven: if any man eat of this bread, he shall live for ever: yea and the bread which I will give is my flesh, for the life of the world"! (John 6:51, R.V.) Why quote more, for grace, like golden threads, is woven all through His teaching!

His unselfish life gave increased luster to His teaching. He sought no reward in money, or worldly goods, or political office. He had no place to lay His head, though even the foxes had holes and the birds had nests. All the goods He left behind were the daily clothes He wore. Though He could multiply the loaves and fishes for the multitudes, He never did so for Himself, nor did He seek honor or glory of men. We naturally confide in such a man, for such a man is worthy of our confidence.

His teachings also were enforced by analogies from nature. "By their fruits ye shall know them. Do men gather grapes of thorns, or figs of thistles?" (Matt. 7:16, R.V.) "Except a grain of the wheat fall into the earth and die, it abideth by itself alone; but if it die, it beareth much fruit" (John 12:24, R.V.). "I am the true vine, and my Father is the husbandman" (John 15:1-6, R.V.). Notice also the parables of the sower, the grain of mustard seed, the leaven, and others. His teaching harmonized with the Bible and nature.

His teaching is more commanding and interesting because it is always unfolding and hence always new. The more we learn of it, the more we may learn of it. Its very depth proves its divinity, and commands our veneration and submission.

His teaching also appeals for our support because of the enemies which it made. Those who bound heavy burdens upon the people, while they themselves would not touch them so much as with their little finger; those who devoured widows' houses and for a pretense made long prayers; those who desired to walk in long robes, and who loved the salutations in the market places and the chief seats at feasts and to be called of men, "Rabbi," (Reverend); those who made merchandise in the house of God; those who said and did not; those who would make clean the outside of the cup and the platter, while within they were full from extortion and excess; those who were clothed in purple and fine linen, and fared sumptuously every day, while the humble and worthy poor were at their gates full of sores and without even the crumbs of life; those who outwardly appeared righteous to men, but inwardly were full of hypocrisy and iniquity; those who were scrupulous to make people pay tithes to them, even to tithing mint and anise and cummin, and who left undone the weightier matters of the law, such as, the justice and the mercy and the faith—these were the enemies of Jesus and His gospel. A teaching that makes enemies of such humbugs and parasites must be good. And a teacher that dares tell such scamps what they are and what they are coming to must be of God. It is an honor to Jesus that His teaching gave offence to such people. It is to the credit of Jesus that He hid the truth in deep sayings and puzzling parables from such criticizing and carping people.

not, that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ, were baptized into his death?” We believe that Jesus died, wholly; then can we baptize partially? “Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death.” Buried with a few drops of water? No! “If we have been planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall be also in the likeness of his resurrection.”

So, “let us lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us” (Heb. 12:1). By observing current events as they unfold before us, we believe the time cannot be very far distant when we shall stand before our Redeemer. My prayer is that He will say to every reader of this article, “Well done, thou good and faithful servant . . . enter thou into the joy of thy lord” (Matt. 25:21).

WHAT WOULD YOU DO?

By George A. Waters, Corpus Christi, Texas

Jesus is coming soon :
It may be at midnight;
It may be at noon.
What would you do,
If for certain you knew,
Jesus would be here at noon?

Would you be sure to go
Tonight to the dance,
And tomorrow the show?
Or else to the fight
And stay out all night,
Enjoying another's woe?

Would you be sure to tell
That rotten story
And to think you did swell
Because of the laugh
That greeted your chaff
Spawned in the depths of hell?

Would you tell that big lie
About your neighbor?
'Twould give him a black eye
And do you no good.
Do you think you should—
Just to make someone cry?

Would you blow in His face
A volume of smoke?
And spit every place
Your filthy juice?
Lips slobbering loose—
To you a disgrace!

Would you drink home brew,
Wine, whiskey, and beer,
Persuading others, too,
Thus bringing despair
To all those who care
For the evils you do?

Would you drink more corn juice,
Get drunk, and drunker?
Lie in the slush and sluice
Down in the gutter?
Mutter and splutter—
Sure of the calaboose!

Would you all kneel in prayer
And ask forgiveness?
Would you lay your heart bare Confessing your sin?
Let Jesus come in
And save you from despair.

You had better do right
And love everyone,
And not hide out of sight
At the trumpet's sound,
But rise from the ground
Assured of upward flight.

Jesus is coming soon,
Believe in His word,
For sinners there is room,
Accept Him today
And go all the way.
Praise God! He's coming soon!

God's Choice

God chose two men to carry out His plans in building the tabernacle, and He filled these men with wisdom and understanding. They were gifted in their skills of carving and engraving. The Lord knew what men were best able to carry out His work. They were men who had used and developed their abilities. God never chooses one for His service who is not trying to do his best in serving Him; but, when God's Spirit is enthroned within a person, he is able to do much more than before.

The tabernacle of God was beautiful and perfect. God had given His plan to Moses. He had everything planned, even to the number of curtains: "Eleven curtains shalt thou make" (Ex. 26:8). Also, God commanded the number of loops or folds to be made in each curtain: "Fifty loops shalt thou make in the one curtain" (Ex. 26:5). Do you think Bezaleel and Aholiab taught their workers to make any different number of curtains, or any more or less loops in each one? Would God have allowed that? No! He wanted it made exactly to plan. Exact and perfect it was.

"The Same Today"

We are temples today. "What? know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own?" (1 Cor. 6:19.)

Not only is each one who belongs to Christ a temple, but all are parts of a great temple. It can be compared with the old tabernacle we mentioned. (Heb. 8:2 and 9:11.)

If we strive to be chosen of God as a part of this holy temple, we must do the will of God.

We are to believe what Jesus taught when He lived upon the earth. "My doctrine is not mine," said Jesus, "but his that sent me." Jesus also told us, "If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself" (John 7:16, 17). If we, then, do the will of God, we must understand or know His will. Jesus said, "In vain do they worship me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men."

We then, who are Christ's, must study carefully that we do not follow commandments of men that are so generally accepted that they seem right. If those commandments are not God's, then those who do them "worship" "in vain."

Here is a warning about some commandments of men in the "latter times." We are living in the "last days" now. Those days began when God's will began to be "spoken unto us by his Son" (Heb. 1:2). Here are some of those things—commandments of men—taught by those who have departed from "the faith"; "forbidding to marry, and commanding to abstain from meats."

Are you Christ's? Do you search the Scriptures to see whether or not those things are so? Jesus taught, "Blessed are they that hear the word of God, and keep it" (Luke 11:28). Therefore: "Take heed unto thyself, and unto the doctrine; continue in them: for in doing this thou shalt both save thyself, and them that hear thee" (1 Tim. 4:16).

We are to love, not offend the brethren. Whom did Christ say were His brethren? "Whosoever shall do the will of my Father which is in heaven, the same is my brother, and sister, and mother" (Matt. 12:50). Know God's will that we may be God's temple!

"Men ought always to pray, and not to faint," said Jesus. How true is the implication; pray or faint! Pray or fall back! Pray or lose interest! Pray or fail! We find ourselves in the position today of being so much in need of

The prayer circle should be one of the most important events in your meeting. Upon the vitality and sincerity of your prayer time will be based much of the cause of your frequent talks with God that if prayerful contact would be cut off, we would be lost. Prayer is for you, that you faint not as you do the Lord's business in an evil and cynical world. Prayer is for your Berean society, that it might faint not, growing stronger in Christ, even in the face of increasing disinterest and competition.

Speaking with God is a privilege given Christ's followers, by which they can draw strength and courage from the Source of all power. You have a choice; pray and be strong, or do not pray and be weak.

The most practical way of insuring the success of your young people's meeting is prayer. Torrey Johnson says, "Three things are necessary to the success of any youth meeting: Pray. Pray. Pray." As evidence, Mr. Johnson testifies that when his youth group had no meeting place, they prayed. Consequently, Orchestra Hall was booked for twenty-one weeks. No radio station would sell him time. They prayed. Suddenly a station manager changed his mind and offered thirty minutes on a Saturday evening. When it was time for the first meeting, the group had no assurance of an audience. They prayed, and 2,500 young people crowded into Orchestra Hall. Miracle on Michigan Avenue, Chicago, 1946!

Arnold Johns' report on the evangelistic work of the Oregon Bereans (Berean Page, March 18), contains these significant statements: "Prayer was made, asking God's help in this matter . . . A special Berean meeting was called to . . . thank God for answering our prayers . . . God surely answers prayer when it is His work." Testimonies like this prove the obvious—if you want the Lord's help in your Berean society, talk with Him about it, lay failure or success. You will be strong, zealous, and divinely aided in direct proportion to the amount of time you spend on your knees. The young people of Ohio began their present youth organization in Lawrenceville. There they knelt in prayer and asked God's blessing upon them. A good start! That is the only position from which God can lift His workers to the fullest service.

The moments of your meeting which are devoted to prayer should be prepared for with music and an atmosphere of worship. Participation by all should be encouraged, by lessons, unison praying, and demonstration by leaders. Sentence prayers and prepared prayers can help you start a vital prayer service.

As prayer works miracles for organizations trying to bring glory to the Lord, so does it bring great blessing and spiritual growth to individuals. The witnesses for the great value of prayer to encourage, heal, lift, and protect are innumerable.

There are two ways to learn to pray. You could sit down and study all the theory of prayer and argue it all out in your mind, and then, when you have satisfied all fears and doubts say, "Now I will pray." Yes, you could, but it would not mean much more to you than dutifully brushing your teeth.

On the other hand, you can reach out in your need of a friend and "help in time of trouble," you can come to a loving Father because you feel a need of Him, and, theory or no theory, you will find God and be blessed.

Let's talk less about the mechanics and the theory and the duty of prayer, and recognize our need of a true friend to whom we can go any time and find rest.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CONFERENCE DATES

April 20—Iowa Spring Conference at home of Mrs. Christine C. Klindt near Sioux Rapids.
April 27—Indiana Quarterly Conference at the Morning Star Church of God, South Bend.
June 11-22—Indiana Bible School and Conference at North Salem.

THROUGH THE MONTH OF MARCH

After finishing work on the quarterlies and lessons for twenty Bible schools, the work in the field was started again.

The first stop in March was at the home of Sr. F. A. Stilson in South Bend, Ind. Instructions on how to use the lessons prepared for her for the Bible School at Hope Chapel and at the Indiana Conference were given to her. A day and a half were spent here.

The next stop was at Kokomo, Ind. Here a meeting was held with Bro. and Sr. Emory Mney and Sr. Harvey. They were shown how to use lessons prepared for their work in the summer Bible School and also the Indiana Conference.

The third stop was at Cleveland, Ohio. Several missions awaited me there. What a pleasure it was to visit their three Vit-Em-In Bible classes. The children seemed so enthused about their work. We commend Sr. Hazel Stadden, Sr. Don Swartz, and Sr. G. J. Gordon for the splendid work they are doing in their classes. Two nights were spent with the teachers of their summer Vacation Bible School, demonstrating to them how to use the lessons which had been planned for them. One always can receive an inspiration from a visit to the Golden Rule Church of Cleveland.

The fourth stop found me in Virginia. There we worked on the children's quarterlies. Sr. Georgia Thayer is doing all the art work for these quarterlies, so it was necessary to go through each quarterly, planning what was to be made ready for each one. While in Virginia, Sr. J. R. LeCrome was instructed how to use the lessons which were ready for her to use at a Bible School in Browntown, Va. We are very happy, Browntown, to think you are going to have a Bible School this summer. On Sunday, the church at Maurertown was visited in the morning and the Dry Run Church in Fort Valley in the evening. At Dry Run, pictures of the work done by the Jewish people in Palestine were shown, also colored slides on the life of Christ. It seems so much like home to go to Virginia. One night was spent with Sr. Cleck at Staunton, Va.

Step number five was in Tennessee. Here we found Bro. and Sr. B. E. Holt had moved from Morristown to Paint Rock where they have purchased two grocery stores about three miles apart. Above one of the stores was an ideal place to start some church work. This is just what we did, with God's help. Our attendance reached the fifty-three mark. In a letter from the Holts since leaving there, we find the work is progressing exceedingly well. They have some very enthusiastic workers with them. The Lord willing, we are looking forward to the work with them in October. It was a great privilege to speak to the two hundred ninety-five children in Paint Rock School during their chapel hour.

From Tennessee, the next landing place was in Arkansas. What a joy awaited me here! for it was here I was joined by Sr. Mabel Barnum, who is to be my helper for the summer.

The first Bible School of the season was started on March 30. A full report of this work will be given in the April report. May we have your prayers for the success of the work which lies ahead. Verna C. Thayer.

The special Easter offering taken at the Oregon, Ill., Church of God and East Oregon Chapel, which offering goes to the Chapel building fund, amounted to well over four hundred dollars.

COLLEGE NEWS

Spring vacation is ended and all students are back at College again. We are now on the last lap of the school year, and great activity in all fields of endeavor is much in evidence. It would appear safe to assume that all had a busy vacation, that is, if a general appearance of fatigue on the parts of both student body and faculty is any evidence of same. All arrived back on time, but it was a mighty sleepy group that convened for classes last Tuesday morning.

Some time ago, Mr. and Mrs. George Loudenlager presented a map of the Bible Lands to the College. It is serving a very useful purpose—that of aiding us to better visualize the geography of the Bible Lands. On behalf of students and faculty, we would like to extend to you, Mr. and Mrs. Loudenlager, a hearty vote of thanks for your very helpful gift. The delay in mentioning this gift is the fault of the writer.

Speakers for chapel periods last week were O. E. Dick and Paul M. Hatch. Mr. Hatch spoke on the subject of stamps and stamp collecting, as he is an authority on this subject since he is a philatelist. The subject proved to be of intense interest and all agreed with the speaker concerning his statement that stamp-collecting is a decidedly educational avocation.

Work on the Maramatha is progressing fairly satisfactorily, although some of our writers are not exactly rushing to place their articles in the hands of the editors. We expect that the Maramatha will be off the press by at least the end of May—and we hope much sooner. Anyone wishing copies of the Maramatha, who has not already ordered, should send his name to the business manager, Raul Smith, Oregon Bible College, Oregon, Ill.
 W. Howard Boomer, Reporter.

GLEANINGS FROM THE FIELD

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

Sr. L. E. Conner, member of Golden Rule Home, is a patient in Warmelts Clinic, Oregon, Ill. She would enjoy hearing from her many friends.

Sr. Myrtle Claussen, Oregon, Ill., is a patient in Rockford Memorial Hospital, Rockford, Ill., for a major operation.

Bro. T. A. Drinkard has been engaged in a six-nights' public religious discussion with A. G. Hobbs at Caldwell, Kan. About four hundred attendants were present for the first discussion, April 7, relative to the regathering of Israel into the land of Palestine. Succeeding discussions concerned literality of the Kingdom of God, the second coming of Jesus Christ, man's mortal nature and unconsciousness in death, and kindred topics.

"Let the people praise thee, O God; let all the people praise thee" (Psalms 67:3).

NORA HOWELL MALLORY

Nora Ethel, daughter of J. T. and Malinda Logsdon Howell, was born on a farm in Brown County, Ill., April 30, 1877, and died at her home in Mount Sterling, Ill., April 1, 1947, after many months of failing health.

On August 3, 1893, she was married to J. S. Mallory. To this union eight children were born: Bertha, Herbert, Grace, Susie, Arthur, Lynn, Lorene, and Mildred.

Here in Brown County she reared her family, working patiently day and night that her children might have the advantages of life. Not only did she raise her own family, but she also took many other children into her home, enabling them to attend high school.

For twenty years, Nora Mallory operated a boarding house and nursing home in Mount Sterling. Here, no one was ever turned away. Many elderly and ailing people she cared for with all the love and patience of a mother, never giving them an unkind word.

For the past five years, she has been unable to care for anyone, never complaining, only hoping that she might regain her strength to assume the work she especially loved—caring for elderly people.

Sr. Mallory was a member of the Church of God at Ripley, having been baptized by Bro. S. J. Lindsay in 1905. She was unable to attend church as often as she would have liked, but was always ready to converse about the truths she held most dear. It truly can be said of her, "She was a dutiful wife, a kind and loving mother, a friend to everyone." She will be sadly missed in and about Mount Sterling.

Left to mourn her death are her husband, six children, ten grandchildren, one adopted grandchild, seven great-grandchildren, one brother, Alf Howell of Ripley, three sisters, namely, Elsie Doyle of Liverpool, Violet Bailey of Monmouth, and Anna Long of Rushville. Two children preceded her in death, Herbert and Lorene; also two grandchildren.

In the morning of the resurrection, may she come forth to hear, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant. . . . Enter thou into the joy of thy lord." C. R. Randall.

CHILD STUDY

This course, conducted by Otto E. Dick, instructor and student counselor at Oregon Bible College, is especially designed for pastor, parent, or teacher. From the normal processes of child development, it considers the religious opportunities of the various ages that may be used as stepping stones in building a child of faith. Such understanding is a must for all those who would deal wisely with their own children or the children of others. It is offered at less than cost as a public service and carries College credit if desired.

There is need in the State of Indiana for our youth to be drawn close together. The Churches of God are scattered through the northern half of the State. The youth are not aware of the work, problems, and activities of each other and their groups. There are no less than ten different groups of young people within the State, also a number of isolated young people who have little contact with any of our churches. A state-wide Young People's Rally has hope of uniting all youth into one body whereby they can work together.

MESSAGE FROM OUR PRESIDENT

At the Indiana Conference business meeting in 1945, the conference instructed the conference board to improve the facilities for Bible school and conference at North Salem. The board proceeded with this work, residing in the dormitory, putting in new screens, showers, toilets, and so forth, as far as funds were available. Our pumping equipment is inadequate to supply enough water for showers and cooking, and will need to be overhauled or replaced. Bedding equipment has not been available and still needs to be obtained.

These further improvements will need to be financed. Since we are operating on a cash basis, substantial contributions are needed now if we are to obtain this equipment in time for the 1947 Bible school. Contributions can be made individually, or through the local church organizations, and they should be sent to Dale Roueh, Treasurer, 1710 Medora St., South Bend, Ind.

We solicit your financial support for the State work, and when our improvement program is completed, we can turn our attention to an expansion of our church program throughout the State.

Willard Naylor, President.

BURR OAK

The Friends and Helpers Class of the Burr Oak Church of God is a small, but very active, class. Since organizing a few years ago, the class has purchased several articles for the church, the last being a large coffee maker; this will be of great help to the Ladies Aid in the serving of their many banquets.

Each January, a drawing is held to determine the month each member will entertain the class. At present, under the leadership of President Norma Jean Carrans, vice president Burton Peeler, and Secretary-Treasurer Marylin Hatten, this class is doing very much to be a shining light in the church.

We have a primary class that has given us several entertainments. Mrs. Ferris Zechiel being its teacher. Her tireless efforts are making this little class a bright spot in our church.

SOUTH BEND—Hope Chapel

The young people of Hope Chapel Church of God, South Bend, have put forth great effort to take their place in the church.

We have organized the printing of a weekly church bulletin, which is printed every Tuesday night. Also, we print a monthly church calendar, reports on church activities, special articles (usually written by a member of the young people's class), an editorial, and so forth. We have a long mailing list and are always glad to have more names.

The money for the foregoing work is taken from a weekly Sunday morning collection of the young folks' class and other contributions.

Our class has started Berean meetings. We have excellent attendance, not only by the younger group but by many other interested people. This is a meeting of our own originality. We take turns in teaching the evening lesson, choosing our own topics for discussion connected with religious subjects. We have many guest speakers. This meeting is one hour long, preceding the main Sunday evening service.

For other activities outside the church, we have picnics, special parties, and general get-togethers. A good time is had by all.

Sybil Stilson.

KOKOMO—Guiding Star Class

Kokomo young people have removed the "mote" and "beam" from their eyes, and again see the light. (The Berean society is a need of the young people.) We have reorganized a class and, with blessings of the Lord, have been very successful. We have an enrollment of fifteen members, and there is an average attendance of eleven. Our class is named "The Guiding Star Class" in honor of Larry Hawks, who named the new Berean publication. We are using the Berean motto, "Search the Scriptures Daily." Our slogan is "Vit-em-in," thanks to Sr. Vernia Thayer.

Each student takes his turn at teaching. During the first three months, however, the class was under the instruction of the writer, who serves as class advisor. We feel that Berean work is the building of teachers for the future. Berean study has been the nucleus of three generations of teachers in our church.

We are very proud of our class. The members are very active and are using their talents for the Lord. They have formed a choir, which we have the pleasure of hearing each Sunday morning for Sunday school services. We pray the Lord will guide and direct our work, that we may receive more of His spiritual blessings, that in the future we will not err and have the need of another reorganization.

Some of us are planning to attend the Young People's Rally at Morning Star and would be pleased to meet you there.

Robert K. Harvey.

HILLISBURG—Busy Bees

We have no Berean society, and to my regret the young people's Sunday school class has always been very small. Neither am I in that class any more, for I teach the primary class, "The Busy Bees."

I have an attendance of seven to twelve each Sunday, and with summer coming, I expect more. At present, we are studying the life of Christ, and increased interest is shown constantly. I am proud of my class and am trying to teach them about our Lord.

The adults are the church of the present, and the young people are the church of tomorrow. If we can keep the young people interested, that is what counts, for in them lies the future church.

Bonnie Buffer.

"Blessed Are the Poor in Spirit"

By Janice Johns, Oregon Bible College

BEFORE HE gave His Sermon on the Mount, Christ had been all about Galilee, "teaching in the synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing all manner of sickness, and all manner of disease among the people." Great multitudes of people followed Him from Galilee, Decapolis, Jerusalem, Judea, and from beyond Jordan. Onetime seeing the multitudes, Jesus went up into a mountain and called His disciples to come to Him. He then gave them what we call the Beatitudes. The first of these was, "Blessed are the poor in spirit: for their's is the kingdom of heaven."

"Blessed" in this instance means happy. Christ was not giving a blessing, but just stating that if they were "poor in spirit" they would be blessed. Lamsa interprets "poor in spirit" to mean "poor in pride." Goodspeed interprets it as "blessed are those who feel a spiritual need" or feel the need of spiritual guidance.

We read in Psalm 40:16, 17, "Let all those that seek thee rejoice and be glad in thee: let such as love thy salvation say continually, The Lord be magnified. But I am poor and needy; yet the Lord thinketh upon me: thou art my help and my deliverer; make no tarrying, O my God." If we might always see the need of spiritual guidance, we would be the "poor in spirit" and would be blessed. How good it would be if we would always say, "I delight to do thy will, O my God: yea, thy law is within my heart"! (Psalm 40:8.)

Those who are rich in spirit are self-satisfied, and their ears usually are closed to the words of the Master. These are mentioned in Revelation 3:15-18, where Christ says, "I know thy works, that thou art neither cold nor hot. I would thou wert cold or hot. So then because thou art lukewarm, and neither cold nor hot, I will spue thee out of my mouth. Because thou sayest, I am rich, and increased with goods, and have need of nothing; and knowest not that thou art wretched, and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked: I counsel thee to buy of me gold tried in the fire, that thou mayest be rich; and white raiment, that thou mayest be clothed, and that the shame of thy nakedness do not appear; and anoint thine eyes with eyesalve that thou mayest see." Those who are rich in spirit are those Christians who feel no need of God's guidance. God says He will cast those out who are lukewarm and say they have need of nothing, when actually they are wretched, miserable, poor, blind, and naked.

In Matthew 23, there are eight woes which contrast with the eight Beatitudes. The first woe is comparable to the first of the Beatitudes: "But woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye shut up the kingdom of heaven against men: for ye neither go in yourselves, neither suffer ye them that are entering to go in." This is stated again in Luke 11:52, where it says, "Woe unto you lawyers! for ye have taken away the key of knowledge: ye entered not in yourselves, and them that were entering in ye hindered."

Let us be able to say, as in Psalm 40:9, 10, "I have preached righteousness in the great congregation: lo, I have not refrained my lips, O Lord, thou knowest. I have not hid thy righteousness within my heart. I have declared thy faithfulness and thy salvation: I have not concealed thy lovingkindness and thy truth from the great congregation." . . . We students in Oregon Bible College must let God guide us, or we shall miss much of the happiness that comes to those who are "poor in spirit."

He Understands

By Mary Mae Nedrow

When life seems all discouragements,
And evil stalks the land,
We look in faith to Him and know
That He will understand.

O give us faith to trust Him more!
For mighty is His Hand,
When stumblingblocks obscure our way—
We know He'll understand.

We can surmount all obstacles,
All cares of life withstand,
Since we need only lean on Him
And know He'll understand.

“Pray Not for the World”

In Jesus' memorable prayer of John 17, He prayed especially for His disciples and persons who would believe in Him “through their word.” He said, “I pray not for the world, but for them which thou [God] hast given me; for they are thine” (v. 9). Though Jesus came to seek and to save the lost, though He was moved with compassion upon the wayward multitudes who were scattered as sheep without a shepherd, He showed no sympathy for the forces of evil about Him. Bluntly said Jesus, “I pray not for the world.” As Mediator today between God and man, Christ benefits the world in very small measure: the world rejecting His help and He having separated Himself from the world. To persons, who believe and obey Him, however, Christ is most precious. His blood atones. His life is example and inspiration. His promises, unailing as immortality, offer eternal salvation.

“If the world hate you,” said Jesus to His disciples, “ye know that it hated me before it hated you” (John 15:18). Jesus foresaw that His followers would not stand in high repute with the world. More, He said: “Ye are not of the world,” and “I have chosen you out of the world. . . . If they have persecuted me, they will also persecute you” (vv. 19, 20). Clearly, Jesus' life today, as during His earthly ministry, is rich toward His disciples, but He prays not at all for the world. Come “out of the world” to receive Christ's blessing to represent Him in the world.

Preacher and His Pay

The nature of a minister's work, the seriousness and sacredness of his message, and universal need of the gospel preclude all thought of his preaching for pay. Said Jesus, “Freely ye have received; freely give.” Church members should not take advantage of this prerogative, however, for their pastors have financial obligations that can be met only with “cash on the counter.” Other laborers organize into unions that strike for more wages, the spirit of which is against the principles of Christ. So, your minister dares not strike. Neither will he “drive hard bargains.” Usually, he simply “goes ahead,” doing the best he can without complaint.

Open Fishing Season

Soon, sportsmen will be rushing to their favorite fishing haunts, eager for the catch. We who are ministers of the gospel, and indeed all Christians, should appreciate that there is no “closed season” in our fishing for men. We need wait not a day to hasten into the highways and byways where uncounted millions are in need of Christ. True, they may not invite our effort, but neither do the wary fish desire to be caught. God's great “open season” places responsibility upon His people to seek sinners, little as the sinners may desire the help that ultimately will give them eternal life.

Summer Schools at Oregon, Illinois

Plans are well developed for two summer schools at Oregon, Illinois. The regular Summer Bible Training School will be conducted this summer from June 30 to July 27 at Oregon Bible College. This school will be conducted for high school graduates and for persons eighteen years of age or more. For more detailed information, see page 15. Also, for information about the several courses, write to Otto E. Dick, Oregon, Illinois.

Another and separate school will be conducted for young people whose ages are from thirteen to seventeen years, inclusive. This school, called the “Berean Youth Rally and Summer School,” will convene at the Church of God and the Illinois Conference hall. For further information, see page 15, and write to James M. Watkins, Oregon, Illinois.

Attend the 1947 General Conference

Dates for the 1947 General Conference of the Churches of God in the United States and Canada have been set for July 29 to August 10. Plan now to attend. Both Summer Bible Training Schools (see foregoing editorial) have been timed so as to encourage a large attendance at the General Conference. A program of Bible lessons, sermons, music, recreation, church auxiliaries, and various business activities will interest every attendant. More, the work needs your presence and co-operation. The Christ requires that we occupy until He comes. Plan to come!

Life More Abundantly

By Francis E. Burnett, Jordan, Missouri

"I am the resurrection and the life" (John 11:25).

DO YOU understand the human mechanism of life? To some people life is a mystery, but to the majority of persons little thought is given the matter. Why do the majority neglect to think about the mystery (1 Cor. 15:51) of that which is vital to everyone—life? Is it because of the lie that was told in the Garden of Eden. "Ye shall not surely die" (Gen. 3:4). The larger per cent of the population of the world believes that at death one continues to live.

There are physiologists and biologists who will be truthful and tell that at the end of life all movement of the body organisms ceases; in fact, death is the complete end of life. These same students of nature are wise enough to suggest that for a discussion of future life one should talk to a minister. Why? Because the story that most ministers tell does not agree with the physiologist. The Bible, however, does agree with men of science, teaching that there is no life in death.

God said to Adam, "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground: for out of it wast thou taken: for dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return" (Gen. 3:19). In contrast to these words are those of Jesus recorded in John 10:10, "I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." Notice, too, that the preceding scriptures are not contradictory.

How can one have life in Christ? Most people who read this article will know the prerequisites for entering into Christ—repentance and baptism. It was because of the love of God and the humbleness of Jesus that we can have the hope of eternal life in Christ. "God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life" (John 3:16). "Being found in fashion like a man, he humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross" (Phil. 2:8).

Jesus obtained immortal life when God brought Him forth from the tomb, becoming "the firstfruits of them that slept" (1 Cor. 15:20). Through belief in Christ and in the resurrection can we have life more abundantly.

It is highly important that we Christians believe in the resurrection. In 1 Corinthians 15:19, we read, "If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable." Did man have life or hope of life before Jesus died? The words to Adam were, "Dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return." No promise of life in those words! Many disregard the doctrine of resurrection because of the false teaching that they believe—that of man's having an immortal soul. There was no immortal life for man before the death, burial, and resurrection of Jesus.

It is evident that some members of the Corinthian church did not believe in a resurrection. We read in 1 Corinthians 15:12, "If Christ be preached that he rose from the dead, how say some among you that there is no resurrection of the dead?" Paul's argument was that no resurrection of the dead meant that Christ was not raised from the dead.

Further, if Christ was not raised from the dead, our faith is vain and we are yet in our sins. "But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the firstfruits of them that slept" (1 Cor. 15:20). What a wonderful promise and assurance to know that Christ is risen from the dead! Because Jesus is raised from the dead, we who are in Christ are freed from sins. "He that is dead is freed from sin" (Rom. 6:7).

In teaching that there was a resurrection, Paul was careful to explain how one would come forth from the grave. "How are the dead raised up? and with what body do they come?" (1 Cor. 15:35.) Every seed bears the image of its own body. Jesus is our best Example of this fact. He came forth with the nail scars in His hands and feet and the spear wound in His side. Did Jesus have the same body He had when put into the tomb? Yes, but He was "raised in incorruption," with glory, power, and a spiritual body. (1 Cor. 15:42-44.) How shall we come forth? "Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him" (1 John 3:2). We shall come forth and with this same body or image, but we shall not all bear the same likeness, for there "is one glory of the sun, and another glory of the moon, and another glory of the stars" (1 Cor. 15:41).

Life more abundant is desired by most every person in the world. Though the religion of one may be pagan, a future life is desired and is in the plan of his religious creed.

Life more abundant is desired, undoubtedly, by every Christian. Can one believe in Jesus without believing in the resurrection? Jesus said, "I (Please turn to page 10)

A Suggestive Study of John 17:5

By R. H. Judd, Colborne, Ontario

"Now, O Father, glorify thou me with thine own self with the glory which I had with thee before the world was."

THAT Jesus the Christ, who offered the foregoing quoted petition, was not in existence as an individual living Personality "before the world was" is abundantly testified to by numerous scriptures. According to these, He was the promised seed of the woman. (Gen. 3:15.) He was the seed of Abraham and of David. (Gen. 12:7; Gal. 3:16; 2 Sam. 7:12; Acts 13:22, 23.) Many devout mothers in Israel of the royal line of David eagerly anticipated the hope that one of them might be the chosen mother of the Messiah. Such an extended genealogy, all having a share in the promised birth of the Messiah, absolutely shuts out the possibility of the same Personality pre-existing His birth in contemporaneous enjoyment of life, while the processes of His coming were being wrought out in the lives of those who lived for the very purpose that He might come into being.

History records Jesus' birth, His wonderful ministry, His crucifixion, and His death. These are facts that clearly define His identity and individual Personality. He described Himself as "a man that hath told you the truth" (John 8:40), and many times He took to Himself the title of "the Son of man." Paul, the great apostle, called Him "the man Christ Jesus" (1 Tim. 2:5). These facts, incident to His generation and birth, preclude any possibility of His pre-existence.

The truth, or non-truth, of any subject may be demonstrated by appeal to its negative aspects; but its value is fully doubled by consideration of the positive truths on which it is based.

The commonly understood reference of John 17:5 to the pre-existence of the Messiah can find support only by attempting to explain it as it stands alone, isolated from its context. We must find out what are the stated objective purposes of Jesus' prayer as expressed at the very commencement of His intercession. Two of these are definitely and clearly recorded, and specific reference is made to the time ("hour") of their being fulfilled. First, however, we may ask: "What is the hour to which Christ so pointedly referred?" Surely it is the "hour" due for the fulfillment of "the purposes of the ages which he [God] purposed in Christ Jesus our Lord." (Eph. 1:9, 10; 3:11;

Proper understanding of John 17:5 can be reached only by careful study of the salient features of this remarkable prayer, as they are unfolded step by step from its commencement. The context of any passage of Scripture is important to its sincere and full comprehension.—R. H. Judd.

1 Peter 1:20.) Next, it is pertinent to inquire in whom was the purpose centered? The answer has already been given in the verse above, quoted namely, Christ Jesus our Lord. There can be no question as to the identity of the Person so named, nor can there be any doubt that any person bearing the name of "Jesus" and the title "Christ" was not in existence "before the world was." Peter made the seemingly difficult quite clear when he said: "Who verily was foreordained [foreknown] before the foundation of the world; but was manifested at the end of the times for your sakes" (1 Peter 1:20, R.V.). Just as Christ was "slain from the foundation of the world" (Rev. 13:8), so, in like manner, we were chosen in Him at the same time. (Eph. 1:4).

Purposes of the Prayer

(1.) Recognition of the specified time in relation to a definite event; and that the time for the fulfillment of predetermined purposes had arrived. (V. 1.)

(2.) "That the Father may be glorified [honored] in the Son" (v. 1; also 14:13) by the fulfillment of those purposes at the appointed time. (Eph. 3:11.)

Just here a moment's digression may be profitable. The little word "that," so often appearing in this chapter, is worth special attention. It occurs in verse 1, again in verses 2 and 3, and again in verse 5. It will be found also once in verses 11, 12, 13, 19, and 26; twice in verses 23 and 24, and three times in verse 21. Thus, in verse 1, and all the others mentioned, the purpose is expressed, and the word "that" is used in the sense of "in order that,"—in order that "the Son may glorify thee." One more digression and we proceed. Nearly all translators of John 17:5 have used the words "glory" and "glorify" throughout the chapter. Words are, however, constantly taking on new shades of meaning, and sometimes they are quite different from the original. Thus, in the present day, the words "glory" and "glorify" have come to be associated with conditions of excellent splendor, and this is certainly the common understanding assigned to the last clause of John 17:5. To the mind of the present writer, that is not the primary sense of the word as used in this chapter. Searching several translations in my possession, I find that the Twentieth Century New Testament, which was compiled by a company of twenty scholars, has used the word "honor" in place of the word "glory." The thought then to be conveyed is that the "hour" had come for God's purposes of the ages to be honored through the Person of Jesus the Christ—"that [in order that] the Son may glorify thee." Next, we find the why and the wherefore of the purposes clearly stated. (Please turn to page 10)

The Cares of This World

By Glenn M. Birkey, Rochelle, Illinois

AS time passes swiftly and I grow older in the Christian faith, I can see plainly that one of the besetting sins of those who profess being followers of our Lord is to let cares of the world befog their vision as to Christian lines of endeavor. I realize that is what I have to fight, and I think others have the same problem. In way of warning in regard to this very thing, Christ said: "Take heed to yourselves, lest your souls be weighed down with self-indulgence and drunkenness or the anxieties of this life, and that day come upon you, suddenly, like a falling trap; for it will come on all the dwellers on the face of the whole earth. But beware of slumbering; and every moment pray that you may be fully strengthened to escape from all these coming evils, and to take your stand in the presence of the Son of Man" (Luke 21:34-36, Weymouth). The Prophet Isaiah also gave warning, saying: "Fear, and the pit, and the snare, are upon thee, O inhabitant of the earth" (24:17).

Our Lord's Parable of the Sower presents a lesson regarding one's attitude toward the cares of this world. In this Parable, God's message is the seed for the Christian. Everything depends upon whether or not, after hearing or reading it, he gives heed, or, as we would say these days, lets it go in one ear and out the other. Our Lord said if the seed takes root, but the thorns crowd out the growth, then the message is stifled by anxieties, wealth, gaities of the time, and the message of God yields nothing. On the other hand, if the seed falls on good ground, the true Christian holds fast and his life will bear fruit. Regarding this important Parable, at the time Jesus finished telling it, He said, "He that hath ears let him hear."

In the Parable of the Ten Virgins, all the virgins must have been weighed down with anxieties and cares of this world, for we read, "The bridegroom was a long time in coming, so that meanwhile they all became drowsy and fell asleep." Five were more wise than the rest, however, in that they had more oil in their lamps. I believe they were drowsy, too, yet they must not have let the cares of this world weigh them down so much.

Someone may ask, What are some of the cares that so easily beset men and women? I think one is worry of money and what it will buy to gratify. During the last war, I overheard a farmer make this remark, "If the 'powers that be' in Washington would keep up the price of corn and hogs, I am willing for them to take my son into the army." Roger Babson, the noted statistician, once told of being invited to visit a man who specialized in thoroughbred stock. While visiting the farm, a young man drove up and the stockman's daughter got in the young man's car and drove away with him. Mr. Babson asked the man who the young man might be, and the man replied, "I don't even know him." Mr. Babson concluded that the farmer was more interested in his stock than he was interested in his daughter.

Seeing that so many young people are committing hideous crimes, could one not assume that parents are so engrossed with worldly cares that they neglect their parental duties? Is this not contrary to God's message as to the duties of parents to their children? When one spends money for luxuries to gratify himself, rather than supporting the preaching of the gospel, is he not committing a sin? There being so many people hungry both for food and for God's message, is it not sin for us as God's people to withhold either from them?

There is much for us Christians to think about during these perilous times of which we were forewarned by the Apostle Paul. Are we on the alert concerning them? I trust and pray that we are. In conclusion, let me quote The Christ in His contrast of worldly cares and spiritual values, as recorded in Luke 10:38-42:

"Now it came to pass, as they went, that he entered into a certain village: and a certain woman named Martha received him into her house. And she had a sister called Mary, which also sat at Jesus' feet, and heard his word. But Martha was cumbered about much serving, and came to him, and said, Lord, dost thou not care that my sister hath left me to serve alone? bid her therefore that she help me. And the Lord answered and said unto her, Martha, Martha, thou art careful and troubled about many things: but one thing is needful: and Mary hath chosen that good part, which shall not be taken away from her."

Shall cares of this world crowd out "that good part"?

Inherent Immortality

By E. H. Goit, Youngston, New York

NEARLY the entirety of so-called Christendom adheres to "inherent immortality of the soul" as a dogma of faith. To proclaim this dogma as unscriptural is to encounter prejudices and barbs of so-called Christendom. By the Word of God, we declare the aforesaid doctrine a product of the Devil and hereby accept the challenge of its lie.

That insidious Serpent of Eden first said, "Ye shall not surely die" (Gen. 3:4). Later, nominal Christendom adopted this as their common tenet. It was through Plato (famous Greek philosopher) that this lie was fostered on Christendom. "Inherent immortality of the soul" is identified as "Platonic," an admission in itself that he was its founder for Christians. Followers of Christ failed to heed the warning, "Beware lest any spoil [mislead] you through philosophy and vain deceit, after the tradition of men, after the rudiments of the world, and not after Christ" (Col. 2:8).

As a doctrine among nations, we can trace "immortality of the soul" to the Egyptians. Herodotus ("Father of History") wrote, "The Egyptians maintain that Ceres and Bacchus preside in the realms below. They were the first to broach the opinion that the soul of man is immortal. . . . There are Greek writers, some of an earlier, some of a later date, who have borrowed this doctrine from the Egyptians and put it forward as their own. I could mention their names, but I abstain from doing so."—The History of Herodotus, page 124.

Constantine did much to cultivate the idea of "inherent immortality of the soul" among the world's peoples. By the sword, he amalgamated Christianity with paganism. State and religion became one through his administration of that now termed the "Pious Fraud." Robert Hall Glover has well written, "Constantine's proffered conversion on the eve of his becoming Emperor of Rome was the beginning of a mighty change in the outward standing of the Christian church and its inward character. The story is well known of his seeing a wonderful cross in the sky with the words 'In hoc signo vincit!' (By this sign conquer!) At once adopting the cross as his standard, he led his armies on to victory and then in his famous Edict of 313, proclaimed Christianity the state religion. . . . The foes which had previously threatened the church from without now began to attack it from within. Purity of faith and simplicity of worship gradually were lost and spiritual declension set in."—World Wide Missions, page 48.

Man—what is he? Is he mortal or immortal? Does he have a mortal body and an immortal soul, or is he a mortal being animated by that principle of life which sustains all living beings, and without which he must cease to be?

Man as a whole teaches that man has a mortal body and an immortal soul which departs from the body at death. Holy Writ teaches that man is mortal (Job 4:17), and that he is a combination of dust and breath which produces a living (not immortal) soul (creature).

The Hebrew word nephesh, translated soul, occurs 752 times in the Scripture. In the New Testament, psuche (equivalent of nephesh) occurs 105 times. To demonstrate that nephesh is the equivalent of psuche, one might well compare Acts 2:27 with Psalm 16:10; Romans 11:3 with 1 Kings 19:10; 1 Corinthians 15:45 with Genesis 2:7; and Matthew 20:28 with Isaiah 53:10.

In the 857 appearances of the word "soul" in the Scripture, nowhere is the prefix "immortal" to be observed. Certainly the Word of God does not advocate or teach that man has an immortal soul.

God did not form a shell and then place a man within to inhabit a cage. In the account of the creation of man, it is worthy to note that the "Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground" and that man received the "breath of life" (not an immortal soul) and became a living (not immortal) soul. The term "living soul" (creature) appears thirteen times in the Scriptures. Eleven times it refers to beasts and twice to man. That in itself should be enough to convince the reasonable mind that man does not have an immortal soul.

It is argued that God breathed into man's nostrils breath, and not into the animals. Asserters, can you prove that God did not breathe into the animals' nostrils? Is it not written concerning the beasts and man, "They have all one breath; so that a man hath no pre-eminence above a beast . . . all go unto one place; all are of the dust, and all turn to dust again"? (Eccl. 3:19, 20.) If all have one breath, are of the dust, and there is no pre-eminence, what then is the difference? The only sane conclusion is that in man's present estate there is no difference.

Benjamin Wilson, early pioneer in the Church of God, well expressed himself concerning the soul, saying: "The Hebrew word nephesh of the Old Testament occurs about 700 times, and is rendered a man, person, self, they, me, him, any one, breath, heart, mind, appetite, the body (dead or alive), lust, creature, and even a beast; for it is 28 times applied to beasts and every creeping thing. The Greek word psuche of the New Testament corresponds with nephesh of the Old. It occurs 105 times, and is rendered soul 59 times, and life 40 times. The same word is also rendered mind, us, you, heart, heartily, and is twice applied to the beasts that perish. Psuchikos, an adjective derived from psuche, occurs six times, and it is translated natural and sensual; it is properly translated animal in modern translations. Perhaps it may be worthy of notice that in all the 700 times which nephesh occurs, and the 105 times of psuche, not once is the word immortal, or immortality, or deathless, or never-dying, found in connection, as qualifying the terms.—The Emphatic Diaglott, page 917 of the Alphabetical Appendix.

Not only does the word "immortal" never prefix the word "soul," but it does not occur once in the original, and only once in the Common Version (1 Tim. 1:17), where it ought to be rendered "incorruptible."

The "soul" has characteristics of which the majority of Christians are unaware. It can die and be destroyed. In Ezekiel 18:4, it is written, "The soul that sinneth, it shall die." (Also, see Josh. 10:28; Isa. 53:12; James 5:20; Acts 3:20.) It is material, for it can be born (Ex. 12:19); die (Rev. 16:3); go to the grave and be raised (Acts 2:31). Those who yell "Materialism!" fail to realize that their charges are only the calling of names. Epithets are no arguments!

In a discussion of "inherent immortality of the soul," it would be most unfair to accept the challenge and then not discuss passages of Scripture that nominal Christendom utilizes to bolster their Devilish lie. Therefore, we submit the following considerations, not as an exhaustive research, but as an eye-opener for the seekers of truth.

Using Jesus' words, "If it were not so, I would have told you," many declare because Christ did not say inherent immortality of the soul was not so, it must be so. This is baseless reasoning. By the foregoing logic, one could say, "Jesus did not say the National Bible Institution would not be located in Tibet, therefore it must be located in Tibet." Such reasoning!

Psalms 22:29 reads: "None can keep alive his own soul." Is it immortal that cannot be kept alive?

In the account of Elijah and a child, Elijah entreated God, "Let this child's soul come into him again" (1 Kings 17:21). "The Lord heard . . . and the soul of the child came into him again, and he revived" (v. 22). The usual explanation is the boy's body died and his immortal soul departed. We note when the son fell sick and died "there was no breath left in him" (v. 17). Is not man composed of dust and breath, and when breath departs man ceases to have life and dies?

Could not the life (soul) of the boy have departed at his death and the life (soul) re-entered when he revived? I ask which was the child—the body or the soul? To reply the body was the child is to say that the child was dead and that which departed and returned was not the child. To say the soul is to admit that it can die. If one still persists in adding and contradicting God's Word by affirming that the child was an immortal soul, then was it not cruel, rather than merciful, to return the soul from its supposed bliss?

When Rachel was dying, it was said, "Her soul was in departing" (Gen. 35:18). It is evident the departure of her soul meant death. Therefore, we say, and the Hebrew allows, that the life (soul) ceased (departed), as a ringing bell ceases when not operated. Who would say a door bell continues to ring when it is not pushed? Why then say man exists after death as a living creature when there is not the combination of dust and breath together to make him exist?

"The first man is of the earth, earthy: the second man is the Lord from heaven" (1 Cor. 15:47). Adam was the first man formed of the earth. A resurrected Christ was the first-fruits of a spiritual birth. Today we bear the image of Adam, tomorrow we shall bear the image of Christ, for "this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality" (1 Cor. 15:53).

There is not a combination of mortality and immortality today or ever. Mortality must cease to put on immortality. Today man has a natural body, tomorrow a spiritual body. There is no individual without one or the other. An individual must have a body to live!

Jesus said, "Whosoever will save his life shall lose it, and whosoever will lose his life for my sake shall find it. For what is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?" (Matt. 16:25, 26.) To nominal Christians these preceding verses are supposedly conclusive evidence that man has an immortal soul and its pricelessness. The Emphatic Diaglott renders the passage: "For whoever would save his life, shall lose it; and whoever loses his life, on my account, shall find it. For what is a man profited, if he should gain the whole world, and forfeit his life? or what will a man give in ransom for his life?" (Matt. 16:25, 26.)

We observe the word "immortal" is not used as a prefix to "soul," and by translating soul, "life," we receive angry objections. The fact is that in verse 25 the very word is translated "life," which in verse 26 (verse in question) is translated "soul." Contenders for this theory desire to insert the prefix "immortal." Since Jesus used the same word in verse 25 that He used in verse 26; and since the immortal soulist is determined to have an immortal soul in verse 26, let us read it in the same way in verse 25: "Whosoever will save his [immortal] soul shall lose it, and whosoever shall lose his [immortal] soul for my sake shall find it." Readily, the observing seeker for truth will realize the futility of trying to prove from these verses that man has an immortal soul. (Please turn to page 10)

News and Prophecy Digest

By C. E. Randall, Fonthill, Ontario

ON TRIAL. The trial of Rudolph Hoess now in process in Warsaw, Poland, is unfolding one of the most atrocious acts ever charged against mortal man. The direct testimony of Hoess is confirming the information laid by Dr. J. M. Blomethal, director of the Jewish Historical Commission in Poland. Hoess has admitted killing of 1,500,000 Jews, and says that shipment of Jews to the camp's gas chambers included 110,000 from France, 95,000 from Holland, 65,000 from Greece, 45,000 from Hungary, and 20,000 from Belgium. Then there were transports from Yugoslavia, Italy, Russia, Rumania, Bulgaria, and Spain. The testimony reveals that Finland was the only country under Nazi domination from which shipments were not made. 4,200,000 European Jews were killed in Poland, with 6,200,000 for all Europe. Besides those killed at Oswiecim Camp, 775,000 perished at Treblinka, 330,000 at Chelmo; 400,000 at Majdanek; 400,000 at Sobibor and Belzce.

With this background of horror and death under Nazi rule, the only thing about which the Allies can really boast in their deliverance of the Jews from persecution is the Displaced Persons Camps. Two years have nearly elapsed since VE day and hundreds of thousands of Europe's Jews are still prisoners of war. The voice of wailing is no longer confined to the "wailing wall" at Jerusalem. Throughout Europe where impoverished and homeless and, shall we say "hopeless," Jews are in the DP camps, there is a wailing wall where prayers constantly arise—pleading for deliverance and asking for an opportunity to make themselves a home. "Inaction and unfeelingness" have been their only answer thus far!

PESACH. An editorial in the "Buffalo Jewish Review" carries a message of desperation rather than a Passover hope of early deliverance. It reads in part: "The festival of Passover called in the Hebrew 'Pesach,' reaches back into antiquity. It is the oldest holiday in the Jewish calendar.

"This, the second Passover since the 'Liberation of the Allies,' finds the Jews of Europe still wandering in the wilderness and looking with the greatest yearning and hope to be led to the Promised Land. Tragic indeed is their plight, for visible as they are to the eyes of all the peoples of the world, few indeed are the hands stretched out to help them.

"This Pesach, too, is a period of supplication for a good year. The Jews of Europe are beseeching the world to heed their cries of anguish and help redeem them from the slavery of 'Inaction and Unfeelingness.'"

How true the word of Scripture—"Slow of heart to believe"! These people have "eyes, and see not . . . have ears, and hear not." They need the prayers of God's people everywhere that the veil soon will be lifted from off their eyes and that they will turn to the Lord and find rest and salvation. Their case has been put into the lap of the United Nations. There is still one other lap into which their problem can be placed. It is the lap of God.

THE UNCHURCHED. From the "World Call," a paper published by the Disciples of Christ, we glean the following information on the membership gains of a number of the larger bodies in the United States. It follows: "According to a Federal census taken in 1944, there were 72,492,669 members in the Christian churches of the United States. This means that more than 50,000,000 people are not members of any church." Their compilations cover a twenty-year period for the years 1924-1944, which shows an average gain of a little more than 20 per cent. The breakdown follows:

Methodist Church	19 per cent
Northern Baptists	20.6 per cent
Disciples of Christ	21.4 per cent
Roman Catholic	25.9 per cent
Lutherans	30 per cent
Southern Baptists	60 per cent

The Southern Baptists have made the largest gain, and this is attributed to the intensive evangelistic effort which they have put forth during the past few years. The gains which they have registered indicate very clearly that evangelism pays. They are putting strong emphasis on personal evangelism, and why should not every member of the body of Christ be an evangelist for His Lord? Personal evangelism is the crown of Christian experience and enjoyment.

STEAMSHIP LINE. The first Palestine Steamship Line to be established has been formed in England under the name of "Kedem Palestine Line." The company has been capitalized at $1,000,000, and the first vessel which will go into operation next month will be the "Kedmah." For the first fifteen years, the London shipping firm of Harris and Dixon will have control, thereafter the management will pass to the Zion Palestine Navigation Co.

NEW TRANSLATION. The American Bible Society has given out the information that the Gospel of John has been translated into Maguindano, which makes the Bible now being printed in 1,080 languages and dialects. This new translation, according to the Society, will be distributed in Cotabato Province, Mindanao, Philippine Islands. Five thousand copies will be printed for this special field. The entire Bible has been translated into 185 languages. The New Testament has been translated into 239 additional tongues, and at least one gospel has been translated and printed into 565 others, with selections into 91 more. The American Bible Society and the British Foreign Bible Society have done a magnificent job in bringing the gospel of the Kingdom to the peoples of earth. I say the "gospel of the Kingdom," for there is no better way to present the message of the Kingdom than through the Word of God. The Bible is its best interpreter.

The multitudes of languages and dialects make the witnessing to the world a tremendous task. The day when the Lord returns to the people a pure language—whatever that will be—will greatly facilitate spreading of the message to all inhabitants of the world, when the earth will be filled with the knowledge of the Lord. "True knowledge leads to true understanding."

TAKE A CHANCE. In the question-and-answer column of "The Canadian Register," a Roman Catholic paper, an answer to one of the questions is amusingly interesting, and yet, it is pathetic to observe how easily people are duped by religious leaders. We give both the question and answer.

Q. "How long after death may a person be anointed?"

A. "One may not be anointed after he is actually dead, as a corpse is incapable of receiving any sacrament. However, there is a reason to believe that there is actually life in the remains for sometime after a person is apparently dead, i.e., after respiration and heart action have ceased. The soul may still be present, and may benefit from the anointing. Consequently, a priest will take the chance and anoint such a person conditionally, as long as the body remains warm." (Emphasis ours.)

GENILE TIMES. The Lord during His discourse on the signs of His return and the end of the Age, stated that Jerusalem would be trodden down of the Gentiles until the "times of the Gentiles be fulfilled." It does not state just when the "times of the Gentiles" started, but the inference is that it was with the treading down of the city of Jerusalem by Gentiles. This treading down first started under the "head of gold," or the days of the Babylonian conquest of the Holy Land, and Jerusalem has been under Gentile domination ever since. One thing is certain about the "times of the Gentiles," and that is when their day is to end. Paul said that the "fulness of the Gentiles" will come when the Deliverer comes out of Zion. In other words, the coming of the Lord will mark an end to the "times of the Gentiles," and the treading down of the Holy City. Incident to this will be the completion of the people which the Lord is taking out from among the Gentiles for His name, which is the church. With the completion of the church, the Lord will come, and with the coming of the Lord, the long-looked-for consolation of Israel will be realized and Jerusalem—"beautiful for situation"—will be delivered once and for all, and the Lord will become the hope of His people. Be sure of this—the Gentile times had a beginning, and they will have an end—and to all indications this end is near at hand.

Is Godliness Profitable in This Life?

By Vernon D. France, Wenatchee, Washington

DO WE expect to benefit in this present life by following Christian principles? Will we be able to live a fuller life in this present time by following God's Word, than we would if we did not follow His Word?

Most of us expect that in order to follow God's teachings, we must undergo a degree of hardship and "sacrifice" in this life, and that our reward will not be realized until we enter the Kingdom. Although there must be sacrifice in this life, there is also evidence to indicate that a certain amount of reward may also be realized in this life, as well as in the life to come. On reading Proverbs 3:1-10, Luke 18:29, 1 Timothy 4:8; and 1 Peter 3:13, we note that they all give indication there is a great deal to be gained in this present life, if we follow the teachings of God's Word.

You may have read Dale Carnegie's famous book, "How to Win Friends and Influence People." It is accepted by the world as being authoritative on the subject of how to get along with people and how to make a success in this life—by worldly standards. It was written as the result of many years of research, the expenditure of thousands of dollars, and extensive investigation by national educational organizations. It became a "best-seller." It is used as a textbook in many colleges. It is widely quoted. It is used as the basis for lecture courses the nation over. This book stresses the principle that in order to make a success of this life—financial and otherwise—the one important precept is to know how to get along with other people. These facts indicate that the book is endorsed by the successful of the world as the key to success.

Though the book contributed much to the successes of innumerable businessmen of the world, the principles are identical to those Jesus taught. Carnegie wrote, "Success in dealing with people depends on a sympathetic grasp of the other man's viewpoint. Be sympathetic. . . . Don't condemn." What did Jesus say? He said, "Judge not, that ye be not judged" (Matt. 7:1). Concerning arguments, Carnegie wrote, "A misunderstanding is never ended by an argument, but by tact, diplomacy, conciliation. . . . You can't win an argument." Jesus taught, "Agree with thine adversary quickly" (Matt. 5:25). Similarly, Paul advised Titus, "Avoid foolish questions, and genealogies, and contentions, and strivings about the law; for they are unprofitable and vain" (Titus 3:9). Carnegie said, "Do you know someone you would like to change and regulate and improve? Good. That is fine. But begin on yourself. Perfect yourself first. Talk about your own mistakes first before criticizing the other person." On the same subject, Jesus said, "Why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye? Thou hypocrite, first cast out the beam out of thine own eye; and then shalt thou see clearly to cast out the mote out of thy brother's eye" (Matt. 7:5). Carnegie wrote, "Any fool can criticize, condemn, and complain—and most fools do. But it takes character and self-control to be understanding and forgiving. . . . That's a lot more profitable than criticism and it breeds sympathy, tolerance, and kindness." Paul advised, "Let all bitterness, and wrath, and anger, and clamour, and evil speaking, be put away from you, with all malice; and be kind one to another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake has forgiven you" (Eph. 4:31, 32). Carnegie quotes an old saying, "Hatred is never ended by hatred, but by love." Paul said, "Recompense no man evil for evil" (Rom. 12:17).

Carnegie sums up his entire book by saying, "Philosophers have been speculating on the rules of human relationship for thousands of years and out of that speculation there has evolved only one important precept. . . . Probably the most important rule in the world. . . . 'Do unto others as you would have others do unto you.'" God's summary of our rules of conduct appears in Matthew 22: 37-40—the law of love—and it also appears in Matthew 7:12: "Whatsoever you would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them."

There is a remarkable parallel between God's teachings to us and the words of Dale Carnegie as he advises his worldly following. We follow God's teachings which are designed to build character and to prepare us for the Kingdom. On the other hand, the successful of this world follow the teachings of Carnegie which are designed for success in this life—social position, income, popularity, prestige, and all the other worldly interests. The world has proved that these principles in practice actually bring about success in this life from the worldly point of view. Carnegie merely echoes the fundamental teachings of God. With this evidence at hand, is it any wonder that "godliness is profitable unto all things, having promise of the life that now is, and of that which is to come" (1 Tim. 4:8)?

"Whatsoever God doeth, it shall stand for ever: nothing can be put to it, nor any thing taken from it."

LIFE MORE ABUNDANTLY

am the resurrection and the life" (John 11:25). In Romans 6:5, we read, "If we have been planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall be also in the likeness of his resurrection." Verse 8 reads, "If we be dead with Christ"—baptized into Jesus Christ; "into his death" (v. 3)—"we believe that we shall also live with him." We will have life; we will live with Jesus, but not until His coming. "The Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first: then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord" (1 Thess. 4:16, 17).

The hope of Christians is the most joyous hope of all religions. Jesus so thoroughly convinced His closest followers of life hereafter that Martha said concerning Lazarus, "I know that he shall rise again in the resurrection at the last day" (John 11:24). Do you believe that you shall rise again? Do you believe that Jesus will give you "life more abundantly" when He comes again, even "a crown of glory that fadeth not away"? (1 Peter 5:4.) "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved"—shall enjoy life more abundantly.

"That [in order that] he should give ETERNAL LIFE to as many as thou hast given him" (v. 2). That is the purpose clearly stated, and that is the honor which God had conferred upon Christ (in prospect) "before the foundation of the world," or, in other words, "before the world was."

Let us again look at this remarkable text: "Now, O Father, honor thou me with thine own self with the honor that I had with [from] thee before the world was." Yes, Jesus had honor in prospect, just as He was already "slain," in prospect, before the foundation of the world. (See Rev. 13:8 and Rom. 4:17.) What then is the import of the words—

"With Thine Own Self"?

Study the Scriptures and it will be found that when a man begets his firstborn son, he gives of himself—his life and the first-fruits of his strength. (See Gen. 49:3, R.V., margin, and Deut. 21:17.) When did God glorify (honor) the Son with His own self? Surely it was when God raised His Son from the dead, and gave Him the honor of having life in Himself as the Father has! (John 5:26; 1 Peter 1:20, 21.) In other words, God honored His promises to give Christ life, even eternal life—life forevermore. (See Psalm 21:4; 61:5, 6.) It was then that God honored the Son with His own Self by making Him a partaker of the divine nature, though it had been in promise in the purpose of the ages before the foundation of the world. (1 Peter 1:20, 21.)

Now turn to John 17:2, 22, and see the connecting thought between these two verses. "And the glory [honor] which thou hast given me [in prospect] I have given to them: that [in order that] they may be one [in life] as we are one." Then note the following thoughts which are in complete harmony with the foregoing:

(1.) "My sheep hear my voice, and I know them, and they follow me; and I give unto them ETERNAL LIFE, and they shall never perish" (John 10:28).

(2.) "Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life" (Rev. 2:10).

(3.) "Ye shall receive a crown of glory [honor] that fadeth not away" (1 Peter 5:4).

(4.) "When he is approved, he shall receive the crown of life" (James 1:12, R.V.; 1 John 2:25).

(5.) The crown of glory [honor] is the crown of life. (See Matt. 25:34.) It is thus, and for this purpose, that He (Christ) was chosen of God, and we also were chosen in Him "before the world was." (Eph. 1:4.) Christ could not give eternal life to others before that life was bestowed on Him.

The Purpose of Life Eternal

This is well expressed in John 17:3 by the Author of this most remarkable prayer, "And this is [the purpose of] life eternal, that [in order that] they should know thee the only true God, and him whom thou didst send, even Jesus Christ" (R.V.). That is the only purpose that will satisfy eternal life.

"I am persuaded, that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus, our Lord" (Rom. 8:38, 39).

INHERENT IMMORTALITY

Invariably, these zealous objectors will then stake their all upon, "Fear not them which kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul: but rather fear him which is able also to destroy both soul and body in hell [Gehenna]" (Matt. 10:28). Apparently, this is a difficult text and bears careful and critical examination. The word "soul" is used in the text as something distinguishable from the body, and it is evident in "killing the body," whatever that may mean as used here, the soul was not killed. In admitting this, however, we still affirm the word "soul" is variously used for body, life, mind, and so forth, and that the text and context must determine its application.

All that the phrase "cannot kill the soul" will justify one in saying is that the soul as used here refers to something man cannot kill. The reason why is not because it is indestructible, for the word "destroy" is applied to the soul and the body in this verse. Many reasons may exist why man could not kill a soul, yet under certain conditions that soul would be capable of being killed. The question is one of prerogative! For sake of illustration, when a criminal is condemned by law to the death sentence, no man can kill, or has the right to kill, the criminal. The state, and the state only, is able to destroy. So it will be at the time of the judgment. Only He who has the right to judge will be able to slay the guilty.

Indeed, it is Scriptural to say the word in this text either stands for "life" or "mind." If for "life," then the resurrected life; and if "mind" as the soul is translated (Acts 14:2; Phil. 1:27; Heb. 12:3), then we can get a clearer understanding of the context. In verses 16-18, we observe the persecutions the disciples were to have undergone. Many of these persecutions were bodily punishments. Though the disciples were severely abused, they still remained unperturbed in mind.

In view of the fact that the wicked are to be cast into Gehenna, not only is their life or soul to be destroyed by fire, but the body is to be devoured either by worm or fire, and there is to be a total destruction of the living creature. Gehenna is not a place of preservation, but a garbage dump where the garbage of Jerusalem is consumed. Likewise, it shall be a refuse dump for humanity where the wicked shall be consumed.

Immortality-of-the-soul idea rests on the "disagreeableness of giving up existence." What men want to be true, they are likely to persuade themselves is true. Truth is too precious a possession to barter off for the good will and applauses of an evil world.

Jesus declared, "Behold, I am alive forevermore" (Rev. 1:18). "Behold" is a herald of an extraordinary event. If Jesus did not receive immortality and had it all the time, what would be so extraordinary about being alive forever?

Jesus, speaking concerning a sleeping Lazarus, said plainly to His disciples, "Lazarus is dead" (John 11:25). Jesus did not say, "Lazarus' body is dead and Lazarus lives," but He did say, "Lazarus is dead."

Today when man dies he sleeps as Lazarus to the resurrection. For this reason we are known as "soul sleepers." Immortality is conditional, not inherent. It depends on resurrection.

EASTER AT RIPLEY, ILLINOIS

A sunrise service was conducted at the Ripley (Ill.) Church of God at 5:00 a.m., Easter Sunday. A very impressive and inspiring sermon and several musical numbers were given. After the service, everyone present stayed for a breakfast served in the basement. The usual Sunday services convened at 10:00 a.m.

Mrs. Thomas Lewis, Secy.

TEMPE, ARIZONA

Easter services of our church began at 6:20 a.m., when approximately thirty people greeted the sun as it arose over the distant Superstition Mountains. A program of music, readings, and a short talk by the writer, had been arranged by the program committee. Afterward, the majority of those present remained for an outdoor picnic breakfast that will not soon be forgotten.

After a short Sunday school session, at which the attendance record was broken, a program was presented by the children and the "teen-agers" of the Sunday school. This was enjoyed by all present, and much credit was given to the aforementioned committee, which consists of Mrs. Clarence Bunch, Mrs. Lucille Wilmot, and Joe Bunch. The largest crowd of the year assembled at the morning service to hear the age-old story of the resurrection ably presented by Bro. C. E. Lapp. The choir sang at this service.

Among the many visitors present were Mrs. H. S. Bell of La Crosse, Wis., her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Merle E. Bell of Tucson, Ariz., and their friend, Mrs. W. G. Austin, also of La Crosse. We were glad to welcome them to our church.

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA

Mrs. Claudia Parks, 720 W. Second St., a faithful member of the Los Angeles Church, died at her home, March 14, of cancer of the stomach. Services were conducted at the Armstrong Funeral Parlors, after which two of her sons, Ray and Julian, accompanied her to Havana, Ark., for interment. Sr. Parks was a regular attendant at Sunday school, church, Berean, and Dorcas meetings and is greatly missed from each of these services.

On Friday evening, April 4, at the home of Raymond O. Smith, brother of the brides, in Hollydale, Bonnie and Betty, two daughters of R. H. and Garavean Smith were united in marriage to Jack Covey and Ray Webber. The double ceremony was performed by the pastor, J. W. McLain, in the presence of about fifty relatives and friends. Many useful gifts were presented to them, and hearty wishes for God's blessings and a happy journey through life. These young ladies were baptized into Christ about six months ago, and we trust will continue to be living witnesses in His service until He comes.

Emma C. Raliback.

MICHIGAN

(Conference Report and Announcement)

The annual conference last June voted to have more Conference meetings during the year to promote fellowship between the churches. This desire was fulfilled by having our fall conference at Blanchard, where we had a record attendance and very enjoyable time.

The Pennellwood Church in Grand Rapids acted as host for the spring conference, March 22 and 23. Due to sickness and bad road conditions, the attendance was not as large as at Blanchard but there was still a goodly number. Having four ministers working in the State to supply the spiritual food, we did not "import" any guest speaker. Most of the people, however, had not had the privilege of meeting Bro. Leonard Brown who joined our staff of ministers only last fall, so he really "filled the bill" as guest speaker. We were all impressed by his earnestness and zeal for his work and are glad to have him as worker in our State. Bro. and Sr. J. M. Watkins were visitors, and we enjoyed their fellowship and the short talk given by Bro. Watkins.

We are now looking forward to the annual June Conference and Bible School to be held at the Southlawn Church in Grand Rapids, June 16-22, with Bro. Grover Gordon as guest speaker and teacher. Many of the Michigan people have never had the privilege of meeting him, so we are looking forward to his work. Begin now to make plans to come.

"Speak to the Rock"

Today's lesson is nearly forty years after the Israelites failed God. They had not trusted Him as their leader, having been afraid of the people living in the Promised Land. Therefore God punished them by causing them to wander in the wilderness for forty years. None of the people who were over twenty years old when they left Egypt, except Joshua and Caleb, were allowed to enter the Promised Land.

In today's lesson we find the Israelites complained of many of their hardships. God told Moses to take his rod. He was to gather the people together. Then he and Aaron were to go before the people. He was told to "speak ye unto the rock before their eyes." God promised them water out of the rock for the people and their beasts to drink.

What Moses Forgot

Moses had faithfully followed the Lord's wishes until this time. He had been a good leader.

Moses took the rod. He and Aaron gathered the people together, but he forgot to speak to the rock! He spoke to the complaining congregation, saying: "Hear now, ye rebels; must we fetch you water out of this rock?" Moses said we not God. He hit the rock not once but twice! Yes, the water gushed forth. The people and their beasts drank their fill, but God was not glorified. Moses forgot to honor God as he should. Moses himself could not perform this miracle. It was God's power that produced the water from the rock.

For this mistake made in anger, Moses was denied entrance into the Promised Land. God let Moses look into it from a mountain (see golden text above).

There is a lesson in this story for us. We are trying to serve God. We must always be mindful of the fact that if we trust in our own righteousness we will fail. It is God and Christ's righteousness that is holy and helps us to overcome evil.

We are told that "if the righteous scarcely be saved, where shall the ungodly and the sinner appear?" (1 Peter 4:18.)

If God punished Moses who had been faithful most of his lifetime, how can we expect anything different if we fail Him?

May we strive to be faithful in all things and do our best to follow Christ every day.

Let's Play!

Put a "T" or "F" before each statement that follows. Answers are on page 11.

1. Moses used the rod when he performed miracles.
2. Aaron was told to speak to the rock.
3. Water came forth from the rock.
4. The water was good only for the animals to drink.
5. Moses hit the rock as God commanded.
6. The leaders, Moses and Aaron, forgot to sanctify God in the eyes of the people.
7. Aaron died before Moses did.
8. Moses saw the Promised Land.
9. Moses entered the Promised Land.
10. Moses died not long after he had looked at the Promised Land.

Considerate

Little Marie, aged six years, was a very observing child. Even at the funeral of her favorite grandmother, she missed nothing of the long ceremony. Attentively, she listened and watched every move around the flower-decked casket. That night at bedtime, she was unusually quiet. Wistfully, she said to her mother, "I won't need to say my prayers tonight, Mumsie."

"And why not, dear?"

"Because God will be too busy to listen while He's unpacking Grandmother."—Selected.

THEY ARE - ATOMIC!

"How can a young person be made that interested in Christ?" you ask. "By making Christ the very center of your Berean meetings," is the answer. Perhaps we have done everything but that. Like the church of Laodicea, we have everything which is materially necessary for our meetings, but Christ is outside the door with no one to let Him in. (Rev. 3:14-22.) Could it be that we have let our social hour, or our chorus singing, or our contests, or some other activity take the place of Christ in our meetings? People are inspired to action by personalities, not by facts! If we forget the personality of Christ, and make some trifle the center of our meetings, how can we expect to inspire anyone to do anything. Let us let Jesus, our real Leader, our Source of strength, our Guide, and the greatest Personality in the world, into our meetings! Let everything center in Him!

Young people are very much like atomic energy. They are capable of lying quietly doing neither good nor harm, or of being inspired and led into doing great deeds, or of being led to do much harm. They are atomic! In them is a store of potential energy which must be touched off by a spark of interest and controlled to accomplish the work of the Lord.

There always has been energy in the atom, but that energy was wasted until it was learned how to release it and control it. So it has been with our young people. There always has been great energy and capacity for wonderful work there, but we have never known how to set it in motion and control it toward constructive ends. Given the right inspiration, that energy can be a boon to the world, but given wrong inspiration and surroundings that energy can raise havoc in the world.

Interest in the cause of Christ is the spark which is necessary to release that energy in the right direction. That should be one of our basic goals as youth leaders and as Berean societies: to enlist all the young people we can under the banner of Christ, that He might set them to work in the Christian way. When youthful energy is exploded into church work, evangelism, music, or one of the other phases of Christ's work, that work is jet-propelled ahead. When that same energy is exploded in a nightclub, or a street corner gang, someone usually gets hurt. One of our purposes is to give the right inspiration and the right environment so that the release of young energy will aid and not hinder Christ's work.

In youth is locked power! Only a challenge to work will release that power. We have been pussy-footing too long, skirting the issue, whitewashing the facts, and building on wrong ideas. It is high time we got down to the real business of young Christians. Like the atom bomb, youth has sizzled and fumed, caused trouble and anxiety, got the attention of the whole world, and created a nationwide juvenile delinquency complex. Now, the eyes of the church are upon the enlivened Berean society. We can live up to our boasts or fail miserably. You are challenged as never before, to prove that the atomic energy of youth can build a Christ-centered church, put life into church work, and bring sinners to the Lord. Are you a boom or a bubble? Are you centered in Christ or self? Are you Bereans because you always want to do what Christ would do or because you want a good time? Take inventory and find out what you are doing with your atomic energy!

MULLIN, TEXAS

Each and every member of the Church of God at Mullin, Texas, is urged to come to church on Sunday, April 27. The Mullin church is trying to organize its congregation and to start a fund for the Texas State Conference. Every member's support is needed to do this. Please do not forget this date, brethren, and tell everyone you see. Let us wake up to our duty and do our best to revive the work in Texas. Please do remember to come to church on April 27. Mrs. J. T. Gandy.

VIRGINIA NOTES

We sorrow with Sr. Virginia Kincheloe and her family over the loss of their husband and father, James U. Kincheloe. Funeral services were held April 13 at Fairfax, Va. Visitors at Virginia Conference will remember the hospitality of the Kincheloe home when they visited Washington. A kindly man, friend to all, he left so many friends that services were held at the graveside to accommodate the many hundreds who attended.

Two daily vacation Bible schools are now scheduled for Virginia early in the summer. The first, at the Church of God at Dry Run, will be conducted June 23-27, inclusive. The next week, June 30 - July 4, inclusive, with preaching services evenings, will be conducted at Browntown.

Sr. Emilie Pifer is in the hospital for a general check-up. We trust she will be with us again soon.

Sr. George Cleek of Staunton, Va., is confined to bed with flu.

We were happy to have Sr. Esta McInturff and Sr. Frank Morrison at church Sunday, after a long siege of flu.

Spring has finally come to our Valley. Fruit trees are in bloom. The early flowers are faded, but more are bursting into bloom. This is a favorite time of year here for those who enjoy the beauty and fragrance of blossoms.

EASTER AT "MORNING STAR" (South Bend, Indiana)

The Morning Star Church of God (Abrahamic Faith) was very glad to have Bro. Sydney E. Magaw for a pre-Easter series of meetings, April 2-6. The Easter services began at 6:30 a.m., with a sunrise service, followed by breakfast. Our Sunday school services featured "the Story of the Resurrection," told by colored slides and song, the slides being shown by the Sunday school superintendent, Paran Anderson.

At the close of Bro. Magaw's Easter morning sermon, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hostettler requested to be baptized. They were baptized that afternoon at Pin Hook Park by Bro. Magaw. Their son, Earl Hostettler, upon request, was baptized at this time also. We are very glad to welcome this family into the church.

Mrs. Paran W. Anderson, Secy.

Companion Bibles are available, via National Bible Institution, at $20.00 per copy, postpaid. Here is a book somewhat costly, but worth all its costs.

Mr. James E. Kincheloe, Fairfax, Va., died at his home, April 11. Funeral services were conducted, April 13, at his home and at the graveside in Fairfax Cemetery. Our sympathy goes to his widow, Sr. Virginia Kincheloe, and to all others who mourn the death of Mr. Kincheloe. His kind and friendly disposition won for him a host of friends.

Included in the Golden Rulers basketball team on its recent trip to Brush Creek, Ohio, were: Timothy Pearson, Edwin Smith, Rand Smith, Warren Sorenson, Hiram Schier, Emory Macy, and Ivan and Milo Magaw. Others accompanying the team included Charles Pearson, Mrs. Timothy Pearson, Mrs. Edwin Smith, Barbara Claussen, from Oregon, Ill., and Mrs. Emory Macy accompanied her husband from Kokomo, Ind. While at Brush Creek, it was our pleasure to visit with Bro. and Sr. G. E. Marsh, our brother Vivian Magaw and his family, also to preach for the Brush Creek brethren on Sunday morning, April 13. "Grandma" Magaw returned with us to Oregon, Ill., planning soon to continue her way homeward to Lester Prairie, Minn.

Sr. Paul Friebe, Oregon, Ill., is visiting her son and daughter, Norman and Verna, in Los Angeles, Calif.

Accompanied by Bros. Paul C. Johnson and Charles Pearson (other passengers not yet known), the Editor motored to Sioux Rapids, Iowa, April 19, for the Iowa Spring Conference.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by

National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois
The Restitution Herald is official organ of the General Conference of the Church of God.

Subscription rate: 50 issues per year, $2.50.

The Restitution Herald advocates: the near return of Christ (Acts 1:11), and life only through Him (Col. 3:3); the literal resurrection of the dead (John 5:28); the immortalization of those in Christ (1 Cor. 15:53, 51); the destruction of the wicked (Rev. 21:8); the final restoration of Israel as the Kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ (Luke 1:32), the church to be joint-heirs with Him (Rom. 8:17), and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations (Isa. 60:1-3); the "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21). It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

FONTHILL, CANADA

Greetings from Canada to all the brethren everywhere. We are glad to report our work here is progressing slowly, but firmly, in the various branches. This is, of course, the result of regular, determined "stick-to-it-iveness" practiced by the active faithful members, plus good leadership, plus (last, but by no means least) God's blessing and favor; for without God we know we can do nothing.

A recent report of our perfect Sunday school attendance for the quarter ending March 30, showed forty had been present every Sunday. In the majority of these cases, you will find the parents of the children having perfect attendance right there also, setting the right example of regular attendance and working interest.

A very worth-while and congenial board meeting was held at the parsonage recently. We are glad to report that our pledge to Oregon Bible College is about to be paid. The trustees, meeting in separate session, appointed Bro. Howard Beemer, Sr., as chairman of their board. The first Wednesday evening of each month is now set apart for board gatherings. The warm air of hospitality so freely given to us at the parsonage adds greatly to the pleasantness of these meetings, as well as the dainty lunches served afterwards.

The middle of March, the Married Fellowship Group held an enjoyable supper meeting. Officers were elected as follows: Doris Lane, president; Caroline Dilamarter, vice president; Maurice Anger, secretary; Jack McArthur, treasurer. Pictures on the development of highway transportation were shown by Bro. Randall. The April meeting was held at the David and Jean Elliott home.

A double shower was held recently for Jack and Flossie McArthur, and Billy and Janet Bell. The couples received many useful gifts, and in most cases the gifts were alike. Janet came all the way from Scotland to become Billy Bell's bride. We as a church group welcome her to Canada, and hope she and her husband will worship with us often. The McArthurs do meet with us from Welland, and they, too, are always welcome.

Sr. Doris Lane has again returned to Toronto General Hospital for clinic examination. We know all will remember her in prayer.

Quite a few of our members have been victims of the flu recently. Each one is missed from his or her accustomed place. We wish a speedy recovery to one and all.

We extend sympathy to the Brown family of Niagara Falls, N. Y., and the Dilamarter family of Welland, both having suffered the loss of a mother from their family circles.

Our first elder, Bro. Joe Fletcher, can tell you quite a bit about the perils of the recent Canadian winter, having, with his family, been snowbound near Shelburn, Ont., for more than a week.

We are glad to report two new members for our cradle roll: a son, Kenneth Robert, born to Red and Dorothy Napper of Welland; and a daughter born to Melvin and Violet Haines of Fonthill. "Bring up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old, he will not depart from it."

On the Wednesday night before Easter, a Communion service, held in commemoration of its institution by the Lord on the night in which He was betrayed, was greatly appreciated by the brothers and sisters in Christ who took part. We believe a very close sacred bond was felt by those present. Some prayed or offered comments, and favorite hymns were sung.

Easter morning dawned bright and spring-like here. Instead of the usual Sunday school classes, a special Easter program, consisting of recitations from pupils of the various classes, several special numbers by the junior choir, and a closing talk by our pastor was much enjoyed. In the following church service, Bro. Randall was assisted by Bro. Howard Beemer, Jr., of Oregon Bible College. The senior choir, accompanied by Sr. Blanche Page, contributed two special Easter anthems. At the eight o'clock meeting, the service was blessed by two choirs, the junior choir seated on the left of the pulpit, while the senior choir assisted on the right side of the church. Greatly blessed, are we not, with two choirs! Take heart, you church groups, who as yet have no choir, or perhaps one just in the making. It can be done if you have willing, regular workers who will sacrifice and give of their time and talent. Sr. Doris Fletcher accompanied the junior choir in their special Easter music. The junior choir has for several months been receiving special direction under Mr. Hammons of Saint Catharines, who also assists the senior choir.

The junior Bereans several times recently have taken the opening exercises of the Sunday evening services. Thursday evening of last week, this same group held a social in the church basement.

Plans for our annual May Meeting are in the making. Bro. F. L. Austin has been engaged as guest speaker, and we are all looking forward to welcoming him back to Fonthill.

Our weekly studies under Bro. Randall's leadership are very interesting and instructive, and we are being made to realize more and more the importance of standing for truth and having a love for truth.

OREGON BIBLE COLLEGE SUMMER SESSION

DATE—June 30 - July 27

AGE—18 or over

CREDIT—5 hours in four subjects

INSTRUCTORS—Otto Dick
James M. Watkins, Norman McLeodCOST—$40.00 for board, room, and tuition

This year Oregon Bible College is going all the way in trying to give every Christian the chance for a greater personal preparation for service.

Courses of a practical nature of benefit to local church workers or those who desire to use their college credit toward further preparation for the ministry are being offered under the most qualified instruction.

Complete details will be announced later. If you are one of those interested, send your name on a post card so we may keep you informed personally.

FREDERICKTOWN

In this issue of "The Voice of Missouri" we honor Fredericktown. Following is a history of the church:

The Church of God of the Faith of Abraham, at Fredericktown, Missouri, was organized in 1937. The building was bought from the Episcopalians and was dedicated by Brother S. J. Lindsay in August, 1937, for the purpose of teaching the Bible and its doctrines of "life and salvation." There were twenty charter members pledging themselves to Christian service and teaching the "gospel to every creature." The first elders elected were Brothers W. S. Cooper, Henry Cooper, and Marvin Cooper.

The first services were begun in 1937: a Sunday school on Sunday morning and Berean Bible study on Wednesday evening. These classes, both Sunday school and Bible study, consisted of only one group, because the attendance was usually about seven persons.

The following year all services continued and Brothers Roy Graham and Lloyd Cooper gave sermons on Sunday morning and evening. Every fifth Sunday, Brother L. E. Conner preached Saturday evening, and twice on Sunday. In August, 1938, the Missouri State Conference met at Fredericktown, this being the first time for Fredericktown to be host, and the conference continued to meet here each year until in 1946, when it convened in Jordan. During the years 1938 and 1939, the guest speakers of the conference were Brothers Lindsay and Conner.

In December, 1939, the board of directors met and obtained Brother Clarence Lapp to preach the third Sunday of every month for the year of 1940. It was during that year that the constitution of the church was written and adopted by the church. The constitution provided for a full staff of officers which were elected when the constitution was adopted. The membership had increased from twenty to fifty during this period, and we felt that God's blessing surely had been given to us.

Brother Lapp was with us until the early spring of 1942. At this time, it was decided that a senior from Oregon Bible College, Oregon, Illinois, be asked to preach on the third Sunday of each month. In July, 1942, it was voted to hire a full-time pastor. Brother Ellsworth Routsen, a graduate of Oregon Bible College was obtained. He served the congregation for a period of two years. In the spring of 1944, Brother Routsen resigned to accept the pastorate of the Church of God in Los Angeles, California.

The next pastor who came to our church was Brother Roy G. Graham of Saint Louis, Missouri. He is still serving in this capacity at the present time.

In the fall of 1945, our church building had become inadequate because of the increased membership and attendance. The situation was discussed, and it was decided that it might be possible to build a new church. The old church was sold to the Seventh Day Adventist congregation, and a lot on which to build the new church was secured from them. Construction was started on the new church in February, 1946. The plans were drawn by Brother

Roy G. Graham, and the building was supervised by him with the help of all members of the congregation. To date it is not completed, but we are very proud of the progress that has been made.

The building is fifty-eight feet in length and thirty-six feet in width, plus a vestibule entrance on the front corner which is twelve by twelve feet. The roof is very steep in structure. The building is finished in red granite and probably will be trimmed in white mortar. There is a full basement under the auditorium. The auditorium and the rostrum are lighted with fluorescent lights. The pews, the Communion table, and the pulpit are of beautiful matching oak. There are three classrooms; one on each side of the rostrum and one in the upstairs vestibule. It is planned to make classrooms in the basement when it becomes necessary; but, at present, it will be used for basket dinners and other activities. The heating system, an automatic gas furnace, has not yet been installed, but will be in the near future. Because of the heating situation, it has been necessary to discontinue evening services; but they will be resumed as soon as the furnace can be installed.

There is much work to be done, but, the Lord willing, it will be completed in a short time.

(The new church at Fredericktown has cost in excess of $15,000.00. They still owe about $7,000.00 and have some more expense yet. Anyone wishing to help these fine brethren can send contributions to Marvin Cooper, Fredericktown, Missouri.—F. E. B.)

BOSWORTH - JORDAN - KANSAS CITY

We are sorry to report that in all three congregations there has been much sickness. Many have had the flu but some were more seriously sick. Mrs. C. S. Bowman of Kansas City had an operation in February and has now recovered. Mrs. D. D. Lawrence of Kansas City also had an operation about the same time and did not fully recover before taking pneumonia as did also her son and daughter. They are all well now.

We were glad to see renewed interest in Kansas City at our last meeting. Our work therefore has been at low ebb during this winter.

Because of deep snow on March 2, we had no services at Jordan. Our midweek Bible class at Jordan has good interest and attendance. We are studying the Book of Romans. We are looking forward to our vacation Bible school, May 18-28, which Sister Verna Thayer will conduct. This will be the first of this kind of school ever held in this community.

Plans are in the making to do some special work at Bosworth in the form of a two-weeks' meeting. We will stay there during that time and through various means try to create more interest and enthusiasm there. This will probably be sometime in June.

THANK YOU!

Our thanks to Sister Flora Graham of Fredericktown and a committee of helpers for gathering and assembling the history of the Fredericktown church.

The Jordan church wishes to thank the Delta Bereans, Delta, Ohio, and Ida Vogel, Saint Louis, Missouri, for their generous contributions toward our new parsonage. We still owe $950.00 on the parsonage. Anyone desiring to contribute to it may send contributions either to the editor of this page or to our treasurer, Mrs. Loren Rybee, Cross Timbers, Missouri.

Ralph Thomas, Treasurer. Flat River, Missouri.

We make an urgent appeal to the Missouri Church members to support our conference work. As can be plainly seen by the preceding report, our treasury, at the present trend, will soon have a deficit. Missouri Church of God members, this is your conference and year work. Especially do we appeal to the isolated members and to church members who have to active work. Make regular contributions to our state treasurer at the above address.

We feel that Christians should contribute financially to the Lord's work; and we believe that neglecting to contribute financially is neglecting a most important part of our Christianity. The conference and its work only can be strong as its members make it. You are a member. Remember Ralph Thomas, Flat River, Missouri.

PLANS IN THE MAKING

The week end of March 29 and 30, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Sundwall, Leon and Naomi Dicks-kill, and the writer drove to Fredericktown to Brother Sundwall and I could meet with other members of the state conference heard to make plans for our next conference. While there, Brother Sundwall showed the moving picture taken during our conference last August, and the writer spoke for the Fredericktown brethren on Saturday evening and Sunday morning. We all enjoyed a basket dinner following the Sunday morning service. We certainly enjoyed our short visit with these brethren.

MISSOURI STATE CONFERENCE

During the nine days, August 9-17, 1947, the Missouri State Conference will be in session. Fredericktown will be the host. We know that the brethren at Fredericktown are not lacking in hospitality.

Start making your plans today to attend this conference. Young and old, plan your vacations now and be able to associate with those of "like precious faith" and enjoy a spiritual good time. We know that the time is coming when there will be a "famine in the land, not a famine of bread, nor a thirst for water, but of hearing the words of the Lord." Take advantage of every opportunity to worship God and His Son Jesus. COME to the conference, August 9-17, 1947, Fredericktown.

Unique Chapel Address

Brother H. S. Bell, LaCrosse, Wisconsin, a senior engineer of the Burlington Railroad, recently presented an interesting and helpful chapel address to students of Oregon Bible College. Ordinarily, one does not think of railroad men as being devout. This engineer's message was unique, therefore, in that high recognition was given God as his constant Source of Help. Though a layman, Brother Bell gave testimony to the value of prayer at least comparable to the testimony one might expect from a minister of the gospel. So instructive and inspiring was his message that we are glad to present it in this HERALD for general reading. (See pages 3, 4, and 5.) Thank you, Brother Bell, for your service. The College welcomes you for another address.

Courtesy from the Burlington

The pictures accompanying Brother H. S. Bell's article, contributed by Burlington officials in Chicago, excellently illustrate certain parts of his address, though he was unaware that these pictures would be available. We congratulate the Burlington on its employ of Brother Bell; we thank the Burlington for its courtesy in granting use of the pictures.

William Dick Visits Eastern Cities

When Brother and Sister Otto E. Dick and their family last fall moved to Oregon, Illinois, it necessitated that their son, Brother William Dick, leave his high school senior class at Scireleville, Indiana. Honor has been shown him, however, by his former high school in tendering him an invitation to accompany the Scireleville junior and senior students on a sightseeing trip to Washington, D. C., and New York City. The excursion is scheduled for April 26 - May 3, the group traveling by bus and under auspices of the Scireleville High School.

William Dick

accurate information. We rejoice with Brother "Billy" Dick in the opportunity extended him by his former high school, believing that the experience will add richly to his knowledge and development.

Not Slaves, but Friends

Speaking to His disciples, Jesus said: "I do not call you slaves any longer, for a slave does not know what his master is doing, but now I call you friends, for I have made known to you everything that I have learned from my Father" (John 15:15, Goodspeed). Though, in Matthew 11:29, Jesus said, "Take my yoke upon you," none should think of Jesus as being a hard Master. The Christ of God is not a slaveholder. Indeed, He promises, "I am meek and lowly in heart . . . ye shall find rest unto your souls." In countries where slavery has been practiced, the slaves stood very low, socially, with their master. As Jesus said, "A slave does not know what his master is doing." No Christian, therefore, should think of his service to Christ as being unto an unknown or unsympathetic Lord. Christians are His friends.

As friends of the Christ, His followers should feel free to approach Him with all their problems. He can "be touched with the feelings of our infirmities." He is the "Friend that sticketh closer than a brother." Concerning His own friendship to us, Jesus said: "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends" (John 15:13). Jesus did that for us—the "Just for the unjust."

Concerning our friendship for Him, Jesus said: "Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you" (v. 14). "Well," someone may ask, "what particular commandment did Jesus have in mind?" In the same context, Jesus is quoted as having said, "This is my commandment, That ye love one another, as I have loved you" (v. 12). Consider not only the manner in which Jesus showed His love for His friends, but the extent—the full measure—of His love! Do we love one another as He loved us? That is His command and the premise upon which He calls us His friends. Therefore, "See that ye love one another with a pure heart fervently" (1 Peter 1:22).

Railroading and the Ministry

By H. S. Bell, LaCrosse, Wisconsin

IT IS AN HONOR and a privilege to talk to this student body of Oregon Bible College. When Brother Magaw asked me to talk to you on my experiences as a railroad engineer, my first impulse was to decline—this being my first attempt at anything of this kind. It was not because I did not wish to address you, but I felt incompetent. Then the question came, "Why reject the invitation?" Today, I feel "at home," being among my own church people, and I hope to interest you.

First, I wish to say a word about your instructors and College workers. They are men and women well qualified to guide you in Christian living and instruct you in God's truths. Some of them I have known for several years. You boys and girls have made the greatest choice of your lives in coming here to learn truth and how to comfort people with the gospel of Christ.

In a study of the history of railroading, we find that the first locomotives and trains were very rough, crude affairs, and this was true also of the men who worked on them. The "Boomer" railroader, as he was called, roaming from one part of the country to the other, was almost an "untouchable." The standards of equipment and service have improved and so have the standards required of the men. For instance, a full high school course is required of an applicant.

Railroads are divided into divisions. I am on the LaCrosse Division, running to Saint Paul and Minneapolis from LaCrosse, or to Savanna, Illinois. I cannot run from Savanna to Chicago, though it is on the same Chicago, Burlington, and Quincy Railroad, due to seniority restrictions for the division to which an employee is assigned. In that way, men may own homes and become part of their respective communities, the same as professional men. The company rules are strict and a man is likely to lose his position if he becomes intoxicated, is caught gambling, or lives an immoral life that would make him unfit for service when he is called for duty. One cannot even frequent the places intoxicating liquors are sold. Trainmen are not allowed to smoke while on duty in passenger service, and I wish it were barred entirely.

The Chicago, Burlington, and Quincy Railroad always has been known to require a high standard for its men, teaching them to give the ultimate in service. We are required to pass a rigid physical examination each year after reaching fifty years of age. If you students think that because we railroad men are not in school we do not have tests and examinations, you are mistaken. We must know books of rules of our own and other railroads and learn definitions almost word-for-word. The classes convene every two years, or more often if there are new developments. When a man is to be promoted from fireman to engineer or brakeman to conductor, he studies for weeks and months and often must take an examination more than once before he is accepted for promotion.

As an engineer, I am responsible for my fireman to a certain extent to see that he does his work so I can do mine. As a passenger engineer, I am responsible for the hundreds of lives riding on the trains I operate. I must always be on the alert for any danger. I must observe all safety rules and watch all signals, just as you students going into the ministry must always guard the welfare of those in your care. Just as I could not take a train over the road without the teamwork of my fireman, the trainmen, and even the section men who build and maintain the tracks, so you will need the co-operation of those you are trying to lead. Never forget that each one is necessary, though his part seems very small.

Now, I will tell you about some of the more technical parts of railroading which may interest you. There has been a great change from the steam locomotive to the diesel. The diesel engine was first exhibited by General Motors at the Century of Progress in Chicago in 1933. The first Burlington Zephyr using a diesel engine was completed in April, 1934. Since then, other railroads have used them. The CB&Q now operates sixteen diesel-electric locomotives in passenger service. If promises are fulfilled, we soon will have all diesel locomotives pulling our passenger trains.

Formerly, fifty miles an hour was considered a high average speed; now the speed ranges from eighty to one hundred miles an hour. Such change in speed made some difference in our working, for it is far more difficult to do one's work going one hundred miles an hour than when traveling only forty or fifty miles an hour. The newest diesels have four thousand horsepower units for passenger service and fifty-four hundred horsepower for freight service.

While considering the speed of a modern passenger train, I would like to impress a safety lesson upon each of you. A train going seventy-five miles an hour goes a mile in forty-eight seconds; at eighty mile an hour, in forty-five seconds; at eighty-five miles an hour, in forty-three seconds; and at ninety miles an hour, in forty seconds. Very few people approaching a crossing in a car are educated in judging distance as we are trained to do. Do not take chances when you see a train approaching, as seconds are too short and thousands of lives are needlessly lost. Freight trains are also speeded up to fifty and sixty miles an hour, so let us not take any chances. Most of the people approaching crossings today do not change speed. Railroad engineers cannot stop for railroad crossings; the driver of the automobile is the one who should stop. Recently, the Zephyr hitting a truck that was loaded with pig iron could not stop. It killed the engineer—a truckload of pig iron being dumped where he was sitting.

One of the most significant railroad developments during the war was that conceived by General Motors and executed by the Burlington in the form of the "Vista Dome" car. It is a raised, glass-enclosed penthouse, from which passengers can enjoy an unobstructed view of the country in all directions. The glass is both heat-and-ray-resisting, and the car is air conditioned to control humidity and temperature.

The new Empire Builder between Chicago and Seattle makes the trip in forty-five hours. It is equipped with the latest comforts for the traveler—being luxury personified. It was on exhibition at LaCrosse, Wisconsin, February 9. One thing I noticed particularly was a buffet car in which, we were told, sandwiches and coffee with light lunches would be sold, but no liquor. I hope this will become true of all trains, for one is often disgusted and revolted when on a long trip he notices most of the passengers making constant trips to the club car and cocktail bar. This fleet of five complete streamlined trains, of which the Burlington owns one and the Great Northern the other four, cost seven and one half millions of dollars.

I wonder if you would like to visualize yourself making a trip with me from Savanna to North LaCrosse. First, I would go to the roundhouse office. There I would register my watch on a special form for this purpose. On another form, I would register my name and fireman, time reporting for duty, leaving time, and time of rest period. This registering must be done each time before we leave on a trip, or upon being relieved after our tour of duty. After donning my overalls, we would climb up into the cab where you would notice that my mind was completely occupied: examining my train order, making both standing and running tests of the air brakes, and, after leaving the terminal, being fully occupied watching for signals, crossings, and any obstructions that would make the trip hazardous. Slippery rails caused by ice, snow, and wet leaves, provide another danger with which an engineer has to contend. One of the most confining and hazardous problems an engineer has to contend with is dense fog. This hazard is prevalent along the Mississippi River, being more noticeable during sudden changes in weather conditions. Our signals are set some two miles apart, some being closer when closing in at a station, and these are what we call "cut in" with the next signal, so we are sure to have a restricted signal far enough in advance to insure safety. Sometimes the fog is so dense that it is with extreme anxiety that an engineer moves over the road.

There are about seventy-five public crossings from Savanna to LaCrosse where we have to keep the bell ringing and sound the whistles freely: two longs, one short, and one long blast of the whistle continued until over the crossing, for every crossing! This alone is one of the great handicaps of railroading in the fog, for there are times when it is not safe to move faster than three to five miles an hour. You students also will have times when you will be working in a fog of uncertainty, but be patient, go slow, and by faith and prayer, God will guide you through it.

I have tried to show you a little of the duties and requirements of one running a locomotive. Now, perhaps I can show you where some of your duties and requirements will be similar to mine. You, also, will need to live a clean, moral life, abstaining from tobacco and liquor, that your bodies may be well and strong and fit temples for the Spirit of God. Your minds also must be prepared for your work of the ministry by these years of study and preparation. I have spent more than forty years in railroad service. If you were to take that suggested trip with me, it probably would look quite glamorous to see me run one of those new streamliners from Savanna to LaCrosse in a couple of hours—and for that receive a full day's pay. Do not forget, however, the years I put in firing a steam engine, shoveling tons of coal, being called at all hours of the day and night, in blizzards or intense summer heat. You, too, may be called away from your homes at nights, on holidays, or at times inconvenient to you and your family, but when someone needs the services only you as their pastor can give them, give it like your life depended upon it.

I always have taken great pride in my work. When I get on an engine with a new fireman, I advise him that I will not be satisfied with anything less than his best. I serve to the best of my ability not for the money, because my pay would be the same whether I made a poor run or a good one, but I have to live with myself and I get so much pleasure out of knowing I did not shirk. Do not expect that your best efforts always will be noticed and appreciated by others, but you will know it and, better still, God will know it!

The Lord has done some of my work—especially during the first years of my train service when my inexperience led me to depend upon Him. I put my whole hope in the One who could help me. I did not trust in myself. Frequently while on duty, I pray. Once, my locomotive was derailed, and I was under severe criticism by a fellow trainman as to my method of getting the engine back on the track. The outlook was almost hopeless. When nobody saw me, I prayed. Then I slowly applied the steam, fearful that the temporary shunting rails might not hold. Slowly, the engine pulled up onto the track. Prayer to God put my engine on the rails! Then the criticism ceased, and the train continued on its way. God is the world's greatest Engineer!

Oftentimes, rewards will come to you greater than any amount of money. One time when I was on a passenger run, we were late and a mother and father were trying to reach the bedside of their son, being required to make connections in Saint Paul, Minnesota. The mother pleaded with the conductor to do something. He told her there was nothing he could do, but if it was possible his engineer would make up the time. We did! After we reached Saint Paul, the conductor told me how this mother was so grateful, though she never saw me. I knew nothing of this anxiety back in the train until we had made the complete run, but how very thankful I was that I had done all I could!

My fight in railroad work has been to guard against all carelessness while on duty and to keep my own life as free as possible from the temptations to which we all are subjected. Your fight carries a greater responsibility than any other calling known to men. Carelessness on my part could result in bringing death to many people. Carelessness in your work may cause others to lose eternal life. Therefore, "Fight the good fight of faith; lay hold on eternal life, whereunto thou art called, and hast professed a good profession before many witnesses."

My parting thoughts to you are these: 1) Accept the call to God's work; then be willing to obey His orders. 2) Be ever on watch for the danger signals of worldly temptations. 3) Put your best into every day's work, and, when God's great payday comes, you will find your recompense is far greater than you ever anticipated. I thank you.

INVISIBLE ENGINEER

WHITHER shall I go from thy spirit? or whither shall I flee from thy presence? If I ascend up into heaven, thou art there: if I make my bed in hell"—sheol, the grave—"behold thou art there. If I take the wings of the morning, and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea; even there shall thy hand lead me, and thy right hand shall hold me. If I say, Surely the darkness shall cover me; even the night shall be light about me. Yea, the darkness hideth not from thee; but the night shineth as the day: the darkness and the light are both alike to thee. . . .

"I will praise thee; for I am fearfully and wonderfully made: marvellous are thy works; and that my soul knoweth right well. My substance was not hid from thee, when I was made in secret, and curiously wrought in the lowest parts of the earth. Thine eyes did see my substance, yet being unperfect; and in thy book all my members were written, which in continuance were fashioned, when as yet there was none of them. . . .

"How precious also are thy thoughts unto me, O God! how great is the sum of them! If I should count them, they are more in number than the sand. . . .

"Search me, O God, and know my heart: try me, and know my thoughts: and see if there be any wicked way in me, and lead me in the way everlasting." (Psalm 139: 7-24.)

"Even the youths shall faint and be weary, and the young men shall utterly fall: but they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; and they shall walk, and not faint" (Isa. 40:30, 31).

RESURRECTION

By E. H. Goit, Youngston, New York

RESURRECTION is to rise again, or to be revived. God's Word plainly teaches that man lies down at death in an unconscious sleep, to expire of all life until a resurrection. We who are members of the Church of God sometimes are called "Soul Sleepers," for we believe the Bible teaches immortality is conditional and not inherent. As a church, we believe, teach, and advocate that immortality depends on a resurrection.

Job said, "If a man die, shall he live again? all the days of my appointed time will I wait, till my change come. Thou shalt call, and I will answer thee: thou wilt have a desire to the work of thine hands" (Job 14:14, 15). Today, man lies down in death and waits for his change. Tomorrow, resurrection shall change man from mortality to immortality. Resurrection is necessary for one to live again!

Resurrection was David's hope for rising from the sleep of death. He said, "As for me, I will behold thy face in righteousness: I shall be satisfied, when I awake, with thy likeness" (Psalm 17:15).

In this twentieth century, many professing Christians believe the Old Testament was the old law. Realizing Christ nailed the law to the tree, they teach there is little if any good contained from Genesis to Malachi for Christians today. Brethren, the old Mosaic law was just a portion of the Old Testament. The Old Testament contains not only a Mosaic law, but thirty-nine books of inspired words, and much good for current Christians. In fact, the Old Testament is necessary to Christians in understanding the significance of resurrection in the New Testament.

Man's disobedience reaped sin and the curse of death for mankind. Death is the legacy "Father Adam" bequeathed to his posterity. Paul penned, "Wherefore, as by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned" (Rom. 5:12). Responsibility for Adam's disobedience can be placed squarely on the head of the Serpent.

Shortly after man's "fruit-escapade," he discovered his nakedness and sought covering by sewing fig leaves together as aprons. Guilty Adam tried to cover his sin with fig leaves. After sin, death was introduced. Man was found naked, stripped of his blessings, and without hope. "The Lord God made coats of skins, and clothed them" (Gen. 3:21). Herein God pronounced the death penalty upon mankind and gave him a ray of hope—a covering for sins and a picture of Christ's resurrection power.

Adam's covering necessitated the death of innocent animals for guilty humans. So our covering of mercy necessitated the death of Christ as an innocent lamb for a guilty mankind. No doubt, the first man recognized in his skin-aprons a forecast that Christ would die and rise again that many might have shelter.

David wrote, "Blessed is he whose transgression is forgiven, whose sin is covered" (Psalm 32:1). Mankind can be robed with opportunity. He can put on the covering of the new man, even a risen Lord, and have hope of eternal life.

Abel received a shadow of the resurrection. Faith comes by hearing. Evidently Abel had received instruction from God in the value of a sacrificial offering and believed. It is written, "By faith Abel offered unto God a more excellent sacrifice than Cain" (Heb. 11:4).

The life of an innocent animal, typical of Christ, covered his sin. Without a doubt, his faith was not in the animal he offered but in the seed (Christ) of woman that would bruise the head of the serpent. Abel, the second son of Adam, was familiar with the curse pronounced upon the Serpent and the hope given to man. God said to the Serpent, "I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed; it shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel" (Gen. 3:15).

Crushing a serpent's head after receiving a bruised heel is most logical and efficient. The heel of the seed of woman was bruised by the crucifixion of Christ, and in turn the Serpent's head was bruised by the "stomp" of Christ's heel upon his head. The death of Christ was first, then His resurrection.

Abel heard, had faith, and acted in a way fitting to the offering of Christ. Surely Abel foresaw resurrection!

Abraham saw Christ in the power of resurrection. Jesus said, "Abraham rejoiced to see my day: and he saw it, and was glad" (John 8:56). "The Scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the heathen through faith, preached before the gospel unto Abraham, saying, In thee shall all nations be blessed" (Gal. 3:8). Christ's birth, life, death, resurrection, and Kingdom were preached before to Abraham.

He received a view of Christ's resurrection in his trial of faith. God said to Abraham, "In Isaac shall thy seed be called" (Gen. 21:12). God requested that Isaac be offered as a sacrifice. Realizing this meant death for the one through whom the seed was to come, Abraham in faith offered Isaac, "accounting that God was able to raise him up, even from the dead; from whence also he received him in figure" (Heb. 11:19).

The Psalmist, Daniel, Hosea, and Zechariah had much to write about resurrection. Job realized, "Though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God" (Job 19:26). Hannah, the mother of Samuel, said, "The Lord killeth, and maketh alive: he bringeth down to the grave, and bringeth up" (1 Sam. 2:6). Indeed, the Old Testament is not silent about resurrection and is necessary for an understanding of resurrection in the New Testament.

As a word, "resurrection" appears more than forty times in the New Testament, there being numerous additional references to it as a subject. Resurrection was the basis for Peter's great sermon on the Day of Pentecost, Paul's world-famous oration on Mars' Hill, and should be the foundation for Christianity's existence.

The preaching of a risen Christ was foolishness to the Greeks. To accept His resurrection would demand discarding their borrowed Egyptian theology of immortality of the soul. As Christians, they would have to view man in need of Christ, being mortal, helpless, and dependent on the goodness of God. When certain Greeks mocked the Apostle Paul at Athens, they were more consistent with their belief in immortality of the soul than many today who seek to cling to truth and a lie. Does not nominal Christendom celebrate the resurrection of Christ and yet preach immortality of the soul?

Scripture teaches: "There shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and unjust" (Acts 24:15). Everything in God's plan is done orderly and in order. So shall the resurrection be orderly and in order. Paul briefly outlined this order for us, saying: "Every man in his own order: Christ the firstfruits; afterward they that are Christ's at his coming. Then cometh the end [rest]" (1 Cor. 15: 23, 24).

Jesus has been raised and is the first-fruits of resurrection. The church, His body, will be His at His coming. Christ's coming, consisting of two events, will raise the church as an ingathering of wheat at the "catching away" phase, and at the "revelation" phase, the tribulation saints will be "gleaned in" to complete the first resurrection.

Since Christ's resurrection, nearly two thousand years have elapsed. According to Revelation 20:5, a thousand years will transpire before the next and final phase of resurrection will occur. As Christ's resurrection is separated by a period of time from the gathering of His body, so will raising of the just be separated by a period of time (1000 years) from raising of the unjust.

Resurrection is an historic fact. According to historians, Christians came into existence during the reign of Tiberius by a belief in the resurrection of Jesus. Eusebius, "Father of Church history," wrote that the Roman Emperor Hadrian had constructed a temple of Venus over the tomb where Jesus had been buried and that Constantine destroyed this temple of Venus in 330 A.D.

Jesus declared Himself "the resurrection and the life" (John 11:25). It was a literal, visible, and bodily Jesus that was the "resurrection and the life." Jesus' disciples "held him by the feet, and worshipped him" (Matt. 28:9). After His resurrection, Jesus "shewed unto them [disciples] his hands and his side" (John 20:20).

There is much speculation concerning the body with which Jesus was raised. The Scripture plainly says of the body, however, "It is sown a natural body; it is raised a spiritual body" (1 Cor. 15:44). It is argued that the body Jesus displayed to His disciples was merely one that they might believe, and not His true Self. These people say, "Does it not read, 'Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is' (1 John 3:2)." Yes, it does read that way, but we would ask, "How shall Christ appear?"

Many say concerning the literal body of Jesus, "It was a heavenly vision"—a "telegram from heaven." Certainly this would be the world's longest telegram—a telegram forty days in length.

Great care was exercised by the chief priests and Pharisees to prevent the fulfillment of Jesus' prophecy of resurrection. We read that Pilate said to these Jews, "Ye have a watch: go your way, make it as sure as ye can. So they went, and made the sepulchre sure, sealing the stone, and setting a watch" (Matt. 27:65, 66).

At the appointed time, an "angel of the Lord descended from heaven . . . rolled back the stone . . . and for fear of him the keepers did shake, and became as dead men" (Matt. 28:2-4).

Despite the Jews' carefulness, Christ was resurrected from His tomb. To prevent their error from seizing the people, they hastily paid the soldiers large money to stony, "His disciples came by night, and stole him away while we slept" (Matt. 28:13). The truth of the matter is that the "watch came into the city, and shewed unto the chief priests all these things that were done" (v. 11). These soldiers lied for money.

Judge Rutherford said about the resurrection of Jesus, "Our Lord's human body, the one crucified, was removed from the tomb by the power of God. Had it remained there it would have been an obstacle in the way of the faith of the disciples, who were not yet instructed in spiritual things . . . The Scriptures do not reveal what became of that body, except that it did not decay or corrupt. (Acts 2:27, 31.) We can only surmise that the Lord may have preserved it somewhere to exhibit to the people in the Millennial age." ("Harp of God," pp. 172, 173.)

The Word of God says, "He is not here: for he is risen, as he said. Come, see the place where the Lord lay" (Matt.

THE ASSUMPTION. There is so much prop-aganda being broadcast today through the means of the printed page, the radio, and the platform, one is very likely to become misinformed or led to believe something out of harmony with the facts, unless he is very discerning. There is no field of prop-aganda that is so subtle as that issued by the publicity agents of the Roman Catholic Church.

In this day when there is such a hue and cry for church unity, and people are urged to look upon the points of belief that are held in common and disregard or consider of less importance the differences of belief, there is grave danger of being led into a system that is unbecomingly all truth.

For example, the Roman Catholic doctrine of the "Holy Trinity" has been so publicized and emphasized, it is becoming a teaching of prime importance in Protestant circles. Few people realize just what the "blessed Trinity" belief leads one into. Some time ago we commented on the Marian Congress which the Roman Church is going to conduct in the city of Ottawa this coming June. Weekly broadcasts over the Canadian system of radio stations by the leaders of the Roman Catholic Church are preparing the groundwork for this conclave. Recently, Cardinal McGuigan, Toronto, in a Dominion-wide broadcast, said: "Mary is the Mother of God because Jesus Christ who was born of her in time is God from all eternity."

There is strong pressure being exerted to have the present Pontiff declare officially the assumption of Mary into heaven as dogma of the Roman Catholic Church. Said the Cardinal: "I expressed this fond hope (in Italy) which came from my heart: what exulting joy would fill our hearts if, as Pius IX proclaimed the Immaculate Conception, it were of God, that our present Pontiff, Pope Pius XII, should give to Mary her most radiant crown and amidst the jubilation of the church universal solemnly affirm the dogma of the assumption into heaven and declare her the Queen of the Angels and of the Saints."

All this prop-aganda about Mary and her assumption springs from the false teaching of "Mary being the Mother of God." It is just a short step from the Protestant emphasis on "Jesus Christ being God" to Mariolatry—which is idolatry.

PALESTINE SESSION. Trygve Lje, the Secretary-General of the United Nations, has sent out notices to the fifty-three member nations, announcing the special session of the United Nations in Palestine, which will convene on April 23. Six things were set forth in the call, which will guide the delegates in their work: 1) Meeting will be opened by the chairman of the Belgian delegation. 2) Election and report of credentials committee. 3) Election of a president. 4) Organization of the session. 5) Acceptance of agenda. 6) Constituting and instructing a special committee to prepare report for consideration of the question of Palestine.

It is felt in many circles that the question will receive a merry-go-round treatment at the hands of the United Nations. The Jewish Agency has petitioned Dean Acheson, Acting Secretary of State, that none of the interested parties (Jews, Arabs, and Britain) be permitted to sit in as members of the committee unless all be given equal privilege. The Agency has urged the United Nations to give interim decision allowing Jewish immigration pending final disposition of the case.

The weakness of the United Nations is being revealed with nearly every report which it makes. The power of veto by the Big Five and the recent report of the Military Committee which excludes the Big Five from supervision by the United Nations, more or less renders impotent the power of the organization to forestall future wars.

DISASTERS. Readers of the daily press and listeners to news casts over the air are so accustomed to reports of train wrecks, airplane crash-ups, fires, explosions, floods, riots, earthquakes, and such news items, they are becoming steeled to the havoc wrought and the lives lost.

Jesus, in revealing some of the conditions that would prevail in the end of Gentile times, pointed out that as sin increased, the troubles of the world would be increased until men would be expiring for fear and for looking after the things coming on the earth. Every paper one picks up covering the daily events of the community and the nation tells about men dying from heart seizures. Farrar Fenton, translating Jesus' words on distress of nations, says: "Men expiring for fear." The nation has suffered some of its greatest fires during the last four or five years. The Coconut Grove night club fire cost 492 lives. The Wineoff hotel fire in Atlanta, Georgia, took a toll of 120 lives. It was supposed to be a fire-proof hotel. One of the worst mine disasters in the history of the nation's mines recently snuffed out a great many lives. The Texas City explosion, with its dead already running into hundreds, with other thousands injured, is our latest disaster. The past year has been one of the railroads' worst time for wrecks. Air traffic has taken a tremendous decline through fear on the part of the traveling public due to so many plane crashes. Yes, this is a time of mounting disaster, many of the calamities seemingly unavoidable, but nevertheless, the sum total makes the times a period of distress among people.

MORAL AND SPIRITUAL. Speaking in the House of Lords, London, the Archbishop of York attributed the crisis through which England is now passing, or into which the country is entering, as coming from moral and spiritual depressions. He said: "Britain's crisis is largely moral and spiritual and cannot be changed by economic planning alone." To this voice was added the counsel of Sir Stafford Cripps: "Do not let us be afraid of bringing the force of moral, ethical, and religious ideals to bear on everyday life."

Few people realize what an impact the religious life of a people has on their economic lives. During the depression years, the famed economist, Roger Babson, declared the depression would end almost overnight if the people would turn to God. He affirmed his conviction that the trouble was spiritual and not economic. People cannot forget God and expect that He will continue to give them the power to get wealth and enjoy the abundance of peace. Back to God, the Bible, and the church is the only course of action that will save this country from a recession that will end in an economic depression unparalleled in our country's history. The nation that forgets God must suffer.

SHOCKING TRUTH. The American Council of Churches, an organization of so-called fundamentalist and evangelical churches opposed to the Federal Council of Churches, met in Cleveland in a recent conference. The Council's secretary, Dr. Harlee Bordeaux of New York City, in addressing the gathering on "The Shocking Truth about American Protestantism," accused the Federal Council of Churches as "peddling a brand of infidelity as hostile to the Bible as anything Tom Paine or Bob Ingersoll ever voiced." He charged the Federal Council as using its influence on radio networks to remove all religious broadcasting from competitive market. He declared the Federal Council was on the "list of those favoring a controlled society."

MAJOR PROBLEM. What to do about the growing army of alcoholics in America is causing widespread study among those upon whose shoulders rests a sense of moral responsibility for this degrading situation. Dr. George S. Johnson, Stanford University School of Medicine, sees this great problem as one that needs to be approached unemotionally. He says: "The 3,000,000 inebriates among the 50,000,000 American citizens over the age of 15 who use alcohol in some form is a major problem that must be approached unemotionally." He feels the situation is more grave than statistics indicate. "Nobody," says he, "knows how many die from alcoholism, as physicians are inclined to record deaths as due to other causes when possible out of consideration for the families and friends."

If liquor has got such a demoralizing hold on the American people, and no one who is conversant with the facts will counter the charge, then the responsibility for the condition rests squarely upon the shoulders of the American church people, who in 1932 favored repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment for the political mess of pottage that it would relieve unemployment.

GOD'S PURPOSE AND OUR WORK

By Herbert S. France, Wenatchee, Washington

HE THAT cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him" (Heb. 11:6). We assume that all believe that there is a God and have decided to seek Him. "Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth" (2 Tim. 2:15). The word "workman" suggests that there is a work to be done. Our problem, then, is to find out what this work is—remembering at all times that when we are working for someone that all work should be done according to the instructions of our employer and at no time to please ourselves.

Let us go back to the beginning to find out what God set out to do.

In Genesis 1:1-25 is record of the creation of all things, with the exception of man. God said, "Let us make man in our image, after our likeness: and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth. So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them." These verses indicate that all things were created for man.

"The Lord God took the man, and put him into the garden of Eden to dress it and to keep it. And the Lord God commanded the man, saying, Of every tree of the garden thou mayest freely eat: but of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, thou shalt not eat of it: for in the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die" (Gen. 2:15-17). These verses indicate the possibility of the death of man. Therefore, man is not in the complete likeness of God, as God is immortal—He cannot sin and cannot die.

Eve was tempted of the Serpent in the Garden. The Serpent said that if they partook of the tree that they should not surely die, and said further: "God doth know that in the day ye eat thereof, then your eyes shall be opened, and ye shall be as gods, knowing good and evil" (Gen. 3:4, 5). In the first instance, however, he was telling the truth when he said they would become as gods, knowing good and evil, as God has proved in Genesis 3:22: "Behold, the man is become as one of us, to know good and evil: and now, lest he put forth his hand, and take also of the tree of life, and eat, and live forever . . ." Man had come one step closer to the likeness of God in that he knew "good and evil."

When man became conscious of good and evil, he began to feel the guilt of doing evil. Man's two choices are to seek what the will of God is and do it, gaining a right to the way of the tree of life, which is kept for those who do His will (Gen. 3:24),

PECULIAR CHRISTIANS

By H. Gary France, Wenatchee, Washington

THOU ART an holy people unto the Lord thy God, and the Lord hath chosen thee to be a peculiar people unto himself, above all the nations that are upon the earth" (Deut. 14:2). Israel was a peculiar nation. Though "peculiar" has attached to its meaning the stigma of insanity, Israel's peculiarity was one to be desired. Far advanced in health habits, eating habits, and military power, Israel enjoyed a distinction "above all nations of the earth."

What does "peculiar" mean? Solomon's "peculiar treasures" (Eccl. 2:8) were probably rare. A nation willing to obey God is rare, peculiar, and, therefore, valuable. The Hebrew word translated "peculiar treasure" is translated "jewels" in Malachi 3:17: "They shall be mine, saith the Lord of hosts, in that day when I make up my jewels." Jewels are not commonplace. God does not desire a nation of commonplace people who succumb to the tendency of disobeying. Formally the world rejects God. A select group of people accepting and obeying Him are as "jewels" in God's eyes.

The Hebrew word "peculiar" is translated "special" in Deuteronomy 7:6: "The Lord thy God hath chosen thee to be a special people unto himself." The context of this passage of Scripture associates the principle of separation with the principle of being peculiar. God promised to give the Israelites entire victory in battle—that was peculiar. God commanded them not to marry foreign people—that was separation. Israel was to utterly destroy all the heathen, their altars and their images—separation. God promised to keep sickness from Israel (Deut. 7:15)—peculiar.

Christ died to "purify unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works" (Titus 2:14). True, Christians are peculiar! Followers of God are peculiar, because the world does not follow God. Followers of God are rare, valuable. God considers them as jewels.

Moffatt's translation of the Bible usually translates the Hebrew term for "peculiar treasure" as "prized possession"; Goodspeed translates it as "God's very own"; and the American Standard Version translates it as "God's own possession." One may conclude from these closely related understandings of the Hebrew writings that "peculiar people" may be defined as a people different, rare, and distinctive from the world; a people prized before God; and a people whom God claims as His own, suggesting a willingness on the part of God to contest for this prized possession.

Webster's Collegiate Dictionary defines "peculiar" as: "Belonging to an individual; privately owned; not common; distinctive, different." "Eccentric" or "queer" is listed only as a colloquial meaning. True Christian character is of a caliber far different from the character of a man subject to carnality. If a person is not different from worldly people, he is not peculiar, he is not separate, he is not Christian. True Christians are peculiar. They love God's name; therefore they do not swear. A Christian loves—serves—his enemies in God's manner; therefore he does not fight. He has character to withstand being branded as a coward. A Christian's enthusiasm and self-denial are more lasting than fad; his interest overcomes time with patience and longsuffering. Christians are peculiar.

Christ was peculiar. He worked miracles. He raised Lazarus. He did not call twelve legions of angels to protect His feelings. He did not fight for money. He lives! Those qualities are distinctive, rare, and valuable. God claimed possession of Jesus.

Christians' peculiarity increases their value before God. The outstanding peculiarity of a Christian is his hope for eternal life. Millions of wishful thinkers hope to get eternal life, but only Christians will receive it. The peculiar attributes of Christians are not marks of shame; they are rare marks of distinction and value. Peter wrote, "Ye are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, an holy nation, a peculiar people" (1 Peter 2:9).

Accept the call to Christ! Though the world considers righteousness unto life as eccentric and foolish, God considers righteousness as rare and valuable.

GOD'S PURPOSE AND OUR WORK

or follow his own desires and not be allowed access to that way.

Cain rebelled against the word of God and slew his brother; and, for this deliberate rebellion, he was separated from those who still had opportunity, and was put away from the presence of God. (Gen. 4:5-16.)

Let us follow briefly the family of God: Abel, Seth, Enoch, Noah, Abraham, Isaac, the children of Israel, and Christ. Christ came as an example of the kind of life we should live. His resurrection showed the result of a life without sin. "Who is the image of the invisible God, the firstborn of every creature"—Emphatic Diaglott "First-born of all creation." (Col. 1:15.) Therefore, Christ is the first man completed in the likeness of God and is our Example. "Even hereunto were ye called: because Christ also suffered for us, leaving us an example, that ye should follow his steps" (1 Peter 2:21). Also, "Whatsoever things were written aforetime were written for our learning, that we through patience and comfort of the scriptures might have hope. Now the God of patience and consolation grant you to be likeminded one toward another according to Christ Jesus" (Rom. 15:4, 5).

What was the mind of Christ? "Then said he, Lo, I come to do thy will, O God" (Heb. 10:9). "Even Christ pleased not himself" (Rom. 15:3). To us: "Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth" (2 Tim. 2:15). "Let us consider one another to provoke unto love and to good works: not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another: and so much the more, as ye see the day approaching" (Heb. 10:24, 25).

We, as well as the many others that we can convince of the truth of God's Word, now are engaged in doing our part of the work of completing ourselves in this same God-likeness, in preparation of the day that, through the grace of God, He will raise us to His likeness. (1 John 3:2.) Then we, too, shall be in the likeness and image of God.

RESURRECTION

28:6). It was Jonah's body that went into the prepared fish, and it was Jonah's body that came forth. It was our Lord who was laid bodily in the tomb, and it was the same Lord who bodily rose from the grave.

Paul's hope was in "redemption of the body" (Rom. 8:23) from the curse of sin. Jesus' body that went into the grave was the one that was clothed with mortality before His crucifixion. It was His natural body. It was the same corporal body that emerged from the tomb clothed upon with immortality, making it a spiritual body. There was the change! Jesus the corruptible had put on incorruption; and His mortal, immortality. Jesus could then and thereafter appear and disappear at will, for He was raised with a body clothed upon with immortality. Thomas sought evidence and the Lord freely gave, "Reach hither thy finger, and behold my hands; and reach hither thy hand, and thrust it into my side: and be not faithless, but believing" (John 20:27). Likewise, Jesus appeared to His disciples and said, "Behold my hands and my feet, that it is I myself: handle me, and see; for a spirit [pneuma, primarily, breath, breeze but translated an angel, demon, and ghost] hath not flesh and bones, as ye see me have. And when he had thus spoken, he shewed them his hands and his feet" (Luke 24:39, 40). Jesus further strengthened the fact that He had substance by eating broiled fish and honeycomb.

Jesus said to Thomas, "Thomas, because thou hast seen me, thou hast believed: blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed" (John 20:29). We might ask, "Believed what?" Believed that the Jesus raised had the same hands and feet that endured the nails and the same side that received the thrust of a spear—only now endowed with immortality!

APRIL 29, 1947

WESTERN TEXAS

Although no meetings either at Sweetwater or Rotan were possible because of sickness, plans were made for some future preaching services during the summer, and a good visit was enjoyed with Bro. E. O. Stewart, who had returned for a short time before going back to lawn for permanent work.

Visits were made at Hobbs, Tex., Snyder, and Pyron. A short visit was made to the home of Bro. and Sr. C. N. Adams at Westbrook on the way to Big Spring. At Big Spring contact was made with some members discovered since my last trip there, the family of Bro. J. E. Harrison. I also called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Rathill at Otis Chalk, twenty miles southeast of Big Spring. They came there from Mullin.

It was at Stanton that I finally located Sr. Eva Baker and her two children, Woodrow and Virginia, all members of the church. Two other interested families were found there. A return visit was also made to Tarzan to see Bro. and Sr. Harry Glendening, Christadelphians, and to Knott, to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hodnett and Mr. John Anderson. At Lamsa it was a pleasure to meet Bro. and Sr. Floyd Grayson and their daughter Mrs. Darrell Zachary. Mrs. Grayson was a Seaton. At Brownfield on April 1, I visited Bro. Geyer Seaton and made stops at Ropesville, Meadow, and Lubbock. Working north and east from Lubbock, I made several places where there are members living that I had known about on my previous trip to this section. At Plainview I visited Mr. and Mrs. Tom Majors, who came from Mullin, at Luckme, Sr. R. C. Bennett, a sister of Bro. F. P. Illestand, and at Silvertown, Bro. Henry T. Myers and his two daughters, all members. Bro. Myers is the father of Sr. Alvin Wolfe and Sr. Ike Pruitt, of Gatesville.

Matador was visited, but no interested members found there. At Vernon I found Sr. B. F. King, mother of Homer King and Mrs. B. Bartlett, of Carlbad, N. M., and her family.

From Vernon I journeyed northward through Oklahoma to Caldwell, Kan., to attend Bro. T. A. Drinkard's debate which took place April 7 to 12, stopping en route at Chickasha, Okla., to contact Alvin M. Ezell, son of Bro. and Sr. C. C. Ezell, of Buffalo, Tex., and at Newkirk, Okla., where a fine visit was enjoyed with Bro. Earl Friend and his family and mother. I had not seen Earl since the summer of 1938, when he was a student in the first Summer Bible Training School at Oregon, Ill.

Easter Sunday found me in Arkansas City, where it was a pleasure to visit their active Sunday school and see the fine program put on by the children. Bro. Drinkard preached at the morning service and I at the night service, showing pictures following the meeting. There is a fine work at Arkansas City, and it is in need of a resident pastor to develop the good field they seem to have.

The week at Caldwell gave me an opportunity to catch up on much back work and to hear the discussions between Bro. Drinkard and A. G. Hobbs, a Church-of-Christ minister from Wichita, Kan. It was well attended, even on rainy nights. Good numbers came from Wichita each night, and from several other distant points, and attendance ranged from one hundred fifty or so on the smallest nights to almost four hundred on the best ones. It was quite instructive to one who had never heard one of our ministers debate on Bible subjects. The tornado did not quite reach us, but there were plenty of high winds and rain that night.

From Caldwell on April 13, I drove to Amarillo, Tex., finding considerable snow at places along the route. I enjoyed another visit at the Overcash home, and visited Sr. J. D. Brady, an elderly lady who lives in the San Jacinto section of Amarillo. I was sorry to find Sr. Leroy McGlaun in the hospital, where she is recovering from an operation.

After an overnight stop at Canyon, I returned to Lubbock, at which place I had accumulated the names of several members and interested parties. There are six members that I know of: Mrs. Roy Jordan, daughter of Sr. A. J. Addington, of Abilene; Mrs. Charles Fuller; Dean Helton, formerly of Haskell County; Mr. and Mrs. V. Snodgrass; and Marie King, daughter of Bro. and Sr. Homer King, of Carlbad, N. M. In addition, there are two sons of Sr. W. W. Johnston, of San Antonio, R. S. and W. W. Johnston, and their families, and three of the Willingham boys from Hobbs, Tex., students at the university.

At Shallowater I was happy to find Bro. and Sr. Thomas Leslie, formerly of Rochester, Tex., and his sister, Mrs. Dolly Helton, a member visiting from O'Brien, Tex. At Levelland I contacted some members of the Helton family, and stopped overnight at Tokio for a good conference with Bro. J. T. Pippin. At near-by Plains, I found two other interested families in addition to Bro. and Sr. Roy Fitzgerald, and there appears to be a good field here for holding a meeting.

From Plains I drove to Odessa, where there are five members, Bro. and Sr. Thomas E. Grant, and Bro. and Sr. J. W. Smallwood and their daughter Maxine. In addition, two married sons live in Odessa, Bro. Smallwood is a good Bible student and has done some preaching. I wish I could have spent longer with them.

A brief stop was made at Penwell, where Bro. and Sr. J. Albert Cox live, formerly of Mullin, and his brother, J. T. Cox and family, at an oil camp south of town. Stops were also made at Monahans and Kermit.

At Hobbs, N. M., it was a pleasure to find Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Huggler. Mrs. Huggler is the daughter of Sr. Letitia Waller, of Hickory Ridge, Ark.

Meetings were begun April 19 at Carlbad, N. M., which are now progressing with much interest. Sunday, April 27, I shall be at El Paso, Tex., which will complete the work in Texas for this trip, and I shall return north to begin work at Minneapolis, Minn., the first Sunday of May. M. W. Lyon, Evangelist.

COLLEGE NEWS

As guest speakers for chapel periods last week, we were fortunate to have Bro. and Sr. Benjamin Carpenter. Bro. Carpenter is an elder of the Oregon church, and a Sunday school teacher there. Chapel period on Tuesday, under Bro. Carpenter, was slightly different from the usual chapel period—and we might add that the variation was very much enjoyed by all—as it was conducted along the lines of a Sunday school class. On Thursday, Sr. Carpenter gave us a pleasing and interesting talk about art, and the different types of art one finds prevalent in our day and days gone by. Thank you both, and we hope you will speak for us again in the very near future.

A double shower was held at the home of Shirley Logsdon last Tuesday evening for two of the local girls—Beth Hardesty and Grace Schier—who are to be married in the near future. We understand that all had a wonderful time.

Articles for the Maranatha are nearly all in the hands of the editors, with only a few still uncompleted. These few uncompleted ones have been promised to us in the very near future. From here on, it appears the editors will have all the headaches to themselves. There is still time to order your copy of Maranatha, if you have not already done so, but hurry, hurry, HURRY!!! We hope to go to press the middle of next month, so don't wait any longer—send your order today to Raud Smith, Oregon Bible College, Oregon, Ill. The price is the same as last year, $1.25.

JOHN EVERETTE CHAPMAN

John Everette Chapman, eldest son of Jacob and Alverda Chapman, was born on a farm near Ripley, Ill., August 29, 1870. About five years later, he moved with his parents to Camden Township, where he lived until his death on Friday, April 11, 1947. He patiently bore an illness of two-years' duration.

In early manhood, he was united in marriage to Anna DeCounter, who with an infant son preceded him in death many years ago.

On April 28, 1900, he was united in marriage with Lydia Anderson Fetch, whose two small daughters he took into his home and cared for as his own. To this union were born two sons, one dying in infancy, and Fred, who with his wife cared for him so tenderly in his last illness.

"Johnnie," as he was known to everyone, was always ready to lend a helping hand in time of need and will be sadly missed by all who knew him.

He was preceded in death by an infant son, two brothers, Fred and Eddie, and one sister Hettie.

He leaves to mourn his death an aged wife; one son, Fred; a daughter-in-law, Ruth; and a granddaughter, Sonja Ruth, who was his pride and joy; also two stepdaughters, Mrs. A. B. Chapman and Mrs. Rescoe Clayton; three stepsons, George Davis, Maurice Davis, and Roger Clayton; one stepgranddaughter, Ruby Chapman Etter; three brothers, Burt of Camden, Willie of Galesburg, Artie of Odell; two sisters, Martha Valentine of Pleasant Plains; and Victoria Shiun of Fairbury, Nebr.

Besides his relatives, there was a host of friends who also felt the loss of this man, as was shown in the large number who attended his funeral which was held from the Voorhees Funeral Home in Rushville, April 13, 1947. Some two hundred friends and relatives gathered to pay their respects to this man. Although he never made a profession of faith, he was an ardent listener and believer in the late S. J. Lindsay who preached many sermons in that community, in the days of the horse and buggy.

The writer spoke words of comfort from the Scriptures, pointing out the beautiful day of tomorrow when there will be no more pain or sorrow or sighing, for the former things will have been removed through the triumphant power of the One who has the "keys of hell and of death."

C. R. Raudall.

"A man's heart deviseth his way: but the Lord directeth his steps" (Proverbs 16:9).

You Don't Have to Tell

You don't have to tell how you live each day,
You don't have to say if you work or play;
A tried, true barometer serves in the place—
However you live, it will show in your face.

The false, the deceit, that you bear in your heart
Will not stay inside where it first got the start;
For sinew and blood are a thin veil of lace—
What you wear in your heart, you wear in your face.

If your life is unselfish, if for others you live,
For not what you get, but how much you can give;
If you live close to God in His infinite grace—
You don't have to tell it, it shows in your face.

—Author unknown; selected by Joy Wernike.

Garden Time

Have you begun work in your garden? Your heart garden I am talking about. Perhaps we can say your parents are the chief gardeners. They help select the seed that you plant and protect. Each of you must help. You know when a weed or thorn begins to grow, because it starts in the heart. The chief gardeners cannot see the weeds until time for the harvest is near. When they see the fruits, then they know weeds have grown in your heart.

There is a higher Gardener, though, who can see the weed seeds. He prunes and tugs and kills to let only good flowers live. He prunes the good bushes carefully. He tugs at weed seeds until they are pulled up and you throw them away. Christ is that higher Gardener. He is the one who is able to kill the harmful weed seeds.

So work and pray in your heart garden this spring. See that only plants that bear good fruit and beautiful blossoms grow in your garden of the heart.

The Israelites Looked Up

The Israelites had been fighting with King Arad. Some prisoners had been taken by these enemies. As usual, when the Israelites were in trouble, they called upon God. They earnestly promised that if He would let them win over their enemies they would "utterly destroy their cities."

The Lord heard their vows and answered their prayers. The Israelites won over King Arad. They kept their vows to God.

Soon they were complaining again. This time fiery serpents bit many, and they died. Moses prayed to God for them when they admitted their sin. Moses was their high priest.

Christ is our High Priest. God told Moses to make a fiery serpent and put it upon a pole. When an Israelite was bitten by a serpent, he would not die if he looked upon the serpent that was lifted up.

When we sin, we look up to God through Christ who was lifted up or crucified for us. If we believe in Him and try our best to live for Him according to the truth in the Word, we, too, will be saved from sin. We will receive life everlasting, a gift of God, and a reward which is based upon the service we do today for Christ.

THE LIFE of a tree is in its roots. We are impressed by the beauty of a tree, comforted by its shade, awed by its great age and size, and inspired by its strength. Far underground, however, is the very life of the tree: its roots, holding it firmly erect, bringing it life-giving food, anchoring it in time of storm, rebuilding it from the bottom up.

The life of a Christian, of the church, and of the Berean society is in its spiritual roots. Expression is important; our age, our activities, and our ability to help others, but real strength is in our spiritual roots. We must be impressed; we must take in spirit, life, knowledge, and power before we can give it out to others. The Hudson River can carry the nation's commerce and navy only if it has unfailing resources. An airplane can remain in service only as long as it has an efficient ground crew to renew it mechanically. We Bereans can grow and expand our work only if we have deep roots, solid foundation, and unfailing resources.

We have roots in Christ, the unfailing Source of life. Social life, clever games, contests, and music are wonderful branches and means of expression, but there must be counterbalance of spiritual impression, renewing of zeal, love, and strength from personal contact with Jesus. Our roots must be in Christ.

With the great increase of activity among young people's groups in our churches; with the rapid growth of desire to express ourselves as Bereans in missionary work, charity, and social work, let us first take inventory to see how our roots have grown, before a storm hits and destroys our good start. Are the roots of your youth group deep in a living faith in Christ, sound doctrine, sincere prayer? If you are taking in from Christ, as well as giving out for Him, by regular Bible study and prayer, you can weather any storm. Strengthen the foundation of your society by catching up the loose ends and consolidating your position nearer the Master.

THE CONSENSUS of opinion among the young people seems to be that we need more meetings together to discuss mutual problems and ideas. Agreed! Such a meeting is planned for July 14 - 27 for all young people, ages 13 through 17. This two-weeks' Youth Rally will be sparked by lessons on young people's problems, good music, discussion meetings, and, no doubt, much good fun. You have wanted opportunity to "talk it out" and meet other Bereans. Here it is! Start your society thinking about sending representatives. We can accommodate ninety of you. First come, first served. Enroll now!

SONGBOOK COMMITTEE REPORT

The Songbook Committee now has a tentative list of songs for the new songbook that is to be submitted to the General Conference in August.

The Committee conferred with the Rede-heaver Co. representatives and found that in spite of the rising cost of paper and labor, we may still be able to have the book printed at a reasonable cost, containing a large number of the finest hymns in existence, including many that are distinctive in their teaching of truths which we especially hold dear, and containing no songs that are Scripturally incorrect.

This is just a beginning, however, since an immense amount of work is entailed in assembling the songs to make them fit the pages properly, indexing, editing, and preparing a book to show at General Conference containing the actual songs that will be used.

Mrs. F. L. Austin, Com. Secy.

ARKANSAS CITY, KANSAS

The Church of God of Arkansas City, Kan., was unexpectedly and pleasantly surprised to have Bro. T. A. Drinkard of Texas, Bro. J. M. Morgan, Bristow, Okla., and Bro. M. W. Lyon, National Evangelist, in attendance Easter Sunday.

Children of the Sunday school presented the Easter story in song, playlet, and verse during the Sunday school hour. Those who participated were: Marie Chaplin, Allen Chaplin, Diana Stockton, Nila Sumpter, Cova Fiske, Dixie Dickerman, Joy Wernecke, Floyd Fiske, Richard La Zello, Bobby Axley, Charlotte Dickerman, Edwin Wernecke, Richard Dale, Elaine Musson, Edna Mae Darnell, and Barbara Watrous.

Following the Sunday school program, Bro. Drinkard preached, after which Bro. Morgan gave a short talk.

Bro. Lyon preached in the evening and showed many pictures of church groups in other states.

Was any other church so well blessed with ministers on Easter Sunday?

We now are looking forward to the arrival of Sr. Thayer to conduct our second Bible school. May our second school be as successful as our first is our prayer. Sr. Thayer will be here, May 4-16.

Mrs. Faye Wernecke, Secy.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENTS ATTENTION!

It is not too early for you and your Sunday school to begin thinking about your exhibit for General Conference.

Give other Sunday schools a chance to see samples of your materials and ideas. Last year we had a fine exhibit, but we desire to hear from more of you this year.

Announcement will be made at a later date as to where and when you should send your material, so watch!

Mrs. Wayne Laning, Secy.,
National Sunday School Association.

IOWA SPRING CONFERENCE

The Iowa Spring Conference, conducted Sunday, April 20, was all we had hoped it would be. The sunny skies of Sunday were a welcome change from the gloomy ones of the preceding week. Although there were almost seventy in attendance, they were very comfortably entertained in the farm home of Mrs. Christena Klindt and her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Klindt.

Bro. Sydney E. Magaw, our guest speaker, was accompanied from Oregon by his daughter Norma, and by Bros. Paul C. Johnson and Charles Pearson. There were visitors from Pleasant Prairie, Stanhope, Clarksville, Cedar Falls, and Waterloo, in addition to the members of the local congregation, who are so scattered that they have to drive from the nearby towns of Laurens, Albert City, Storm Lake, and Marathon.

Following the Sunday school session, which was in charge of the superintendent, Bro. J. Arthur Johnson, the service was turned over to the state president, Bro. H. S. Hunt, who introduced the speaker, Bro. Magaw's morning topic was "The More Sure Word of Prophecy." After the picnic dinner, Bro. Magaw spoke on "Baptism," especially as taught in type.

We are glad to be able to announce that Bro. and Sr. Paul Williams and Rachel are expected back in Iowa by the first or middle of June. They plan to locate in Stanhope where they lived before they went to Washington.

The early summer conference will convene with the Hickory Grove congregation sometime in June, with Bro. Arlen Marsh as guest speaker. Detailed announcement will be made later.

We who were visitors at the conference, April 20, wish to express our appreciation of the hospitality of the local congregation. Although there was very little time for visiting, we feel that the fellowship which comes from making new friendships and renewing old ones is beneficial. We enjoyed Bro. Magaw's sermons and were glad to have the Illinois visitors with us. We believe that all who were in attendance will agree with us that it was a very pleasant and profitable conference.

Blanche Harland.

IN ARKANSAS

Sr. Verna C. Thayer began her work, March 20, at Mount Springs, near Russellville, Ark., assisted by Sr. Mabel Barnum of Hammond, La. Their next work was at McGintytown, and they are working now at the Oak Grove Church, Little Rock. Srs. Thayer and Barnum's work in the State has proved to be a wonderful success and we greatly appreciate their work.

Bro. and Sr. J. M. Watkins of Oregon, Ill., joined the writer at Little Rock, April 12, where we began a tour of the different churches in the State and meeting the congregations, where Bro. Watkins preached some splendid sermons which were greatly appreciated.

We were happy to have all these people in our homes, and thank them for the good work they have done. The writer enjoyed being with Bro. and Sr. Watkins and hearing his splendid sermons. We had the pleasure of meeting Sr. Thayer and Sr. Barnum twice on our tour. We ended our tour at McGintytown, April 21. We extend them a welcome to come our way again.

Gleanings From the Field

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

Accompanying a generous contribution for National Bible Institution, Bro. S. W. Hiott, Walterboro, S. C., writes: "I hope the Lord will continue to bless preaching of the glorious gospel, which is the power of God unto salvation to everyone who believes. Pray for us, that we all may be accounted worthy to enter the Kingdom."

Read Bro. C. E. Randall's page (page 8), then consider this following quotation from him that was crowded from his last article, "Major Problem":

"There are enough church members in the United States to keep the country bone dry, if they would vote against liquor and live accordingly."

Bro. James M. Watkins was guest speaker, Sunday, April 27, at the Indiana Quarterly Conference, convening at the Morning Star Church of God in South Bend.

Bro. Grover Gordon, pastor of Golden Rule Church of God, Cleveland, Ohio, is scheduled to work at the Southlawn Church, Grand Rapids, Mich., June 16-22, during the Michigan State Conference.

Bros. M. W. Lyon and Harvey U. Krogh, Jr., are scheduled to be guest speakers at the Western Nebraska Conference—August 17-24, Holbrook.

Bro. and Sr. Otto E. Dick and family returned to Hillisburg, Ind., last week end, taking Sr. Dick's mother, Sr. Elizabeth Bird, to her home. Sr. Bird had been visiting the Dick family during the preceding three weeks.

Bro. T. A. Drinkard, Arlington, Tex., is scheduled to conduct a series of evangelistic meetings at the Morning Star Church of God, South Bend, Ind., May 24-June 8.

Sunday school attendance at Los Angeles, Calif., recently reached the hundred mark.

Bro. Tom Savage, Waite Park, Minn., preached, Sunday morning, April 20, at the Saint Cloud Church of God, the pastor, Bro. A. M. Jones, being sick.

Sr. E. I. Dixon, 1712 N. 33rd St., Omaha, Neb., reports excellent Sunday school attendance the last several Sundays, also very excellent sermons from Bro. Robert Hardesty, pastor of the Omaha Church.

Bro. and Sr. A. E. Shaw, 4703 W. 52nd Ave., Denver, Colo., celebrated their sixty-fourth wedding anniversary on April 12. Their son, E. D. Shaw, reports, "Many friends and relatives were present to help celebrate the occasion, and many letters and cards were received."

"The Truth Seekers Sunday School Class has elected Bro. Forrest Long as its teacher to take the place of Sr. Lyle Doan who has gone to Illinois, where Bro. Doan had previously gone to go into business. We will miss the Doan family very much."—Emma C. Railsback, 1020 S. Burlington Ave., Los Angeles, Calif.

"I certainly enjoy the weekly visits of The Restitution Herald. I prize it above all other papers. I especially enjoy the articles written by the young preachers, these articles showing excellent work of the Bible School."—R. L. Tice, Atkins, Ark.

The Hope Chapel basketball team (South Bend, Ind.), composed of Logan Pickert, John Derbin, Dick Daines, Chris Wenrick, Bill Myers, Bob Rouch, and Hal Stilson, closed the Oregon Golden Rulers' season, April 26, with a 45-27 victory. Hope for another game!

Missionary and Evangelistic Department

The missionary and evangelistic department is the lifeblood of the General Conference. Your contributions of recent years have been the steppingstones by which this department is moving forward to new heights of accomplishment.

Enduring for several years as almost a stepchild of our work under the nurture of the Ministerial Conference, it finally won its place in the sun as a department worthy of its own rights and justified by the untiring efforts and devotion of J. W. McLain. The forty-eight missionary fields and hundreds of isolated members with which we have gained contact in the last few years can credit their interest today to this vision of yesterday.

The present department under the direction of James M. Watkins is still striving to carry forward these same ideals of advancement and service to the fullest extent of its contributions.

Verna C. Thayer, outstanding in the field of child evangelism, is devoting her full time and effort to build a sound interest and devotion to the principles of child instruction. Beginning about March 1 and continuing until around December 1, she will be conducting one or two classes daily in churches and missionary fields throughout the United States and Canada. In addition to Bible schools and teacher training classes conducted personally, she also prepares materials for many others and instructs teachers how to use these materials in their own schools.

James M. Watkins
Director

Verna C. Thayer
Child Evangelism

M. W. Lyon
Church Organization

For the remaining, all too insufficient, time of the year, she edits our intermediate quarterlies and prepares our children's quarterlies and materials. Coming years will continue to bring forth the fruits of this effort.

M. W. Lyon heads the church organization of our department. He devotes full time and attention to the work of contacting isolated members, bringing together missionary fields and church groups, and creating and revitalizing state conferences. The devoted and painstaking care with which he gives himself to this work is testified by the missionary fields constantly being made ready for work. The demands of our missionary and evangelistic department constantly exceed our ability to provide qualified leadership to continue such work when it has been developed.

Brother Lyon also is working in the field conducting services and calling and contacting members and prospective workers throughout the United States and Canada. This work is laying a sound and enduring foundation upon which a successful future can be built.

These workers have sacrificed much and are giving all to develop their respective fields of labor. They are proving their worth against great odds. They are deserving of your interest, your loyalty, your encouragement to them and your favorable comments to others. All of this, with your prayers and contributions, will provide a church with a future.

A Mother's Opportunity

By Harvey U. Krogh, Jr., Grand Rapids, Michigan

AMONG all the privileges and duties in this world, few can compare with a mother's opportunity to mold the life of her child. It is in her power adequately to prepare her child to be a good citizen of the nation, to be a loving companion, a helpful friend to others and, above all, a follower of Jesus Christ. God has ordained it to be thus, as He has given mothers the high ideals, the tender love, the depth of feeling, and the intimacy with her child that fathers are not likely to have. There is a grave responsibility, however, resting upon each father, and he is in no way to be excused from his part in building the right kind of character in their child.

We wish to speak particularly about mothers and their God-given opportunity to play a major part in making Christians of their children. Throughout the Bible, one finds responsibility resting upon the individual to whom a gift is given. "Unto whomsoever much is given, of him shall be much required" (Luke 12:48). It is written in Psalm 127:3, "Children are an heritage of the Lord." Few gifts can compare in any way to the blessing of children. Not all appreciate their blessings nor do all accept the responsibility that is theirs, but those who do are abundantly blessed.

Few of us realize the love, the work, and the patience that went into the building of our characters, until we began that work ourselves. Even then we seldom appreciate it nor consider how vitally important it is to mold a little one's character after the pattern of a true Christian.

Consider the far-reaching effect of the extra care you take to teach your little child the love of Jesus. In every life there is a crisis, a critical time when life choices are made. This is the time the foundation truths you diligently teach will be as an anchor to hold that life in the right paths. Now look into the future twenty or thirty years and see the full-grown Christian leading others to the Master. Now look forward to the coming age and catch a glimpse of those who have been granted eternal life because you earnestly laid hold of the greatest opportunity that God has given you.

You will need help to perform a task of such importance, and God who has given you this work is ever willing to assist you in every detail. Neglect not to seek his guidance in every part of your task, and He will bestow many blessings upon you. God also will make your work lighter and lift it to the high plane upon which He intended it. If you will keep in mind the greatness of your opportunity and the reward that shall be yours, God will glorify the most humble of your tasks. . . . May God grant each mother a vision of the real worth of all that He has given her to do.

Blessing of Parenthood

Soon after creating Adam and Eve, God "blessed them," saying, "Be fruitful, and multiply" (Gen. 1:28). Thus blessing mankind, God endowed man and woman with power most nearly approaching His own creative power. Notwithstanding science's law that "Man can neither create nor destroy," a parent so thoroughly can see and enjoy his image in a child as to appreciate in some small measure the joy God must have experienced in creating man in His own image.

Mother Eve

"Adam called his wife's name Eve; because she was the mother of all living" (Gen. 3:20). Frequently, a mother looks forward with joy to meeting all her children: whether it be in present-life family reunions, or to meeting them in the next life. What a prospect for Mother Eve! How few of her own children has she seen! Some of her children, regretfully, will be failures; others, though, will bring untold joy to her heart. She has yet to meet her sons Abraham, Moses, David, and that Seed promised to her in Genesis 3:15 as the One who would bruise the Serpent's head. She will yet see her child, the Saviour!—for God made a garment for the covering of her sin (Gen. 3:21) and subjected her "in hope" (Rom. 8:20).

Mother and Child

Life offers few blessings surpassing that of a mother holding her newborn child. It is a comfort that even mothers cannot explain. It is a rapture that obliterates pain. The "Madonna and Child" probably most clearly expresses the virtue and tender emotions of a mother for her babe. That depth of devotion is sacred—and it testifies of the Divine:

"As a mother stills her child,
Thou canst hush the ocean wild."

As a child develops, the mother's warm affection expresses itself in constant care, oversight, and plans. Chastisement, though essential, is difficult. Later, the child's successes are her successes; and the child's failures are accepted as her failures. Left alone at home, her child having gone from the parental roof, the mother's affection and prayers reach the required distance to maintain that mother-child contact so seldom appreciated by the child. . . . What does a mother more enjoy than a letter from her distant son or daughter? "Why," she asks, "do they write so seldom? Don't they love me any more?"

"But, O I'll not forget you, Mother;
I am thinking most of you."

Mothers Unknown

The Apostle Paul, asking brethren in Rome to salute Rufus and his mother, made that request in a most significant and tender way. He requested: "Salute Rufus, chosen in the Lord, and his mother and mine" (Rom. 16:13). There is no thought that Paul's own mother was in Rome. Rather, he so evaluated Rufus' mother as to speak of her as his own. More, neither the dignity of his office nor the multiple duties of life had turned Paul's attention away from making tender recognition of a good Christian mother—whose name is not known, nor will it be known until the resurrection.

Throughout the world, in all races, and among all nations, worthy mothers suffer, toil, and patiently serve their generations, their names being unknown and their efforts generally unheralded. Their efforts result, though, in a Rufus here and a Rufus there! Salute him and "his mother and mine."

Contact with India

John Manoah, a native of India, reads and distributes THE RESTITUTION HERALD, weekly, and does other Christian work in India. Chiefly, he works among the poor—even among lepers. Recently, he inquired: "If you have any spiritual, good, old religious books, please send me. I can circulate them to other Christians." He mentioned, too, being handicapped by having no watch, being unable financially to buy one. . . . No, Mr. Manoah is not an official representative of our General Conference, but he is the only Christian native of India with whom we have contact. Let's keep that contact! His address is: 115 A. # EVIL DAYS

"Walk circumspectly . . . redeeming the time, because the days are evil" (Ephesians 5:15, 16).

THOUGH the apostles' faith was renewed when Jesus arose from the grave, and though they had many talks with Him during those forty days before His ascension, they little knew that from then onward they would more and more feel the weight of the cross. More than once were they arrested for preaching the resurrection from the dead, and the rulers took counsel to slay them. Their love for God and for Christ was so great, however, that they were willing to die if need be.

Are we true watchmen? Are we warning the ungodly of the danger that surely will come upon them, unless they repent? Surely we will be held accountable unless we do. Thus says the Scriptures:

"When I say unto the wicked, O wicked man, thou shalt surely die; if thou dost not speak to warn the wicked from his way, that wicked man shall die in his iniquity; but his blood will I require at thine hand. Nevertheless, if thou warn the wicked of his way to turn from it; if he do not turn from his way, he shall die in his iniquity; but thou hast delivered thy soul" (Ezek. 33:8, 9).

Just as Ezekiel was reminded of his duty to Israel, Jesus sent the apostles to warn the people of what would happen unless they repented of their sins, but if it so happened that they would not receive this message, they were to "shake the dust off [their] feet." They had done what was required of them, and were accounted true watchmen who had warned the people. "The time has come when judgment must begin at the house of God; and if it first begin at us, what shall the end be of them that obey not the gospel of God? And if the righteous scarcely be saved, where shall the ungodly and the sinner appear?" (1 Peter 4:17, 18). "The eyes of the Lord are over the righteous, and his ears are open unto their prayers: but the face of the Lord is against them that do evil."

Many Christians today wish to be in the world and also in Christ. There can be no compromise, for when we come into Christ there can be no turning back. "Now the just shall live by faith: but if any man draw back, my soul shall have no pleasure in him" (Heb. 10:38). "To him that knoweth to do good and doeth it not, to him it is sin." Once the Apostle Paul was a blasphemer, and a persecutor, but he "obtained mercy, because [he] did it ignorantly in unbelief" (1 Tim. 1:13). He said he was "less than the least of all saints" because he "persecuted the church of God" (1 Cor. 15:9).

Paul had a zeal for God which few could equal in his day. It seems that shortly after Stephen's martyrdom, Paul received permission from the Jewish authorities to wipe out Christianity. In his zeal for God and for the law, he thought he was doing right when he went from house to house and from synagogue to synagogue, binding believers in Christ and casting them into prison. So terrible was his persecution that some were even put to death. The Jews who had embraced the Christian faith continued to go to the synagogue after Jesus' ascension, but their hearts were now guided by the spirit of love, instead of the letter of the law. Because they believed and thought differently, Paul broke up the church at Jerusalem and the members were scattered. "But they that were scattered abroad went every where preaching the word." The glorious light of the gospel was spread, instead of being put out.

As Paul started his journey to Damascus, he "breathed out threatenings." He probably had heard that some of the fugitives were in Damascus spreading what he thought was a pernicious doctrine, so he asked for and received letters giving him authority to bind and to arrest those who thought in this new way. The journey from Jerusalem to Damascus, about one hundred sixty miles, probably would require five or six days' travel, for part of it was across a desert. Perhaps as Paul traveled across the miles, doubt crept into his mind as he thought of Stephen who said as they were stoning him: "Lord, lay not this sin to their charge." After thinking these things over, he probably wondered how Stephen could pray for those who were murdering him. Too, the behavior of the Christians he had bound and led away was food for thought. Maybe he began to understand that they believed Jesus to be the Messiah of whom all the prophets wrote. He wondered perhaps if he could be wrong. Doubt had crept into his mind that these people could be enemies of God. Had not the great Gamaliel told the Sanhedrin to leave the Christians alone? He may have been thinking of Isaiah 53 and that maybe Jesus was the Messiah whom the prophets had said would (Please turn to page 9)

Mother's Wages

By E. H. Goit, Youngston, New York

Literate Americans hardly can avoid knowing that May 11 is Mother's Day. Tantalizing store signs and vociferous radio commercials have educated the American public to the fact that there is a Mother's Day.

Mother's Day was established by Ex-President Thomas Woodrow Wilson in honor of James Whistler. James Whistler, the embryo soldier, became Whistler the painter. As a young man, he attended West Point Military Academy. Attending some college wrestling bouts against orders and at the expense of cutting classes, he was caught and expelled. Penniless, he left the academy and journeyed to England. There he painted scenes of the surroundings because he could not afford professional models. There, also, he painted his famous picture that gave Mother's day to Americans. (See also "Anna Jarvis."—Editor.)

Mother's Day is a tribute children pay. It is a small portion of her wages. Mother's wages are beyond enumeration in dollars and cents. A mother's wages! What are they, and who pays them? In the Bible account of Moses in the bulrushes, a discerning reader can realize an answer to the question.

Amram of the house of Levi married Jochebed a daughter of Levi. To this union were born Miriam the prophetess, Aaron the high priest, and Moses the deliverer. Immediately prior to Moses' birth, the Pharaoh of Egypt had issued a decree bearing death to all newborn Hebrew male children. Moses' parents, seeing that he was a goodly child, hid him for three months. When they could not keep him secret any longer, they bravely made an ark of bulrushes. Carefully, Jochebed placed her bundle of love and joy within and then set the ark near some flags at the river bank. Then Miriam, Moses' sister, patiently observed the ark from a point of advantage.

Soon a daughter of Pharaoh came to bathe in the river where Moses was placed. Shortly she beheld the ark of bulrushes and sent a maid to obtain it for her. Upon opening the curiosity, her eyes beheld a goodly child. In compassion, she exclaimed, "This is one of the Hebrew children!" Without hesitation, the watchful Miriam said, "Shall I go and call to thee a nurse of the Hebrew women, that she may nurse the child for thee?" Realizing her father's bloody decree, the Princess said, "Go." Directly to Moses' mother sped Miriam. We can visualize that, upon her arrival, the knife of fear which was cutting Jochebed's heart asunder fell helplessly in defeat.

Hurriedly, Jochebed went to Pharaoh's daughter. There she was hired to nurse her own son, for the Egyptian said, "Take this child away and nurse it for me, and I will give thee thy wages." Moses' mother complied with the request and "the child grew, and she brought him unto Pharaoh's daughter, and he became her son. And she called his name Moses: and she said, Because I drew him out of the water."

Within the confines of the preceding narration, we can realize a mother's wages. Readers can know what her wages are and who pays them.

There is every indication that the Egyptian princess detected the trickery of a mother's love. She doubtless realized the naive planning of a mother in setting a child in an ark and then placing a faithful sister near by as a protector with a mission. Nevertheless, eternal credit is due to the daughter of a haughty king because she listened to a Hebrew child. Her decision gave hope to a browbeaten nation. She spared the life of a Hebrew that grew to be one of Israel's greatest. Indeed, credit is due her!

No doubt, with tears of joy, Jochebed received Miriam's news of Moses' safety and the subsequent call for a nurse. Responding to this call, a period of co-operation began between Moses' mother and the daughter of Pharaoh. This interim in Moses' life had its compensation for Jochebed. Wages were paid as declared by the princess. Were these monetary reimbursements the mother's wages?

If we were to ask Jochebed, she probably would reply, "Yes, I was paid for my time. They didn't pay me my wages as a mother. The money amounted to little. You can't buy a mother's love. A mother's love is given freely!"

A mother's wages are more than gold or silver. A mother's wages are the feeling of closeness to her baby's warm body, the pats of a little hand upon her cheek, the gurgling laughter of a happy lad, the call of "Mother," and the child that grows to womanhood or manhood. These are a mother's wages!

Moses, the deliverer, received his early training in a Hebrew home. There his parents instilled within him a knowledge of God and the history of Israel. It was their obligation to themselves and their son. They faced the task and fulfilled their duty.

Today, it is the obligation of parents and especially mothers to give their children a Christian home. To do this is to furnish their children with a knowledge of God and a history of their land. The words of the Wise Man are apt, "Train up a child in the way he should go: and when he is old, he will not depart from it" (Prov. 22:6).

Brethren, we laud mothers. A national holiday has been established in their honor. Many mothers, however, do not deserve this praise. When we say this, our thoughts are of those sowing the wild oats in the field of motherhood. No longer are these exceptional cases, but the rule. Their children rise up and say, "Mother doesn't care when I come home." Indeed, she does not, for she is "on the loose." Drinking, gambling, and cursing are taking your place, children. She has no use for you or God. Her time is no longer yours, but the Devil's. She is living fast!

In the year 1945, there was an average of one hundred fifty-eight marriages an hour, every hour of the day during the year. Three out of five are slated for the divorce courts.

Doubtless a large majority of these newly married women became mothers. It is their children that shall pay the bill of their ill. New mothers have a responsibility. That responsibility is a Christian home for their children!

Chaplains who served in World War II have publicly declared illiteracy of Bible reading among American service men. Why? Because mothers have not met their responsibilities. They have failed to familiarize their children with God.

Mothers of today, do not fail. (Please turn to page 9)

A MOTHER

By Mrs. Edna Brewer, Housemother of Oregon Bible College

ONE CANNOT think of the word "mother" without the thought of children, and no words can better express what our children mean to us than the words of David the Psalmist, who said, "Lo! Children are an heritage of the Lord." God-given gifts—what priceless possessions! A baby—the crowning joy of womanhood—is a sunbeam of happiness, and its smiles—how they thrill us—almost inseparable with the cords of love!

The child is ruler of the household, for around him a mother's life and plans revolve. She begins with intense interest the task of developing and molding these little lives. She soon realizes, however, that children are apt little imitators and the words of Ezekiel 16:44 come to her mind: "As is the mother, so is her daughter." She begins to look for traits of father in son and mother in daughter, yet recognizing her children's own personalities, and she smiles with radiance because they are her children. She realizes as soon as little individuals start out in the school of life, others will have a big influence in their training, oftentimes contrary to her ideals.

As mother, she should remember how God commanded the children of Israel to teach His statutes and commandments diligently unto their children, lest they forget the Lord and go after other gods. Following their example, mothers should instruct their children daily, that they might be better prepared to meet the problems that will confront them. A wise mother will never be too busy to make explanations, for they develop lasting comradeship.

How adorable are children! Again David gave a beautiful illustration, saying, "Thy children like olive plants [are] round about thy table." Can you not see their radiant faces in the home? Now, the olive tree is a very beautiful tree with dark green waxy leaves, but it needs care and pruning to make it fruitful. So a mother must do some pruning, which sometimes seems severe, but if neglected will leave a blighted life.

During the adolescent age, we were our mother's big problem, for life is serious, but to us it was a big adventure. So often the chastisement seemed harsh and unreasonable when we turned to her for counsel, but love alone was her dominant motive, she being desirous of developing in us Christian character for the world of tomorrow. As an insight of the heavenly Father's love, she followed the admonition of Paul, "Whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth" (Heb. 12:6).

Oh, the life of sacrifice she makes, the hours of rest she denies herself, as she watches over our restless beds! Cherished ambitions for self she forgets, that we may have some longed-for possession to give us joy.

At last we are grown, trying to walk in the path of Him whose instructions she followed, and we arise and call her blessed, for now we see with vision clear the beauties of that noble soul: she whom we call—Mother.—THE RESTITUTION HERALD, 1940.

"Let My People Go"

By B. F. Skeels, Perryville, Kentucky

THE LORD forewarned Abram that there would be trouble as well as blessings. "When the sun was going down, a deep sleep fell upon Abram; and, lo, an horror of great darkness fell upon him. And he said unto Abram, Know of a surety that thy seed shall be a stranger in a land that is not theirs, and shall serve them; and they shall afflict them four hundred years [in Egypt]; and also that nation, whom they shall serve, will I judge: and afterward shall they come out with great substance" (Gen. 15:12-14). Notice that God said He would judge the nation that afflicted Israel, and that afterward the Israelites would come out with great substance.

At present, nations are being judged for their having afflicted the Lord's people. Germany not only afflicted them, but brutally murdered them by the millions. Would anyone say the Germans are not being judged? They are being fed by their enemies just enough to keep them alive. Italy is not far behind, having sanctioned all that Hitler did. What about England? She is one of the richest and proudest countries in the world. Well, what did she do? Did she keep her word to the Jews? Is she not fighting them away? We hope she will see her mistake and take the other side. We believe England is to be of the nations on the right, but she is being judged now. Are not the English having trouble on every side? They recently experienced the coldest winter they had for over a hundred years, suffering a shortage of coal and a scarcity of food. Also she has frequent trouble with her possessions. Hitler boasted that he would exterminate the Jews. Did he? Who was exterminated? Mussolini took the same stand. They underestimated their adversary. Evidently, Hitler and Mussolini thought they would have no trouble exterminating the downtrodden Jew "whom no man seeketh after." They were fighting against God, however, who said, "I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee." Consider this prophecy:

"Alas; for that day is great, so that none is like it: it is even the time of Jacob's trouble; but he shall be saved out of it. For it shall come to pass in that day, saith the Lord of hosts, that I will break his yoke from off thy neck, and will burst thy bonds, and strangers shall no more serve themselves of him: but they shall serve the Lord their

"The Lord had said unto Abram, Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father's house, unto a land that I will shew thee: and I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee, and make thy name great; and thou shalt be a blessing: and I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee: and in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed" (Genesis 12:1-3).

God, and David their king, whom I will raise up unto them. Therefore fear thou not, O my servant Jacob, saith the Lord; neither be dismayed, O Israel: for, lo, I will save thee from afar, and thy seed from the land of their captivity; and Jacob shall return, and shall be in rest, and be quiet, and none shall make him afraid. For I am with thee, saith the Lord, to save thee: though I make a full end of all nations whither I have scattered thee, yet will I not make a full end of thee:

but I will correct thee in measure, and will not leave thee altogether unpunished. For thus saith the Lord, Thy bruise is incurable, and thy wound is grievous. There is none to plead thy cause, that thou mayest be bound up: thou hast no healing medicines. All thy lovers have forgotten thee; they seek thee not; for I have wounded thee with the wound of an enemy, with the chastisement of a cruel one, for the multitude of thine iniquity; because thy sins were increased. Why criest thou for thine affliction? thy sorrow is incurable for the multitude of thine iniquity: because thy sins were increased, I have done these things unto thee. Therefore all they that devour thee shall be devoured; and all thine adversaries, every one of them, shall go into captivity; and they that spoil thee shall be a spoil, and all that prey upon thee will I give for a prey. For I will restore health unto thee, and I will heal thee of thy wounds, saith the Lord; because they called thee an Outcast, saying, This is Zion, whom no man seeketh after" (Jer. 30:7-17).

Would it not be profitable for every Bible student to try to learn what the Lord's will is concerning His people, and our proper attitude toward them? In the first place, how important are they considered in the Word of God? How often are they mentioned? They are mentioned as "Israel" approximately two thousand five hundred times, plus the times they are called "Jews," and "Jacob," or the "Lord's people," or "my people," or the "chosen people of the Lord," and His "inheritance," and the "saints," and "Zion," and many others. When one opens his Bible, whose writings does he find? Who were the prophets? As far as I can discover, they were all Israelites—all the true prophets. They were the prophets of the "God of Israel." Well, what God do we serve and worship? Is He not called the "God of Israel" more times than by any other title? What about our Saviour, Jesus the Christ? He was born a Jew according to the flesh. We read of the Israelites:

"To whom pertaineth the adoption, and the glory, and the covenants, and the giving of the law, and the service of God, and the promises; whose are the fathers, and of whom as concerning the flesh Christ came, who is over all, God blessed for ever. Amen. Not as though the word of God hath taken none effect. For they are not all Israel, which are of Israel: neither, because they are the seed of Abraham, are they all children: but, In Isaac shall thy seed be called. That is, They which are the children of the flesh, these are not the children of God: but the children of the promise are counted for the seed. For this is the word of promise, At this time will I come, and Sarah shall have a son. And not only this; but when Rebecca also had conceived by one, even by our father Isaac: (For the children being not yet born, neither having done any good or evil, that the purpose of God according to election might stand, not of works, but of him that calleth;) it was said unto her, The elder shall serve the younger. As it is written, Jacob have I loved, but Esau have I hated" (Rom. 9:4-13).

We hear those who despise the Jews say, "They are so wicked!" Are they so wicked that God cannot forgive them? Isaiah 44:21-23 answers:

"Remember these, O Jacob and Israel; for thou art my servant: I have formed thee; thou art my servant: O Israel, thou shalt not be forgotten of me. I have blotted out, as a thick cloud, thy transgressions, and, as a cloud, thy sins: return unto me; for I have redeemed thee. Sing, O ye heavens; for the Lord hath done it: shout, ye lower parts of the earth: break forth into singing, ye mountains, O forest, and every tree therein: (Please turn to page 9)

The Dove of Peace

By Florence Pease, Ashtabula, Ohio

"The dove found no rest for the sole of her foot, and she returned unto him into the ark" (Genesis 8:9).

WHAT a beautiful symbol of God's Holy Spirit of peace is the dove with an olive branch in its beak! But how sad a story! Only in the ark could this little messenger find rest, for God's vengeance upon the wicked had drowned them in a flood that filled the whole earth.

As Noah sent the meek little dove from the ark, so we, the Church of God, send out the message of God's truth. In whose heart, though, does it find a resting place? Who is there today as wise as a serpent in God's truth, but harmless as a dove? (Matt. 10:16.) Is the world peace man is trying to establish as harmless as a dove? No, it is backed by fearful instruments of war, and by power-greedy and money-mad men. Peace through fear, and the pacifying of the nations! Yes, peace through a world-wide religious order, the power that says in Isaiah 14:13-16: "I will exalt my throne above the stars of God . . . I will be like the most High"! This is Lucifer, the glittering, sparkling, fascinating, miracle-performing deceiver, covering his evil heart with a flimsy robe of self-righteousness. Peace through strangling God's truth and casting it to the ground! Truth crushed to earth will rise, however, even as Jesus, the truth of God, rose from the grave.

The Spirit of God, in the form of a dove, found rest on the shoulder of Jesus when He came up from the water of baptism, for God was well pleased with Him. (Matt. 3:16, 17.) Where will this dove of peace find rest on earth today? Not in the world, but in the Church of God, only! As it found rest only with eight souls in Noah's day, so today it will find rest only with the little flock of God's people. (Luke 12:32.) In the temple of God it will abide, while God again metes out His fearful anger on a sin-cursed world. The wicked then will "be ashes under the soles of [our] feet" (Mal. 4:3).

When the saints now sleeping in the dust are resurrected to eternal life, and when the living saints are safe with them in the Ark (which is Jesus), they shall send forth this little messenger from the Ark, which will be located in Jerusalem, the city of peace. It will find many lodging places in the hearts of men. Until Jesus, the "Prince of Peace" (Isa. 9:6), comes again to earth and executes God's government from the throne of David that God promised Christ, there can be no "peace on earth, good will toward men." (Ezek. 21:27; Luke 2:14.)

Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, and all the saints sleeping in death will share in the peace of God's Kingdom on earth. (Matt. 8:11.) Then will be the sabbath of rest for God's chosen and faithful. (Heb. 4:9.) Let us look toward Jerusalem and the coming of Jesus to the Mount of Olives (Zech. 14:4) for that blessed dove of peace. May it today find a resting place in the hearts of those who know the truth and look for God's restored paradise on earth (the Kingdom of God), through the Jews, God's people.

BALFOUR DECLARATION. Much is being heard these days about the Balfour Declaration and the subsequent League of Nations Mandate which was given to Britain. For the benefit of the readers, we are giving the full text of the famous Balfour Declaration made on November 2, 1917, when Lord Balfour, on behalf of the British Government, wrote to Lord Rothschild, who was leader of the Zionist movement. It follows:

"Dear Lord Rothschild:

"I have much pleasure in conveying to you on behalf of His Majesty's Government the following declaration of sympathy with Jewish Zionist aspirations, which has been submitted to and approved by the Cabinet.

"His Majesty's Government view with favor the establishment in Palestine of a national home for the Jewish people, and will use their best endeavors to facilitate the achievement of this object, it being clearly understood that nothing shall be done which may prejudice the civil and religious rights of existing non-Jewish communities in Palestine or the rights and political status enjoyed by Jews in any other country.

"I should be grateful if you would bring this declaration to the knowledge of the Zionist Federation.

"Yours sincerely,

"Arthur James Balfour."

The League of Nations recognized this Declaration by Lord Balfour, and the League Mandate instructed Britain to place Palestine "under such political administration and economic conditions as will secure the establishment of the Jewish national home" and to "facilitate Jewish immigration."

Of recent months many political leaders, who are not particularly concerned with the welfare of the Jewish people, are trying to make out a case that the Jews were not promised a national home in Palestine. Anyone who will, without bias, read the Balfour Declaration, and the terms of the mandate given to Britain by the League of Nations, cannot help but get the firm conviction that it was the intent and purpose to facilitate and assist in bringing into realization the "Jewish Zionist aspirations," which have always been, "Palestine for the Jews."

GENTILES ON TRIAL. Recently I listened to a sermon being broadcast; and, in the course of his remarks, the minister stated that all he needed to inform him on present-day conditions was the Bible. The way the statement was used, the speaker expressed a profound thought. The same proposition may be made in respect to the Jewish situation today. The Bible is the most enlightening and authoritative source of information available. One important truth that should ever be kept in mind is the pronouncement of the Lord that the nation that will not help Israel shall perish. God said: "The nation and kingdom that will not serve thee shall perish; yea, those nations shall be utterly wasted."

We believe Germany's downfall started when she began persecuting the Jews. Many great nations have gone down into oblivion or become second-rate powers through treatment of Israel. When England disfranchised the Jews, she lost her prized possession—the thirteen colonies. She later restored them to full citizenship and franchise privileges, but her greatest opportunity to do good to the "least of these my brethren" during her mandate years over Palestine has been frittered away, and it is this writer's candid belief that the unprecedented crisis through which the motherland is now passing is due to her failure to fulfill the Balfour agreement.

The Palestine issue is now before the United Nations General Assembly. England has given notice that it will not be governed by the Assembly's decision if it is not in accord with her wishes. The Arabs are organizing to defeat any attempt to open up Palestine to any further Jewish immigration. Pandit Nehru has pledged his support to the Arab League. If the Gentiles fail to heed the plight of the sons of Israel, they will pay the price of hardness of heart in Armageddon.

PSYCHIATRY. Psychology is being run to such extremes it is becoming a menace to mental health. Neurotics are multiplying so rapidly, and their seeking help from psychiatrists is so taxing the 4,000 professionals in the United States, that there appears to be little hope of the hundreds of thousands of people who are satiated with the idea that they are in need of psychological treatment ever getting inside of a psychiatrist's office. Dr. C. Charles Burlingame, psychiatrist-in-chief of the Institute of Living, Hartford, Conn., says: "People in all walks of life are being instilled with the belief that they need psychiatric attention to save their minds, if not their souls." Dr. Burlingame felt that there were "perils in present-day emphasis on psychiatry." He continued: "Hundreds of thousands of persons, satiated with a superficial knowledge of the psychological implications of life and literally preoccupied with psychiatric terminology, are beginning to interpret every trivial thought and feeling in psychological terms."

People are becoming delicately balanced through the pressure of fast and complex living. Lives nowadays are lived largely apart from God, and without God there cannot be a mental poise in these exacting times.

DIVISIVE CLERICS. "Divisive Clerics" is the heading of an editorial in "Saturday Night," a business journal issued weekly. It says in part: "There are undoubtedly many ministers in most of the great Protestant churches in Canada who do not believe in the Virgin Birth as a literal historical fact. But the creeds employed in all these churches still state it as a literal historical fact which Christians must believe. It seems to us that it would be a great deal better if the proper authorities of these churches would declare in express language, which their people could understand, that certain of the creedal statements may be interpreted in a poetical or figurative sense."

This statement was called forth as result of the Roekwood trial in Truro, Nova Scotia, over divisive teaching. The editor of "Saturday Night" would couch the faith of all churches in such elastic terms that there would be no room for charging one with preaching something uncreedal. This layman would elasticize dogma to the extent that it could be stretched to meet every view and whim. Creeds do cause a lot of trouble. They play havoc with one's freedom to interpret the Scriptures.

PRAYER FOR THE COMMUNISTS. May

Day, which has become almost synonymous with Red Day, is this year going to be observed by the Roman Catholics as a day of prayer for the Communists. This personal interest in the spiritual welfare of the Communists by the Roman Catholics reminds one of the keen interest which Constantine the Great took in Christians, and called forth his famous edict of toleration for Christians. In this case it is in reverse. In Constantine's time paganism and Christianity were mixed together and produced what the world has known since as orthodox Christianity. It will occasion no surprise to this writer if Roman Catholicism and Communism become mixed for political and religious purposes and give what the world will know as a "woman riding a scaplet coloured beast." Unless Rome makes friends with Communism, she is going to be unsentenced in Europe; and if her past history is a pattern of things to come, prayers for, and blessings on the "hammer and the sickle" would readily be forthcoming before she would retreat.

CONFUSION. At one time in the distant past, people were of one language and one speech. Their desire to make themselves a name rather than to continue to be called by the name of God led them to build Babel. The result was that God confused their tongues and scattered them over the face of the whole earth. From that time unto the present, the multitude of languages and dialects have served to separate people and nations. The Babel of tongues brings confusion and misunderstanding, racial discriminations, and creates almost insurmountable barriers toward mutual understanding and agreement. The one world ideal which leading figures throughout the world are hoping to bring into being has its biggest barrier in "confusion of tongues." The Lord in establishing His Kingdom will overcome that handicap by returning to the people a pure language.

EVIL DAYS

come. As he drew near the city of Damascus, a light shone with such radiance that he fell to the ground blinded. He heard the voice of Jesus say, "Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?" Paul said, "Who art thou, Lord?" The Lord said, "I am Jesus whom thou persecutest." This vision surely must have had a lasting effect upon the Apostle Paul, for, in his defense years later before King Agrippa, he said:

"I continue unto this day, witnessing both to small and great, saying none other things than those which the prophets and Moses did say should come: That Christ should suffer, and that he should be the first that should rise from the dead, and should shew light unto the people, and to the Gentiles" (Acts 26:22, 23).

It is very commendable to have a zeal for God, but let no one make the mistake Paul made and bring sorrow to others. That is not the Christ-way. A true Christian manifests kindness to all mankind. His manner of approach is not arrogant, boastful, but he kindly admonishes all to lay "up in store for themselves a good foundation against the time to come, that they may lay hold on eternal life." Our mission is to warn the people that they "walk circumspectly . . . redeeming the time, because the days are evil."

"LET MY PEOPLE GO"

for the Lord hath redeemed Jacob, and glorified himself in Israel."

I believe the following "thus saith the Lord" should be a warning to those who are trying to prove that the Jews are a God-forsaken people. Do we not pay any attention to who says it?

"Thus saith the Lord of hosts; In those days it shall come to pass, that ten men shall take hold out of all languages of the nations, even shall take hold of the skirt of him that is a Jew, saying, We will go with you: for we have heard that God is with you" (Zech. 8:23).

I do not see how there could be ten men that had not heard that God is with the Jews, unless it was some of those that despise them. Would it seem consistent for those of us who are of the household of faith in the Church of God of the Abrahamic Faith to deny that Israel are God's favored people, and that He will save them?

"They shall be ashamed, and also confounded, all of them: they shall go to confusion together that are makers of idols. But Israel shall be saved in the Lord with an everlasting salvation: ye shall not be ashamed nor confounded world without end. For thus saith the Lord that created the heavens; God himself that formed the earth and made it; he hath established it, he created it not in vain, he formed it to be inhabited: I am the Lord; and there is none else. I have not spoken in secret, in a dark place of the earth: I said not unto the seed of Jacob, Seek ye me in vain: I the Lord speak righteousness, I declare things that are right" (Isa. 45:16-19). I think we are in the times that the nations are being judged—even the nations among whom the Jews (Israel) are scattered.

MOTHER'S WAGES

Give your child a Bible of his own. Teach him how to use it. It is your duty as a Christian to yourself and the child.

Mother's wages are the fruit of fulfilling her obligations to her children. What a mother sows in a child she will reap. Moses' mother sowed a knowledge of God and a history of Israel within her son. She reaped the emancipation of the Hebrew nation. You can reap the salvation of your child from the deceit of the world.

The Bible is full of examples of mother's love. Outstanding is the love of the woman tried before King Solomon. What compassion she had! Said she, "O my lord, give her the living child, and in no way slay it" (1 Kings 3:26). Her wages as a mother was the salvation of her child.

To American youth the name of "Babe Ruth" is as familiar as the candy bar. Recently, a beautiful story of motherhood was unveiled with the name of Babe Ruth.

When the "home run" king was active, a young lad came to see him play each game. He sat behind the netting that is behind home plate. His cheers for the "Babe" identified him to the "king of swat." In short, a lasting friendship began. One day, Johnnie was missing from his usual seat and in his place was a quiet, dignified lady. "Babe," sensing something was wrong, went forth to the lady. She introduced herself and told "Babe" that Johnnie had become blind. The famous baseballer immediately secured the best eye specialists for his friend, and with their help and God's blessing, Johnnie's sight was restored. Johnnie again resumed his familiar place at baseball games until the call of World War II. He then joined the army, and, as he left, he gave the "Babe" a letter with instructions that it be opened only upon his death.

Somewhere in the din of war, a bullet rent the life of Johnnie. Word was received of his decease, and "Babe" opened the letter. It requested that "Babe" Ruth take some flowers to "Mom" (the dignified lady who sought "Babe's" aid) upon Mother's Day.

Two years ago this Mother's Day, "Babe" Ruth fulfilled the last request of Johnnie. Then the woman revealed that Johnnie was not her son, but the child of a couple who had murdered her husband and subsequently received death. Her flowers were the wages of a foster mother.

The wages of a mother cannot be measured in dollars and cents. Her children's lives measure her wages.

Mothers, train your children in the Christian walk, and they shall not depart from it. Your wages will be Christianity!

COLLEGE NEWS

A most welcome and needed gift of sheets, pillow slips, and dish towels came to the College recently from the Doreas Society at Tempe, Ariz. Also, from Sr. Edward Berek, Waterloo, Iowa, has come a box of valuable books for our library; and a gift of two dozen tins of corn from Bro. and Sr. A. M. Johns of Scribner, Nebr. Thank you, all!

The Student Council met last Monday night for its regular bi-monthly meeting. Plans were discussed for a field day to be held, May 24, at Lowell Park. Mention also was made of a College trip to the museums in Chicago sometime between now and the end of the semester. Other business discussed included that of making a list of students to conduct a weekly service at Golden Rule Home.

Last Tuesday, students had charge of chapel services. Raymond Brown led singing of choruses. A solo, duet, and two quartet numbers were much enjoyed by all. Irene Payne, Janice Johns, Kirby Davis, Tim Pearson, Milton Hall, and Raymond Brown were those who participated in special singing. Dean Moore was pianist. Bro. Magaw preached an interesting sermon in chapel, Thursday morning, concerning reasons for our church having as its name "The Church of God."

Three girls from the College conducted the service at Golden Rule Home, Friday, April 25. Mary Brown and Janice Johns presented a chalk talk, while Irene Payne favored them with a solo and a sermonette.

(Each week, for two weeks past, we have been unable to get all the College News into the church columns. The items which follow are left-overs, and are of events which happened before that news which precedes this note.—Ed.)

On Sunday, April 13, College students were guests of Bro. and Sr. Albert Logsdon. We all spent a most enjoyable and interesting day touring the "Castle," the grounds, and last, but far from least, the eating of two extremely tasty meals. The writer can personally vouch for the deliciousness of Sr. Logsdon's cherry pie.

On Friday, April 11, a small caravan left Oregon, Ill., and headed east. This caravan consisted of three cars and carried members and fans of the Oregon Golden Rulers' basketball team. We are most happy to report that Bro. Magaw's boys did a thorough job of beating the Brush Creek team. Congratulations, fellows!

Play rehearsals are progressing fairly well; the first act is almost completely memorized, and we have started on the second act. Rehearsals are held three nights a week, and usually last about two hours. The members of the cast are: Irene Payne, Janice Johns, Joan Hall, Patricia Andrew, Shirley Logsdon, Gordon Landry, Rand Smith, Kirby Davis, and the writer. Bro. Dick and Sr. Brewer are directing the play.

The "Campus Caller" is going to be a little late this month, but do not despair; it is coming and should arrive within the next week or so. With spring vacation a short time back, and the multitudinous tasks requiring immediate attention upon our return, the "Caller" was neglected in the rush. However, it is in process of being printed at this time, and will be in your hands very soon.

We were fortunate in having Bro. Harvey U. Krogh, Jr., with us last week. He preached an excellent sermon for us Thursday morning in chapel, giving some very helpful advice on avoiding temptation that besiege us. This advice is welcome to the Christian, who has temptation—in one form or another—always near at hand. Our speaker for chapel, Tuesday, gave us many fine thoughts, too. He was Gordon Landry, a sophomore student, and his sermon title was "Essential Doctrines of Our Faith." Among those present at the two chapel services were: Sr. E. H. Magaw, Sr. Sydney E. Magaw, and Bro. J. M. Watkins. We always are pleased to have visitors present, and we were especially happy to have Bro. Magaw's mother visiting us—both at chapel and in a few of our classes.

Bro. A. J. Hoke has been with us the past week taking care of the many things needing his attention around the College. Rand and Warren helped him and Bro. Charles Pearson insulate the College last week.

In chapel period last Thursday morning, the students chose the student they considered most valuable to the College. Their choice was Kirby Davis. He will be accorded some honor—to be decided upon later—by the faculty.

REPORT FROM EVANGELIST SIMMONS

The first Sunday in April, I preached at Plainville Schoolhouse. This is in a community three miles from my home here in Oklahoma. On the second Sunday in April, I made my regular appointment at Clark Chapel in Arkansas. Shortly thereafter, I met Bro. James M. Watkins and Bro. H. Scott Smith. Bro. Watkins preached two good sermons that were very much enjoyed. Mrs. Simmons and I stayed in Arkansas more than a week, during which time I went to Cleveland and Havana. We have only a few members of the church at Havana, but they want me to come there to preach. So, I intend to go there Friday, May 23.

From Cleveland and Havana, wife and I came back to Clark Chapel, thereafter going to Brooklin for three services on April 20. We had very good attendance there.

On the fourth Sunday of April, I went back to Clark Chapel, there meeting Srs. Verna Thayer and Mabel Barnum. They taught the children, and I taught the adults. We had an excellent meeting. After the meeting, Srs. Thayer and Barnum came home with me for a short visit. They now are down at Arch Schoolhouse, teaching children's classes. They are doing a much-needed work. If this work is continued, it will bring forth much fruit in due time.

W. B. Simmons.

EDEN VALLEY, MINNESOTA

It is good to see springlike weather make its appearance after eight months of what some call a mild winter for the good old State of Minnesota. We did have a noticeable lack of snow, one of the few winters in which no snow plowing was required. We now are having our spring breakup of roads; some are impassable.

The work in our church is progressing in all departments. The Bereans have renewed effort, having a planned program for the year. The attendance in our young people's classes is handicapped by so many of our young people having to go out of this community to find employment, but we do have a large group of young people.

Our Bible study classes are attended faithfully by the minority of our church. We will have to admit the attendance has picked up a little. Thanks! There are many who should attend, but it is a little more difficult for farmers to find time to attend evening services.

A Sunday School Workers' Council (S.S. W.C.) meets the first Thursday in each month. The purpose is to work out ways and means to better our Sunday school. Members of the board are: president, Mrs. Walter Wiggins; vice president, Glen Hoskins; and secretary and treasurer, Arthur Otto. Our meetings have been very profitable to those who attend.

A very competent staff of teachers and officers make up the council: Elmo Gaspar (Sunday school superintendent), Glen Hoskins (assistant), Mrs. William Coulter (secretary), Mrs. Eddie Kirkpatrick (treasurer). Teachers are: adult—Glen Hoskins; assistant, Gur Mills; young people—W. Wiggins; assistant, John Peters; juniors—Mrs. Eddie Kirkpatrick; assistant, Mrs. Floyd Mills; intermediates—Mrs. Arthur Otto; assistant, Mrs. Harold Landorby; Busy Bees—Mrs. Glen Hoskins; assistant, Mrs. John Coulter; beginners—Mrs. W. Wiggins; assistant, Miss Lois Ruhn. These and their wives or husbands make up the council attendance. Once each quarter the council entertains the Sunday school.

We plan to redecorate the church before the State conference which will be held here June 11-15. Our vacation Bible school is to be conducted, June 9-14.

Several of our number have been under the doctor's care and in hospitals. We are glad that they are on their way to recovery again.

We have a church with a future. Our erudite roll is growing. Recent additions are Merry Sue Gaspar and Timothy Ruhn, daughter and son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Gaspar and Mr. and Mrs. Norman Ruhn, respectively.

We cordially invite any who can to attend our State Conference. Spend your vacation in Minnesota and pay us a visit. We have many visitors in attendance, though not many of our faith. We are glad to have them.

May God add His blessing to our effort in these last days.

John Peters, Secy.

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA

Although Easter-Sunday news is ancient history, we wish to report that it was an outstanding day for us. Under the able leadership of our Sunday school superintendent, Paul Overholser, the children presented a fine Easter program. Attendance reached an all-time high of one hundred. Our average attendance of fifty for the past two years has been increasing gradually until last Sunday it reached seventy-three.

Church attendance also has increased, Easter Sunday being the highest, with a full house. It is noticeable that more youth and young adults are becoming regular attendants. Our pastor, J. W. McLain, during the past two months, has been giving a series of most interesting sermons on the tabernacle in the wilderness, and showing how its types apply to the past, present, and future.

We constantly are grateful to our pastor for his unending zeal in all phases of church work—preaching sermons that are both instructive and entertaining, training choirs and individuals in music, and organizing Bible study groups in centers adjacent to Los Angeles. In addition to this, he is rendering expert service as a photographer, auto mechanic, and home decorator. In these days of high-cost living and undependable labor, even these last items are more important than one might suspect.

In January, once-a-month meetings were begun at the home of the Thompson's in Tulare. Recently, these have been transferred to nearby Porterville, to the home of Mr. O. Patterson, whose large living room was built with the express hope that it would be used for church services. Thirty were present for this first meeting, which included a very enjoyable song service with excellent four-part singing. The first Thursday after the first Sunday in each month, at 7:30 p.m., is the time designated for these meetings, conducted by Bro. McLain.

Our pastor continues to conduct meetings at Cabazon, at the home of Bro. and Sr. George Bahn, in which isolated members from Redlands and San Bernardino participate. A new group also has been organized in Lakewood Village, where six families will meet with our pastor in homes for Bible study. The Berean group, at present studying Isaiah, meets in the homes of members in Los Angeles, each Wednesday evening at eight o'clock.

Sr. Frank C. Montross of Troy, Ohio, is visiting her sister, Sr. Eva Stearns, and is a regular attendant at services. Bro. and Sr. Clifton Stearns of Rapid City, S. D., who were here for two months, have returned to their home.

Marian R. Richards, Secy.

MEMORY

A recent Restitution Herald brought to me the sad news of Sr. Claudia Parks' death which occurred March 14, at Los Angeles, Calif. I feel that in her death the Church of God has lost one of its most loyal members. It has been my happy privilege to be associated with Sr. Parks, visiting in her home and she with me. Also, I have attended Church-of-God conferences with her several times. She was always cheerful and had a smile for everyone; and, best of all, she was true to the faith in her Saviour about whom we so often talked. Her friends were numbered by her acquaintances.

How we loved her! It is sad to know that we shall not see her again until the coming of our Lord. She has finished her course, kept the faith, and now sleeps in Jesus. May we be prepared to meet her. Our love and sympathy go out to all members of her family.

Mrs. Connie Ramsey, Morrilton, Ark.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by

National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois

The Restitution Herald is official organ of the General Conference of the Church of God.

Subscription rate: 50 issues per year, $2.50. The Restitution Herald advocates: the near return of Christ (Acts 1:11), and life only through Him (Col. 3:3); the literal resurrection of the dead (John 5:28); the immortalization of those in Christ (1 Cor. 15:53, 54); the destruction of the wicked (Rev. 21:8); the final restoration of Israel as the Kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ (Luke 1:32), the church to be joint-heirs with Him (Rom. 8:17), and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations (Isa. 60:1-3); the "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21). It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

CORRESPONDENCE STUDY DEPARTMENT OREGON BIBLE COLLEGE

is now presenting a special course in
CHILD STUDY

This course, conducted by Otto E. Dick, instructor and student counselor at Oregon Bible College, is especially designed for pastor, parent, or teacher. From the normal processes of child development, it considers the religious opportunities of the various ages that may be used as stepping stones in building a child of faith. Such understanding is a must for all those who would deal wisely with their own children or the children of others. It is offered at less than cost as a public service and carries College credit if desired.

"Balaam answered and said unto the servants of Balak, If Balak would give me his house full of silver and gold, I cannot go beyond the word of the Lord my God, to do less or more" (Numbers 22:18).

Mother's Day

Who is there to lead a child to God? Who is closest to the heart of a little child? Pastors, teachers, and friends there may be to help, but there is one closer and dearer. Mother is the one!

If you have a mother, thank God for her presence. Thank God for her help; yes, even for her corrections, although not enjoyed at the time. Hers is a labor of love. Tell Mother today how much you love her. Mother's love leads toward God.

The Overcomers

The Israelites were in Canaan, and they were overcoming the evil people who lived there. God's power was being made known. The Israelites were winning over the idol worshipers. As the Israelites trusted in God, they received more and greater strength from him.

The king of the Moabites was Balak. The Moabites were of the family of Moab, a son of Lot. Lot was Abraham's nephew. He was saved from the wicked city of Sodom. Though related to the Israelites, they were not friendly.

The first thing we notice about Balak is that he sent word to Balaam. Balaam was a wise man, a soothsayer. A soothsayer is one who claims to have power to understand more than an ordinary person can see or know.

The king said: "Behold, there is a people come out of Egypt: behold, they cover the face of the earth, and they abide over against me: come now therefore, I pray thee, curse me this people" (Num. 22:5, 6).

God told Balaam: "Thou shalt not go with them: thou shalt not curse the people: for they are blessed."

Balaam was wise; for, when he saw that God was blessing Israel, he did not turn to his enchantments. At other times, he had sought for enchantments, but this time he went toward the wilderness. (Num. 24:1.)

God spoke to Balaam several times. Balaam praised Israel instead of enchanting them. He repeated part of the blessing God had told Abraham: "Blessed is he that blesseth thee, and cursed is he that curseth thee" (Num. 24:9).

King Balak was very angry with Balaam, for he had promised Balaam a promotion, money, and great honor if he would curse Israel.

Men and boys, women and girls often work for earthly rewards today. God also offers rewards for true and unselfish service. We, as Balaam, choose whether or not we can put our services to the use of our Master. Balaam found it impossible to give hearty service to Balak; for God was on the other side. We are told to do heartily as unto the Lord whatever we do. It is our task to choose the deeds that are on the Lord's side. Can we say with Balaam, "What the Lord saith, that will I speak"?

AT A COUNTY FAIR, motorcycles were mounted on rollers in front of a large cylinder-shaped building. Their engines raced, wheels rolled at amazing speed, the riders swayed back and forth, but they did not move an inch. No one was disappointed, though, because it was an amazing sight.

What would you think of an organization, say a young people's class, that roars with action, keeps everybody busy, counts up its meetings and members, and boasts proudly of "holding its own," but never moves ahead, just going up and down like a pogo stick? It is necessary to "hold our own," to maintain ourselves, and to increase our own spirit and strength, but unless we are accomplishing something practical, how are we unlike the motorcycle roaring back and forth on its stationary rollers? We must have goals to be reached and definite, practical, visionary work to accomplish, or be like the man who spent so much time clearing, spading, and weeding his garden that the sowing season was over before he was ready to plant his seeds. We must look ahead, set goals, lay out plans for practical work which will advance the church, the work of Christ, and the moral standards of our community. What can we do?

1. Work for the local church by boosting attendance, helping with Sunday evening services, visiting, calling, canvassing, helping with church building maintenance, printing church bulletins, assisting with financial funds.

Dwight L. Moody used to fill five pews of the church he attended with young men he brought to church. He attended regularly himself, so as not to make his invitations seem a mockery. One young people's class provided its church with an invalid chair in which to bring shut-ins to church. Another established a nursery to encourage mothers with babies to attend church. A youth-centered church in Chicago, with a church-centered youth group, has young people on the streets surrounding the church an hour before every service, distributing tracts and inviting people to church. One must arrive early on a Sunday evening to be assured a seat.

Why not assume responsibility for keeping the landscape of your local church a thing of beauty, enhancing the atmosphere of God's house? Raising flowers to beautify the church yard and to beautify the church interior, keeping grass and bushes trimmed is a good, practical, seasonal project for the young people's class, and could turn into a social evening of outdoor work with perhaps a picnic and hymn sing.

Some groups now are printing church bulletins (Oregon and Cleveland are known to be doing so). These bulletins are good vehicles for carrying your message as well as church news and other articles. Such projects increase your own interest as well as advancing the churches' work.

2. Work for your community by helping to raise its moral standards, by relieving its poverty, and offering it opportunity for fellowship and spiritual knowledge.

Some churches and Berean groups seem entirely unaware of the community in which they live and serve. They are like a cut flower in a vase, rather than a firmly rooted plant which realizes that part of its life and future depends upon its environment.

Can we be Christian and ignore suffering and evil? You say there is nothing you can do! That is the excuse of cowards who are suffering from spiritual anemia. There is so much to do that we hardly know where to begin.

Every other building has a blaring sign offering this or that poison (or is alcohol a disease?) for sale. Does your church have a sign which tells what you stand for? Do you advertise the goodness of Christ as zealously as the hucksters proclaim the medical qualities of the medical profession's favorite cigarette? What do you mean, there is nothing to do? Look ahead, you Berean leaders! Work out a program with a goal.

WRAY, COLORADO

Church members at Wray, Colo., purchased a school building which they will move to the city of Wray for a church building. Six hundred dollars was the first cost of the building. Now the lot, basement, and cost of moving the schoolhouse to town probably will amount to six hundred dollars more. The last report I received was that the members had raised more than five hundred dollars, cash. Probably they have received more by now.

Brethren, the Wray members will need financial help. Only a few members live there, and they will go their limit. You that have your church paid for, and other members anywhere, help them what you can. Send your offerings to Mrs. Bernice Schenkelaar, Wray, Colo. Thank you.

There will be preaching services at Wray the second Sunday in May. A business meeting will be conducted in the afternoon, and another report will be made after the second Sunday services. E. E. Giesler.

OREGON, ILLINOIS

Sr. Myrle Clausson, recently a hospital patient, returned, April 26, to her home. On Sunday, the 27th, her parents, Bro. and Sr. D. Hatten, and other relatives from Culver, Ind., visited her.

Sr. Henry Mattison and granddaughter, Jean Budrow, are visiting relatives and friends at Hammond, La.—especially Bro. and Sr. James Mattison, happy parents of a new arrival.

Sr. Rosalie Carpenter, Saginaw, Mich., recently came home to care for her little nephew, Dennis Anderson, who underwent an appendectomy in Dixon Hospital.

Bro. Glenn M. Birkey, Rochelle, Ill., has been serving at a session of the grand jury in Oregon.

Sr. Edna Brewer was hostess for the Dorcas Society, May 1, at Oregon Bible College. It was the annual "Family Night," dinner being served at 7:00 p.m. Thereafter, all guests were entertained with a special program featuring musical numbers, skits, and a three-act play.

MOUNT SPRINGS, ARKANSAS

Srs. Verna C. Thayer and Mabel Baruum have closed a Bible school here at Mount Springs School (Ark.). Attendance and interest were good (enrollment, 65). There were two classes, daily. We feel very fortunate and grateful to have had these two fine teachers with us. Illah McNulty.

MEDITATION

By Mary Mae Nedrow

Is it not true that it is not what we say, but how we say it, that brings joy or sorrow each day? And not what we do, but how we do it, that leads or obstructs someone's way? A burden is lightened sometimes by a smile. A task is made easy and seems so worthwhile when a word kindly spoken or the help we can lend, is just what is needed. Now isn't it worth trying, my friend?

THE BUDGET OUTLOOK

The Department of Promotion and Coordination has been given the job of formulating a suggestive budget for 1947-48, based on past experience and the future aims of our work. This budget will be considered by the Executive Board and published July 1 as a recommendation to the coming General Conference. Delegates to the coming Conference then will have opportunity to consider the budget with their local churches and will come prepared to give sound consideration to its provisions and to accept or reject its recommendations.

The experience of the first three quarters of our present year will force us to consider some very drastic revision of our program and a resultant loss to our entire work unless we find a greater interest in fulfilling the budget allowances. The various departments of the Institution have justified themselves the past year by any standard of consideration. Their prospects for the coming year by far exceeds that of the present. Any curtailment of their effort certainly would be unwise and unjustified, but the ultimate will depend, of course, upon the decision of the people and the willingness to uphold that decision.

We feel sure you will be interested in a few figures and facts based upon the first three quarters of the current year.

Total earned income of all departments, except Golden Rule Home, for nine months, current year	$16,420.82
Corresponding income for period last year	$11,188.85
Total earned income for all departments, except Golden Rule Home, for last year	$14,933.27
Income this year estimated from first nine months	$21,894.48
Total contributions last year	$15,874.40
Allowed by the budget for the current year as expressing the intentions and will of the Conference	$24,753.93
Amount received during the first nine months only	$ 7,803.57

Earned income reflects the efficiency of the various departments. It includes no contributions but only that which is earned by workers or departments as a direct result of their own effort. You will notice that such income will increase almost fifty per cent for the current year. If progress is able to continue, the coming year shows promise of a 100 per cent increase. National Bible Institution is keeping faith with its supporters. If that faith is justified by the contributions allowed by the budget, we will show sound progress; otherwise we have no alternative but to curtail our efforts. James M. Watkins, Director.

HOPE CHAPEL South Bend, Indiana

Following the very successful Youth Rally at Morning Star Church of South Bend, Ind., Sunday, April 27, four young ladies from Hope Chapel presented themselves for baptism. They were immersed at Pinhook Park on the Saint Joseph River. Miss Enid Green, who had come forward at one of Bro. Sydney E. Magaw's recent meetings at Hope Chapel, joined the four in baptism by the writer. We are happy to welcome these new members who are: Enid Green, Virginia Dooden, Jacqueline Oler, Beverly Oler, and Margaret Westerberg.

Hope Chapel has made another important step in starting plans for a parsonage that is to be erected on the church lot.

Timothy Pearson, Pastor.

OAK GROVE CHURCH OF GOD Little Rock, Arkansas

With great pleasure, we are very glad to have this opportunity of announcing the wonderful vacation Bible school here, that was taught by Sr. Verna C. Thayer and Sr. Mabel Barnum. The church was very thankful to have them and feels that God sent a great blessing on the school and teachers. About one year ago, Sr. Thayer was here to conduct a school for only 12 pupils. Last November, she taught another school with an enrollment of 38. This April, we had an enrollment of 103. I am sure we can give God the praise for the increase, as we know all good things come from our Father in heaven. Srs. Thayer and Barnum are doing an outstanding work among the youth of today who will be our churches of tomorrow. We want to thank National Bible Institution for all the good workers it has sent to aid us here. We appreciate it so much.

We were thankful to have Bro. and Sr. J. M. Watkins with us the second Sunday in April. We are very grateful to him for the good work here in Arkansas and for the good sermons he presented from the pulpit. They were inspiring to us. We hope Bro. and Sr. Watkins can return in the near future.

We are looking forward to having Sr. Thayer and Sr. Barnum with us about this same time next year. May God's richest blessing rest on His children.

Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Stanton.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENTS ATTENTION!

It is not too early for you and your Sunday school to begin thinking about your exhibit for General Conference.

Give other Sunday schools a chance to see samples of your materials and ideas. Last year we had a fine exhibit, but we desire to hear from more of you this year.

Announcement will be made at a later date as to where and when you should send your material, so watch!

Mrs. Wayne Laming, Secy.,

Gleanings From the Field

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

Read the News. This week, as for the past two weeks, an abundance of news items has overflowed this regular news section to pages ten and eleven. Maybe your name is there.

ATTENTION! What shall we name our new songbook? Send your suggestions to Mrs. F. L. Austin, Committee Secretary, 500 South Fourth St., Oregon, Ill.

Bro. James M. Watkins, Promotion Director for National Bible Institution, preached Sunday, May 4, for the brethren at Hedrick, Ind. Sr. Watkins accompanied him on the trip.

Help for a Prospective Minister. Anyone interested in attending the Summer Bible Training School (June 30 - July 27) or the Berean Youth Rally (July 14-27), but who is unable to attend because of limited means, is invited to address the Editor, telling his approximate financial need. Several persons have requested us to co-operate with them in searching for prospective students, especially for young men interested in the ministry and who are unable to attend either of these schools unless receiving financial assistance.

"Our little group of church workers meet for Bible study once a week. Bro. and Sr. Fred Hall being our instructors. We feel that our work has not been in vain; for since we started our Bible study about three years ago, two have been baptized into Christ. Sr. Robinson was baptized by Bro. Vivian Kirkpatrick, and Sr. Boston was baptized by Bro. Francis Burnett."—Mrs. Connie Ramsey, Morrilton, Ark.

Ruth Marie was born, April 23, 1947, to Bro. and Sr. James Mattison, Hammond, La. Congratulations!

Have you enrolled in the Correspondence—Child Study Course? Others are now taking advantage of this new training service.

OREGON BIBLE COLLEGE SUMMER SESSION

DATE—June 30 - July 27

AGE—18 or over

CREDIT—5 hours in four subjects

INSTRUCTORS—Otto Dick
James M. Watkins, Norman McLeod

COST—$40.00 for board, room,
and tuition

This year Oregon Bible College is going all the way in trying to give every Christian the chance for a greater personal preparation for service.

Courses of a practical nature of benefit to local church workers or those who desire to use their college credit toward further preparation for the ministry are being offered under the most qualified instruction.

Complete details will be announced later. If you are one of those interested, send your name on a post card so we may keep you informed personally.

OREGON BIBLE COLLEGE

With a growing list of successful graduates serving congregations throughout the United States, Oregon Bible College has established itself as one of the most vital factors in our work. Before its beginning eight years ago, it was not uncommon to see one church after another gradually falter and waste away for lack of competent leadership to aid its cause. Today, an average of over 50,000 hours of individual instruction per year is being received by interested persons under those who have gone forth from our College in the last five years better prepared for Christian service. To this list of ministers must also be added those others who by reason of more limited instruction are today serving Christ more acceptably in equally important stations in life. Twenty-five per cent of our present recognized ministerial list has been provided by Oregon Bible College as graduates in the last five years. Without this impetus to our work, we easily can see the position in which we would find ourselves today. The tragedy of closed church doors and diminished congregations could easily have been the experience of thirty or forty per cent of our fields. The possibilities of the present would not even be a vague dream, and the demoralizing effects of disinterest and inaction would have destroyed every department of our General Conference. Every dollar of cost and effort has been justified by the results attained.

The challenge before us is too great for us to rest upon our laurels. We are by no means meeting the demands of our fields for new workers. The only healthy condition is one in which a surplus of ministers forces us to the development of many lesser fields now available. To meet this growing need, each individual must consider himself a committee of one to search out and encourage consecrated and qualified young people to enter our College and greater Christian service. Even to begin to meet our present needs, we must have at least twenty freshmen for the opening of our fall term. Such an enrollment would put us far on the way to greater success in the field as well as along the way of self-support for our College. In this way additional funds now used for College can be devoted to Evangelism and its attendant progress. For the present, your continued interest and contributions are necessary to the maintenance of this very vital department. To give everyone the opportunity of preparing for greater Christian service regardless of his financial ability to pay, it always has been the aim of Oregon Bible College to keep its board and tuition costs at the lowest possible level, feeling sure that it is the desire of our people to use this means of contributing to the help of earnest young people who are willing to give their lives to service. Oregon Bible College has served a great need in the past; it must serve a greater need in the future. Its ability to serve depends on your support.

SPRINGTIME ALONG ROCK RIVER, ILLINOIS

This springtime scene along Rock River, Oregon, Illinois, suggests Ezekiel's vision of the River of Life. We quote: "The man that had the line in his hand . . . brought me through the waters; the waters were to the ankles. Again he measured . . . and brought me through the waters; the waters were to the knees. Again he measured . . . and brought me through; the waters were to the loins. Afterward he measured . . . and it was a river that I could not pass over: for the waters were risen, waters to swim in, a river that could not be passed over. . . . Then he brought me, and caused me to return to the brink of the river. Now when I had returned, behold, at the bank of the river were very many trees on the one side and on the other. . . . It shall come to pass, that everything that liveth, which moveth, whithersoever the rivers shall come, shall live. . . . By the river upon the bank thereof, on this side and on that side, shall grow all trees for meat, whose leaf shall not fade, neither shall the fruit thereof be consumed: it shall bring forth new fruit according to his months . . . the fruit thereof shall be for meat, and the leaf thereof for medicine" (Ezekiel 47:3-12).

“Summer Is Nigh”

The front-page picture, a spring scene of Rock River near the College, is proof that “summer is nigh.” “Summer is nigh,” literally. “Summer is nigh,” figuratively. Soon, the Kingdom of God will come!

Asked by His disciples concerning the end of this Age and His coming again, Jesus replied: “There shall be signs in the sun, and in the moon, and in the stars; and upon the earth distress of nations, with perplexity; the sea and the waves roaring; men’s hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth: for the powers of heaven shall be shaken. And then shall they see the Son of man coming in a cloud with power and great glory. And when these things begin to come to pass, then look up, and lift up your heads; for your redemption draweth nigh” (Luke 21:25-28).

Moreover, Jesus “spoke to them a parable,” saying: “Behold the fig tree, and all the trees; when they now shoot forth, ye see and know of your own selves that summer is nigh at hand. So likewise ye, when ye see these things come to pass, know ye that the kingdom of God is nigh at hand. . . . This generation shall not pass away until all be fulfilled” (vv. 21-32).

Jesus’ cursing of the unfruitful fig tree near Jerusalem symbolized His cursing of the unfruitful nation and its chief city. Today, though, the fig-tree nation shows signs of new life. Jerusalem today is tenfold the city of a few years ago. As one knows that summer is nigh when all trees bud in the springtime, so he may know that the generation seeing the budding of the fig-tree nation will witness, also, the coming of Christ and the Kingdom of God. Said the Psalmist (Psalm 102:16), “When the Lord shall build up Zion, he shall appear in his glory.” Zionism is spring’s assuring bud of summer’s full-flowered Kingdom.

A myriad of other signs, too, indicate that the coming of the Lord draws near: distress of nations, famines, pestilences, ocean upheavals, and earthquakes in divers places—even in famous Milwaukee.

Conference Year Is Closing

Each year, the books of National Bible Institution are closed on June 30. Thus, the bookkeeper has sufficient time to prepare a complete report of the Institution’s finances for presentation at the business sessions of the General Conference convening the first two weeks of August. As the present fiscal year draws toward its close, the books show that contributions have been insufficient, thus far, to do all the work that was outlined at last year’s General Conference. Though the Institution’s earned income has increased, the total budget allotments are not being reached. Expenses have exceeded the estimated costs, especially at the College. Everybody knows that food prices have soared. Let us raise the budget (as shown on page 14), and all will be well.

Dale and His Plane

In so far as we know, Brother Dale Dunbar, Swanton, Ohio, is the first member of our organization to fly his own airplane. Being a member of the Executive Board of National Bible Institution, he several times has flown his plane to Oregon and Ripley, Illinois, and to Grand Rapids, Michigan, on business trips for the Institution. . . . Of interest, too, he helped his Grandmother Elizabeth Reighard to celebrate her ninety-eighth birthday by a flight over her home town of Delta, Ohio.

Future Glory of Zion

By Miss Janice Johns, Oregon Bible College

ISAIAH 60 is fully a prophecy of Jerusalem's restoration. In the last part of chapter 59, we read: "The Redeemer shall come to Zion, and unto them that turn from transgression in Jacob, saith the Lord. As for me, this is my covenant with them, saith the Lord; My spirit that is upon thee, and my words which I have put in thy mouth, shall not depart out of thy mouth, nor out of the mouth of thy seed, nor out of the mouth of thy seed's seed, saith the Lord, from henceforth and for ever."

In the first few verses in chapter 60, Isaiah spoke of Jerusalem as of a woman crushed and desolate. She was to rise out of the dust and to impart the light that had been given her. We quote:

"Arise, shine; for thy light is come, and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee. For, behold, the darkness shall cover the earth, and gross darkness the people; but the Lord shall arise upon thee, and his glory shall be seen upon thee."

Jerusalem has been in darkness, but the Spirit of the Lord shall descend on her and she shall reflect His glory. All nations shall come to this light, and kings shall see the brightness of Zion. One can picture Jerusalem as a magnet drawing people from every nation, out of the darkness of the earth, with her brightness.

Jerusalem shall lift up her eyes and see these people coming to her and be exceedingly glad. "Lift up thine eyes round about, and see: all they gather themselves together, they come to thee; thy sons shall come from far, and thy daughters shall be nursed at thy side"—carried on the side or hip. (Isa. 60:4.) "Then thou shalt see, and flow together, and thine heart shall fear [throb], and be enlarged; because the abundance of the sea shall be converted unto thee, the forces [wealth] of the Gentiles shall come unto thee."

People of all nations shall flow unto Jerusalem as pictured in Isaiah 2:2, 3: "It shall come to pass in the last days, that the mountain of the Lord's house shall be established in the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills; and all nations shall flow unto it. And many people shall go and say, Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths; for out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem."

In Isaiah 60:6, we read: "The multitude of camels shall cover thee, the dromedaries of Midian and Ephah; all they from Sheba shall come: they shall bring gold and incense; and they shall shew forth the praises of the Lord." Camels are the ships of the desert. They shall come in great numbers to Jerusalem. Dromedaries, an Arabian specie of camel, and characterized by having only one hump, is noted for its swiftness. Midian is east of the Red Sea and stretches northward along Mount Seir. Ephah is part of Midian, east of the Dead Sea. The Midianites were famed for their abundance of camels. Sheba lies in the southern part of Arabia and is famed for its frankincense and gold.

"The flocks of Kedar [pastoral tribe of northern Arabia] shall be gathered together unto thee, the rams of Nebaioth shall minister unto thee: they shall come up with acceptance on mine altar, and I will glorify the house of my glory" (60:7). The rams of Nebaioth (also a pastoral tribe of northern Arabia) shall offer themselves voluntarily as an acceptable sacrifice, without waiting for any other priest, and God will glorify the house of His glory—the Temple.

Isaiah 60:8 sometimes is used as a prophecy of airplanes, but I believe Isaiah was speaking of the white-sailed ships of Tarshish mentioned in verse 9: "Surely the isles shall wait for me, and the ships of Tarshish first, to bring thy sons from far, their silver and their gold with them, unto the name of the Lord thy God, and to the Holy One of Israel, because he hath glorified thee."

Isaiah 60:10 tells of the rebuilding of the walls of Jerusalem. "The sons of strangers shall build up thy walls, and their kings shall minister unto thee: for in my wrath I smote thee, but in my favour have I had mercy on thee." The Gentiles are to be subject to the Jews, by voluntary submission, before the evidence of Jerusalem's spiritual superiority. This is a great contrast to the attitude of the Gentiles today toward the Jewish people.

We see in Isaiah 60:11, 12, that the gates of the city will be open continually for those who wish to come and serve Jerusalem. Those who will not serve Jerusalem shall perish.

The Lord will make the new Temple, whereon His feet shall rest, glorious and beautiful by the use of the glory of Lebanon (the cedar), the fir tree, and the pine tree.

The sons of those who afflicted Jerusalem "shall bow themselves down at the soles of thy feet; and they shall call thee, The city of the Lord, The Zion of the Holy One of Israel" (60:14). Every nation shall witness that Jerusalem is the City of God.

Jerusalem has been forsaken and desolate, so no traveler passed through, but the Lord (Please turn to page 9)

The Hot Spot, Hell

By E. H. Goit, Youngston, New York

THE HOT SPOT, hell, is the spawn of immortality of the soul. To a "sky piloting" religious world, a receptacle for the wicked is as necessary as a heaven for the righteous. Nominal Christendom clenches the hot spot, hell, a pagan relic, and advances its cause in banners of fear. Hell as a place of burning the wicked is nothing more or less than the imaginary vision of heathen philosophers. This philosophic flight of fancy was a bludgeon early wielded to frighten the unruly plebian masses into subjection to their rulers.

Hell-fire sermons are well calculated to drive away sleep and make one's hair stand on end. The dime mystery novel runs a very poor second in competition with the hell-fire fiction. By way of example, we cite a passage from the works of Jonathan Edwards:

"The world will probably be converted into a great lake or liquid globe of fire—a vast ocean of fire, in which the wicked shall be overwhelmed, which will always be in a tempest in which they shall be tossed to and fro, having no rest day or night, vast waves or billows of fire continually rolling over their heads, of which they shall forever be full of quick sense within and without: their heads, their eyes, their tongues, their hands, their feet, their loins, and their vitals shall forever be full of a flowing, melting fire, fierce enough to melt the very rocks and elements; and also they shall eternally be full of the most quick and lively sense to feel the torments: not for one minute, nor for one day, nor for one age, nor for two ages, nor for a hundred years, nor for ten thousands of millions of ages, one after another, but forever and ever, without any end at all, and never, never to be delivered." (Sermon, Vol. VII, p. 166.)

Seeking converts, hell-fire preachers employ the psychology of fear. Using fear as their weapon, they seek to panic their hearers into repentance. Their procedure is not the Bible mode. The Word teaches, "The goodness of God leadeth thee to repentance." Evidently these pseudo teachers do not know this.

In the Scripture, the logical recording of the construction of a fiery hell of torment—if there were one—would be in the creation drama. In the creative story, there is an account of the fashioning of a heaven and an earth, but no mention whatsoever of a fiery hell. If there is a burning hell, surely some mention of it would be made in the Word when Adam disobeyed God and Cain murdered his brother Abel. In an exhaustive Biblical research, you can discover no mention of an eternally burning inferno.

As a word, "hell" is of Anglo-Saxon origin. It is derived from helan. The meaning of helan in the ancient Saxon tongue was "to hide," "a hole beneath our feet," "a pit." Thus, a man who thatched or slanted roofs, in other words covered up holes, was called an "hellier." To cover a thing, or to bury it, was to hell it.

In the Bible, "hell," as a word, is translated from the Hebrew word sheol and the Greek word hades, both of these words meaning "grave." Thus, it is translated "hell" in some places and "grave" elsewhere. By way of illustration, we quote, "Jacob rent his clothes . . . and he said, For I will go down into the [sheol] grave" (Gen. 37:35). "O that thou wouldest hide me in the [sheol] grave" (Job 14:13). In the preceding verse, one can well see the absurdness of the popular theory of hell. If hell were a place of fire as the nominal Protestants and Catholics so aptly describe it, then poor, afflicted Job would have been asking to go from bad to worse: in fact, from boils to burns. Such foolishness!

Jesus, after performing most of His mighty works in Chorazin and Bethsaida, upbraided those cities for failing to repent. He said, "Capernaum, which art exalted unto heaven shalt be brought down to [hades] hell" (Matt. 11:23). Constant struggle and warfare between the Jews and Romans fulfilled this prophecy so well that there is no trace of Bethsaida or Capernaum. Truly, these unrepentant cities have been brought down to the grave; even unto hell itself.

Paul wrote, "O death, where is thy sting? O [hades] grave, where is thy victory?" (1 Cor. 15:55.) In the story of the rich man and Lazarus, we observe that "the rich man also died, and was buried; and in [hades] hell he lifted up his eyes" (Luke 16:22, 23). In this story, we read that the rich man was buried. The normal burying place is a grave and, true in every respect, it is the same identical word hades translated "hell" here that is translated "grave" in 1 Corinthians 15:55 and elsewhere in the New Testament.

Gehenna, the Greek word translated "hell" in the Common Version, occurs twelve times. It is the Greek manner of spelling the Hebrew words which are translated "the Valley of Hinnom." "Hell" is a very improper rendering of this word. Properly, it is rendered according to the Greek language, a garbage dump.

In Bible times, Gehenna was the garbage dump of Jerusalem. Into this dump all kinds of garbage, carcasses, and children sacrifices to Molech were thrown. Perpetual fires were kindled there by the constant influx of refuse. It well symbolizes death and utter destruction, but certainly not a place of perpetual torment.

Jesus taught that it was not the person that was to burn continually, but the fire, for its nature was unquenchable. This type of fire would destroy that which was cast into it and the "worm that dieth not" was extra insurance to insure the death or destruction of the refuse. Certainly, a garbage dump is not a place of preservation, but of corruption and destruction. Likewise, the grave is a place of corruption, for "dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return" (Gen. 3:19).

Jesus said, "If thy left hand offend thee, cut it off: it is better for thee to enter into life maimed, than having two hands to go into [Gehenna] hell, into the fire that shall never be quenched, where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched" (Mark 9:43, 44). Likewise, Jesus furnished the interpretation of this in Parable of the Tares. He said, "The tares are the children of the wicked one . . . that they are to be gathered and burned" (Matt. 13:38, 40). Thus, the King of righteousness shall gather the chaff and burn it with unquenchable fire. (See Matt. 3:12).

In the account of the Flood, it is recorded that "all in whose nostrils was the breath of life, of all that was in the dry land, died. And every living substance was destroyed which was upon the face of the ground, both man, and cattle, and the creeping things, and the fowl of the heaven; and they were destroyed from the earth: and Noah only remained alive, and they that were with him in the ark" (Gen. 7:22, 23). The facts of the story are simple. The people died and were destroyed. Thus it shall be at the end of the world. The people shall die and be destroyed. There shall be no preservation, but destruction. "As the days of Noe were, so shall also the coming of the Son of man be" (Matt. 24:37).

According to God's Word, the (sheol) grave or hell is a place of darkness. Job said, "If I wait, the [sheol] grave is mine house: I have made my bed in the darkness" (Job 17:13).

Man's contention of a popular hell is a place lit up with a glowing fire. What a gulf of difference between man's ideas and the Word of God!

If people are consigned to hell until the Judgment Day, why pray for them, except you believe in purgatory? Protestants reject purgatory as unscriptural. Purgatory, according to highest Catholic authority save the Pope, is a place where people are confined and cannot help themselves but can be aided by sufferings of the faithful on earth.

Yes, as they say, if you grease enough priests' palms with enough gold and silver, you can have enough masses said for the deceased and thus work the salvation of the dead one. We ask, "Can one believe on Christ for someone else?" Bible teaching is explicit in setting forth belief on Christ as a personal matter. It is a decision that only the believer can make.

Purgatory is kindred to Catholicism's prayer books and the Apocrypha, but certainly is alien to God's Word.

It is assumed by many Christians that Jesus went to the philosophers' hell to preach to the wicked of Noah's day. Peter wrote: "Christ also hath once suffered for sins, the just for the unjust, that he might bring us to God, being put to death in the flesh, but (Please turn to page 9)

FAITH

By I. S. Davis, Wenatchee, Washington

FAITH is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen" (Heb. 11:1). In other words, faith is a basis, a foundation, on which rests one's hope of things unseen. Faith is evidence that the unseen things for which we hope shall be ours.

Faith is belief in God: that He is, and that He is "a rewarder of them that diligently seek him." Faith is not only belief, in its narrow sense, but is a certain kind of belief: it is a belief accompanied with confidence. We believe in God. What is it that we believe of God? First, we believe that God is, that there is a God, and we believe He is our God. Second, we believe He will receive us as children and will reward us with all that is due the children of God.

As further evidence that faith is the basis on which our hope is builded, we refer to 2 Peter 2, wherein is given the formula whereby one may attain knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ, and escape "the corruption that is in the world through lust." In this formula, faith is the basis, or the foundation, upon which we build, or add other Christian virtues. Faith is the foundation and, in order, we add virtue, knowledge, temperance, patience, godliness, brotherly kindness, charity. "If these things be in you, and abound, they make you that ye shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ . . . For so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ." One starts from faith and finishes in the Kingdom of God.

Some feel that it would betray a weakness should they confess that their faith is the evidence that God is, and that He is a rewarder of them that diligently seek Him. No man has seen God at any time, yet many are confident that He exists. Who can prove to anyone other than himself that God exists? The natural man is limited to the five senses. By which of these can one prove that God exists? One may offer to others what seems to be evidence, yet not convince them. Man has the use of another sense: let us call it faith. Faith makes real that of which the five senses are skeptical.

Should Women Teach?

By Fred E. Hall, Morrilton, Arkansas

THE TITLE to this article is in form of a question because some argue against women teaching, quoting 1 Timothy 2:12, "I suffer not a woman to teach, nor to usurp authority over the man, but to be in silence." Another scripture that could be used is 1 Corinthians 14:34: "Let your women keep silence in the churches: for it is not permitted unto them to speak; but they are commanded to be under obedience, as also saith the law."

Those who argue that women should not teach, continue their argument by saying, and I quote: "We are still asking for Biblical authority for the church in this age to ordain and commission women as evangelists. Give us one instance of Jesus or His apostles ordaining them as evangelists. Since we are unable to find this authority, is it not reasonable to conclude that it was not and is not God's plan that woman should 'usurp' this authority that was delegated to 'the man'?"

If one in the house wishes to view the outside and he should look through a knothole, he would not get a very good view of the outside world. Whereas, if he would step to a window, or an open door, or even go outside, he would get a much better view of the outside world; and then, he would be much better qualified to tell another what he saw. Let us not view the subject of women being teachers or any other subject through a knothole.

Also, Paul wrote in 2 Timothy 2:14, "Of these things put them in remembrance, charging them before the Lord that they strive not about words to no profit, but to the subverting of the hearers." It is one thing to strive about words to no profit, but it is quite another thing to strive about words if, by so doing, a perplexing question can be clarified. Therefore, I trust that just this once I may be permitted to strive about words in defense of the women who have a desire to teach.

We surely need them, since it is apparent there are not enough men who consider it their Christian duty to teach in accordance with the explicit instructions of Jesus. Yes, we need the women, and I happen to know first hand that some of them are doing a very good work in bringing others into the family of Jesus. Women are natural teachers of children. Are there many men who have the ability to gather around them fifty to seventy-five children, and tell them the story of Jesus, and do it as efficiently as women now engaged in that good work?

I do not think it was the intention of the Master or His original disciples to bar women from working in His vineyard, either in the office of teaching or preaching. After all, there is not much difference, if any, between teaching and preaching. Preaching, in my opinion, is just a "highfalutin" way of teaching.

Before we continue with this discussion, one fact must be firmly established; and that is, that the man is the head of the woman. It has been so from the very beginning; for God said to the woman in Genesis 3:16: "Thy desire shall be to thy husband, and he shall rule over thee." Again, it was Paul who wrote in 1 Corinthians 11:3, "I would have you know, that the head of every man is Christ; and the head of the woman is the man; and the head of Christ is God."

Now let us consider 1 Corinthians 14:34, quoted at the beginning of the article. Please note that teaching is not referred to in that verse. Wilson, in his Emphatic Diaglott, renders that verse this way: "Let your wives be silent in the assemblies; for it has not been permitted to them to speak, but let them be submissive; even as the law also says." Irwin's Bible Commentary states that the speaking mentioned in that verse is chattering. I heartily agree that women should not thus speak in the assemblies, especially in a business session. That seems to be the thought of Paul, for he said in the preceding verse, "God is not the author of confusion [or tumult], but of peace, as in all the churches of the saints." That, apparently, is why Paul commanded that the wives be silent in the assemblies.

Now let us look at 1 Timothy 2:12. Paul said: "I suffer not a woman to teach." When one views this subject with an open Bible, it is evident that Paul did not intend to convey the thought that we have heretofore placed upon that statement. If he did, then Paul on other occasions spoke and acted in direct opposition to his own commandment, as I shall point out.

The thing that Paul was especially arguing, and the thing for which he had authority from both God and Jesus, was that the woman should not usurp authority over the man. It is evident that is what Paul was teaching, for he said in 1 Timothy 2:13: "Adam was first formed, then Eve." In that connection, we can go right back to Genesis 3:16. We may also read again 1 Corinthians 11:3.

In view of the foregoing, we may freely conclude that by divine commandment, the woman should not usurp authority over the man. The Greek word for "usurp" is authenteo, and this is the only place it is used in God's Word. The meaning of the Greek word is "to exercise power of one's self." In the dictionary, the first definition of "usurp" is "to seize and hold an office, position, or power by force or without right." For example: I am king and come to claim my own from an impostor who usurped my throne! If the king abdicates in favor of another, the other has a perfect right to the throne. Likewise, if man authorizes woman to teach, preach, or evangelize, who can say it is not in accordance with the commandments of God?

If God sanctioned Miriam, the sister of Aaron, a prophetess in Israel (Ex. 15:20), if God sanctioned Deborah, a prophetess and judge of Israel (Judg. 4:4), if God sanctioned Huldah, a prophetess in Israel in the days of righteous King Josiah (2 Kings 22:14), I cannot believe it is God's intention to bar women from His holy work in these days, provided she has the sanction of man, who is the head of the woman. In these three instances, where I have quoted the word "prophetess," the meaning of the Hebrew word is "female preacher."

It was a female preacher or prophetess by the name of Anna who was present at the time Jesus' parents brought Him into the Temple to do for Him after the custom of the law. Luke 2:38 reads: "She coming in that instant gave thanks likewise unto the Lord, and spake of him to all them that looked for redemption in Jerusalem." Simeon, the man who was not to die until he had seen Jesus, also was present at that time. Was Simeon to receive a blessing for his part in that ceremony, and Anna to receive a curse because she was a woman?

First Corinthians 11:5 reads, "Every woman that prayeth or prophesieth, with her head uncovered dishonoureth her head." The Greek word for "prophesieth" there means "to publicly expound." It is interesting to note that Paul wrote 1 Corinthians, so Paul sanctioned women preachers.

Consider, too, Acts 21:8, 9: "The next day we that were of Paul's company departed, and came unto Caesarea: and we entered into the house of Philip, the evangelist, which was one of the seven; and abode with him. And the same man had four daughters, virgins, which did prophesy." The word for "prophesy" in this case also means "to publicly expound or preach." Is it not strange that Paul did not condemn the evangelist Philip for having four daughters who preached? I will venture to say that Paul commended Philip for having raised four daughters who were willing to give their lives preaching the glad tidings in the name of Jesus.

Let me quote from Joel 2:28: "It shall come to pass afterward, that I will pour out my spirit upon all flesh: and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, your old men shall dream dreams, and your young men shall see visions." Peter commented on that prophecy in Acts 2: 16-18. The Greek for "prophesy" in those verses in Acts is proph, and means to publicly expound—to preach. The Day of Pentecost saw only a partial fulfillment of that prophecy, because the daughters and handmaidens did not preach at that time. Is the word of God true? Are His prophecies to be fulfilled? Of course! Then the daughters of men will have to preach in these last days to fulfill Joel's prophecy.

"I entreat thee also, true yokefellow, help those women which laboured with me in the gospel, with Clement also, and with other my fellowlabourers, (Please turn to p. 10)

THE SOUL OF MAN

By N. S. Westfall, Troy, Ohio

IN STUDYING the meaning of "soul," it is well to consider the word "spirit," also, for many people use the terms interchangeably. We read in Ecclesiastes 12:7: "Then shall the dust return to the earth as it was: and the spirit shall return unto God who gave it." Ecclesiastes 9:5 says, "The dead know not any thing." "The dead praise not the Lord, neither any that go down into silence" (Psalm 115:17). These verses prove that the "spirit" that returns to God when one dies is nothing that has consciousness. Indeed, the "spirit" is merely the breath, or the force of life. David said, "In death there is no remembrance of thee: in the grave who shall give thee thanks?" (Psalm 6:5.)

Concerning the word "soul," we read in Genesis 2:7: "The Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul." The breath of life made Adam a living soul. Job expressed the same thought, saying: "The spirit of God hath made me, and the breath of the Almighty hath given me life" (Job 33:4).

Now, it cannot be the soul that returns to God, for we read that "the soul that sinneth, it shall die" (Ezek. 18:4, 20). Also, Revelation 16:3 prophesies: "Every living soul died in the sea."

"Behold, the eye of the Lord is upon them that fear him, upon them that hope in his mercy; to deliver their soul from death, and to keep them alive in famine" (Psalm 33:18, 19). David said in Psalm 116:8: "Thou hast delivered my soul from death, mine eyes, and my feet from falling." These texts show that the soul can die—that it is not an immortal part of man. The Prophet Isaiah must have had the same understanding of the soul as did the foregoing writers, as indicated in his words: "Incline your ear, and your soul shall live" (Isa. 55:3).

In conclusion, we learned from Genesis 2:7 that God formed man from the dust of the ground, breathed into his nostrils the breath of life, thus making man a living soul. Now, if one will think only for a moment, he can see plainly that if breath is required to make man a living soul, taking that breath away from him would leave him a dead soul. That is exactly what happens at death: the breath ceases, the spirit of life thus being withdrawn, leaving man a dead soul.

EXPENSIVE FUNERALS. Every once in a while someone rises to challenge the seeming waste of money spent on so many funerals. It often has been argued that it costs more to die than to live with the outlay on expensive caskets and with so many floral offerings. Not long since we read of a suggestion of buying the casket in advance as a means of cutting down on the usual high expense. Though a few dollars could be saved by purchasing the casket before the Reaper comes, the thought of having it stored in the attic and keeping the rough box dusted off does not appeal to my fancy of saving money. Frank W. Crighton, Episcopal Bishop, Michigan, in his brochure on "Christian Burial" is reported by the "Lutheran Standard" as follows: "It is fitting to place flowers on the altar, and to have one or two other baskets of flowers in the chancel, but do not crowd the church with a lavish array. . . . Those who desire to pay tribute to the deceased should be encouraged, either as individuals or as a group, to give some lasting memorial to the church or to some other good work in which the deceased was interested. . . . We urge our people not to lavish money upon expensive caskets or funerals. The casket should never be opened in any part of the church building. . . . The burial service of the church is complete in itself and should not be combined with the services of any fraternal or military organization."

ENLIST TITHERS. The Southern Baptist Convention has undertaken to enlist 1,000,000 tithers by January, 1948. Commenting on the campaign, the editor of "The Watchman-Examiner" says: "Of course, we perfectly understand that all a Christian has belongs to the Lord, but we say that the tith belongs to the Lord for a specific reason, which is that the Bible commands God's people to assign or give to Him their tithes. This needs to be emphasized because a great deal of what belongs to the Lord is being siphoned off into secular benevolence."

There are so many demands made upon people these days to assist in alleviating the suffering and wants of the needy throughout the world; and, unless one is fully mindful of his stewardship of the gospel, he is likely to take money that should go to the extension of the gospel of the Kingdom and give to the deserving. Goodness knows many of the calls for help are worthy and deserving, and it is hard to close the ears to the cries of the needy; yet, it should not be forgotten that the gospel needs are urgent, and more so, than the physical. As Jesus said: "Ye have the poor with you always." We should help them, but do not rob the gospel for a morsel of bread.

DISCIPLES. The Yearbook for the Disciples of Christ for 1946, according to "World Call," soon will come from the press, and will give the following facts about the membership gains for the past year: "The total world membership is 1,889,066, a gain of 21,475 for the year. The total membership in the United States and Canada is 1,718,010, a gain over last year of 16,982. Baptisms in the United States and Canada increased 2,297 to reach 52,901 for the year, with Indiana leading all other states.

The figures indicate some progress by the Disciples of Christ, and with the reports given by other religious bodies, which have been putting forth extra efforts in their crusades for Christ, one might draw the conclusion that at long last the church is well on the road toward world evangelism. Here are some more figures as appeared in "Baptist Standard": "2,250,000,000 people in the world, only 680,000,000 nominal Christians. Protestants and Evangelicals, 226,000,000. Roman Catholics claim 340,000,000. Eastern Greek Orthodox, 120,000,000." According to these figures, and they are standard facts, the heathen population outnumber the nominal Christian population by more than three times. The heathen population is increasing much faster than the civilized, let alone the nominal Christian population. Not much hope of the world soon being converted to the gospel! . . . God is now working with the Gentiles "to take out of them a people for his name" (Acts 15:14).

BIBLE SCHOOLS. The Missouri Synod of the Lutheran Church issued, from Saint Louis headquarters, the announcement that 100,000 children would be enrolled in the vacation Bible schools in the Synod for the three weeks' school sessions, which will require 8,000 teachers. Nearly the full responsibility for religious training of children has fallen on the church. Clarence Benson, in his book on "An Introduction to Child Study," reports the National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teachers' Associations, way back in 1914, as reporting a "rapid progressing obliteration of family religion." Christian teaching in the home based on the Word of God is so seldom practiced it is almost a novelty. Perhaps there is no use crying over spilled milk, but maybe a few can see the danger signals and not fall into the groove of indifference and neglect of religion in the home life.

FEDERAL FUNDS. Since the Supreme Court decision of 5-4 upholding the New Jersey law permitting the use of state funds for the transportation of parochial school children, the battle between the forces of parochialism and free public schools has waxed hot and heavy. As predicted, the leaders of the Roman Catholic Church are using every means of propaganda to persuade the lawmakers to liberalize the laws so as to permit the parochial schools to share in the state aid to schools and federal aid if a federal education bill is passed. The League Opposed to Sectarian Appropriations, Boston, Massachusetts, has sent a strong letter to all members of Congress, ac-ording to Frank J. Batchelder, an official of the organization. The letter reads: "The appropriation of public money for sectarian schools, whether by federal, state, or municipal governments, is a clear violation of the great basic American principle of the complete separation of church and state. This is equally true whether the schools in question are aided by direct payment of public money or by the furnishing of free transportation, free textbooks, or free supplies of any nature for their pupils. Any attempts to secure such grants or aid should be decisively defeated."

PULP READING. If one stands near a prominent newsstand and observes what kind of reading material the young folk buy, and takes notice of the kind of periodicals boys and girls have in hand in public places, he will get a fairly accurate idea of what they are reading. "The Western Recorder" gives some very enlightening information on this subject in relation to juvenile delinquency. It says: "When you wonder about the 'Juvenile Problem' just remember that each month the boys and girls of the United States are reading 9,260,000 cheap adventure magazines, nearly 3,000,000 'True Confessions,' or fifty sex stories, 3,250,000 detective stories which reveal every possible aspect of how to commit crimes and get away with them, and more than 10,500,000 movie magazines with 'sex-appeal' pictures. Out of the heart are the issues of life, so how expect clean living when the heart is fed on such filth?"

I have been in many Christian homes where the children are allowed full liberty to pick out any type of pulp magazine they choose, especially if they are earning a little spending money of their own, and to sit hour after hour to fill their formative minds on moral contaminating material, then parents wonder why their children are not interested in the work of the church. Parents that do not have any more concept of moral responsibility and leadership than to allow their children to have and read such type of material should come under strict censorship of the church.

LUST OF THE FLESH. John is the only writer that employs the term "antichrist." This does not mean that he is the only writer that gives space and information on the coming of the man of sin. Various other titles are used by the other Biblical writers to describe this "prince that shall come." One thing John does stress about the antichrist is that his kingdom will be founded on the lust of the flesh that will more and more dominate the lives of people. With the falling away from the faith, there will be a corresponding increase in people being given over to the "lust of the flesh, and the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life." The strength and power of the Antichrist will center around the lust of the flesh. The more the lust of the flesh increases, the nearer we are to the "last time."

THE HOT SPOT, HELL

quicken[ed] [resurrected] by the Spirit [power of God]; by which [power] also he went and preached unto the spirits in prison. Which sometimes were disobedient when once the longsuffering of God waited in the days of Noah, while the ark was a preparing, wherein few, that is, eight souls were saved by water" (1 Peter 3:18-20).

To believe this is an account of Jesus personally preaching to the wicked, it must be assumed that the spirits are bodiless entities, that their prison was the philosophic hell, that there is knowledge in the grave or hell, and that Christ's body died on the cross and His soul went forth to preach.

One explanation offered to make sense out of this seemingly difficult passage is to place a period after the word "obedient" in verse 20, and begin a new paragraph of thought with the following word "when."

We submit the following: 1) The spirits who received the preaching were living people, for in 1 John 4:1 the "spirits" are plainly identified as being living people; 2) the antediluvians were preached Christ or the gospel in the days of Noah (v. 20), when they were living people; 3) by the Spirit (power of God) Jesus preached through Noah . . . Those who were in prison (the grave or hell) at the time of Christ were void of understanding and knowledge. (See Eccl. 9:5, 10.)

If it was Christ who personally preached to the antediluvians, why was the preaching confined only to those wicked? If these people were in the imaginative inferno, tormented with the pains of hell fire, how could they listen with the thought and reason required to understand and believe?

This Spirit of Christ, or power of God, was invested in the prophets. (See 1 Peter 1:11.) It was the same Spirit that overshadowed the Virgin Mary to bring forth the Christ. It was through this Spirit of Christ, which was in Noah, that Christ preached to the antediluvians that were in their graves at the time of His crucifixion. To say Christ Himself preached to bodiless entities is to deny the main tenet of the Word. It is to deny that the antediluvians were dead, yet the Scripture positively tells us that they not only died but were destroyed. (See Gen. 7:22, 23.)

If Christ went to Paradise the day He was crucified, as nominal Protestants and Catholics teach, when did He go to the prison of the wicked? and how did He cross the impassable gulf of Luke 16:26 to preach?

Further to demonstrate that the Hebrew sheol is the same as the Greek hades, we proffer Psalm 16:10 and Acts 2:31. "Thou wilt not leave my soul in (sheol) hell; neither wilt thou suffer thine Holy One to see corruption" (Psalm 16:10). Peter, on the Day of Pentecost, quoted the fulfillment of this verse by saying, "His soul was not left in

Cardinal Gibbons said, "For, what is death? A mere separation of body and soul. The body indeed dies, but the soul 'lives and moves and has its being.' It continues after death, as before, to think, to remember, to love." (The Faith of Our Fathers. p. 260.)

Nominal Protestants and Catholics infused with this "Devil's lie," "Ye shall not surely die" (Gen. 3:4), are compelled to teach a pagan, philosophic hell of torment. Realizing the weight of the "Devil's lie" and the strength of the "truth," we are sure an unbiased mind can reach no other conclusion than that the "hot-spot hell" of religious fiction is not the hell-covering or grave of the Bible; that the "hot-spot hell" is spurious, and that the grave is the hell of God's Word.

will make of her "an eternal excellency and a joy of many generations" (v. 15). She shall draw riches from the Gentiles and will know that the Lord is her Redeemer. God says: "For brass I will bring gold, and for iron I will bring silver, and for wood brass, and for stones iron: I will also make thy officers peace, and thine exactors righteousness. Violence shall no more be heard in thy land, wasting nor destruction within thy borders; but thou shalt call thy walls Salvation, and thy gates Praise" (vv. 17, 18). All rulers in Jerusalem will rule with peace and righteousness. "Not only shall thy walls keep thee safe from foes, but 'Salvation' shall serve as thy walls, converting thy foes into friends, and so ensuring thee perfect safety" (Jamieson, Fausset, & Brown). The gates—once the scene of destruction when foes burst through them—will then be the scene of praise.

"The sun shall be no more thy light by day; neither for brightness shall the moon give light unto thee: but the Lord shall be unto thee an everlasting light, and thy God thy glory. Thy sun shall no more go down; neither shall thy moon withdraw itself: for the Lord shall be thine everlasting light, and the days of thy mourning shall be ended. Thy people also shall be all righteous: they shall inherit the land for ever, the branch of my planting, the work of my hands, that I may be glorified" (vv. 19-21).

The sun and moon will be eclipsed by the glory of God shining in Jerusalem. The light of God will nevermore withdraw from His people. The Jewish nation shall be all righteous and they, the work of God's hands, shall inherit the land forever, that the Lord may be glorified. The Lord shall increase the numbers of the Jews that one will become a strong nation. When the time is here, the Lord will hasten these events.

SHOULD WOMEN TEACH?

whose names are in the book of life" (Phil. 4:3). It is evident, then, that by authority given them by Paul there were women who worked with Paul in spreading the good news. There is additional evidence in Romans 16: 1-3 that this was so. "I commend unto you Phebe our sister, which is a servant of the church which is at Cenchrea: that ye receive her in the Lord, as becometh saints, and that ye assist her in whatsoever business she hath need of you: for she hath been a succourer of many, and of myself also. Greet Priscilla and Aquila, my helpers in Christ Jesus."

It was a woman who brought Jesus into the world. (Matt. 1:16.) It was a woman who anointed Jesus for His burial. (Mark 14:8.) It was a woman to whom Jesus first talked after His resurrection (John 20:15), and the woman carried the glad tidings to the men. Having taken so important a part in the life of Jesus, are women now to be barred from preaching the glad tidings concerning His saving power and His coming Kingdom?

After Jesus' resurrection, He appeared to His disciples, as recorded in Matthew 28:16-20. Note that the Eleven were called disciples, which means "taught or trained ones." In the margin of your Bible, you will find that the statement, "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations," means,

"Go ye therefore, and make disciples, or, make Christians." Were they to make disciples or Christians of men only? No! Because Jesus said in John 12:46: "I am come a light into the world, that whosoever believeth on me should not abide in darkness." Paul also said, in Galatians 3:28ff: "There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female: for ye are all one in Christ Jesus." Now Jesus commissioned the eleven disciples to go and teach or make other disciples. Since He commissioned the original eleven disciples to teach, did He not also, at that time, commission all disciples to teach, and would not that include me and my wife and daughters?

Again, it was Paul who said in Ephesians 4:11, 12: "He gave some, apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers; for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ." Apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors, and teachers—they are all in the same group; and since all faithful disciples, both male and female, are of the body of Christ, we must conclude that Paul here acknowledged that the women also were in that group who would continue to preach the gospel until Jesus comes.

I believe I am safe in saying that a Christian man or woman has not proved himself or herself a faithful disciple of Jesus until he or she has put forth a definite effort to teach in one way or another.

OREGON, ILLINOIS

A son, David Val, was born, May 3, to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mattison. Congratulations! Sr. Edna Gruber, who had been bedfast at her home for some time, was back at her usual place in Sunday school and church, May 4.

Sr. Leila Mae Doeden is a patient in Sacred Heart Sanitarium, Milwaukee, Wis. We hope she soon can return home.

Mrs. Leota B. Hanson and Mabel Lindsay left Oregon, Friday, May 9, to be with their mothers on Mother's Day—Sr. Hanson's mother living at Saint Jacob, Ill., and Sr. Lindsay's mother living in Saint Louis, Mo. Accompanying them were Mrs. Elizabeth March and Mrs. Charles Dugdale, both going to Saint Louis to visit relatives.

Sr. Albert Logsdon is visiting her parents, Bro. and Sr. William Densmore, and her sister Isabelle Smith, at Ripley, Ill.

CARLSBAD, NEW MEXICO

This report is a little late but not because we did not enjoy Bro. M. W. Lyon's short visit here with us from April 18-24. We had services every evening and Sunday morning and had real good interest. At several services, we had twenty-five or thirty people.

We are happy to have Bro. and Sr. Jerry Reeves living here now, and we hope they will start meeting with us. They came sometime during our little meeting held by Bro. Lyon.

Kenneth and Lenora Greer were buried with their Lord in baptism on the night of April 23. They are children of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Greer, and they are two very nice young people.

Bro. E. H. King and Sr. B. Bartlett received a message Saturday night that their brother-in-law, Bro. M. V. Brantley of Sweetwater, Tex., was quite ill and would undergo surgery on May 4. We ask your prayers for his very early recovery.

We are expecting Bro. E. O. Stewart in the very near future for another little meeting. We hope to have Bro. Lyon again sometime. Mrs. B. Bartlett.

Bro. Maurice F. Roberts, Moody, Tex., reports having much enjoyed a visit from Bro. M. W. Lyon. He says, "I believe it worth the time and money spent to have pastors or evangelists to visit the isolated members."

SUNDAY SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENTS ATTENTION!

It is not too early for you and your Sunday school to begin thinking about your exhibit for General Conference.

Give other Sunday schools a chance to see samples of your materials and ideas. Last year we had a fine exhibit, but we desire to hear from more of you this year.

Announcement will be made at a later date as to where and when you should send your material, so watch!

RETURN TO FAITH. The World Jewish Congress reports that 7,000 Jews in Hungary have returned to their former faith since the liberation by the Allies. Dr. F. Hevesi, Chief Rabbi of the Neological Community in Budapest, reported to the Congress that Hungarian Jewry now number 240,000, with 30,000 still being held as prisoners of war in Russia.—C. E. CARLSBAD AND EL PASO

At Carlsbad, N. M., six preaching services were held, April 19-23, with much interest manifested. There are four families here: the Kings, Bartletts, Greers, and the Reeves family. It was a pleasure to pay a return visit to these good folks who, though isolated, are deeply interested and anxious to erect a church building in which to worship.

We located also four Christadelphian families who seemed much interested and anxious to co-operate. We are hoping that they will attend the meetings and swell the little group.

It was a happy privilege, on the closing night, to witness the application of Kenneth and Lenora Greer for baptism. We went "the same hour of the night" to the Pecos River, at a near-by park, where these young people were immersed into the saving Name of Christ. They are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Louis V. Greer, 215 N. 2nd St., Carlsbad. Both are still in school, and we pray that they may find much pleasure in "growing up into Christ" in all things.

With these two additions, the little group at Carlsbad now numbers twelve, including two young people temporarily away.

Roswell, N. M., was visited, April 24, and out of several families whose names had accumulated, I found none who were members or especially interested. I next went to Ruidoso, N. M., where there are two members, Mrs. Claude Welch and her brother, W. C. Allen. A pleasant visit was enjoyed with these two families, then I turned back southward to arrive at El Paso on April 25.

At El Paso, I was made very welcome at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Mitcheltree, who live about ten miles southeast of town, near Ysleta. On Saturday, Sr. Mitcheltree took me to the homes of most of the church families there for brief visits to get acquainted.

Bro. Gerald Cooper of Tempe, Ariz., has recently visited the little group here twice, the last time just the week previously, when he conducted daily Bible classes in the various homes from April 16-20. His work seems to have been of real benefit to the people and strengthened them, especially the young people. On Saturday, April 19, it was his sad duty to officiate at the graveside of the prematurely-born son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Lindau. They had been looking forward with so much enthusiasm to becoming parents that it was a hard blow to have to lay away their first-born. But He who loves little children will not forget this little one in the day when He calls them to "come again from the hand of the enemy." Sr. Lindau is recovering nicely, we are glad to report, and we hope and pray that God will soon restore her to normal strength and comfort her in her sorrow.

Bro. Cooper conducted the regular Sunday afternoon service on his last day here. We are thankful for the work he has done, and hope that the way will be opened for him to make further visits, as the people here need more encouragement.

For so long I had been looking forward to visiting El Paso that it was a joyful privilege to be there at last. This was my last stop in Texas, bringing to a finish the eight months' work of the past fall and winter.

On Sunday, April 27, two preaching services were held: in the morning at the Mahoney home, 3903 La Luz St., and in the evening at the Mitcheltree home, where pictures were shown of other places. The local people very much enjoyed these pictures. We enjoyed having Sr. Bulah Greer of Carlsbad with us, who came over for the occasion. Her daughter, Mrs. Annie Marshall and children who live in El Paso, also attended.

Sunday afternoon our hearts were made to rejoice when we gathered at the water's edge to assist six young people in putting on the Name of Christ in baptism. They are the four children of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mahoney: Mary, Patsy, Virgil, and Jane; and the two sons of Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Mitcheltree: James B. and M. G., Jr. These young people have been well taught by their mothers, and know the meaning of the sacred step they have taken. Their obedience brings the membership of the El Paso church to fourteen. The address of the Mitcheltree family is Rt. 1, Box 563, El Paso, Tex. We welcome these young people to the household of faith, praying that they may now find a deeper joy and meaning in the Bible study, knowing that they are God's children and under His care.

Thus our work in Texas ended on a very happy note, with a most wonderful day in God's service, which we only pray will be prophetic of the brighter day for His work in the State of Texas. The work there during the past months has been most greatly enjoyed. We look forward to working again with these folks in the future, and hope that much fruitage will result to the honor of our Master's Name.

M. W. Lyon, Evangelist.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by

National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois

The Restitution Herald is official organ of the General Conference of the Church of God. Subscription rate: 50 issues per year, $2.50.

The Restitution Herald advocates: the near return of Christ (Acts 1:11), and life only through Him (Col. 3:3); the literal resurrection of the dead (John 5:28); the immortalization of those in Christ (1 Cor. 15:53, 54); the destruction of the wicked (Rev. 21:8); the final restoration of Israel as the Kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ (Luke 1:32), the church to be joint-heirs with Him (Rom. 8:17), and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations (Isa. 60:1-3); the "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21). It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

"Wherefore ye shall do my statutes, and keep my judgments, and do them; and ye shall dwell in the land in safety" (Leviticus 25:18).

Be Ye Holy

The Lord God spoke to Moses. He gave him rules to help His people serve Him better. God told them what was right or wrong in His sight. He wanted the Israelites to love Him.

God said: "Ye shall be holy: for I the Lord your God am holy" (Lev. 19:2).

A holy person is one "set apart" or separated from that which would make him unholy or common. God did not want the Israelites to be vain in their hearts, but to be pure and good.

Their ruling was to be done in righteousness. Justice is unfair if allowed to be meted out by those who have too much sympathy for the weak or poor. It also goes astray if the judges have too great regard for the strong or wealthy.

There is a time coming, as told by John, when an angel of the Lord will say, "The time is at hand" (Rev. 22:10). Then, "He that is unjust, let him be unjust still: and he which is filthy, let him be filthy still: and he that is righteous, let him be righteous still: and he that is holy, let him be holy still" (Rev. 22:11, 12).

The Word declares: "If the righteous scarcely be saved, where shall the ungodly and the sinner appear?" (1 Peter 4:18.) The righteous are just and morally upright. "The eyes of the Lord are over the righteous, and his ears are open unto their prayers: but the face of the Lord is against them that do evil" (1 Peter 3:12).

Love Others As Self

God said: "Ye shall be holy." We, today, who are the "called out" ones are to be holy. We mentioned that to be holy is to be "set apart." People are separated for many reasons. The Christians are set apart for God's service. There are no other hands, no other voices, no other hearts to do His service today.

To be called of God is a "holy calling" (2 Tim. 1:9). Christ "gave himself for us, that he might redeem us from all iniquity, and purify unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works" (Titus 2:14).

Were you ever filled with zeal or eagerness to do something? Perhaps it was to go fishing with Dad. You planned and worked to get everything ready beforehand. That was so you could have more fun when the time came to go fishing.

Jesus called some of the twelve to become fishers of men. He calls us today to be filled with zeal for His service. He wants a people for His name. If we use all our energy on earthly things, we run out of time to do service for Him. That is listed as a work of the flesh in the Word. It is called "emulations." (Gal. 5:20-24.) That is when our zeal is not applied where it should be. The Bible tells us plainly to seek first the Kingdom of God. If we put our service for the Lord first and keep ourselves holy, we will not be guilty of selfish zeal or "emulations." The Word says: "They which do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God" (Gal. 5:21).

Churches were established for us. The "church" is composed of the "called out" ones. The building called a church is where those people meet for worship and study. To establish something means to make it strong. We are strengthened by our gathering together. (See Acts 16:5, 18; Eph. 5:27.) Another work of the flesh is "scdition," or "standing apart." We should love to work with those of the church who are Christ's own.

God said: "Ye shall keep my sabbaths, and reverence my sanctuary: I am the Lord" (Lev. 19:30). The sanctuary God was talking about was the temple or tabernacle. (Ex. 25:8.) It was called a "worldly sanctuary." It is the place "where God dwells with man."

We can be part of "a greater and more perfect tabernacle, not made with hands" if we serve God with love and reverence Him in our hearts and lives. "Let us have grace, whereby we may serve God acceptably with reverence and godly fear" (Heb. 12:28b).

Shackled by Inefficiency?

DO YOU ever feel as if your young people's class is shackled, helpless like a prisoner? Does it seem as if you are running around in circles like a lion in a cage, full of ideas and energy, but seemingly unable to get much done? One of the reasons may be that we are shackled by inefficiency. We have the idea, but lack the efficiency, method, know-how, and systematic co-ordination to move in a body in one direction.

Perhaps your organization is shackled by inefficient officers. "The officers of a society are more responsible for its success or failure than any other cause" (Baptist Young People at Work). The officers must be leaders, "doers who do," persons who take responsibility. When they do not, the organization becomes lax and energy-wasting like the caged lion.

When a young soldier was telling of his fright in battle, a friend asked, "Why didn't you run to a tree?"

"There weren't enough trees for the officers," the boy replied.

An officer in your society may be "up a tree" in one of these three ways. He may be overly shy and modest, like Zacchaeus; he may lack imagination and ability to know what to do next; or he may lack consecration and zeal to do the task for the Lord.

Officers should be chosen carefully and on the basis of their qualifications. To elect a man to office in the hope that he will gain the necessary qualities is the height of folly. To "pass the job around" and keep from hurting Bette Do's feelings are not sufficient reasons for electing one to office. A good record of service and leadership should stand behind every Berean officer.

We need more officer-training courses of study in our local meetings, and we need more young people trained at the Summer Bible Schools and Oregon Bible College. Your track, football, and other sport teams demand training and discipline to get successful results; why not your Berean society?

Perhaps you are shackled by inefficiency at the place of obtaining new members. Lack of growth in numbers, with no visible signs of accomplishing the Christian duty of carrying the gospel, can cause despondency and lack of interest in the young people's class. Inefficiency in evangelistic effort may so burden us that we are stopped like the Jordan River, while God's people pass us by.

We have developed plenty of alibis to salve our consciences for neglecting to do any good for the 17,000,000 American youths who have no church connection. We have called them incorrigible, disinterested, wild, delinquent; we have reminded ourselves of the "little flock." In fact, we have done everything but admit inefficiency at the level of personal evangelism; simply, asking people to our meetings.

We need more lessons in personal evangelism, more imagination and zeal in launching and keeping afloat membership drives, and more follow-up work in holding the young people who do show interest. Before you call me a fanatic, ask yourself honestly, "How many people have I ever asked to come to young people's meeting?" If you have asked one hundred and none have come, I plead guilty to optimism.

Here are only two places where inefficiency may exist. There are dozens more. Is your society shackled by inefficiency? Examine yourselves honestly; see where the shackles are and correct the deficiency.

Dean Moore, Raymond Brown, and Gordon Landry have organized a new young people's class at East Oregon Chapel. Gordon has resigned as editor of the Oregon Berean Bulletin.

The Oregon Bereans have three of their high school girls singing weekly in the local hospital. Many of the patients receive much joy from this service of love.

The Wenatchee Berean News reports that the Wenatchee Bereans have charge of third Sunday evening services. Clell France was the leader April 23. A box social, for the benefit of the Organ Fund and Building Fund, was conducted by the young people, April 25.

"Let us be not only Bereans that diligently search the Scriptures, but also Samaritans that have a love and compassion for the destitute who lie along life's wayside. . . . As you walk through life, will you pause to help a friend in need? Does not your heart turn to him who says, 'Traveler, curse me as you pass, for I am in darkness and cannot answer?'"—Dean Moore.

COLLEGE NEWS

We are all most happy to have Bonnie Huffer visiting with us. Our pleasure, however, is far outshone by the pleasure that a certain student from Washington takes in her presence.

Our student counselor, O. E. Dick, spoke at both chapel services last week. We all enjoyed his discourse on the various phases of literature. His reading of poems of well-known American and English poets was also excellent. We are looking forward to enjoying a course in literature, under Bro. Dick, next semester.

Tuesday morning, in chapel, Bro. Magaw appointed certain of the students to committees for planning and preparing the graduation exercises. The graduation will be June 13—a Friday night, by the way.

Last Thursday evening the ladies of the Oregon Doreas Society, with their families and the College students, enjoyed a scramble supper at the College. After the supper, a play was presented, which was enjoyed by all.

"Mom" Brewer was recipient of a very pleasant surprise Thursday afternoon of last week. Her son-in-law and daughter Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Demmitt, Troy, Ohio, spent a short time with her, having to leave the following morning. They brought a small tractor and plow with them, and we wish to thank them for this kindness.

The library has been fortunate of late, in that several of our friends have donated books to us. The names of the donors are: V. E. Kirkpatrick, Brockton, Mont.; Paul Hately, Oregon, Ill.; Glenn Birkey, Rochelle, Ill.; Mrs. Edward Barck, Waterloo, Iowa. Thank you all very much, and we do appreciate your kindness in helping us in this manner.

W. Howard Beemer, News Editor.

ANNOUNCEMENT—INVITATION

The forty-third annual May Meeting of the Fonthill Church of God will be held May 23-25, inclusive, Bro. F. L. Austin, who was pastor here for seventeen years, will be guest speaker. We will be pleased to welcome any of the household of faith who find it convenient to come and join with us in this annual meeting.

C. E. Randall, Pastor.

BIBLE SCHOOL TIME IS HERE

Bible school time is here. Our first school started March 30 at Mountain Springs, near Russellville, Ark. A surprise awaited us when we arrived there. The county school supervisor, the school board, and teachers of the Mountain Springs School, where our classes were held, had decided that the Bible classes would be of more value to the children than their regular school classes, so we were given from one to three each afternoon for our classes. All the school children then could attend. It was a joy to return here, for this was an enthusiastic group of children. Eleven children's classes were held, with an enrollment of 65 and an average attendance of 40. The adults felt quite left out when the schedule was changed from night to day, so four evening classes were held, with an average attendance of 30. On Wednesday night, April 2, a class was held at the home of Bro. and Mrs. H. Scott Smith at London, Ark.

April 5 found Sr. Mabel Barnum and me on our way to McGintytown, Ark., where our second Bible school was scheduled to open that night. Classes were held here each night after school. The children were really "Little Buzzing Bees" and worked hard to bring their "Little Bees" to the classes. The enrollment reached 45 and the average attendance was 25. There were 11 children's classes and 2 adult classes. The average attendance for the adult classes was 61.

Little Rock, Ark. (rural), was the scene of our next school, which began April 15. Just a year ago the enrollment here was 12, this year it was 105. This large enrollment was quite a surprise, especially to Miss Mabel and me, as we had to prepare more lessons which we were most happy to do. These children were "Little Buzzing Bees," also, but one of the greatest joys was to see how enthusiastically the adults entered into the work, assisting with their cars and their help in the classes. To this increased interest on the part of the adults is due the success of the school. Prospects for an even larger school next year is possible, for many children were not contacted that do not live far from the church. Fourteen children's classes were held and four for the adults. The adult classes were held at night and the children's classes after school each evening.

The week end of April 26, 27 was spent at Clark's Chapel, Magazine, Ark. Three children's classes were conducted here with an average attendance of 13.

April 28, we started for Hartshorne, Okla., where we now are working with Bro. W. E. Simmons in a Bible school at Arch. A full account of this school will be given in the May report.

How we wish you could all be with us to receive a portion of the inspiration we receive when we look into the happy faces of so many children! We ask for the prayers of one and all that we may lead these young lives into the pathway of righteousness. Verma C. Thayer

INDIANA YOUTH RALLY

The first State Young People's Rally was held at the Morning Star Church of God in South Bend, Ind., on Sunday, April 27, with about one hundred thirty in attendance.

Ninety attended Sunday school which was conducted at 9:45 a.m., with Paran Anderson, superintendent, in charge. The morning worship was conducted at 11:00 a.m., Bro. J. M. Watkins being the guest speaker. The Hope Chapel choir, directed by Bro. Everett Stilson, sang a selection at this time. Communion service followed with Bro. Watkins and Bro. Delbert Jones in charge. At noon, everyone enjoyed a delicious basket dinner.

At 2:30 p.m., the youth rally was held with Bro. Watkins in charge. The following churches were represented: North Salem, Pymouth, Kokomo, Hillisburg, Morning Star and Hope Chapel of South Bend, and also Oregon, Ill., and the Pennellwood Church of Grand Rapids, Mich.

Special musical numbers were presented by the young people. Richard Rouch played the accordion accompanied at the piano by his sister Marjorie; Patsy Naylor played the flute and was accompanied at the piano by Elena Uline; the young people from Kokomo sang two numbers, and Joyce Macy gave a piano selection. Bro. Watkins asked for reports from the various churches regarding their youth activities. Several reports were given which were both interesting and encouraging.

Following the afternoon meeting, five young people, members of Hope Chapel Sunday School, were baptized by Bro. Timothy Pearson. They are, namely: Virginia Doolen, Jacqueline and Beverly Oler, Emil Green, and Margaret Westenberg.

We were most happy to welcome Bro. Otto Dick and family, and Bro. and Sr. Watkins from Oregon, Ill., and also about eighteen young people from the Pennellwood Church.

The Indiana ministers who attended the youth rally and conference were Bros. Floyd Stilson, Emory Macy, Delbert Jones, Richard Parish, and Timothy Pearson.

The evening service was conducted at 7:30, with Bro. Watkins again speaking.

(Mrs.) Erma McChesney, Secy.

CHANGE OF DATE FOR TEXAS CONFERENCE

When the date for the Texas Conference was agreed upon recently, it was thought this week was clear of any conflict; but it has since developed that there was a misunderstanding as to the time of the Western Nebraska Conference, which will meet at the same time as the Texas Conference has been announced to meet. Since I am engaged for the Western Nebraska Conference and the Texas people want me at their Conference, they graciously shifted the dates for their Conference a week later than first announced. Word has just been received from Bro. Wolfe at Gatesville that the church has approved the new dates.

The new date for the Texas Conference is August 23-31, inclusive. Please all Texans make note of the change and try to plan to be present. We sincerely hope that no one has been inconvenienced by the change. Perhaps it will be an even better one than the original one. It will give you an extra week to get ready to go.

M. W. Lyon.

LETTER FROM SISTER KINCHELOE

Dear Brethren of the Church of God:

The notice in The Restitution Herald of the death of my husband, James U. Kincheloe, April 11, has brought cards and letters of sympathy to me and our children from many of you. I will, in time, reply to each personally; but, until I can do so, I wish, through the medium of The Restitution Herald, to express my appreciation of your expressions of Christian love and sympathy in this hour of sorrow.

Death is man's worst enemy—the end of life's opportunity. Mr. Kincheloe was a member of the Fairfax Baptist Church, a firm believer in the eternal God, and Jesus Christ His anointed Son. He believed in the mortal nature of men and was a friend of their widows and children. He now rests in peace until the coming of Jesus and the resurrection when we all shall know the verdict of our sojourn in this life.

May God grant mercy and forgiveness of sins to one and all who trust in His Holy Name.

V. R. Kincheloe.

Gleanings From the Field

Help for a Prospective Minister. Anyone interested in attending the Summer Bible Training School (June 30 - July 27) or the Berean Youth Rally (July 14-27), but who is unable to attend because of limited means, is invited to address the Editor, telling his approximate financial need. Several persons have requested us to co-operate with them in searching for prospective students, especially for young men interested in the ministry and who are unable to attend either of these schools unless receiving financial assistance.

"We much appreciate the garden tractor and accompanying plow and lawnmower recently purchased for our use at Golden Rule Home and the College."—Charles Pearson, Caretaker.

Again! More news than can be contained on these regular news pages makes use of pages 10 and 11 necessary this week.

Bro. and Sr. Charles Pearson and Sr. Timothy Pearson went to West Milton, Ohio, May 9, to attend graduation exercises for their children, Douglas and Joy Ann.

"David Batering was baptized on Sunday afternoon, April 27, having acknowledged his faith in Jesus Christ, God's Son, as his Saviour. David will be twelve years of age next October, but his knowledge of the Scriptures and his spiritual development are beyond that of many of his seniors. We pray God's richest blessing on him in his service."—H. U. Krogh, Jr., Grand Rapids, Mich.

Scrap

A letter to "Mom" Nedrow, reporter for East Oregon Chapel, from Pvt. William Messenger, informs her that he is doing evangelistic work among the Chinese children and young folks as opportunity presents itself. We want to hear more from this zealous young man. May the Lord bless him.

Your editor wants to thank the reporters from the Illinois churches for their faithful efforts in sending in news and reports of your church activities. We would like your opinions, also, on the work of the Illinois Conference. If you have historical data, ideas, or pictures which you think would be profitable to Illinois Conference members, send them to H. J. Doan, 1908 North Keystone Avenue, Chicago 39, Illinois. We cannot print everything, but we want to hear from you, and pass along what we can.

Do you know that the first Church of God of the Abrahamic Faith in America was organized by Benjamin Wilson in Geneva, Illinois, in 1868? (John Fiske in The Restitution Herald of May 14, 1946.) This organization had fifteen articles of faith which were signed by converts before baptism. Articles of faith of present-day Churches of God in Illinois differ very little in basic detail. Illinois has played an important part in Church of God history. Next year (1948) will be the Conference's fiftieth birthday as an organization.

Many of our churches now have visual education equipment. To save money and make more pictures available to every church, why not establish a revolving library of slides and slide films? Bring a list of films owned by your church to the Illinois Conference and Bible School this summer—July 29 - August 9—at Oregon.

"Do you sometimes become discouraged because there is little talent in your church? We did, but came to find out we have quite a bit. We called certain people to do certain things, such as reading, singing, and piano playing, and have found we have much talent. People seldom show their talent until they are asked. So try asking! You will be surprised."—Evelyn Wagner, Dixon.

Our Conference treasurer, Mrs. Mildred Somers of Monroe Center reports that she enjoyed her first visit to Ripley for the Spring Conference, and that "the truth hasn't been stretched one bit about its food and hospitality." The quarterly conferences are a real blessing to all who attend, whether you be an isolated member or active in a local church.

"Do all the good you can,
By all the means you can,
In all the ways you can,
In all the places you can,
At all the times you can,
To all the people you can,
As long as ever you can."

—John Wesley's rule.

OREGON—

Brother F. L. Austin was surprised and gratified when Oregon Bible College students and faculty met in his honor at the College on March 24. They presented a gift as a token of their esteem, and thankfulness for his work with them the first semester.

On March 30, in an impressive prayer service during the morning worship hour, Gary Richard Turner, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Turner, was dedicated by his parents to the Lord. These parents pledged publicly to do their utmost to bring up their son in the nurture and admonition of the Lord.

Also, on March 30, Nadine Lippert confessed her faith in Christ. She was baptized on April 2.

April 20 was Ladies' Night in the Oregon church, with the Bereans in charge. Hazel Reed planned the program, and the sermon was delivered by Sister Mabel Payne. The evening's theme was "Jesus, Our Pilot."

ELDORADO—

Easter services were conducted in Eldorado, with Brother Herbert Edmeister delivering the sermon. The June Illinois Conference will again be conducted in Eldorado. The date is June 29. Brother Sydney E. Magaw will be the speaker. Make plans now to attend! More about this Conference in next month's Evangelist!

MACOMB—

Because of cold weather, the Easter sunrise service was held in the church. The young people had charge of the program. Sunday school attendance was 54, six short of the goal, but only one short of the all-time record of last November. On April 13, Mrs. Horace Gray of Rushville and June and Bobby Potts were baptized by Pastor Linford Moore, Jr., in the Lamoine River. The church has been newly cleaned and decorated. Pastor and Mrs. Moore visited Niagara Falls, New York, this month. It was not a honeymoon; just Linford's home town.

DIXON—

The Young Ladies' Bible Class gave a Sunday evening service, March 30. The offering was sent to the Berean paper. The Guiding Star. The Dorcas Society is making quilts, sheets, and pillow slips for Illinois Conference and Oregon Bible College. A Sunday school attendance contest just closed with a supper given, April 24, by the losing team. Ivan Grobe was captain of the winning team, and Helen Zbinden, captain of the losers.

The following items are copied from the report of the first Illinois Conference:

"Pursuant to a call published in The Restitution [not The Restitution Herald], a representative body of the churches and isolated brethren in the State of Illinois assembled at Lanark, Ill., on September 30, 1898, for the purpose of organizing a State Conference. At this meeting, in harmony with the purposes of the call, the following constitution was adopted: . . ."

"In accordance with the requirements of the constitution, the following brethren were elected president and board of managers for the ensuing year: president, James W. Wilson, Austin; board of managers, Lyman Booth, Ashton; J. M. Glotfelty, Lanark, S. D. Fahrney and Martin Aslaeksen, Chicago, and Ernest Gesin, Forrester. At the first meeting of the board, Bro. Lyman Booth was elected secretary and Bro. J. M. Glotfelty, treasurer."

"The young people attendant on the Conference formulated a young people's organization with the following officers: Leila E. Whitehead, Austin, president; Laurence Wilson, Austin, secretary; Anna E. Drew, Dixon, treasurer."

"It was moved and carried unanimously that this Conference recommend all our existing churches throughout the United States to join in a delegate conference to take place at some place to be named hereafter in November, 1900."

"Leaving Us an Example"

By G. J. Gordon, Cleveland, Ohio

Christ "suffered for us, leaving us an example, that ye should follow his steps" (1 Peter 2:21).

THE APOSTLE PETER, writing about Christians' hope, the trial of our faith, and the end of our faith—even the salvation of our souls—and about our service to God, said: "This is thankworthy, if a man for conscience toward God endure grief, suffering wrongfully" (1 Peter 2:19). Peter then presented Jesus as an example for Christians to follow, saying: "Christ also suffered for us, leaving us an example that ye should follow his steps" (v. 21).

The question arises, Should we do the things He did, though they eventually led to His suffering? Or, should we try to avoid the things He taught and practiced, that we might escape persecution? Let us examine Jesus' ministry to see which line we are following in our service to God.

At a very early age, Jesus realized the importance of being about His Father's (God's) business—that being the basic theme of Jesus' teaching. He taught, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you" (Matt. 6:33).

When Jesus began His public ministry, the theme of His preaching continued the same, preaching "the gospel of the kingdom of God" (Mark 1:14), and saying, "Repent ye, and believe the gospel" (v. 15). He promised, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved" (Mark 16:16). Jesus taught men and women to prepare for the Kingdom of God and to pray, "Thy kingdom come" (Matt. 6:10). He spent forty days with His apostles, after His resurrection and prior to His ascension, "speaking of the things pertaining to the kingdom of God" (Acts 1:3).

Afterward, from heaven, Jesus sent a message and "signified it by his angel unto his servant John" (Rev. 1:1), informing both of the time and place of the Kingdom. John prophesied, "The seventh angel sounded," this being at the last trump of 1 Corinthians 15:52, announcing,

"The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever" (Rev. 11:15). Further prophesying, John said: "The nations were angry and thy wrath is come, and the time of the dead, that they should be judged, and that thou shouldest give reward unto thy servants the prophets and to the saints, and them that fear thy name, small and great; and shouldest destroy them which destroy the earth" (v. 18). This thought compares well with the Apostle Paul's words in 1 Corinthians 15:50-58, informing how that the dead shall be raised incorruptible at the last trump and that the living faithful shall be changed to immortality. All these texts harmonize with Jesus' teaching, "When the Son of man shall come in his glory and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory" (Matt. 25:31). Jesus' plain and positive teaching about His coming to establish the Kingdom of God is excellent example of the message that should be taught today.

Jesus' life, too, was example to us in that He committed no sin. Jesus taught, "Whosoever committeth sin is the servant of sin" (John 8:34), and, "No man can serve two masters" (Matt. 6:24). The only conclusion, therefore, is that one cannot serve sin and God, too. Our Lord, though tempted, served only God—"leaving us an example."

Jesus used the Scriptures to rebuke religious leaders for their "vain worship" and "teaching for doctrines the commandments of men" (Matt. 15:9). Jesus always spoke God's Word, which He said "is truth" (John 17:17), though it caused the world to hate Him. (John 17:14.) His preaching of the Scriptures led His opponents in their seeking to kill Him—"a man that hath told you the truth" (John 8:40).

College Commencement—June 6, 1947

Brother Timothy Pearson, only senior student at Oregon Bible College, will be graduated in commencement exercises, Friday evening, June 6, 1947. The exercises, beginning at 7:45 p.m., will be conducted at the Church of God at Oregon, Illinois. Brother Harvey U. Krogh, Jr., pastor of the Pennellwood Church of God in Grand Rapids, Michigan, has been chosen speaker for the occasion. The public is cordially invited.

Oregon Bible College is completing its eighth consecutive year of service in religious education. Many young men and young women of the Church of God have enriched their lives by studying at the College, and seventeen young men have completed the prescribed courses for graduation. Mr. Pearson is the eighteenth student to be granted the Bachelor of Theology Degree. All the graduates are engaged in religious work, and all but one of the graduates are preaching regularly.

During the past school year, and more, Mr. Pearson has served the Hope Chapel Church of God, South Bend, Indiana, as student pastor, going there each week end. Timothy's plans are incomplete for the immediate future, but he is interested in missionary work.

Though Mr. Pearson is the only graduate this year, his work at the College has been sufficiently commendable that he might have stood at the head of a large class. We heartily congratulate him and recommend him to the Church of God. Like sequel story of Scripture, his mother Eunice—his father, too—has implanted faith in her son. We pray that, under God's blessing and direction, Timothy's faith will bear fruitage in a ministry comparable to that of the Apostle Paul's companion.

Tree-Split Tomb

"The hour is coming," said Jesus, "in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth." "How can that be?" asks a doubter. "It never will be," replies another. One such doubter was a German infidel princess who lived more than a century ago and who is buried at Hanover. Her grave is commonly known as "The Open Grave," its concrete-iron-and-stone defiance of resurrection having yielded to a tiny birch tree seed. Intending ridicule of resurrection, she ordered that her grave be covered with a great slab of marble mounted on other blocks of stone bound together with iron bands, one stone to bear the inscription: "This grave, purchased for eternity, must never be opened."

When the princess was buried, it seems that a birch tree seed was buried with her. It sprouted, slowly grew, found its way into masonry between the rocks, irresistibly spread the stones sufficiently that it could reach through them toward the sunlight above. That tiny sprout grew into a large birch tree. The tomb split open. Not one stone was left unmoved. Towering above the princess' sullen plaque, the birch tree is God's silent testimony of Power Superior—and casts divine shadow on her atheistic whim.

"Unbelievable," by the standards and knowledge of men, are many of the promises of God. In fullness of time, though, every promise will be fulfilled. "God is not a man, that he should lie" (Num. 23:19). "The trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised." "We shall all stand before the judgment seat of Christ."

What, though of infidels and tree-split tombs? Christ arose and lives "triumphant o'er the grave"!

The Gospel Invitation

By Mrs. Harry Payne, Oregon Bible College

HO, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money; come ye, buy, and eat; yea, come, buy wine and milk without money and without price. Wherefore do ye spend money for that which is not bread? and your labour for that which satisfieth not? hearken diligently unto me, and eat ye that which is good, and let your soul delight itself in fatness. Incline your ear, and come unto me: hear, and your soul shall live; and I will make an everlasting covenant with you, even the sure mercies of David. Behold, I have given him for a witness to the people, a leader and commander to the people. Behold, thou shalt call a nation that thou knowest not, and nations that knew not thee shall run unto thee because of the Lord thy God, and for the Holy One of Israel; for he hath glorified thee.

"Seek ye the Lord while he may be found, call ye upon him while he is near: let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon." (Isaiah 55:1-7.)

IN ISAIAH 55:1-7, the Prophet was calling God's people, Israel, to repent and to turn from her wicked ways. Israel had forsaken the worship of God and had become idolatrous. Leaving the path of righteousness, she had allowed herself to sink into the mire of sin. In previous chapters of the Book, Isaiah had exposed repeatedly the wickedness prevalent in the land. Memorable of these is the fifth chapter which pictures very clearly the lamentable condition of God's people: greedy landowners were oppressing the poor; most of the people had become corrupt, being drunkards, gluttonous, proud, haughty, and hypocritical. In chapter 55, however, there is a different picture. Isaiah was pleading with the people to forsake unrighteousness and to return to God, thereby receiving pardon and mercy from God.

Although this scripture was given to Israel, it has also a present application. "Nowhere else in all the Old Testament is the gospel invitation more wonderfully foreshadowed than in these words of the Prophet. The only condition necessary is to incline the ear and come. There are no barriers between these people and their God. He is ready to impart a new life and to make with them an everlasting covenant, even the sure mercies or loving-kindnesses promised long before to David."—Abingdon Commentary.

For an understanding of these "sure mercies of David," we turn to 2 Samuel 7:8-16. Here we read that in His covenant with David, God promised to send a seed whose kingdom would be established forever. In Isaiah 11:1-4, 10, we read further concerning this seed:

"There shall come forth a rod out of the stem of Jesse, and a Branch shall grow out of his roots: and the spirit of the Lord shall rest upon him, the spirit of wisdom and understanding, the spirit of counsel and might, the spirit of knowledge and of the fear of the Lord; and shall make him of quick understanding in the fear of the Lord: and he shall not judge after the sight of his eyes, neither reprove after the hearing of his ears: but with righteousness shall he judge the poor and reprove with equity for the meek of the earth: and he shall smite the earth with the rod of his mouth, and with the breath of his lips shall he slay the wicked. . . .

"And in that day there shall be a root of Jesse, which shall stand for an ensign of the people; to it shall the Gentiles seek: and his rest shall be glorious."

Christ is the only One who possibly could fulfill these prophecies of Scripture. He was the Son whom God promised in 2 Samuel 7:14, saying, "I will be his father, and he shall be my son." Turning to Acts 13:32-37, we read Paul's words concerning the resurrection of Christ as the fulfillment of certain promises to David and speaks of Christ as being the "sure mercies of David," as prophesied by Isaiah. We quote verse 34: "As concerning that he [God] raise him [Jesus] up from the dead, now no more to see corruption, he said on this wise, I will give you the sure mercies of David."

The divine call which God gave through Isaiah to His people Israel is given now through Christ, not alone to Israel, but to all nations. "Come unto me all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light" (Matt. 11:28-30).

Of course, after a person accepts the call of Christ, he must forsake his sinful ways. All men are born into sin. "By one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned." (Rom. 5:12). Through Christ, however, men may be delivered from the bondage of sin. "If through the offence of one many be dead, much more the grace of God, and the gift by grace, which is by one man, Jesus Christ, hath abounded unto many. For as by one man's [Adam's] disobedience many (Please turn to page 10)

Need of Tolerance

By Gordon Landry, Oregon Bible College

THE CONSTITUTION of the United States provides for trial by jury of an accused person. This, the basis of freedom within the United States, was adopted for the common people—those who often had been unjustly accused in Europe and cast into prison without trial. At the time our Constitution was being framed, France had a law to the effect that any accused person was guilty until pronounced "not guilty." Seeing the injustice of this law, leaders of the colonies and the framers of the United States Constitution determined that no man was guilty until proved as such. The accused had to be proved guilty before he was cast into prison. Thus, leaders of the country favored the common man, no matter how poor he was; and individual tolerance was born.

A phase of individual tolerance is that of religious tolerance. Remembering persecution suffered in the Old World, the New World's inhabitants demanded the right to worship as they pleased. Christianity, they argued, was a religion of freedom. Those who advocated the freedom of worship gained a voice in the Constitution.

Though racial tolerance was agreed upon, many of its advocates were slave owners. Washington himself was a slave master, yet he was tolerant of them. Paul the Apostle admonished servants to obey their masters. Washington's slaves, although not forced to obey, did so through their love for him. Had the slaves been freed at that time, many would have perished for the lack of knowledge of providing for a family.

Politically, there was only one party at the time of the inauguration of Washington as president. By the time John Adams was elected, however, there were different views upon the way the government should be "run," the issues on hand concerning foreign nations, and so forth, so the natural outcome was a separation of individuals into two parties. Washington believed that a two-party country could not survive, because there would be internal strife, and other nations could attack and conquer when they felt the urge. The people were united in their belief of freedom, though, and any aggression would be met by strong opposition. In the Nation's infancy, parties with conflicting views were tolerant of one another.

As time rushed by, however, many lost the foundation principle of tolerance. Individuals were haled into court, and without evidence were sentenced to long terms. The reason? Intolerance was rearing her brood in the minds of men. No longer was there individual freedom; no longer was there religious freedom; no longer was there tolerance of other races within the boundaries of the "freedom country"; no longer was the political minority group upheld, but was cast down as being narrow-minded; no longer were other nations revered and feared as possible aggressor nations. One by one, they were being liquidated in the New World by an "invincible power."

Intolerance reached its height during and immediately following the Civil War. Sherman's march through Georgia showed the greatest intolerance of individuals in this nation's history from its inception to the present day. The carpet-baggers, who went into the South and established Negro governors in some of the states, would not tolerate the rule of the "white rebels." The Southerners, in turn, would not submit to this dictatorship that was enforced upon them. To counteract this totalitarianism, the Ku

By Mary Mae Nedrow

There is a quiet place we know, where little children love to go. There, in a sanctuary sweet, where old and young all love to meet, we hold communion with our Lord and offer prayers with one accord. We seem to feel His presence near, and gone is every doubt and fear. . . . For here convictions are made strong, that Right is Right, and Wrong is Wrong.
. . . And would not souls feel so much better, if in their hurrying through life, they would pause for a little moment . . . and forget life's tumult and strife.

Klux Klan was organized. Shortly after its birth, though, it became feared, as individuals succumbed to its venomous attacks. "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you" had no place in the hearts of mobs of that day. Instead, the slogan was, "Do unto others before they do unto you and do a thorough job of it." This generated more hatred and strife. Soon the country was in an uproar, shouting to the Capital, "What shall we do?" A little love on the part of everyone, regardless of color, religious or political affiliations, and personal desires, could have solved the problem overnight.

The problems of that day are similar to the problems of our day. The deep-rooted feeling of hatred is almost as strong now as it was then. Today, however, there is less demonstration of that feeling through physical violence, but more of it through the printed word.

"What can be done about it? we ask ourselves. Plenty! Education should be the keynote to religious, racial, political, and national tolerance. Education will provide arguments for the opposite view in the minds of prejudiced persons. All that one needs to overcome prejudice is knowledge. What kind of knowledge should one have? Knowledge of the Word of God! Jesus opposed prejudice and intolerance in saying, "Judge not, that ye be not judged" (Matt. 7:1).

The schools' educational programs should be changed, teachers being employed who are not prejudiced, but who are well-founded upon the Word of God. American youth, instead of being taught love and tolerance for persons or countries holding opposite views from their own, are being taught to distrust others who would counter-act their theory—whether or not it is important. Religion, as a whole, is generally belittled by college and high school professors. "It's foolish," they say, "to believe in an omnipotent, omnipresent, omniscient God." Perhaps to them it is foolish, but "God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the wise" (1 Cor. 1:27). The belief that there is no God, or Supreme Being, is prevalent today. As a result, those who men say are wise denounce Biblical teaching, and even go so far as to introduce to modern society falsehoods that are definitely spoken against in the Bible. "The wisdom of this world is foolishness with God" (1 Cor. 3:19).

Are we to be tolerant of these people who denounce the Creator? Yes! Why? Only through love and tolerance of views on our part can another be led to follow Christ. If we as Christians "jump down (Please turn to page 10)

DUST-MADE MAN

By Mrs. Sue E. Stuart, Chandler, North Carolina

---

MAN that was made of the dust of the ground was made mortal, not immortal, for God said to him, "Dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return." Man's all-wise Creator had too much knowledge to make something that He could not destroy, before He had tried out the object to see whether or not it would be obedient.

Had God been so simple as to make man immortal in the beginning, He now would have a goodly number of souls on hand that He scarcely would know what "to do with"! Some churchmen say, "Oh! God sends them to eternal torment." That reply will not stand, however, for the wicked are not promised eternal life. Without eternal life, there can be no eternal torment. Instead, God told man one little deed he must not do, warning man that if he did disobey, he would "surely die." One learns from the Bible that man did do the deed that God commanded him not to do, thereby bringing on himself the penalty of death, and death has reigned all down through the ages.

Before man can have immortality, he must gain it by obedience to God. Romans 2:7 shows that man is to seek for immortality and eternal life. God's Word also informs man that the "wages of sin is death," and that the "gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord."

Why would anyone look for a resurrection if man does not die? The Apostle Paul said in 1 Corinthians 15:12-18:

"Now if Christ be preached that he rose from the dead, how say some among you that there is no resurrection of the dead? But if there be no resurrection of the dead, then is Christ not risen: and if Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain, and your faith is also vain. Yea, and we are found false witnesses of God; because we have testified of God that he raised up Christ: whom he raised not up, if so be that the dead rise not. For if the dead rise not, then is not Christ raised: and if Christ be not raised, your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins. Then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished."

Why did Paul write as he did, if man has an immortal soul? Or, why did God tell the man he created, "Thou shalt surely die"? Why did not God say, "Your body shall die"? Some people say the soul is the most important part of man. Well, then, surely God talked to the most important part, and He told the part that He talked to, that it should "surely die."

Christ said in Matthew 10:28, "Rather fear him that can destroy both soul and body in hell." Ezekiel 18:4 reads: "Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine: the soul that sinneth, it shall die."

Some preachers say they preach eternal torment to scare people into religion, but their scared religion is not worth anything. Paul said in Galatians 1:8, 9:

"Though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed. As we said before, so say I now again, If any man preach any other gospel unto you than that ye have received, let him be accursed."

Many people have their minds so entangled with false doctrine that they do not know what they believe, nor what to believe. Jesus said, "Beware of false prophets, which come to you in sheep's clothing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves" (Matt. 7:15). One should not let his mind be entangled with contradictions. The true gospel is plain, and it will not disturb the mind. Besides, nothing else will suffice to follow to inherit eternal life.

UNBELIEF

By Mrs. J. M. Kiger, Marengo, Iowa

SOME of our best read Bible students are agreed that the worst sin is unbelief caused by ignorance of the truth. More Bibles are sold each year than any other book, but it is read and studied the least. Webster defines "unbelief" as "doubt; skepticism; or a mere failure to admit." Disbelief is a positive rejection. A few examples in the Bible of unbelievers will be adequate to help our unbelief. According to Genesis 2:16, 17, also 3:2, 3, we conclude that neither Adam nor Eve believed God's command that, if they ate of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, they would die. All know the result which continues to this day, for they surely died because of their unbelief.

Noah's preaching for one hundred twenty years that a flood was coming to destroy all who would not believe ended in the mortal death of millions living at the time, but who would not believe. The first coming of the Saviour was rejected by the Jews because of unbelief, resulting in the death of millions of them from that time to the present.

It was unbelief that caused Jesus to weep at the grave of Lazarus. Many besides Mary and Martha believed that day of their brother's resurrection, for they heard and saw, but it required the literal resurrection of Lazarus to establish their firm belief in the resurrection and a belief that would finally result in their salvation.

It was unbelief and ignorance, Jesus said, that caused the crucifixion of our Saviour. He prayed, "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do" (Luke 23:34). As unbelief in the days of Noah brought death to so many, so it will be at the soon-coming of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. Millions now living will miss the resurrection of 1 Thessalonians 4:13-18, including many church members.

We who are Bible students and true believers know the requirements for this resurrection. We are to present our bodies a living sacrifice, holy and acceptable to God. There are some commandments for us, also, besides the two Christ gave on love. 1 Thessalonians 5:22 says to "abstain from all appearance of evil." Hebrews 10:25 says, "Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another: and so much the more, as ye see the day approaching." We are admonished, as true believers in Christ, to "put on the whole armour of God." (Read Eph. 6:10-20.) Are you and I clothed with this armor? If so, we will be in the resurrection of the just and escape the great and terrible judgment that is almost upon us.

General McArthur, commenting recently on the atomic bomb, said there will be either "world control of it, or Armageddon." Which do you think it will be? God will play a great part in this. All flesh will not perish. Matthew 24:22 says, "Except those days should be shortened, there should no flesh be saved: but for the elect's sake those days shall be shortened." Joel 3:2 says, "I will gather all nations, and will bring them down into the valley of Jehoshaphat." Revelation 19:19 also says armies will be there. (See also Rev. 16:16.) As this refers to the future, do you not think it proves that God is not going to let all the people die before His plans are fulfilled?

Let us look at Revelation 16:15—"Blessed is he that watcheth, and keepeth his garments, lest he walk naked, and they see his shame." Do you think the ones really looking for the Saviour are being blessed now? I do. The books are now open in heaven and God knows all the names written therein. Have you registered? Can you really and truly sing this song:

"Lord, I care not for riches, neither silver nor gold;
I would make sure of Eden, I would enter the fold.
In the book of Thy Kingdom, with its pages so fair,
Tell me, Jesus, my Saviour, is my name written there?"

"Lord, my sins they are many, like the sands of the sea,
But thy blood, O my Saviour, is sufficient for me;
For thy promise is written, in bright letters that glow,
'Tho' your sins be as scarlet, I will make them like snow."

"Oh! that beautiful city, with its mansions of light,
With its glorified beings, in pure garments of white;
Where no evil thing cometh to despoil what is fair;
Where the angels are watching, yes, my name's written there."

Faith of Ancient Worthies. Abel, Enoch, Noah, Abraham, and other ancient worthies "died in faith, not having received the promises, but having seen them afar off, and were persuaded of them, and embraced them, and confessed that they were strangers and pilgrims on the earth." They desired "a better country, that is, an heavenly: wherefore God is not ashamed to be called their God: for he hath prepared for them a city"—even the "city which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God." Are you looking for the New Jerusalem?

In Exchange for Life

By H. Gary France, Wenatchee, Washington

JESUS asked, "What shall a man give in exchange for his soul?" (Matt. 16:26.) Similarly, one may ask, "What am I willing to give in exchange for another's eternal life?" "To exchange" means "to buy; to purchase; to trade; to redeem." "What? Does man have power to buy life?" Christians already "are bought with a price" (1 Cor. 7:23), but members of the world are failing to avail themselves of the gift. Christians, therefore, must emphasize to them a true perspective of life, thereby giving them life. When a Christian's efforts cause a person to accept life, the Christian has "exchanged" his efforts for the eternal life of another person.

We are bought with a price, but we can resell our eternal lives. One relinquishes his claim for life by following the world in its habits, desires, hopes, and fears. Serving ourselves will cost us the price of eternal life. Would we sell life so cheaply? Are parties, bright lights, and indulgences worth eternal life? How many millions of dollars would one accept in exchange for this life? What effort is one willing to spend, that another may have eternal life?

Peter said to Simon the sorcerer, "Thy money perish with thee, because thou hast thought that the gift of God may be purchased with money" (Acts 8:20). Either the gift of the Holy Ghost or the gift of eternal life is worth far more than money.

One person says, "If I cannot enjoy this life, why should I exchange my worldly pleasures for more life?" The Christian life is enjoyable! The anticipation and hope for the Kingdom challenges any and all pleasures of this world for sheer happiness. The Christian life is not a limitation of activities and habits; Christianity is a training (and a very feasible training at that) of one's appreciation, so one enjoys the right and not the wrong. Thus a Christian life is one of a deeper and fuller enjoyment of life; the worldly life is a limited life of laws, immediate consequences, and desires. The Christian life is unlimited, for the true Christian has trained himself to desire only good and to reject evil. That, in itself, is true happiness. No one can appreciate the fact until he has tried it.

What were others willing to give in exchange for our eternal lives? "God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son" in exchange for our lives. Christ lived and died in exchange for our lives. The apostles gave freely of their time and energies in exchange for eternal lives of others. They gave themselves to persecution and mocking; they gave comforts of life.

Paul had an education and background that enabled him to have the luxuries available to the people of his time. Paul, however, recognizing that he could exchange luxuries, politics, and prestige for the eternal lives of others, willingly made the exchange. He wrote, "I count all things but loss" (Phil. 3:8). Such an exchange shows its beauty in that the giver does not receive the most important part of the benefit; another receives the eternal life though one's own efforts may have initiated the step.

"What am I willing to give in exchange for another man's eternal life?" is a question that a person should ask of himself. "What example am I willing to establish of myself in his mind?" People being so much like sheep that they follow examples and crowds though to death, the throngs need other examples that they may follow to life.

"Exchange" suggests "equivalent." The worldly minded man will go to any length to avoid being "gyped." He asks questions, compares various values, and considers respective assets. How inconsistent is the man who fails to recognize the value of eternal life of another in exchange for some of his efforts, while spending much of his energies "bargain hunting."

Give? What can a person give in exchange for someone's eternal life? God said, "I desired mercy, and not sacrifice; and the knowledge of God more than burnt offerings" (Hos. 6:6). Give mercy and knowledge. One gives mercy to his associate by returning good for evil; by being friendly at the expense of pride; by telling him of life in an inoffensive manner; by purchasing for him eternal life at the expense of effort and pride, although the associate may have offended previously. Thus one gives mercy. One gives knowledge by describing and explaining to another the opportunities in life that God has offered.

Life's value is not measured; life is priceless. What intelligence would not spend energy, time, and effort to purchase the infinite gift? Who can deny another the opportunity of life by failing to "exchange" his life's carnal desires for the other's eternal life?

Life's opportunity is the exchange of effort, consecration, dedication, and love for eternal life both for one's self and for his associates. Life's victory is won through serving Christ. "Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labour is not in vain in the Lord" (1 Cor. 15:58). So pleaded the Apostle Paul.

News and Prophecy Digest

By C. E. Randall, Fonthill, Ontario

A SMALL WORLD. The world is rapidly shrinking to the size of man. Man, through the increase of knowledge, can look to the horizons and see the "utmost parts of the earth." Space, and space alone, seems to be the only area of God's creation that limits man in his "running to and fro." The earth which God has given to the children of men no longer contains man in his wonder-lust after the causes of things seen. He has trained his "long eye" on the "heavens, even the heavens which are the Lord's." His searching after knowledge has led him from pole to pole. The bowels of the earth have been opened up to provide him fuel for his comfort, convenience, and progress, and to afford him a place of protection from the devastations of his own creation. Sailing upon the bosom of the seven seas, man has lost many of his possessions, but through his genius has been able to go down into the depths and recover his lost coin. Man's day has well fulfilled the Prophet's vision of his (man's) running "to and fro" in, through, on, and above the earth.

Another phase of this sign of the end of the age is ably set forth by Brother Lyle Rankin in these words: "It is stated that forty million people are on the move over the earth, and another thirty million will soon move either because they want to or are being forced. Six thousand a month come from Puerto Rico to the United States. An effort is being made to move 5,000 Italians each month to Argentina. Reportedly 40,000 are on the waiting list. With the running to and fro of people in business and pleasure in vehicles developed during the increase of knowledge these last few decades, this certainly should help all to realize the fulfilling of the prophecy of God by Daniel concerning the time just prior to the coming of Christ."

Behold! the coming of the Lord draweth nigh!

A DIVIDED WORLD. The dream of a "One World" by idealists is being ground to pieces by the divisions that exist between the various races and religions of men. The Prophet Daniel records the revelation of the Lord concerning the status of nations in the last time, by saying: "They shall mingle themselves with the seed of men; but they shall not cleave one to another." For several generations the royal seed of various countries of Europe intermarried with the hope that through family ties the bond of friendship would cement the nations together into a harmonious political fellowship. This aim failed in its intended purpose. The League of Nations was brought into being after the first World War, with the expressed desire of all nations that men at long last would settle their differences around the conference table. In a short time, however, it became apparent that the various ideologies, racial inequalities, and political ambitions could not be reconciled. Men would mingle, but they would not cleave. The short life of the United Nations is revealing the same pattern in the characters of present world leaders.

The Lord indicated in His description of the kingdoms of this world as set forth in the metallic image, that in the last days men would mingle, but would not cleave one to another. This sign of the last days is standing out in bold relief before the eyes of all who are looking for the Lord's soon return. Behold! the coming of the Lord draweth nigh!

AN APOSTATE CHURCH. Most of the signs of the Lord's second coming are to be found in the nation of Israel and the church. It is of the church that we wish now to speak in particular. Paul saw the church in the last days as possessing a shadow life—"a form of godliness," which would be wanting in power. That the professing church of today is losing its virgin purity, becoming more and more like the world from which it formerly was markedly separated is to be found in all phases of church life. Spirituality is at a low ebb today! This apostate condition is being daily augmented by the church substituting its spiritual enjoyments with a round-the-clock seeking after pleasure. Worldly pleasure is a thorn in the flesh to spirituality. Sunday indeed is becoming a "fun-day." Beaches are sought after more than are the pews. Pop bottles are more in demand than Communion glasses. The hurrahs and guffaws at a Sunday ball game thrill more church members than do the amens of fervent prayers. The apostate church is here. She is falling away from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits and doctrines of devils. The Lord said these signs would precede His coming.

Behold! the coming of the Lord draweth nigh!

A WEeping PEOPLE. Israel is a sign people. By way of warning, God told Israel what signs and wonders would be upon them if they failed to observe and do all that He commanded them. It is well known that they chose the course of disobedience. Upon them has rested all the curses God formerly pronounced. The Wailing Wall outside the city of Jerusalem, where more tears have been shed than at any other single spot, is a symbol of what the whole Israelitish race has been enduring for generations. The weeping people have been a disobedient people. The day for them in most parts of the world is the beginning of sorrow—the night the beginning of horror. It is to be hoped that their tears and fears will soon be banished through repentance and acceptance of the Messiah—the only begotten Son of God.

EVIL DAYS. Prophets of gloom and doom have little appeal to the courageous and energetic. A hopeful outlook is an encouraging omen to most people. Seeing things in their proper perspective, though the outlook is dark, if there is a bright and cheerful outcome, one is termed an optimist. The Christian optimist is the person who sees present-day conditions in their proper setting as pictured in the Word of God. On the short view of things, the picture indeed is filled with all manner of evil, with men everywhere engaging in violence as happened in the days of Noah previous to the Flood. Evil imaginations and violence resulted in the antediluvian world being overflowed with water, with all but eight people perishing when the fountains of the deep were broken up and the flood gates of heaven opened. So likewise this present evil world will come to its judgment in which the heavens shall pass away and the elements melt with fervent heat.

The bright aspect of the picture is to be found in a cleansed world with righteousness filling the earth as the waters cover the sea. Evil days are the harbingers of the coming of the Son of God. Behold! He cometh!

FAITHFULNESS. Jesus was unable to foresee in the end-time a world filled with men and women of faith. On the other hand, He did foresee the last days as being void of vital faith in spiritual things. His question, "When the Son of man cometh, will he find faith on the earth?" foreshadowed the actual situation as we see today. Faith is the lifeblood of the Christian. Without a goodly amount of it, a sickly Christian results. If Christendom seems to be of a washed-out condition today, the lack of faith is one of the answers.

Then there is another phase of faith, which too often is overlooked—the departure from the faith. This kind of faith is the apostolic teachings in all their purity. The great and basic doctrines of the primitive church are losing their appeal. This can be traced to several causes, chief of which, is the lack of love for truth among those who are responsible for its presentation. One finds little material in the religious press of today on the great teachings of our Lord respecting the gospel of the Kingdom. What has happened to this message that was to be preached to all the world for a witness? It has been lost along with a love for truth in the transition from a church separated from the world to a church lost in the world. The nominal church today is a worldly organization given over to moral issues affecting the life that now is. All this fulfills the prediction of Jesus, "Because iniquity shall abound, the love of many shall wax cold." Behold! He's coming soon!

JEWISH UNIVERSITY. A Jewish university in connection with the Jewish Theological Seminary in New York City is being planned. $15,000,000 will be raised to finance the extension, which will have to do with research and training in every aspect of Jewish life.

Behold! the coming of the Lord draweth nigh!

Destruction of the Ungodly

Dear Friend:

Before us lies your paper. It confuses "punishment" with "torture." If you are right, then, since the "Bill of Rights" (1688) forbids "torture," it would therefore forbid "punishment"!

The word "punishment" is a general term and does not state the nature of the punishment. As "eternal judgment" does not necessarily mean eternal judging, so neither does "eternal punishment" necessarily mean eternal punishing.

Kolasin. The translator of the Emphatic Diaglott has this to say of kolasin: "Kolasin in its various forms occurs only in three other places in the New Testament—Acts 4:21; 2 Peter 2:9; 1 John 4:18. It is derived from kolazoo which signifies: 1) to cut off; as lopping off branches of trees, to prune. 2) To restrain; to repress. The Greeks write, 'The charioteer restrains (kolazei) his fiery steeds.' 3) to chastise; to punish. To cut off an individual from life or society, or even to restrain is esteemed as punishment; hence has arisen this third metaphorical use of the word. The primary signification have been adopted, because it agrees better with the second member of the sentence, thus preserving the force and beauty of the antithesis. The righteous go to life, the wicked to the cutting off from life, or death. (See 2 Thess. 1:9.)"

So, in uniformity with the foregoing, that translator rendered kolasin (1 John 4:18) "restraint," and in 2 Peter 2:9 "cut off," and in Matthew 25:46: "These shall go forth to the aiouian cutting off: but the righteous to aiouian life." In Genesis 8:2, the Septuagint says, "The rain was cut off" (kolazoo). Was the rain tormented? No! It was "cut off"; so with the wicked. They "go away into an eternal cutting off" (kolazoo) from life, which the righteous receive, and thus the wicked reap death (Rom. 6:23), life's opposite.

Mark 9:44, A.R.V. The Greek here rendered "unquenchable fire" by the translators is also used by Homer where he said of the Grecian ships that these ships, when destroyed by the Trojans, received "pur to asbestos." Now what did "unquenchable fire" (pur to asbestos) do to these ships? Did it eternally torture them, or destroy them? Again, Eusebius wrote of Julian and Cronion (two Christian martyrs) that the fire that destroyed these martyrs was "unquenchable fire"—pur to asbestos. Now did these martyrs therefore experience eternal torment? Did they? If "unquenchable fire" (pur to asbestos) literally destroyed ships and Julian and Cronion, why doubt its literal destruction of the wicked? Jesus declared the "unquenchable fire" will "burn up" its victims, like it would burn up chaff (Matt. 3:12), and I believe Him!

Matthew 25:41. As eternal redemption, judgment, consolation, and salvation (Heb. 9:2; 2 Thess. 2:16; Heb. 6:9) cannot possibly mean that eternal redemption, judgment, etc., are as processes eternally carried out, so neither can "eternal fire" be so treated, for its victims, my friend, are burned "into ashes" (Jude 7; 2 Peter 2:6). As the Mississippi River is an everlasting stream in the sense that some hills are everlasting (Gen. 49:26; Hab. 3:6); if one was drowned in it, would he be eternally drowning? Or, if he fell from an "everlasting hill," would he necessarily fall eternally? if not, then would he burn eternally if burned up with an eternal fire? As "everlasting chains" do not necessarily bind eternally their victims (Jude 6), so "everlasting fire" need not necessarily burn its victims eternally. Jude 7 and 2 Peter 2:6 clearly show that "eternal fire" once turned certain cities "into ashes." This is confirmed by these translators of Jude 7: Luther—"Are set forth as an example of the ashes of eternal fire." S. Battler—Ashes of "eternal fire." Colmesius—"The cities are set forth as an example of the ashes of eternal fire." (So it is certain, Friend, that we are right in saying that "eternal fire" turns its victims "into ashes," thus making them "ashes of eternal fire.") Finally—Libanius, a classical writer of the fourth century, wrote: "It (Troy) lies an example of the calamity of eternal fire." A famous saying then was "Troy was." This evidently is what Libanius meant. Since all must concede that "eternal fire" literally destroyed Troy as it certainly did Sodom (Luke 17:29; Jude 7; 2 Peter 2:9), have we not the right to conclude that, since in doing this it was therefore an "example," it will just as literally "burn up" (Matt. 3:12; Mal. 4:1-3) as "chaff" the wicked? Since the wicked who experience "eternal fire" will also receive "eternal punishment," it follows that the points here apply also to "eternal punishment."

Matthew 13:42 will be analyzed later.

"Punishment means pain and suffering," says Webster. Yes, he names other methods of punishment, such as loss of property, liberty, or life. An eternal loss then is an eternal punishment to the one who has experienced it, whether that loss is happiness or life itself. Since the wicked man in the day of judgment shall "lose his life" in the same sense that Christian martyrs now "lose" theirs (Matt. 10:39), and since that loss is absolutely eternal, it follows unerringly that the loss resolves itself into an "eternal punishment" for such.

2 Thessalonians 1:9. "Destruction," what is that? It is the opposite of preservation. "The Lord preserveth all them that love him: but all the wicked will he destroy" (Psalm 145:30). If "preservation" here is literal, and we must concede that it is, then its opposite, "destruction," is just as literal. If God literally "preserves" them that "love him," He will as literally "destroy" those who do not. The word "but" marks the contrast.

Note these prophecies: "I will destroy man," and "will I destroy (margin, 'blot out') from off the face of the earth." (Gen. 6:7; 7:4.) "All the wicked will he destroy" (Psalm 145:20). Here are four prophecies in which God says He "will destroy" the wicked. Three of these (Gen. 7:21, 22; 19:29) are shown to be literal destruction. The literal fulfillment of the first three argues the literal fulfillment of the fourth, since the third is declared to be God's "example" of what will "hereafter" befall the ungodly. (2 Peter 2:6.)

Now, since 2 Thessalonians 1:6-9 clearly shows that the wicked will receive "destruction" that is simply "everlasting," we must not conclude that that "destruction," or anything preceding it, is absolutely painless. A painless "destruction" is nowhere revealed in the Bible for the risen wicked. We must remember that "destruction," "death" (second), or "to be burned" (Rom. 6:21; Phil. 3:19; Heb. 6:8) is their end, or finality. But before their "end" is reached, "stripes"—"few" or "many," both words being of limitation—are received by the wicked. Here is the period of torture. (Luke 12:47, 48; Matt. 13:42.) First "stripes," then "death" or "destruction" as their "end"! Cancer may last for a long time before it ends in death to its victims; so with the "stripes" or "anguish" (Rom. 2: 8, 9). The point is "the tribulation" thus "rendered them that trouble you" increases in fury until nature gives way and their end is "death" (Rom. 6:21). Note: Romans 2: 5-10 says the one class will have "rendered to them in that day" "immortality" or "eternal life." It is evident the class who thus receives "eternal life," that is, "immortality," does not possess it before it is thus "rendered" to it. Since the wicked bear the same nature, it is certain that not thus possessing "immortality" or "eternal life" thus "rendered" the righteous, their "anguish" must therefore "end" in "death." (Rom. 6:21. See also Rom. 1:32 where Paul had just said that "death" is their certain doom.)

Now, in this light, consider Revelation 9:5, 6. (Thanks for the text.) Here we are shown that "torment" is one thing, and "death" that men will "desire" but "shall flee from them" another separate and distinct. Hence, when God speaks of death or destruction as the "wages of sin" (Rom. 6:23), it is certain, Friend, He does not mean "torment." The "torment," as Revelation 9:5, 6 shows, whether short or long, must therefore precede or end in "death" (Rom. 6:21).

NEED OF TOLERANCE

the throat" of a non-Christian who states an untruth as his belief, is there much opportunity for him to see the benefits of being a Christian?

The world has seen much of intolerance of religion in the last decade. During World War II, horrible verbal pictures of religious persecution escaping from Germany illustrated the heathenism of the leaders of that country. You and I have witnessed the destruction of Germany and Japan because of their non-Christian attitudes in relationship to their fellow man. Russia will meet her doom because of intolerance of religion. What of this country? It is tending more and more away from religion, year by year.

As the country sinks back into a state of lukewarmness in religion, crime, riots, strikes, and general confusion are on the increase. The only means of restoring the country to its sound foundation is a national revival. Church attendance may be on the increase, but faith steadily is decreasing: both in individuals and in the nation as a whole.

The second educational program to be undertaken is that of the churches. There should be a renaissance within the church itself; a revival of learning the love that was once so manifest in the life of every Christian. The church should be the dominating influence in the life of every citizen of the United States of America. Then, at Christ's return, that form of government that each of us holds so dear will be placed on His right hand.

The church's religious teaching has been dropped to second place, as outside interests have seeped into first place. More teaching of personal application of words of Jesus should be required of every Sunday school teacher. If children are taught love from their first comprehension of the meaning of words, there is little doubt that they will err in later life. Indeed, even before they can understand words, love can be stamped upon their hearts and in their minds through the attitudes and actions of the father and mother.

One of the foundation steps in Sunday school, then, is to train the parents to educate their children. Once the import of Christ's life and teachings has forced all competition from the hearts and minds of parents, they will live righteously so as to teach their children the way to eternal life.

Racial tolerance can be taught directly to the Sunday school student from the writing of Paul the Apostle. "There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female; for ye are all one in Christ Jesus" (Gal. 3:28). "The just shall live by faith" (Gal. 3:11) applies just as directly to the Gentile as to the Jew, just as directly to the black as to the white. Where is prejudice, envy, intolerance then? They are excluded! There is no place for them in the Christian life, just as there is no place for murder in the Christian life.

Intolerance of other denominations has become the fashion of today. The "big three" religions—Jewish, Catholic, and Protestant—will have nothing whatsoever to do with one another. It is good to remain segregated from other denominations, but it is also good to tolerate their views.

Publicity is the third way to educate the masses as to the benefits gained from tolerance. Press and radio have their part in the daily life of almost every American of the present day. This, of course, is outside the realm of many churches, so we shall not dwell on that point.

A world-wide effort to bring about the rebirth of liberty and freedom from oppression would mark the greatest change in the world since the onset of Christianity. A world-wide effort of this sort must begin at home—in our own nation. A national effort of this sort must begin with the citizens of this country. "What can a few church members do to teach tolerance to the world?" you ask.

To answer, I ask a similar question, "What did one Man do to affect the history of the entire world from His day to this?"

The results of this world-wide effort would be the spread of Christianity into all the world as fast as men could travel to all parts of the world. The heathen would be converted and brought to Christ. The moral lives of millions would be lifted beyond reproach. Physical and spiritual necessities of inhabitants of slum districts would be provided. The profoundest result of a world-wide rebirth of liberty, however, would be that of establishing universal truth. In connection with this, the followers of Jesus would become true followers of Him.

were made sinners, so by the obedience of one [Christ] shall many be made righteous" (Rom. 5:15, 19). To those in bondage, Christ is calling. He invites them to come to Him and find salvation. Jesus said, "I am the bread of life: he that cometh to me shall never hunger; and he that believeth on me shall never thirst" (John 6:35). Again,

Christ spoke of Himself as the water of life. We read His words in John 4:14: "Whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst; but the water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water springing up into everlasting life."

Do not these New Testament scriptures compare well with the first seven verses of Isaiah 55? In both the Old and New Testaments, salvation is free. It cannot be bought. Works or money do not avail. In both cases, the Jesus made use of every opportunity as it came: teaching in villages, cities, on the road, in mountains and plains, in ships, synagogues and the Temple, in homes of sinners, and with His personal friends in their homes. We cannot do more. Should we be satisfied doing less? Jesus' message is no more popular now than it was then, but He has left us an example.

The Little Black Dog

"I wonder if Christ had a little black dog,
All curly and woolly like mine;
With two long silky ears and a nose round and wet,
And two eyes brown and tender that shine;
I'm sure if He had, that little black dog
Knew right from the start He was from God,
That he needed no proof that Christ was divine,
But just worshiped the ground where He trod.
I'm afraid that He hadn't, because I have read
How He prayed in the Garden alone,
When all of His friends and disciples had fled,
Even Peter the one called a stone.
And, Oh! I am sure that the little black dog
With a true heart so tender and warm
Would never have left Him to suffer alone,
But creeping right under His arm
Would have licked those dear fingers in agony clasp,
And counting all favors but loss,
When they led Him away, would have trotted behind
And followed Him quite to the cross."

—By E. G. Reynolds; selected by Mary E. Sprinkle.

Moses Suffered for Sin

The Lord God spoke to Moses again. He told him to climb upon Mount Abarim. There he could see the land God had promised to the children of Israel.

Moses had led the Israelites from Egypt, through the wilderness to the Promised Land, but he forgot once to glorify God in their eyes. He took the glory upon himself when he struck the rock to get water for the Israelites. He called them rebels, and said, "Hear now, ye rebels; must we fetch you water out of this rock?" (Num. 20:10.) God also had asked Moses to "speak to the rock," not hit it. Moses, however, struck it twice.

No doubt the Israelites were aggravating. They complained and were indeed a problem. When Moses became angry with them, he forgot to be wise. People cannot think clearly when overcome with anger. It cost Moses a great deal. He did not enter the Promised Land.

God told Moses that after he had seen the land of Canaan he would die. Aaron already had died.

Moses did not try to excuse himself for his sin. He did not beg God to let him continue to lead the Israelites. He did not ask to go over into Canaan. God's answer was stated at the beginning of our study today. Moses could only see from a distance on the mountain the Land of Promise.

A New Leader

Joshua, one of the two spies who wanted the people to go into the Promised Land, was the new leader. He was not given supreme leadership as Moses had been given. The Lord said to Moses, "Thou shalt put some of thine honour upon him." Eleazar, the oldest son of Aaron, was made priest for the Israelites. Joshua was to ask advice or counsel of the priest.

The priest, Eleazar, was to get his judgments or decisions from God. The priest had "Urim and Thummim," two objects that were carried in a pouch. One meant "no," the other "yes." They probably felt alike when the priest prayed for God's answer and reached into the pouch.

Those Who Are Happy

To be blessed of God is to be happy, joyful, or favored. Our golden text states that everyone who fears or respects and loves God is blessed and happy. This is a portion of a verse in the Psalms. Often the same thought is expressed two different ways in the same verse. The rest of the verse says that those who walk in His ways are the ones who are blessed. (Psalm 128:1.)

May we choose early to go God's way instead of our own, that we may live with Jesus in God's Kingdom.

— AND THINK!

WE YOUNG PEOPLE are often accused of being impatient and impulsive. Too often we fail to stop and think of the consequences before we leap into activity. Often that very quality helps us to do things quickly and save the day, but just as often we leap into an act which does more harm than good. To stop and think before speaking, promising, or acting requires mental discipline and courage to stand by our decisions.

Stop and think about what? When in doubt as to whether the thing you have in mind is right or wrong, put it to these three tests, then act upon your decision. Stop and think! Ask yourself:

(1) What does the Word of God say? The Bible precisely and unmistakably forbids certain acts as being evil. Lying, stealing, greed, hatred, revenge, lust, envy, swearing, drunkenness, and innumerable other evils are expressly defined as an abomination to the Lord. Some acts are included in such phrases as, "Abstain from all appearance of evil."

A knowledge of the Bible sufficient to bring its thoughts to immediate recollection is necessary to make this test. (Thus, point one of the Berean pledge.) Honesty and courage of conviction are necessary to abide by your decision. If the Bible forbids it—DO NOT DO IT—for your sake and for the gospel's.

(2) Test two: What does my conscience say? Many times the Bible is silent on sins which are more or less recent inventions of men. Sometimes peculiar circumstances may make the Bible teaching difficult to apply. When this is true, your conscience will tell you when you are treading on dangerous ground. This "still small voice of God" speaking within us will so prick us when we begin to wander into unholy ground. Fielding once said, "No ear can hear, no tongue can tell, the tortures of that bitter hell," speaking of a man living with a guilty conscience. When your conscience says, "No!" stop and think before you skip church for a movie, or accept a cigarette, or tempt yourself with alcohol. The consequences of the act, added to a wounded conscience, will make you a sorry Christian soldier, indeed.

(3) The third and last test is, How will this affect my neighbors? Here is an important factor to take into consideration. We are quite prone to think that because the Bible justifies our act and our conscience agrees, that we can go ahead and do it, no matter how it may affect others. To offend, or to cause a brother to stumble and fall, is as much a sin as to disobey God. (1 Cor. 8:10-13.) If the activity you have in mind might cause someone to be drawn away from God, or put a stumbling stone in his path, then do not do it.

Joe was a young man who was known of his friends to be a professing Christian. He was a Berean officer and was sincere in his belief. The time came when Joe decided that to attend the movies on Sunday evening after church was a commendable occupation. He may have been right, or he may have been wrong, but he believed he was right. His friends saw him in the movie, however, and whenever he invited them to Sunday evening church, he wondered why they laughed. You see, they thought he did not attend church himself. His words seemed as mockery (Gen. 19:14), and they stumbled over his debatable activities. Joe was wrong, though he could have been right, because he offended his fellows. Yes, we are our brothers' keepers.

Before you act, before you break your Berean pledge, before you form wrong habits, Stop and Think: What does my Bible say? What does my conscience say? What effect will this have on others?

National Berean Society Pledge

That I may be a Christian example in word and deed, I will do my best to add to other Christian virtues the following self-building labors:

- I will read a portion of the Bible daily.
- I will attend at least two church services weekly.
- I will totally abstain from all tobacco or liquor.
- I will accept Christ as my guide in all personal conduct.
- I will endeavor to win at least one for Christ this year.

Signed.....

COLLEGE NEWS

Chapel services this past week were, as is customary, very interesting. Sydney E. Magaw and F. L. Austin were the speakers. Bro. Magaw gave us a most interesting sermon on "What Is a Soul?" Bro. Austin's sermon concerned coming apart from the world and becoming more independent of the world.

Last week, College students enjoyed a novel experience by hearing their own voices coming to them over the loudspeaker of a record player which Bro. Otto E. Dick had borrowed. Members of the Expository Preaching Class preached sermonettes into a "mike" instead of to a congregation. The Public Speaking Class read excerpts from the Bible and other books. Some of the more talented students made recordings of their singing. The Glee Club made a recording or two. All students appeared very surprised when they heard their own voices coming back to them, as they did not think they sounded at all like the records.

A recording machine would be a great asset to the College, as it would aid students in the Expository Preaching and Public Speaking Classes, immensely. One can see the errors he is making so very clearly when he can hear his own voice coming back to him by means of listening to a record he has just made. We hope that someday this dream will become a reality.

Miss Samuelson, our music instructor, spent several nights at the College last week. She accompanied Kirby Davis to Chicago early last Wednesday morning, where they visited a music college.

Teachers of the Byron Sunday School enjoyed a picnic at Lowell Park last Saturday afternoon and evening. The Byron Sunday School is progressing favorably, and we feel that those working there are doing an excellent work. W. Howard Beemer, News Editor.

HECTOR, MINNESOTA

The church work continues to show fine interest and loyalty on the part of the members, and a number of non-members attend church more or less regularly.

The Doreans society has been raising money for a parsonage, and quite a nice sum has been raised already. Much more is needed, however, before the parsonage can be built.

Mrs. Olaf Hammer, who suffered a broken ankle more than two months ago, is still unable to walk, as healing has been slow.

The pastor and wife recently spent several weeks visiting relatives and friends near Hammond, La., and Marshall, Ill. During our absence, the pulpit was supplied by Bro. Ernest Graham of Minneapolis. Bro. Graham, incidentally, is teaching the newly organized Berean research class in Minneapolis.

Harry Gockler, Pastor.

EL PASO TO MINNEAPOLIS

The first stop after leaving El Paso, Tex., was Hot Springs, N. M., where I found one member, Mrs. Mary McRae, formerly Mrs. P. A. Davis of Lorraine, Tex. A brief visit was enjoyed at her home.

At Albuquerque, N. M., I met Olin Willingham, son of Mrs. Barton Willingham at Hobbs, Tex. One member of the church lives here, Mrs. E. F. Barsh, formerly Miss Mattie Lee Weathers, whose parents live at Roy, N. M.

A short stop was made at Santa Fe to visit Miss Maude Ellen Greer, daughter of Bro. J. T. Greer at Portales, N. M.

On arrival, April 29, at Roy, N. M., it was a joy to meet with Bro. and Sr. A. E. Weathers and their family, who moved from Canyon, Tex., and before that lived at Mullin. They are strong in the faith and actively interested in getting a church started in their community. A daughter, Miss Katherine, living at home is also in the faith. Another daughter and two sons live near by.

A meeting had been arranged at a local church, where I preached to a gathering of about 25 people, who seemed quite appreciative of the message. This seems a promising field for further work. Bro. Weathers has been active in spreading the word to those in other communities also and has contacted groups of Spaniards in other places who hold beliefs much the same as ours. He is anxious to do further work with them. Perhaps New Mexico would be a good field to try to develop at some future time.

From Roy, I drove to Denver, Colo., where I had time only to visit briefly at the home of Bro. and Sr. A. E. Shaw and Sr. Harry L. Davis. It was a real pleasure to meet these good people, zealous for the faith.

My route carried me through Wray, Colo., so it was a privilege to stop for a short visit with Bro. and Sr. C. B. Hammel. I had been planning to visit Wray for a year and a half, but I did not have time to stay and preach. It was encouraging to learn that the brethren there are planning to have a church of their own in the near future. May God abundantly bless their work for Him.

At Holbrook, Nebr., which I had not visited since 1925, it was a pleasure to stop overnight with Bro. and Sr. Terry Ferrell, and to see a few of the other brethren. A small group gathered in the Ferrell home to see several reels of pictures.

Another day brought me as far as Sioux City, Iowa, where I looked up some old friends, the Ahrendsens family, whose children all were active in the Bible school there recently, and Bro. and Sr. J. D. Lawrence, all of whom it was good to see again.

On the afternoon of May 3, I reached Minneapolis, where I was made welcome at the home of Bro. and Sr. Ernest E. Graham. Here we hope to begin a work with a number of members here, under the sponsorship of the Minnesota Conference. A later report will be given of the work at Minneapolis.

M. W. Lyon, Evangelist.

GLEANINGS FROM THE FIELD

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

Bro. James Maggard, Scottsburg, Ind., is a hospital patient at Austin, Ind., this being his third week in the hospital.

The Editor conducted services at Delta, Ohio, May 10 and 11. On Sunday, May 18, he served at the Morning Star Church, South Bend, Ind., in the morning and afternoon, and at Hope Chapel in the evening.

Special prophetic number of The Herald is being planned for next week, issue of May 27.

Born to Bro. and Sr. Tammie Daniels, May 4, a six-pound boy, Larry Eugene, Rt. 4, Little Rock, Ark. . . . Congratulations!

Sr. H. Scott Smith, London, Ark., is visiting at the home of her daughter and son-in-law, Bro. and Sr. C. Alan McLain, Dixon, Ill.

Mail for Bro. T. A. Drinkard should be addressed, temporarily, in care of D. E. Rouch, 1710 Medora St., South Bend, Ind. Bro. Drinkard will be preaching at Morning Star Church, May 25-June 8. He writes that he will be available for preaching assignments "up to July 20 (inclusive)."

Thank you, Dr. Logan, for your contribution to the College "Student Loan Fund."

Mora on the map! We thought the Mora work was "gone and forgotten," but Mora is still on the gospel map—evidenced by a letter of appreciation for the College and a generous contribution.

Sr. Leota B. Hanson, accompanied by Srs. Etha Brewer, Elizabeth Ordnung, and Sr. Albert Logsdon, motored to Chicago, Sunday morning, May 15, there attending services at the Church of God.

Bro. John F. Green, Kansas City, Kan., reports the death of Joseph Thorp of that city on April 15, 1947. Obituary will appear in a later issue.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by

National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois

The Restitution Herald is official organ of the General Conference of the Church of God.

Subscription rate: 50 issues per year, $2.50.

The Restitution Herald advocates: the near return of Christ (Acts 1:11), and life only through Him (Col. 3:3); the literal resurrection of the dead (John 5:28); the immortalization of those in Christ (1 Cor. 15:53, 54); the destruction of the wicked (Rev. 21:8); the final restoration of Israel as the Kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ (Luke 1:32); the church to be joint-heirs with Him (Rom. 8:17), and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations (Isa. 60:1-3); the "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21). It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

CARRIE GRACE SMITH

Carrie Grace Smith, eldest daughter of the late John and Dora Courtney of Norco, Calif., was born in Iowa, and died in the California Hospital, May 3, of cancer of the stomach.

She is survived by a son, De Clo Smith of Martin, S. D.; a daughter, Mrs. Ella West of Corona Del Mar, Calif.; six grandchildren; also two brothers, Charles Courtney of Joretta, Nebr., and Almus Courtney of Norco, Calif.; and a sister, Mrs. Leoda Huckenstine of Los Angeles, besides her aged mother of Norco.

Mrs. Smith was a member of the Kingdom Revival Church. She had been in failing health for the past year and was cared for by her sister, Mrs. Huckenstine.

Memorial services were conducted by the writer on May 8 at the Utter-McKinley downtown mortuary. Other members of the family are members of the Church of God and old acquaintances of the writer. Interment was in Evergreen Cemetery in Riverside beside her father.

THE GOSPEL INVITATION

invitation is given to come and hear. In Isaiah 55:6 and 7, people are exhorted to seek the Lord and to forsake their wicked ways. Closing verses of the chapter show the happiness that comes to those who believe. Here, too, we have a picture of Kingdom conditions.

In closing, let us remember that Christ is the only means whereby one may obtain salvation. He is the Way, the Truth, and the Life. His call to mankind still resounds today. "Behold, I stand at the door and knock: if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me. To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame and am set down with my Father in his throne" (Rev. 3:20, 21). If we would have a place in Christ's Kingdom, we must answer His gospel call.

"Behold, now is the accepted time; behold, now is the day of salvation" (2 Cor. 6:2).

SUMMER YOUTH RALLY

OREGON, ILLINOIS, JULY 14-27

Plans are practically completed for our coming Youth Rally. The time has also come when those planning to attend should be sending in their enrollments. The Youth Rally and Summer Session as they are planned and presented this year are the results of several years' consideration by those who have worked in our Summer School work. Details were planned by Berean officers and the promotional office. After careful consideration by the Committee on Religious Education and the Executive Board, they were unanimously accepted by ministers of the denomination at their Mid-Winter Conference. These schools have been designed to meet the needs of more practical study and college credit in our Senior group and more activity and recreational projects in the Junior group. Plans have also been made for evening sessions for all, including the public.

Bible appreciation will be emphasized. Classes will be of the practical doctrinal nature and the afternoon discussion period will be held under supervision of various leaders for consideration of practical problems of youth work and personal faith. The evening services are designed to provide examples for youth and young people at home who are called upon to provide Sunday evening services of a special nature from time to time. They will feature outstanding leaders in various fields related to the problems and work of young people, film presentation of worth-while instruction talks by denominational leaders, and programs by the young people themselves.

Wednesday and Saturday afternoons will be time out for special visits and recreational activities, and morning class will likely be replaced to some extent by discussion groups on these days.

The morning devotional will be conducted by the students to encourage abilities along this line, and it is hoped that the general tone of the school will add many helpful factors to each individual life.

The cost of $15.00 has purposely been kept lower than the average for the sake of a large enrollment and greater opportunity for youth. Those coming from a distance are invited to spend an additional two weeks at General Conference classes, so the four weeks of study will better justify long travel expense. In using the dormitory rooms in town, we are able to receive only ninety into the Youth Rally for this year. Students will be accepted according to recommendations, and in the order in which enrollment has been received. Everyone interested is doing all in his power to make this Rally of the greatest possible advantage and interest to our young people in the building of their work. We should have your enrollment at once to assure yourself a place in the Rally. Use the enrollment form on page 11 or write for further information.

"He That Shall Come Will Come"!

By C. E. Lapp, Tempe, Arizona

JESUS took Peter, James, and John "up into an high mountain apart" to pray. As He prayed, His facial expression was altered, and His clothes became white and shining. The sight was more than words could describe, but the occasion burned itself indelibly into the mind of Peter. A voice from God said, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased." Seeing is believing, and Peter needed no one to prove to him that Jesus would come back to earth in power and great glory. It was not necessary for someone constantly to be reminding him that Jesus would appear as King of the earth. Beside this event, Peter reminded believers in Christ that prophecies were God-given to man, by the power of the Holy Spirit, to serve as signposts along the pathway of time. Jesus said, "When ye see these things come to pass, know ye that the kingdom of God is nigh at hand."

"Where is the promise of his coming?" has been asked for centuries. Always, somebody makes contemporary characters fit prophecies of the Bible. During the first World War, preachers told us that the Battle of Armageddon was imminent. Kaiser Wilhelm was the Man of Sin, or Antichrist, and we could know of a surety because he had a withered arm. During the time of Mussolini's rise to power, many saw in him the Man of Sin, or at least his forerunner; and Mussolini was to rebuild the old Roman Empire. Mussolini now lies in an unknown grave. When Hitler became the arch-enemy of Europe and threatened the whole world, immediately he was the fulfillment of that Man of Sin. All these signs were supposed to indicate the soon coming of Jesus, and this despite Jesus' saying, "Of that day and that hour knoweth no man . . . but my Father only."

The first coming of Jesus was prophesied many times and many years before He appeared on the scene. All speculations and questions and the prayers of the Jews, "How long, Oh Lord?" did not hasten the coming of Jesus; but "when the fulness of time was come, God sent forth his Son, made of a woman, made under the law" (Gal. 4:4). His coming was not early or late, but was so perfectly co-ordinated with God's great time clock of the universe that even His star shone in the East and guided the Wise Men to the place of Jesus' birth, Bethlehem of Judea. The chief priests and scribes knew prophecy concerning His coming, even informing Herod the king where He was to be born. They said to him, "In Bethlehem of Judaea: for thus it is written by the prophet" (Matt. 2:5). Only two short miles separated them from worshiping the Messiah who had been promised. Did they hurry to the scene of His birth and bow in humble gratitude and praise? They did not, for they were not concerned about Him enough to see if those prophecies were so. Signs of Jesus' coming do not necessarily stir men to seek Him as their Saviour and Redeemer.

C. E. Lapp

Today, as in Jesus' time, men are seeking for signs. "Master, we would see a sign from thee" (Matt. 12:38). Implication is often strong that men are not yet convinced that Jesus is the coming Messiah, so they must have further proof: "ever learning, and never able to come to the knowledge of the truth" that today is the day of salvation. This is more literal than most of us would like to think. Today is the last day salvation shall be offered to thousands.

Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea, according to the Prophet. He was carried into Egypt by Joseph and Mary, that it might be fulfilled according to the Prophet: "Out of Egypt have I called my Son." He came and dwelled in a city called Nazareth, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophets, "He shall be called a Nazarene." He was crucified and nails pierced His hands and feet, according to Psalm 22:16. Soldiers cast lots for Jesus' coat, that the Scripture might be (Please turn to page 10)

Emphasis on Prophecy

THE RESTITUTION HERALD this week presents a number of prophetic messages. They are messages of instruction, inspiration, and warning: telling about the second advent of Christ, closing signs of Gentile Times, certainty of eventual establishment of God's Kingdom, and necessity of Christian faith and zeal in these present dark days. Having more copy than can be used in this issue, we can promise readers at least two more prophetic articles in next week's HERALD: one entitled, "Are These the Days?" by Brother G. J. Gordon; another, "Isaiah and Zionism," by Brother Timothy Pearson.

Jesus, the Mighty Prophet

According to Luke 24:19, many people recognized Jesus as "a prophet mighty in deed and word before God and all the people." The Old Testament is replete with warnings against false prophets who were mighty only before the public. Also, the Old Testament tells of true prophets who were mighty before God. Jesus was mighty before both God and man! Before God, this Prophet was His "only begotten Son" and heir of the world. Accordingly, God gave Him miraculous powers and sustained Him until death. Before men, this Prophet was a Friend and Saviour: forgiving, lifting, healing, promising.

Like the prophets before Him, Jesus was a preacher who bravely faced the problems of His days. He led and fed multitudes. Like His forerunners, too, Jesus foresaw events both near and far. He prophesied minutely and accurately the denials of Peter. He prophesied His own death and resurrection. He prophesied Titus' siege of Jerusalem, the city's fall, and destruction of the Temple.

This mighty Prophet looked farther into the future, even into these "last days." "When the Son of man cometh, shall he find faith in the earth?" was prediction more than question. Though having negligible acquaintance with famines, earthquakes, tidal waves, and warfare, Jesus prophesied these plagues would mark the end of Gentile times, not only in Palestine, but "in divers places." His vision of the world in these last days is also timely warning: "As the days of Noe were, so shall also the coming of the Son of man be. For as in the days that were before the flood they were eating . . . drinking . . . marrying . . . in such an hour as ye think not the Son of man cometh" (Matt. 24:37-44).

Fonthill Contribution to College

Several years ago, when funds were being raised to build or purchase a college, the Church of God at Fonthill, Ontario, pledged $300.00. Shortly thereafter, however, World War II brought restrictions on sending money from Canada into the United States. Our Institution would have suffered considerable loss on the Fonthill gift, had it been made during the War, so the Fonthill brethren were excused from paying their pledge while those restrictions were in force.

Recently, the Fonthill Church renewed its effort to pay that former pledge. We are glad to report, now, that our present Building Fund has been increased $300.00

Of course, the College today owns its own building, and the present Building Fund is for the contemplated "Administration Building" to be used as a headquarters building for the General Conference in addition to supplying classrooms for the College. How far in the future is that contemplated Administration Building? Well, there is no immediate hurry, but it is the part of wisdom to continue gradually to prepare for that day when the new building actually will be needed.

Thank you, Fonthill, for helping to develop the Building Fund. Today, with your contribution, it stands at $7,909.14.

College Yearbook

Students of Oregon Bible College are working faithfully on the Maranatha, their college yearbook. Unquestionably, the present effort will result in a bigger and better "Annual" than either of the preceding numbers. Copies may be ordered at $1.25, each. Increased costs of material and labor have the students a bit nervous, financially. "Encouragement" may be addressed to Howard Beemer at the College. As editor-in-chief of the Maranatha, he is still hopeful.

The Prophetic Word

By Harvey U. Krogh, Jr., Grand Rapids, Michigan

PROPHECY is considered one of the most interesting subjects of the Bible because it tends to make prophets of us. If we could tell someone that the conditions on the earth will soon become much worse, we probably would take some pride in seeing those conditions come, though they may not be desirable. Prophecy is interesting, also, because it is a means by which we can see into the future. Human curiosity is so strong that people pay large sums of money to those who claim to reveal that which is ahead of them.

The purpose of prophecy, however, is not to make prophets of us but as Jesus said: "Now I have told you before it come to pass, that, when it is come to pass, ye might believe" (John 14:29). We may think now that we believe. In fact, we do believe to a certain extent. We believe that Christ is the Son of God, that God raised Him from the dead, and that He is coming again. We also believe many other truths about God and His Son, but we find the word "believe" here means absolutely to believe. Sometimes we waver a little in our beliefs, and our faith may not be perfect until we have seen all the prophecies fulfilled; but each one that is fulfilled should strengthen our faith and lead us toward complete confidence in God.

If we can put our finger on a few prophecies and see how they literally are being fulfilled before our eyes today, our faith most certainly will be increased.

For example, the prophecy of Jesus in Luke 21:26 says: "Men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth." An item in a paper not long ago stated that American people are so worried that they are consuming eleven million pounds of aspirin a year. If you figure that out, it amounts to about fifteen billion, four hundred thousand five-grain aspirin tablets a year. The consumption of aspirin is a kind of barometer telling that there are more headaches and more worries than ever before. It, therefore, does not require much study to conclude that conditions on the earth today may have much to do with the worry that brings these billions of headaches.

One thing that convinces us that a large share of the mental troubles are caused by concern over the general conditions of the world is the fact that these ills are not confined to the high-tension city life, but are found also among the more quiet country folk. A survey was made recently in Miami County, Ohio, composed largely of farming communities, to discover the mental health of country people. Among other things, it was found that ten to twenty per cent of the population should see a psychiatrist. We might suggest that faith in God and obedience to Christ would help some of these people to "look up and lift up their heads" when they see these world-shaking events coming to pass. It also was found that one of every twenty-three would spend some time in a mental institution. Worry is often one of the causes of mental ailments.

Jesus said, "Men's hearts failing them for fear." It is well understood that mental troubles also affect one's heart. If we consider this prophecy literally as we ought to consider most of the Bible prophecy, except that which is definitely symbolic, we are not surprised to find that in these days about three times as many people die of heart ailments than for any other reason. We may well count this a literal fulfillment of the prophecy that Jesus gave. It is also definite indication of the nearness of Christ's return.

Another very definite prophecy was made by the Apostle Paul in 2 Timothy 3:1, saying: "This know also, that in the last days perilous times shall come." Perilous times are dangerous times. "Dangerous" exactly describes the days in which we are living. If all the proof we had were the statements of Paul, we could doubt; but we have a wealth of evidence. Not long ago the army announced that a silent atomic bomb could be produced from a by-product of peacetime atomic energy which would destroy all life in a large area. Not long ago a national figure stated that he believed only ten per cent of the people of the earth would be alive five years from now because of an atomic war. Walter Winchell says that World War III has already started. Now, who can say that we are not living in perilous times? Do not worry, though, because these are the times that we shall experience just before Christ returns, and we should rejoice because His coming is so near.

Some people ignore the possibility of another war and the use of the atomic bomb. They tell you that things are getting better. Medical science has been able to preserve life in these last days that could not have been saved a few years ago. Safety devices in factories have saved many lives that might have been lost in time past. Yes, many lives are being saved temporarily.

The Church of God—a Sign

By T. M. Ferrell, Holbrook, Nebraska

"Let no man deceive you by any means: for that day shall not come, except there come a falling away first."—Paul.

AN OUTSTANDING sign of the approaching end of the age is that condition of the church known as the "apostasy" or "falling away." Paul plainly presented this teaching as a sign of the last days, as recorded in 2 Thessalonians 2:3, where, in speaking of the day of the coming of Christ, he said: "Let no man deceive you by any means: for that day shall not come, except there come a falling away first." For many years, the Church of God as a group has examined and taught the "signs of the times" as presented by the Bible. Many signs being fulfilled at present are worthy of our consideration, but we think there is no sign which may affect us more than this one which we shall call the "apostasy." Let us open-mindedly review the teachings on this subject.

First, let us try to clarify the meaning of "falling away." These words in the Bible are translated from the Greek word apostasia, from which derives the word "apostasy" which means literally, "the falling away." We have heard thought expressed in relation to this prophecy that the huge numbers of unchurched men and women in this country, and the millions of children who do not attend Sunday school, indicate a falling away. True, the number of persons in this country who do not attend Sunday school and church is enormous, yet, to us at least, it is not a falling away. How can a person fall away from something to which he has never adhered? Those who fall away must have been at one time in the faith. Do the figures indicate a falling away or decrease in membership in the nominal churches of today? No, the figures show increased attendance at church. Greater numbers are attending church than ever before, yet we teach a falling away.

If prophecy of the falling away does not refer to the millions of unchurched in a land of churches, and the figures do not indicate a falling away in numbers at the present, what is this "falling way" of which the Scriptures make reference? It is a falling away from the faith. It is that condition in the church of its members no longer thinking the important truths of the Bible are essential to salvation. It is that condition in the church of its members no longer bringing forth the fruits of a Christian, and their being "lukewarm," fit to be spued out.

We often read 2 Peter 2:1-3, speaking of false prophets and teachers who privately teach "damnable heresies," who even "deny the Lord that bought them," and through their evil works "cause the way of truth to be evil spoken of." Also, we read 2 Timothy 3:1-17 where, in speaking of the perilous times in the last days, the Apostle Paul mentioned that men (professed followers of Christ) shall be "lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God," "having a form of godliness," but denying the cleansing power of that godliness, resisting the truth, growing "worse and worse," "deceiving and being deceived." Such texts as 1 Timothy 4:1-3 cannot be misconstrued when they say "that in the latter times some shall depart from the faith," following false doctrines and performing harmful works. Or such texts as Revelation 3:14-22 where, in speaking to the church of the Laodiceans, the Spirit denounced them for being lukewarm, smug, and over-confident, yet in God's sight they were poor, naked, blind, and wretched—in need of repentance and zeal!

There seems to be no question about the Scriptures teaching that the "apostasy" is a falling away from the true faith, as held and taught by the apostles. In the light of this testimony, it is evident that we are living in an age of "apostate" churches. It is doubtful if there is a church group today as faithful concerning doctrines and practices as when it started. The Roman Catholic Church of today, though boasting of having its beginning in apostolic times, is a "far cry" from what it was in the beginning: both in doctrine and in practice. Comparing the teachings of the apostles as contained in the New Testament with the Roman Catholic Church as early as 313 A.D., one would find these pagan customs already being practiced: infant baptism, taught by Origen a hundred years earlier; the sanctity and spiritual power of holy water, of holy places, of the bones and other relics of saints and martyrs, of the cross, and the sign of the cross; the elevation of the priesthood to the position of mediator between God and man; extreme use of ritual in church services; and the adding of holidays such as Epiphany. This corruption at such an early date was followed closely by the Council of Nicaea in 325 A.D. when belief in the pre-existence of Christ was embraced. Add to this: purgatory, popes, mass, auricular confession, Mary worship, and many other unscriptural practices and beliefs, and you have an example of "apostasy."

The Catholic Church is not the only apostate church today. Methodists shun baptism by immersion, which the Bible teaches and their founders John and Charles Wesley taught and practiced. Lutherans today hold to the doctrine of natural immortality of the soul; but the Bible teaches, and Martin Luther held to, the truth that death is a sleep and the dead "felt absolutely nothing." The Baptists of today would scoff at the Baptist confession of faith as held in 1660 which included such truths as the return of Christ, Kingdom on earth, and resurrection to immortality. Yes, the churches of today are a part of the apostasy, but surely our own church, the Church of God, cannot be guilty of any of these faults. That is what we have thought for so long, but that does not prevent us from being of this apostasy.

Are we today holding the traditions and practices our forefathers in the Church of God held? Have we not changed and broadened just a little bit? We cite:

The Church-of-God view on military participation has quite generally changed since August 17, 1922, when in General Conference session we passed a resolution supporting members opposed to Christian participation in combat. The Dry Run Church of God in Fort Valley, Virginia, included a similar voice in its constitution on November 2, 1878, as did the Iowa Conference of the Church of God in 1898. Though we do not wish to make an issue of this example, is it not true that our church is changing?

History in Advance

By Glenn M. Birkey, Rochelle, Illinois

SO WE HAVE the message of the prophets more fully guaranteed. Please pay attention to that message as to a lamp shining in a dark place, until the day dawns and the morning star rises in your hearts. You must understand this in the first place, that no prophecy in Scripture can be understood through one's own powers, for no prophecy ever originated in the human mind will, but under the influence of the holy Spirit men spoke for God" (2 Peter 1:19-21, Goodspeed).

WHEN I was a boy in grade school, history and geography were favorite studies in my school work. Of course, that history was about past events, but the history we are writing about today concerns future events. Though many events prophesied in the Bible already have been fulfilled, we still look for much to be fulfilled before God's plans are completed.

Daniel 2 presents a picture of world history from the time of Nebuchadnezzar to the end of Gentile Times—not yet closed. Daniel foretold there would be "a time of trouble, such as never was," at the end of these Gentile Times. Christ repeated this prophecy in Matthew 24:21. If half the reports are true as to conditions in most of Europe and Asia, it would appear that we are entering this "time of the end."

Often, it is said that history repeats itself. Prophecy about the last-day conditions mentions, "As the days of Noe were, so shall also the coming of the Son of man be." The Bible tells that we are to expect scoffers near the time of the end, and we surely have them. Many professing Christians make very slighting remarks about predictions in the Word of God concerning the future. Let us examine some scriptures about this important question of prophecy. Peter, in his Second Epistle, stirred up the minds of his brethren, thus:

"This second epistle, beloved, I now write unto you; in both which I stir up your pure minds by way of remembrance: that ye may be mindful of the words which were spoken before by the holy prophets, and of the commandment of us the apostles of the Lord and Saviour: knowing this first, that there shall come in the last days scoffers, walking after their own lusts, and saying, Where is the promise of his coming? for since the fathers fell asleep, all things continue as they were from the beginning of the creation."

Here prophesied is the modern apostasy among so-called Christians. In most churches today, a sermon on Bible prophecy is as rare as a snowstorm in the month of July. If one were preached, no one present would believe it. Besides, the minister would take a chance on losing his pastorate, so most of them take no chances.

The study of Bible prophecy has done much to change my vision of God's plan of salvation. At the age of fifteen years, I became a member of the Baptist Church. Very little, if anything, ever was said there concerning the gospel of the Kingdom as it is taught by the Church of God. Today, large organizations of the Baptists are allied with the Federal Council of Churches, and that organization has a record of being pink, if not red, with Communism. Recently, I read that a leader of the Southern Baptist Convention, considered one of the bulwarks of fundamental

"Thy Kingdom Come"

By Roy G. Graham, Fredericktown, Missouri

SEVERAL questions pertinent to the Kingdom of God cause a wide divergence of opinion. Let us briefly study a few of these questions from a Biblical standpoint. I suggest to readers of this article that each of you please take your Bible in hand, as we reason together upon these very vital questions.

I shall not endeavor to prove that there is a Kingdom of God, as anyone who has read the Bible knows that the Kingdom is one of its principal themes. To the Hebrews of the Old Testament, it was their chief hope and desire. Concerning the teaching of Jesus and of the Apostles in the New Testament, it is the very foundation of their discussions.

What does the term "Kingdom of God" mean to people today? Does it mean a real, literal kingdom composed of a king, subjects, territory, etc.? It meant that to the Hebrews. What do people mean when they pray, "Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven"? (Matt. 6:10.) You are right! they many times do not mean anything. They are only repeating something that they have heard, or more likely something that they have heard. They are only passing words which help to complete one of the sentences of what is commonly known as the Lord's Prayer. More than that, some persons believe that the words are beautiful and very impressive when recited or when sung with music. That is about all they mean to a large majority of church members.

Other people, however, are more seriously minded and really give a meaning to these beautiful words. They understand that God's Kingdom is spiritual and not physical. Perhaps it is the church, or maybe it is Christian thoughts within man. Some people express it this way: "The Kingdom of God is loving thoughts within our hearts." "Some-day everyone will become Christians; then all sin will cease, and God's Kingdom will truly fill the whole earth." Really, are not these thoughts pleasing? As pleasing as they may sound, I ask, "Are they true?" After all, is it not truth that saves a man? The Bible says in John 8:32, "The truth shall make you free."

The only way to arrive at the "truth" concerning this question, or any other question, is to find proof that will substantiate our ideas, if possible. If not possible, it is time to change our ideas to conform to the abundance of evidence presented. What benefit is there in holding an idea that cannot be proved? The Scripture says in Isaiah 8:20: "To the law and to the testimony: if they speak not according to this word, it is because there is no light in them." Many people speak presumptuously without any proof whatsoever, except perhaps the word of some minister or friend. According to the Word of God, as recorded in 1 John 4:1, there are such prophets or ministers. The Scripture further tells how to try such ministers or prophets. (Deut. 18:22.)

Let us not deviate too far from our original question concerning the Kingdom of God. What does the Scripture say about this very interesting and vital subject? In 1 Chronicles 29:24, we read, "Solomon sat on the throne of the Lord as king instead of David." In 1 Chronicles 28:5, is recorded David's words that God "hath chosen Solomon my son to sit upon the throne of the kingdom of the Lord over Israel." What am I trying to say? Was not the kingdom of Israel God's Kingdom? Yes, that is what the Scripture says! Why was the kingdom of Israel any more God's Kingdom than any other kingdom? God said to Abraham in Genesis 12:2: "I will make of thee a great nation." Thus, God brought the nation of Israel into existence. What other nation can say they are God's chosen people. Please read Deuteronomy 14:2.

Not only did God originate the nation of Israel, but He also divinely presented laws to it—the laws on the Tables of Stone given to Moses upon Mount Sinai.

God directly guided the people of His Kingdom, until they became so sinful that they would not follow Him any more, but turned to following idols as did the other nations about them. Then God decided it was time to do something. Here was a nation who used God's Name, and who professed to be His chosen people, though doing everything contrary to His will. God always punishes people who use His Name in vain! (We, also bear His Name. Do we, also, take it in vain?) Here is what God said to Zedekiah, the last ruler of His Kingdom, as recorded in Ezekiel 21:25-27:

"Thou, profane wicked prince of Israel, whose day is come, when iniquity shall have an end, thus saith the Lord God; Remove the diadem, and take off the crown: this shall not be the same: exalt him that is low, and abase him that is high. I will overturn, overturn, overturn, it: and it shall be no more, until he come whose right it is; and I will give it him."

The One whose right it was did come, as recorded in Luke 1:31-33: "Behold, thou shalt conceive in thy womb, and bring forth a son, and thou shalt call his name JESUS. He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest: and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David: and he shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end."

But alas! "He came unto his own, and his own received him not." (John 1:11, 12; Matt. 21:43; 22:1-10.) When the Jews rejected Christ, the Gentiles were given a place in God's favor. (Read the Parable of the Rich Man and Lazarus in Luke 16:19-31. It teaches the same truth.) Jesus, knowing the terrible sorrow and troubles that were to befall Israel, sorrowfully said:

"O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, thou that killest the prophets, and stonest them which are sent unto thee; how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not! Behold, your house is left unto you desolate. For I say unto you, Ye shall not see me henceforth, till ye shall say, Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord."

Jesus then ascended into heaven where He will continue "until the times of restitution of all things" (Acts 3:20, 21).

To prove that the restoration of the kingdom of Israel, which was overturned, was an issue of great importance, let us read Luke 24:21:

"We trusted that it had been he which should have redeemed Israel: and beside all this, to day is the third day since these things were done"—the murder of Jesus upon the cruel cross of Calvary.

Note that they said, "We trusted." "Trusted" is in the past tense. Their faith was almost gone!

Now let us turn to Acts 1:6. Immediately before Jesus' ascension, His disciples inquired of Him: "Lord, wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?" If restoration of the kingdom of Israel was not of vast importance, why do you suppose they asked Him this question at a time like this! While they were discussing this and other very important questions, Jesus was taken in a cloud into heaven. Yes, I believe the reason they were so concerned about the restoring of the kingdom of Israel was that when the kingdom was restored they knew Jesus would sit upon the throne in that very city near by to the west—Jerusalem, "the city of the great King." They knew, also, that when He did sit upon that throne, the reign of righteousness would begin and never would cease.

Let me now ask a question. Was the Kingdom of God established at the time they were asking Jesus these questions? No, of course not, or they would not have asked questions concerning its restoration. When, therefore, will it be restored? Refer again to Acts 3:20, 21. In Hebrews 9:28, Paul spoke of a second appearing that will bring salvation. Acts 1:11 speaks of Jesus' coming again "in like manner" as He ascended into heaven. Daniel prophesied:

"I saw in the night visions, and, behold, one like the Son of man came with the clouds of heaven, and came to the Ancient of days, and they brought him near before him. And there was given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom, that all people, nations, and languages, should serve him: his dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed" (Dan. 7:13, 14). "The kingdom and dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven, shall be given to the people of the saints of the most High, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all dominions shall serve and obey him" (v. 27).

When will the Kingdom be established? Testimony of the Scriptures answers very plainly, "When He comes." In the face of these few scriptures that have been offered, and the vast store of others for which we have neither time nor space to present, could you by any stretch of your imagination say that God's Kingdom is ruling now? Do you think it is possible that the Kingdom could be in your heart? No, God's Kingdom is not in existence now, nor are the people of the world finally going to be Christianized to the extent that eternal peace and happiness will prevail. Instead, the Scriptures prophesy, "Evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse."

The prophetic event, Christ's coming to establish a literal, righteous Kingdom, is the only thing that possibly can bring enduring peace and happiness to mankind. Therefore, let us earnestly pray: "Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven."

doctrines, has come out and defended the Russian way of life. Bob Shuler, on the Pacific Coast, is doing his best through his magazine, The Methodist Challenge, to "clean up" modernism in the Methodist Church. Who can tell, though, how well he will succeed? I mention these specific cases to show how churches decay when they neglect preaching on the important subject of prophecy.

We mortals cannot count time as God does, for Peter said: "Beloved, be not ignorant of this one thing, that one day is with the Lord as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day. The Lord is not slack concerning his promise, as some men count slackness; but is longsuffering to us-ward, not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance."

Then, Peter cautioned all of us: "The day of the Lord will come as a thief in the night; in the which the heavens shall pass away with a great noise, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat, the earth also and the works that are therein shall be burned up. Seeing then that all these things shall be dissolved, what manner of persons ought ye to be in all holy conversation and godliness?"

In conclusion, I will let the reader decide what we "ought to be" and what we should be doing in these closing days of this dispensation.

News and Prophecy Digest

By C. E. Randall, Fonthill, Ontario

CLERGYMEN EXEMPTED. The New Jersey Legislature recently passed a bill which gave to clergymen the privilege of refusing to divulge any secrets which have been revealed to them through confessions of individuals who have become penitent. This bill was directed particularly to cases of slaying.

Some years ago a case was tried before the United States Supreme Court, in which a minister was tried for refusing to testify concerning a confession which a person guilty of murder had made to him. The Court upheld the right of the minister to maintain secrecy respecting confessions made to him.

There is no doubt but what the confessional has taken over much of the work that belongs to the office of the great High Priest—Jesus Christ. Because there have been abuses in this matter and the inner secrets of men exploited through the over-gorged desires of unscrupulous priests, yet there are times and circumstances when it is a great blessing to unload the mind to someone who will keep the inner secrets of people's hearts inviolate, and who in turn will give spiritual counsel and lead the troubled to mental places of quietness and relief.

The minister who can handle the hearts of people, and in his ministerial profession direct them to the Source where troubled minds can be cleansed and filled with peace, is an agent of God with great opportunities to do good; and his delicate work with the consciences and hearts of men has the backing of the highest authority in the land.

INFANT BAPTISM. The ritual of the United Presbyterians respecting the baptism of infants (sprinkling) has this vow for parents who give the child in this service. It reads: "I promise, that if God shall spare my life and the life of this child, to train him up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord; to instruct him in regard to his lost condition by nature, and to lead him to the Saviour; to pray with him and for him; to worship God regularly in our home; to set before him an example of piety, and to use all the appointed means for his salvation."

Certainly, little fault can be found with parents taking this vow to bring their children up in the "nurture and admonition of the Lord" and by example and teaching lead them to salvation. The offense in the case is leading the child to believe that the rite of sprinkling was an act of salvation and a proper substitute for baptism which is Scripturally termed for the "remission of sins." Baptism into Christ is one of God's "appointed means" of salvation. For this essential there is no substitute, and in Scripture never administered to children.

PRAYER IN COURT. In North Carolina there is a judge who believes in prayer, and his faith in God is strong enough that he is not ashamed to own it before men. He makes it a practice to have his court opened each day with prayer offered by a minister which he invites in for the purpose. He says: "Personally, I believe in prayer and am not ashamed to admit it . . . I got to thinking one day of the utter inconsistency of our recitals and our practices. I can think of no place where blessings are needed more than in a courtroom. We need religion on Monday and Tuesday as well as on Sunday. If there is a 'divinity that shapes our ends,' that is, if there is an omniscient and omnipresent Power governing the affairs of life, and from its service can be had inspiration and help for the undertakings of the day, why should not the blessings of such a Power be invoked! In other words, why recite creeds and rituals on Sunday if we are not willing to give them some practical application on Monday."

The practical and everyday use of prayer is something that too few of us use to the extent to which it can and should be used. The judge is to be commended for his forthright conviction. Jesus said, "Men ought always to pray, and not to faint" (Luke 18:1).

LATTER-DAY SAINTS. The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints is celebrating in its present home in Salt Lake City the one hundredth anniversary of its founding by Brigham Young. In July, 1847, Brigham Young led his people into Salt Lake Valley. At that time, their membership was 45,000. In January, 1947, one hundred years later, their membership was 996,505. A century ago, they had five mission fields, today they have 38 active missions, staffed with 3,200 missionaries, 800 being women.

Their early history, from the time Joseph Smith claimed to have found a stone in a well in New York State, which he called the "urim and thummim," and by which he pretended to translate the gold plates which he claimed to have been given to him by an angel, was checkered with excesses unbecoming the dignity of the name "Christian." The sordid background has been largely forgotten to present-day students. The Reorganized Church has been building on a dogmatic interpretation of the Scriptures rather than on the Book of Mormon. In spite of a bad beginning, they have made gains that give credit to their industry and missionary efforts, and their one-hundredth anniversary will afford them opportunity to rejoice in their stock-taking, for they have made remarkable gains.

CLOSED SHOP. The excesses which have followed in the wake of the closed shop have stirred many organizations and groups to rise up in protest against the evil of compelling a man to join a certain organization and pay tribute for the privilege of working. The American Council of Churches recently presented a petition to Congress signed by more than 600 ministers, requesting passage of a law outlawing the closed shop.

"The Lutheran Standard" listed five arguments against the closed shop in the petition, which was signed by many Lutheran pastors. They read:

"1. The closed shop violates freedom of conscience.

"2. It is contrary to the Seventh Commandment, because it takes money from a man against his will.

"3. It forces a man to violate the command, 'Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers.'

"4. It destroys the responsibility of the individual.

"5. It establishes a caste system in America."

PUBLIC MONEY. From all parts of the country, resolutions from various Protestant organizations are pouring into Congress against the recent Supreme Court decision upholding the right of states to legislate public funds for the transportation of parochial school children to and from school. The Fall Mountain Fellowship of Churches resolved as follows: "We stand unalterably opposed to the use of public funds for the support of private or church schools." The Birmingham, Alabama, Protestant Pastor's Union recognized in the Supreme Court decision a breach of American tradition of separation of church and state. They disapproved as follows: "This decision is a breach of both the spirit and the letter of the law, and is dangerous to the religious freedom of the nation."

A notable action in respect to public support of parochial schools comes from Italy, where Roman Catholic schools have long been recipients of aid from the public treasury. The Italian Constituent Assembly by a vote of 244 to 204 repudiated State subsidies to church schools. Italy has learned the hard way—by experience—the evils of paying through taxation for the teaching of a special religion.

BRUTAL NEWS. When Hugh Dalton, Chancellor of the Exchequer, submitted the budget to the British Parliament, on the question of increased duty on tobacco imports, Mr. Dalton said: "I break the news brutally to the House. Our current consumption of tobacco exceeds 250,000,000 pounds weight a year and about eighty per cent is imported from the United States. To satisfy this insatiable demand, we are drawing heavily and improvidently on dollars."

The new budget called for a fifty per cent increase in duty, which would increase a package of twenty cigarettes from forty-eight to sixty-eight cents.

The critical crisis in which England has found herself has brought to the attention of the public the extent to which the use of tobacco has on the economy of a nation. The Mistress of the Seven Seas has cried to the tobacco users, "You're burning me up!"

Memorials of Man and God

By Shirley Logsdon, Oregon Bible College

IN THE UNITED STATES, one day is set aside each year when citizens decorate graves of soldiers. This observance originated in the Southern States, the North having copied it from them. General John A. Logan, Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, issued a general order in 1868 dedicating May 30 for the purpose of strewing flowers on graves of soldiers. Because flowers appear earlier in the South, April 26 is set apart as Confederate Memorial Day by Alabama, Florida, Georgia, and Mississippi, and May 10 by North and South Carolina. Exercises formerly were conducted by the Grand Army of the Republic in memory of fallen soldiers of the Civil War; but now they are under auspices of the American Legion, and the graves of all American soldiers are decorated. Credit for this beautiful courtesy belongs to women of the South.

God, also, has memorials. His memorials, though, far transcend memorials of man. Genesis 9:11-17, telling of God's covenant with Noah, speaks of the magnificent rainbow spanning the heavens as one of God's memorials. It is a token of life. God, looking upon the rainbow, remembers His pledge to Noah not to destroy again the whole earth by a flood.

God established the Passover as a memorial with His people, the Israelites, that they would remember He brought them safely out of Egypt. God proclaimed: "This day shall be unto you for a memorial; and ye shall keep it a feast to the Lord throughout your generations . . . for in this selfsame day have I brought your armies out of the land of Egypt" (Ex. 12:14, 17). This memorial was to remind the Israelites, always, that God delivered them out of Egypt into a land of opportunity and life—a memorial immeasurably grander than placing flowers on a grave.

Another of God's memorials with Israel is recorded in Joshua 4:7. When the Lord led His people through the Jordan River, they were to set up a memorial of stones in the midst of the River. This memorial, ordained of God to be forever, suggests that the altar of twelve stones stands today in Jordan's waters as a proof, though unseen by skeptics, that God halted the stream in loving care and victory to His people.

God Himself is a memorial. "Thy name, O Lord, endureth for ever; and thy memorial, O Lord, throughout all generations" (Psalm 135:13). Jehovah's Name is in the earth forever as a memorial that He is with His people. Jehovah, God of the Bible, has been honored in every generation, and His people today offer their praises to Him from "every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation." "Great is the Lord, and greatly to be praised" (Psalm 48:1). "He will be our guide even unto death" (v. 14).

The New Testament, too, mentions memorials. Do you not remember the story of the woman who poured precious ointment on the head of Jesus while He sat eating? The disciples were indignant at this seeming waste, saying that the money from the sale of it could have been used for the poor. Jesus rebuked the disciples, and said: "Whosoever this gospel shall be preached throughout the whole world, this also that she hath done shall be spoken of for a memorial of her" (Mark 14:9). What could it avail to put flowers on the grave of Mary? More appropriate memorial is shown her by offering similar unselfish devotion to Christ.

Baptism by immersion is a memorial of Christ's death, burial, and resurrection. The Lord's Supper is a memorial of Christ's suffering and death. Moreover, both these New Testament memorials possess an element of prophecy: 1) "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved," and 2) "As often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye do shew the Lord's death till he come."

Yes, both God and man have memorials. Each memorial has its place; but God's memorials surpass man's, for they come from the Omnipotent. They foreshadow life—even eternal life—while man's memorial, strewing flowers on the graves of dead soldiers, shows man's helplessness, for even the flowers soon die. Without exception, God's ways excell man's ways.

THE CHURCH OF GOD—A SIGN

Here is another example. Something that has been a source of pride to us has been the general abstinence from the use of tobacco evident at our church services and conferences. Especially among the younger people, however, the idea has arisen that there is nothing wrong in a Christian using the "weed." Those who use it generally will not argue about the harm or doubtful benefits of its use, but "it just doesn't make any difference." Filthy habits of any brand should be avoided by Christians, and it is this indifferent attitude that leads to apostasy.

Though this next example may be one of my "pet gripes," it is to me an other indication of the relaxing of our faith. We refer to the common use of "Reverend" among our brethren. Not only is it not uncommon for persons of other denominations to address our ministers as "Reverend So-an-so," but it is now common for our ministers to use the title in corresponding with other ministers and in reference to themselves. In years past, such usage was frowned upon by our people, and is yet by a few of us "old-fashioned" people. We would not make this a test of faith, but it is just one more tradition of our fathers which the Bible upholds, which has been observed for so many years by our people, and which is being discounted. No, not a big step, but it is a step closer to orthodoxy and denominationalism—"apostasy."

A trend upon which we look with apprehension is the attempt to disprove necessity of the great truths of the Bible toward salvation. "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and you'll be saved, even if you believe and sing that Christ came 'a never-dying soul to save and fit it for the sky,'" or all the other "sky-pilot" theology preached, seems to get recognition today. We challenge anyone to preach importance of the sacrifice of Christ in its fullness, without first emphasizing that man is mortal and in need of salvation; or to preach Christ (anointed) the King without mentioning the Kingdom of which He is to be King. The idea that the embracing of Bible truth is not necessary is "apostasy" in itself.

There are many other ways in which the Church of God is fulfilling, or has fulfilled, this prophecy of apostasy. What one thing in the Church of God better could fulfill 2 Peter 2:1, 2, than the Universalists among our people who privately have taught, and quietly are teaching today, their damnable doctrine that so surely kills every church that will hear it? "Apostasy!" Or, what better could fulfill the prophecy of 1 Timothy 4:3 than those of our people who have "gone off" with the Seventh-day groups and commanded their followers "to abstain from meats" which God has created "to be received with thanksgiving"? Or, our own people who fulfill 2 Timothy 3:4 when they would drive to other towns to play

Sunday baseball, rather than attend church; or those who dismiss Sunday school during the summer so members can spend that time at the beach! We think we are "pretty good," Brethren, but are we? Are not we, the Church of God, fast becoming a part of the apostasy we always thought referred to someone else?

As the Apostle Paul admonished Timothy, may we also be admonished: "Continue thou in the things which thou hast learned and hast been assured of, knowing of whom thou hast heard them." Again, "Brethren, stand fast, and hold the traditions which ye have been taught, whether by word or our epistle." Let us awaken to the reality that if we do not mend our ways and try to get as far away from Sodom and Gomorrah as we can, instead of pitching our tents toward them, we shall find ourselves in the cities of wickedness and doomed to destruction because of our apostasy. As we once heard it said—"Let us ever watch the signs of the times, but let us watch ourselves, also, lest we become one of those signs in the falling away."

fulfilled; and, after the crucifixion, the soldiers did not break Jesus' legs, that the Word might be fulfilled, "A bone of him shall not be broken." "When the evening was come, there came a rich man of Arimathæa, named Joseph, who also himself was Jesus' disciple." He was given the body of Jesus, and he "laid it in his own new tomb, which he had hewn out in the rock"—"He made his grave with the wicked, and with the rich in his death" (Isa. 53:9). Those prophecies leave no doubt about the identity of Jesus; and, especially after His resurrection, there could be no question.

Intelligent people everywhere know this world cannot continue in this present condition without some great change. In fact, they are expecting a crisis to shake the world to its very foundations. Even civilization may be destroyed. Christian people know the Lord is coming to bring to a climax the great work of salvation which Christ finished on the cross. The lukewarm, half-hearted Christians are saying, "'My Lord delayeth his coming.' Show us signs. Where is the promise of His coming? No man knows the day or the hour, so why worry? Eat, drink, and be merry, for tomorrow we die! All things continue as they were from the beginning."

Nevertheless, as in the days of Noah, people are now so much concerned with the sensual satisfactions of life that the spiritual things are put to one side. When the Flood came, all were lost except the immediate family of Noah. So shall also the coming of the Son of Man be! "Watch therefore: for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come." "Therefore be ye also ready: for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of man cometh" (Matt. 24:42, 44). Jesus said we should watch our house, lest it be broken up as by a thief.

"Yet a little while, and he that shall come will come, and will not tarry" (Heb. 10:37). The people of Jesus' time were looking everywhere for signs to prove He was the Messiah; and, while they looked for the signs, the multitude feasted on the (Please turn to page 15) times in the sense that more people are in danger of missing their opportunity to be saved eternally. The church and Sunday school have more competition than they have ever had before, and they have less assistance from the parents than ever before. In these days when there are more dangers than ever before, children are taught less than they were when the dangers were not so great.

How can a person make sure of eternal salvation? There is only one way, and that is to make sure of the first resurrection by being as true to God in all things as he can. Do all that God's Word requires of you.

The tremendous high speed of almost everything one can think of is constantly increasing the danger to everyone and everything. The increasing speed of automobiles has increased the number of accidents. The same is true concerning railroad trains. The old saying that "haste makes waste" is just as true today as it was in the horse-and-buggy days. Some of the speeds today may be quite safe, but all are not; because the advancement in safety devices has not caught up with the advancement in speed.

Men of the world have too much power and too much speed, and these are perilous times because men have not learned how to use this power and speed for the good of themselves and for the good of their fellow men.

General Douglas MacArthur was absolutely right when he said we would have to catch up spiritually and improve our character to match the advancements of science and art, if we hope ever to solve our problems. The very fact that the world is not catching up spiritually is definite proof that we are literally living in the days of which Paul spoke.

There is no question that these and other prophecies are being fulfilled right before our eyes. These fulfillments increase our faith. What will an increase in faith do for us? First, it will give us more power with God, more power in prayer, for He said, "Whatsoever ye ask in faith believing." What will we do with more power when it is God-given to those who love Him? We use it to assist in preaching the gospel. We use it to do good in every possible way. We honor God and exalt Him before men. When our faith is increased, we may do as Jesus told Peter. Jesus said, "I have prayed for thee, that thy faith fail not, and when thou art converted, strengthen thy brethren" (Luke 22:32). Yes, when our faith is strong, we should strengthen our brethren. We can strengthen them by our example of proving to be true, even if "the going" is difficult. We can help them by showing strong faith on our part.

Watch the fulfillment of prophecy and let each event strengthen you for better Christian service.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

Prepared by Madge Savage
Waite Park, Minnesota

"The children of Gad and the children of Reuben spake unto Moses, saying, Thy servants will do as my lord commandeth" (Numbers 32:25).

An Inheritance from God

The children of Israel again had reached the borders of the Promised Land. When the families of Reuben and Gad saw the good land for their large herds, they wanted to stay on the eastern borders of the River Jordan. Moses told them that their fathers had not obeyed God and for their disobedience had been punished. The children of Reuben and Gad explained to Moses that they were willing to help fight for the land of Canaan. They merely wanted to leave their children and people of the tribes who were not "men of war" at this place with their other possessions and "multitude of cattle." Moses allowed them to do this.

We Have an Inheritance

Those of us who today are following Christ will receive an inheritance, too. There is a crown of righteousness. (2 Tim. 4:7.) There is a promised land. (Gen. 12:7.) We are all one in Christ and also of the children or "seed" of Abraham, and "heirs" of the promise of life eternal.

We need to fight, too, if we wish to obtain our inheritance. Our entire Christian life is a fight, in a way. We strive to follow Jesus and do His will in all things. We make many mistakes, for none of us is without sin. We are overcomers of sin only through Christ and His strength. So we live very close to Him to claim His strength and guidance.

The Rules Still the Same

The rules of Christianity do not change with the years. People change, but God's way was perfect when it was begun. We are to love God with all our hearts and minds and beings. Then, too, we are to love our neighbors as ourselves. As we grow in grace in the Christian life, we are to develop into a "perfect" person. (2 Peter 1:5-8.)

"Without faith it is impossible to please [God]: for he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him" (Heb. 11:6). In both 2 Peter 1:5 and Hebrews 11:6, we find that a Christian must seek "diligently" or actively or busily. It has to be worked at in a careful manner, not haphazardly.

Other factors that help Christians to become perfect are purity (or virtue), knowledge, temperance (or self-restraint), patience, godliness, brotherly kindness, and love.

Peter added: "Wherefore . . . give diligence to make your calling and election sure: for if ye do these things, ye shall never fall: for so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ" (2 Peter 1:10, 11).

Carelessness Not Excused

The Christian is judged by the Word. God does not excuse us if we fail to be "diligent" in seeking to do right. In the Book of Jeremiah, we read: "Thus saith the Lord, Let not the wise man glory in his wisdom, neither let the mighty man glory in his might, let not the rich man glory in his riches: but let him that glorieth glory in this, that he understandeth and knoweth me, that I am the Lord which exercise lovingkindness, judgment, and righteousness, in the earth: for in these things I delight, saith the Lord" (Jer. 9:23, 24).

The Lord God says that the days will come when He will punish all the circumcised with those who were not. Many nations were not sealed with the seal of circumcision, and Israel, God's chosen people, were not sealed in their hearts. God judges our hearts. A few acts that Christians may do that are seen does not make one a Christian, unless it is done from the heart.

We should remember that when we are Christ's we are sealed. We have a new heart, a clean and pure heart. Let us so live that we will be kept that way. The Lord Jesus will strengthen us, guide us, and keep us His. (2 Thess. 3:3; Jude 24.)

RECREATION MUST RE-CREATE

A POEM by Browning puts forth this parable of two camels. One camel, eager to serve his master, ate barely enough food to keep himself alive. Before his journey was over, he succumbed under a heavy burden. The other camel ate what was given him, he rested when he had opportunity, and enjoyed what he could of his life. He carried his master's goods to their destination. Now, which of these camels served his master best; the one who lived joylessly, or the one who lived with joy and seized every opportunity to re-create himself?

As we walk along the highway of life, carrying our crosses, it is expedient that we maintain a balance of work and recreation. It is our duty to the Lord to keep ourselves well, mentally and physically. Recreation helps us do this. But recreation must re-create! It must renew our vitality, increase our strength, purify our minds, fit us for more creative activity. If it does not accomplish this, it is not recreation, but a drain and a time-killer.

Recreation is not an end in itself, but a means of helping you toward your real goal in life. Some people live to play; wise people play to live. Recreation should build up the whole person. If it takes from one part of your well-being to add to another, it is wrong. If it lowers your ideals, to relax your body, it is false. If it draws you from God to give you a change of scenery, you have been deceived. "Any activity which lets you down morally, to build you up physically, is a snare and a delusion" (E. Stanley Jones).

Ask yourself these questions; then decide whether or not you have been re-creating or wrecking your life.

(1) Does it enrich your life by building up your physique, your mind, and your nerves, by active participation? Listening to the radio, reading a book, or seeing a movie, runs a poor second to recreation which demands action, teamwork, co-operation, and flexing of under-used muscles. Re-create the whole man, not just a part of him. Psychologist Henry Link, in his book "The Rediscovery of Man," is quite emphatic in his view that we rely too much on spectator recreation. One of his most frequent and successful treatments for the many "complexes" plaguing atomic-age men is to send them to a Y.M.C.A.

where they must be with people in recreation which demands participation, co-operation, and teamwork.

(2) Does it enrich life by making you more loyal, self-controlled, courageous, and creative? These are Christian virtues; and, unless your recreation teaches and strengthens Christian virtues, it is un-Christian. You thus can make your own decisions about what is and what is not Christian recreation.

(3) Does it enrich your life by contributing wholesome ideas and by appealing to the best of your thoughts? We doubt very much that many of the things done today by professing Christians under the name of recreation could pass this test.

Many movies do anything but bring out the best of your thoughts, and give you everything but wholesome ideas. Can we say we are re-creating our lives for bigger and better service, when we are actually lowering our minds and absorbing germs of hate, murder, immorality, and vice?

Is gambling recreation? If it is, then the idea that you can get something for nothing is a wholesome idea. If it is, then the gangland gambling murders, the back-room bookmakers, and smoke-filled, alcohol-drenched poker clubs bring out the best in our Christian land.

Examine your favorite recreation! If it contributes low ideals and brings out carnal thoughts, it is not recreation; it is sin!

(4) Does it maintain a desirable balance between work and play? Recreation should not take too much time, nor interfere with your regular duties of life. If you must use hours necessary for sleep or when you should be at work, you do not re-create. "Any recreation from which you must recover is not recreation" (Abundant Living). Enough play to keep the body well, the mind clear, and to ward off dullness, maintains the desired balance.

Recreation must re-create! Make it do this for you!

GLEANINGS FROM THE FIELD

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

Pathfinder Magazine informs that paper shortages have caused some delay in starting subscriptions. We are sorry for the delay, but feel sure that all subscriptions will be under way, soon. If not, let us know and we will take up the matter, individually.—James M. Watkins, Promotional Director.

"We wish to enroll these young people for the Youth Rally: Diane LeMasurier, Sidney Hammond, and Joe De Oss, all of Holbrook."—T. M. Ferrell, Holbrook, Nebr.

"We are renewing evening services at Fredericktown, Mo., the services having been discontinued during the winter months, as we lacked proper heating equipment. We now have a new automatic gas furnace."—Roy G. Graham, 6717 Bradley Ave., Saint Louis, Mo.

Sr. H. T. Cooper, Fredericktown, Mo., is seriously sick. She may be addressed at Saint Marys of the Ozarks Hospital, Ironton, Mo.

Mr. Isaac L. Barton, Lebanon, Ill., died at his home, May 13. Mr. Barton was the husband of Sr. Kathryn Townsend Barton.

Thank You, Bro. and Sr. Demmitt! Not only was Bro. E. J. Demmitt, Troy, Ohio, helpful in locating a good garden tractor for Golden Rule Home and Oregon Bible College, but he and Sr. Demmitt have contributed generously ($50.00) toward its purchase price. . . . Total cost was $310.38.

"Attendance is increasing, and interest and spirit are increasing with it. We are still in the market for a building, of course, but I guess that will come in time."—Harold Doan, 1908 N. Keystone Ave., Chicago 39, Ill.

BRUSH CREEK, OHIO

The Brush Creek annual Bible school will convene, June 2-8, with Bro. M. W. Lyon as teacher for the afternoon young people's class and special speaker for evening services. On Sunday, June 8, there will be preaching services in morning, afternoon, and evening, and basket dinner served at noon in the church basement. Each weekday afternoon, classes for the various age groups. Special music will give added inspiration to our evening worship services.

We send an urgent invitation to everyone able to attend. Come, and enjoy every service with us.
Mrs. E. J. Demmitt, Secy.

An enrollment coupon for Summer Schools is on page 11. We want enrollments, now.

ARKANSAS CITY, KANSAS

On May 16, 1947, the Church of God in Arkansas City, Kan., completed two weeks of Bible school work under the direction of Sr. Verna C. Thayer and assisted by Sr. Mabel Barnum. There was an enrollment of eighty-one pupils and an average daily attendance of fifty. This is nearly twice the daily attendance of last year. Classes were conducted each evening at 4:30, following public school classes.

The program on Thursday of the last week of school was attended by a goodly number of parents, in spite of the very damp weather. In addition to the program presented by the children, colored slides were shown on The Life of Peter. Vernon Chaplin showed motion pictures he had taken of children entering the church, singing, and working. This was especially enjoyed by all.

On the last day of school, each child was given a certificate of attendance, and those with perfect attendance also were rewarded. At noon a picnic lunch, with an added treat of ice cream for all, was served for the children in the basement.

We feel our school was very successful and give all credit to Srs. Thayer and Barnum. We extend an invitation for them to return next year.

Sr. Thayer preached for the congregation, Sunday morning, May 11, Mother's Day. She preached also in the evening and showed colored slides. In the afternoon, Miss Marie Chaplin and Allen Chaplin were baptized by Sr. Thayer.

A covered-dish supper was enjoyed by the church families on Wednesday, May 14. Following supper, singing and colored slides were enjoyed. The evening closed with observance of the Lord's Last Supper. Sr. Thayer, assisted by the deacons, officiating.

Faye Werneke, Secy.

ELDORADO, ILLINOIS

The young people's Sunday school class of the Restitution Church of God at Eldorado, Ill., surprised their teacher, Mrs. Pat Nash, and her husband, May 7, with a household shower. They met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Davenport, and all went together to the home of Mrs. Nash's mother, where Mr. and Mrs. Nash were visiting.

Mrs. Nash was the former Miss Elizabeth Martin, the daughter of Mrs. Aldora Martin of Eldorado. Mr. Nash is the son of Mrs. F. L. Nash of Casey, Ill. Mr. and Mrs. Nash appreciated the many nice gifts they received.

Punch and cookies were served to the following: Bulah Murphy, Jimmy and Jackie Wiggins, Leo Lloyd, Barbara and Mary Tyler, and Loretta Wiggins. Those who sent gifts were: Beta Mosby, Bob Barlow, and John and Donald Tyler. Late callers were: Miss Bernice Leithliter, Mrs. Carl Davenport, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Lloyd and Freddy, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Wiggins, and Mrs. Aldora Martin.

HARDESTY - MARSH

The marriage of Mary Elizabeth Hardesty of Oregon, Ill., and J. Arlon Marsh, pastor of the Church of God of Rockford, Ill., was solemnized in the Church of God at Oregon on Saturday, May 17, 1947, at 2:30 p.m. The service was conducted by the groom's father, G. E. Marsh, pastor of the Brush Creek, Ohio, congregation, before an audience made up of relatives and friends of the well-known young couple. Practically the entire membership of the Rockford Church and a large number from the Oregon Church in which the bride has been an active worker for several years, were present. The bride was attended by Shirley Logsdon of Oregon as maid-of-honor, and Evan Knodle of Rockford served the groom as best man. Kirby Davis and Gordon Landry ushered, and music was provided by Mary Catherine Railton of Rockford and Lois Carpenter of Oregon. Mr. L. B. Beard, a friend, gave the bride away, and his wife supervised the guest-book signatures.

The bride, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl E. Hoganson of Spanaway, Wash., has given much of her time in serving the Sunday school and Berean groups in the Oregon Church and its East Oregon Chapel. She also is associated with the National Berean work and has been active in the girl scout movement. Her devotion to God's service, together with her experience, qualify her to be helper and sympathetic companion of a minister of the Lord.

The groom, since before his graduation from high school, has been associated with the National Berean Society. For several years, he has been connected with the Sunday School Association and is now editor of the Senior Truth Seekers' Quarterly. He has contributed extensively to both the secular and religious press. For the past four years, he has been pastor of the Rockford church.

After a week's honeymoon, the pastor and his wife will be at home at 1907 Latham St., Rockford, Ill., from where they will continue their service of the Master.

We pray that the blessing of God may rest upon their united service to His people.

G. E. Marsh.

MOORE - SMITH

The marriage of Mr. Richard Kent Smith, son of Mrs. Edna Smith of West Milton, Ohio, and Miss Dorothy Jean Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vey Moore of Tipp City, Ohio, was solemnized before a large gathering of relatives and friends in the Brush Creek Church of God, Sunday, April 13, the pastor reading the service. They were attended by Mrs. Anna Bell Furlong, a sister of the bride who served as matron of honor, and Mr. Edwin E. Smith, brother of the groom, who acted as best man. The young people, both of whom are regular attendants of both church and Sunday school at Brush Creek, are nicely settled in their new home near Frederick. We pray that God's richest blessing may rest upon this fine young couple and give them a long, happy, and prosperous life together.

G. E. Marsh.

College pins arrived last week—much to the pleasure of all the students. Alumni who ordered pins will receive theirs in the very near future.

JOSIAH THORP

Josiah Thorp was born in Edwardsville, Kan., November 14, 1863, and died in Kansas City, Kan., April 15, 1947. His wife predeceased him in death. He leaves mourning his death: three sisters, Mrs. Martha Manchester and Mrs. Cora Jarvis, both of Spokane, Wash., and Mrs. Nancy Cummings of Saint Helens, Ore.; one brother, Frank Thorp of Pocatello, Idaho; two daughters, Mrs. Ruth Powell and Mrs. Frances Smith of Kansas City; three grandchildren and one great-grandchild; other relatives and a sizeable circle of friends, all of whom will seriously miss him. They will notice his absence, miss his gentle voice and quiet presence. The love and consideration which his children and grandchildren displayed, in deeds as well as words, during his illness is to be greatly admired by all who witnessed them.

Great is the consolation in Ecclesiastes 9:10, which says "there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave, whether thou goest," because these words show where man goes at death and inform us that there is peaceful rest there. Glory be to God! In addition to these consoling words, we find more and still greater comfort in the Apostle Paul's First Letter to the Thessalonians—especially in 4:13-18. I quote in part: "Concerning them which are asleep . . . that ye sorrow not, even as others which have no hope. For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him. . . . We which are alive and remain unto the coming of the Lord shall not prevent them which are asleep. . . . The dead in Christ shall rise first; then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them to meet the Lord in the air. . . . Comfort one another with these words." Let none of the bereaved fail to seek the comfort these words of God offer you in tender sympathy.

"Grandpa" Thorp was an energetic, hard-working man during all the active part of his life; beginning with the Missouri-Pacific Railroad when a young man, later changing to the Kansas City Leavenworth Interurban for which he worked about forty years, until old age prevented further serving. He now rests from his labor.

Mr. Thorp first heard the Kingdom message about fifty-eight years ago through a Church-of-God preacher, embraced it, and soon became a loyal defender of the doctrine of the non-pre-existence of Christ, and kindred Bible doctrines. He had an acquaintance with God that some members of the Church of God have never had. He was Scriptural in ethics, as well as in doctrines, for he realized that we are yet carnal, like the Corinthians. In Paul's last recorded words to them, he said, "This also I wish, even your perfection" (2 Cor. 13:9). Mr. Thorp believed that Paul meant the Corinthians were not perfect even at this last writing to them. Occasionally he met persons who made claims that they were living so holy, that he sensed a spirit of boasting. Then he would quote 1 John 1:8, which says in substance, "If we say we have no sin, we deceive ourselves." Such a truthful answer, and right from the Bible, usually brought results.

Bro. Thorp was no admirer of the well-known creed of 325 A.D., confirmed by some 318 bishops of the Catholic Church when in council in the then-prosperous city of Nice.

The noted Nicene Creed claims: "The Lord Jesus Christ is God of God, consubstantial with the Father, descended, was incarnate, and was made man. But the Holy Catholic Church of God anathematizes those who affirm that there was a time when the Son was not." There was at that time, in the Catholic Church, a presbyter, Arius Montanus by name, who took the position that there was a time when the Son did not exist. So did Bro. Thorp; so do we of the Church of God; and we receive similar treatment to that which Arius and his co-believers received.

John F. Green.

GEORGE GRANT KNODLE

George Grant Knodle was born, May 8, 1872, to Bro. and Sr. William Knodle in Rockvale Township, near Oregon, Ill., and died, May 13, 1947, at his home in Chicago, Ill.

Mr. Knodle grew to manhood in Rockvale Township. Deciding to travel, he visited many western states; being employed by several firms in the West. He worked in the shipyards at Oakland, Calif., and several years as a smelter in Utah.

On July 5, 1905, he was married in Prescott, Ariz., to Ne-Rie Miller. In 1922, he moved to Chicago, where he and his faithful wife resided until his death. While living in Chicago, he became deeply interested in the preaching of Dr. Preston Bradley, pastor of the People's Church.

Surviving are his widow; one sister, Mina, and one brother, Roy, both of Oregon; two nephews; and many other relatives and friends.

Funeral services were conducted, May 17, by Bro. F. L. Austin and the writer, at the Knodle home and the Church of God, Oregon, burial being in Riverview Cemetery.

"HE THAT SHALL COME WILL COME"!

seashore, the blind men were touched and healed, Lazarus was raised from the dead, and little children were blessed of the Master.

Jesus is coming! No greater sign will be given than that of the Prophet Jonas. For as Jonas was three days and three nights in the whale's belly, so Jesus was three days and three nights in the tomb—then was resurrected! Do we need greater signs to inspire us to be ready for the Saviour's coming? Our greatest concern should not be when He is coming, but, Are we prepared to meet Him? At midnight the cry was made, "Go ye out to meet him." Five virgins were ready, and "they that were ready went in with him to the marriage; and the door was shut" (Matt. 25:10).

COLLEGE NEWS

Maramatha editors are becoming thinner and paler each day, and rumor has it that they are even turning slightly gray. . . . Hmm, I wonder! Have you sent for your copy of this year's Maramatha yet? You had better hurry as time draws to a close, and we feel that we are going to have a good year book this year, even if the editors require the entire summer in which to recuperate from the strain of publishing a really good annual.

A Message from Otto E. Dick

Plans have been completed for the regular Summer Bible Training School to be conducted at Oregon Bible College, June 30 — July 27, 1947. Those who plan to avail themselves of this worth-while opportunity for greater preparation for Christian service should send in their enrollments as soon as possible. Courses offered, hours per day, and instructors are as follows:

"Structure of the Bible," (1), Norman J. McLeod; "History of Church Doctrine," (1), Norman J. McLeod; "Practical Side of Our Doctrine," (1), James M. Watkins; "Church School Organization and Teaching," (2), Otto E. Dick.

College credit will be granted for the successful completion of each course. By completing all four courses, a student will be able to earn five hours of credit that he may apply toward meeting the graduation requirements of the four-year College course. By attending three summers and three and one half years in the regular College, one may earn easily the 120 hours required for graduation.

Entrance requirements are: a student must be at least seventeen years of age; or he must have completed three years of high school, intending to complete his high school course the coming school year.

Cost to the student will be $40.00, which includes tuition, board, and room. The cost of textbooks should be small.

The regular Bible Training School, a summer session of the College, should not be confused with the Youth Rally, which will be conducted for a younger-age group and has been fully explained in a previous announcement. The College session has been designed to meet the demands of limited time and practical instruction for our local church leaders or a refresher course for active ministers. Your participation will add immeasurably to your ability and enthusiasm for Christian service. Send along your enrollment before it is neglected.

Isaiah's Vision of the Lamb

By Gordon Landry, Oregon Bible College

ISAIAH presented a picture of the rejected Christ that is almost unbelievable. The Son of God was "wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities: the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed" (53:5). Although He was the Saviour of mankind, He was rejected and even blasphemed. His persecutors and their followers esteemed Him "stricken, smitten of God, and afflicted." "Just punishment for one who said He was the Son of God!" they thought. The Messiah was taunted by the multitude, yet He fulfilled the prophecy: "As a sheep before her shearers is dumb, so he openeth not his mouth" (v. 7).

Isaiah's day was a time of turmoil and trouble. Israel was being oppressed and was looking for a saviour. What better opportunity could be afforded the Prophet to foretell of the Messiah who would come in power and great glory, in splendor and grandeur! Yet the prophecies of Isaiah carried comparatively little of the future glory of Christ. Instead, when the people would have accepted almost any teaching that was optimistic, Isaiah yielded not to their wishes. He foretold of darker days: when the long-sought Messiah would dwell among men—and be rejected.

Isaiah knew his prophecy would be difficult to understand—both for people of his day and those of future days. So, in an effort to show he realized these things, he wrote: "Who hath believed our report? and to whom is the arm of the Lord revealed?" (53:1.) The priests of his day had so poisoned the minds of the common people, that very few listened the second time to the Prophet. "He's a born pessimist," they told one another. Oftentimes it is good for people to become pessimistic to deflate the ego of some.

"He was taken from prison and from judgment: and who shall declare his generation?" Christ was a failure! The text, "Behold, thy King cometh unto thee" (Matt. 21:5) shows He came, in one sense, as King, but was rejected. He came forgiving and was nailed upon the tree. He had no home of His own and comparatively few followers at the time of His death. Christ was a failure? According to the worldly mind, yes! The worldly mind, however, is opposite from the mind of God. Christ was a success! No other person has so changed the destiny of the world. No other person at any time in history had so great a multitude of followers as did Jesus during the first part of His ministry and during the many centuries since His resurrection and ascension. No other individual was so perfect that death could claim him for only three days.

Jesus was despised and afflicted, yet He asked God to forgive us Christians, for in reality we have crucified

Him. It was for our sins He died. It is we who should have been placed upon the cross, for we are sinners—Jesus was not.

Man bestowed almost every conceivable punishment upon His Saviour. Christ was beaten with the cat-of-nine-tails; a platted crown of thorns pierced His forehead; He was smitten and spat upon by the common people. In bearing His cross, He bore the world upon His shoulders. "Yet it pleased the Lord to bruise him; he hath put him to grief: when thou shalt make his soul an offering for sin, he shall see his seed, he shall prolong his days, and the pleasure of the Lord shall prosper in his hand." Prophecies of the rejection are interwoven with prophecies of the acceptance. When Jesus returns in the clouds of heaven, and all His angels (Please turn to page 10)

MEDITATION

By Mary Mae Nedrow

It was at the grave of one who had fallen asleep in Jesus. The mourners did not profusely weep . . . for they knew their loved one only had fallen asleep. Their hopes were centered on another Day—when God will "wipe all tears away." . . . So these people, humble and sincere, felt God's omnipotent presence very near. "God's Tomorrow" was the thought in every heart . . . when from their loved ones they never shall have to part. This hope made manifest in every Christian face . . . is but the evidence of the Faith they all embrace.

Entered as second class matter at the Post Office at Oregon, Illinois, under act of March, 1879. Mailed weekly, except the fourth Tuesday of August and the last Tuesday of December.

Life and Message of John

Shortly before the Nativity, John was born to Zacharias and Elisabeth. Speaking to Zacharias, Gabriel had prophesied: "Elisabeth shall bear thee a son, and thou shalt call his name John. Thou shalt have joy and gladness, and many shall rejoice at his birth. For he shall be great in the sight of the Lord . . . and he shall be filled with the Holy Ghost. . . . Many of the children of Israel shall he turn to the Lord their God . . . to make ready a people prepared for the Lord" (Luke 1:13-17). When John was born, Elisabeth's "neighbours and her cousins heard how the Lord had showed great mercy upon her; and they rejoiced with her" (v. 58). Zacharias prophesied of his son in such marvelous light, that one easily might misinterpret the prophecy as applying to Jesus. Consider:

"Blessed be the Lord God of Israel; for he hath visited and redeemed his people, and hath raised up an horn of salvation for us in the house of his servant David. . . . And thou, child, shalt be called the prophet of the Highest; for thou shalt go before the face of the Lord to prepare his ways; to give knowledge of salvation unto his people by the remission of their sins, through the tender mercy of our God . . . to give light to them that sit in darkness and the shadow of death, to guide our feet into the way of peace" (Luke 1:68-79).

The foregoing prophecy shows John so much like the Saviour he came to announce, as to be called "the prophet of the Highest," and credited as giving "knowledge of salvation unto his people by the remission of their sins." Benjamin Wilson, in a note on verse 69, commented thus on John's being called "a horn of salvation": "A horn in Scripture is frequently a symbol of power or principality, and hence this expression will signify, a Mighty Saviour, or Prince of Salvation." John's preaching against sin was so emphatic and flawless and convincing, that "all men mused in their hearts of John, whether he were the Christ, or not" (Luke 3:15). John answered that question, however, saying:

"I indeed baptize you with water; but one mightier than I cometh, the latchet of whose shoes I am unworthy to unloose . . . whose fan is in his hand, and he will thoroughly purge his floor and will gather the wheat into his garner; but the chaff he will burn with fire unquenchable" (vv. 16, 17).

Outstanding in John's ministry was his baptism of the Christ. Jesus walked, likely, all the way "from Galilee to Jordan," a distance of about sixty miles, expressly to be baptized. . . . Some men make that much effort to get away from baptism! . . . John, recognizing his own unworthiness, was reluctant to baptize the Lord, but did so when Jesus was insistent. In coming to John for baptism, our Lord recognized and approved of His cousin's ministry.

Further endorsing John, Jesus asked the multitudes: "What went ye out into the wilderness to see? a reed shaken with the wind? . . . A man clothed in soft raiment? behold, they that wear soft clothing are in king's houses. But what went ye out for to see? a prophet? yea, I say unto you, And more than a prophet. . . . Among them that are born of woman there hath not risen a greater than John the Baptist" (Matt. 11:7-11).

Like the prophets before him, John preached sharply against sin, and, like the prophets before him, he soon was cast into prison because he preached the truth. Then came dark and questioning days. "Art thou he that should come, or do we look for another?" two of his disciples asked the Christ. John was doubting. Reassurance, however, came back from his Lord in these words: "The blind receive their sight, and the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, and the deaf hear, the dead are raised up, and the poor have the gospel preached to them" (Matt. 11:5). So, while still in prison, John knew his mission of proclaiming Christ had not been amiss. "He that should come" had come, and John was convinced that he should not look for another!

Then came the tragedy of Herodias' charm, Herod's hasty promise, and the demand, "Give me here John Baptist's head in a charger." He who first proclaimed the Christ was first martyr for His cause, even preceding Stephen in martyrdom for the Lord. Jesus had said, "If ye will receive it, this is Elias." If! Does not John's rejection renew expectation that Elias must first come?

Isaiah and Zionism

By Timothy Pearson, Oregon Bible College

TWENTY-SIX hundred years ago, Isaiah prophesied the destruction of his native government and the ultimate return of his descendants from exile. One hundred years later, in 606 B.C., Jerusalem fell. Many of the Jews were captured and removed to Babylon, not being privileged again to see their homeland. Since the fall of the Holy City, the Jews have been without a home. They have been tortured and despised until one would expect them to settle in a new home and be content. The undying words of Isaiah, however, are still stirring his people. They read such statements as the following quotation, and their desire for Palestine burns anew:

"On that day the remnant of Israel and the survivors of the house of Jacob, will no more lean for support on the enemy that smote, but will lean in loyal trust on the Lord, the Holy One of Israel. A remnant will return—the remnant of Jacob—to the Mighty God" (Isa. 10:20, 21, Goodspeed).

The Zionist movement in full sway today is a source of controversy: some favor it; others do not. The nations are sparring, not sure which side they should favor. It was no question before Isaiah. He knew whom he would support if he were living today. As recorded in Isaiah 14:32, the Prophet expected the Jews to return to claim Palestine as their home. "The Lord hath founded Zion, and the poor of his people shall trust in it." Another translation of the last phrase is, "Shall betake themselves unto it."

Little wonder that the Jews want Palestine! Besides being potentially the richest little country in the world, it has been promised that Israel's salvation will come at Zion. "I will place salvation in Zion for Israel my glory," promised the Lord. (Isa. 46:13.)

It is difficult for us who are not Israelites to understand why the Jews insist on fighting for their land. Desire for the Holy Land is implanted in them from birth, and it is part of their religion. They would do well to trust the Lord more and to rely less on their own prowess. Isaiah said, "Like as the lion and the young lion roaring on his prey, so shall the Lord of hosts come down to fight for mount Zion, and for the hill thereof. As birds flying, so will the Lord of hosts defend Jerusalem; defending also he will deliver it; and passing over he will preserve it" (Isa. 31:4, 5).

Having conquered Zion's enemies, the Lord will begin to restore the land. "The Lord shall comfort Zion: he will comfort all her waste places; and he will make her wilderness like Eden, and her desert like the garden of the Lord; joy and gladness shall be found therein, thanksgiving, and the voice of melody" (Isa. 51:3). God will be close to Israel in that day. He will rejoice in Jerusalem and joy in His people. He will remove their weeping and no crying will be heard among the Israelites. The Lord will know their very thoughts and, as He said, "Before they call, I will answer, and while they are yet speaking, I will hear" (Isa. 65:24.)

When the restoration is complete, it will be time for the Lord to take His throne. "Then the moon shall be confounded and the sun ashamed, when the Lord of hosts shall reign in mount Zion, and in Jerusalem, and before his ancients gloriously" (Isa. 24:23). In that day, Israel will bring presents to the Lord at Mount Zion. Isaiah described Israel as "a people scattered and peeled, a people terrible from their beginning hitherto; a nation meted out and trodden under foot" (Isa. 18:7).

These are only samples of the future events Isaiah was privileged to foresee. He wrote in many places that Israel would return to God and to Palestine, and he left us the Book of Isaiah from which to teach others of the return of the Jews. He mourned for his people and died hoping someone would show them the way to return to the Lord. The words recorded in Isaiah 52:7 could well have been the Prophet's dying words as he dreamed of the evangelization of Israel:

"How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, that publisheth peace; that bringeth good tidings of good, that publisheth salvation; that saith unto Zion, Thy God reigneth! Thy watchmen shall lift up the voice; with the voice together shall they sing: for they shall see eye to eye, when the Lord shall bring again Zion. Break forth into joy, sing together, ye waste places of Jerusalem: for the Lord hath comforted his people, he hath redeemed Jerusalem." . . . Consider, also, this quotation: "They shall build the old wastes, they shall raise up the former desolations, and they shall repair the waste cities, the desolations of many generations" (61:4). They "shall be named the Priests of the Lord: men shall call you the Ministers of our God: ye shall eat the riches of the Gentiles, and in their glory shall ye boast yourselves" (v. 6).

Isaiah always had the interests of his people at heart. He endeavored to keep the Israelites in the good graces of God. According to the teachings of Isaiah, Zionism was equally as much a part of the good news as the literal Kingdom on earth or the second coming of the Lord.

Are These the Days?

By G. J. Gordon, Cleveland, Ohio

ARE WE Christians witnessing the days Jesus and His apostles called "the last days" and "the day when the Son of man is revealed"? How are we to know? These questions are being asked by true Christians everywhere. Jesus said, "When these things begin to come to pass, then look up, and lift up your heads; for your redemption draweth nigh" (Luke 21:28). In other words, "Be on the alert" and "take heed to yourselves." (Read v. 34.) Do not "fall away" (2 Thess. 2:1-5), nor become "lukewarm" (Rev. 3:15, 16), nor let your love "wax cold" (Matt. 24:12). Jesus said, "Because iniquity shall abound, the love of many shall wax cold." Other translations say, "Because vice will abound, the love of the many will cool" (Emph. Diag.); and, "Because wickedness is multiplied, most men's love will grow cold" (R.S.V.). So, it seems Jesus was warning of a time to come that would test the "love" He came to proclaim, i.e., "of God" and "thy neighbour" or, "one another," which love would cool because of iniquity.

Jesus also said, "As the days of Noe were, so shall also the coming of the Son of man be" (Matt. 24:37). What is said of those days? "God saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually" (Gen. 6:5). (The marginal note reads: "The whole imagination: The Hebrew word signifieth not only the imagination, but also the purposes and desires.") Thus, man's purposes and desires were only evil "every day"—not even one day for the Lord, but "every day" for selfish desires.

The foregoing agrees with what Paul said concerning the "last days." He described them as "perilous times," for, "MEN SHALL BE LOVERS OF THEIR OWN SELVES, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy, without natural affection, truce breakers, false accusers, incontinent, fierce, despisers of those that are good, traitors, heady, highminded, lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God" (2 Tim. 3:1-4). We have capitalized the REAL root of the matter and italicized those things which show a disregard for God. The others apply to the disregard for neighbors or one another. Paul continued, "Having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof: from such turn away" (v. 5). The word "form" is from the Greek morphosis, meaning "appearance" which is perhaps external or outward. "Power" is from the Greek dunamis, defined by Young as ability or power, and being the same word from which derives the word "dynamo." So, it seems the Apostle was describing a condition, or a time, when men's religion would be only for a cloak or for outward appearance, but was in fact what he had termed "for an occasion to the flesh," and not producing "the fruit of the Spirit." (Gal. 5:13, 26.) Thereby men deny the power of transforming, and not conforming, which he mentioned in Romans 12:1, 2. They reject the "newness of life" (Rom. 6:4-13), "having a form of piety, but having denied its power" (Emph. Diag.); "holding the form of religion, but denying the power of it" (R.S.V.).

"Know ye not, that to whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey, his servants ye are to whom ye obey; whether of sin unto death, or of obedience unto righteousness? But God be thanked that ye were the servants of sin, but ye have obeyed from the heart that form of doctrine which was delivered you. Being then made free from sin, ye became servants of righteousness." What form of doctrine? Just verses 3, 4, 5, and 8, and not verses 2, 6, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14? The doctrine of truth (2 Tim. 4:2-5) and the "doctrine which is according to godliness" (1 Tim. 6:3) go hand in hand, that the Name of God and His doctrine be not blasphemed. "If we live in the Spirit, let us also walk in the Spirit."

The statement by the Apostle Paul, "Unto the pure all things are pure" (Titus 1:15) has been used to justify all sorts of indulgence—"just so you are sound in doctrine and able to convince the gainsayers." There is a possibility of holding the truth in unrighteousness. The rest of the statement in Titus 1:15, 16 will not admit any such justification. It reads: "But unto them that are defiled and unbelieving ["unfaithful," Diag.] is nothing pure; but even their mind and conscience is defiled. They profess that they know God; but in works they deny him, being abominable, and disobedient, and unto every good work reprobate."

We would not indicate that "sound doctrine" is not necessary, for it certainly is required. (2 Tim. 4:1-5; 1 Tim. 4:16; Titus 2:1.) Other requirements are necessary, however, "to adorn" the doctrine of God our Saviour. (Titus 2:2-10.) The formula is given in this quotation: "The grace of God that bringeth salvation [that is the kind we want] hath appeared to all men, teaching us that, denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously, and godly, in this present world [aion, or age]; looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ: who gave himself for us, that he might redeem us from all iniquity, and purify unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works. These things speake, and exhort, and rebuke with all authority. Let no man despise thee" (Titus 2:11-15). The word "peculiar" here is from the Greek periousios, which Young defines as "beyond the ordinary" people, "zealous of good works." Peter said: "Ye are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, an holy nation, a peculiar people [here, 'peculiar' is from peripoiēsis: 'purchased' in the margin; 'purchased possession' in Eph. 1:14]; that ye should shew forth the praises ['virtues,' marg.] of him who hath called you out of darkness into his marvellous light" (1 Peter 2:9).

What has all this to do with the subject? Simply this: there is a definite standard of conduct in the Scripture for the people of God, which should be discernible, and by which they might be identified from the world. "Whatsoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God and the Father by him" (Col. 3:17); and, "Whether therefore ye eat, or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God" (1 Cor. 10:31). When, therefore, the time comes that professing Christians cannot be discerned by their works ("By their fruits ye shall know them"; "Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in heaven") from the "ordinary" people of the world, but are doing the same things and having pleasure in them that do them (Rom. 1:28-32), we must have reached the time Jesus and the apostles described as "the last days." There seems to be a philosophy prevailing in the world today that justifies doing anything a person wants to do, because "everyone else is doing it," and it's right because he can see no harm in it. Solomon said: "Every way of man is right in his own eyes: but the Lord pondereth the hearts" (Prov. 21:2), and, "There is a way that seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death" (Prov. 16:25).

Prophecy and Current Happenings

By Lyle Rankin, Cashmere, Washington

---

AN ARTICLE in World, an international newspaper, presents this heading: "1947 Will Be the Year of the Big Move." Reasons listed were: Java has a population of eight hundred twenty people per square mile; Puerto Rico, five hundred forty-six; and, though with lesser amounts, many other places are too crowded. Germany, Japan, Poland, Italy, Russia, and other nations have people migrating from them or wishing they could. Neither are they all Jews that migrate. It is stated that forty million people are "on the move" over the earth, and another thirty million soon will be moving either because they want to move or are forced to move. Six thousand a month come from Puerto Rico to the United States. An effort is being made to move five thousand Italians, each month, to Argentina. Reportedly, forty thousand are on the waiting list. With the running "to and fro" of people in business and pleasure in vehicles developed during the increase of knowledge these last few decades, this migrating of people certainly should help one to realize fulfillment of the prophecy of God by Daniel concerning the time immediately prior to the coming of Christ. "Many shall run to and fro, and knowledge shall be increased" (Dan. 12:4).

Under the picture of a train wreck, the following comment was written: "This picture shows an oil train in Palestine wrecked by the underground, but it could have been duplicated last month in any one of a dozen world areas where violence is still the rule." The word "violence" drew my attention, as it brought to mind the words of Jesus and the historical record of Noah's time. Said Jesus, "As the days of Noe were, so shall also the coming of the Son of man be. For as in the days that were before the flood they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, until the day that Noe entered into the ark, and knew not until the flood came, and took them all away; so shall also the coming of the Son of man be."

Violence! Sin! Compare Isaiah 53:9 with 1 Peter 2:22.

Catholic Bishop John F. Noll said social evils are most prevalent where Catholics, not Protestants, live. "There are only seven million Protestants in the fifty largest cities in the United States where there are twenty million of us," he pointed out. "Eighty per cent of the Protestants' affiliation is rural, and it is in rural America where family life is most wholesome and where the divorce rate is low. In the cities, where the bulk of Catholics live, half the marriages end in divorce. It is in the cities that the big picture houses are located, filthy magazine racks, taverns, and gambling halls."

Here again the picture reminds us that "iniquity abounds" (Matt. 24:12); that people are "lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God" (2 Tim. 3:4).

Surely the coming of Jesus is very near!

"In God We Trust"

By Dean Moore, Oregon Bible College

ON EVERY coin of the United States of America is the inscription, "In God We Trust." The government of this country placed these words upon coins because the majority of the American people believed in God, and in this way they are encouraged to trust Him. In the nation's early history, many people had confidence in God. Many of the Pilgrims, pioneers, and farmers realized their dependency upon Him, and they placed their confidence in Him. Since then, people have drawn away from God; and, instead of trusting Him, their confidence is in their own strength. Today, powerful tanks, battleships, and airplanes are used for protection, and people no longer depend upon the Lord. The inscription on United States coins pertaining to God is a false declaration.

A true Christian, in contrast to the man of the world, has "God confidence" instead of "self-confidence." Humbly and penitently, he has come to God and accepted His Son as a personal Saviour. He constantly yields himself to the Great Potter's hand to be molded into a new man like unto the Potter's own Son, who is the beginning of God's highest form of life. (Rev. 3:14b.) A Christian has a refuge like a mighty fortress where there is no fear, but assurance, peace, and satisfaction. A man who thought he did not need God once said, "I'm not afraid; I get along all right." He may be confident now, but the time soon will come that he will realize he built his house on sand. Because of its foundation, principles of selfishness, force, greed, pleasure, etc., the world that man made will fall with a mighty crash. What man does will fail, but nothing can hinder the work of God. (Acts 5:38, 39.)

The Prophet Isaiah was told to tell the people that all flesh was like grass that withers when the sun beats down upon it. Men, however, do not realize their frailty or the helpless condition in which they are living. They have much confidence in themselves and believe they have things well in hand. In James 4:13-15, we read: "Go to now, ye that say, To day or to morrow we will go into such a city, and continue there a year, and buy and sell, and get gain: whereas ye know not what shall be on the morrow. For what is your life? It is even a vapour, that appeareth for a little time, and then vanisheth away. For that ye ought to say, If the Lord will, we shall live, and do this, or that." Man's very life is dependent upon God. No man knows what will happen tomorrow. How helpless he is! Without God what could man do, or what would he be? The average length of a man's life is about seventy years. What is seventy years in the expanse of time? Even trees that are unable to think, and to better their lives, live to be hundreds of years old. In California, there are giant redwood trees that have been living more than four thousand years. Evidently, they were living during the time of Abraham. Think of how many generations have come and gone since then! Truly, man is like "a vapour that appeareth for a little time, and then vanisheth away." Even in childhood, one's body is in the process of dying. The physical body is deteriorating so fast that it would die very soon, if new cells of the body were not constantly being created.

Who takes the minerals from the food we eat and fashions them into a living body? Man tries to take the credit for himself, because by his ingenuity he plowed the ground, sowed the seed, harvested the crop, and put the food into his mouth. Someday, men will give the honor and glory to God.

In proclaiming the greatness of God, Isaiah used beautiful language proving that God is omnipotent. He said, "Who hath measured the waters in the hollow of his hand, and meted out heaven with the span, and comprehended the dust of the earth in a measure, and weighed the mountains in scales, and the hills in a balance? It is he that sitteth upon the circle of the earth" (Isa. 40:12, 22a).

God is the Maker and Caretaker of this huge revolving garden that we live upon. He is the One "that stretcheth out the heavens like a curtain, and spreadeth them out as a tent to dwell in" (Isa. 40:22b). Before Him, the inhabitants are as "grasshoppers." The nations are as a "drop of a bucket, and are counted as the small dust of the balance" (v. 15a). If all the nations (comprising a little less than two billion people) are as the dust on scales that cannot be weighed, how much is one person? Surely man is nothing and God deserves all glory and honor. Statements of Paul are: "Therefore let no man glory in men"; "No flesh should glory in his presence"; and "He that glorieth, let him glory in the Lord" (1 Cor. 3:21; 1:29, 31). Jeremiah said, "Let him that glorieth glory in this, that he understandeth and knoweth me, that I am the Lord which exercise lovingkindness, judgment, and righteousness, in the earth: for in these things I delight, saith the Lord" (Jer. 9:24).

Have we really come to know the Lord? Perhaps this is the reason that we have so little faith. We hesitate to trust Him because we are not near enough to feel His Presence.

If we meditate upon the work of God's hand, we can begin to realize His strength. If we seek to feel His presence, then He no longer will seem abstract and distant to us, and we will not hesitate to trust Him. Sometime, while watching a sunset, remember that the sun is stationary and it is the earth that is moving; and, as you see the horizon slowly covering the sun, think about the force that is turning this vast earth. Have you ever meditated about the wind? Wind is air in motion, but what is it that pushes the air? Airplane pilots, sailors, and those who have experienced tornadoes, hurricanes, etc., know of the overwhelming power in the wind. What is the source of this power? Science tells us that the tides are due to the attraction of the sun and moon and that the entire body of water actually is swaying back and forth as it rises and lowers along the shore. We could go on and on thinking about the innumerable miracles about us and eventually come to the conclusion that God's insight, His power, and His love are unfathomable. God is very near to every one of us and will give strength to those who realize their weakness and earnestly desire to do His will.

Do we realize our frailty and unrighteousness? Isaiah said, "We are all as an unclean thing, and all our righteousnesses are as filthy rags; and we all do fade as a leaf; (Please turn to page 11)

Christian Journey of Life

By Lily Lobell Stoddard, Hammond, Louisiana

"Be still, and know that I am God" (Psalm 46:10).

IN TODAY'S chaotic world, God's supremacy should be constantly acknowledged. Only through Christ, our Saviour, may we reach God and obtain His blessings. "Whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, that will I do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son" (John 14:13). There must be love for Christ. "If a man love me, he will keep my words: and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him" (v. 23). Faith in God and love for Christ are proved by one's daily life. "He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me" (v. 21).

The commandment Christ gave His followers is love. "This is my commandment, That ye love one another, as I have loved you" (John 15:12). Christ's love was boundless. "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends" (v. 13). How much greater the sacrifice our Saviour made than those sacrifices we are asked to make in being tolerant of the mistakes and weaknesses of our fellow man! "Let all bitterness, and wrath, and anger, and clamour, and evil speaking, be put away from you, with all malice: and be ye kind one to another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you" (Eph. 4:31, 32). How trivial are today's conflicts when life's aim is to serve God, if each day is spent in earnest endeavor to do all to His glory!

"Whatsoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God and the Father by him" (Col. 3:17). Only upright, honorable achievements can be accomplished to God's glory. If this is a constant aim, selfishness, deceit, covetousness; and all things ugly are eliminated; these have no place in a life dedicated to Christ. To live this life, Ephesians 6:11, 12 says: "Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil. For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places." In this, the shield of faith is a weapon no evil can penetrate. Said Paul: "Above all, taking the shield of faith, wherewith ye shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked" (v. 16). Faith is essential. "Without faith it is impossible to please him: for he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him" (Heb. 11:6). Only a Christian protected by the armor of God, clasping tightly always the shield of faith, constantly endeavoring to keep the commandments of Christ, and living each day to God's glory, may walk unaffected by evil along the highway of life, happy in God's service, serene in the knowledge that God's will governs all.

The Christian journey of life becomes fearless. "There is no fear in love, but perfect love casteth out fear, because fear hath torment. He that feareth is not made perfect in love" (1 John 5:18). This journey leads eventually to life everlasting. "Keep yourselves in the love of God, looking for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ unto eternal life" (Jude 21). Far above the crash of falling governments and disintegrating civilization, there is One unchangeable. "In him we live, and move, and have our being."

CANON LAW. Recommendation for changes in the canon law of the Church of England by the Archbishop's Commission was recently made. This is the first time that changes have been made in the canon law since 1603. The Commission, in its revision of the canon law on divorce, proposes that the "diocesan bishop and his chancellor may decide to allow a second marriage after civil divorce," if "there were good grounds upon which such marriage could, instead of being dissolved, have been declared null and void."

This action has more or less been forced on the church through the "hardness of people's hearts." Jesus stated that God had allowed the severing of the marriage bond in the days of Moses because of the hardness of the people's hearts. Allowing of an act does not justify it. God allows sin of many kinds, but never does He justify doing wrong.

The Commission's report was presented to both houses of Convocation of the Province of Canterbury on May 20, and to the Province of York on May 22. What action was taken on the revision has not been reported as yet.

TOURIST CAMPS. It seems that man uses every good thing for a bad purpose. Nothing has served the comforts of the traveling public like the tourist camps. Yet, writing about the evils of the tourist camps, J. Edgar Hoover, head of the FBI, sees in them a great danger to the nation. He says: "There is today a new home of disease, bribery, corruption, crookedness, rape, white slavery, thievery, and murder. Hence the terse order which goes out daily to law enforcement agencies when criminals are on the loose: 'Keep close watch on tourist camps!'"

"The facts are simple. A majority of the 35,000 tourist camps throughout the United States threaten the peace and welfare of the communities upon which these camps have fastened themselves, and of all the motoring public. Many are not only hideouts and meeting places but actual bases of operations from which gangs prey upon surrounding territory."

This does not mean that all tourist camps are of this character, but one who has traveled a great deal and has stopped off at tourist camps will realize that they can be readily used by the underworld for purposes unintended by the owners.

Good is always convertible into evil, and the culprits of unrighteousness are always alert to such opportunities. The world is getting into a terrible state of evil, with "evil men and seducers waxing worse and worse."

STRIKING YOUTH. The tomorrow, if there is a tomorrow under man's rule, will be made up of a discontented and rebellious people. Taking their cue from their elders, the youngsters of today, who will make the men and women of tomorrow, are being drilled in the tactics of discontent by the revolutionary minded. Some weeks ago, the price of candy bars went up to eight cents here in Canada. People who delight in creating friction saw an opportunity, and organized unsuspecting children into gangs to picket stores against the increase in prices. In Hawley, Minnesota, teenagers began picketing the theaters because of the increase in admission prices. Mayor E. P. Johnson told the children it was an "un-American" thing to do. The county attorney, G. L. Dosland, said: "It amounts to illegal boycott and tends to incite to riot and disturb the peace."

These are only a few instances of youth rising up in gang-like fashion and attempting to tell others what they can and cannot do. It is the spirit of such methods that causes one to see the trend of the masses. What kind of citizens will these untrained and unrestrained children make when they grow up to manhood and womanhood? One thing is certain; it is the opposite of the Christian spirit which suffers wrong, and that patiently, rather than to inflict injury to others.

GOODWILL TOUR. The Palestine Hapoel All-Star Soccer Team is making a goodwill tour of the United States and will play with all-star American soccer teams. The first game was played in Yankee Stadium in May. This goodwill tour is being sponsored by the Jewish National Workers' Alliance and Labor Zionists' groups in co-operation with AFL and CIO unions.

A score or more of governors and mayors are on a committee, with Judge Samuel Leibowitz, Brooklyn, as chairman, to help make this tour a success in goodwill. There are eighteen players on the team, with an average age of twenty-five. All are Palestine born, or brought there when they were infants.

COUNCIL OF BISHOPS. Meeting at Riverside, California, the Council of Bishops of the Methodist Church, took recognition of the importance of religious freedom and issued a challenge to those who would abridge this right. They issued the following statement: "We are aware of the denial of religious liberty in many countries where government, at the insistence of the Roman Catholic hierarchy, has passed legislation seriously limiting the freedom of other religious bodies. We refer particularly to the Argentine, where law now requires the teaching of the Roman Catholic religion even in the schools of Protestant churches. The situation in Italy and in Spain denies to Protestants the religious freedom which Protestants in the United States desire the Roman Catholics to enjoy. These denials of religious liberty are made at a moment that protestations of belief in democracy are made by the Roman Catholic hierarchy in the United States and demands for the public support of parochial education are advocated as a contribution to the morality essential to freedom.

"We stand for religious freedom everywhere, and believe the Roman Catholic Church should cease to misinform the American people by affirmations of loyalty to democratic ideals when deliberately denying democratic religious freedom wherever it has power to do so."

INDICTS SATELLITES. The United Nations Committee which has been investigating border troubles between Greece and some of her northern neighbors has reported that Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, and Albania have been fomenting these disorders and giving military support to the trouble makers. Russia and Poland endeavored to prevent the report from being made to the Assembly but were overruled in the attempt. It is one more indication of the desire of the Communists to enlarge their rule. In every section of the world, the Communists, who are antichristian and partakers of the spirit of Antichrist, are seeking to force upon mankind the totalitarian rule of regimentation. Communism and Roman Catholicism are brutal in oppressive measures where they have the power. Whether these two systems will constitute the rule of the Antichrist and the false prophet remain to be seen. They at least are preparing the groundwork for the coming of these sin-controlled characters.

ARMY TRAINING. During the hearings on the conscription bill before Congress, a veterans' paper carried an editorial in which the following statements were made:

"As expert witnesses we can tell the President's Advisory Commission on Universal Training this: Whatever such training is called, if the Army runs the program it will:

—prepare men for war but not for citizenship;

—teach men to dissemble machine guns but not to earn a living;

—increase their opportunity to get syphilis, but not improve their health or morals;

—give them dentists to extract decayed teeth, but none to make up for eighteen years of inadequate dental care;

—teach them to get along with officers by saying 'Yes sir!' but teach them nothing about getting along with Negroes in segregated units."

This is suave propaganda! There is much truth about the inadequacy of moral training in the Army. The moral standards in army camps, if reports are correct, require stern condemnation and should be cleaned up. On the other hand, close analysis of the arguments reveal the subtle propaganda abroad in the land undermining faith in the American way of life. If such were for the purpose of introducing Christian principles, well and good; if to create internal dissension for the advantage of a foreign power—be cautious. As Brother Lyle Rankin, who sent the clipping to me, commented: "It shows how some of the world is thinking."

Destruction of the Ungodly

Dear Friend:

Continuing our study, we next consider Revelation 14:9; and 20:10. "Forever" or "forever and ever," Friend, both mean the same, except the latter, Rotherham, a translator, says is "more vivid in expression." Here are examples: "Length of days forever and ever." "Eateth bread shall live forever," etc., etc. These expressions, "forever" or "forever and ever" have various meanings; lifetime (Deut. 15:17; Neh. 9:5; age (Ex. 12:14); indefinite duration (Isa. 34:10); eternity (John 6:51; Psalm 21:41). A writer's use of an expression determines its meaning as to him. The Apostle John in Revelation in three places (Rev. 11:15; 21:5; 19:3) used "forever and ever" in a limited sense. Jesus is to "reign forever and ever," yet 1 Corinthians 15:24-26 shows there is an "end" to His reign "when he shall have delivered up the kingdom to God." The saints will "reign forever and ever," yet their reign is limited to a thousand years. (Rev. 20:6.) The "smoke goeth up forever and ever," yet as in Isaiah 34:5-10, it was started by mortal men—"ten kings" (Rev. 17:12, 16). Hence, as was "the smoke" of Idumea (Isa. 34:5-10)—it must finally cease. Now aión, the Greek word here, has the same definitions as we have shown for "forever" and "forever and ever." We here quote from two Greek dictionaries: Schrevelius: "An age; long period of time; indefinite duration; time whether longer or shorter." Liddell & Scott: "A space or period of time, especially a lifetime; also one's time of life; age; generation; definite period; a long space of time; eternity."

In view of these reasons and definitions, what right have we to single out one definition, "eternity," and insist that Revelation 14:9 and 20:10 must have that particular definition? Note carefully and prayerfully these reasons why "forever and ever" in Revelation 14:9 and 20:10 means a "lifetime" or "indefinite duration":

(1) "Tormented" in the presence." Their "end" or finality "from the presence" (2 Thess. 1:6-9).

(2) Tormented eternally would require one to live eternally, but "eternal life" nowhere is promised the wicked. (John 3:36; 1 John 5:12.)

(3) "Day and night" period. This is to end in eternal day. (Isa. 30:26; Rev. 21:5.) "Night and day" punishment is to be succeeded by "blackness or darkness forever" (Jude 13).

(4) "Cast into the lake of fire"—a symbol of the physical death repeated or a "second" death. The first interprets and explains the "second." (Rev. 20:12, 13; 21:8.) Being a symbol of "death," the "second," it is therefore a symbol of elimination or destruction to anything "cast into" it, whether risen wicked, "death,"

"hell," or "devil." Does it torture these eternally or eliminate them? Since we are told "death" is to be "abolished" (2 Tim. 1:10), it therefore means abolishment for all.

(5) Consider Matthew 25:41; Hebrews 2:14; 1 Corinthians 15:22-24; Daniel 7:11, 12 as to "the beast," "body burned," "slain," "life not prolonged." Can one conceive of a beast, or animal, as some versions have it, being immortal?

(6) "Smoke" is a symbol of combustion and means eventual consumption of its prey. As the "smoke" of "Babylon" and "Idumea" indicated their eventual literal destruction, so the "smoke" of these indicates their eventual and literal destruction.

(7) The universe finally is to be cleaned (absolutely). (Matt. 3:12; 1 Cor. 15:24-26; Isa. 66:23, 24; Rev. 5:13.) "Every creature" then in the universe will shout praises to the Eternal!

(8) The Scriptures in 230 places teach literal, eternal destruction of the ungodly.

Acts 17:29. We are "his offspring," God's sons, through creation and not by begetting, for these reasons: 1) Malachi 2:10: "Have we not all one father? hath not one God created us?" "Did not he that made me in the womb make him? and did not one fashion us in the womb?" (Job 31:15.) Here we are told, my friend, we are His children because He "made," "fashioned," or "created us." (Where? "In the womb.") Since He thus creates and "gives life and breath to all" (Acts 17:25), He is, therefore, thus in creation the universal Father. If He wishes, those He thus "creates," "makes," or "fashions," can be of one nature and He of another. This He has done. So we read of "corruptible" man, but of an "incorruptible God" (Rom. 1:23); of "mortal man" (Job 4:17), but of a God "who only hath immortality" (1 Tim. 6:16)—thus barring the soul from "immortality"; so the soul is urged to "seek for . . . immortality" (Rom. 2:5-10) to be "rendered" it "at the last trump" when "the dead shall be raised" (1 Cor. 15:52-54). 2) Since Christ is "the only begotten Son" (John 3:16; Matt. 1:18-25; Luke 1:35), it follows we are not now His natural sons through begetting, but through creation, as Malachi 2:10; Job 31:15 show.

It is an axiom: "That which proves too much proves nothing." Consider these propositions:

Major premise: God is immortal.

Minor premise: Man is "his offspring."

Conclusion: Therefore man is immortal.

Major premise: God is immortal, sinless, painless, omniscient, and omnipotent.

Minor premise: Man is "his offspring."

Conclusion: Therefore man is immortal, sinless, painless, omniscient, and omnipotent!

Concerning the thought that none can annihilate (destroy) the soul of man, please consider that since the "soul" (psuche) can be "killed," "slain," "destroyed," caused to "die," "choose death," and "none can keep his soul alive" (Leviticus 24:17, 18, Septuagint; Rev. 6:9, 10; Matt. 2:20, 13; Judg. 16:30, marg.; Job 7:5; Psalm 22:29), is it therefore as indestructible as God?

ISAIAH'S VISION OF THE LAMB

with Him, mankind will realize that the Saviour is the One who was placed upon the tree at Golgotha. Because Jesus has borne our sins on the cross, God will divide Him "a portion with the great." A larger portion will be His than any other's, however. He will rule and reign until He has conquered all opposers; then He shall be lowered to second in command, that "God may be all in all."

Jesus is coming to earth again, not to be rejected, but to convince the world of righteousness and to convict the world of wickedness. When He descends from heaven, many will not have accepted Him, and will be cast into outer darkness—the second death. Accept Him now. Be among those whom the Lord will find watching when He returns. "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord"!

ARE THESE THE DAYS?

attendance at religious gatherings to note the trend of the times—"Lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God." Also, one sees the "falling away first," i.e., before the coming of our Lord and our "gathering together unto him" (2 Thess. 2:1-5). Take note, also, of the money being spent each year to combat crime, and for "that which is not bread." It is said that the American people spend seven billion dollars a year for alcoholic drink, another seven billion for tobacco, and sixteen billion to combat crime.

According to a report for 1947, the cost of these three items alone, that is, alcoholic drink, tobacco, and crime, will be three billion dollars a month. Alcoholic drink is charged with being the cause of the greatest percentage of Crime. A quotation from Temperance News says, "The grain used to make alcoholic beverages during the fiscal year, 1946, would have fed more than thirty-three million people for a year." "Beverage alcohol deprived nearly every car on the road, during the War, of an average of two new tires. Between 1941 and 1945, by actual appraisal of the records, we drank as beverage alcohol the essential ingredients of more than fifty million tires."—Bible Advocate. The Scripture says, "Wherefore do ye spend money for that which is not bread? and your labour for that which satisfieth not? Harken diligently unto me, and eat ye that which is good, and let your soul delight itself in fatness." (Read Isa. 55:2-7.)

Men, and women too (I am sorry to say), are defiling their bodies, which are the Lord's (if they are Christian), and which are "bought with a price" (1 Cor. 6:19, 20)—the "precious blood of Christ" (1 Peter 1:18, 19). "Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you? If any man defile [destroy, marg.; same as 'corrupt,' Jude 10] the temple of God, him shall God destroy [same word phtheiro as 'defile,' above]; for the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are" (1 Cor. 3:16, 17). A poison will destroy the body: if not instantly, then gradually. According to Webster's Dictionary, "poison" is 1) "Any agent capable of producing a morbid, noxious, or dangerous effect upon anything endowed with life." 2) "That which taints or destroys moral purity or health."

Tobacco is said to contain nineteen different poisons. The principal one is nicotine, one of the most deadly poisons known to medical science, yet people, yes, even professing Christians and some ministers (?) persist in using it, because they "cannot see any harm in it." Please tell me how this shows forth the virtues of Jesus, or in any way glorifies God. Or, is not that included in "whatsoever ye do"? I have heard people excuse themselves by saying, "Show me any place in the Bible saying anything about the use of tobacco, and, if it is forbidden, I will quit." The word itself does not appear in the Bible, but it most surely is covered by "Whatsoever ye do, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus," and "to the glory of God."

Two sons of Aaron were destroyed by fire for offering "strange fire" before the Lord, which "he commanded them not" (Lev. 10:1). The sentence was executed speedily, according to the next verse. Solomon said, "Because sentence against an evil work is not executed speedily, therefore the heart of the sons of men is fully set in them to do evil" (Eccl. 8:11). If one "gets by," it must be "O.K." Can anyone show by Scripture where a Christian is commanded to offer any kind of "fire" or "smoke" before the Lord? There are other vices as bad, or even worse, but we have used these as examples, being perhaps the most common. The Scripture does require "that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy [hagios, separate, set apart]; acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service. And be not conformed to this world [conformed—Gr. suschematizo used in 1 Peter 1:14 as 'not fashioning yourselves according to the former lusts in your ignorance'], but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect, will of God" (Rom. 12:1, 2). "Watch ye therefore, and pray always, that ye may be accounted worthy to escape all these things that shall come to pass, and to stand before the Son of man" (Luke 21:36). "Wherefore take unto you the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand" (Eph. 6:13).

"IN GOD WE TRUST"

and our iniquities, like the wind, have taken us away. And there is none that calleth upon thy name, that stirreth up himself to take hold of thee" (Isa. 64:6, 7). The reason we have failures is that we do things "on our own." In Acts 5:34-39, we read Gamaliel's warning to the Israelites. Concerning the work of the apostles, he said that if what they were doing was their own works, it would fail. Are we better than they were? If not, then how can we expect our work to stand? Proverbs 3:5 says, "Lean not unto thine own understanding." This is the reason for failure—leaning upon the wrong thing. The verse says, "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart." When we submit ourselves to Him, He can work through us. When self no longer is the master and we become servants of God, then He works through us and all credit is His. Then what is done will "be of God"; and, as Gamaliel said to the council, "Ye cannot overthrow it." The world's philosophy of success is, "Go right on working." This seems right, but there is one thing wrong—self is doing the work. The way to succeed in the Christian life is to be eager to do the Lord's will, no matter what it may be. "Yield yourselves unto God . . . and your members as instruments" (Rom. 6:13). Let us say with Isaiah, "Now, O Lord, thou art our father; we are the clay, and thou art the potter" (64:8). We, then, can be among those of whom Isaiah spoke when he said: "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; and they shall walk, and not faint" (40:31).

TEMPE, ARIZONA

Baccalaureate services and commencement addresses are occupying much of the time at present. Attendants at our Sunday school and church services, receiving diplomas this year, are: Paul McPherson from Arizona State College at Tempe, Mary Ann Corbell from Tempe High School, Marilyn Miller, and Thelma Kitts from Tempe Grammar School. We congratulate each one of these and pray God's blessing upon them in their future lives.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Bunch are the parents of a son, born May 25. The mother is the former Miss Cecile Mattison of Oregon, Ill.

Some of our number have been sick since last we reported. Mrs. Bert Kitts spent some time in a hospital but is now at home, for which all are thankful. Bro. C. E. Lapp spent two weeks in a local hospital as a result of minor surgery. The writer assumed pastoral duties during his absence. Mrs. Larry Miller fell in her home and suffered a painful ankle injury on May 18. She is convalescing nicely.

The Larry Miller family are leaving, June 5, for Yellowstone Park, where they will open a branch of Miller's Indian Store for the summer. If any of our members will be vacationing at Yellowstone this summer, there will be mutual gladness if they will contact the Millers and introduce themselves. The address will be: Miller's Indian Den, Three Bear Lodge, West Yellowstone, Mont.

Bro. and Sr. C. E. Lapp have resigned their pastorate here after five years of loyal service. The resignation is effective at the end of the pastoral year, September 1, 1947.

As these words are written, we eagerly are awaiting the arrival of Mrs. Verna Thayer and Mabel Barnum who are to conduct our Bible school, June 1-13.

Some of our members are planning to attend General Conference at Oregon, Ill., among them being the writer of this report.

Gerald L. Cooper, Secy.

HAMMOND, LOUISIANA

The Happy Woods and Blood River brethren were pleased recently to be visited by Bro. and Sr. Harry Guekler and Sr. Clarence Bunch, the former Mary Richardson. Bro. Guekler spoke to a full house at Happy Woods, April 20. His text was, "Here am I; send me." All were pleased to hear Harry again.

A good time was enjoyed by all, Friday, May 23, in the new social room of the church. Games were played, followed by a lunch. This was the first time we used our social room, and we realize how much it will help us. We are hoping to have other "get-togethers" every month.

The first Sunday after strawberry season, Sunday school attendance rose to fifty-eight. The new classrooms have helped the attendance. We are looking forward to Sr. Verna Thayer's Bible school the first of July. Attendance will be even better then, we believe, judging from Sr. Thayer's success in children's work.

Sr. T. J. Ellis has returned north after a two-months' visit at the home of Bro. and Sr. Clarence Barnum. Before she left, she presented the church with a new fluorescent lamp for the pulpit. Thanks, and come again, Sr. Ellis.

On Monday, May 26, Bro. Ernest Barnum was graduated from Southeastern Louisiana College with a Bachelor of Music degree.

Our thanks goes to Bro. C. Barnum for finishing the arch in the front of our church. We are proud of the new work in our auditorium and believe it will add to our worship services. If you are traveling near Hammond, come and worship with us.

J. Mattison, Pastor.

COLLEGE NEWS

A very enjoyable and interesting day was spent in Chicago last Saturday, when we visited Garfield Park, Museum of Science and Industry, Planetarium, and the Shedd Aquarium.

Rehearsals are the order of the day at Oregon Bible College. Every night last week, the student players held rehearsals, though we had to meet after other meetings dismissed. The Glee Club held its dress rehearsal at the church, Tuesday evening of last week. Its members were rehearsing for their Spring Recital, which they presented at the Oregon Church, last Sunday night.

Mr. Magaw and Mr. Dick, two of our instructors, were speakers for chapel services last Tuesday and Thursday, respectively. Their topics were: "Prayer" (Tuesday morning) and "Christian Living" (Thursday morning). We all enjoyed them very much.

The advertising committee for our spring play has been very active this past week. We are hoping for a fair-sized audience at the presentation of "It Happened in June" at the high school auditorium on the night of June 3.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

Prepared by Madge Savage
Waite Park, Minnesota

"The secret things belong unto the Lord our God; but those things which are revealed belong unto us and to our children for ever, that we may do all the words of this law" (Deuteronomy 29:29).

Moses Bids Farewell

Moses had given the Israelites God's laws and commandments at Mount Sinai. Now, nearly forty years later, they were near the Land of Promise. The Lord had told Moses he could not enter the land of Canaan. God, however, gave Moses some other laws to give to the Israelites in this land of Moab.

Moses reviewed their past wanderings before he said farewell to them and gave Joshua charge over them.

Some Memories

Moses reminded the people of all the miracles God did before their eyes both in the land of Egypt and during their wanderings. He told them to remember Pharaoh and his servants and his land. There were plagues upon Pharaoh. There was the death of the first-born sons and daughters. Then many soldiers were drowned in the crossing of the Red Sea.

The people were told how God had provided for their needs. They had food, clothing, and water during their trip.

Their enemies were overcome when they trusted in the Lord God. The lands of Heshbon and Bashan were given to the Reubenites, Gadites, and to the half tribe of Manasseh. Last week we learned how some of them left their families and herds to go and help win these battles so they could possess their land.

The New Land

There were dangers to be met and other victories to win in the new land. These people worshiped idols. Some were made of wood and stone; others were of silver and gold. Moses warned the Israelites they were not to forget God and turn to their idols.

Moses told them that even the other nations would notice God's anger if they did not obey Him. They would say, "What meaneth the heat of this great anger?"

They also would know the answer. The men would say: "Because they have forsaken the covenant of the Lord God of their fathers, which he made with them when he brought them forth out of the land of Egypt: for they went and served other gods, and worshipped them, gods whom they knew not, and whom he had not given unto them" (Deut. 29:25, 26).

Gods They Knew Not

Today we think we do not worship idols in our land. Perhaps we do not have idols of wood and stone or of gold and silver, but anything that is more important to us or comes first in our lives before God and our duty and service to Him is an idol. Idols do not have to be something we can see. Pleasure can be an idol.

Selfishness is the cause of many things becoming idols. God made man for His pleasure. We should love our Creator and seek always to do His will, not our own.

We learn about God's will for us by studying His Word. Those whom God finds worthy of His grace will receive the gift of eternal life, by faith in Jesus Christ.

Let us not be like the Israelites who had ears to hear but did not hear and eyes to see but did not see. Let us have hearts to understand and do God's will every day. Let us work for Jesus now. When He returns, His reward to each of His own will be with Him to give to every one of us according to our works now.

How much of a reward will we receive? Will we be ashamed at His coming? Let us learn God's will and work for Him every day. Let us learn to do those things which are Christ-like. May we be loving, kind, full of faith, meek, and gentle. Let us use self-restraint or be pure by leaving things alone entirely if we might lose our ability to use restraint. Let us put down fleshly and carnal things and walk in the Christ-like manner. He has promised that nothing good will be withheld from those who love and obey Him.

IT IS graduation time in schools throughout the nation. I Grade schools, high schools, and colleges will be pouring students into new classes, or out into the world of business. It is a time of change with something new and different lying ahead. New friends, different teachers, unsponsibilities which come with independence. You will be free to choose friends, choose your entertainments, your attitudes toward study and the school. You, too, will need the stabilizing force of church life, religious education, and Christian companionship.

Perhaps you are beginning your business life upon graduation by taking a job. You are choosing your life's work, and beginning to support yourself and plan for the future. This may be a frightening anticipation to you. Again your Berean training and church background can come to your rescue by bringing these thoughts and ideals to mind.

"I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me" (Phil. 4:13). This means you! Put your faith in Christ and be confident that He can help you, and all things are possible.

We might, however, derive another complimentary known classes, experiences in making a living: all lie in the future to fill youth with anticipation. Graduation means a change, and a new experience to all.

IT IS GRADUATION TIME

One of the questions in your mind might be, "Can I take my religion into this new experience and make it help me to be a better person?"

High school will be different than grade school was. You will enjoy more freedom and independence. You will study more difficult and practical subjects than ever before. Your social life and personality will be expanded. You will have a broader and more serious outlook, and more will be expected of you than ever before. Where these things should make you realize all the more your need for God and a healthy religion, they might tend to draw you away from your Sunday school and church life. Do not let them!

You will need your Berean society and your church in high school! You may think you are too busy, or too grown-up, but you need them! Fellowship with Christian people, building a form in which to mold your personality; religious education to counterbalance the weight of scientific skepticism and doubts you will meet, and to answer your questions of "Why?" and "How?"; a living faith in Christ to help you overcome new, forceful, and subtle temptations: these things you will need to take with you into high school.

Going to college next year? You are facing the same changes you faced four years ago, only in an exaggerated form. You will be away from home, "on your own," free to decide for yourself on most questions. You will have new re-thought from this same verse. Christ will help you to do those things which strengthen you. Be careful in your choice of occupation that you do that which will strengthen you, not only like Charles Atlas, but strengthen you in your Christ-likeness. It is important to your future that you work at something which helps you, helps others, and is a blessing, not a detriment. You might make a fortune operating a liquor store, but is it helping you to be a better Christian, and is it a blessing to your fellow man?

Graduation means a change for you. It means new experiences and temptations. Take Christ with you, wherever you go, get a firmer grip on yourself, and take a firmer stand for your church. All things will then be possible to you.

NEWS: The Wenatchee (Washington) Bereans have thus far raised $388.00 for a new church organ. This is a commendable project indeed. Last week they enjoyed a hike to Indian Fort, "which is on a huge rock cliff that looks as if it had been pushed almost straight up out of the ground for the majestic four hundred feet that it rises above the floor of the Coulee" (Wenatchee Berean News).

The Berean Nobler (Minnesota) reports a Berean Conference in Minneapolis on May 18. There were preaching services Saturday and Sunday nights. The Minneapolis Berean class (a new society) "is proving successful. . . . Attendance has ranged from 10 to 20 each Wednesday night." . . . The Litchfield society has been reorganized. Interest is increasing.

CASHMERE, WASHINGTON

We are happy to report that John Rose of Peshastin, Wash., has made the start in the way of life. He saw his need, answered the call of the gospel, and was baptized into Christ that he might have forgiveness of sins and inheritance with the saints in light. May the Lord sustain him and the brethren encourage him by word and deed. Lyle Rankin.

REPORT OF THE DRINKARD-HOBBS DISCUSSION

Caldwell, Kansas, April 7-12, 1947

I moderated for Bro. T. A. Drinkard three nights: Monday, Tuesday, and Friday. Rainy weather prevented my being present the other nights.

Bro. Drinkard affirmed that the same Israel as a nation, that has been scattered, will be restored to its own land. Bro. Drinkard piled up the proof texts of the Bible so fast and high that his opponent was dumbfounded. Mr. Hobbs failed to prove that the church is spiritual Israel, and that all the prophets said about the restoring of Israel was fulfilled by Christ to the church. Taking it all in all, Mr. Hobbs made little or no gains over Bro. Drinkard on the restoration-of-Israel question.

As for Bro. Drinkard's affirming man's being wholly mortal, the scriptures he used to prove this were the strongest in evidence. (Job 4:17—"Shall mortal man be more just than God?") Mr. Hobbs had to change the form of sound words where God says He breathed into man's nostrils the breath of life. Mr. Hobbs said God breathed a divine spirit into man; and what God called "man," Mr. Hobbs said was only the house in which the spirit man, or soul, lives. Bro. Drinkard proved that this same Adam, which God had made of the dust, lived and died. (Gen. 2:7; 3:5.) "All the days Adam lived were nine hundred thirty years, and he [the man that lived] died." Mr. Hobbs said that Adam never died, but that the divine spirit which God breathed into the man's house came out of the house's nostrils. It was God, however, who said to Adam, "Dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return." (Gen. 3:17-19.) Paul said, "If Christ be not raised . . . then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished" (1 Cor. 15:17, 18). Mr. Hobbs said, in effect, "Not so, Paul, for the spirit man never sleeps or dies—therefore can never perish."

Brethren, let me plead with you to accept any and all challenges to meet any gentleman anywhere when a set of fair propositions are agreed upon to discuss the following propositions: "The Nature of Man," "The Church and Kingdom—Are They the Same?" "The Punishment of the Wicked," "The Saints' Inheritance," "The Kingdom Being Established upon Earth at the Second Coming of Christ."

If you do not have a minister to defend the faith of the Church of God on these questions, write Bro. T. A. Drinkard, Box 387, Arlington, Tex. J. M. Morgan, Rt. 1, Bristow, Okla.

CURRENT FINANCES

We are gradually gaining on our financial condition, but the continued deficiency in contributions causes us to be faced with the possibility of a deficit at the close of this year, which is June 30. In adding an item of over $2,000.00 which was overlooked by the committees in preparing the budget, expenses, as of May 1, have been kept $9,198.00 under amounts allowed by the General Conference. Departmental earnings have been increased approximately $5,000.00 over last year. This is about the limit of our ability to save and develop earning efficiency for the current year. In spite of the good work on the part of our departments, we are faced with the possibility of closing our year with a total deficit of $5,000.00, unless we receive at least one half of the contributions which were passed by last year's Conference.

As everyone knows, expenses of all kinds, especially in food lines are unavoidably high. Only thirty days remain for us to eliminate this deficit before the close of the current year. If sentiment of last year's Conference prevails, this can be done easily. If it is your intention to assist with this budget, it should be done before the close of June.

VIOLA COX

Miss Viola Cox was born, May 22, 1897, in Oregon Township, Ill., and died, May 19, 1947, at the home of her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cline, Oregon, Ill.

In early girlhood, Miss Cox regularly attended Sunday school and church services. In later life, she was handicapped by frail health. Her life was one of kindness.

Surviving are her father and stepmother, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Cox; four sisters, Mrs. Thomas Cline and Mrs. Lloyd Pettinger, Oregon, and Mrs. Quillen Huffman and Mrs. Clarence McPherson, Dixon; one brother, Clyde, one half-brother, George, and one step-brother, Fred, Oregon; twelve nephews and six nieces.

Funeral services were conducted by the writer, May 23, at the Farrell Funeral Home and the Church of God in Oregon, burial being in Grand Detour Cemetery.

Sydney E. Magaw.

Bro. John Lehman, West Milton, Ohio, so thoroughly enjoyed the tract, "The Word Made Flesh," published several months ago in The Herald, that he has ordered a supply of reprints.

Please park cars in the designated area.

The annual Indiana Conference and Bible School will convene, June 11-22, D.V., at the North Salem Church. The North Salem brethren have entertained the Conference and Bible School for a number of years. Here, each year, we reminisce about the incidents and little pranks that have occurred.

The Indiana Bible School is long remembered, not only for the sports and cats, but for the spiritual food as well. The Hoosiers who have not attended in years past cannot appreciate these recalled thoughts. We trust you will put forth special effort and meet with us at least a part of the time this year.

Begin planning now to be present to enjoy improvements at North Salem.

Begin planning now to be present to enjoy the sports awaiting you on the playground that has been prepared by our North Salem brethren. A special effort has been made to have the best recreation program possible under existing circumstances. All recreation will be supervised by either the matron or superintendent, or both. Recreation will be provided for both sunny and rainy days. Plans are being made now for trips to the lake and to Plymouth Park. We are planning to have volleyball, softball, football, darts, horseshoe, tennis, and swimming.

Brother Delbert Jones will be superintendent of the Bible School. His task is to lead the school in spiritual recreation as well as physical recreation. A devotion service will be conducted each morning to encourage leadership and to teach the art of beginning each day with a song and prayer.

"The Coming of Christ" is the subject for discussion by the adults under Brother E. L. Macy, beginning with the promises of Jesus Christ that He will return to earth in a time and setting that might be compared to our day. "The Call of the Faithful," "The Meeting in the Air," "The Time of Trouble upon Israel and Man," "The Order of Resurrection," "Kingdom Conditions," and "Judgment" are subjects that will be studied during adult class sessions.

"The Teachings of Jesus" will be a topic for the young people's class. Jesus' teachings went further and included more than the laws of Moses which the Pharisees contended were the spiritual measuring stick. "Jesus' Teachings of Himself," "His Parables of the Kingdom," and "His Code of Morals" will lead many thoughts for the class and their leader, Brother Macy.

The junior class which Brother Jones will teach will study the "Essential Doctrines of the Church of God." Too often young people of today are told, "Doctrine is not important." This course will tend to refute this erroneous teaching and implant in their minds the truths which are important to our church and to our God. If they are to be strong Christians tomorrow, they should learn the fundamental doctrines today.

Sister Emory Macy will teach the two morning classes for beginner and primary students.

Her lessons will consist of New Testament studies in story, dannelgraph, and handwork on "The Life of Christ." The main topics will be: "The Birth of Jesus," "The Boy Jesus," "Baptism of Jesus," "First Miracle," "Ten Lepers," "The Sower," "Blessing the Children," "Temptation," "In the Garden," and "When He Comes."

Sister Lulu Stilson will teach the afternoon primary class "Old Testament Stories," handwork and dannelgraph on "Basic Understanding." Some of her topics will be "Creation," "Tower of Babel," "Noah and the Ark," "Calling of Abram," "Offering of Isaac," "Isaac and Rebekah," "Jacob's Dream," "Love," and "Prayer."

Please bring your band instruments along and plan to give special numbers, solos, duets, etc., at the worship services. Every effort will be appreciated.

We have been unable to obtain any sugar allowances from the OPA; therefore bring sugar for coffee, cereals, and general cooking. Also, bring any foodstuffs that you may wish to contribute to the school.

Please bring your own sheet and pillow case, for these items could not be obtained and they are scarce at the Bible School. It would be well to include your own pillow, for there are only a few of them in the dormitory.

All donations will be accepted gladly and will aid more than you realize. At the present time, there are insufficient funds to meet the operating expenses. Either send your contribution to Dale Rouch, 1710 Medora Avenue, South Bend, Indiana, or bring your contribution to conference.

SPEAKERS

This is a tentative schedule of the speakers for the worship services:

A Father's Prayer

"Father, today I bring to Thee
This boy of mine whom Thou hast made.
In everything he looks to me;
In turn I look to Thee for aid.

"He knows not all that is before;
He little dreams of hidden snares;
He holds my hand, and o'er and o'er
I find myself beset with fears.

"Father, as this boy looks up to me
For guidance and my help implores,
I bring him now in prayer to Thee;
He trusts my strength and I trust yours.

"Hold Thou my hand as I hold his,
And so guide me that I may guide;
Teach me, Lord, that I may teach,
And keep me free from foolish pride.

"Help me to help this boy of mine,
To be to him a father true;
Hold me, Lord, for everything,
As fast as I hold my boy for you."

—Mouzon W. Brabham.

Father's Day

June 15 will be recognized throughout the United States as "Father's Day." Inspired by popularity of Mother's Day, this lesser day of bestowing honor upon fathers is gaining in interest and enthusiasm. By reason of the tender emotions evolving about motherhood, there is no likelihood that fathers will "steal the show." That they should be given annual recognition, however, is appropriate and good. Father bears chief responsibility in providing material necessities of the home. He pays the bills! Equally as does mother, he sacrifices for the success and pleasure of his sons and daughters. Almost equally, we believe, he measures his own success by the success of his children for whom he toils. Yes, it is well to honor him who "keeps his nose to the grindstone."

Problems and evil trends of these "last days" challenge every man who has a son or daughter. A father must be more than a mere provider. God has given him place of honor as "head of the home." As counsellor, his experiences should enrich the lives of his children, helping to guide them in meeting the pitfalls and duties of life. Saddest reproach upon fathers today is that they have forgotten God, neglected religion, side-stepped the Bible, failed the Christ, and are empty handed in any attempt to offer religious encouragement to their sons and daughters.

This challenge of the hour directs itself especially to us who are of the Abrahamic Faith. Genesis 18:19 records God's reason for blessing Abraham thus: "I know him, that he will command his children and his household after him, and they shall keep the way of the Lord to do justice and judgment." What can God see in us? Help us, Lord, to provide for our families, but help us more to teach our children in such efficient manner that they will "do justice and judgment," keeping "the way of the Lord."

Father's Day should have another peculiar significance to us fathers of Abrahamic Faith. Our fathers of the Faith "confessed that they were strangers and pilgrims on the earth." "Truly, if they had been mindful of that country from whence they came out, they might have had opportunity to have returned. But now they desire a better country, that is, an heavenly: wherefore God is not ashamed to be called their God" (Heb. 11:13-16). Honor that we receive on June 15 from our children should inspire us to honor our Father, and, unless we do love God and seek the Kingdom He has promised to us, He will be ashamed to be called our Father or our God.

The Unfailing Father

Long before Jesus taught His disciples to address God as "Our Father which art in heaven," the Psalmist of Israel said, "Like as a father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear him. For he knoweth our frame; he remembereth that we are dust" (Psalm 103:13, 14). Psalm 27:10, too, comes wonderfully significant from David: "When my father and my mother forsake me, then the Lord will take me up." David's parents did not forsake their son, nor did David lack in appreciation for his parents. Nevertheless, David learned through experience that only God is supreme and wholly unfailing. We who are fathers will do well to teach our children of the Unfailing Father. By reason of death, our helping hand will be withdrawn, but of One it is written: "Underneath are the everlasting arms."

Forgiving Father

Pleasant was the experience when, having "earned" a spanking, Father seemed to understand my erroneous ways, withheld the stick, and forgave. He prayed not amiss who cried: "Father, forgive." "The Lord is merciful and gracious, slow to anger, and plenteous in mercy. . . . As the heaven is high above the earth, so great is his mercy toward them that fear him. As far as the east is from the west, so far hath he removed our transgressions from us. . . . The mercy of the Lord is from everlasting to everlasting upon them that fear him, and his righteousness unto children's children" (Psalm 103:8-17).

Outlook for Russia

By Timothy Pearson, Oregon, Illinois

DESCRIBED IN Ezekiel 38 and 39 is an event that will rock the world, making all men tremble with fear. God has foretold that a mighty empire from the North someday will attack Palestine, only to be routed by the elements of nature as the Lord directs. As Ezekiel wrote, a strong leader named Gog will sweep from the North land from his country Magog. He is called the chief prince of Meshech and Tubal. Magog, for whom the land of Magog was named, was the second son of Japheth. He is thought to be the founder of the Sythian tribe which settled the region around the Caspian Sea. Today, we call those people Russians. The names of Meshech and Tubal seem to be the original names of Moscow and Tobolsk, two large Russian cities. Muscovy, a derivative of Meshech, is the ancient name for Russia. Furthermore, in Ezekiel 38:2, the Revised Version uses the term Ross—a prophetic appellation of Russia. These facts lead one to assume that these chapters are judgments against Russia. The very description of Gog suggests Russia. Gog is to bring horses and horsemen and will command a vast army. Concerning the invader God said,

"Thou shalt come down from thy place out of the north parts, thou, and many people with thee, all of them riding upon horses, a great company, and a mighty army" (Ezek. 38:15).

Allies of the invading army will be Persia (Iran), Ethiopia, Libya, Gomer (some believe this to be Germany, others the Crimea), and Togarmah or Armenia.

These fortune-hunting nations suddenly will swoop down upon little Palestine which will be totally defenseless. The land will have been reclaimed and made productive. There will be no fear among the Jewish people who will be again in their homeland, living in unwalled villages.

Meanwhile, other nations will see the designs of these foreign attackers and will want to know, "Art thou come to take a spoil?" The merchants of Tarshish, Sheba, and Dedan will be alarmed when the Cossacks roar in their battle cry, "A spoil." It seems that the merchants represent the British. Who else is more concerned about the welfare of Palestine? Sheba and Dedan, islands off the east coast of Arabia, probably represent Britain's allies.

The battle that will follow will be unlike modern warfare. Instead of two man-made armies fighting until one is beaten, God alone will oppose Gog and will destroy five sixths of his army with earthquakes, diseases, hail, fire, and brimstone. There will be so much confusion in the rout, that Gogites will kill their brothers until only one sixth will escape.

The massacre will be so large, that seven months will be required to bury all the dead. Men will be hired to seek out the bodies and entomb them. The stench of decaying flesh will stop the noses of sightseers, making them go another way. It will require seven years to destroy all the weapons of war Gog will have left in Palestine.

God gives a hint as to why He has chosen to handle Gog in this way. In Ezekiel 39:28, 29, He says of Israel: "Then shall they know that I am the Lord their God, which caused them to be led into captivity among the heathen: but I have gathered them unto their own land, and have left none of them any more there. Neither will I hide my face any more from them: for I have poured out my spirit upon the house of Israel."

God will judge all the nations that mistreat Israel. In this way, He will cause the Israelites to recognize Him as their Father.

That this message should not lead someone to become arrogant against the Soviet Union, I should like to caution against man's trying to mete out that judgment God has planned for Russia. Remember, God is to deal with the nation, not individual Russians. Consider also that this belief that Gog is Russia is built largely upon circumstantial evidence. Russia and other countries that do not agree with us Americans, as to how the world should be governed, will receive enough abuse at the hands of the politicians. It is not Christian to condemn people who are innocent of any wrong acts as far as we are able to ascertain. The true aims of the brotherhood of man forbid extensive criticism of fellow men.

Realizing that God has singled out certain nations whom He will punish perhaps more severely than others, it would be wise to do all we can to turn members of those nations from their evil ways before the Great Judgment begins. Also, if we Christians follow the admonitions of the Scriptures, we shall have little time to criticize others, spending all our waking hours perfecting ourselves. If we were to heed James, the brother of Jesus, to keep ourselves "unspotted from the world," it would keep us busy.

The extremely important admonition that appears in the prophecy of Gog and should cause a change in our lives is this: When the Judgment Day arrives, woe to that man who is not on God's side. As Joshua put it, "Choose you this day whom ye will serve; as for me and my house, we will serve the Lord" (Josh. 24:15).

"Spirits in Prison"

By R. H. Judd, Colborne, Ontario

"Christ also suffered [R.V. marg.—'died'] for sins, the just for the unjust, that he might bring us to God, being put to death in the flesh, but quickened by the Spirit. By which also he went and preached unto the spirits in prison, which sometime were disobedient when once the longsuffering of God waited in the days of Noah, while the ark was a preparing, wherein few, that is, eight souls were saved by water" (1 Peter 3:18-20).

THERE are many new translations of the New Testament, in these days. Every one of them reflects, to a greater or less extent, the personal views of the translator. That, of course, is to be expected. Most words when translated into another language are capable of being rendered variously, and this fact is, perhaps, more noticeable in the small words, such as "for," "instead of," "by," "with," "from," and so forth. That fact is well illustrated in the passage quoted at the head of this article. As believers in the living personality of the spirit of man separate from his body, the translators of the Revised Version and others, have replaced the words "quickened by the Spirit" with the words, "quickened in the spirit." The same alteration has occurred in the next verse, saying "in which" instead of "by which." Anyone acquainted with trinitarian teachings will readily see the objective of so doing, for trinitarianism does not believe that body represents personality, but that personality is represented by the spirit. A little reflection, however, will reveal that in denying personality to the body they have unwittingly overreached themselves, for if it is the spirit that is "quickened" (made alive), then no other conclusion can be arrived at than that the spirit was dead; for only that which is dead has need to be made alive.

The Scripture says Christ was "put to death in the flesh." Since Scripture says it, there can be no gainsaying that fact. But Scripture further says in Romans 8:34, "It is Christ that died." Therefore, if the body died and the spirit did not (our "orthodox" friends themselves being witness), then by every law of logic the body and Christ are proved to be identical. With that fact fully grasped as basic to all life, this and many another Scripture topic would be shorn of mystery. The reader is urged to apply it, and he will find that the doctrine of pre-existence and kindred ideas vanish as the morning mists before the rising sun, for it proves beyond doubt that body is essential to personality, for an inorganic living being is a contradiction of terms.

A brief examination of the use of the Bible word "quickened," made alive, will be found of helpful interest. "The word 'quickened,'" says Barnes in his Notes on the New Testament, "is never used in the sense of maintained alive, or preserved alive." "Compare," he says, "the following places which are the only ones in which it occurs in the New Testament—John 5:21 twice; 6:63; Romans 4:17; 8:11; 1 Corinthians 15:36, 45; 1 Timothy 6:13; 1 Peter 3:18, in all which it is rendered quickened, quicken, quickeneth; 1 Corinthians 15:22, be made alive; 2 Corinthians 3:6, giveth life; and Galatians 3:21, have given life. Once the word refers to God as He that giveth life to all creatures. (1 Tim. 6:13.) Three times it refers to the life-giving power of the Holy Spirit or the doctrines of the gospel. (John 6:63; 2 Cor. 3:6; Gal. 3:21.) Seven times it is used with direct reference to the raising of the dead. (John 5:21; Rom. 4:17; 8:11; 1 Cor. 15:22, 36, 45; 1 Peter 3:18.)" To the above he adds the following note: "The sense cannot be that in reference to his spirit he was preserved alive when his body died, but that there was some agency or power restoring him to life, after he was dead."

That "by" is the correct translation is evident, for the death of Jesus the Christ is here plainly identified with His body, and it is the latter therefore which was "quickened" (made alive) by the Spirit, namely, by the Spirit of God, by which same Spirit He was raised from the dead. Ecclesiastes 12:7 makes this abundantly clear. Man-kind's spirit is given to him by God (see Job 27:3; also margin) and returns to God at death, not as an entity, but as "the Spirit of God," for, as Professor McCaul truly says, "According to the Old Testament, the Spirit of God is the quickening (life-giving) principle of the world, and all life is an outgoing from God; according to Psalm 104:30, even the life of the vegetable kingdom."

Several other facts stand out clearly in this interesting passage, and others which have a bearing on it.

1. That the "spirits" preached to were disobedient men who were disobedient in the days of Noah "while the ark was preparing."

2. That Noah was the preacher—"a preacher of righteousness" (2 Peter 2:5).

3. That as such, he preached the gospel (1 Peter 4:6), which was then, as now, good tidings of the promise of life. See 1 Peter 1:3 (Emph. Diag.: interlinear text). See also verses 5, 9, 10 where the Syriac Version reads "life" in place of the word "salvation." In the Epistle to the Hebrews alone there are nine examples where the word "life" occurs in the Syriac Version, and in all but one (Heb. 11:7) the prime reference is to the life of the future. However, as Noah's act was an act of faith, that also may have reference to both present and future.

4. Noah ranks among those holy men of old who "spake as they were moved by the Holy Spirit" (2 Peter 1:21, A.V. & R.V.).

5. That "the spirit of Christ" and the Holy Spirit are identical is proved by comparison of the following Scriptures: 1 Peter 1:11; 2 Peter 1:21; Acts 16:6, 7. (Cp. R.V. "Spirit of Jesus," which is, of course, identical with "the Spirit of Christ." See also Gal. 4:6.)

6. It is the one Spirit which has proceeded from the Father (John 15:26) in all ages.

7. As the gospel of life is the gospel of Christ, and is the "gospel" which was preached to the antediluvians while they were living, "as the ark was preparing"; it may reasonably be said that Christ, by the Spirit, preached through Noah to the disobedient "spirits," "even to them that are [now] dead."

We may now give additional information as to why the disobedient persons of Noah's day were called "spirits," and why they are referred to as being "in prison."

First, it may be asked, "Is it a reference to the 'spirits' of men, or to the men themselves?" There can be no doubt that Noah preached to the men themselves, for it is they who were destroyed ("blotted out"; see Gen. 6:7, and 7:21, 22, 23, R.V. and marg.).

There are instances where Scripture makes use of the word "spirit" when the reference is unquestionably to men. In chapter 4, verses 1-3, of his First Epistle, the Apostle John wrote:

"Beloved, believe not every spirit, but try [test] the spirits whether they be of God; because many false prophets are gone out into the world. Hereby know ye the Spirit [that is] of God; every spirit (Please turn to page 10)

Prosperity and Religion

By T. M. Ferrell, Holbrook, Nebraska

AS A GENERAL rule, a man's religion suffers in periods of prosperity. Such should not be true, but nevertheless has proved that way time and again. Most humans are incapable of keeping a correct balance when they are overly blessed with the world's goods.

Especially with Christians, there should come with prosperity a realization that it is God who has brought this blessing. It hardly ever fails that men who are in trouble and need pray to God, but when blessed they think they have no further need of Him. To those who would be thus, the parable that Jesus spoke in Luke 12:13-21 is very applicable. In emphasizing the truth that a man's life, or the amount of good he gets out of life, does not depend upon what he owns, Jesus said:

"The ground of a certain rich man brought forth plentifully: and he thought within himself, saying, What shall I do, because I have no room where to bestow my fruits? And he said, This will I do: I will pull down my barns, and build greater; and there will I bestow all my fruits and my goods. And I will say to my soul, Soul, thou hast much goods laid up for many years; take thine ease, eat, drink, and be merry. But God said unto him, Thou fool, this night thy soul shall be required of thee: then whose shall those things be, which thou hast provided? So is he that layeth up treasure for himself, and is not rich toward God."

Many people, especially in this section, were "down and out" before the last war and were fortunate enough to start buying farms when prices were low. With the following good-crop years, they have been able to pay for their farms and lay up sizeable sums of money. There is nothing wrong in this alone, but some people cannot bear prosperity; they begin to think about how "smart" they were when they purchased! Their heads are turned, and the "eat, drink, and be merry" attitude "takes over." With this prosperity comes a round of indulgence in worldly pastimes and enjoyments, not heeding the wisdom of Paul's words in 1 Timothy 6:9—"They that will be rich fall into temptation and a snare, and into many foolish and hurtful lusts, which drown men in destruction and perdition." Christians are told to "flee these things."

The United States is just beginning to reap the whirlwind of crime and moral laxity that it has sown during the war years when wages were high and husbands lived away from their wives, and wives away from their husbands, and parents away from their children, to earn more money.

People never will learn! Those who need the warnings of God's Word will not heed them, but continue in their foolish ways. Yet God stands ready to accept His due: our thanks for blessing in worldly things. Hear ye the Word of the Lord! Hear yel

Isaiah and the False Prophets

By Gordon Landry, Oregon, Bible College

PAUL THE APOSTLE prophesied of conditions that are to come upon the earth in the latter days. One of the signs of the times will be the preaching of unsound doctrine (trinity, immortality of the soul, etc.). Those who rely upon these unsound doctrines for security will "heap to themselves teachers, having itching ears; and they shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables" (2 Tim. 4:3, 4). This condition is coming to be more and more prevalent among the so-called Christian churches of today. Preachers no longer preach what they believe; they preach what the people desire to hear. The admonition given to Timothy might well be applied to our lives. "Watch thou in all things," and you will have a fruitful Christian life, showing others the way to life eternal.

The prophecy of Paul that in the latter days truth would be held in low esteem applied also to his own day. In his Epistle to the Ephesians, he wrote concerning some of the evils of his present day. In summation, he put forth the admonition that "we henceforth be no more children, tossed to and fro and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the sleight of men, and cunning craftiness, whereby they lie in wait to deceive; but speaking the truth in love" (Eph. 4:14, 15a), which applies just as directly to us of the present day as it did to those people at Ephesus. Basically, man has changed very little from the time of Paul. There are those in the world today, just as there were in his day, that lie in wait to deceive and turn every innocent bystander from the truth.

Prophecies other than these would indicate that the second advent of Jesus is nearer than generally supposed. Let prayer and faith be the watchwords. Rely upon Jesus; believe on Him, and live.

The preceding paragraphs serve only as an introduction to the subject, "Isaiah and the False Prophets." Isaiah, writing of those people who were supposed to be God's watchmen (those who were to guide Israel), gave a graphic account of some ministers of today. (56:9-12.) It is often understood by the general public that if a man is lazy he should enter the ministry, for "ministers only work one or two days a week and lie around eating fried chicken or go fishing the remainder of the week. This belief is prevalent because certain ministers do just that!

Isaiah condemned the false prophets of his day because they were blind. They were not literally blind, but willingly shut their minds to the call of God to warn His people that danger lay in a complacent attitude. The words, "They are all ignorant, they are all dumb dogs, they cannot bark," describe very well the way in which the leaders of God's people were taking their responsibility. They refused to cry out against the sins of that day; indeed, they partook in those things which are abominable before God.

The watchmen of Isaiah's day were compared to "greedy dogs which can never have enough, and . . . shepherds that cannot understand." They were self-satisfied—draw your own conclusion of today's ministers—and were indeed covetous, forsaking the commandments of God altogether. The false prophets were interested in the amount of money they could "squeeze" from the people—"they all [looked] to their own way, every one for his gain, from his quarter." Today? The same!

"Come ye, say they, I will fetch wine, and we will fill ourselves with strong drink; and to morrow shall be as this day, and much more abundant" (v. 12). Instead of abstaining from those things that are evil, the false prophets were gluttons in them. "Don't worry," said they, "nothing's going to happen to you if you follow us and pay us enough money." Woe unto them! "All ye beasts of the field, come to devour, yea, all ye beasts in the forest" (v. 9). Those things wherein they trusted shall fall!

"Don't fear death," say preachers of today. "It's really nothing but the transferring of your soul into a glorious heavenly place." "Never fear, the world is getting better. Man can bring in peace of his own accord." Is it impossible that there are false prophets today? "His watchmen are blind; they are all ignorant, they are all dumb dogs, they cannot bark." Rightly divide the word of truth. Turn to the truth of God, and live!

JESUS SHALL REIGN

A better day is coming,
A morning promised long;
When girded right, with holy might,
Will overcome the wrong.
When God the Lord will listen
To every plaintive sigh;
And stretch His hand o'er every land,
With justice by and by.

The boast of haughty error,
No more will fill the air;
But age and youth will love the truth,
And spread it everywhere.
No more from want and sorrow
Will come the hopeless cry;
And strife will cease, and perfect peace,
Will flourish by and by.

Oh, for that holy dawning,
We watch and wait and pray;
'Till o'er the height the Morning Light
Shall drive the gloom away.
And when the heavenly glory,
Shall flood the earth and sky;
We'll bless the Lord for all His Word
And praise Him by and by.

ARE YOU TOO SMALL?

By H. Gary France, Wenatchee, Washington

SAVE ISRAEL!" Gideon was astonished at the words of the angel. "Wherewith shall I save Israel? behold, my family is poor in Manasseh, and I am the least in my father's house" (Judg. 6:14, 15). Poor Gideon! Insignificant, young, inexperienced, and hiding—yes, even hiding from the Midianites—and this angel suddenly told him, of all people, to save Israel. Why had the angel called him a "mighty man of valour"? Answering his queries and developing a little faith, the angel explained simply, "Surely I will be with thee, and thou shalt smite the Midianites as one man" (v. 16).

From this beginning of astonishment Gideon entered a career of color, drama, and salvation. Servant of God, saviour of Israel, slaughterer of Midian, Gideon became the satellite of the Age. His career was characterized by using small, insignificant armies to win huge victories. Miraculously he drove Midian from Israel. The key to his success? God! Gideon's life was an epic of faith in God, of success with seemingly insignificant numbers, and of accomplishing an overwhelming task.

"Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost" (Matt. 28:19). "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved" (Mark 16:16). Matching the astonishment of Gideon, the Christian gazes at the words of Jesus. "Jesus surely did not mean that. How can I possibly reach the whole world? Why, hardly anyone has ever heard of me. Of course, if I were famous like Truman, I could reach the whole world, but as I am, that commission certainly was not intended for me."

Fame is not the mark of success! Nor the requirement! Gideon was encouraged by the statement that God would be with him. Jesus said, "Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world" (Matt. 28:20). The keys to Gideon's success were faith in God's help, obedience, and perseverance. Jesus is with Christians. If a Christian has faith, he can accomplish the seemingly impossible tasks that confront him. "If ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain, Remove hence to yonder place; and it shall remove; and nothing shall be impossible unto you" (Matt. 17:20). The fact that any person is insignificant when compared with the total population of the world, of his home town, or even of his home church causes him to feel that his efforts do not aid in promoting God's cause.

Small objects often effect huge results. James wrote that bits in horses' mouths turn them about; helms turn huge boats. Small tongues tell large stories and sometimes reap consequences: "Behold, how great a matter a little fire kindleth!" (James 3:5.) The proverbial "want of a horse-shoe nail" caused large consequences, and "mighty oaks from little acorns grow!" "The kingdom of heaven is like to a grain of mustard seed . . . which indeed is the least of all seeds: but when it is grown, it is the greatest among herbs, and becometh a tree" (Matt. 13:31, 32).

The penetrating influence of one's continued efforts is illustrated by the Parable of the Leaven. "The kingdom of heaven is like unto leaven, which a woman took, and hid in three measures of meal, till the whole was leavened" (Matt. 13:33). One person in a large group, by faith and perseverance, can cause a change in attitude, thought, and belief toward a subject. Jesus was practically unknown when He was thirty years of age. By intensive application of Himself, He started a phase of God's plan that has changed the thinking of much of the civilized world.

Solomon expressed the principle of little objects effecting desired results with four striking illustrations: "There be four things which are little upon the earth, but they are exceeding wise: the ants are a people not strong, yet they prepare their meat in the summer; the conies are but a feeble folk, yet make they their houses in the rocks; the locusts have no king, yet go they forth all of them by bands; the spider taketh hold with her hands, and is in king's palaces" (Prov. 30:24-28).

Christians are more influential in the capacities of parents, friends, and neighbors than they can be in capacities of congressmen, presidents, and champions. The wielding of this influence is the power of Christians throughout the world. Use it! Further the work. Remember, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved!"

COMMANDO CAMPAIGNS. Realizing the dangers that are facing moral Christianity, the churches in England have organized what has been termed "Commando Campaigns," in which evangelistic teams have gone into the factories and industries and brought the message of the church to the people in their everyday walk of life. The response has been encouraging, even, to the extent that over 200 factories have asked that chaplains be assigned to the plants for permanent work. Speaking in Toronto, the Lord Bishop of London, who is now touring the United States, said: "There will probably be 50,000 pending cases in British divorce courts by the end of the year. This has perturbed us about the possibility of an overthrow of moral Christianity, and made us realize that we are standing at the edge of an abyss, and unless we draw back, security in the home faces disaster." Explaining what he meant by "moral Christianity," Dr. Wand went on to say: "It is love, not love as it is taken to mean, not affection or sentiment. It is love which demands that a person do everything of the highest for everybody.

"I feel certain that if we can get young people to realize that sexual love is built on strong Christian love, we can get the right relation between the two. Unless we do this, I can see no hope for the race of the future."

DRINK BILL. The philosophy that the more available liquor is made, the more temperate people will become, is fast being revealed in its true light—false reasoning. In a late book entitled "Recent Trends in Alcoholism and in Alcohol Consumption," Dr. Jellinek, professor of Alcohol Studies at Yale University, gives the increase of the drink bill in the United States for 1946 over 1945. It amounted to $920,000,000. The professor's figures reveal that in 1945 there were "58,250,000 users of alcohol beverages, or 60 per cent of the population over 15 years of age." Also, his figures indicate "3,750,000 estimated inebriates, or 1 out of every 15 or 16 users." This large army of addicts includes "an estimated 750,000 chronic alcoholics, or 1 out of every 77 or 78 users."

DRY TERRITORY. With the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, the country as a whole did not go wet. It is surprising the amount of the United States, either local, county, or state option that remains in the dry column today. According to the Christian Science Monitor, there are "27,000,000 or 19 per cent of the population of the United States living in dry areas." The population in the wet areas comprise 81 per cent of the total number of people in the country, or 115,500,000. Three states are completely dry in all counties. They are Kansas, Oklahoma, and Mississippi.

Senator Capper has introduced a bill in the Senate, which, by his measure, would prohibit the transportation of liquor advertising in dry areas or over state lines. The bill is before the Senate Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee for hearing. While it is doubtful if the bill will be reported out of committee, yet the fact it is being given public hearings is indicative of the swing toward dry legislation.

MORE BIBLES. The American Bible Society has recently sent a shipment of 60,000 Bibles to Korea. The shipment was made from the West Coast. Wherever the American Government has any influence, the Bible is given free circulation. Freedom and the Bible are compatriots. The two go hand in hand.

ANOTHER STOOL PIGEON. The Communists have staged another successful coup in Hungary. At the last election, they polled about 17 per cent of the votes, and with another election coming this fall, they did not dare to take chances on allowing the people a free and uncontrolled vote. While the premier was in Switzerland on vacation, the usual tactics were resorted to and with the Russian army backing up a small group of Communists the government was overthrown and a pro-Russian premier took over.

Zoltan Tildy, who is the titular head of Hungary, is a former Reformed or Calvinist pastor. It is strange how many ministers of the gospel turn to the various isms as an escape from the present order of society. The reason for so many turning to these various ideologies stems from their views that the Kingdom of God is to be brought into being through the efforts of man; that it is a state of society where the brotherhood of man is recognized, and some add the Fatherhood of God. People who know and believe in the gospel of the Kingdom of God on earth are not led away into these strange and un-Christian philosophies of life.

Then, too, the Russian grab of Hungary prior to the acceptance of the peace treaty brings to the front the struggle between the East and the West. Each day the line of conflict between Communism and Western Democracy becomes more pronounced. There appears to be little doubt but what these two forces will be the hordes under the king of the North and the king of the South in the final push of the nations against each other. It is not so important that we identify the sides on which the various nations will be aligned, as much as it is to recognize the nearness of the hour when all will drink of the cup of fury which is to be poured out.

BUILDING HOMES. Various agencies in the Federal Government have been interested in the housing situation. A godly number of houses have been built to meet the critical housing situation, but it takes more than a house to make a home. In the Province of Quebec, this has been recognized since 1929, when the government instituted classes for homemakers in ninety-three schools. It is not compulsory to take a course in home economics before the wedding bells ring, but young girls are encouraged to study how to run a home. "Cooking, sewing, dressmaking, knitting, anatomy, psychology, hygiene, child care, family first aid, zoology, botany, elementary physics, bookkeeping, child welfare, and religion" are the courses taught. Of course, the Roman Catholic Church is behind the program, but that does not mean that it is not a good thing for girls to know something about homemaking before they are married.

A case comes to mind where a young couple had marital difficulties because the girl did not know how to cook and was unable to iron her husband's shirts. The young man had been reared in a home where the mother was a good cook and ironed his shirts well. He was impatient with his wife who lacked training in these matters. Mothers could do much toward insuring marital happiness for their children if they would train them in homemaking, and this includes Christian living.

WOMEN PREACHERS. At their 159th General Assembly in Grand Rapids, Michigan, the Presbyterian Church turned down a move to ordain women into the ministry of the church. The vote was taken by the Presbyteries of the church. The vote was fairly close, but showed a decided opinion against women officiating as ministers of the gospel.

CONVICTION. In reading numerous religious periodicals, I observe very few articles written on doctrinal subjects born of conviction. The great movement abroad among religious groups for unity and an ecumenical church is having the result of silencing men on their convictions for fear it will prove detrimental to what is conceived a larger objective—the reunion of Christendom. This trend in religious thinking has almost destroyed a love for the truth. There are a few Aquilas and Priscillas, who, on observing some preaching something less than the full gospel, take them aside and show unto them the way more perfectly. The person that is of strong conviction on what he understands to be truth and its importance is branded as being dogmatic and standing in the way of church progress. The dogmatist is an essential person in keeping the fires of truth warmly burning. If at times, they appear to be thorns in the flesh, let us not pray more than thrice to get rid of them. They may be necessary to keep us from being exalted in the false things of apostate Christendom.

Conviction on the importance of truth and on specific truths has been a righteous blessing to the Church of God. When the price tag on truth has been removed or its value has been marked down, the person or group that does it ceases to be a needed element in the work of the Great Commission.

Destruction of the Ungodly

Dear Friend:

In continuing our study, we next consider Revelation 20:14; 21:8. No one "dies in that lake." Your statement is erroneous! In this respect, please reread reasons "4" and "5" in our comments on Revelation 14:9; 20:10. If "no one dies," there can be no death, for where is no dying there is no death. But since there is death, the "second" one, there necessarily must be dying. Death is merely the completed process of dying. Experience, as well as the Scriptures, confirms this. We are reminded, moreover, that John said "the lake of fire" is "the second death." He also said, "The seven candlesticks . . . are the seven churches," "The seven heads are seven mountains" or "seven kings," "The ten horns . . . are ten kings," and "The woman . . . is that great city." (Rev. 1:20; 17:9, 10, 12, 18.) In what sense? Why—"the candlesticks," "seven heads," "ten horns," "woman," and "lake of fire" symbolize these things! The same argument that would prove your contention here would play havoc with Revelation 1:20; 17:9, 10, 12, 18. Try it, please, and see. Though it was said, "There is death in the pot" (2 Kings 4:20), one must not conclude that death in the abstract was in the pot, but an agency that would produce death or destruction. So with, "The lake of fire is the second death"—not that death in the abstract was in the lake, but that it was the agency that would produce death; the "second"!

Note, critically, Revelation 20:11-15, the order of things: 1) The "sea," "hell," and "death" "deliver up the dead"; that is, they "live again"; 2) "They are judged"; 3) "Cast into" a "second death." Conceded it must be that "death" in point number one is the natural death or "death, the first." If so, then death number two, which they experience after death delivers up its dead, is certainly a "second" one, just as literal as was the first which they already had experienced. If the first was brought about through dying, then so must the second, or it is not a "second" one but a first of a new series. Consider, please, Psalm 9:17 (R.V.). "Return" here shows they went to sheol or hades through a literal death; they came out of sheol through a literal resurrection; and then "return to sheol" through a literal death.

"Will he receive capital punishment who hath trodden upon the Son of God" (Heb. 10:29, Murdock's Syriac). In this connection, verse 27 speaks of "the fearful judgment" that "impended," and here it is affirmed to be "capital punishment" that "consumeth" the adversaries. If the "second" death is "capital punishment," those who experience it literally die again. Ask any lawyer as to what "capital punishment" is, please.

Job 21:30. Here we are told that the wicked who are "in the graves"

(John 5:28, 29) shall be "brought forth" to the "day of destruction" or "second" death or the "return to sheol" (Psalm 9:17, R.V.).

2 Corinthians 2:14-16 speaks of "life unto life" and "death unto death." What have we here but the natural life and death and a future life and death, the latter being clearly post resurrectional (Dan. 12:2; John 5:28, 29; Rev. 20:11-15) and contingent upon "the savour of his knowledge." Both sets of life and death are literal. If the second death is not literal, the second life is not literal.

Now "the lake of fire" that symbolizes the second death is evidently the same as the "fire" of Matthew 25:41. Since "eternal fire" literally kills (Jude 7; 2 Peter 2:6; and my arguments on "eternal fire"), then so does the former.

Revelation 19:20. "Cast alive into lake." This, Friend, was said of "the beast" and the "false prophet." But since "the beast was slain" and his "body destroyed," and by implication it says its "life" was not "prolonged" (Dan. 7:11, 12), how can one still say it is yet alive eternally? God says it was "slain" and "destroyed."

"Objections to annihilation" considered. Before meeting your "objections," why use the term "annihilation"? If used in the sense of "destroy," all right and well; but if used to include even the "dust" of which the wicked are composed, the term covers too much territory. Used in the sense of "destroy," it is creeping even into translations. (See Psalm 83:11; 143:12, Leeser; and Acts 3:23, Goodspeed.) This being true, if it continues spreading in translations, believers in endless misery will have to make use of some other term to represent this Bible doctrine! Why not say they will be "burned" "into ashes" (Mal. 4:1-3; Jude 7; 2 Peter 2:6), and be satisfied with that?

I

You have asked: "Since the wicked are raised from a state of non-existence to consign them to the same state again, why raise them?" We reply:

The natural death is "the common death of all men" (Num. 16:29); hence it is not a punishment for personal sins. But its repetition—the "second death" (Rev. 20:11-15) or the "return" of the wicked (Psalm 9:17, R.V.) to sheol—is the result of individual sins. Hence, it is aptly termed a "second" death in that they first entered sheol— or hades—then hades delivered them up and they stand before God and are “judged”; then they are cast into the lake of fire which symbol is explained to be a “second death” for all such. (Rev. 21:8.) So in the ultimate, the “second death” is the natural repeated, or it is not a “second” but a first of another kind. Yet before “the end,” a “second,” is experienced, there are “stripes,” “few” or “many” and “anguish,” finally ending “in death,” the “second.” Why raise him? The answer is to receive his “punishment” (2 Peter 2:9), namely “stripes,” “anguish”—reaching their climax or “end” in a “death” “without remedy.” (Luke 12:47, 48; Rom. 2:9; 6:21; Prov. 21:9.)

II

“No distinction in degrees of punishment.” This is a mistake. See the answer to Objection I. But I charge this against endless misery for all the wicked: some dying in sins thousands of years ago have been tortured through these years before the birth of other sinners who die and go to endless torment. So, to all eternity some are tortured thousands upon thousands of years longer than others who have lived a similar life. Not so with the Biblical doctrine of “death” as the “end” of the wicked. Before that “end” is reached, “stripes” “few” or “many” are experienced by the ungodly until nature gives away and “death” as their “end” is experienced. Now, please read Matthew 23:14; Luke 12:47, 48, and see how nicely they agree with the foregoing.

We shall answer all your other objections, but must call a recess until next week.

“SPIRITS IN PRISON”

that confesseth that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is of God: and every spirit that confesseth not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is not of God.” It is very evident that the “spirits” mentioned here are substantial enough. They were not disembodied. They were men in the flesh, false prophets who had given out false doctrines. The “spirits” to whom Peter referred were of like substantial nature when they were preached to by Noah “while the ark was preparing.” Every breathing creature, including man, may quite properly be termed “a spirit,” because “spirit” is the universal sustaining means of life. (Eccl. 3:19.) Our words “inspire,” “inspiration,” and “inspirational” are derived from the same source. James 2:26 (A.V. & R.V.) says, “The body without [or apart from] the spirit is dead.” Man is a composite of body, soul, and spirit (1 Thess. 5:23), but he must be “entire” (R.V.) to be a living man.

That the word “prison” must in its wider sense be understood to refer to the grave is clear from the following. Albert Barnes says: “He that is in the grave is in sheol, but he that is in sheol may not be in a [properly prepared] grave, but in any pit or in the sea. In short, it is the region of the dead.” He adds, “It is sometimes considered as a habitation with gates and bars.” In this instance, they were undoubtedly imprisoned in the sea by the Flood; and they “perished” equally as surely as did Korah, Dathan, and Abiram when engulfed by the earth. Peter says, “For this cause was the gospel preached to them that are [now] dead, that after they have been judged in the body, as men are judged, they might live [in the life to come] in the spirit as God lives” (Twentieth Century New Testament). Surely the thought expressed in this translation is akin to the prayer of our Lord, “That they may be one [in life] as we are one.”

We again quote from the Syriac Version in confirmation of our line of reasoning. In the Syriac Version, this passage is rendered: “He preached to the souls* which are held in sheol; those which of old were disobedient in the days of Noah.”

*Note: The Hebrew word nephesh translated “soul” is translated “person” and “persons” thirty times in the Old Testament, “creatures” nine times; “body” seven times; “man” and “men” five times; “life” and “lives” one hundred twenty times, referring to the life of both man and beast; and in a number of other ways meaning the living, breathing individual, and not an entity distinct from the body.

BEREAN NEWS Eden Valley, Minn.

The spring conference of the Minnesota Bereans convened on May 17, 18, at Eden Valley. Bro. M. W. Lyon, who had been working in Minneapolis, was our guest speaker. In addition, Bro. Harry Goekler of Hector, Bro. Ernest Graham of Minneapolis, and Bro. Walter Wiggins of Eden Valley were present. A most enjoyable time was had by all. In behalf of the Minnesota State Bereans, we thank the local Eden Valley Bereans for the good hosts and hostesses which they never fail to be. Plans were made for another state conference to be conducted in the fall.

J. M. MORGAN SUFFERING HEART ATTACK

My father, Elder J. M. Morgan, while working very hard proofreading copy for two of the five volumes he is having printed at Shawnee, Okla., suffered a very severe heart attack about 5:00 p.m., Friday, May 23. He has had three more light attacks and was in the hospital five hours Tuesday morning. He is now under the care of Dr. O. H. Cowart, Bristow, Okla., who advises him to rest in bed for four weeks.

He would like very much to receive cards and letters from any of the brothers, sisters, and friends. He asks for an interest in your prayers and that God will bless every means to restore him to usual health and strength so he might be able to complete the work of sending out the thousand sets of five volumes. He prays that the Lord will so bless the precious truths contained in the five volumes that many people will be made ready for endless life in the endless age of joy.

Elfrieda Morgan.

FONTHILL, CANADA

The forty-third annual May Meeting was conducted from Friday night through Sunday, May 23-25, Elder F. L. Austin, who was our pastor here for seventeen years, was our guest speaker for this meeting. These annual May Meetings were started in 1905 under the pastorate of Elder Austin.

On Friday evening, Bro. Austin spoke on God's Covenant with Abraham, and it was an outstanding sermon on faith.

Saturday evening this same speaker continued a connected line of thought on Christ as High Priest. We were shown how the fulfillment of God's covenant with Abraham would be realized through Christ as High Priest and King of Kings.

The weather has been playing pranks here this spring, so Sunday morning did not dawn as bright and clear as usual. The season being late, our display of lilies was missing; but, as always, Bro. Joseph Fletcher had the church looking very pretty, with all the various spring flowers available.

Sunday school opened with singing by the junior choir, after which the smaller classes held their studies in Sr. Haines' home. The adult classes enjoyed a very interesting discourse on Jesus Christ by Elder Edward Gott. At 11:00 a.m., Elder Austin's subject was "Christ as King of Kings."

Dinner was served at noon, and, at 2:30 p.m. we were pleased to listen to a short but very interesting talk by Sr. Austin, as well as to enjoy sweet music from the saw she so readily brought with her from Oregon. Then our pastor, Elder C. E. Randall, spoke to us on "The God of Justice," after which we joined together in the Communion service.

In the evening, Bro. Austin's closing message concerned the calling out of the church during this present age in separation for the day when the Lord would be King over all the earth.

All the services were well attended; and, besides the local members, visitors were present from Toronto, Norwich, Smithville, Wellbourn, Dumville, Fenwick, Welland, Port Robinson, Stamford Centre, Niagara Falls, Ont., and N. Y., Syracuse, Youngstown, and Sanborn.

Special music was offered by the senior choir at each service. Sr. Austin sang by request, "She Only Touched the Hem of His Garment," and Bro. Holland contributed, "Hold Thou My Hand." One duet was given by Sr. Blanche Page and this reporter, entitled "God Has Not Forgotten."

We know it gave much happiness to many to renew old acquaintance with Bro. Austin, and to meet Sr. Austin. We did appreciate the sweet music she brought forth from her saw, and we desire to thank Bro. Austin for the rich spiritual food he gave us, and for strengthening our faith. May we be true, faithful, and fruitful in God's service, that we may be among those who will be called out to meet His Son Jesus in the air, is our prayer.
Irene Holland, Reporter.

MEETINGS IN MINNEAPOLIS

Most of the month of May was spent in Minneapolis, Minn. A very happy situation was found there. Bro. and Sr. Ernest Graham already had built up a good interest with a small group with whom they have been working for several weeks, holding a weekly Bible class in their home on Wednesday nights. They gave the finest co-operation and gave me a home while I was there, which was much appreciated. Both being talented musically, their help was very valuable in the meetings.

Quite a number of members have filtered into the Twin Cities from other places, much as has happened in other metropolitan places. We located eighteen members of the Church of God there, exclusive of the Grahams. Only about half of these seem willing or able to co-operate. Some are working inconvenient hours, some are too aged to travel around much, and others are just not interested. But in addition to the members, there are a dozen or more who show good interest and have been co-operating. As many as twenty have attended the weekly Bible classes in the Graham home. I have never seen such a large and interested group of young people for such a small group of people. The young people are the backbone of the work there.

We were extremely fortunate in having the choice of two church buildings in which to hold services. Usually it is impossible to find any place. We arranged to hold our meetings in a small Independent Baptist church in a very central place and easily accessible. This proved an ideal place. Meetings were begun, May 14, and continued through May 25. Attendance was small but interest good among those attending. Very few outsiders came. However, several of our own members were discovered who showed good interest, and we feel will continue to work with the group there. On one night a group of the Eden Valley people came down, which added very much to the interest of the services. On May 18, two carloads went to Eden Valley for the Berean Conference.

The members of the church living in the area are: Miss Dolly Anderson, Miss Roth Anderson, Mrs. Roger Baugerie (Audrey Wood), W. Emmett Berry, Mrs. Alton Dehn (Iva Hoskins), Mrs. Betty Failes, Miss Lorraine Gaspar, Miss Inez Grzeskowiak, Miss Grace Johnson, Miss E. Dorothy Magaw, Miss Lola Magaw, W. K. Mathey, Mrs. Byrd Miller, Miss Esther Peterson, Alvin Shipp, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Uhlenhuth, and Mrs. W. J. Walburg (Lois Randall).

If anyone knows the name and address of any others living in the area, send them to E. E. Graham, 2854 41st Ave. S., Minneapolis, Minn.

In addition to our own group, there is a group of folks of a similar faith who call themselves the Holy Congregation. Some of these are working with our group, among them Mrs. Ben Johnson and the family of Mrs. Lois Graham, also Johnsons.

Wednesday night Bible classes will be continued, possibly in the church building, at the corner of Longfellow Ave. and E. 31st St. Perhaps a Sunday morning service will be arranged later. Meet with these folks whenever you are in the Twin Cities, and pray for the work, for we should have a good and growing effort in that most strategic city in Minnesota.

On May 25, two carloads of us went over to Graytown, Wis., and held a morning and afternoon service. This is only seventy miles distant. Bro. Graham spoke at the afternoon service. It was a pleasure to meet with these good folks again.

M. W. Lyon, Evangelist.

OREGON BIBLE COLLEGE NEWS

A long, weary sigh is now being indulged to the full by all students. You see, this past week has been a very busy one for us. The last week of College being exam week is ordinarily a busy one, but this year it was unusually active.

On June 1, the Glee Club presented its Spring Recital; and, on June 3, the Student Players presented their spring play, "It Happened in June," a farce-comedy in three acts, at the Oregon High School. On Friday, June 6, the graduation ceremonies were conducted at the Oregon Church of God. Also, we are still working on Maranatha—it is now at the publishers—and last Saturday and Monday we were working on the last issue of the Campus Caller for this school year. Then, of course, we did have to write some exams during the latter part of last week. We might add here that those exams were really rugged—results will not be printed: that is all we have to say on this subject.

Two of our alumni members were in town last week. They were Elaine Randall and Harvey U. Krogh, Jr. Bro. Krogh was guest speaker at the graduation exercises, and his address was enjoyed very much by one and all.

Rand Smith and Warren Sorenson left Thursday afternoon with Malcolm McLeod for Denver, Colo., where they will be visiting for a few days. Malcolm and Hal Stilson, who was a guest at the College Wednesday night, are driving through to California. Malcolm sang in the Glee Club, as there was need of another bass, and we appreciate his assistance. Sorry to see you go, "Mac," but hope you will be back soon.

Mary Brown left Saturday for her home in Baraga, Mich., and Kirby Davis is spending a few days with friends in Indiana. Several other students are planning to visit their homes and parents for short vacations during the summer. Many of these are either attending Summer School, or working here in Oregon, or both. Several College students have already enrolled in Summer School, and more are expected to in the near future. The writer intends visiting as many of our churches this summer as possible to speak to them concerning the College. I shall have application blanks for next semester with me, should any wish to enroll. We sincerely hope that some shall.

This will be the last College news for this school year. It has been a very happy and eventful year for us all, and we are looking forward with much enthusiasm to the opening of College next September. May the Lord bless and keep all safe and sound during the summer and bring us together again next fall. We thank Him for His blessings during the past year, and pray that it is His will that the College will continue to grow, both spiritually and materially, during the next school year.
W. Howard Boomer, News Editor.

Prepared by Madge Savage
Waite Park, Minnesota

"Know therefore this day, and consider it in thine heart, that the Lord he is God in heaven above, and upon the earth beneath: there is none else" (Deuteronomy 4:39).

No Time to Pray

No time to pray!
Oh, who so fraught with earthly care
As not to give to humble prayer
Some part of day?

No time to pray!
What heart so clean, so pure within,
That needeth not some check from sin
Needs not to pray?

No time to pray!
'Mid each day's danger, what retreat
More needful than the mercy seat?
Who need not pray?

No time to pray!
Then sure your record falleth short;
Excuse will fail you as resort,
On that last day!

What thought more drear,
Than that our God His face should hide,
And say through all life's swelling tide,
No time to hear!

—Author unknown.

The Lord Is One

Many people today try to figure out how God and Jesus are one. They are one in purpose, but are entirely separate otherwise. Jesus is God's Son: His only begotten Son. (John 3:16.) God was in His heaven, and Jesus was in the grave, God raised Jesus from the dead. Jesus received power from God. God's power or presence is made known to us by His Spirit. God's words have force or power in them. He spoke, and it was so. (Gen. 1:3.) Moses told the children of God, the Israelites, "Hear, O Israel: The Lord our God is one Lord" (Deut. 6:4; 15; 25).

God's Commandments

The Israelites were told to love God with all their hearts, souls, and strength (might). Their commandments were to be in their hearts. They were to teach God's commands diligently to their children.

When do you talk about God and Jesus in your homes? These children were to be taught about God all the time: when they sat in their houses, when they were walking, when they were going to bed, and when they got up each morning.

A Warning

There was a warning given to God's chosen people. When they had reached the Promised Land, they might forget God. "Why?" you ask. Because they were given cities which they had not built. They were given houses, filled with "all good things" which they had not filled. They were given wells they had not labored to dig. The olive trees and vineyards they received they had not planted. Things had come to them so easily and wonderfully. That was why Moses feared they might forget God.

The Israelites were told to beware that they not forget God. They were to serve Him only. The Promised Land had many idols. God's people were warned not to serve these idols. They were to serve the one true, living God. If they forgot God, He would be very angry and destroy them.

Their Righteousness, and Ours

Their keeping of these laws was counted to them for righteousness. Our righteousness is of faith. When we accept Christ, we receive the gift of His righteousness by God's grace. Our own goodness or righteousness is of no value as far as salvation is concerned. Christ alone is worthy and righteous. Then let us accept Him while we have many years to do service for Him.

IT'S A BEREAN YOUTH RALLY

With the recent resurrection of interest in the young people of our church has come regular accusation that it has neglected to keep its young people interested and working in the church. It has been said, perhaps with justification (see The Guiding Star, June, 1947), that the Berean Society and the denomination have failed to gear themselves to the times. This may have been true, but the Berean Society is now coming through with flying colors. It is doing its part for youth—and more. The Berean Youth Rally planned for July 14-27 is just one indication that our young people no longer can say we are neglecting them. The Society has made a big step; it has answered accusation with action. Now, my young friend, the responsibility is upon us. Now we can show whether our loud cries of "Unfair," "Old-fashioned," "Too adult centered" were really grievances or just excuses for neglecting our duty.

We have before us the plans and scheduled classes and meetings of the youth rally, and can say with enthusiasm, "It is great!" The program is packed with guest speakers, movies, a chalk-talk artist, and discussion periods on timely practical subjects. It is a pioneer rally, a unique and history-making meeting of Church-of-God youth. It is your opportunity, my young friend, to prove yourself a Christian boom or bubble. Here is just what we have been screaming for. The Berean Society has called our bluff.

The complete rally program undoubtedly will be printed in THE HERALD, but here is a little preview of some of the good things in store for the first ninety wise teen-agers who enroll.

Max Weston, Winnebago County States Attorney, will speak July 15 on "Modern Pitfalls for Youth." July 17, a movie, "It's the Brain That Counts"; July 18, a film by the American Bible Society; music led by Marvin Myers, Chairman of Indiana Federation of Rural Music; July 22, C. C. Denham, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, national chalk talk artist and lecturer; these are only a few of the outside speakers and films which are arranged for those two weeks.

There will be plenty of planned recreation under a trained director, and many open discussion periods when you can "talk it out." This is saying nothing of the interesting classes by such qualified men as Otto E. Dick, James M. Watkins, Norman McLeod, and others, and the natural enjoyments of being with other Christian young people.

As Arlen Marsh, National Berean Society President, says in his article in The Guiding Star, "Be it resolved it won't happen again." The Berean Society once left itself open to complaint. Now we have no excuses! If the Youth Rally lacks anything, it will be our fault as young people. The Society has acted, now it is our turn to prove ourselves. The responsibility, the future attitude of the church toward the young people is in our hands. The door to a whole new world of activity has been opened by the church for its young people. Our denomination has come halfway. We can go our halfway and through the open door to a new relationship with our church, or we can continue to sit back and sulk because no one "pays any attention to us." "Let no man [give no man reason] to despise thy youth."

Teen-agers, let's get busy with those enrollment coupons and make this the best youth meeting that the Church of God ever saw. Let's prove, once and for all, that all we were waiting for was opportunity to participate in a program geared to 1947.

We now receive Berean news from Omaha, Minnesota, Cleveland, and Oregon. We want to know what you other societies are doing, too. Address H. J. Doan, 1908 North Keystone Avenue, Chicago 39, Illinois.

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA

Sunday, June 1, marked the tenth anniversary of the dedication of our church building in Los Angeles. At the morning service, Sr. Emma C. Railsback gave an interesting, detailed history of the church from its inception down to the present time.

Following this, Bro. J. W. McLain paid fitting tribute to those whose untiring efforts and sacrifices made possible this place of worship. His brief sermon envisioned this as the nucleus or mother church, from which should spring many churches throughout the State of California. Already, through his efforts and under his direction, it seems the Porterville group is nearly large enough to require a resident pastor. At the end of another ten years, we hope and pray that many such centers will be firmly established.

Duncan McLeod graciously favored us with two beautiful songs, "Flee As a Bird" and "The Lord's Prayer," accompanied by his mother, Sr. Norman McLeod, Barbara Stantial's cello solos, "Melodie" by Massenet and "Evening Star" by Wagner, were greatly enjoyed. Mrs. McLeod filled the place of Mrs. Bleasdale, our pianist, who was ill.

After a picnic dinner in the pergola, the church board conducted its regular meeting, followed by a half-hour song service and a religious motion picture in the afternoon.

Marian R. Richards, Secy.

GRAYTOWN CHURCH, WISCONSIN

On May 25, we had the pleasure of having Bro. M. W. Lyon, Oregon, Ill., and Bro. E. E. Graham, Minneapolis, Minn., to speak for us. ## GLEANINGS FROM THE FIELD

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

Sr. Norma Kirkpatrick, Oregon, Ill., is visiting at the home of her uncle and aunt, Bro. and Sr. James A. Patrick, Ashland, Ohio.

Srs. Hazel, Sylvia, and Violet Reed, Oregon, Ill., are visiting one of their brothers in South Carolina.

Bro. and Sr. James M. Watkins, accompanied by Bro. and Sr. Delos Andrew and daughter Patricia, all of Oregon, Ill., motored, Saturday, June 7, to Marshall, Ill., for Sunday services, May 8.

Sr. Leota B. Hanson, accompanied by Srs. Edna Brewer and Nora Pearson, left headquarters, June 7, for a brief visit with the Brush Creek (Ohio) brethren.

Bro. and Sr. Otto E. Dick, their sons "Billie" and Otto, Jr., accompanied by Bro. Dean Moore, motored last week end to Delta, Ohio, where Bro. Dick preached for the Delta Brethren on Saturday night and conducted two or three services on Sunday at the Raker Church.

Everybody present at the College commencement exercises, June 6, gave congratulations to Bro. Timothy Pearson, this year's lone graduate. Bro. Harvey U. Krogh's address, "Preach the Word," was well received and appreciated.

The Editor's home misses Bro. Malcolm McLeod who for nearly a year made his home with us, but is now en route to Pomona, Calif. Come again, Malcolm. . . Somewhat in his stead, another "Malcolm" has come home from Duke University for the summer vacation.

Members of the Oregon, Ill. Church of God who recently were graduated from the local high school were: William Dick, Juanita Logsdon, Sylvia Reed, Joanne Blanchard, and Robert Nedrow.

Bro. C. E. Lapp informs that he has resigned his pastorate at Tempe, Ariz., and that he has accepted pastorate of the Pennellwood Church in Grand Rapids, Mich.

Bro. Harvey U. Krogh, Jr., pastor of the Pennellwood Church of God, Grand Rapids, Mich., has resigned that charge, and has accepted pastoral duties of the Hope Chapel Church of God, South Bend, Ind., time of change to be about September 1.

Bro. and Sr. Delbert Jones, Michigantown, Ind., were stricken with grief, May 30, when their baby arrived stillborn. They named him "Douglas Kent." Burial was made, May 31, at Whiteman Cemetery near Michigantown. "Refrain thy voice from weeping, and thine eyes from tears." He "shall come again from the land of the enemy" (Jer. 31:16). Praise God for hope of the resurrection!

ILLINOIS NEWS

Several guests met at Oregon Bible College for a scramble dinner. After the dinner, the society presented a program of several varied numbers, ending with a three-act playlet entitled 'The Bible in the Home.' This play stressed daily family worship. On May 11, Donald Capes confessed his faith in Christ as He Saviour. He was baptized and taken into church membership the following Sunday. Donald has been trained in our Sunday school. The three religious education classes of the grade school, grades 3-8, presented a program at the evening worship service to acquaint the congregation with the work that has been attempted during the year. As the April Berean pulpit service was conducted by the ladies, the men took charge this time. They gave a varied program of music and had two speakers, Arvid Johns, whose theme was 'Rock of Ages,' and Raymond Brown, who spoke on 'The Christian Soldier.'

MISCELLANEOUS Illinois Items. We understand that Pastor C. R. Randall of Ripley recently underwent an emergency operation at Macomb, but is now home and doing well. . . . The Oregon Church of God has invested more than $9,000.00 in the new basement for East Oregon Chapel. The Oregon Church is interested in receiving a loan of $3,500.00 at 4% interest from some individual or company, to meet the balance of the cost. If you can help, or know where such a loan can be made, contact Paul C. Johnson, Frederick Clausen, or Delos Andrew, Oregon, Illinois. We might add that the Oregon Church has thus far borne the brunt of about $12,000.00 Chapel expense. Here is an example of sacrifice, zeal, devotion, Christian love, and practical application of Jesus' "Go ye into all the world." . . . Your Illinois Evangelist editor, H. J. Donn, 1908 N. # ILLINOIS JUNE CONFERENCE

Come to Illinois June Conference at Eldorado, June 28 and 29. Bro. Sydney E. Magaw, Superintendent of Oregon Bible College and Editor of The Restitution Herald, will be guest speaker. We know from experience that you will enjoy the Eldorado Conference, its fellowship, hospitality, and the spiritual feast afforded.

These quarterly conferences, held in different parts of the State, afford us the opportunity of visiting various churches, meeting isolated members in that region, and becoming better acquainted with each other's work and problems.

Come and meet your fellow workers and be blessed by worshipping with them. There is business to be conducted, there are decisions to be made, and work to be done. Come and help make this a successful conference!

In November, 1900, a pledge was drawn up and signed by several Illinois Conference members who decided that tithing was the best and most Scriptural way to support the Illinois Conference. The support of these early tithers, firmly established the Conference and laid the foundation for its later work.

This is our forty-ninth year, and we believe that tithing is still the best and most Scriptural way to support both local churches and the State Conference.

Our treasurer says that Conference finances are in better condition now than they have been for some time, maybe because there are tithers in Illinois.

CHICAGO. Because the Church of God members in Chicago are so widely scattered and thus have little opportunity for fellowship with one another, we have found that the monthly Family Day is a real boon to the church work. It gives us opportunity to become better acquainted and thus to be more closely bound to one another in the Lord's work. Everyone enjoys the religious movies and entertainment that are a part of our social afternoon together. Average attendance at our worship services in May was 29, besides several Sunday school children.

DIXON. "The Dixon Church of God has a drive on for funds for a new parsonage. Our goal is $2,000.00. We have a large thermometer in the church; and, when donations are made, up goes the mercury. . . . If you wish to help push up the mercury (and build the new parsonage) send your contribution to Mrs. Lloyd Wagner, 906 N. Hennepin Avenue, Dixon, Illinois. Mrs. Alan McLain has been bed-ridden for four weeks. She would enjoy hearing from her many friends."

MACOMB. Macomb is looking forward to evangelistic meetings with Evangelist M. W. Lyon, June 16-22. The Dorcas Society sponsored a box social on May 16. The ticket admission was a baby picture of oneself. It sounds very interesting! Macomb also is blessed by conducting a monthly business meeting and potluck dinner; each month at a different home. The daily vacation Bible school is scheduled for June 9-20. Macomb had a good school last year, and it was a boom to the work. May the Lord bless this year's efforts!

“Day of the Lord Jesus”

The Apostle Paul's teaching was interwoven with brilliant prophetic thread concerning the second coming of Christ. In 2 Corinthians 1:14, he spoke of rejoicing “in the day of the Lord Jesus.” In Philippians 1:7, he spoke concerning his gospel activities, saying he would continue this “good work . . . until the day of Jesus Christ.” In verse 10, he urged the Philippians to be “sincere and without offence until the day of Christ.” In Philippians 2:14-16, the Apostle admonished:

“Do all things without murmurings and disputings: that ye may be blameless and harmless, the sons of God, without rebuke, in the midst of a crooked and perverse nation, among whom ye shine as lights in the world; holding forth the word of life; that I may rejoice in the day of Christ, that I have not run in vain, neither laboured in vain.”

These texts that speak of the day of the Lord Jesus as being a time of rejoicing link, apparently, with the Apostle's more definite statements about the coming of Christ, such as:

(1.) “Ye turned to God from idols to serve the living and true God; and to wait for his Son from heaven” (1 Thess. 1:9, 10).

(2.) “What is our hope, or joy, or crown of rejoicing? Are not even ye in the presence of our Lord Jesus Christ at his coming?” (2:19.)

(3.) The Apostle prayed that the Lord would establish the Thessalonians' hearts “unblameable in holiness . . . at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ with all his saints” (3:19).

(4.) “The Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout” (4:16).

(5.) The Apostle prayed that God would preserve the Thessalonians “blameless unto the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ” (5:23).

(6.) “The Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels” (2 Thess. 1:7).

(7.) As a means of persuasion, Paul spoke of “the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, and . . . our gathering together unto him” (2:1).

Amidst the foregoing type of texts, the Apostle Paul warned: “Yourselves know perfectly that the day of the Lord so cometh as a thief in the night” (1 Thess. 5:2). So many texts in the Old Testament speak of the Day of the Lord as a time of fierce judgment, anguish, and plagues, that one could be misled into thinking he should not have any desire for that great day to come. Of course, the Old Testament prophecies of this great day as being “the day of the LORD” (i.e., the day of God, or, the Great Judgment Day). Some students would distinguish between the Old Testament “LORD'S DAY” and the New Testament texts cited above that speak of the “day of the Lord Jesus.” It is not uncommon, however, for the Old Testament “LORD” (technically meaning God) to be interpreted today as applicable to our New Testament “Lord,” even Jesus the Christ. For example, the prophecy in Zechariah 14:1-5 unquestionably uses “LORD” as referring to God Himself, yet the expression, “His feet shall stand in that day upon the mount of Olives” is interpreted universally as prophetic of Jesus' returning to the Mount of Olives. Similarly, we believe the Old Testament “day of the LORD” is equivalent to the New Testament “day of the Lord Jesus.”

“How,” someone may ask, “can you harmonize the Old Testament prophecies about the day of the Lord being a fierce day of judgment with the New Testament texts about the day of the Lord Jesus being a time of rejoicing?” Here is the answer: The day of Christ's second coming will mean sorrow and anguish to the unprepared (when the Old Testament prophets wrote, they were addressing sinful Israel, a people unprepared); but Christ's coming also will mean joy and “a crown of righteousness” to “all them . . . that love his appearing” (2 Tim. 4:8). One's own standing will determine the meaning to him of the “Day of the Lord Jesus.” Those “that obey not the gospel . . . shall be punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord, and from the glory of his power” (2 Thess. 1:9). Those who have made their “calling and election sure” will receive an abundant entrance “into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.” Are you ready for the Day of Christ?

Isaiah's Plea to Repentance

By Milton Hall, Oregon, Illinois

ISAAH, a true prophet of the Lord, did and spoke as the Lord commanded him. It fell his lot to tell the Israelites of their sins and of their duty to the Lord God, Jehovah, who had brought them out of Egypt. It also fell his lot to tell glad tidings of the coming of a saviour, the Immanuel (Isa. 7:14), of the Prince of Peace and His unending dominion (9:6, 7), of His sufferings and final victory (53); and of His message of salvation (61:1-3). Some of these prophecies may have been partially fulfilled in some way during Isaiah's time, but we know that they referred to Jesus, the Christ, and can be completely fulfilled only in Him. Isaiah also seems to have stressed more strongly than did most of the other prophets the necessity for Israel to return to God and to ask for forgiveness.

Isaiah certainly had a great responsibility placed on his shoulders when he was instructed to carry a message of repentance to the children of Israel. They had sinned immediately after crossing the Red Sea and their evil-doing grew until they seemed to have lost all desire to serve the Lord. Their sins could be divided into three major sins: 1) their disregard for God, 2) their desire to enter into confederacies with other nations, and 3) their covenant with death: defying the judgments of God as though they were immortal.

Israel's sins led her beyond hope of self-preservation. Isaiah 4:4 tells of that day "when the Lord shall have washed away the filth of the daughters of Zion, and shall have purged the blood of Jerusalem from the midst thereof by the spirit of judgment, and by the spirit of burning." Malachi 3:2, 3 warningly asks, "Who may abide the day of his coming? and who shall stand when he appeareth? For he is like a refiner's fire, and like fullers' soap: and he shall sit as a refiner and purifier of silver: and he shall purify the sons of Levi, and purge them as gold and silver, that they may offer unto the Lord an offering in righteousness." These scriptures have a clear meaning: though the Israelites will be cleansed of all their sins, they will not be cleansed by themselves, but, as the Word states, "When the Lord shall have washed away" their filth. This will be accomplished by divine influence in convincing, correcting, and purifying like fire. God says: "I will turn my hand upon thee, and purely purge away thy dross, and take away all thy sin."

Isaiah certainly was aware of the power of God, of the immense sin of Judah and Israel, and of the fact that if any good were accomplished by his efforts, it would be by the power and through the will of God, and Him only. Isaiah gave the people the Word of the Lord exactly as he received it from God. His eyes were opened by the words of the Lord as to the sins of the children of Israel, and, equally as they persisted to do wrong, he persisted in telling them of Jehovah's teachings. Isaiah was a strong man of the Lord.

The confederacy the Israelites had was their reliance on other nations about them, allying with them in case a large army (such as Assyria's or Babylon's) came against them. The Lord instructed Isaiah, however, "Say ye not, A confederacy, to all them to whom this people shall say, A confederacy; neither fear ye their fear, nor be afraid." Alliances that Judah and Israel were making seemed practical for their own protection, but they reasoned without God and His guiding power. He told them, as he had many times before, what He expected of them, saying: "Sanctify the Lord of hosts himself; and let him be your fear, and let him be your dread. And he shall be for a sanctuary" (Isa. 8:13, 14).

The world today tires of the old story of Christ and His saving powers. Compare the story the prophets told with the story our preachers are telling, the way people heard the prophets and the way true preachers of today get an audience, and compare Israel's final outcome with the end in store for the world today—though nations feel secure in the "confederacy" of the United Nations. We are still human beings, as were the Israelites. Like they were privileged, we can choose the way we want to live. Will we make the same mistakes? Why not use our talents in the "sure thing"?

This third sin of the Israelites seems to compare more with the general sin and disregard of the world for God and His plan for mankind. (Please turn to page 10)

Jesus

"Jesus, the Light of the world!
Yet men in darkness lie,
Groping about in the murky gloom,
Refusing to give the Saviour room,
Jesus, the Bread of Life!
Yet millions of hunger die,
Dying for lack of bread,
And the Bread of Life close by!

"Jesus, the Water of Life!
In a parched and thirsty earth;
Yet heedless they pass Him by,
Revering in empty mirth.
Come to the Fountain today;
Drink deeply, so shall it be
Thy thirst is quenched, thy need supplied,
Through all eternity."

Study of the Death Penalty

By R. H. Judd, Colborne, Ontario

Brother R. H. Judd presents "Study of the Death Penalty" in letter form, having prepared the message in answer to inquiries from a correspondent. Varying from popular interpretation, his study will interest thinkers.

WITH REFERENCE to the announced penalty for Adam's disobedience, "In the day that thou eatest thereof, thou shalt surely die" (Gen. 2:17), many theories have been put forward to explain (?) the supposed inconsistent attitude of the Lord God in not executing the penalty as threatened. A very common explanation is that the "day" was a day of one thousand years, 2 Peter 3:8 being cited mistakenly in proof. A little Irish humor would make even the proponents of that theory smile, I am sure, if the actual sense of it were pointed out to them, for it is equivalent to saying, "If you eat of that fruit within a thousand years from now, you shall die." Surely the absurdity is evident from several points of view. The day in which Adam might err by eating was singled out from every other day of his natural life. Were it a day of one thousand years no such distinction would be possible, for Adam did not live even one such day. I contend that a natural day is intended. It is so in every other use connected with Adam's life. It is further clear that an inflicted (not natural) death was determined. Whenever the day of a man's death is recorded, it is always a natural day. This thought is still further confirmed by comparison of Genesis 2:17 with Genesis 3:19, noting the contrast, and the remarkable similarity of the wording of the last named to what we now call penal servitude for life.

Now as to the word "commute." I believe you and I are agreed that Adam was the first man placed under law: not "the law," for Scripture makes clear distinction between the two, and it is an interesting study. My dictionary gives the meaning of "commute," considered under the aspect of law: "To reduce the severity of," and "commutation" under the same aspect (law) is defined as, "The substitution of a less penalty for a greater." That is exactly what occurred in the case of Adam after evidence had been taken and extenuating circumstances considered. That I think is a simple, natural understanding of events in conformity with justice and truth. Every human judge has the right, if circumstances warrant, to "reduce the severity of" the legal penalty. Surely, therefore, the Creator of man has that same right. There is no need for special pleading, for the Record, as given, justifies the conclusion.

Now to your next query, namely, "Does not commuta-

tion automatically rescind?" (Just here I must admit error in saying, "The penalty of death was not rescinded." It would have been better to say that "natural death, which was due to Adam's nature, was not rescinded." It is so common to regard natural death as the penalty for sin, that the word "penalty" inadvertently slipped in.) My answer to your question is, "Yes." Further question, however, arises, "What was rescinded?" Surely what was rescinded was the penalty of death "in the day that thou eatest thereof." That penalty was commuted to penal servitude for life. (See Gen. 3:19.) Adam was created mortal—subject to natural death. Proof of this is that Adam was turned out of Eden "lest he put forth his hand, and take also of the tree of life, and eat, and live for ever." He would, therefore, die eventually, but through God's clemency he lived nine hundred thirty years. Romans 5:12, saying, "As by one man sin entered into the world, and death through sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned" (R.V.), does not make death a penalty but a consequence of Adam's sin. If being created mortal—which Adam undoubtedly was (Gen. 3:22 being witness)—involves a penalty, then Adam was created, and his descendants were born, with a penalty overhanging each that was predetermined before he was created and before they were born. No, natural death is not a penalty. God Almighty had a perfect right to create man mortal until tested for immortality under conditions. "Shall the thing formed say to him that formed it, Why didst thou make me thus?" (Rom. 9:20, R.V.) Life is a gift, whether it be long or short; and eternal life is also a gift. (Rom. 6:23.) In the first, man has no choice; and in the second, it is not forced upon him. "All have sinned." Therefore, man in his natural state has no claim on eternal life. Even in human law, a person under sentence of death for crime deserving death is legally due to die in the day the crime is committed. Indeed, the crime itself automatically commits him under the law, and the death intended is an inflicted death. "Whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed." If commutation takes place, it is the death due to be inflicted that is commuted. Man cannot alter his mortal nature; and God does not because man is a sinner, nor will He except under conditions foretold and promised, which places the onus of acceptance or rejection on the individual.

Now briefly, if possible, I shall consider your quotation of my remark, "The only way the death penalty may be redeemed, is for one without sin to offer himself to God on our behalf." Of course, "offer" here was taken from Hebrews 9:14, but here again I thoughtlessly introduced the word "penalty." A death penalty cannot be redeemed, but natural death—the consequence of Adam's sin—may be.

Then comes your question, "Is it your thought that Jesus' death was a substitutional sacrifice?" I purposely used the words "on our behalf" to avoid suggestion that Christ died for us in the usually accepted sense that He died "instead of" us. (Cp. 2 Cor. 5:20, 21, A.V. and R.V.)

One often meets with the remark, "If Christ died for us, then we ought not to die." Most people do not seem to know it, but there is considerable difference in some instances to the meaning of the word "for." Our Webster's Dictionary gives thirty to thirty-five different applications, or meanings, of the word "for," and in only one or two does he show the word means instead of. When we read in Romans 4:25 that Christ was delivered for our offences, and that He was raised again for our justification, it hardly would do to say "instead of our offences," or "instead of our justification." A man may die for his country, but not instead of it. Sometimes Isaiah 53:5, "The chastisement of our peace was (Please turn to page 10)

Parental Obligation to Youth

By Otto E. Dick, Oregon, Illinois

AT NO TIME are there as many criminals made, or converts won, as during the adolescent age. The adult life, while distinct from the child life and the adolescent life, is wholly built upon the foundation of this early period. Harrower says "that no ideas can become the permanent possession of the world which do not first enter through the door of childhood. By the age of three, parents have done more than half of what they will ever do for their child." ("An Introduction to Child Study" by Clarence H. Benson, and used in the correspondence course, "Child Study.")

Even this modern civilization shamefully neglects children. We parents are more concerned with the care of our worldly possessions than we are with the care of our children. Far too many children are left to the fate of Topsy who "jest growed." Furthermore, many parents who may have a sincere desire to "bring children up in the way they should go" lack the information and skill necessary to stimulate and guide children. Much teaching by parents does more harm than good. Public schools concentrate more upon intellectual training than upon character training, and for various reasons churches fail miserably in providing adequately for the religious or spiritual development of children. Most sermons are not prepared for the purpose of appealing to the instincts of children, and even our Sunday schools are comparatively ineffective.

Two thirds of the children of this country are not being reached at all through Sunday schools, and those who are enrolled in Sunday school attend only about one half the time. A recent study reveals that children in the United States attend motion pictures five times more frequently than they do Sunday school, and they probably learn five times more readily than they do in Sunday school.

The foregoing facts mean that parents are substituting the "movie," with its dangerous fascination for the impressionable mind of the child, for religious training. They mean, too, that the "movie" is probably ten times as effective in shaping the destiny of our children as is the church. If one were to examine the similar effect of radio programs, he probably would find equally significant facts. We parents are failing in our duty to children.

Now that the problem has been presented, I suppose the logical procedure would be to follow with a lengthy proposal of various solutions. Obviously, no one has the perfect answer, but all of us know some of the answers. We know that we need a great awakening as to the value of child life. Then we need to develop a vital concern for the proper religious training of children in home, school, and church. We need to spend much more money and time to provide for our children sufficient religious experience. An investment in the children of our community and nation is an investment in the greatest resource any community or country has. An investment in the religious training of youth is an investment in the most profitable business on earth!

Let us provide more and better summer vacation Bible schools. Let us have better trained Sunday school superintendents and teachers. Make an effort to become better qualified to train your own children. Encourage youth to avail themselves of existing facilities for spiritual growth through Oregon Bible College, the Summer Bible Training School, and the Berean Youth Rally. Let us increase our investment in youth and enjoy the dividends!

"Preach the Word"

A Graduation Address

By Harvey U. Krogh, Jr., Grand Rapids, Michigan

WE APPRECIATE the opportunity of speaking again in the Oregon Church, and we feel honored also for having been chosen to deliver the Oregon Bible College graduation address. The fact that only one young man is being graduated from the College this year makes it no less an honor. During many years in the past, not one new minister was among us, and there were years we did not have any prospective graduates.

Brother Timothy Pearson's competent instructors have taught him, advised him, and prayed for his success in the Master's service. You and I have no way of knowing the far-reaching effect that his life and service will have for good. We are glad for one graduate this year and for those who intend to be graduates in the coming years.

We have chosen, as a basis for our remarks tonight, a few of the words the Apostle Paul wrote many centuries ago to a young minister named Timothy. One of the wonderful things about the inspired writings is the fact that the admonition of nearly two millenniums ago is just as sound as it was then and far superior to anything that we might say.

Paul's first charge was: "Preach the word." There were several good reasons for this advice. First, let us consider some of the things which Paul previously had written to Timothy. Paul had warned him of perilous times when men would "be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy, without natural affection, trucebreakers, false accusers, incontinent, fierce, despisers of those that are good, traitors, heady, highminded, lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God; having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof" (2 Tim. 3:2-5). He also prophesied: "Evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived" (2 Tim. 3:13). Although these things began to be fulfilled in that day, we know that we are living in the close of this Age. The nearer we come to the very end, the more difficult will be the task of the minister.

Many other statements in the Bible testify to this fact. Instead of the world getting better, with greater support for the teachings of Christ, the world is getting worse. Instead of the church converting the world, the heathen are multiplying much faster than missionaries are able to convert them.

Men have never been better organized for evil than they are today. The forces of evil are being mobilized for the final conflict. It will not be long until Christian workers will find new obstacles in the way of winning others for Christ. In the days of Paul, the immorality of the heathen stood in the way. Ignorance, superstition, poverty, and want retarded the work of the church.

Today, the self-sufficiency of the masses, the much-learning, and the ability to long escape the results of sin have made the words of the preacher as foolishness. Tomorrow, legislation in this country may hamper our work. The present recommended increase in postal rates may place an almost unbearable burden upon small non-profit religious publications if it goes into effect. Yes, as we near the very end of the Age, we are finding our work more and more difficult.

There is the "falling away" prophesied by Paul in 2 Thessalonians 2:3. In Acts 21:21, the same Greek word for "falling away" is translated "forsake." Since Paul did not specify that it pertained only to the most devoted Christians falling away from their close fellowship with God, we believe that he referred to a general departure from God and His ways.

Undoubtedly, individual Christians are departing from their deep devotion to God. Whole denominations have forsaken certain truths they once held dear. Many who were only friends of the church are forsaking the fellowship that might have led them into the fold. The masses that one time respected the church are falling away, even from the respect they once had. Nations that one time followed Christian leadership are forsaking that leadership. The "falling away" already has begun.

All this, in a sense, may sound rather discouraging to a young minister. The present trend may indicate that in the future a minister no longer may hold a respected position in the community. His profession may become despised if he is not of the apostasy. He may have to work double time to keep up his standard of living. The prophecy of Revelation 20:4 also is discouraging. "I saw the souls of them that were beheaded for the witness of Jesus, and for the word of God, and which had not worshipped the beast, neither his image, neither had received his mark upon their foreheads, or in their hands." We are not certain that all of us will escape such persecution since we have heard of the persecution experienced by some Christians in other nations.

Paul said, "Yea, and all that will live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution" (2 Tim. 3:12). Because Paul foresaw these days of discouragement, he told Timothy to "PREACH THE WORD." More than once we have heard workmen say that it is a pleasure to work with sharp tools. The Word of God has a keen edge. It is "the sword of the Spirit," the sharp instrument mentioned in Hebrews 4:12, 13: "The word of God is quick and powerful, and sharper than any twoedged sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow, and is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart. Neither is there any creature that is not manifest in his sight: but all things are naked and opened unto the eyes of him with whom we have to do." The Word is powerful because the Author of the Word is all powerful. The Word is more than adequate. When one is skilled in its use, and devoted to God who has given us this Word, he need not fear the future. The gospel is still the "power of God unto salvation." God has said concerning His Word in Isaiah 55:10, 11: "As the rain cometh down, and the snow from heaven, and returneth not thither, but watereth the earth, and maketh it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower, and bread to the eater: so shall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth: it shall not return unto me void, but it shall accomplish that which I please, and it shall prosper in the thing whereto I sent it." Never doubt the power of God's Word. It will defeat your adversaries, convince the skeptic, and strengthen the weak. It is your most valuable possession. "Preach the Word."

Besides admonishing Timothy to "preach the word," there were other things that Paul instructed him to do. "Reprove, rebuke, exhort with all longsuffering and doctrine." The minister of God not only is to exhort with all longsuffering and teaching, but he also is to reprove and rebuke with that same enduring patience. Patience also will be a very valuable possession. It will enable you to bear long with the slow to believe. In view of the fact that character suitable for eternity cannot be perfected in a day, patience will help you spend the time and effort necessary for that perfection. Patience will help you to keep from being discouraged. Discouragement is the Devil's wedge, and many attempts will be made to drive that wedge between you and the work of the Lord. Learn to be longsuffering, and you will not be discouraged.

The Reward of Prayer

By Janice Johns, Oregon Bible College

---

PRAYER is essential to one's being a true Christian. A true Christian feels a need of God's guidance in every thought and deed. If one never feels the need of God's helping hand in time of trouble, he misses much of the joy that comes from answered prayers.

As recorded in Revelation 3:16, Christ said He will "spue" out of His mouth those who are lukewarm. They are the ones who feel no need of guidance. They feel they are rich and have need of nothing, when in reality they are poor, wretched, miserable, and blind.

The happiest Christian is one who is constant in prayer. He is happy because he rests his burdens with the Lord. We read in Psalm 55:22: "Cast thy burden upon the Lord, and he shall sustain thee: he shall never suffer the righteous to be moved." Matthew 11:28 says: "Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." We receive sustenance and rest through prayer.

The "poor in spirit" will be blessed, for they will inherit the Kingdom. (Matt. 5:3.) Those who humble themselves by prayer for guidance will be lifted up. (James 4:10). James 4:6 states, "God resisteth the proud, but giveth grace unto the humble."

The sick are healed, sins are forgiven, and faults may be corrected by a prayer of faith. We read in James 5:14-16, "Is any sick among you? let him call the elders of the church; and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord: and the prayer of faith shall save the sick, and the Lord shall raise him up; and if he have committed sins, they shall be forgiven him. Confess your faults one to another, and pray one for another, that ye may be healed. The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much."

If we would be the children of our Father in heaven, we must "pray for them which despitefully use [us], and persecute [us]" (Matt. 5:44, 45). It is stated in Proverbs 15:8 that God delights in the prayer of the upright. "The sacrifice of the wicked is an abomination to the Lord: but the prayer of the upright is his delight." God resists any of our adversaries, if He is with us. We read in Romans 8:31, "If God be for us, who can be against us?"

In summarizing, the rewards of prayer are: rest, sustenance, promise of life in the Kingdom, freedom from sin, health, forgiveness of sin, correction of faults; and, as children of God, we shall be His delight.

News and Prophecy Digest

By C. E. Randall, Fonthill, Ontario

PESSIMISM. It is not with the spirit of "We told you so," but it has been the teaching and preaching of the Church of God that the last days would be "perilous times," with "men's hearts failing them for fear" because of the evils coming on the world; and that there would be "wars and rumours of wars" throughout the whole world until the coming of the Lord "the second time without sin unto salvation" for those watching for His appearing.

This teaching, in the light of prevailing beliefs that the world was gradually improving and men and women were, through the efforts of the Christian church, being brought into a oneness with the Lord and thus the Kingdom of God would come to men of good will, was, to be perfectly frank, in open conflict. Those, who were striving to bring into being a new world order in which the principles of righteousness would govern, looked upon the teaching and preaching of our people as being pessimistic and a hindrance to the furtherance of the kingdom to be set up in the hearts of men.

Time and conditions have fully justified the solid preaching of the scriptures pertaining to the last days. The determination of the fathers to "preach the word" regardless of the criticism, the oftentimes seeming trend of events as being contrary to what they preached, did not deter them in advocating all things that the prophets did say should come to pass.

Writers and news commentators today are far more pessimistic in their analysis of world and national events in the light of actual happenings than those who were mighty in the Scriptures were ever charged by the unbelieving.

Some years ago, I preached a sermon on the "Signs of the Times and the Coming of Christ." At the close of the service, a lady who happened to "drop in" for the meeting said, as she shook hands with me, "My! that is a dark picture." And so it is, if one sees only the worldly side—the sinful, the corrupt, the sure-to-fail angles. On the other hand, if one sees the glorified and exalted Son of God coming in power and great glory and taking unto Himself His great power and reigning and all the attendant blessings, his countenance will radiate with hopeful delight. It all depends on how you look at things and where your heart and hope lie.

MONEY, MONEY, MONEY. People have so built their lives and fortunes around money that they have come to think and believe that one can buy anything if he has the money. It does seem true that money talks a language that everybody can understand. The notion that is riotous among people today of the power of money is going to explode before very long, and people will realize that balance sheets are merely human values. The democratic nations are appropriating billions of dollars to win the peace and stave off the current and future results of ungodly thinking and unchristian living as though money could buy peace! or stem the march of the world toward Armageddon! Wars and rumours of war rise out of the lusts of the flesh. Greed for power lead the strong to conquer the weak. Money cannot stop these forces. The billions that are being poured into Europe and Asia to rescue nations and continents from Communism and the abyss of unrighteousness will act as a deterrent, but will not change the hearts of men who are becoming desperately wicked.

Someday, before very long, the folly of living and ruling by the power of money will be so apparent, men will throw their silver and gold to the bats. Man will have to learn the hard way that the peace of God and the gift of God cannot be bought with money. Doubtless, Uncle Sam thinks he is doing the best he can and the only thing he can to bring order to a disordered world when he so generously opens his purse to pay for the keep of the wounded. Peace, however, is a fruit of the Spirit and cannot be obtained permanently from any other source. Money cannot buy it!

STRANGE PEACE. It has been nearly two years since VJ Day, and more than two years since VE Day; yet, according to a recent survey by "The New York Times," there are nearly nineteen million men under arms throughout the world, which is costing the nations to support them the sum of 27.4 billion dollars a year. China is credited with having the largest number of men under arms. Notwithstanding that starvation is rampant in China, the standing army has 5.75 million men that are taking 80 per cent of the national budget to maintain. The personnel of the Russian army is given as 3,800,000, and her navy as being comprised of 445,000. In nearly all countries, military conscription is enforced—ranging from "five and one-half months in the Philippines to five years in Egypt and for 'certain classes' in Russia."

RESPECT FOR PARENTS. With Mother's Day and Father's Day coming so close together, one is reminded of the influence which father and mother had on his or her life. Respect for parents has received a great big boost by the President of the United States, Harry Truman's great respect for his mother and his eagerness to give her his time and attention as she fights the effect of a broken hip and attendant weaknesses of old age. Regardless of one's political viewpoints, he must admire the simplicity with which Harry Truman attends his mother in the sunset of life. He undoubtedly realizes the influence she has had on his life. When he leaves her, she always admonishes him to be a "good boy." When the President left for the Potsdam Conference, his mother said to him, "Now, Harry, you be a good boy." When the Conference agenda was piling up, some of the principal figures wanted to hold a Sunday session, but our President said, "I told Mother I would be a good boy, and I must go to church."

Some years ago, the then Prime Minister of Canada, R. B. Bennett, was campaigning for re-election. He was traveling to the West, and his train stopped this Sunday morning for a few minutes in North Bay, Ontario. He was solicited by the waiting crowd to come out and make a speech, but he declined. Finally, through the urging of his secretary, he was persuaded to go out on the ear platform and acknowledge the goodwill of the people in gathering to see and hear him. As he appeared, the people called for a speech. He yielded, and in substance here are his words: "My mother taught me that no good thing would ever come from working on a Sunday. Don't forget the lessons which you learned at your mother's knees."

One thing Christianity does: it creates respect for parents. If our parents are living, let's be Christian in our attitude toward them; if dead, then let us honor and treasure their memory. No good thing will ever come out of being disrespectful to one's parents. Harry Truman has set us a good example in showing respect to and for our parents.

1948. Plans are well under way for a general assembling of the World Council of Churches at Amsterdam. It is estimated that the churches which will be represented at this world gathering (if time of man's rule still functions) will embrace one hundred seventy-five million members. So important is this conclave considered, even the Roman Catholic Church will send unofficial observers.

Groundwork planning was done at the recent conference held at Buck Hill Falls, Pennsylvania. A statement was issued by the conferees on the conclusion of their work. It read: "At this crisis in the existence of mankind, we are compelled to confess that the contrast between the high calling of the church and the visible institutions called churches is too too evident. . . ."

"We have failed (in the churches) because we have been partakers in man's disorder. Our first and deepest need is not new organization, but the renewal, or rather the rebirth, of the actual churches.

"Our churches are divided, and by their divisions the whole work of the church, both in speech and action, suffers most grievous harm."

The stronger a religious group becomes, the more suppressive it becomes in its control over its ministry. It must be apparent to everyone, that the many divisions of Protestantism have worked against its effective work. If there could be unity of effort without destroying individual conviction on truth itself and allow freedom of expression to such conviction, then unity would be highly desirable. To anticipate such is but a dream castle.

DESTRUCTION OF THE UNGODLY

(Fourth installment of a message in form of a letter prepared by John R. Fiske, South Haven, Kansas, for a friend believing in eternal torment.)

Dear Friend:

This week, we shall consider your remaining objections to the Bible truth of "Destruction of the Ungodly."

III

"Sorer punishment than death by stoning" (Heb. 10:28). The Mosaic "death" was severe, but lasted only a short time compared with "stripes," few or many, that rejectors of Christ will receive before being "devoured." Murdock's Syriac has it: "How much more, think ye, will he receive [what?] capital punishment?" Is "capital punishment" endless torture? But the "capital punishment" under Moses, with the pains that culminated in it, is not to be compared with the "capital punishment" of the judgments with the "stripes" and "anguish" that culminate in it. It is far worse. Read again your references and see how nicely they agree with the foregoing.

IV

"It makes the punishment simply non-existent." Mistake! See answers to objections 1-3. Luke 13:28-38; Romans 2:8, 9 is during the time "stripes," few or many, are "rendered"; culminating in "death" as "the end." (Rom. 6:21.)

V

"The doctrine of destruction makes suffering of the wicked terminate at death" or "at the judgment." That is true. Their "stripes," whether few or many, are finally received, and death, the "second," is their "end." (Rom. 6:21.) "Punishment," my friend, sometimes means loss of life; and, since the wicked will just as literally "lose his life" (Matt. 10:39) in the judgment as does the Christian martyr in this life, that loss is absolutely endless. An endless loss is an endless punishment to the loser.

VI

"Death is the whole punishment." Read answers to objections 1-5 to see how mistaken you are in considering "the end" as the "whole punishment." "The righteous die." Yes, "the common death of all men," but that is not punishment for personal sins. There is a post-resurrectional "death," termed the "second," a "return," my friend, "to sheol" (Rev. 20:11-15; Psalm 9:17, R.V.) to be experienced by whoever's "name is not found written in the book of life"—the wicked. The righteous will not experience it (Dan. 12:1; 7:9, 10). They will be delivered."

VII

"It [literal death] stamps as a deception the horrors of the punishment of the wicked." In what sense does "death," the "second," stamp as a "deception" the Biblical punishment of the wicked? It certainly shows endless suffering to be a cruel deception. When the "stripes," few and many, will have been given, then their "end"—"death"—is reached. (Rom. 6:21.) Their "end" is "to be burned" (Heb. 6:8), Paul said, and I believe him!

VIII

"Prime doctrine of infidelity." Thanks (!) for your courteous (?) statement. But do they believe in a "capital punishment" with its preliminary pains that culminate in it beyond the resurrection (Rev. 20:11-15; Psalm 9:17, R.V.; Job 21:30)? Do they?

TELL ME HIS NAME

By Marion Ellsworth, Blanchard, Michigan

A MISSIONARY to China had told the story of Jesus to a group of natives. In the group was a woman from a village several miles distant. Late that night, there was a knock at the door of the house where the missionary lay sleeping. Opening the door, the missionary saw this woman who had returned. She said: "I could not remember the name of the Man who died for me. Will you not tell it to me again?" From the foregoing story, I have written the following lines:

They told me the beautiful story

Of how in the manger He lay,
While the wonderful star just above Him
Lighted the night as the day.

They told how the shepherds in worship
Knelt there in the forage and grain.
If they told me His name, I've forgotten—
Oh! Will you not tell it again?

Chorus—

Oh! Will you not tell it again?

Oh! Will you not tell it again?

Of the Babe in that Bethlehem manger—

Oh! Will you not tell it again?

They told how the angels in glory

Sang hosanna and praise to the King;
They said He was born to redeem us
And would peace and good will to earth bring.
They told how the Magi had blessed Him,
Of how o'er the desert they came,
But His name I do not remember—
Oh! Will you not tell it again?

They called Him the "Blessed Redeemer"—

They called Him the "Bright Morning Star."
They told how His Kingdom of glory
Would spread o'er the lands, near and far.
They called Him the "Lamb without blemish"—
They told of His suffering and pain,
But His mother, what name did she give Him?
Oh! Will you not tell me His Name?

"PREACH THE WORD"

translation, Paul also said, beginning with 2 Timothy 4:5, "As for you, you must exercise habitual self-control." Oh! what sound advice for every Christian, but especially for the young minister! This is of vital importance because you cannot expect to discipline God's people unless you discipline yourself—all the time. This self-discipline must be habitual, constant, and there is no substitute.

Live not a self-indulgent life. Paul knew that an unrestrained life would destroy the effectiveness of one's teaching. One of the first rules is, "Practice what you preach," and the minister's life should be an example of service to others, even as Jesus came not to be ministered unto, but to minister and to give Himself for others.

"Do the work of an evangelist" and fully discharge the obligations of your office. Henceforth, you have a responsibility that is greater than that laid upon others. Your obligations are first to the Lord and His people. If you fulfill your duty to God in all things, He will help you and take care of the things you cannot do while you are doing His will.

Your training has just begun. Learn well the lessons God will teach you, and serve Him faithfully until Jesus returns. May God richly bless you in your ministry.

STUDY OF THE DEATH PENALTY

upon him," is quoted on behalf of the substitution idea. Young's Concordance shows that this word occurs three times in the Old Testament, and once in the New, and in every instance the word signifies instruction. Thus we have, "The instruction of our peace was upon him." This surely is in accordance with His life practice, for if any man was instructed by another, Jesus the Christ was instructed by His Father. John the Baptist said, "Behold the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world." He could not substitute death for more than one. If Jesus died for me, He could not die again for you. But Jesus could die on behalf of all (collectively). (See John 11:50-52, inclusive.) Thus, Jesus left responsibility to the individual to claim the benefit of that death by fulfilling certain conditions. "He died for all." He said of Himself, "The bread which I will give is my flesh, for the life of the world" (John 6:51). When was the "life of the world" forfeited? When man in childless state sinned and became liable to death, and man had within in him the potential life of future generations. It is just here that ransom comes in. The penalty was commuted, and while natural death was not rescinded, opportunity was given for the continuance of the Adamic race. Adam's acceptance of the skins assured this. From Young's Concordance it will be seen that one meaning of "ransom" is "to cover." Thus the aprons "covered" the potential life of the world as well as their own. The other meaning given by Young is, "A corresponding price." It was the Bread of life for the life of the world, but only made "good" individually, by acceptance by the individual of the Bread of Life for himself. It is "whosoever" (John 3:16) believeth on Him that "shall not perish." The life of the world consists of individuals. The penalty of Genesis 2:17 and that of Genesis 3:19 can apply only to Adam, for it was pronounced on him while he was yet without issue. Further, a penalty cannot be redeemed, but the life of the repentant sinner may be. That the promise of redemption from death was passed on to Cain and Abel is certain. Abel's offering of the first-fruits of the flock is proof of that. Cain's offering was rejected because it ignored the blood (which is the life) and the first-fruits which were demanded. "Christ died, the just for the unjust, that he might bring us to God." He died: not instead of us, but on our behalf.

ISAIAH'S PLEA TO REPENTANCE

Their covenant with death seemed to be accepted by everyone: from the high to the low, and the rich to the poor. In Isaiah 28:15, we read: "We [Israel] have made a covenant with death, and with hell are we at agreement; when the overflowing scourge shall pass through, it shall not come unto us: for we have made lies our refuge, and under falsehood have we hid ourselves." Considering the Israelites' situation at this time, there was not much else they could do: they had turned away from God almost completely. Still, God's prophets were present—constantly reminding the Israelites of their failure to serve Him. They were surrounded by heathen only because they had failed to follow the Word of the Lord to destroy all of them, and thus the Israelites followed them in their heathenish practices. They assumed then, contrary to their better judgment, a self-assured attitude that they would never fall as a nation. They had not fallen yet, so why should they fall now? Were they not a strong people with strong friends? . . . Similarly, have you not heard people say, "Christ will not come. He has not come yet; so why should He come now?" He is coming again! Coming as surely as the Babylonians came and carried away the children of Israel into captivity!

The Israelites had been told what they were to do. "Now, Israel, what doth the Lord thy God require of thee, but to fear the Lord thy God, to walk in all his ways, and to love him, and to serve the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul?" (Deut. 10:12.) We who are Christians are given similar instruction in Matthew 22:37, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind." Had the Israelites followed instructions, they would have saved themselves much trouble. Are we to face similar trouble merely because we fail to observe our instruction? The next verse in Matthew states that this required love for God is the first and great commandment. Can we live forever under a covenant with death?

Words of Isaiah, given to the children of Israel, are also for us: "Wash you, make you clean; put away the evil of your doings from before mine eyes; cease to do evil; learn to do well; seek judgment, relieve the oppressed, judge the fatherless, plead for the widow. Come now, and let us reason together, saith the Lord: though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool."

ASSEMBLY LINES

By Beatrice L. Walter

On the assembly lines today,
The mind of man with skill has planned
The cog and gear that daily turn
The implements of death for man.

I stand amazed amid the throng
Who rush midst strife, without a fear—
More crude, destructive arms of war
To build than were of former year.

I gaze into the battlefield
Where countless heroes now have died;
I see the curse of sin in bloom,
And view today man's mortal pride.

I hear the roar of cannon guns,
The bursting of the booming shell;
Though sin has progressed very slow,
Its wage is sickness, death, and hell.

But God, the unseen mightier Power,
Now, too, has called some into place;
For there are those whom He had chosen
And for the Kingdom hewn to shape.

Two mighty powers: one God, one man,
With naked eye, one can be seen,
The other is a power divine,
A mystery, stranger than a dream.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by

National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois

The Restitution Herald is official organ of the General Conference of the Church of God.

Subscription rate: 50 issues per year, $2.50.

The Restitution Herald advocates: the near return of Christ (Acts 1:11), and life only through Him (Col. 3:3); the literal resurrection of the dead (John 5:28); the immortalization of those in Christ (1 Cor. 15:53, 54); the destruction of the wicked (Rev. 21:8); the final restoration of Israel as the Kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ (Luke 1:32), the church to be joint-heirs with Him (Rom. 8:17), and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations (Isa. 60:1-3); the "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21). It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

Gleanings From the Field

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

A recent note from Carnation Apiaries, Mount Morris, Ill., called attention to the beauty of 1 Peter 2:9, speaking of Christians' call "out of darkness into his [the Lord's] marvellous light."

Mr. and Mrs. L. D. McLain, former employees of National Bible Institution and now employed in Maywood, Ill., recently visited their son and daughter-in-law, Bro. and Sr. C. Alan McLain, Dixon, Ill., and were guests of Bro. and Sr. Lewis Lindsay, Oregon, Ill.

Bro. Fred E. Hall, preaching at Bear, Cleveland, and Morrilton, Ark., reports: "Attendance has increased considerably over the winter months, and I am getting better co-operation."

The Bergen Church of God, southeast of Lester Prairie, Minn., conducted its annual business meeting, Wednesday evening, June 11.

Bro. and Sr. Lyle Ward, Lawrenceville, Ill., are the happy parents of a son, David Lyle, born June 2. Congratulations! Sr. Ward (nee Margaret Cooper), is a daughter of Bro. J. W. Cooper of Ripley, Ill. The new arrival is welcomed by a sister, Janice, and a brother, Kenneth.

The Fonthill, Ont., Church of God will broadcast a "Church of the Air" program at 10:30 a.m., Friday, June 20, at a new broadcasting station in Niagara Falls, Ont.

Bro. L. W. Moore, Jr., pastor of the Church of God at Macomb, Ill., reports that Bro. M. W. Lyon, National Evangelist, will conduct a series of evening services, June 16-20, at the Macomb Church. Also, Bro. Moore reports a successful Vacation Bible School—attendance having reached a new record of seventy-five.

"Vacation Bible School is in 'full swing' here."—R. O. Hardesty, 1024 N. 33d St., Omaha, Nebr.

Bros. Emory Muey and Alvin Shaw, Kokomo, Ind., and Bro. Delbert Jones, Michigantown, Ind., recently visited in Minnesota and attended the conference at Eden Valley. En route homeward, they visited briefly at the Otto E. Dick and Sydney E. Magaw homes—between 2:30 and 3:30 a.m. Come again, and fear not to importune us for three loaves of bread. (Luke 11:5-8.)

Born to Bro. and Sr. Richard Smith, Lawrenceville, Ohio, June 4, a baby daughter, Virginia Louise. Congratulations!

The building fund of the Pennellwood Church of God, Grand Rapids, Mich., is approaching the $9,000.00 mark—this not including the $1,000.00 already used for the pipe organ.

Sr. Ruth Hoskins, nurse at Warmolts' Clinic, Oregon, Ill., is vacationing among relatives and brethren in Minnesota, chiefly at Eden Valley, her former home.

"In a short time, the Summer Bible School at Oregon, Ill., will get under way. These short sessions in religious education and training have an immeasurable influence on the lives of the young folk attending. Many of those who have felt the call to the ministry received their first inspiration at the Summer School. We heartily commend the Summer School to our church youth."—C. E. Randal, Fonthill, Ont.

"I hope to be at General Conference this summer."—Dr. Gertrude M. Logan, 4318 Olive St., Saint Louis, Mo.

Promotional Director, Bro. James M. Watkins, left Oregon, Ill., June 11, for Eden Valley, Minn., where he served as guest speaker for the Annual Minnesota Conference.

Sr. Laura Bankston, Ponchatoula, La., plans to enter the freshman class next fall at Oregon Bible College.

What Have You Learned?

1. What two men do we remember (spies) who searched the land of Canaan for the Israelites? (Num. 14:6, 24.)
2. How did they describe the land of Canaan? (Num. 14:8.)
3. What kind of offerings did the Israelites make to the tabernacle that pleased God? (Ex. 35:29.)
4. Why were the Levites not numbered for war? (Num. 1:50; 3:45.)
5. How did the Israelites get water for themselves to drink and for their cattle while in the wilderness? (Num. 20:8.)
6. How did Moses sin? (Num. 20:10, 11.)
7. How was he to be punished? (Num. 20:12.)
8. What punishment was sent to the Israelites for their complaining? (Num. 21:6.)
9. How was their sin of complaining overcome before the Lord? (Num. 21:7, 8.)
10. Who is lifted up before us, upon whom we must look and believe to be saved? (John 3:14, 15.)
11. What wise man from the East listened to God and blessed the Israelites instead of cursing them? (Num. 24:10.)
12. How did God try to get the Israelites to be good and holy? (Lev. 19:2, 19.)
13. What man was chosen to be the leader after Moses? (Num. 27:18.)
14. What was the priest, Eleazar, to do? (Num. 27:21.)
15. Where did the tribes of Reuben and Gad inherit their land? (Num. 32:19.)
16. How did Moses warn the Israelites against worshipping idols? (Deut. 29:25-28.)

Moses Views the Land

God had told Moses to go up into the mountain of Nebo. From this high place, he could get a view of the Land of Promise. It must have been a wonderful view, because the Lord showed it to him. (Deut. 34:1.)

The Lord said to Moses: "This is the land which I swear unto Abraham, unto Isaac, and unto Jacob, saying, I will give it unto thy seed: I have caused thee to see it with thine eyes, but thou shalt not go over thither" (Deut. 34:4).

How beautiful the land must have looked to Moses! God "caused" him to see it with his eyes "unto the utmost sea" and "the city of palm trees." One would need to have God help him to see the palm trees from such a great distance!

Then God buried Moses, after he died up there on the mountain; in a valley in the land of Moab was he laid. No one knows where he was buried "unto this day" (Deut. 34:6).

Moses lived to be one hundred twenty years of age. His eyes were bright and his body strong and healthy. His work for God was finished, so he died. We do not know what caused his death. We do know that the children of Israel wept for him for thirty days.

Moses knew God and talked to Him. The Word says "face to face" (Deut. 34:10), but Moses did not see God's face. He did see His back parts at one time. (Ex. 33:20-23.) When Moses went up into the mountain to receive the commandments, God was in a cloud. Still Moses' face was so bright from being so close to God that Moses wore a veil (Ex. 34:33, 35) before the people.

The Baby in the Ark

When we think of Moses and the Israelites, we sometimes forget his childhood. He was born at the time the boy babies were being put to death. Pharaoh was afraid the Israelites would grow too strong and overcome the Egyptians. (Ex. 1:22.) So they were throwing the Israelites' boy babies into the river. But Moses' mother hid Moses for three months. Then she made an ark of bulrushes and hid him in the river. (Ex. 2:3.) It was there that the ruler's daughter found him and adopted him. Years later, he became the leader of his own people, having given up the position of wealth he might have had in Egypt.

Berean Stewardship

An important part of the educational program of the Berean Society should be the training of young minds in the importance of Christian stewardship. A sound financial program is equally as important for the local and National Berean Society as it is for the church, for the Berean Society must support itself and boost its own expansion and growth. In learning the lesson of financial responsibility while young, the groundwork is laid for the development of active adult church members.

The dues system of the Society ($.05 per week) is designed to meet only the running expenses of the local and national society, and you easily can see that it hardly will allow for much expansion, building, or publishing. We must keep youthful interest increasing with more unselfish constructive work, and more work means more expenses, and more expenses means a need for some sound financial thinking.

For instance, The Guiding Star, the new Berean publication, hardly can be financed by dues alone; not at a cost of forty-odd dollars per issue. Bereans long have felt the need for just such a paper, to unify its scattered members, present practical lesson material, distribute news, and publicize new ideas. Now it is here, interest is increasing, and we are responsible for its continuance.

Some local societies now have their own meeting places, recreation rooms. One at least, even has its own building. Such things come only by hard work and self-sacrifice and are maintained only by sound financial programs. All Berean societies should have their own meeting places and be responsible for their upkeep. Sure, it will cost money; and it should be raised by the Society itself, though it need not all come out of the pockets of the young people!

Our personal opinion is that there is also need for a worker (or many workers) in the field, whose sole purpose it would be to help new youth groups to organize, pep up old societies, unite local groups in district conferences, work out an interchanging gospel team program, organize youth rallies, and, in short, devote full time to helping the Berean Society to be a real influence among Church-of-God young people. This also would take money, and that means a more lively and challenging financial program is necessary.

Let us begin with the local society! What must it do to inaugurate a sound financial program? First of all, it must have a cause—and a worth-while cause it must be! Perhaps you need a mimeograph to begin publishing a paper, but you just never fall heir to enough money. You may need a new meeting place, a piano, money to sponsor a delegate to the Youth Rally, Oregon Bible College, or General Conference. You have a cause all right, but that is not enough!

Let a Finance Committee work with the treasurer to launch a program of advertising and education. Advertising can be limited to letting your need be known, keeping the goal always before the members, or such tangible action as asking for pledges. Let each committee decide.

Education in financial responsibility has year-around significance. Lessons, tracts, bulletins, and other forms of impression must be used constantly to insure that each member is aware that upon him rests a proportional part of the financial burden of the Lord's work. Such education is enhanced by showing that the money is being wisely used to the advantage of Christian young people.

The practical results of a solid financial system in the Berean Society are many. The society grows and prospers through the projects financed, the young people are more interested in that society in which they have an investment of time and money, and future church members are being trained at the proper age to be responsible church members upon graduation from the young people's class.

Be not backward about the financial work of your society, for it is a vital part of your present and future Berean program!

VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL Jordan, Missouri

The Vacation Bible School at Jordan, Mo., May 19-28, was much more successful than had been anticipated. We are very thankful for the privilege of having Mrs. Verna Thayer and Mabel Barnum to lead our School. The enrollment was 55 and the daily average attendance was 35. We hope next year to have another Vacation Bible School.

Francis Burnett.

MORNING STAR CHURCH OF GOD South Bend, Indiana

The Morning Star Church of God of the Abrahamic Faith has been enjoying an evangelistic meeting, which opened May 25. Bro. T. A. Drinkard, Arlington, Tex., has been speaker. The meetings have been well attended. During the service, one requested to be baptized. The group gathered at Pin Hook Park, May 28, at which time Mrs. Lawrence Miller was baptized.

We are glad to welcome Mr. J. Maggard of Scottsburg, Ind., who came to South Bend to attend Bro. Drinkard's meeting which closed June 8.

Mrs. Parau W. Anderson, Secy.

DEDICATION SERVICE

Happy Woods, Louisiana

Sunday, June 8, was a special day in several ways here at Happy Woods. First, it was our annual Children's Day, a day dedicated to the children of our Sunday school. Second, it was the day set aside for the dedication of our new classrooms to the service of God.

St. Eva Bottolfs and her program committee presented a wonderful program during the Sunday school hour which included regular classes. Choruses were sung by the children. The pastor gave a short talk concerning this theme, "Build the Sunday School, and the Sunday School Will Build the Church."

Attendance of sixty-seven for Children's Day surpassed all records established for many years. Average attendance for last month was fifty-one.

A dinner for everyone followed at 12:30 p.m. in our social room. Space does not permit us to describe all the good things that were on the table. We give the cooks "a pat on the back" for the wonderful meal they prepared.

At 2:00 p.m. Bro. V. D. Wolfe presented the dedication address. His remarks were well chosen and gave us inspiration. One of his thoughts was this: Our bodies are the real temples of God in the earth. Buildings are necessary, and good, but the most important thing is the right building of our own selves.

Several of the Blood River brethren were able to be with us. We hope they will worship with us again.

J. Mattison, Pastor

EVANGELIST SIMMONS' REPORT

During the month of May, I did full-time evangelistic work and had some satisfactory results. I am trying to build a church at Plainview, three miles from my home here in Oklahoma, but there are only four members of the faith living near us. I cannot tell what the outcome will be until I conduct a series of meetings. At Brookling, however, there are about ten members of the faith. Some of them have a long way to go in attending services, but there is much interest manifested at that place—even by members of other churches. On May 23, I preached at Waveland, Ark. Much interest was manifest there. Also, I preached three memorial sermons at three different places.

The fifth Sunday in June (June 29), I am scheduled to preach again at Waveland. Some of our members at Magazine, Ark., have promised to attend services at Waveland when I preach there again.

EDEN VALLEY, MINNESOTA
Obituary of Leslie Edwards

On Sunday morning, May 26, we were shocked to hear of the death of Leslie Edwards, Watkins, Minn. He had been a continuous member of the local church board during our seven-year pastorate here. Bro. Edwards was sixty-four years of age. He had been planning on retiring from active farming, which was his occupation at time of death.

Saturday morning (a few hours before his death), he was making preparations to visit a daughter (Edna) in Hector. Death was the result of cerebral hemorrhage.

The writer conducted services, in the presence of an overflowing crowd, in the local Church of God. We tried to show the sure uncertainty of life and the contrasts between the hope of the heathen and the Christian hope. He is now awaiting the return of the Author of Life, being buried in Eden Valley Cemetery just north of our village.

Bible School and Conference

We are now planning a Vacation Bible School. Sr. Clinton Appleby, Arlington, Neb., is to be with us. Also, Bro. James M. Watkins, Oregon, Ill., is to be with us for the June Conference, June 11-15.

W. Wiggins, Pastor.

MRS. ELLA C. CARPENTER

Ella Pakiser, daughter of Carl and Anna Beier Pakiser, was born at Omaha, Nebr., December 13, 1888. She was united in marriage to Francis G. Carpenter, September 17, 1918.

On May 29, 1938, she was baptized into the body of Christ, and she continued an active and zealous servant of the Lord until she was stricken suddenly ill three days before her death, May 3, 1947.

She is survived by her husband; four sisters, Mrs. G. A. Mulfinger, Mrs. Emma Sal-yards, and Mrs. E. W. Phillips, all of Omaha, and Miss Anna Pakiser of Seattle Wash.; and three brothers, Herman and Charles of Omaha, and Charles of Warren, Ohio.

Funeral services were conducted at "In the Garden" Mortuary on May 26, and interment was made in Forest Lawn Cemetery, Omaha.

Sr. Carpenter will be greatly missed by the Omaha church, for she was actively interested in its progress. R. O. Hardesty.

God's Intent for Man

God, first having created vegetation and animal life, made man in His own image to use and enjoy all the earthly creation. "Have dominion," said God, "over the fish . . . fowl . . . cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing . . . upon the earth." "Subdue it: and have dominion . . . and, behold it was very good."

"O Lord our Lord, how excellent is thy name in all the earth!" "Thou madest him [man] to have dominion over the works of thy hands; thou hast put all things under his feet . . . sheep and oxen . . . beasts of the field . . . fowl of the air . . . fish of the sea." (Psalm 8.) "The heavens, even the heavens, are the Lord's: but the earth hath he given to the children of men" (115:16). "What is man?" The highest of God's earthly creation: made in His image and intended to be owner and ruler of the earth. "Subdue." "Have dominion."

The "so great salvation" of Hebrews 2 includes this thought of man's victory and glory in the earth. "Unto the angels hath he [God] not put in subjection the world to come . . . but one [David] in a certain place [Psalm 8] testified, saying, What is man, that thou art mindful of him? . . . Thou madest him a little lower than the angels"—almost equal to them, however, and with the intent that someday he would be superior to them, even judging them (1 Cor. 6:3)—"thou crownedst him [man] with glory and honour, and didst set him over the works of thy hands" (Heb. 2:6, 7). Yes, Adam and Eve, you were King and Queen of the Garden. Yes, Adams and Eves, God intends that "all things" shall be put in subjection under your feet (v. 8). Provided!

Adam's Failure and Loss

Ashamed in nakedness, Adam and Eve acknowledged their sin. Then came thorns and thistles, sorrow, pain, death—and a barrier to the Tree of Life. Driven from the Garden, Adam and Eve lost their Dominion. Nor have they found it yet! Man and beast, alike, go "unto one place; all are of the dust, and all turn to dust again" (Eccl. 3:20). As one is born "of his mother's womb, naked shall he return to go as he came" (5:15). "There is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave, whither thou goest" (9:10). Moreover, the "whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together until now" (Rom. 8:22)—all races blighted by sin, crying, dying; and even the earth quaking, vomiting lava, reeling "to and fro like a drunkard" (Isa. 24:20).

In writing of "so great salvation," and in telling that God has made man only a little lower than the angels, intending man eventually to "have dominion," the Apostle Paul explained: "Now we see not yet all things put under him" (Heb. 2:8). That "not yet" expression is in itself an intimation that man eventually will "subdue" and "have dominion," but, of course, we cannot today see that victory. Well, Paul, what do we see? He replies in the next verse: "But we see Jesus!" More fully, "We see Jesus crowned with glory and honour."

Christ's Victory and Promise

Like Adam, Jesus too was "made a little lower than the angels," the purpose being that He might suffer death "for every man" (Heb. 2:9). Having thus faithfully served, Christ was "crowned with glory and honour." God "raised him from the dead, and set him at his own right hand . . . far above all principality, and power, and might, and dominion, and every name that is named, not only in this world, but also in that which is to come: and hath put all things under his feet" (Eph. 1:21, 22). Honor? Glory! Dominion? Ten thousandfold beyond the boundaries of Eden!

Why look only at Adam and his crop of sorrow and shame? "We see Jesus" immortalized, promise and earnest of our inheritance! The "man Christ Jesus," "mediator between God and men," mediates for you and me, that we may share someday in His victory.

Revelation's Vision of Dominion

"They sung a new song, saying, Thou art worthy to take the book, and to open the seals thereof; for thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by thy blood out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation; and hast made us unto our God kings and priests: and we shall reign on the earth" (Rev. 5:9, 10).

The Power of God's Word

By Gordon Landry, Oregon, Illinois

ONE NIGHT, a few years ago, several young boys were apprehended by a Chicago policeman while unlawfully entering the rear of a store. They were arraigned before a judge in privacy. The official conversed with the boys as friend to friend. Finding that the reasons for their disrupted lives were broken homes, the judge determined to do his utmost in teaching those boys righteousness and its attendant blessings. That judge was a Christian. Knowing that the boys classed themselves as "tough guys" and anything connected with the Bible as "sissified," he told them the story of the strongest man recorded in history—Samson.

"There was a man in Israel many years ago who was a leader of the people. He was a judge, but physically he was different from other judges. This judge possessed more strength than any other man of his day. At one time, he single-handedly slew thirty men with little effort. Another time, he carried on his shoulders to the top of a hill the massive doors to the gate of a city. Several times, this 'superman' amazed the land with his feats of strength. The enemies of this man's nation feared him more than they feared the army of the nation which he judged. Knowing they could not capture him unless his strength was abated, they tried to learn the secret of his stupendous power. Trickery was used and they soon learned a way to reduce his strength to that of any other man. Having done this, they bound him, put out his eyes, and brought him captive to their capital city. Great was the rejoicing of the enemy when they learned that the victory was theirs. This man no longer could harm them, they thought, for now he was blind.

"Poor, broken man! He seemed to have no friends in the world. Listening to the shouts of insults hurled at him from his enemies made him feel sick at heart. But there was one Friend to whom he could turn and be assured of help. That friend was God. Yes, the same God Christendom worships today. Well, this man (Samson was his name) trusted in God, and prayed to Him for assistance. When Samson was placed between the two pillars upon which the house stood, he received his aid from God, pushed the pillars apart, and stated as the stones crashed to the ground, 'Let me die with the Philistines.' There were screams and cries for help as more than three thousand of his enemies plunged to their death from the roof of the house.

"But this man Samson had not looked for trouble. He wanted peace, but at times his faith in God wavered. At other times, however, his faith in God abounded. The strength he possessed he received from God during those times that his faith was strong. When his strength left him and he was captured by his enemies, it was because he disobeyed the commandment of God.

"The same thing happens to you and me. You boys do not believe in God, so temptation to do evil is not easily overcome by you. If we believe in Him, He will strengthen you and me that we may overcome and be blessed."

Noting the boys' interest in this Biblical account presented in story fashion, the judge continued his instruction with a short narrative of the life of Christ. His closing remarks may have been something like this:

"There was a difference between the strength of Samson and the strength of Jesus, however. Samson's strength was physical; Jesus' strength was spiritual. Whereas Samson often failed, Jesus always succeeded. Christ was a spiritual giant, and yet He was perhaps the most humble man that ever lived. He, too, received strength from God, but He used that strength to overcome temptation, not to kill His enemies. When the mankind Jesus came to redeem nailed Him to the tree, He cursed it not. Instead, Jesus asked God's forgiveness upon those at the foot of the cross who were insinuating that He was a blasphemer of God.

"Jesus endured much suffering, pain, and anguish for you boys, and for me. The Prophet Isaiah wrote that Jesus was put on that tree, not because of His own sins, but because of our sins.

"I judge that the average age of you boys is sixteen. You are old enough to understand what I have told you of the love Jesus showed for you and (Please turn to page 10)

USE ME

"There is a destiny that makes us brothers;
None goes this way alone,
And what we send into the lives of others
Comes back into our very own
O God, take my life that has no renown,
Use what Thou canst of it; make it flow down
Far into the sea of some other soul—
To sweeten his life and help him be whole,
To help him win others, to help him be pure,
To help him touch thousands, and not be obscure.
Yea, make him reflect the light from Thy throne,
That his kindly deeds may be many and known,
And I shall not envy this loved one of Thine Though he shall long serve Thee with strength beyond mine."

Lest the Gospel Slip

By J. R. LeCrone, Woodstock, Virginia

THE WRITER of the Hebrew Letter opened his epistle with the declaration that "God, who at sundry times and in divers manners spake in time past unto the fathers by the prophets, hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son, whom he hath appointed heir of all things" (Heb. 1:1, 2). He then proceeded to bring Scriptural proof that Jesus has been "made so much better than the angels, as he hath by inheritance obtained a more excellent name than they" (Heb. 1:4).

Having established, beyond any possibility of honest doubt, that Jesus occupies a position far superior to that held by the angels of heaven, the writer made it clear why he considered this fact of such great importance to Christians. "Therefore we ought to give the more earnest heed to the things which we have heard, lest at any time we should let them slip. For if the word spoken by angels was steadfast, and every transgression and disobedience received a just recompense of reward; how shall we escape, if we neglect so great salvation; which at the first began to be spoken by the Lord, and was confirmed unto us by them that heard him; God also bearing them witness, both with signs and wonders, and with divers miracles, and gifts of the Holy Ghost, according to his own will?" (Heb. 2:1-4.)

These words carry added weight and meaning when we remember that they were not written for the benefit of unbelievers, but for Christians. If, reasons the writer, the fathers were held responsible for obeying every command delivered to them by angels, how much more shall we be held responsible for our obedience to the words delivered to us by the Son who occupies a position in the plan of God which is so much higher than that occupied by the angels?

The key words to the passage are found in verses 1 and 3. They are "let slip" and "neglect." No one who gives careful thought to this passage can fail to be impressed with the thought that the writer of this message (generally supposed to have been Paul) was warning his readers concerning the terrible results of neglecting the gospel which they had embraced. He was attempting to correct the idea that having once believed and been baptized into the Name of Jesus the Christ, they had no further obligations or tasks to perform. If they would "escape" (be saved), they must continue to "give earnest heed" to the words of the gospel which they had heard.

A glance at the marginal rendering of the word "slip" quickly dispels any doubt as to what the Apostle had in mind. In the margin is suggested the alternate rendering of the word as to "run out as leaking vessels." He was warning the Hebrew brethren of the danger of becoming negligent with regard to their Christianity and letting it gradually slip away from them. Other translations and versions support the thought of a gradual loss of Christian understanding and zeal by employing such phrases as "glide away" (Diaglott), "lest we drift away from it" (R.S.V.), "to keep from ever losing our hold upon it" (Goodspeed), "for fear we should drift away from them" (Weymouth), and "lest we should let glide away" (Bullinger).

In each case, there is no thought of the deliberate putting away of the words of Jesus, but that indifference and negligence may permit them to drift or leak away from us.

Apparently, the Apostle had observed a tendency on the part of the early Christians to lose their first zeal for the words of Jesus, to become more careless and indifferent as time passed. We need set forth no arguments or statistics to convince our readers that the same sad condition may be observed in the Church of God today. Rare, indeed, is the Christian who consciously weighs the evidence, computes his gain or loss from such action, and then deliberately decides to abandon his Christianity. The Christian brother, however, who has reached the same unhappy state through careless negligence is not far to seek. In fact, we meet him at every turn, and many of the projects of the church fail to accomplish their aims because of his refusal to co-operate. He it is who appears to possess the time and money for everything but Christian service. You will find him listed among the inactive members of your congregation.

Ask this so-called Christian if he has lost faith in the Son of God and denied his Master, and his answer will be an indignant, "Certainly not!" (Please turn to page 10)

“We Shall Judge Angels”

By Emma C. Railsback, Los Angeles, California

THE APOSTLE PAUL, when making the statement, “We shall judge angels,” was correcting wrong conditions and practices in the church at Corinth. There were many wrong conditions in this church. The particular one in this connection was going to law before the unjust, or before worldly judges, instead of settling difficulties “before the saints.” He first called the Corinthians’ attention to the fact that the saints will judge the world in the future. This is foretold by David in Psalm 49:14, by Daniel in 7:22, by Christ to the apostles in Matthew 19:28, by Paul in Romans 8:17, and in many other texts.

Angels are messengers, sometimes natural, mortal men, but more often heavenly immortals. When we see the word “angel,” our mind jumps immediately to the teaching of our childhood days. Angels were heavenly beings with white robes and wings, passing swiftly from heaven to earth and delivering messages, and finally returning to the presence of God. The Prophet Daniel spoke of the angel Gabriel being caused to “fly” swiftly. This and other texts no doubt explain the pictures of angels with wings. Also the fact that the seraphim and cherubim are described with six and four wings individually would lead one to believe that angels have wings. This is not the phase of the subject that we wish to emphasize. Rather who are the angels who will be judged by the saints in the coming age? Again, who were the “angels that sinned” mentioned by Peter and Jude?

In the Old Testament the Hebrew word is malal and is used 209 times: being translated angel 111 times, and messenger 98 times. As we read of the angels of the Lord appearing to Hagar, Abraham, Lot, Jacob, and others, we are convinced that these are heavenly messengers sent directly from God. Then, again, the stories of Balaam, Gideon, and Manoah are full of interest, and the context reveals them (the angels) as being immortals sent to guide those in need of help and instruction from God.

When we examine texts where the word malak has been translated “messenger,” we find that mortal men were sent by other mortals. In Genesis 32:3, 6, Jacob sent messengers to Esau. In Numbers 20:14, Moses sent messengers to the king of Edom. In Judges 6:35, Gideon sent messengers to the different tribes of Israel. There are many instances of the kind where the context reveals conclusively that the malal were mortals.

Turn now to Haggai 1:13: “Then spake Haggai the Lord’s messenger in the Lord’s message unto the people, saying, I am with you, saith the Lord.” Ezra 5:1 gives the time God sent this mortal messenger with a message to Israel. Again, the priests under the Mosaic covenant are spoken of as the “messengers of the Lord of hosts” (Mal. 2:7).

The Greek word for “angels” is aggelos and is translated angel 171 times and messenger 7 times. It would seem that the translators attempted to use the word “angel” where they thought the messenger was from heaven, and “messenger” if they thought he was mortal, but in some instances they misjudged. In Luke 7:24, the messengers of John were mortals; and in James 2:25, there is a quotation from the Old Testament concerning Rahab referring to these messengers (aggelos) of Joshua. Now Paul referred to these messengers as spies; and, in Joshua 2:1, they are called just that. Jesus “sent messengers [aggelos] before his face” (Luke 9:52). All these were mortal angels as the context clearly reveals.

Now in 2 Peter 2:4, we read: “If God spared not the angels that sinned, but cast them down to hell, and delivered them into chains of darkness, to be reserved unto judgment . . .” Jude 6 records: “The angels which kept not their first estate [“principality,” margin], but left their old habitation, he hath reserved in everlasting chains under darkness unto the judgment of the great day.” Both Peter and Jude were pointing to God’s dealings in the past with sinful messengers. To get the story to which they refer, read it in Numbers 13 and 14. These were not the two faithful spies sent by Joshua to Rahab, but the ten unfaithful ones sent by Moses into Canaan. They were the heads of tribes, “rulers among them,” sometimes called princes, who had witnessed many of the mighty works of God. They “kept not their principality,” their high position as leaders of God’s people after He had given them so many demonstrations of His great love and power in their behalf. “The men, which Moses sent to search the land, who returned, and made all the congregation to murmur against him, by bringing up a slander upon the land, even those men, that did bring up the evil report upon the land, died by the plague before the Lord” (Num. 14:36, 37). They were the aggelos that sinned to whom Peter and Jude referred. A plague sent them directly to hell (the grave). Death is the chain that holds them in darkness unto the judgment of the great day.

As Paul reasoned concerning Christ and the heavenly angels in Hebrews 1 and 2, we learn that they are all ministering spirits, sent forth (Please turn to page 10)

Isaiah's Message to Hezekiah

By Milon Hall, Oregon, Illinois

ISAAH, a true prophet of the Lord, learned at time of his call that his primary task was to warn his people Israel of judgment to come—of judgment including extermination of his people. Isaiah 38, telling of Isaiah's life and teachings, stressing the element of active judgment in Isaiah's life, plus the Lord's action through him to proclaim that judgment and then to postpone the prediction given in the first decree, is somewhat typical of Isaiah's writing. This chapter is typical also because it records the miraculous way the Lord worked through Isaiah—as through all His prophets. The sign God gave to Hezekiah to prove the promise of the lengthening of his days was the miracle of turning the sun back ten degrees.

Now, as to the action recorded in this chapter: it is dramatic in every phase. There is more accomplished than that which first meets the eye. First, Hezekiah revealed a great faith in the God of David, his father. (Cp. 2 Kings 18:3.) So great was his faith in the Lord, that it was written, "He trusted in the Lord God of Israel; so that after him was none like him among all the kings of Judah, nor any that were before him, for he clave to the Lord" (vv. 5, 6). Though he was "sick unto death," he turned not from the Lord, for he gave audience to the man of God without question and he believed Isaiah's message to be from God. He doubted not for a minute. We read in verse 2, "Then Hezekiah turned his face to the wall, and prayed unto the Lord." Immediately upon hearing Isaiah, he turned and prayed. Such faith cannot go unmentioned. How often do we falter! How often do we wait—until the crowd is not looking—to turn to the Lord!

As evidence of Hezekiah's faith, he was healed, he continued to live another fifteen years, thus receiving a sign and a proof of God's answer to his prayer. God's answer to his faith! What more could a man ask? We Christians have a promise of more. We have a promise of eternal life: not just a few more years of this life in this Age, but a new and endless life in a new world. What will hinder us from receiving this new life? Only ourselves! Reading further in Isaiah 38, we learn that Hezekiah was not ashamed to proclaim his faith, his blessings from God, nor his conception of the plan of God for him and us after death. In considering Hezekiah's life, we certainly can understand why God heard his prayer.

Our next consideration (one that seems to evade our attention) is the position of Isaiah in the picture. He seemed to be merely a tool or instrument used to portray a story or event in history or to teach a lesson. When we look deeper into the plot and try to understand our actors, however, it is revealed that the true lessons to be found are in the actors themselves. Isaiah, son of Amoz, of whom we know little, came to stand before the king of Judah, before the one man in all the kingdom who could have him slain for any reason. Isaiah said to King Hezekiah: "Set thine house in order: for thou shalt die, and not live."

Certainly Hezekiah wanted to see Isaiah, though the Prophet's worldly position was inferior to that of the king's. Isaiah, though, believed in Jehovah as did Hezekiah, and made it plain that the message was from the Lord. In the course of events of this thirty-eighth chapter, Isaiah revealed several truths from the Lord. Some of these truths came as unfavorable news, some as good; but regardless of the effects of his proclamations, Isaiah stated them boldly and fearlessly, confident that the Lord was with him. Isaiah, then, was blessed with an unmovable faith. He followed without question every commandment of the Lord. He spoke the word of the Lord without reservation, even going so far as to prophesy that the sun would move backwards. Faith? Unquestioning faith! Can it be equalled today? Undoubtedly, it can.

Today, denominations believe differently one from the other. Hezekiah believed a doctrine similar to ours. As revealed in verse 18, he believed that there was no life in the grave, and hence no knowledge of God. Also, he recognized that forgiveness of sin was necessary for him to be restored to health. "Behold, for peace I had great bitterness: but thou hast in love to my soul delivered it from the pit of corruption: for thou hast cast all my sins behind my back" (v. 17). This thought of Hezekiah's coincides with the teachings of Christ; for in Matthew 9:5 we read: "Whether is easier, to say, Thy sins be forgiven thee; or to say, Arise, and walk?" Hezekiah, then, was not far from the truth of Jesus, the Son of God, as we believe it. If this ancient king could recognize the message of God from the limited teachings he had, what excuses can we give for not teaching those truths today?

It is true that we accept Hebrews 11 as one of the most prominent faith chapters in the Bible, but consider the evidences of faith in Isaiah 38. Here are recorded true examples of the way faith in God influenced the lives of some of the most prominent men of that time. Isaiah, without a doubt, was a true prophet of the Lord. Not only did he live true to his calling, but he also influenced those about him to live in complete devotion to God.

WHAT IS THE TRINITY?

By Donald Perkins, Fredericktown, Missouri

WHAT is the Trinity? Some Bible students think that Christ and God are the same. Are not God and Christ two Persons? or are they only one?

Webster's Dictionary gives this definition of Trinity: "The union of three Persons (the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit) in one Godhead, so that all three are one as to substance, but three persons as to individuality."

What, though, does the Bible say about Christ and God and the Holy Spirit being One? Compare the following verses with what Webster says about Trinity:

"In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. The same was in the beginning with God. All things were made by him; and without him was not any thing made that was made" (John 1:1-3). . . . Though these verses are quoted frequently in support of Christ being co-existent with God, they actually show that God alone created everything. He created "all things" by His Word. "He spake, and it was done; he commanded, and it stood fast" (Psalm 33:9). Four thousand years elapsed between Adam and Christ.

Here listed are numerous texts showing God and Christ as being two Persons, separate and distinct:

"To us there is but one God, the Father, of whom are all things, and we in him; and one Lord Jesus Christ, by whom are all things, and we by him" (1 Cor. 8:6).

"Have we not all one father? hath not one God created us? Why do we deal treacherously every man against his brother, by profaning the covenant of our fathers?" (Mal. 2:10.)

"One God and Father of all, who is above all, and through all, and in you all" (Eph. 4:6).

"Of him, and through him, and to him, are all things: to whom be glory for ever" (Rom. 11:36).

"Therefore let all the house of Israel know assuredly, that God hath made that same Jesus, whom ye have crucified, both Lord and Christ" (Acts 2:36).

"To make all men see what is the dispensation of the mystery which for ages hath been hid in God who created all things" (Eph. 3:9, R.V.).

"This is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent. I have glorified thee on the earth: I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do. And now, O Father, glorify thou me with thine own self with the glory which I had [prospectively] with thee before the world was" (John 17:3-5).

"God, who at sundry times and in divers manners spake in time past unto the fathers by the prophets, hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son, whom he hath appointed heir of all things, by whom also he made the worlds. . . . Thou, Lord, hast laid the foundation of the earth; and the heavens are the works of thine hands" (Heb. 1:1, 2, 10).

"I said, O my God, take me not away in the midst of my days: thy years are throughout all generations" (Psalm 102:24). Of whom is this speaking? Is this not speaking of God the Creator of all things?

"Thus saith the Lord that created the heavens; God himself that formed the earth and made it; he hath established it, he created it not in vain, he formed it to be inhabited: I am the Lord; and there is none else" (Isa. 45:18).

"Whosoever denieth the Son, the same hath not the Father: [but] he that acknowledgeth the Son hath the Father also. Let that therefore abide in you, which ye have heard from the beginning. If that which ye have heard from the beginning shall remain in you, ye shall continue in the Son, and in the Father" (1 John 2:23, 24).

Faith at Work

All will be interested in seeing the progress that is being made on the new church at Fredericktown, Missouri. Begun over a year ago under the pastoral leadership of Brother Roy Graham, work has gone forward against many handicaps to the point where it now can be used for services, although not yet complete. It has a very pleasing and stable exterior of red granite, plus very spacious and practical interior facilities that provide amply for the complete needs of a modern church. Its erection, plan, and appearance will be a credit to our work everywhere and a sound example of a living faith at work—Co-ordination Department.

News and Prophecy Digest

By C. E. Randall, Fonthill, Ontario

DAY OF PRAYER. A proclamation has been issued by the King of England, setting aside July 6, as a day of prayer. Commenting on this special appeal to Almighty God, a group of Anglican bishops said: "Only by long and severe exertions can we secure the necessities of our national life. The severity of the task demands that all thought of personal advantage and sectional interests be subordinated to the common good. All forms of distrust and dishonest dealing should be laid aside, all should freely give of the best that is in them, and we should be united by a common code of honor, ideals, and fellowship."

The stress and strain of economic and political problems have caused the people of England to feel their need of divine assistance. If the crisis through which the Mother Country has been passing serves to arouse a consciousness of the nation to its dependence on God, it will have served a good purpose. It is only through the hardships and sufferings of life that the majority of mankind come to realize their need of Jehovah. Few love Him because He first loved them. It was ever true with the Israelites, when God chastened them, they returned and sought early after God. We should not despise the chastenings of the Lord. If England has suffered as a chastening from the Lord, let us not point a finger of warning at her; but, rather, let us examine our own standing before God lest we should come under a greater condemnation.

NATIONAL MORALS.

The Southern Baptist Convention was recently held in Saint Louis. During the meeting, several dangers to the morals of the country were singled out for study and pointed out to the people by way of warning. Five dangers were grouped together. They are: (1) The unhalting march of intemperance. 2) Rapidly spreading defiance of the sanctity of marriage and the home, with the consequent delinquencies and tragedies. 3) Unchristian attitudes in industrial relations. 4) The wave of gambling that sweeps the nation. 5) Continuance of unchristian discrimination in race relationships."

Elaborating on number 3, the Commission said: "Our churches are responsible for the spiritual well-being of our members and society and all persons are greatly affected by the economic environment in which they mature. . . . We do not believe that the church can take sides in the struggle. We cannot give aid to management in any struggle against unions, nor can we be identified with the co-operative movements. To do so would be to negate the greater mission of the church. The Kingdom of God cannot be coerced into the narrowness of labor unions, industrial management, or co-operatives. Rather must all these patterns be brought under the judgment of the Kingdom of God."

It is not very often these days that a pronouncement comes from a large church group advocating that the church refrain from active participation in the affairs of the world. More and more the larger church bodies are taking active sides on the social, economic, racial, and political issues of the times. The work of the church is spiritual; and the more it confines its efforts to the preaching of the gospel of the Kingdom of God, the closer it will be to fulfilling its divine mission.

A PROGRAM. In an editorial in a late issue of "The Christian Advocate," the editor, Roy L. Smith, under caption of "Methodism Must Have a Program," he says in part: "If it is good business for great industrial organizations to set up goals, then it is also good business for the churches to do so. We raised $27,000,000 because we set out for at least $25,000,000. If we had been content to collect all we can, we would undoubtedly have missed at least $10,000,000.

"We received slightly in excess of one million persons into our membership because we set out for a million. If we had not had a goal we would have fallen short of that figure by several hundred thousand."

The twenty-seven million dollars which the Methodists raised was largely an investment in helping their fellow brothers in other lands re-establish themselves. This great financial contribution without doubt inspired them to greater zeal in their local efforts to win a million people for a definite decision for the Lord.

The New Testament is very explicit in its program for the Church of God. Without an understanding and an appreciation of this objective, any body of believers is most likely to fall far short of reaching the goal. The program of the New Testament church comprehends and embraces the needs of everyone, whether young or old. This program is building the individual into the body of the Lord Jesus Christ through the gospel of the Kingdom. The ultimate goal being the "mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." Let us keep this program ever before us!

FIRES. The National Fire Protective Association, Boston, Massachusetts, has lately released some figures on the fire losses on church property in the United States with the most common causes of the fires. It reports that there were 20 per cent more fires in 1946 than in 1945. For 1945, thirty-odd denominations suffered a loss of $4,800,000. There was an average of three fires a day for the year. Heating plants, electric equipment, and organ lofts were the sources of most of the fires. The Association recommended that sprinkling systems be installed in churches along with automatic fire alarm systems, and that the heating equipment be in fire-proof room.

There is no question but what people are usually careless about the equipment in churches. Anything seems to be good enough with many church boards. Conditions that would be considered absolutely intolerable in one's home is allowed in church buildings. Keeping the church house clean and storage rooms free from accumulations of useless material over the years will prevent many fires.

ALASKA.

The pattern of national defense is taking on a little outward show sufficient to permit the ordinary citizen to catch a little glimpse of what is being done. In this scheme of defense, Alaska is playing an important part, as well as the Dominion of Canada. Recently, Dr. Mark A. Dowber, executive secretary of the Home Missions Council of North America made a thirteen-week air tour of Alaska. He termed it a "military outpost." Commenting more fully on the situation there in respect to missionary work, he said: "If American boys are to be sent to Alaska as part of the program for war defense, then American parents of these boys should rise up immediately and demand a house cleaning. Only those who have observed such conditions can begin to imagine the extent of the devastation of morals and spiritual ideals that has taken place there.

"Alaska has the highest per capita expenditure for liquor of any country in the world." Then speaking of one city in particular, that of Kotchikan, which has a population of only 6,000, he says they spend "nearly $5,000,000 per year for liquor and only $130,000 for education of their children."

During the last war, much was said about fox-hole religion which the boys in service were getting; and, when they returned home, they would bring with them an enriched spiritual experience. Time has shown that the fruitage of war is not the enlargement of spiritual experiences, but rather it militates against the finer things of the spirit. Of course, there are individual cases where a change for the better was worked, but by and large, the moral tone and spiritual inclinations took a beating on the war fronts and in military camps.

MARIAN CONGRESS.

While these lines are being written, Roman Catholic dignitaries from all over the world are converging on Ottawa for the idolatrous worship of "Mary the mother of God." A house-to-house campaign to get home owners to open their homes to visitors, who are flocking there by the thousands, has been made. Official recognition of the affair will be made when Provincial and Dominion Government officials welcome and greet the idolaters. Nothing has happened in years that has stirred the Protestant press the world over as has this Congress. Without exception, it has been denounced from all sources of Protestant opinion. It is a fair example of the depth to which so-called Christian teaching in Roman Catholic circles has degenerated. There is one mediator between God and men, and that is Jesus Christ. There is no by-passing this Mediator.

Destruction of the Ungodly

Dear Friend:

In this concluding installment of our treatise on "Destruction of the Ungodly," we shall consider several questions and texts on annihilation.

I

"If burning literally is the punishment, cannot man inflict it?" Even if the question is true, man's destruction cannot be final, for later there is a resurrection. But God's destruction of one can be his very end" (Phil. 3:19), for with Him are the "issues from death" (Psalm 68:20). He alone decides who will or will not "live again" (Dan. 12:2; Jer. 51:39, 57; Isa. 26:14). But not the "burning up" produces "loss" of "life" (Matt. 10:39) in the judgment. Since that "loss" is "without remedy," it thus becomes an eternal punishment to the loser.

II

"Can man suffer eternal punishment twice?" No, an eternal "loss of life" by the risen wicked is truly an "eternal punishment" to such.

III

"Punishment simply by burning them up"! We do not so teach. The "burning up" which is preceded by "stripes" brings about their "end"—"whose end is to be burned" (Heb. 6:8). But that "end"—"death"—is "loss of life," is an endless loss to such as experience it. Those burned at the stake do not suffer an endless loss of life. Let Jesus answer you: "He that findeth his life shall lose it, and he that loseth his life, for my sake [martyrs] shall find it" (Matt. 10:39). Two classes of people are being considered. Literally, "loseth his life" means now; the other in the final judgment. The loss in both cases is literal.

"Can the unconscious be tormented?" No, for "torment" means pain. But since some of the wicked shall "sleep a perpetual sleep" in "the sleep of death" and "not wake, saith the Lord" (Jer. 51:39, 57; Psalm 13:3), are these sleeping ones in torment?

V

"If the wicked cease to exist, will not the punishment cease?" Not in the sense of the "loss of life" (Matt. 10:39). That "loss" to the wicked is absolutely eternal. But why question this about their ceasing to exist when the Bible tells you that after a "little while" the wicked simply "shall not be" (Psalm 37:10; 59:13). Speaking of "a man" (Ezek. 28:2, 18, 19), God says of him after he has been brought "to ashes upon the earth," "Never shalt thou be any more" or "have any being" (A.R.V.). For the wicked then to "not be"—not exist—or "have any being" is a positive teaching of Almighty God!! Will you accept it? Septuagint has it, "Thou shalt not exist any more." Do you so think? God help you!

(Concluding installment of a message in form of a letter prepared by John R. Fiske, South Haven, Kansas, for a friend believing in eternal torment.)

VI

"Can a man who has never been be punished?" No.

VII

"If the wicked at death become as 'though they had never been' how can they be punished?" The wicked are not punished at death. Theirs is post-resurrectional. (Rev. 20:11-15; Dan. 12:2; John 5:29; Psalm 9:17, R.V.) They then at the judgment seat "lose" life (Matt. 10:39; 16:25; Luke 17:33; John 12:25) just as literally as martyrs now "lose" theirs. This loss on their part is eternal—and "eternal punishment" in the sense of loss. While in this condition, they are similar to one who has "never been" as to living, conscious existence (Psalm 37:10; 59:13; Obad. 16), but dissimilar in that their "punishment"—loss of life—is endless. While a man who has "never been" may be. But not these. They "shall not be" or "have any being." Maybe this will induce you to understand and believe your Lord when He says to you that the wicked finally will "be as though they had not been" (Obad. 16; Psa. 37:10; 59:13).

VIII

"Is punishment that ceases everlasting?" No. Since it is certain that the wicked in the judgment will "lose his life" (Matt. 10:39) just as literally as did the Christian martyr; and since that "loss" is absolutely eternal, it, therefore, in the sense of loss, becomes an "everlasting punishment" to him. If the punishment, however, is eternal misery, then he must have "everlasting life" to endure such. Hence your interpretation would make Jesus say: "The wicked shall go away into eternal life in misery but the righteous into life eternal," thus destroying the balance indicated by the word "but." Since the wicked will not obtain "eternal life" (John 3:36; 1 John 5:12), and since it is certain that the righteous will "go away into life eternal," it is equally certain, therefore, the wicked get an opposite result, namely, "an eternal cutting off" from life, that is, "death." (Rom. 6:23.) Revelation 9:5, 6 shows that "death" is not "torment," though "torment" may precede it.

In conclusion, my friend, since the Bible in twenty texts, declares that the wicked "shall die" (Rom. 8:13; Prov. 15:10); experience "death" in thirty texts (Prov. 14:12; Rom. 6:23); be "destroyed," forty-two texts (Psalm 145:20; 1 Cor. 3:17); "perish," three texts (Psalm 2:12; Luke 13:1-5); enter into "perdition," eight texts (2 Peter 3:7; Heb. 10:39); "consume," six texts (Psalm 37:20; 59:13); "devour," two texts (Psalm 21:9; Num. 26:10); "slay," be "slain," "kill," (Psalm 34:21; Luke 19:11-27; 12:5); be "blotted out," four texts (Psalm 69:28; 9:5); be "hewn down," two texts (Matt. 3:10; 7:19); "lose life," ten texts (Matt. 10:39; 16:25); "end," five texts, (Phil. 3:19; Heb. 6:8); "not be," five texts (Psalm 37:10; 59:13); be "cut off" (Psalm 37:9, 22); enter "corruption," one text (Gal. 6:8); be "ground to powder," two texts (Matt. 21:44; Luke 20:18—George Campbell's Version, "crush him to pieces"); be "put away as dross," one text (Psalm 119:119—"Thou causest to cease," margin); be "nothing," "a thing of nought," three texts (Isa. 41:11, 12; Jer. 10:24); "burn" or "burn up," nine texts (Mal. 4:1-3; Matt. 3:12), you are left without excuse to reject this doctrine.

In harmony with the foregoing, the wicked are compared to things highly combustible such as "chaff," "stubble," "wood," "hay," "tares," "fat of lambs," "stubble fully dry" (Matt. 3:12; Mal. 4:1-3; 1 Cor. 3:13; Matt. 13:30, 40, 42; Psalm 37:20; Nahum 1:10), truths thoroughly incompatible with endless torment.

Well, friend, long is my letter, but the half has not been told. May you, hereafter, teach that "death" is one thing and torment another (Rev. 9:5, 6); and, therefore, the "end" of the wicked will be "death" (Rom. 6:21)! If you fail to do so, please read your fate in Ezekiel 3:18!

LEST THE GOSPEL SLIP

Quiz him with regard to his interest in the work being done by his church, and he will reply: "My heart is with the church, and I wish it nothing but the greatest of success in all its projects." Suggest to him, though, that this highly commendable state of his heart surely will lead to regular church attendance and participation in all its activities, and he immediately becomes apologetic and regretful. "I should like to," he explains, "but I am so busy. By the time I have satisfied the demands of my business and my home, I just don't have any time or energy left for church work." Then he is likely to add brightly, "But I used to never miss a service, and I tithed regularly." Thus, he implies that he has done his share, and it is but fair to let someone else assume his former responsibility.

How deplorable his condition! With three words, he pronounces his own sentence—"I used to." Nowhere in all the Scriptures is there any suggestion that we shall be judged on the basis of what we used to be and do. Rather, shall we stand or fall according to what we have become and are doing when the Master returns to claim His own.

This is why we are never finished. This is why we must continue to give the closest attention to knowing and living the gospel of Christ. This is why we must guard constantly against letting our interest and enthusiasm slip away from us, else that most insidious of all sins, negligence, gradually will replace faithful service, and we shall become unfruitful in the Lord. "If the message delivered by angels proved to be authentic, and every violation or neglect of it led to a corresponding penalty, how shall we escape if we pay no attention to a salvation such as this?" (Heb. 2:2, 3, Goodspeed.)

"WE SHALL JUDGE ANGELS"

to minister for them who will be heirs of salvation. They are immortal and cannot sin. The Saviour promised the overcomers that they will be equal unto the angels, and will not die any more. Then they will be capable of judging earthly mortal messengers in the Kingdom of God.

---

"Rejoice in the Lord, O ye righteous: for praise is comely for the upright. . . . For the word of the Lord is right; and all his works are done in truth. He loveth righteousness and judgment: the earth is full of the goodness of the Lord" (Psalm 33:1, 4, 5).

THE POWER OF GOD'S WORD

me. Truly, there are temptations that seem unbearable; but, if you will trust in Jesus, I can promise you that you will never again be brought before me or any other judge for an offense of the law."

The judge gave each of the boys a Bible, which they heretofore had shunned but now received eagerly. Then he dismissed them, and as their voices died in the distance, the judge gave a sigh of relief. The boys' outlook on life had been changed. His sharp eye had noticed a change of expression which crept into the faces of the boys as he unfolded the narratives to them.

The following Sunday, the boys were in church with their Bibles, locating (with the help of the index) the scriptures the preacher used in his sermon, and opening new truths to themselves.

Today, every one of those boys is a Christian, having been baptized into Christ, and one of them is contemplating the ministry for his life's work. Truly, the Word of God contains strength and power—power to turn errant hearts to Jehovah.

MINNESOTA STATE CONFERENCE

On Wednesday evening, June 11, 1947, the seventy-third annual conference of the Church of God of Minnesota convened at Eden Valley with a sermon by Bro. James M. Watkins of Oregon, Ill. Bro. Watkins, the guest speaker at the conference, spoke each evening through Saturday, June 14. There were six Bible class periods during the conference, with Bro. Watkins and Bro. Harry Gockler of Hector, Minn., alternating as teachers of the young people's and adult classes.

The Eden Valley Church and Sunday School conducted a Bible school during the entire conference week for children under high school age. The school was under the leadership of Sr. Lucille Appleby of Arlington, Nebr., with Sr. Arthur Otto and Sr. Walter Wiggins of Eden Valley assisting as teachers. This school was a grand success, with an enrollment of forty-five pupils, and it is planned to have another such effort at Eden Valley next year.

On Saturday afternoon, June 14, at two o'clock, the annual business session of the conference opened. Bro. Wiggins, conference president, presiding. The minutes of the last annual meeting and the secretary's and treasurer's reports were read and accepted as read. Church reports were given and accepted. Letters were read and acknowledged. The method of licensing ministers was considered, and a committee consisting of Harry Gockler, A. M. Jones, and V. R. Thoms was appointed to study the matter and report at the fall conference.

At the election of officers, Bro. Walter Wiggins was re-elected president; Harry Gockler was re-elected vice president; S. O. Ross was re-elected secretary, and Sr. Vivian Savage was re-elected treasurer, all for terms of one year.

Arthur Randall, V. R. Thoms, and Walter Randall were appointed by the chairman to serve on the ministerial licensing committee.

Bro. James M. Watkins, Promotional Director of National Bible Institution, spoke a few words regarding evangelism, suggesting that the National and State work be more closely united. A rather lengthy discussion on evangelism followed.

Motion made and carried to adjourn.

Sunday school at 9:45 a.m., opened a full day of activity on Sunday. Bro. Watkins brought the message of the morning, and there was a Communion service at 11:45. During the morning church service, Sr. Appleby conducted a junior church in the basement auditorium, and approximately fifty children were in attendance. The Eden Valley ladies served a delightful noon dinner on the church lawn.

At 2:00 p.m., there was a very interesting service, opened with several musical selections of different varieties and then eight ministers delivered a series of sermonettes on the Kingdom of God, each dealing with a different phase of the subject. It was indeed an interesting and complete coverage of the subject.

Bro. Thomas Savage brought the closing sermon of the conference; and, after a few closing remarks by President Wiggins, the seventy-third annual Minnesota State Conference came to a successful end. The entire conference was outstanding in that it contained so many timely messages from the Scriptures, many beautiful musical selections, and last but not least a very abundant atmosphere of Christian good fellowship among those present.

The conference extends its sincere thanks to Bro. Watkins for his part in making this a very successful conference, and many thanks, too, to the Eden Valley Church for the kind hospitality shown throughout the conference.

S. O. Ross, Secy.

SUMMER COLLEGE ENROLLMENTS
(June 30-July 27)

- Rita Landry, Hammond, La.
- Laura Bankston, Ponchatoula, La.
- Mary Brown, Baraga, Mich.
- Raymond Brown, Baraga, Mich.
- Janice Johns, Scribner, Nebr.
- Dean Moore, Mineral, Calif.
- Margaret Smith, Dayton, Ohio.
- William Dick, Oregon, Ill.
- Bud Goodwin, Downing, Wis.
- Ella Lou Foster, Hammond, La.
- Gerald L. Cooper, Tempe, Ariz.
- James L. Driskill, Jordan, Mo.
- Arnold Johns, Scribner, Nebr.

Others planning to enroll are urged to report, immediately. "The time is short."

Bro. Harold Donn, pastor of the Chicago Church of God plans to be at the Illinois Quarterly Conference at Eldorado, June 29. He states that, in his absence, "Mr. Duval has graciously consented to take charge of the morning service." The Chicago brethren are asked to give Mr. Duval special co-operation in the pastor's absence.

BENEDICT - CARLSON

The marriage of Doris Mae Benedict and Carl A. Carlson, on Friday evening, May 9, was quite an elaborate and joyous event. More than fifty guests assembled at a beautiful wedding manor on West Pico Blvd., at eight o'clock, to witness the ceremony and extend congratulations. The chapel was decorated with large baskets of pink gladioluses and candelabra. Preceding the service, our church pastor, J. W. McLain, sang, "I Love You Truly." The bride wore a formal of white silk and lace, and the bridesmaid was attired in pale blue. The service was simple but impressive. After the service, all the guests reassembled at the Carlson home at 435 N. Ave. 51, which had been beautifully decorated for the reception. Music, the opening of gifts, and delicious refreshments were enjoyed by all. Mrs. B. G. Bleasdale had charge of the music, playing the wedding march and accompaniments for a number of solos, while her daughter, Mrs. S. P. Meyers, played violin obligatos. The bride and groom left at a late hour for a brief honeymoon at Lake El Casco. They now are established in their newly purchased home at 2242 Maricopa Dr.

Mrs. E. C. Railsback.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mrs. Austin W. Oliver (2); Mrs. Clinton Appleby; Eva E. Averill; Mrs. T. M. Savage.

Gleanings From the Field

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

Attention Secretaries: Church and Conference Delegate Forms for representation at General Conference (July 29 - August 10) soon will be in the mail. If you have not received yours by July 7, please notify National Bible Institution, and you will receive same.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Williams of Savannah, Ohio, at the Samaritan Hospital in Ashland, Ohio, a girl on June 14. Congratulations! The little lady's name is Lynn Dee. Mother and daughter are doing fine. Mrs. Williams was formerly Ione Patrick.

Arnold and Janice Johns, Oregon, Ill., visited a few days last week with their parents, Bro. and Sr. A. M. Johns, Scribner, Nebr.

Word has been received from Bro. and Sr. Norman J. McLeod that they plan to be in Oregon, Ill., June 27, to begin their work at Oregon Bible College for the summer session.

Bro. Leonard Brown, Baraga, Mich., visited, June 14 and 15 with his brother Raymond and friends in Oregon, Ill.

James M. Watkins, Promotional Director of National Bible Institution, plans to attend the State Youth Rally at the Southlawn Church of God, Grand Rapids, Mich., on June 29.

Bro. and Sr. Otto E. Dick and family, Oregon, Ill., vacationed, June 16-21, with relatives and friends near Frankfort, Ind.

Bro. John R. Fiske, Jr., South Haven, Kan., has published a twenty-page booklet on "Who Was the Tempter of the Human Race?" Bro. Fiske treats every phase of the subject, uses Scripture texts in abundance, and concludes: "We are forced to agree with the Apostle James that the tempter 'in every case' is one's 'own passions.'" If you want a copy of the booklet, write to Bro. Fiske.

The Editor, accompanied by three of his children, Milo, Norma, and Sidney, Betty Claussen, and "Billie" Dick, attended the Indiana State Conference at the Morning Star Church of God in South Bend, June 15-22. He reported that they were having excellent meetings.

Sr. Leota B. Hanson, accompanied by Sr. Nora Pearson, Sr. Albert Logsdon and daughter Juanita, all of Oregon, Ill., attended church services in Chicago, Sunday, June 22.

"I am enjoying the correspondence course in Child Study very much and believe it would benefit anyone who is interested in children, the future of the church, and the coming Kingdom."—Mrs. Eunice Pearson, Oregon, Ill.

"Words and Music," a forty-five page book of poems by Edith Andrew Burchell, Oregon, Ill., recently has been finished in our print shop. Topics of general and human interest are made appealing. The book is paper-bound; it sells for $1.00; and may be ordered from the author.

Prepared by Madge Savage
Waite Park, Minnesota

"Be strong and of a good courage, fear not, nor be afraid of them: for the Lord thy God, he it is that doth go with thee; he will not fail thee, nor forsake thee" (Deuteronomy 31:6).

therefore arise, go over this Jordan, thou, and all this people, unto the land which I do give unto them, even to the children of Israel. Every place that the sole of your foot shall tread upon, that have I given unto you, as I said unto Moses" (Josh. 1:2, 3).

Joshua Encouraged

After telling Joshua the boundaries of the Promised Land, God told him no man would be able to conquer Joshua. The Lord promised He would never leave him.

"Be strong and of a good courage," said the Lord. Again He repeated, "Only be thou strong and very courageous, that thou mayest observe to do according to all the law" (Josh. 1:7).

Prosperity was promised to Joshua if he would not turn to the right or to the left. He was told to think about God's laws day and night. He was to think about them enough so he could do the correct things. One needs to know the rules of a game very well if he wishes to avoid mistakes. Joshua was the leader now. Will we find he made a good leader? As we study, we will learn if he knew the laws of God and obeyed them.

Once again the Lord said, "Have not I commanded thee? Be strong, and of a good courage: be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed: for the Lord thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest" (Josh. 1:9).

Our Strength

"God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble. Therefore will not we fear, though the earth be removed, and though the mountains be carried into the midst of the sea" (Psalm 46:1, 2).

God is our strength. We are to be brave today. We are to be filled with courage. We have the promise of Jesus that He will never leave us or forsake us. His love in our hearts and lives gives us strength for whatever trials we meet. May we trust God and be obedient. Then we will be strong.

Enroll Now

Send me your name and address, with complete month, day, and year of birth. Enroll in our "Everyday Christian Expression" Club.

A New Leader

After the death of Moses, the Lord spoke to Joshua, the son of Nun. You recall that Moses had selected Joshua to take his place as leader of the Israelites. Joshua was to have the honor of leading them into the land of Canaan.

In our study today, we begin a new quarterly lesson. We are to learn by studying about Joshua and his followers that blessings and favor of God follow faithfulness and obedience to Him. When man follows his own way without God's leadership, he fails and is disappointed.

Our lesson from the Intermediate Truth Seekers' Quarterly for today is found in Joshua 1:1-9.

God's Promises Repeated

God's promises are the same today. He repeated the promises to Joshua that He made to Abraham and to Moses. The Lord said: "Moses my servant is dead; now

ALL ARE ONE IN CHRIST

IN THE DAYS of Jesus and the apostles, the known world was small. Even Paul, who traveled widely, was limited to a small area around the Mediterranean Sea. Today, we live in a larger world with two and one half billion inhabitants, and with means of transportation and communication to link us together. Though science and modern inventions have broadened physical horizons, we have limited ourselves to much smaller worlds than the Apostle's.

We move in our own chosen circles; we seldom make friends out of our class, nationality, or race. Though we have advantages of learning from others, which were unknown to Paul, we have become so reserved, so race and class conscious, that we live in a narrow world indeed. Paul had no such inhibitions. His was a big world in a small world; ours is a small world in a big world. That is the tragedy of being race and class conscious—we limit our own opportunities to learn from others, and their opportunity to learn from us.

Young people are not generally prejudiced against their fellow men, but all too soon they are taught to be by the propaganda of less fortunate adults. Then these young people forget about the wonderful poor friend they had in school, the likeable rich boy, the ever-so-polite Japanese, the kind-hearted Negro, and draw back into their little middle-class white-supremacy worlds. How unfortunate for them!

Paul, speaking to the learned men of Athens, said God "hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth" (Acts 17:26). The science of anthropology maintains that there is less difference between races of men than between a robin and a thrush. We are of one blood, whether in or out of Christ, and if in Christ, we are brothers and citizens of the same Kingdom. (Col. 3:10, 11.)

The beauty and value of loving all men equally, regardless of race or class, is in what they can teach you and in what you can teach them.

From those who have less than we do, we can learn that happiness can come even in hardship, and we can learn to respect the blessings God has given us. From the rich we can learn, depending upon who the rich one is, that all the rich are not cold, merciless, unhappy skinflints, or that happiness is not necessarily dependent upon how much one owns.

From our oriental brothers, we can learn the secret of graciousness, deep and solid thinking, and the art of being ladies and gentlemen. A Japanese boy, native of Hiroshima, from a Buddhist-Shintoist family, has come to us recently with a great thirst for knowledge about the Bible and Christianity. We are trying to help him; but we are learning, too. We are learning to thank God for the blessing of a Christian background, and for the land in which we were born. We are learning that in the past five years we have been shamefully misinformed about Japan and its people. We are learning a sincere respect for the inherent honesty and moral ethics of our oriental cousins, a hundred or so times removed.

There is the American Negro from whom we have received some of America's finest home-grown music—the Negro spiritual. They have more to teach us about turning the other cheek and returning good for evil, but then what have we to learn about that?

Young people, do not let yourself be ensnared in the trap of hate which has been set by the anti-Semitic, anti-Negro, anti-anyone-but-American influences at work today. To make your world small and narrow by being class and race conscious is to do yourself a great injustice. You will be neglecting opportunities to learn and broaden your knowledge. You will also be limiting your opportunities for carrying the gospel.

Choose companions with care as to right and wrong, not as to rich or poor, or black or white. "Love your neighbor as yourself." "All are one in Christ."

CONFERENCE DATES

- June 28, 29—Illinois Quarterly Conference at Eldorado.
- July 24-27—Arkansas-Oklahoma Conference at Bear, Ark.
- July 29 - August 10—Illinois Conference and Bible School at Oregon.
- August 9-17—Missouri State Conference.
- August 17-24—Western Nebraska Conference at Holbrook. (Guest speakers—M. W. Lyon and Harvey U. Krogh, Jr.)
- August 23-31—Texas Conference at Ater.

AVAILABLE FOR PASTORATE

To Whom It May Concern:
 Because of lack of funds in the missionary department of our church, I will be available for a pastorate, beginning September 1 of this year. My address is Rt. 3, Box 50A, Hammond, La.
 James Mattison.

NOTICE TO TEXANS

To the Texas brethren scattered abroad:
 Do we realize that the Texas Conference is only two months away? Are we making our plans to be there? This is our conference, and it is our great and blessed privilege to be able to meet together again and to worship together with those of like precious faith—a pleasure we have long craved. Come, let us reason together.
 There is business to be conducted, and there are problems to be solved. We need your counsel, your co-operation, and your encouragement to plan for the future work. We, like Paul, can say we can do all things through Christ who strengthens us. Jesus has promised that where two or three are gathered together in His Name there He would be in the midst of them. Let us claim His promise.

Mrs. W. L. Robbins, Riviera, Tex.

COLLEGE ALUMNI WORKING

Bro. Emory Macy, secretary of Oregon Bible College Alumni Association, recently reported that the 1946 survey revealed the following data:

Sermons preached	1158
Baptisms	33
Weddings	39
Funerals	23
Churches served	40
State conferences served	7
Sermons in new fields	4
New churches organized	1

At the last annual meeting of the Association, each graduate present pledged to try during 1947 to preach in at least one new field.

WRAY, COLORADO

The writer was at Wray, Colo., for services Sunday, June 8. There was good attendance at both morning and afternoon services. Jack and Robert Keemen of Wray were baptized soon after the afternoon services. Jack is fourteen years of age and Robert is twelve. The boys are young and will stand in need of all the help possible from the older church members.

The Wray members have the basement ready for the church building, and soon will get the building moved—maybe by the time of the next second Sunday services. The members are planning a rummage sale to help with the expense of the church building. Anything you have to send them for the sale, mail it to Mrs. Charles Steiner, Rt. 2, Wray, Colo.

BIBLE SCHOOL AT TEMPE, ARIZONA

The Bible School conducted at Tempe, Arizona by Sr. Verna Thayer, assisted by Sr. Mabel Barnum, was a success in every way. The opening day there were more than forty children and several adults present. The good classes that were held were reported and the attendance increased until an enrollment of sixty-eight was reached. Due to the opening of a school by another church on June 9, the attendance did not increase the second week, but we feel that the fact that we lost but few pupils to the other school, which offered more inducements for enrollment, is a tribute to the leadership of Sr. Thayer. The average daily attendance was fifty-four.

On Thursday evening, June 12, a demonstration program was given by the children for the benefit of their parents and friends. Surely no one doubted at its close but what the Bible School was well worth every effort put forth to hold it. It was inspiring to hear the stories and songs of the children and to see their enthusiasm demonstrated in different ways. Equally inspiring was the assistance given the leaders by our local people, especially the teen-age girls, who aided in conducting the classes and in the music needed. We feel that we will have better teachers as well as better pupils because of this school.

As Sr. Thayer and Sr. Barnum were due at Hammond, La., eighteen hundred miles away, on June 16, they were forced to leave before the Bible School was over. The final class was held, however, and certificates were given out to the pupils. Afterward ice cream was served to each one present at that session.

Thus ended our Bible School of 1947. We hope that Sr. Thayer and her able assistant may come visit us again sometime; but, if they do not, we know that they will be working mightily for the Lord in some other spot. We read and hear of their good work, but we do not appreciate their efforts until they are in our midst. May God bless each of them wherever they may be, is the prayer of the boys and girls (and the adults) who attended the Bible School.

Gerald L. Cooper, Sec'y.

PSALM 100

An exhortation to praise God cheerfully for his greatness and for his power.

A Psalm of praise.

MAKE a joyful noise unto the LORD, all ye lands.

2 Serve the LORD with gladness: come before his presence with singing.

3 Know ye that the LORD he is God: it is he that hath made us, and not we ourselves; we are his people, and the sheep of his pasture.

4 Enter into his gates with thanksgiving, and into his courts with praise: be thankful unto him, and bless his name.

5 For the LORD is good; his mercy is everlasting; and his truth endureth to all generations.

—Selected by E. H. Magaw.

Tossing Waves

James, teaching Christians to pray, said: "If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him. But let him ask in faith, nothing wavering. For he that wavereth is like a wave of the sea driven with the wind and tossed. . . . Let not that man think that he shall receive anything of the Lord" (1:5-7).

Strictly speaking, all Christians err at times, but stability of faith is one of the definite goals toward which God expects and requires His children to press. As winds at sea maintain waves constantly, so winds ashore constantly disturb the seething masses whose hearts are not stayed on God and on Christ. Of the ungodly, Isaiah wrote: "The wicked are like the troubled sea, when it cannot rest, whose waters cast up mire and dirt. There is no peace, saith my God, to the wicked" (57:20, 21). The Christian, though, should resist these winds of doubt and temptation insofar as he is humanly able—"nothing wavering."

The winds that keep mankind in constant turmoil are the winds of temptation, doubt, and distress. They rage mightiest where faith is weakest. There are numerous times in life when it seems stormy Galilee lashes one's boat to sinking, when also it seems that the Lord is asleep and nobody cares. Fortunate are they, though, who sail life's tempests not alone. There is rescue when Jesus is near—and a resulting "great calm."

Other adverse winds causing destroying waves are the winds of false and erroneous doctrine. God ordains and directs workmen in His church "for the edifying of the body of Christ," that every Christian may approach closer and closer "unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ" (Eph. 4:11-13). Thus, God intends that Christians "be no more children, tossed to and fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the sleight of men, and cunning craftiness, wherein they lie in wait to deceive."

The more definitely and accurately one can understand the Word and plan of God, the more qualified will he be to resist and surmount life's tossing waves. He who loves the gospel of the Kingdom, who loves even the thought of Christ's coming, will see in many of the winds of false doctrine, and in the winds of plague and pain, sure "signs of the times." Instead of being alarmed, he will be strengthened. It is supposed yet to be night—but the Day of Peace draws near. Then there shall be "no more sea"—no more storms and distress.

The Nebraska Flood

Southern Nebraska recently suffered a terrific flood, especially in the western part of the State at Cambridge and Bartley—this second city being smitten also by a tornado. In this flood, Brother and Sister Ed Tomlin, senior members of the Holbrook (Nebraska) Church, lost their lives. (A full report, by Sister Allen Johnson, appears on page 9.) God be praised that Brother and Sister Tomlin were of the Faith that looks into God's Tomorrow for reward—when, by God's grace, they shall live and reign with Christ, Master of Earth's tempests.

Why, though, come such tragedies as flood and tornado? They are part of earth's temporary curse. "The whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together until now" (Rom. 8:22). "Cursed is the ground" (Gen. 3:17)—hence came thorns and thistles, suffering and death. Even the earth quakes; the heavens growl with thunder. If never the Christ returns, floods and tornadoes will continue their havoc. Only He can still earth's storms.

When Christ returns to remove earth's curse (Rev. 22:3), the saints and He will be "glorified together" (Rom. 8:17). "I reckon," said Paul, "that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us" (v. 18). Soon, we hope, Nebraska's dead will arise to immortality.

The Kingdom of God

By Harry Payne, Oregon, Illinois

WHAT IS the Kingdom of God? Different answers to this question are given by members of various church denominations. Some people say that the Kingdom of God means heaven and that man goes there at death for his reward. Others say that the Kingdom of God is not literal but exists only in the hearts of men. Through our study of the Scriptures, however, we know that the Kingdom of God is neither in heaven nor in a person's heart. It is, rather, a literal Kingdom which will be established upon the earth when Christ returns.

The Kingdom was the burden of the messages of John the Baptist, of Christ, and of the apostles. It was John the Baptist, the forerunner of Christ, who, clad in rough skins, went about the wilderness of Judea preaching the message, "Repent ye: for the kingdom of heaven is at hand" (Matt. 3:2). Now the question may arise, Why did John preach the "kingdom of heaven" if the Kingdom will be established upon the earth? The terms "kingdom of heaven" and "kingdom of God" are used interchangeably in Scripture. It is the same Kingdom: the Kingdom of God, in that its author is God; the Kingdom of heaven in the sense that it will come from God who is in heaven.

Jesus went throughout every city and village preaching and teaching the glad tidings of the Kingdom of God. He called twelve apostles whom He sent out to preach the Kingdom message, the gospel. In the Great Commission given just before His ascension, Christ exhorted His apostles, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature" (Mark 16:15).

After His ascension, Paul was persuaded of the importance of the Kingdom message. At one time, he went into the synagogue and "spoke boldly for three months, disputing and persuading the things concerning the kingdom of God." At another time, Paul lived two years in his own hired house "preaching the kingdom of God, and teaching those things which concern the Lord Jesus Christ."

The Kingdom of God was planned from the foundation of the world. It is the subject of the oath-bound covenant made between God and Abraham. The Abrahamic covenant contains the following provisions: that Abraham's name will be great; that a great nation should come from Abraham; that God would bless him, and through him all families of the earth would be blessed; that Abraham and his seed would be given the land of Palestine for an everlasting possession; that his seed would be as the dust of the earth; that whosoever blessed him and his seed would be blessed, and whosoever cursed them would be cursed; that Abraham should be the father of many nations; that kings would come out of him; and that the covenant would be an everlasting covenant. This covenant was to be fulfilled through the offices and work of Christ—Christ being the promised "Seed."

Has God ever had a Kingdom? If so, was it spiritual? In 1 Chronicles 28:5, we read, "He hath chosen Solomon my son to sit upon the throne of the kingdom of the Lord over Israel." Also, in 2 Chronicles 13:8, we read: "Now ye think to withstand the kingdom of the Lord in the hand of the sons of David." By these scriptures, we easily can see that God once had a real, tangible kingdom—the kingdom of Israel.

Although this kingdom is no longer in existence, God has promised to re-establish it. Speaking of the throne of Israel, God said: "I will overturn, overturn, overturn, it: and it shall be no more, until he come whose right it is; and I will give it him" (Ezek. 21:27).

Of whom was God speaking? In His covenant with David, God promised that David would have a seed to sit upon his throne—a seed who would be the Son of God. Christ, the only begotten Son of God, will be the King who will sit on David's throne; those who are faithful will be co-rulers with Him. We read, "If we suffer, we shall also reign with him" (2 Tim. 2:12); and, "He that overcometh, and keepeth my works unto the end, to him will I give power over the nations" (Rev. 2:26).

It is for this promised Kingdom we pray each time we pray the Lord's Prayer. When we pray, let us consider earnestly the petition, "Thy kingdom come." God grant that we all "love his [Christ's] appearing."

TELL ME THE STORY

By George A. Waters

A story's told of love so great,
Of One who gave His life
To save the sinner from his fate
And end this world of strife.

Chorus:

Tell me the story of Jesus:
Repeat the glad refrain;
Tell me the story of Jesus:
Tell it again and again.

For God so loved the world of men,
He gave His only Son
To wash and cleanse them from their sin—
A righteous course to run.

Tell of eternal Salvation,
Tell of new Life to gain;
Tell of the resurrection,
When we shall live again.

Then with the saints we'll ever be,
Alive for evermore,
From sin and sorrow then set free,
We'll praise Him evermore.

You Are a Priest

By James Mattison, Hammond, Louisiana

"The scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the heathen through faith . . ." (Galatians 3:8).

THE THOUGHT in Galatians 3:8, that "God would justify the heathen through faith," is the key to the Scriptures, as we shall see.

God, at the first, chose Abraham that he might beget a people for His name. Abraham was called for the end that God had in view. That view was that all families of the earth—all people—might be blessed, according to Genesis 12:2b and 3b. Have you ever studied the last phrases of those two verses of the Abrahamic promises? There is a wonderful thought of world blessing in them.

Abraham was hired to work for God. His wages were composed of herds and gold and the everlasting covenant. This covenant promised him resurrection, everlasting life, and eternal inheritance in the Kingdom of God. Abraham was to be of service to God. We again emphasize our main thought: the end that God foresaw, namely, God's blessing to be poured out on all nations, is a most important truth to remember. The Abrahamic covenant concerns many people. All know that the promises were bestowed also upon Abraham's son and grandson. Have we all dwelt upon the little phrase, "In thee and thy seed shall all the nations . . . be blessed"? (See Gen. 26:3, 4; 28:12-15.)

The same commission was given to Abraham's great-grandsons and great-great-grandsons, the nation of Israel. Exodus 19:5, 6 records God's bestowal of the great commission upon chosen Israel. The sons of Jacob were to be more than a "holy nation"; they were commissioned to be a kingdom of priests. Each Israelite was to be a priest, thus adding his part to the people appointed "to bless all nations of the earth."

As with the calling of Abraham, God called the Israelites for the end He had in view. He called them not for their sakes, but for service that would bless mankind and glorify Himself.

One can see from world conditions, today, that all families are not blessed, and many cannot receive blessing because of sin. Zechariah prophesied of a day, however, when all nations will be godly. He said, "Many people and strong nations shall come to seek the Lord of hosts in Jerusalem" (Zech. 8:22). He also said men of all languages will go to the Jews because God is with them.

Isaiah saw the same thing and wrote it in his sixty-fourth chapter. One wonders how all nations will be blessed and concludes it will be through their knowledge of God's glory. Isaiah said, "They shall declare my glory among the Gentiles"—not yet, but in the future. He also said, "I will . . . take of them for priests and for Levites." In fulfillment of God's promise, "Ye shall be unto me a kingdom of priests," Israel ultimately will declare God's glory among the nations. (Study Isa. 2:2; 60:1-5; Zech. 14:16; Rev. 21:24 to see prophecies of the nations living in the light of New Jerusalem.)

What will be the results of the new priesthood, when the law is written in the heart, and not on stone? First, many nations will be converted. (Isa. 2:2; Zech. 14:16.) The nations that will not serve God shall perish. (Isa. 60:12.) Second, world peace will bloom. (Isa. 2:4.) No more will the earth see strife: neither on the battlefield nor in the mind. Third, world righteousness will grow and flourish (2 Peter 3:13) until there comes a clean heaven and a clean earth. It cannot be now.

There is something for us Christians in all this promise and plan. Hebrews 7:12 informs us that the priesthood has been changed. There is a new High Priest, who is High Priest forever. Under the Levitical priesthood, Israel received the law. Under the new priesthood, the world receives the gospel of Jesus Christ.

Is there, then, a priesthood today? There is. Where is it? "Ye are . . . a royal priesthood . . . that ye should shew forth the praises of him who hath called you out of darkness into his marvellous light" (1 Peter 2:9). Yes, the church, the body of Christ, is God's priesthood today to declare His glory among the nations. The church is hired to work for God. Our service is a means to an end. The church now is serving in Israel's stead to teach the nations the gospel of Christ—the good news of His coming and Kingdom.

Jesus gave us this commission in these words: "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned" (Mark 16:15, 16). Again, He said, "As my Father hath sent me, even so send I you" (John 20:21). This is the commission of the new priesthood.

The message of the new priesthood includes this invitation from Christ: "Come unto me . . . and I will give you rest . . . learn of me . . . and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light" (Matt. 11:28-30). Christ and His coming Kingdom comprise the message for a darkened world. Declare His glory among the nations.

The King is selecting a bride. Only God's faithful priests will have a part with Christ in building world peace and righteousness. Are we following His commission? God will fulfill His desire to bless all nations, be it through us or be it through others.

Why is it that our people, the Church of God, beginning united work about the same time as did several other of the Adventist bodies, number our members only between six and seven thousand, while one of the other Adventist bodies numbers its members between one and two millions? The answer is plain. It has eight thousand missionaries. We have none. The Church of God builds itself only as strong as it builds its evangelistic and missionary departments. Without them, our numbers will not reach ten thousand in the next twenty years.

Brethren, we are now God's priests on the earth to bring the nations unto Christ. God relies on mortals to finish His work with this dispensation. Are we ministering to the sick? Are we preaching the gospel to the poor? Are we healing the brokenhearted?

As priests of God, let us be "stedfast, unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord," for our "labour is not in vain in the Lord" (1 Thess. 15:58). Then, at Christ's coming, we shall share with the redeemed "out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation" as kings and priests of God to "reign on the earth."

Our Life's Objective

---

WHAT IS our life's objective? In what are we most interested? A true Christian's objective never really can be achieved until the great Day when Jesus returns. Today, we are just working toward that objective. There are things worth far more in this life than temporal things. To envision that which is to come gives one a new perspective on life. Every believer, the minute he or she becomes converted and is baptized into Christ, immediately should become a witness for Christ. He, or she, will tell forth the glad tidings, the good news that there is a Saviour, and that He is mighty to save. No one need be appointed to tell this great salvation message, for God, through Christ Jesus, is calling us today—calling us to lives of service. Let us not falter as did King Agrippa who, though "almost persuaded," was lost.

We are admonished to bring "forth fruits meet for repentance." One day, while Jesus was walking along the roadside, He saw a fig tree in leaf. Now, this seemed strange to Jesus, for He expected to find fruit on the tree, since the fruit of the fig tree comes before the leaves appear. Instead, He found the tree barren, boasting with its leaves and vaunting itself. Jesus went to the fig tree and said: "Let no fruit grow on thee henceforward for ever" (Matt. 21:19). The phrase "for ever" we understand to mean, "during this age." The Record tells us the fig tree withered away. This was the only miracle of judgment Jesus performed. Jesus was illustrating that the sin of the Jews was not alone that they bore no fruit, but that they were so boastful.

The Rich Young Ruler heard the call, but was not willing to give his all and, in sorrow, turned away. Zacchaeus the publican, sinful as he was, heard and answered the call, and brought salvation to his house. Pharaoh was drowned in the Red Sea because he did not heed the call of God. When God spoke to Moses in the burning bush at Mount Horeb, he heeded the call and was later privileged to lead the children of Israel out of Egypt. It was because Abraham had faith to believe God and to obey the call, that God promised that through his seed all nations of the world would be blessed.

Christian service should be our one objective in life. It should be our vocation, and not our avocation. There is the message of repentance and baptism for the remission of sins. We must tell of Christ's crucifixion, and of how He died and was buried, and arose triumphant from the grave and became the "firstfruits of those who slept." We must tell of His second coming—"whom the heaven must receive until the times of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21).

If we trust in God, He will not fail us. We need not be afraid of what man may do to us, for God is concerned about our welfare. These indeed are perilous days; but, if we have faith to trust in God's promises revealed to us in the Holy Scriptures, we can and will triumph over the evil, through Christ Jesus. The commonly accepted standards of life are not the God-way of life. God, through Christ Jesus, is calling today. What will our answer be? Will we allow the ungodly to discourage us, or will we go forward and onward, making Christian service our life's objective? "Press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus"!

The Good Samaritan

By W. Howard Beemer, Saint Catharines, Ontario

JESUS' Parable of the Good Samaritan appears only in the Gospel of Luke, beginning with the 25th verse of the 10th chapter. A certain lawyer tempted Jesus, saying, "Master, what shall I do to inherit eternal life?" Now, "lawyer" and "scribe" can be interchanged freely in the Scriptures (Exp. Bible); therefore this man who was tempting the Lord was, doubtless, a scribe. All are aware that the scribes were bitterly resentful of the Saviour. Thus, the reason this man was tempting Jesus is not difficult to comprehend. The scribes and Pharisees constantly were trying to trick Him in one way or another. Needless to say, they failed without exception. Had this man's question been a sincere one, it is doubtless that Jesus would have given him a straightforward, simple answer. He observed the sinister motive behind this apparently simple question, and parried the question with another question.

Christ asked this lawyer how he interpreted the law, because this man was a scribe and, therefore, should be fairly well acquainted with the law. The lawyer had a ready answer for Jesus. Yes, he knew well enough what the law said. He quoted verbatim, as his answer, Deuteronomy 6:5 and the latter part of Leviticus 19:18—also word for word. Jesus commended the man upon his answer and told him that if he did this he would live. In this short but very potent answer, Jesus did two things: first and most apparent, Jesus told the scribe that he had answered well; second, Jesus brushed away completely the Hebraic figment of inherited life—that life eternal is something inherited.

Jesus completely bested this man and thwarted the attempt to trick Him. The scribe was not satisfied to accept defeat gracefully, and asked yet another question with an even more sinister, ulterior motive than the first one. This one, amazingly enough, would seem to be a perfectly good question. To the Jews at that time, however, there was a special meaning attached to it. The question was, "Who is my neighbour?"

The word "neighbor," to the Jew, merely meant JEW spelled in capital letters. The Jews did not recognize any of their neighbors other than their own countrymen. Jesus was fully aware of their extreme narrowness on this subject; and being far too wise openly to denounce this pet illusion of theirs, He told them this Parable of the Good Samaritan. The beauty of this Parable has lived through the centuries: telling of the beauty and all-inclusive quality of the word "neighbor."

In verse 30, Jesus told of a certain man going down from Jerusalem to Jericho, who fell among the thieves. The road from Jerusalem to Jericho was one that had a very steep descent and was notorious for the bands of robbers that infested it. The country in this section was of an extremely rugged nature. A very unusual feature of this Parable is that, unlike other of the parables of Jesus, it has definite local habitation. In the conclusion of verse 30, we are told that the thieves robbed, wounded, and stripped the man of his raiment, leaving him half dead along side of the road.

In the next two verses, we read that a priest and a Levite passed by this wounded man, without helping him. One would expect these men above all others to stop and help one who was sorely in need of aid. Were they not servants in the Temple of God. They did not even stop for a second—merely looked and passed by on the other side of the road. These two men probably had just completed their "course" of Temple service, and were going to Jericho, a favorite resting place of the priests, for the somewhat long interval their sacred duties allowed them. (Exp. Bible.) This would indicate they had no pressing business obligation that would force them to hurry onward, yet they did not even give this man a word of mercy or encouragement.

Much censure has been directed against these two men for neglecting the wounded man. Yet, how would you or I have acted under similar conditions? Imagine yourself traveling a lonely road—that now has the title "the bloody way" due to its notoriety—when suddenly upon rounding a turn in the road you come across a wounded man lying by the side of the road, perhaps almost dead. You realize immediately that he has been attacked by robbers, and rather vicious ones at that, who may yet be in this very vicinity. If you stop to help this man, you run the risk of being robbed and beaten yourself. Besides, he is very likely almost dead, anyhow. It would be extremely easy to excuse one's self in such a circumstance and hurriedly pass by the wounded man. Jesus was friendly and sympathetic toward the priests, using only this one of their number, plus the Levite, to make more clear the noble act of the Samaritan.

In verses 33 and 34, we are told of the Samaritan coming along and helping the man by binding and treating his wounds and taking him to an inn. The Samaritan, before leaving, paid the innkeeper for the man's lodging and care. This Samaritan, who represented the Jews' natural enemy, treated him like his best friend. The wounded Jew might have had a right to expect help from the other two men, but not from the Samaritan, as the Jews treated the Samaritans as dirt under their feet. This Samaritan proved to be not only a good neighbor to the wounded Jew, but he was also a very brave man.

The Samaritan used oil (probably olive oil) for the wounds. This was a common custom in those times, as the olive oil aided very greatly in the healing process. In verse 35, we note that he paid two denarii. This equals fifteen pence in English money and was the equivalent of two days' wages. Money was worth ten (Please turn to page 10)

IMMORTALITY

Selected by Cecil A. Smead, Midland, Michigan from "Present Truth Messenger"

IF MAN left the Garden an immortal being, and is, therefore, still immortal, in whole or in part, then the death penalty was thwarted and became, wholly or partly, null and void. To claim that the race is innately immortal; that the soul—held to be the essential man—is indestructible, and cannot die, is to assert in effect, that God's action in excluding Adam from the "tree of life," "lest" he should "eat and live for ever," really failed in its purpose; was a useless precaution; and despite the death penalty and the banishment from the Garden and the tree of life, man has lived from that moment to this, for a time in this world and then in the unseen world; and that being indestructible, he will live forever; that, in fact, he can no more die than God Himself can die. This is precisely the sentiment which Satan so successfully urged in his seduction of the woman—the mother of us all. If it be true that man or any essential part of man is indestructible, then Satan's proposition to Eve was correct, and the Lord God acted blindly, or impotently, in his attempts to punish sin by the infliction of death.

Moreover, if the race is constitutionally immortal, then, despite his death penalty and his precaution (Gen. 3:22, 23), the Creator finds in His universe an immensely numerous class of beings whom He can neither reduce to loyalty nor remove out of His way; and eternal and blasphemous hostility to God and God's government is an irremediable fact.

Is God thus powerless to control evil? And was it left to Satan to point out to Eve the great weakness and certain failure of the Lord's verdict against sin? Whom shall we believe, Satan and modern theology, or the Lord our God?

The Bible nowhere declares man to be immortal. The word "immortal" occurs but once in Scripture (1 Tim. 1:17), and is there applied to God: "Now unto the King eternal immortal, invisible, the only wise God, be honour and glory for ever and ever."

The word "immortality" occurs five times in the Scriptures, and is applied once to God (1 Tim. 6:16), twice to saints at the resurrection (1 Cor. 15:53, 54; 2 Tim. 1:10), once as a blessing to be sought (Rom. 2:7). The terms "everlasting life," "live for ever," etc., which imply eternal existence, are several times used, and always applied to believers in Christ; while the expressions, "death," "consumed," "burned up," etc., are always applied to unbelievers. The righteous dead are spoken of not as having gone to heaven, nor as having escaped the death penalty by rising, at the "death of the body," into intermediate bliss, but as being dead, in the grave, under the dominion of death, and as remaining there until the resurrection.

COURT PRONOUNCEMENT.

Every now and then, one runs across some statement or pronouncement from those in high authority that is profound in its truth and simplicity of statement. Such is true of the recent decision of the California Supreme Court, which upheld a ruling of the District Court of Appeals, in respect to released time for religious instruction as not being contrary to the State Constitution. The decision stated that the founders of the California Constitution "proposed to insure separation of church and state, and to provide that the power and authority of the state should never be devoted to the advancement of any particular sect or denomination. Our pioneer forefathers did not have the remotest idea that they were laying the foundations of a great Commonwealth of California that was to be a jejune, godless state; they believed one of the great pillars of our national strength to be the general acceptance of religion by our people."

It is the last part of the quotation that struck us as being so basically true. The early years of our national life were based on the "general acceptance of religion by our people." Worship of God was accepted and practiced without thought to the contrary. It was a generally accepted privilege and duty. Out of this devotion to the Source of all blessings grew the mightiest nation of earth. Would to God that the people who are enjoying the fruits of this great country realized that the only way the nation could remain great is by a continued worship of God and the "general acceptance of religion by our people!"

BAPTIST PRINCIPLES.

Reporting on a recent survey made by a committee of the Ontario and Quebec conference of Baptists, "The Watchman-Examiner" (Northern Baptist publication, U.S.) gave this account of the committee's report on relations between the Baptists of Canada and other religious bodies. It reads in part: "A Commission of the Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec to make a thorough study and fresh statement of Baptist beliefs in the language of today. Chancellor G. P. Gibmour of McMaster University, who is also president of the Canadian Council of Churches, for the Commission states: 'We Baptists have much to offer, but we are handicapped by the fact that we do not know our own principles well, and that we are widely misunderstood by other bodies.'"

What is said here about the Baptists not knowing their "principles well," and thus being handicapped, is a Baptist matter, and of no particular concern to this page, other than being suggestive of a too-common handicap found in our own midst. Inability to witness for the faith we hold to be essential to salvation and spiritual development is oftentimes due to a lack of knowledge of just what the Bible teaches. It is the duty of each member of the church so to acquaint himself with the teachings of the Scriptures, that he will be able to give a Biblical reason for the hope which he possesses. The handicap of not knowing your "principles well" can easily be overcome if one is willing to "study to show himself approved of God, rightly dividing the word of truth."

TOYING WITH COMMUNISM.

Reporting to the Birmingham (Ala.) Kiwanis Club on the Pittsburgh conference on "The Church and Economic Life," under the sponsorship of the Federal Council of Churches, an Episcopal layman, John Ebaugh, charged the Council as "toying with Communism." This, of course, does not mean anything particularly, nor does it prove anything in itself, yet, fitting it into the pattern of other happenings and doings of the Federal Council, the charge may not be far from the truth.

The First Presbyterian Church of Selma, Ala., and the Tusculossa Presbytery have petitioned the Presbyterian Church in the United States to secede from the Federal Council. The reasons given are: "The political lobbying at the seat of our civil government, and the political deliverances on the part of the representatives of the Federal Council."

It is very tempting to those leaders who are set on adjusting the evils in this "present evil world" to employ means common to man rather than adhere solely to the preaching of the gospel of the Kingdom. If preachers would preach the gospel and believers would believe the gospel and obey its precepts, the evils of society would automatically disappear, and it would not be necessary to toy with Communism, flirt with labor unions, lobby in legislative halls, or sponsor social reforms.

JUVENILE DELINQUENCY.

In the May issue of "Good News Broadcaster," which has been sent to my desk by a sister in Nebraska, there appears an article by Sheriff George H. Blaine, Tulsa, Okla., on a "Talk to Parents," concerning juvenile delinquency. He gives some good sound advice, and I am passing some of it along. Before quoting from him, I would like to say that the "Broadcaster" is published by the "Back to the Bible Broadcast" and is edited by Theodore H. Epp—and now for Sheriff Blaine: "The average age of the American criminal in 1890, I believe, was forty-eight years. Today, the average age of the American criminal is seventeen and one-half years. Now, it is certainly a deplorable state when we, the mature people of this supposed-to-be Christian nation point our finger at youth and say, 'You are a criminal.'"

"As I turn the pages of my own experience, I stand aghast at the record I see, an increase of forty, sixty, and one hundred per cent in juvenile delinquency in the last few years. It is deplorable what police officers, and others who come in contact with it see; the boldness, immorality, vice, debauchery, and crime we find practiced among our young people today.

... There are, in this supposed Christian nation of ours, more than four million criminals actively at work stealing and murdering. There is an aggregate of 1,330,000 serious crimes and a national crime bill of seventeen billion dollars every year. Five hundred thousand boys and girls who are now playing on the school grounds of this country will be in penal institutions within the next ten years, if conditions do not better. ... Now the effect of sin has brought about this terrible condition in which we find our country. We as a nation must get back to God. ... Educational and civic institutions, combined with law enforcement agencies go far in overcoming this great problem of juvenile delinquency, but they are not the answers. Christ has the answer; Christ is the answer."

Yes, if you parents have the welfare and future of your children at heart, you will take a definite interest in seeing that they are brought up in Christian atmosphere and thoroughly taught in the Word of God. The article by Sheriff Blaine from which we quoted very little, originally appeared in "The Gideon" in support of their campaign known as "The Gideon Youth Testament Distribution Campaign." It is to be commended and any effort that puts the Bible in the hands of the youth. Parents must live in such manner as to encourage their children to "remember their Creator in the days of their youth." ... It is good for a man that he bear the yoke in his youth" (Lam. 3:27).

MOODY CONFERENCE.

The renowned evangelist, Dwight L. Moody, founded a summer Bible conference at Northfield, Massachusetts, in 1880. It was carried on, yearly, until in 1941 when the war necessitated its discontinuance. It is being revived this year, however, and will commence, August 2, on the Campus of Northfield School for Girls. One of the leaders will be Dr. Paul Moody, youngest son of D. L. Moody, who is also in the ministry. One of the interesting things about these summer Bible conferences that are being held in all parts of the country every year is the fact that those who sponsor and carry on these conferences are ardent advocates of the soon coming of Christ. The people who are the most evangelical are the ones who look for the soon return of the Lord. Faith in the second coming of Christ is not a deterrent to enthusiastic endeavor, but is a stimulant to energetic work for the spreading of the gospel. While "evil men and seducers are waxing worse and worse," Christian people are more and more finding delight in spending their vacations at one or more of these summer Bible conferences. And in speaking of summer Bible conferences, our own held at Oregon, Illinois, the first two weeks of August will provide all the spiritual refreshment and Bible instruction necessary for physical and mental relaxation and enjoyment. The dates of the conference are July 29 to August 10, 1947.

NEBRASKA FLOOD

By Mrs. Allen Johnson, Cambridge, Nebraska

Dear Brother Magaw:

Once before I wrote you concerning a flood, and now I am writing again on the same subject.

The southern half of Nebraska, extending well to the eastern part of the State, recently took a cruel beating from floods, hail, and tornadoes.

Cambridge was hardest hit by flood, while Bartley was badly shaken by a tornado. No lives were lost, nor homes entirely destroyed in Bartley. Cambridge suffered a heavy loss of homes, property, and more lives than we know. It has been impossible to learn the exact number of deaths, as several families rather recently had taken residence in a trailer camp situated on the bank of the Medicine Creek. Very few of these escaped. The camp was swept completely away and very little trace of it has been found.

Our own Brother and Sister Ed Tomlin, members of the Holbrook Church, lost their lives. They lived in the path of the swiftest part of current, about a half block from the trailer camp.

The north and south sides of the town are divided by a ridge or small hill. The north part is skirted by the Medicine Creek. Years ago, man thought to improve on God's creation in this particular spot. God should have made the creek straighter, so the flood waters would not lay on the lowlands so long, so man tried his hand, creating a "better" river and rushing the water out in a hurry. He straightened the many crooks and loops. The "success" of the project is far beyond anything he ever dreamed: the water goes out, taking most of the farm lands and all, yes all, of the bridges.

The night of June 21, 1947, there was an eleven-inch rain some thirty-five miles north. About five-thirty in the morning, a solid wall of water struck the north part of town. The people living there had little or no warning.

Brother and Sister Tomlin were old and both in poor health. She used to go to church with us quite often before her health was so poor.

The way people arose to the aid of those in the stricken area makes one feel that human beings are not such bad creatures, but selfishness and greed were present, also. The whole town is under guard day and night to prevent looting. One man was caught with almost a truckload of the pitiful sodden goods people had salvaged from their wrecked homes. People of that evil disposition were in the minority, for which we can be thankful. We are without water and electricity. The old coal oil lamps are in their element just now. The property damage was much greater than in the flood of 1935: the business district was so hard hit. Only a small part of residence districts escaped without some water in basements, etc. We happened to be among those fortunate ones.

Guess Who!

for answer.

The Republican River did not overflow this time. If it had, there would not have been much left. This is only one of the many flood stories this season. I hope you people there never have one to tell. The radio reported the death toll at about fifty persons, but I think that is rather high.

We can expect almost anything in this day and age. It seems that the elements and nature follow the twisted and abnormal ideas and actions of man.

QUALIFICATIONS OF MINISTERS

Ministers, like other human beings, are imperfect, but the requirements of their profession are such that almost super-wisdom and character are expected of them. They are called upon to deal with every sort of problem of individuals and to keep the church as organized religion moving on toward the most effective service to all concerned. Help in promoting the program of the church is largely voluntary and hence there can be no compulsions. The needed qualifications of a minister are well suggested by the following list printed on a card in a particular church in London:

- The strength of an ox.
- The tenacity of a bulldog.
- The daring of a lion.
- The patience of a donkey.
- The industry of a beaver.
- The versatility of a chameleon.
- The vision of an eagle.
- The meekness of a lamb.
- The hide of a rhinoceros.
- The disposition of an angel.
- The fervency of an evangelist.
- The devotion of a mother.
- The faithfulness of a prophet.
- The heroism of a martyr.
- The resignation of an incurable.
- The loyalty of an apostle.
- The tenderness of a shepherd.

THE GOOD SAMARITAN

times as much then as it is today; therefore, one can see that it was no small sum this Samaritan left with the host of the inn. The fact that Jesus placed a Samaritan on this road was not by chance. Jesus was fully aware that no other race could point out to the Jews that the word "neighbor" meant every person on the earth.

In verse 36, the Scripture states that Jesus then asked the lawyer which of these men had proved to be "neighbor" to him that fell among thieves. Again the wisdom of Christ is shown, as many teachers would have been inclined to tell the lawyer which had been the neighbor. The lawyer was again "on the spot," being unable to give other answer than the correct one, as it was so very apparent.

The lawyer's answer (v. 37) is worthy of notice. It was, "He that shewed mercy on him." This Jewish lawyer so hated the Samaritans that he would not even let the word "Samaritan" cross his lips. This attitude was common among the Jews, and the Samaritans were of similar mind toward the Jews. The particular Samaritan of Jesus' Parable was a noble exception to the rule of enmity between the two peoples. The lawyer did not contest the plausibility of Jesus' Parable. This seems to indicate that a similar occurrence to the one described by the Saviour must have actually happened sometime in the past. Otherwise, this man being a lawyer would have doubtlessly contested the plausibility of the story. As it was, the man left without another word after Jesus replied to his answer with, "Go and do thou likewise."

The reply of Jesus, "Go and do thou likewise," was very short, very potent, and very much to the point. The lawyer was given this advice back in the days of Jesus' ministry. That was nearly two thousand years ago, yet it is equally as true today as the day Jesus spoke the words, and it applies to us equally as much as it did to that scribe. We, too, must go out and be merciful and kind to others, whether they be white, black, red, or yellow.

This Parable should teach us many lessons, but above all other lessons, it should teach us the lesson of humanity and mercy to all. We are servants of the Lord. We, therefore, are obligated to help our fellow man, to be merciful to him, and to be a "good Samaritan" to him in his hour of trouble.

MICHIGAN STATE CONFERENCE

The ninetieth Annual Michigan State Conference and Bible School was held, June 16-22, at the Southlawn Church in Grand Rapids, with Bro. Grover Gordon of Cleveland, Ohio, as guest speaker and teacher of the adult Bible class.

The Bible school, with classes for all ages, met for one session each afternoon from 1:30 to 3:00, under the guidance of Bro. Ellsworth Routson, superintendent. The theme used throughout the week was "Living for Jesus," and each day in the opening exercises the song of that title was sung by the congregation. Bro. Harvey Krogh led many choruses. Bro. Gordon also used the theme in his class and taught the practical applications used in "Living for Jesus." As memory verses, the school learned John 3:16, Romans 6:23, and John 8:12.

As a special feature on Wednesday afternoon, a very interesting temperance lesson was presented on the flannelgraph by Mrs. Van Leeuwen, who is a member of the Highland Park W.C.T.U.

The total enrollment for the Bible School was 171, and the daily average attendance was 110 plus. Sixty-seven members had perfect attendance and the primary 5-and-6-year olds were the largest class with an enrollment of 36.

Bro. Harvey Krogh preached the opening sermon of the Conference—on, "All Out for Christ." Bro. Gordon, who spoke each evening after that, brought forth many interesting and new thoughts through his sermons on prophecy. His sermons dealt with "Evidences of God," "The Sure Word of Prophecy," "The U.S. and World Peace," and, "The Palestine Problem." He pointed out the sureness and swiftness of prophecy being fulfilled and the nearness of Christ's second coming. As a conclusion to all this, Bro. Gordon, then using the words of 2 Peter 3:11, asked, "Seeing then that all these things shall be dissolved, what manner of persons ought ye to be in all holy conversation and godliness?"

On Sunday, immediately following the morning service, a basket dinner was enjoyed by all at Ideal Park. In the afternoon, a song service and Communion was followed by election of officers. The officers elected for the following year are: president, Bro. Ellsworth Routson; first vice president, Bro. Harvey Hotchkiss; second vice president, Bro. Charles Simpson; secretary, Sr. Ada Simpson; treasurer, Bro. Emil Holquist.

The Conference closed with the evening preaching service in which Bro. Gordon spoke on, "Christ's Second Coming." As all left to go to their separate places, it was agreed that everyone who attended this year's Conference received much spiritual benefit. Those from out of town who worshiped with us, besides Bro. Gordon and his wife, were Sr. Amy Fryo with her daughter and parents, Bro. and Sr. Dunbar, of Delta, Ohio, Bro. and Sr. Ellsworth Routson and family of Blanchard, Bro. Leonard Brown of Baraga, Bro. and Sr. Weinburg and family of Vicksburg, and Bro. and Sr. Dykstra of Detroit.

BAPTISM AT HOPE CHAPEL

South Bend, Indiana

On June 1, brethren of Hope Chapel, South Bend, Ind., witnessed the good confession of Richard Vanderwall at the morning service, and in the afternoon a goodly number gathered at the water where he put on Christ in baptism.

"Dick" has been studying for some time in preparation for this all-important step and awaited in eager anticipation the day when he could be reckoned a child of our heavenly Father. We rejoice with him and pray he may be drawn and kept near the Father, that he might the better be able to keep the faith unto life eternal.

Floyd A. Stilson.

"Ponder the path of thy feet, and let all thy ways be established" (Prov. 4:26).

GEORGE W. BARNES

George W. Barnes was born in Indiana, July, 1860, and died June 4, 1947. He was forty-three years a resident of Washington State and a long-time member of the Church of God of the Faith of Abraham. He leaves to mourn: his wife Ella Barnes; one daughter, Mrs. Bertha Briskey; eight grandchildren; thirteen great-grandchildren, and many friends.

Funeral services were conducted by the writer, assisted by Bro. Gary France, at the Kuelbs and Braun Funeral Parlors in Cashmere, Wash. After presenting Scripture concerning the hope and state of the righteous. Bro. Barnes was laid to rest near Cashmere to await the call of Jesus.

EDEN VALLEY, MINNESOTA

In the early part of May, a number of industrious church members gave of their time and effort in redecorating the interior of the church. After the ladies spent a day putting on the finishing touches, it was ready for the Berean Conference which convened on May 17, 18. Bro. Harry Gockler opened the meeting on Saturday evening, and Bro. M. W. Lyon spoke on Sunday morning dedicating the service especially to the Bereans. On Sunday afternoon, there was a songfest, a serenade by Bro. Ernest Graham, and the annual business meeting. Margaret Smith and Elane LeMasurier were out-of-state visitors.

The annual business meeting of the Eden Valley Church was conducted on June 5. Stanley Ross acted as chairman; and, in the election of officers, J. B. Gaspar was elected to finish the term of trustee left vacant by the death of Leslie Edwards. John Coulter was re-elected deacon. Also re-elected were Stanley Ross, trustee; Eunice Otto and Mabel Hoskins, stewardesses; John Peters, secretary; and Elmo Gaspar, treasurer. There was a unanimous vote to rehire our pastor and he consented to serve another year. There was a motion made to appoint a reporter to send in news quarterly to The Restitution Herald. Eunice Otto was appointed chairman of delegates for the state conference, and Mrs. Earl Brassard, Mrs. John Coulter, and Mrs. William Ruhn were appointed to serve on a housing committee for conference.

On June 9, our first vacation Bible School began with Mrs. Lucille Appleby in charge. There was an enrollment of forty-five students, with a record of perfect attendance of forty. Free transportation was provided for children in the country. Morning and afternoon classes were taught by Grace Wiggins, Eunice Otto, and Lucille Appleby. The Ladies Aid served lunch at noon. The school closed on Saturday morning with a program in the auditorium for the conference. It was heartily agreed that we should have Bible school again next summer.

On Sunday, June 22, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Nelson and Harold Lunderby came forward, after Bro. Walter Wiggins offered the invitation, and confessed their belief in Jesus Christ and the need for baptism. The church extended the hand of fellowship as these began their walk in Christian life.

Mrs. Elmo Gaspar, Reporter.

REPORT FOR JUNE

On Sunday, June 1, it was a pleasure to meet briefly with the brethren at Hedrick, Ind., and to speak for them. This was Bro. Watkins' day there, and I stopped off for the services on my way to Brush Creek.

The Brush Creek, Ohio, June meetings were held June 2 through 8. Excellent interest and good attendance were manifest throughout. To go back to my first pastorate, which I left twenty years ago, and see the growth and progress that have been made in the years since, was not only an inspiration, but is a testimony to the faithful labors of those who have ministered there through that period. This is one of our strongest and most active churches. It was a joy to work with them, and with their pastor and wife, Bro. and Sr. G. E. Marsh, who are doing a splendid work there. Bible classes were held each day and preaching each night, with an all-day meeting Sunday.

A few days were spent in Cleveland, Ohio, the week following.

On Sunday, June 15, we stopped off to visit the Indiana Conference, in session at the Morning Star Church, at South Bend.

Monday, the 16th, meetings were begun at Macomb, Ill., during the second week of their Vacation Bible School. Services were held over the following Sunday with very good interest among the people, although bad weather and other events kept down the attendance some. Bro. Linford Moore and his wife are doing a fine work at Macomb, with the co-operation of Bro. and Sr. John Mercer. It was a real pleasure to meet with the Bible School and see the good work the children were doing. The church is blessed with a staff of good teachers and fine musical talent. We hope they will soon be able to "raise the roof" to make room for the growth that we feel sure will come.

It was a privilege to have my mother with me from Brush Creek until returning to Oregon. M. W. Lyon, Evangelist.

SOME DAY

"Some day the fog will lift,
And I shall clearly see;
And things now so mysterious,
Will then be plain to me.

"Some day the clouds will pass,
That now obscure the light;
Then I shall see Him face to face
Who doeth all things right.

"Some day the doubts that rise
Between me and my Sun
Will vanish in that morning light,
And I shall hear, 'Well done.'

"Some day will be made smooth
The rough and thorny way;
Then friends will meet, each other greet,
'In that blest land—some day.

"And when that morning comes,
Then grant, dear Lord, to me,
An entrance in Thy Kingdom fair
To ever reign with Thee."

—Dodson.

NORTHWEST CONFERENCE

Each time we have a conference out here in this great Northwest, it seems better than any before. This time our thrill came when Bro. H. J. Prosser appeared to be in better strength and delivery in spite of his eighty-three years. Also, our guest speaker, H. Gary France, was above what would naturally be expected of twenty-one years. We of the Northwest, and Oregon Bible College, appreciate his abilities. However, we do hope his airplane will not detract him from his minister's work; no, not even as much as it did at Felida this time. His brother Howard was with him, adding his encouraging bit to the conference atmosphere. We hope to have them "drop in on us" at Corvallis, Ore., in November.

At the business meeting, all last year's officers were re-elected for the ensuing year. The treasury was in health.

The congregation began assembling, Thursday, June 12. Bro. France spoke eight times, Bro. Prosser three, "Come ye out from among them; and be ye separate" was the theme of Bro. France's lessons. He gave a very thorough research of "them"—world, people, things. Separate over into what? Into knowledge of God's laws and obedience to that knowledge. Then followed: "It is later than we think." He used signs of the times to prove this. Last lesson was, "Future Grandeur of Jerusalem."

Bro. Prosser stressed the coming Kingdom. Bro. Prosser had been giving a series of lessons on this subject at Felida. He meets with the Felida brethren, giving eight lessons per month. His home address is 4106 N.E. Hassila St., Portland, Ore. Bro. Prosser is our chief. We do wish he would compile his lessons for publication. They are choice.

The conference extended sympathy to relatives and brethren of Sr. Loether, deceased. The memory of her is dear to us.

Communion was served Sunday afternoon, Bro. Prosser officiating.

Let us repeat the theme and farewell wishes: "Come, Lord Jesus. Let Thy coming prevent another such conference. Let it be later than we think. Continue Thou with us as we attempt to let Thee bless us. We know that Thou wantest to bless us; and will, if we will take heed to Thy Word."

Brethren, always strive to let God bless.
Alfred Anthon, Secy. Pro. Tem.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by

National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois
The Restitution Herald is official organ of the General Conference of the Church of God.
Subscription rate: 50 issues per year, $2.50.

The Restitution Herald advocates: the near return of Christ (Acts 1:11), and life only through Him (Col. 3:3); the literal resurrection of the dead (John 5:28); the immortalization of those in Christ (1 Cor. 15:53, 54); the destruction of the wicked (Rev. 21:8); the final restoration of Israel as the Kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ (Luke 1:32), the church to be joint-heirs with Him (Rom. 8:17), and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations (Isa. 60:1-3); the "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21). It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

Prepared by Madge Savage
Waite Park, Minnesota

"Ye see then how that by works a man is justified, and not by faith only. Likewise also was not Rahab the harlot justified by works when she had received the messengers, and had sent them out another way?" (James 2:24, 25).

Spies Sent to Jericho

The Israelites were camped across the River Jordan from the Promised Land. Two spies were sent across the river. Jericho was about seven miles from the river. The spies wanted to "view the land." They wanted to get the situation well in mind before the Israelites crossed the river.

The king of Jericho was much disturbed by the nearness of the Israelites. (Josh. 2:1-3.) He also had learned of the entrance of the spies into his land.

One More Reason

One more reason for the sinner to hope for mercy and forgiveness is found in the story of Rahab. (Josh. 2:3-15.) She had been a sinful woman, a harlot, but she had heard of the children of God.

When the spies came to her for help, to escape the king's men, she hid them. (Josh. 2:6.) She had a flat-roofed home as was common there. On the roof flax straw or "stalks of flax" had been spread out. That would be a good place for it to dry. The spies were hidden under these flax stalks.

Rahab had heard of the Israelites but did not know God as we do. We understand that fact because she told the men that the spies had gone she did not know where. (Josh. 2:5.) We know God and Jesus realize we must be honest with all men.

The Lord did not hold this against Rahab, for she was protecting His people.

Rahab Seeks a Promise

Rahab went up to the men before they were asleep. She said, "I know that the Lord hath given you the land."

She told them how filled with fear were her people. She and the others had heard how God had led them across the Red Sea on dry ground. They had heard how other kings had been overcome. Rahab testified: "The Lord your God, he is God in heaven above, and in earth beneath" (Josh. 2:11).

She asked that the men swear to show her kindness and to her father's house, because she had been kind to them. Rahab was very sure of the token she sought. She said, "That ye will save alive my father, and my mother, and my brethren, and my sisters, and all that they have, and deliver our lives from death" (Josh. 2:13).

The men told Rahab that their lives were hers. She could continue to hide them or she could report them to her ruler. Because she helped them get away safely by letting them down from her house on the city wall by a cord or rope, their lives were in her hands.

Rahab's Joy

The men promised her they would save all within her house if she would hang the cord in the window. It was the same scarlet cord with which they were let down from the window.

How happy she must have been! She knew God was with the Israelites. She was sure her city and country would be taken by them.

How happy she would have been if she had known that she was to become an ancestress of Jesus Christ our Lord! (Matt. 1:5.) How wonderful that God's grace reaches to all—to everyone who will listen to His call! "By grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God: not of works, lest any man should boast" (Eph. 2:8, 9).

CHOOSING YOUR FRIENDS

By Harold J. Doan, Editor

IT HAS BEEN well said that "no man is the whole of himself, his friends are the rest of him." "A man is known by the company he keeps," is another proverb well known among us. If these sayings be true, it is important to Christians what kind of people they choose for personal friends.

Paul one time said, "Be not unequally yoked together with unbelievers: for what fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness? and what communion hath light with darkness? . . . Wherefore come out from among them, and be ye separate" (2 Cor. 6:14, 17). A profitable union between two people of opposite moral views is impossible either in marriage or personal friendship. Your friends will exert a powerful and silent influence over you, helping to mold your personality and way of life. It is important, therefore, to choose carefully and well. What standards shall we set for a mutually happy and profitable friendship?

Consider, first, if your friend sets the same standard of values you set. That is, is Christ first, others second, and self last? A true friendship is based upon common ideals and interests. If your standards are not much the same, your interests will be very different.

This is important for your happiness and personality. It is not impossible for a Christian and non-Christian to be friends, but in such a relationship there will exist conflict, compromise of duty, and a gulf between interests. Willy will want to go roller skating when you should be in Berean meeting. Conflict! Compromise? Neglect your duty? You have a problem and you go to your non-Christian friend Willy. He suggests an unchristian solution. Conflict! Frustration! A true friendship will rise above petty differences, but in major issues, someone has to compromise. As a result of compromise, we have churches filled with lukewarm Christians.

Consider, secondly, that each of you will contribute something to the other's personality. It is difficult to be with a person often in personal friendship and not absorb thoughts, habits, and attitudes from him. Consider, then, whether you want to be like this person who is your friend. Would Jesus want you to be like him? It is a strong and remarkable person who can influence but not be influenced. In a union of two Christian people this mutual exchange of influence is a strengthening factor. But a non-Christian union can be detrimental! If Christ is your best and most treasured friend, your other friends should be the kind of people who can also be friends of Jesus. Then you will have an enjoyable and profitable friendship!

Another consideration should concern the fact that from friendship marriage can develop. It is not well to think you will make friends in one group and marry in another. Is your friend the kind of person you could spend a happy lifetime with? This is a possibility to be considered when choosing your friends. Think of the future!

Choose your personal friends with care according to the standards of Christ. For the sake of your happiness, your Christianity, and your future, "Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers," in a companionship which might lead you away from Christ, make you compromise on your sense of right and wrong, or lessen your zeal for the Lord's work.

National Berean Society

A Word of Caution

Choosing our friends with care allows no excuse for unbrotherly attitude toward those whom we do not care to have as personal, intimate friends. The Golden Rule and the Parable of the Good Samaritan do not have the limits of personal friendship.

Jesus had twelve special friends with whom He confided and through whom He learned about the hopes and needs of the multitude. These men were carefully chosen and cultivated friends, but Jesus' work was by no means limited to them. He also spent much time with the publicans and sinners, justifying His action by saying, "I came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance" (Mark 2:17). The Saviour was no "snob," though He chose His friends with care.

Jesus, the Example, even found time to try to influence His sworn enemies, the scribes and Pharisees, to become Christian. The Golden Rule was a practical law to Jesus, not only to be believed, but practiced. The good Samaritan had good friends among his own people, no doubt. We are fairly sure he had no Jewish friends. Regardless of this, the Samaritan thought of the stricken Jew as a neighbor, and he inconvenienced himself to give him aid.

There are practical reasons for the Golden Rule. First, because of our limited vision and knowledge, and our pettiness, we are in no position to judge a man unworthy of our love. We have enough sense of right and wrong to choose friends, but not to choose enemies. Therefore, our love should go beyond those who are good friends, to those who need our brotherly love.

Secondly, for our own sake we should consider all people in love and not in hate or suspicion. Love is the most powerful constructive force in the world, and hate the most destructive. You can destroy yourself with hate, physically, mentally, and spiritually. You can deprive yourself of some of the world's greatest blessings by limiting the amount of love you deal out to the world. Jesus knew this, therefore the Golden Rule, for your good, to make you a better person.

Choose your personal friends with care, but make every man your neighbor, and love him, though you may disagree with his way of life.

YOUTH RALLY STUDENTS ATTENTION!

Do you like music? If so, we have a special department in the Youth Rally just for you.

A Youth Rally Orchestra, composed of those who wish to play, will rehearse every afternoon from 1:15 to 2:15. This rehearsal period will also be used to prepare instrumental solos or ensembles for the Rally. The orchestra will contribute to the evening rally sessions by presenting appropriate music.

Come! Bring your musical instrument, and join our Youth Rally Orchestra!

William Dick, Instrumental Leader.

PRISCILLA AUXILIARY

The organized group of ministers' wives will meet during the annual General Conference at Oregon, Ill., July 29 - August 10, 1947. The hour and place of meetings will be announced to suit the convenience of the members. This is where the problems and blessings peculiar to the particular needs of this group are discussed.

Come, and add the blessing of your counsel to the end that all may have strength and vision to serve the Lord more efficiently in the days that lie ahead.

Grace M. Marsh, Secy.

VIRGINIA NOTES

Today, June 23, we opened our Daily Vacation Bible School at Dry Run with thirty-two children present. When we asked who could bring someone tomorrow, most of the children said, "We are all here. There is no one else to bring!" Would that we could always say the same on Sunday!

The Virginia Conference and Bible School dates are August 14-24, inclusive, with Bros. G. E. Marsh and Arlen Marsh as visiting ministers.

Next week, June 30, to Browntown for Bible School and evangelistic services, beginning with an all-day meeting on Sunday, June 29!
 Mrs. J. R. LeCrome.

Gleanings From the Field

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

Bro. and Sr. A. J. Hoke and "Becky," Dayton, Ohio, are guests at Oregon Bible College for a few days while Bro. Hoke is on business for the Institution.

Sr. Ruth Hoskins, a nurse at Warmolts Clinic, Oregon, Ill., returned home, June 26, from Eden Valley and Saint Cloud, Minn., where she had been vacationing two weeks.

Bro. and Sr. James Mattison, Hammond, La., arrived at headquarters, June 27, bringing Laura Mae Bankston, Rita Laundry, and Ella Lou Foster for the Summer Bible Training School. The Mattisons returned next day to the Pelican State.

Bro. William M. Farley, 804 Heyl Ave., Columbus 6, Ohio, eighty-three years of age, writes in deep appreciation of the promises of God.

Sr. J. D. Humphreys, Rt. 2, Potts Camp, Miss., would like to see an article or two in The Herald, telling about Daniel 5—something entitled, perhaps, "The Handwriting on the Wall."

Bro. and Sr. Fred Paisley, Ripley, Ill., were guests, two days last week, of Bro. and Sr. Albert Logsdon, Oregon, Ill.

Bro. and Sr. Howard H. Hawkins of East Rochester, Ohio, are happy to announce the birth of their first grandchild, James Howard Frederick, on June 4, 1947. His parents are Eunice and Ellsworth Frederick.

For more news, see pages 10 and 11.

BUDGET FACTS!

While the final facts of the 1946-47 budget are not yet complete, it appears that total income will be approximately $33,000.00.

This is $8,406.60 short of the budget. Expenses have been reduced all possible to meet this reduction, but there is an anticipated deficit of $5,000.00 on the year's work.

The Editor, accompanied by Mrs. Magaw and Sidney David and Mrs. Leota B. Hanson and Albert Logsdon, attended the Illinois Quarterly Conference at Eldorado, June 28 and 29.

Bro. Curtis J. Simpson, Grandville, Mich., has enrolled for the freshman class at Oregon Bible College in September. We hope soon to hear from other prospective freshmen. Keep the College growing!

"Words and Music," a neat booklet of verse by Edith Andrew Burchell, Oregon, Ill., was recently published at headquarters' print shop. Address the author for your copy. The price is $1.00, each.

"During the five days of June 9-13, Bible school was conducted in Cashmere, Wash., with an average attendance of twenty-two pupils."—Lyle Rankin, Cashmere, Wash.

We are glad to report that Sr. C. E. Lapp, Tempe, Ariz., is recovering from her recent surgery.

Sr. J. S. Lyon is visiting her son, Bro. M. W. Lyon, in Oregon, Ill.

Sr. Lara Boyce, Oklahoma City, Okla., reports that her uncle, Bro. John Lehman, West Milton, Ohio, was "eighty-seven years young on Tuesday, June 17."

"Michelle Ann" was born, June 14, to Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Topping, Swanton, Ohio. Congratulations!

Bro. and Sr. Gordon Shrode and son, Douglas, Young American, Minn., are visiting with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Reed, Oregon, Ill.

SCHIER - CANFIELD

Bedecked in spic wedding attire, on the scheduled moment, Miss Grace L. Schier of Oregon, Ill., on the arm of her father, Hiram Schier, to the organ strains of "Here Comes the Bride," marched down the aisle of the candle-illuminated, floral-adorned church to within a step of her waiting betrothed—Glenn E. Canfield of Chana, Ill.

Miss Lois Carpenter, ever-faithful church organist, had previously filled the vibrant air of the house of worship with rapt music of love, followed by two touching vocal numbers by the groom's sister—Mrs. David Faulconer; these while two brothers of the bridal party—Hiram Schier, Jr., and Eugene Canfield—were ushering the respective families and friends.

As the organ pealed the first strains of the March, the ushers preceded the best man—Russel, another groom's brother—down the right side aisle to his position at the altar, followed by the groom. Then, the maid of honor—Miss Georgia Johnson—advanced to her position, being followed by the bride's six-year-old niece as flower girl, accompanied by her younger brother, Larry, bearing the Bible and ring.

Quiet reigned. Prayer to the Father of all love, that He would implant firmly within the hearts of the betrothed the seeds of true comprehension of the meaning of the sacred, Heaven-designed matrimonial pledge which they were about to plight each to the other for life's duration, was invoked.

Followed friendly pastoral admonition respecting God's lifelong obligation upon all who mutually exchange their nuptial vows, which were mutually approved.

Graciously, the father, in behalf of himself and her attending mother, gave their only daughter, Grace Schier, unto marriage to Glenn E. Canfield. Humbly and realistically accepting, Glenn proffered his name to her in lieu of the name of her father. Grace acquiescing, they immediately exchanged golden rings, as uncorruptible symbols of mutual servitude in lifelong vows.

Accordingly, the undersigned felt fully justified in exercising the rights of the clergy, and pronounced them husband and wife according to the laws of Heaven and of the State.

Following a prayer for divine guidance, always, the party about faced, and the pastor presented Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Canfield, who would gladly greet their numerous friends in the narthex.

Thence all repaired to the beautiful basement where a mammoth glorified cake and ice cream were waiting.

Tables had become laden with neatly wrapped packages, large and small. A half hour, and two pairs of active hands had brought to light, not only many articles of great utility and value, but also tears of gratitude and appreciation in the eyes of the recipients.

Soon after the return of the newlywed from a trip to Niagara Falls, they hope to settle close to Chana, Ill. F. L. Austin.

"I surely enjoy reading The Restitution Herald."—Mrs. Lydia Chapman, Camden, Ill.

LIBERTY AND PROGRESS

The liberty enjoyed by Americans has been wonderful impetus to progress. Shown in this picture is the Statue of Liberty, New York Harbor, and a symbol of American achievement, the "Mallard," latest in American air travel. . . . The Statue of Liberty, given by the French to Americans in commemoration of the one hundredth anniversary of American independence, presents a warm welcome to incoming ships. It stands approximately three hundred feet high. In the Statue's uplifted hand, lighted from within, is a torch, and she holds in her other hand a tablet that reads merely—"July 4, 1776." Elevators permit visitors to ascend high into the Statue's head. . . . Luxury and safety are outstanding features of the "Mallard," an amphibian plane well equipped to land on earth or sea. With a wing spread of sixty-six feet, eight inches, it can carry a transport of 3,280 pounds. It travels well above two hundred miles per hour. . . . Someday, Christ will return to give liberty to the captives of all earth, freeing from drudgery, sickness, heartaches, and death. In the wake of that liberty will arise divine and eternal achievement surmounting all man's dreams.

Time and Eternity

Long continuing time leads the weary to question if ever the Saviour will return. Not uncommonly, Christians, though sincerely believing in the coming of Christ, question, "What can be gained by further delay? Is it possible that we have been mistaken in our interpretation about Christ's coming? How much longer must we wait?" Scoffers who disbelieve in the coming of the Lord take advantage of this long continuing time and, "walking after their own lusts," say, "Where is the promise of his coming? For since the fathers fell asleep, all things continue as they were from the beginning of the creation."

The Scripture answers, "The Lord is not slack concerning his promise as some men count slackness, but is long-suffering to us-ward, not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance" (2 Peter 3:9). Then the Apostle Peter assured that, long as the wait might be, the "day of the Lord will come as a thief in the night"—suddenly, realistically, and when many people are unprepared for Him. The hands on God's clock do not turn backward. Time passes; eternity approaches!

John the Revelator on the Isle of Patmos saw an angel "stand upon the sea and on the earth," lifting "up his hand to heaven" and swearing "by him that liveth for ever and ever . . . that there should be time no longer" (Rev. 10:1-6). Time will have ended; eternity will have begun.

"Now it is high time to awake out of sleep; for now is our salvation nearer than when we [first] believed. The night is far spent, the day is at hand" (Rom. 13:11, 12).

Jesus, Earth's Coming Judge and King

Prior to eternity, Christ will "judge the world in righteousness" (Acts 17:31). God has "committed all judgment unto the Son: that all men should honour the Son, even as they honour the Father" (John 5:22, 23)—having "given him authority to execute judgment" (v. 27). Jesus "was ordained of God to be judge of quick and dead" (Acts 10:42). "With righteousness shall he judge the poor . . . and righteousness shall be the girdle of his loins" (Isa. 11:4, 5). "He shall judge the poor of the people, he shall save the children of the needy . . . in his days shall the righteous flourish" (Psalm 72:4-7). When Christ thus judges, or rules, all "kings shall fall down before him" (v. 11). Some texts indicate that nations will be forced to serve Christ in His Kingdom, but Psalm 72:11 and 12 indicate that the nations will serve Christ because of His wonderful service to mankind: "All nations shall serve him"—why? "FOR he shall deliver the needy when he crieth; the poor also and him that hath no helper." Christ will prove His right to be Ruler.

Isaiah, foreseeing the reign of Christ, prophesied: "Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end" (Isa. 9:7). Daniel likewise prophesied Christ's Kingdom would start small like a stone "cut out of the mountain without hands," but grow until it "became a great mountain, and filled the whole earth" (2:35). "Christ must reign, till he hath put all enemies under his feet. The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death" (1 Cor. 15:25, 26). Revelation 20 shows that Christ's reign will continue one thousand years. Then "shall the Son also himself be subject unto him [God] that put all things under him [Christ], that God may be all in all" (1 Cor. 15:28). True, the Angel Gabriel foretold that Christ "shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end," proving that Christ will be a King throughout eternity, but the foregoing texts prove that His Kingdom will start small, increase gradually, and require a Millennium for full victory and consummation.

Judgment Now in Effect in the Church

Though the world at large will not come into judgment until Christ "shall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing and his kingdom" (2 Tim. 4:1), those who belong to Christ are being judged today. "Some men's sins are open beforehand going before to judgment; and some men they follow after" (1 Tim. 5:24). "The time is come that judgment must begin at the house of God," but, "if it first begin at us, what shall the end be of them that obey not the gospel of God?" "If the righteous scarcely be saved, where shall the ungodly and sinner appear?" (1 Peter 4:17, 18.)

Immortality on Condition

By T. M. Ferrell, Holbrook, Nebraska

THOUGH with all our might, we as members of the Church of God teach and preach the important truths of the Bible—such as the Kingdom of God to be established on earth, the literal second coming of Christ, and resurrection of the dead to immortality—all our efforts will be in vain if there is harbored in the mind of the receiver the idea that he is already immortal, naturally, and from birth.

If one believes he has endless life now and goes to his reward at death, the necessity of Christ's coming again to raise the dead to immortality is gone. The idea of reward at death and eternal abode in heaven does away with the truth of the establishment of God's Kingdom on earth at some future time. Let us examine the Scriptures to see how God promises His people life and immortality on condition.

The word "mortal," according to common dictionary definition, means: "subject to death, destined to die." "Immortal," means just the opposite: "not mortal, imperishable." The use of these two words in the Scriptures should be noted. The word "mortal" is used in reference to man, as Job 4:17 says—"Shall mortal man be more just than God?" Also, in 1 Corinthians 15:51-54, Paul spoke of the time in resurrection when the corruptible dead will put on incorruption and the righteous living will be changed—"for . . . this mortal must put on immortality."

The first man, Adam, was mortal. He was subject to death when God told him that he should surely die if he disobeyed by eating of the forbidden fruit. He was destined to die after he had eaten of the fruit and the curse was placed upon him, and upon all his descendants. "By one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men" (Rom. 5:12). The Bible teaches us over and over that man is mortal, has been mortal since Adam, and will be mortal until death itself is finally done away under the reign of Christ.

The subject of the condition of man in death is large enough to be treated separately, but consider briefly the unanimous voice of the Scriptures as a whole which teaches us that dead men think nothing (Psalm 146:4), know nothing (Eccl. 9:5), see nothing (Job 14:21), cannot work (Eccl. 9:10), cannot be rewarded (Eccl. 9:5), are as asleep (1 Thess. 4:13), and are as dead as a dead beast (Eccl. 3:19). The teaching of the state of man in death, contrary to common teaching, has not changed since the beginning, and was not changed by the Christ. If there is no real death, how can there be a real resurrection from the dead?

In coming to an understanding of the use of these words, "immortal" and "immortality," in the Bible, it is best to turn to places where the words occur. We are reminded of the experience of the late Brother L. E. Conner, for several years president of our General Conference, who, when on a debating team in his school days, was given the affirmative on the resolution, "Man Possesses an Immortal Soul." Not having the Bible knowledge that was his in later years, he thought, "Surely, this is an easy assignment, for the Bible must abound in references to the immortal soul." According to his own word, he began reading the New Testament, reading from the first verse of Matthew to the last verse of Revelation, and to his amazement discovered that "immortal soul" is never even mentioned. This was a revelation to him, and he said that from that time onward he was a confirmed believer in the mortality of man.

T. M. Ferrell

It does seem paradoxical, that as much as "immortal soul" is mentioned by the people, those two words never occur together in the whole Bible. In fact, the word "immortal" occurs only once (1 Tim. 1:17), and then in reference to God only. "Now unto the King eternal, immortal, invisible, the only wise God, be honour and glory for ever and ever." The word "immortality" occurs only five times in our Bible, and is used variously in reference to God, to man in his post-resurrection state, and to the work of Christ in the gospel.

The five places where the word "immortality" occurs are as follows: in reference to God—"The King of kings, and Lord of lords; who only hath immortality, . . . whom no man hath seen, nor can see" (1 Tim. 6:16); to man in the future (1 Cor. 15:53, 54) where Paul speaks of the "last trump" when the dead will be raised and the righteous living will be changed to immortality; (Rom. 2:7) where it says, "To them who by patient continuance in well doing seek for . . . immortality, eternal life," which definitely shows that we do not already possess immortality, or we would not seek it. The other reference to immortality is in 2 Timothy 1:10, "Our Saviour Jesus Christ, who hath abolished [triumphed over] death, and hath brought life and immortality to light through the gospel." # Love Thy Brother, but Not As Cain

By Kirby N. Davis, Oregon, Illinois

"We should love one another . . . not as Cain" (1 John 3:11, 12).

GENESIS 4:1-9 presents many interesting thoughts and problems. Besides a few minor problems, there are two major ones in this text. The first is, Why did the Lord have respect unto Abel's offering and not unto Cain's offering? The second is, What is meant in the last sentence of verse seven? It reads, "Unto thee shall be his desire, and thou shalt rule over him."

When Eve brought forth Cain, she was very thankful to the Lord. She said, "I have gotten a man from the Lord." She had received a man child in the way the Lord had provided. Later, Abel was born and developed into a more noble character than his brother. Abel was a shepherd and Cain was a farmer. Cain made an offering to the Lord of the fruit of the ground, while Abel offered the first-fruits of his flock to God. God had respect for Abel's offering, but for Cain's He had no respect. Cain became angry about this and the Lord asked him why he was wroth and why had he become so sour or down in the face. God continued by telling him that if he had done well he would be accepted, but if he did not do well, he needed to be justified by a sin-offering. "Unto thee shall be his desire, and thou shalt rule over him," was the next statement that God made to Cain. Some time later, as Cain was talking to his brother, his anger overwhelmed him and he killed Abel in the field. When Cain was asked about his brother, he answered that he did not know where he was, and asked, "Am I my brother's keeper?"

Now we shall consider the first major problem in this text. We read: "In process of time it came to pass, that Cain brought of the fruit of the ground an offering unto the Lord. And Abel, he also brought of the firstlings of his flock and of the fat thereof. And the Lord had respect unto Abel and to his offering: but unto Cain and to his offering he had not respect." Why did God have respect unto Abel's offering and not unto Cain's offering?

Both Cain and Abel offered to the Lord of the materials they were working with each day. Cain, however, did not necessarily bring the best fruitage of the earth to the Lord but merely some of the produce, whether good or bad. Abel brought the best from his flocks, the firstlings, to sacrifice to the Lord.

For further study of this problem, turn to the Faith Chapter. "By faith Abel offered unto God a more excellent sacrifice than Cain, by which he obtained witness that he was righteous, God testifying of his gifts: and by it he being dead yet speaketh" (Heb. 11:4). By faith Abel offered a more acceptable sacrifice, and a lack of faith caused Cain's offering to not be accepted. Cain's lack of faith is shown by his not necessarily bringing the best fruit of the earth for his sacrifice. Cain would have been accepted had he done well.

To be accepted of God, one first must be justified. Paul said, "To him that worketh not, but believeth on him that justifieth the ungodly, his faith is counted for righteousness" (Rom. 4:5). Cain would have been justified and accepted, had he but had faith in the Almighty God. Faith would have caused him to make the sin-offering that God told him was necessary. Yes, God had respect for Abel's offering because of the faith that was with it and did not respect Cain's offering because of the lack of faith.

For our second major problem, we shall consider what God meant when He said, "Unto thee shall be his desire, and thou shalt rule over him." Unto Cain shall be whose desire and Cain shall rule over whom? It seems to me that this latter part of the verse is giving Abel into the care of his brother, Cain. It was common in those days for the older to be responsible for his younger brother. "Unto thee shall be his [thy brother's] desire, and thou shalt rule over him." This interpretation seems logical because of the two following verses, wherein Cain abused this authority given him by killing his brother. The very

GENESIS 4:1-9

"Adam knew Eve his wife; and she conceived, and bare Cain, and said, I have gotten a man from the Lord. And she again bare his brother Abel. And Abel was a keeper of sheep, but Cain was a tiller of the ground. And in process of time it came to pass, that Cain brought of the fruit of the ground an offering unto the Lord. And Abel, he also brought of the firstlings of his flock and of the fat thereof. And the Lord had respect unto Abel and to his offering: but unto Cain and to his offering he had not respect. And Cain was very wroth, and his countenance fell. And the Lord said unto Cain, Why art thou wroth? and why is thy countenance fallen? If thou doest well, shalt thou not be accepted? and if thou doest not well, sin lieth at the door. And unto thee shall be his desire, and thou shalt rule over him. And Cain talked with Abel his brother: and it came to pass, when they were in the field, that Cain rose up against Abel his brother, and slew him. And the Lord said unto Cain, Where is Abel thy brother? And he said, I know not: Am I my brother's keeper?"

question that Cain asked the Lord implies that he knew what was expected of him. "Am I my brother's keeper?" Cain knew that he was his brother's keeper and was cast out beyond recovery because of his deliberate rebellion against God's command. Hence, we as Christians are admonished by John to love one another. He said, "This is the message that ye heard from the beginning, that we should love one another. Not as Cain who was of that wicked one, and slew his brother. And wherefore slew he him? Because his own works were evil, and his brother's righteous" (1 John 3:11, 12). Where in the beginning, other than in the latter part of the seventh verse that we are considering, is the message that we should love one another? When Abel was given into Cain's care, He was to love him, but was not to "care" for him in the manner that he did. Brethren, love one another, but not as Cain.

Will There Be Another World War?

---

By J. Smith in "The Prophetic News"

---

I BELIEVE there will be another world war for the following reasons:

- (1) The nations are preparing for another war.
- (2) There is far less unity among the great powers today than there was after World War I.
- (3) The Bible positively affirms that there will be another world war.

But why quote the Bible? Because it has never been known to err in one of its predictions, although it contains hundreds of them; and many of them dealing with great cities, great nations, and world empires. It is the only book in the world which contains history in advance.

The Prophet Ezekiel graphically described the march of a great confederacy of nations "from the north parts" down through Palestine. He said: "It shall be in the latter days." The purpose of this invasion may be not only to make a spoil of the land of Palestine, but to seize the Suez Canal, the shipping key of the world. Ezekiel mentioned these nations by name, but called them by the names of their original settlers: the grandsons of the great-grandsons of Noah. Foremost among them, he mentioned Magog, who was the second son of Japheth, and who settled in the south of Russia. He also mentioned Persia, as being confederate with them. "Gomer, and all his bands" are there. He was the first son of Japheth. It is believed that some of Japheth's descendants settled in Germany. His first-born son was Ashkenaz. Smith's Bible Dictionary says: "In rabbinical phraseology the Jews of Germany are termed Ashkenazim." (See also Chamber's Encyclopedia.)

That God is against these invading hosts is clear: "Son of man, set thy face against Gog, the land of Magog [Russia], the chief prince of Meshech and Tubal, and prophesy against him." Many Bible students identify Meshech and Tubal as Moscow and Tobolsk. This invasion of Palestine is withstood by "the merchants of Tarshish, with all the young lions thereof," together with their allies. It is quite true that there is no great power today known by this name. But in figurative language, it fits Great Britain perfectly. She is famous for her ships and her merchandise, as Tarshish was of old. She certainly will defend Palestine against any invader. Furthermore, the figure of the "lion," which is Britain's national symbol, and "the young lions," as her colonies, perfectly fits in with the prophecy.

Behind the clouds the sun is bright; and, although this war will be the greatest of all time, yet, thank God, it will be the final one. The prayer which you have prayed from childhood will be answered at last: "Thy kingdom come." It will come, and the King of Kings also will come to establish it.

When these great nations are gathered in battle against Jerusalem, it is written: "Then shall the Lord go forth, and fight against those nations, as when he fought in the day of battle. And his feet shall stand in that day upon the mount of Olives, which is before Jerusalem on the east . . . and the Lord my God shall come, and all the saints with thee . . . and the Lord shall be king over all the earth: in that day shall there be one Lord, and his name one."

Our Lord then will set up a universal world empire. Then will be fulfilled the prophecy of Daniel, who, after describing the rise and fall of the coming world empires (Babylon, Media-Persia, Greece, and Rome), said: "I saw in the night visions, and, behold, one like the Son of man came to the Ancient of Days, and they brought him near before him. And there was given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom, that all people, nations, and languages, should serve him: his dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed."

Will the next war be the final one? Those who take upon themselves to answer that with a positive, "Yes," are going further than I am prepared to go. But I will say this, that the nations today are getting into position (as described in the Bible) for the final conflict.

The Life of Christ

By Timothy Pearson, Oregon, Illinois

"Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favour with God and man" (Luke 2:52).

IN STUDYING the life of Christ, one does well to get a historical background at time of—

The Childhood of Jesus

Herod the Great followed the Maccabees as ruler of Judea in 37 B.C. Forty years later, unknown to Herod, the Messiah was born near the capital city at the town of Bethlehem. Caesar Augustus was ruling in Rome, and Palestine was a satellite of the Roman Empire. According to the Biblical account: "In those days an edict was proclaimed by Emperor Augustus that a census of the whole world should be taken. It was the first census, taken when Quirinius was governor of Syria. So everyone went to his own town to register. And Joseph went up, from Galilee, from the town of Nazareth to Judea to the city of David called Bethlehem, because he belonged to the house and family of David, to register with Mary, who was engaged to him and who was soon to become a mother. While they were there, the time came for her child to be born, and she gave birth to her first-born son; and she wrapped him up, and laid him in a manger, for there was no room for them at the inn." (Goodspeed, The New Testament. All Biblical quotations are from this Translation unless otherwise specified.)

It happened that on that same night there were some wise shepherds in the proximity. They had read of the prophecies of the coming of the Messiah and knew that He would be King of the world. When they received the tidings from an angel that the Saviour had been born, they went immediately to Bethlehem to worship Him.

About this time, Wise Men from India followed a star to Jerusalem. Once in every eight hundred five years, the planets Jupiter, Mars, and Saturn are in conjunction; that is, they appear close together in a straight line. You and I shall not witness this phenomenon in the present age. It will not reoccur until the year 2409 A.D. Astronomers have discovered that in the year 6 B.C., the probable date of Jesus' birth, these stars formed a horizontal column of light, one planet behind another. As the Wise Men trekked from the East, they surely must have marveled at this wonderful sight. Above Jerusalem, forming the point of a heavenly arrow, sparkled the brightly beaming stars.

One of the stars that showed the way to Jesus' crib was called "Saturn" in honor of a Greek king who was supposed to have ruled during an ancient golden age. It seems significant that to the Wise Men this star meant a golden age to come.

The account of the visits of the shepherds and the Wise Men when they came to Jesus' crib is well known, and it is unnecessary to recount it at this time. Suffice it to say that the Lord was praised and honored more at His birth than He has been at any time since.

At the age of eight days, Jesus' parents came to the Temple with the little Babe. A devoted old man named Simeon had been promised of God that he would see the Redeemer before his death. At that moment when Jesus was brought into the Temple, he appeared, took the Baby in his arms, and blessed Him. What triumph there was in his voice that day when he prayed, "Lord, now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace, according to thy word: for mine eyes have seen thy salvation" (Luke 2:29, 30, A.V.).

About the same time—probably the same day—a prophetess called Anna recognized the Baby as the new-born Saviour. Anna was very old, not less than one hundred years of age. Her words always were respected, so we can imagine the effect upon bystanders in the Temple when she spoke of Him to all of them who looked for redemption in Jerusalem.

Until Jesus was twelve years of age, we have no record of His physical and mental developments. During this time, He stayed at home and was taught by His mother. Since Joseph was a carpenter, he could not have had time to contribute much to the early education of Jesus. It was Mary who was responsible for most of Jesus' primary teaching. At the time the family journeyed to Jerusalem for the Passover, the Boy Jesus had knowledge, however, that Mary could not have taught Him. In some mysterious manner God had educated His Son, because Jesus was found asking questions of the priests in the Temple and answering their questions. According to Luke 2:47, "All that heard him were astonished at his understanding and answers." Here we see that the mind of Jesus had developed beyond that of a normal boy of twelve years. From this time forward, we shall discover that He always had understanding that superseded that of His contemporaries. He possessed divine wisdom that came to His and many times when He had difficult decisions to make.

One of the oddities in the life of Christ is that there is no record of what happened to Jesus between the ages of twelve and thirty years. The only hint we have as to what He was doing is found in Luke 2:52: "Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favour with God and man." Mr. Bruce Barton has speculated about the type of life Jesus led in Nazareth. He believes that life in Nazareth was cheerful and easy-going. He described life in that little town thus:

"The sun shone almost every day; the land was fruitful; to make a living was nothing much to worry about. There was plenty of time to visit. Families went on picnics in Nazareth, as elsewhere in the world; young people walked together in the moonlight and fell in love in the spring. Boys laughed boisterously at their games and got into trouble with their pranks. And Jesus, the boy who worked in the carpenter shop, was a leader among them." (Barton, The Man Nobody Knows, page 10.)

Whatever it was that occupied Jesus' time during those eighteen years served to make Him a mental and a physical giant.

Jesus was about thirty years of age when He first met His cousin, John the Baptist. John was baptizing near Aenon on the Jordan River where there was much water. John testified that as Jesus came up out of the water, the blessing of God appeared in the form of a dove which perched upon Christ's shoulder. He said a voice came from heaven which said, "This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased."

After a prayer of thanksgiving by the Saviour, He was led out into the desert by His desire to commune with the Father. Jesus must have felt that He needed this period of preparation for the enormous task that lay before Him. He was not satisfied with the instruction He had enjoyed for thirty years; He needed the strength that a severe test of faith would afford Him.

For a month and ten days, the Master wandered about the waste lands near the Dead Sea. During this time, it is unlikely He saw anyone. He was alone with God. Papini wrote, concerning this period of trial, "The time allotted to the new liberator before announcing the promised kingdom was forty days of close communion with God to receive the supreme inspiration." (Papini, The Life of Christ.)

When the Lord went into the wilderness, He was well seasoned as an outdoor man. Proof that Jesus was physically fit and well prepared for a ministry of hardships is found in the fact that He fasted forty days, yet had will power enough to withstand Satan at the end of that time.

Imagine having been without food for more than a month and suddenly having realized that you had power to turn stones to palatable bread. Your temptation would have been strong to misuse that power. Though you knew that the consequences would reveal you as a weakling, unfit to be trusted with many important matters, you would probably think twice before giving up an opportunity to become ruler of the world. Jesus, however, had an answer for temptation.

"Get thee behind me, Satan," He commanded, "for it is written, 'Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God and him only shalt thou serve'" (Luke 4:8).

In mockery, the evil one defied the Christ to throw Himself down from a lofty pinnacle and to prove that God would not permit Him to be hurt. But Jesus said that He would not tempt the Lord. "The forty-day period of trial was a total success, for the youth who had been a carpenter remained in the wilderness; a man came out." (Barton, The Man Nobody Knows, page eighteen.)

First Year of Christ's Ministry

At the beginning of the ministry of Christ, it happened that some very important people were in political power. Because these men played an important part in the later life of Christ, let us notice the position each held.

Tiberius Caesar, ruler in Rome.

Pontius Pilate, governor of Judea.

Herod, governor of Galilee.

Herod Philip, governor of Iturea
(north of Galilee).

Lysanius, governor of Abilene (east of Mount Hermon).

Annas and Caiaphas, high priests.

The first character who enters the stage set by John the Baptist for the appearance of Christ was Herod. This immoral ruler married the wife of his brother Philip and was reproved for this and other sinful acts by John. Herod promptly put him in prison, where he stayed during the first year.

At this time, the ministry of Jesus begins. One Wednesday evening, in 30 A.D., Jesus and His mother were attending a wedding feast. It happened that the wine gave out before the thirst of the guests did, and Mary came to Jesus with the problem. Jesus told her that the time to work miracles had not come but, at her insistence, turned enough water to wine to supply the demand. On this day, Jesus began to work miracles and the people believed on Him.

About April 1, Jesus went to Jerusalem for the Passover. There He found the Levites selling animals in the Temple at exorbitant prices and the money changers were robbing the poor peasants who came there to worship. The Master, who had been (Please turn to page 10)

News and Prophecy Digest

By C. E. Randall, Fonthill, Ontario

CITY TO CITY. Of late, we have had fellow church members from cities of three different states that have visited in our home and worshiped with us on Sunday. This going from one city to another to worship reminded me of the great prophecy concerning the time when "ten men shall take hold out of all languages of the nations, even shall take hold of the skirt of him that is a Jew, saying, We will go with you: for we have heard that God is with you." At this time, it is written that "the inhabitants of one city shall go to another, saying, Let us go speedily to pray before the Lord, and to seek the Lord of hosts: I will go also."

The influence that one has on another clearly is indicated in what will happen when people have a desire to worship and also long that their fellows also will go before the Lord to worship. More could be brought into contact with the Lord today, if people really were concerned about the spiritual welfare of their neighbors and felt the responsibility that undoubtedly must rest upon each one that knows the Lord.

ATOMIC BOMBS. President Robert M. Hutchins, Chicago University, where the atomic bomb was pioneered, lately declared that the United States now has enough atomic bombs to "destroy the rest of the world," if we would "attack right away." He continued: "Our wartime and postwar genius has produced disease and famine-spreading devices which will wipe out our victims who escape from our bombs. . . . If we wish to be saved, we shall have to practice justice and love, however humiliating it may be to do so." Then two statements, which seem to be the prevailing thoughts of present-day world-savers, followed: "Our Christian civilization will have to christianize itself in a hurry"; and, "The universal brotherhood, which alone will save us, must be sought under law."

Without doubt, the world is heading toward the "Valley of Jehoshaphat" where all nations will be assembled in their last final struggle. All the legislation in the world cannot prevent this prophetic event from being fulfilled. Why is it that men seemingly never will learn that righteousness and peace cannot come by law? The Israelites sought to establish "brotherhood" under law—they failed. Law never created love in any man's heart. It never was intended that it should. Law is for the transgressor! Especially, is it true that laws of men will not be able to bring about "universal brotherhood," as suggested by Dr. Hutchins. The only kind of brotherhood that will meet all requirements is that which is obtained through adoption into the family of God.

PAGAN ZEAL. The current issue of the "Pathfinder" carries a picture of a large mass of Muslims praying toward Mecca, with an accompanying article on the religions of India. One thing about pagan worship that has always struck my imagination is the zeal with which they go about their religious rites and the willingness to punish themselves in order to appease the anger of some god which they ignorantly worship. I have been told that one of the hindrances to Christian missionary work among pagan worshippers is the lack of personal sacrifice on the part of the missionaries. The pagans reason, "If your God is as great and good as you claim, why don't you sacrifice for Him in your worship?" Perhaps, the pagan has an argument that deserves a more careful consideration on the part of Christians than usually is given. If Christians would apply their faith to the daily life with the vigor and zeal that marks the devotions and worship of the pagans, Christianity would have a greater impact on the lives of the non-Christians than now attends it.

SALVATION FOR THE JEWS. The trial of two of the leading characters in the famous Oberammergau Passion Play recently has come to a close. They were charged with being Nazis and furthering the cause of the Nazis during the years of their rule. The two who were charged were Alois Lang, who played the role of Christ, and Anton Preisinger, who acted the part of Lazarus. According to press reports, their acquittal was largely obtained through the testimony of Jews, who vouched for them that they were supporters of the Nazi rule only in so far as they were forced by the Nazi strong arm.

Thus, the passion of the true Messiah, as portrayed by this world renowned play, again will be given through the efforts of the people that made the original passion play a reality. Apart from all their shortcomings, the Jews have done a great deal toward giving the gospel to the Gentiles. When the scroll of time is unfolded and deeds of men are made known, there will be found among the names of those who sacrificed and suffered much for the gospel's sake many names common to Jewish nomenclature. We gladly accept the Lord's pronouncement that "Salvation is of the Jews," and for this feel bound to render to them due credit.

AMERICAN RABBIS. The Central Conference of American Rabbis was held at Montreal recently, it being their fifty-eighth annual convention. One of the decisions which they reached with a great deal of unanimity concerned mixed marriages. The following resolution expressed their sentiments. It reads: "The Central Conference of American Rabbis does not sanction mixed marriages between Jews and non-Jews, without conversion, and it therefore calls upon the members of the conference to discourage such marriages and to refrain from officiating at them."

One of the first requirements with which God charged, the Israelites was to refrain from giving their children in marriage to non-

Israelites. The reason given: "They will turn away thy son from following me." There were times when the Israelites disregarded this prohibition, and each time the thing happened which God had warned them concerning mixed marriages. Marrying within the Jewish family has kept Israel from being absorbed into other nations. Their loyalty to the faith of their fathers has been maintained, though orthodox in tenet of faith.

The ministers of the Church of God could learn a lesson from the action of the rabbis in their decision to discourage mixed marriages. Marrying out of the faith has been one of the weak links in the chain that holds the youth of the Church of God loyal to the faith of the fathers.

DAYS OF VENGEANCE. Jesus spoke about the "days of vengeance" that would come in order that "all things that are written may be fulfilled." These days of vengeance seem to be the concluding days when the wrath of God will be mixed with the fury of men. True, it had a preliminary fulfillment at the time of the destruction of Jerusalem a few years after the founding of the church, but at the best, this was only a foreshadowing of what will happen when Jerusalem again is surrounded by all nations as God commences a direct and definite pleading "for his people, and for his heritage Israel."

With civilization collapsing in nearly all parts of the world, the world rapidly is being formed into two camps—Christian and non-Christian—pro-Israel and anti-Israel—the king of the North and the king of the South. As these two forces push at each other with great fury and meet on the mountains of Israel—the days of vengeance will be on the world with the fury of man let loose and the wrath of God poured out. Of these days, the Prophet gives fitting description: "I will plead against him [Gog, prince and king of the North] with pestilence and with blood; and I will rain upon him, and upon his bands, and upon many people that are with him, an overflowing rain, and great hailstones, fire, and brimstone. Thus will I magnify myself; and I will be known in the eyes of many nations, and they shall know that I am the Lord."

GIVE ME MY BIBLE. When Martin Niemöller was visiting this country, he related an experience he had in the concentration camp. He had been stripped of nearly all his personal possessions—even his Bible. When the commandant of Sachsenhausen Concentration Camp came in to see him the next morning after his being brought there, he asked Niemöller if he had any complaints or wishes. To which the noted preacher replied: "Yes, I have many complaints . . . and accordingly many wishes, but one wish before all—that you give back to me my Bible and that instantly."

Keeping the Laws of God

By Marion Ellsworth, Blanchard, Michigan

DESPITE the flood of infidel teaching that seems to have engulfed the world, one still is inspired by the first words of the Bible: "In the beginning God." Strange, though, and incomprehensible are the ways of men. Even those who recognize God persist in disobeying God. There are very few men and women who do not in their hearts believe in a great and benevolent Power, in God who created all things and governs them by immutable rules. Why, then, do men persist in disobeying that Power?

Men believe and acknowledge that God ordained light and darkness. They do not try to do in the dark those things that need light for their best accomplishments. Certain of the laws of God pertain to the land and others to the sea. Men recognize that fact, using different tools when working in those different elements. One would not think of taking a plow or a hoe or a mowing machine out into the water, nor would he attempt to use any of these machines on top of a mountain or down in a mine. Thus men recognize that God has a different law for each of these places; and he who professes to doubt God's existence obeys this type of law as readily as the man who expresses belief in God.

There are laws of God governing springtime, summer, autumn, and winter. No one tries to harvest in the spring or to plant in the winter or midsummer. No one rebels against God's laws governing the seasons. Would not everyone be amused to hear somebody argue that it would be far better to plant corn in the fall, proposing that it would get a better start for the next year, or to leave the harvesting of wheat until the winter when the weather is not so hot? Everyone would say such a man was insane and refuse to listen even a minute to him.

Nevertheless, many people listen to equally silly arguments about man's right to drink intoxicants, to over-eat, or to use tobacco or other poisons. A man who willingly obeys some of the laws of God may try to justify himself in stealing, beating his neighbor in a business deal, taking his neighbor's wife if he can get her, and claiming that all such matters are his own business. All down through the ages, men have argued in this manner, and they have been proved wrong by reaping sure and certain punishment.

There are certain winds, such as the trade winds, that blow over the sea at different times. Man knows about these winds and sails at such times as to get the benefit of these trade winds. Would it not be as sensible to say that men do not need to use the trade winds anymore as to say that they do not need the laws of God anymore? We know that man does not need the trade winds as much as he did in olden times, yet he does not attempt to destroy them. Similarly, it is equally foolish for man to try to destroy God's laws governing Christian conduct.

Generally, men have the greatest contempt for a thief; the business world requires honesty and square dealing. Such laws of God have grown into our conscience through the slow upward climb of the race through the ages, and we accept them without question. One of God's laws commonly broken, however, is, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart." How many try to get around that! It seems man cannot come humbly before God and acknowledge love for Him and obligation to Him. Every man owes God all he is and has: life, health, property, family, or material success. Indeed, man substitutes these factors for God, not realizing that they are worshiping other gods.

Seeing that all God's laws are good, why does man sin even in the matter of overeating? Experience has proved beyond all doubt that it cannot be done without ruining health. Results show that intoxicating liquor is harmful. Why is it not even easier to obey the laws of God in regard to our bodies than to obey the laws in regard to the seasons? The answer is that God has left us a choice in considering our own lives, and we have a perverse idea that we can break His laws and show God how "smart" we are. What a foolish notion! The man who most nearly keeps the laws of his country is the freest man in that country; the man who most nearly keeps the laws of God is the freest and happiest man alive.

BEING BUSY

If you were busy being kind,
Before you knew it you would find
You'd soon forget to think 'twas true
That someone was unkind to you.

If you were busy being glad,
And cheering people who were sad,
Although your heart might ache a bit,
You'd soon forget to notice it.

If you were busy doing good,
And doing just the best you could,
You'd have no time to blame some man
Who's doing just the best he can.

If you were busy being true,
To what you know you ought to do,
You'd be so busy you'd forget
The blunders of the folks you've met.

If you were busy being right
You'd find yourself too busy quite,
To criticize your neighbor long
Because he's busy doing wrong.

THE LIFE OF CHRIST

hardened by hard work and outdoor life, made a whip and drove out these hypocrites. After this, Jesus did many miracles and secured a large following, but He did not tell who He was, for He needed not any testimony from a man. At this time, He was content to be just a leader of the masses.

Following the Passover, Jesus took His little band of followers who had stayed with Him devotedly, repairing to the Jordan River. They tarried a few days and the disciples baptized many, though Jesus did not baptize any.

When the Pharisees heard that the followers of Jesus were baptizing more converts than John had baptized, Jesus foresaw trouble. Leaving Judea, He started for Galilee. On one hot day of the trip, He sat down on the edge of a well at the town of Sychar. It happened that this was Jacob's well that became so famous in Old Testament times. His disciples left to go into the city to obtain food. As Jesus sat there in the torrid afternoon sun (it was now becoming hot in Palestine), a woman who lived in the city came to draw water from the well. She had a water jar and lowered it into the well with a rope. The Lord asked for a drink. She began to question why He asked her for a drink, for she was a Samaritan and the Jews would not associate with Samaritan dogs, as they were called. Jesus was always ready with an answer, however.

"If you knew me, and asked of me, I would give you living water," He said. "Then you would never thirst again."

Jesus proceeded to explain to the woman the possibilities for her in the Kingdom.

When the disciples came, they were amazed that the Lord would have anything to do with a foreigner, but because of their respect for Him they were reluctant to criticize.

The woman left but soon returned, bringing many others from the city. At their request, Jesus stayed two days in the city of Sychar, teaching the people.

Instead of going to Nazareth where Jesus knew He would not be heeded, He stopped at Cana where He previously had turned the water into wine. During His stay, there came a nobleman from Capernaum to Him. The man's son was on his deathbed and he wanted Jesus to heal his son. The Lord knew there would be people flocking from miles around just to be cured if He worked His miracles indiscriminately, so He was reluctant to aid the man. It appeared that the man would not believe unless Jesus showed a sign such as the curing of the sick boy. As a test of faith on the nobleman's part, Jesus said, "Thy son liveth." The nobleman believed, however, that his son would live, and his faith plus the power of God helped the child recuperate. When the man inquired of his servants when his son had begun to recover, they said it was the seventh hour, exactly the time Christ had promised his son would live. This was the second miracle the Saviour did.

Time had passed quickly while the Lord was working in Galilee. Winter had come and was almost past. During the first week of March, Jesus and His disciples returned to Jerusalem for the feast of Purim. This celebration was in honor of Queen Esther who had saved the Jews from extermination in Persia in the year 510 B.C. It was Saturday, the Sabbath Day in the middle of March that Jesus was walking near the pool of Bethesda outside the south gate of Jerusalem. There were many sick and infirm people there. They congregated there in the superstitious belief that in certain seasons an angel would stir the water and that the one who first stepped into the water when the angel moved it would be cured of whatever disease he had.

One old man had been diseased for thirty-eight years, but was too weak to drag himself to the pool fast enough to precede anyone else. He wanted the Lord to help him the next time the waters stirred.

"Rise, take up thy bed and walk," said the Lord. To the surprise of the bystanders and to the chagrin of the Jewish bigots, the man arose and went into the Temple, carrying his bed. Much condemnation came upon Jesus because He helped the sick man on the Sabbath Day, but this afforded Jesus the opportunity of preaching a sermon to the Jews such as they had never heard. Jesus foretold that He would resurrect some from the dead and informed the Jews that He is the Son of God.

The will of God seemed to be calling the Lord to return to Galilee. There Jesus taught in the synagogues and was praised by all.

One day He came to Nazareth, His home town. It was the Sabbath Day, so He entered the Temple as His custom was, read from the Scriptures, and sat down to preach. (The custom has changed. Today one stands to preach and reads the Bible during the sermon.) Anticipating that the people would want to see some of the miracles He had performed in other cities, Jesus stated that He would not be honored if He did such things there at home. He knew they would say, "This is just the carpenter's son from right here in Nazareth. Why, I knew Him when He was a little boy." The congregation became angry at these suggestions and dragged the Lord out to the edge of a cliff. There they intended to cast Him over the side and be rid of Him. In some mysterious way, the Lord passed through the throng and went His way. He went right back to Capernaum and taught them on the Sabbath Days.

Capernaum was a little fishing village located on the northwest end of the Sea of Galilee. It had a population of perhaps five hundred, probably less. Many of Jesus' miracles were performed here. During the time He stayed after leaving Nazareth, He healed the man who was possessed of a devil, cured Simon's mother-in-law of the fever, and cured all the other people who came to Him. The people followed the Lord into the desert, beseeching Him to stay with them and to teach, but He said He was sent to other cities, too, and took His leave.

A crowd thronged around the Saviour as He stood on the bank of the Sea of Galilee one day. Looking for a means of escape, He saw the fishing dory of Simon Peter. Peter and Andrew his brother were a little way from the boat cleaning their nets. The Lord entered the boat and asked Peter to shove it out into the Lake a little distance. There He sat bobbing up and down on the waves, teaching the multitudes. After the sermon ended, Jesus told the men to lower their nets into the water. Peter objected because they had fished all night and had caught nothing. They obeyed, however, and at once the nets were filled with so many fish that they broke. Simon called for his partners, James and John, who came to his rescue. There were so many fish that the boats nearly sank. The crude fisherman recognized that a miracle had been wrought. They at once began to praise the Lord.

"Follow me," came the invitation, "I will make you fishers of men."

The sailors rowed quickly to land and, leaving all their possessions, they followed Jesus.

Not long after, as they passed through a certain town, a leper came to Jesus, saying, "Lord, if thou wilt, thou canst make me clean." By the touch of the Master's hand, the man became clean immediately. This served as another advertisement that there was a Man in Galilee who could heal, and the crowds followed Him.

The Biblical account tells little about the times Jesus went off by Himself to commune with the Father. At this time, it just records that Jesus withdrew Himself into the wilderness and prayed. The fact is that the Lord spent hours in meditation. It was in those hours when He was alone with the Father that He received inspiration for the power-messages He delivered when the occasion arose.

Returning to Capernaum, He was at once accosted by hundreds of people wanting to be healed. One man even went so far as to have the roof of the house in which Jesus was teaching torn open, so he could be let down into the crowd at the feet of Jesus. This was a great test for Jesus, and a good opportunity. The scribes and the Pharisees were present, just aching to catch Him at fault.

"Take up thy bed and walk," came the command. The doctors of religion had already raised objections when He said, "Thy sins be forgiven thee." Then the withering storm of condemnation from Jesus that might have been expected was withheld because—wonder of wonders!—the people believed!

Leaving this house, Jesus walked through the market place and noticed a man sitting in the place where the taxes were paid to the Roman government. The man's name was Matthew, and he was a publican. A publican, or tax collector, was regarded as a traitor and was classed with the sinners, harlots, and heathen. Jesus said, "Follow me," and Matthew became His disciple.

By this time, April had arrived and the first year of toil was ended.

IMMORTALITY ON CONDITION

easily misunderstood, let us point out the fact that it does not say He has given immortality, but that He has brought it to life—revealed that it is obtainable through the gospel.

In none of these referencés did we find any thought expressed relative to an immortal soul in man, or that he already possessed it, but we did find that man is mortal, but has been promised immortality in the future, and this immortality has been brought to light through the gospel.

Immortality on condition? Yes! Immortality will be given an individual, if he first realizes his lost condition, believes the gospel which tells of this promised immortality, complies with its commands to repent and be baptized, and "by patient continuance in well doing seeks for . . . immortality, eternal life."

KATHRYN MCGREAGOR TOMLIN

Kathryn McGreagor, only child of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. McGreagor, was born in Glasgow, Scotland, June 27, 1867, and died at Cambridge, Nebr., June 22, 1947.

She was left an orphan at the age of four years and was cared for by an aunt who brought her to America at the age of fourteen, where they made their home near Grand Island, Nebr.

She was united in marriage to George Edward Tomlin in Grand Island, September 7, 1883, where they resided until 1894. From there they moved to a farm near Holbrook, Nebr. In 1928, they moved to Cambridge, Nebr., making this their home until time of their death.

Eleven children were born to this union, two having preceded her in death. Arch Tomlin and Mrs. Grace Packwood.

Those surviving are: her nine children—William C. of Long Beach, Calif.; Roy M. of Aline, Okla.; Earl C. of Denver, Colo.; Charles E. of Indianola, Nebr.; Mrs. Mabel Scott of Chicago, Ill.; Mrs. Ruth Vincill of Kimball, Nebr.; George E., Walter, and Mrs. Hazel Benedict, all of Cambridge, Nebr.; thirty grandchildren, and twenty-nine great-grandchildren.

She was a member of the Holbrook Church of God, having been baptized by Bro. Almus Adams in the fall of 1916.

Bro. and Sr. Tomlin were victims of a flash flood of the Medicine Creek which hit their home in Cambridge in the early morning hours on Sunday, June 22, when several others also lost their lives.

Funeral services for Sr. Tomlin were held in the Cambridge Methodist Church, June 25, 1947, burial being made in Cambridge Cemetery. At the time of her funeral, the body of Bro. Tomlin had not been found.

May the day soon come when there will be no more death.

T. M. Ferrell, Pastor.

"We have heard with our ears, O God, our fathers have told us, what work thou didst in their days, in the times of old" (Psalm 44:1).

A River Crossing

Today, when we want to cross a river, we generally have a boat or a bridge to use. The Jordan River had no bridge built across it. The people of God had no boats. God's power, though, was with them as they were following His commands. These commands were issued through Joshua.

"The Lord said unto Joshua, This day will I begin to magnify thee in the sight of all Israel, that they may know that, as I was with Moses, so I will be with thee" (Josh. 3:7).

The Lord always made known to His people the fact that He was with His chosen leaders.

The Lord also told Joshua: "Thou shalt command the priests that bear the ark of the covenant, saying, When ye are come to the brink of the water of Jordan, ye shall stand still in Jordan" (Josh. 3:8).

Joshua Relies upon God

Joshua no doubt remembered Moses' pride and anger when he failed to magnify God before the people. Moses said, "Shall we fetch water from the rock?"

Joshua did not say, "The Lord tells me to inform you of His presence with me, for I am your leader." Joshua said to the people, "Hereby ye shall know that the living God is among you, and that he will without fail drive out from before you [your enemies]" (Josh. 3:10). Joshua honored God in the way he gave God's commands to the people.

The Israelites Cross Over

When the priests who carried the ark of the Lord stepped down into the edge or "brink" of the river, the waters parted. The waters rose up into a heap or piles. The water that flowed on down toward the sea failed because it was cut off front above. (Josh. 3:16.) Thus the people of God passed over the dry river bed. They once before had passed over the Red Sea on dry ground. (Ex. 14:22.)

Joshua selected one man from each tribe. Each man was told to pick up a stone from the river bed. The men carried the stones over with them to their lodging place.

They also set up twelve stones "in the place where the feet of the priests which bare the ark of the covenant stood" (Josh. 4:9). Those stones are still "there unto this day" (Josh. 4:9).

The stones the twelve men carried up from the river bed were placed in the city of Gilgal. They were placed there as a memorial.

"When your children shall ask their fathers in time to come, saying, What mean these stones? Then ye shall let your children know, saying, Israel came over this Jordan on dry land. For the Lord your God dried up the waters of Jordan from before you, until ye were passed over, as the Lord your God did to the Red sea, which he dried up from before us, until we were gone over: that all the people of the earth might know the hand of the Lord, that it is mighty: that ye might fear the Lord your God for ever" (Josh. 4:21-24).

Unlimited Blessings

God is so good to His people! If we could just realize how very good He is, we, too, would be better people, for it is natural to be kind and loving to those who love us and whom we love. True love works no ill or evil to the ones we love. We deny ourselves and seek their desires before our own. Thus we seek to serve God through Jesus our Saviour.

We trust our heavenly Father who is our sun and shield. He gives us grace and someday when we are made like Jesus, we will be filled with grace and glory. God has promised, "No good thing will he withhold from them that walk uprightly" (Psalm 84:11). Watch your steps that you may through God's grace not have anything for your good withheld.

"Knowledge, in truth, is the great sum of the firmament. Life and power are scattered with all its beams."
—Webster.

Lorado Taft's famous statue of Chief Blackhawk, which commands a high bluff overlooking Rock River Valley near Oregon, Illinois, is a masterly work displaying in cold stone a great man and a great people. In the face and figure of this majestic man, we can view a personification of quiet strength, firmness of conviction, endurance, and self-confidence. Look into this face; meditate upon its virtues, catch the spirit aroused by this immovable, expressive figure, and "be YE stedfast."

BEREANS— STEADFAST?

Paul's advice to young Timothy was, "Flee also youthful lusts" (2 Tim. 2:22), as much as to say, "Timothy, being young, you will be faced with trials and desires which are unknown to older people. Beware of them! Flee from them."

Because in youth with our great energy, lack of experience, vivid imagination, and varied social contacts, we are greatly tempted and dangerously challenged by evil, we need to incorporate into our character something which is unusual in youth—steadfastness. In these dark days, especially, do we need the firm footing and strong, unswerving allegiance to God which steadfastness implies. As one grows older and wiser, a certain steadiness creeps into the personality. But, young people, we no longer can wait for age to teach us to be steadfast! We need it today! The world no longer waits for its youth to grow up. It puts evil before them and throws responsibility on them while they are young. Men must now take their stand for Christ in youth or be driven from Him ere long by the doubts and fears of a wicked age.

"We are partakers of Christ, if we hold the beginning of our confidence stedfast unto the end" (Heb. 3:14). Those things which first made us put our confidence in God: knowledge of our own sinfulness, love of God, belief in His Son; these things we must keep steadfast unto the end. We must not allow those first cutting doubts of youth to swerve us from our course. We must stand firm through the hail of false claims of science, the heckling of the unsaved, and the burning of our own desires. We need more firmness and less wishy-washy, tossed-on-the-waves convictions. We need to know our Lord and stand by Him till the end. In youth, it is difficult but also most necessary.

After reviewing the basic beliefs of the church, Paul concluded by saying, "My beloved brethren, be ye stedfast, unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord" (1 Cor. 15:58). Establish firmly in your minds, young people, the truths here taught by the Word. Know them to be honest and true. Then stand firmly upon those truths, so people looking at you can see the same virtues we see in the face of Taft's work of art. Steady vision, quiet strength, unswerving devotion, firmness of character can be yours. "Be ye stedfast."

Young people, send your problems and opinions to H. J. Doan, 1908 N. Keystone Ave., Chicago 39, Ill.

REPORT FROM ARKANSAS

My preaching appointments are as follows: McGintytown, Ark., first and third Sundays and preceding Saturday nights, each month; second and fourth Sundays at Little Rock. I speak at the Third and Center Street city church every fourth Sunday at 11:00 a.m. and at Oak Grove Church the following Sunday night. The Third and Center Street congregation rents its building and has only two hours each Sunday morning for services. We hope soon to find another building for meetings, so we can have Saturday night services at this place. I use the fifth Sundays at Mount Springs near Russellville. We have been having splendid services at these places, and I enjoy the work because of the interest shown.

Bro. Fred Hall and I exchanged pulpits the second Sunday in June, and I spoke at Bear over the week end. I was pleased with the congregation that has been built up there through the efforts of Bros. M. W. Lyon and Fred Hall.
 H. Scott Smith.

THE 1947-'48 BUDGET

With this issue we are beginning a monthly presentation of steps toward raising the budget for the coming year. This budget is, of course, subject to the approval of the coming Conference and will be revised accordingly. In the past, however, we have lost out in our attempt to raise the budget by delaying our effort until after Conference. Your support now will insure our success later without infringing on the right of the Conference to adjust the budget as it sees fit. These figures include $5,000.00 of possible loss on the past year. Raising our regular monthly amount will insure our success.

James M. Watkins.

GLEANINGS FROM THE FIELD

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

"The Life of Christ," by Timothy Pearson, was prepared as a specialized study prior to his graduation from Oregon Bible College.

On vacation: Bro. Gordon Landry and Sr. Shirley Logsdon, employees of National Bible Institution, are enjoying a two-weeks' vacation at the G. G. Landry home in Hammond, La.

Bro. and Sr. H. S. Bell, 1707 Wood St., La-Crosse, Wis., are vacationing in California but hope to return home in time to attend General Conference.

Bro. and Sr. A. J. Hoke and "Becky," accompanied by Sr. Edna Brewer, left Oregon, Ill., Wednesday, July 2, homeward for Dayton, Ohio. Hope to see you back at Conference time!

Bro. Linford Moore reports an excellent Vacation Bible School recently conducted at Macomb, Ill., the enrollment reaching ninety-four boys and girls.

The Editor recently enjoyed working with the Indiana State Conference at the Morning Star Church of God north of South Bend, and, one week later, with the Illinois Conference at Eldorado. Bible school attendance at "Morning Star" exceeded expectation, and interest was good throughout the Conference. It was our first trip to Eldorado; now, following so good a meeting, we are sorry not to have gone long before.

"Vital Atonement," by Clarence H. Hewitt, A.M., D.D., lecturer in theology at Aurora College, Aurora, Ill., is deserving of careful reading by all Bible students. It may be ordered from the Warren Press, Boston, Mass., at $1.50, each. The book is an analytical presentation of various truths about Christ's death on behalf of sinful mankind. It is scholarly written, defends the efficacy of Christ's blood to cleanse believers; and the book is printed with good readable type, and is neatly bound.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Smith and Eunice Pearson left Oregon, Ill., July 3, to spend fourth of July and the week end with friends and relatives near Tipp City, Ohio.

Several years ago, there appeared an editorial in The Herald in which many names of readers were used. Indeed, the names were so arranged as to constitute the main message. Who can send us a copy of The Herald bearing that editorial? Thank you!

Sr. Leota B. Hanson, office manager of National Bible Institution, went to Ripley, Ill., Saturday, July 5, to get applebutter for the Summer School.

VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL
Omaha, Nebraska

Our Vacation Bible School was held June 2-13, and we had an average attendance of 70 for the two weeks. On the first day, there were 49 present; on the second day, 69; and after that there were more than seventy each day, except one when we had only 56 because of heavy rainfall.

This was our first attempt to conduct a Vacation Bible School, using local talent. For the past few years, Sr. Verna Thayer has come to Omaha, but this year her schedule did not permit her to return. The lesson and handwork material was mostly prepared by Sr. Thayer, however, and we gained much help from having observed her methods when she was here.

Our school was opened each morning with choruses led by the writer, after which prayer was offered by one of the adult helpers. Mrs. A. E. Karnett gave a little talk each day on one line of the Lord's Prayer; and, at the end of the two weeks, we had learned the whole Prayer and knew what each part meant.

Mrs. Robert Hardesty taught the memory verses, using animal pictures to illustrate each verse. We learned three verses each day; and, at the end of the school, each child had an animal book full of verses. Mrs. Ralph Van Mehren gave the Bible story each morning, and the children were very interested in her presentation of the stories. The flannelgraph method was used.

After the story, all went to the basement for their handwork which illustrated the lesson for the day.

A very interesting program was given Friday night, June 13, and attendance certificates and awards were given the children. Awards were given all who had perfect attendance, and to the one who brought the most new scholars. Also, each child received a gift with the Lord's Prayer on it.

We felt very pleased when a number of parents complimented us on the knowledge and enjoyment their children derived from the two weeks of school. It was a great pleasure to work with the children, and we are proud of the helpers who left their home duties each day to serve the Lord. We thank God for the splendid co-operation and the wonderful success of this work. With His help, we expect to start laying plans for another Bible school next year.

Robert O. Hardesty.

CARLSBAD, NEW MEXICO

On June 4, Bro. E. O. Stewart arrived in Carlsbad and held services in the home of Bro. and Sr. B. Bartlett through June 10. He did some wonderful preaching, and several attended the services. On Sunday afternoon, June 8, B. Bartlett and Glenn and Benny Mark were baptized in the Pecos River. We have eleven or twelve members at Carlsbad now.

Lowell Bartlett is absent at present, since he is in the Navy on Guam. Marie King, daughter of Bro. and Sr. E. H. King, is in Lubbock in school, but is expected home this coming week. We all shall be glad to have her at home. She is an active church worker.

Bro. Stewart will preach for us once a month throughout the summer. We are looking about for a lot on which to build a church. Anyone who would like to make a gift on it may send the gift to the writer, who is treasurer of the group. It surely will be used to the glory of God.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 36

OREGON, ILLINOIS, JULY 14, 1947

NUMBER 41

Come to General Conference

Oregon, Illinois—July 29 - August 10, 1947

The Twenty-Seventh Annual General Conference and the Fiftieth Annual Illinois Conference of the Church of God, conducted in joint session, will convene, the Lord willing, July 29 - August 10, 1947, at the Church of God in Oregon, Illinois. Members and friends of the General Conference will assemble from many states and from Canada to worship and to plan for more extensive labors for the Lord. Come one; come all! A hearty welcome awaits you! A blessing awaits you! Your service is needed, too, in worship of God and in adoration of earth's coming King—Jesus Christ our Lord.

Entered as second class matter at the Post Office at Oregon, Illinois, under act of March, 1879. Mailed weekly, except the fourth Tuesday of August and the last Tuesday of December.

Conference Workers Report

This issue of THE RESTITUTION HERALD is devoted largely to reports of General Conference employees, the intent being to inform brethren near and far about our Conference activities during the past twelve months and thus develop interest in the coming sessions of General Conference (July 29 - August 10). Many of the questions that one might ask upon arriving at the Conference grounds already are answered in the columns of this HERALD. Treasurer Dale Dunbar's report, now in process of preparation, will be published not later than in the issue of July 29. See the back page for a daily schedule of classes and a list of teachers.

Please Return Delegate Forms

Pastors and church secretaries are requested to direct their congregations in choosing delegates and to report same, plus other required information, by "filling in" the delegate blanks recently mailed them and returning these blanks to the Conference secretary "before Conference begins." Each church and conference is required to use one of these blanks for its representation at General Conference. All other information needed regarding these delegate blanks appears directly on the blanks. Did you lose yours? Request another. Did we overlook your church or conference? A delegate blank will be mailed you upon receipt of such notice.

Choose Qualified Delegates

The General Conference spends many thousands of dollars, annually, in the Lord's work. World twilight in these last days challenges even more concerted effort in the Lord's work than our Conference is doing. We must do our best for Christ; we must offer our best to Christ! Use discretion, therefore, in choosing delegates for the coming General Conference. Choose men and women qualified by years of experience, those who are of mature mind, who are sound doctrinally, consecrated, zealous, who also "hold the mystery of the faith in a pure conscience," and whose moral and financial strength can be depended upon to support throughout all the year the program authorized on the Conference floor.

The Secretary's Annual Report

By reason of the several other reports published in this week's HERALD, our own secretarial report need not be long. We have enjoyed all our work during the last fiscal year and have seen the hand of God directing and blessing. The work entrusted to us has been carried easily, every fellow worker bearing his full share of the load.

Oregon Bible College recently closed its eighth consecutive nine-months' term, having enjoyed one of its best years with an enrollment of seventeen students. Outlook indicates a larger enrollment for September. At this writing, the Summer Bible Training School is in happy session, and the Youth Rally is "at the door." An overrun of contemplated expenditures at the College resulted almost entirely from an error at the last General Conference in making the budget, insufficient allotment being made for instructors. Work and progress of the teachers, students, and all employees was inspiring.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD, now in its thirty-sixth year, continues to serve our people as our best missionary: going weekly into every locality where we have brethren and into virgin fields of service. It is a wonderful source of comfort, also, to our isolated members. Co-operation of fellow workers and contributors has been better than an editor could ask. The subscription campaign netted an eighteen per cent gain. Today, July 9, there are fourteen hundred sixty-five paid subscribers. Two thousand eighty-two Truth Seekers' Quarterlies were mailed for this third quarter, and three hundred seventy-six Intermediate Quarterlies were mailed. Tract sales have reduced our stock to a minimum, and several tracts are soon to be republished.

During the past Conference year, we have preached at several churches for our brethren: Maurertown, Virginia; Brush Creek and Delta, Ohio; Lester Prairie and Eden Valley, Minnesota; Ripley, Oregon, Dixon, and Eldorado, Illinois; Waterloo and Sioux Rapids, Iowa; Blanchard, Michigan; Burr Oak and both churches in South Bend, Indiana. Financial income on these trips amounted to $752.72; expenses were $327.96, the balance being paid into National Bible Institution. The brethren seemed always appreciative of our efforts—we appreciated theirs.

Report of Promotion and Co-ordination Department

By James M. Watkins

HEADS of the various departments are presenting individual reports; the Secretary's report will include items of general progress, so we are confining this report to the general budget and business picture. During the course of the year, considerable progress was made in the matter of Departmental earnings. Earnings amounted to about $11,184.43 for the year 1945-1946. Estimates for 1947-1948 are set at $21,930.00. The current year very nearly will approach this figure. Comparisons of individual Departments are a little difficult to make, due to the separation of accounts and not having definite previous costs for such accounts upon which to base comparisons.

Contributions very likely will be off at least one third for the year. This factor, plus rising costs, will create a deficit of between $4,000.00 and $5,000.00. This situation has been aggravated somewhat by the feeling among the membership that payment, or part payment, for the services of the field workers was a fulfillment of the obligation imposed by contributions and so no further contributions were necessary. We must realize that payment for services rendered by field workers is no different than payment of anyone else secured for similar service, and in no way eliminates the contributions required by the budget. It appears that this fact has been the greatest detriment to our income the past year.

In comparing budget allowances to previous years' earnings, the coming year requires $7,661.00 less contributions than last year, yet provides a slight enlargement of our program and easily should be attained without deficit.

In support of the budget, cost recommendations also have been given the Executive Board which will, if adopted, effect a saving of $4,250.00. If our membership will co-operate in helping to provide at least thirty students for Oregon Bible College, this item of $4,508.50 can be eliminated completely. The extent to which we co-operate in buying church supplies, and encouraging others to buy such supplies, further will reduce the need for contributions to the office and overhead department.

In addition to other suggestions which have been made, the General Conference should consider a revision in the price of quarterlies. Detailed cost estimates indicate that we are losing about $450.00 per year on publication of the Intermediate Quarterly. It is not possible to raise the price to publication cost, but raising the price of both the Truth Seekers' and Intermediate Quarterlies to 18 cents per copy would eliminate this loss on the total and is not out of keeping with general advancements in all printing.

In our drive to make all departments, with the exception of Evangelism, self-supporting by their own earnings, we have come a long way. Only four departments are not completely self-supporting, and two of these easily could be brought to this place during the coming year, if everyone co-operates to this end. It is for the Conference to decide as to the means of subsidizing THE RESTITUTION HERALD. Increased circulation will help but cannot completely eliminate present cost over subscriptions in this department. Likewise, Evangelism never can become, nor is it intended to be, self-supporting on its own earnings. If in the course of another year, however, we can come to the place where all contributions can be used to support evangelistic and missionary work and subsidize the deficit of THE RESTITUTION HERALD with its evangelistic possibilities, it would seem that we would have little more to be desired in the way of operating efficiency. This is our goal.

Arrangements have been completed with various firms by which we can supply almost everything needed by our local churches. Almost all arrangements have been made for listings in a general catalogue, but publication has been delayed by paper shortages and other technical details. To effect a saving on this item, the catalogue for the present will be printed in two or more sections. The book section will be ready by August 1, 1947, and is being prepared in conjunction with another publisher. Other details will be completed as soon as practical. We now are established retailers for Speed-O-Print, Society for Visual Education, Bell & Howell, Bond Slide Co., Cathedral Films, Unitype Bulletin Boards, and all leading Sunday School suppliers and publishers. We also hope in the near future to be able to receive orders for pews and church furniture.

Plans are being developed to encourage the planning for greater sowing of Gospel seed. It is hoped that greater distribution of printed material can be encouraged and plans made to reach out in the circulation of our doctrinal beliefs beyond the borders of our own members. Consultations already have been held with several state conferences and local groups to consider these possibilities.

In addition to our other labors on budget and costs, we have traveled approximately 18,000 miles during the ten months, conducted 122 sermons or Bible classes, 35 business meetings with groups in the field, and a greater number of meetings with special committees and workers. We have assisted in the solution of (Please turn to page 10)

Songbook Committee Report

IN ADDITION to individual work at each home, the Songbook Committee met three periods of several days each since last General Conference. We are glad to report that most of the work necessary before the book is considered by the Conference has been completed.

A loose-leaf dummy, in book form has been prepared which contains copies of the songs suggested by the committee for use excepting a few original songs that are still under consideration. Of course, there may need to be changes, since the Committee expects that errors may be found in some of the songs, although they have been carefully edited by the Committee. Others also have examined the book, helping us to weed out thoughts which cannot be supported by Scripture. This dummy will be on display at the General Conference to be examined, read, and sung. Suggestions for improving the book will be welcomed. Once accepted, then much additional finishing work must be done at once in preparation for the publisher.

There are about 325 songs in the book. There will be no Responsive Readings, since a survey of the ministers found a majority of them desiring additional songs instead. There is to be an alphabetical index and also a topical index.

To understand why some songs are not found in the book, and why certain others are there, an explanation is here given regarding the Committee's limitations. The cost would prohibit us from making a songbook without the assistance and co-operation of one of the major songbook publishing companies which owns the copyrights of many songs, and which also has plates for most of the good songs and hymns.

The Committee has found the proposition made to us by the Rodeheaver Hall-Mack Co., of Winona Lake, Indiana, to be most acceptable. We are using one of their latest books, Christian Service Songs, as a base, and are using as many of the acceptable songs in this book as is convenient. These songs are being left on exactly the same page of the book, and with exactly the same song number where possible, in order to save the cost of having new plates made in some cases, and different numbers soldered on the plates in other cases. The mechanical end of "fitting in" decided other songs.

The Rodeheaver is not charging us for the use of any copyrighted songs owned by them. We do have to pay about fifteen dollars for the use of each copyrighted song owned by other companies or individuals. We are permitted to use without extra pay only six copyrighted songs owned by Hope Publishing Co., because of an agreement between them and the Rodeheaver Company. Because of this circumstance, some much-liked songs will not be in our book.

We are not permitted to make changes in any copyrighted song. This means that a few more well-known songs will not be in our book. We may have been singing all but one verse of such a song, but if we use it, we must take it exactly as it is. A copyright is in force for twenty-eight years, and if it is renewed, another twenty-eight years must pass before the song is in public domain. A song in public domain may be used in whole or in part by anyone. But if it is not taken as a whole, then a new plate must be cast at added cost. We have tried to keep the cost of the book at a minimum without sacrificing too many good songs, by keeping out of the book as many songs as possible for which we must pay fifteen dollars for the copyright, as well as the cost of a new plate.

The Committee believes that an edition of five thousand copies would have to sell somewhere between a dollar and a dollar and a half per book, which is not unreasonable in these times for a book which we trust will be acceptable to all of us.

It might be of interest to some to know that a total of about two hundred thirty-five hours has been spent on the book thus far. This figure was obtained by adding the hours spent by each member of the Committee when working together. It does not take into account much time spent by individual members between Committee meetings. The supplies, phone calls, and transportation have cost between thirty-five and forty dollars thus far.

The response to a request for suggestions for a songbook name brought the following:

- "Songs of Truth," W. G. Moffet, Magazine, Ark.;
- "Truth in Song," Gerald L. Cooper, Tempe., Ariz.;
- "Blessed Hope Hymnal," Jessie M. B. Kauffman, Riverside, Calif.;
- "Heavenly Sunshine," Pearl M. Davis, Denver, Colo.

The members of the Committee express their thanks to the following: All who have submitted lists of songs to be considered; those who have sent us songbooks (some of which are yet to be returned); those who submitted names for the new book; those who provided for the temporal needs of Committee members while they worked from nine o'clock in the morning until midnight hours; the Pennellwood Church of God, Grand Rapids, Michigan.

for permitting their pastor to spend many hours away from local church work; M. W. Lyon for spending many hours assisting the Committee; and any others who have assisted us in any way.

Motions for the acceptance of this report, and for the publication of one edition of five thousand copies of the proposed songbook will be made on the Conference floor by the Committee.

REPORT OF EVANGELISM

For Year Ending June 30, 1947

By M. W. Lyon

EIGHT MONTHS of the year's work was done in Texas, from September through April, one month in Arkansas, the month of May in Minneapolis, Minnesota, and the other two months in meetings in various places.

Twelve series of meetings were held, at the following places: Bear, Arkansas; Little Rock, Arkansas; Omaha, Nebraska; Ater, San Saba, Mullin, Tokio, and Aspermont, Texas; Carlsbad, New Mexico; Minneapolis, Minnesota; Brush Creek, Ohio; and Macomb, Illinois.

One hundred thirty-eight sermons were preached, at thirty different places. These are listed, with the number of sermons on each occasion in parentheses: Fredericktown, Mo. (1) July 2; Bear, Ark. (16) July 3-16; Arkansas-Oklahoma Conference at Little Rock (5) July 18-21; McGintytown, Ark. (2) July 22, 23; Oregon, Ill. (1) Aug. 11, (1) Feb. 2, (1) June 29; Eastern Nebraska Conference at Omaha (5) Aug. 25 - Sept. 1; Kansas City, Mo. (1) Sept. 2; Arch, Okla. (2) Sept. 4, 5; Ater, Tex. (12) Sept. 7-15, (2) March 2; San Saba, Tex., Christadelphians (4) Sept. 18-21, (2) Feb. 24, 25; Mullin, Tex. (12) Sept. 22-29, (2) Dec. 21, 22, (2) Feb. 23; Tokio, Tex. (3) Oct. 14-17; Carlsbad, N. M. (2) Oct. 24, 25, (6) Apr. 19-23; Big Spring, Tex. (2) Oct. 30, 31; Sweetwater, Tex. (2) Nov. 3; Aspermont, Tex. (1) Nov. 6, (6) Dec. 8-15; Abilene, Tex. (3) Nov. 30, Dec. 1, (2) Mar. 16; Beaumont, Tex. (1) Jan. 5; Corpus Christi, Tex. (1) Jan. 19; Riviera, Tex. (2) Jan. 24, 25, (1) Feb. 9; Dallas, Tex. (2) March 9; Arkansas City, Kan. (1) Apr. 6; El Paso, Tex. (2) Apr. 27; Roy, N. M. (1) Apr. 29; Minneapolis, Minn. (11) May 14-25; Eden Valley, Minn. (1) May 18; Graytown, Wis. (1) May 25; Hedrick, Ind. (1) June 1; Brush Creek, Ohio (8) June 2-8; and Macomb, Ill. (7) June 16-22.

There was the joy of bringing sixteen souls into Christ through baptism, seven at Bear, Arkansas, one at Aspermont, Texas, two at Carlsbad, New Mexico, and six at El Paso, Texas.

In addition to the previously named places at which services were held, one hundred eleven other places were visited, mostly in Texas, at which two hundred forty-one isolated families were contacted, most of them interested, and among whom there were one hundred forty-seven families, one or more of whom were members of the Church of God. Several days of work were done in Houston and Austin. This work among the isolated has taken much time, and has been most rewarding in many cases.

Four conferences were visited, the Illinois and General at Oregon; Iowa at Waterloo; and Indiana at South Bend, in addition to those previously named.

One hundred fifty-three paid subscriptions to THE RESTITUTION HERALD were obtained, mostly in Texas, for which $346.50 was taken in. In addition, forty-two free subscriptions were sent to those unable to pay, making 195 in all. A large number of these went into homes which never had taken the paper, thus bringing scores of isolated people into contact with our general work who never had been before.

Receipts for the year were $1,071.18. Travel expense was $602.82, and total expense, $734.52. This leaves a balance in receipts of $336.66.

A number of places were found at which there seems a good possibility for fruitful work, among them, Austin, Plains, and Tankersley, Texas, and Roy and Dixon, New Mexico. Of these all but the first are new fields.

Out of the work in Texas, one of the most encouraging features is the prospect of organizing a state conference, which can be the means of tying together the far-scattered membership and promoting continued work to follow up the groundwork already done during the past winter. A fund is being raised to carry on this work. The conference is to meet at Ater, near Gatesville, in Coryell County, August 23-31. For the first time in many years, it looks as though the work in Texas might be revived. This would be a good place to put your tithes if you are looking for a worthy place to send them. It is hoped that a minister can be obtained to work for the state conference the coming year to develop such places as seem to show the most promise.

We have only touched the edge of the vast harvest waiting to be reaped.

"The Holy Ghost said, Separate me Barnabas and Saul for the work whereunto I have called them. . . . So they . . . departed . . . and . . . preached the word of God in the synagogues of the Jews" (Acts 13:2, 4, 5).

College Matron's Report

MY PART in the work at Oregon Bible College is the same as any mother's would be in the home: seeing that her children are cared for temporally and spiritually. As no two children are alike in a home, so we have a variety of individuals and, quite naturally, different characteristics and temperaments which give good opportunity, in this training for service, of learning to live with others. Our association together then binds us to one another in Christian love and mutual understanding.

I enjoy working with young people who are desirous of consecrating their lives to service for our Master, Jesus Christ the King, who gave the good example of serving others.

Edna L. Brewer.

From the Business Manager

BROTHER A. J. HOKE, Business Manager of National Bible Institution during most of the 1946 - '47 Conference year, reports:

"We have been kept quite busy managing the affairs of the National Bible Institution property during the past year. We found it to be a much larger work than one would suppose, and a work that is much needed. To operate an institution, a manufacturing establishment, or any type of business, there should be one head to decide all details of the work. Without a manager, 'Everybody's business is nobody's business.'

"We very much enjoyed the work this past year, and we feel that our work has been appreciated by all with whom we were closely associated. The only serious objection we found in connection with the work was (or is) our living so far away, though we willingly made the trips from here in Dayton, Ohio, to Oregon, Illinois. We always made those trips in connection with the Executive Board meetings, of which Board we are a member.

"Most of the work was at Golden Rule Home, Oregon Bible College, and remodeling a residence (purchased last fall) into a duplex. I shall not go into detail about any of the business transactions, for everyone can learn of these at the forthcoming General Conference. I shall be glad then to give a full report, orally, of my work, if it should be desired."

Golden Rule Home

FOR the past eight months, it has been our privilege to work, as matron and caretaker, with the residents of Golden Rule Home. The work has been very enjoyable and inspiring. Many of the duties have been lightened by the kind co-operation and assistance of the home members.

Our family at present numbers sixteen. The average age of the members is eighty years. All are enjoying remarkable health for their age.

This has been a very busy winter for all our family. The women have spent much time and energy making bedding for the dormitory and the College, and doing work for the Dorcas Society. With the help of Mr. Loudenslager (our only male resident), we have much early garden and prospects for much food for winter and for canning.

We extend a cordial invitation to all the brethren to visit the Home at any time and enjoy the beauty, quiet, and peaceful atmosphere. Lack of sleeping rooms prohibits entrance into the Home of several applicants desirous to become residents.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Pearson.

The Tentative Budget

1947 - 1948

THE FOLLOWING tentative budget has been prepared in accord with the general plans of the General Conference and is herewith recommended by the Executive Board as a part of the 1947-1948 planning.

The budget includes only those items for which public contributions are to be solicited. Following the plan adopted in regard to Golden Rule Home, all departments that have become self-supporting will be cared for by general administration and reported on in the annual report at the close of the year. The aim is to show any progress in reducing the need of contributions and to encourage a gradual trend toward the self-support of each department, other than Evangelism. Detailed cost sheets upon which this budget is based are available for examination by those who may be interested.

Only four departments will require contributions for the coming year, the remainder having become self-supporting by their own earnings. Total budget contributions and purpose for which they are needed are as follows:

Evangelism—National workers	$6,630.00
Pastoral Aid	2,500.00	$9,130.00
		<hr/>
Office and Overhead		2,755.00
Oregon Bible College		4,508.50
Restitution Herald		5,350.00
Total Budget		$21,743.50

To this, of course, must be added a possible $5,000.00 deficit on this year's operation brought about by lowered contributions not completely offset by increased earnings.

By reason of increased earnings, this budget requires $7,661.00 less contributions than required by the budget passed last year, in addition, with your co-operation, there are other possibilities. For instance, an enrollment of thirty at the College will permit us to bring the College under its income and make it self-supporting, eliminating this item entirely from the budget. Increased circulation of THE RESTITUTION HERALD will reduce this allowance a corresponding amount. Added sales will help provide for the needs of the office and overhead. Reductions of costs and recovery of special items in overhead and administration have been considered also and adopted in support of this budget. The cost reductions and other departmental savings are more than double the loss the past year and should provide a sound margin of safety as far as operating needs are concerned. Upon the basis of these facts, this budget is herewith recommended to the General Conference for adoption.

James M. Watkins.

News and Prophecy Digest

By C. E. Randall, Fonthill, Ontario

FLYING SAUCERS. The papers have carried a lot of material the past few days about reports of folks in various parts of the country seeing silver-like saucers flying through the air at terrific speeds. Some of the stories in connection with these reports have proved to be pure hoaxes. At this writing, there has not been any solution to the whole affair, and it is not with this angle of the matter that we are particularly concerned, but rather with the jittery mind of the people over the country. The psychological effect on the people has been about the same as it was when Orson Welles broadcast the fictitious story of the Martian invasion. People are lacking in mental poise and the stability of a faith, and when anything of extraordinary nature that affects the national or international scenes against which there seems to be no adequate defense, the jitteriness of the masses makes quick appearance.

Folk who are versed in the Scriptures, and who are aware of what is to happen in the last days, are not easily upset by dramatic and climatic disturbances and crises, but being forewarned, accept as a matter of course the current happenings, feeling that they are the omens of a better day. It takes more than saucers in the skies to upset Christian courage. As a matter of fact, the sheltering wing so covers the Christian he is unable to see saucers!

SOUND PHILOSOPHY. The Dutch Reformed Church in Pretoria, South Africa, which numbers about half of the white population, and which carries a great deal of influence over the Afrikaner population, has recommended to the commission studying the question of education in the Orange Free State, that "legislation should be introduced to protect teachers who have to administer whippings and that the whipping of girls, where necessary, be legalized." The Dutch Church feels that sparing the rod spoils the child. Sound discipline is good for the child. The Lord is a good example to follow. In respect to chastisement, it is stated that "whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth." If children are disobedient, much of the cause at least, is due to the failure of the parents to require obedience. The document which the church submitted to the commission further read: "Regulations relating to punishment are too liberal, soft, and un-Biblical and weaken the discipline of church and state. . . . Corporal punishment for both boys and girls is an urgent necessity." This kind of teaching today sounds as though it were coming from one crying in the wilderness. Three cheers for the Dutch church in Africa.

PICTURES OF CHRIST. The Chinese proverb that seeing is worth ten thousand words may have a literal fulfillment in the efforts of Dr. Theodore Adams, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Richmond, Va., who has been distributing pictures of Christ after the likeness as painted by Sallman. One business man reported, "No one has cursed in my office since the picture has been on my desk." If no other thing was accomplished, the effort would be well compensated if it served to check profanity. It is difficult to estimate the value Bible mottoes and plaques have upon folk in the everyday affairs of life. They doubtless have a restraining influence upon all of us, and perhaps inspire us to do many things that otherwise would be neglected.

REMEMBERING GOD. It is usually in times of crisis that nations, like individuals, remember God. The picture of England seems to take on this pattern. At the request of the King, the Archbishop of Canterbury called upon the people of England to join in prayer for divine guidance and assistance on Sunday, July 6. Commenting on the importance of this day of prayer, Dr. Garbett, second to the Archbishop of Canterbury, said: "But more than diplomacy is required before such an understanding can be reached, the demons of fear and suspicion must be exorcised. This can be effected only by God's help. On our day of prayer we must pray that the nations may all learn to recognize the sovereignty of God, and that each is meant to make peoples under one Father who is over all."

The recognition of God is not enough. At one time in the economy of God, recognizing God as the Father of all would have been sufficient. That day is past. To come to the Father, the Son must be acknowledged. He is the mediator between God and men. Failure to reckon with the Son has caused the lockout of Israel from the prevailing grace of God for nearly two millenniums. During this period of special prayer, petitions were offered that Russia might take her stand in the company of nations. Better were it to pray for repentance of this anti-Christian government. It would seem wise on the part of religious leaders in leading their people in prayer, to conform their requests and petitions in harmony with the teaching of the Word. It is very evident in the prophetic teachings that this northern power will be untrustworthy and will lead the nations of earth into the valley of destruction at the end of the age.

EVOLVING IDEAL MAN. In his editorial in the July issue of "Unity," Charles Fillmore, editor, strives to make man his own redeemer and saviour, and sees the mind as the solution to every problem. He writes: "Manifest man, personal man, began evolving ideal man, that is, 'putting on Christ,' ages and aeons ago. We are now nearly midway on this evolution. The age of this evolution might be determined if we could count the trillions of cells in our body where are inscribed the experiences we had in the ages we have lived. However, we know by inspiration and analogy that our conscious creation began with this earth. If science says the earth has been two billion years in evolving, that is our age.

"If you are overwhelmed with material work and the call of the outer world, stop and concentrate in the I am and say: 'I am Spirit. I do not believe in matter or material conditions. I have power, because I know that all power is in a Divine Mind. Divine Mind now sets my thoughts and all my affairs in divine order, and I rest in the confidence and peace of the kingdom within.'"

This is a worked-over form of Christian Science. It does away with matter and materiality, and makes sin merely the product of the mind, that is, think you are good and you are, for you are the Divine Mind, or the Divine Mind is you. It is no wonder Jesus warned of the danger of false teachers coming as wolves in lambs' clothing. "Try the spirits whether they are of God; because many false prophets are gone out into the world," is advice that needs to be heeded by students of the Word today as never before.

NO ANSWER. Early in the beginning of this year a cross-section poll was taken by Public Opinion on the question, "Can you think of anything that you personally can do to prevent another war?" Two thirds replied, "No." There is a feeling of frustration among the masses. People are losing faith in the ability of man to rule and maintain justice and equity for all. This doubtless is a climactic condition necessary for the establishment of the Kingdom of God. It has been said that before a sinner will seek forgiveness of sin, he must realize that he is a sinner and that cleansing from his sin can come only through Jesus Christ. It appears also to be true that before mankind will accept the rule of the King of kings, men must become convinced that there is no help in princes or the sons of men.

NO MAN'S STREET. The Iron Curtain to which Mr. Churchill first directed the attention of the world may turn out to be a No Man's Street. Russia, holding the conference of Prime Ministers and refusing to cooperate in the Marshall plan for the economic rehabilitation of Europe, has made the cleavage between the East and the West all but irrevocable. At the present time, sixteen nations of Europe have aligned themselves with the West; their total population amounting to 290,000,000 along with the 143,000,000 of the United States. The bloc of eight nations, that of necessity must fall in with the East, has a total population of 107,000,000 backed by the Soviet Union with 193,000,000. The West has a population advantage of 133,000,000, plus the great industrial might of the United States. When these two mighty forces meet in the Vale of Abraham—a great destruction will follow. Jesus admonished: "Watch . . . that ye may be accounted worthy . . . to escape . . . and to stand before the Son of man."

National Berean Society Report

FOLLOWING the discussions of the 1946 Berean Conference, a complete change in editorial policy for the Berean department of THE RESTITUTION HERALD was instituted, with the president as editor. The department was to be edited strictly for young people, with a thoroughgoing revolution in editorial technique and layout. The president resigned as editor in February, 1947, because of the pressure of other work, and was replaced by Harold J. Doan, pastor of the Chicago Church of God.

At a meeting of the National Berean Society executive board in October, 1946, the publication of The Guiding Star was authorized, to commence in February, 1947, on a monthly basis, distribution to be free during an experimental introductory period. The paper was to be eight pages, and was to carry material of interest to young people and junior Bereans, together with enough lessons for young people for one month in each issue. Circulation has increased from an initial 500 to 600, and the paper has been supported strictly by the National Berean Society and its friends, without drain on the budget of National Bible Institution.

Youth rallies, sponsored by affiliates of the National Berean Society and by the Society itself, were held at various points during the year: Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois. Special attention was given by Berean leaders and by the promotional director of National Bible Institution, James M. Watkins, to encouraging such rallies and to suggesting ways in which young people may work most successfully in their conferences and local church groups. The summer Youth Rally in progress at Oregon, Illinois, at the time this HERALD appears in print is, it is hoped, the forerunner of many such two-week rallies designed especially for teen-agers.

Publication of tracts previously undertaken by the Society was left to the editorial board of National Bible Institution. Lesson book publication was abandoned during the experimental publication of The Guiding Star, which is sent to all on a carefully assembled mailing list of junior and senior Bereans. The secretary of the Society has been compiling, for the last two years, an exhaustive list of officers and members of all local Berean groups and of all isolated Bereans, junior and senior. Mrs. Verna C. Thayer, child evangelist for National Bible Institution, has cooperated with the Society in the establishment and management of Vit-Em-In (junior) Berean groups and in the creation of a junior department of the Society.

The program for the 11:00 a.m. hour each day at the General and Illinois Conference, 1947, is in the hands of a joint committee of the Illinois State Conference, the National Berean Society, the National Sunday School Association, and National Bible Institution. It is planned particularly to provide as wide a variety as possible for the benefit of active church, Sunday school, and Berean workers and members.

Primary subjects for discussion at the Berean Conference to be held at Oregon on Monday, August 4, as a part of the General Conference now appear to be these: (1) Shall The Guiding Star be continued, and—if so—on what basis? If it is continued, shall it be printed in its present size and format by National Bible Institution or in a size twice as large, at no additional cost, by another process? (2) How may the Society best encourage youth activities in local churches and the co-operation of Sunday schools, young people's groups, and church organizations? What definite program should the Society adopt toward sponsoring youth rallies like the present national rally in Oregon? (3) Shall lesson books for juniors be provided in addition to lesson materials for senior Bereans? What program can best be adopted to put junior Berean operations on a nation-wide organized basis? (4) Shall lesson books be restored to replace The Guiding Star, or shall the Star, in increased size, be used to provide lesson matter for both juniors and seniors each month? (5) Shall some symbol of Berean membership—pin, card, or medal—be provided? (6) How may the Society best co-operate with the correspondence work of Oregon Bible College to promote more general study among small groups and isolated young people?

J. Arlen Marsh, President
Mary E. Marsh, Secretary

Brother Otto E. Dick's Report

INSTRUCTOR in the Bible College during the regular school year, in the Summer Bible Training School and Youth Rally; instructor for the correspondence course in Child Study, in which ten students are enrolled, College registrar, student counselor; advisor to College librarian, College year book staff, and College bulletin staff; co-sponsor with Sister Edna Brewer of the College play, presented June 3 at the high school auditorium.

Preaching services were conducted at Blanchard, Michigan; Macomb, Illinois; and Delta, Ohio.

I would recommend that every effort be exerted to increase the enrollment of the College to meet the growing need for ministers, to bring about more economical operation of the College, and to make possible the raising of the standards of the College. At present, married students are finding it difficult to meet living expenses; thus I endorse Brother Watkins' recommendation that consideration be given to providing low-cost housing for their convenience.

I would recommend the securing of a campus superintendent who is capable of fulfilling the duties of dean of men to assist the matron, and that residence at the College building be made a privilege subject to the willingness of the student to conform to dormitory rules.

Sunday School Association

FOLLOWING is a summary of the work done during the past year by the National Sunday School Association:

1. Special emphasis, during 1947, has been laid in the Truth Seekers' Quarterly for young people and adults on practical problems. An effort has been made to include in lesson outlines for each quarter material easily adaptable to instruction on major doctrines of the Church of God.

Outlines for the first quarter of 1947 were produced by the quarterly editor; later 1947 outlines were drawn up by Mrs. Clinton Appleby. During the first quarter, the use of illustrations was begun. To make room for these illustrations, editorial comments frequently were severely cut, and "Sidelights" has been eliminated. Efforts are being exerted to arrange for all editorial work on the quarterly to be done at least six months in advance of publication.

2. Nine hundred seven-three Children's Quarterlies were printed.

3. A list of materials and helps with name and address of publisher was issued.

4. The Association sponsored quarterly district meetings for Sunday school workers.

Frances Walls, Chairman.

Sister Verna Thayer's Report

(August 1, 1946 - July 1, 1947.)

By Verna C. Thayer

THIS PHASE of the Evangelism Department covers the work done with the children and teachers of children. It deals with all phases of Sunday school work.

1. Number of services held—389

2. Number of persons contacted—2,550.

3. Number of miles driven—13,472.

4. Vacation Bible Schools—15

Mountain Springs, Ark. (2); McGintytown, Ark. (2); Little Rock, Ark. (2); Arch, Okla. (2); Oregon, Ill. (1); Maurertown, Va. (1); Clarks Chapel, Ark. (1); Arkansas City, Kan. (1); Jordan, Mo. (1); Tempe, Ariz. (1); Blood River, La. (1).

5. Vit-Em-In Bible Classes Organized—6

Cleveland, Ohio (3); Morristown, Tenn. (1); London, Ark. (1).

The Vit-Em-In Bible classes, midweek classes for children, usually are conducted as a Berean class. The class at London, Ark., is under the supervision of Sr. Otto Dick, Oregon, Ill. She mails the lessons to five girls there. She, also, has charge of the isolated children who are contacted, mailing lessons to them. These classes are good feeders for the Sunday school.

6. Other places visited: Skelton, W. Va.; Paint Rock, Tenn.; Dry Run, Va.; Kokomo, Ind.; South Bend, Ind.; Dixon, Ill.; Rockford, Ill.; Hedrick, Ind.; Grand Rapids, Mich. (Southlawn); Cleveland, Ark.; Morrilton, Ark.

7. Amount received—$640.34

8. Expenditures—$677.53

This covers all mileage, supplies for both evangelistic and Sunday school work.

9. Number of Children's quarterlies made—973

10. Lessons were prepared for Bible schools at: Omaha, Nebr.; Kokomo, Ind.; South Bend, Ind.; Indiana Conference; Browntown, Va. All these places were visited, excepting Omaha, and the teachers taught to use the lessons.

11. Number of baptisms—2

Numerous other things, also, are covered by this department, such as assisting teachers, individually and by mail.

We ask your prayers for the success of our department which is for our boys and girls.

Print Shop Report

DURING the past year a few pieces of equipment have been added which have made possible more production with less effort. Nothing, however, has been added which improves the quality of our product. To further increase efficiency and to turn out better work, we need several pieces of equipment, more help, and more room.

Early this year, we thought a good man had been located as a full-time printer, but our hope soon faded. Printers with habits that conform to Christian standards are few in number; the ones who do conform to such standards are already profitably employed.

In Conference considerations, the printing and publishing part of our work should receive more consideration with less talk than it has the past few years since our work has been "looking up."

Paul C. Johnson.

REPORT OF PROMOTION AND CO-ORDINATION DEPARTMENT

several local problems and offered encouragement to local groups. In addition to our evangelistic and field trips, we continued one regular monthly appointment in helping to maintain the work at Hedrick, Indiana. Total cost to the Institution for the complete support of our department and assistance, over and above earnings, has been less than 4½ per cent of the Institution's sales, contributions, and earnings. This is little more than ½ of the 8 per cent which was estimated as needed to support this department. We feel that the effects of this work have had great possibilities and more than completely justified the work during the year. The decision to eliminate this department and merge its efforts with other work for the sake of greater economy and efficiency has in no way been suggested by the lack of results attained.

In the Evangelistic Department, which we also have directed, there has been good progress made. The Institution owes a vote of thanks to our workers for the good work that has been done. Following the practice of greater concentration and less travel, M. W. Lyon has spent a good portion of his time and efforts in the State of Texas. The result of this effort is shown by the revival of the Texas Conference, the enlargement of our church fellowship, and the opportunities open for local workers in the State. Details of the work done by each worker will be a part of their reports. The Department during the year has assumed over $3,000.00 more pastoral aid than was provided last year, yet has operated at approximately $70.00 per month less expense.

There are many problems to be met to insure the future of our work. They can be met only by greater unity of thought, interest, and effort. Unless undermined in the coming year by these factors, our financial and business future has a very bright and satisfactory outlook.

"By faith the walls of Jericho fell down, after they were compassed about seven days" (Heb. 11:30).

A Strange Parade

Joshua, leader of the Israelites, rose very early. The priests who bore the ark were also up early. They were to march around the walls of Jericho again. First went the armed soldiers. Then the seven priests followed, blowing seven trumpets. They were followed by the other priests who carried the ark of the covenant. Last of all came the congregation of Israel. This strange procession walked around Jericho six days. They went around only once each day.

The seventh day, they marched around Jericho seven times. The seventh time, Joshua told the people to shout. The priests blew the trumpets. Joshua said, "Shout; for the Lord hath given you the city" (Josh. 6:16). Certainly such faith was rewarded. The walls of the city fell flat. Every man went forward into the city. "By faith" they fell.

The walls were thick, because Rahab's home was said to be built right on the wall. (Josh. 2:15.) This did not make the people hesitate or fear. This was a different generation from those who feared the people too greatly to take the land. They had to wander forty years because of their lack of faith. Joshua and Caleb were the only ones from the first group who were allowed to enter the Holy Land with this new generation: men of faith.

Following God's Commands

They were to destroy all that was in the city. Not only were the people killed, young and old, but they destroyed the animals also. Only the silver and gold, and vessels of brass and of iron, were saved. These they put into the treasury of the house of the Lord. They did not always obey the Lord by destroying everything. We will learn more of that next week.

A Promise Kept

Joshua said to the two men who had spied out the country, "Go into the harlot's house, and bring out thence the woman, and all that she hath, as ye sware unto her." "The young men that were spies went in, and brought out Rahab, and her father, and her mother, and her brethren, and all that she had; and they brought out all her kindred, and left them without the camp of Israel."

The Israelites had an act of purification for the strangers and unclean. It seems Rahab was cleansed, for we read in the following verse that she "dwelt in the midst of the city" (6:25). Years later, she married Salmon and became an ancestress of Jesus the Christ.

Modern Jerichos

Today, Christians have walls that must crumble if they are to be Christ's. They may be walls of pride or lust or greed. Ambition for worldly gain can be a very real wall between one and God.

There is to be nothing between us and God. We are to live in peace with Him through Jesus. When we accept Jesus as our personal Saviour, He is our High Priest. We are kept pure and holy as long as we desire to be Christ's. If we realized His power to keep us when we are tempted to sin, we would always be overcomers. We are promised we will not be tempted "above that which we are able to bear." Believing that, we look for that way of escape that is also promised. With every temptation there is promised a way of escape from temptation. The temptations we have are common to all mankind. The temptations are so natural, so interesting, and often wrapped up in such a lovely manner, that we are caught "off guard," so to speak. When we pause to consider the Word, we remember that Paul said the natural and spiritual are on opposite sides. As Christians, we put down and conquer the natural to be Christlike.

"Trying to be" a Christian is but to fail. We are to "be Christians" in all things every day. God will not condemn those who walk "after the Spirit" and make no provision to fulfill the lusts of the flesh. Christ keeps us perfect in the sight of God when we are Christ's.

What Kind of Man Was Jesus?

By Harold J. Doan, Berean Editor

IT IS IMPORTANT that we know Jesus the Man, for as such He must command our respect, love, and devotion. Aside from His virgin birth, His Sonship, His saving blood, what kind of Person was Jesus? Was He a man we would like for a friend, a man we could respect and admire? We think so!

Jesus was a perfect man, physically, spiritually, and mentally. Peter, comparing Him to the lamb of sacrifice, said that He was "without spot or blemish."

First, Jesus was a perfect physical specimen. Too often we have seen Him portrayed as a weak, effeminate-looking person. Consequently, it is difficult for young people to find much in Him to incite their natural hero worship. This is unfortunate, because our study of the Gospels proves beyond doubt that Jesus must have possessed amazing strength, stamina, and energy. The fact that He supported His mother and brothers and sisters for years, by doing carpenter work, eliminates the possibility of His being a weakling.

We are told that some University of Illinois athletes tried to duplicate Jesus' trips on foot and found themselves unable to match His long journeys. Jesus lived outdoors constantly, saying one day, "The Son of man hath not where to lay his head" (Luke 9:58). Such rugged outdoor life must have made Jesus a man of great strength.

Could a weak man have endured forty days fasting and still had strength to defeat Satan in three great moral battles? Jesus did!

Remember the time He entered the Temple, to see it polluted by the grafters and thieves? Making a whip and showing His strong right arm, He drove all the money-changers and animals out of the Temple, single handed. No weak-kneed philosopher could have done it.

We see Jesus as a tall, strong man, perhaps like Saul. He walked erect like an Indian, eyes bright, skin tanned, barefoot in the great outdoors. Jesus was a man to command respect from first glance, even from His enemies.

Jesus was also a mental giant, second to none for quick wit, depth of knowledge, and practical wisdom. He had a faculty for calmness, never losing His temper. His mental motive's were good and His mind was kept always clear and ready for action, because He never allowed Himself to be hamstrung by anger, greed, hatred, or evil thinking.

One instance of Jesus' quick thinking and deep understanding is recorded in Matthew 22:15-22. Jesus' enemies set a clever trap. They had all the advantages of preparation, number, deception, and surprise. Their question was, "Should we pay taxes to Caesar?" If He said no, He would be tried for treason. If He said yes, His influence with the Jews, who believed no true Son of God could support a heathen king, would be lost. On His answer hung His life. What would you have done?

Jesus' famous answer is indication of His profound wisdom, His calmness, and His nimble wit. "Render unto Caesar the things that are His, and to God the things that are His."

He answered the question to everyone's satisfaction. This would have been enough for a normal man, but Jesus' answer went even deeper. It was a rebuke to His hearers who served Caesar better than they served God. His statement also established the Christian principle of serving your community with what it requires, but not to forget God in so doing. Jesus possessed super-intelligence.

You need not be ashamed of your brother and Saviour. You can be proud to be His servant and disciple. None of your friends has a hero of greater physical stamina or health, nor could they match Jesus in wisdom, wit, or intelligence. Our Saviour was a perfect man, worthy of being our Example in every way.

If He is our Example in all things (we have not even mentioned Jesus' spirituality and devotion to God), how can we be like Him?

We can, first of all, live the clean life He did, caring for our bodies as the Temples of God. Jesus knew He had much to do, and He could do it best when He was well and strong. Consequently, He cared for Himself by pure, clean, temperate living. We cannot picture Jesus in a tavern, drinking alcohol, or even smoking a cigarette. He enjoyed life, and lived every moment of it, but He did it the clean, wholesome way, with the end in mind of keeping Himself always fit and able to serve.

We can be like Him by being "ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh . . . a reason of the hope that is in" us (1 Peter 3:15). Jesus was always ready with an answer, because His mind was always at peace with man and with God.

Your Master can be respected and profitably followed.

BLOOD RIVER VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL

Hammond, Louisiana

On June 16, the Bible School opened at the Blood River Church of God (La.) with one hundred eight students enrolled. We were glad to welcome into our midst Sr. Verna C. Thayer and her competent assistant, Sr. Mabel Barnum, who in the past was one of the faithful workers of our congregation.

Bro. Vernis Wolfe and his staff of teachers and workers from the congregation, along with Srs. Thayer and Barnum, worked together in complete harmony to make our School the wonderful success that it was.

One hundred forty-one were enrolled in the School, and there was an average attendance of one hundred seven during the two weeks. We feel that God surely has blessed us in our efforts to serve Him. We had looked forward for three years to having Sr. Thayer work with us in our School. It was all and more than we expected. We hope she may be with us again. As she and Sr. Barnum journey on, we pray God will continue to bless and care for them in their work for Him.

On July 6, Bro. and Sr. Wolfe and Duan left for a short visit to Texas. We hope they will have a good visit at home, but will be glad to see them return to resume their work here.

Mrs. Maurice Robinson, Secy.

CAMP MEETING AT DENNY CREEK

Dates for the meeting at Denny Creek Camp on Snowqualine Pass (Wash.) this year are July 22-27. Monday, the 21st, will be occupied in getting there and setting up camp. Classes for both young people and adults will be prepared. On July 27, the closing date, there will be special music and sermons, followed by the usual basket dinner.

All are welcome to attend. Bring your camping outfit and Bible, and have a feast with us on the Word of God.

Lyle Rankin.

ILLINOIS CONFERENCE NEWS

Eldorado. Bro. Herbert Edmister has been conducting the worship services in Eldorado. He reports encouraging co-operation. All services are being conducted as usual. These laymen deserve much credit for the work they are doing.

The Eldorado Conference was well attended, and the attendants thoroughly enjoyed the sermons presented by Bro. Sydney E. Magaw. (They also very much enjoyed Bible lessons by Bros. Harold Doan and Linford Moore.—Editor.)

Macomb. The Macomb Vacation Bible School was very successful, with ninety-four students enrolled. The second week's school was highlighted by evangelistic meetings conducted by Bro. M. W. Lyon, Bro. Moore attended June Conference in Eldorado and Bro. John Mercer preached in his absence.

Oregon. June 1 was Berean Sunday in Oregon. The young people presented a fine concert, featuring the Glee Club and several instrumental and vocal solos. Billy Dick led the orchestra, and Kirby Davis the Glee Club. The Dorcas Society packed and sent a box of food to South Wales to one known by some of the members. This friend had written concerning conditions in Great Britain: "None such since the Middle Ages." "May our sharing bless us and others," writes the Oregon reporter. ("Paul would say, 'Now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity.'") A new class of young married people has been organized. Sr. Martha Doan is the teacher.

Ripley. Ripley Vacation Bible School was June 23 - July 4. A large enrollment was expected. Bro. C. R. Randall has quite recovered from his operation, and has been asked to continue his work in Ripley another year. The Sam Kee family has succumbed to the call of the West and moved to Arizona. Bro. and Sr. Fred Paisley recently visited the Cox family in Chicago, while Sr. Grace Laning of Chicago visited her family in Ripley.

INDIANA BIBLE SCHOOL AND CONFERENCE

MOTION STEERING COMMITTEE

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION

The Indiana Bible School and State Conference was held at the Morning Star Church of God in South Bend, Ind., June 15-22. There was a great deal of water in the North Salem Church basement where the Annual Bible School is always held. Due to the generous hospitality and hard work on the part of the members of the Morning Star Church, we were able to hold the meetings there. We wish to thank all who had a part in making it a success. The mattresses and bedding were brought from the North Salem dormitory and put in the church parsonage.

Bros. M. W. Lyon (chairman), Otto E. Dick, and Sr. Lyle Dean will serve as a "Motion-Steering Committee." All motions and resolutions should be presented to this Committee prior to being presented on the Conference floor, the intent being to have motions presented in their logical order and worded technically correct.

CREDENTIALS COMMITTEE

Sr. Leila Whitehead has been appointed by President Lehard T. Hanson to serve as chairman of the Conference Credentials Committee, she to choose her own assistants.

Bro. Delbert Jones served as superintendent of the Bible School and as dean of the boys. Sr. Doris Naylor was the matron, and Sr. Mary Rouse was in charge of the kitchen.

Four classes of Bible study were organized with teachers in charge as follows: Srs. Mildred Macy and Lulu Stilson, primary; Sr. Lulu Stilson, Bros. Emory Macy and Delbert Jones, juniors; Sydney E. Magaw, Emory Macy, and Floyd Stilson, seniors; and Sydney E. Magaw and Emory Macy, adults. A total of sixty-six were registered in the four classes.

Bro. Magaw of Oregon, Ill., was the guest speaker, and he brought a car load of young people with him—Milo, Norma, and Sidney Magaw, Betty Claussen, and Billy Dick. Bro. T. A. Drinkard of Arlington, Tex., had just finished a series of meetings at the Morning Star Church. He and Sr. Drinkard found it possible to remain for the State Conference, and gave us two sermons. Other ministers present were: Harry Sheets, Delbert Jones, Emory Macy, Richard Parish, and Floyd Stilson.

Bro. M. W. Lyon and his mother were with us on Sunday, June 15. After services on Sunday evening, he showed us moving pictures taken in Oregon, Ill., and in Texas.

Several of the young people gave special numbers, instrumental as well as vocal, which added much to the services. On Saturday evening, Marjorie Rouch gave a chalk talk on sin. These talks are educational and fascinating.

The South Bend Shrine Charities, Inc., brought the Mills Bros. Circus to the city to raise money for the crippled childrens' hospital. Through the efforts of Bro. Paran Anderson, all the children of the Bible School, and a few of the adults, were taken to the circus without charge to them. We certainly appreciate Bro. Anderson's part in making this opportunity possible.

At the business meeting, Saturday, June 21, Sr. Lottie Pickert was appointed to serve as chairman of a state youth organization to coordinate the activities of the youth throughout the State for the coming year.

Officers elected for the Conference Board are as follows: Willard Naylor, president; Floyd Stilson, first vice president; Ferris Zechiel, second vice president; Dale Rouch, treasurer; and Erna McChesney, secretary. Bro. Harvey Kraugh was elected to serve as editor of the Indiana page in The Restitution Herald.

Bro. Willis Rouse of Nappanee, Ind., was chosen as delegate to the National Conference at Oregon, Ill., and Sr. Pearl Zechiel was chosen as alternate.

We again wish to express thanks to the members of the Morning Star Church for making this year's Bible School possible.

(Mrs.) Erna McChesney, Secy.

Gleanings From the Field

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

"Youth Rally" students are arriving. Full enrollment will be published next week.

Bro. C. E. Lapp reports that Sr. Lapp is "progressing nicely" since her recent surgery. They plan to leave Tempe about July 21.

"Having a good time on my vacation. Sunday night (July 6), we went to church twice—to hear Gordon preach, and then we went to a negro church. Sr. Thayer is having a good Bible School at 'Happy Woods.'"—Shirley Logsdon, 109 E. Thomas St., Hammond, La.

Sixty-seven persons at the recent Michigan Conference had perfect attendance at the Bible classes, and the average attendance was one hundred ten.

Sr. Ida Hardesty, 1024 N. 33d St., Omaha, Neb., suffered a dislocated and fractured ankle several weeks ago, necessitating surgery, but she is able now to "get about" on crutches.

Bro. Vivian Kirkpatrick, now attending a summer session at the University of Minnesota, takes advantage of his opportunity, also, of attending the Minneapolis Berean meetings on Wednesday evenings. Their attendance ranges from eleven to seventeen students. "Keep going!"

The Editor plans to preach at Ripley, Ill., morning and evening of Sunday, July 20.

Hint for General Conference: "Our resolution during the month of July is to do less fault finding. It is an easy matter to see another fellow's shortcomings and forget one's own. This month, let us reverse the process: correct our own mistakes and be quick to forgive our brother of his."—L. W. Moore, 802 W. Jefferson, Macomb, Ill., in his local church bulletin.

Under date of July 3, Sr. Verna C. Thayer reported, "Having a fine Vacation Bible School here at Happy Woods, also,"—i.e., in addition to the one recently closed at the Blood River Church (La.)—"attendance now at forty-five. We have one more week here, then will go to Madison, Ohio."

Bro. and Sr. James M. Watkins motored to Hedrick, Ind., Saturday, July 5, where Bro. Watkins preached on Sunday. Sr. Etta Hurley returned with them to attend the Summer Bible Training School.

Sr. Maybelle Hanson, member of the Chicago Church of God, is nursing her mother, Sr. Sarah Demison, who is critically ill at her home, Oak Park, Minn.

Broken legs: Sr. C. H. Walters, 621 S. Gallena, Dixon, Ill., fell downstairs at her home some time ago, breaking an ankle. She is still bedfast. Also, Bro. Donald Mattison, Oregon, Ill., in an accident with a pony, recently suffered a broken kneecap. Both are members of the Oregon (Ill.) Church of God.

Bro. Norman J. McLeod preached, Sunday evening, July 6, for the Oregon, Ill., congregation, serving as guest speaker for the pastor, Bro. F. L. Austin. The message, about Peter's ministry, emphasized Acts 10:34, 35. . . . Remember the words!

"We're coming to General Conference."—Mr. and Mrs. Dale Rouch, 1710 Medora St., South Bend, Ind.

There's a difference between being level-headed and flat-headed. Which am I!

Conference Program: See the back page, this Herald, for the Conference Program, names of teachers, and other items of general interest.

Bros. Arnold Johns and Gerald L. Cooper motored from Oregon, Ill., July 12, to Ripley, Ill., for Sunday services. One preached in the morning; the other in the evening. Both these men are attending the Summer Bible Training School.

National Evangelist M. W. Lyon is working with our brethren in and near Washington, D. C. . . . Pray for an active church in the capital city.

Illinois Conference and Bible School

July 29 marks the opening of the Annual Illinois Conference and Bible School, and General Conference at Oregon, Illinois. This is perhaps the most important series of meetings in our denomination, and in our State. Illinois State Conference will meet Friday and Saturday afternoons, August 8, 9, for its annual business meeting and election of officers. Make plans now to attend and participate in the classes, worship services, and business meetings!

General Program:

- 7:00 a.m. Breakfast
- 7:30-8:30 Ministerial Conference
- 9:00-9:45 General Assembly and Devotional Hour
- 9:45-10:55 Morning Classes
- 11:00-11:50 Church Problems Sessions conducted by the Sunday School Association and Bereans.
- 12:00 Dinner
- 1:30-3:00 General Assembly and Afternoon Classes
- 3:15 General Conference Hour
- 5:30 Supper
- 7:30 Evening Service and Sermon

Saturday, August 2, is Sunday School Day; and Monday, August 4, is Berean Day. Classes will be conducted as usual on these days, but all activities will be slanted toward the efforts of these two organizations.

Teachers:

- Bible School Superintendent—H. J. Doan
- Beginners' Class, Ruby Railton
- Primary Class, Verna Thayer
- Junior Class, Lulu Stilson
- Intermediate Class, Ruth Tomlinson
- High School Class, Otto E. Dick and Clarence Lapp
- Young People's Class, Linford Moore and Robert Hardesty

Adult Bible Classes, G. E. Marsh, Norman McLeod, and J. Arlen Marsh

A complete list of morning and evening speakers will be published later in THE HERALD.

Food:

Again, the cooks will be Sisters Lewis and Pritchard, who pleased our palates last year. Most of the food is purchased by the Illinois Conference, which is grateful for any contributions of edibles. Bring along a sample of your gardening and canning ability. Every little bit helps!

Rooms:

Those who wish to rent rooms away from the dormitory should contact Sr. Leota Hanson, Box 231, Oregon, Illinois. The dormitory will be used again this year, subject to the usual rules and restrictions which later will be published. Co-operation is necessary if the dormitory is to be maintained, and if the rights and feelings of others are to be respected. Courtesy must be the rule if everyone is to enjoy his stay on the Conference grounds.

Music:

Music for the Conference will be in charge of Sister Esta Starbuck. As usual, she will welcome special numbers for morning, evening, and Sunday services. If you sing or play a musical instrument, prepare a song or two for the Conference sessions. Do not hide your talent! Let your light shine! We need good music from the first day to the last. Begin to prepare soon!

Come to Oregon, Illinois, July 29-August 10, for a spiritual feast. Meet your brothers and sisters in Christ at Conference. Help conduct the state and national church business, which are important parts of the Conference. You need Conference, and the Conference needs you! Set aside time now!

Jewish Prosperity in the Desert

The Minneapolis Star, dated June 28, 1947, reported a thriving Jewish colony deep in the desert land of South Palestine, using as a title these words, "Jews Coax Garden Miracle Out of Barren Desert." Down in Negev Desert, even south of Hebron (see map), thirty-three young men and twenty-seven young women, after four years of persistent Jewish effort, are producing fruits, vegetables, and flowers from about one hundred acres of soil that has been desert wasteland for thousands of years. They intend to enlarge their garden-in-the-desert to include ten thousand acres.

Singularly, these young Jews are enjoying friendly relationship with the neighboring Arab tribes, and there is evidence that Zionism will center its activities in southern Palestine where Arab resistance is least active.

How and when God's prophecies are to be fulfilled, one seldom can foresee; but when they are fulfilled, the events frequently evolve so smoothly that one is likely to forget that a short time prior to fulfillment, the prophecy seemed incredible. Nothing is impossible with God. The rebuilding of Palestine is dependent neither upon British nor American interests. In fullness of time, God will fulfill His every promise concerning His people, Israel. "They shall build the waste cities, and inhabit them; and they shall plant vineyards, and drink the wine thereof; they also shall make gardens, and eat the fruit of them."

"Meditation"—By Mary Mae Nedrow

Sister Mary Mae Nedrow here speaks of another type of "garden in the desert"—the garden of prayer: "There's a peaceful sanctuary where we love to go to pray: where there are no doors to open, in the night or in the day. In the grandeur of this garden where old-fashioned flowers grow . . . where hollyhocks sedately nod as though they truly know, the beauty of a garden that only God can make, and of His handiwork from us no one can ever take . . . and on this emerald carpet rare, we kneel . . . and bow our heads in prayer."

Facts about the Bible

The Bible (Latin edition) was the first book printed from movable metal types—in the year 1455. The first Bible printed in America was in the Indian language, the work being done by John Eliot, 1663. In 1782, the first English Bible was printed in this country. The first Bible printed in New York City appeared in 1792, a copy of which was owned by George Washington.

There has been a close association between development of printing and circulation of the Bible, as though God blessed the invention of man for His own glory. Nearly a billion volumes of the Scriptures have been printed and scattered abroad through the world since printing was invented in the fourteenth century. It is reported that: "The entire Bible has been translated into 179 languages, and parts of it have been translated into 829 languages and dialects, making a total of 1008 languages and dialects.

Here listed are the several early English versions:

- 1380-84—John Wycliffe (in manuscript only). First complete translation of the whole Bible into English.
- 1525—William Tyndale. The first printed English New Testament.
- 1530—William Tyndale's Bible—Pentateuch.
- 1535—Miles Coverdale's Bible. First Bible printed in English.
- 1537—Matthew's Bible.
- 1539—The Great Bible.
- 1539—Taverner's Bible.
- 1557—Genevan Bible, New Testament.
- 1560—Genevan Bible, Old Testament.
- 1568-72—The Bishop's Bible.
- 1582—Douay Bible, New Testament.
- 1609—Douay Bible, Old Testament.
- 1611—The Authorized Version, or King James' Bible.

Conference Fast Approaches

General Conference fast approaches. Opening day, July 29, is only one week away. Indeed, it will arrive as soon as some of you readers receive this final invitation. You are invited to this spiritual feast, July 29 - August 10.

The Education of Peter

(A Sermon Preached at Oregon, Illinois, July 6, 1947)

By Norman J. McLeod, Pomona, California

SIMON PETER was dismayed with himself. He had done the thing that he had thought was impossible for him to do. He had betrayed the one Person whom he loved most of all in this world. He had denied his Lord and Saviour—the One to whom he had made that great confession a short time before, that confession which had given him his surname of “Peter.” With a look which was the signal to him, Jesus had told him that the prediction of desertion was fulfilled. Now Peter was a broken man: his spirit all gone, his mind in blackness. How could he face himself? ! How could he face those others? ! But they had fled, too, all except the ever-faithful John who followed Jesus to the place of crucifixion.

Jesus came forth from the grave, however, and Simon Peter was among the first to see Him and know Him afterward. His gloom was turned to joy—but not for very long. How soon the zealous Peter lapsed into irresolution! Not knowing what else to do with himself, he and his friends went to their old occupation, fishing. Then Jesus upbraided him again—this time for not going about the work of leading the new church. In language somewhat veiled, the Master three times told him to be about that work. One can imagine again how the heart of that burly fisherman must have been wrung when the Lord twice repeated the question: “Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me?” (John 21.) Peter, the brash direct-actionist, was full of indecision. He had to do something—and had gone fishing. One is reminded of that other time, on occasion of Christ’s Transfiguration, when Peter had suggested that they build tents for Moses, Elijah, and Jesus. Peter had showed himself to be confused: he had to do something to keep himself in hand. Now he had gone fishing to relieve that tension that was in the mind of one so full of energy as he was. He had to have a means of allowing the outflow of energy to escape. When confronted by the Saviour, though, he was confused as to what to do.

At the next appearance of Peter, however, what a changed man he was! He was the preacher with power. He spoke forth with all the authority of the spokesman of God through the Holy Spirit. He was a great evangelist winning souls by the thousands to the new Cause. No longer did he fear the displeasure of the “powers that be.”

He went about doing good, preaching Christ “in season and out of season” in spite of threats and persecution. He was miraculously delivered from jail in the face of prayer by his friends. Then again, apparently, the power suffered a lapse: for Peter was in Joppa, apparently not actively carrying the Word of Jesus forward.

A vision from the Lord was bothering him while he was asleep and fasting. A strange weird vision it was—about food. Eat those unclean things? Most certainly no! He always had been a devout Jew! Then came the answer: “What God hath cleansed, that call not thou common” (Acts 10:15). Then to that Jewish fisherman preacher came a new revelation: the messengers of a despised Gentile were without to lead him to their master. Still somewhat confused in his mind, Peter nevertheless obeyed the summons because of its apparently divine coincidence. Then came the pouring out of the Holy Spirit upon Cornelius and his household, and another step in the education of Peter was completed. “Of a truth,” he said, “I perceive that God is no respecter of persons: but in every nation he that feareth him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him” (Acts 10:34, 35). Later, when Peter stood before the conference at Jerusalem (Acts 15), there was no longer any confusion in his mind. The Gentiles were fellow heirs with the Jews in the great councils of God.

What, though, is this we hear again! Paul had withstood Peter to his face! Peter was again the narrow Jew. He had withdrawn himself from the Gentile converts. He would no longer countenance the work of Paul among the Gentiles. Had confusion again entered into the mind of the great sturdy fisherman preacher? Must he still have another lesson from the Lord? Certainly he who had so ardently proclaimed to Jesus: “Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God” (Matt. 16:16), would need no further teaching! Certainly he who had denied the Lord and then repented with tears and great anguish of heart would need no other lesson! Surely he who had spoken with the power of the Spirit on the Day of Pentecost could not need further education in the things of God and His beloved Son. How could he who had seen the Holy Spirit of God descend upon the once-despised Gentile be in need of another lesson?

The Wages of Sin

By Glenn M. Birkey, Rochelle, Illinois

IN Weymouth's "New Testament in Modern Speech," Romans 6:23 reads: "The wages paid by Sin are death; but God's free gift is Life of the Ages bestowed upon us in Christ Jesus our Lord." James 1:15 reads, "Then the passion conceives, and becomes the parent of sin, and sin, when fully matured, gives birth to death." Webster defines "sin" as "a willful transgression of the divine law; neglect of the laws of morality or religion; violation of propriety."

Though "sin" is a very short word, its effects upon mankind are beyond description. God, in creating man, made him a free creature of choice. Man chose very unwisely, as one sees today by the mess he has made of self-rule, and many leaders of society are unhappy and worried over today's world conditions. Here is the sad part: when any agency that man has established to try to get himself out of the difficulty into which he has gotten himself is in session, very seldom, if ever, do these men gathered in assembly call upon Almighty God for assistance or guidance. In history, there were times that man did seek God's guidance, but he has become so sinful he is too proud to admit defeat. Willfully and entirely, man leaves out of his plans the Creator of the universe.

Recently, I heard a speaker who traveled in Europe before World War I. He said at that time many people attended churches in Europe. Having returned there after that War, he reported church attendance had fallen away to almost nothing. In France, church windows were boarded up. Today, one can see what happened, and is happening, to that nation and to many other nations that forgot God. Optimists here in America may say, "It cannot happen here," but, if God is left out of American life, it will happen here. People in both Russia and Poland said their freedom never could be taken away from them, but they have learned differently to their sorrow.

The word "sin" first appears in Genesis 4:7, regarding Cain's slaying of Abel. Adam and Eve, however, committed the first sin when they disobeyed God, thus placing man under the penalty of death. In examination of the scripture at the beginning of this article, one finds mention of two opposites—death and life. Death is the penalty for sin. Life throughout the ages is for those who love and obey God, but it is yet a gift by reason of God's Son who gave His life for sinners. How ridiculous to hear ministers at funerals speak of death as the "doorway of heaven" when death is the penalty for sin! It "just don't make sense!"

In the Chicago United Mission Messenger, Mr. West, Superintendent of the Mission, under the caption "Why Do Men Drink?" has this to say:

"So many times we are asked the reason for these men drinking, and the only answer we know is this little word called 'sin.' We may try to place the blame on any number of things, but when we come to the real cause of drink, it is sin. In the two years I have been at the Mission, I have talked with hundreds of men and asked them why they have become drinkers. About ninety per cent say they started to drink to try to forget some bitter experience in their past life. . . . I do not believe that ten per cent of the men on Skidrow are there because they want to be, but sin has such a hold on them that it is impossible for them to quit drinking in their own power. I have had men tell me they would give their good arm if they could only stop drinking. This is not only the 'down and outer,' but men who have had better positions in life, such as doctors, lawyers, bankers, and various walks of life. The only cure for these men from the drink habit is the Lord Jesus Christ. I could not tell you of one man who has stopped drinking by his own power, but I could name numbers of them who have accepted Christ and the desire for drink has left them."

In Romans 8:5-9, we read: "If men are controlled by their earthly natures, they give their minds to earthly things. If they are controlled by their spiritual natures, they give their minds to spiritual things. Because for the mind to be given up to earthly things means death; but for it to be given up to spiritual things means Life and peace. Abandonment to earthly things is a state of enmity to God. Such a mind does not submit to God's law, and indeed cannot do so. And those whose hearts are absorbed in earthly things cannot please God" (Weymouth).

Webster defines "carnal" to mean "pertaining to the body, its passions and appetites; animal; fleshly; sensual; impure; not spiritual, but essentially human." Therefore, we Christians have much to fight in this life to overcome the carnal that is in us. We need to use the "sword of the Spirit," which is the Word of God. We need Christ's influence upon our lives seven days each week. The Apostle Paul well summed up the matter in Romans 8:12, 13, saying: "Therefore, brethren, it is not to our lower natures that we are under obligation that we should live by their rule. For if you so live, death is near; but if, through being under sway of the spirit, you are putting your old bodily habits to death, you will live" (Weymouth).

According to reports coming in each hour through the press and radio, both man and nature seem to be on the rampage. It seems the whole creation is groaning because of the heavy load of sin upon the whole earth. On man's part, there are killings, robberies, lack of natural affection. In nature, there are famines, floods, earthquakes, tragic weather conditions. How thankful we Christians should be that we have a God who has (Please turn to page 10)

TRUTHS WE BELIEVE AND EMPHASIZE

By G. E. Marsh Tipp City, Ohio
Pastor Brush Creek Church of God

The Unity of God as sole Creator, Sovereign, and Father of all. (Gen. 1:1; Deut. 6:4; Isa. 44:8; 45:5-7; Eph. 4:6; Acts 17:27-29.)

Jesus the Christ, the Son of God. (Psalm 2:7; Luke 1:30-35; Matt. 3:17; 1 Cor. 8:6; Rom. 1:1-4.)

The Holy Spirit, the power of God. (Gen. 1:2, 3; Rom. 15:19; 1 Cor. 2:10-14; Eph. 4:30; Matt. 12:18.)

Man, formed wholly of dust of the ground. (Gen. 2:7; 3:19; Eccl. 3:20; Psalm 103:14.)

His life dependent on the breath, or spirit of life, given him by God. (Gen. 2:7; Job 33:4; 27:3.)

In Death he has no memory or consciousness, being in no sense alive. (Psalm 6:5; 94:17; 115:17; Isa. 38:2; Eccl. 9:4-10; Rev. 1:18.)

Future Life comes only by resurrection from the dead. (John 11:25, 43, 44; 5:25-29; 1 Cor. 15:13, 14, 16-18, 32, 50-54; 1 Thess. 4:13-18; Col. 3:4.)

The Earth, the eternal home of the redeemed. (Matt. 5:5; Psalm 37:11, 18, 22; Dan. 7:27; Rev. 5:9, 10; Isa. 65:17, 18; 2 Peter 3:13, 14.)

The Gospel, which is the "power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth," consists of the good news of the Kingdom of God to be established on the earth when Christ comes. (Mark 1:14, 15; Matt. 10:7; Luke 4:43; Acts 1:1-3; 8:12; 20:25; 28:23, 30, 31.)

Israel, the Jewish People, are to be restored to Palestine. (Amos 9:11-15; Jer. 16:14-16; Isa. 11:11; 43:5-7; Ezek. 34:11-13, 28; 36:36; Isa. 62:1-4, 12.)

The Apostles are to be rulers over the twelve tribes of Israel. (Matt. 19:27, 28.)

The Faithful Saints of the church will be "kings and priests" over the nations under Christ. (Rev. 2:26; 3:21; 5:10; 20:4; Rom. 15:12; 2 Tim. 2:12.)

The Kingdom will include all nations and stand forever. (Psalm 2:8, 9; 72:8-11; Dan. 2:44; 7:13, 14, 27; Isa. 2:1-4; 9:7; 11:1-10; 35:1-10.)

To Attain a Place in the Kingdom as a co-ruler with Christ, one must a) believe the gospel (Mark 16:15, 16; Acts 8:12), b) repent (Mark 1:15; Luke 24:47; Acts 2:38; 3:19), c) be baptized (Matt. 28:19, 20; Acts 8:12; 22:16), d) lead a godly life in Christ Jesus (Rom. 6:4-6; 2 Peter 1:5-11).

THE BREWERS' SLOGAN

Selected by R. H. Judd, Colborne, Ontario

"A million boys are needed."

Have you heard the brewers' cry?

Can you see the fearful vision

Of this army passing by?

"A million young men give us,

Who have never tasted beer;

For new customers are needed

For our business year by year."

"A million boys are needed."

Friend, have you a lad to spare

To fill dying drunkards' places?

Is it your son's "needed" there?

"A million boys are needed."—

(So the brewers plead their cause)—

"Our Trade's urgent and demands them,

And we need, too, freer laws."

"A million boys are needed."

'Tis your son, and mine, they claim

But—our daughters now they're asking,

Not our sons alone! O shame!

Shame on Christian men and women,

Who can fail to rise in might,

And forever banish from us

Every foe of Truth and Right.

"A million boys are needed."

Say, O Brewer, have you one?

Haven't you a lad to offer?

Why not give your own dear son?

Haven't you a baby daughter

You can spare to help your trade?

Never mind if she is ruined—

Think of all the wealth you've made.

Send her to your cursed beerrooms.

Let her drink your brew of hell—

If you haven't son or daughter,

Why seek mine your ranks to swell?

"A million boys (and girls) are needed!"

Yes, we need them, every one,

For a glorious clean tomorrow,

Where the cause of Truth is won.

The Life of Christ—Part Two

The Second Year of Jesus' Ministry

By Timothy Pearson, Oregon, Illinois

THE REGION around the Sea of Galilee was the scene of Christ's second year's ministry. Galilee seemed to be the favorite place for the Lord to work. The people were slow to anger and kind to strangers. They were eager to hear the Word and flocked to see His miracles. In other parts of Palestine, Jesus was not so well received. Hence, we discover that Christ was interested more in the Galileans in His second year of ministry.

One Sabbath day in April, 28 A.D., Jesus and His disciples were walking through a wheat field. "His disciples were picking the heads of wheat, and eating them, rubbing them in their hands." Of course, the Pharisees took exception to this act and accused Christ of breaking the Sabbath laws. The Lord cited them to the instance when David was hungry and ate the shewbread which was sacred. It was permissible to eat on the Sabbath in David's day and it was not wrong in Christ's day. In fact, had it been necessary, the Lord could have worked on the Sabbath, for He Himself testified that He was Lord of the Sabbath.

Soon after that, on another Sabbath day, a man who had a withered right hand came to Jesus to be healed. At once, the scribes and the Pharisees began to crowd around. They wanted to see if Christ would attempt to cure the man on the Sabbath day. The influence of the priests in Jerusalem was coming even to northern Galilee, and, in the persons of the scribes and the Pharisees, was causing Jesus no little grief. The Lord cured the man who had a withered hand; then He left the multitude and went up on a mountain to pray. Jesus prayed there all night long—talking with God. How puny seem the little acts of devotion men practice today. Who has stayed awake all night in prayer? Who has had the strength and will power that prayer can bring, but Christ?

The next morning, having prepared Himself for an important decision, Jesus called His disciples to Him and chose twelve to be apostles. Those fortunate ones were Simon Peter, Andrew, James, John, Philip, Bartholomew, Matthew, Thomas, James the Less, Simon, Thaddeus, and Judas. Little did these twelve men know that John would be the only one to die a natural death. Judas was to dangle from a suicide rope and the remaining ten died because of their faith in Christ. As an example, according to tradition, Peter was crucified head downward.

Jesus and His apostles came down from the mountain, and the crowds again took up His trail. The next record we have is that He ascended Mount Tabor and sat down to teach His disciples. The sermon that followed is only outlined here. It is, doubtless, the most instructive sermon ever preached.

When Jesus had given this memorable address, the people were astonished, for He taught them with authority. Jesus knew what He was talking about. (He was far better at this than modern ministers.)

From Mount Tabor, Jesus went again to Capernaum. This little town was the one in which He did so many miracles. For the account of how Jesus healed the Centurion's servant, the Bible narrative is the best. We quote: "A Roman captain had a slave whom he thought a great deal of, and the slave was sick and at the point of death. When the captain heard about Jesus, he sent some Jewish elders to him, to ask him to come and save his slave's life. And they went to Jesus and urged him strongly to do it, and said,

"He deserves to have you do this for him, for he loves our nation, and it was he who built us our synagogue."

"So Jesus went with them. But when he was not far from the house, the captain sent some friends to him, to say to him,

"Master, do not take any more trouble, for I am not a suitable person to have you under my roof. That is why I did not think I was fit to come to you. But simply say the word, and have my servant cured. For I am myself under the orders of others, and I have soldiers under me, and I tell one to go, and he goes, and another to come, and he comes, and my slave to do something, and he does it."

"When Jesus heard this, he was astonished at him, and turning to the crowd that was following him, he said,

"I tell you, I have not found such faith as this even in Israel!"

"And when the messengers went back to the house, they found the slave well" (Luke 7:2-10; Goodspeed).

This story is typical of the strange circumstances continually arising when Jesus journeyed through Galilee. He met the situation with all the wisdom He could muster. The story of the centurion's servant is one of the most beautiful recorded in the Bible.

Next day, the Lord arrived at a little village called "Nain." It was located a few miles southwest of the Sea of Galilee. As He approached the gate of the city, a funeral procession filed out with a coffin that was carried on the shoulders of the pallbearers leading the procession. The only son of a widow of Nain had died, and the whole city had turned out to pay its respects.

At once, Jesus had compassion for the woman. He approached the coffin, and the bearers stopped. The Lord reached forth His hand and said,

"Young man, I say unto thee, arise."

Immediately, the corpse came to life, and the young man lived again. Jesus, still holding his hand, led him to his mother. Then the people began to praise Jesus, acclaiming Him as a great prophet.

Some of the disciples of John the Baptist were present when Jesus resurrected the widow's son. They went into the jail in which Herod had imprisoned John, telling him what they had seen. John sent them to Jesus to ask Him if He were the Messiah. Instead of giving the messengers a direct answer, Jesus reminded them of many miracles and sent them back to John to tell him of all these miracles. Then Jesus turned to the people who had gathered to see His miracles and related to them all the things John the Baptist had been sent to do. He accused the Pharisees of saying that John had a devil because he came fasting and not engaging in the social events of the day, yet they were saying that Jesus was gluttonous and a winebibber, a friend of publicans and sinners, when He did not fast often and did engage in social events.

That evening, a Pharisee called "Simon" invited Jesus to dinner in his house. During the course of the meal, a wicked woman came in and sat at the feet of Jesus, washing His feet with her tears and drying them with her long hair. The Pharisees were astounded and became angry at the woman, but Jesus commended her for her humility and forgave her sins. Simon had not offered the Master water to cleanse His feet, but the woman had washed them, unbidden.

In the next few weeks, Jesus and His disciples, several of whom were women; Mary Magdalene, Joanna, Susanna, and others, toured Galilee ministering to sinners.

After a rousing sermon, in which Jesus condemned those who resist the Holy power of God to the extent that they are never able to repent and thus are lost, the disciples informed the Lord that His mother and His brothers were outside and wanted a word with Him. Jesus chose this opportunity to teach the multitude that all the world is related to Him. As He pointed to His disciples He said,

"Here are my mother and my brothers! For whoever does the will of my Father in heaven is my brother and sister and mother!" (Matt. 12:50).

Space forbids an exposition of all the parables Jesus spoke. He had watched people in their daily chores since He was a boy; now He used these illustrations in presenting the gospel to many others who knew about life in Galilee. Some of the illustrations Jesus used in His sermons at this stage of His ministry were the parables of the sower, the tares, the mustard seed, the leaven, the candle, the treasure, the pearl, the drawnet, the bridegroom, and the new cloth and new wine. Each of these little stories explains part of the gospel message.

One day Jesus and His apostles boarded a small fishing boat in order to cross the Sea of Galilee. Jesus went to sleep during the trip. He was exhausted from having worked so hard with so little rest. (Turn to page 9)

News and Prophecy Digest

By C. E. Randall, Fonthill, Ontario

GEORGIAN BAY. Copy for this page is being prepared while we are vacationing on the south shore of Georgian Bay. The setting is restful and some of the natural beauty of God is much in evidence, and, with this background as inspiration, we meditate with you on some of the great prophecies of God concerning the end of the age and the coming of Christ. While for a few days we are separated from the current news of the world, one always can keep abreast of the times by keeping abreast of the Word of God, for God knows the end from the beginning.

Sitting at my typewriter, I can look out over the waters of Georgian Bay as far as the natural eye can see, where the law of perspective brings water and sky line together. As I look at this great body of water, my mind runs back to the days when God "divided the waters which were under the firmament from the waters which were above the firmament." To me, the natural explanation of this great work of creation falls far short. The majesty and might of it all has intrigued, and still does intrigue, the imaginative powers of the mind, and serves to create within me a faith in God that serves me well in the everyday affairs of life.

Then, too, there comes to mind the story of the day when the sin of man became so great and repugnant to God, that God repented Himself that He had made man on the earth; and with provision made for the safety of the righteous, the fountains of the great deep were broken up and the wickedness of man was brought to an abrupt end by the judgment of God through control of the very universe which He had created.

To this thought of past times we move ahead to the prophetic day of which it is said: "The heavens and the earth, which are now, by the same word are kept in store, reserved unto fire against the day of judgment and perdition of ungodly men." God's ability to reckon with the wickedness of men is attested by His power to create and control that which He has created where such control is within the province of His righteous nature.

WILLFULLY IGNORANT. Of the days preceding the great deluge, it is written that men are to be willfully ignorant of the part which the Word of God played in those days. This class of folk are the ones that Peter described as being scoffers, who will be unable to see in the events of the last days any signs of the coming of the Lord; the reason being, "They are willingly ignorant." People who are unable to see and perceive the trend of events today in the light of prophecy, when such is available, are deluded by some cause. Inspiration places the responsibility for this ignorance upon the individual. Like the people of a past generation of whom Scripture speaks, it says, "So that they are without excuse." There is no reason for people who have access to the Word of God, and who have read such descriptive passages of the last days as Paul's in his Second Epistle to Timothy, to be ignorant of the times. Daily events as are happening all about us today are coinciding in detail with what Paul said would happen in the last days to make the times perilous.

There are several reasons why so many folk are ignorant of the times and thereby become scoffers of the second coming of Christ. Most of these reasons are, of course, the outgrowth of a willingness on the part of the individual. Love of pleasure is blinding millions to the serious and eternal truths of life. A statement which I recently saw in print accused the people of the nation as being "pleasure mad." Pleasure is being put ahead of church responsibility, and certainly it must be plain to all that people as a rule are more interested in the pursuits of pleasure than they are in seeking first the Kingdom of God through the study of the Word. To pleasure must be assigned another reason for people being willfully ignorant of the scriptures pertaining to the signs of the times, and that is, the "cares of this world." Tearing down barns to build larger ones, for the purpose of laying up treasures on earth, is so occupying the minds of folk, they do not take time to acquaint themselves with the Word of God; and because they have purposefully and willingly chosen worldly things in preference to the things of the spirit, they are willingly ignorant of the coming of the Lord. Though they may not in so many words say, "Where is the promise of his coming?" yet by works they live it day by day.

WALKING AFTER LUSTS. One of the indictments of the generation that will be living when the Lord returns is that they will be "walking after their own lusts." These lusts to which the world is catering after today "war against the soul." Argue as long as one desires, the fact remains that the lusts of the flesh, unless subdued and brought into submission to the mind of Christ, work havoc with one's Christian life. The habits which are controlling the lives of untold millions in the nation today are habits of lust. Yielding to these habits has become so common, people no longer think strange concerning the practice of unseemly habits and actions. The practicing of lustful things in daily living, however, has all but stilled the voice of the Spirit in the lives of nominal Christians. The strength of the church is to be found in her purity from the world, and separation from the world, and her complete unity with Christ. A few years ago, the church in general looked with shock on the lustful practices of the worldly minded and the non-Christian. Today, the church in general is doing the same things which the world has always done, and in most quarters feeble efforts are put forth to justify a liberal attitude toward a broadened outlook on social living. The wisest choice in the whole matter is to follow closely the teachings of the Lord and to "abstain from all appearance of evil."

DAY OF THE LORD. Peter, along with most of the authors of the Scriptures, affirmed that the "day of the Lord will come." He spoke with great firmness and conviction. Some time ago, we read an article in which the writer labored with a great deal of zeal in an effort to prove that there would not be a Millennium. In his efforts to dispose of the reign of the Lord to put down "all rule and all authority and power" over a period of time and condense this great restorative and judgment work of the Lord to a "moment and twinkling of the eye," he voided much of the beautiful language of Scripture and made the prophetic voice of God merely a counterpart of the history written by man. The volume of Scripture devoted to the coming of the "Day of the Lord," and the work which will be wrought through the direct and personal rule of the rightful heir to David's throne, portrays one of the most beautiful stories which God has given to man. Religionists may deny the restoration of Israel, yet the promise stands, "In the regeneration when the Son of man shall sit in the throne of his glory, ye also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel." Men may scoff at the teaching of restitution and call it false, but the Word still stands in its declaration, "He shall send Jesus Christ, which before was preached unto you: whom the heaven must receive until the times of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." People may discount the importance of the saints being joint heirs with Christ; still the message in Revelation affirms, "He that overcometh and keepeth my works unto the end, to him will I give power over the nations."

Thus goes the story of the Day of the Lord when the Lord reigneth most gloriously in Mount Zion.

BE DILIGENT. One of the purposes behind the prophetic message is that "seeing that ye look for such things, be diligent that ye may be found of him in peace, without spot, and blameless." I believe it has served such a purpose in our general church work. This past week end, I went to Oregon, Illinois, with a group of our church young folk who had enrolled in the Youth Rally now being conducted at church headquarters. While I was in Oregon only a few hours between trains, yet having in that time talked with several of our church leaders, I observed a unanimity of spirit and outlook for the church program of the future that gave me a fuller confidence in the ability of our leaders to give of their utmost, and with a vision that will augur well for the future days which are left for us to work before the Lord returns. May the Lord bless all for a greater Church of God.

THE LIFE OF CHRIST—Part Two

The air currents above the Sea of Galilee are noted for their trickery. One minute the atmosphere will be clear and pleasant; the next a savage storm may be ripping at any unfortunate seaman who has ventured onto the water. It was one of these surprise storms that arose and threatened to swamp the boat that day. Some of the apostles were born sailors and they rowed hard to bring the small craft to land, but to no avail. Finally, they awoke the Master, pleading with Him to save them from almost certain death in the Sea.

"Why are you afraid? You have so little faith!" the Lord rebuked.

He then arose, looked out over the angry waves and commanded, "Peace, be still," and there was a great calm. Even the apostles, who were very close to the Master, were dumbfounded when they realized that even the wind and the sea obeyed Him.

The remainder of the trip was uneventful. At last, they arrived and disembarked on the east coast of the Sea of Galilee. The country there was called Decapolis in honor of ten large cities situated in the area. There was a city near the place where Jesus landed called "Gadara." As the Lord and His followers approached the city, they saw two men who were deficient mentally guarding the path to the tombs. They were fierce like wild animals, and men were afraid of them. The disease of the mind with which the men were afflicted is called "a devil" in the Bible. Jesus removed this disease from the men, and, to prove that they were cured, He transferred the affliction to a herd of swine eating near by. The hogs immediately went crazy and ran down a steep hill into the Sea and drowned. The farmers who had charge of the swine ran to the city and told what had happened.

Most of the people of the city came to see Jesus, and they asked Him to leave their section of the country. One of the men who had been cured wanted to go with Jesus, but Jesus asked him to stay there and tell others of the miracle. Jesus and His group then returned by boat to Capernaum.

Four more miracles are attributed to Christ at this time. A woman who was a bleeder touched the hem of Christ's garment and was made well. Jairus' daughter was resurrected, two blind men were given back their sight, and a man who could not talk was cured so that he spoke. It seems almost irreverent to the Scriptures to pass lightly over these miracles, but the Lord did so much that minute treatment would require many volumes.

Christ then called His twelve apostles together and gave them instructions for evangelizing the world. He gave them power to work miracles and to cure diseases.

It is here that John the Baptist re-entered the drama.

Since the beginning of the first year of Christ's ministry, nearly two years before, John had been whiling away the hours in Herod's prison. One day, there was a celebration at Herod's castle. It was Herod's birthday, and all the nobles of the province were gathered there to pay honor to Herod. During the festivities, Salome, the daughter of Herod's wife Herodias, danced for the drinking revelers. It pleased Herod much and he swore that he would give Salome anything she asked, even to half of his rulership. Herodias, the vulture, induced Salome to ask for the head of John the Baptist on a platter.

Now, Herod was a little reluctant to do such a dastardly deed, but he had sworn before all the important men in his country and he felt he had to perform his vow. So Herod sent his butcher who beheaded John in the prison and delivered his head on a platter to Salome who, in turn, gave it to her mother. Then the disciples of John took his body and buried it. They sought out Jesus and told Him the woeful tale. The Lord said nothing, but boarded a ship and sailed to a deserted place where He could be alone.

The crowds followed Jesus overland and came to Him to see Him heal the sick. He worked all day, and night approached. On the edge of the desert, His disciples asked Him to send the people to town where they could get food. Jesus discovered that there was just a little bit of food there, five loaves and two fish. He asked the hundreds of people who were there to sit down and the disciples to pass the food around. By a miracle, Jesus caused the food to multiply until all were fed, and twelve baskets were left.

Since this ended the day's work, Jesus asked the disciples to get the boat and to start back to Capernaum. He stayed there to get the people started home. After the crowd left, Jesus, being alone, prayed to the Father a long time. He then arose and walked out on the water to catch the boat which the Twelve had rowed nearly halfway home. When Jesus came walking on the water, out of the fog, the disciples saw Him and, not recognizing Him, said it was a phantom. The Lord called to them and said it was He. Peter at once climbed out of the boat and began to walk to Jesus on the water. As he realized what he was doing, and as the waves slapped around his legs, Peter began to be afraid and he slowly sank. When he cried to the Lord for assistance, Jesus reached out His hand and rescued Peter, rebuking him for his lack of faith. When the Lord set foot in the boat, the wind ceased and the sea became calm. The disciples who had seen these miracles exclaimed,

"You certainly are God's Son!"

As Jesus' fame spread, people from all over Palestine came to Him to be healed. As many as touched the hem of His garment were made well, perfectly whole.

The disciples suddenly awoke to the realization that the second year of Christ's ministry had passed. The Lord had just one more year before His death to complete His tasks.

In Palestine, it was spring again and too little time remained, although the disciples did not know it, for Christ to be with His people. —To be continued.

THE WAGES OF SIN

provided a way out of all this chaos! We should be much in prayer and remember God's counsel in Daniel's prophecy:

"Go your way, O Daniel! for the words are bound up and sealed till the time of the end. Many shall purify themselves, and make themselves white, and be refined; but the wicked shall carry on their wickedness, and none of the wicked shall understand; only the wise shall understand" (Dan. 12:9, 10; Goodspeed).

My prayer is that it may be the part of everyone who reads these words to be among those who, according to the angel, will be wise in the end time.

THE EDUCATION OF PETER

He who had proclaimed the conversion of the Gentiles at the conference of Jerusalem must understand the mystery of the Gentiles: that the Gentiles should be fellow heirs and of the same household with the Jews! But here was again Peter, the Jew, holding himself aloof from the Gentile converts. Yet another lesson was needed to weld the great Peter into unity of the gospel.

"Beloved, think it not strange concerning the fiery trial which is to try you, as though some strange thing happened unto you . . . For the time is come that judgment must begin at the house of God: and if it first begin at us, what shall the end be of them that obey not the gospel of God?" (1 Peter 4:12, 17.) Peter was speaking of the terrible persecutions that came on the church, beginning in his days. Many people, when reading this particular section of the writings of Peter, think that he was speaking of the judgment that will come when Christ returns. If the Letters of Peter are read along with the context of the times in which he lived, one sees that he was talking about the persecutions (judgment) that began at the church in Jerusalem and spread throughout the Roman Empire in the early days of the Christian Era. It was that persecution that welded the church together, so there was no longer a distinction made by either Peter or Paul as to Jew and Gentile Christians, for they were from that time forward all one united group called Christians. The Jews saw that the Gentile converts in their midst suffered along with them, and the Gentiles saw that there was now at last no difference between Jew and Gentile. At last, the great Apostle had been trained in the fiery trials of adversity to see that the Gentile believers were as much Christians as the Jewish converts.

Sr. Verna Thayer and Sr. Mabel Barnum have been a real blessing to our Sunday school here at Happy Woods, La., because of the Vacation Bible School conducted June 30 - July 11. Sr. Thayer's interesting lessons brought the children back day after day. Average attendance for the two weeks was forty-two, the enrollment being sixty-three. Our newly established Sunday school attendance record of sixty-seven, June 8, was shattered the first Sunday of Bible School, attendance then jumping to seventy-four.

Our two forty-five minute morning class periods were divided by a half-hour recreation period. At the end of this period, cold drinks and cookies were served by the Doreas Society. Much credit is due our Doreas ladies for taking charge of this part of the program. Much credit, also, is due Sr. Ella Siple, head of the Advertising Committee, and her helpers; and Bro. Albert Siple, head of the Transportation Committee.

All of us are convinced that Sr. Thayer's work with us was a definite boost for our Sunday school, and we hope she will help us again next year.

We were sorry, Monday, July 14, to say goodbye to the Ed Bauerle family who left for an indefinite stay at Wilcox, Ariz. If any Arizona brethren live near by, the Bauerles will be glad to see you.

We were glad to have Bro. Gordon Landry and Sr. Shirley Logsdon with us for a two-weeks' visit recently. Gordon spoke for us, July 6, his theme being the grace of Christ.

Several of our members plan to attend General Conference this year, namely: Bro. and Sr. Warren Landry, Bro. and Sr. Albert Siple, and possibly Misses Margaret and Marjorie Bauerle.
 J. Mattison, Pastor.

GOLDEN WEDDING

On Sunday, June 29, 1947, Bro. and Sr. Emory Dixon, 1712 N. 33d St., Omaha, Nebr., celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary by having "open house." They were married in Blair, Nebr., June 30, 1897. Their daughter, four daughters-in-law, and two sisters-in-law served cake and coffee to over eighty guests during the afternoon and evening. A very pleasant afternoon and evening were spent greeting old friends, making new ones, and receiving congratulations. One cousin and three old friends who had known the Dixons prior to their marriage were present. The honored couple received many beautiful flowers, a goodly purse, and many other gifts.

The day, their Golden Wedding Day, will be remembered with joy throughout their lives and by their many attending friends.

ELDORADO, ILLINOIS

The Illinois State Quarterly Conference was held at the Restitution Church of God at Eldorado, Ill., on Saturday and Sunday, June 28 and 29, Bro. Sydney E. Magaw being the guest speaker.

There was no board meeting, as some of the members could not be present, but aside from that fact the Conference was a success in every way. The meeting was opened with a Bible study on Saturday afternoon led by Bro. Harold Doan of Chicago. We were all glad to welcome Bro. Doan again to our June Conference.

This was Bro. Magaw's first visit to Eldorado and for quite a number of the brethren here it was their first opportunity to hear him. His sermons throughout the Conference were all ones to remember. On Saturday evening, he spoke on "The Sure Word of Prophecy." The sermon Sunday morning was, "Truths That Unify," and on Sunday evening his subject was, "One Lord, One Faith, One Baptism," in which he referred frequently to a beautiful chart showing God's plan of the ages. This sermon was given by special request and we thank you, Bro. Magaw.

At the close of the service Sunday morning, Bro. Walter Wiggins of Eden Valley, Minn., was in charge of the Communion service. We are always glad to have Walter and Grace come home for a visit.

Dinner was served in the church basement at noon and another Bible class was conducted at 2:30 p.m. Bro. Linford Moore of Macomb, Ill., led a discussion on the Book of Jonah. This was also Bro. Moore's first visit to Eldorado and everyone was impressed by the sincerity and earnestness of this young man. The class led by him was very interesting, and he helped very much by his beautiful voice.

There was good attendance throughout the Conference though we wished more could have been present. We were glad Sr. Magaw and Sidney David could be with us and were glad to see Sr. Leota Hanson and Sr. Logsdon, also. All of you come again.

Virginia Davenport, Reporter.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by

National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois

The Restitution Herald is official organ of the General Conference of the Church of God.

Subscription rate: 50 issues per year, $2.50.

The Restitution Herald advocates: the near return of Christ (Acts 1:11), and life only through Him (Col. 3:3); the literal resurrection of the dead (John 5:28); the immortalization of those in Christ (1 Cor. 15:53, 54); the destruction of the wicked (Rev. 21:8); the final restoration of Israel as the Kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ (Luke 1:32), the church to be joint-heirs with Him (Rom. 8:17), and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations (Isa. 60:1-3); the "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21). It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

SAINT CLOUD, MINNESOTA

At the annual business meeting of the Church of God at Saint Cloud, Minn., officers elected were as follows: elders, Bros. Thomas Savage, Arthur Randall; deacons, Bros. George Savage, John Savage, Lloyd Erdmann; secretary, Sr. Mayne Jones; treasurer, Sr. Vivian Savage; Sunday school superintendent, Sr. Madge Savage; Sunday school secretary-treasurer, Sr. Bernice Savage; deaconesses, Mrs. Jensenia Teicher, Mayne Jones. All departments of the church are doing well, numerically, spiritually, and financially. There is a good growth of spirituality among us, which is in accord with the commandments of our Lord. We are all striving to "grow in grace."

On Wednesday evening, July 2, we met at the John Santzer home on Pleasant Lake for Bible study, about fifty being present. The study hour was employed by the adults in considering the "Symbolism of Baptism." The children sat on overturned boats at the water's edge and recalled the miracles of Jesus associated with the Sea of Galilee. At the close of the study period, we gathered on the shore in the late twilight. The moon rose slowly from the horizon, its path wide and shimmering clear across the lake, making a striking setting for a beautiful baptismal service. Four girls, Mary Savage, Sara Beth Savage, Dolly Erickson, and Norma Mitchell, took their places in the lake with the pastor, as we sang, "O Happy Day." As each made her public confession, she was baptized "in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ." On the following evening, we went to the same place, and assisted Robert Barnes in this beautiful service. It is indeed a happy day when young people early dedicate their lives to the service of their Master. May each and all have long, useful lives in His service. Mary Savage is the daughter of Bro. and Sr. George Savage, Waite Park. Her father's father, Elder Thomas Savage, Sr., long preached in this place; her mother's father, Elder Virgil Thoms, though not in active service because of failing health, still carries the banner of the Lord high in the vicinity of Emily, Minn.; and his father, Elder E. E. Thoms, was one of Minnesota's staunchest supporters of God's work. It is of interest that Elder E. E. Thoms performed the marriage ceremony of both Mary's grandparents, as well as of her father and mother. Sara Beth is the second daughter of Bro. and Sr. Thomas Savage. Bro. Savage, as his father before him, works tirelessly for the Lord. He makes long drives to carry strengthening messages to those who have no resident pastor. Dolly Erickson and Norma Mitchell (35th Ave. N., and 23rd and Cooper) are both very earnest in their desire to serve the Lord. Robert Barnes served in the United States Navy, and, when released from service, married Darlene Lästman, long a faithful member of the church. They live at 52-19 1/2 Ave. North.

Sunday morning, just before the Communion service, these young people were given the "right hand of fellowship" in a short but impressive service and welcomed into full fellowship of the church.

Our attendance at Sunday school, Sunday morning, was seventy-one. Twenty-two students were awarded pins for six-months' perfect attendance, the Thomas Savage family of six members being the largest family group all to qualify. Since it was decided that State and General Conference were the only excused absences, there were several who missed their reward by only one day's illness. There were also two who received the first three-months' pins.

Our midweek services are inspiring: from thirty to forty, or even fifty, attending. We are divided into three classes, and all enjoy the study and the fellowship. "When people WORK together, STUDY together, and PRAY together, God's work is SURE to go forward."

During the serious illness this spring of the pastor, Bro. Thomas Savage supplied the pulpit for six weeks. It was wonderful for the peace of mind of a sick man that the work went forward without interruption. Attendance at all services remained steadfastly good, and, with exception of social functions and Deacons meetings, nothing suffered because of his enforced vacation. Our thanks to all the brethren here are earnest and sincere, for the prayers and assistance so cheerfully given were added incentive, and conducive to the complete restoration to health.

Ruth Del Savage, elder daughter of Bro. and Sr. Thomas Savage, has registered for the Youth Rally. This is a wonderful movement, and all who can make it possible should take advantage of the opportunity to attend.

Mrs. A. M. Jones, Secy.

ALLEN THOMPSON

Allen Thompson, seventy-five years of age, died at his home near Visalia, Calif., June 22, 1947. He was a prominent leader in the Tulare County Farm Bureau, having been its first secretary-manager from 1921-1939. He retired in 1941, after serving two years as secretary-treasurer of the County Mutual Fire Association. He was married to Levona Watts, February 22, 1900. Surviving children of this union are Wayne, Georgia, and Clair Thompson, and Mrs. Bernice Roberson. Wayne and Georgia are known to the people of the General Conference. Mrs. Thompson, active member of the Church of God, preceded her husband in death, in May, 1934. Mr. Thompson remarried and is survived by his wife, Josephine Thompson.

Mr. Thompson was born in Peacatonica, Ill. Before moving to California, the Thompsons were well acquainted with Church of God families in northwest Iowa, having settled there for a time.

A very large gathering of acquaintances attended the funeral services which were conducted by the writer, pastor of the Los Angeles Church.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

*Prepared by Madge Savage
Waite Park, Minnesota*

"It shall be, when he shall be guilty of these things, that he shall confess that he hath sinned in that thing."

What Did God See?

"They utterly destroyed all that was in the city, both man and woman, young and old, and ox, and sheep, and ass, with the edge of the sword" (Josh. 6:21).

Joshua was given victory over Jericho. "They burnt the city with fire, and all that was therein: only the silver, and the gold, and the vessels of brass and of iron, they put into the treasury of the house of the Lord" (Josh. 6:24).

Joshua's fame spread all over the land. What, though, did God see? A man, Achan, of the tribe of Judah, wanted something for himself. The garment was good to look at. The silver and gold surely would not be missed from the treasury of the Lord, thought Achan. So he hid them in the earth in the middle of his tent. No one would see them hidden there!—but God saw them! He saw Achan's evil heart. God always sees everything, and knows our thoughts. Since the gold and silver was to be kept for God's work, Achan was stealing from God, wasn't he?

Do you think of another man and wife who kept part of what they said was God's? Ananias and Sapphira sold their possessions. Then they kept back part of the price, but said it was all they had received. This they declared by their actions, for they brought the certain amount and placed it at the apostles' feet. Ananias fell down dead. (Acts 5:1-11.) Then the apostles questioned Sapphira, and she said, "Yea, for so much" was their possession sold. Then she also fell over dead. They lied not to men, but to God.

Joshua Was Saddened

Joshua lay upon his face in mourning. God told him to get up, for Israel had sinned. Because of this sin, God did not help them in their second battle in the Promised Land.

God told Joshua He would not be with Israel any more until the wicked ones were totally destroyed. This also saddened Joshua, but he began to search out the tribe and family and persons God led him to find.

A Man Condemned

Joshua said to Achan, "My son, give, I pray thee, glory to the Lord God of Israel, and make confession unto him; and tell me now what thou hast done; hide it not from me" (Josh. 7:19).

Achan answered, "Indeed I have sinned against the Lord God of Israel, and thus and thus have I done" (v. 20).

Joshua answered, "Why hast thou troubled us? the Lord shalt trouble thee this day" (v. 25). "So all Israel stoned Achan and his gold and silver, his sons, his daughters, his oxen and asses, his sheep, his tent, and all that he had" (v. 24).

Achan found no mercy, no one to whom he could go to hide from God's wrath. He died for his sin.

Blessed in Christ

We who are in Christ are happy indeed. We have One to whom we can go for forgiveness. Jesus died for us. No more are Christian people stoned to death for their sins.

When we are Christ's, we walk in the spirit of Christ, not in the lusts of the flesh. We love others as we do ourselves. We do not harm anyone intentionally. True love causes us not even to seek or demand what is lawfully ours. Love "thinketh no evil" (1 Cor. 13:5). So, when we are Christ's, we will not do those things that might displease God. If we disobey, we cannot expect not to be punished. (Heb. 12:6.) So let us do what is right and good, trusting God to lead and guide us day by day, by His Son Jesus Christ.

THE CALF PATH

By Sam Walter Foss

One day through the primeval wood
A calf walked home as good calves should
But made a trail all bent askew,
A crooked trail as all calves do,
Since then three hundred years have fled,
And I infer that calf is dead.

But still he left behind his trail,
And thereby hangs my mortal tale,
The trail was taken up next day
By a lone dog that passed that way;
And then a wise bellwether sheep
Pursued the trail o'er vale and steep,
And drew the flock behind him, too,
As good bellwethers always do,
And from that day, o'er hill and glade,
Through those old woods a path was made.

And many men wound in and out,
And dodged and turned and bent about,
And uttered words of righteous wrath
Because 'twas such a crooked path:
But still they followed—do not laugh—
The first migrations of that calf,
And through this winding wood-way
stalked
Because he wobbled when he walked.

The forest path became a lane,
That bent and turned and turned again;
This crooked lane became a road,
Where many a poor horse with his load
Toiled on beneath the burning sun,
And traveled some three miles in one,
And thus a century and a half
They trod the footsteps of that calf.

The years passed on in swiftness fleet,
The road became a village street;
And this, before men were aware,
A city's crowded thoroughfare.
And soon the central street was this
Of a renowned metropolis;
And men two centuries and a half
Trod in the footsteps of that calf.

Each day a hundred thousand rout
Followed this zigzag calf about
And o'er his crooked journey went
The traffic of a continent.
A hundred thousand men were led
By one calf near three centuries dead.
They followed still his crooked way,
And lost one hundred years a day;
For thus such reverence is lent
To well-established precedent.

A moral lesson this might teach
Were I ordained and called to preach;
For men are prone to go it blind
Along the calf-paths of the mind,
And work away from sun to sun
To do what other men have done.
They follow in the beaten track,
And out and in, and forth and back,
And still their devious course pursue,
To keep the path that others do,
They keep the path a sacred groove,
Along which all their lives they move.

The Calf Path

A CALF made a winding path and was followed by a dog and a flock of sheep which gave the path prominence. Men began to wander over the winding path, cursing its bends and the fact that one walked three times as far as necessary. Nevertheless, they followed because it was easy, and because other men did. Then, houses were built and then stores and large buildings along the winding road, giving men more reason to follow it, rather than make a new one.

This poem portrays marvelous insight into the human way of life. We follow along the crooked pathway of life, wearing ourselves by walking three miles in one, inwardly knowing we are wasting our time, for no better reason than that other men are doing it. We are trying eternally to be conventional, trying to be the same as other people, trying to walk as they walk, though deep down in our hearts we know it is foolishness.

The calf-path of sin was started thousands of years ago by Adam, who sinned in the eyes of God. The right way was put before Adam, but he wandered, and his trail of sin was picked up by every generation from his time till this. Adam was the wandering calf who made the trail, and we are the foolish people who follow. In the generations since Adam, permanent fixtures have been put along the way. We have built our lives and businesses along that path of sin.

Some men have tried, by one means or another, to find a new way. They have paved the crooked path and made it seem more desirable by trying to justify sin. They have put pretty scenery along the way to try to take their mind off the fact that they are in sin. The Hindus, for instance, have tried to root out this evil and get out of the rut of flesh by denying themselves all pleasures of life. But, they stand and argue for hours trying to get hogged positions in the parades they form to show off their humility. The Bible says, if the Ethiopian can change his color and the leopard can change his spots, then man can (by himself) change his evil nature and get out of his calf-path of sin. Pretty, petty, and glamorized as sin has become, we still know where it leads—to destruction. It would be a gloomy picture if it were not for one thing—Jesus the Christ, Saviour of men.

Jesus came to do what we could not do: make a new road which leads not to destruction, but to God. He came not to repair the old road or to make it more endurable. He came to build a new one, straight and narrow 'tis true, but one which leads to life. We could not do this, for we were born in sin, but Jesus could because He was the Son of God. Jesus was one lone pioneer who left the calf-path and blazed a new trail over which we can follow to share His reward. (Rom. 5:18, 19.)

Jesus spoke of this new road in John 14:5, 6: "Thomas saith unto him, Lord, we know not whither thou goest; and how can we know the way? Jesus saith unto him, I am the way, the truth, and the life; no man cometh unto the Father, but by me." Jesus said, I am the Way, I am the road to God. There is no other way to the Father but by Me. You cannot leave the old path and find God and life by any other means than by Jesus.

Yes, it would be a gloomy picture if it were not for Jesus, but He makes the picture bright. In Him we can have hope of life, but first we must accept Him and follow Him.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CONFERENCE DATES

- July 29 - August 10 — General Conference at Oregon, Ill.
 July 29 - August 10 — Illinois Conference and Bible School at Oregon.
 August 9-17 — Missouri State Conference.
 August 23-31 — Texas Conference at Ater.
 August 14-24 — Virginia Conference, (G. E. Marsh and J. Arlen Marsh, guest speakers.)
 August 17-24 — Western Nebraska Conference at Hollbrook, (Guest speakers—M. W. Lyon and Harvey E. Krogh, Jr.)
 August 16-24 — Iowa State Conference at Waterloo, (Guest speakers—Sydney E. Magaw and Linford Moore.)

 August 29 - September 7 — Evangelists meetings at Blood River (La.) Church of God, (Sydney E. Magaw, guest speaker.)

EXPIRING TERMS OF OFFICE

Members of the Executive Board whose terms of office expire at the forthcoming General Conference are A. J. Hoke (second vice president) and Dale R. Dunbar (treasurer). The term length of each office on the Executive Board is three years. Election Day is scheduled this year, according to the "Working Rules," for Tuesday, August 5. Nominations must precede the election by at least one day, and there must be at least two nominees for each expiring office.

Sydney E. Magaw, Secy.

BROTHER AUSTIN RESIGNS

Although some weeks ago the church membership voted to continue the present pastorate for another year, yet, at a meeting of the elders to consider the matter, the pastor informed them that owing to growing age he had decided to discontinue pastoral work as of August 31, next.

His present intentions are to respond to special requests as health may permit.

F. L. Austin.

PARSONAGE PROGRESS AT HILLISBURG

From brethren of the Hillisburg (Ind.) Church of God, we have received the interesting and encouraging news that they soon will have a parsonage. A friend of the church has offered to sell a house at a very reasonable amount. The church plans to have the building moved on the church ground and improved when time and necessary funds permit.

Faithful ones of the church already have secured in cash and pledges more than one thousand dollars toward buying, moving, and improving the house. Our brethren from the Hillisburg Church invite you to rejoice with them and to help financially if you care to do so. Contributions to the parsonage fund may be sent to Mr. Don Huffer, Michigantown, Ind. Otto E. Dick.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON LICENSE AND ORDINATION

At the present time, there are sixty-three ministers, who, having complied with the requirements of the General Conference, are recognized by the License and Ordination Committee and have full privileges usually devolving upon an ordained minister, and when in attendance at General Conference are entitled to delegate rights. Of this number of ministers, twenty-one are under license or ordination of the General Conference. The remaining ones are under license or ordination of some state conference or local church, but are recognized by the authorized committee of the General Conference.

Last year, the Illinois State Conference transferred the licensing of its ministers to the General Conference, and now all ministers operating under the Illinois Conference are under license of the General Conference. This is as it should be, and Illinois has set an example which other state conferences and local churches should follow. This would bring about a more orderly system of license and ordination.

C. E. Randall, Chairman.

YOUR CHURCH REPRESENTED?

Delegate Forms have been returned to Headquarters by the following named churches and conferences: Indiana State Conference; Jordan, Mo.; Blood River, La.; National Berean Society; Los Angeles, Calif.; South Bend ("Morning Star"), Ind.; Hollbrook, Neb.; Tempe, Ariz.; Saint Cloud, Minn.; Rockford, Ill.; Omaha, Neb.; Eastern Nebraska Conference; Oregon, Ill.; Heaton, Minn.; Dixon, Ill.; Michigan State Conference; Minnesota State Conference.

We hope to see many other churches and conferences represented. Choose as delegates others than ministers, as ministers are delegates anyway, and each delegate can have only one vote.

Sydney E. Magaw, Secy.

NOTICE TO SUNDAY SCHOOLS

All Sunday schools using David C. Cook material, and buying direct or through National Bible Institution, should notice new catalogue prices becoming effective with the fourth quarter, 1947. Price increases will range from 10 per cent to 40 per cent.

Constantly rising costs for both labor and material are forcing all publishers to take similar steps with regard to their publications. These increases are less in many cases than the general run of the industry and reflect the desire on the part of both David C. Cook and National Bible Institution to furnish your Sunday school materials at the lowest possible cost.

James M. Watkins.

COLLEGE NEWS

Summer Bible Training School classes were organized at Oregon Bible College on Monday, June 30. To date, we have received much beneficial aid to more effective proclamation of the good news of the gospel. As the establishment of the Kingdom draws ever nearer, a slowly diminishing church is left to carry forward this work that Christ committed to our hands.

Valuable spiritual and doctrinal instruction along these lines has been received from our classes, as well as from our chapel speakers; among whom have been the College instructors, Sydney E. Magaw, M. W. Lyon, F. L. Austin, G. L. Cooper, and D. H. Moore. The Student Council consists of G. L. Cooper, chairman; Margaret Smith, vice chairman; and Bud Goodwin, secretary.

The students have enjoyed several picnics, plus all the well-prepared meals with which the matrons have supplied us.

Daniel Judy, Reporter.

CHURCH HISTORY COMMITTEE'S REPORT

Regarding progress made in the securing of material for a history of the Church of God, as we have been unable to get together and compare notes, Bro. C. E. Randall and I must each report for himself.

During the past year, I have secured much additional source material, including local, state, and national constitutions, statements of faith, photographs, miscellaneous records, etc., covering more than a century of our work in America, England, Scotland, New Zealand, and Australia. Some of this material I have had on hand for some years, but much has been added during the past twelve months. Our records, however, are yet far from complete, although they reach back to a period some years before the William Miller movement quite definitely, and show conclusively that the denomination as a separate body existed under the name "Church of God" prior to the Mexican War.

Such data must be analyzed and studied very carefully, especially those concerning the period from 1836 to 1883, as denominational lines were loosely drawn, and joint conferences were held by men who held very different ideas concerning such matters as time-setting, return of Israel, personality of Satan, limited or unlimited resurrection of the dead, destruction of the earth by literal fire, and even questions pertaining to baptism. Denominational lines were crossed and recrossed freely and records are often confusing.

In addition, much valuable historical matter has been lost or mislaid since 1838. At that time we had on file in Oregon, Ill., the original hand-written minutes on the first general conference held in Philadelphia, which had been given to us personally by Mrs. Anna Eychaner, whose husband was the secretary of that conference; a large frame containing the photographs of the delegates to that conference, which Sr. Chaffee had turned over to us; the original minutes and records of the General Conference held in Waterloo, Iowa, in 1921; records of the preliminary committee meetings held in our home in Iowa, at Chicago yet earlier, and at Oregon a little later; a bound copy of very early papers published by Elder Joseph Marsh before the establishment of the old Restitution; packages of the latter publication containing "Auntie" Wince's well-remembered "Story of a Happy Christian Life," covering much of the early history of the church in Indiana and Ohio; and other equally valuable material. We have tried repeatedly to locate this material but, owing to changes in office arrangement, have thus far been unable to do so.

The committee, and I know I can speak for us both in this, are grateful for the help that has been volunteered in our efforts to secure factual information and photographs having to do with our early work and workers.

G. E. Marsh.

(Editor's Note: The large framed picture of delegates to the first General Conference (1888), Volumes II and III of Joseph Marsh's "Advent Harbinger" (1850-1851), a bound volume of the records of the first two General Conferences (Philadelphia, 1888, and Chicago, 1889), the minutes of the 1921 "first" General Conference at Waterloo, Iowa, and other early records, are here, on file, in the Secretary's office.)

Gleanings From the Field

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Myers, their son Fredrick and daughter Marylin, Hillisburg, Ind., were guests of the Otto E. Dick family, Oregon, Ill., July 18 and 19. Mr. Myers, a song leader, came to serve at one of the evening meetings of the Youth Rally.

For exhilarating entertainment, and life of a party, call on Bro. Norman McLeod for a revue of Scottish songs. He's good!

Bro. James M. Watkins preached, Sunday, July 20, for the Rockford, Ill., brethren, in absence of their pastor, Bro. Arlen Marsh, who was preaching for a flood-postponed Iowa Quarterly Conference—presumably at Colo.

Sr. Leota B. Hanson motored to Chicago early Sunday morning, July 20, to meet Bro. Gordon Landry and Sr. Shirley Logsdon who were returning to Oregon, Ill., from their vacation trip in Louisiana. The three attended morning worship services in Chicago where Bro. Harold Doan is pastor.

Accompanying the Editor on his Ripley (Ill.) preaching trip, last week end, were Mrs. Sydney Magaw, Sr. Vena Logsdon, and two of the Magaw boys—Sidney David and "Jimmie."

"After reading the news and listening to the outstanding commentators, one feels depressed because of the unrest everywhere. One begins to dread the approaching winter days and cries out when he considers the suffering that may come to humanity. Then, one's mind turns to the Word of God, saying, 'When these things begin to come to pass, then look up, and lift up your heads; for your redemption draweth nigh' (Luke 21:28). Am I ready for that great day?"—Mary E. Elton, 1508 E. 107 St., Cleveland, Ohio.

Their many friends will be disappointed to learn that Bro. and Sr. J. R. LeCrone, Woodstock, Va., are not planning to attend General Conference this year. Sr. LeCrone's physician forbidding her to make a long journey. Though recently a hospital patient, she is at home now, and her condition is improving.

"The Fredericktown (Mo.) church dedication services will be conducted, August 10, 1947, the first Sunday of the Missouri State Conference. Bro. C. E. Lapp will preach the dedication sermon."—Mrs. Sibyl Holshouser, Fredericktown, Mo.

Bro. and Sr. George Rahn, Cabazon, Calif., recently visiting in Indiana, came to Oregon, Sunday, July 13, bringing two girls to the Youth Rally. They are now visiting in Michigan, but will be back for General Conference.

Bro. Terry Ferrell, pastor at Halbrook, Nebr., arrived in Oregon, Ill., July 14, bringing four students for Youth Rally. He returned home the next day, but will be back for General Conference.

"Brush Creek Church had its annual business meeting, Friday evening, July 4. Officers elected were as follows: elder, Vivian Magaw; deacons, Harold Kessler and E. Smith; deaconess, Sr. A. J. Hoke; secretary, Sr. E. J. Demmitt; treasurer, Sr. Pearl Huston; pianists, Srs. Edna Smith and Lois Huston."—A. J. Hoke, 19 Ashwood, Ave., Dayton, Ohio.

What an oversight! We're in "sackcloth and ashes," Tim and LaVonne Pearson, for failing to report the birth of your firstborn—Jacqueline Sue on June 8. Congratulations and apologies.

Michigan leads all states in number of students enrolled in the Youth Rally—twelve young "wolverines" attending.

"Several from the Omaha area are planning to attend General Conference again this year."—Robert O. Hardesty, 1024 N. 33 St., Omaha, Nebr.

Thank you, Southlawn! Accompanying best wishes for the Summer Bible Training School, the Youth Rally, and the General Conference, the Southlawn Park Church of God Grand Rapids, Mich., recently contributed $200.00 for the general work, plus paying the tuition of nine students attending the Youth Rally.

Bro. and Sr. Loren Burnett, Tempe, Ariz., recently visited at the home of their daughter, Marjorie, now Mrs. Walter Bolhous, Oregon, Ill. After visiting other relatives and friends at several places in Illinois—especially at their former home, Ripley—they will return for General Conference.

Bro. and Sr. Willard Naylor, Nappanee, Ind., came to Oregon, Ill., July 13, bringing four girls for the Youth Rally. They were overnight guests of the Otto E. Dick family.

Bro. and Sr. E. C. Railsback, Los Angeles, Calif., were in Oregon, Ill., briefly, July 13, having brought three young folks for the Youth Rally; then continued on their way into Indiana and Ohio, visiting relatives and friends. They will return for General Conference.

Bro. C. E. Randall, pastor at Fonthill, Ont., came to Oregon, Ill., July 13, with six students for the Youth Rally. Sr. Ida Eastman came at the same time, intending to stay for General Conference. Returning homeward the same day, Bro. Randall took along his grandson, David Randall, who with his mother had been visiting at the Zollinger home in Oregon. Bro. Randall will return for General Conference.

Sr. Mary Brown, Baraga, Mich., brought three youths to Oregon, Ill., July 12, for the Youth Rally.

Turn to pages ten and eleven for more news of the churches.

Truth Seekers' Tracts and Books

"This gospel must first be published among all nations" (Mark 13:10).

An effective way of teaching the gospel is in the use of tracts. The cost of slipping a tract into a letter is negligible, yet doing so may "save a soul from death." Tracts and books listed below may be ordered from National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois.

Youth Rally and Summer School

This issue of THE RESTITUTION HERALD gives special recognition of the Berean Youth Rally and Summer Bible Training School: a picture of the Youth Rally appearing on the front page, and a picture of the Summer School appearing on page 3 in an article written by one of its students. These Schools have brought a total of sixty-five students (most of them being young people) into Bible work and religious training at headquarters.

Those who attended the Youth Rally are named on the front page. Students who attended the Summer Bible Training School were: Arnold and Janice Johns and Ardys and Donna Johnson (Nebr.), Margaret Smith (Ohio), Bud Goodwin (Wis.), Dean Moore and Daniel Judy (Cal.), Irene Payne (Ont.), Leon Driskill (Mo.), Gerald L. Cooper (Ariz.), Rita Landry, Laura Mae Bankston, and Ella Lou Foster (La.), Billy Dick (Ill.), Henrietta Barbano and Grace Brown (Mich.), and Etta Hurley (Ind.).

All the staff of teachers and other workers express pleasure in having worked with the students of these Schools. Their labors will continue to bear fruitage over many years. Thank you!—Brother and Sister James M. Watkins, Brother Otto E. Dick and son "Billy," Brother and Sister Norman J. McLeod, Sisters Nora Pearson, Lucile Wilmot, Norma Kirkpatrick, and Sister Paul Friebel.

We hope and pray for even more successful Youth Rallies and Summer Schools in the future.

A Suggestion for Conference

Brother C. E. Randall expresses a thought in his "News and Prophecy Digest" page that merits close consideration at this time of General Conference. He says:

"I believe our annual Bible School and Conference would serve a more useful purpose if it catered more to the attention of the body, as well as feeding the heart and mind. The program is so full, if one attends all the meetings, by the time Conference is ended, one's physical strength has been taxed to its limits. Most people use their vacations to attend Conference and Bible School, but it is not a vacation where one can rest and relax and be refreshed in mind and body. If the whole set-up were so arranged as to accomplish this purpose, its usefulness would serve a much wider area in life."

When people are tired, or even short of sleep, they become irritable, critical, and sometimes even a little quarrelsome. Forbid the thought that the General Conference this year be anything but a pleasant and happy and invigorating meeting of Christians, meeting together in goodwill and love.

A Spiritual Feasting

Once crowds followed Jesus "on foot out of the cities" to hear him preach and to see His miracles. Seeing this "great multitude," Jesus "was moved with compassion toward them, and he healed their sick." As evening drew near, the disciples came to Jesus, saying, "Send the multitude away, that they may go into the villages and buy themselves victuals." Jesus said, however, "They need not depart: give ye them to eat." Receiving five loaves and two fishes from a lad, Jesus "blessed, and brake, and gave" until all the multitude was fed—numbering "about five thousand men, besides women and children." That was not all! Twelve full baskets were gathered after all the multitude had eaten. What a feast Jesus gave!

What a feast Jesus always gives when, tired and hungry and willing to be fed, one turns to Him! May the Lord so feed us, His followers today, as we assemble here at General Conference.

We Asked the Youth Rally:

1. Did God ever have a kingdom on earth? What?
2. What is the gospel? Did Abraham believe it?
3. Distinguish between "soul" and "spirit." Define each.
4. Why is death in the world? When will it cease?
5. Why do we call ourselves the Church of God?
6. Why is Christ's second coming so very important?
7. Why do not our ministers sprinkle babies?
8. Why is the Church of God interested in Zionism?
9. What part of man goes to heaven when he dies?
10. Name three requests for which the Bible says we should pray.

The Gospel Identified

By Gerald L. Cooper, Tempe, Arizona, one of the students attending the Summer Bible Training School

WHAT is the gospel? If I were to ask any of my readers this question, the answer probably would be, "The gospel is the good news," and that would be correct. What, though, is the "good news"? My purpose in this article is to identify the gospel so there can be no doubt as to what it is.

There is only one gospel! It is the one that Jesus preached during His ministry on earth. There are many scriptures that present this thought, such as Matthew 4:23 which reads: "Jesus went about all Galilee, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing all manner of sickness and all manner of disease among the people." Similar passages are Matthew 9:35; 24:14; and Mark 1:14. Other scriptures identify the good news as "gospel of Christ" and "gospel of God." When Philip was preaching in the city of Samaria (Acts 8:5), he "preached Christ unto them." Verse 12 says that they believed Philip "preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God." Thus, the "gospel of Christ" and "the kingdom" are linked together.

The gospel of the Kingdom was not a new subject at the time of Christ and His apostles. Indeed, it was preached, in various ways, to many of the faithful men of the Old Testament. We quote Romans 8:19-21 as a suggestion that the gospel was preached unto Adam: "The earnest expectation of the creature [or creation] waiteth for the manifestation of the sons of God. For the creature was made subject to vanity, not willingly, but by reason of him who hath subjected the same in hope, because the creature itself also shall be delivered from the bondage of corruption into the glorious liberty of the children of God." Hebrews 11:24-26 suggests the same concerning Moses: "By faith Moses, when he was come to years, refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter; choosing rather to suffer affliction with the people of God, than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season; esteeming the reproach of Christ greater riches than the treasures of Egypt: for he had respect unto the recompense of the reward." The most emphatic of texts showing that Old Testament characters understood the gospel of the Kingdom is Galatians 3:6-8, showing that Abraham believed "the gospel." We quote: "Abraham believed God, and it was accounted unto him for righteousness. Know ye therefore that they which are of faith, the same are the children of Abraham. And the scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the heathen through faith, preached before the gospel unto Abraham, saying, In thee shall all nations be blessed." These Abrahamic promises, telling that God someday will bless all nations, were foreglimpses of the Kingdom of God. One readily can see that the gospel and the message about the Kingdom are one and the same; and that it was, of course, preached unto Abraham.

Many ideas are being preached today as "gospel." If you will read church advertisements in your newspapers, you will see what I mean. One clipping I have tells how Mary, the mother of Jesus, held the "baby God" in her arms. Another challenges Methuselah's age-old record, contending that the Kingdom already has been established and that those whom Jesus promised, "Verily I say unto you, there be some standing here, which shall not taste of death till they see the Son of man coming in his kingdom," would be older than Methuselah if the Kingdom was yet to come. Today, ministers enter politics and preach politics from the pulpit. They preach social justice and welfare, which are good in themselves, but they are not "the gospel." Other ministers spend their time giving book reviews, and I know of one who even puts on feats of magic. One of the greatest dangers, one that confronts us all, is the discovery of a church or minister that "believes almost exactly as we do." Sometimes, especially among isolated brethren, the desire to (Please turn to page 7)

Aims and Opportunities of Our Berean Effort

(An address to the Berean Youth Rally at Oregon, Illinois, on July 14, 1947.)

By Linford Moore, Macomb, Illinois

I WANT to express my thankfulness to God for being able to be present at this opening evening session of this Berean Youth Rally. As I look out into the audience and see the faces of so many of you young people from one end of the land to the other, it makes my heart rejoice. It brings me joy to see you Bereans taking this interest in the Lord's work. It is my prayer that you will have a wonderful Rally and that you will profit so as to be better prepared to meet the trying days ahead.

This evening, we should like to call to your attention the text of Luke 2:52, concerning the boyhood of Jesus. There are four ways in which every young person should grow: he should develop physically, mentally, socially, and spiritually. Jesus was developed in all four of these ways. Our text tells us that Jesus increased in stature. This refers to His physical growth. There is evidence to show that Jesus was a strong, healthy, robust, young boy. You young people should seek to develop yourselves physically by getting the proper amount of rest, eating wholesome food, refraining from things which poison the body, and by exercise. God wants you to be strong and healthy. You parents, too, have a responsibility in looking to your child's physical growth.

We read, also, that "Jesus increased in wisdom." Jesus was well developed mentally. Today, America has one of the finest school systems in the world to see that our young people are properly developed mentally. Another thing we read concerning Jesus was that He increased in favor with man. This tells us of Jesus' social growth. Social growth has to do with one's ability to make friends and get along with other people. You Bereans should all seek to grow socially.

There is, however, a fourth kind of growth: Jesus increased in favor with God. This refers to His spiritual growth. His mother Mary had seen to it that Jesus was well instructed in the Scriptures and understood the importance of serving God. Spiritual growth is the most important of the four kinds we have mentioned. In spite of this, it is the most neglected of all. Many parents today are much concerned about whether their children are getting the proper diet; they are interested in their grades at school; they help their child to get along with the neighbor's children; but the same parents take no interest at all in their child's spiritual welfare. They do not care if their children never attend Sunday school, and no effort whatever is put forth to teach them any Bible in the home. As a result, their children are spiritually sick. How it grieves me to see this happening in so many American homes! Over half the young people in this country are growing up without any church affiliation.

Parents and young people, let me urge you not to neglect spiritual growth. Your relationship to God is the most important thing in this life. Jesus increased in favor with God. Are you? I would far rather see you sick physically than to see you sick spiritually. So many young people of today are sick spiritually. They think nothing of telling a lie, or of using God's Name in vain, and they are ignorant of Bible teaching and hope. I hope you parents will realize your God-given responsibility toward your child to develop him spiritually as well as physically, mentally, and socially. I hope, also, that you Bereans will seek to round out your lives in all four of these ways.

The remainder of our time shall be spent in speaking about spiritual growth. This afternoon, we discussed the aims and opportunities of our Berean effort. We brought out that our Berean organization should serve at least a threefold purpose: 1) to train young people in Christian service; 2) to win other young people to Christ; 3) to gain Bible knowledge by searching the Scriptures daily. All these are closely linked together and have to do with our spiritual development.

One of the ways that Bereans can develop themselves is by attending Berean meetings. At our Berean meetings there should be spirited singing and sound Bible teaching. The program should be varied as much as possible. The real way, however, for Bereans to be trained in Christian work is to do Christian work. Our Bereans should be encouraged to assist with the regular worship services. You brethren at Oregon are fortunate in having an active society of Berean workers who are willing and able to present a monthly service of their own. One of the aims of our Berean organization should be to encourage this prac-face throughout the country. If the Bereans are unable to take the whole service, they should take part of it by providing special musical numbers, Scripture reading, and prayer. It is only by doing that our Bereans can be trained in Christian service.

Bereans should be able to develop other activities which strengthen the church. They should be able, by various worth-while projects, to raise money for themselves and the church. The Bereans at Wenatchee, Washington, have raised more than $388.00 for a new church organ. Other societies should be encouraged in such worth-while efforts.

A number of our societies are now printing Berean bulletins. Much good can be accomplished by these bulletins in the way of "stirring up" interest and bringing in new members. Our national organization is now publishing The Guiding Star. We have needed such a paper for a long time. I feel that The Guiding Star is more or less one of our dreams come true. Now that we have it, we want you Bereans to be reading it, studying it, and supporting it. This publication is one of the signs of a new life that is awakening in our Berean organization. Another such sign of progress is the recent trend toward youth rallies—local, state, and national. You Bereans want to take an interest in these rallies. "It's up to you" to make a success of this one you are now attending. If you enjoy the Rally, tell others about it and next year we shall have a bigger and better one.

Every Berean society should (Please turn to page 10)

The "Inward Man"

---

By W. G. Moffet, Magazine, Arkansas

---

THE EXPRESSION "inward man" is used only twice in the Bible. The Apostle Paul called the mind the "inward man" in Romans 7:22, saying, "I delight in the law of God after the inward man." In verse 23, he explained it, definitely, as being the mind, saying, "I see another law in my members, warring against the law of my mind." Paul continued to explain that the lusts of the flesh constantly are warring against our knowledge of right and wrong.

In 2 Corinthians 4:16, Paul said, "For which cause we faint not; but though our outward man perish, yet the inward man is renewed day by day." The Twentieth Century Translation reads thus: "Therefore, as I said, we do not lose heart. No, even though outwardly we are wasting away, yet inwardly we are being renewed day by day." I am quoting some different translations on these verses, as I believe they will help us understand "inward man."

The Revised Standard Version renders the foregoing verse thus: "So we do not lose heart. Though our outer nature is wasting away, our inner nature is being renewed every day."

The Twentieth Century New Testament translates Romans 7:22-25 thus: "At heart I delight in the law of God; but throughout my body I see a different law, one which is conflicting with the law accepted by my reason, and which endeavors to make me a prisoner to that law of sin which exists throughout my body. Miserable man that I am! who will deliver me from the body that is bringing me to this death? Thank God, there is deliverance through Jesus Christ, our Lord. Well then for myself, with my reason I serve the Law of God, but with my earthly nature the law of sin." Here the "reason" is what wars against the fleshly desires—the same thing that the Authorized Version calls the "inward man."

The Revised Standard Version gives these verses thus: "For I delight in the law of God, in my inmost self, but I see in my members another law at war with the law of my mind and making me captive to the law of sin which dwells in my members. Wretched man that I am! Who will deliver me from this body of death? Thanks be to God through Jesus Christ our Lord! So then, I of myself serve the law of God with my mind, but with my flesh I serve the law of sin." This Translation explains the "inward man" as being the mind. (which agrees with the word "reason") at war with the fleshly desires.

Moffatt's Translation gives these verses thus: "I cordially agree with God's law, so far as my inner self is concerned, but then I find another law in my members which conflicts with the law of my mind and makes me a prisoner to sin's law that resides in my members. (Thus, left to myself, I serve the law of God with my mind, but with my flesh I serve the law of sin.) Miserable wretch that I am! Who will rescue me from this body of death? God will! Thanks be to him through Jesus Christ our Lord!" Here Moffatt shows that it is the mind that is at war with the desires of the flesh, which is called "inward man" by the Authorized Version.

So, all these translators agree that the "inward man" is the mind, inward self, or reason, that is at war with the desires of the flesh—and not an immortal man inside of one, as some good people seem to believe. Nothing is said in the Bible about the "inward man" being immortal!

AUDITOR'S REPORT

The books of the National Bible Institution were audited as of June 30, 1947, and found to be correct. Bank balances were verified, the accounts were reconciled and found in agreement with the bank statements.
The books were found to be in excellent condition, and kept very orderly.

THE GOSPEL IDENTIFIED

hear the truth becomes so great that a member is led astray. Many times when one examines these preachings in the light of the true gospel, he discovers that they are only slightly similar to those truths we hold so dear. There is only one gospel. Paul was very emphatic about this in speaking to the people of Galatia, saying: "I marvel that ye are so soon removed from him that called you into the grace of Christ unto another gospel: which is not another; but there be some that trouble you, and would pervert the gospel of Christ. But though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed" (Gal. 1:6-8).

In the small book of 2 John, there is much food for thought. John was speaking of one specific false doctrine, warning against those who "confess not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh." Then, he warned that if any preach not the doctrine of Christ, he should not be welcomed into the home nor bidden God speed. This warning should apply to any who are preaching "another" gospel. We who know and believe the true gospel of the Kingdom should not preach such; neither should we approve or bid Godspeed to any who may be preaching a false doctrine.

As I have intimated, even the "Church of God of the Abrahamic Faith" may be led astray. Our ministers and teachers are human and are capable of error. Paul recognized the danger and warned the people that he might sometime preach "another" gospel; but, that if he did, for them not to believe him.

What must be done? We must come to realize the identity of the one gospel! It is the good news of the Kingdom of God. All other teachings of the Scripture are related to this one great, central theme. When we realize this, we can more easily recognize the false teaching and be ready to combat it.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by

National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois

Subscription rate: 50 issues per year, $2.50.

The Restitution Herald advocates: the near return of Christ (Acts 1:11), and life only through Him (Col. 3:3); the literal resurrection of the dead (John 5:28); the immortalization of those in Christ (1 Cor. 15:53, 54); the destruction of the wicked (Rev. 21:8); the final restoration of Israel as the Kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ (Luke 1:32), the church to be joint-heirs with Him (Rom. 8:17), and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations (Isa. 60:1-3); the "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21). It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

The Life of Christ — Part Three

The Last Year of Jesus' Ministry

By Timothy Pearson, Oregon, Illinois

TYRE AND SIDON were the destination of Jesus and His company, as they set out afoot across the rugged terrain. They had no more than set their feet in Phoenicia, the north section of Palestine along the Mediterranean Sea, than a Greek woman began following them. Her little daughter was ill, and this woman kept crying for the Lord to cure her. Jesus ignored the woman until she convinced Him she had much faith. As a reward for her faith, Jesus healed her daughter. The Lord had gone to Phoenicia to get away from the crowds, but the people flocked to Him there, too.

Returning to Galilee, Jesus went up on a mountain and sat down. There the multitudes found Him and for three days they brought their sick friends to be cured. At length, Jesus summoned the disciples, saying He wanted to feed the people. All the food the people carried was gone, and Jesus did not want His audience to fast. There were four thousand men, plus women and children to feed, but Jesus had only seven loaves of bread and a few fish. It was necessary for Him to perform a miracle to feed all those people, so He multiplied the food until all were fed—and seven basketfuls were left. Then Jesus sent the crowd away and hired a boat to take Him to Magdala.

The stop on the Lord's itinerary was Bethsaida, where He made a blind man see. Then He started westward to Caesarea Philippi. En route, He asked the disciples,

"Who do people say that the Son of Man is?"

Simon quickly told Jesus what His position is and Jesus thanked him by naming him Petrus, or "Peter" as it is in English. Jesus stated that Petrus meant rock, for the truth that Simon had stated, saying that Jesus was the Son of God, was a rock upon which Jesus would build His church. (Some have mistakenly understood this to mean that Jesus would build His church upon Peter, instead of upon Peter's solid statement of truth.)

Then Jesus began to inform the disciples of the suffering He should have to endure and the glory that would follow. He foretold His death, burial, and resurrection, even suggesting that He would come again to reward every man.

About a week later, Jesus returned to central Galilee and selected Peter, James, and John to go with Him up to the summit of Mount Tabor. Tabor is a rounded hill eighteen hundred feet high. It provides a good view of nearly all Palestine. There are many varied kinds of trees on the mountain, and it provides homes for many wild animals. Jesus and His three companions went up to the top of the mountain to pray. As Christ prayed, His countenance was changed until His whole body glowed with a bright light. As Jesus was transfigured there, Moses and Elias appeared in glory, too, and prophesied of Jesus' death. The three disciples fell into a trance and, when they opened their eyes, they still saw Jesus, Moses, and Elijah. As they looked in amazement, Moses and Elijah disappeared and Peter suggested that they erect three tabernacles in honor of Jesus and the two prophets, although Peter spoke at the will of God and knew not why he said these things. Then a great cloud engulfed them and a Voice from heaven said,

"This is my beloved Son: hear him" (Luke 9:35, King James). When this had concurred, they came down from the mount with Jesus, but for a long time they did not tell what they had seen.

When these disciples returned from Mount Tabor with Jesus, a multitude had gathered. A man approached the Lord, begging of Him that He would cure his son who was a lunatic. It seems that the invalid son would throw himself into the fire and lie there, or would fall into the water and would have to be rescued. The father already had brought the son to the disciples, but they were not able to help the son. Jesus healed the boy and explained to the puzzled disciples that their lack of faith had prevented their curing the lunatic.

Now the Lord and His followers returned to the home base of operations at Capernaum. As they were in the market place, it happened that one of the collectors of the Roman tribute tax asked Peter if Jesus paid taxes. Peter answered in the affirmative but it began to trouble him, so he approached the Lord. Before he could ask the question, Jesus answered Peter's problem by proving that it was not God's law that His children should pay tribute. To avoid offending Caesar's taxcollectors, however, Jesus told Peter to go fishing, promising that the mouth of the first fish he would catch would contain a silver stater. This was a coin worth about sixty cents. (See page 73 in the Emphatic Diaglott.) So Peter caught the fish, obtained the coin from its mouth, and paid taxes for both Jesus and himself.

It was about time now for Jesus to go to Jerusalem to be delivered to the ones who were to persecute Him, so He sent His messengers to Samaria to prepare a place for Him that night. Being on His way to Jerusalem, however, the Samaritans would not house Him. At that time, the Jews and the Samaritans were far from friendly toward each other. The disciples wanted to call for destruction from heaven upon the ungrateful men, but Jesus reproved them for wanting revenge. So they went to another town.

The third and last spring that Jesus saw before His ascension arrived about this time. Jesus' disciples encouraged Him to go up to Jerusalem to the feast of the Passover, but He refused, saying it was not yet time for the Jews to know who He was. He sent the disciples, though, and a little later He, too, went but not openly as He would have had to do if the disciples were along. He was unknown in the Holy City, so He could teach in the synagogue without having too much abuse at the hands of the Pharisees. On the second day, however, the Pharisees sought to trap Jesus in some error, so they brought an adulteress to Him and asked Him what should be done with her. After a long, dramatic pause, during which Jesus wrote in the sand, He asked the man who was without sin to cast the first stone. One by one, the spectators recognized their guilt and slunk away. (It is interesting to observe that the eldest ones were the first to admit guilt and the youngest were last.) Finally, no one was left but Jesus and the woman. Jesus forgave her sin and told her to sin no more. From that time until Jesus escaped across the Jordan River, the Pharisees attempted to hurt Him, but the Lord was too wise and stayed out of their reach.

While He stayed in Perea, east of the Jordan River, He taught many people. Some of the themes He used in His discourses were: The Repentant Ninevites, God's Care of Birds and Flowers, Rich Coveters, The Murdered Galileans, The Barren Fig Tree. After one of His bold addresses, some of the Pharisees came to Jesus and told Him to flee, for Herod, who was governor of that territory, had heard about Jesus and they were afraid He would kill Jesus. (These Pharisees were a "far cry" from those in Jerusalem.) Jesus said they should tell that "old fox" (Herod) that He had three days left to teach in Perea and He would not leave until that time. He said to add that, for reasons Herod knew nothing about, He would have to return to Jerusalem the third day.

The last messages He gave to the Pereaans were the Parables of the Great Supper, the Lost Sheep, the Lost Coin, the Prodigal Son, the Unjust Steward, and the Rich Man and Lazarus. (The rich man is sometimes called Dives, pronounced with both a long "i" and a long "e." This is the Latin term for "rich man.")

Now on the first of the three remaining days that Jesus allowed Himself in the trans-Jordan region, a messenger came with the sad news that Lazarus was sick and almost dead. Jesus knew that Lazarus could be raised again, so He spent two more days finishing His work where He was. At the end of that time, He told His disciples it was time for them to go. They were afraid of the Jews, but Jesus reassured them. Then He said, "Our friend Lazarus has fallen asleep, but I am going there to wake him."

The disciples complained that if Lazarus were asleep it was well, for he would awake feeling better; but Jesus was speaking of death when He said Lazarus was "asleep."

Lazarus lived on the side of the Mount of Olives, about two miles east of Jerusalem. Lazarus had two sisters, Mary and Martha. Mary was the woman who had washed Jesus' feet with her tears and wiped them with her hair. When Jesus had talked with the ladies and saw they had no faith that He could resurrect Lazarus, He wept. The Lord was not sorrowing for Lazarus; He knew Lazarus could live at any moment He desired. But there were people who had seen what wonderful things Christ could do, yet they doubted His power over death. The scene was too sad to go without feeling: the greatest Man who ever walked on earth was almost heartbroken.

After praying to God and giving Him due credit for the act that was about to transpire, Jesus called to Lazarus who arose and walked from the tomb.

The report of this last miracle soon reached the Jews in Jerusalem and a group of men led by Caiaphas the high priest plotted to get rid of the Lord. They were afraid that the people of Judea would believe Jesus and that the Romans would come to relieve the priests of their authority because of it. From this time forward, Jesus could not go in public, unmolested, so He left the city to go to Ephraim.

Shortly, Jesus left to make the return trip to Jerusalem, for it was about time for the Passover feast. On the way, He stopped at a village where He healed ten lepers. A day or so later, He approached Jericho and a blind man called to Him. The man had faith that Jesus could restore his sight, so Jesus obliged.

As Jesus passed down Jericho's main street, a publican, or taxcollector, wanted to see Him. It happened that this man was very short and could not see over the heads of the throng: so little Zacchaeus climbed a sycamore tree to see Jesus. Espying the little man perched precariously in the tree, Jesus told him to come down and He would dine at his house. That night after the meal, Jesus and His disciples departed, trudging along the Jericho road toward Jerusalem.

With the exception of Holy Week, the last year of Christ's ministry was finished.

AIMS AND OPPORTUNITIES OF OUR BEREAN EFFORT

be missionary minded. We should have the "Vit-Em-In" attitude of winning others for Christ. One of the goals toward which we should work is for each society to start another society or a Sunday school, such as the Byron Sunday School which the Oregon Bereans have so nobly begun. I believe that many of our societies are capable of doing the same, if they only will put forth a prayerful effort.

We wish to consider, next, our Berean motto which tells us to "search the Scriptures daily." When it comes to growing spiritually, there is nothing that can take the place of studying God's Word. The majority of people today are coming to neglect the importance of Bible truth. We hear the expression, "It makes no difference what you believe; it's what you are that counts." This is a false statement. We agree that what you are is important, but what you believe is also important. In fact, what you believe goes a long way toward determining what you are. If you believe that the Lord Jesus Christ is soon to return to this earth to reward the faithful, you will be living accordingly. Jesus once said, "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free" (John 8:32). Surely, then, it does make a difference what we believe, for how shall we be made free from sin if we know not the truth?

The question naturally arises, "What is truth?" Were I to say that the Church of God has the truth, some would think I was narrow-minded. Narrow-mindedness is not believing that you have the truth, for you must know the truth in order to be made free. Narrow-mindedness is being so wrapped up in what you believe that you are unwilling to listen to what anyone else believes. Bereans ought always to keep their minds open. Be willing to listen to the other fellow and then examine it to see if it be truth.

Let us not detract from the value of truth. I believe the Church of God has truth that others do not have. This is our reason for existing as a separate people. If I did not think that we are teaching truths that the Methodists are not, I would not be preaching for the Church of God. I speak no evil of the Methodists or of any other church. We should be tolerant of all faiths and willing to examine their teaching in the light of God's Word. Where, though, can you go to hear a sermon on "The Sleep of the Dead"? How many of the churches are emphasizing the return of our Lord to set up a literal Kingdom here on earth? Both these truths are taught plainly in the Bible. In what other church will you hear teaching concerning the regathering of Israel into the Promised Land? I have not encountered a single denomination, other than the Church of God, that is teaching the oneness of God, yet your Bible says, "The LORD our God is one LORD."

These are some of the reasons we continue to be a separate people. "What fellowship hath light [the light of truth] with darkness [the darkness of error]?" "Wherefore come out from among them and be ye separate."

We ought to remember the two qualities that made the first Bereans more noble than the Thessalonians. (See Acts 17:10, 11.) The first thing that Paul admired was their openmindedness. They were willing to hear. The second good thing about them was that they searched the Scriptures to see if what Paul said was true. They did not accept Paul's word. Rather, they used God's Word as the final authority to test his teaching.

So, I want to say to you Bereans, Study your Bibles, search the Scriptures, seek for truth. Do not take what I say, or what any preacher says, for truth. Truth is too important for one to do that, for "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."

In conclusion, let me say there are four sides to an individual's growth: the physical, the mental, the social, and the spiritual. None of them should be neglected, but most important is the spiritual. Our Berean societies are for the purpose of helping young people to develop spiritually. May you adults realize that and give them your support. May you Bereans realize, also, that your work for the Lord is the most important thing in life. May you continue to show the interest you now do, co-operating with the Berean effort in its local, state, and national work. May each of you study to show yourself approved unto God, a workman that "needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth."

News and Prophecy Digest

By C. E. Randall, Fonthill, Ontario

ISLANDS. Last week our copy was prepared on the south shore of Georgian Bay. This week we are up in the famed Muskoka Lakes' District, where thousands of islands—little and big—beautify this area and make it one of the most beautiful vacation spots on the Continent. Here, people from all parts of the United States and Canada have summer homes where they enjoy one unending scene of beauty among the chain of lakes filled with islands of varying shape and size.

We are enjoying the hospitality of Bro. and Sr. W. Howard Beemer, Sr., and the comforts of their summer home which faces on Bala Bay. While enjoying the beauty which God has so richly endowed this area, my mind runs to the prophetic message of the Revelation, where it speaks of the time when the six seals will be opened, and under the sixth seal a great earthquake occurs, with the sun becoming black as sackcloth and the moon becoming as blood; and it is here that islands come into the picture, for it said that "every mountain and island were moved out of their places." The great cataclysm that will take place under the opening of the sixth seal will be of such great proportions that the ungodly in every station of life—"kings of the earth, and the great men, and the rich men, and the mighty men, and every bondman, and every free man" will seek refuge from the judgments of the Lord. Their efforts will be without avail. When the Lord arises to shake terribly the earth and to punish the inhabitants thereof for their iniquity, none will be able to escape. This will be the time of which Paul called the "terrors of the Lord." God's longsuffering for sinners will some day come to an end. To treat lightly the judgments of God is to discount large portions of the Scripture that warn of the wrath of God which will be poured out without mixture. "Seek the Lord while he may be found" is still good counsel, and wise are the people who heed the advice.

ROCKS. Wherever there is land in this country of lakes and streams, one can see rocks and large boulders jutting out of the ground. In some places, there does not seem to be anything else than solid rock. As one looks at these massive boulders, if he is at all filled with the Word of God, he cannot help but think of the places to which reference is made to rocks. On one occasion, Jesus rebuked the Pharisees for their complaint against the disciples in their praising of Jesus for the miracles which He had performed. Jesus replied: "If these should hold their peace, the stones would immediately cry out." Nature praises God, even though man, the highest act of God's creation fails. Then, there is that prophetic account of men in the Day of Judgment seeking refuge in the rocks and caves of the earth. They shall cry to the rocks to fall on them and hide them from the face of God. If people would seek to build on the solid rock which is Christ, they would not have to seek for deliverance and protection in the movable rocks of earth. When men go into the clefts of the rocks for fear of the Lord, the very haven sought will become a place of destruction when the great earthquake takes place. There is no hiding from God or escaping from His presence. He is everywhere! Not hard to find, but impossible to escape!

FISH. While I do not do much fishing and would very much hesitate to put myself in the class of fisherman, yet I do love to fish. Both in Georgian Bay and here in the Muskoka Lakes, I have been doing some fishing, and thus far have been successful and will have some "fish stories" to tell when I get back into the ordinary routine of life. It is with Bible fish stories, however, that I am presently concerned. The Prophet Ezekiel spoke of the time when the salt waters of Palestine will be healed and a "very great multitude of fish" would come thither because of the healing of the waters. He saw the living waters issuing out from the throne and healing all the waters wherever they flow. On either side of the river will be the trees of life, whose fruit will be for meat and the leaves for medicine. Fishing always has been a means of livelihood from ancient days, and is prominent in the lives of many Biblical characters. Fishing will be a pleasant pastime in the Kingdom of God if the picture of Ezekiel finds literal fulfillment. There is something about fishing that draws one away from the cares of life and breaks down barriers between men; yes, and some of the finest revelations that have come to men have had a background of water filled with fish that have served to feed man with meat and with a spiritual lesson. Fishers will fish in the Kingdom of God according to the Prophet.

DEATH. Wherever man goes, the trail of the serpent is to be seen. The next day after we had left on our holidays, word came of the death of a friend at the place where we were vacationing. Of course, we attended the funeral, and one of the statements of the officiating minister attracted special attention—not for its truth, but rather for its untruth. Said he: "Death is God's means of destroying death."

He belittled death and made it the gateway to life—a time of rejoicing rather than a time of mourning. He remarked that he did not like to think of death as death but rather as life. What a distorted view of death! Where in all Scripture is death made the means of self-destruction? Tao, where is God made the author of death? The Apostle Paul put the onus of death on the one to whom it should be placed. Said Paul: "He [Christ] also himself likewise took part of the same that through death he might destroy him that had the power of death, that is, the devil." The Prophet very plainly said that God has "no pleasure in the death of him that dieth." Sin is the cause of death. "The wages of sin is death." Many times I have heard it repeated, "It has pleased God to take from our midst our beloved so and so." Putting the cause of death on God has been the means of turning countless numbers of folk away from God. Several times I have known people who became embittered at God because they thought He had taken their loved ones in death. A proper understanding of death and the cause of death will throw new light on the character of God and the work and place of the Lord Jesus in the plan of redemption. Resurrection is God's means of redeeming men from the power of the grave, and the destruction of sin and sinners in the last analysis as the means of destroying death.

KESWICK. The Canadian Keswick Bible Conference, patterned after the world-famous English Keswick Conference, is held at Fennell, Muskoka, during the three summer months of June, July, and August. It is beautifully located in about the middle of the Muskoka Lakes' District. The grounds contain several acres and are bounded on the north and east by water. The main part of the land rises to considerable height, with an unobstructed view of Lake Rosseau in both directions. The property is worth many thousands of dollars, and people from all parts of Canada and the United States come there to enjoy their vacations with a Christian atmosphere. Speakers of world renown are engaged to bring messages twice daily to the large number of guests. The afternoons are kept free for rest and recreation. The landscape, the environment, the food, and the messages all contribute to a restful and helpful holiday. Those spending their vacations there go away feeling they have been refreshed in body and spirit.

What is true of Keswick is similarly true of many other Bible conferences throughout the country. I believe our annual Bible School and Conference would serve a more useful purpose if it entered more to the attention of the body, as well as feeding the heart and mind. The program is so full, if one attends all the meetings, by the time Conference is ended one's physical strength has been taxed to its limits. Most people use their vacations to attend Conference and Bible School, but it is not a vacation where one can rest and relax and be refreshed in mind and body. If the whole set-up were so arranged as to accomplish this purpose, its usefulness would serve a much wider area in life.

"Let all those that seek thee rejoice and be glad in thee: and let such as love thy salvation say continually, Let God be magnified. . . . Make haste unto me, O God: thou art my help and my deliverer: O Lord, make no tarrying" (Psalm 70:4, 5).

"Thou shalt return and obey the voice of the Lord, and do all his commandments which I command thee this day" (Deuteronomy 30:8).

What a Difference!

Joshua sent men from the city of Jericho to the city of Ai. They were to scout around and report the needed facts before Joshua sent his army to conquer the city. "They returned to Joshua, and said unto him, Let not all the people go up; but let about two or three thousand men go up and smite Ai; and make not all the people to labour thither; for they are but few."

Three thousand men went up to subdue and destroy the city. But they fled. A number of Israelites were killed. The Lord was not with them because of sin. The man who sinned, Achan, of whom we studied last week, was destroyed. Sin was destroyed in the Israelites' camp. Now God was with them again.

What a difference it makes to have God on our side! The Israelites knew they would win as they went against the city of Ai this time.

God said to Joshua, "Fear not, neither be thou dismayed: take all the people of war with thee, and arise, go up to Ai . . . see, I have given into thy hand the king of Ai, and his people, and his city, and his land" (Josh. 8:1).

When God is with us, we can be overcomers, too. We are able to win the victory over wrong by the aid of Jesus our Saviour. If we think we are strong and need no help, then sometimes we fail to win. When we are Christ's very own, we are temples of God, and the Spirit of God lives in our hearts and lives.

When sin controls, God's Spirit cannot live in our temples. "Know ye not, that to whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey, his servants ye are to whom ye obey; whether of sin unto death, or of obedience unto righteousness?" (Rom. 6:16.)

For those who have become Christ's by obedience in accepting Him as their personal Saviour, we have a happy verse. Read Romans 6:22.

Joshua Wrote

We know that Moses received two tables of stone on which were "written with the finger of God" the laws. Moses was angry when he found the Israelites worshiping a golden calf, so he threw the tables down and broke them. (Ex. 31:18; 32:19.) The next time Moses wrote the laws on the stones. (Ex. 34:28.)

Now we read that Joshua also wrote upon the stones a copy of the law of Moses. He wrote in the presence of the people. (Josh. 8:32.)

How many years ago people have known how to write! Some doubters sometimes thought that writing was unknown in that day. Archaeologists, however, have found proof that writing was developed long before Moses' time. The ones who "live by faith" have enough proof in the Word to believe the things contained therein: "Joshua wrote."

When we consider the thousands of people gathered on the mountain side, "half of them over against mount Gerizim, and half of them over against mount Ebal," we wonder how Moses made them hear as he read. (Josh. 8:33.) Perhaps he had some kind of a megaphone. We just believe they understood, for Joshua would not read all the laws if they could not understand what he read. The women "and the little ones" were included as were the strangers who could understand their language. (Josh. 8:35.)

Editor's Note: No, neither Moses nor Joshua used a megaphone. The natural mountain acoustics in this region are surprisingly favorable. The voice at ordinary pitch and volume can be heard from one mountainside to the other, as frequently demonstrated today to visitors of Palestine.

Humiliating Facts

By H. Gary France

(Reprinted from Wenatchee Church Letter)

CHRIST said, "Whosoever shall exalt himself shall be abased; and he that shall humble himself shall be exalted" (Matt. 23:12). The quality of humility is essential to the Christian. "Humility" is defined . . . as "state or quality of being humble in spirit; freedom from pride and arrogance." "Humility" is often erroneously understood to mean the misrepresentation of oneself as being inferior to his actual quality. This latter understanding of the word includes self-depreciation, suppressing of one's personality, and an ill-tasting, offensive mental self-abuse. Webster's definition of the word is "quality of being," not "quality of professing a low spirit." Humility is the open, pure, and accurate recognition of oneself without unduly degrading oneself, without self-praise. The dictionary definition uses the phrase, "freedom from pride and arrogance." Why "freedom"? "Before destruction the heart of man is haughty" (Prov. 18:12). Pride and arrogance are recognized as offensive and distasteful traits. Only ignorant and unscrupled persons would betray themselves as arrogant.

In recognizing one's position before God, a person will not have to contend with pride. Though man can build huge machinery and buildings, many irritating problems confronting man are insurmountable. Death conquers man as inevitably as daylight conquers darkness. Though man recognizes war as a man-operated curse against man, and though man fears that war will blot civilization from existence, centuries of effort have proved fruitless in stopping that curse. How humiliating are these facts! In view of these facts, we "mighty" humans begin to resemble big fat mice.

The truth is, man is dust. This inescapable fact proves itself continuously in man's death. Paul recognized the true state of man with accuracy when writing of the gospel. The news of Christ being precious, the lowliness of man is emphasized in contrast. Wrote Paul, "We have this treasure in earthen vessels" (2 Cor. 4:7).

A worldly life testifies of the worthlessness of man. What is the purpose of a non-Christian's daily working? Money. What is the purpose of money? Food. What is the purpose of food? Strength. What is the purpose of strength? Work. This vicious and deceptive circle claims the lives and energy of a vast majority of the earth's inhabitants. These "aims," "purposes," and "ideals" of the world testify of the worthlessness of godless humanity. Though Christians are only "earthen vessels," their status is much more desirable, because there is assurance of a future immortality.

Recognition of one's weaknesses constitutes humility. Recognition of weakness is the fundamental first step toward progress, correction, and improvement. Never was a product improved until someone recognized its weaknesses. The mighty Titanic was "unsinkable"! Lifeboat drills were unnecessary. Failure to recognize weaknesses or the fact that the Titanic could sink caused the loss of hundreds of lives! Recognition of weakness is essential in any endeavor! Football coaches are more afraid of overconfidence (failure to recognize the possibility of losing) than any other one factor, though the team be of the highest quality!

Humility is not without dignity. Cruden's Concordance defines "humble" as "not proud or assertive. The word does not have its modern sense of undue self-depreciation." Humility is the road to honor, though we would not expect loss of humility even in honor. "Before honour is humility" (Prov. 15:33).

The truth of Christ's statement that the humble would be exalted and the proud would be abased is apparent. A humble person recognizes his weaknesses, prays, corrects, and improves. Herein is progress and the value of humility. The self-exalted person supposes himself to be above correction and without need of improvement. "I'm satisfied with things the way they are. They have been like this for twenty-five years, and they can stay for another twenty-five." Stagnation is the result. Failure to improve is failure to progress. For his own protection, one should recognize his weaknesses accurately before God and man. Correction improves his condition. Correction is honorable and God-ordained.

"In the multitude of counsellors there is safety" (Prov. 11:14).

- July 29 - August 10 — General Conference at Oregon, Ill.
 July 29 - August 10 — Illinois Conference and Bible School at Oregon.
 August 9-17 — Missouri State Conference.
 August 23-31 — Texas Conference at Ater.
 August 14-24 — Virginia Conference. (G. E. Marsh and J. Arlen Marsh, guest speakers.)
 August 17-24 — Western Nebraska Conference at Holbrook. (Guest speakers—M. W. Lyon and Harvey U. Krogh, Jr.)
 August 16-24 — Iowa State Conference at Waterloo. (Guest speakers—Sydney E. Magaw and Linford Moore.)
 August 24-31 — Eastern Nebraska Conference (Grover Gordon, guest speaker) at Omaha — 34th and Seward Sts.
 August 29 - September 7 — Evangelistic meetings at Blood River (La.) Church of God. (Sydney E. Magaw, guest speaker.)

IOWA

A very enjoyable midsummer conference was held, Sunday, July 29, in the "Hickory Grove" community. The meeting was held in the Hickory Grove School, near Colo. Arlen Marsh from Rockford, Ill., was the very welcome guest speaker who presented two very splendid, enlightening sermons at 11:00 a.m. and 2:00 p.m. His morning message was "Thyatirans," based on Revelation 2, and in the afternoon, "Justice of God," his text being Deuteronomy 32:8, 9.

A bountiful repast was spread at noon from the baskets of those who attended.

The State board met in the afternoon to complete Iowa Conference plans.

We went our separate ways, filled with spiritual and temporal food, proclaiming our thankfulness to God for all His blessings. We surely were blessed with a beautiful day; such a sharp contrast to the floods which kept the members from meeting together earlier in the summer as previously planned.

Mrs. Eldridge Ellis, Cor. Secy.

EDEN VALLEY, MINNESOTA

The Church of God at Eden Valley, Minn., is pleased to present seven new members. Sunday, July 6, three were baptized: Mr. and Mrs. Hamlin Nelson of Eden Valley, and Mr. Harold Lunderly of Litchfield. Bro. and Sr. Nelson have been very regular attendants at our services since moving to Eden Valley some two years ago. We wish them joy in their stand for Christ. Harold Lunderly is the husband of Dolores (Thoms) Lunderly. This unites husband and wife in Christ. Harold has been considering this step for some time.

Sunday, July 20, four boys were baptized: Meritt Magedanz of Lexington, Ky., Donald and Wayne Thoms and David Otto, all of Eden Valley. These boys need our help in this community.

We plan on attending General Conference, soon.
 Walter Wiggins.

CASEY, ILLINOIS

The Restitution Church of God of Abraham Faith (six miles south and two miles east of Casey, Ill.) held its annual picnic on the church lawn, Sunday, July 13. Sunday school services convened at 10:00 a.m., and preaching by Bro. John Mercer was at 11:30 a.m. A bountiful dinner at the noon hour was served with plenty of fried chicken and all the trimmings.

At 2:00 p.m., hymns were sung by all present. Then, a sermon was preached on Baptism. Special musical numbers included a duet by Mrs. Maud Thayer and Mrs. Elneta Hickox (with John Mercer at the piano), and a solo by John Mercer—"Sunrise Tomorrow."

At 3:00 p.m., Sr. Lennie Ragon, daughter of Mrs. Ora McFarling, was baptized. The evening service was at 7:30—a duet being given at that time by Bro. and Sr. John Mercer.

A wonderful time was enjoyed by all. We also had with us Bro. and Sr. Sylvan Richey, Mr. Murphy and son of the Marshall Church. Next preaching time will be August 10.
 Mrs. Tincie Stephens.

GOLDEN WEDDING AT GOLDEN RULE HOME

Open house will be held at Golden Rule Home, August 5, from 3:00 - 5:00 p.m., and from 6:00 - 7:00 p.m., in honor of Bro. and Sr. George Loudenslager who are celebrating their fiftieth wedding anniversary.

Present visitors in the Home were Mrs. Glen Hughes, Miss Joy Ann Pearson, Billy Stine, Gale Harleman (all of Ohio), and Peggie Pearson from Washington, D. C.
 Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Pearson.

GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

On Friday, July 4, 1947, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Sheets of Blanchard, Mich., held open house to celebrate their golden wedding anniversary. All six of their children were present on that day, namely: Bro. Harry Sheets of Aurora, Ill.; Ada Simpson, Grand Rapids; Edna Lockwood of Hypertia, Vernon of Marion, Inez Diehn of Remus, and Frances Wood of Blanchard, Mich. Many friends and other relatives, including ten grandchildren, came bearing gifts to honor this couple who has spent so many years together. Ice cream and cake were served.

During most of their married lives, they have been active members of the Church of God and contribute much of their time and effort to promote the spreading of the gospel in this community.
 Ellsworth Rounton.

BLANCHARD, MICHIGAN

During this quarter, our Sunday school is having a contest to stimulate interest and increase attendance. Already, interesting results are being tabulated.

A series of strip films on the land of Palestine and the fulfilling of prophecy, loaned us by Bro. Harry Sheets, are being shown on Sunday nights, and on Thursday nights. They are very enlightening, and we are sorry to have anyone in the community miss these films.

Bro. and Sr. Richard Powell of California visited several weeks among friends and relatives in and near Blanchard. We were sorry to have them return to California, as they took with them Mrs. Powell's sister, Mrs. Jessie Marston, who is our faithful piano player. We hope she enjoys her vacation.

In May, we were happy to welcome home Sr. Ella Kelly who was absent from us for a year. She is planning to attend General Conference.

Mrs. Dora Ellsworth, who is recovering from a recent illness, also is planning to attend the General Conference.
 Ellsworth Rounton.

PENNELWOOD CHURCH OF GOD

Grand Rapids, Michigan

Five persons came forward at the close of the morning service, July 20, in response to the invitation publicly to acknowledge Christ as their Saviour. In the afternoon, a goodly number accompanied them to the river at Alaska, Mich., where they were immersed in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins.

Their names and addresses are as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Buskirk, 20 32nd St., S.E.; Miss Roslyn M. Kendall, 150 Celia St., S.W.; Mr. Verne E. Berry, 460 36th St., S.E.; and Mr. Charles E. Knapp, 3701 Francis Ave., S.E., all of Grand Rapids. These people have been faithfully attending our Sunday school and church services and are highly recommended to the brethren. May God richly bless them as they grow in knowledge and Christian service.

ORPHEUS G. FRANCE

Orpheus G. France was born, July 29, 1858, in Sharon, Wis. He moved to Washington when a young man, lived fifty-eight years in Wenatchee, and died on April 15, 1947.

He was baptized in the Wenatchee Church of God in 1902 by M. W. Perrine. He leaves his widow, Mamie I. France; three sons: Herbert S., Richard B., and Gerald P., all of Wenatchee; nine grandchildren, and four great-grandchildren.

The funeral services were conducted by a grandson, Bro. H. Gary France, pastor of the Wenatchee Church of God, assisted by Bro. Lyle Rankin, pastor of the Cashmere Church of God. Pallbearers were six of Mr. France's grandsons: Vernon, Arden, Gary, Howard, and Clell France, and Maurice Salley.

Bro. France is remembered in the Wenatchee Valley as one of the first of the "old timers" who helped to build the valley and church. He specialized in apple raising, and, in later years, devoted nearly all his time to raising flowers.

He was not ill, but died suddenly and now awaits the call of the Master.

Vivian France, Secy.

IN LOVING MEMORY

Enoch Enos Elton was born on May 26, 1872, at Omaha, Nebr., and fell asleep, July 10, 1947. He was the beloved father of Hazel Elton Connelly. Bro. Elton was struck by a passing motorist on his way home from work. He will be sadly missed in our community and church. For years, he has been a familiar figure, riding his bicycle to and fro from his work daily, despite his seventy-five years. He was preceded in death by his wife Carrie; more than two years ago. He leaves to mourn his loss Hazel, his daughter, Bobby, Johnnie, Carol, and Ray, all grandchildren, also his brother John in Nebraska.

We convey our heartfelt sympathy to those sorrowing ones, praying that God's comforting care may be theirs in this sad hour.

Our tribute to our brother can be summed up in the words written also of the Master, "He went about doing good."

Funeral services were held from the Shannon Funeral Home, Orange, Calif., on Tuesday, July 15, 1947, Pastor Frank Scott of the Advent Christian Church of Tustin, Calif., officiating. He was assisted by ministers C. F. Martin and A. E. Mills.

H. J. Stadden.

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

It was our privilege on the afternoon of July 20 to assist Toshinabu Furuta and Bob Misenheimer to put on the Lord Jesus Christ in baptism. The service was conducted in the Advent Christian Church.

Bro. Furuta is a native of Hiroshima, Japan, where he lived until 1940. "Tosi" is considering seriously entering Oregon Bible College, where he hopes to gain an English education, and to prepare himself as a missionary to his own people in Hiroshima.

Bro. Misenheimer is from Sullivan, Ill., attending the University of Illinois at Navy Pier. He has been active among the young people and in our music department.

It is our prayer that the Lord will help us to be an arm of strength to these men, helping to light the straight and narrow path which leads to God. May they continue to be strong and fruitful servants of the Lord Jesus.

Harold J. Doan, Pastor.

MALONE - HICKOX

Nearly one hundred guests witnessed the marriage ceremony uniting Miss Genevieve Lillian Malone, daughter of Mrs. Flora Malone, Casey, Ill., and Lee N. Hickox, Casey. Rites were solemnized, Saturday evening, July 12, 1947, in the Restitution Church of God, Bro. John Mercer officiating in the double ring ceremony. The altar was beautifully decorated with palms and baskets of flowers.

Miss Inez Malone, Indianapolis, Ind., was bridesmaid and John Hickox attended the groom. Orley Godwin, brother-in-law of the bride, gave her in marriage. Proceeding the ceremony, Miss Arlene Redman sang "Always," accompanied by her brother, Dana Lee Redman, at the piano.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held on the lawn at the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Foster Thayer.

The newlyweds will reside temporarily with Mr. Hickox's parents.—Adapted.

Gleanings From the Field

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

Several workers of National Bible Institution already have been re-employed by the Executive Board for another year's service: Bro. James M. Watkins as General Manager (starting September 1); Bro. Otto E. Dick as instructor and Registrar at Oregon Bible College; Bro. M. W. Lyon as National Evangelist; and Sr. Verna Thayer as evangelist for children and conductor of Vacation Bible Schools.

Members of the Credentials' Committee for General Conference are: Srs. Leila Whitehead (chairman), Vena Logsdon, and Evelyn Austin.

"I would like to see an article on John 12: 36 published in The Herald, showing that Christ did not tell Peter he could follow Christ to heaven."—W. G. Moffet, Rt. 2, Magazine, Ark.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Lagudry, New Orleans, La., are the parents of a son, Cecil Thomas, born July 9. Congratulations!

"We expect Bro. Richard LeCrone to be our special speaker at the Ohio Conference, August 27-31, at Brush Creek."—Vivian Magaw, Tipp City, Ohio.

Bro. C. R. Randall, returning home (Ripley, Ill.) from his recent evangelistic work at Lawrenceville, Ohio, visited relatives and friends in Oregon, Ill., July 22. Sr. Randall and their daughter, Lynda Sue, who had been visiting at the Zollinger home in Oregon, returned home with Bro. Randall. He reports good interest in the Lord's work at Lawrenceville.

"Darrell Maddock plans to enroll in Oregon Bible College this fall. We know that God will bless Darrell in his decision better to prepare himself for the Lord's work."—Linford Moore, pastor of the Church of God at Macomb, Ill.

Sr. Leota B. Hanson motored to Macomb, Ill., Sunday morning, July 27, to get Sr. Ben Pritchard and three of her children. Sr. Pritchard is one of the Conference cooks.

Those coming into Oregon for the Bible School and Conference now in session should keep in mind that the time schedule is based on daylight saving time.

College Enrollment Outlook. To date, July 29, we know of at least eight students who are planning, tentatively, to enroll as freshmen in Oregon Bible College when it resumes classes, September 8. Also, at least fourteen of last year's students plan to return. With several weeks intervening, it is not too optimistic to foresee an enrollment of twenty-five students, or more.

Sr. Dorothy Magaw, 194 Summit Ave., Saint Paul, Minn., is visiting at the Editor's home and attending the first part of General Conference.

Bro. M. W. Lyon recently returned to Oregon, Ill., from his evangelistic work in Washington, D. C.

First delegate to arrive for General Conference was Sr. Ellsworth Johnson, Hector, Minn.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Zechiel, Culver, Ind., were guests last week at the Frederick Clausen home, Oregon, Ill.

Bro. and Sr. Orval Lynd and son and daughter Orval Dale and Eileen, Altona, Ill., also Sr. Rosalie Ralston, Ripley, Ill., were guests, recently at the Albert Logsdon home, Oregon, Ill.

Sr. Mary E. Hatch and her son Paul visited relatives and friends, last week, in Indianapolis, Ind., and near the Hillisburg Church of God.

Truth Seekers' Tracts and Books

"This gospel must first be published among all nations" (Mark 13:10).

THE CHURCH AT ATER, TEXAS

Where the Texas Conference Will Convene

August 23-31, 1947

Ater, Texas, is ten miles northwest of Gatesville, the county seat of Coryell County. Gatesville is forty miles almost west of Waco. It is reached from the east or west by U. S. Highway 84. Here will gather from all over the Lone Star State believers in the Abrahamic promises to meet with those of like precious faith in a joyous season of refreshing. Your presence is needed. Shall we meet you there at Conference time?

"Blessed is that man that maketh the Lord his trust, and respecteth not the proud, nor such as turn aside to lies. Many, O Lord my God, are thy wonderful works which thou hast done, and thy thoughts which are to usward: they cannot be reckoned up in order unto thee."

A Good Conference

The twenty-seventh annual General Conference and the fiftieth annual Illinois Conference of the Church of God are in full progress, there being a large attendance to enjoy the many interesting Bible lessons and sermons. There are at this writing (Saturday, August 2) three hundred fifty registered attendants, representing nineteen states, Washington, D. C., and Canada. Thus far, sixty-two delegates have answered the roll call. Everybody is having a joyful time in the Lord. It is good to worship God.

Finishing the Christian Race

As David gave pattern of the Temple to Solomon, instructing him to proceed in the work of erecting it, he charged Solomon, saying:

"Be strong and of good courage, and do it: fear not, nor be dismayed: for the Lord God, even my God, will be with thee; he will not fail thee, nor forsake thee, until thou hast finished all the work."

True to David's prophetic blessing, God was with Solomon, not failing nor forsaking him, and with that divine help, Solomon "finished all the work." Similarly, a Christian who today leans heavily upon the Lord for courage and strength will be enabled to finish his appointed work. By divine strength, he will finish the Christian race, reaching the goal triumphantly and glorified with Christ.

Rejected of men, John the Baptist was directed and strengthened by the invisible forces of God until he had "fulfilled his course" (Acts 13:25).

Imprisoned, scourged, beaten, and knowing that God's Spirit witnessed in every city that "bonds and afflictions" awaited him, the Apostle Paul said, nevertheless: "None of those things move me, neither count I my life dear unto myself, so that I might finish my course with joy" (Acts 20:24).

Toward the close of the Apostle Paul's ministry, he cried in victory, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith" (2 Tim. 4:7). Hear Paul's plea, similarly worded to all Christians, "Fight the good fight of faith, lay hold on eternal life" (1 Tim. 6:12).

The Apostle Peter, loyal unto martyrdom in his race to attain the prize of the high calling, admonished Christians in this manner: "Humble yourselves therefore under the mighty hand of God, that he may exalt you in due time: casting all your care upon him; for he careth for you" (1 Peter 5:6, 7). He assured, too, that, "The Lord knoweth how to deliver the godly out of temptation," how to strengthen them until "the chief Shepherd shall appear," when we "shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away."

Even our Lord, the Saviour of us all, "endured the cross" only by the strength that God gave Him. It is written, "For the joy that was set before him," Jesus "endured the cross." He foresaw the goal, foresaw victory, and pressed onward daily, constantly, until on the cross He cried in truth and victory, "It is finished." Slightly earlier, He had asserted in prayer to God, "I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do" (John 17:4).

Like building a Temple worthy of the indwelling of God's Spirit, he who would run successfully in the Christian race for life eternal must be "strong and of good courage, and do it." He must "fear not, nor be dismayed," and he must have full assurance that the Lord God will not fail him or forsake him until he has "finished all the work."

During the first centuries of the Christian Era, men and women were so zealous in their quest for life and immortality that they marked themselves for all time as "faithful unto death." They finished their work! Hear Christ promise them, "Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life" (Rev. 2:10). Hear Christ promise all who are faithful unto death, "He that shall endure unto the end, the same shall be saved" (Matt. 24:13).

"Endure unto the end"? Yes, we who live in these "last days" preceding the coming of the Lord must run the race fully as faithfully as did the early-century martyrs. To help in these trying days of "the end," our victorious Lord assures, "Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world" (Matt. 28:20). "Jesus never fails"! Finish the race with Him!

What Is Predestination?

By M. W. Lyon, National Evangelist

GOD'S predestination of people and events is simply His planning ahead for the future, as we do in our limited way. As someone very fittingly has pointed out, "God is not an agent constrained by necessity. Wheresoever counsel is, there is election, or else it is vain; where a will, there must be freedom, else it is weak."

In many places in the Bible we are told that God foreknows events of the most distant future. Otherwise, He could not prophesy things to come. Multitudes of prophecies fulfilled in most minute detail are evidence of God's complete foreknowledge of the future. Jesus even went so far as to state that God knows of every sparrow that falls, and the number of hairs in our heads! Such knowledge is too wonderful for us, as David and Paul have both acknowledged. We cannot understand it. It is utterly beyond our comprehension. As well might a grasshopper try to comprehend how a radio works.

Yet this foreknowledge of God does not limit the free will of man. Every place in the Bible at which God appeals to the choice of men is an evidence that man has a choice to make, or the language would be meaningless. If all were of God, and man had no choice of his own, then God would be responsible for all of man's actions, bad and good. Yet the Scripture nowhere ascribes responsibility for sin to God, but always to man. This is brought out in such scriptures as these:

Matthew 11:20-24. Why would Jesus upbraid people who were predestined to unbelief?

Matthew 13:10-16. It was not because Jesus spoke in parables that the Jews could not understand. Just the reverse: because they refused to hear, He punished them by withholding the truth.

Matthew 13:58. Jesus' work was actually hindered by the people's unbelief.

Matthew 16:24-26. Here the choice is put squarely up to men to live or die.

Matthew 23:29-38. Jesus so wanted to bless His people, but they would not!

Matthew 26:24. Was Judas predestined to betray Jesus? Then by what rule of justice should he be condemned for doing God's will?

Matthew 26:39. Jesus' will was not always God's will, so neither is ours.

Mark 3:5. Was Jesus angry at the people for doing what God wanted them to do?

Mark 3:35. If all do the will of God, then all are Christ's brethren!

Mark 8:17, 18. Why should Jesus reprove those who are not responsible for their unbelief?

Mark 16:14. Were the disciples predestined to unbelief?

Luke 10:42. She could not have chosen if she was not free to choose.

Luke 12:47, 48. Even men do not punish men for what is not their fault.

Luke 13:24-29. To be saved it is necessary to strive.

John 5:40. God wants all men to be saved, but in spite of that some will not come.

John 7:17. We can learn God's will only by being willing to learn.

Acts 7:51-53. Men not only can resist God's will, but do!

Acts 13:22. David did God's will but not others, especially Saul. Yet not even David was pleasing to God in all respects.

Acts 13:46. Some refuse God's gift of life, and He does not force it on them.

Romans 1:22-32. Vast multitudes refuse to do God's will.

Romans 2:6-11. God's judgment of men is according to their conduct.

Romans 11:22. Blessing is conditioned upon obedience.

1 Corinthians 9:17. Paul had the option of choosing to obey or disobey.

2 Thessalonians 2:10-12. Note here especially that when God blinds men, or permits them to be deceived into error, it is always a punishment for sin or unbelief.

1 Timothy 4:16. We attain salvation by taking heed to God's Word.

Hebrews 3:12-19. What sense do these words make if the people were not responsible for their actions?

Hebrews 10:26-31. We can sin willfully! To do so is not God's will, and we are punished severely for it.

Hebrews 11:24, 25. What a glorious choice was Moses'! Yet he could have chosen otherwise.

2 Peter 2:21. God holds us all responsible for what we do.

1 John 2:17. If everyone does the will of God, then, according to this passage, all men will be saved. Hence, belief in predestination leads right into universalism.

These are just a sample of many like scriptures all through the Bible. The Old Testament has not been touched on, but it, too, is filled with such expressions as these. Hence, we must conclude (Please turn to page 10)

The Life of Christ — Part Four

The Passion Week; His Resurrection and Ascension

By Timothy Pearson, Oregon, Illinois

THE NIGHT Jesus and His disciples arrived in Bethany, they stayed at the home of Simon the leper. The next day, they visited Lazarus whom Jesus recently had raised from the dead. Many people had heard that Jesus was there and came in a large group, but they were more desirous of seeing Lazarus. That would be a spectacle even today. The next day, Jesus descended the Mount of Olives on a borrowed colt. The crowd saw Him coming and threw palm branches and their coats on the ground to make a royal path for the King of the Jews.

Jesus went immediately to the Temple where He discovered that the money-changers were cheating the people. There was buying and selling and all kinds of vice going on in the Lord's house. So Jesus went in as He had done before and drove out the wicked men. Then He sat down and taught the people until it was time for Him to return to Bethany for the night.

Two days before the Passover, the Sanhedrin (a council similar to a church board of elders, yet with much civil authority in addition) was meeting to plot a way to kill Jesus. Finally, they paid Judas thirty pieces of silver, less than twenty dollars, to tell them who Jesus was so they could have Him arrested.

On the first day of unleavened bread, Jesus and His twelve apostles were gathered in an upper room in Jerusalem. Following the feast, the Lord instituted the Communion service which has become so well known to all church members.

Following the service, they went out to a garden just outside Jerusalem, and Jesus spent most of the night in prayer. The seventeenth chapter of John records some of the trials Jesus had that night.

When Jesus had finished His meditations during which He was in great mental strain, Judas led a group of soldiers to Jesus and kissed the Lord to show which man He was. The soldiers led Jesus away to the high priest Caiaphas, and He never knew freedom again until His resurrection. Another noted priest, Annas, was there too, and between them the priests made it miserable for Jesus.

Finding no way of convicting Jesus, the priests sent Him bound to Pilate, the Roman governor of Judea. Pilate finally became convinced that Jesus was innocent of any wrong. It probably would have taken little encouragement to make Pilate a Christian, but He was afraid of the people who were clamoring for Jesus to be crucified. According to custom, Pilate annually released one prisoner to the people. He wanted to release Jesus, but the public would not have it that way. Pilate then heard that Herod, his superior, was in Jerusalem, so he sent Jesus to him. There Jesus was abused much by the soldiers of Herod who then brought Him back to Pilate. Finally, Pilate yielded to the clamor of the throng and pronounced sentence upon Jesus by delivering Him to the mob.

Jesus was tortured and, at last, hanged upon a post made for crucifixions. There the Saviour of the world died and was buried in a cave near the city wall. The crucifixion scene is very well known, so we shall not describe it here. It was a time of agony for the Lord—an event that changed the whole course of civilization. Through the atoning blood of Christ, mankind may receive forgiveness of sin and hope of life eternal. "We have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous . . . the propitiation for . . . the sins of the whole world" (1 John 2:1, 2).

VII

Jesus' Resurrection and Ascension

The death of Jesus would mean little to the world today if He had not risen again. On the third day, the Lord came forth clothed in immortality and glory from above.

For forty days after the resurrection, Jesus, walking among His disciples, showed Himself as the immortal Son of God. He met with them in the upper room, entering the room mysteriously and soon thereafter eating like anyone else. He gave the disciples the Great Commission during this time, too.

"Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature" (Mark 16:15).

Ten days before the feast of Pentecost, the day arrived for Jesus to leave the earth, to ascend to be with the Father. It was the last of May in 29 A.D. that Jesus stood upon the Mount of Olives and said His farewell. As He slowly rose and was lost to view in the cloud, the promise came that this same Jesus would return in the same way as He left. John wrote:

"Behold, he cometh with clouds; and every eye shall see him" (Rev. 1:7).

The End

A COWBOY'S VISION

By Marion McGinty, Plains, Texas

Last night as I lay on the prairie,
Silent in sweet repose,
The stars twinkled brightly to cheer me—
The dew drops kissed the rose.

I looked into the heavens:
A vision I saw to inspire,
That the love of God is kindness;
His wrath a flaming fire.

You talk of hell and of heaven;
You mention the soul to save.
Heaven is the space above you;
Hell is the depth of the grave.

Why do the clergy teach us
That, when we come to die,
Our souls take wings like the angels
And ascend to a home on high?

Jesus paused while here to tell us
In words that truly did blend;
No man ever ascended into heaven
But Him who will descend.

The Scriptures plainly tell us,
In giving out God's plan,
That heaven is the home of angels—
The earth was made for man.

In them we have the promise
That God has given to men
Eternal life for obedience;
Death the penalty for sin.

Will someone kindly tell me?—
I should like to know
Where the Bible tells us
That ever to heaven we'll go.

WISDOM HIDDEN IN POVERTY

"There was a little city, and few men within it; and there came a great king against it, and besieged it, and built great bulwarks against it. Now there was found in it a poor wise man, and he by his wisdom delivered the city; yet no man remembered that same poor man. Then said I, Wisdom is better than strength: nevertheless the poor man's wisdom is despised, and his words are not heard" (Eccl. 9:14-16). . . . Solomon surely was right: wisdom is often secluded by poverty, and men erroneously suppose that the mighty men of earth are the wise.

AN OLD SONG

(Selected by Sister W. L. Robbins, Riviera, Texas. She says the words are those of an old song she used to sing when a child, and express her ideas better than she could herself. They have a ringing message for us today.—M. W. Lyon.)

Hark! the voice of Jesus crying,
"Who will go and work today?
Fields are white and harvest waiting—
Who will bear the sheaves away?"

Loud and strong the Master calleth;
Rich rewards He offers thee.
Who will answer, gladly saying,
"Here am I. Send me, send me"?

If you cannot cross the ocean
And the heathen lands explore,
You can find the heathen nearer,
You can help him at your door.

If you cannot give your thousands,
You can give the widow's mite,
And the least you do for Jesus
Will be precious in His sight.

If you cannot speak like angels,
If you cannot preach like Paul,
You can tell the love of Jesus,
You can say He died for all.

If you cannot lead like Moses,
You can do what heaven demands:
You can be like faithful Aaron—
Holding up the prophet's hands.

If among the older people
You may not be apt to teach,
"Feed my lambs," said Christ our Shepherd,
"Place the food within their reach."

And it may be that the children
You have led with trembling hands
Will be found among your jewels
When you reach the Better Land.

Let none hear you idly saying,
"There is nothing I can do,"
While the souls of men are dying and the Master calls for you.

Take the task He gives you gladly,
Let His work your pleasure be.
Answer quickly when He calleth,
"Here am I. Send me, send me."

"He That Hath No Sword"

By Gordon Landry, Oregon, Illinois

WHEN JESUS first sent His disciples to preach the Word of God, He sent them only to the region around Galilee and only for a short time. For this reason, there was no need of preparing for their journeys. Jesus and His apostles were just beginning to preach the gospel, and as yet there was little or no opposition from the common people. They gladly received the news of the coming Kingdom and welcomed Jesus as the King who was to be their ruler. Since this was the reaction of the people, Jesus told His disciples to "provide neither gold, nor silver, nor brass in your purses, nor scrip for your journey, neither two coats, neither shoes, nor yet staves: for the workman is worthy of his meat" (Matt. 10:9, 10). The disciples were to worry about nothing. They were to trust in God, and that which they needed would be supplied. When they entered a city, the apostles were to abide in anyone's house who was willing to feed and lodge them. In that way, God cared for the co-workers of His Son. We also notice that some cities would reject the teaching of the truth and not care for the material needs of the teachers. There would be cities, however, that they could depend upon for support; and, if they were cast from one city, they could retire to another and friendlier city. Doubtless, some of the apostles went hungry more than one night because they were cast from one city, and it was too late to journey to another.

Villagers continued to care for the disciples until the vehement denunciation of Christ by the Pharisees caused them to lose faith in Him and His gospel or cast fear into their hearts. At any rate, support for the disciples became more and more meager as the betrayal day drew nearer and ever nearer.

On the night of the betrayal, Jesus confronted eleven of the disciples in the Garden. He asked them the question, "When I sent you out without any purse or bag or shoes, was there anything you needed?" (Luke 22:35, Good-speed.) After thinking for a moment, the disciples declared they had lacked nothing. Though there may have been no luxuries, all life's necessities had been supplied.

Now, however, Jesus gave them a new commandment, a new plan. "From now on you are to take those things with you that I told you earlier were not necessary. Then you went only to the region of Galilee; now I am sending you into the whole world; for a time the people received you because they received Me; now they will reject you because they soon will reject Me. No longer will others provide for you (though it would be better for the gospel's sake if they would), you must provide for yourselves." In enumerating those things which the disciples were to take with them, Jesus seemingly added swords to the list. "He that hath no sword, let him sell his garment, and buy one" (Luke 22:36b). Now combine the notes of Bullinger and Clarke, and read the last part of verse 36 thus: "He that hath not money, let him sell his garment, and buy." Notice that there is no mention of "sword." This is logical, for Jesus was telling the apostles to prepare for their journeys. "If you have a purse, scrip, and shoes, well and good, but if you have not these things, sell your surplus clothing and buy them." According to Clarke, the word "sword" was added so as to link this verse with verse 38, where the disciples stated, "Lord, behold, here are two swords."

A knife was an important part of every man's supplies in those days. It was used for various reasons, such as protection from robbers, protection from wild animals, or an instrument with which to secure food. If it be thought by the reader that subtracting the word "sword" from the text is subtracting from the Word of God, let him be assured (if the commentaries are correct) that this is not the case. The Greek term translated "sword," however, also can be translated "large knife."

Possibly, the apostles misunderstood Jesus' meaning, though, because they brought two swords to Him. They may have brought them to protect Jesus, however, since in verse 37, Jesus had quoted Isaiah's prophecy, "He was reckoned among the transgressors." The disciples may have thought as they produced the swords, "Not if we can help it." Thinking that Jesus' only hope for escape

THE GOSPEL ARMOR

"Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might. Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil. For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places.

"Wherefore take unto you the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand. Stand therefore, having your loins girt about with truth, and having on the breastplate of righteousness; and your feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace; above all, taking the shield of faith, wherewith ye shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked. And take the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God: praying always with all prayer and supplication in the Spirit, and watching thereunto with all perseverance and supplication for all saints."

(Eph. 6:10-18.)

from possible capture lay in their ability as swordsmen, the disciples found what they could and prepared to protect Jesus to the very death if necessary. Later, Peter used his sword for this purpose.

Their plan was interrupted by a stern disapproval from Jesus as He exclaimed, "Enough of this!" (Goodspeed.) It was not the intention of Jesus that the disciples use violence. If the word "sword" is to be taken literally, there is a deeper meaning in the text than the writer can see.

Today, the Sword of the Spirit of God is sufficient for the Christian. The Word of God is sharper than any two-edged sword. The Word of God can discern intangible things. It affects the heart of a person, and affects it in such way as completely to change the life of that person. Reliance upon the Word of God is the only way to spread that Word, and it is the only way to gain an entrance into God's Kingdom. Reliance upon the Word of God (which contains essential truths) will lead to action (baptism, followed by a life of continuous dedication and service to God). Christ is coming! Be prepared!

The Writing on the Wall

By Mary Mae Nedrow, Oregon, Illinois

"In the same hour came forth fingers of a man's hand, and wrote over against the candlestick upon the plaister of the wall" (Daniel 5:5).

BELSHAZZAR felt serene and secure as he sat upon his throne in the beautiful city of Babylon, which city was famous for its walls and hanging gardens, one of the "Seven Wonders of the Ancient World." On this illustrious occasion, the king had invited a thousand of his lords to a great feast, and ordered his servants to bring the "golden vessels that were taken out of the temple of the house of God which was at Jerusalem; and his princes, his wives, and his concubines, drank in them" (v. 3). Concerning this great feast, Flavius Josephus, the Jewish historian, had this to say: "He [the king] . . . sat down at supper in a large room, and there were a great many vessels of silver, such as were made for royal entertainments, and he had with him his concubines and his friends; whereupon he came to a resolution, and commanded that those vessels of God which Nebuchadnezzar had plundered out of Jerusalem, and had not made use of, but had put them into his own temple, should be brought out of the temple. He also grew so haughty as to proceed to use them in the midst of his cups, drinking out of them, and blaspheming against God."

The holy Scriptures tell us that on that night, as the king and his banqueters profaned these sacred vessels and sang in revelry and "praised the gods of gold, and of silver, of brass, of iron, of wood, and of stone," a hand wrote on the wall. As they watched the fingers writing, they were filled with terror, for none could read the spectral words. "Then the king's countenance was changed, and his thoughts troubled him, so that the joints of his loins were loosed, and his knees smote one against the other. The king cried aloud to bring in the astrologers, the Chaldeans, and the soothsayers," that they might interpret the writing. Since none could interpret the writing on the wall, Daniel was brought to the king. Unafraid, he pronounced judgment, saying, "Thou . . . O Belshazzar, hast not humbled thy heart . . . but hast lifted up thyself against the Lord of heaven. . . . God hath numbered thy kingdom, and finished it. . . . Thou art weighed in the balances, and art found wanting. . . . Thy kingdom is divided, and given to the Medes and Persians" (5:22-28).

Daniel's words came true that very night when the Persian army came, besieged, and took the city of Babylon and killed Belshazzar. It was by stratagem and not by force that this strongly fortified city was taken, though it was supposed to have been impregnable. The plans had been well made and executed on this fatal night. Instructions had been given by Cyrus to turn the channel of the Euphrates River into an artificial lake not far away. Then at a given signal after the waters receded, they entered the channel and forded the river under the walls, thus gaining entrance into the city. Even after they had entered the city under the outer walls, there were the inner walls to encounter, these walls having huge gates of brass which were guarded by soldiers night and day, so no enemy could pass. The guards, though, had forgotten their duty that night, and were drunken to the extent that they had left the gates unfastened, thus allowing the enemy to pass into the city.

Whenever we feel we are secure, we can be sure danger is imminent, and it may be nearly upon us. We find by reading these interesting narratives in the Bible that God's Word is, and always will be, fulfilled, just as it was at the Belshazzar feast. We must always hearken to the call of God's Word.

News and Prophecy Digest

By C. E. Randall, Fonthill, Ontario

CALM DOWN. In the current issue of "Journal of Living" appears an article on how to "calm down." The article starts out with this sentence, "The world looks very black to you, and you are tortured by intolerable nervous symptoms." True, a great number of people see the world in this perspective. The second paragraph opens with these words: "Cheer up." To this great company of troubled minds, there is a way of escape from what has been termed an "intolerable situation." Many are seeking such an escape through psychological ways of life. Doubtless, some of the splitting and nerve-wracking individuals, who have had a jumpiness and jitteriness born of emotional causes, can find some relief by the real deliverance from the blues and other dangerous nervous conditions where people are inwardly frantically crying for help. Such relief can be found in a prescription given by Dr. Thomas Hyslop of the West Riding Asylum in England. In an address to the British Medical Association, he said: "The best sleep-producing agent which my practices have revealed to me is prayer. I say this," said he, "purely as a medical man. The exercise of prayer, in those who habitually exert it, must be regarded by us doctors as the most adequate and normal of all pacifiers of the mind and calmers of the nerve."

The Christian life and especially that part of the Christian life in which we resort to prayer gives one a new grip on life. The late Harry M. Warren, pastor of the Central Park Baptist Church in New York, was led to organize the Save-a-Life League, which has been instrumental in persuading thirty thousand people who are determined to end their own lives, to change their decision and seek this higher road to better living, better hope, with an objective in life that lifts one from the state of despondency and desperation to a determination that all things can be accomplished through Jesus Christ. Christ in you will calm you down.

BAZAAR UNION. An ex-West Point chaplain, John Buckman Walfour, in an acceptance address as being of Atlantis Cathedral of Saint Philip, gave a very brief but plain description of the type of church union that is gripping the minds of religious leaders today. Said he: "I live for the day when the Episcopal Church will sponsor a bazaar in a Baptist Church at which a Jewish auctioneer will sell goods for the benefit of a Roman Catholic orphanage."

This is about the only type of church union that can be successfully concluded. To achieve such a union, men throw to the four winds the basic faiths which they have held as fundamental, preferring to unite in a cosmopolitan bazaar union and enjoy the comradeship of their fellows rather than standing alone for the truths which they believe the Scriptures to teach. Chaplain Walfour, while believing in all so-called Christianity being forged into a single religious family, has well described the only possible means of attaining such an end—a bazaar union.

FUTURISM. During recent months, there have been some attacks made on the futurist interpretation of prophecy. One such article appeared in the "Gnat" for April, 1947, and was reprinted in the "World's Crisis" as feature article. One of the paragraphs in this article sets forth three propositions as guides to a clear interpretation of prophecy. They are stated as follows:

"1. Each separate prophecy begins in the time of the prophet and extends to the time of the coming of the Messiah.

"2. There were two comings of the Messiah and hence two termini; namely, the first advent and the second advent.

"3. The correct view being had of the proper terminus, in the case of the given prophecy, the choice of an exposition becomes that much simpler."

We have no particular objection to people believing in the historical interpretation of prophecy, but it does appear to us that some of our brethren of adventful hope would not find it necessary to give their interpretation of prophecy to make such harsh jibes at those who believe in the coming Day of the Lord and who apply the scriptures that speak of that Day to that period of time. It rather looks as though they are afraid of the logic of scripturalness of futurist interpretation.

A DEMONSTRATION NATION. We have an old copy of the "Jewish Christian Community" in which thought is expressed: "In the center of this divine comedy stands God's demonstration nation, Israel. Israel is not the church, and the church is not Israel. Israel is the Jewish people. He who mistakes Israel for the church (and vice versa) closes against himself the door to important and decisive truths.

"The Jews are the demonstration nation of God. That is the meaning of the Jewish people being chosen. They are neither better nor worse than the other nations, and by shaping of their fate they have neither more advantages or disadvantages as compared to the others; for God is the God and Father of all nations that acknowledge Him—the Jews have only been set apart that in their national destiny, God's intentions, will and working may be demonstrated in a particular way and on a higher plane. God's people for demonstration, the Jews, are the hands of the world's clock."

This description of this special and peculiar people well fits into the Biblical description of God's purpose for this people who ultimately will become a royal nation and a kingdom of priests when ten men out of all nations will take hold of the skirt of him who is a Jew, saying: "We will go with you: for we have heard that God is with you."

There are many distorted interpretations of the Scripture because of people's failure to distinguish between Israel, the nation which is God's estranged wife, and the church, which is the bride of Christ and who eventually will become His wife.

CHRIST'S RESURRECTION. I have before me two publications. One is a young people's paper, and the other is a denominational church paper, and the editorials in both these papers seek to place the resurrection of Christ on Saturday. This effort, of course, is done to support their contention of the Jewish Sabbath being binding on the Christian church. The Scripture seems very plain on this question of the day when Jesus was raised from the tomb. Mark used the expression, "Early the first day of the week." Allowing him to define his own terms, he used the expression, "At the rising of the sun," to explain what he meant, "Early in the first day of the week." As in Paul's time, there are many today who would "frustrate the grace of God" and make void the death of Christ by requiring people to observe an old covenant that was a shadow of the new covenant founded on better promises and with a better hope.

NOT FOR ADVENTISTS. The Seventh Day Adventists in their General Conference in Los Angeles went on record as opposing their children accepting free transportation to and from their private schools at the expense of the state. They passed the following resolution: "For pupils to ride to and from Seventh Day Adventist schools in public buses is, in principle, contrary to the historic position of the Adventist Church, which holds that church and state should be kept separate.

"That Seventh Day Adventists in the United States refuse to use buses which are operated at public expense for the free transportation of their children to and from our church schools, because of the embarrassment such a course would bring to the denomination in view of our stand."

This great religious body is deserving commendation for its stand on this pressing issue. We feel sure its people will rise up to the occasion and refuse to accept free transportation, rather than embarrass their church. It would be well if all church folk would be cautious in their daily habits so as not to cause embarrassment to their church.

THE NAVY LOOKS AHEAD. The United States Navy has asked Congress to appropriate three million dollars toward construction of an ultimate seven-million-dollar "super high power" radio station near Seattle, Washington. The purpose is to provide communications for naval defenses in Alaska, the Aleutians, and the Pacific Northwest. The Navy recognizes that no permanent peace is in sight. Speed the day when nations shall learn war no more.—Editor.

Genesis 1-3—A Key to the Scriptures

By A. J. Blakesley, Sumas, Washington

A KEY to the Scripture should be apparent to every Bible reader. There is no generally recognized standard of truth today, because there is no generally recognized standard of Biblical interpretation. Men are justifying a doctrinally divided Christianity by the unwarranted claim that the minds of men are so constituted that they cannot all see alike. True, we do not all see alike. It is not God, however, who has caused us to understand differently, but man by his many and diverse theories of interpreting Scripture. The Holy Spirit was promised to guide Christians into all truth. How can two, guided by the same Spirit, reach conclusions so at variance and violently antagonistic?

A key to the Scripture must be a correct standard of Biblical interpretation. Is there such a key? Yes, the key to the Scripture is in the Scripture. Every prophet and apostle had this key and used it. The key is, we believe, the first three chapters of Genesis. As one interprets the first three chapters of Genesis, he must and will interpret the whole Scripture. Here are the beginnings of revelation of which all succeeding revelations were mainly unfolded. Here are fountains that later became springs and rivers. Here are seed truths which, by inspired prophets and apostles, made great trees of knowledge. Notice how all Bible writers confirmed Genesis 1-3 in their literal interpretation of these three chapters.

The Genesis Revelation of God

God begins revelation with Himself, "In the beginning God" (Genesis 1:1). God never argues His existence. He only affirms it. No Bible writer argues God's existence. All affirm it. Paul taught that God has form. (Phil. 2:6.) The writer of the Hebrews taught that God is a Person. (Heb. 1:3.)

No true Bible writer ever held the current concept of God as an impersonal principle. Every true Bible writer held the same concept of God as is presented in Genesis 1-3—that He is a personal Being with all the attributes of a divine Personality. The God of the Scripture is uncreated—self-existent and from "everlasting to everlasting."

The Genesis Revelation of Creation

Heaven and earth were created, not evolved. (Gen. 1:1.) To this agrees every inspired writer. To create is to make something from nothing, to bring into existence that which before had no existence. "Through faith we understand that the worlds were framed by the word of God, so that the things which are seen were not made of things which do appear" (Heb. 11:3). We know nothing about the power to create. The process only is revealed. God spoke and it was done. When God said, "Let there be"—at once it was!

Nehemiah affirmed the Genesis account of Creation to the returned captives from Babylon. (Neh. 9:6.) Paul preached the Genesis account of Creation to the superstitious Athenians. (Acts 17:24.) Jesus affirmed the Genesis account of Creation, by His angel, to John on Patmos, crying with a loud voice, "Fear God, and give glory to him . . . that made heaven, and earth, and the sea, and the fountains of waters" (Rev. 14:7).

The Genesis Revelation of Man

Man was created; he did not evolve. "God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him" (Gen. 1:27). No true Bible writer treats man as an evolution. Man is the product of a creative act—not a process. Genesis 2:7 and Ecclesiastes 7:29 show that man was created upright, but fell. Man's fall was not upward, as evolutionists teach. All this "cave man stuff" is silly imagination. God made man "after his own image" (Gen. 1:26). Man did not first bear the image of the brute. God created man to have dominion. God made woman to be "an help meet for him" (Gen. 2:18).

The account of man's creation (Gen. 1:26) states a fact in the concrete. God unfolded the facts in detail as follows: "The Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul [or creature]." The man of the dust became a soul by the breath of life that was breathed into his nostrils. That breath of life was not the soul; the man was the soul.

Man and all beasts have the same breath. (Ecc. 3:19.) The first man was "of the earth, earthy" (1 Cor. 15:47). In death, man has "no preeminence above a beast." They all "go unto one place; all are of the dust, and all turn to dust again" (Ecc. 3:19, 20).

Creation brought man from the dust. (Gen. 2:7.) Death sends man back to dust. (Gen. 3:19.) The resurrection will bring man back from the dust. (Dan. 12:2; John 5:28, 29.) "Awake and sing, ye that dwell in dust" (Isa. 26:19). In the meantime, the "dead know not any thing" (Ecc. 9:5).

Genesis Account of Man on Trial

Why should God try the man He had made? To prove his fitness to rule by his obedience. To acquire traits that God could not give him. God could, and did, confer His image and likeness by creation, but God did not create character. Character is the sum of one's moral and spiritual qualities. Character must be self-wrought. Trial is required in the formation of character. Temptation is necessary to being tried. Permission of evil is necessary to being tempted. God set life and death before our first parents. God sets the same before us—not heaven and hell for us. Men are candidates for immortality. This life is a probationary period for eternal life. Satan was in Eden, deceiving, and he has deceived the whole world. (Rev. 12:9.) His presence in Eden was confirmed by Ezekiel. "Thou hast been in Eden, the Garden of God" (28:13).

The woman fell first through the Serpent's subtilty (Gen. 3:1-5), and this is confirmed in Romans. "Wherefore, as by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men" (5:12).

Other Genesis Reckoning and Confirmation

The Serpent was henceforth to crawl—things of the dust to be its diet all its days. (Gen. 3:14.) This would have been no penalty, had it always so crawled and eaten. Eve's conception was multiplied to "bring forth in sorrow." (Gen. 3:16.) Man was given rule over the woman henceforth. (3:16.) Paul confirmed the Genesis account of Eve's fall through deception. (1 Tim. 2:14, 15.) Paul affirmed the headship of man over the woman, saying, "Wives, submit yourselves unto your own husbands, as unto the Lord. For the husband is the head of the wife, even as Christ is the head of the church" (Eph. 5:22, 23). Because of woman's greater susceptibility to deception—cited in the fall of Eve in 1 Timothy 2:14—Paul who had the care of the churches (2 Cor. 11:28) suffered not the women to teach, nor to "usurp authority over the man" (1 Tim. 2:11-15; 1 Cor. 14:34, 35). This prohibition has not been removed, Scripturally, though widely disregarded. Adam's penalty was to toil under the curse of thistles and thorns in the sweat of his face for sustenance from the soil, until in death he should return to the ground from whence he was taken. (Gen. 3:17-19.) Man was driven from the Garden of Eden, "lest he put forth his hand, and take also of the tree of life, and eat, and live for ever" (Gen. 3:22-24). God guarded against man living forever in sin.

Genesis' Foregleams of Redemption and Redeemer

In the seed of the woman, not man, in the bruised heel, is seen Christ's death! In the bruised head, Satan submits to defeat. In the clothing of skins, God imputed righteousness, typifying Christ's atonement. Christ, our Redeemer, is the seed of the woman. If Christ had not come, died, and rose again, all men would have been lost in death by sin. (1 Cor. 15:18.)

WHAT IS PREDESTINATION?

that God has not only permitted man to choose his own course of action, but has obliged him to make the choice.

Now, how can God permit men the freedom to choose as they will, and still foreknow how they will choose? This is as great a mystery to our finite understanding as the operation of a radio to a grasshopper; as great a mystery as how God can raise the dead and restore living bodies which have been scattered as dust the world around. These things we must take on faith. Yet both must be true: that God does foreknow all things and, also, that He leaves men free to choose right or wrong as they will. Otherwise, the Bible becomes a hodge-podge of meaningless contradictions.

Many people are puzzled by passages such as Ephesians 1:4, 5 and Romans 8:28-30. Such predestination as is meant no doubt has reference to the group and not individuals in the group. In the previous age, God purposed to create a people for His glory and did. Israel was predestined as a nation, but not each individual Israelite, for many were lost and purged out, and many more will be in the future. In fact, only a remnant eventually will be saved, yet Israel as a nation will be eternally before God. So God predestines that the bride of Christ shall have an eternal place in His plan, but those who have a part in that body are determined by the individual choices of each one.

In any such question as this, it is a dangerous thing to use only partial Bible testimony; only by using the whole Bible are we safeguarded against false and misleading conclusions.

There is scarcely any other doctrine so destructive of right living than this teaching that all we do is predestined of God. All kinds of sin can thus be condoned on the grounds that we are not responsible for what we do.

God lays down the conditions under which men may share in the high calling; then, "whosoever will may come" (Rev. 22:17).

A LITTLE MORE, A LITTLE LESS

"A little more kindness; a little less creed;
A little more giving; a little less greed;
A little more smile; a little less frown;
A little less licking a man when he's down.
A little more 'we'; a little less 'I';
A little more laugh; a little less cry;
A little more flowers on the pathway of life,
And fewer on graves at the end of life."

TO TEXAS MEMBERS

By Mrs. J. T. Gandy, Mullin, Texas

It is the duty of all members of the Church of God scattered about Texas to make the Texas State Conference a success. If we have faith enough to work and do our part, we can do this. If we are ever going to build up our church work, it is time we were starting. Other brethren are interested in us and trying to help us. It is time we were interested and helping ourselves. Let's everyone plan to come to Conference with a spirit of co-operation, ready and willing to help. Our Lord is coming again soon. Will He find us slack and unfaithful? I pray not. Let us all plan to go and we will be blessed for it. Being with brethren of like precious faith is a blessing few of us enjoy very often.

MORE LIKE THE MASTER

By Mrs. M. G. Mitcheltree, Ysleta, Texas

OFTTIMES a phrase by repetition loses weight and some of its meaning. Since my childhood, songs and articles on this subject, "More Like the Master," were put before me, but only lately the meaning of the title "Master" really has been borne unto me.

When Christ was preparing the apostles for His departure, He gave them this blessing, "Fear not, I have overcome [or mastered] the world." Take time to read the three years of Christ's ministry: walking dusty roads, healing, talking until mortally weary, always serving and thinking of others first. One weary day, Jesus came to Peter's home. Before He could be offered hospitality, He must first heal the sick. It was ever thus: others first.

We know from the story in Genesis that Adam, the first man, was not a master. He was mastered by his own will and desires. Not so with Christ! How did He do these things? With a great measure of God's Spirit! What constituted this great measure of the Spirit? Love!

As one reads the Parable of the Talents, he is prone to moan, "I have none." There is one gift, or talent, given to everyone—love. Love, like any other thing with life, grows. Peter, one of the beloved apostles of Jesus, walked and talked with Jesus, performed miracles, and healed the halt, the lame, and the blind in Jesus' Name. Still, at Christ's meeting with them near His end of earth's walk, He had to take Peter and teach him the great lesson again, as one would teach a child his "ABC's." Three times, Jesus said, "Feed my sheep." Does it not mean, "Love these more than thyself"? Finally Peter mastered the phrase. He became a master for the Master's sake. We know from writings in the Book of Acts that Peter mastered himself in the days to follow.

Would you be more like the Master? Then, as Paul wrote, you must "die daily," overcome daily these things not eternal but worldly and of short duration. It is a pearl of great price, this gospel, a prize worth striving for. If we accept Christ's words, "Love thy neighbour as thyself," and if we accept that the "greatest of these is charity [love]," the door will open to a more enjoyable life now and an eternal one when the Master comes. "For God so loved the world, that he sent his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life" (John 3:16).

"AS IN ADAM ALL DIE"

By E. M. Wilson

"The author of this article was an able leader of our people in Goldthwaite, Texas, in years gone by. It is submitted by his daughter, Mrs. G. L. Bates, of Corpus Christi, in memory of one who loved the Truth, of whom she says, 'If this man were alive, he would be at the Texas State Conference at Ater in August.'"—M. W. Lyon.

THE APOSTLE PAUL wrote, "As in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive." Some construe this text to mean that one has to get into Christ to be raised from the dead. If this were so, no one who lived before the time of Christ ever would be made alive again. Why? Because no one was in Christ before Christ came into existence.

Christ existed only in promise before He was born; therefore no one was in Christ (except by promise to be in Him in the resurrection) who died before Jesus came the first time. If one says none but those who get into Christ in this life will be raised, he either argues the pre-existence of Jesus, or he will have to say that those who died before Christ came will not be raised.

As the people who argue that no one but those that are baptized into Christ ever will come to a resurrection believe that Jesus did not pre-exist, they will have to take the other horn of the dilemma and say that they are honestly mistaken. Their arguments lead to the conclusion that one has to die in Christ in order to be raised in Him. In a sense, one does have to die, insofar as immortality is concerned; but there is another sense in which the Adamic race died in Christ when He died. Paul said, "I reckon that if one died for all, then were all dead." We died in Christ in the same sense that we sinned in Adam. Adam sinned for us, and brought death. Christ died for us, and brought life.

"Cast thy bread upon the waters: for thou shalt find it after many days. Give a portion to . . . eight; for thou knowest not what evil shall be upon the earth."

Joshua Forgets

God had told Joshua utterly to destroy both people and their possessions as they went into Canaan. This they had done at Jericho and Ai. When one man failed to obey God, he and his family and possessions were destroyed.

Now the people of Gibeon, another city in Canaan, heard of the work of the Israelites, and they were afraid. They had reason to be fearful, did they not? The people of Gibeon decided to play a trick on Joshua. They dressed some men in shabby, old clothes. Their wine bottles were old, torn, and patched. Their food, the bread, which they took along, was old and moldy. Why did they do this?

They wanted Joshua to think they had come from far away. They said, "We be come from a far country: now therefore make ye a league with us" (Josh. 9:6).

Though Joshua had felt sorry for these messengers, he should have obeyed God, but the men and Joshua all forgot to pray for God's guidance. They thoughtlessly believed these men and made a peace treaty with them.

It Is So Easy

It is so easy to forget the right way. It is so easy to forget we are under God's rules today. It is easy to try to figure our problems out without consulting God and the Word. We must remember to honor and respect God's laws for His people. Our laws as Christians are based on love. The royal law is to love our neighbors as ourselves. (James 2:8.) The golden law is, "As ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise" (Luke 6:31).

If we follow those two laws, we will be better than if we forget. Then remember also to ask God's guidance in all things however small our problems seem.

Found Out

After the Gibeonites had been at Joshua's headquarters in Gilgal for three days, they were found out. They were near-by neighbors! They had been pretenders!

When Joshua heard about them, he called them to him. He wanted to know why they had tricked him. As usual, when judgment is nearing, the people were afraid. How fearful people are when they think something unusual is happening in our world today! They, as a whole, are filled with fear, too. Only those who have peace with God in their hearts are not afraid of the things coming to pass upon the world.

Joshua asked, "Wherefore have ye beguiled us?"

They answered, "We were sore afraid of our lives because of you."

Joshua kept his promise. He did not destroy them, but they were not allowed to go free. He kept them as servants to the Israelites. (Josh. 9:23.)

Keeping Promises

Christians today still keep their promises. Because that fact is true, one should be thoughtful about the things one promises.

There are big promises as the marriage vows, and the personal acceptance of Jesus as our Saviour, and the promise to follow Him all through life. We are to keep little promises, too.

Suppose you promise your brother or friend a longed-for toy if he will do a favor for you. Later you realize you like your toy. You had thoughtlessly promised something you did not want to do. What is the Christian way? Keep your promise. If one does not keep his word, the friends and neighbors soon learn this and finally no one will believe this person. Keep your word. Be true to yourself or you cannot be true to God.

Common Sense

"If your nose is close to the grindstone rough,
And you keep it down there long enough,
You will soon forget that there are such things
As a brook that bubbles and a bird that sings.
Three things will your world compose:
Yourself, the stone, and your aching nose."

NEWS

FROM THE BEREANS

Silver Sunday in Wenatchee . . .

"One year ago, one would find in the July 17 issue of the Wenatchee Berean News this item: 'The Wenatchee Berean Society is aiming high . . . and they expect to hit the mark. . . . They plan to buy a Hammond Electric organ for the church.' With these words (plus $50.00 from the treasury), the Bereans launched the organ fund.

"Since the Christian way is to 'pull the mote out of your own eye first,' the Bereans decided to find out how much money they themselves could raise in one week through a little self-sacrifice on their part." The proceeds were brought to the church service on July 13 in silver dollars, this being the Berean Silver Sunday.

"Although there are only about one dozen wage earners, in the local society, and those small wage earners, the one week of special effort and sacrifice on the part of the dozen Bereans produced 200 silver dollars." The fund now totals $613.85.

Whoever said that young people cannot produce? You will notice, however, the words effort and sacrifice. That is exactly what is required of any worth-while Christian project if it is to produce results. You can do as much for your church by the same means.

Library for Happy Woods . . .

Brother James Mattison reports that the Bereans of his Louisiana Church have been very active this past year. Their activity probably is sparked by their young missionary-minded pastor and their returned Summer School students.

In addition to helping to maintain and beautify the church house, they are working to establish a church library. An Emphatic Diaglott, Smith's Bible Dictionary, and Jamieson, Faussett and Brown Commentary already have been purchased, with a list of several other translations of the Bible, a concordance and other religious books in prospect.

This seems to us to be a project well worthy of the purpose and name of the Berean society. What better incentive to study the Scriptures, to prepare well-informed classes, and to gain saving knowledge of God, than a well-appointed church library? Few of our churches have such an asset! Here is a project worthy of repetition in every Berean society.

The New Nobler . . .

The Berean Nobler, official organ of the Minnesota Bereans, has acquired a new staff and a new appearance. Ernest E. Graham is the editor, and Grace L. Johnson the publisher. The paper has eight neatly mimeographed pages in a colorful binding. It is chock full of news, articles, poems, and clippings.

A gold star to the Nobler staff for an attractive and useful paper. It might be astounding to know the amount of good done in maintaining interest, uniting the workers, and spreading the gospel, by the Nobler and other Berean publications.

Young People's Church Service . . .

Bereans the country over have been increasing their influence by taking charge of their churches' evening services occasionally. The Oregon Bereans have complete charge of every third Sunday evening's service. Their program problems are somewhat simplified by the presence of Oregon Bible College students. They offer a varied program, however, with new ideas quite prevalent. Recently the young people presented an all-musical program with the Berean orchestra and choir carrying most of the burden. They also have had ladies' night and men's night.

The Eldorado Junior Bereans also have conducted an evening service in the absence of a pastor. The Cleveland young people had charge of the last Sunday's services in Cleveland for the summer, presenting sermonettes by Kenneth Davidson, Jack Hearp, and Charles Jones. Perhaps other groups have been doing the same thing.

It has been our observation that these services, led by youth and geared to young ideas, are enjoyed as much, if not more, by the adults in the congregation, as by the youth. With good preparation, you young people can present a lively, vibrant program which has in addition an elevating spirit rare in church services. Nothing is more impressive to a church than the sight of devoted young people leading in worship of God.

Youth Rally Successful . . .

The Oregon Berean Youth Rally was very successful and profitable to all who attended. There were forty-six students enrolled, which is an excellent beginning. Much credit goes to Brother James Watkins and the staff of the Rally for the good attendance and interesting meetings.

This is a pioneer rally and we hope the first of many to follow. Whether we have more and bigger rallies will depend upon the reports taken home by those who attended this year's meeting. Talk it up when you go home, young people, and encourage those who stayed home this year to send a large delegation to the Rally next year.

If you like the idea of meeting with other young people of your church, why not have some local and state youth rallies between now and next summer? Let's make the Oregon rally pay—all year!

BAPTISM—HOPE CHAPEL (South Bend, Indiana)

We are happy to introduce to the household of faith Mr. and Mrs. Robert Follin of 317½ Center St., Michigan City, Ind., who were baptized, July 25, 1947, in Diamond Lake, Mich. Mrs. Follin was formerly Miss Joan Kirkley of Plymouth, Ind.

Although they are isolated, we are glad to enroll them as members of Hope Chapel and pray God's blessing on them as they begin the new life in Christ. Floyd A. Stilson.

COLLEGE NEWS

The Summer Session of Oregon Bible College concluded on July 25.

The last two weeks, especially, were filled with activities, both school work and recreation. Although we students were kept busy preparing term papers for Bros. McLeod and Dick, we managed to find time to entertain the Youth Rally at a social gathering and also to give a barbecue supper for the members of the Oregon Church in appreciation of the way they welcomed us and made our visit an enjoyable one. The Youth Rally also was invited.

Our work here in Oregon has helped all of us better to understand God's great love and the Christian way of life. We long will remember the things we have learned and the acquaintances we have made. We are indebted to our instructors, Bros. McLeod, Dick, and Watkins, for their guidance and understanding of our undertakings.

Now we are separating. Some of us are going home to our families and friends; others are staying for Conference. Wherever we may go, however, I know we have a greater understanding of God's great plan of salvation, and we are thankful for this school where we can study that we might help others to salvation through Christ.

Laura Mae Bankston, Reporter.

ARKANSAS-OKLAHOMA CONFERENCE BAPTISMS

During the Arkansas and Oklahoma Conference at Bear, Ark., July 24-27, two requested baptism of Bro. Fred Hall. They were Jesse Roberson and David Hall of Cleveland, Ark. Six others came forward and requested baptism of the writer. They were: Roy, Ishmael, Robert, and Ruby Humphreys of Bear; also Mary Esther and Kitty Ruth Sprinkle of Cheyenne, Wyo.

This was indeed a happy privilege to assist them in putting on Christ by baptism. Sunday, at 9:30 a.m.

MEDITATION

By Mary Mae Nedrow

Have you ever watched the people who choose to wend their way to some friendly little church early on a Sabbath day? Have you noticed the smile on their faces and the buoyancy in their walk . . . and never for a moment is there discouragement in their talk . . . And are not hearts made lighter as this happiness all can see, radiantly shining in the hearts of humble folks like you and me?

ROSEY ANN COOLEY

Rosey Ann Hawley, daughter of David and Mary Hawley, was born near Yale in Jasper County, Ill., August 2, 1865, and died, April 5, 1947. On March 12, 1884, she was married to Thomas Cooley of Clark County, Ill. To this union, eight children were born, four boys and four girls, namely: Luther of California, Sylvester of Martinsville, Ill., Mrs. Minta Snyder of Nowata, Okla., Mrs. Tineie Stephens of Martinsville, Otto Cooley of Casey, Dewey of Robinson, Mrs. Fay Stephens of Annapolis, and Mrs. Dessie Thompson of Dennison, Ill. Soon after marriage, she and her husband were baptized into Christ, becoming members of His body; and, in her long life that followed, a life of hard work, mingled with joys and sorrows, her faith never wavered in God's promises, but grew stronger as the days went by. After her family was grown, and she began to find a little time on her hands, nothing pleased her better than to be in the services of her Lord.

She cared for her husband during a long affliction. Fourteen years ago he died, leaving her alone. Although sixty-seven years old, she refused to break up her home which she maintained to the end. In the last few years of life, she was a great care to her children, but Aunt Rose Ann did not think so. A great amount of credit is due these children who, at the disadvantage of their own homes, allowed Mother the satisfaction of having her own home.

Those who mourn her death are her entire family of eight children, before named, thirty-three children who called her "Grandma," forty-one children who called her "Great-grandma," one brother, Monroe Hawley of Detroit, Mich., one sister, Louise Lorena Hamblin of Saint Louis, Mo., her neighbors, and a host of friends.

Here appended is a little poem by her granddaughter, Mrs. Merle Cooley Fuson:

She has not gone, but is sleeping today;

We will miss her sorely each passing day.

The vacancy will always stay,

Until we meet again some Better Day.

Charles Hickox.

LOOKING AHEAD

Special Christian greetings to the General Conference: its officers, ministers, and delegates in the Lord! I send you loving regards, and my prayer to God is that He will bless each of you and fill your hearts with joy, gladness, and overflowing love for the truth. The Church of God in Christ are the people with the greatest responsibility of all peoples on earth today, because we must teach God's one-and-only plan of salvation to fallen mankind.

I desire an interest in your prayers, as my health will not permit me to come to the Conference. My doctor advised that I rest in bed part-time until fall; then I can renew my gospel work. I thank God for His blessings. The cards and letters I received while in bed for more than six weeks were greatly enjoyed and were a great help to me.

Looking ahead, I am sure the General Conference will see the need for a radio station. It would be a great factor in the College work and in sending out the great gospel truths to millions of people that can be reached only by radio. Some of these are the blind, aged people, the sick in hospitals, and the many isolated ones of the Faith.

When and if this radio station is built, there will be a demand for phonograph records with gospel discourses, songs of truth, Bible-study subjects, readings, essays, many good quartets, and fine programs in church work which can be recorded on blank records by a recording machine.

Oh! If we only could reproduce the voices of the teachers of the early Churches of God with their fine discourses on Bible subjects: men who dared to speak the truth! They were Bros. Wiley Jones, W. H. Wilson, J. M. Stephenson, and others. Who would not also be delighted if they could hear the voices of Bros. L. E. Conner, S. J. Lindsay, J. H. Anderson, and others who sleep in death. In a very few years, the voices and Bible discourses of dear Brothers C. E. Randall, G. E. Marsh, Alfred Anthon, Sr. Emma C. Railsback, Bros. J. A. Marsh, M. W. Lyon, J. M. Watkins, F. L. Austin, Sydney E. Magaw, and many others of the Faith will be hushed in death. Why not leave on record some of their fine discourses on Bible subjects, with their voices reproduced for later broadcasting?

Looking ahead, I plan this fall, if God so directs, to buy a phonograph recording machine. Everyone who sends a donation for this gospel and song-recording work of the Lord will receive a phonograph record free.

I am happy to report that the one thousand sets of five volumes are "off the press" and soon will be ready to mail. Please order your set by sending a small donation, if you have not already done so. I pray God will bless each of you and give us endless life in the ages of endless joy.

I hope this letter will be read and that all will discuss the radio need. I will be happy if, by motion and recording, the Conference will have its president appoint a committee of five members to give this radio-station subject full consideration, with the great good and lasting benefits in mind that can be accomplished by a radio in the gospel field.

J. M. Morgan, Bristow, Okla.

Full report of the General Conference will be published next week.

HERMAN GROVILLE COCKREL

Mr. Herman Groville Cockrell was born at Hillsboro, Tex., September 20, 1877, and died at his home in Modesto, Calif., July 11, 1947. On May 27, 1916, he was united in marriage with Miss Dessa May Anderson at Big Spring, Texas. Residence was maintained in Texas until some four years ago when the family removed to Modesto, Calif.

Mr. Cockrell had been in ill health for some time, but the end came very suddenly on July 11 by reason of a hemorrhage of the lungs.

Besides his beloved companion, he leaves a daughter, Mrs. Donald Adkins of Ceres, Calif.; a son, Harold W. of Modesto; three brothers: Willis and Sylvester of Texas, and Sollic of San Diego, Calif.; a half-sister, Mrs. Ricie McGee of Texas; also two granddaughters.

Funeral services were conducted on July 14 at the Sovereign Funeral Home in Modesto, and burial was made in the Modesto Cemetery. Mrs. Cockrell is a member of the Church of God at Itan, Tex., and requested the writer's services.

PROCRASTINATION

By W. R. Simmons
Hartshorne, Oklahoma

O Lord! how I would love Thee,
But my heart just won't beat true;
The way is just too narrow,
The gate I can't squeeze through.

The ways of the world so brilliant—
I just can't bid them adieu,
O Lord! love me, a sinner,
For we are not a few.

If only I could take my sins
And go sweeping through the gate,
I'd love Thee then, dear Lord—
Or will it be too late?

Dear Master, I hope to serve Thee
When with this world I'm through,
So, Lord, You just keep waiting—
I'll try to turn to You.

But at last the race was run,
And he found he was too late;
He went down in destruction—
Outside the Golden Gate.

You cannot serve God and mammon;
There is one you have to "hate."
Why not choose eternal life
Before it is too late?

All sinful pleasures will fade away,
And you'll be left alone;
No one there to love you—
No place to call your home.

It will be so sad and lonely
When you have to say "Good-by"—
To Father, Mother, to Sister, Brother—
"My time has come to die."

Gleanings From the Field

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

"We are planning to attend the Texas Conference every chance we can get and to take everyone with us who wishes to go. We have a baby girl about two months old, so that will make it unhandy for us to stay very long at a time, but we are going as much as possible, the Lord being willing. I do hope the conference will be a success and some good be accomplished by it."—Mrs. J. T. Gandy, Mullin, Texas.

Bro. Daniel Judy, a student of the recent Summer School at Oregon, Ill., served in pulpit duties at the Southlawn Park Church of God, Grand Rapids, Mich., July 20 and 27, while the pastor, Bro. John Deuchfield, was on vacation.

Bro. Fred Hall reports the baptism of Hubert Bradford and William Poteet, both of Cleveland, Ark., on Monday, July 21.

We are sorry to learn of the death, July 31, of Sr. Esta Osborn, wife of Bro. Melvin Osborn, Culver, Ind.

Have you recently sent The Herald to a new reader?

"I wish I could come to the General Conference, but the way does not seem clear. . . . God bless you all."—Mrs. H. H. Kent, 1132 Euclid Ave., Pueblo, Colo.

"The Restitution Herald's are very good reading. I hope to use one article, 'The Church Is Not the Kingdom.' Our pastor is always preaching about the Kingdom increasing in the hearts of men. . . . We are asked to 'contend earnestly for the faith,' and Jesus questioned, 'When the Son of man cometh, shall he find faith on the earth?' Is the true faith really just evaporating away?"—J. E. Wardle, Chester Villa, 51 Norfolk Rd., Haddenhead, England.

"In the thirteenth century, one of every fifty persons in England was a clergyman; today the ratio is one in a thousand."

"The fields are white unto harvest." It is time now for Christians to labor in these fields. Soon, the sickle of judgment will cut asunder.

It's hot at Conference!

Conference Time Is Almost Here

The first service of the Texas Conference will be a meeting on Saturday night, August 23, and there will be preaching each night and Bible classes during the day, with meals served on the grounds.

We are glad to announce that Brother Timothy Pearson, graduate this year of Oregon Bible College, will assist in the meeting, and also Brother and Sister Emory Macy of Kokomo, Indiana. It will be a special privilege to have the services of these three devoted workers. Brother M. W. Lyon, of course, will be there also, and, we hope, other preaching brethren as well.

Reports are coming in of folks who are planning to attend from Mullin, Corpus Christi, Riviera, Palestine, San Angelo, and San Saba.

At this first conference, officers will need to be elected, plans for a state program worked out, decision made as to whether to employ an evangelist, funds raised to carry on the work, and many other important matters acted on. Your counsel is needed. This is your conference, and its success or failure may depend on you. Let's all be there!

NOTICE

To All Who Plan to Attend the Texas Conference:

Those who desire and can conveniently, bring your camping equipment. There are plenty of large shade trees on the grounds and a good well of water and windmill. For those who cannot bring their camping equipment, we have the use of the schoolhouse with two large rooms and two cloak rooms, in which we plan on setting up some beds and cots. We also have the use of the teacherage, which has four rooms. We plan to use this house for preparing and serving meals. Sister Edie Wisenbunt will be in charge and oversee the cooking.

Ater is about ten miles northwest of Gatesville, or farther if one travels highway 36 part of the way. At Gatesville, call 2405 or 126 for information, or stop at the Allis Chalmers store, 215 W. Main St., operated by Ernest McCorkle, and ask for me. His dwelling is next to the store.

I might add, bring your pillows and sheets, if you can. It will help us if you will let us know if you are coming, when to expect you, and your needs when you arrive, so we can plan ahead for your accommodation.

So far, we have lined up for teachers, Brothers M. W. Lyon and Timothy Pearson, Brother and Sister Wayne Yows, Brother Hubert Choat, Sister Wilda McCorkle, and Sister John Guthrie. We hope to add to this list by conference time. We are glad to have Brother Pearson come to Texas and hope we will be able to keep him in the State, to help build up the work with our young folks.

Now I wish to dedicate the success of this state meeting to Sister W. L. Robbins of Riviera, Texas, and also to the people out of the State who made it possible for Brother Lyon to come and work with us. It is Sister Robbins' unselfish desire that the Word of God, through His Son Jesus Christ, should be brought before not only her children and grandchildren but to the people of Texas in all purity, that as many as possible may hear, and accept Christ as their Saviour before it is too late. She comes forth with all her influence, work, and desires, being also liberal with her means of support.

Let us all imitate this good sister, and come with an unselfish determination to do, and make amends for what we have neglected the last few years.

A. R. Wolfe, Chairman of Arrangements.

FROM SISTER W. L. ROBBINS.

I have just read Brother Randall's "News and Prophecy Digest" and enjoyed it very much, especially his comment on what could be done if we really are concerned about the spiritual welfare of our neighbors and felt the responsibility that must rest upon each one of us. People are thinking more seriously now than ever before. I have had two young mothers come to me for help in study on Bible subjects. They are badly confused, and seem to be asking for the old paths and seeking the good way. They are not satisfied with their old teaching. It shows how badly we need laborers in the field. If we only can have faith as a grain of mustard seed we can move this mountain that has been in front of us so long. Pray for the conference, that we can make it a success. We hope to see you all there, and will gladly welcome anyone from anywhere that can come.

CHRISTADELPHIAN CONFERENCE

The Christadelphian gathering will begin in San Saba, Texas, August 10, and continue through August 17. Brothers H. P. Zilmer and Norman Zilmer of Chicago, Illinois, will do the speaking. Everyone is cordially invited to attend this meeting and take part in it.

If there is anyone wishing camping reservations, please write to Mrs. Gladys Sowers, Box 409, San Saba, Texas.

We are glad to give space to the preceding announcement from these good Christadelphian brethren who have shown such a fine spirit of co-operation, and have twice welcomed us to the pulpit of their church. Their conference will be in session by the time some of you receive this issue. We hope some of our folks can go. You will enjoy meeting with these brethren at San Saba.

RENEW YOUR HERALD NOW!

One hundred fifty-nine Texas people subscribed to The Restitution Herald the past year. Many of these will be expiring soon, and some already have expired. Do not forget to send in your renewal promptly, so as not to miss any of the splendid issues that you have been enjoying the past months. $2.50 in an envelope, addressed to The Restitution Herald, Oregon, Illinois, will do the trick, and keep this weekly messenger of truth coming into your home for another year.

LISTEN! TEXANS!

To All Texans Wherever You May Be:

The Texas Conference is only a little while off. We must all plan to be there with our prayers. It will be such a great privilege to be together to meet our old friends and new members of our Faith. This is an occasion for which we have all longed. Let us all enjoy it together and be blessed.

Mrs. Martha Willhite, Palestine, Texas.

"BRING YE ALL THE TITHES . . ."

The real test of whether we actually want the Lord's work to go forward will lie in how much we are willing to back it up with our pocketbook. Some, with a deep and true interest in putting the conference on a solid foundation, have contributed heavily of their limited means. Surely there are many more in the State who easily could put in a hundred dollars, as some already have done. How much do we spend weekly on such things as pleasure? movies? juke boxes? gas to go riding? Have we money for new cars, new homes and farms, new machinery, and no money for the gospel of salvation?

Remember Brother Wolfe's appeal of several months ago. Have you responded with a gift? We want enough in the treasury to employ a minister to give his entire time to work in Texas. We know the laborer is worthy of his hire. There are enough members in the State of Texas to pay the salaries of several ministers, if everyone did his utmost. There is no limit to what we can do when we entirely are consecrated to God's cause.

How many of us are giving one-tenth of our incomes for God's work? This is what He expects of us. When we acknowledge that obligation, He will prosper us. He has blessed our people with material prosperity. Let us lay up for ourselves treasures in heaven, for soon, very soon, and "the fashion of this world passeth away." Let's have a flood of contributions before conference time that will cheer the heart of Brother Wolfe and assure the means of paying a preacher, if we get one.

Let every member in the State send a gift, whether large or small, as the Lord has prospered him. Send your offering to Miss Wilda McCorkle (temporary treasurer) 215 W. Main St., Gatesville, Texas. The Lord will add His blessing, and you will have a part in the great program of evangelism in Texas.

HARVEST IN PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND

Prince Edward Island, Canada, situated in the Gulf of Saint Lawrence, is the smallest of Canada's provinces, but has excellent farms. Jacques Cartier, who discovered the Island in 1534, described it as a land "low and flat, and the fairest that may possibly be seen, and full of beautiful trees and meadows."

Harvest time in fields of golden grain remind one of Jesus' words about another harvest. "The harvest truly is plenteous," said Jesus, "but the labourers are few; pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth labourers into his harvest" (Matthew 9:37, 38). . . . It is time to harvest: to reap grain and to win souls for Christ. To the golden fields!

Entered as second class matter at the Post Office at Oregon, Illinois, under act of March, 1879. Mailed weekly, except the fourth Tuesday of August and the last Tuesday of December.

Special Conference Number

This issue of THE RESTITUTION HERALD presents to our readers at large a picture of activities at the recent General Conference. As official record of this Conference, the Secretary's minutes are published in full.

Twenty-two states, Washington, D. C., and Canada were represented at the Conference. There were eighty-eight delegates (including alternates) officially registered, and a total of more than five hundred attendants. Ministers in attendance were: Mrs. C. R. Appleby, F. L. Austin, Francis Burnett, Gerald L. Cooper, John Denchfield, Harold Doan, T. A. Drinkard, T. M. Ferrell, Grover Gordon, Ernest Graham, Robert Hardesty, Alva Huffer, William Huffer, J. Arthur Johnson, Paul C. Johnson, Delbert Jones, Harvey U. Krogh, Jr., C. E. Lapp, M. W. Lyon, Emory Macy, Sydney E. Magaw, Arlen Marsh, G. E. Marsh, James Mattison, Linford Moore, C. Alan McLain, Norman J. McLeod, Timothy Pearson, Emma C. Railsback, C. E. Randall, C. R. Randall, Lyle Rankin, Ellsworth Routson, H. Scott Smith, F. A. Stilson, Mrs. Verna Thayer, James M. Watkins, and Walter Wiggins.

Everybody enjoyed the Conference!

Alumni Honor Mrs. Brewer

On Sunday afternoon, August 3, alumni of Oregon Bible College honored Sister Edna Brewer, first matron of Oregon Bible College, in a service attended by many of the College friends. Alumnus C. R. Randall, Ripley, Illinois, was master of ceremonies. The Editor spoke briefly about Sister Brewer's services from 1939 to 1944, during which time she served faithfully, and in sacrifice, to make the College a success. Alumnus Linford Moore, Macomb, Illinois, in behalf of all the alumni, presented a bronze plaque in appreciation of Sister Brewer's matronage of the College, the plaque being placed conspicuously in the College parlor. "A woman that feareth the Lord, she shall be praised" (Prov. 31:30).

Mrs. Edna Brewer

Come to College

Oregon Bible College will begin its ninth consecutive year at 8:30 a.m., September 8, when all students should be present for registration. Nearly all students attending last year's school are expected to return. At least seven or eight freshmen students are expected, and the College is able to accept more freshmen. Brother Otto E. Dick and the Editor will serve, again, as the leading instructors. Other instructors probably will be Sisters Benjamin Carpenter, Edna Brewer, and Miss Alta Samelson.

The College moves forward in service to the Lord and in service to the Church of God. If interested, write for a catalog and for further information.

"Inasmuch"

"Never has it been our privilege to own a boat or an outboard motor. By the kindness of friends, however, we have enjoyed many motorboat rides on lakes and rivers. One especially comes now to mind: a trip of several miles at sunset on Stillwater River in Ohio. Up and down the winding river beautifully fringed with flowers, ferns, and trees, a friend guided his craft on this scenic trip, revealing to us such places of beauty as we had not imagined, though having lived several years in the community. . . Thank you, Jim!

The expense of that trip was trivial, for the boat was small and the motor required so little gasoline. I recall, too, that Jim seemed to enjoy the trip as fully as did we—it being "more blessed to give than to receive." Hundreds of other people, I suppose, have enjoyed similar boat rides on the Stillwater; our chief pleasure came from something different, something intangible. Why did Jim ask us to accompany him that evening? He had many closer friends. At this particular time, though, Jim had thought of us. That there is no explanation for his kindness makes his kindness all the richer. I guess, as a Christian, Jim just wanted to do something good for somebody—maybe for anybody. . . Be not too busy for kindness—somebody may be hungry, thirsty, sick, or in prison.

"Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

Minutes of the 1947 General Conference

Oregon, Illinois, July 29 - August 10, 1947

TUESDAY, JULY 29

The first business session of the 1947 General Conference of the Church of God was called to order at 3:15 p.m., July 29, by President Leland T. Hanson. Superintendent of the Bible School, Brother H. J. Doan, led a devotional song service and read Colossians 3:1-10. Brother G. E. Marsh offered prayer.

President Hanson called for seating of the delegates. Sister Leila Whitehead, chairman of the Credentials Committee, called the roll of all certified delegates, forty-three being present and properly seated. (At the first business session last year, fifty delegates were seated.)

The Chair heartily welcomed the delegates and requested they attend as many business sessions as possible.

Upon call of the Chair, Brother Harvey U. Krogh, Jr., presented a dummy of the new songbook, leaving same for inspection, criticisms, and comments by the Conference in session.

Upon call of the Chair, the Secretary read the motion passed at last year's General Conference relative to reports of committees, officers, and employees being presented in printed form prior to General Conference, the Secretary informing that all such reports have been published in THE RESTITUTION HERALD.

Announcements

The Chair announced that the Conference in session should be ready for new business at its next meeting—at 3:15 p.m., on the morrow.

The Chair gave opportunity to the delegates to make announcements or brief comments. Brother M. W. Lyon, chairman of the Motion Steering Committee, requested that motions and resolutions be presented to him, or to his committee members, as soon as practical, to avoid congestion of business toward the end of Conference. Brother C. E. Randall recommended that the delegate blanks be mailed earlier, hereafter, to facilitate getting them returned properly and on time. Brother James M. Watkins, chairman of the Constitution Uniformity Committee, presented mimeographed copies of a pattern church constitution as directed by last year's Conference.

The Chair announced that there would be a meeting of the Executive Board on the morrow, the time later being designated as 1:00 p.m.

Brother C. E. Randall and Gerald L. Cooper moved to recess until 3:15 p.m. on the morrow. Motion carried. Brother Norman J. McLeod dismissed the meeting in prayer.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 30

The second business session of the 1947 General Conference opened at 3:15 p.m., July 30, President Leland T. Hanson being in the chair, and Brother Harvey U. Krogh, Jr., leading the devotional service—consisting of singing, a Scripture reading from Proverbs 3, and prayer.

President Hanson called for seating of delegates. Sister Leila Whitehead called the roll, fifty-four delegates being seated. (Sixty-nine delegates answered the roll call at the corresponding session last year.)

Brother Benjamin Carpenter inquired as to whether or not baptized members of the East Oregon Chapel could be recognized with the membership of the Oregon Church, inasmuch as the Chapel membership is not yet organized as a church and is operating as a subsidiary of the Oregon Church—all this with the view of qualifying the Oregon Church for four delegates, whereas it could be represented by only three delegates if the Chapel members were not recognized.

Brothers C. E. Randall and T. A. Drinkard moved to recognize the East Oregon Chapel members along with the Oregon Church membership. There was considerable discussion: Brothers M. W. Lyon and F. L. Austin giving reasons for believing the motion to be somewhat out of order, and Brother C. E. Randall favoring the motion. The motion carried by a vote of 18-15.

The Secretary's minutes of the preceding meeting were read and approved.

The Chair appointed, as members of a Property-Survey Committee, Brothers F. A. Stilson (Ind.) (chairman), Almus Dimmick (Ariz.), Albert Siple (La.), W. S. Tomlinson (Ohio), and George Rahn (Cal.)—it being understood that Brother A. J. Hoke, Business Manager, would accompany the committeemen on their tour of the Institution's properties.

Brothers F. L. Austin and Francis Burnett moved to receive for consideration the reports of committees, officers, and employees of the Institution, which reports appeared in THE RESTITUTION HERALDS of July 15, 22, and 29. Motion carried.

Brothers C. E. Randall and M. W. Lyon called for brief consideration of the Treasurer's report, particularly on matters where the Treasurer might wish to make comments. Brother Dale Dunbar, treasurer, spoke briefly about his report but thought it best to postpone extended comments until the delegates had sufficient time to study the report and present specific questions.

Brother Norman J. McLeod asked for Promotional Director James M. Watkins to explain changes that had been made in the general outline of the Treasurer's report since his report of a year ago. Brother Watkins called attention to several of these changes, showing that the present report presents a clearer picture of the financial status of the various departments.

There was general discussion regarding the budget, Brother Watkins explaining that the Institution had operated during the past year at an over-all loss of about $3,000.

During further discussion, mention was made that considerable College tuition is in arrears, and explanation was made that some of this results from delay on the part of the Veterans' Administration in sending the "G.I." allowance for tuition for our three veteran students. Brother F. A. Stilson asked if the veteran students could expect these allowances, eventually. The Secretary replied that there is every good reason to believe the tuition will be paid, especially in view of the fact that the veterans have been receiving their "G.I." allowance for board and room while attending the College.

Brothers F. A. Stilson and A. J. Hoke moved to postpone further discussion of the Treasurer's report. Motion carried.

Brother Benjamin Carpenter and Sister Emma C. Railsback moved to recess until call of the Chair at 3:15 p.m., on the morrow. Motion carried.

Brother James M. Watkins dismissed the meeting in prayer.

THURSDAY, JULY 31

The third business session of the 1947 General Conference of the Church of God opened at 3:15 p.m., July 31, President Leland T. Hanson being in the chair, and Brother Otto E. Dick leading the devotional service. Opening song was "Standing on the Promises." Brother Dick read Psalm 15, and Brother C. E. Randall offered prayer.

Sister Leila Whitehead called the roll, there being fifty-three certified delegates seated. (At the corresponding meeting one year ago, there was an attendance of sixty-nine delegates.)

The Secretary read his minutes of the preceding meeting and they were approved.

The Secretary read a letter from Brother J. M. Morgan to the General Conference, expressing his good wishes for the Conference and recommending that the Conference appoint a committee to study the possibilities of doing radio broadcasting.

Brothers C. E. Randall and Walter Wiggins moved to receive and to place on file Brother Morgan's letter, also to instruct the Secretary to make reply, expressing the Conference's appreciation of his letter and best wishes for his full recovery to health. Motion carried.

Brother C. E. Randall, recalling last year's action relative to having reports prepared in printed form, questioned, nevertheless, the procedure at this Conference of almost disposing of the reports insofar as their being considered on the Conference floor. He believed the delegates were not quite satisfied, that the rule had been followed too rigidly, and that the printed reports should not so nearly eliminate consideration of same on the Conference floor.

Brother M. W. Lyon asked for explanation of the apparently excessive expenses at the College, mentioning that in former years the College had operated, annually, with a balance on hand, while this year it shows a deficit. The Secretary explained that in former years, especially prior to the Institution operating on a budget system, he had maintained a healthful balance for the College by editorials and other publicity, but that now the College receives only its allotted percentage of the contributions, unless they are especially specified as being for the College. He called attention furthermore to the fact that the grocery bill at the College this last year was almost twice as much as the budget had allowed, this being due, primarily, to the increase of food costs.

M. W. Lyon also made inquiry about the Treasurer's report on Golden Rule Home relative to the style of the statement in showing how money is used in maintaining the membership. The Chair replied that bookkeeping rules apparently make the present style of statement advisable, and Sister Leota B. Hanson explained that the Auditor recommended the present system of figures. The Chair and Brother Watkins explained that Golden Rule Home is in very good financial condition and that, actually, there is no loss: that what appears on the statement to be loss is nothing more than the proper expenditure of funds placed in the Home for the express purpose of maintenance.

Brother Watkins felt that Golden Rule Home operates, not on a life-time fee of $5,000.00 and that the life-time fee is at fifteen years. Thus, an expenditure of $1,000.00 per year is a normal expenditure. The income of Golden Rule Home is $10,000.00. During the past year, the actual trust funds used was about $1,000.00 less than the amount used the preceding year. Both he and Brother A. J. Hoke pleaded for developing the Home to that extent where it would have sufficient income to be entirely self-supporting and, therefore, be available for more charitable purposes than it is at present.

Brother C. E. Randall questioned about electric and fuel expenses at the "Knapp" residence, also about similar high costs at the College. The Secretary and others explained that these costs are somewhat excessive and that steps are being taken to reduce them: particularly, by insulation of the College attic. Brother Dale Dunbar explained that the lowest possible electric rates are in force at the College. Brother Hoke mentioned that the hot-water heating system at the College is unsatisfactory and non-economical and that improvement is contemplated.

Brother Norman J. McLeod asked the meaning of the "traveling expense" item in the College department, the Secretary explaining that the item includes some of his traveling expenses, also Brother Otto E. Dick's traveling expenses for the College, and that this item of expense is more than offset by the income from these trips, as indicated under the item of "other income" in the "receipts" section.

Brother Walter Wiggins inquired concerning the feed bill at the College, the Secretary replying that the expenses were for a cow or two and for chickens.

Brother M. W. Lyon questioned as to whether or not the various departments were each receiving their share of contributions as provided by the budget. Brother Watkins replied in the affirmative and continued to explain that during the past year the Institution's earned income increased over that of the preceding year by about $7,000.00, though contributions had decreased about $4,000.00.

Brother C. E. Randall and Dale Dunbar engaged in a little lively wit. Those not attending the business sessions never know what they miss.

Sister Emma C. Railsback inquired about the "rent item" in the College section of the Treasurer's report. Brother Dale Dunbar explained that the item was charged against the College as a part of salary paid to Brother Otto E. Dick.

Sister Lucille Appleby inquired about the item of "student wages." The Secretary replied that the budget adopted for the fiscal year allowed a College expenditure of $800.00 for this item, it being the intent that each student wishing work at the College should be provided with sufficient work to earn at least $10.00 per month.

Brothers C. E. Randall and Francis Burnett moved to accept the Treasurer's report. Motion carried.

Brother F. L. Austin asked for information regarding the expenses of Brother and Sister L. E. Conner at Golden Rule Home. The Chair explained that the General Conference had voted to grant them board and room at the Home during their lifetimes.

Business Manager Hoke's Report

The Chair then recognized Brother A. J. Hoke who gave a report of his work as Business Manager during the last fiscal year. We summarize it here: Following resignation of the McLains at Golden Rule Home, he had employed Brother and Sister Charles Pearson as superintendent and matron, respectively. Sister Nora Pearson had served, temporarily, until the Pearsons were available. Later, Sister Nora Pearson was employed at the College to assist Sister Albert Logsdon.

During last September, he had insulated the attic at Golden Rule Home, calked the windows, and had given considerable study to increasing living space at the Home. He reported that it had been disappointingly necessary to refuse entrance into the Home to at least five prospective residents, each of which had $3,000.00, or more, to offer as entrance fees. He recommended that the Home be conditioned to care for more residents.

On September 30, he, as Business Manager for the Institution, purchased a residence in Oregon, remodeling it into a duplex. This required considerable time and effort on his part, but the house has been occupied since February 1, 1947.

He reported receiving somewhat less than $2,000.00 via the will of Sister Elizabeth Benjamin, Rensselaer, Indiana, this being an added asset to Golden Rule Home.

On June 11, he made a trip to Saint Louis, Missouri, to make arrangements for sale of a property there owned by National Bible Institution.

At Oregon Bible College, he had installed a new and larger stoker for the boiler, also had repaired and revamped heating pipes and radiators to attain more efficient heating. He insulated the College attic, replaced practically all the gutter and spouting. He spoke of need of a barn at the College, mentioned that consideration had been given to moving the barn at Golden Rule Home out to the College, but that this idea had been dropped like "a hot potato" when it was learned that the expense would approach $2,000.00.

Brother Hoke reported the purchase of a garden tractor, with a lawnmower attachment, which is being used both at the College and Golden Rule Home. He urged the delegates to visit both the Home and the College and to observe the "picture gardens" being attended with this tractor by Brothers Charles Pearson and Raymond Brown.

Brother Hoke reported having revamped the heating pipes at the "Knapp" property, installing a new radiator, and installing natural gas from the street into the basement and throughout the building. For his further report, we quote:

"We have found managing National Bible Institution properties to be a much larger work than one would suppose. We enjoyed the work very much this past year, however, having made eight trips from Dayton, Ohio, to Oregon, Illinois, all of which were planned in conjunction with our attendance at meetings of the Executive Board, of which we are a member. Also, we made one trip to Ripley, Illinois, to attend a joint meeting of the General Conference board and the Illinois Conference Board when plans were made for this General Conference.

"Because of our living so far away from headquarters, we are resigning our work as Business Manager.

"We are glad that the Brush Creek (Ohio) Church of God is having so large a representation in the work of National Bible Institution and its departments of Golden Rule Home and Oregon Bible College. Our own services as Business Manager were given free to the Institution, except for actual necessary expenses."

Brother C. E. Randall and Sister Emma C. Railsback moved to receive Brother A. J. Hoke's report with a rising vote of thanks. Motion carried by the house rising to its feet.

Brother M. W. Lyon questioned where in the treasurer's report one could see the less-than $2,000.00 item that Brother Hoke mentioned in his report. Sister Leota B. Hanson explained that it was included in the "savings account" of Golden Rule Home.

The Chair called for items of new business.

Brothers Harvey U. Krogh, Jr., and Francis Burnett moved that the report of the Songbook Committee be accepted and that one edition of at least five thousand copies be published as soon as the necessary work can be done.

Several delegates spoke to the motion, all favoring it. It was explained that the new book will cost about $1.50 per copy; that only about $1,000.00 is now available for the printing of said book; that it would be helpful for churches wishing the book to place orders in advance. Brother M. W. Lyon called attention to the fact that more money would have been available for publishing the book if the budget had been raised, as an allowance of $500.00 had been designated for that purpose. Motion carried.

A motion was presented relative to requiring Conference delegates to be at least eighteen years of age, but was withdrawn because of suggestion by Brother C. E. Randall that this regulation might better be made as an amendment to the Working Rules and thus appear with the other regulations governing representatives.

The Chair reported that nominated for the President and Treasurer.

Brother John Denchfield questioned the entrance fee at Golden Rule Home mentioned as the figure, and quoted in such a way as to be inefficient. Brother Hoke replied that the amount was $1.00, but that that amount was not necessarily at the date of entrance, that the entrance fee was made for later. The Chair also gave special and personal reading exactly alike, variations arising from differences in age, ability of paying, manner of paying, and so forth.

Sister Leila Whitehead, chairman of the Credentials Committee, announced that delegates must be certified during the day if they wished the privilege of voting on the morrow.

Brother M. W. Lyon questioned the wisdom of advertising Golden Rule Home when there are no living quarters available for prospective members. Everyone apparently enjoyed the strength of the Lyon question, but was too anxious to recess to enter into further discussion.

Brothers Walter Wiggins and Benjamin Carpenter moved to recess until call of the Chair at 3:15 p.m., on the morrow. Motion carried. Brother F. A. Stilson dismissed the meeting with prayer.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 1

The fourth business session of the 1947 General Conference was called to order at 3:15 p.m., Friday, August 1, President Leland T. Hanson being in the chair, and Brother Francis Burnett leading the devotional service. Brother Burnett read James 1:1-16, and Brother Walter Wiggins offered prayer.

The roll call was answered by sixty-three delegates. (At the corresponding meeting last year, seventy-four delegates were present.)

The Secretary's minutes were read, corrected, and approved.

The Chair called for nominations for the office of Second Vice President. Brother Charles Pearson nominated Brother A. J. Hoke. Sister Emma C. Railsback nominated Brother Glenn M. Birkey. Brother W. S. Tomlinson nominated Brother Grover Gordon.

Sister Emma C. Railsback and Brother Willis Rose moved that the nominations be closed. Motion carried.

The Chair then called for nominations for the office of Treasurer. Brother M. W. Lyon nominated Brother Dale Dunbar. Sister Emma C. Railsback nominated Brother Benjamin Carpenter.

Brothers H. Scott Smith and Albert Siple moved to close the nominations. Motion carried.

The Chair announced that there would be no business meeting on Saturday or on Monday, and that the election would be conducted on Tuesday, August 5.

The Chair announced, too, that the dummy songbook was on exhibit, and he requested delegates to examine it and offer their criticisms and suggestions.

Brothers C. E. Lapp and Arlie Townsend presented a motion that had been written by Brother F. L. Austin, the latter being unable to present same by reason of a call to Indiana. The motion follows: "Inasmuch as the General Conference voted to give Brother and Sister L. E. Conner board and room in Golden Rule Home for life; and,

"Inasmuch as those placed in Golden Rule Home must be admitted by cash or guarantee; and,

"Inasmuch as Golden Rule Home has been bearing the expense to the loss of those who are paying their way;

"Therefore, Be It Resolved that the General Conference refund to Golden Rule Home the per capita expense rate for the time that Brother and Sister Conner have respectively occupied Golden Rule Home, and from now on bear any further expense regarding Sister Conner there."

Brother C. E. Randall and Gerald Cooper moved to table Brother Austin's motion until his return when he could have opportunity to support it. Motion to table the motion carried.

Brothers M. W. Lyon and Walter Wiggins presented the following motion:

"Inasmuch as the Constitution and, or, By-laws of a church mean very much relative to the Christian progression of the church; and,

"Inasmuch as all of the local churches of any given church-denomination should be based upon general principles common to all; and,

"Inasmuch as throughout a period of years the Golden Rule Church of God of Cleveland, Ohio, has, by a series of amendments over a period of years, developed a tried, tested, and proved constitution of workable worth:

"We hereby move that, as a model for consideration by this body, side by side with model now in hand, Brother James M. Watkins be requested to reproduce at once said Golden Rule Church of God constitution in similar form for immediate consideration at this 1947 session of Conference."

Following considerable discussion, pro and con, Brothers M. W. Lyon and G. E. Marsh moved to table the motion. The motion to table the motion lost. The motion lost.

The Secretary addressed the Conference relative to the possibility of its convening next year at some other location than at Oregon, Illinois, showing from the Working Rules that there is nothing in them that requires the Conference to meet at Headquarters. Several delegates supported the thought, especially Brothers Walter Wiggins, Francis Burnett, Willis Roose, and Sister Evelyn Barr. Brother C. E. Randall spoke favorably, too, but called attention to several disadvantages and recognized that the question would demand very thorough study.

During this general discussion, Brother Walter Wiggins and Sister Evelyn Barr moved that the General Conference consider holding the 1948 Conference in Minnesota, or elsewhere other than Oregon, Illinois.

Brother G. E. Marsh, speaking to the motion, called attention to the fact that many of the state conferences are conducted at specific dates so as not to interfere with General Conference; thus he saw difficulty in getting a satisfactory date for the General Conference if it should be held in Minnesota at some other time than that now being used. Sister Lucille Appleby foresaw that the expenses involved would almost certainly be more than if the Conference were held here at headquarters. Sister Emma C. Railsback, observing that financial support of National Bible Institution appears to be on the wane, recommended that the Conference continue to meet at Oregon, Illinois, thus to avoid unnecessary expense.

Brothers C. E. Randall and Walter Wiggins moved to table the motion until next Tuesday. Motion carried.

Brother James M. Watkins expressed the opinion that tabled motions should have precedence over other business, and he questioned if there would be sufficient time to act on the motions tabled prior to election of officers at coming Tuesday's meeting. The Chair replied that there should be sufficient time.

Brother Walter Wiggins and Sister Emma C. Railsback moved that "the General Conference arrange for the selling of refreshments to Conference attendants, either by granting concessions or otherwise." Brothers Walter Wiggins, Dale Dunbar, and several others supported the motion. President Hanson called First Vice President Harvey U. Krogh, Jr., to the chair while he, President Hanson, expressed himself as being heartily in favor of the motion. Motion carried.

Brothers Robert Hardesty and John Denchfield called attention to the very full program of the General Conference as it is now operating, showing that there really is not sufficient time for recreation, Brother Denchfield suggesting that the Conference have a committee to plan and sponsor tours, hereafter, whether or not the Conference is at Oregon.

Brother M. W. Lyon announced that he had motion pictures, representing his field work, that he should like to show if the brethren were interested in seeing them. Suggestion was made that he consult with Brother Harold Doan, superintendent of the Conference program, for a convenient time to show the pictures.

Brothers C. E. Randall and Norman J. McLeod moved to recess until the call of the Chair at 3:15 p.m., Tuesday, August 5. Motion carried, and Brother G. E. Marsh dismissed the meeting in prayer.

TUESDAY, AUGUST 5

The fifth business session of the 1947 General Conference was called to order at 3:15 p.m., August 5, President Leland T. Hanson being in the chair, and Brother Harvey U. Krogh, Jr., leading the devotional service of singing, Scripture reading, and prayer.

The Chair then asked for roll call, the same being given by Sister Leila Whitehead. Seventy-five delegates responded, this number being two less than the number present at the corresponding meeting in 1946.

The Secretary's minutes were read, corrected, and approved.

The motion relative to Brother and Sister L. E. Conner's maintenance at Golden Rule Home was removed from the table. Brother F. L. Austin supported the motion, explaining that the General Conference, having voted their keeping in Golden Rule Home, should bear this expense, rather than for it to fall on assets of the Home as con-

HASTY MARRIAGES. There are about a half million divorcees in the United States every year which amounts to one out of every three marriages. This great evil is being recognized by religious and social workers, and a great many people in various walks of life have endeavored to contribute to a solution to this ever-increasing evil. Perhaps one of the best steps in preventing so many divorcees comes to us through the efforts of Dr. Henry A. Bowman of Stephens College. Two words give the heart of his solution. They are: "Wait," or "Don't." Without doubt, love at first sight with the subsequent early marriage causes more divorcees than anything else.

When a person is preparing for any of the professional trades, he realizes he must wait until he has trained himself, or completed his training, before he can hope successfully to pursue his chosen profession. He knows that his profession will wait his proper training. The same thing is true respecting marriage. Couples should wait until they fully are acquainted with each other and have proved and tested their abilities to get along with each other and to work together in a full measure of harmony. As Dr. Bowman has said: "Successful marriage is not something that comes full blown to every young person who has a romantic impulse. It is not a gift of nature offered free to anyone who will but pluck it easily from an uncultivated vine. It is a creative achievement. As such it demands effort, requires sound knowledge and healthy attitudes, and it is grounded in solid idealism."

Some years ago, a young lady came to me seeking my advice about her marrying a certain young man with whom I was acquainted. Both of these young people were Christians with well-formed characteristics of an unquestionable nature. Yet their habits, ambitions, temperaments, and general traits appeared to me as not being susceptible to easy blending. As a result, I advised her to wait and think it over more carefully. A couple of years afterward, I received a letter from her, thanking me for counseling her to be cautious and prayerful in her decision.

It is easy to get married and is getting to be very easy to get the marriage voided by some action, but the effect always remains. "Don't" and "Wait" are two words that young people contemplating marriage need to keep constantly before them.

LOWERING THE BARS. Sometime ago, this page recorded the action of the Episcopal Church in this country as changing its historical stand on remarriage of divorcees. When the canon covering rules concerning divorce was liberalized at the general convention in Philadelphia last fall and authority was invested in the bishop of the Diocese to determine whether a divorcee should be permitted to remarry, the way was opened to permit what Bishop Manning declared to be "ecclesiastical and moral Renus, and the consequent abolition of any Christian standard of marriage in the church."

What seemingly is developing in the Episcopal Church in respect to marriage is true of all other social problems. When the Christian's stand of full abstinence from the questionable evils of our time is relaxed in order to avoid offense to some who engage in such questionable practices, or to approve of some modified form as preferable to full in restraint for participation, the bars have been thrown down; and the way has become open for an apostate condition that will become more injurious and devastating to the spiritual and moral standards as set up and adhered to by the church from the day of its beginning. If the church is to maintain its spiritual integrity and be persuasive in moral matters, it must be uncompromising in its determination to keep the standard of Christian character untainted and maintain courage and resoluteness in keeping the bars up.

Current news items tell us of two Episcopal clergymen recently marrying divorcees, by bishop's consent, because the bars were lowered. Hereafter, it can be expected that those who are influential or have financial means will be able to remarry at will within the liberal interpretation of Episcopal canon law.

NEW THINGS. In the current issue of "Moderns," appears two pages of new articles that are on the market or soon will be marketed. Almost all the things listed will add to the general welfare of the people. New inventions from time to time have made this nation a land of creative power. We recognize and appreciate the blessings that come to us through creation of new things that can be adapted to individual and mutual well-being.

In the field of religion, many seem to have the idea that the only way that progress can be made and interest aroused is by bringing out some new thought or new teaching. It must be apparent to all that if progress is to be made in the church that the church must keep itself abreast of the times in its usefulness and in its message. This does not mean that a new message is needed, nor does it require the introduction of some sensational and untried methods and customs. The gospel of the Kingdom is definitely created; it was and is a world message and its content is of such a nature that it has been readily adaptable to the needs of people covering the whole period of time. It is not a new message that we need but rather an adaptation of that message to the needs of the people. This requires no legislation or the backing of the state but the presentation of the message after the manner of a self-sacrificing life as exemplified in the life of Jesus.

GYPSY SMITH. Word has just come of the death of the great evangelist, Gypsy Smith. The writer was personally acquainted with Gypsy and found him to be a friendly, congenial, and sincere man. He was orthodox in many of his religious convictions, but apart from his alien beliefs with those of my own, I, nevertheless, feel that he did a great deal to promote love for the Lord Jesus and respect for the Word which reveals Him.

Gypsy was not what would ordinarily be termed a well-educated man. Neither was he a self-made man. He was more than this. He was a Christ-transformed man. In his early days with his parents he lived a typical, nomadic life as practiced by the gypsies, and until well into his teen years, he could neither read nor write. Handicap as this was, he developed into an evangelist of world renown and carried his message to all continents. His life reveals what a person can do when he has a will and what the Lord can do with a man when the man permits the Lord to work in him that which is well pleasing in His sight. While Gypsy is dead, he leaves behind him a heritage of accomplishments that should inspire many a young man who finds himself in lowly surroundings and without much acquired ability.

FRUSTRATION. The Galatian brethren, after having been released from the curse of the law, went back to observing the works of the law. In his letter to them, the Apostle Paul stated that they were frustrating the grace of God and making the death of Christ void and that they themselves were fallen from grace.

Recently, a couple of papers published by a certain religious group came to my desk. One copy was a young people's paper, and the other was for adults. The content in both papers was centered around the general thought that it is necessary to observe, as Paul stated, the keeping of "an holy day . . . or of the sabbath days." It seems strange why some folks spend so much time trying to bring people under bondage to an old covenant that was ratified by the blood of bulls and goats and, in so doing, prevent them from coming under the grace and salvation of the new covenant which Biblically is termed a better covenant established upon better promises.

Every once in a while someone approaches us with the perennial argument that unless one observes the seventh-day Sabbath that he is under the stigma and curse, the mark of the beast. We have no objection if some people desire to take on themselves the Jewish faith which cannot steadfastly look to that which is abolished, but we do find it necessary sometimes to point out for the benefit of those who are less informed that law is not made for a righteous man; and, if there had been a law that could have given life, verily righteousness would have been by law.

Every time one seeks to establish the law by obeying it, by that very act he denies that Christ has come. The reason for this statement is in Paul's pronouncement that the law was added to the promises because of transgressions "till the seed should come."

MINUTES OF THE 1947 GENERAL CONFERENCE

tributed by its regular members. Upon question as to Sister Conner's plans for the future, Brother A. J. Hoke reported that Sister Conner is now in a convalescent home in Indiana, that it is not likely she will wish to return to Golden Rule Home, yet, if she regains her health, there is that possibility. Motion carried.

The motion to consider moving the General Conference to Minnesota or some other location than Oregon, Illinois, was removed from the table. The motion was supported by Brother Walter Wiggins who also gave information regarding the probable costs per person to attend the Conference, if it should convene at Lake Koronis. Report was made, too, that only one week would be available next year at that location, but that two weeks would be available if the venture was postponed until 1949. The motion carried.

The Chair announced that Brother Glenn M. Birkey had written him a letter asking not to be considered by the Conference for the office of Second Vice President. The Chair appointed Sisters Virginia Davenport and Mabel Andrew as tellers for the election of Second Vice President and Treasurer.

The balloting for the office of Second Vice President resulted as follows: A. J. Hoke, 40; Glenn M. Birkey, 6; Grover Gordon, 24. Brother A. J. Hoke, Dayton, Ohio, receiving a majority of the votes on the first ballot, was declared elected.

The balloting for the office of Treasurer resulted as follows: Dale Dunbar, 59; Ben Carpenter, 15. Brother Dale Dunbar, Swanton, Ohio, receiving a majority of the votes on the first ballot, was declared elected.

Brother Linford Moore reported a motion passed by the National Berean Society at its recent annual business session, stating the Society had gone on record "as opposing the idea of a concession during the General Conference next year." Reasons given for the Berean action were that local stores look forward to the Conference trade, some of them withholding vacation periods for their clerks until our Conference is ended, the concession idea might develop a bad name for the local church, and the venture would require refrigeration facilities or a company to furnish same.

Brother C. E. Randall and Norman J. McLeod moved that the Berean communication be received and placed on file. Motion carried.

Property-Survey Committee's Report

The Chair called Brother F. A. Stilson (chairman) to report for the Property-Survey Committee.

Brother Stilson explained that the Committee's report pertained only to Golden Rule Home and its properties here at Oregon. He gave hearty approval and appreciation for the work Brother A. J. Hoke had done during the last year in caring for these properties. The report here appears summarized:

1. "O'Byrne" property—estimated valuation $ 4,500.00
2. "Ordnung" property—estimated valuation 6,000.00
3. "Knapp" property—estimated valuation 6,000.00
4. "Duplex" property—estimated valuation 9,000.00
5. "Golden Rule Home"—estimated valuation 15,000.00

$40,500.00

The report included several recommendations for improvement, these recommendations being presented for consideration by the Executive Board. Recommendation was made that a committee, including the Business Manager, be appointed to investigate the advisability of enclosing the present south porch to form two more rooms, each approximately eight by twelve feet, for more members. Also, the Committee suggested possibility of "converting the old barn at Golden Rule Home into a residence for rental purposes, if and when funds are available." Brother Stilson reported that his Committee had looked at the eight vacant lots and estimated their value at $2,000.00. He reported that Golden Rule Home is in excellent condition and that there are eleven members at present.

The report was signed by Floyd A. Stilson, Almus Dimmick, W. S. Tomlinson, Albert Siple, and Brother Stilson signed also for George Rahn.

Brother F. A. Stilson and Sister Emma C. Railsback moved to accept the report. Motion carried.

Consideration of the Budget

Brothers Harvey U. Krogh, Jr., and F. A. Stilson moved to adopt the proposed budget, and the Chair called for discussion on the same. A summary of the budget was written on the blackboard, and Brother James M. Watkins offered "cost sheets" to the delegates that they might better understand how he had planned the budget.

Brother M. W. Lyon inquired about the size of the budget: whether it represented an increase or a decrease over last year's budget. Brother Watkins replied that this budget could be reached, though contributions would be approximately $7,000.00 less than last year. Later, he showed, however, that this year's operating deficit, if added to the budget for the ensuing year, would make the over-all budget slightly more than last year's budget.

Brother F. A. Stilson inquired about the $5,350.00 item in the budget of THE RESTITUTION HERALD. Brother Watkins explained that THE HERALD always has been published at a deficit, but that no provision for this deficit has been made in preceding budgets, that factor contributing to this year's operating deficit.

Brother W. S. Tomlinson asked if adoption of this budget would bar any other expense items that might be proposed at later business sessions. The Chair replied that adoption of this budget should limit the Board, at least, in its expenditures.

Brother Linford Moore inquired as to the possibility of all departments eventually becoming self-supporting. Brother Watkins replied optimistically, expressing the hope that all departments would become self-supporting except THE RESTITUTION HERALD and Evangelism.

The Chair explained that this budget had been presented to the Executive Board several weeks ago, and, tentatively, had been approved, pending further action by this Conference. Also, he showed that the budget should be raised easily by our membership: that a contribution of about $5.00 from each member would more than raise the proposed budget. He pleaded, too, for more time and thought being given to more important questions than are so commonly considered on the Conference floor—such questions as relate to expanding our work: the number of evangelists and children's workers to be sent out into the field.

Brother M. W. Lyon supported the Chair, giving an illustration of a young people's society in Washington, D. C., which, though having only fifty or sixty members, adopted a budget of $5,000.00.

Brother Dale Dunbar explained that the Executive Board gladly would have done more work during the past year, but that it was handicapped by loss of contributions.

Brother W. S. Tomlinson mentioned how that for many years the General Conference has been using the Illinois Conference hall, and that very few improvements on the building have been made—it being his thought that facilities were inadequate.

There being no further discussion, vote was taken on the proposed budget and the motion to adopt carried.

The Secretary addressed the assembly relative to the work that Brother R. H. Judd, Colborne, Ontario, has been doing over the past year or so on a contemplated book entitled, "One God: the God of the Ages." Explanation was made that, though no definite decision has been made to publish the book, the Executive Board had encouraged Brother Judd to do this work, with thought in mind that the book would preserve this senior writer's best thoughts and that the book might be used as a textbook in Oregon Bible College. He reported, too, that the copy for this book is now on his desk; also, that there is a Publications Committee which will consider the matter of publishing this copy, but that the Committee would not likely feel free to go forward with the work unless it is so recommended by the General Conference.

Brother Francis Burnett, observing that Brother Watkins had indicated less contributions would be needed this year to reach the budget by reason of the several departments being self-supporting, recommended, nevertheless, that more contributions be encouraged, that the Lord's work might be advanced.

Brothers C. E. Randall and F. L. Austin moved that this Conference go on record as favoring tithing as a means of church finance and that such a method be publicized and constantly stressed by all departments of the General Conference.

The motion received hearty support from Brothers M. W. Lyon, Dale Dunbar, Robert Hardesty, Sister Leila Whitehead, Harvey U. Krogh, Jr., H. Scott Smith, and John Denchfield. Motion carried.

Brothers James M. Watkins and Norman J. McLeod moved that the price of "Truth Seekers' and Intermediate Quarterlies" be increased to twenty cents per copy, and that the children's quarterlies be increased to twenty cents per copy. Motion carried. (Originally, the motion also included raising the subscription price of THE RESTITUTION HERALD to $3.50, but so numerous were the objections to this part of the motion, that it was withdrawn.)

Brothers Benjamin Carpenter and Gerald L. Cooper moved to recess until call of the Chair at 3:15 p.m., on the morrow. Motion carried. Brother C. E. Lapp dismissed the meeting in prayer.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 6

The sixth business session convened at 3:15 p.m., Wednesday, August 6, President Leland T. Hanson being in the chair. Brother C. E. Lapp led the singing. Brother F. L. Austin offered prayer.

Roll call was answered by fifty-three delegates.

The Secretary's minutes were read, corrected, and approved.

Brothers M. W. Lyon and John Denchfield moved that "after this Conference of 1947, no person under eighteen years of age be recognized as a General Conference delegate or alternate delegate."

Supporting the motion, Brother Lyon spoke of the large volume of business being transacted by the General Conference, and importance of its work, necessitating, he believed, a minimum age limit for delegates. Brother Norman J. McLeod supported the motion, but explained why very young delegates sometimes have been chosen—it being difficult, at times, for adults to go long distances to the General Conferences, whereas youth has more available time for such trips. Sister Leila Whitehead suggested that churches co-operate with financial assistance to send delegates to the General Conference, especially those churches more distant from headquarters. Motion carried.

Brother G. E. Marsh reported that both he and Brother C. E. Randall are continuing work on the History Book Committee, but that their assignment is stupendous. He thanked those who have been assisting him with information and pictures. He had in his possession a photograph album recently received from Sister A. J. Eychaner, the album containing many pictures of historical significance to our church history. He explained that preparation of the history book would require several years of full-time work for one man, if the work were to be done properly, so requested the brethren to be patient as they look forward to the completed work.

Brother C. E. Randall, explaining that he has insufficient time for working on the history book project, asked to be relieved from his place on that committee.

Brother Norman J. McLeod spoke praisingly of Brother James M. Watkins' work in developing the first National Berean Youth Rally. Brothers McLeod and Gerald L. Cooper moved that the General Conference sponsor another Youth Rally next summer. James M. Watkins and F. L. Austin supported the motion. Motion carried.

W. S. Tomlinson and M. W. Lyon moved that the General Conference present a gift of $2,000.00 to the Illinois Conference to provide more adequate care of Conference attendants who room in the dormitory. Brother McLeod observed the possible inconsistency of the motion in light of the fact that next year's General Conference may be moved to Minnesota or some other place. Brother M. W. Lyon recommended that considerable thought and planning be given the possibility of the General Conference convening elsewhere than in the Oregon Church, as the Conference is outgrowing present available accommodations. He suggested that a committee be appointed to study this question, or that some one official of the Conference be assigned this work. He spoke also of need for improved printing plant facilities, calling attention to pleas from this department of our work that are more or less overlooked year after year.

Brother C. E. Randall questioned the wisdom of voting a $2,000.00 contribution to the Illinois Conference until we know more specifically how and where the money would be used.

Sister Esta Starbuck explained that the General Conference has contributed, in a measure, during the past fifteen years or more to financial support of the Illinois Conference dormitory facilities, and that what few improvements have been made on the Conference hall were financed by contributions during the General and Illinois Conference sessions.

Brothers F. L. Austin and G. E. Marsh moved to amend the motion to the extent that the consideration of improvements be transferred to the Executive Board. The amendment carried. The motion lost.

Brothers John Denchfield and Albert Siple moved that the General Conference go on record as favoring the publication of Brother R. H. Judd's book, "One God: God of the Ages."

Brother G. E. Marsh supported the motion, speaking highly of Brother Judd's ability as a writer and reporting that he had read much of the copy and approved it, heartily.

Brother James M. Watkins questioned the Conference's being ready to enter into book-publishing work. He questioned if more than one hundred copies would be sold to our own brethren, asserting that religious books are not much in demand at present. Brother Watkins recommended, however, that a revolving book-publishing fund be started now in connection with our songbook project, the income from it being kept in this revolving fund for future need in publishing books and tracts. Brother G. E. Marsh replied that statistics show that more religious books are being sold today than ever before, it being his thought, too, that with proper publicity, Brother Judd's book would be salable.

Brother Norman J. McLeod believed sale of the book would be governed largely by its price and spoke appreciatively of Brother Judd's ability as a writer.

Brother Harvey U. Krogh, Jr., questioned if the copy might not be mimeographed and used for textual study for the College before publishing same as a book. The Chair replied that this procedure is customary in many colleges.

The Secretary supported the motion, calling attention to the fact that many of our leading ministers and writers died, having left none of their work in permanent form, and that he believed this work would be valuable to our Cause. Motion carried.

Brother C. E. Lapp inquired as to what had happened to the plans for the new Administration Building. The Chair replied that Brother A. J. Hoke is the proper one to speak on this question, but that he was not present. Brother Dale Dunbar assured the Conference that the proposed new building is still in the minds of our people, but that nothing can be done until we have better financial support. The Chair explained, too, that the building had been given less publicity, temporarily, because of high costs and scarcity of building materials. Brother Lapp urged that the Building Fund be developed, although building may be postponed for several years. President Hanson heartily approved. Brother Austin recommended that in making their wills, brethren remember National Bible Institution.

G. E. Marsh suggested that a will form be published regularly in our periodicals. Evelyn Barr recommended that more effort be made in solicitation of funds for the proposed new building. Brother Ellsworth Routson spoke deplorably of our present headquarters building. Sister J. S. Lyon pleaded for a fund to be started now by living people, rather than depending upon wills of the dead. Brother Austin supported her thought.

M. W. Lyon introduced the thought of having a "living endowment fund" to support the College, and Sisters Leila Whitehead and Evelyn Austin recommended tithing as best means for supporting National Bible Institution.

Brothers James M. Watkins and F. A. Stilson moved establishment of a revolving book-and-tract fund. Motion carried.

The Secretary and F. L. Austin moved that the General Conference authorize publication in THE RESTITUTION HERALD, weekly, of Administration Building Fund receipts. Motion carried.

Brother Benjamin Carpenter and Norman J. McLeod moved to recess until 3:15 p.m. on the morrow. Motion carried. Brother G. E. Marsh dismissed the meeting in prayer.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 7

The seventh business session of the 1947 General Conference convened at 3:15 p.m., Thursday, August 7. Brother F. A. Stilson led the devotional part of the meeting: singing, reading of Psalm 8, and prayer.

President Leland T. Hanson called for the roll of delegates. Sister Whitehead read the roll to which fifty-five delegates responded.

The Secretary's minutes were read, corrected, and approved.

Brother Harvey U. Krogh, Jr., gave further report for the Songbook Committee, informing that at least one year would be required on the part of publishers, after the Committee's work is completed. He suggested that churches not wishing to wait for the new songbook purchase some other cheap booklet of songs, such as "Spiritual Life Songs," or "Upper Room Hymns." These booklets cost only twenty or twenty-five cents per copy; they are excellent for temporary service, and they may be ordered through National Bible Institution. The Committee is still seeking a name for the new songbook.

Brothers C. E. Randall and John Denchfield moved "that the general manager be authorized to appoint someone to implement the motion adopted on church finance." Motion carried.

Brothers C. E. Randall and Harvey U. Krogh, Jr., moved "that this General Conference express appreciation to the Illinois Conference and to the Oregon Church for the entertainment accorded Conference delegates by a rising vote of thanks." Motion carried.

Brother Harold Doan explained to the assembly that consideration is being given to changing the Conference program for next year: using the first week primarily for the Illinois Bible School, and the second week being devoted largely to General Conference business, though there would be, probably, at least one Bible class daily during the second week, the Ministerial Conference sessions, also the regular evening services. The purpose of this general revamping of the program is to provide more time for relaxation and recreation. The matter was then opened for general discussion. Those entering into discussion of the question were F. A. Stilson, C. E. Randall, Norman J. McLeod, John Denchfield, C. E. Lapp, Dale Dunbar, and Sisters F. L. Austin, Tessa Laning, Leila Whitehead, and Esta Starbuck. By general agreement, the matter was left in the hand of the Illinois Conference Board and the Executive Board of National Bible Institution.

Brothers Emory Macy and Francis Burnett moved "that some low-cost housing program be provided for married students of Oregon Bible College." Following lengthy consideration of the motion, during which explanation was made that the Executive Board has been considering this question for many months, the motion carried.

Brother M. W. Lyon addressed the house relative to changing the name "Church of God" to "Restitution Church of God." There was lengthy consideration of his suggestion, no action being taken, nor was it Brother Lyon's thought that a decision now should be made.

Final Report of Credentials Committee

Sister Leila Whitehead made final report of the Credentials Committee as follows:

No. of delegates present every meeting .....	23
No. of delegates that missed only one meeting .....	10
Total number of delegates and alternates .....	88
Largest attendance of delegates .....	75
Smallest attendance of delegates .....	43
Average attendance of delegates .....	57

The report was signed by Leila E. Whitehead, Evelyn H. Austin, and Vena A. Logsdon.

Brothers C. E. Randall and C. E. Lapp moved to accept the report of the Credentials Committee and to discharge the committee. Motion carried.

Brother James M. Watkins explained to the Conference that the Executive Board wishes to employ a man and his wife to work at the College, suggesting that if any of the delegates knew of persons available and interested, they report same.

Brother John Denchfield raised the question of Oregon Bible College becoming "accredited." During the discussion of this question, Brothers Otto E. Dick and John Denchfield moved "that a committee be appointed to study the question of accrediting Oregon Bible College and to report their findings back to the General Conference." Motion carried.

Sister Eunice Pearson spoke briefly of the possibility of our church having an orphanage, it being her thought that this field of service is being overlooked.

The Chair then called upon the Secretary to give a resume of this last business session, which he attempted to do from his notes of same. There was general agreement to accept the minutes as they would be finally prepared and published in THE RESTITUTION HERALD.

The hour being late, and some of the delegates already leaving, several delegates moved to adjourn, in response to which the assembly arose to its feet, being dismissed with prayer by Brother F. L. Austin.

Sydney E. Magaw, Secretary.

THERE IS A GOD!

By H. P. Nielsen

Reprinted by permission from Signs of the Times

THERE is no God. I have never seen Him. I have heard you Christians talk about Him; but no one has ever seen Him. I believe only the things I see. Therefore, I cannot believe in such a being."

So said a young man the other day. His statement, "There is no God," was definite. He was proud of the "discovery" he thought he had made, and he seemed to be elated over the "profound" argument which he presented in favor of his claim. He felt wise above his years and did not want to be as simple-minded as were others whom he termed "you Christians."

Let us analyze his argument to see if it is sound. He said: "I believe only the things I see. Therefore, I cannot believe in such a being." What a narrow stand for anyone to take! Can he really mean it? Where must such a stand lead him? Let us see.

Has he ever seen his own brain? No, surely not. Therefore, according to his argument, he would have none. Again, has he ever seen the wind? No! Therefore, if we are to follow his line of logic, there is no such thing as wind. But we can see the grain waving, the trees swaying, the windmills turning, and thus we know the wind is blowing. We see its effects, even if we cannot see the wind itself. When we pass through a devastated area after the wind has done its work of destruction, all doubt of its existence has been removed. We have seen its work.

We find that there are many vital forces in the world today which we have never seen and cannot understand; yet we know that they exist, for we see the results of their work. For instance, who has ever seen gravitation? No one. But we have all seen the manifestation of its unseen power. We have felt its "pull" upon us, and because of this we know that it exists.

Again, take, for instance, the unseen power running the motors of our factories and turning the wheels of industry. We call it electricity. True, under certain conditions we can see it as light; but, when it is passing through the wires and turning the motors, it is an invisible force which none fully can explain. Who, though, would dare to deny its existence, although it cannot be seen?

I am holding a watch in my hand. It is running. Someone made it. It could not have made itself, nor set itself in motion. Some person with a mind, a plan, and a purpose was behind the making of it. Yes, someone made it. I am sure of that, for the watch itself is proof enough, though I never saw it made.

Can anyone conceive of a watch without a maker or a building without a builder? Never. Why, then, should one suggest that this mighty universe, with its millions upon millions of worlds, each one rolling on in its appointed orbit, is without a Creator?

No, we have not seen God, but we have seen His stately steppings among us in all His works. We can look through the powerful telescope and see the evidences of His wondrous power in upholding and guiding the mighty spheres on high. Through the microscope we can study the smallest of His creation and see the evidence of His hand at work. We can see Him in the marvels of nature and in the beautiful flowers He has made to gladden the hearts of His children. They all testify to us that there is a Creator.

We can talk with God in prayer, and He fills our souls with peace. Although we cannot see Him, we can feel the warmth of His love in our hearts. This faith in a loving Father brings hope to the sorrowing; it brings peace to the sin-burdened soul, and comfort to us in the hour of death.

Yes, there is a God in heaven. We behold His wondrous works; we feel His power; we see the transformations wrought in the human heart; and we know that He lives and reigns. We know that He cares for us, for we have felt the warmth of His smiling grace, and rejoice in His wondrous love. We know that He lives, as truly as a blind man may know that the sun is shining, although unseen by him.

Yes, young man, there is a God!

BARAGA MISSION FIELD

During the past week, several ministers visited at Baraga, Mich., where Bro. Leonard Brown has been working faithfully with his sisters to develop an Indian mission work. Upon request of the local people, the Church of God provided speakers for the Annual Indian Camp Meeting which convened August 9-17.

National Evangelist M. W. Lyon, with Emory Maey and James Mattison, opened the work on the first week end. Harold Doan left Wednesday, with Mrs. Doan, to supply over Thursday and Friday. The writer, accompanied by Mrs. Watkins and Raymond Brown, left on Friday morning to provide the closing services over Saturday and Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Delos Andrew plan to arrive there, Sunday, with their son Bill and daughter Patsy for a vacation period in those parts.

The writer plans to spend a couple of weeks in this field, getting acquainted with the work and helping to prepare for the coming of Sr. Verna Thayer, who will open a series of children's classes and offer teacher-training instruction in the near future.

Reports tell us that the work has been well received and that a very large delegation from this field is planning to attend the Summer Bible Training School and Youth Rally of 1948. James M. Watkins.

MOOREFIELD, NEBRASKA

Sunday afternoon, August 10, about thirty-five friends met at the water's edge when Mr. Silas N. Kugler, age sixty-six, was baptized into Christ. Silas meant to be baptized ever since his wife was, but put it off from time to time. His wife, Susie, died, August 6. All of the Kugler girls were present at the baptismal service. One daughter, Dorothea, is in the faith with her father.

Mr. Kugler probably will visit with his daughters for a while before taking up his duties at Moorefield. If anyone has time to write Mr. Kugler a line, it will help him at this time. Address: Silas N. Kugler, Moorefield, Nebr. E. E. Giesler.

QUARTERLY PRICE ADVANCES

Due to constantly increasing costs in the publishing industry, the recent General Conference voted to increase the price of all quarterlies. In accord with this decision, beginning September 1, all Truth Seekers', Intermediate, and Children's quarterlies will be advanced to 20 cents per copy. We regret that circumstances beyond our control have made this increase necessary, but we know that our Sunday schools will understand that we cannot continue to absorb the growing loss on these publications.

James M. Watkins, Gen. Mgr., National Bible Institution.

HELP WANTED AT COLLEGE

Oregon Bible College is in need of a man and wife (members of the Church of God) to serve as campus superintendent and cook, respectively. If interested write immediately. Sydney E. Magaw, Superintendent.

UNIONVILLE, OHIO

The vacation Bible school sponsored by the Unionville Church of God came to a close on Friday morning, July 25. Thursday evening, 24th, the children gave a program, demonstrating what they learned during the two weeks. The theme of their study was, "A Trip on the Gospel Plane," which supposedly took them to Egypt. From there, they were to travel by camel to different countries mentioned in the Bible. Songs and picture stories depicted each phase of their journey. At conclusion of the program, colored slides were shown, covering each of the stories the children had studied.

Seventy-two children were enrolled in the Bible school. The average daily attendance was forty-six, and at least one hundred parents and friends attended the program. On Friday morning, each child was presented a certificate, and each child who had brought five or more other children to the Bible school was presented a Bible. Marian Woidtke.

BARAGA, MICHIGAN

Zeba is in the Chippewa Indian Reservation across the bay from Baraga, Mich. Here in the midst of a forest, the annual Indian Camp Meeting was conducted, August 9-17. This report concerns only the first two days.

Although another denomination is in charge of the Chippewas in Zeba, Bro. Leonard Brown has been given complete charge of the Camp Meeting this year.

It was our privilege to drive with Bro. M. W. Lyon and E. L. Maey to Baraga to assist Bro. Brown in this work. The meeting was opened Saturday night, August 9, with a basic sermon on God, attendance being thirty-seven. On Sunday, there were three sermons and Sunday school. Attendance at the afternoon sermon was more than forty. At that time, Mrs. Duggan, an Indian woman, sang a hymn in Indian. At the close of this service, it was necessary for the writer to return to Oregon, Ill.

These services were most inspiring to me. Here are people who need the gospel of Christ "which is the power of God unto salvation." There is so much to do and so few to work. Assist Bro. Brown in the work with your prayers. J. Mattison.

ILLINOIS CONFERENCE NEWS

Rockford: "Only one baptism took place at the Illinois State Conference this year—that of Wesley Somers, 13, Rt. 1, Monroe Center.

"The immersion followed the evening service on Sunday, August 3, in the baptistry of the Oregon church. Wesley's pastor, J. Arlen Marsh, officiated, with F. L. Austin, retiring pastor of the Oregon church, assisting.

"Strong effort is being exerted by the Rockford group to secure a lot for future building, probably in Love's Park, a newly incorporated town on the north side of the city."

East Oregon Chapel: Average Sunday school attendance for the year at the chapel was 72. There were four baptisms, making a total now of 14.

"The chapel now has a junior Sunday school department in the basement, which is well attended.

"Leonard Brown, a former student at Oregon Bible College, and at one time a helper in our Sunday school, preached an interesting sermon at the worship service, June 15. Leonard, who lives in Baraga, Mich., conducts a Sunday school for Indian children at Zela, Mich., near an Indian reservation. He gave an interesting talk earlier in the day to the children in the junior department, telling something of the characteristics of the Indian children. This was very instructive entertainment for the children, who listened attentively.

"The skit, 'Daniel in the Lion's Den,' enacted by John Swanson, George Whitmore, and Teddy and Delos Arlogast, was greatly enjoyed by all the children in the junior department. It illustrated what true faith can accomplish, accompanied by prayer."

Oregon: Pre-conference doings: Enter Group 1 into the conference hall with brooms, dust cloths, mops, pails, soap, scrub brushes, dish cloths, etc.—and "Presto"—only it's harder than that—the building is clean from garret to cellar, and the dishes are washed. Enter Group 2 with clothesline, sewing equipment, irons, etc. The mattresses, pillows, and bedding are aired, repaired, protectors sewed on comforters, under pillow cases put on, curtains pressed and hung, ironing boards renovated, etc. Enter Group 3—the brawn and muscle—to wrestle with benches, tables, etc. It's done. You're welcome. After you have been with us a while, we will store it away to await your next visit.

On July 10, Mrs. Donn's recently formed Sunday school class organized, taking the name "Gospel Gleaners."

On July 13, Bereans entertained the summer College group and the Youth Rally follow with a trip to the Pines and a picnic supper and regular meeting on the College grounds.

Chicago: On July 27, two carloads of Chicago young people journeyed to Oregon to visit the College, and the Berean and worship services of the Oregon church. Everyone enjoyed the visit. Average church attendance for July was 26. A large percentage of our regular attendants are young people who are not from Church of God families. May we be able to continue carrying the gospel to strangers. Two recent baptisms and a transfer of membership has increased our membership to 30. Timothy Pearson preached in Chicago on August 17 while the pastor, Harold Doan, was in Baraga assisting Leonard Brown, with other men of our ministry, in conducting the convalescence of the Chippewa Indians.

J. M. MORGAN'S FIVE VOLUMES

With loving regards and a lasting appreciation, I am happy to mail to many of you a set of my five volumes. I truly thank God for the $550.00 that I have received in donations from you who love the truth.

The cost for printing the one thousand sets of these five volumes has been greatly increased by using large type. Therefore, the cost is $807.50 for printing the five books. The difference between $807.50 and $550.00 leaves a balance of $257.50, which makes a heavy burden on your humble servant. I am mailing out several hundred sets for your inspection. Look them over and make your own decision as to the amount you will give on the $257.50. I will love you and pray God will bless you, whatever your decision may be.

If you do not care to read the books, please pass them on to a friend with this letter. I pray God will so bless the truth contained in the sets of five volumes, that many people will be made ready for endless life in the ages of endless joy, and I pray God will bless you and give us a part in His endless great coming Kingdom with Christ in the age of endless joy.

I will be glad to receive a letter from you telling me if you received a set of these five volumes.

J. M. Morgan, Rt. 1, Bristow, Okla.

JONES - PENNINGTON

This is a very belated notice of the Jones-Pennington wedding which occurred at the Golden Rule Church of God in Cleveland, Ohio, on Thursday, June 12, 1947.

Sr. Evelyn Jones, daughter of Bro. and Sr. George Jones, was married to Mr. John Pennington of Birmingham, Ala. The ceremony was performed by Bro. Grover Gordon. Bro. Melville Lyon came to Cleveland for the wedding and sang "I Love You Truly."

Maybe one reason for this announcement coming late is the fact that as teacher of the Young people's Class, I hate to lose members, as they then go to the Young Married People's Class. We all can be thankful, however, that these young people go into another class rather than dropping out altogether.

find them, for they search our hearts, and speaks to us through them. Most of them are conditional.

Yes, it is the forward look that gives us courage and helps us daily to overcome obstacles that we may meet in this great warfare against sin. It also helps us to keep up right relations with both God and man. There should be a constant struggle to attain and maintain the spirit of the Word, in the midst of a wicked and adulterous generation. "Looking for that blessed hope and the glorious appearing of the great God, and our Saviour Jesus Christ."

Gleanings from the Field

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

Sr. Leota B. Hanson motored to Ripley, Ill., August 16, being accompanied with Sr. Lindsay, Oregon, Ill., and her sister, Mrs. Clista Praelin of Griggsville, Ill., who was en route homeward.

Sr. Alfred Anthon, 435 Kings Road, Corvallis, Ore., recently injured herself by falling downstairs. While sweeping a ceiling, she walked into a stairway.

Following General Conference, Bros. M. W. Lyon, Emory Maey, and James Mattison motored to Baraga, Mich., to visit an Indian mission field being worked by Bro. Leonard Brown.

Bro. Emory Maey, having returned to Oregon, Ill., from his visit to the Baraga, Mich., Indian mission, continued, August 14, on a church-visiting trip into Missouri, Arkansas, and Texas.

Reserved for next Herald: a report of the Arkansas-Oklahoma Conference, there being insufficient space for it in this issue.

Bro. M. W. Lyon left Oregon, Ill., early morning of August 15, to work with the Western Nebraska Conference at Holbrook. Thereafter, he will go to Gatesville, Tex., for the newly revived Texas Conference.

"I will gladly offer my home to any of our ministers who care to come here to hold preaching services. . . I do wish we could get our church started in this large city."—Miss Lura Boyce, Box 605, Oklahoma City, Okla.

Bro. and Sr. Harry Payne, students of Oregon Bible College, plan soon to go on a short pre-school vacation to their former home at Fonthill, Ont., returning in time to enter classes on September 8.

Sr. Louise Johnson, Oregon, Ill., is vacationing with her grandparents. Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Johnson, Sac City, Iowa. She plans, also, to attend the Iowa Conference at Waterloo, where she is to teach a class of children.

Sr. Wilma Judy and son Dan motored from Oregon, Ill., August 14, on a trip that will take them through Yellowstone National Park onward to Banning, Calif. Dan plans to attend college, this fall, at Fullerton, Calif.

Srs. Verna Thayer, Mabel Barnum, and Irene Payne left headquarters toward the end of General Conference, going to the Virginia Conference at Maurertown.

No Herald next week! It is vacation time for some of our workers. Your next Herald will be the one dated September 2.

“What Doth the Lord Require?”

“Will the Lord be pleased with thousands of rams, or with ten thousands of rivers of oil? shall I give my first-born for my transgression, the fruit of my body for the sin of my soul?” (Micah 6:7.) No, man cannot redeem his own soul; cannot pay the price for his own transgressions. Jesus, the Lamb of God, spotless and pure, only could atone, and He atoned for all. What, though, does God expect of man? That question was answered by the Prophet Micah:

“He hath shewed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?” (v. 8.)

God has shown man what is good and what He requires. There must be action; there must be service; and it must be service given “justly.” The shrewdness of men in these last days necessitates that one constantly be “on guard.” Leaders, even in religion, tutored in the technique of psychology, go out to get their game—and feel justified when they catch it. “The end justifies the means,” they say. The odds are against one who lives humbly, in love toward all, and who practices the Golden Rule as Jesus taught. Micah’s text requires not merely that one wishes to see justice in others but that he, personally, does justly. This is not a lazy man’s text, nor a text to console the shrewd.

Doing justly, however, is not all that God requires. Indeed, justice sometimes is bitter, cruel. If the Lord dealt only justly with men, we should all perish for our sins. So, Micah linked another requirement with justice, the requirement of mercy. “What doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy.” Mercy is the exercise of kindness where it might be overlooked or withheld. It is reaching down to the poor and lowly. It is forgiving when to forgive is most difficult. It is doing good to one who little deserves the good and who never can repay it. Moreover, the Lord requires the man of God to love mercy: to love doing good to others when they do not merit it, when there is no obligation or earthly compensation.

Finally, Micah taught that God requires man “to walk humbly with [his] God.” Consider the marginal reading of this part of the text: “Humble thyself to walk with thy God.” The thought seems to be that one is unprepared, disqualified, to walk with God until he humbles himself. “Thus saith the high and lofty One that inhabiteth eternity, whose name is Holy; I dwell in the high and holy place, with him also who is of a contrite and humble spirit, to revive the spirit of the humble, and to revive the heart of the contrite ones” (Isa. 57:15).

What does the Lord require of you? of me? Certainly, there are many duties and details of service that the Lord requires today, yet all these are covered in a general way by Micah’s memorable text. “Do justly,” “love mercy,” and “walk humbly with thy God.”

“Wait on the Lord”

Have you found the world heartless, cold? Has doubt crept into your soul? Has life seemed hard, meaningless? Have you been misunderstood, forsaken, left to stand or fall alone? David experienced such times of trouble, but he also learned of true deliverance. “I had fainted,” said David, “unless I had believed to see the goodness of the Lord in the land of the living” (Psalm 27:13).

Faith in God and His goodness, and hope in God’s mercy, often will stay the fainting human heart when everything else fails. Then, speaking from his experiences to encourage others about to faint, David comforted them, saying: “Wait on the Lord, be of good courage, and he shall strengthen thine heart: wait, I say, on the Lord” (v. 14).

The next verses in the Bible, though appearing as a part of another Psalm, have similar appeal:

“Unto thee will I cry, O Lord my rock; be not silent to me: lest, if thou be silent to me, I become like them that go down into the pit. Hear the voice of my supplications, when I cry unto thee, when I lift up my hands toward thy holy oracle. . . . Blessed be the Lord, because he hath heard the voice of my supplications. The Lord is my strength and my shield; my heart trusted in him, and I am helped: therefore my heart greatly rejoiceth; and with my song will I praise him” (Psalm 28:1, 2, 6, 7).

"Exceeding Great and Precious Promises"

By Mrs. H. H. Kent, Pueblo, Colorado

"Whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promises: that by these ye might be partakers of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust" (2 Peter 1:4).

THESE WORDS, written in 2 Peter 1:4, are refreshing and encouraging to Christians in these tragic times. The usual, everyday demands upon our vitality would be greater if we did not see this reward at the end, and know that because it was God who promised it that we are assured of it if we are true to Him and hope to the end. We are safe only in His hands. "He that hath this hope in him, purifieth himself."

Who but the scoffers would doubt, when we see conditions facing us just as the prophets said there would be, that we are standing upon the threshold of events so great that nothing in the past ever could be compared to them? Those who realize the situation as it is, and the trend of world events, do "rejoice with trembling," knowing that a righteous government will be established upon the earth. No one but the King of Kings ever could solve our present problems. Time after time, we have seen that man's efforts, although some may have good intentions, have ended in failure. There is increasing fear that our present civilizations are on the verge of another great catastrophe. History will repeat itself again, unless the nations whole-heartedly turn to God and cry for mercy. This, we know from God's Word, they will not do.

It is the opinion of many Christians that this present world distress, so common among the civilized nations, is due to the widespread knowledge and inventions, combined with human selfishness and depravity. Daniel prophesied that it would be evident in the end-time. Some writer mentioned recently that it was the fulfillment of 2 Timothy 3:1-5 that started this great departure from the teachings of the Bible. "In the last days perilous times shall come. For men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy . . ." Most of us are acquainted with these conditions because we see so much of them. The wise (only) shall understand. By tolerating these conditions, it has led us into great apostasy.

The ungodly close their eyes to the goodness and mercy of God. To them, money is King, and we see greed in many places. The time is coming, however, when famine will be so widespread that they will have no use for their gold and silver. They will learn then that "riches profit not in the day of wrath: but righteousness delivereth from death" (Prov. 11:4). We learn from the Old Testament that pestilence and famine always have followed wars. Nothing can teach men these things so well as experience. Now, their hearts are failing them—no hope in view. All is confusion because they have left God out of their plans. God has a solution to our present problems. When the time comes for Him to act, He will send Jesus Christ to clean up this world. (Rev. 11:18, 19; Dan. 7:9; Luke 1:32.) Christians are in the world, as examples, but not of it. They, like Abraham of old, look "for a city which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God." Christians look to the precious promises beyond this present time of trouble in which we see violence, chaos, and a moral let-down everywhere, just as Christ said it was in Noah's day. We may expect these things till the time is fulfilled. John spoke of a time when there would be "woe to the inhabiter of the earth and of the sea! for the devil is come down . . . having great wrath, because he knoweth that he hath but a short time" (Rev. 12:12).

We cannot dwell on this dark picture too long. It is better to think often of God's precious promises. They are "exceeding great"—more than great. We are told, "What eye had not seen, and ear had not heard, and what had not entered into the human heart, God had prepared for those loving him. But God has revealed it to us through the Spirit; for the Spirit investigates all, even the high purposes of God . . . Thus none comprehends the thoughts of God except the Spirit of God" (1 Cor. 2:9-11; Fenton). Such prophecies and many others are given to the children of faith that they might increase their joy in His promises, so as not to fear, nor become discouraged when they see what things are coming to pass. It is evident, however, that there may be things to fear, for Luke said, "Fear not, little flock." He also said: "Look up, and lift up your heads; for your redemption draweth nigh." David tells us, "I have set the Lord always before me: because he is at my right hand, I shall not be moved."

Satan will discourage us if he can. These are perilous times, not alone for the world but also for the children of the faith of God. He will try every means he can to injure or hinder us. God has given us many precious promises. They can be counted into the thousands. Are we standing on them? If so, we will be counting our blessings. Some of the promises may appeal directly to us, and we need to search the Scriptures daily to (Please turn to page 7)

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

Prepared by Madge Savage
Waite Park, Minnesota

"All these kings and their land did Joshua take at one time, because the Lord God of Israel fought for Israel."

Joshua Fights Again

Joshua did not get a very long rest after his battles. He was not finished with his work of conquering the Holy Land.

Several peoples banded together to fight against Israel. First they intended to destroy the people of Gibeon. These were the ones who had tricked Joshua into promising to be kind to them and live at peace with them. The Gibeonites sent word for Joshua to help them. Joshua and his soldiers went at once to help them. Joshua had the renewed promise, "Fear them not," from the Lord God.

How well the Israelites could fight, knowing God was with them! According to our account (Josh. 10:9), the army of Joshua marched at night, "all night." They, no doubt, surprised the enemy as an historical account tells us, attacking from the rear as the Gibeonites fought in the front of the enemy. The armies doubtless were well trained and used trickery and other methods to gain the victory.

The Lord Helps

The armies fled before Israel. Then the Lord "cast down great stones." There "were more which died with hailstones than they whom the children of Israel slew with the sword" (Josh. 10:11).

Part of the enemy army was made up of Amorites.

Joshua had too much to do that day, but the Lord was with him.

The Sun and Moon Pause

Joshua spoke in the sight of all Israel, "Sun, stand thou still upon Gibeon; and thou Moon, in the valley of Ajalon" (Josh. 10:12). And they did! until Joshua and his army had finished their fighting. The sun "hasted not to go down about a whole day" (v. 13). The account tells us that there was never a day like that day before or since that time.

Should We Believe It?

When we believe and know our God is all powerful, we can believe such an account readily. Though it may have been meant other than that it really happened, still it does not limit our faith to believe it honestly happened. For our God is able. He created the sun, the earth, and people. Why should we think it strange to have Him let the sun and moon stand still for a short time.

Greater things than that is our God able to do. Some day it will be "the day of the Lord Jesus." Jesus will come. The dead will be raised. His bride will be caught away from the earth for a while. In that day, the Lord Jesus will be the central figure. God takes pleasure in His Son. He will enjoy His Son's reign and rule. If we prepare for that time, we will be watching for it. We will be ready and joyful when Jesus, our Redemption, draws near. May we be on God's side when the Kingdom begins to be set up on the earth.

When Joshua finished his fighting, there were none left to fight. His victory was complete.

Trust in God

"Blessed is he that considereth the poor: the Lord will deliver him in time of trouble. The Lord will preserve him, and keep him alive; and he shall be blessed upon the earth. . . . The Lord will strengthen him upon the bed of languishing: thou wilt make all his bed in his sickness" (Psalm 41:1-3).

"God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble. Therefore will not we fear, though the earth be removed, and though the mountains be carried into the midst of the sea; though the waters thereof roar and be troubled, though the mountains shake" (Psalm 46:1-3).

Berean

National Society

National Berean Day Report

The Bereans arose early again this year and gathered for breakfast at the city park in Oregon, Illinois. Each year the Bereans in Oregon sponsor a breakfast or a picnic for the visiting Bereans on our day. The president of the Oregon Bereans is a cook. He helped to make the doughnuts that you ate this year. Thank you, Billy Dick! Linford Moore, the new National Berean president, was the devotional leader for the breakfast services.

Students who attended the Youth Rally this year led the morning devotions. Miss Marion Otto of Eden Valley, Minnesota, was mistress of ceremonies, while Betty Dick of Oregon, Illinois, furnished the music. John McLeod from Pomona, California, sang the "Lord's Prayer," and Miss Joyce Overholser of Los Angeles read the Scripture. John Denchfield, pastor of the Southlawn Church in Grand Rapids, Michigan, gave a good sermon on faith. We all enjoyed his examples and practical applications.

Each day throughout conference, the eleven o'clock hour was sponsored by the National Berean Society and the National Sunday School Association. These discussions were enjoyed by everyone. The speakers did a good job. This hour on National Berean Day was conducted by Clarence Lapp of Tempe, Arizona. Mr. Lapp received his Master's Degree by preparing a thesis on juvenile delinquency. He had material from many people, one of whom was J. Edgar Hoover. He also had statements from students on movies. Some delinquents said their downfall came from seeing crimes committed in the movies or from the desire to do the things they saw.

The young people enjoyed his talk as much as the adults.

This year, the regular classes were conducted in the morning and afternoon.

Mrs. Thayer and her junior Bereans took charge of the morning devotions again this year. We all enjoyed their choir number. It was a new song about their Bible. Two boys held the music for the choir. It was printed on large pages which formed a Bible. Wesley Somers, a 13-year-old Youth Rally student from the Rockford, Illinois, church, gave a good sermonette, based on the last verse of the Parable of the Ten Virgins: "Watch therefore, for ye know neither the day nor the hour wherein the Son of man cometh." We all need to watch and be prepared, and we need more junior Bereans to spread the Word of God.

Our National Berean business meeting was called together by the president, Arlen Marsh. We sang "Sunlight, Sunlight," which is a good song for Bereans because we should show forth the light of God by the way we live. We were a little disappointed in the number of Bereans that attended our business meeting this year. BEREANS, plan to attend your meeting next year and present your ideas!

It was decided that The Guiding Star should continue this year on a free basis. It will be sent out quarterly beginning in October. Watch for it. It is going to be larger and better. Everyone has enjoyed the Berean Page in The Herald and The Guiding Star during the past year. We want to express our thanks to the editors, Harold Doan and Arlen Marsh, for their earnest work in our behalf during the year.

Your officers for the coming year are Linford Moore of Macomb, Illinois, president; Robert Hardesty of Omaha, Nebraska, first vice president; Billy Dick, Oregon, Illinois, second vice president; Mary E. (Beth) Marsh, Rockford, Illinois, secretary; and Shirley Logsdon, Oregon, Illinois, treasurer. We will work for you! Will you help our Society to grow and to be better this year?

The day closed with the Bereans taking charge of the evening service. Arlen Marsh was master of ceremonies. Barbara Claussen of Oregon, Illinois, was at the piano. We all enjoyed Betty Dick's piano solo. Miss Mary Catherine Railton, Miss Cleo Williams, and Mrs. Wilma Knodle, all of Rockford, Illinois, sang a beautiful trio for us. Gordon Landry of Hammond, Louisiana, was our speaker for the evening. He is the regular student minister for the Chapel in East Oregon. We all enjoyed his sermon and agree with him that Bereans and Church of God members should not forget our doctrines, become indifferent, and merge with other groups and denominations. "Be ye a separate people."

Mary E. Marsh, Secy.

BARAGA MISSION FIELD

During the past week, several ministers visited at Baraga, Mich., where Bro. Leonard Brown has been working faithfully with his sisters to develop an Indian mission work. Upon request of the local people, the Church of God provided speakers for the Annual Indian Camp Meeting which convened August 9-17.

National Evangelist M. W. Lyon, with Emory Maey and James Mattison, opened the work on the first week end. Harold Doan left Wednesday, with Mrs. Doan, to supply over Thursday and Friday. The writer, accompanied by Mrs. Watkins and Raymond Brown, left on Friday morning to provide the closing services over Saturday and Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Delos Andrew plan to arrive there, Sunday, with their son Bill and daughter Patsy for a vacation period in those parts.

The writer plans to spend a couple of weeks in this field, getting acquainted with the work and helping to prepare for the coming of Sr. Verna Thayer, who will open a series of children's classes and offer teacher-training instruction in the near future.

Reports tell us that the work has been well received and that a very large delegation from this field is planning to attend the Summer Bible Training School and Youth Rally of 1948. James M. Watkins.

MOOREFIELD, NEBRASKA

Sunday afternoon, August 10, about thirty-five friends met at the water's edge when Mr. Silas N. Kugler, age sixty-six, was baptized into Christ. Silas meant to be baptized ever since his wife was, but put it off from time to time. His wife, Susie, died, August 6. All of the Kugler girls were present at the baptismal service. One daughter, Dorothea, is in the faith with her father.

Mr. Kugler probably will visit with his daughters for a while before taking up his duties at Moorefield. If anyone has time to write Mr. Kugler a line, it will help him at this time. Address: Silas N. Kugler, Moorefield, Nebr. E. E. Giesler.

QUARTERLY PRICE ADVANCES

Due to constantly increasing costs in the publishing industry, the recent General Conference voted to increase the price of all quarterlies. In accord with this decision, beginning September 1, all Truth Seekers', Intermediate, and Children's quarterlies will be advanced to 20 cents per copy. We regret that circumstances beyond our control have made this increase necessary, but we know that our Sunday schools will understand that we cannot continue to absorb the growing loss on these publications.

HELP WANTED AT COLLEGE

Oregon Bible College is in need of a man and wife (members of the Church of God) to serve as campus superintendent and cook, respectively. If interested write immediately. Sydney E. Magaw, Superintendent.

UNIONVILLE, OHIO

The vacation Bible school sponsored by the Unionville Church of God came to a close on Friday morning, July 25. Thursday evening, 24th, the children gave a program, demonstrating what they learned during the two weeks. The theme of their study was, "A Trip on the Gospel Plane," which supposedly took them to Egypt. From there, they were to travel by camel to different countries mentioned in the Bible. Songs and picture stories depicted each phase of their journey. At conclusion of the program, colored slides were shown, covering each of the stories the children had studied.

Seventy-two children were enrolled in the Bible school. The average daily attendance was forty-six, and at least one hundred parents and friends attended the program. On Friday morning, each child was presented a certificate, and each child who had brought five or more other children to the Bible school was presented a Bible. Marian Woidtke.

BARAGA, MICHIGAN

Zela is in the Chippewa Indian Reservation across the bay from Baraga, Mich. Here in the midst of a forest, the annual Indian Camp Meeting was conducted, August 9-17. This report concerns only the first two days.

Although another denomination is in charge of the Chippewas in Zela, Bro. Leonard Brown has been given complete charge of the Camp Meeting this year.

It was our privilege to drive with Bro. M. W. Lyon and E. L. Maey to Baraga to assist Bro. Brown in this work. The meeting was opened Saturday night, August 9, with a basic sermon on God, attendance being thirty-seven. On Sunday, there were three sermons and Sunday school. Attendance at the afternoon sermon was more than forty. At that time, Mrs. Duggan, an Indian woman, sang a hymn in Indian. At the close of this service, it was necessary for the writer to return to Oregon, Ill.

These services were most inspiring to me. Here are people who need the gospel of Christ, "which is the power of God unto salvation." There is so much to do and so few to work. Assist Bro. Brown in the work with your prayers. J. Mattison.

ILLINOIS CONFERENCE NEWS

Rockford: "Only one baptism took place at the Illinois State Conference this year—that of Wesley Somers, 13, Rt. 1, Monroe Center.

"The immersion followed the evening service on Sunday, August 3, in the baptistry of the Oregon church. Wesley's pastor, J. Arlen Marsh, officiated, with F. L. Austin, retiring pastor of the Oregon church, assisting.

"Strong effort is being exerted by the Rockford group to secure a lot for future building, probably in Love's Park, a newly incorporated town on the north side of the city."

East Oregon Chapel: Average Sunday school attendance for the year at the chapel was 72. There were four baptisms, making a total new of 14.

"The chapel now has a junior Sunday school department in the basement, which is well attended.

Leonard Brown, a former student at Oregon Bible College, and at one time a helper in our Sunday school, preached an interesting sermon at the worship service, June 15. Leonard, who lives in Baraga, Mich., conducts a Sunday school for Indian children at Zeba, Mich., near an Indian reservation. He gave an interesting talk earlier in the day to the children in the junior department, telling something of the characteristics of the Indian children. This was very instructive entertainment for the children, who listened attentively.

"The skit, 'Daniel in the Lion's Den,' enacted by John Swanson, George Whitmore, and Teddy and Delos Arbogast, was greatly enjoyed by all the children in the junior department. It illustrated what true faith can accomplish, accompanied by prayer."

Oregon: Pre-conference doings: Enter Group 1 into the conference hall with brooms, dust cloths, mops, pails, soap, scrub brushes, dish cloths, etc.—and "Presto"—only it's harder than that—the building is clean from garret to cellar, and the dishes are washed. Enter Group 2 with clothesline, sewing equipment, irons, etc. The mattresses, pillows, and bedding are aired, repaired, protectors sewed on comforters, under pillow cases put on, curtains pressed and hung, ironing boards recovered, etc. Enter Group 3—the brawn and muscle—to wrestle with benches, tables, etc. It's done. You're welcome. After you have been with us a while, we will store it away to await your next visit.

On July 10, Mrs. Doan's recently formed Sunday school class organized, taking the name "Gospel Gleaners."

On July 13, Bereans entertained the summer College group and the Youth Rally folk with a trip to the Pines and a picnic supper and regular meeting on the College grounds.

Chicago: On July 27, two carloads of Chicago young people journeyed to Oregon to visit the College, and the Berean and worship services of the Oregon church. Everyone enjoyed the visit. Average church attendance for July was 26. A large percentage of our regular attendants are young people who are not from Church of God families. May we be able to continue carrying the gospel to strangers. Two recent baptisms and a transfer of membership has increased our membership to 30. Timothy Pearson preached in Chicago on August 17 while the pastor, Harold Doan, was in Baraga assisting Leonard Brown, with other men of our ministry, in conducting the convale of the Chippewa Indians.

J. M. MORGAN'S FIVE VOLUMES

With loving regards and a lasting appreciation, I am happy to mail to many of you a set of my five volumes. I truly thank God for the $550.00 that I have received in donations from you who love the truth.

The cost for printing the one thousand sets of these five volumes has been greatly increased by using large type. Therefore, the cost is $807.50 for printing the five books. The difference between $807.50 and $550.00 leaves a balance of $257.50, which makes a heavy burden on your humble servant. I am mailing out several hundred sets for your inspection. Look them over and make your own decision as to the amount you will give on the $257.50. I will love you and pray God will bless you, whatever your decision may be.

If you do not care to read the books, please pass them on to a friend with this letter. I pray God will so bless the truth contained in the sets of five volumes, that many people will be made ready for endless life in the ages of endless joy, and I pray God will bless you and give us a part in His endless great coming Kingdom with Christ in the age of endless joy.

I will be glad to receive a letter from you telling me if you received a set of these five volumes.

J. M. Morgan, Rt. 1, Bristow, Okla.

JONES - PENNINGTON

This is a very belated notice of the Jones-Pennington wedding which occurred at the Golden Rule Church of God in Cleveland, Ohio, on Thursday, June 12, 1947.

Sr. Evelyn Jones, daughter of Bro. and Sr. George Jones, was married to Mr. John Pennington of Birmingham, Ala. The ceremony was performed by Bro. Grover Gordon. Bro. Melville Lyon came to Cleveland for the wedding and sang "I Love You Truly."

Maybe one reason for this announcement coming late is the fact that as teacher of the Young people's Class, I hate to lose members, as they then go to the Young Married People's Class. We all can be thankful, however, that these young people go into another class rather than dropping out altogether.

Gleanings from the Field

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

Sr. Leota B. Hanson motored to Ripley, Ill., August 16, being accompanied with Sr. Lewis Lindsay, Oregon, Ill., and her sister, Mrs. Clista Fredlin of Griggsville, Ill., who was en route homeward.

Sr. Alfred Anthon, 435 Kings Road, Corvallis, Ore., recently injured herself by falling downstairs. While sweeping a ceiling, she walked into a stairway.

Following General Conference, Bros. M. W. Lyon, Emory Maey, and James Mattison motored to Baraga, Mich., to visit an Indian mission field being worked by Bro. Leonard Brown.

Bro. Emory Maey, having returned to Oregon, Ill., from his visit to the Baraga, Mich., Indian mission, continued, August 14, on a church-visiting trip into Missouri, Arkansas, and Texas.

Reserved for next Herald: a report of the Arkansas-Oklahoma Conference, there being insufficient space for it in this issue.

Bro. M. W. Lyon left Oregon, Ill., early morning of August 15, to work with the Western Nebraska Conference at Holbrook. Thereafter, he will go to Gatesville, Tex., for the newly revived Texas Conference.

"I will gladly offer my home to any of our ministers who care to come here to hold preaching services. . . . I do wish we could get our church started in this large city."—Miss Lura Boyce, Box 605, Oklahoma City, Okla.

Bro. and Sr. Harry Payne, students of Oregon Bible College, plan soon to go on a short pre-school vacation to their former home at Fonthill, Ont., returning in time to enter classes on September 8.

Sr. Louise Johnson, Oregon, Ill., is vacationing with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Johnson, Sae City, Iowa. She plans, also, to attend the Iowa Conference at Waterloo, where she is to teach a class of children.

Sr. Wilma Judy and son Dan motored from Oregon, Ill., August 14, on a trip that will take them through Yellowstone National Park onward to Banning, Calif. Dan plans to attend college, this fall, at Fullerton, Calif.

Srs. Verna Thayer, Mabel Barnum, and Irene Payne left headquarters toward the end of General Conference, going to the Virginia Conference at Maurettown.

No Herald next week! It is vacation time for some of our workers. Your next Herald will be the one dated September 2.

Fall Session—September 8, 1947

The fall session of Oregon Bible College will begin at 8:30 a.m., Monday, September 8. Courses that will be offered during the year are: Geographical Palestine, New Testament Interpretative Studies, Minor Prophets, Sermon Writing, The Psalms, Daniel and Revelation, Public Speaking, Composition, Christian Art, Principles of Christian Living, Music, and similar courses to assist one in preparation for Christian service.

Instructors:

SYDNEY E. MAGAW

MRS. BEN CARPENTER

OTTO E. DICK

MRS. EDNA BREWER

MISS ALTA SAMELSON

Do these subjects arouse your curiosity, interest, and enthusiasm? They should! Young people, if you are children of God, you must be anxious to learn more of His Word and to comprehend the work He has prepared for you. ¶ The time of Christ's coming is drawing near. There may be only a few more moments in which one can work. As Jesus told His apostles two thousand years ago—and surely it must be truer now—"The harvest truly is plenteous but the labourers are few; pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth labourers into his harvest." Where are the reapers? Again Jesus pleaded against procrastination: "Say not ye, There are yet four months, and then cometh harvest? behold, I say unto you, Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields; for they are white already to harvest." Yes, young people, God's work is waiting for you. Begin your preparation now! Oregon Bible College is ready to give you this training. Do not delay; write today for catalog.

“Signs of the Times”

When the Pharisees and Sadducees tempted Jesus, asking Him to show them “a sign from heaven.” He replied:

“When it is evening, ye say, It will be fair weather: for the sky is red. And in the morning, It will be foul weather to day: for the sky is red and lowring. O ye hypocrites, ye can discern the face of the sky; but can ye not discern the signs of the times? A wicked and adulterous generation seeketh after a sign; and there shall no sign be given unto it, but the sign of the prophet Jonas” (Matt. 16:2-4).

The Pharisees and Sadducees overlooked Jesus’ miracles as sufficient signs of His Messiahship. They were more interested and accurate in foretelling the weather than in evaluating the Christ. Even Christ’s resurrection—“sign of the prophet Jonas”—was unheeded. Similarly, worldly people today, though schooled in the sciences, fail to recognize the “signs of the times.” They fail to see the numerous signs indicating this age is fast closing and the second coming of Christ is very near.

Speaking of His second coming, Jesus said, “There shall be signs in the sun, and in the moon, and in the stars” (Luke 21:25). Isaiah prophesied, “The moon shall be confounded, and the sun ashamed, when the Lord of hosts shall reign in mount Zion, and in Jerusalem, and before his ancients gloriously” (24:23). One of the signs in heaven testifying that Christ will come a second time is the sun itself. Jeremiah, telling that the “Branch of righteousness” is to “execute judgment and righteousness in the land,” wrote as of the Lord:

“If ye can break my covenant of the day, and my covenant of the night, and that there should not be day and night in their season; then may also my covenant be broken with David my servant, that he should not have a son to reign upon his throne” (33:20, 21).

Every time the sun rises, that new day is a sign that God will keep His promise of the great new Day when Jesus is king in the earth. Every time night settles down upon the earth, darkness in its order is a testimony that at the correct time Jesus will reign on David’s throne.

Foreseeing the political world in disorder prior to His returning, Jesus foretold there would be “upon the earth distress of nations, with perplexity . . . men’s hearts failing them for fear.” Long before Jesus’ birth, Ezekiel prophesied that a great northern confederacy of nations would sweep down upon the land of Palestine “after many days,” and “in the latter years.” Russia appears to be about ready to lead that northern horde in sudden attack upon Palestine—where she will be destroyed by “the brightness of his [Christ’s] coming” (2 Thess. 2:8). Revelation 13 indicates an ungodly world power will arise before Christ is king, compelling obedience and worship of earth’s multitudes whose names are not written in the Book of Life. Certainly, this spirit of Antichrist is steeping all the world with idolatrous Babylon—and Babylon must fall (Rev. 18) when Jesus holds the reins of government.

Signs in the social world also indicate that Jesus is coming soon. Rich men heap their treasures together “for the last days,” living in pleasure at the expense of the poor—fraud diverting profits of the poor into the pocketbooks of the big-time gamblers. “Be patient therefore, brethren, unto the coming of the Lord. . . . Stablish your hearts: for the coming of the Lord draweth nigh.” (James 5.)

In the moral world, too, “perilous times shall come.” Men will be “lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God.” “As it was in the days of Lot; they did eat, they drank, they bought, they sold, they planted, they builded; but the same day that Lot went out of Sodom . . . fire and brimstone from heaven . . . destroyed them all. Even thus shall it be in the day when the Son of man is revealed” (Luke 17:28-30).

In the church, there is a “falling away” (2 Thess. 2:3). One today can appreciate Jesus’ question, “When the Son of man cometh, shall he find faith on the earth?” (Luke 18:8.) Said Paul, “In the latter times some shall depart from the faith” (1 Tim. 4:1). Who need ask for a plainer sign from heaven?

There are signs in Israel, too, showing that the coming of the Lord draws near. The fig-tree nation is budding! Palestine is aglow with life and enterprise. “When the Lord shall build up Zion, he shall appear in his glory” (Psalm 102:16). “The wise shall understand” (Dan. 12:10).

The "Rh" Factor in Light of Prophecy

By Iola Magaw, Saint Cloud, Minnesota

ALL WHO have studied the Word of God, especially the teachings of the prophets, know we are drawing nearer and nearer to the end of man's rule of the world. One sign the Lord gave, showing we are in the last days, was that of a time of trouble; a time of unrest and fear of war. God spoke to Jeremiah of this, saying: "Thus saith the Lord; We have heard a voice of trembling, of fear, and not of peace" (30:5). People throughout the world today are troubled and afraid of another war. In our classrooms and at places of work, one hears, "What can we expect from Russia? What is she hiding behind her iron curtain?" World diplomats and politicians tell us there is nothing to fear of Russia. She is too beaten and exhausted from World War II to be a menace now; she herself is afraid of another war and wants peace above everything else. Still the American people are afraid not only of Russia's political movements, but also her probable use of the atomic bomb. Russia already has the secret of the atomic bomb. Other people of the world are afraid of the United States, because she already has used the atomic bomb.

In 2 Timothy 3:1, 4, we read of other signs of the last days. "This know also, that in the last days perilous times shall come. For men shall be . . . traitors, heady, high-minded, lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God." Every year, day after day, new attendance records are made at places of amusement throughout the land. The baseball park, the football stadium, the race track, the motion picture, and all similar places are doing a "rushing" business. How long has it been since you have equaled or beaten your record attendance at Sunday school or church meetings?

These are only a few of many signs telling we are in the last days of this present world. Another sign is recorded in Daniel 12:1, 4: "At that time shall Michael stand up, the great prince which standeth for the children of thy people: and there shall be a time of trouble, such as never was since there was a nation even to that same time: and at that time thy people shall be delivered, every one that shall be found written in the book. . . . But thou, O Daniel, shut up the words, and seal the book, even to the time of the end: many shall run to and fro, and knowledge shall be increased." How true that knowledge is being increased! Day after day, man is making new discoveries in every field. Being so busy learning new things, he fails to give thanks to God for the blessings that mean so much when they are taken away. He neglects to go to church or to read the Bible with his family.

A recent discovery in the field of medicine that has proved to be of great importance to mankind is the "Rh" blood factor in human blood. Until the Rh factor was discovered, it was known that there are four different human blood types, or groups—AB, A, B, and O—and that to transfuse a patient (give one's blood to another person), it is necessary to determine the patient's and the donor's blood types and then to cross-match the patient's blood with the donor's blood to find out whether or not their blood types are compatible. The fact, however, that some patients developed severe reactions (some proving fatal) following a transfusion, though their's and the donor's blood was compatible in the laboratory test, led man to study the possibility of there being another factor in the human blood and eventually to discovery of the Rh factor.

Iola Magaw

Landsteiner and Wiener discovered this new factor in 1940 by injecting the blood of the Macacus rehesus monkey (from which the blood factor gets its name) into rabbits. After many experiments, it was learned that the blood cells of the Macacus rehesus monkey, also the blood cells of about eighty-five per cent of human beings irrespective of their blood type, clumped together when they came in contact with the blood serum of these immunized rabbits. Further experiments showed that the Rh factor is present in eighty-five per cent of white people, ninety-two per cent of negroes, in nearly one hundred per cent of Chinese, and in all Rehesus monkeys.

The fifteen per cent of white people whose blood cells will not clump together when they come in contact with the immunized serum are minus the Rh factor, or said to be "Rh negative." When a person who is Rh negative is given Rh positive blood, the patient's blood builds up antibodies called anti-Rh agglutinins against the Rh positive blood. These anti-bodies build up what we call a "titer" in the patient's blood system, and every time more Rh positive blood is injected into the blood stream, the "titer" goes higher. Until this "titer" reaches a certain height, there is no visual reaction. Therefore, an Rh negative person may receive one or two transfusions of Rh positive blood with no ill effects, but the third may cause a reaction of severe shaking chill, headache, (Please turn to page 9)

Preparing for Service

By Mrs. H. S. France, Wenatchee, Washington

JESUS SAID, "No man can serve two masters. . . . Ye cannot serve God and mammon" (Matt. 6:24). Are we, members of the Church of God, sufficiently welded together as to have only one aim—that of serving God? or do we have other aims, such as ambitions for wealth, social standing, or fame based on the sandy foundation of personal pride?

Time is running along much faster than most of us. Are we going to be ready when TIME overtakes us? Are we utilizing all the available wealth of knowledge, influence, and resources with which we can strengthen and build God's church? "Let us consider one another to provoke unto love and to good works: not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another: and so much the more, as ye see the day approaching" (Heb. 10:24, 25).

How can we best accomplish this purpose? First, last, and all the time, we must have knowledge and understanding of God's plan and wishes. Wise Solomon said, "Wisdom is the principal thing: therefore get wisdom: and with all thy getting get understanding." Can this necessary knowledge be attained by halfheartedly attending Sunday school part of the time and catching a few words from a sermon here and there, then going home and spending six days of the week on the cares of life?

One attends the early grades of public schools to learn the three "R's," then studies the higher grades to delve into the mysteries of the earth and the society of human beings. We spend years of systematic study doing just this. Very systematic study! Why? To acquire an education. Why? To make a good living. (Good.) Why? To accomplish one's worldly aims. One spends all these years in study and research to handle "the cares of this life"! "The cares of this life"! But is not one allowed to make a living? Surely! "If any provide not for his own, and specially for those of his own house, he hath denied the faith, and is worse than an infidel" (1 Tim. 5:8).

Should one spend all his time serving himself—self-worship? God forbid! Christ said, "He also that received seed among the thorns is he that heareth the word; and the care of this world, and the deceitfulness of riches, choke the word, and he becometh unfruitful" (Matt. 13:22). Let us study another reference. Solomon said, "Fear God, and keep his commandments: for this is the whole duty of man. For God shall bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good, or whether it be evil" (Eccl. 12:13, 14).

Now, we must make a living, and yet our whole duty is to God. There is only one answer to this problem: the big central theme of our lives must be to serve God, with making our living a means to accomplish this purpose. Remember that Solomon said the whole duty of man, not a part of our duty, is to serve God. God must come first in our lives. Christians can put Him first by living near His people, by studying and teaching others, and in supporting His church. Jesus said, "Take no thought, saying, What shall we eat? or what shall we drink? or wherewithal shall we be clothed? (For after all these things do the Gentiles seek:) for your heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need of all these things. But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness: and all these things shall be added unto you."

Attention High School Students.

You have finished twelve years of fundamental study of this life. How about devoting the next four years to an equally systematic and serious study of God's plan for you? Proper preparation for eternal life is worth a thousand times more than any amount of preparation for this life. "Every one that hath forsaken houses, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my name's sake, shall receive an hundredfold, and shall inherit everlasting life" (Matt. 19:29). "What is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?" (Matt. 16:26). To devote one's life to a worldly vocation will not profit when God's vocation must be the center of one's life!

The chaotic state of today's civilization is in crying, dy-

NOW'S THE TIME

If you have some work that's waiting,
Now's the time.

Do not stand there hesitating,
Now's the time.

If you wait and be so slow
While the golden moments go,
You'll not have results to show—
Now's the time.

If you have a task before you,
Now's the time.
Oh, I earnestly implore you!
Now's the time.

If you only really knew
Just how much it meant to you;
Life is short and years are few—
Now's the time.

If you wish to help another,
Now's the time.
Do not wait a year, my brother,
Now's the time.

Just a simple thing, I guess,
But I'll tell you plainly, Yes,
It's the secret of success—
Now's the time.

ing need of ministerial help. In this "educated" world, ministers must have a formal education to command respect and attention from the average citizen. One must learn to avoid one-sided explanations and offensive tangents. For example, if one knows only the reference, "God does not tempt man," (Please turn to page 9)

Who Was the Preacher?

By Timothy Pearson, Oregon, Illinois

THIS IS the true story of a preacher. Maybe after reading this biography, some of you devoted Christians will be inspired to follow his example of preaching and teaching for the Lord.

This man was reared in the country. He was a typical country boy, except for the times he brooded and went out alone and sat beneath trees in the woods just thinking about "things." One day his thoughts were wandering about, as they often did, dwelling upon different questions which bothered him. At length, he found himself musing over political problems, particularly the fact that the party in power had no plank for religion in its platform of political ambitions. The members of the party did not profess to be religious and discouraged worship among the populace.

The preacher may have been a little impetuous, but he felt that God was calling him to "straighten out" the government. What a reception he received when he went to the capital city and rebuked the head of the government!

The young minister fled from the capitol and found a hiding place where he felt that his life would not be endangered. He remained in hiding several days but discovered to his dismay one morning that his water supply was exhausted. Desperation which stared him in the face was alleviated only by his sincere faith in God. He was serving God and felt that the Lord would provide for his needs. The thirsty man at last escaped, under cover of darkness, to a little city one hundred miles from any possible pursuers sent out by the officials he had offended.

As he approached the outskirts of the city, he chanced to meet a little old lady who was gathering kindling for her stove. She was shabbily dressed and undoubtedly had little money. If she had been well-to-do she probably would have dressed well and have hired servants to tend her fires.

To start a conversation, the hunted man asked her for a drink, for by this time his thirst was intense. As the woman started for water, he requested that she also bring food. He received the water, but all the food she possessed at that time was a wafer. The woman consented finally to feed the preacher. In return, he managed to provide food for the woman and her family for nearly three years.

He befriended the family on another occasion by saving the life of the woman's son. For this, he was rewarded by the assuring for himself the never-ending love of that poor old woman and her family.

As the preacher was taking one of his customary strolls out in the country, he met the governor who, at the desire of the chief executive, was looking over a tract of land and exploring it. The preacher discovered that the governor was a religious man. This was the opportunity for which the minister had been waiting. For three years, he had worried about the chaos the administration was causing because of its hostility to religion. Perhaps the chief executive would listen to the governor if he sent him. The governor went to work immediately and soon persuaded the chief to see this fugitive evangelist.

The preacher had quite an audience with the chief that memorable day. After all his hard work, however, the preacher failed to convert the chief executive.

The wife of the chief was enraged when she heard about the affair. She tried to have the preacher arrested, but he escaped to a neighboring country.

The remainder of the preacher's life was filled with narrow escapes from his pursuers, but he was never caught. For years he preached against sinners, especially those in political power.

Then one day he disappeared. I do not know where that devoted preacher is today; perhaps he is in a foreign country. But wherever he is, I hope that I may meet him some time and thank him for the good example he left me of true devotion to God regardless of the consequences. He knew the Scriptures well, was a forceful speaker, and could make his messages clear. But even had he been without these blessings, he would have been a great man, because he allowed God to direct his movements.

If you inquire, you may hear the story of this preacher a little different from the account I have written, but I tried to imagine how the preacher must have felt as he had one discouragement after another.

I never knew this minister, but I would like to be like him, wouldn't you? If you want to know more about him, read his complete biography. It will be easy to acquire, for, you see, this man's name was Elijah.

Isaiah the Statesman

By W. Howard Beemer, Saint Catharines, Ontario

THE POLITICAL teachings of Isaiah fall into three groups, corresponding roughly to the reigns of Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah.

The extent of the first period was approximately from 740 B.C. to 735 B.C. Isaiah constantly was forced to picture doom that was to come to the Jews because of their wickedness. His descriptions of this doom were very potent in descriptive powers. Read Isaiah 2:17, if you wish an example of the style used by this prophet of God.

The second period began about 734 B.C., and lasted until 719 B.C. In 734 B.C., Isaiah's dire predictions of the fall of Jerusalem partially were fulfilled in the joint attack of the forces of Israel and Syria. It might be well at this point to mention that Israel and Judah lay on the highway between two mighty powers, Assyria and Egypt. At this point, Ahaz, king of Judah, was determined to seek help from the Assyrians. Isaiah went to him with a message from the Lord: "Take heed, and be quiet; fear not, neither let thy heart be faint because of those two tails of smoking firebrands." Once again, we find Isaiah warning king and people not to entangle themselves in foreign alliances, but to put their complete trust in God. Sad to relate, however, Ahaz did not heed Isaiah and threw himself and his people into the arms of the Assyrians, which quickly quelled Israel and Syria.

Ahaz was weak and vain! It is scarcely to be thought that he could attain the heights of faith demanded by the prophet, who was directed of God. The people too, except in a very few cases, had too little faith. Quite likely the people were congratulating themselves on the "bargain" they had made. This joy was short-lived, however, and repentance came quite quickly; but it came too late. In 722 B.C., when Israel was carried away into captivity leaving Judah alone, repentance grew even stronger.

During the last years of the eighth century, and especially at its close, Isaiah entered into his most brilliant days. The proud people of Judah, who had boasted of their independence, found the yoke of Assyria exceptionally hard to bear. Judah was plotting rebellion in the form of a defensive league with Egypt. Isaiah, in order to meet the new needs of the people, changed his message once more. When the nation had been free, he had begged them to return to God and remain independent. He now implored them to submit to the Assyrian, since by their own folly they were at the mercy of the people of Assyria. In due time, God would set them free.

In 701, the crisis became imminent. Ten years before,

Isaiah had managed to stop the people by going about naked and shoeless in order to show how Egypt was going to be stripped by Assyria. Now, however, the people were determined to have their own way. Isaiah kept pleading with the king and people not to do this thing, but all to no avail. Possibly they suspected that Isaiah was in league with their enemies and thus listened all the more readily to the emissaries from Egypt. These Egyptians were urging them to form a pact against Assyria with the other petty kingdoms. Isaiah warned them not to trust in Egypt: "Woe to the rebellious children, saith Jehovah, that take counsel, but not of me; and that make a league with them not of my spirit; that they may add sin to sin . . . to strengthen themselves in the strength of Pharaoh, and to take refuge in the shadow of Egypt. Therefore, shall the strength of Pharaoh be your shame; and the shame of Egypt your confusion." The only response of the people was to cry out for smooth sayings. The seer uttered: "Woe to them that go down to Egypt for help, and rely on horses, and trust in chariots because they are many, and in horsemen because they are very strong, but they look not unto the Holy One of Israel, neither seek Jehovah! He also is wise. . . . Now the Egyptians are men, and not God; and their horses are flesh, and not spirit; and when Jehovah shall stretch out his hand, both he that helpeth shall stumble, and he that is helped shall fall, and they shall be consumed together." Once again, the pleas of Isaiah fell on deaf ears. The conspiracy, as Isaiah had warned, fell apart very easily, and Judah was once again overrun.

When the people saw that Egypt was powerless to help them, they again turned to Isaiah. Perhaps they were surprised when they found that he had words of comfort waiting for them this time, and assurance that Assyria would meet with destruction while besieging Jerusalem. Assyria had been used of God to punish the people of Judah for their wickedness; and now she, too, was going to be punished for her wickedness. Just when Assyria thought that she had victory in her grasp, the Lord was to bring utter and swift destruction down upon her. Although, to the people, the prediction of Isaiah seemed absolutely absurd, his faith did not waver. At a time when King Hezekiah was humbling himself for becoming a plaything in the hands of unscrupulous politicians instead of hearkening to the word of the Lord, and when Sennacherib, king of Assyria, roused by the smell of blood, defied Jehovah to do his worst, then came deliverance exactly as the Prophet of God had foretold. Lord Byron wrote a most interesting and descriptive poem on this destruction of the forces of Sennacherib, when the death angel passed over his camp. Any who have not read it would do well to read it.

Thus, in this dark hour of their history, Isaiah led his people safely through their first collision with a world power. We said, "Isaiah," in the preceding sentence; but, actually, Isaiah was only a servant of God, and it was, of course, God, who did all this for Judah. The people of Judah were brought through untold dangers in a way that was nothing short of miraculous. This is just another record in the Bible of the mercy and love of God for His people.

This triumph came at the very close of the eighth century before Christ, and Isaiah was no longer young. His ministry to the state was over. There are two theories as to the remainder of the life of Isaiah. One theory is that Manasseh, who began to rule in 690 B.C., had him sawed asunder. Another theory states that during these last years he wrote the last twenty-seven chapters of the book which bears his name. Regardless of what actually happened, this much is certain, Isaiah was a good and faithful servant of God, and his was a life of service and consecration to the Lord.

Isaiah spoke for Jehovah: "I have nourished and brought up children, and they have rebelled against me. The ox knoweth his owner, and the ass his master's crib: but Israel doth not know, my people doth not consider."

Do Not Neglect Prayer

---

By Hannah Barber, San Luis Obispo, California

"The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much."

MUCH HAS BEEN said about prayer, but I think too much cannot be said in these days when people are in such a rush. I trust that none of God's people, who are running for the prize of the high calling, fail to pray at least once a day. We should not let business or anything else interfere with morning prayer.

We read in the Lord's Prayer, "Give us this day our daily bread"; also, "Lead us not into temptation." If we pray for God's guidance every morning, I think He will not lead us to the picture shows. I do not think He will lead us to other churches, or to places we should not go.

I lived in Vallejo, California, for more than a year. The city's population was one hundred thousand but I was never able to find any members of the Church of God there. The churches are worldly. In these days when so few people are attending church, they think they must have suppers, worldly entertainments, and worldly music to draw the people. The Bible says we should speak to ourselves with "psalms, and hymns and spiritual songs." These help to build us up in the most holy faith.

Money seems to be the goal of most people in Vallejo, and spirituality is crowded out, if they ever had any. They have no time to read the Bible or to pray. Those who work at the munition plants are gone to work early in the morning to make fifteen dollars a day or more. Women make eight dollars. In this way, they make enough to hire their children taken care of during the day, and then take them to the theater at night. The children do not have much home life. If the mothers would stay at home and teach the children about God, and read them Bible stories, and make a real home for them, as they grow older they would look forward to going home after school where a mother is waiting for them, and perhaps preparing a meal for hungry children. If the mother is gone and there is nothing for them to eat, they are likely to go out and get something to eat any way they can, as they are usually hungry when school closes. This often gets them into trouble. Often this is how the crimes of youth commence, and they will grow worse if people neglect prayer and do not make happy homes for their children.

I rented an apartment from some Baptist people in Vallejo. The man left home early in the morning to make twenty dollars daily. I never heard of any prayer in their home. They were gone almost every evening to church suppers, to the lodge, or other organizations to which they belonged. They gave me Baptist magazines and spoke of the great work that they were doing. I read one and glanced over the others. She asked me how I liked them. I told her that they did not stress the coming of Christ to reign. She said nothing. The magazines were full of foreign mission activities. I believe they think they can convert the world without Christ, so do not need Him.

That we all may be ready to meet the Lord when the trumpet sounds is my prayer.

The Tragedy of Haman

By H. Gary France, Wenatchee, Washington

HAMAN PROBABLY thought of himself as not being guilty. In fact, he was almost universally well-liked. Even the king seemed anxious to please Haman. King Xerxes placed Haman over all the princes and servants, and the king decreed that everyone in the kingdom was to reverence him. Haman had a huge estate. Socially he was next to the king. He had everything he wanted; hence no motive for committing any crime. Why should Haman have thought of himself as being guilty of anything?

That little Mordecai started all the trouble! While Haman was walking through the palace gates one day, it was called to his attention that this little old man—Mordecai was his name—was refusing to reverence him. Even the king would have been angry at that. Why should not he have condemned this insolent man? Then someone told Haman that Mordecai was a Jew! "Aha!" thought Haman. "That explains a few things." These Jews worshiped Jehovah, whom they claimed was Creator of the heavens and the earth. They would not reverence anyone else, not even Haman. Haman was furious.

"Holy and reverend is his name" (Psalm 111:9). "I am the Lord, and there is none else."

Haman hated the Jews. Some five hundred years before, a man named Saul ruled this peculiar people. Saul slaughtered all Haman's race with the exception of Agag the king. From that time forth, Agag's descendants hated Jews. Haman was no exception. "To kill only Mordecai would be too trivial a punishment for this nation. I will destroy the whole race!"

"I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee" (Gen. 12:3).

Why should Haman have thought of himself as guilty? He even asked the king for permission to have these people destroyed, and the king consented. Haman's popularity was confirmed by being the only guest aside from the king to be invited to a banquet by Queen Esther herself. But on the way home, that insolent old Jew still refused to reverence him. "I'll fix him! By tomorrow night he'll be hanged on gallows eighty feet in the air! Then he will not break the king's decree!"

Then that humiliating day! The king made Haman lead a horse through the streets of Shushan, capital of the kingdom. On the king's horse was—Mordecai the Jew! The king was honoring Mordecai! How was Haman to have known Mordecai had saved the king's life? Why did it have to be Mordecai instead of someone else? And this all happened long ago. Why did the king recall the incident and decide to honor Mordecai at the very moment Haman was going to ask permission to have him executed? (Esther 6:4.) Was all this coincidence? This Jew certainly was a peculiar person.

"The Lord hath chosen thee to be a peculiar people unto himself, above all nations."

Sickening terror engulfed Haman's heart. Queen Esther was a Jew! He had never dreamed his plot against the Jews would destroy the queen. The king did not even know it. The king's anger was hot. "They covered Haman's face" (Esther 7:8). He was to be executed at once!

Guilty! He was hanged on the gallows instead of Mordecai.

Every lukewarm Christian will believe himself to be innocent at the judgment. "I was not bad. How was I to know Jesus was going to come then? I believe in God. Why am I being condemned?" "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven" (Matt. 7:21). Merely admitting the existence of God is not fulfilling the admonitions, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God" (Matt. 6:33), "Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together" (Heb. 10:25), and "Wherefore come out from among them, and be ye separate" (2 Cor. 6:17). Christians are to be a peculiar people. If one refuses the peculiarities of Christianity, Christ will refuse him. Though Haman probably did not consider himself guilty, they covered his face. His tragic death was one of horror.

"Guilty!" "I heard a great voice out of the temple saying to the seven angels, Go your ways, and pour out the vials of the wrath of God upon the earth" (Rev. 16:1).

PREPARING FOR SERVICE

another is sure to answer him with, "Yes, but 'God did tempt Abraham.'" If he says, "Yield not to temptation," the other will say, "Count it all joy when ye fall into divers temptations." If you quote: "With God all things are possible," you will hear, "God cannot lie"; or when you teach, "And this is the promise that he hath promised [future] us, even eternal life," someone else will quote the next page and say, "He that hath the Son hath life [present]" and so on with an endless string of such statements. One must learn how to merge such references as these, and not to go to roost on one side or the other, neglecting its modifying factor. People, today, will not tolerate "tangents." One needs systematic study: listening, absorbing, reasoning, considering an exchange of ideas, studying them further to determine the truth of truths that appear to conflict. In that way only can one quickly become trained to consider all sides of a matter that should be a subject instead of a question. We quote Brother H. J. Doan in a former RESTITUTION HERALD article: "The need for an educated ministry has increased as education for the masses has increased."

Attention Young Women. Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth . . . Fear God, and keep his commandments: for this is the whole duty of man" (Eccl. 12: 13). "In the days of thy youth!" "Whole duty of man!" No exceptions are made here of young women in this poignant admonition to the youth of mankind. The Church of God needs all its young men and young women to study and diligently prepare themselves for service to God.

Why have we had so few girls attending Oregon Bible College? It would appear that women are not interested in religious work. Listen, girls, someday any of you may have children of your own. You will wish your children to learn of God, to learn of Christ Jesus, and to have a place in the Kingdom. No one else has the natural confidence of the child nor the coveted opportunity to teach and mold that child into a God-fearing being as does the mother. In the Bible classroom, alongside your brothers, you can turn this coming opportunity into a talent. You may not have children of your own, but your neighbor's child will come into your yard; the little waifs a few streets below will play ball in front of your house. Some of them may ask you questions to which you should give wise answers. Will you be prepared? Proper teaching is a specialty all in itself. Women are needed in many branches of Sunday school and church work. We all are commanded to do God's work. How best can it be done? Science has proved that work can be done best by systematic study. "Search the scriptures." If some of you girls wish a practical study, secondary to the Bible, a few commercial courses (which are favorites with many girls today) are available at our College.

Heed God's Word and commandments to spread the gospel. True, many of our older ministers found the answers all by themselves; but, to say the least, that requires years and years, and sometimes whole lifetimes of hard, discouraging, private study. We may not have whole lifetimes to spare now. Our young folks, both young men and young women, should enroll in Oregon Bible College now to begin God's work before it is too late. Every one of us older folks should apply himself as never before to pure unadulterated study of God's Word, and telling it to others. Remember: "It is later than you think"!

THE "RH" FACTOR IN LIGHT OF PROPHECY

high temperature, a rapid pulse rate, and sometimes severe pain in the muscles of the legs or arms.

The Rh factor is also important in pregnancies of Rh negative women. If the husband is Rh positive, the baby will inherit the Rh factor from the father because it is dominant, and the passage of this Rh factor through the placenta to the mother's blood causes her blood to build up the anti-bodies and develop a titer. These anti-bodies then flow back through the placenta to the baby and react with the Rh positive blood cells of the baby and destroy them. The baby develops jaundice and other blood defects which cause death before, or soon after, birth. If the baby lives and becomes jaundiced, the brain cells are sometimes injured and will leave the baby mentally deficient for life.

If an Rh negative woman has never had a transfusion of Rh positive blood, she usually can have one or two normal babies from an Rh positive husband before her titer is built high enough to cause harm to the baby.

Much study is being devoted to this Rh factor, and researchers probably soon will find something to counteract the anti-bodies. Even now there are Rh negative people who do not react or build up titers against Rh positive blood, and some mothers who have very high titers still have normal babies. Researchers also have proved a successful method of changing a baby's blood—if it is full of anti-bodies—by replacing about seventy-five per cent of his blood with new blood, so he is not harmed and will be a healthy, normal baby.

When one considers the importance of these modern discoveries, he realizes the wonderful achievements man has made to make this a better world in which to live. We Christians realize, however, how futile and how needless these achievements will be when the Great Physician is earth's King. If more of those great minds realized this, and if they would take time to worship God instead of their work, what a richer blessing would be their reward! As Paul said, though, when prophesying about the "last days," "ever learning," but "never able to come to the knowledge of the truth" (2 Tim. 3:7). Daniel, too, foretold the increase of knowledge would be a sign of the "time of the end" (12:4). We who are Christians can rejoice and be glad in our hearts, for we know the time of our Saviour's coming is near. Increase of knowledge and world-wide troubles proclaim His coming. "When these things begin to come to pass, then look up, and lift up your heads; for your redemption draweth nigh" (Luke 21:28).

ARKANSAS-OKLAHOMA CONFERENCE

The Arkansas-Oklahoma Conference opened at Bear, Ark., July 24, 1947, at 2:45 p.m., with Scripture reading by the President and prayer by Bro. G. B. Sprinkle of Cheyenne, Wyo.

Sr. Fred Hall gave the children a lesson and the adults were taught by H. Scott Smith. An arranging committee assisted of: Bros. Jess Humphreys, T. E. Lynch, and Ernest Cox. Another committee, appointed to see that visitors were furnished places to stay, consisted of Bro. and Sr. John Humphreys and Sr. T. E. Lynch.

The first session was dismissed in prayer by Bro. T. A. Drinkard of Arlington, Tex. At 8:00 p.m., Bro. Fred Hall preached a sermon on Faith.

On July 25, Conference opened at 10:00 a.m., with a song and Scripture reading by the President. The Secretary read the minutes, Bro. T. A. Drinkard, making a correction, showed by the By-Laws that the Executive Board should consist of four members and an assistant secretary. We had only two members and no assistant secretary. Motion was made and seconded to receive the minutes as read. The house accepted the minutes.

Monroe Mathews of Naples, Tex., asked if out-of-State members would have a voice, explaining he previously had lived in Arkansas. A vote was taken and passed, affirmatively.

Bro. T. A. Drinkard reported on his past year's work. In Washington, he held evangelistic services. Sr. Drinkard was stricken with heart trouble during the time. Returning home, their lives were spared in a bus accident, killing five. Also, Bro. Drinkard held services in Cheyenne, Wyo., Little Rock and Cleveland, Ark., Springfield and Saint Louis, Mo., South Bend, Ind., and Chicago, Ill.

Bro. W. R. Simmons reported his work. He regretted he could not attend last year's conference. He has been busy as pastor of churches at Cleveland, Ark., a short while, and at Clark Chapel. He lost one place, but gained two—Brookland and Waveland. He had an interesting report of these two places.

Bro. Fred Hall also reported. Having worked one year in Arkansas, he organized a Sunday school in Cleveland, taught at Morrilton, and had services twice each month at Bear. He baptized one at Morrilton and two at Cleveland.

Bro. H. Scott Smith presented his report. He and Bro. Simmons held a meeting at Hartshorne, Okla. Bro. Smith preaches every fifth Sunday of a month at Mount Springs, Ark. These people are interested in the Word of God. First and third Sundays, he preaches at McGintytown, second and fourth Sundays, he preaches at Oak Grove and Little Rock. He conducted Bro. Snow's funeral. Bro. Snow was loved by all; we lost in him a great lover of the "Faith." In preaching these last three years, Bro. Smith has not missed a Sunday.

Bro. J. M. Watkins, Oregon, Ill., and Bro. Smith organized a Church of God at Third and Center, Little Rock, Ark. Bro. Smith baptized one at Little Rock.

Bro. T. A. Drinkard preached at 11:00 a.m. Conference opened at 2:00 p.m., with a song and reading of the Scripture by H. Scott Smith. A Bible study was given by Bro. W. R. Simmons for adults. Sr. Fred Hall gave the children a lesson.

At 8:00 p.m., Bro. W. R. Simmons preached. On July 26, at 10:00 a.m., the President opened Conference with a song, and Fred Smith gave a Scripture talk. Bro. H. Scott Smith stated with regret that Bro. J. M. Morgan was absent because he was ill. He was missed, and all remembered him in prayer. The President read a letter from Bro. Morgan in which he gave his blessings to the Conference. Sr. Harve McGinty is sick and in the hospital. Remember her in prayer.

The President appointed a Resolution Committee, consisting of Srs. Stanton and McEntire, and Bro. W. H. Arrington, whose resolution read:

"Resolved this 26th day of July, 1947, that we, the Arkansas and Oklahoma Conference of the Church of God of Abrahamic Faith, extend our sympathy and prayers to the loved ones of the deceased named: Bro. F. J. Snow of Greenbrier, Ark., Rt. 1; Sr. W. H. Arrington of Russellville, Ark., Rt. 1; Sr. Parks of California. We extend our prayers for Bro. J. M. Morgan and Sr. Harve McGinty of Greenbrier, Ark., who are ill at this time. We also extend our thanks and appreciation to the members at the Church at Bear, Ark., for their kindness and hospitality shown to the visitors during our stay at Conference. We have appreciated and enjoyed the fine sermons by our ministers—Bros. Fred Hall of Cleveland, H. Scott Smith of London, Ark., W. R. Simmons, Hartshorne, Okla., and Bro. T. A. Drinkard, Arlington, Tex. We extend our appreciation to the out-of-State members of the Church of God and to all visitors. (Signed by the committee members.)

New Business: The President announced that Clark Chapel wants the 1948 Conference. Ernest Cox of Clark Chapel explained they have made ways to care for those who attend. The invitation was accepted and the next Conference will be at Clark Chapel. Bro. Cox will notify the President as to the choice of date.

The President read the original By-Laws, showing besides the officers, four members and the assistant secretary are to serve on the Executive Board. The Vice President served in electing of officers. A motion was made by Ernest Cox that we retain the present officers. Motion was seconded and passed that they shall remain—H. Scott Smith, president; R. D. Stanton, vice president; Lona Padgett, secretary and treasurer, John Humphreys and Anmie McEntire, Martha Nell Daniels and Sr. Stanton were nominated for assistant secretary. Sr. Stanton was elected. Nominations to finish filling out the Executive Board were: Howard Bradford, Fred Smith, B. McGinty, Ernest Cox. Bros. Howard Bradford and B. McGinty were elected.

Bro. Smith announced that the Trumpet Messenger Board would meet later, but Bro. Howard Bradford said the Board had met and made its decision, as Bro. Smith was an honorary member and his vote did not count. The Trumpet Messenger Board will continue as it is.

The President gave a report on evangelistic funds. This money is to take care of pastoral work.

The President announced he had been asked to omit the 2:30 p.m. business session, so visitors could visit Hot Springs. It was taken to a vote and passed.

Bro. Fred Hall preached at 11:00 a.m. Bro. T. A. Drinkard preached at 2:30 p.m., and Bro. H. Scott Smith preached at 8:00 p.m.

July 27. At 10:00 a.m., a baptismal service was held at the spring-fed creek behind the church, eight young people being baptized. Five were grandchildren of Sr. Katie Humphreys. Others included David Hall, son of Bro. and Sr. Fred Hall, and a young man from Cleveland, Ark.

Bro. W. R. Simmons preached at 11:00 a.m. The President announced that all who wished to contribute to the evangelistic fund should report to the secretary, Lona Padgett, who received $22.60.

Five states were represented at the Conference: Texas, Washington, Wyoming, Arkansas, and Oklahoma. Several attendants gave short thanksgiving testimonies to have gathered here at Conference to do the Lord's work and to serve Him. Our prayer, as we go out of this Conference, is to hold steadfast to the true Faith, and to show our faith by works. A large number partook of the Lord's Supper, ministered by Bro. Fred Hall. Conference came to a close with singing of "God Be with You Till We Meet Again."

H. Scott Smith, President,
Lona Padgett, Secretary.

SNOQUALMIE PASS BIBLE SCHOOL Washington

For a week, Bros. Lyle Rankin, and Gary France planned, interviewed people, and in general organized a week's camp meeting for the Church of God to be held on Snoqualmie Pass, Wash., in Denny Camp. On Monday, July 21, Gary and Clell France took a stock truck which Bro. Robert Billingsley loaned them for the purpose, gathered camping equipment and many young folks who rode in the truck, and started for the camp, a distance of one hundred miles west over two mountain passes from Wenatchee and Cashmere. Besides the truck, there were two cars full of people and supplies.

Denny Creek comes down from the heart of the Cascades of ten and twelve thousand foot snow-capped peaks. The canyon, densely forested mostly with pine and fir trees, is several miles long. The camp grounds, about 2500 foot elevation, occupy about two miles of this canyon right under the long grade going down the west side of Snoqualmie Pass, and consists of small clearings with a good-sized stove made out of rock and a table and benches in each clearing.

The tables are about three feet wide and usually ten to twelve feet long and are made from a huge slab sawed off the side of a pine tree, usually taking about a third or half of the thickness of the tree. The rounded side of the tree is the underneath side of the table and the smooth side is the table top. The benches are made in the same manner from smaller trees. Everything is out in the open air with 100 and 150 foot evergreen trees overhanging most of the smaller camps. One sleeps under the trees, stars, or pitches a small tent. We did all.

We had the one large clearing, made especially for group gatherings. It is about 200 feet across with a big double stove and a 40 foot table (continuous length) at one end, two or three tables at the side and an open fireplace with tables and benches at the other end.

There were twenty-seven persons present for Tuesday morning breakfast. Only six were over thirty years of age and two a little under twelve. Most of them ranged from fifteen through twenty-two. Mrs. Mamie France and Myrtle Hayes were "Housemothers" with Mrs. Joyce Rankin, Emma Chadbourne, and the writer as assistants. The young folks were divided into "work crews" for the tables, dishes, part of the cooking, and odd chores. The three older "boys" (Gary, Clell, and Lyle) were responsible for the wood supply, camp fires, dry tables and beds, teaching classes, and the camp welfare in general.

Each forenoon we had two and sometimes three classes with Gary teaching the senior young people, Clell teaching the juniors, and Lyle teaching the adults. The class periods were in two parts with half an hour of singing in between. Likes, games, and general camp activities took up the afternoon. The evenings were spent around the open camp fireplace with a variety of singing, Bible discussions, and memory verses.

On Thursday, more brethren and friends began coming into camp from different parts of the State until on Sunday there were about one hundred twenty-five present. Bros. Lyle Rankin and Gary France gave short talks Sunday morning, and there were several specials besides group singing. We had good weather during the week with the exception of a few light showers on Friday and Saturday, but with the aid of the tents and tarps, and sunshine in between showers, we were very comfortable. We had classes out in the open every day except Saturday when a little shower chose to come right at class time.

We feel that the meeting was very profitable and enjoyable as a whole; and, if God is willing, we hope to meet in like manner again. We prefer, however, the soon coming of Christ to any meeting here regardless of how enjoyable.

Vivian France.

On July 7, the Sunday school held its annual business meeting at the church. Officers elected are: Elmo Gaspar, superintendent; Glen Hoskins, assistant superintendent; Mrs. William Coulter, secretary; and Mrs. Walter Wiggins, treasurer. A fund of personal contributions was started to buy a baby grand piano for the church. A committee was appointed to plan a Sunday school picnic.

The Sunday school board met later and appointed teachers for the lower classes. They are: Mrs. Walter Wiggins and Marian Otto, assistant for the cradle roll; Mrs. Glen Hoskins with Mrs. John Coulter, assistant for the primary; Mrs. Arthur Otto and Mrs. Guy Mills for juniors; Mrs. Elmo Gaspar and John Peters for the intermediates. The young people re-elected Bro. Wiggins as teacher and Lois Ruhn as assistant. The adult class re-elected Glen Hoskins and Guy Mills.

On Sunday, July 20, the Sunday school held its annual picnic at Gaspar's Cottage on the north shore of Eden Lake. Cool weather caused the attendance to be small, but those present enjoyed the Christian fellowship.

August 3, was a church vacation due to the attendance of a number of our members at General Conference. Services are back on schedule again with Sunday morning and evening services and Bible study on Wednesday evening. Attendance these first weeks of August was small due to threshing. God has given us the showers of blessing in much-needed rain which may save some pastures and the corn crop.

Bro. Clarence Green of Portland, Ore., a former resident here, is visiting friends and relatives in this vicinity. Sr. Margaret Smith of Dayton, Ohio, also is vacationing in Minnesota.

Sr. Alda Ruhn of Litchfield was hospitalized a few days in late July. Her recovery was speedy, permitting her to enjoy a trip with her daughter, Lois, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Ross and sons, to Ohio to visit the Patrick families. Mrs. Elmo Gaspar, Reporter.

VAN FLEET - RAMSEY

Before an altar beautifully decorated with stately pabus and lovely gladioli, Miss Ellen Van Fleet became the bride of Fulton Ramsey on Saturday, August 9, at 4:00 p.m., at the Southlawn Church of God, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Miss Van Fleet, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Van Fleet, is very well known through her attendance and work with Oregon Bible College as well as her work with Mrs. Verna Thayer a year ago.

Mr. Ramsey is also well known through attendance at General Conference and his work with his home group in Virginia.

Miss Marie Coverston, of Waterlick, Va., cousin of the groom, sang, "If God Left Only You." David Holquist sang, "Because," and "The Lord's Prayer." Miss Evelyn Barr and Robert Barr played the accompaniments and also the traditional wedding marches on organ and piano.

At the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage, the charming bride appeared, wearing a white lace gown fashioned in princess style with a sweetheart neckline and short sleeves. Her lace shoulder-length veil fell from a net cap, and she carried a bouquet of white and yellow roses tied with a large white satin bow.

Mrs. Jeannette Palmer was matron of honor, and little Janet Holquist was flower girl.

Allan Ramsey of Washington D. C., brother of the bridegroom, served as best man.

One hundred guests gathered in the church parlors at a reception immediately following the double ring wedding ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Emil Holquist were master and mistress of ceremonies at the reception.

Among many out-of-town guests were a number of friends and relatives from Virginia.

The couple left on a honeymoon to Niagara Falls and Toronto, Can. Upon completion of the trip, they will make their home in Waterlick, Va.

We pray God's richest blessing upon this fine Christian couple. Being of "like precious faith" and having a mutual desire to establish their home under the directing influence of His love, it is inevitable that He shall bless and that they shall be a blessing to the church and their community. May such desire and faith continue. John L. Denchfield.

SUSIE OLIVE KUGLER

Susie Olive Teeters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dixon Teeters, was born November 14, 1885, in Dickinson County, Kan., and died, August 6, 1947, at her home in Moorefield, Nebr. When she was a baby, she with her parents moved to Bartley, Nebr. When she was eight years of age, they moved to Cherry County; and, when she was ten, they moved to north of Maywood where they lived two years then moved back to Bartley where Susie grew to womanhood. In 1901, the Teeters family moved to Hayes County.

On March 29, 1903, Miss Susie Teeters, was united in marriage to Silas N. Kugler. Mr. and Mrs. Kugler made their home in Hayes County until 1912, when they moved to a farm north of Moorefield. In 1925, the Kugler family moved to Moorefield where they have since lived.

To this union were born eight daughters: Velma Hines, Leah Thomas of Stockton, Calif.; Viola Anderson of Greenwood, Calif.; Letha Covey of Curtis, Nebr.; Opal McClellan of Waterloo, Nebr.; Minnie Emens of Mount Rest, Calif.; Annabel Messersmith of Farnam, Nebr., and Dorothea Miles of Kansas City, Mo.

She leaves to mourn her death, besides her husband and daughters, twenty-one grandchildren, three great-grandchildren, one sister May of Saint Ann, one brother Roy of Wellfleet, Nebr., a host of friends, and other relatives.

In the summer of 1935, Susie was baptized, by the writer, into the Church of God of Moorefield, Nebr., and was true to the faith until her death. Susie was also a loyal member and faithful worker in the Dorcas Society; she will be greatly missed by her many friends. She was a good wife, kind mother, and her friends were numbered by her acquaintance. The latchstring of her front door hung on the outside, and her home and heart always were open to her friends. Farewell now, sleep in peace until the resurrection morning.

Funeral services were held Saturday, August 9, in the afternoon. Susie was laid to rest in the Moorefield Cemetery. E. E. Giesler.

"Blessed are the undefiled in the way, who walk in the law of the Lord. Blessed are they that keep his testimonies, and that seek him with the whole heart" (Psalm 119:1, 2).

Joshua Gathered the Israelites

Joshua gave the Israelites a farewell talk when he gathered them at Shechem. Mount Ebal was on one side and Mount Gerizim upon the other. It was here all the people could hear Joshua speak. (Josh. 8:33.)

It is interesting to note that it was at this place Abraham built his first altar to God upon his arrival in Canaan. (Gen. 12:7.) (Shechem also is called Sychar or Sichem.) Jacob also built an altar there, and Moses used this place to address the Israelites while he was their leader. (Josh. 8:30-35.)

Was this not a very good place to gather the Israelites?

Joshua Spoke

Joshua was concerned about his people. He asked them to fear God and serve Him sincerely. They were to put away their idols and the idols their fathers had gone away from God to serve. He especially referred to the gods they served "on the other side of the flood, and in Egypt" (Josh. 24:14).

Joshua used very forceful words in talking with his followers. He said if it seemed evil to them to serve God, they should choose whom they wished to serve. They could choose the idols their fathers worshiped before the Flood. However, they knew all the people died in the Flood except Noah and those who served the true God. Those few were kept safe in the ark. Joshua gave them another choice. They could serve the idols they found in this new land. They had killed the people, but there were many idols still standing in the country, no doubt.

Joshua left no doubt in the minds of the people who he would worship: "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord" (Josh. 24:15).

The People Answered

The Israelites knew of God's loving care. They knew of His wonderful power. He had shown His power in many ways before their very eyes. Had they not crossed the Jordan River on dry ground to enter into this Land of Promise? Had He not helped them win their battles?

The people answered, "God forbid that we should forsake the Lord, to serve other gods. Therefore will we also serve the Lord; for he is our God" (Josh. 24:16, 18).

He Searches the Hearts

Joshua used some very unusual phrases to warn the people. When they said they too chose God, Joshua answered: "Ye cannot serve the Lord." Again he said, "He will not forgive . . . your sins." What did Joshua mean? He was trying to get the people to understand that they must love and serve God sincerely. They could not give Him half of their hearts. God demands our all. God is holy and He is a jealous God. He will not accept lip service, or one-day-a-week living for Him. Jesus expressed Himself in a similar manner. He said if we "hate not" our fathers and mothers, we cannot be His disciples. (See Luke 14:25-33.) Jesus also added that we must forsake all we have. There must be no one or nothing between us and God or between us and Jesus.

The Israelites of old insisted they desired to faithfully serve God. May it be the desire of each of us to serve and love God and His Son in sincerity and truth. May we do it willingly, gladly, and lovingly.

Then why should I borrow its care?"

Daniel the Man

There is no burden of the spirit but is lightened by kneeling under it.

THE STORY of Daniel's life in the court of Babylon is well known to all of us. This young relative of the Jewish king was taken, with other young royal bloods, to Babylon as a hostage. There Daniel found favor with Nebuchadnezzar by interpreting his dreams and was placed in a position of authority in the empire. Daniel remained in his position of honor until the advent of Darius, king of the Medo-Persian Empire. Darius was tricked into signing a decree against his subjects worshiping any god but himself; and Daniel, who could not abide by the decree, was taken prisoner and thrown to the lions. God protected Daniel, and he was found next day unharmed.

Daniel was one of the truly great men of the Exile, who, though supposedly a prisoner, was a friend of kings, a prime minister and a witness of the power of God. Was his greatness a supernatural gift or the natural result of his way of life? We believe Daniel was the man he was because of his way of life, and that we could have comparable greatness if we could follow his examples of faith, devotion, and consecration.

First, Daniel had a good family background. Daniel 1:3, 4 records: "The king spake unto Ashpenaz the master of the eunuchs, that he should bring certain of the children of Israel, and of the king's seed . . . children in whom was no blemish, but well favoured, and skilful in all wisdom, and cunning in knowledge, and understanding science, and such as had the ability in them to stand in the king's palace."

The king wanted the children of good background, well trained, disciplined, and poised; who were able to stand in the presence of the king and learn the culture of Babylon. Daniel was chosen by these standards. He had been well reared evidently by parents who were interested in his mental and spiritual, as well as his physical, well-being.

Good family background is not by any means necessary to becoming a child of God, but it is an asset. Abraham was of a poor background (see Joshua 24:2), but God used him. He was, however, seventy-five years of age before his service began. His son Isaac, on the other hand, began his service earlier, perhaps because of his earlier training. Parents have an obligation to their children to rear them in the nurture of the Lord, that they might begin early in life to work for the Lord.

Secondly, Daniel's clean, simple living contributed to his outstanding ability and character. (Dan. 1:5, 8, 12-17, 20.) Daniel and his fellow captives refused to eat the heavy food of the king's table and to intoxicate themselves with the heady wine. The mentality tests given at the conclusion of the health tests proved that their clean living had made the Jews more alert and receptive than their fellow students. The Bible is an ardent advocate of clean living.

Another factor which contributed greatly to Daniel's great faith and holiness was the regular study of God's Word. That he was learned in science and secular knowledge we know from the fact that he was chosen to come to the Babylonian court. To think that he was not equally well versed in the writings of his own people is absurd. One statement in his Book eliminates any doubt as to Daniel's source of spiritual wisdom. "In the first year of his reign, I Daniel understood by books the number of the years, whereof the word of the Lord came unto Jeremiah the prophet, that he would accomplish seventy years in the desolations of Jerusalem" (Dan. 9:2). By his study of prophecy as contained in the Word, Daniel knew that the years of captivity would soon end. Because he knew, he took heart, was strengthened, and was able to strengthen his people. A great prayer of confession and thanksgiving followed Daniel's revelation of his hope in God.

Last, and perhaps most important of all, Daniel spent regular hours in prayer and meditation. He proved the value of a regular quiet hour, for relaxation, reading, prayer, and meditation, for the rebuilding of his spiritual resources. "Now when Daniel knew that the writing was signed, he went into his house; and his windows being opened in his chamber toward Jerusalem, he kneeled upon his knees three times a day, and prayed, and gave thanks before his God, as he did aforetime" (Dan. 6:10). Though a decree had been sent forth forbidding the worship of God, Daniel's times of prayer were not set aside. Here is one secret of this man's greatness; a regular time and place for study, prayer, and meditation and no excuses allowed for omitting the rite. Why was Daniel so wise, so courageous, so faithful, so loved? Because he worshipped his Lord regularly.

Four imitable reasons there are for the greatness of the man Daniel. He was well reared. He lived pure and clean. He studied the Word of God, and took hope and courage from its promises. He let nothing interfere with his daily worship, prayer, and meditation. You could be a Daniel!

ELLIS SCHOLARSHIP CONTEST

Bro. Eldridge Ellis, owner of a hardware store in Waterloo, Iowa, offers to pay a year's tuition plus board and room costs (totaling $450.00) for the prospective student of Oregon Bible College who writes the best Biblical article containing names of tools and other items to be found in a hardware store.

The contest is open to young men and young women who may be interested in attending Oregon Bible College within the next year or two. Each entrant in the contest should submit with his article a letter of recommendation for College attendance, written by his pastor or other spiritual leader.

Each entrant may submit only one article.

Articles should be between one thousand and fifteen hundred words in length, typewritten, double-spaced.

Closing date for the contest will be January 10, 1948.

Winner of the contest may enter the College at the beginning of any semester thereafter within the next two years, provided that he (or she) is a high school graduate at time of entrance.

Instructors Otto E. Dick and Sydney E. Magaw will be the judges, as appointed by Bro. Ellis.

Here is excellent opportunity for junior or senior students in high school, or for high school graduates, interested in attending Oregon Bible College.

Sydney E. Magaw, Superintendent.

QUARTERLY PRICE ADVANCES

Due to constantly increasing costs in the publishing industry, the recent General Conference voted to increase the price of all quarterlies. In accord with this decision, beginning September 1, all Truth Seekers', Intermediate, and Children's quarterlies will be advanced to 20 cents per copy. We regret that circumstances beyond our control have made this increase necessary, but we know that our Sunday schools will understand that we cannot continue to absorb the growing loss on these publications.

James M. Watkins, Gen. Mgr.,
National Bible Institution.

HOLBROOK, NEBRASKA

It was a great pleasure to visit the Western Nebraska Conference at Holbrook again after twenty-two years. Bro. Harvey Krogh, Jr., the other speaker, and the writer, alternated in the preaching, with Bro. Grover Gordon, Bro. E. E. Geisler, and the pastor, Bro. T. M. Ferrell, sharing the pulpit part of the time.

We were blessed with comfortable weather. Attendance was good, with visitors from a number of distant places. It was good to renew many acquaintances of years gone by.

After the morning service on the closing day, two young ladies, Mary Lou Hornaday and Diane LeMasurier, came forward requesting baptism. We rejoice in their obedience to the gospel. A more complete report no doubt will be sent in later.

With Bro. Timothy Pearson and family, I left Holbrook Sunday afternoon for the Texas Conference, where we now are engaged. We drove through without stopping, arriving at Ater Monday about noon. Bro. Emory Macy and his family are here working in the conference, and also Bro. and Sr. T. A. Drinkard. The Texas Conference so far has been very inspiring and promising.

M. W. Lyon, Evangelist.

WESTERN NORTH CAROLINA

Reporting on the work of the Church of God here in western North Carolina, we have no building of our own and, consequently, we are having our trials. For many years, we had been conducting services in another denomination's church at Dana, N. C. Bro. J. H. Anderson from Indiana used to come to hold a series of meetings here about three times a year, and he did a great work in this community. Following his death, we tried to continue the work and organized a Sunday school.

About a year ago, Bros. A. Weldon McCoy (Ind.) and M. O. Williamson (S. C.) were conducting a meeting when difficulty arose by another minister interfering. So, most of the Church of God members left Dana and went over to a little building at Gallimore Gap. Bro. Williamson continues to preach for us there.

Now we are planning to build a church of our own where we can feel at home and worship as we please. We have purchased a lot in a suitable place—convenient for all our members. There are not very many of us, and we do not have much of this world's goods, so we are sacrificing to build our church. If any of the readers of The Restitution Herald care to help us, we would greatly appreciate it. Send contributions to Mrs. C. E. Pryor (Treas.), Rt. 2, Hendersonville, N. C.

We believe the Kingdom of God soon will be established on this earth with Jesus as our king and His followers as joint heirs with Him.
Mrs. Guy V. Pryor.

PELZER, SOUTH CAROLINA

The Church of God of the Abrahamic Faith in Pelzer, S. C., began its annual summer meeting with children's day, August 3, 1947. The day was an enjoyable event. Dinner was served by ladies of the church.

One of our boys, A. Weldon McCoy, assisted the pastor with preaching services which were held each night through August 9. On Saturday evening, August 9, Bro. McCoy baptized three young men into the all-saving name of Jesus. They are James B. Pierce of Brandon Mfg. Co., Greenville, S. C., and two twin boys, Tillman and William, sons of Bro. and Sr. Furman Gentry of Pelzer. The church extended right hand of fellowship at closing service Saturday night.

We had very nice audiences during the meeting. Bro. Tommie Paek from Florida, also Bro. S. W. Hiott of Walterboro, S. C., were present.

On Sunday, August 10, about 4:30 p.m., the pastor and family were sitting on their porch, when a car drove by and turned and came back. To our surprise, it was Bro. and Sr. B. E. Holt and children, formerly of Morristown, Tenn. Bro. Holt told me he had come from Tennessee to get me to baptize him. We went to the water with a few brethren and baptized Bro. Holt into the all-saving name of Jesus.
M. O. Williamson, Pastor.

DART - CHADBOURNE

As Bro. H. Gary France, pastor of the Church of God in Wenatchee, Wash., closed his preaching service at noon on Sunday, August 17, Bro. Boyd Davis sang "I Love You Truly." Sr. Ada Davis played Lohengren's wedding march to which Sr. Florence Dart, lovely in wedding gown and veil, came in on the arm of her father. She was accompanied by her attractive sister-in-law, Mrs. Helen Dart. The bridal party was met at the altar by the groom, Bro. Mont Chadbourne, whose best man was the bride's brother, Bro. Leonard Dart. Bro. France performed the ceremony, after which more than a hundred friends and brethren offered congratulations. A delicious wedding luncheon was given by the bride's mother at the H. S. France home on Castle Rock Street.

The young couple left for a week's vacation on the Pacific coast. The marriage united two of the older families of the Churches of God in Wenatchee and Cashmere. Vivian France.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Subscription rate: 50 issues per year, $2.50.

The Restitution Herald advocates: the near return of Christ (Acts 1:11), and life only through Him (Col. 3:3); the literal resurrection of the dead (John 5:28); the immortalization of those in Christ (1 Cor. 15:53, 54); the destruction of the wicked (Rev. 21:8); the final restoration of Israel as the Kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ (Luke 1:32), the church to be joint-heirs with Him (Rom 8:17), and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations (Isa. 60:1-3); the "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21). It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

BAPTISM AT EAST OREGON, ILLINOIS

The Lord continues to bless and prosper "Mom" Nedrow's work at East Oregon, Ill., as evidenced in the conversion and baptism of Mrs. Hattie Dick. Upon confession of her faith, she was immersed in Rock River about 5:30 p.m., August 18. We pray that she will continue to walk in the paths of righteousness, and that she will be among the faithful when Jesus returns. Gordon Landry.

The Hope Chapel Church of God in South Bend, Ind., has been in need of a church parsonage for several years, and now with the housing shortage making it almost impossible to find a home for our minister, it was decided to make use of the lot we bought right next to the church. Since our church families are few in number, we could not afford to hire a contractor, and we have taken upon ourselves the building of it. Our plans are to make a modern (maybe I should say ultra-modern), cement-block home. It will be a semi-bungalow, and there will be a direct passage from the church basement to the basement of the home. The basement is completed, and we are working up. Each family is contributing not only special donations and pledges but all their spare time. It looks like an enormous undertaking for us, but we have asked the guidance of our Lord and pray He will be with us to the end. Wilma Pierce, Secy.

DEMIEN - MILKEY

July 5, 1947, Miss Julia DeMien became the wife of Mr. Ralph Milkey at North Salem, Ind. Julia is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George DeMien of Plymouth, Ind. Ralph is the son of Mrs. Hazel Milkey of South Bend, Ind.

This marriage culminates a friendship commenced in the hall of Healthwin Hospital where Julia was a patient for more than a year and Ralph a visitor, visiting his brother, likewise a patient.

Julia, ever since her return to our small group, has been very active among the young people, of which group she is the president. Ralph has attended quite regularly, assisting in much of the work about the church.

A reception was held for the bride and groom in the church basement, immediately after the wedding, during which they received many very beautiful gifts from friends and relatives in attendance.

After being well showered with rice, the happy bride and groom left for a short honeymoon in Detroit, Mich.

They will be at home to their friends at 516 East Wenger Street, South Bend, Ind.

May the Lord bless their union.

R. E. Parish, Pastor.

Toward the close of the recent Iowa Conference, Bro. Paul Williams immersed a brother and sister, Ray Landt and Marjorie Muggs, both of Gladbrook, Iowa.

Born to Bro. and Sr. Harry Goekler, Hector, Minn., on August 21, a daughter, Sylvia Lea. Congratulations!

Bro. and Sr. Otto E. Dick and family have returned to their home in Oregon, Ill., following a vacation trip to Yellowstone National Park.

Bfo. Harry Sheets, Aurora, Ill., preached for the Oregon congregation, both morning and evening, Sunday, August 24. Bro. Harvey E. Krogh, Jr., had charge of the pulpit services on Sunday, August 31.

Bro. Milton Hall is scheduled to preach for the Church of God at Kokomo, Ind., morning and evening, September 7.

Bro. Charles Pearson, caretaker at Golden Rule Home, recently fell from a ladder and received a skull fracture.

Gleanings from the Field

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

Sr. Verna Thayer and her assistant, Mabel Barnum, and Irene Payne, visited headquarters briefly while en route from Virginia to Baraga, Mich. They are working at Baraga with Bro. Leonard Brown in an Indian mission field.

Bro. and Sr. Fred Hall, who worked last year among our churches in Arkansas, recently began pastoral work with our brethren at the Hillsburg Church near Michigantown, Ind.

Bro. and Sr. Joe Bunch and family, Tempe, Ariz., visited recently at the Val Mattison home, Oregon, Ill.

The Editor left Oregon, August 28, to conduct a series of evangelistic meetings (August 29 - September 2) at the Blood River Church of God near Hammond, La.

Bro. F. L. Austin is a patient in Warmolts Clinic, Oregon, Ill., following an operation. He is recovering well but will have to remain in the Clinic for several more days.

For more news, see pages 10 and 11.

Fruits of Righteousness

“How happy is the man who has not walked in the counsel of the wicked, nor stood in the way of sinners, nor sat in the seat of scoffers! But his delight is in the law of the Lord, and in his law does he study day and night. For he is like a tree planted by streams of water, that yields its fruit in its season, and whose leaf does not wither; and whatever it bears comes to maturity.

“The wicked are not so; but are like the chaff which the wind drives away. Therefore the wicked will not stand in the judgment, nor sinners in the assembly of the righteous. For the Lord knows the way of the righteous. But the way of the wicked will perish.”

—Psalm 1, Goodspeed.

Jesus, the Christ

Frequently, the question arises, "When did Jesus become the Christ, the anointed of God to be Saviour and King? Was it when the Spirit of God in form of a dove alighted on Him at the time of His baptism? Was it when by the Spirit of God He was raised from the tomb? When? In seeking the correct answer, one may profit by recalling that only a spotless Lamb could atone for sin, that John the Baptist spoke of Jesus as "the Lamb of God" before Jesus' resurrection, that John the Revelator spoke of Jesus as "the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world," and that this Lamb, spotless and pure, was the One ordained of God from the beginning to be the Christ. Jesus was born not to fail. He was born the Christ.

"How shall this be, seeing I know not a man?" asked Mary when Gabriel told her she would conceive and give birth to earth's Saviour and King. Replied the angel, "The Holy Ghost shall come upon thee, and the power of the Highest shall overshadow thee: therefore that holy thing which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God" (Luke 1:35). "Yes," someone answers, "'shall be called' is future tense and does not mean that Jesus was born the Son of God." Well, at any rate, long before the dove scene at Jordan, long before the Spirit of God raised Him from the tomb, it was by the Holy Ghost, by the Spirit of God, that Jesus was conceived. Thus, at Jesus' birth, the angel announced to the Judean shepherds, "Unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord" (Luke 2:11). The Bethlehem Babe was born "Christ the Lord," needing not to wait thirty years.

Similarly, Herod demanded of the Wise Men, "Where Christ should be born" (Matt. 2:4). Similarly, the Wise Men, themselves, had inquired, "Where is he that is born King of the Jews?" (V. 2.) The anointing of God already having designated Jesus as Saviour and King, the Wise Men "fell down and worshipped him" (v. 11). . . . The dove scene was only incidental—to reveal Jesus as the Christ to a "slow-to-believe" public.

Martha's Implicit Faith

With heart torn by grief, Martha looked far into the future when at the resurrection she again would see her brother, Lazarus. Then Jesus spoke of the living ones who also will be believers in that Day as never being required to die, and asked Martha, "Believest thou this?" (John 11:26.) What mattered it if Martha never had thought of that possibility? Jesus, her Jesus, the Miracle Man, the "Teacher come from God" was speaking. She would ask no question. She had no question! Indeed, she would reply not only in answer to His specific question, but she would acknowledge as true any possible statement Jesus might make. Why? Because she was bewildered by sorrow and "off guard," emotionally? No! but because she knew Jesus was the Christ. Hear her: "Yea, Lord"—I believe all you have said and more—"I believe that thou art the Christ, the Son of God, which should come into the world"—though Jesus was a mortal man, not yet risen to immortality.

Peter's Implicit Faith

Peter, often remembered as the one who so readily testified, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God," made similar confession of His Lord at another time—when many of Jesus' disciples "went back, and walked no more with him" (John 7:66). Jesus had asked the Twelve, "Will ye also go away?" In quick reply came Peter's faith, "To whom shall we go? Thou hast the words of eternal life. And we believe and are sure that thou art that Christ, the Son of the living God" (vv. 68, 69). . . . O, Thou Christ! To whom else can men and women go today? To whom else shall we, Your disciples, go? We are sure Thou art that Christ that should come! Hear our humble cry!

The Centurion's Implicit Faith

Standing at the cross in witness against Christ, the centurion and they who were with him were coldly barren of faith. Then came darkness, earthquake, plaintive cry of "My God, why?" and "Father, forgive." Tumult in the Temple! Death on the cross! First came fear; then came faith. "Truly this was the Son of God," they cried; and the centurion, leader of the band, "glorified God," confessing, "Certainly this was a righteous man."

Sincerity of Speech

By Mabell E. Bell, La Crosse, Wisconsin

HOW many, many times a day we need to repeat the prayer: "Let the words of my mouth and the meditations of my heart, be acceptable in thy sight, O Lord, my strength and my redeemer"! (Psalm 19:14.)

Did you ever stop to consider the power of words? Words may encourage or dishearten, cause joy or sorrow, help another to find God or drive him away from God. No wonder Jesus said, "Let your communication be, Yea, yea; Nay, nay." It may seem that Jesus was over stern in that admonition, but far too many times when we say more than that, we say the wrong thing. Here is a poem which aptly expresses this thought:

"If you think that you are better
Than your neighbor 'cross the way,
Or that nature has endowed you
With a more perfect form of clay:
Don't say it!

"If you know some dreadful scandal,
Such as gossips always court,
And could add a few words to it
When they call for your support:
Don't say it!

"Let your life be true and earnest,
Court discretion for your friend,
And tho' often you are tempted
A word to say that would offend:
Don't say it!"—Anonymous.

However, "A word fitly spoken is like apples of gold in pictures of silver" (Prov. 25:11).

Have you ever noticed that people will try harder to be worthy of praise bestowed upon them than they will to correct a fault pointed out? Do you know of someone who has become discouraged, who has endured criticism, been misunderstood until he feels he is alone and is almost to the point of giving up in despair? Go to him and by your sincere words of encouragement help him along life's way.

"A cheery word, a kindly smile—
A friendly nod once in a while,
May be the sanding of the track
For some poor chap who's slipping back."
—Bateman.

Are there any old and infirm ones near you or those ill or afflicted? How very much your visits may mean to them if your words are spoken with sincerity, showing them your interest in their welfare! We are told in Proverbs 10:11 that "the mouth of a righteous man is a well of life." "Pleasant words are as an honeycomb, sweet to the soul, and health to the bones" (Prov. 16:24). Are you ready to go to those in sorrow, who are bowed down by grief until they can see nothing but darkness? Can you say as Job, "I would strengthen you with my mouth, and the moving of my lips should assuage your grief." You cannot say it if you go only because you feel it your "Christian duty." Your lips must express the sympathy in your heart, your desire to fulfill the commandment of Christ to bear one another's burdens.

Mabell E. Bell

Perhaps the hardest word of all to speak is that soft answer which turns away wrath. When harsh, unkind, and angry words are hurled at us, can we remember, "Whoso keepeth his mouth and his tongue keepeth his soul from troubles"? (Prov. 21:23.) An angry tongue "is a fire, a world of iniquity: so is the tongue among our members, that it defileth the whole body, and setteth on fire the course of nature; and is set on fire of hell" (James 3:6). "A soft answer turneth away wrath: but grievous words stir up anger. The tongue of the wise useth knowledge aright: but the mouth of fools poureth out foolishness."

Now we realize the second part of our prayer must govern the first. Our words can be acceptable only if God rules the meditations of our hearts. Matthew wrote that those things which proceed out of the mouth come forth from the heart. Words of encouragement and sympathy mean very little unless the heart is filled with Christian love, unless we obey Christ's command to love one another. Luke said that "a good man out of the good treasure of his heart bringeth forth that which is good." Our words are the symbols of what we really are. They represent our inmost thoughts; and, if we have truth and integrity in our inner lives, it will be expressed in honest and kindly words. We dare not treat this fact lightly, for we are told in James, "If any man among you seem to be religious, and bridleth not his tongue, but deceiveth his own heart, this man's religion is vain." Therefore, may God create in us clean hearts and renew a right spirit within us, so we may be able as Paul admonished to "let [our] speech be always with grace," and also to "let [our] conversation be as it becometh the gospel of Christ."

One God: the God of the Ages

Manifestations of God's Person and Character

By R. H. Judd, Colborne, Ontario

Note: Variations of Scripture references used herein are from the following translations, which are widely recognized as authentic. Abbreviations representing them will be found in parentheses: Authorized Version (A.V.); Revised Version (R.V.); American Revised Version (A.R.V.); Variorum Bible (V.B.); Complete Bible (S.&G.); Revised Standard Version (R.S.V.); Leeser's Version (L.V.); Weymouth's New Testament (W.); Emphatic Diaglott (E.D.); Young's Concordance (Y.).

Reasons for using: Because, while in the main, there is general agreement, an altered word, or a different arrangement of wording, may open up to the thoughtful reader wider avenues of research, hence being of more interest and importance than would be possible were a single translation adhered to.

Authorities quoted are chosen, in most instances, for their acknowledged attainments in scholarship. Quotations favoring our position occasionally may be made from certain authors of note, but such action necessarily does not indicate our agreement with them in all other features of Scripture exegesis. Further, it carefully must be borne in mind that all translations are influenced in varying degree by the personal views of the translator. Therefore, only by careful comparison of scripture with scripture can the correct rendering be realized.

"He that hath my word, let him speak my word faithfully. What is the chaff to the wheat? saith the Lord" (Jer. 23:28).

HE THAT cometh to God must believe that he is" (Heb. 11:6) is a statement of Paul the apostle to the Gentiles that none can dispute. Its logic is unanswerable. The very recording of it, however, presupposes that some do not believe. There always have been, and there always will be, in this present age, disbelievers in the existence of God.

One correspondent of a great daily newspaper in Toronto says: "The day is not far distant when science will put an end to your imaginary God, and your mythical Jesus." Truly King David was right when he said, "The fool hath said in his heart, There is no God" (Psalm 14:1). In most such instances, the heart harbors the wish, and the wish is father to the thought. The tables may be turned, though, and the questions asked, "Who, or what is science?" for human science of yesterday is not the science of today. Further, it may be asked, "From whence does true science come?" Man himself is not the author of any scientific fact, for the obvious truth is that he has but searched it out, and the power to do even that is not his own, but is derived.

There are some questions confronting us which cannot be answered. Every thoughtful person will admit that to be an irrefutable statement. Space cannot be measured, and time has no limits. These only can be recognized, in part, by other correlative facts which come within the range of man's understanding. That space is real only is comprehensible to the mind of man through the existence of innumerable worlds which have their orbits in it; and time only factually can be understood by the historic occurrences of the ever-retreating past and the continually arriving present.

Just as space has no boundaries, and time has no limits, yet the proof of them is contained in other facts, and realized through them, so it is with the existence of God. Though for reasons which are understandable and necessary, God may not be seen (John 1:18), His existence is definitely proved through His works. He has not left Himself without witness (Acts 14:17); for, said Paul, "His eternal power and divine character have been clearly perceptible through what he has made" (Rom. 1:20, S.&G.). King David said, "The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament sheweth his handywork" (Psalm 19:1). Who has not been thrilled by those sublime words uttered by Isaiah the prophet: "Who hath created these?" and getting in response the challenging echo: "He who brought forth their host by number, and called them all by name; through the greatness of his might, and the strength of his power, not one is missing"? (Isa. 40:26, S.&G.). Surely here is testimony to a living God that no atheist can deny, for the chart of the heavens is today in practical agreement with that of the very dawn of history. Time, past, present, and future, has been, and will be, measured by those same heavenly bodies. Who but God, in those early days, then could have known that the great orbs of heaven were so exact in their revolutions that for ages they could be relied on for "signs, and for seasons, and for days and for years"? (Gen. 1:14; Psalm 104:19.)

According to the testimony of Paul in his marvelous epistle to the Romans, he said: "Ever since the creation of the world . . . [men] knew God. . . . They did not honor him as God or give thanks to him . . . Claiming to be wise they became fools, and exchanged the glory of the immortal [incorruptible] God for images resembling mortal man or birds or animals or reptiles. Therefore God gave them up . . . because they exchanged the truth about God for a lie and worshipped and served the creature rather than the Creator, who is blessed forever [unto the ages]" (Rom. 1:20-25, R.S.V.). If the foregoing words are true, that ever since creation men (Please turn to page 10)

CONTRITION

By Mary Mac Nedrow, Oregon, Illinois

"Likewise, I say unto you, There is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth."—Jesus.

HAVE you ever seen the joy manifested by one who had been steeped in sin and unrighteousness but has come to see the glorious light of the gospel? If you have not, you have missed something in your life. Sin always leaves an ugly stain until it is blotted out by forgiveness. Forgiveness breaks the fetters and sets the sinner free. Faith in the gospel message, and true repentance for past sins, must come from a contrite heart. There is joy untold when a sinner repents. Said Jesus: "I say unto you, that likewise joy shall be in heaven over one sinner that repenteth, more than over ninety and nine just persons, which need no repentance" (Luke 15:7).

Hear the words of the Prophet Isaiah: "Come now, and let us reason together, saith the Lord: though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool" (Isa. 1:18). Not long ago, this passage of Scripture touched the heart of one who became convicted of her sins. She longed to be free from the fetters of sin which bound her. It was not easy to break away from the many temptations that beset her. Regularly, she attended prayer meetings, Sunday school, and worship service. When her former friends ridiculed her, she did not care. A gift of a Bible made things more plain for her, and in true faith she saw how empty her life had been; and so, after praying on her knees in contrition, she asked for baptism. As she came up out of the waters and slowly walked to the shore, her face was illuminated, and a smile overspread her countenance which did not vanish even when we left her at the door of her home. To this woman, her baptism is not a mere ritual, but she experiences real joy; for she knows her sins, which were many, are forgiven her, washed away, so to speak. She says she is happier than she has ever been in her whole life. A wonderful change has come over her, for she has buried the old life and is beginning a new life in Christ Jesus.

Our hearts were filled to overflowing at this manifestation of faith. She understands that baptism is a symbol of Christ's death, burial, and resurrection. It is the seal of faith. She knows that if faithful to this profession, she shall be called forth to life immortal at the coming of Christ, to share with Him the eternal inheritance.

A true Christian will "abhor evil [and] cleave to that which is good." The one newly baptized will make many mistakes (but don't we all?), but thanks be to God, she now has a mediator, the Lord Jesus Christ, who always is ready to act as intercessor.

David, realizing how great were his sins, cried unto God: "Hide thy face from my sins, and blot out all mine iniquities. Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me. . . . Then will I teach transgressors thy ways; and sinners shall be converted unto thee." Penitent, David cried to God in sincerity and humbleness when he realized his great sin. Anyone may fall into the mire, but he need not stay there. Yes, David sinned greatly, but he truly was repentant and sought forgiveness on every occasion. He always was seeking and praying that he might be forgiven of his sins, since it always brought misery and sorrow to him. He never was happy when he sinned. No one is! He knew he could never be happy with an unclean heart. Oftentimes he would throw himself on his face, crying to God for forgiveness.

Peter, too, who loved his Lord so dearly, and said he would never forsake Him, denied Jesus three times when the soldiers arrested Him. Then, in sorrow, Peter went out and wept bitterly. After Jesus' death, burial, and resurrection, when He sent the message to His disciples to meet Him in Galilee, Peter was mentioned by name. Jesus had forgiven Peter's sin and weakness in denying Him. How happy Peter must have been to receive that message! "There is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth." We have the assurance that "the Lord is nigh unto them that are of a broken heart; and saveth such as be of a contrite spirit."

What Value Is Man to His Maker?

By Mrs. Florence Pease, Geneva, Ohio

"Man that is born of woman is of few days and full of trouble. He cometh forth like a flower, and is cut down: he fleeth also as a shadow, and continueth not" (Job 14:1, 2).

GLORY and honor were bestowed on man when God created Adam in His own image. Did not God want mankind to be like Him in every respect, in mind and body? When God left Adam and Eve to themselves, however, obedience to Him was no more regarded: their minds weakened in the presence of the Serpent. So God placed the death sentence upon them. Later, it repented God that He had created man. (Gen. 6:6.) Adam and Eve were driven from the presence of God, doomed prisoners of God, all their offspring from generation to generation likewise being under sentence of death. (Eccl. 1:4.) Yes, every child born since the time of Adam and Eve is under sentence of death. (Psalm 58:3.)

Where is man's freedom, though he be not behind iron bars? Men think they are free because they are allowed to follow the dictates of their own hearts, which are evil continually. (Gen. 6:5; Jer. 17:9.) Free to walk their own way, alone, without God! Like children of worldly sinners, when their parents leave them to themselves, their thoughts run to mischief and harm to themselves. The human mind from the beginning has been intoxicated with the glory and lust of sin. Drunken with greed of gold and silver, they are at heart murderers of the poor. Their whole five senses are given to sinful lust: the lust for intoxicating drinks, gluttonous appetites, the lust for dancing and evil music, sensual lust, the lust for evil worldly wisdom. All these things make up the man God created.

"The earth [meaning the multitude of mankind] shall reel to and fro like a drunkard, and shall be removed like a cottage: and the transgression thereof shall be heavy upon it; and it shall fall, and not rise again" (Isa. 24:20). This has reference to the human race, and not the planet on which we live. The earth (planet) abides forever. (Eccl. 1:4.)

Of what value is mankind to the Creator? Like an obnoxious weed, man has multiplied and covered the whole earth, so sinful man is referred to in Scripture as earth.

He might well be called earth, for he was created from the dust of the ground.

In the Book of Daniel, these words are written: "All the inhabitants of the earth are reputed as nothing; and he doeth according to his will in the army of heaven, and among the inhabitants of the earth: and none can stay his hand, or say unto him, What doest thou?" (4:35.)

Of what value is mankind in the eyes of his Maker?

The Devil offers gold, and humanity is going the limit in sin and to destruction. Pride, selfishness, and even murderers are churchgoers of long standing. In childhood I observed these things in my home town. I have heard the poor say, "I would go to church, if I could afford some decent clothes." What an example in Christ do the proud flourishing churchgoers set before the Adamic race?

Where can the young look for examples in righteousness? Surely not to the worldly minded. Can they look to the church? Not when the church looks and acts like the world.

Heathenish painting of the cheeks, fingernails, and lips, the wearing of men's styled garments by women, is of the Devil, and an abomination and mockery to God, who created man in His own image. (Deut. 22:5.) Yet we find these things being done among so-called Christians. Grandmothers, mothers, and daughters are all in the same category. Men and women from grandfathers and grandmothers down to the teenagers are drinking and smoking. How I tremble when I think of these abominations! We live about five miles from a notorious summer resort; and it seems, if time lasts much longer, no clothes will be worn during the summer months. Yet numerous so-called members of Christian denominations are seen there. Every Sunday a certain churchyard in town is so crowded with cars that there has to be police stationed there. Christians go there to get their sins pardoned. There are three and four services each Sunday. Thirty pieces of silver was the value the children of Israel placed upon Jesus. (Matt. 27:9.) Is He

EVERY HOME AN ALTAR

"If every home were an altar
Where holiest vows were paid
And life's best gifts in sacrament
Of purest love were laid;

"If every home were an altar
Where harsh or angry thought
Was cast aside for kindly one,
And true forgiveness sought;

"If every home were an altar
Where hearts weighed down with care
Could find sustaining strength and grace
In sweet uplift of prayer;

"Then solved would be earth's problems,
Banished sin's curse and blight;
For God's own love would radiate
From every altar light."

—From Sunday School Times.

not of less value than that to mankind today, in man's own judgment? Will Jesus have died in vain?

Abraham, in his day, could not find ten righteous people in the city of Sodom. (Gen. 18:32.) How much righteous seed will God find on earth today to repopulate the earth, after the judgment and destruction of the wicked? (Mal. 4:1-3.) These words of Jesus are written in Luke 18:8: "I tell you that he will avenge them speedily. Nevertheless when the Son of man cometh, shall he find faith on the earth?" It seems that Jesus doubted that there would be even a faint light of God's truth left in the heart of the living at His coming.

God's church is a little flock set apart from the worldly churches, so let us use discrimination, for in 1 Corinthians 6:2, we read: "Do ye not know that the saints shall judge the world?"

My uncle used to raise onions for seed. He had a perfect leather circle; and, if an onion did not fit perfectly in the circle, he would not plant it. He has been known to find only one hundred bushels of seed in a thousand bushels of onions.

How much more discriminating will our heavenly Father be in the Day of Judgment when He fits the Christian to our pattern, His Son! Yes, through His Son He will prepare a seed for Abraham and the new heaven and earth? Who will be found perfect in Christ?

The Value of a Name

By Howard H. Hawkins, East Rochester, Ohio

---

CERTAIN incidents transpire in one's early life which usually leave an impression that lasts for many years. The first verse I ever memorized when a child was Proverbs 22:1: "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favour rather than silver and gold."

Most of us recall how the name "Lindbergh" became famous when, in May, 1927, he made the famous solo flight from New York to Paris—a distance of thirty-six hundred miles in thirty-three and one half hours—though everyone said the feat was impossible.

Names have existed ever since creation. In Genesis 1, God called the light "Day," and the darkness He called "Night," and said, "Let the earth bring forth grass, the herb," etc. After creating Adam, God gave him authority to name all things. (Gen. 2:19, 20.)

Job, who knew something about astronomy, could call certain planets by their names hundreds of years before our great telescopes were invented. For instance, he mentioned "Arcturus" (9:9; 38:31, 32) which belongs to another solar system and is said to give five hundred times more light than our sun. By way of comparison, the diameter of that sun is 866,000 miles and our sun only 8,000 miles.

In the commercial world, certain names identify certain products or brands. When we hear the name "Hoover," we would think of the carpet sweeper; Good-year and Firestone—tires; Pillsbury and Swansdown—flour, etc. Then in the spiritual phase, we readily recognize the meaning or record of such names as Baptism, Salvation, Saviour, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Daniel, Noah, etc.

David, writing the Psalms, always praised and upheld God's name, and for this reason he loved his own name.

Do we place any value on our own name in the community, in the church, or elsewhere? Several years ago, a cigarette firm offered Colonel Lindbergh $25,000 if he would permit his name to be used in their advertising. He flatly refused.

There are names in the earth that have great meaning. There is one name above all others, however. That name is Jesus. "Thou shalt call his name JESUS: for he shall save his people from their sins" (Matt. 1:21). We are taught to pray in the name of Jesus. (John 14:14). In our petitions, we are to ask in Jesus' name.

As we have Jesus for a mediator who has power to "draw all men unto" him, we first must have receptive minds by having the "Father's name written in our foreheads." One's mind or thoughts can be used for good or evil; and, if on the good side of the ledger, one then comes under the magnetic influence of the Master.

One must make every effort, and oftentimes sacrifice, to be worthy of approval. Paul wrote in 2 Timothy 2:15 that we must "study to shew [ourself] approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed" to profane all evil things of the world. Paul also said in Galatians that if we sow to the flesh, we reap corruption; but, if we sow to the Spirit, we then reap life everlasting. This is a continuous race; and who has patience and overcomes, will receive "a new name written, which no man knoweth saving he that receiveth it."

In the Kingdom Age, "there shall be no more curse: but the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it; and his servants shall serve him. And they shall see his face; and his name shall be in their foreheads." Is the name of Jesus in my forehead?

What Happens after Death?

By George Gantz

Selected from Signs of the Times

WHERE do people go when they die? Do the righteous go directly to heaven? and the wicked to an ever-burning hell?

The testimony of the Bible is harmonious and consistent on this important subject. Beginning with the Book of Job, considered to be the earliest of all Biblical literature, we learn that it was the expectation of this patriarch, when death should come to him, to "sleep in the dust" (Job 7:21). In a later chapter, he stated: "So man lieth down, and riseth not: till the heavens be no more, they shall not awake, nor be raised out of their sleep" (14:12).

While Job looked forward to a resurrection at the end of the world, he clearly stated: "If I wait, the grave is mine house" (Job 17:13). "I know that thou wilt bring me to death, and to the house appointed for all living" (30:23).

Centuries after Job had written, the Psalmist exclaimed: "What man is he that liveth, and shall not see death? shall he deliver his soul from the hand of the grave?" (Psalm 89:48.) Again: "Thou hidest thy face, they are troubled: thou takest away their breath, they die, and return to their dust" (Psalm 104:20).

In answer to his humble prayer, Solomon received wisdom above all who had lived upon the earth to his day, and we find this wise man verifying the testimony of the men who had spoken before him, with this concluding statement in his book of wisdom: "Man goeth to his long home, and the mourners go about the streets. . . . Then shall the dust return to the earth as it was: and the spirit shall return unto God who gave it" (Eccl. 12:5-7).

Bible writers tell us clearly that the dead are incapable of thought or action, and, therefore, that they are incapable of returning to the land of the living. In Psalm 146:4, we read: "His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth; in that very day his thoughts perish." Without thought it would be impossible for the dead to return. Certainly they could not produce even the mildest phenomenon in a spiritual seance.

In Ecclesiastes 9:5, we are informed emphatically that "the dead know not any thing." This forever precludes any communication between them and us.

Besides these clear testimonies which God "at sundry times and in divers manners spake in time past unto the fathers by the prophets," we have also the words which he has "spoken unto us by his Son" (Heb. 1:1, 2).

The Pharisees came to Jesus, demanding a sign. He said to them: "An evil and adulterous generation seeketh after a sign; and there shall no sign be given to it, but the sign of the prophet Jonas: for as Jonas was three days and three nights in the whale's belly; so shall the Son of man be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth."

In these words, Jesus clearly indicated that in death He would be in the grave, and that He would come forth from the grave on the resurrection morning. On the third day after His crucifixion, He was seen by Mary Magdalene. When in her joy she wanted to touch Him, He said: "Touch me not; for I am not yet ascended to my Father."

Thus by precept and example Jesus verified the testimony of the prophets, that man in death abides in the tomb, and in the resurrection comes forth from the tomb.

This truth is clearly stated in John 5:25-29: "Verily, verily, I say unto you, The hour is coming, and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God: and they that hear shall live. . . . Marvel not at this: for the hour is coming, in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth; they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation."

The account of the death and resurrection of Lazarus affords a valuable illustration. When Jesus finally reached Bethany, Lazarus had been dead four days. Jesus inquired: "Where have ye laid him?" Lazarus' friends said to Him, "Lord, come and see." "Jesus therefore again groaning in himself cometh to the grave. It was a cave, and a stone lay upon it. Jesus said, Take ye away the stone. . . . Then they took away the stone from the place where the dead was laid" (John 11:34-41). Jesus called out: "Lazarus, come forth." Then "he that was dead came forth, bound hand and foot with graveclothes: and his face was bound about with a napkin." Jesus said to them, "Loose him, and let him go" (vv. 43, 44).

The Apostle Paul, who was not converted until after Jesus went to heaven, insisted that he received his gospel directly from Christ and not from any man on earth; and he made clear what happens to the righteous after death: "I would not have you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning them which are asleep, that ye sorrow not, even as others which have no hope. For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him. For this we say unto you by the word of the Lord, that we which are alive and remain unto the coming of the Lord shall not prevent [go before] them which are asleep. For the Lord Himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first: then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord" (1 Thess. 4:13-17).

Jesus has such a wonderful plan. Loved ones who have been separated from us by death are permitted to rest in the grave, without consciousness of all the war, strife, and sorrow through which their loved ones may pass. Then, if they are His children, having accepted His offer of salvation, they shall be reunited at His second coming. Then they shall receive the gift of immortality. . . .

Surely, the Word of God is a light that shines even through the darkness of the tomb, revealing the love, wisdom, and mercy of our heavenly Father.

"My Peace I Give unto You"

By Lyle Rankin, Cashmere, Washington

---

"These things I have spoken unto you, that in me ye might have peace. In the world ye shall have tribulation: but be of good cheer; I have overcome the world" (John 16:33).

JESUS HAD TRIALS and tribulations during His lifetime, and He knows the pitfalls and dangers of this time. (Matt. 4:1-11; Heb. 4:15.) He is able to help His people by giving strength if they will seek His guidance through study of His Word and prayer.

Jesus prophesied, "Because iniquity shall abound, the love of many shall wax cold. But he that shall endure unto the end, the same shall be saved" (Matt. 24:12, 13). Surely iniquity abounds in every place on the earth, and conditions are as Paul indicated when he wrote to the Philippian brethren saying they lived "in the midst of a crooked and perverse nation" (Phil. 2:15). Jesus prophesied again indicating the days prior to His return would be as it was in the days just prior to the Flood when God saw fit to render such punishment. (Luke 17:26, 27.) Being surrounded with such iniquitous conditions, God's children are in constant trial; temptations are on every hand.

The peace that Jesus promised is not to be found by yielding to temptation. Some turn to drink to find relief from sorrow, and some to drugs, others to hilarious living. These are of the world and result in less peace. Jesus said, "That in me ye might have peace." To overcome temptation by one's own power does not secure the peace Jesus promised. An entrance into the body of Christ, our reliance on His guiding Word ("things I have spoken") as loving children, are proper avenues to peace. "If ye love me, keep my commandments" (John 14:15).

Some persons may feel that their temptation is too great. That is not right! "There hath no temptation taken you but such as is common to man: but God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation also make a way of escape, that ye may be able to bear it" (1 Cor. 10:13).

Jesus overcame the world and admonished, "Be of good cheer." This does not indicate that we have no work on our part to be able to overcome. Rather, it means that God is able to provide help for His children in time of need, and has made possible our escape through strength given that we may be able to bear up in time of temptation.

Salvation is promised to those who endure unto the end: "Endure hardness [suffer evil] as a good soldier of Jesus Christ" (2 Tim. 2:3; compare 1 Peter 2:19-23).

For this work of overcoming, God has provided His armor, and commands, "Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil. . . . Take unto you the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day [now], and having done [overcome] all, to stand" (Eph. 6:11-14).

Peter admonished: "Be diligent that ye may be found of him in peace, without spot [sin], and blameless" (2 Peter 3:14).

A good soldier of Jesus Christ will be diligent and take heed to his ways and will not entangle himself with the affairs of this life. (See 2 Tim. 2:4 and compare it with Matt. 13:22.)

A good soldier, though he stumble, will rise and press forward in battle. "A just man falleth seven times, and riseth up again" (Prov. 24:16). "The steps of a good man are ordered by the Lord: and he delighteth in his way. Though he fall, he shall not be utterly cast down: for the Lord upholdeth him with his hand" (Psalm 37:23, 24).

God has given His orders, and we are to heed them for cleansing and keeping clean from the sins of the world. "Wherewithal shall a young man cleanse his way? by taking heed thereto according to thy word" (Psalm 119:9).

To obtain the peace of Jesus Christ: endure, be diligent, have on God's armor, keep clean, and take heed to God's Word. This will bring good cheer acceptable to God.

ONE GOD: THE GOD OF THE AGES

knew God, then the prevalent idea of the "ascent of man" is a myth, for mankind has not risen except where the knowledge of the true God influenced his undertakings. History and archaeology abundantly testify to this remarkable fact (see the "Story of the Earth and Man" by J. W. Dawson, L.L.D., F.R.G.S., F.R.S., Principal and Vice Chairman of McGill University, Montreal; publishers Harper Bros., New York). Wherever the knowledge of the true God has ceased from among men, in just that proportion has man not only ceased to progress, but actually has fallen into conditions little above that of the animal creation. "So are the paths of all that forget God; and the hope of the godless man shall perish" (Job 8:13, R.V.). Moral retributive government does not come about by fortuitous circumstances.

Time in Relation to God

The King James Version of our Bible reads: "In the beginning God created . . ." When that statement is examined, it is found to be but an adaptation of language to the measure of a man's mind. The Hebrew for "in the beginning" has no article. Moses said: "In reshith"—not "in the reshith"—God (Elohim) created the heavens and the earth. The correctness of this reading is proved by the Septuagint, Chaldee, and Syriac Versions. It also is found in the evangelist's allusion to the same event in John 1:1. The uniformity of the reading and the care with which it has been preserved for centuries, notwithstanding the temptation to supply the article, testify that a uniform traditional meaning is attached to it. Professor A. McCaul, D.D. (Professor of Hebrew and Old Testament exegesis of King's College, London; and Prebendary of Saint Paul's) says, "John here makes pointed reference to Genesis 1:1, and that by the words en arche—'In (the) beginning'—he expresses duration or time previous to creation." Quoting Dean Alford, he says, "En arche—in (the) beginning—is equivalent to 'before the world was.'" Again, quoting Meyer, he says, "It is equivalent to the Septuagint of Proverbs 8:23, 'In (the) beginning before he made the earth.'" After quoting other authorities in support of his own, he says, "All are agreed that 'beginning' refers to duration or time, not to order, and that it is indefinite in its signification, and may mean previous eternity, or previous time, according to the subject spoken of."

According to Onkelos, author of the Targum, it signifies "ancient times," "antiquities," "former times," or "past antiquities." Here, then, the declaration by Moses is tantamount to affirming that God's existence goes back to the distant immeasurable past. Psalm 102:25 says, "Of old thou hast laid the foundation of the earth." This passage is quoted in Hebrews 1:10 as "in the beginning." The words of Moses and of the Psalmist are big enough to take in times indefinite. It may be of interest to the reader that in the Septuagint translation of Psalm 102:25, it is "beginnings" (plural). This expression is said to occur nowhere else in the LXX.

(Note: We are not among those who would put modern science before Revelation, but as the avowed purpose of scientific men is to search for nature's facts (for "science," so called, is nameless and without authority), we welcome any occasion that brings both into harmony. The plural expression referred to as being in the Septuagint of Psalm 102:25 apparently coincides with the belief of some noted scientists—Sir William Dawson, for instance—that the earth has had other "beginnings" than the particular one referred to in Genesis 1:1.)

Thus far, we have been meditating the wonders of unmeasured time in relation to God, and have wondered how simply it has been brought within the limits of man's capacity to understand. We come now to consider,

Time (Measured) in Relation to Man

Mankind, in his studies of both the heavens and the earth—astronomy and geology—has endeavored to measure both distance and time; but utterly has failed to bring within the comprehension of man's mind any system of measurement that accomplishes the purpose. In the studies referred to, it is common practice to talk of distance in "miles," and of "time," in "years," reckoning them in terms of myriads, billions, trillions, and quadrillions; but, in doing so, the ordinary reader is mystified rather than enlightened.

The necessity of measuring time also has entered into the calculations of Scripture, but its methods, while comprehensive, also are understandable. Recognizing man to be the appointed habitant of the earth, and looking at events connected therewith from his standpoint, Scripture has made "the foundation of the world" (in its present form), the central point of reckoning, concerning past, present, and future. Realizing also that all events first must have their conception through divinely appointed purposes, it has made use of another phrase, namely, "the ages," to express with characteristic brevity the varied extended periods of divine rulership in human affairs. To take up the study of these fully would lead us too far afield from our main theme, hence we will call attention only to some of the more important features, leaving it to the reader to extend the study at his opportunity.

"The Two Shall Become One Flesh"

Ephesians 5:31; Diaglott

"So God created man in his own image." But, "male and female created he them" (Gen. 1:27). "And they shall be one flesh" (Gen. 2:24). Or, Moffatt's Translation reads, "Till they become one flesh." United in purpose, in ideal, in effort, in oneness toward God; till they move in common effort toward life's common goal; the man in his matter-of-fact way, perhaps, the woman in her more tender mannerism; each a complement of the other, and together constituting one whole and wholesome being!

Yes; each the complement of the other—essential to each other—in order to a full and complete family life, such as our Maker evidently intended.

"Therefore a man shall leave his father and his mother," reads Genesis 2:24, "and shall cleave unto his wife." Not cling but "cleave." The original word for "cleave" is defined as to become "glued," "cemented." That is, so united, or joined—fused—into one, as to become inseparable, except by death.

Now the "glue" or "cement" for which God made provision is that love which an unmarried man and woman have each for the other, which by growing acquaintance and ever-deepening mutual affection enmeshes each of each other, and because of which life becomes a void without the other. It is such true mutual love for the highest good of each other that fuses two lives into one flesh, one hope, one wholesome, compound life.

Under such like conditions and circumstances—other things being proper—marriage becomes permissible and proper. But without such oneness of love, marriage becomes one long nightmare of vexation; as per se.

In harmony with the above, the Apostle Paul wrote to the church of the Ephesians:

"Wives, submit yourselves unto your own husbands, as unto the Lord. For the husband is the head of the wife, even as Christ is the head of the church; and he is the saviour of the body. Therefore as the church is subject unto Christ, so let the wives be to their own husbands in every thing. Husbands, love your wives, even as Christ also loved the church, and gave himself for it; that he might sanctify and cleanse it with the washing of the water by the word, that he might present it to himself a glorious church . . . holy and without blemish. So ought men to love their wives as their own bodies." (5:22-28).

While all men and all women should regard one another with due and proper respect, yet, only those who by due and proper exercise of true, pure love that consecrates and "glues" each inseparably to the other—as to none other—should ever covenant with each other as husband and wife.

It was with earnest admonition, and prayer to God, that the foregoing Biblical truths should be properly weighed and considered before the undersigned accepted the marriage covenants of the following:

Blanchard - Lippert

At early evening of July 25, 1947, under the glow of many brightly lighted candles in the flower bedecked sanctuary of the Church of God of Oregon, Ill., Joanne Blanchard and Dudley E. Lippert were solemnly united in marriage. Miss Lois Carpenter, presiding at the organ, had filled the room with appropriate music for several minutes. Kirby Davis had touchingly rendered different vocal numbers. Then the organ pealed forth the notes of "Here Comes the Bride," and the wedding party began slowly to assemble from different doorways, in due accord. The bride entered on her father's arm, and took position in the vacant space, completing the arch before the minister.

Following prayer and Bible readings, the groom assured the bride that it was his heart's pleasure to receive and dutifully husband Joanne as wife. In return, she gave assurance of her pleasure to accept his husbandry and become his faithful wife. Her father, Charles Gesin, then gave her hand to him for wedlock.

Sealing each others' pledges by exchange of rings, and having received from each, in the hearing of their witnesses and friends, their covenants each to the other, the pastor pronounced them husband and wife, and introduced them to their gathered friends as Mr. and Mrs. Dudley E. Lippert of Oregon, Ill.

The organ's musical voice ushered them to the narthex where brief greetings were exchanged. A reception was held in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gesin.

Hatten - Bloom

It was on July 27, 1947, the seventeenth wedding anniversary of the bride's twin sister, Mrs. Frederick Claussen, at the like 3:00 p.m., and in the same Oregon Church of God, with the same pastor officiating that Miss Pearl Hatten and John A. Bloom, both of Seatonville, Ill., entered with many friends and relatives to solemnize marriage vows.

The house of worship had been beautifully bedecked with flowers by the adept hands of Mrs. George Siple.

Miss Betty Dick's masterly youthful ability at the piano inspired the assembling friends, as also a violin solo by the bride's niece, Miss Betty Claussen, and the vocal numbers by Kirby Davis.

The wedding party entered the room from different quarters and assembled before the floral bedecked dais. On the arm of her father, Mr. D. Hatten of Culver, Ind., the bride entered as the piano spoke, "Here Comes the Bride." They moved forward, preceded by the bride's two youngest nieces, Donna and Dianne Claussen, as ring bearers. The keystone position of the forming bridal arch had been left for the bride and thither her father conducted her.

After fitting prayer, the witnesses and friends heard the expressed desires of groom and bride, and Mr. Hatten gave the hand of his daughter unto the loving husbandry of Mr. Bloom. Testifying to their mutually God-overheard vows unto each other for life's duration, by exchanging golden tokens, and verbal pronouncements, "I do," they were declared legally wed, according to the laws of God, and also according to the laws of Illinois.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Bloom, after greetings, went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Claussen for a reception, and then left to enjoy the grandeurs of Niagara Falls.

Cohen - Webber

It was at 3:00 p.m., of Saturday, August 2, 1947, at Hope Chapel Church of God at South Bend, Ind., that the undersigned solemnized the marriage of Miss Jean Louise Cohen and Archie Webber before a filled house of admiring relatives and friends.

Into a lovely wedding setting of floral and ribbon adornment, the many guests were greeted with solovox music played by Mrs. Lottie Piekerl, and with vocal numbers rendered by Mrs. Dessa Hepner.

Singly the wedding party entered and took position in proper order. The bridal tapestry was unrolled through the aisle. The ring-bearer, little Miss Joyce Resler, preceded the bride who, on the arm of her brother Irving, entered the key position of the group. First the groom, then the bride, voiced their heart's desires and assurances relating to marriage. In view of this, brother Irving, in behalf of himself and his widowed mother, presented the hand of sister Jean unto that of Archie for marriage.

The love desires of both, having been covenanted by the golden exchanges, and by words of mouth, before the eyes and ears of all present, with petition for Divine watch care and aid, they were declared married, each to the other, till death should part.

Following greeting at the church foyer, refreshments were served in the church parlor.

So terminated their singleness of life, and commenced the new family, with prayers for the Father's leadership to His glory, and their welfare.

Marriage, the Divine fusing of man and woman into one only heart of love, ideality and purpose, for the furtherance of God's creative upbuilding, and the perfecting of families and nations, is the all-wise Creator's one and only ordained relationship of intimacy between the two counterparts of the Adamic family. This divinely ordained mutual covenant is for the protection and enrichment of—not only both, but of—all people of the race.

Would that that sacredness were more fully practiced, and its golden blessedness more universally enjoyed.

F. L. Austin.

JOSEPH WELHALF

Joseph, son of Joseph and Catherine Welhalf, was born, November 4, 1867, near Lansing, Mich., and died at his home near Blanchard, August 7, 1947.

He was united in marriage to Florence Austin on April 16, 1895. Surviving are his wife; one brother, Henry of Munising; five children: Esther Sikkema of Grand Rapids, Alma Foster, Catherine Foster, Rose Woods, and Marie Sinn of Flint; thirteen grandchildren; ten great-grandchildren; and a host of friends.

He became a member of the Church of God in 1914, and has since been a faithful, active member of that church. Ellsworth Routsan

Prepared by Madge Savage
Waite Park, Minnesota

"The heaven, even the heavens, are the Lord's: but the earth hath he given to the children of men" (Psalm 115:16).

The End of Man's Mortal Life

From Ecclesiastes, we learn that the end of the mortal life is death. (Ecc. 9:5.) We also understand that fact to be so as declared by the Lord God to Adam and Eve. When they sinned, He told them they would die. (Gen. 2:17).

We also learn from Solomon that "the dead know not any thing" (Ecc. 9:5).

Job also wrote about death: "Man dieth, and wasteth away" (Job 14:10).

Therefore, "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might; for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave, whither thou goest" (Ecc. 9:10).

As all of man dies, there is no part of him left to know what is being done in the earth. God gave "breath of life" to man. Man's breath returns to God. Some say the soul does not die. Then why did Jesus pour out His soul unto death? (Isa. 53:12.) He gave His life—Himself—to die for us that we might be redeemed.

"As in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive" (1 Cor. 15:22).

Death is the opposite of life. Death is an enemy, not a friend: "The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death" (1 Cor. 15:26).

What Is Your Choice?

The children, my husband, and I have been swimming lately. Not long ago, I stepped on something that made a hole in the bottom of my foot. It looked as though a small stone or piece of glass had pierced it. Then I stepped upon a nettle of some kind. It would go in that same sore spot! For several days, I tried to dig out the tiny brier. Finally it was out. What a relief! Now that little story may start you wondering just how it fits into our Page. I have thought about it like this:

Sin gets a little hold upon us. Perhaps we get our feelings hurt. Or maybe we do something that we know is wrong. When we try to be an "overcomer," it takes time. It takes effort and patience. It makes us cross or "out of sorts" perhaps. If we keep on working at it, however, we will be overcomers for sure. God's Word tells us that sin will not rule over us when we belong to Christ. We must keep working at it, though, if we want to be conquerors. Sin, just like the sore foot, can grow and make one miserable if we will let it. So let us dig out the evil habits when they are small and easy to get rid of. Otherwise they do a lot of damage to a person, and sometimes leave a scar if not gotten rid of soon enough.

"Trust in the Lord, and do good" (Psalm 37:3).

Out of Zion

In the last days, the Lord shall send His Word from Jerusalem. The headquarters of His Kingdom will be in Jerusalem. He shall judge the nations. They will not fear other nations. They shall beat their swords into plowshares to till the soil. Their spears will be made into pruning hooks for care of the vines. Nations will be at peace.

Other nations will see the Jews (Israelites) prospering. They, too, will want to learn the ways of the Lord.

Man's idols will be destroyed. Those who do not know God, through His Son, will not be at peace or happy. "In that day," man shall fear the Lord and shall try to hide in the clefts of the rocks. (Isa. 2:21.)

We know that will not help them, for no one can hide from God!

Place your trust in God, and in His Son, Jesus. Then we need have no reason to hide but will be happy in serving Him then, as now.

We Are So Happy

We are so happy to introduce three new members today who join our Everyday Christian Expression Club. They are: Terry Ann Smith and Allegra Bell Smith of Brady, Nebraska, and Suzanne Duval of Elgin, Illinois. Suzanne's name was sent in by her grandmother, Mrs. Lou Lyon. Their membership cards will be sent soon.

Return of the Prodigal Son

By Harold J. Doan

One of the better known parables of Jesus is that of the Prodigal Son. The occasion of the telling of this parable explains its significance and intended application. "Then drew near unto him all the publicans and sinners for to hear him. And the Pharisees and scribes murmured, saying, This man receiveth sinners, and eateth with them" (Luke 15:1, 2). When Jesus heard this, He presented three parables, each teaching a similar lesson. He told of the lost sheep, the lost coin, and the lost son, all to this end: that men might know that Jesus' mission is to the lost, not to the well. But then, who is not lost? The sheep was lost by neglect, the coin by carelessness, and the son by his sinfulness.

While still a young man (is this significant?), this son became dissatisfied with his surroundings; he was anxious to go out and sow his wild oats. Demanding his inheritance, he left home and began a life of ease, spending his money in riotous living. Before long his money was gone, and with it his friends. In desperation the son became a swineherd, the lowliest occupation a Jew could have, suffering hardship and want.

In his need the son remembered his home, and swallowing his pride he returned to work, if necessary, as his father's slave. But while still a long way off, his father rushed out to him and embraced him, and brought him into his home with full pardon.

This half of the parable (for there is more) is very practical and revealing. The times that this parable has been re-enacted are almost without number. The blueprint laid down by the prodigal son has been followed by backsliders galore.

One looks out into the world and becomes filled with desire. It may be a child looking outside his family circle, or a Christian looking away from Christ and the church, but the "grass looks greener on the other side of the fence."

The first indication that the desire has reached its peak and won a victory is in the departure of the prodigal. The child begins staying away from home, seeking pleasure elsewhere. The Christian begins staying away from church with its obligations and responsibilities. The child of God begins omitting daily study and prayer, thinking God will forget him. To leave the home, the church, and God is often the prelude to depravity.

The pattern continues. Once the son is away from all restraining influences, he imagines himself to be free and falls into riotous living, wasting himself and his resources. The result is universal, too—misery! We can well imagine the depth of misery and hopelessness from the words, "He would fain have filled his belly with the husks the swine did eat." When we think we will leave the restraining influence of God and be free to live, we actually become so entangled and degenerate that we are misery itself. A train is free, as long as it stays on tracks. We are free, as long as we stay on the strait and narrow way that leads to life.

But the prodigal "came to himself" and returned to his father's house. Here is the essence of repentance. We must all come to ourselves and see us as we really are. We must know that Christ's way is the only way, that freedom, happiness, and salvation come only with righteousness. This is true repentance, to see ourselves as we are, swallow our pride, and return to God and the way of life He offers in His Son. This is our part, to do what we must do to change our way of life.

The first step is ours, as it was the prodigal's. We must begin the search for God, the return to Him. But we need not look far, for He is anxious for our return and will rush to meet us with open arms. Paul's words to the Athenians may have been born out of this parable, for he said, "They should seek the Lord, if haply they might feel after him, and find him, though he be not very far from every one of us." God is not far away when we come to ourselves and decide to try His way.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CALENDAR OF SPECIAL MEETINGS

October 17-26—Evangelistic meetings at Eden Valley, Minn. (T. A. Drinkard, guest speaker.)

NEBRASKA WORK GOES FORWARD

Meetings of the Eastern Nebraska Conference were held the last week in August at the church on 34th and Seward Streets in Omaha, with Bros. Grover Gordon and Richard Smith as guest speakers. Bible classes were held every morning and afternoon, and sermons each evening.

One hundred twelve people registered at this conference, and it was a week rich in spiritual blessings and fellowship. This bond of fellowship was strengthened, too, with the group which gathered in the church basement to partake of the good food prepared by our most competent cooks, Srs. Lucille Appleby and Josephine Swihart. Truly, a most versatile person is Sr. Lucille, who can both cook and preach in a manner that beggars description.

We were happy to have several visitors from a distance with us, including Sr. Inez Gordon, Cleveland, Ohio; Srs. Cora Pace and Eva Phelps, Holbrook, Nebr.; Sr. Allen Johnson, Cambridge, Nebr.; Bro. Gerald Cooper, Tempe, Ariz.; and Bro. and Sr. Harvey Krogh, Jr., and family South Bend, Ind.

The business meeting was conducted on Friday evening, and there a policy was inaugurated which we hope will be far-reaching in the furtherance of the Lord's work in Nebraska. "Where there is no vision, the people perish" (Prov. 29:18). The Eastern Nebraska Conference plans to co-ordinate with the Western Nebraska Conference in bringing the national evangelist here to do some work in our State. Thus, the work moves forward.

Officers elected for the coming year are: Lucille Appleby, president; Russell Johns, vice president; Alberta Appleby, secretary; Cleo Dixon, treasurer; and Josephine Swihart, delegate. May these new officers have the support of all, that the work may be profitable and meaningful.

We are living in times of great stress, and only the life of Christ furnishes the standard to insure emotional and social stability. If groups throughout this land could gather and derive benefits such as we have experienced at this conference, and if people could be stimulated to follow more closely the self-sacrificing, yet victorious, spirit of the Man of Galilee, they would gain those permanent values which would bring abundant living for them. Oh, that men would seek and find that joy! As Bro. Gordon taught, "Man thinks in terms of years, but God thinks in terms of eternity."

Elvera Edwards, Retiring Secy.

FROM H. SCOTT SMITH

The writer filled his appointments at Little Rock, Ark., Saturday night, August 23, and on Sunday, Monday following. Bro. W. R. Simmons of Hartshorne, Okla., joined the writer for a series of meetings at the Oak Grove Church of God. Bro. Simmons preached some interesting sermons. The writer spoke Wednesday night on "The Door into Christ." Clarence Mathews and his wife Jewell, of Ravenden Springs, Ark., came forward and requested baptism. I was glad to assist them in putting on Christ by baptism, Thursday at 3:00 p.m. These people plan to make their home in this community in the near future.

The writer left for Bear, Ark., Saturday, August 30, to fill appointments Saturday night and over Sunday, during which time we had three good services with much interest manifested. Bro. Simmons continued the services over Sunday at the Oak Grove Church.

Bro. Simmons and the writer began a series of meetings at Clark's Chapel, Tuesday night, September 2. H. Scott Smith.

SUNDAY SCHOOL PICNIC Kokomo, Indiana

Though living two years in Port Arthur, Tex., where we learned to love the beauty of the Southland and enjoy the blessings of the Gulf breezes and mild winters, it was good to be in the "old home town" and to be able once again to attend a Sunday school picnic at the Kokomo Church of God, Sunday, August 24. The committee must have put in a great amount of labor on the program for the day, for there were music and Bible contests, with recreation games and contests for the children of all ages.

At noon, a most wonderful dinner was set in the church basement; and, as Kokomo women are well known as famous cooks, enough said.

The entire afternoon passed all too soon as we again enjoyed a visit with the brethren. To add to our joys of the day, Bro. and Sr. William Huffer and Sr. Bonnie Huffer of the Hillsburg Church and Bro. Alva Huffer of South Bend were with us for the evening service, when we were blessed by a sermon by Bro. Kirby Davis of Oregon Bible College. Like Peter, we can say, "It is good for us to be here." ## GLEANINGS FROM THE FIELD "The field is the world."—Jesus.

Because of failing health, Sr. Edna Brewer recently was compelled to resign from her duties as matron and an instructor in Oregon Bible College. The faculty and students are sorry that Sr. Brewer will not be in the College this year, but hope that God will give her health and strength to continue in His work in some way.

Since Sr. Brewer is unable to return to the College, Bro. and Sr. Charles Pearson, former caretaker and matron of Golden Rule Home, have been employed as caretaker and matron at the College. Sr. Mary Brown is helping Sr. Pearson in household duties. Sr. Nora Pearson answered a call to be matron at the Home. We pray God will guide these workers as they continue in His service.

Bro. and Sr. James M. Watkins journeyed to Hedrick, Ind., where Bro. Watkins preached on Sunday, September 7.

Bro. Otto E. Dick preached for the Oregon (Ill.) congregation, Sunday morning, September 7; and Bro. Arlen Marsh preached in the evening.

By the time this Herald reaches most of its readers, Bro. F. L. Austin expects to leave Warmolts Clinic and be at his home at 500 S. Fourth St., Oregon, Ill.

Bro. Norman J. McLeod, Pomona, Calif., has accepted the pastorate of the Oregon, Ill., Church of God. He expects to be in Oregon by October 1, to take up his new duties. His family will not come to Oregon until later.

TEXAS CONFERENCE

A state conference in Texas became a reality when brethren from many places assembled at Ater, in Coryell County, August 23-31. It was a most inspiring and fruitful meeting. The united desire of one and all was to go forward. The success achieved exceeded our expectations. From all sides came expressions of enthusiasm. The attendance was not quite as large as we had hoped, but very good for a first attempt.

Bro. and Sr. E. L. Macy started it off, and each of them taught two classes a day. Bro. Timothy Pearson and the writer arrived Monday and worked through the rest of the week. Classes for adults and children were held each day, including Sunday, at 9:30 a.m., and 2:00 p.m. Preaching services daily were at 11:00, 3:00, and 7:30. Bros. Macy and Pearson did most of the preaching, with Bro. T. A. Drinkard and the writer assisting. A young people's class was organized toward the last of the week, with Bro. Pearson as teacher. Sr. Macy had the children, and her work was much appreciated.

Business meetings were held on Wednesday and Friday mornings. Officers were elected for the conference, as follows: president, R. F. Robbins of Dallas; first vice president, A. R. Wolfe of Gatesville; second vice president, Hulbert Cheat of The Grove; secretary, Mrs. W. H. Reeves of Mullin; and treasurer, Miss Wilda McCorkle of Gatesville. These officers will form the conference board to carry on the state work. Decision was made to employ Bro. E. L. Macy as state evangelist, his work to begin the first of September. A fund of nearly one thousand dollars has been accumulated during the past year with which to finance the work at the outset. We are hoping that, now that a real program has been initiated, the brethren will continue their loyal support with regular contributions.

Bro. and Sr. Pearson will remain in Texas, and locate at Riviera, to do evangelistic work in the Rio Grande Valley. The work of both these brethren was very enthusiastically received, and if it had been possible the conference would have employed both of them. We hope that by next year such will be possible.

Our hearts rejoiced to witness the obedience in baptism of John Hayse, Rt. 4, San Benito, son-in-law of Sr. W. L. Robbins. His wife, Opal, is a member, and we are happy to have this family united in faith. Bro. Hayse is a fine, upright man. We pray that his new faith will bring a rich fruitage in his life and home.

We rejoiced that Sr. Robbins herself could be there, to witness the fruition of that for which she has labored and prayed so long. She and the other women worked like heavers to provide the abundant and delicious meals which were served, and to provide sleeping accommodations. The men also worked hard, especially the local folks, to make our stay comfortable.

All seemed to co-operate with one accord to make things a success. The schoolhouse and teacherage made good dormitories; the shady and spacious grounds provided ample space; and the Lord blessed us with unusually comfortable weather, in addition to the rich spiritual blessings poured out upon us.

Thus ended a most successful and enjoyable Texas Conference, which we hope will be the first of many more to be continued without interruption until the Lord comes.

M. W. Lyon, Evangelist.

LONGANECKER - JOHNSON

In the absence of Bro. Arlen Marsh, it was our delightful privilege to journey to Rockford, Ill., Saturday, August 23, for the 7:30 p.m. wedding of Mr. Claude S. Johnson and Miss Kathryn Longanecker.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy E. Longanecker and the granddaughter of the late Bro. Charles Lindsay and Sr. Lindsay. She is well and favorably known to our church people in Rockford as well as to many at General Conference.

The groom is at present a member of the United States Army and has been for the past seven years. He is studying engineering and is facing a promising future.

The wedding took place in the bride's home, which was beautifully decorated with flowers and palms. The bridal couple were attended by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Longanecker.

Following the brief double ring ceremony, refreshments were served to the relatives and friends who attended this quiet home wedding. The opening of packages by the bride and groom revealed some very lovely gifts. Shortly thereafter they left for a short honeymoon trip amid showers of rice and best wishes.

To our knowledge we had never met either of the happy young people, although we first met the bride's mother and grandparents more than twenty years ago when they lived at Pearl City, Ill., and attended our Adeline Church. They are all fine people, and from all accounts, Kathryn has the same dependable qualities and high ideals of her parents and grandparents. Claude impressed us as being an exceptional young man, one worthy of the bride that is his.

The greatest rewards of marriage come in later life, and then only to those who have lived lives of loyalty and unselfish devotion and service to each other. We pray that God will lead and guide them in their journey through life together. With Him as their guide, life will become richer, sweeter, and more satisfying as the years go by.

Harry Sheets.

KIRKPATRICK - WARMOLTS

On Sunday afternoon, August 24, at 3:30 p.m., Miss Norma W. Kirkpatrick was united in marriage to Mr. Earl H. Warmolts of Oregon, Ill., at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Kirkpatrick, Cass Lake, Minn.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Bro. Vivian Kirkpatrick. They were attended by the bride's sister, Mrs. Gordon Guiles of Milwaukee, Wis., and Donald Kirkpatrick of Cass Lake.

The bride was attired in a silk aqua suit and the bridesmaid in a pink linen suit.

Following the ceremony, a wedding dinner was served, after which the new Mr. and Mrs. Warmolts left on a short trip. They will reside in Oregon, where he is employed at the Warmolts Clinic, and she as teacher in the local high school.

REPORT FROM C. E. WEAVER

Beginning a meeting at Walnut Grove, Ark., on August 2, we continued there until August 8. This was the first meeting this congregation has had for several years because of the condition of the church building. Now the building is repaired, and good lights have been installed. This was my first time in seventeen years to go back to preach to these people, where I spent my younger days. What a joy it was for me to have the opportunity! What a joyful meeting we did have, and a good congregation each night, and with the best of interest! The song services were good; and on Sunday night, the 3rd, we had a large crowd. I preached on "The Crowning Day." Two persons, Sr. W. P. Dickson and Sr. Ruby Lois Coverdill, came forward and demanded baptism. On Monday, the 4th, we met and I baptized them in the all-saving faith of Christ our Lord.

Also, on Sunday, the 3rd, we organized a Sunday school class. Lots of good could be done here, but these good people need our help. They have a membership of twenty-four, but some have moved away.

On Sunday, August 8, at 11:00 a.m., I preached at Morse Chapel. Then at 8:00 p.m., I preached at Waveland, Ark. We had a large congregation at this place.

Then, after I returned home, what another blessing of enjoyment did we receive! On August 19, Bro. and Sr. C. R. Randall of Ripley, Ill., came to our home with Bro. and Sr. Pete McGinty. We surely enjoyed their visit.

May God bless us all and give us a home in that beautiful city of God.

C. E. Weaver.

ESTHER ANN OSBORN

Esther Ann Osborn, wife of Melvin J. Osborn of Culver, Ind., died, July 31, 1947, soon after she had retired in usual health.

Born in Ohio, February 5, 1878, she moved with her family to the vicinity of Knox, Ind., in 1884. She was baptized in March, 1895, by Evangelist George Smith at Eagle Creek Church near Knox. Later, she became a member of the Burr Oak, Ind., Church. About this same time she began school teaching, continuing for five years. In 1901, the family moved to Everett, Wash., but Esther soon returned to Indiana to be united in marriage with Melvin J. Osborn on November 21, 1901.

To this union were born four children: Leta Alice (Mrs. Arthur Johnson), Gerald, Vera, and Mary Belle (Kempel), two of whom, Leta and Vera, preceded their mother in death.

Mr. and Mrs. Osborn became grandparents to ten children: Ruth Esther Johnson; Shirley, Paul, Larry, Donavon, Ronald, and Sandra Osborn; and Karen, Mary Ann, and Cindy Lee Kempel.

Mrs. Sadie L. Borg of Bellingham, Wash., sister of Mrs. Osborn, was present at the funeral, as also were J. Arthur Johnson and Ruth Esther of Sac City, Iowa.

Following funeral services at the home at 10:00 a.m., August 2, at which the undersigned sought to convey to family and friends the Christian's hope as taught by Holy Writ, interment was made at the Culver cemetery, there to await the Saviour's call when He shall come with a shout, and with the voice of the archangel, for the dead in Christ to arise. She is one in Christ by faith, repentance, and baptism; joint heir with Christ by resurrection. May it so be.

P. L. Austin.

The Secretary's Report

The annual business meeting of the Illinois State Conference was held on Friday and Saturday afternoons, August 8 and 9, 1947, at the church in Oregon, Illinois. After short devotional service, the following business was transacted:

Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. The treasurer's report was read and accepted. Formal reports were read from the following churches: Casey, Chicago, Dixon, Eldorado, Macomb, Oregon, Ripley, and Rockford. Brother Theron Murphy gave oral report for the Salem Church near Marshall. Informal oral reports also were given by the pastors and members of the various churches. Every church in the State was represented at the meeting.

A motion was passed to contribute $150.00 to the Oregon Church to help pay the cost of the lot south of the church. This lot is used during Conference for trailer parking, classroom tents, and playground.

A motion was passed "that the Illinois State Conference contribute ten per cent of the money received for general state work to National Bible Institution to help carry on the national work."

Attention was called to an item in the treasurer's report of $553.00 listed as "Contributions from churches," and it was explained that this represented regular contributions throughout the year from three churches in the State—Oregon, Ripley, and Rockford. This matter was discussed in hope that other churches in the State might be encouraged to institute some regular system of contributing to the State work—a percentage of their church income, a percentage of weekly offerings, or the offering of a specific Sunday each month.

After a lengthy discussion of the matter, it was voted that the Conference go on record as being opposed to the granting of concessions on the grounds during Conference.

The Conference voted to have two "Dollar Days" during the year, one this fall and one next spring.

An expression of the house was taken favoring continuance of Quarterly Conferences. Ripley extended an official invitation for the Spring Conference, and Brother Herbert Edmister invited the June Conference to meet at Eldorado. The Fall Conference is being planned for the northern part of the State.

There was a discussion of ways and means to build up the interest and attendance and bring the climax of the Conference at the end of the second week. A committee was appointed to work with the Executive Board of the General Conference toward this end.

Officers elected for the coming year are: president, Wayne Laming, Mt. Sterling; vice president, Paul C. Johnson, Oregon; secretary, Esta L. Starbuck, Rockford; treasurer, Mildred Somers, Monroe Center; board members (2-year term), Frederick Claussen, Oregon, and Herbert Edmister, Eldorado; board members holding over from last year, Harold Doan, Chicago; and Linford Moore, Macomb.

Esta L. Starbuck, Secretary.

We want news this year from every church in the Illinois Conference. Let us know what you are doing and how you are doing it! Send your news notes, announcements, and items of interest to Illinois people to: H. J. Doan, 1908 N. Keystone Ave., Chicago 39, Ill.

Because only 45 of Illinois Conference's 600 members were present at the Conference business meetings, some of the items mentioned in the secretary's report will bear further explanation and advertising.

General Conference went on record as "favoring tithing as a means of church finance and that such a method be publicized and constantly stressed by all departments of the General Conference." In support of this motion, Illinois Conference will tithe ten per cent of its gross income into National Bible Institution. The idea, however, must be carried further if it is to work any good in our financial status. This is an individual duty, to tithe of your income into the Lord's work. If every-one tithed, the local church would have enough money to carry on a full program and support state and national work, too. Under the usual slipshod, half-hearted financial system, we barely can support the local churches, without doing any evangelistic or missionary work.

In the past year, only three churches made contributions to the Illinois Conference. To increase this number so that each church in the Conference bears part of the load, the Conference suggests that each church begin a program of regular contributions. Many hands make the burden light.

Need for greater attendance and representation was recognized by the members present, and it was decided to advertise our meetings in a more personal way. Would it not be wonderful if we could have a conference with four or five hundred Illinois Church of God members in attendance? It is not impossible; it requires self-sacrifice. Plan to attend one or two or three of the Quarterly Conferences this next year. Fall Conference is in Oregon in November.

The Conference was gratified by the response to its appeal for bedding and other material for the dormitory. As Brother Paul Johnson so wittingly quoted from the Scripture, "The people bring much more than enough for the service of the work. . . . So the people were restrained from bringing" (Ex. 36:5, 6). The Lord's people are always quick to fill real need.

A suggestion by Brother Sydney Magaw that a church history of the Illinois Church of God be written was favorably considered by the members in session. The Conference has complete minutes of all Conference business meetings since its beginning on September 30, 1898. The history of each local church is probably not so well recorded, however. It would be a simple task for an editor to compile a history if the pastor or some layman from each local church were to gather data from his church and compile it into an orderly, chronological history. A concise and accurate history of the Churches of God in Illinois would be a definite asset to pastors and laymen alike. This is our fiftieth year as a Conference, yet who knows our beginning, the saints who launched the work, the churches which have lived and died in the days past? We need a memorial for those who have handed to us our heritage.

God's Will for Us

*Just to be tender, just to be true,
Just to be glad the whole day through;
Just to be merciful, just to be mild,
Just to be trustful as a little child.
Just to be gentle, kind, and sweet,
Just to be helpful with willing feet;
Just to be cheery when things go wrong;
Just to drive sadness away with a song;
Whether the hour is dark or bright,
Just to be loyal to God and right;
Just to believe that God knows best,
Just in His promises, ever to rest;
Just to let love be our daily key,
That is God's will for you and me.*

Prayer

When the ark was brought from the Philistines to Jerusalem, David offered thanks to God, saying, "Sing unto him, sing psalms unto him, talk ye of all his wondrous works; glory ye in his holy name: let the heart of them rejoice that seek the Lord. Seek the Lord and his strength, seek his face continually. . . . Declare his glory among the heathen; his marvellous works among all nations. For great is the Lord, and greatly to be praised: he also is to be feared above all gods. For all the gods of the people are idols: but the Lord made the heavens. . . . Worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness" (1 Chron. 16:9-29). David's prayer was one of praise and worship, rather than a prayer for favor. The Scriptures teach, however, that God's people do have the privilege of praying for personal needs—that God always sees and hears His people.

"The eyes of the Lord are over the righteous, and his ears are open unto their prayers: but the face of the Lord is against them that do evil" (1 Peter 3:12). "The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much" (James 5:16). "Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God" (Phil. 4:6).

Psalms 122:6 presents a beautiful thought on prayer, containing also a secret of success, saying: "Pray for the peace of Jerusalem: they shall prosper that love thee." So concerned are we Christians about individual problems, that we lose vision of the City with wailing wall, the City painfully awaiting coming of its King. "Pray for the peace of Jerusalem." Pray for Jerusalem's King to return. Forgetfulness in this matter may account for poverty—either individual or congregation. Being mindful and prayerful of this City may help to pay one's numerous bills.

Jesus taught His disciples—and us—to pray that workers be sent into the fields of evangelism. "The harvest truly is plenteous," said Jesus, "but the labourers are few; pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth labourers into his harvest" (Matt. 9:37, 38). Yes, the Church of God needs more workers in the field, apparently more than Oregon Bible College is able to prepare, but there are at all times ministers within our organization whose services are not being used, except, perhaps, at infrequent times. Pray that God will use every workman available. The season is far advanced; grain is ripened and falling, ungathered, being lost.

Christians should pray, too, for strength to endure trials and temptations. He who pleaded with His sleeping disciples in Gethsemane, saying, "What, could ye not watch with me one hour?" also instructed them how to surmount their indifference and sin. He said, "Watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation" (Matt. 26:41). Had they been watching, they might have seen their Lord in agony, or heard His cry, or seen the angel that ministered to Him and saved Him from untimely death. Had they been praying, perchance the angel would have ministered to them, too, that they would have possessed sufficient strength to stay with Jesus when came the lanterns, staves, and mockery in the judgment hall.

Best-known prayer of the Bible, pattern prayer for all Christians, exalts our Father's name—Jehovah. It teaches us to pray for His Kingdom to come. It recognizes human hunger dependent daily upon the heavenly Parent. It provides forgiveness for our sins—in measure warning us freely to forgive. Finally, it ascribes to God all power, glory, and right to rule the world. This is the God, too, who abandons not in temptation, but delivers from evil.

In petitioning the Father's throne, there is only one to mediate. It is Jesus—the "one mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus" (1 Tim. 2:5). "Through him we . . . have access . . . unto the Father" (Eph. 2:18). "If any man sin, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous" (1 John 2:1). Hear the Saviour say, "I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father, but by me" (John 14:6). "He ever liveth to make intercession" (Heb. 7:25).

In praying, "Be not rash with thy mouth, and let not thine heart be hasty to utter any thing before God: for God is in heaven, and thou upon earth: therefore let thy words be few" (Ecc. 5:2). Not long prayers, said Jesus, nor prayers merely to be heard of men, but "enter into thy closet . . . shut thy door, pray to thy Father which is in secret, and thy Father . . . shall reward thee openly."

Food and Famine

By Glenn M. Birkey, Rochelle, Illinois

THE PROPHET Amos foretold: "Behold the days are coming," is the oracle of the Lord God, "when I will send famine upon the land; not a famine of bread, nor a thirst for water, but for hearing the words of the Lord. And they shall wander from sea to sea, and run from north to east, to seek the word of the Lord, but shall not find it" (Amos 8:11, 12; Goodspeed's Translation).

One hears daily over the radio and through the press about scarcity of food: how people in many countries are at the point of starvation or already dead for lack of food. Some authorities are predicting that even in our own land food may become scarce. A partial crop failure this year will cut food supplies, seriously. In this article, however, I am more interested about the famine for God's Word as mentioned by the Prophet Amos. Though we need material food for our bodies, we much more need spiritual food for our minds.

It will be recalled that during food rationing, nearly all were clamoring for scarce articles of food. Our carnal natures are much more interested in material things than in the Word of God. While some of our statesmen truthfully have said that hunger for material food makes the way easy for Communism to thrive, they also could have emphasized the need of spiritual food to combat this dread philosophy of life. Many Communists who have forsaken that way of life make their own statements that conversion to Christianity was the reason for their desertion of Communism. There is no more sure way to lose our young people to Communistic doctrines than to have books and teachers in grade schools and high schools that teach evolution of man and kindred doctrines. Many teachers also scoff at inspiration of the Bible.

For a long number of years, I have been identified with two organizations that distribute the Bible without comment, namely the American Bible Society and the Gideons. Such work is very needful, but I fear many Bibles so distributed lie idle and get covered with dust. It is said the Bible is the best seller of all books. I am glad for that, but this would be a far different world if the Word of God was even read by the majority of people. I fear many people who regard themselves as Christians fail in reading of the Scriptures. Many only hear it read by a minister for a few minutes on Sunday morning. We read in second Timothy 2:15, "Do your best to win God's approval as a workman who has nothing to be ashamed of, but rightly shapes the message of truth" (Goodspeed). Other versions say to "study" to show oneself "approved."

So he should not only read the Bible, but study it. Though I am neglectful, myself, in not studying the Bible enough, I can see the urgent need for both myself and others to overcome this negligence—especially in these last days.

In conversation with others about me, I find many who never knew any mention is made in the Bible about the importance of baptism or about Christ's return to earth. Concerning the resurrection and different rewards in the two resurrections, also concerning the future new heavens and new earth, most people have had their ideas formed by pagan doctrines handed down by tradition—doctrines very contrary to the teaching of the Scriptures.

In the press and the radio, we today hear about so many violent acts done by very young children. Can we wonder about it? If only parents themselves would feel the need of Bible study in the Sunday school, and see to it that their children in their tender years were in that school regularly, what a blessing it would be for all! In addition to that, think of the benefit that could be had by having a family altar where daily reading of the Bible and prayer would be the first order of the day. The rush of duties and indifference almost have eliminated this custom.

Speaking of neglect of Bible knowledge, I remember reading about a quiz being given to some students in a noted university in our State of Illinois. Among the questions propounded were, "Who was David?" and "Who was Babe Ruth?" Only about ten per cent knew about David. Ninety per cent could discuss Babe Ruth!

One of the peculiar things I noticed in the Douay Version (Catholic Bible) is part of the preface, a statement by Pope Leo under date of December 13, 1898, as follows:

"An indulgence of three hundred days is granted to all the faithful who read the Holy Gospels at least a quarter hour. A plenary indulgence under the usual conditions is granted once a month for the daily reading." Another prominent Catholic official has this to say, in part:

"The faithful should be excited to the reading of the Holy Scriptures; for these are the most abundant sources which ought to be left open to everyone, to draw from them purity of morals and of doctrine, to eradicate the errors which are so widely disseminated in these corrupt times." (Ban the indulgences, and the advice is good.) In my experience and associations with Catholics, I find they neglect paying attention to the admonition to read, just as many Protestants are doing. . . . Remember David's words, "Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path." Why not use it daily?

Value of the Knowledge of General History to the Minister and the Religious Teacher

(An address before the 1947 Summer Ministerial Conference)

By Norman J. McLeod, Pomona, California

HAVE you ever suddenly awakened in a strange place in the middle of the night and for the moment could not remember where you were? You know what a painful experience it can be until you reassess your surroundings to recall the immediate past. Such is the pain suffered by the victim of amnesia. Memory of the past is essential to mental health. Of equal value to the human race is its history. If we had a Godlike knowledge of history, we could solve all the problems of the human race, "not because the past would furnish precedents of conduct, but because our conduct would be based upon a perfect knowledge of the past." (James Harvey Robinson, The New History). So it is with the ministry. If we had a Godlike knowledge of history, we could comprehend all that is necessary for a complete understanding of the Bible, and how to lead a perfect life. But such knowledge has not been given to us.

Ever since the life of man began, something has happened to every individual every second of his existence. All these events come within the scope of history. They are the facts from which history draws its materials, but it is impossible for historians to record a small part of these facts. That I had a toothache at a certain time is a fact, but it is of no historical value. The fact that a boy and girl met on the street would be of no historical value, but if the two were later married, and their son was a famous personage, then their chance meeting assumes historical significance.

The impossibility of telling of many facts is apparent because they are known only to the person who experienced them. Events taken singly are not history. History is not merely facts, but related facts. Just which facts should the history writer select from the mass of events at his disposal? The answer to that question tells of the value of history to any individual. The teacher of religion and the minister are not particularly interested in the details of military campaigns of a Caesar, nor how many were killed and wounded at the Battle of Crecy. Nor can he find much of value in the episodic histories written a few years ago that dealt with the unusual, the strange, murders, dynastic quarrels and the "Reign of Terror" of the French Revolution. Even the history of the church of the Middle Ages suffered from the historian's desire to relate the bizarre rather than the realistic things about that institution. One writer, in discussing the Mediaeval church, says: "Miraculous oil was common; portions of the true cross plentiful; and such objects as Saint Anne's comb and the Virgin Mary's petticoat were accessible to the devout." Instead of examining the rise, ascendancy, and decline of the church, the author was interested in extraneous matters.

Political history can be important to the minister, but not as it was written some years ago. An example will show what the historians presented at that time: "Robert the Wise (of Anjou) (1309-1343) the successor of Charles II of Naples, and the champion of the Guelphs, could not extend his power over Sicily where Frederick II (1296-1337), the son of Peter of Aragon, reigned. Robert's granddaughter, Joan I, after a career of crime and misfortune, was strangled in prison by Charles Durazzo, the last male descendant of the house of Anjou in Lower Italy (1382), who seized the government. Joan II, the last heir of Durazzo (1414-1435), first adopted Alfonso V, of Aragon, and then Louis III, of Anjou, and his brother Rene. Alfonso, who inherited the crown of Sicily, united both kingdoms (1435), after a war with Rene and the Visconti of Milan" (quoted by Robinson). Most people think that because history is a record of past facts, the writing of history should be completed once for all; but, when we realize it is a choice from a large number of facts, then we gain an entirely different idea of it.

Our new history examines the rise, the continuity, and the decay of institutions. A war may be a devastating thing but often leaves little change in the habits and institutions of the race. For instance, when World War II closed, we ate the same things that were eaten by the Israelites when they longed to go back for the cucumbers and the melons and the "flesh pots of Egypt." Notably the men of northern Europe have worn trousers and the women have worn dresses for many centuries; but in China the women have worn trousers; in Greece the men have worn kilts; and in Japan both men and women wore kimonos. The particular cut of these garments changed from time to time, but the general character of the clothing remained the same. When European clothes were first introduced into Japan, many men would slip into their old type garments whenever they had the chance. They felt more at home in them. The powerful church of the Middle Ages should be understood as an institution in a similar fashion: its long period of growth, how it lost a great deal of its power, and finally even now is giving way in large areas of the world to atheism and indifference. The minister should know how the church changed the doctrines of primitive Christianity, enforced the new set of teachings with the utmost rigidity, how it overreached itself, and how its corruption brought about reforms that restored to the common people the knowledge of Christ's own teachings. This body (Please turn to page 10)

Has Christ "Become of No Effect"?

By H. Gary France, Wenatchee, Washington

THE consequence of obeying part of the law is that one becomes debtor to the whole law. If one is justified by the whole law, Christ is worthless to him; he is not in position to accept of God's grace. Paul testified "to every man that is circumcised, that he is a debtor to do the whole law. Christ is become of no effect unto you, whosoever of you are justified by the law; ye are fallen from grace" (Gal. 5:3, 4).

Paul, and other New Testament writers, used the terms, "the law" and "the whole law." What law were they considering? Obviously, they were referring to the law under which Israel was living. When a person says, "Don't do that! It's against the law!" he means simply that the offense is against the law under which they are living, whether it is a city, state, or federal law.

Israel lived under one system and only one system of laws. In presenting this code to Israel, God caused the people to gather at Mount Sinai. The mountain was burning; the earth was trembling; thunder and lightning were shattering the atmosphere; and God was speaking! The situation struck horror in the hearts of the people. When God had related ten of the commandments for Israel, the people said in terror, "If we hear the voice of the Lord our God any more, then we shall die. . . . Go thou near, and hear all that the Lord our God shall say: and speak thou unto us all that the Lord our God shall speak unto thee; and we will hear it, and do it" (Deut. 5:25, 27). God replied to Moses, "I have heard the voice of the words of this people, which they have spoken unto thee. . . . Go say to them, Get you into your tents again. But as for thee, stand thou here by me, and I will speak unto thee all the commandments, and the statutes, and the judgments, which thou shalt teach them" (Deut. 5:28, 30, 31).

God spoke ten commandments to Israel. Israel fearfully complained, so God spoke the rest of the law to Moses, and Moses related it to Israel. Had Israel not asked God to cease speaking, there is no reason to believe that God would not have continued relating all the details of the law. God did speak the whole law to Moses! Therefore, one may conclude that Israel lived under only one law—that law which God commanded.

Does God change? Of course not! But the priesthood did change. "For the priesthood being changed, there is made of necessity a change also of the law" (Heb. 7:12). This chapter of Holy Writ continues in explaining the necessity for the change: "There is verily a disannulling of the commandment going before for the weakness and unprofitableness thereof. For the law made nothing perfect, but the bringing in of a better hope did; by the which we draw nigh unto God" (Heb. 7:18, 19).

There is no mention of the administered law being, or considered as being, divided! Contrarily, the term "the law" is persistently used. That law was changed! A "better hope" and a "better testament" were put in its place.

"The law was our schoolmaster to bring us unto Christ" (Gal. 3:24). When a student is promoted to the succeeding grade, does it mean that the school system is changed? Nor does it mean that God changed when man was brought to Christ by the schoolmaster.

Christ said of the law and the prophets, "I am not come to destroy, but to fulfil" (Matt. 5:17). The Greek word kataluo, here translated "destroy," means "come to naught," "throw down," or "overthrow." The law did not "come to naught." The law was successful in its intended purpose. It brought men to Christ. Christ, prophesying of the Temple, said that there would not be a stone "that shall not be thrown down" (Matt. 24:2), using the same Greek word, kataluo. Christ's intention was not that of overthrowing or revolting against the law. He simply intended to fulfill or "end" the administration of the law. The Greek word pleroo, here translated "fulfil," is translated "end" (Luke 7:1; Acts 19:21), "expire" (Acts 7:30), and "complete" (Col. 2:10; 4:12). Christ said, "Till heaven and earth pass, one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass from the law, till all be fulfilled" (Matt. 5:18). Jesus had just said that He would fulfill, meaning He would "end," "expire," or "complete" the law.

Paul wrote of "the ministration of death, written and engraven in stones" (2 Cor. 3:7). Please! Let us not work under the ministration of death. Let us not fall from grace. We must concentrate our efforts on a better testament, a better hope!

One God: the God of the Ages

Manifestations of God's Person and Character

By R. H. Judd, Colborne, Ontario

Brother Judd's study this week is the second installment of copy that may be published, eventually, in book form.—Editor.

The Ages

"Thy kingdom is a kingdom of all ages" (Psalm 145:13—marg.).

"The LORD JEHOVAH is a rock of ages" (Isa. 26:4—marg.).

"King of the ages" (1 Tim. 1:17—R.V., Marg.).

"King of the ages" (Rev. 15:3—R.V.).

"Which God ordained before the ages" (1 Cor. 2:7—R.V., marg.).

"Upon whom the ends of the ages are come" (1 Cor. 10:11—R.V. & E.D.).

"That in the ages to come" (Eph. 2:7—A.V. & R.V.).

"Other ages" (A.V.); "other generations" (R.V.) (Eph. 3:5—E.D. & T.C.N.T.).

"Purpose of the ages" (Eph. 3:11—R.V., marg.).

"From all ages and generations" (Col. 1:26—R.V.).

"Before the commencement of the ages" (2 Tim. 1:9—W.).

"Before the commencement of the ages" (Titus 1:2—W.).

"The ages have been framed by the word of God" (Heb. 11:3—R.V., marg.).

Note. Dr. Owen, on the word translated "framed," says, "The word doth nowhere signify the original production of anything, but the order, disposing, fitting, perfecting, or adorning of that which is produced. Nor is it anywhere applied to express the creation or making of the world." (See note on Heb. 11:3, E.D.). Hebrews 1:2 informs us that God constituted "the ages" on account of Christ (E.D.) and Hebrews 9:26 reveals that "at the end of the ages" Christ was manifested to take away sin by the sacrifice of himself (R.V.).

It will be seen from the passages quoted that "the ages" had commencement; they also have purpose, and they also have end.

Age (singular)

"Neither in this age, or that which is to come" (Matt. 12:32—R.V. & E.D.).

"Not the wisdom of this age" (1 Cor. 2:6—R.V. & E.D.).

"Not only in this age, but also in that which is to come" (Eph. 1:21—R.V., marg.).

"According to the course [‘age’—R.V., marg.] of this world" (Eph. 2:2—R.V., marg.; see also E.D.).

In the last instance given, "age" and "world" synchro-nize, making it a reasonable deduction that "the ages" began with the creation and making of this present world order. This is confirmed, perhaps, by comparison of Hebrews 11:3 with the first chapter of Genesis, where in both mention is made of the "word" of God—"God said."

"The Foundation of the World"

The expression heading this section occurs ten times in the New Testament. With seven of these occurrences, the preposition "from" is associated, and with the remaining three the word "before." Observe the lists following:

The occurrences associated with "from":

"Things hidden from the foundation of the world" (Matt. 13:35).

"Kingdom prepared from the foundation of the world" (Matt. 25:34).

"Which was shed from the foundation of the world" (Luke 11:50).

"Suffered often from the foundation of the world" (Heb. 9:26).

"Finished from the foundation of the world" (Heb. 4:3).

"The Lamb slain from the foundation of the world" (Rev. 13:8).

"The book of life from the foundation of the world" (Rev. 17:8).

The foregoing are all addressed to Hebrews and relate to Kingdom facts declared by the prophets, to the sufferings of the Messiah, and to the enunciation of the myster-ies not made known until He spoke.

The occurrences associated with "before":

"Foreknown indeed before the foundation of the world" (1 Peter 1:20—R.V.).

"Thou lovedst me before the foundation of the world" (John 17:24).

"Chose us in him before the foundation of the world" (Eph. 1:4—R.V.).

Not: The Greek word themelios, usually employed for the foundation of a building, is not the one given in these passages. In each text, it is the word katabole, which really signifies a "casting down," "disruption," "overthrow." It is found in the Septuagint in 2 Samuel 20:15, "throw it down"; in 2 Corinthians 4:9 as "smitten down"; and in Hebrews 11:11 "to conceive" (casting down [of seed]—see Young's Analytical Concordance, page 195, definition No. 9). If this be the true idea of katabole, then it is evident that it has reference to that stupendous cataclysm declared in passages which we cannot now stay to quote. Thus the event affords a clear line of division between earlier creations and the present.

The facts here gathered and presented fully justify their inclusion in a study of fundamentals, for they provide information regarding that purpose of the ages in which Christ and the Church of God had place ere the ages began.

Having considered that in this study of God we are of necessity brought into contact with ideas that can be expressed as to fact, but cannot be measured as to content or extent, as indicated by space and time, and that only through other correlative facts can we have knowledge of them, so, in like manner, these same truths hold good as a fundamental basis for the existence of God.

This subject of God, more than any other, naturally comes into close relationship with every topic that is contained in the inspired Word of God. It is this fact which makes our theme one of intense interest—ever widening in scope. At the same time, this very feature renders the study difficult of presentation in ordered sequence. This is especially true of the Book of Genesis, where practically all Biblical subjects have their beginnings. Genesis, quoted or referred to some sixty times in the New Testament, has been well called the "seed-plot of the Bible"; for in it is to be found the introduction to nearly all succeeding Scripture revelation. Necessarily, the foremost and most important to be mentioned is the wonderful topic of God Himself.

In Genesis 1:1, the author, Moses, who lived centuries after the events he recorded, uttered the fact of God's existence with a brevity born of certainty that left no room for doubt as to where he stood. Although probably equally cognizant in his own times of prevalent disbelief in God, as any historian past or present, he linked together the Creator and creation in one majestic sentence, assured that the very heavens bear witness as to the truthfulness and sincerity of his utterances. With consistent accuracy throughout the whole creation chapter, he did not let the reader's attention deviate from the knowledge that God alone is the Creator. He gave no personal name to the Creator, because the fact of God and the fact of creation cannot be separated the one from the other. Both are universal facts intended to be universally recognized.

That from the "creation of the [present] world" men "knew God," both by natural conviction implanted within them, and by external evidences, undoubtedly is Paul's argument in Romans 1. An observant reader, however, will find equally cogent circumstantial evidence at the very dawn of the Bible narrative in Genesis 1. It is recorded ten times in that chapter that "God said." (See vv. 3, 6, 9, 11, 14, 20, 24, 26, 28, and 29.) Six times it is mentioned that "God saw." (Vv. 4, 12, 18, 21, 25, and 31.) These are natural and reasonable evidences of the individual personality of God and His indivisible unity which cannot be successfully gainsaid by even the most ardent trinitarian. They are also proof—specially so verses 28 and 29—that from earliest times man was cognizant of God, thus refuting the modern prevalent idea that man has developed from lower forms of life by evolutionary processes covering millions of years.

Important Distinctions Between Genesis 1 and 2

It will be noticed that sharp distinctions exist between Genesis 1 and Genesis 2 with reference to appellatives used in connection with the Creator. Throughout the first chapter (Please turn to page 10)

News and Prophecy Digest

By C. E. Randall, Fonthill, Ontario

POLITICO-RELIGIOUS. It seems quite clear from the teachings in the Revelation and other portions of Scripture pertaining to the end-time that there will arise a political-religious combination that will be oppressive to all that stands in the way of the purposes which this satanic-controlled pair have espoused. One term by which these two are called is "the beast and the false prophet." I would not assume, even for consideration, that these two are joined together through the purpose of God, but Scripture does associate these two together because of their joint machinations to rule and control. Their sinister objectives best can be realized through joint action.

The evils to which this confederacy will resort as described in Holy Writ makes gruesome reading. Periods of the past, when apostate religion exercised joint control with the state, were times of persecution when outrages incompatible with human dignity were inflicted on those who would not bow the knee in worship and obedience to the political-religious power. There are countries where such a combination exists today and in such places religious freedom is an unknown term.

Prophecy tells us of a coming day when apostate religion under the leadership of the false prophet and the "scarlet coloured beast" will compel all during their short reign to carry a brand mark of loyalty and worship or be put to death. The extent of power and rule is "over all kindreds, and tongues, and nations."

Harold Ockenga, editor of United Evangelical Action, official paper of the fundamental Evangelical denominations organized as the National Association of Evangelicals, in a recent editorial, suggested the possibility of a tie-up between papal Rome and Communism, thus forming a religious-political rule that might meet the demands of the beast and false prophet set-up. On several occasions, we have pointed out the possibility of such an alignment. However, we must not be blind to some of the things that are happening within the ranks of Protestantism. Some months ago, a selected group of ministers visited Russia and came back with an almost blanket approval of religious life within the Soviet Union; and more recently a group of eight ministers visited Yugoslavia and on their return reported full religious freedom under the rule of the Red puppet ruler, Tito. At the present time, big and little wigs among Protestants are more inclined to be bedfellows with Stalin than are the priests of Rome. Apostate religion is not and will not be confined merely to Rome. The false prophet will have as many followers from among Protestants as he will find in Roman Catholic circles.

LADY OF KINGDOMS. In Scripture, Babylon stands for all that is evil and is described as the "habitation of devils; and the hold of every foul spirit." The Companion Bible describes Babylon as being the "fountainhead of all idolatry and systems of false worship."

At one time, Babylon was called "tender and delicate"—"the lady of kingdoms." At least, this was her estimation in her own eyes. The Prophet Isaiah further stated that she thought that she would continue to be "a lady for ever." The city of Babel or Babylon was the beginning of confusion. It was there that the first organized effort of man to build himself a name and exalt man in the earth was undertaken. It is said that Babylon did not take her sins to heart. She was head nation and mistress of all. "Thou art the head of gold." One of the charges leveled against this great nation was, "Thou art given to pleasures and dwellest carelessly."

But Babylon is not the only nation that has been overcome through pleasure and careless living. One of the reasons given for the early collapse of France in World War II was that she was given to immoral "pleasure and careless living."

When sufficient time has elapsed and history is accurately written, we believe the crisis through which England is passing will be seen as having been caused through her being "given to pleasures" and "dwelling carelessly."

Anthony Eden lately stated that he hoped and believed that England would be able to recover herself and again become a leading nation. We hope so, too! But she must recover her soul first and cease from pleasure and careless living. The people on this continent are going in the same direction and the same weakness will come to us, unless we change our ways. "Lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God" impoverishes the spirit and closes the windows of heaven.

And right now, I want to say this: the power and zeal of our own church work is being reduced through so many of the members of our churches being "given to pleasures, and dwelling carelessly."

UNITED JEWRY. During the forepart of August, about one hundred fifty rabbis met in conference at the Jewish Theological Seminary in New York City. One of the prime purposes behind their meeting was to stop "family disintegration" through marriage outside of Jewish blood. One of the first prohibitions God placed on the Israelites as they entered the Promised Land following the Exodus was that they were not to "make marriages" with the many nations that had formerly possessed the land. Then again, on their deliverance from seventy years in Babylon, Nehemiah took courageous action to punish those who had married outside the family of Israel, and in so doing checked further breaking up of family life and the subsequent destruction of their faith.

The past few years there has been such a large number of our young folk who have married outside the church to the detriment of their faith, it is high time that the leaders of the church do as the rabbis have done—determine on a course of educational and disciplinary action that will check this disintegration of our family church life.

Not only has marriage outside the faith wrought havoc with the faith of so many of our young folk, but it has had a much larger and more subtle action on the importance of our faith to salvation. Just as soon as a man or woman marries outside the faith, right away the family will assume the attitude, "Oh well, it doesn't make much difference what a person believes. We are just a twig of the tree of salvation, and other religious bodies are branches of the same tree." This widespread indifference to the importance of our message is more serious than most folk realize. It needs to be checked!

"Be a stand-by for the church and not merely a by-stander."

ADVENTURE OF FAITH. From time to time, we have reported the various crusades undertaken by religious bodies in the United States and Canada. The Methodist Church was successful in raising $27,000,000, most of which was for the re-establishment of its work in foreign lands. It was mostly missionary effort. The Baptist Church, North, raised the sum of $16,000,000, while the Presbyterian Church collected $25,000,000. This latter group at their General Assembly on receiving report of the successful campaign voted to increase their missionary budget sixty per cent. There is every indication that the Lord will bless people who invest in missionary work to carry out the Great Commission to make disciples of all nations. One of the best examples of this can be found in the Seventh Day Adventist type of work. Almost all of their effort is being spent on missionary work. Missionary work requires sacrifice, demands faith, and puts the love of the gospel in the hearts of those who lay their all on the altar.

VALLEY OF ACHOR. If one would like to know the outcome of God's dealings with Israel, all he need do is to study the second chapter of Hosea; and in short compass, he will have the dramatic ending, when Israel will be reconciled to God and will no longer be seeking after other lovers, but will call Jehovah "Ishi," which means "My husband." Before Israel will come to this place of humiliation, she must be hedged in and forced to pass through the "valley of Achor" as a door of hope. Now, the story back of the valley of Achor is simple. It was near this valley where Israel was fighting the people of Ai, and were defeated, until Achan, who had taken of the accursed thing, and his family had been destroyed from among the people, Israel will find nothing but defeat in the valley of Achor until they cleanse themselves of the accursed things, and then they will be reconciled to their husband—Jehovah.

"BLESSED ARE THE POOR IN SPIRIT"

By Mary Brown, Oregon Bible College

JESUS' FAME for healing and preaching went throughout the land of Palestine. Multitudes from Galilee, Decapolis, Jerusalem, Judea, and from beyond Jordan followed Him. Seeing the multitudes, He went up into a mountain and preached the Sermon on the Mount. In this sermon, He gave the Beatitudes, beautiful promises of the blessings His followers would receive.

The first Beatitude is, "Blessed are the poor in spirit: for their's is the kingdom of heaven." In John 13:17, we find that "happy" is translated from the same Greek word that is translated "blessed" in Matthew 5:3. Therefore, let us read thus, "Happy are the poor in Spirit: for their's is the kingdom of heaven."

Who are the "poor in spirit"? This group of words has been translated in different ways. Lamsa translated it as "the poor in pride," or as one could interpret it, Those who are not to proud to go to God for guidance. Those who are willing to submit themselves fully to the spiritual guidance of God will be happy, for they will receive God's richest blessings. In Goodspeed's Translation we read, "Those who feel their spiritual need." Some people feel that God is always with them. Because of this feeling, they neglect God. They feel they need not go to Him in prayer. They are self-satisfied. Rich in spirit, they have closed their ears to the voice of the Master. Those who are poor in spirit look to God for guidance in all of their activities. They are willing to submit themselves to God—to follow His leading.

"Let all those that seek thee rejoice and be glad in thee: let such as love thy salvation say continually, The Lord be magnified. But I am poor and needy: yet the Lord thinketh upon me: thou art my help and my deliverer; make no tarrying, O my God" (Psalm 40:16, 17).

Jesus was not only promising a blessing upon the poor in spirit, but was showing them that they are blessed by the happiness falling upon them—the happiness within. The happiness without, or the happiness to come, was promised also in these words, "Then shall the king say unto them on his right hand, Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world" (Matt. 25:34).

"Because thou sayest, I am rich, and increased with goods, and have need of nothing; and knowest not that thou art wretched, and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked: I counsel thee to buy of me gold tried in the fire, that thou mayest be rich; and white raiment, that thou mayest be clothed, and that the shame of thy nakedness do not appear; and anoint thine eyes with eyesalve, that thou mayest see" (Rev. 3:17, 18). Those who are proud in wealth speak the language of spiritual pride and self-satisfaction, but with all the boasting it is wretched.

Absolute rejection of religion is preferable to half-hearted expression of it. There is hope for the outsider, but the Christian who is such only in name receives only the expression of divine disgust.

For each blessing, Christ gave a contrasting woe to the scribes and Pharisees. The contrasting woe for the first Beatitude is, "But woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye shut up the kingdom of heaven against men: for ye neither go in yourselves, neither suffer ye them that are entering to go in" (Matt. 23:13). The scribes and Pharisees had by their traditions obscured and perverted their own Scriptures, and so deluded the people; but when the ministries of John the Baptist and Christ had so powerfully affected many of the people that they seemed ready "to enter the kingdom of heaven," these false teachers did their utmost to excite their prejudices—and with too much success. They were so preoccupied with outward appearance and so lost in the unimportant things of the law, that they were in the position of not being able either to enter in themselves, or to help others.

We, today, can profit by Christ's Sermon on the Mount. The Beatitudes are still beautiful truths. If we are "poor in spirit"—willing for God to guide us, willing to do His bidding, and to teach His Word—we shall not fear the woe; but, if we fail to follow His guidance, if we do not teach the truth, woe be to us! Let us always strive to do God's bidding, to follow His leading, and to teach His truths!

"Because the preacher was wise, he still taught the people knowledge; yea, he gave good heed, and sought out, and set in order many proverbs. The preacher sought to find out acceptable words: and that which was written was upright, even words of truth."—Ecclesiastes 12:9, 10.

ATTENTION! "SOUL SLEEPERS"!

"The Egyptians maintain that Ceres and Bacchus preside in the realms below. They were also the first to broach the opinion that the soul of man is immortal, and that when the body dies it enters into the form of an animal which is born at that moment, thence passing on from one animal into another, until it has circles through the forms of all the creatures which tenant the earth, the water, and the air, after which it enters again into a human frame, and is born anew. The whole period of the transmigration is, they say, three thousand years. There are Greek writers, some of an earlier, some of a later date, who have borrowed this doctrine from the Egyptians, and put it forward as their own. I could mention their names, but I abstain from doing so."—Herodotus, the "Father of History" (484-425 B.C.); Book II, p. 124; selected from the Minnesota Berean Nobler.

VALUE OF THE KNOWLEDGE OF GENERAL HISTORY TO THE MINISTER AND THE RELIGIOUS TEACHER

of knowledge will give the religious leader an insight into his own religion that he did not have before.

Likewise, ancient history is most valuable to the minister. In this period of history, three great religious systems arose: Judaism, Christianity, and Mohammedanism. Strange to say, all three of them arose in the region of Arabia and Palestine. The significant continuity of their peculiar systems is a most fascinating historical study. How any minister can understand the Bible and its significance without a fairly complete knowledge of the period of the formation of its teachings is hard to see. The history of ancient times also brings into sharp relief the validity of certain schools of Biblical criticism. Oftentimes an appreciation of the erroneous teachings which sprang up and were embodied into Christianity can be gained only from the advantage point of historical criticism: for example, in the doctrines of hell and eternal torment. Or, if the facts of history and science show him to be wrong, the minister can change his position with authority behind him, and still keep his faith in God's Word.

By a study of history, the minister can see clearly why science always has won out and how theology continually has retreated before the onslaughts of science in the warfare of science and theology. Because science is not bound by superstitions and the authority of the church, it can examine the truth more exactly. Galileo was forced to recant his teachings that the earth is not the center of the universe, but the very same church that forced him to recant now holds his teachings. The voyages of Columbus and Magellan and Sir Isaac Newton's celestial mechanics brought such disrepute upon the church because of its idea of a flat earth that there was a danger that atheism would become dominant in the world. Even today many good church people think that there is a region below that is an inferno in which the wicked burn forever. Strange to say, some of our own church find difficulty in the following passage: "Then shall he say also unto them on the left hand, Depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels. . . . Then shall he answer them, saying, Verily I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye did it not to one of the least of these, ye did it not to me. And these shall go away into everlasting punishment: but the righteous into life eternal" (Matt. 25:41, 45, 46). Where is that everlasting fire? When is that everlasting fire to be kindled? Who are the goats that are to be thrown into it, and just when? How long will they burn? Are we going to do as another popular religious group has done: find hell on one of the stars?

Religion is a social science. In fact, it is the most difficult of all the social sciences. History is the key to the social sciences because it supplies them all with their materials and the tools with which to work. It unifies and coordinates all the social sciences. Besides explaining the origin and progress of religion itself, it supplies the minister with materials with which to construct his sermons, to explain the Bible in its background, and to lead his congregation into a more complete understanding of the harmony of the Word.

History furnishes the substance and materials for the understanding of prophecy. Prophecy is the most peculiar of all church doctrines—it is found in no other book or literature but the Bible. It is so completely interwoven with historical study that one hardly could imagine anybody attempting to unravel prophecy without the aid of history.

On the proscenium arch at the University of California at Los Angeles is this inscription: "Education is learning to use the tools that the race has found to be indispensable." Religious education is one branch of that learning. Let us hereby resolve not merely to be intelligent ministers of the gospel of Christ; let us strive not merely to teach a set group of doctrines with pegged ideas that could not have any elasticity, but to be learned in the full sense of the word. Let us not be merely learned, but strive for that higher education which makes a man a powerful force for good in his community and his church.

A minister should know enough about the history of Christianity that he even wants to have a part in it? Does he know enough about the heritage that is embodied within the history of the church that he can speak intelligently upon its tenets of doctrine? Does he know enough about the basic teachings of the church to have an opinion; or does he succumb under the first attack that is centered upon his position? History properly presented and understood will give him the answers to all these questions, and any other such questions that may arise.

ONE GOD: THE GOD OF THE AGES

ter, the Hebrew word Elohim is used exclusively. It is a word which suitably covers God's relationship to all mankind—universal in extent. The second chapter introduces the Creator with the combined name and title—JEHOVAH-Elohim—"the LORD God." Before proceeding to explain the reasons for this, it will be well to call attention to another fact contemporary with it. Recent translations have placed the commencement of the second chapter of Genesis at verse 4, making verses 1 to 3 the closing verses of chapter 1. That is an arrangement which fits in more correctly with the context of each and suitably fills in the whole of creation week. (See note at end of this section.) The culminating theme of the first chapter is the masterpiece and crowning glory of the Creator in introducing life—living creatures—with man placed at the head and given dominion over this present creation. Note particularly that the first chapter deals only with creation as it comes fresh from the hand of the Creator, with nothing in the whole narrative to tarnish the record. "God saw every thing that he had made, and behold it was very good" (Gen. 1:31). Note also, in contrast to chapter 2, that man is given absolute freedom; no restrictions are recorded. How long an interval elapsed between these two records is not definitely known, though there are Scriptural reasons for believing it was considerable.

The Hebrew word toledoth (generations) invariably is connected with new beginnings, new life—birth; and is so translated in Exodus 28:10. In Genesis 2:4, it is applied to the bringing into being of the heavens and the earth, obviously because they were formed to be inhabited as the abode of sentient life. (Isa. 45:18.)

THE TYPE SPEAKS

By Frederic W. Goudy

I AM TYPE! Of my earliest ancestry neither history nor relics remain. The wedge-shaped symbols impressed in plastic clay by Babylonian builders in the dim past foreshadowed me: from them through the hieroglyphics of the ancient Egyptians, the lapidary inscriptions of the Romans, down to the beautiful letters by the scribes of the Italian Renaissance I was in the making.

John Gutenberg was the first to cast me in metal. From his chance thought straying through an idle reverie—a dream most golden—the profound art of printing with movable types was born. Cold, rigid and implacable I may be—yet the first impress of my face brought the Divine Word to countless thousands.

I bring into the light of day the precious stores of knowledge and wisdom long hidden in the grave of ignorance. I coin for you the enchanting tale, the philosopher's moralizing, and the poet's phantasies; I enable you to exchange the irksome hours that come, at times, to everyone, for sweet and happy hours with books . . . golden urns filled with all the manna of the past.

In books, I present to you a portion of the Eternal Mind caught in its progress through the world, stamped in an instant, and preserved for eternity. Through me Socrates and Plato, Chaucer and the Bards become your faithful friends who ever surround and minister to you. I am the leaden army that conquers the world:

I AM TYPE!

ALONG LIFE'S WAY

By W. H. Arrington in "The Trumpet Messenger"

A FEW of us are too ready to whisper the news of a man's little errors, when a bit of hope spoken to him, instead, might cause him to rise again and struggle manfully onward.

If all of us could detect our own imperfections with a view to mending our ways as easily as some of us can detect imperfections of the other man that we may tell others about him, what a glorious change would sweep over this old world of ours! It seems, however, that a few people consider it more important to review the lives of others than it is to sit by the roadside and watch them go by. Some people appear to be better acquainted with their neighbors than they are with themselves.

Someone has well said: "He who carries with him the spirit of boundless charity to man often does good when he knows not of it." At times, there is no way of estimating the value of a little charity which we have gone beyond the beaten path to bestow upon fallen man who is endeavoring to regain his footing so that he may struggle back to usefulness.

Words may seem to us only little things, but a few of them spoken in kindness often have a magic power, the strength of which only a few in nature are so cold as to completely resist. Though they are fleeting as the breath that bears them, their influence may be as lasting as the heart they reach.

One never knows,
How far a word of kindness goes;
One never sees,
How far a smile of friendship flees.

Down through the years,
The deed forgotten reappears,
One kindly word,
The souls of many here are stirred.

Man goes his way,
And tells with every passing day,
Until life's end.

MY AIM

"I will follow the upward road today,
I will keep my face to the light;
I will think thoughts as I go my way,
I will do what I know is right.
I will look for flowers by the side of the road,
I will laugh and love and be strong;
I will try to lighten another's load.
I will lift as we travel along."

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

Prepared by Madge Savage
Waite Park, Minnesota

"Then Peter said unto them, Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost" (Acts 2:38).

Belonging to Christ

Today, we still hear the question asked, "What shall we do with Jesus?" The question was asked of Peter on the Day of Pentecost. The golden text, above, was his answer.

Every boy and girl who wants to belong to Jesus must accept Him. Each must repent of his willful way and turn away from sin. Everyone to "put on Christ" must be baptized. (Gal. 3:27.)

Christ is the only door through which we can come to God. We know that "without faith it is impossible to please him: for he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him" (Heb. 11:6).

We then must have faith in God and in His Son Christ Jesus. That is why, it is so very necessary to "believe" before being baptized. We have the promise: "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved" (Mark 16:16).

What should one believe? According to Mark, one is to "believe the gospel" (Mark 1:14, 15). "Gospel" means "good news." It is "good news" that Christ died for us and rose again. (1 Cor. 15:20). It is "good news" that someday He will be King over the earth. (Isa. 2:2, 3.) It is "good news" that we may share in the Kingdom, may live and work with Him in establishing that heavenly Kingdom upon the earth. (See Rev. 5:9, 10.) It is "good news" that we are saved by grace, through faith, "and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God" (Eph. 2:8).

Gift of the Spirit

Peter said, "Repent . . . be baptized . . . and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost" (Acts 2:38).

The promise to the apostles also was made to Abraham: "If ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise" (Gal. 3:29).

James knew of "the promise." He said, "He shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord hath promised to them that love him" (James 1:12).

Paul knew of the promise. He also believed it, as do we. "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith," are three conditions Paul met. We, too, must overcome these three lifelong hurdles. Then we will be able to say as did Paul: "Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day: and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing" (2 Tim. 4:7, 8).

The promise, the gift of God's Holy Spirit which all of us can receive, is the gift of life eternal.

Use Your Mirror

If we are faithful all the days of our lives, we will receive the promise. It is "laid up" or waiting for us until Christ returns at the resurrection day. (1 Cor. 15:22, 23; also 1 Cor. 15:51-53.)

"There is therefore now no condemnation to them that are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit" (Rom. 8:1).

Jesus said, "If a man love me, he will keep my words: and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him" (John 14:23).

Paul, in speaking of Christ, said: "In whom ye also trusted, after that ye heard the word of truth, the gospel of your salvation: in whom also after that ye believed, ye were sealed with that holy Spirit of promise, which is the earnest of our inheritance until the redemption of the purchased possession, unto the praise of his glory" (Eph. 1:13, 14). So let us use our "mirrors" and be hearers and doers of the Word. (James 1:22-24.)

Sea Worthy

"All the water in the world,
However hard it tried,
Could never sink a ship
Unless it got inside.

"All the evil in the world,
The wickedness and sin,
Can never sink your life's fair craft
Unless you let it in."—Selected.

THE POWER OF THE WORD!

By Harold J. Doan

WHEN Howard W. Gore, former governor of West Virginia, was a young man, he followed the course of many youths, and looked down his nose at religion and the Bible. It was all right for others, but he was too bright for such nonsense, he thought.

One day his father sold a herd of mules, and Howard was given the duty of delivering the mules across the mountain and returning the collected money. Delivering the mules and pocketing the money, the youth adjusted his revolver in his pocket and started back home.

It was getting dark and Howard was anxious to get home; so, full of confidence, he started over a short-cut trail. It was becoming darker by the minute, the trail was difficult to see, and Howard remembered that the mountaineers sometimes shot first and asked questions afterward when they saw a stranger prowling in the mountains at night. He had seen no sign of human life for several miles, and was now looking hard for a place to safely spend the night.

Suddenly, Howard came upon a cabin. Knocking on the door, he was faced by a gruff individual who said simply, "What do ya' want?"

"I've lost my way and I'm hungry," Howard replied. "Could I stay here overnight?"

After consuming a plate of food, while the man and his wife silently watched, Howard was shown a rough bed and told, "Sleep there."

By that time the young man was a bundle of nerves. He was afraid of this gruff couple, and his thoughts turned to the large roll of money he was carrying. Excusing himself, he stepped outside the door to think the whole thing out.

Upon finally reaching the conclusion that he would stay, but remain alert through the night, he shifted his revolver and started back to the cabin. Passing a small window, Howard looked in, and there the old man was taking down a great book from the shelf. Sitting down at the table, the man began to read aloud. It was the Bible!

Seeing and hearing this, Howard's fears evaporated. The thought which sprang to his mind was, "Such a man will do me no harm." Howard slept peacefully that night, and next morning was safely on his way home.

As he thought about the happenings of the evening before, Howard reasoned, "If the mere sight of a man reading his Bible should so allay my fears, there must be something to it." This reasoning made him resolve to return to the love of the powerful Book.

Too many young people, and older ones too, are ashamed of the Bible and belief in it. It is unusual today to see anyone carrying a Bible in public, and more unusual to see anyone reading a Bible in public. But power is there: A more or less universal respect for Bible readers is prevalent in the world, and the appearance of a Bible in the hand or in the home often stimulates friendliness, confidence, and trust.

A boy in Chicago was carrying his Bible home from Berean meeting and was approached in a very friendly and complimentary way by a Christian gentleman, who remarked about his pleasure at seeing a young man who loved his Lord enough to carry His Word with him.

Dr. E. Stanley Jones was once reading his Bible while traveling on a train when an elderly lady spoke to him saying, "You must love the Author very much, for you are so earnestly reading His Book." How glad this evangelist must have felt to thus witness for the Lord!

Those who are ashamed of the Bible show not only their own spiritual frigidity, but a lack of knowledge and culture. These sophisticated moderns who snub the Bible, but wallow in Steinbeck and Norris, display the shallowness of their own minds; for the Bible, aside from its spiritual message, is the greatest and most interesting literature of all time. It is the all-time best seller of the world. We have not yet become learned enough to judge the Bible, but it most certainly judges us.

There is power in the Word for you, for those to whom you convey its message, and in the very sight of your reverence of it. The greatest sermons are not preached; they are seen. The sermon you will preach about the Word will be seen in your attitude toward it.

There is power in the Word because God stands behind it, and the whole world realizes it. "It proceedeth out of the mouth of God." "It is sharper than a two-edged sword." It will not return unto God void, but will do His work and accomplish His purpose.

Be not ashamed of your Bible, but display it often; and study it more often. Quote it at every opportunity; defend it and its message! Stand upon it and build upon it, for there is power in the Word!

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CALENDAR OF SPECIAL MEETINGS

October 4, 5—Michigan Fall Conference at Blanchard.
 October 17-26—Evangelistic meetings at Eden Valley, Minn. (T. A. Drinkard, guest speaker.)

MICHIGAN FALL CONFERENCE

The Michigan State Conference will conduct its fall meeting, October 4, 5, at the Blanchard Church of God. The program follows:

Saturday, October 4: 8:00 p.m., Worship service.

Sunday, October 5: 10:30-11:45 a.m., Sunday school for all ages; 11:45-12:45 p.m., sermon by Cecil Smead of Midland; 1:30 p.m., dinner in church basement; 3:00 p.m., song service featuring specials; 3:30 p.m., sermon by C. E. Lapp of Grand Rapids; Communion service; 5:30 p.m., supper; 8:00 p.m., sermon by John Denechfield of Grand Rapids.

A hearty invitation is extended to all.
 Ada C. Simpson, Secy.

OHIO CONFERENCE

The eighth annual conference of the Ohio Churches of God came to a close on Sunday, August 31, at Brush Creek, Ohio. The inspiration which was received at this five-day conference cannot be measured by any known quantity, other than the expressions from those who were in attendance.

Brush Creek Church, being the host this year, had the best attendance. Lawrenceville had a very good representation; and from Cleveland, some two hundred miles distant, twenty-six members were present.

Bro. J. R. LeCrome was guest speaker and gave us wonderful messages from God's Word each evening. He also taught the young people's class. It has been said that Sin never takes a vacation. The same can be said of many ministers. Bro. Clarence Lapp and family were vacationing at Brush Creek, so they were put to work with very good results. He taught the adult class each session and Sr. Lapp led chorus groups on flannel board work.

The annual business meeting was held on Saturday afternoon. The following officers were elected: president, Bro. Clark Ballentine, Springfield; vice president, Bro. Clement Richey, Brush Creek; secretary, Bro. J. Don Swartz, Cleveland; treasurer, Sr. Ruth Tomlinson, Cleveland.

A. J. Hoke was elected trustee for one year to serve out the term of Bro. Ballentine, who resigned to become president. Sr. Mary Ellen (Macy) Jones was elected trustee for three years. Bro. Charles Netts is the other trustee.

A new plan is to be inaugurated soon so that the Ohio pastors can rotate once each quarter with the other Ohio congregations. Plans were formulated by the new board for the coming year which are very encouraging, and with God's help, Ohio is going to give other states a stiff race for achievements in 1947-'48.
 J. Don Swartz, Secy.

BAPTISMS AT EAST OREGON, ILLINOIS

We are happy to introduce to the family of faith seven new members who were baptized, September 7, 1947, in Rock River, near Oregon, Ill. They are: Betty Snice, Elma Snice, Nancy Messenger, Rogene Arbogast, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Kump, and their son Louis. We pray God's blessing on them. May they continue in the faith they have accepted.

Gordon Landry.

HOLBROOK, NEBRASKA

We are very grateful to all who responded so quickly and willingly to our plea for funds for a much-needed parsonage for the Holbrook Church of God. We are as yet undecided what we can do with the available funds. As soon as a definite decision is made, we will endeavor to write to each of you who live too far away to meet with us often, as we feel you would appreciate knowing what has been done.
 Teel Stedman, Secy.

MCLEOD HOSPITALIZED

Bro. Norman J. McLeod, 207 Palm Place, Pomona, Calif., who had planned to take up the pastorate of the Oregon, Ill., Church of God on October 1, has sent word that he cannot come. After a check-up by his doctor, he was informed that he should report to the hospital, September 24, prepared to stay for a considerable time. It was with regret that this word was received. We pray, however, that Bro. McLeod's stay in the hospital may be shorter than he expects, and that he may be permitted to take up labor for the Lord in a short time.

Paul M. Hatch.

EDEN VALLEY, MINNESOTA

September just reminds us that another Minnesota winter is just around the corner.

Bro. Charles Mills has not been too well the last few weeks. He has improved during the last few days.

Lorraine Gaspar is spending the summer and fall with us. We are pleased to have her talent in the musical part of our services.

Floyd (Jimmie) Mills returned from service in Japan. He is the last of our boys who were in service.

The Litchfield group is making progress on its basement church. A complete report will be given later.

Delbert Jones is to speak for the Eden Valley Church, Sunday, September 14.

Walter Wiggins, Pastor.

JOHNSON - JONES

Sunday, August 31, at 9:30 a.m., the immediate families of Milo James Jones and Dorothy Marilyn Johnson gathered at the Eden Valley Church of God to witness the wedding of Milo and Dorothy. Milo is the son of Bro. and Sr. Fay Jones. He was attended by his brother Melvin John. Dorothy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Johnson of Alexandria, Minn., and was attended by her sister, Mrs. Art Lambly.

Milo and Dorothy met while attending school in Saint Cloud, the romance following. Dorothy has been employed in the Zapp National Bank in Saint Cloud, and they plan to make their home for the present in Saint Cloud.

We pray their life may be one of happiness. Their acquaintance has been one of pleasure to us. We pray God's richest blessings upon them, and may they be among those who will receive eternal life in the world to come.

Walter Wiggins.

NEWS AND PROPHECY

By C. E. Randall

FAITHS IN CONGRESS. Recent survey was made of the religious affiliations of the various members of Congress. In this poll, it was found that adherence to the Methodist Church is maintained by more than any other religious denomination, with the Roman Catholics running a close second. There were only thirteen members that failed to list any church affiliation. The majority of the members were termed as being "not ashamed to tell their constituents in which of God's mansions they worshipped."

It is interesting to know of the various church affiliations of the members of Congress, but it would be more enlightening to know if the members of Congress were active members of the various churches to which they credited their affiliations.

A few years ago, a religious census was taken of the residents of Fonthill, Ontario. Practically every person in this village, now numbering near fifteen hundred people, gave the name of some church of which they were a member. The ministers, in studying this poll, discovered that while nearly everyone gave membership in some church, that only about one fourth to one third of the people in the village were active and to whom church membership meant anything. We trust this is not true of the membership of the eightieth Congress, but our feelings are that the percentage would not run much higher, if as high.

In years gone by, religious faith had an important bearing upon one's political faith. This condition is fast disappearing. What one believes, or whether he believes anything at all, has little effect upon the voters. This indifference to one's religious convictions is found not alone in the political sphere of life, but it is making heavy gains within religious circles. Advocates of the importance of truth are becoming fewer and fewer. It is hard to keep oneself from being influenced by popular trend of thought and conduct, and unless we are very careful, this wave of public indifference to the importance of Biblical truth is likely to affect our thinking and our interpretation of the Scriptures. A constant repenting and reaffirming on our part of Jesus' words, "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free," becomes imperative as this popular trend of indifference rolls on.

LABORING MEN. Writing under the question, "Can Laboring Men Be Christian?" Paul J. Trout in "The Lutheran" says: "The world of the laboring man is not a world that puts spiritual values first. It is a world in which profits take precedence and human values, both physical and spiritual, are secondary. The constant living in such a world and the necessity of dealing with it compel him to adjust his life to it. He must adjust to it; it will not adjust itself to him. And he cannot escape it."

Living in a world, six days out of the seven, that is not concerned with spiritual values makes it difficult for the person who is to keep his zeal for things spiritual aflame. Even if the world about us is not definitely against Christian principles—it certainly is indifferent to the work of the church, and indifference is one of the most destructive forces with which the church has to contend. The less one pitches his tent toward Sodom, the better!

QUARTERLY PRICE ADVANCES

Due to constantly increasing costs in the publishing industry, the recent General Conference voted to increase the price of all quarterlies. In accord with this decision, beginning September 1, all Truth Seekers', Intermediate, and Children's quarterlies will be advanced to 20 cents per copy. We regret that circumstances beyond our control have made this increase necessary, but we know that our Sunday schools will understand that we cannot continue to absorb the growing loss on these publications.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by

National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois
The Restitution Herald is official organ of the General Conference of the Church of God.
Subscription rate: 50 issues per year, $2.50.

The Restitution Herald advocates: the near return of Christ (Acts 1:11), and life only through Him (Col. 3:3); the literal resurrection of the dead (John 5:28); the immortalization of those in Christ (1 Cor. 15:53, 54); the destruction of the wicked (Rev. 21:8); the final restoration of Israel as the Kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ (Luke 1:32), the church to be joint-heirs with Him (Rom. 8:17), and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations (Isa. 60:1-3); the "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21). It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

"The kingdom is the Lord's: and he is the governor among the nations" (Psalm 22:28).

Gleanings from the Field

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

Those who enrolled for classes in Oregon Bible College, Monday, September 8, are: (seniors) Milton Hall, Dean Moore, and Howard Beemer; (junior) Gordon Landry; (sophomores) Mary and Raymond Brown, Bud Goodwin, Arnold and Janice Johns, Shirley Logsdon, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Payne, Irene Payne, Rand Smith, and Warren Sorenson; (freshmen) Darrell Maddock, William Dick, Fred Mulder, and Curtis Simpson.

Sr. Leota B. Hanson, office manager of National Bible Institution, is vacationing with a girlhood friend, Mrs. Otis Cutting, Tacoma, Wash. From there, she will go to Salt Lake City, Utah, to visit a cousin, Mrs. Harold Price, and thereafter to Denver, Colo., to visit a sister, Mrs. John E. Miller, and a brother, Chloris, and their families.

Bro. Leon Driskill, Jordan, Mo., registered, September 15, in the freshman class at Oregon Bible College. Total enrollment to date is twenty students. Three or four others are planning to enter at midyear.

Bro. and Sr. Ray Saylor, Tempe, Ariz., were guests, recently, of Val and Henry Mattison homes, Oregon, Ill.

Sr. Albert Logsdon, Oregon, Ill., returned home, September 12, from a week's visit with relatives and friends at Ripley, Ill.

The Editor spoke for the Oregon, Ill., congregation on September 14, both morning and evening. On the 21st, Bro. James M. Watkins is to speak in the morning, and in the evening the Bereans will have charge.

The Editor will preach at Casey, Ill., on Saturday evening, Sunday morning and afternoon, September 27, 28.

Having enjoyed serving at the Iowa Conference (Waterloo) and in a series of meetings at the Blood River Church of God near Hammond, La., we are back at our home duties with The Herald and at the College.

Wanted: Articles for publication in The Herald—articles on doctrine, prophecy, and the Christian life. Every published message reaches a large audience. . . . Send copy typewritten, double spaced, and Scriptural quotations carefully checked.

Bros. Emory Macy and Timothy Pearson have been employed for ministerial services in Texas. Bro. Macy is located at Gateville, and Bro. Pearson's address is Riviera. Their families are with them.

Bro. F. L. Austin, three weeks a patient in the local hospital, returned home on September 11. Reported from the hospital as an "ideal patient." Bro. Austin's strength is practically normal again.

Bro. Dale Dunbar and two of his well-drilling employees, Delta, Ohio, were in Oregon, Ill., three days last week installing a new pump to supply adequate water for the city.

On August 23, Bro. John R. Fiske baptized into the body of Christ Bro. Paul Richardson, Woodward, Okla., the service being at a river near Arkansas City, Kan. Bro. Richardson is in middle life and head of a family.

Sr. Elizabeth Reighard, Delta, Ohio, fell asleep in Christ September 10, 1947, burial being on September 13. Bro. Grover Gordon, Cleveland, Ohio, preached the funeral sermon. Sr. Reighard reached the remarkable age of ninety-nine years on September 1. Her faith was strong; her life was Christian.

Truth Seekers' Tracts and Books

"This gospel must first be published among all nations" (Mark 13:10).

An effective way of teaching the gospel is in the use of tracts. The cost of slipping a tract into a letter is negligible, yet doing so may "save a soul from death." Tracts and books listed below may be ordered from National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois.

The Blessings of Prayer

*What various hindrances we meet
In coming to a mercy seat!
Yet who that knows the worth of prayer,
But wishes to be often there?*

*Prayer makes the darkened cloud withdraw;
Prayer climbs the ladder Jacob saw;
Gives exercise to faith and love;
Brings every blessing from above.*

*Restraining prayer, we cease to fight;
Prayer keeps the Christian armor bright;
And Satan trembles when he sees
The weakest saint upon his knees.*

*Were half the breath that's vainly spent,
To heaven in supplication sent,
Our cheerful song would oftener be,
"Hear what the Lord has done for me."*

—William Cowper.

“Summer Is Ended”

Jeremiah, deploring the sins of Israel, reproachfully announced: “The harvest is past, the summer is ended, and we are not saved” (8:20). Lazily, wantonly, Israel had eaten of the summer’s fruits without storing for winter—sinfully enjoyed the present and made no preparation for the future. Then came the Babylonians like hungry wolves upon the prey!

The summer of 1947 is ending; its harvest soon will be past. Are we, Christian recipients of the summer’s harvest, ready for winter? Are we appreciative of Jehovah who gave witness of Himself in the summer’s fruitful fields? Are we ready for wintry judgment? Have we gleaned nought in harvest fields of the Lord? Empty handed are we? If Christ returned today, would you and I be saved?

Rich are we—lazy and sinful, too! “Charge them that are rich in this world,” said the Apostle Paul, “that they be not high minded, nor trust in uncertain riches, but in the living God, who giveth us richly all things to enjoy; that they do good, that they be rich in good works, ready to distribute, willing to communicate; laying up in store for themselves a good foundation against the time to come, that they may lay hold on eternal life” (1 Tim. 6: 17-19).

Plagues of judgment fill the horizon like ascending clouds to the zenith where they shall drop their fury upon the unprepared. Summer is ending—soon will be past. “Seek ye the Lord while he may be found, call ye upon him while he is near: let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts: and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon” (Isa. 55:6, 7).

“Seek ye the Lord”!

Secrets for Interpreting the Bible

Worldly people, and sometimes Christians, think of the Bible as a book only of distant history, out-dated precepts, mysteries, and vagaries—a book for argumentative theologians, if indeed for anybody. Who understands the Bible? “The Book Nobody Knows”! There are secrets, however, which when known and used will lead one to a sound and helpful interpretation of the Scriptures. An invaluable blessing comes to him who uses these secrets in seeking the Lord. Briefly, these secrets are study, prayer, and obedience.

Study. In gaining sound knowledge of the Bible and its interpretation, there is no substitute for study. “Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth” (2 Tim. 2:15). Search the Scriptures daily. (Cp. Acts 17:11.) “The words of the Lord are pure words: as silver tried in a furnace of earth, purified seven times” (Psalm 12:6). The Scriptures are dependable to withstand the severest of critical analysis, and so precious as to retain their deepest treasures only for those who seek.

Prayer. Talking in prayer with God better qualifies one to understand God’s written Word. Communion develops understanding. Meditation dispels desire to know the intended unknown. “God is Spirit; and those worshipping Him must worship Him in Spirit and Truth” (John 4: 24, Emph. Diag.). “If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally” (James 1:5). As through prayer, Daniel learned Nebuchadnezzar’s dream, satisfactorily reported it to the King, and interpreted it in precision accuracy as revealed by unfolding history, so may one today go in secret to Jehovah for light upon the great visions of the Bible, such as in the Revelation, and gain remarkable insight, foresight, of the future. He who prays in darkness will see as in noonday. Prayer opens windows into the Word of God.

Obedience. “To obey is better than sacrifice,” one of the blessings of obedience being its source of knowledge. Jesus said, “If any man will do his [God’s] will, he shall know of the doctrine” (John 7:17). Thus, by doing God’s will, by humble obedience, one gains additional knowledge of God’s will—additional knowledge of the Bible. Study and theory are perfected only in practice, and practice is much the richer in its storehouse of treasures.

These three, study, prayer, and obedience, are secrets of gaining a thorough knowledge of the Scriptures and their interpretation: helpful and essential in life’s perplexities and storms, vital for eternal salvation.

The Sources of Jesus Power

By R. H. Judd, Colborne, Ontario

IN STUDYING the sources of Jesus' power, we consider first His—

(1) Home Influences

Undoubtedly, the first influences in the life of Jesus were Mary and Joseph in their godly home. They were His examples in putting God first, for Luke 2:41 records that "his parents went up to Jerusalem every year at the feast of the passover."

The effect of this training is further made clear in Luke 4:16. It is no accident that we find mention there of Jesus' being "brought up" in Nazareth, that it was "his custom to enter the synagogue on the sabbath day," and that he "stood up to read." Here are three pointed facts all linked together in one verse; and in the progressive order given, they were the natural outcome of interested and careful training.

The thoughtful mind will not fail to ponder these steps of Jesus' development. Through them he will realize the baselessness of many of the claims made in reference to the personality of Jesus the Christ. If, as the Scriptures affirm, Jesus "advanced in wisdom and stature [or age], and in favor with God and men," there is in that statement positive proof that Jesus the Christ was not God, as taught by modern theologians, for how then could He increase in favor with God? Moreover, if the same personality Jesus the Christ was a pre-existent being co-eternal with God, how would it be possible for that same personality to advance in age? Surely no practical mind would for a moment suggest that He, who according to current theology actually made the world and all things therein, needed and benefited by the training of human parents. In such case, Job might well ask, "Shall any teach God knowledge?" He who "meditates" on this book of the law "day and night" will put fact beside fancy and choose wisely between the two.

(2) Jesus' Knowledge of the Word

The same chapter reveals that knowledge of "the Book" (v. 17) was a fundamental fact in Jesus' life. Evidently when entering the synagogue, Jesus had some premeditated thoughts as to what His message might be, and when the attendant handed Him the roll, He immediately "found the place where it was written." Jesus' keen knowledge of the law of the Lord was illustrated in the incident of the lawyer in Luke 10:25 who "stood up" with the set purpose of testing the Master's knowledge. There was more than just the question in the lawyer's attitude, for the word anistemi (stood up), here and in each of its other occurrences, carries with it the thought of authority with set and determined purpose. Jesus, unabashed, and knowing His own competency, threw back the challenge, and asked, "What is written in the law? How readest thou?"

Many instances are noted throughout the Gospels where the scribes and Pharisees were worsted in their encounters with Christ—which made them afraid to ask any further questions. The one in which Jesus asked them concerning David calling Christ "Lord" is specially interesting, and is recorded by three of the four Evangelists. His answer to the Sadducees concerning the resurrection is another, and that in John 6:62 regarding the ascending of the Son of man is, perhaps, one of the most difficult to understand with certainty; but spoken to the multitude, most clearly, as in all such instances was intended to be cryptic.

R. H. Judd

Jesus' frequent references to the Word of God, such as in Luke 5:1; 8:21; and 11:28, which are typical not only of the high esteem in which He held it, but Luke 4:32 reveals that His word was with power ("authority," R.V.; delegated power) and was different indeed from that of the scribes. (Matt. 7:29.)

Jesus constantly acknowledged that the Father was the real Source of His power. In John 14:10, it is recorded that He said, "I speak not of myself; but the Father that dwelleth in me, he doeth the works." Or, as more clearly and beautifully expressed by the Revised Version: "The Father abiding in me doeth his works." (See also John 5:19; 8:28; 12:49; 14:24; and Acts 2:22.) This last reference (Acts 2:22) accounts not only for all that Jesus spoke, but also for all that He did.

(3) Jesus' Ready Willingness to Subject His Will to the Father

This truth is well explained in John 5:30, "I seek not mine own will, but the will of him that sent me." Clearly two wills are in evidence here. (For further information, see Matthew 26:39; John 5:30; 6:38; 4:34; 9:4; 17:4.)

(4) Jesus' Dependence on Prayer

There are at least a dozen instances on record of Jesus' prayers. These are scattered throughout the four Gospels as follows: (Please turn to page 11)

God's Way Is Best

By Mary Mae Nedrow, Oregon, Illinois

"The ways of the Lord are right, and the just shall walk in them: but the transgressors shall fall therein"—Hosea.

AMOS, a herdsman, called to be a prophet of God, warned the people to return to God. God's way is always best. A consecrated life is essential to salvation. A true Christian will keep himself unspotted from the world. He will be in the world but not of the world. He will love God and love his neighbor.

We as Christians are to "present [yield] our bodies a living sacrifice, holy [set apart, consecrated], acceptable unto God, which is [our] reasonable [logical] service. And be not conformed [not fashion ourselves] to this world: but be . . . transformed [changed] by the renewing of [our] mind, that [we] may prove [discern or recognize] what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God" (Rom. 12:1, 2). Our lives must conform to the will of God if we would hope to have our names written in God's great book of remembrance. There is, however, a possibility of our names being blotted out if we do not remain true to our calling. "Many are called, but few [will be] chosen" when Jesus comes.

"When the Son of man cometh, shall he find faith on the earth?" So many just follow the crowd, because it requires a strong heart and will power to remain separate. A true Christian will have compassion on all mankind. He must be strong and courageous if he would be identified with Christ. From reading the life of Christ as portrayed in the Holy Scriptures, we learn a new kind of greatness: the power to forgive, how love is expressed through kindness, the effectiveness of prayer, and the life of faith. We can never attain unto the standards of Christ unless we have love in our hearts, one for another. Like the Christ, we must manifest the same spirit of loving kindness for our fellow men. Our lives should be living testimonies of the truths we teach; otherwise, we are like "sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal." Love must be earned; it cannot be bought. Jesus was meek and lowly in heart. By kind words and example, He taught men holiness. If we remain true to our convictions of right, God will bless us as He did the Christ. Jesus' whole life was a pattern of the pure and perfect life. He mingled with the people of the world, for He knew full well that that was the only way He could reach them. He was "in the world" but not "of the world."

If we endeavor to conform to the standards set forth by Jesus Christ, we will find that those who seek to injure us will become our friends; and anger and hatred will give place to love. Too many forget to be charitable in judging others. Jesus said, "Judge not that ye be not judged." Let every one of us cast out the beam in our own eye, before we presume to take it upon ourselves to "cast out the mote" in our brother's eye.

Does the world hate you? Jesus said, "If the world hate you, ye know that it hated me before it hated you. If ye were of the world, the world would love his own" (John 15:18, 19). The Apostle Paul, in his Letter to the Ephesians, said: "Let all bitterness, and wrath, and anger, and clamour, and evil speaking, be put away from you, with all malice: and be ye kind . . . forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you." We must bend low, and go the second mile, and remember that a true Christian carries no grudge, but turns the other cheek. God's way is the best way. Jesus always did that which pleased God. Obedience is the very essence of holiness. "The ways of the Lord are right, and the just shall walk in them: but the transgressors shall fall therein" (Hos. 14:9). Because Jesus loved righteousness and hated iniquities, He was exalted above His associates.

We all come into this world with nothing and must leave with nothing. Should we not give our all in service to God? Our life is but a gift from

I SAW THEE—GOD

- "I saw Thee in the eastern sky,
In the soft red flush of dawn,
In fading stars of passing night,
And the silent birth of morn.
- "I saw Thee in the break of day
In the mists so low and long,
In mountain crag and leafy fen,
And a thousand birds in song.
- "I saw Thee in the dripping leaves
And the dew drops' sparkling gleam,
In lacy cobwebs' spangled frames
And the rushing mountain stream.
- "I saw Thee in the distant field,
In the river calm and bright,
In willows bent in homage low,
And the swallow's darting flight.
- "I saw Thee in the fleecy cloud,
In the lark which circled high,
Her thrilling song a glorious praise
As she rose into the sky.
- "I saw Thee in the trackless sea,
In the surging billows' roar,
Where seagulls winged their tireless flight,
And the white surf on the shore.
- "I saw Thee in the fading day,
In the red gold of the west,
The sky ablaze with glory,
O'er an earth about to rest.
- "I saw Thee—God, how wonderful,
Are all Thy works and ways,
And all the nations of the earth,
Shall yet declare Thy praise!"

—C. H. French.

God—to be used for Him. Some day (it may be soon) everything we hold most dear will roll up like a scroll and vanish away. Today we “see through a glass darkly,” but some day it all shall be made plain. Some glad day Jesus is coming to receive His own. What a joyful day that will be! Some men’s hearts, however, will fail them for fear. In speaking of that day, John the Revelator said: “The kings of the earth, and the great men, and the rich men, and the chief captains, and the mighty men, and every bondman, and every free man, hid themselves in the dens and in the rocks of the mountains: and said to the mountains and rocks, Fall on us, and hide us from the face of him that sitteth on the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb” (Rev. 6:15, 16). Christ’s coming means joy to the true Christian, but sorrow to the ungodly. We have no promise of tomorrow. Now is the acceptable time. We must work while it is day, for “the night cometh when no man can work.”

All the wisdom and knowledge we acquire amounts to nothing if our hearts are filled with jealousy and if we treat one another unkindly. It was because of Jesus’ friendliness He taught sinful men and women to live lives of righteousness and love. Jesus never harbored any ill thoughts in His heart for anyone. God has many workers in His great vineyard who labor not for money nor for fame, but for the joy in serving. There is a place for all in the church. All cannot teach, and are not fitted to be teachers or preachers, but it is (Please turn to page 11)

TITHING

By Evelyn H. Austin, Oregon, Illinois

---

THE ORIGIN of tithing is very ancient, for we find that Abraham gave tithes to Melchizedek, King of Salem, on his return from an expedition against a confederacy of kings. (Gen. 14:20.) Abraham gave a tenth of all the booty taken from the enemy. Abraham’s grandson, Jacob, vowed to the Lord a tenth of all his substance. (Gen. 28:22.)

The purpose of giving these tithes seemed to be a sign of homage and gratitude, a token of owing victory and success to Jehovah.

Later, under the law (Lev. 27:30), Moses ordained, “All the tithes of the land, whether of the seed of the land, or of the fruit of the tree, is the Lord’s; it is holy unto the Lord”—for the maintenance of His worship. If withheld from the worship service, God said that He was being robbed. (Mal. 3:8.)

In the New Testament, neither the Saviour nor His apostles have commanded anything in this affair of tithes. But, Jesus told the Pharisees who tithed, but omitted the weightier matters of the law—judgment, mercy, and faith—that they ought to tithe, and not to leave the other undone. (Matt. 23:23.) This is a positive statement from the Master concerning tithing. He teaches that it should be done, as well as to observe judgment, mercy, and faith.

Jesus sent His apostles out with neither gold, nor silver, nor brass in their purses, for “the workman is worthy of his meat.” (Matt. 10:9, 10.) He evidently expected those who received instruction in spiritual matters to provide for the worker. Paul also teaches that as the priests who waited on the altar lived by the altar (tithes)—“even so the Lord ordained that they which preach the gospel should live of the gospel.” (1 Cor. 9:13, 14.) This is surely a strong inference that gospel work should be carried on by definite, systematic giving for it, just as was true in the old Tabernacle service.

Tithers of today, those who have accepted this God-given method of systematic giving (plus offerings, in addition, for good measure pressed down, Luke 6:38) have learned that God blesses the nine-tenths and makes it go further than ten-tenths.

If you are a doubter on the subject you will say, “Strange—that can’t be true.” Ask your tithing friends about it, and it is more than likely that you will receive the same testimony from each one. “In the mouth of two or three witnesses every word may be established” (Matt. 18:16).

Rarely ever does a tither discontinue, because he has learned that he is individually blessed, and he knows that if all Christians would thus systematically give, the church would be blessed, and the financial problems of local churches, and of state and national conferences would be completely solved.

The General Conference went on record this year as favoring tithing as a means of church finance. If you are not a tither, won’t you try it?

You can’t afford to tithe? You can’t afford not to. Would you rob God? (Mal. 3:8.) God says, “Bring ye all the tithes . . . and prove me . . . I will . . . pour you out a blessing” (Mal. 3:10). That is God’s Word. Do you believe Him?

Try tithing. Prove God. Give Him this sign of homage and gratitude. Receive His blessing!

One God: the God of the Ages

Article 3—"Elohim" Is Not a Name

By R. H. Judd, Colborne, Ontario

IN GENESIS 2, God opened up a new period in His dealings with man, there being revealed not only as Elohim (God), but as "JEHOVAH-Elohim"—"the LORD God," revealing personal interest by the use of a personal name.

It will save considerable confusion in future studies to have a clear understanding of these two words. It has been quite commonly taught, even by well-versed theologians, that Elohim is one of the names of God. So strongly was this idea held that learned critics who doubted the Mosaic authorship of Genesis and other portions of the Old Testament, endeavored to discredit Moses by asserting that different authorship of certain portions was proved by the use of these two (supposedly) different names of God. Further, it may be stated that over-zealous advocates of the doctrine of the Trinity claim that because elohim is the plural form of the Hebrew word for God, it is evidence of their teaching that God consists of "Three Persons." That elohim is not a name, but a title, is definitely proved by incontrovertible facts.

(1) It is used to express the fact of Deity. It could not, therefore, be His name.

(2) The Hebrew word elohim occurs in the Old Testament about 2,470 times. In none of these instances is it used as a personal name. The following few instances, taken at random, clearly illustrate this. They also show that the singular and plural forms of the word are used interchangeably.

Exodus 22:20. "He that sacrificeth unto any god [elohim], save unto the LORD only, he shall be utterly destroyed."

To contend that elohim is here used as a name of God is not only erroneous, it is ridiculous.

Judges 6:31. "If he be a god [elohim], let him plead for himself." Here the word is not even applied to the true God, nor can it in any proper sense be said to be a name. Further, it is an unquestionable instance of a plural word made use of in a singular sense.

Nehemiah 9:18. "This is thy God." The same remarks apply. The translators have made use of the capital "G" because of the connection in which the word is used, and because it more clearly brings out the wickedness of the occasion.

1 Kings 12:28. "Behold thy gods [elohim], O Israel." These were two calves; hence translated in the plural.

1 Kings 18:21, 24. (See R. V. where the word is translated in the singular.) This is an interesting reference, and the reader is urged to turn to it, for it shows that the word is used to express the simple unity of the true God, as well as that of the false god. We shall refer to it later, for it is an unanswerable refutation of the claims of trinitarianism referred to.

Judges 16:23. "Dagon their god [elohim]." Dagon is the name, and elohim expresses the fact that he is a god. Here again the plural word is used with a singular meaning.

The word elohim is applied to Moses in Exodus 7:1, and to Samuel in 1 Samuel 28:13. It is applied to angels in Psalm 8:5. See also Psalm 97:7 and compare with Hebrews 1:6. Psalm 68:17, 18 is interesting in this connection; and becomes more interesting when comparison is made with Leeser's Translation. The same remarks apply to Genesis 32:30, including verse 31 in the last named Translation. In 1 Samuel 2:25 it is applied to a judge, and to judges in Exodus 21:6 and 22:8, 9. It is rendered "exceedingly" in Jonah 3:3. In 1 Kings 11:5 and 33 it is "goddess," and in Malachi 2:15 it is translated "godly."

Job 38:7 shows that there were many sons of Elohim, each dependent on the one supreme Elohim. Numerically all numbers are valued in relation to the first; their very existence depending on the first, and are without value apart from it. They are "His hosts," "His servants," "His ministers" that do "His pleasure."

Eloah (singular number) occurs fifty-six times in the Old Testament. Forty-one of these occur in the Book of Job. Two are in Deuteronomy, one in 2 Chronicles, one in Nehemiah, four in the Psalms, and one in Proverbs, one in Isaiah, three in Daniel, and two in Habakkuk.

A well-known writer says, "It is not in all these places applied to the Most High." We think many will differ with him in that statement. He has some special comment concerning Job 12:6—"The tabernacles [tents] of robbers prosper, and they that provoke God [El] are secure; into whose hand God [Eloah] bringeth abundantly." It will be noticed that the word "abundantly" is printed in italics, indicating that it has been supplied by the translators. The writer referred to takes the latter portion of the verse to mean, "The sword in the hand of the violent is his eloh, in the sense of its being his power." While granting that the Authorized Version is not very enlightening, it is also true that the meaning advanced above is even less correct, both ideas expressed being due to unfamiliarity with heathen customs in reference to idol worship. The rendering of the Revised Version (margin) is much more correct—"That bring their god in their hand." There is both irony and sarcasm in the statement, and the reader is advised to turn to Isaiah 45:20; 46:7; Jeremiah 10:5 (R.V. & S.&G.). It is no uncommon thing in China (where the present writer was born of missionary parents, and where he lived for many years) for the worshiper of idols to "carry his god in his hand," for there is very considerable variation in the sizes of heathen idols—some of immense size, some very small. The Bible student will find it worthwhile to study the Revised Version marginal renderings, for they are often more true than the text itself.

The Very Common Use of the Plural Word "Elohim"

The very frequent use of the plural word "Elohim" throughout Scripture is not difficult of explanation. Indeed, one or two excellent reasons may well account for the frequency with which it occurs. Trinitarians claim that its use is proof of their doctrine. If that were true, then the singular use of the word should never occur; for if God is a plurality of Persons three in number, He (forgive the antiphrasis) can never be other than that.

One, and perhaps the most natural and simple explanation of the frequent use of the word is that Bible testimony is copious and insistent concerning the prevalence of idolatry in the worship of "gods many and lords many." Men worshipped created things—sun, moon, and the hosts of heaven, and even animal life, until gods were multiplied by thousands. Under such circumstances, it cannot be any matter for surprise that the plural form of the word came into general use as descriptive of idol worship in all its variations whether singular or plural, the context supplying the information required as to which was intended.

Another explanation supplied by a Jewish friend many years ago is as follows: "Though elohim means 'gods' literally, it means God textually, namely when taken in the sense of the nexus, or word connection. It says, Bara-Elohim—'He created Gods.' If a plurality of Persons did the creating of the earth, barcu, which means 'they created,' would have been used. Scripture uses the singular instead of the plural, which in itself is a powerful argument against those who teach that a Trinity created the world." He further said, "There is much more cumulative evidence that is contra-trinitarian. It lies mainly in the word elohim. This tells us that elohim here means—not a plurality of Gods—but a plural God. This latter phrase means that Jehovah is One God who embraces all the epithets of all the gods which the mind of mortal man ever conceived—an all-embracing God. This is the purest monotheism conceivable. The Trinity debases Jehovah by limiting Him to three. The loftier explanation of the word is that of an infinite number." Finally, he said, "God is addressed in the plural times and times again. Such a plural is called 'pluralis majestates,' the plural of majesty, or the plural of excellency, by grammarians and philologists.

That elohim is not a name we have already considered to some extent, and that it cannot be used interchangeably with Jehovah is certain, as will readily be seen by the following analysis.

There is the same difference between elohim and Jehovah as between Deus and Jupiter, or homo and Petrus. The one expresses the genus; the other stands for the individual and is a proper name. "I am Jehovah, that is my name, and my glory will I not give to another" (Isa. 42:8). This distinction is strongly marked in the words of Elijah: "If Jehovah be God [Elohim], follow him; but if Baal, then follow him" (1 Kings 18:21). Here it would be impossible to interchange elohim and Jehovah, or to say, "If Baal be Jehovah." There is an essential difference in signification, and though Jehovah is the true God, and the true God is Jehovah, and therefore either might be used, yet in consequence of the essential difference there are cases where there is a peculiar propriety in using one rather than the other; and there are other cases where one must be used and the other cannot. As Jehovah is the proper name of God, it does not take a genitive or a suffix. It is, therefore, impossible to say in Hebrew, "The Jehovah of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob," or, "My, thy, or our Jehovah." In such cases, Elohim must be used, as "The Elohim, God of Abraham," etc. "My Elohim, my God," "Our Elohim, our God," etc. Again, as Jehovah signifies the self-revealing, that word cannot occur in the mouth of those to whom He has not revealed Himself, nor ordinarily in the mouth of Hebrews speaking as such. Therefore, when Moses and Aaron used it in speaking to Pharaoh, they added, "The God [Elohim] of Israel" to make it intelligible. But still Pharaoh asked, "Who is Jehovah? I know not Jehovah"; and they explained, "The Elohim, God, of the Hebrews hath met with us."

The little we have said here (and much more could be said) is sufficient to show that the exclusive use of Elohim cannot be received as a characteristic mark to distinguish one author from another, inasmuch as, in the cases above enumerated and others, the use of Elohim is compulsory; and neither Moses, nor Samuel, nor Isaiah, could in these cases leave out Elohim, and substitute Jehovah. Thus in Genesis 40:8, the word Elohim occurs once, when Joseph says to the Egyptians, "Do not interpretations belong to God [Elohim]?" Here Jehovah could not be used. Again, in chapter 41 the word Elohim occurs eight times. In six of them it was compulsory. But in the opening of the Di-

News and Prophecy Digest

By C. E. Randall, Fonthill, Ontario

DISCIPLES OF CHRIST. The Disciples of Christ held their world conference at Buffalo, New York, during the month of August. The reports indicate that they are making considerable progress on many fronts. One of the most interesting incidents that happened during the conference was a resolution presented by an Arkansas church which, if passed, would have disfellowshipped churches that no longer "practice immersion." The resolution urged such churches to "find fellowship with those who subscribe to like teachings and practices," and termed them as "departing from the New Testament plan of salvation." The resolution was sidetracked by being referred to a committee.

To the general public, this departure from the traditional teaching and practice of this church by some of its leaders may not appear of much importance—but it is. Immersion as a means of putting on Christ is a historic teaching of this religious body. Deflection from this basic teaching by some of the churches indicates a trend away from important doctrines. "Make it easy." "Don't offend." "Why argue?" "Let's have common fellowship regardless of belief." Such reasoning is knocking the underpinning from under the great doctrines held sacred and fundamental by most all Protestant denominations.

From the very beginning of our church work in this country, people who had been immersed in the belief of the immortality of the soul, the blessed Trinity, and kindred teachings were re-immersed when they espoused the Biblical views of the Church of God. Of recent years, some have been receiving members into church fellowship without re-immersion. If this course continues, it will lead to the same condition now prevailing within the Disciples of Christ and other denominations practicing immersion. There is danger in compromising basic truth!

ANTI-SEMITISM. There have been several outbreaks against the Jews in London following the killing of two English soldiers in Palestine by Jewish terrorists. So serious did the situation become that church leaders of many faiths met and took action to curb the rise of bitterness against the Jews in London. The churchmen urged their fellow countrymen "not to allow their horror and anger to be turned against those who have neither sympathy with the terrorists nor any power to prevent their activities. We are convinced that the vast majority of the British people will not allow themselves to be led astray by irresponsible agitators into any form of reprisals against the Jewish community in this country, who fully share in their countrymen's condemnation of terrorist outrages."

It is hard to see how the terrorists hope to bring about a satisfactory solution to the Jewish problem by their unholy activities. One thing this last war taught the world and that was the potency of an underground movement. It is hard to control such an element when resort is made to every tactic of deception and frustration. This may be one of the ways in which "every man's sword will be against his brother."

WIDENING GULF. Writing to the yearly meeting of the North Carolina Friends, Albert Einstein said: "The gulf between the East and West is widening. An atomic war will give no decision but only unprecedented death and destruction on both sides. If we act on the thought that all men are brothers, we may go forward. If we are to have any hope of influencing the Russians within a fraction of historic time, the decision must be made now."

Another writer has described the situation in these words: "The sands of time are rapidly running out." A degree of panic is gripping men and women in position to know what is taking place and what seems to be the inevitable for the tomorrow among nations. It is a preface to what Jesus said would finally come to pass: "men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming upon the earth."

It is in times such as these that the Christian should exert his steady influence and manifest the stalwartness of his character. As far as the Christian is concerned, it makes no difference when the end comes; the fact of Christ's coming is the anchor that holds him secure. As Professor W. Burnet Easton, Jr., of Lawrence College, writing in "Christianity and Society," says: "In principle, it does not make any difference whether the world ends tomorrow or 500,000,000 years from now. The New Testament has always said that there would be an end and that end would be pretty rough, to put it mildly. . . . Moreover, the success of the Christian church and the validity of its faith does not depend and never has depended on its ability to save societies or prevent physical death. . . . One of the first tasks, then, of the church . . . is to disabuse the church and the world of the idea that the success of the church is contingent on preventing wars or saving man or society from destruction, or that the validity of the Christian faith is in the slightest imperiled even if the whole world be destroyed."

HIS FAVORITE. It is reported that when Dr. Donald Grey Barnhouse, Presbyterian, of Philadelphia, was touring Ethiopia, he was received by Emperor Haile Selassie; and, when Dr. Barnhouse asked his Imperial Majesty what his favorite verse of Scripture was, he hesitatingly replied: "Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

Some years ago, a little booklet was published in Minnesota giving the favorite verse of the members of the Minnesota Church of God Conference. Having a favorite verse that brings comfort and hope and which has been proved true in one's own life provides an anchor in times of testing. My own favorite verse which has served to lend encouragement and has served a most helpful place in my daily life is this gem of truth: "We know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose."

Our mind goes to an oft-repeated verse by an aged saint of God, and we feel sure it is one of his favorites if not his choicest verse. It is: "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths." Is not this a wonderful admonition and promise! What is your favorite verse?

PAGAN NATION. In last week's page, we stated it was our conviction that the crisis in which the Mother Country (England) is now passing was largely due to her "living in pleasure and dwelling carelessly." Having written that story, there came to our desk two periodicals with articles along the same line of reasoning. The first from which we wish to quote is the "Evangelical Christian," published in Toronto. In an editorial under the caption of "World Conditions," the following appeared: "The assistant to the Archbishop of Canterbury, Rt. Rev. Stephen Charles Neill of Trinity College, Cambridge, told the International Missionary Council meeting in Whitby, Ontario, the other day, that Great Britain was largely pagan. The condition was produced, he said, by 'religious illiteracy,' due to a decrease of religious training in the homes and a falling off in church attendance. . . . Two years ago this condition was noted and a volume published by distinguished clergymen of England, entitled, 'The Conversion of England.' It created a sensation overnight and became a best seller, astounding the nation by its frankness and appalling it by the pagan conditions it revealed."

The second paper is the "Christian Herald," in which Ruth Willock writes under title of "Britain's Pews are Empty." Her opening paragraph reads: "In post-war England, only one out of eight people goes to church. Out of London's nine million population, only five per cent attend church regularly. Ninety per cent of England's forty millions owes no allegiance to any Christian church." In trying to discover why the people did not go to church, the writer interviewed many people in various walks of life. One middle-aged business man, in answer to the question, "What's the matter with religion in England?" replied: "The young people have no faith. They do not believe in anything." Then, later, he expressed himself as believing they would recover their faith.

England has been described as the first line of defense for democracy. Is she the first line of defense for modern Christendom?

Keepers of the Covenant

By Lyle Rankin, Cashmere, Washington

ACCORDING to the record in Genesis 17, God made a covenant with Abram, changed his name to "Abraham," and gave him a token of the covenant—even the sign of circumcision. (See also Rom. 4.) The items of the covenant were made known to Abraham before the sign was required for its sealing.

According to Exodus 12, God commanded the house of Israel (the descendants of Abraham through Isaac) to prepare and eat the Passover, and to follow carefully the instructions of God in all things concerning it. Only when it was orderly and properly done, were they to escape the punishment pronounced upon all families in the land of Egypt. They could not be spared unless they were under the blood of the Passover lamb. Being under the blood was being under the token or sign of God for their deliverance. (V. 13.) This was for the family of God. What, though, about the stranger in their midst who would desire to keep (eat of) the Passover? Verse 44 says, "When a stranger shall sojourn with thee, and will keep the passover to the Lord, let all his males be circumcised, and then let him come near and keep it; and he shall be as one that is born in the land: for no uncircumcised person shall eat thereof."

When Jesus (who was sealed in the covenant God made with Abraham and a faithful Keeper of the law God gave to Israel) would keep the Passover, He had the disciples prepare a place for Him to eat it with them (Matt. 26:17-20; Luke 22:14, 15), saying, "With desire I have desired to eat this passover with you before I suffer."

Under the instructions given Israel in Exodus 12:4, one or two families were to eat of the Passover together; and if a stranger desired to eat, he must first be sealed in the covenant God offered the faithful. Jesus, however, called His disciples (those faithful out of several families) together for this special service, at which time He instructed them by example and command to eat and drink concerning the New Covenant that should be sealed under His blood. (Matt. 26; Mark 14; Luke 22.)

In the instructions to the Corinthian brethren (Church of God at Corinth; 1 Cor. 1:2), Paul stated, "The cup of blessing which we bless, is it not the communion of the blood of Christ? The bread which we break, is it not the communion of the body of Christ? For we being many are one bread, and one body: for we are all partakers of that one bread" (1 Cor. 10:16, 17). The expressions "we," "one bread," "one body" all refer to the "Church of God." We (the many in one body) bless and partake. This does not permit the service to include strangers from the covenant. Partaking of the bread and cup is to remind the participants of Jesus' death. Before one comes into present covenant relationship with God through Jesus, he must believe that Jesus died according to the Scriptures. That necessitates belief in the sleep of the dead, for Jesus was the firstfruit of them that slept when He came forth from the tomb. (1 Cor. 15:20).

Some bodies of men in Paul's day evidently held a similar service to the Church of God, but held not the doctrine of God (lies are of the Devil); therefore Paul said, "Ye cannot drink the cup of the Lord, and the cup of devils: ye cannot be partakers of the Lord's table, and the table of devils" (1 Cor. 10:21). For any to present unleavened bread and the fruit of the vine as emblems of Christ's broken body and shed blood, yet maintain the teaching that He did not sleep in death, is to deny the truth of God and the body of Christ. The Church of God must abide separate from such groups.

Any stranger desiring to draw life from Christ (John 6:53) must first believe the gospel (things pertaining to the Kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ), then obey the commands of Jesus to come into covenant relationship with God.

Jesus said repentance was to be preached. Therefore, the believer must repent. (Luke 24:47.) Paul wrote that confession must be made. (Rom. 10:10.) Then one is ready to obey Jesus' command to be baptized. (Mark 16:16.) Except one believes that Jesus died according to the Scriptures (1 Cor. 15:3, 4), which teach that Jesus was asleep in the tomb, he cannot be baptized into Christ. The fol-

PERFECT LOVE

Perfect love the Father giveth,
Full of grace so rich and free,
Like the rain or dew of morning
Falling now on you and me.

Perfect love is born in Jesus,
Naught of self can victory gain,
Till we find it all in Jesus,
All our efforts prove but vain.

Perfect love will never falter,
Perfect love will never fear;
And when days are dark and stormy,
Perfect love will always cheer.

Perfect love will never slander
Friend or foe where'er they go;
But will raise a fallen brother,
And will take his seat below.

Perfect love that long will suffer,
Never murmur or complain,
Never ask her own, or covet
Others' wealth or earthly fame.

Perfect love is meek and lowly,
Perfect love is rich and free,
Perfect love is Jesus only,
Come to dwell in you and me.

lowers of a teacher or leader are those who believe the doctrine of their teacher, not just believe "as they please."

When one believes in the promises of the covenant offered of God through His Son and desires to seal it to himself, the seal is provided in baptism which is the Christian's circumcision. (Col. 2:11, 12.) When this is accomplished, his name is changed. (See 1 Cor. 10:32; 2 Cor. 6:17, 18.) Being then made a partaker of the body of Christ (Church of God), one is prepared to eat of the true Passover. Also, he must seek through obedience and prayer to keep clean from sin, that henceforth he does not partake unworthily of the body and blood of Christ. (1 Cor. 11:28-32.)

ONE GOD: THE GOD OF THE AGES

vine teaching it was necessary to make it clear that God is Creator, that the world was not eternal, nor independent; also that Jehovah was not one among many—not the national God of the Hebrews (as many so-called learned men are doing today)—but that Jehovah the Self-revealer, and Elohim the Almighty Creator, are One. Therefore, in the first chapter, Elohim is used throughout. The Deity is the Creator. But in approaching that part of the narrative where the personal God enters into relations with man, and where "Jehovah" was necessary, Moses united the title with the name, and said, "Jehovah Elohim," the "LORD God." Had he suddenly used "Jehovah" alone, there might have been a doubt as to whether Jehovah was not different from Elohim. The union of the two proves identity, and this being proved, from the fourth chapter onward Moses dropped this union and sometimes employed Jehovah, sometimes Elohim, as occasion, propriety, and the laws of Hebrew language required. The use of these, therefore, can prove nothing against the unity of the narrative.

Note

Independently of all philological criticism, the continuity and unity of the first two chapters of Genesis may be proved by comparing one with the other. They do not contain two distinct accounts of "the creation." The second chapter does not narrate the creation of the heavens or the earth, or light, firmament, sun, moon, or stars, sea or dry land, fish or creeping things. The second chapter, then, is so far from being a cosmogony, that it is not even a geogony. Therefore, the fourth verse of the second chapter—"These are the generations of the heavens and the earth when they were created, in the day that the LORD God made the earth and the heaven" (R.V.)—cannot be the title or summary of what follows, but is an exact recapitulation of what is related in the first chapter. They mention first the creation of "the heavens and the earth"; second, the making of "the earth and heaven" in the very order in which the process is related in that chapter, but of which not one word is said of what follows. Obviously, the second chapter is not an account of creation, but relates to the particulars of the formation of a special man and his early history. The contrasts between the two chapters are so amazing that we fail to understand why more attention has not been given to them. In chapter 1, male and female were created on the same day, and absolutely no restrictions of territory or of action were recorded as placed upon them. In the second chapter, restriction of territory was a prominent feature in the narrative, and male and female were not created on the same day. In the first chapter, the animals were created before man; but in the second, man was created before the animals. We call only brief attention to these facts, leaving it to the reader to study them for himself. Also, we have so placed these remarks that they may be omitted by the Editor if desired. Other important differences also might be called to attention.

The aim of the first chapter of Genesis was to portray God as Creator of the universe, including the earth and mankind; and of making anew the earth as a fit habitation for them. The author then passed from the perfected picture ("God saw everything that he had made, and behold it was very good") to a subject of more immediate interest, namely, God's direct dealings with mankind for the purposes of redemption.

It is no uncommon practice among ourselves, when beginning a new chapter of events, to make brief reference to the former by a "gist" or summary of what already has been written. That, it seems to me, is precisely the purpose of Genesis 2:4. Genesis 1:1 informs us that "God created the heavens and the earth." On the first day bringing in a new surface preparation of the earth for mankind, He neither created nor made light, but said, "Let there be light." On the second day, "God made the firmament . . . and God called the firmament heaven." The heavens of the first verse were created in former duration, before the moving of the Spirit, and before the re-appearance of light, on the face of the waters. The heavens of the seventh and eighth verses were made on the second day after the appearance of light. (Here it may be noted that the Hebrew word for "heaven" is plural and has no singular.) A difference of time proves a difference of subjects, just as there is a difference between the earth of the first verse, which means the whole terraqueous globe, and the earth of the tenth verse, which is only the dry land. This difference between the heavens of the first verse and the firmament is strongly marked in the fourth verse of the second chapter—"These are the generations of the heaven and of the earth, when they were created, in the day when the LORD God made the earth and the heavens." In the first half of the verse, reference is made to the primitive creation, and therefore the order of the first verse is preserved. In the latter half, reference is made to surface re-making of the earth after its state of ruin, and subsequent to the making of the firmament; therefore earth is put first, before heavens; an inversion that must be intentional, as the phrase "heaven and earth" is in Scripture a standing formula, but the inversion "earth and heaven" occurs only once more in the Bible (Psalm 148:13).

Many have wondered at the expression in Genesis 2:3, "God created and made." We have italicized these words to call attention to the contrast, for we believe that the two words used are not merely repetition of the same fact, but a distinction intended; evidencing the accuracy of Moses in his language and choice of words. They also give added support to the now more prevalent belief that Genesis, chapter 1 from verse two onwards, describes a re-making of the earth rather than a re-creation; the word creation having special reference to that which is new, and the creation of creature-life-forms that have not previously existed.

THE SOURCES OF JESUS' POWER

Matthew 14:23 (R.V.)—"He went up into the mountain apart to pray."

Matthew 26:36 (R.V.)—"Sit ye here while I go and pray yonder."

Matthew 27:46 (R.V.)—"My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?"

Mark 1:35 (R.V.)—"He went out to a desert place and there prayed."

Mark 6:46 (R.V.)—"He departed into the mountain to pray."

Mark 14:32 (R.V.)—"Sit ye here while I pray."

Mark 14:35 (R.V.)—"And . . . he fell on the ground and prayed."

Mark 15:34 (R.V.)—"My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me."

Luke 5:16 (R.V.)—"He withdrew himself . . . and prayed."

Luke 6:12 (R.V.)—"He continued all night in prayer to God."

Luke 9:28 (R.V.)—"He . . . went up into the mountain to pray."

Luke 22:32 (R.V.)—"I made supplication for thee . . ."

Luke 22:42 (R.V.)—"If thou be willing, remove this cup from me; nevertheless, not my will, but thine."

Luke 23:34 (R.V.)—"Father, forgive them . . ."

Luke 23:46 (R.V.)—"Father, into thy hand I commend my spirit."

John 12:28 (R.V.)—"Father, glorify thy name."

John 17 (R.V.)—All the chapter is a remarkable prayer in recognition of the fact that His hour had come, and that the main purpose of His mission was to give life to men—even eternal life.

With reference to prayer, an interesting item about Jesus' sources of power appears in Luke 5:16. Feeling His weakness, He sought prayer alone. That His prayer was for strength, and that it was answered, may be gathered from the fact stated in the next verse—"The power of the Lord was with him to heal." The Revised Version of that verse gives an enlightening explanation and reason for the success that attended Jesus' mission of healing at that special time. Instead of reading "on a certain day," a somewhat vague expression akin to "once upon a time," it reads, "On one of those days," namely, on one of those days of special prayer. Thus, Luke linked together prayer and power in a most definite manner—the Source of the power being the one God to whom Christ prayed.

not less noble to render a lesser service. Remember the Shunamite woman. (2 Kings 4.) She was honorably mentioned in the Bible and received the title of "great woman," because she had a little room built into her house so whenever the Prophet Elisha passed that way, he would have a place to stop and rest. Yes, much can be done in a way we might consider small.

When Jesus comes, the faithful of all ages will receive a "crown of righteousness, which the Lord the righteous judge shall give . . . unto all them . . . that love his appearing." "The Lord is a sun and shield: the Lord will give grace and glory: no good thing will he withhold from them that walk uprightly" (Psalm 84:11). "The salvation of the righteous is of the Lord: he is their strength in the time of trouble. And the Lord shall help them, and deliver them: he shall deliver them from the wicked, and save them, because they trust in him." God's way is best! "The ways of the Lord are right, and the just shall walk in them."

"As he thinketh in his heart, so is he" (Proverbs 23:7a).

Samuel Goes to Anoint a New King

The Lord God rejected Saul as the king of Israel, for he had disobeyed God. He had made Samuel mournful. Samuel was told by the Lord to go to Jesse who lived in or near Bethlehem. God had chosen one of his sons as Israel's second earthly king.

Samuel was fearful. He said, "If Saul hear it, he will kill me." But the Lord told him to take along an animal for a sacrifice. Then all would be natural and well with Samuel, for that was one of his regular duties.

When the elders of Bethlehem saw Samuel, this great man of God, come to their town, they trembled.

They asked, "Comest thou peaceably?"

Samuel answered, "Peaceably: I am come to sacrifice unto the Lord: sanctify yourselves, and come with me to the sacrifice" (1 Sam. 16:5).

Samuel especially sanctified Jesse and his sons and called them to come to the sacrifice.

Samuel's Judgment Faulty

When Jesse's sons came before Samuel, he was to select the new king. As Eliab came before him, he said, "Surely the Lord's anointed is before him" (1 Sam. 16:6). God said it was not Eliab.

This happened as seven sons of Jesse passed by. Samuel said to Jesse, "The Lord hath not chosen these. Are here all thy children?"

Jesse answered, "There remaineth yet the youngest, and behold, he keepeth the sheep" (1 Sam. 16:11).

So we find that if God had not spoken to Samuel, he would have anointed Eliab. He looked kingly. He had all the fine, strong qualities people would like to have in a leader. But God said it was not Eliab.

What was the reason Samuel erred in his judgment? It is even so with our judgment.

The Lord said, "Look not on his countenance, or on the height of his stature; because I have refused him: for the Lord seeth not as man seeth; for man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart" (1 Sam. 16:7).

Mankind today seems to place more attention upon appearance than upon the price one has to pay for the appearance he desires. Thus we have children taking little items in stores that they have no money to buy, to show their friends. Some parents are weighed down with cares and worries of this life by trying to keep up the appearances they often cannot afford. They forget they have the promise that all their needs will be given to them.

Paul wrote, "I know both how to be abased, and I know how to abound: every where and in all things I am instructed both to be full and to be hungry, both to abound and to suffer need. . . . But my God shall supply all your need according to his riches in glory by Christ Jesus" (Phil. 4:12, 19).

So let us remember in our desire for appearance that text of gold at the top of this page. Let us also remember that man looks upon the outward appearance. Therefore, let us as Christians "abstain from all appearance of evil" (1 Thess. 5:22).

So Samuel asked Jesse to call David from his work. When he appeared before them, the Lord said, "Arise, anoint him: for this is he." The Spirit of the Lord left Saul, and the Lord's Spirit was with David.

We Are So Happy

We are so happy to introduce Jane Lansbery as another ECE Club member. Her name was sent in by her grandmother, Mrs. W. V. Lansbery.

"But if through all the live-long day
We've eased no heart by yea or nay;
If through it all
We've done no thing that we can trace
That brought the sunshine to a face;
No act, most small,
That helped some soul, and nothing cost,
Then count that day as worse than lost."

What Is Wrong with Ranching?

By H. Gary France

DEPARTMENT

THE BIBLE TEACHES that drunkards, murderers, and thieves cannot enter the Kingdom of God. Therefore, Christians do not commit these offenses. Some people will be lost, however: not for committing the above-listed offenses, but for committing sins not specially condemned in the Bible.

An illustration of this principle is the Parable of the Great Supper. Those who were bidden to attend the supper "all with one consent began to make excuse" (Luke 14:13). The Bible does not forbid making excuses, but these men were lost for doing so. "The first said unto him, I have bought a piece of ground, and I must needs go and see it: I pray thee have me excused" (v. 18). The Bible does not teach that one cannot buy and seed ground. In fact, buying and using ground is a good method of supporting a Christian family. But this man bought ground, and he was condemned! What could possibly be wrong with buying ground?

"Another said, I have bought five yoke of oxen, and I go to prove them" (v. 19). Where does the Bible teach that one cannot buy oxen, horses, or any other animals? Yet this man was condemned for buying these oxen! Why? Marriage not only is sanctioned, but it was intended from the creation of man. Yet one man said, "I have married a wife, and therefore I cannot come" (v. 20), and he was condemned. Marriage certainly is not forbidden (except of believers and unbelievers), yet this man was condemned because he married a wife! Why? The lord of the house said, "None of those men which were bidden shall taste of my supper" (v. 24).

These examples illustrate that many people participating in activities not specifically condemned will be lost in the judgment. The fatal activities had several characteristics; all were so interesting to the people that the invitation to the feast was refused. Herein is the key to the problem: these activities are legitimate only so long as they do not cause one to lose interest in God, only so long as God is of primary importance.

Were any laws broken? No laws condemned the specific activities in which they were engaged. Other laws, however, of more general nature were broken. Jesus commanded, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness" (Matt. 6:33). These men broke this law, and they were condemned. Paul commanded, "Let us consider one another to provoke unto love and to good works: not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together" (Heb. 10:24, 25). They also broke this law.

Jesus warned, "No man can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one and love the other; or else he will hold to the one and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon" (Matt. 6:24). This law was broken when the men asked to be excused for their activities' sake. Some men farm as a means of serving God, but how pointless it would be for a man to farm for the purpose of supporting the Lord's work and to get so busy farming that he did not have the time to sponsor Christian activities!

The majority of those members and friends of the Church of God who may be lost will be lost not for committing specifically condemned crimes such as murder, adultery, and drunkenness, because most of them do not commit these crimes. But they will be lost for failing to obey general principles by which God expects man to use his judgment and to keep God's work of primary importance in his heart.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

MOOREFIELD, NEBRASKA

There will be an all-day service at the Moorefield Church, Sunday, September 28. Basket dinner will be served at noon on the church lawn if the weather is favorable, and if not, the dinner will be inside the church or at the pastor's house.

There was good attendance at Jeffrey Queen on the first Sunday of September, and the dinner was a real feast. Morning and afternoon services will be conducted the first Sunday in October, a basket dinner following at noon.

Services are conducted at Boxelder every third Sunday. Hope to see you at Moorefield next fourth Sunday! Come in time for Sunday school at 10:00 a.m. E. E. Giesler.

DALLAS AND FORT WORTH

Following the close of the Texas Conference, a meeting was held at Moody, Tex., a short distance southeast of Gatesville, at the home of Bro. and Sr. M. F. Roberts, Tuesday night, September 3. Three members of the church live at Moody, N. F. Roberts, a brother of M. F., being the other. Both are sons of Bro. W. C. Roberts, at Gatesville.

A fairly good group of people gathered on the front lawn for the service, among them several who had driven over from Gatesville.

The next night saw me at Dallas, where I spent a week working with the brethren there. Six members of the church live there. Services were held, Friday and Saturday nights, on the lawn of Bro. Ruel Robbins and his wife, who made me welcome in their home while I was there. Some from Grand Prairie and Cleburne attended.

On the way to Fort Worth, I visited at Grand Prairie and Arlington. In Fort Worth there are nine members and one Christadelphian, Bro. Dillon Lemon, who entertained me at his home while I was there. On Sunday, September 14, a preaching service was held at the home of Bro. Curtis Drinkard, with a rather small attendance, although some from Dallas came over.

Plans were made for a get-together meeting of all the brethren in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, to be held Sunday, October 12, at 10:30, at the Pine-Shepherd home at Fort Worth. There are about thirty families of members and interested people in the whole area, and it will be a fine thing to get acquainted. Further regular meetings of the group may be planned for later dates.

On the way back to Ater, I stopped at Weatherford at the home of Sr. Otto Humphrey, at Godley, to visit the Lightsey family, recently baptized, at Cleburne, to see Sr. Nathan Cox, and at Blum, where I stopped overnight at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Ballou, members of another church who believe somewhat with us. These last three are daughters of Sr. Martha Willbite of Palestine.

Here at Ater now, I am making plans to assist Bro. E. L. Macy, the new Texas State Evangelist, in getting started with his new work, and in visiting some of the other churches. M. W. Lyon, Evangelist.

CALENDAR OF SPECIAL MEETINGS

October 4, 5—Michigan Fall Conference at Blanchard.

October 5—Rally Day at Oregon, Ill.

October 17-26—Evangelistic meetings at Eden Valley, Minn. (T. A. Drinkard, guest speaker.)

HOSPITAL VACATIONS DEMAND WEEKS TO RE-STRENGTHEN

To the several hundred person, old and young, whose names are attached to the many "Get Well" cards and letters received while at the hospital, the undersigned expresses heartiest thanks, with highest appreciation for the prayers appended. Mrs. Austin unites in "Thanks."

My nearly four weeks of life in bed were both pleasant and restful—as a vacation should be. At this writing I am at home, learning again to walk straight.

After a few more weeks at home for the strengthening of severed tissues—with God's help and direction—I hope to feel able to respond to any possible short-term ministerial calls in any direction. For—

With world-wide evidences of multiple fulfillings of prophecies divinely ascribed to ending of Gentile rule, one feels like arousing all possible to pledge loyalty to Christ.

But, for my work, I greatly need the Bible that seems to have been thoughtlessly picked up from a pew during last conference time. This well-worn rebound Bible is an out-of-date Oxford edition with marginal references on each side of the page. The name "Amos P. Harsh" is on a front fly leaf, also the name "F. L. Austin." Anyone having it will greatly assist me by mailing it to Oregon, Ill., Thank you. F. L. Austin.

GLEANINGS FROM THE FIELD

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

Annie Rebecca was born, September 8, 1947, to Bro. and Sr. Melvin Richardson, Hammond, La. Congratulations!

Bro. Charles Pearson, campus superintendent at the College, recently accompanied his son Douglas on a brief visit among brethren of the Brush Creek Church (Ohio).

Sr. Verna Thayer addressed the College students at a chapel service, Thursday, September 18. On Tuesday, September 23, Bro. Otto E. Dick, as student counselor, organized the new Student Council. Bro. Paul C. Johnson will be the speaker for chapel services on September 30.

Bro. J. M. Watkins preached for the Oregon congregation, Sunday morning, September 21. The Berens had charge of the evening service. Bro. Gordon Landry being the speaker.

HOPE CHAPEL CHURCH OF GOD South Bend, Indiana

Sunday, September 7, Bro. Floyd Stilson of Hope Chapel conducted installation services welcoming our new pastor, Bro. Harvey Krogh, Jr. A basket dinner, following the services, was held in the basement.

We are sure that Hope Chapel will benefit greatly by the presence of a full-time minister and pray that the Lord will continue to guide and bless Bro. Krogh in his new pastorate. Patricia Rossner, Secy.

FONTHILL, ONTARIO

Some of us took vacations this summer, others who remained at home kindly supplied for the absent ones. Thus, the Sunday school and church services were faithfully maintained.

During Bro. C. E. Randall's absence from the pulpit, Bro. J. Fletcher, Jr., of Fonthill, Bro. T. McArthur of Welland, and Bro. McCombs of Fonthill gave us some very interesting talks. Recently, while here on vacation, Bro. and Sr. Harry Payne conducted one of the Sunday morning services. Sr. Payne read Isaiah 55, and Bro. Payne's talk, built about the sixth verse, was appreciated by all. We are always so glad to see the progress made by the students of Oregon Bible College as they speak to us from time to time.

According to reports received here, our young people who attended the Berean Youth Rally enjoyed the studies and appreciated the Oregon (Ill.) hospitality.

Toward the middle of August, a picnic was held, jointly, by the "True Blue" and "Wide Awake" classes at Ashland Park.

Recently, a farewell gathering was held for Bro. and Sr. Donald McCombs and family, who are moving to Tempe, Ariz. We are sorry to lose this faithful family from our midst, but we are glad that they will just be changing church homes, and we know they will be a help and an asset to the Church of God at Tempe.

Summer weather still continues here, but we know fall is near at hand. The morning and evening services are conducted each Sunday, and other branches of the regular work have commenced.

The senior and junior choirs have resumed their weekly rehearsals, under the able leadership of Mr. A. C. HamMahon. We hope both groups will faithfully and thankfully avail themselves of this training, as well as to feel it a privilege to serve our loving and merciful Father in song and praise.

Tuesday evening Bible studies are to be on Old Testament prophecies, with New Testament interpretations. Judging by last week's lesson on "The Firstfruits," we are going to have interesting and helpful times together. We feel that one night a week is not too much to ask of the members to give to quiet meditation of God's Word. As our pastor so often tells us, we are not supposed to live "by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God." Let us not try to pull along without our regular supply of spiritual food; for, if we do, God's Spirit will not develop and grow within us. We will find ourselves often sick and depressed; and as well, we will miss that feeling of perfect peace that we possess when we live in personal nearness to Jesus, our Redeemer. Evil and troublous days are ahead. We must arm ourselves to be able to stand. Let us constantly remember that those who faithfully endure unto the end, are the ones who are to be saved.

We are especially thankful to our heavenly Father for the progress Bro. F. L. Austin has made since his operation. His many years of being a faithful shepherd to the Fonthill flock have made his welfare close to our hearts, and we do beseech our loving Father to undertake for Bro. Austin according to His will.

Irene Holland, Reporter.

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA

With one exception, the period from July 8 - September 4, 1947, was the longest vacation ever indulged by the Railsbacks. Many seemed to think we would need to take a long rest after a seven thousand, one hundred seventy-six mile trip through so many (18) different states, but such was not the case. We began immediately to take up the regular routine where we had left off two months before.

Our visit to the churches of Minnesota was most enjoyable. We are particularly indebted to Bro. and Sr. A. M. Jones of Saint Cloud, Bro. and Sr. Walter Wiggins and Bro. and Sr. Arthur Otto of Eden Valley, and Bro. and Sr. E. W. Johnson of Hector for a nice time in their sections of the State. Bro. and Sr. Otto kindly took us to the campground on Lake Koronis, which had been suggested by Bro. Wiggins as a possible meeting place for our General Conference sometime in the future. It is truly an ideal place for such a gathering.

At Rapid City, S. Dak., much was crowded into one day of sightseeing. Sr. Eva Stearns and her family showed us a wonderful time. Seeing Mount Rushmore Memorial close up was indeed a treat.

At Felida, Wash., we were permitted, or rather requested, to speak for the little group of faithful ones, whom we had served eleven years ago. Not many changes have taken place since we were there before. Bro. and Sr. Wallace Woolf's hospitable home was the place for holding the evening classes and was our home while there.

We spent a week with our daughter Thelma Moore and family at Moonstone Beach, where they are building a new home.

The W. B. Ward family of Red Bluff, the George Renner family of Wheatland, W. B. Caldwell of Modesto, and the Thompsons of Tulare were also visited. We had hoped to see many others in the State, but time did not permit.

On our trip east, we spoke for a small group in the home of Bro. and Sr. John F. Green of Kansas City, where we were all so kindly entertained. In South Bend, both going and coming, we were happy to speak for the Morning Star Church group. We found them still faithful and zealous, though beset by trials not of their own making. In the Golden Rule Church in Cleveland, we found the largest "vacation time" gathering of members of any place we visited. We were grateful for the opportunity of presenting them a few thoughts and giving an exhortation to faithfulness in these perilous last days.

Since our return, we have been glad to find Sr. Mary Howard, who was ill in her home at Temple City when we left, is much improved and located in a convalescent home—1218 S. Norton St., in our part of the city. This will give us the opportunity of seeing her more frequently. Sr. Minnie Elton of Rupert, Idaho, is spending some time with her daughter, Mrs. Larkue, of Pasadena. She has been ill, but is slowly recovering.

Bro. and Sr. Forrest Long of Buena Park have a second son, Bruce Edward, born on August 7. He is a fine boy.

From Gaston, Ore., an announcement comes that Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Carlson also have a son, born on September 6. He will be known as John Clifford. Mrs. Carlson was Elaine Juden, a member of our local church group. Also, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Parks, children of our late Sr. Claudia Parks, have a daughter born on August 7. She has been named for her two grandmothers, Claudetta.

We are indeed grateful to our heavenly Father for His protecting care while traveling on the highways which are beset with great dangers at all times. Many truck and trailer loads of large logs, and others of lumber, were encountered very frequently in all the mountainous regions. We are also grateful for having had a thoroughly reliable caretaker in our home during our absence, so that we need not be burdened with regrets, but can feel satisfied that all is well.

Emma C. Railsback.

IOWA CONFERENCE REPORT

The sixtieth annual conference of the Church of God in Iowa opened at Waterloo on Saturday evening, August 16, with a social service in charge of the president, Bro. H. S. Hunt. On the following day, Bro. Hunt gave the morning sermon; Bro. Paul Williams spoke in the afternoon; and Bro. C. W. Howe in the evening.

By Monday our two guest speakers, Bro. Sydney E. Magaw of Oregon, Ill., and Bro. Linford Moore of Macomb, Ill., were on hand to assist in Bible classes and sermons. These two visitors with our state evangelist, Bro. Paul Williams, made a very capable trio, who brought us thought-provoking lessons and inspiring sermons. Sr. Louise Johnson, daughter of Bro. and Sr. Paul Johnson of Oregon, Ill., taught the primary class for the entire eight days and made many friends. We enjoyed having her with us, but were disappointed that her parents were not able to be here for part of the time.

Thursday, August 21, was Boreau Day and was busy as usual. At the business meeting in the forenoon, the following officers were elected: president, Mrs. Melissa Lage, Pfeiffer Park, Cedar Falls; first vice president, Dorene Allard, 602 Third St., S.W., Waverly; second vice president, Donald Sealine, Stratford; secretary, Beverly Phillips, 257 Baltimore St., Waterloo; treasurer, Richard Torrey, 2225 Walnut, Cedar Falls. Funds were voted toward a new stove, toward the dormitory, and toward Bro. J. W. Williams' printing fund. The young people and the children gave a splendid program in the afternoon. In connection with the program, the cradle roll children who had reached their sixth birthday since last conference were promoted. The children' offering amounted to over $46.00. The picnic supper was attended by everyone. The Boreau sermon was delivered by Bro. Paul Williams and was especially fitting to conclude a day dedicated to the young people.

While this year's registration indicated smaller attendance than we have had for several years, there were actually more people voting at the conference business sessions than there were last year. Because Sr. E. A. Ellis and Bro. C. W. Howe refused to serve another year in their respective offices as corresponding secretary and treasurer, there were two changes in the membership of the conference board. The following officers were selected to serve during the coming year: president, Mr. H. S. Hunt, Clarksville; vice president, Mr. Oscar Jenkins, Stanhope; recording secretary, Mrs. Blanche Harland, 1118 Rainbow Dr., Cedar Falls; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Lora Reinhard, Gladbrook; and treasurer, Earl Reinhard, Gladbrook. Bro. Paul Williams was elected state Sunday school superintendent.

Probably the most important decision of the conference was to push the building of the dormitory as much as possible, to complete plans this fall, and to begin construction early in the spring. While we feel that the decrease in attendance was largely due to illness, to the extreme heat, and to other unavoidable circumstances, we think having the dormitory open for occupancy will be a help in boosting attendance next year. Many of our members who could not attend sent greetings. We were especially sorry that no one was present from Pleasant Prairie and Albert City-Marathon congregations.

The following local secretaries were appointed for the coming year: Mrs. Christina Klindt, Sioux Rapids; Mrs. G. Earl Stauffer, Gladbrook; Mrs. Flossie Torry, Nevada; Mrs. Evelyn Schmidt, Marengo; Mrs. John Jacobson, Lake View; Mrs. Nettie Lundquist, Stanhope; Mrs. Florence Allard, 1118 Rainbow Dr., Cedar Falls.

Bro. Paul Williams was hired as state evangelist for the coming year. The Koszta congregation is eager to secure a full-time pastor as soon as possible. Until more workers can be found, Bro. Paul's schedule will be as follows: first Sunday, Gladbrook; second Sunday, Koszta; third Sunday, Stanhope; fourth Sunday, Pleasant Prairie. May God's blessing be with the work in Iowa!

“I Am the Good Shepherd”

VERILY, VERILY, I say unto you, I am the door of the sheep. All that ever came before me are thieves and robbers: but the sheep did not hear them. I am the door: by me if any man enter in, he shall be saved, and shall go in and out, and find pasture. The thief cometh not, but for to steal, and to kill, and to destroy: I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly. I am the good shepherd: the good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep. . . . I am the good shepherd, and know my sheep, and am known of mine. As the Father knoweth me, even so know I the Father: and I lay down my life for the sheep.

“And other sheep I have, which are not of this fold: them also must I bring, and they shall hear my voice; and there shall be one fold, and one shepherd. Therefore doth my Father love me, because I lay down my life. . . .

“My sheep hear my voice, and I know them, and they follow me: and I give unto them eternal life; and they shall never perish, neither shall any man pluck them out of my hand. My Father, which gave them me, is greater than all; and no man is able to pluck them out of my Father’s hand.”

(John 10:7-29.)

Entered as second class matter at the Post Office at Oregon, Illinois, under act of March, 1879. Mailed weekly, except the fourth Tuesday of August and the last Tuesday of December.

“Being Dead Yet Speaketh”

Shortly before her death, Sister Elizabeth Reighard, Delta, Ohio, wrote us a brief letter that now serves well as public testimony to her many friends. Like Abel and his offering, she “being dead yet speaketh.” We quote:

“It was warm last Sunday evening, so I was sitting on the porch. These thoughts came to me, as I watched the machines, one after another, going by the church. When they came to the church, I saw them turn and go another way. Next Monday (September 1), I will be ninety-nine years old, and I thought of nearly a hundred years ago—when no one would ask on a Sunday evening, ‘Where are you going?’ for all would be going to church. Now, a minister can hardly get enough people together for a preaching service. Therefore, it came into my mind that in these last days there is to be a great falling away, and that the time prophesied has come. . . . I was going to write more, but my breath hardly lets me hold out; my heart is my trouble. . . . I had the best of parents—especially my father. He told us the Bible was God talking to us. I made up my mind when I was very young—not more than six years of age—that when I became old enough to read, I would know what God said—and not man. Well, several times, I have begun reading at Genesis and ended with Revelation. I find that there are things preached that are not found in the Bible. . . . My heart says, ‘Stop,’ so good bye, Brother Magaw and all The Restitution friends.”

“Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord.” Though “Grandma” Reighard is dead, she “yet speaketh,” and her voice will give inspiration, counsel, and strength until the Day dawns and the returning Saviour gives life anew in resurrection glory. “When Christ, who is our life, shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory” (Col. 3:4), and, “glorified together” (Rom. 8:17), we “shall reign on the earth” (Rev. 5:10). . . . (Bro. Grover Gordon preached Sister Reighard’s funeral sermon. See page 11.)

Elizabeth Reighard Memorial

In honor and in loving memory of Sister Elizabeth Reighard, loyal member of the Church of God, the Delta (Ohio) Bereans have pledged to contribute fifty dollars per month to National Bible Institution, these gifts to be known as The Elizabeth Reighard Memorial. We quote, in part, a communication from Sister Amy Dunbar Frye:

“We, the Delta Bereans, pledge fifty dollars per month for an indefinite period of time to National Bible Institution as a living memorial to the late Sister Elizabeth Reighard. We know no greater tribute to pay her, and we feel certain she would be extremely happy if she knew our decision.

We desire these contributions to be known as ‘The Elizabeth Reighard Memorial.’

“All who knew ‘Grandmother,’ as she was known to many of us, can testify she was an earnest contender for the Faith. She had been with us so many years, that her death has left an emptiness in our lives. We cannot wish her back, however, for she had lived far beyond the normal span of life. We must continue the fight for truth and righteousness as she would want us to do, and strive so to live that we may meet her on the resurrection morning.”

Ready for Volume 37

This volume of THE RESTITUTION HERALD completes Volume No. 36—thirty-six years of continuous, weekly, publication. An index for this year’s HERALD appears on pages 13-16. Next week, we shall begin Volume 37. Pray for a successful new year for THE HERALD.

Brother S. J. Lindsay was first editor of THE RESTITUTION HERALD, the first issue of Volume 1 being dated October 12, 1911. Brother F. L. Austin was the second editor, beginning on September 12, 1922, with No. 49 of Volume 11. Brother G. E. Marsh, third editor, served from October, 12, 1931 (Volume 21; No. 2), to October-4, 1938 (Volume 28; No. 1), when your present editor began work.

Harvest Time

(In Two Articles—Article One)

By E. E. Giesler, Moorefield, Nebraska

ALL farmers understand that the harvest of their crops comes at the end of the growing season. The threshing time soon follows. In Jesus' parables here quoted in part, we have a word picture of a harvest of men at "the end of the world" (v. 39). Verse 40 likewise speaks of the "end of this world," meaning this age—probably the gospel age.

It seems there is to be a harvest and threshing of the Jews, of the church, and of the nations, at the end of the gospel age. This is not to be the "white throne judgment," for it will come at the end of the gospel age—long before the white throne judgment. This harvest will be a purging out from Israel of sinners from the elect class, a purging of the church, the foolish from the wise virgins, and purging the goat nations from the sheep nations.

Israel is being purged now as never before in her history. Not all Jews will return to Palestine before the coming of Christ. "Though the number of the children of Israel be as the sand of the sea, a remnant shall be saved" (Rom. 9:27). This prophecy appears also in Isaiah 10:22, where it is written, "A remnant [number] of them shall remain." "It shall come to pass, that in all the land, saith the Lord, two parts therein shall be cut off and die; but the third shall be left therein. And I will bring the third part through the fire, and will refine them as silver is refined, and will try them as gold is tried: they shall call on my name, and I will hear them: I will say, It is my people: and they shall say, The Lord is my God" (Zech. 13:8, 9). "All the sinners of my people shall die by the sword, which say, The evil shall not overtake nor prevent us" (Amos 9:10).

My friends, it seems that the foregoing scripture is being fulfilled before our eyes. Why are the Jews being hindered in their return to Palestine? Why are the British blocking every effort of the Jews to find a home in their beloved land? Because, my friends, this is the time for Israel to be first gathered, and sifted until the sinners have all been purged out; then the remnant will return to the land. At that time, Isaiah 66:5-10 and Revelation 12:1-6 will become present truth. It will be the national birth of Israel. Apparently, the United Nations will soon give birth to Israel—set the Israelites apart as an independent nation. The land will be divided between the Jews and Arabs. The parting of Palestine between these two peoples will fulfill the last part of Joel 3:2.

"Let both [the tares and the wheat] grow together until the harvest: and in the time of harvest I will say to the reapers, Gather ye together first the tares, and bind them in bundles to burn them: but gather the wheat into my barn" (Matt. 13:30). "The field is the world; the good seed are the children of the kingdom; but the tares are the children of the wicked one" (v. 38).

The Red Beast of Revelation 12 (Communism) apparently is standing now before the woman (Israel, v. 4), ready to devour her child (national independence) as soon as it is born.

The Jews are literally fulfilling Amos 9:10. They say, "The evil shall not overtake nor prevent us." They want a home in their own land, and they are determined to return to Palestine. They say they will not be prevented in their return, but, my friends, the sinners will perish by the sword. They are now falling in the valley; they are being sifted by all the nations. Some are falling to the ground, but the good grains of corn among them will not fall to the ground. (Amos 9:9.) The remnant will return and possess the land promised to Abraham and his seed. (Jer. 30:3, Read all of Jer. 30.) It seems we are witnessing "Jacob's time of trouble" (v. 7). "Ask ye now, and see whether a man doth travail with child? wherefore do I see every man with his hands on his loins, as a woman in travail, and all faces are turned into blackness" (v. 6). This must be the time for Israel to give birth to a nation in a day.

In Jeremiah 30:11, God says, "I am with thee . . . to save thee [Israel]: though I make a full end of all nations whither I have scattered thee, yet will I not make a full end of thee: but I will correct thee in measure, and will not leave thee altogether unpunished." "All thy lovers [the nations among whom Israel has been scattered] have forgotten thee; they seek thee not" (v. 14). Now consider the judgment of God on the nations that will dare persecute Israel: "Therefore all they that devour thee shall be devoured" (v. 16).<sup>7</sup>

Friends, we hear the cry of Israel from day to day. Her cry is becoming louder, and her sorrow and trouble are growing greater by the hour. What are we, my Christian friends, doing about it? Are we, like many other church groups, saying we cannot help Israel now, for this is her judgment of God. Christ said, (Please turn to page 16)

One God: the God of the Ages

Article 4—The Only True God

(Also a brief consideration of "Us" and "Echad")

By R. H. Judd, Colborne, Ontario

IF ONE TRUTH is made more abundantly clear in the Scriptures than any other, it is the claim of the great Creator to the exclusive use of the title "God" in its primary and only real sense. The language used to express this fact admits of no compromise, and its rightful understanding cannot mean any other than what is intended to be conveyed by the words chosen. Note the following:

In Isaiah 45:19 Jehovah says, "I the Lord speak righteousness, I declare things that are right." In the immediate context of this unequivocal pronouncement the same Divine Speaker says, "There is no God else beside me; a just God and a Saviour; there is none beside me . . . for I am God, and there is none else." If such claims as these, backed as they are by special claims to justice and righteousness, are thus rendered the more serious of belief, what then must be the awful consequences of denial, expressed or implied? That is a question which we must leave the individual student to answer, each for himself. Additional examples could be quoted by the score. Space, however, restricts us to a few.

Deuteronomy 4:35—"That thou mightest know that the Lord he is God; there is none else beside him."

Deuteronomy 6:4—"Hear, O Israel: The Lord our God is the one Eternal Being" (Leeser's Translation. See also the R.V. and the several marginal renderings).

Deuteronomy 32:39—"I, even I, am he, and there is no god with me."

Isaiah 46:9—"I am God, and there is none else; I am God, and there is none like me."

Malachi 2:10—"Hath not one God created us?"

Exodus 22:20—"He that sacrificeth unto any god, save unto the Lord only, he shall be utterly destroyed." (This probably is the most solemn text in the Old Testament bearing on this topic. In view of that, particular attention is drawn to it. The translation is practically identical in the A.V.; R.V.; A.R.V.; and S.&G.)

New Testament examples are equally emphatic. Mark 12:32 says, "There is none other but he." John, in his Gospel, spoke of "the only God" (John 5:44, R.V.); "the only true God" (17:3). Paul said, "We know . . . there is none other God but one" (1 Cor. 8:4). In 1 Timothy 2:5 he said, "There is one God, and one mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus." Here is a scripture which cannot be explained from the trinitarian viewpoint, for if God were a trinity, and Jesus the Christ part of that trinity, Jesus Christ would become a mediator in relation to Himself. The absurdities that range from an analysis of that, and many other scriptures, are too numerous to mention.

So persistent is the heart of man to do evil, that many shameful devices are resorted to for the purpose of making void portions of the Word of God that do not fit in with men's irrational theories. Reason, logic, and even correct grammar are sacrificed by those holding high and responsible positions as leaders of religion. The very boldness of their false assertions captivate the reader. The statement that "God Himself uses plural pronouns when speaking of Himself" is copied word for word, and letter for letter from a widely published volume from the Dean of one of America's most famous Bible institutions for training of students for the ministry and the foreign mission fields. The absurdities involved in such a conception are not merely grammatical and equivalent to accusing the Most High with use of language He would not willingly charge to one of His own "cloth," but they are absurdities which contravene the very laws of God's creation.

Genesis 1:26 is given as Bible proof of this astounding assertion—"Let us make man in our image . . ." If God is a Trinity, He never can cease to be so, and every statement prefaced, as the one just quoted, by the words, "God said," must be the simultaneous action of "three Persons" saying the same thing at the same moment of time, and which, according to the statement of the Dean, involves the absurdity of God speaking to "Himself," for that is the pronoun the Dean himself has incorporated into his most remarkable proposition. The dictionary defines the word "us" as "denoting the person speaking, and others to whom he speaks." They are thus with, or against, him (in sentiment), but cannot be himself in fact. To whom then did God speak? That angels were created before men is plainly taught in Job 38:7, and that they did, and do now, "hearken unto the voice of his word . . . and do his pleasure" is made very clear in Psalm 103.

Once misrepresentation of God's Word begins, it is likely to become the starting point of deliberate falsification of His truth. The same writer referred to above, quoting from Deuteronomy 4:35 and 6:4, says, "The Hebrew word translated 'one' in these various passages given denotes compound unity, not a simple unity" (italics his). Of the several passages given, only two are in the Old Testament, and but one of these contains the Hebrew word echad, namely, Deuteronomy 6:4. Considerable imagination, more than the ordinary person has, would be required to bring it into line with the thought that it does not mean simple unity. This Hebrew word echad occurs approximately five hundred times in the Old Testament, and no single instance can be produced where the word in any sense loses its numerical value; nor can it be denied that it is the basis from which all other numerals have their value. We submit a few examples which incontestably refute the Dean's statement that echad does "not" stand for "simple unity." Very many such could be quoted.

Genesis 2:21—"One of his ribs."

Exodus 10:19—"There remained not one locust."

Esther 3:13—"One day."

Ruth 1:4—"The name of one was Orpah."

Elijah Jacob Baron, himself a converted Hebrew, takes the same stand with regard to this Hebrew word echad, saying, "Echad means 'one' in the sense of compound unity" and proceeds to say that it is proved beyond doubt by use of the same word in the following verses of Scripture:

Genesis 2:24—"Therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother, and shall cleave unto his wife: and they shall be one flesh."

Genesis 11:1—"The whole earth was of one language, and of one speech" (A.V. and R.V.). Mr. Baron translates the text to mean, "The whole earth was of one language and of one kind of words."

His comment on the first example is: "What does one mean here?" Answering his own question, he says, "It can only mean the unity of two entities." The only comment he makes with reference to the second example given above is that, "Here the word used is echas, which is the feminine form of echad." With reference to Genesis 2:24, our friend has omitted to consult the next verse, which says, "They were both naked. He also omits recognition of the preceding context where Adam said that Eve was bone of his bones and flesh of his flesh. Here it is not the question of person, but of flesh; Adam knew as well as Paul knew that "all flesh is not the same flesh: but there is one of men, and another flesh of beasts, and another flesh of birds, and another of fishes." That it is one kind of flesh in contradistinction from other kinds of flesh is recognized by most translators. (See 1 Cor. 15:39, AV.; R.S.V.N.T.; S.&G.). Thus it is clear that the numeral is in no way altered. Mr. Baron has unwittingly brought out this very fact in his translation of Genesis 11:1. It is "one language" as against more than one language, "one kind of words" as against many kinds."

It is true that we have such words as "nation," "group," "assembly," but when we speak of "one nation" as against two or more nations, there is absolutely no alteration to the numerical value of the numeral. Here we may call attention to the fact that echad is translated "alone" in Joshua 22:20 and has reference to but one man (Achan the son of Zerah) in contrast to many. Again, echad is translated "alone" in Isaiah 51:2 in reference to Abraham, the Revised Version rendering of which is—"When he was but one." Such emphatic language cannot be misunderstood and the immediate context fully confirms our understanding of the usages of this Hebrew word. Further, echad is translated "only" in 1 Kings 4:19—"Geber, the son of Uri . . . was the only officer which was in the land." How, in the face of these and many examples which could be added, the author referred to can say "Echad means 'one' in the sense of compound unity," we leave to the reader to explain.

The next example he gives, and his comment thereon, will astonish most of those who read these pages. Ezra 2:64, coupled with 3:1, are brought forward with the purpose of showing that echad means the unity of 42,360 persons. The following is his quotation—"And the whole assembly was as one." In making the quotation, the writer deliberately omits the word "man" without even the customary marks to show that it is his own omission, closing his quotation with the word one, which he not only puts in capitals, but in italics also. Further, he withholds the information that the Hebrew word for "man" in this instance is ish, which according to Young's Concordance is defined as "an individual"; and it is to that word that the numeral is attached. Ezekiel 13:22; Jeremiah 14:14 and 28:15 are none too strong in their indictment of repeated misrepresentation within the compass of one illustration. In closing his argument on this word echad, he says, "If it were intended that God should be represented as an absolute oneness, the word yachid would have been used." Then he immediately adds, "This proposition is incontestable and can only be evaded by one who has a motive to avoid the truth."

Turning up Young's Concordance, we find that "one" is never translated by the Hebrew word yachid. Searching the same authority with respect to this word, we have been able to find but five occurrences, and in each one it is rendered "only." We have already shown that echad is also translated "only."

To clinch our assertions that echad stands for simple

Isaiah's Vision of the King

By W. Howard Beemer, Oregon Bible College

WHEN ISAIAH began his work as a prophet, the people were looking forward to the coming of a glorious king. During the first part of his ministry, however, Isaiah had nothing for Israel's immediate future but forecasts of doom. Isaiah was much discouraged by the sin and wicked ways of this people, Israel. Finally, when it was apparent to Isaiah that nothing could avail except something fresh and sent straight from God, the Prophet cried, "Unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given." No mention was made here of the origin of the Saviour, as His glory flooded His origin from sight. It is impossible to discern from this text whether or not He would spring from the house of David. It was written, however, "The government shall be upon his shoulder," and He is to reign on David's throne with righteousness forever. He will be earth's Prince of Peace.

Isaiah may not have made direct mention of the Saviour at the beginning of his ministry, but when he did mention it, he left no doubt in anyone's mind of whom he meant. In 32:1, 2, there are two very beautiful verses. It is possible that these verses might refer to King Hezekiah as a type of Christ. All that is mentioned here, however, could be done only by the Father or His Son. Verse 2 is the most beautiful one, and the things promised therein surely will be fulfilled only in the Christ. We quote: "A man shall be as an hiding place from the wind, and a covert from the tempest; as rivers of water in a dry place, as the shadow of a great rock in a weary land." What man other than Christ could do all these things—Christ, the Son of the living God. Nothing is more welcome than a bit of shade to the traveler on a very hot day, nor water to him who thirsts, nor shelter to one in a storm.

Isaiah 40:10, speaking of God's "arm" ruling, is another reference to Christ and His reward and authority when He comes in all His glory. It would appear that Isaiah was prophesying not only of the first coming of Christ, but also of the second coming. God's power is not limited, and this is another example of that truth—as Isaiah could see farther into the future than we can.

Isaiah 50:6 mentions one of the greatest of insults that can be endured in the East. The close resemblance of this passage to Matthew 26:67; 27:26, 30, and John 18:22 is not a mere coincidence. This is prophetic of the sufferings of Jesus: of His being spit upon and his beard pulled from His cheeks, and partial report on the fulfillment of it is to be found in three places in the New Testament. This particular passage alone, in the whole Old Testament, should in itself be sufficient proof of Divine inspiration of the Bible—without mention of all the other wonderful passages of prophetic nature. More, it shows Earth's coming King as One who was qualified by severe testings to reign.

Isaiah 53 is concerned with prophecy of the Saviour. Verse 1 foretold the Jews' rejecting the Messiah. Verse 2, and the second thought in that verse ("as a root out of a dry ground") could have referred to the fact that Jesus was a carpenter's apprentice. In His youth, Jesus and His surroundings did not seem unusual. It could also mean that there was nothing to account for the Saviour's birth: in other words, He appeared to come from nowhere. Yet this "root out of dry ground" is to "divide the spoil with the strong" (v. 12)—be earth's Conqueror.

Verse 3 deals with the sorrows that Jesus endured while on earth. It also mentions how the people turned away from Him. Verses 4 and 5 continue this same thought, telling about the suffering He did for mankind—even unto death. Verses 6 and 7 tell of the turning away of the sheep, and how the iniquity of us all was laid upon Him. Christ was oppressed and afflicted, yet He opened not His mouth. Verse 9 mentions that His grave would be made with the wicked and the rich. He was crucified with two thieves and a rich man gave to Him his tomb for burial. Is not this sufficient proof for even the most severe skeptic? Proof that Isaiah foresaw the Saviour, and this One is yet to receive "a portion with the great" (v. 12) as earth's King!

All these things were prophesied by Isaiah between seven and eight hundred years before the birth of Christ.

THE MESSAGE OF THE STARS

"The summer sky is clear tonight,
A million stars shine through—
A million worlds to cast their light
Upon the endless blue.
A million messages are sent,
As steadily as they shine,
That God above this world is bent,
To guide your life and mine.

"They've been up there since time began,
They'll shine eternally,
To testify that God's great plan
Shall sometime surely be Fulfilled in every small detail,
As God's Word has foretold;
Nor jot nor tittle e'er shall fail
As earth's events unfold.

"Let tempests blow, let earthquakes come,
The sea o'erflow its bars,
Let war clouds gather, airplanes hum;
They cannot touch the stars!
God keeps them there to let us know
In all life's changing days
That He is leading. He says, 'Lo, I'll be with you always.'"

—Florence Eldridge.

No mere man could tell these things from his own knowledge. God told Isaiah what to say and when to say it. This does not detract any from the service of Isaiah to God: in fact, it really adds to it.

We today still are reading these same scriptures, two thousand years after the birth of Jesus Christ. Should the Lord tarry, humanity will still be reading these passages of Scripture two thousand years from now. Nothing short of divine inspiration could produce anything so beautiful, lasting, and useful to people all down through the ages. Many signs, however, indicate Christ will return soon.

Isaiah made several references to the Kingdom Age. Two of these are 2:1-4 and 29:18, 19. These passages are crowded with promises of a glorious tomorrow. Let us be followers of Christ, and servants of His, that we may be in that wonderful Tomorrow: when "nation shall not lift up sword against nation," and when "the poor among men shall rejoice in the Holy One of Israel."

Systematic Giving

---

By Ruth Tomlinson, Chagrin Falls, Ohio

---

ABRAMHAM set the example. "He gave . . . tithes of all" (Gen. 14:20). "Jacob vowed a vow, saying . . . of all that thou shalt give me I will surely give the tenth unto thee" (Gen. 28:20, 22). Moses, giving God's commandment, said, "Thou shalt truly tithe all the increase of the seed, that the field bringeth forth year by year" (Deut. 14:22).

The Levites, who did the service of the tabernacle, were maintained by the tithe the children of Israel gave. The Levites, in turn, offered an offering unto the Lord, "even a tenth part of the tithe" (Num. 18:26). An interesting account of offering practices is given in Nehemiah 10:32-39.

It was good for an individual to tithe. It was good for the group to tithe. The result of tithing was gratifying. "As soon as the commandment came abroad, the children of Israel brought in abundance the firstfruits of corn, wine, and oil, and honey, and of all the increase of the field; and the tithe of all things brought they in abundantly. . . . And when Hezekiah and the princes came and saw the heaps, they blessed the Lord, and his people Israel. . . . And Azariah the chief priest of the house of Zadok answered him, and said, Since the people began to bring the offerings into the house of the Lord, we have had enough to eat, and have left plenty: for the Lord hath blessed his people; and that which is left is this great store" (2 Chron. 31:5, 8, 10).

Why do we find biographies, and the history of the children of Israel given in such detail? Was it not for our example and learning? Would it not be profitable, in like manner, if we, now, practiced a systematic method of giving, as did the Israelites? I do not mean profitable in a financial way alone, but in honor to God and in accomplishment of His purpose. "Thus did Hezekiah . . . in every work that he began in the service of the house of God, and in the law, and in the commandments, to seek his God, he did it with all his heart, and prospered" (2 Chron. 31:20, 21).

To follow the practice thus described, in our state (Ohio) many individuals tithe. They speak for themselves. Some of the churches tithe their income to the State Conference. The State Conference, in turn, tithes its income to National Bible Institution. Is there enough to carry on the work by following this practice? I can answer only for the financial condition of my own church and of the conference. The answer is, Yes, there is sufficient for all needs to date. Gifts often exceed the tithe. Both organizations have made additional gifts in excess to the tithe to National Bible Institution.

It is impossible to say what the income of a church, or a state conference, or the National Bible Institution would be, if this plan were followed by all, but surely it would greatly facilitate the work of each organization. All would be blessed. Regular, systematic, and dependable income can be used to greater advantage. Would it not be wonderful to experience, even temporarily, the condition of the children of Israel? "The people bring much more than enough for the service of the work" (Ex. 36:5).

The Israelites were commanded to tithe. We are only admonished, "Let every one of you lay by him in store, as God hath prospered him" (1 Cor. 16:2). Has God prospered us to the extent of one, two, three, or even five per cent of our income? "Count your blessings!" Surely it is to the extent of ten per cent of our income.

No one would like to be criticized, however, as were some in Jesus' day: "Woe unto you Pharisees! for ye tithe mint and rue and all manner of herbs, and pass over judgment and the love of God: these ought ye to have done, and not to leave the other undone" (Luke 11:42). Always remember, "God is able to make all grace abound toward you; that ye, always having all sufficiency in all things, may abound to every good work" (2 Cor. 9:8). Shall we bring our tithe and offering?

"Bring ye an offering, and come before him: worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness" (1 Chron. 16:29).

WOULD PARTITION. The United Nations Special Committee on Palestine has reported to the parent body on its findings in Palestine. The report recommends that Palestine become independent of England's mandate, which has been in force for more than a quarter of a century, and that separate Jewish and Arab states be created, with 150,000 Jews being admitted within the next two years of transition, with 60,000 allowed to enter the homeland the third year.

Under this plan, Jerusalem will become an international city, including some of the suburbs, such as Bethlehem. A governor will be appointed by the United Nations and will be neither Jew nor Arab.

The partition plan calls for a customs union and common currency for both states. Public utilities, such as railroads, communications, and interstate highways are to be operated for the common interest of both states. The ports of Haifa and Jaffa are to serve the shipping interests of both countries. These are the main sections of the majority report which was signed by Canada, Czechoslovakia, Guatemala, Holland, Peru, Uruguay, and Sweden.

If this report of the special committee is accepted by the United Nations—and at present it appears likely that it will be accepted, as England has indicated she will accept the partition plan, provided the United Nations will assist in putting into operation and maintaining the plan—it will give temporary succor to a large body of displaced Jews that are now without home or country. This is no permanent solution to the Jewish problem. At the best, it is a stop-gap arrangement. The Jews who leave the battle-scarred areas of Europe for Palestine, are simply moving into the territory where the next and apparently last struggle of the nations will take place. The Prophet Ezekiel predicts a short peace for the inhabitants of Palestine prior to the invasion of the "mountains of Israel" by the northern confederacy. It will be short, and the holocaust which will follow will exceed in terribleness anything which they have thus far experienced. It will be the price of returning in unbelief! Israel must remove the leaven from her "desolate house" before she will be able to inhabit it in peace and quietness.

CIVILIZATION. Writing in the "Christian Century" under the title of "The Breakdown of Civilization," V. A. Demant says: "I want here to interpret the crisis of our time as the breakdown of civilization. As a sociologist and a historian of human cultures, I am sure, not only that this is the truest interpretation, but in the end the most hopeful one. If we go on thinking and acting as if this civilization of ours is assured of its survival, or if its strains could be cured by better political systems or economic methods or even more heroic morals, then I contend the breakdown will deepen into complete dissolution."

There is little doubt but what our present order of society, in and out of the church, is at a very low ebb, and we, most definitely believe in the soon coming of the Lord. However, we should not permit ourselves to become pessimistic and feel that as the coming of the Lord is so near at hand, there isn't any use of making plans for the future development of the work of the church, nor should we permit zeal for the Lord's soon return to obscure in our interpretation of prophecy the predictions unfulfilled. True, the world is in a terrible state, but it has been developing along this sinful course for centuries and centuries. Writing in the "Princeton Review" of 1878, Dr. Thompson in an article on "Europe Adrift," said of Berlin: "In the city of Berlin, with a population of a million souls, there are barely seventy houses of worship, including Jewish synagogues as well as Protestant and Catholic churches, chapels, and suburban stations, and . . . the majority of these churches are seldom half filled." Of the city of London, Mr. S. Morley, M.P., speaking in Philharmonic Hall in 1878, held "London to be one of the most heathenish parts of her Majesty's dominions." In the same year, Thomas Dewitt Talmadge, the renowned preacher of Brooklyn, declared, "The foundations of New York and Brooklyn are struck through with rottenness, and if iniquity makes the same advancement in the next hundred years that it has in the past one hundred years, the last moral and religious influence will have perished from our cities."

Civilization hasn't come to its present predicament in a short time. It is the accumulation of what Paul described as "evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse," and this condition will continue until the Lord returns.

SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS. The Seventh Day Adventists report their contributions for foreign missions for the past seventy-five years have totaled $200,000,000.00. In 1946, they had 370 missionaries on the field, and their literature was being printed in 185 languages.

NECESSARY INSTITUTION. From the standpoint of its value to the youth of America, J. Edgar Hoover, head of the FBI, praises the church as possessing "character-building advantages." In an article under the heading, "A Challenge to Parents," he says: "During the first nine months of 1945, youths under twenty-one years accounted for 21.2 per cent of the arrests, and persons under twenty-five accounted for 35.5 per cent of all arrests." Then, likening the present order of society to that of ancient Greece and Rome, he writes: "If one makes an analysis of the downfall of ancient Greece and Rome, he will find that the moral fiber of these people had rotted away because principles of godliness had been eliminated from their way of life." Leaving

God out of their lives is the prime cause of evil in the world today. And when folk leave God out of their lives, they also let go of His church. Of the church, Mr. Hoover says: "The church is the most necessary institution in our way of life. Its influence for good is far-reaching and it is essential in my opinion for the youth of our nation to receive its benefits." Of the "character-building advantages" of the church, the director of the Bureau of Investigation says: "Parents cannot afford to postpone their use until tomorrow. Tomorrow may be too late."

The "Missionary Crusader" reports "600,000 villages in India without a single Christian in them."

CIGARETTES AND CANCER. The "Union Signal" in a recent issue carried a summarized report on the finding of Dr. W. H. Dobson, Berkeley, Calif. The research studies of Dr. Dobson reveal a close relationship between the increased use of cigarettes and the increase in the number of cancers in the respiratory system. Data recorded in the "Union Signal" follows:

Year	Cigarettes made	Cancer deaths respiratory
1930	123 billions	3,848
1932	106 billions	4,549
1934	130 billions	5,473
1936	158 billions	6,840
1938	171 billions	8,100
1940	189 billions	9,545
1942	257 billions	10,947

Commenting on his findings, the "Union Signal" says: "He claims smoke tar from cigarettes is a cancer-causing factor. Applied to the ears of rabbits, it caused cancer in one hundred percent of cases. He points out that cancer of the lung, highly fatal from forty to sixty years, has increased three hundred percent in the last thirty years."

TURKEY. Recent news dispatches indicate that Russia is again putting the pressure on Turkey for more of a hand in the control of the Dardanelles. The dispute between Turkey and Russia has been going on for generations, and only through outside assistance has the sick man of Europe been able to keep the Russian bear away from his side door. In "The North British Review" of November, 1860, occurred this statement: "The days of Turkey's power and independence have long since gone. Nay, its tottering throne and rotten constitution are upheld by the united efforts—or rather united jealousies of the European monarchs. . . . It is a universally known fact that interference of other nations has alone saved Turkey from being overthrown and rooted out by its powerful and covetous neighbor, Russia." Long ago, Russia was moving toward her end-time fate and students of prophecy saw it.

"Samuel said, Hath the Lord as great delight in burnt offerings and sacrifices, as in obeying the voice of the Lord? Behold, to obey is better than sacrifice, and to hearken than the fat of rams" (1 Samuel 15:22).

The Israelites Were Repentant

Samuel, the high priest of Israel, was listening to the people. They said he should pray for them to God, that they would not die because they had sinned yet once again in asking for a king.

Samuel told them to serve the Lord with all their hearts. God "will not forsake his people for his great name's sake: because it hath pleased the Lord to make you his people" (1 Sam. 13:22).

The Israelites were told that if Samuel would stop praying for them, it would be sinful of him. They were warned, however, if they continued to sin against God, they and their king would be killed.

Israel in Distress

Saul had reigned as king for two years. He had three thousand soldiers with him. His son, Jonathan, had one thousand soldiers with him.

Jonathan suddenly attacked the soldiers of the Philistines who were in Geba, defending that city. This attack made the other Philistines very angry. They gathered together thirty thousand chariots to go against the Israelites. They had six thousand horsemen, and many, many soldiers besides—"people as the sand of the sea shore in multitude" (1 Sam. 13:5). This vast army came to the very same place Saul had been located—at Michmash. This filled the Israelites with fear and sorrow. They were able to see they were indeed in a "tight place." Then many hid themselves in caves, and thickets of bushes. They hid behind rocks. They went to the places where those who had worshiped idols kept their idols—the "high places"—to hide. Some dug pits in which to hide themselves. Others even crossed the Jordan River into the land of Gad and Gilead.

Saul Waited for Samuel

Saul had called his people together in Gilgal. There he waited for seven days for Samuel. Samuel had set the time he was to meet with Saul and the Israelites, but he did not come. The people began to scatter again. It was then Saul forgot that a king has certain work to do and the high priest a different work.

Samuel Was Shocked

Saul said, "Bring hither a burnt offering to me, and peace offerings. And he offered the burnt offering" (1 Sam. 13:9).

Then Samuel came. Saul went out to meet him and greet him.

Samuel said, "What hast thou done?"

Saul told Samuel all he had done. He said because Samuel had not come he had forced himself to offer a burnt offering (v. 12).

Saul's Opportunity Lost

Samuel said, "Thou hast done foolishly."

Saul had not kept the commandment of the Lord. He had not respected the Lord, as he tried to do the work of the high priest. Because of his sin, the kingdom of Israel, God's chosen nation, would not continue upon the earth. (Vv. 13, 14.) Samuel told Saul that God already had sought a man after His own heart to head His people. Then Samuel left. Saul counted the people with him. He had only about six hundred left with him.

Our Opportunity

Our opportunity to serve God is today, through Jesus Christ. Let us not forget to serve the One in whom we have faith. Then, when God's Kingdom is established, we may have a place of everlasting joy and love.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CALENDAR OF SPECIAL MEETINGS

- October 4, 5—Michigan Fall Conference at Blanchard.
October 5—Rally Day at Oregon, Ill.
October 10-12—Minnesota Fall Conference at Saint Cloud (D. A. Jones, guest speaker).
October 17-26—Evangelistic meetings at Eden Valley, Minn. (T. A. Drinkard, guest speaker.)
November 1, 2—Northwest Conference at Corvallis, Ore.
November 2-16—Special meetings (C. E. Randall, guest speaker) at Tempe, Ariz.

SAINT CLOUD, MINNESOTA

On Sunday afternoon, September 14, at Pleasant Lake, three men were baptized into the all-saving name of Jesus Christ. They are: John F. Teicher, George M. Hartman, and William J. Hill, all of Saint Cloud. All three have attended church for some time; all three have now entirely joined their wives in faith, as all three ladies are members of long standing. It is a great joy to all of us to have this valuable addition to our membership. It is also a great pleasure to us that Bro. and Sr. Howard Hamilton, formerly members of the Eden Valley Church, have placed their membership with the Saint Cloud group, having moved to our city.

Minnesota Fall Conference will be held at Saint Cloud, October 10-12. Bro. Delbert A. Jones will be guest speaker. We hope for a good attendance.

This has been a busy summer at the Saint Cloud Church. Much time and effort have been used to make our building more beautiful. The auditorium has been papered, the floor painted, and a beautiful new carpet has been laid on rostrum and in the aisles. The basement has been completely rewired, and we are planning extensive re-decorating there, too. The vestibule is being brought under repairs, and will soon be finished.

Bro. and Sr. Walter Skinner and son David have arrived at Richmond, Calif., where they have purchased a home. Their address is 249 Santa Lucia, Lomita Park, Calif. We miss them sorely, but hope for them happiness and contentment in their new home. We know they will find opportunity for service unto the Lord in that portion of His vineyard, and we pray His richest blessings be with them always.

Health has returned in full measure to the pastor, after his serious illness last spring. It is a great pleasure to have our son Delbert and family only nineteen miles from us. He has preached many times since his arrival in Minnesota last August 1. He is teaching English in the Kimball High School, and will preach at the Litefield, Minn., Church, as soon as the building now under construction is completed.

Sr. Iola Magaw, who is attending Saint Cloud Teacher's College, is a very welcome addition to our number. We thoroughly enjoy having her among us.

Mrs. A. M. Jones, Secy.

PENNELWOOD CHURCH OF GOD Grand Rapids, Michigan

Bro. C. E. Lapp arrived on September 2, to take up his duties as pastor at Pennellwood. He is minus his family who are remaining in Ohio until living quarters can be arranged.

On the evening of September 5, the congregation and friends joined in a farewell party for Bro. H. U. Krogh, Jr., and family at Ideal Park. A picnic dinner was served in the shelter house, followed by games and the presentation of a purse to Bro. Krogh for the purchase of reference books as a token of the best wishes of the Pennellwood group. We have enjoyed his ministry and fellowship these past five years and pray God's richest blessings on him as he continues the work elsewhere.

A very impressive installation service filled most of the worship hour the morning of Sunday, September 7. The charge to the membership was given by James Cole, first elder, and to the pastor by William Hanson, second elder.

September 14 was designated as "Parents' Day" by our Sunday school superintendent, A. G. Townsend. Several parents attended for the first time, making an attendance of twenty-six in the senior adult class.

It may have been "Parents' Day" in the senior adult class, but we could call it "Old Home Day" in the junior adult class, with a close second of twenty-four in attendance. Some of our collegians will be absent from us until next vacation. We trust this higher learning will be applied to better their Christian service.

The Cradle Roll Department also comes in for mention. A son, John William, was born, September 15, to Mr. and Mrs. William Richer; and a baby daughter, Connie Kay, is the proud possession of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Bush, as of September 16.

At this writing, Miss Martha Townsend is still in Saint Mary's Hospital, gaining slowly from a week's very serious illness. We hope that her usual vim, vigor, and vitality soon may be restored.

Mrs. Betty Townsend and family are en route home to Mesa, Ariz., after a summer with relatives and friends in Oregon, Ill., and Michigan. There are some of us who wish we were with her as the shivers play tag up and down our spines.

Our full schedule is again in order: Sunday school at 10:00 a.m., and worship service at 11:00 a.m. and 7:00 p.m., each Sunday. Senior young people's meeting at 6:00 each Sunday afternoon. Junior young people's meeting at 7:00 p.m. on Tuesday evenings. Berean classes for all ages at 7:30, Thursday evenings. A hearty invitation is extended to you, reader, to attend any of these services.

Mrs. L. F. Sloeum, Secy.

QUARTERLY PRICE ADVANCES

Due to constantly increasing costs in the publishing industry, the recent General Conference voted to increase the price of all quarterlies. In accord with this decision, beginning September 1, all Truth Seekers', Intermediate, and Children's quarterlies will be advanced to 20 cents per copy. We regret that circumstances beyond our control have made this increase necessary, but we know that our Sunday schools will understand that we cannot continue to absorb the growing loss on these publications.

James M. Watkins, Gen. Mgr.,
National Bible Institution.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mabel Barnum; Darrell Maddock (another); Mrs. Ida Harding; Evelyn Mills; M. L. Kauffman; Mrs. Minnie Rogers; Mrs. Otis Lippincott; Mrs. Lottie Elton; Maude Kepley; Mrs. Maud Graham; Emma J. Friend; Ora H. Cline; Mrs. Sarah F. Wilson; Elmer Gockler; Mrs. Lorrin Gainey; Elizabeth Orldung; James Mattison.

Gleanings from the Field

"The field is the world."—Jesus.

"The Northwest Quarterly Conference will meet at Corvallis, Ore., November 1, 2."—Lena Hathaway, Secy.

Rally Day is announced for Burr Oak, Ind., on Sunday, October 5, an all-day meeting being planned. Preaching services and special song and music numbers will benefit all who attend. Everybody is invited.

Recently elected Sunday school officers at the Morning Star Church of God, South Bend, Ind., are: superintendent, Paron Anderson; assistant, Robert Rouch; secretary, Mrs. Mae Huffline; treasurer, Mrs. Paron Anderson.

Sr. S. J. Stedman, Arapahoe, Nebr., fell asleep in death, September 19. Our sympathy goes to the bereaved.

Bro. Harold Doan, pastor of the Chicago Church of God, reports "there will be a baptismal service, October 12, for Jeanne Crawford." The Chicago congregation is growing, and its growth sharpens the lookout for a more suitable building for church services.

The Oregon (Ill.) Church of God assembled, September 26, at the church to help Bro. F. L. Austin, retiring pastor, to celebrate his birthday.

TEMPE, ARIZONA

Vacation days are about over, and we are once again carrying on a full program. The writer has been asked to serve as temporary pastor and is receiving the best of co-operation from all concerned.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul McPherson are the parents of a daughter, Karen Ann. Karen came to church the first time on September 21, at the age of about three weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hanson, Oakland, Calif., were recent attendants at our services while visiting Mrs. Hanson's parents, the Almus Dimmicks.

Don McCombs of our Foothill, Ont., Church has been in our midst for some time. We are hoping he and his family will become permanent residents and church attendants.

Mrs. Clarence E. Bunch was injured in an automobile accident on September 18, but is recovering nicely. She may be addressed at 2512 E. McDowell, Phoenix, Ariz.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Saylor are at present in Rochester, Minn., where Mrs. Saylor is going through Mayo Brothers Clinic. We are all looking forward to their soon and safe return.

Bro. C. E. Randall will be guest speaker at our special meetings this fall. The dates are November 2-16, inclusive. Tentative plans also are being made for holding a Southwest Conference on the last week end of these meetings, but nothing definite is known as yet.

If your winter vacation trip brings you through Tempe, we invite you to attend our services, if possible.

Gerald L. Cooper, Secy.

ELIZABETH R. JENKINS

Elizabeth R. Jenkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Newell, was born October 4, 1881, on a farm west of Herman, Nebr., and died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Catherine Ericson, in Wahoo, Nebr., August 11, 1947. She had been ill for several months and had been in the hospital for a month before being taken to the home of her daughter at Wahoo. In 1884, she moved with her parents to Frontier County, where they resided until 1900, returning to this county. She united with the Church of God in early life, being immersed in the name of Jesus Christ by Elder John Prime, and remained true to that faith to the end, being an active leader and example of the higher concepts of life, which is truly Christian.

On October 8, 1900, she was united in marriage to Fred S. Jenkins at the J. W. Newell farm west of Blair, and they began farming near Rising City, Nebr., later returning and living in or near Blair. To this union were born two daughters, Mrs. Ruth Suverkrubbe of Fort Calhoun and Mrs. Catherine Ericson of Wahoo; one son, Edward Jenkins, of Omaha; all of which survive her. Other survivors are her mother, Mrs. M. D. Newell; one brother, E. S. Newell of Arlington, Calif.; four grandchildren; two nieces; one nephew; several consins; and a host of friends.

Since the death of her husband on March 6, 1934, Sr. Jenkins has lived with and cared for her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Newell, at Fourth and Butler Sts., near Blair Park. Her father died late in 1944; and last year she and her mother, who is now past eighty-five years of age, moved to 71 W. Lincoln St., in Blair. Sr. Jenkins was of a methodical nature, and her accounts of her own life and that of her ancestors which she kept indeed are interesting and will be treasured by the remaining members of the family.

Funeral services were conducted by the writer, who showed the faith and hope in which Sr. Jenkins now rests, waiting the call to life and immortality, at the appearing of Jesus the Christ. Burial was made in the Blair cemetery. G. J. Gordon.

SARAH STEDMAN

Sarah Selleck, oldest daughter of John and Katie Selleck, was born in Fairbury, Ill., March 7, 1872, and died at her home in Arapahoe, Nebr., September 19, 1947. While very young, she came with her parents to Missouri, and then to eastern Nebraska. In 1885, her parents came to Bartley, where they took a homestead. She was a member of the Church of God of the Abrahamic Faith, having been baptized by Bro. Almus Adams, September 29, 1890.

On January 4, 1899, she was married to James Stedman of Moorefield, Nebr. To this union were born two daughters: Icel at home and Zola, now Mrs. Orval Shepherd, of Arapahoe. She with her devoted husband established a home where the truths of the Bible were daily taught. She was a woman of courage and an inspiration to her family. She will be greatly missed by her faithful and devoted husband, James Stedman; two daughters, Icel and Zola; and one son-in-law, Orval Shepherd. Besides these, she leaves to mourn an only sister, Mrs. Florence Wheeler of Hamilton, Kan., several nieces and nephews, many other near relatives and friends who loved and respected her.

She lived a life of useful and faithful service to her family and to her church. She was always busy and felt she could never do enough for her family. When a young woman, she was secretary and Sunday school teacher for several years in the Church of God at Freedom, Nebr. Later, she served as Sunday school teacher in the rural community where she lived. Now she sleeps until the morning when the Lord will come. Then, she will meet her loved ones—never to part again.

Funeral services were conducted in the Church of God at Holbrook, Sunday, September 21. The writer was in charge, being assisted by the Holbrook pastor, Bro. Terry Ferrell. Sr. Stedman was laid to rest in the Arapahoe Cemetery. E. E. Giesler.

ELIZABETH REIGHARD

Elizabeth Elton, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Elton, was born in Allington, England, September 1, 1848. She came with her parents to the United States in the winter of 1856, spending more than six weeks in a sailing vessel on the Atlantic Ocean. Her parents located on a farm near Cleveland, Ohio. Early in 1862, the family moved to Fulton County, locating on a farm in Swan Creek Township, four miles south of Delta. Here her mother died in January, 1863, leaving her the oldest of six children. A girl only fifteen years of age, she devoted her efforts to taking care of them and keeping up the home for her father.

On April 9, 1866, she was united in marriage to George Reighard, son of a pioneer family living not far distant. Into this home were born six children: Frank H. of Wauseon; Dell C. and Sophia Gill, both deceased; Royal C., a farmer of Swan Creek Township; Bert A. and Mrs. Roseoe Dunbar of Delta. She was a loving and devoted mother and was ready to give her life for the welfare of her children.

She was a consistent member of the Church of God, and all her effort and influence were given to that hope and faith. She was a devoted reader of her Bible, having read it through many times, and she could quote many passages from it. She was a teacher in Sunday school for about sixty years. Most of her life was spent on the home farm in Swan Creek Township, fourteen years at Wauseon, and the last few years at Delta, Ohio.

She is survived by her three sons and one daughter, thirteen grandchildren, and sixteen great-grandchildren. Her husband died on November 6, 1920.

When she was past ninety years of age, she wrote a history of her life and her faith, for each of her children and grandchildren, also for many of her friends, so they might know from her own hand what she believed and why she believed it. A wonderful achievement for one so advanced in years, inspired by a noble ambition and hope, and based upon a beautiful and long life in the service of her Lord and the truth of His Word!

Services were held from the Penrod Funeral Home in Delta, Saturday, September 13, 1947, conducted by the writer, and she was laid to rest in the family lot in the Raker Cemetery to wait for her Redeemer to stand at the latter day upon the earth, and to call her forth to life. G. J. Gordon.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by National Bible Institution, Oregon, Illinois

The Restitution Herald is official organ of the General Conference of the Church of God. Subscription rate: 50 issues per year, $2.50.

The Restitution Herald advocates: the near return of Christ (Acts 1:11), and life only through Him (Col. 3:3); the literal resurrection of the dead (John 5:28); the immortalization of those in Christ (1 Cor. 15:53, 54); the destruction of the wicked (Rev. 21:8); the final restoration of Israel as the Kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ (Luke 1:32), the church to be joint-heirs with Him (Rom. 8:17), and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations (Isa. 60:1-3); the "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:21). It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

THE WHIRLING VORTEX of social imperative has a majority of human beings yielding to its embrace, in a form of slavery. Unable to escape, and because of its centripetal, gravitative grasp, they are unwilling to choose for themselves a different course. (They believe the "everyone else is doing it, so it must be right" attitude.) Examples of this form of slavery are cited in the corridors of smoke and drink. A recent observation noted seven liquor posters compared with one religious poster in a single Minneapolis street car. You will say, That is nothing compared to what I have seen, and we will believe you.

Liquor slavery is astonishing, but tobacco slavery is more astonishing, and the effects are felt by non-smokers and those of the emphatically resentful class of absolute abstainers alike. If one works among the public, he must breathe; and if one breathes, there is no yet known way to educate the puffs and coils of stinking and poisonous smoke to ignore the inhaling nostrils of the one who so desperately tries to escape it.

The following quotation is from "Personal and Community health" by C. E. Turner, A.M., Sc.D., Dr. P.H. (pp. 258, 259):

"Tobacco is a narcotic, although its first effect on the nervous system is stimulation. The leaf of the tobacco plant is fermented, dried, and prepared for smoking. Its chief drug constituent is a volatile alkaloid, nicotine, one of the most violent poisons known. The drug is fatal in small doses, the amount varying with the individual and with pre-existing tolerance. Other harmful substances that occur in tobacco smoke in addition to nicotine are ammonia gas, pyridine derivatives, carbon monoxide, and traces of hydrocyanic acid, phenols, and aldehydes. It is believed, however, that the chief deleterious effects of tobacco are not due to the local effects of these substances on the mucous membranes, but to the presence of nicotine."

From "Personal and Community Hygiene" by Dean Franklin Smiley, A.B., M.D., and Adrian Gordon Gould, Ph.B., M.D., professor and assistant professor of hygiene, respectively, in Cornell University (p. 224), we quote:

"Nicotine is also a powerful drug and one of our most fatal and rapidly acting poisons. As the result of animal experimentation, it has been estimated that there is in one cigar enough nicotine (if placed directly in the blood stream all at once) to kill two people."

(Please read 1 Corinthians 3:16, 17; 6:19, 20; 2 Corinthians 6:16.)

You are the temple of God. Don't defile it. Your body does not belong to you; it belongs to God. "Touch not the unclean thing."

"Hank: This is old (it appeared in the Detroit News of April 15), but it's so good we just had to pass it along to you. On page 23 of that News, was this ad:

"There's no hocus-pocus about it!" says Hank Greenberg, baseball's home-run star. 'I've read the reports and Medical Science has proved you can't beat Raleighs for less nicotine . . . less throat irritants . . . all-round safer smoking! I recommend Raleighs to all my friends. Raleighs are right!"

"So far, so good. That puts it pretty straight that Hank smokes Raleighs and likes 'em, since they do him so much less harm (with that 'less nicotine') than other and more unhealthy brands of cigarettes.

"But look ye! On page 17 of the same News is this; in an interview with the same Hank Greenberg:

"I feel better now—better than I have for some time," said Greenberg. "The doctors said I had a stomach disorder and I'm giving up cigarettes and coffee. I never was much of a smoker anyway. I'm sleeping better now and I feel much better."—Christian Herald.

ONE GOD: THE GOD OF THE AGES

unity, we close this section with a number of examples where echad is represented by the words "each" and "each one," which any unbiased student will admit are words having the equivalent of the numeral "one," namely, simple unity:

Numbers 7:11—"Each offering."

Numbers 7:85—"Each charger of silver."

Numbers 29:14—"Each ram of the two rams."

Numbers 29:15—"Each lamb of the fourteen lambs."

Joshua 22:14—"Each chief house."

1 Kings 4:7—"Each man." (See R.V.)

2 Kings 15:20—"Each man fifty shekels."

2 Chronicles 4:13—"Each wreath."

Numbers 7:3—"Each ONE an ox."

Isaiah 6:2—"Each ONE had six wings."

HARVEST TIME

"I was an hungered . . . thirsty . . . stranger, and ye took me in" (Matt. 25:35). Friends, it may pay, both in this world and in the world to come, for us to lend a hand to the Jews at this the greatest of all their trouble.
