"The world abounds in ruins from neglect; and perdition is reached as certainly by it as any other means. A neglected child grows up for ruin; the neglected business fails; the neglectful engineer wrecks his train; the neglectful sailor strands his vessel; the negligent general is certain to be overthrown; and 'how shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation?'"

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 23

OREGON, ILLINOIS, MARCH 6, 1934

NUMBER 23

THE KIDNAPER

By Richard LeCrone

"Who gave himself for us, that he might redeem us from all iniquity, and purify unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works."—Titus 2:14.

RECENTLY there has been a great deal of kidnaping going on in this broad land of ours. Men, women, and children have been seized by unlawful men, and huge sums of money demanded for their release. In some cases, even when the sums have been paid, the victims have not been safely returned to their loved ones.

All of this has made our liberty-loving people very indignant, and many are demanding that capital punishment be made the penalty whenever these lawless and cruel men are caught, and perhaps their request should be granted.

Be that as it may, only comparatively few are in danger from such kidnapers, because only the rich can pay the ransom which makes their activities worth the risk.

There is, however, another kidnaper who spares neither rich nor poor, and to whose absolute ruthlessness and impartiality all are sure to sooner or later become victims. No amount of money will free us from his clutches. He is known to us as the "grim reaper," death. He scorns the wealth of the world and continues his depredations in spite of all that man can do. "They that trust in their wealth, and boast themselves in the multitude of their riches; none of them can by any means redeem his brother, nor give to God a ransom for him: . . . that he should still live for ever, and not see corruption. For he seeth that wise men die, likewise the fool and the brutish person perish, and leave their wealth to others."—Psalm 49:6-10.

Death, though the most ruthless and uncompromising of all kidnapers, has, however, an element of negative kindness in him. He never tortures his victims. He keeps them unconscious while in his power. "Consider and hear me, O Lord my God: lighten mine eyes, lest I sleep the sleep of death."—Psalm 13:3. "For the living know that they shall die: but the dead know not any thing."—Eccl. 9:5.

Many and varied are the victims of Death, and millions have been in his power for thousands of years, but he is not impregnable, and we are promised that he will one day be forced to release his countless victims. Then even Death himself shall stand before the bar of justice, and capital punishment shall be his lot. The ransom has been paid, but the release has not yet been effected. That will come in due time. "For there is one God, and one mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus; who gave himself a ransom for all, to be testified in due time."—1 Timothy 2:5, 6.

"So when this corruptible shall have put on incorruption, and this mortal shall have put on immortality, then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written, Death is swallowed up in victory."—1 Cor. 15:54. "Thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."—1 Cor. 15:57. "But unto every one of us is given grace according to the measure of the gift of Christ. Wherefore he saith, When he ascended up on high, he led captivity captive, and gave gifts unto men."—Eph. 4:7, 8.

"I would not have you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning them which are asleep, that ye sorrow not, even as others which have no hope." Christ has led that awful kidnaper whom we call Death captive, and will in due time release his victims, and then the grim reaper himself (as was revealed to John) shall receive capital punishment. "And the sea gave up the dead which were in it; and death and hell delivered up the dead which were in them: and they were judged every man according to their works. And death and hell were cast into the lake of fire. This is the second death. And whosoever was not found written in the book of life was cast into the lake of fire."—Rev. 20:13-15. "The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death."—1 Cor. 15:26.

Wherefore, brethren, let us not fear the captivity of Death, but let us rather prepare ourselves for the judgment following our release from his prison. We cannot withhold our loved ones from his grasp, but we can prepare them for eternal freedom from him when Christ shall bring about their release.

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879.

G. Eldred Marsh, Editor

Two Dollars per Year

Paul C. Johnson, Associate Editor

"I have caused thee to see it with thine eyes."—Deuteronomy 34:4.

IN MEMORY OF HIS DEATH

INFINITE Father of grace and truth, we meet with heartfelt gratitude on this occasion to commemorate in fitting symbol the death of Jesus Christ on our behalf. Forgive, we pray Thee, at this solemn hour our every sin. Create within us clean hearts, O God, and renew right spirits within us. Quicken our perceptions that we may understand more perfectly the sacred significance of the service in which we are engaged. May we recognize in this bread the body of our Lord, broken for us. May this holy cup bring to us something of the spirit of Thy Son. Keep us ever faithful, watchful, and prayerful, until He whose sacrifice we celebrate shall come again. Amen.

PAGEANTRY OF CHRIST

OF THE many great teachers the world has known it is universally acknowledged that Jesus Christ was the dean of them all. So masterly was the presentation of His lessons that persons of all ages and degrees of intelligence were attracted to Him and benefited by His teaching. Vast multitudes followed Him about, witnessing His miracles of power and listening to His words of strangely impressive power.

The secret of His success perhaps may be found in the fact just noted: The multitude both saw and heard. The lessons of Jesus were profusely illustrated, and when it comes to imparting truth to others the old Chinese bard was not mistaken when he said, "One picture is worth ten thousand words!"

When we say the lessons of Jesus were profusely illustrated, we are not referring to the many parables He used to such good advantage, but rather to the pageantry He so frequently employed, and which gave so much color and life to what He said.

The heavenly Father also used such visualizing methods on occasion, as for instance when He caused the Holy Spirit to descend upon Jesus in the form of a dove. Here was something that could be seen, while the voice that rang through earth and heaven, saying, "This is my beloved Son," was something that could be heard. To hear the truth and at the same time to see it enacted in one's presence makes an appeal to one's mind that can be equaled by no other method.

When the disciples questioned Jesus as to who should be the greatest in the kingdom of heaven, "Jesus called a little child unto him, and set him in the midst of them, and said, Verily I say unto you, Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven. Whosoever therefore shall humble himself as this little child"—can you not see the tender hand of the Master raised and placed on the curly head of that youngster as He spoke those words?—"the same is greatest in the kingdom of heaven."—Matt. 18:3, 4.

Here was a living object lesson that all could understand.

On another occasion the Herodians asked Him if it was right to pay tribute to Caesar. After reproving them for their obvious duplicity in attempting to entangle Him, He said, "Shew me the tribute money. And they brought unto him a penny." Holding the coin in His hand, He asked them to observe it closely and tell Him whose name was engraved upon it. "Caesar's," was the reply. "Then saith he unto them, Render therefore unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's; and unto God the things that are God's."—Matt. 22:17-21.

How much more effective this lesson must have been when accompanied by a visible demonstration!

To direct attention to all the pageantry used by Jesus in His teaching would be to recall every miracle He performed as well as the many other incidents similar to those already named, for when He healed the sick and raised the dead our Lord but caused to be enacted in a living picture before His disciples some of the events that would take place in the kingdom of God of which He preached.

Baptism meets all the requirements of a beautiful pageant. It paints a remarkably accurate and detailed picture of the entire process of individual salvation and its final results. It presents death in two forms: death to sin, and actual physical dissolution and burial. It visualizes likewise two forms of resurrection: first, a resurrection to the new creature life in Christ Jesus, which in turn gives promise of a glorious bodily resurrection to immortality. In addition to this, the very element used in the baptismal pageant, water, suggests the thought of cleansing, the washing away of sins.

What is true of baptism is equally true of the Lord's supper. Both of these ceremonies established by Christ are valuable, not because of what they actually are, but because of what they represent and picture.

Jehovah's Covenant With Abraham

SOME attention should be given to the native setting of this narrative, and by so doing it will be seen that the two men brought into prominence are Abraham and his nephew, Lot. Abraham had become very rich in cattle, silver, and gold after his return from Egypt (Gen. 13:1-3).

Lot, also, had much possessions in flocks, herds, servants, and tents. Their substance had increased to such an extent that the country was not sufficient to sustain them. A quarrel resulted between the herdsmen of Abraham and those of Lot. A land feud ensued. That was by no means the first of its nature, and certainly not the last. The earth has been soaked and deluged in human gore again and again because of the greed for territory, and the end is not yet. But blessed be the Lord, He will settle the long-disputed land question when He shall give the kingdom under the whole heavens to His saints (Dan. 2:44; 7:18, 22, 27).

In the midst of this disputation, Abraham became peace-maker, and besought his nephew that there should be "no strife" between them. Abraham was the man of faith in God, and faith is ever magnanimous and generous; so he wished Lot that he might choose his inheritance of the land, and they separated to go their ways (Gen. 13:9). Lot had the first selection, but the first is not always the best choice, as alas! it proved to the harm of the man Lot. Lot was a shrewd business man; so after a survey of the lay of the country, he chose the well watered valley of the Jordan, and moved his possessions east to the plains of Jordan. Here were located some five prosperous cities known as Sodom, Gomorrah, Adma, Zeboim, and Bela. Here we part company with Lot. We know only too well the issue of his choice.

II

We would seek the divine level of the great purpose of God in His friend Abraham, the man of faith. Was it not in the very midst of those things we have briefly narrated of Lot that the Almighty appeared to Abraham in the covenant so graphically told in the Scripture we are considering herewith? "And the Lord said unto Abram, after that Lot was separated from him, Lift up now thine eyes, and look from the place where thou art northward, and southward, and eastward, and westward: for all the land which thou seest, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed for ever. And I will make thy seed as the dust of the earth: so that if a man can number the dust of the earth, then shall thy seed also be numbered. Arise, walk through the land in the length of it and in the breadth of it; for I will give it unto thee."

We are greatly interested in the result which followed the lifting up of the eyes of this man of faith. He was simply told to look in all directions, and take in every point of the compass. Cannot you, in mental vision, see him as he stood there by his tent door? His physical vision would not penetrate far into the regions of the north, for the mountains were before him. Turning south, he knew that Egypt, from whence he had but recently come, was in that direction. Looking east, he would gaze over the country in the direction toward which Lot had just gone. Looking west, his vision would reach the uttermost confines of those lands with the great sea stretching out and beyond. What, then, did those physical eyes of God's obedient servant see that day? He saw all those lands in the north, and in the south, and in the east, and in the west, in the occupation of others. As the patriarch stood there in the center of territory in the possession of tribes hostile to him, had he stated his claim, not a foot of it did he possess. That, then, is what his physical eyes beheld.

III

Ah, yes, faith has evermore a keener perception, a finer outlook. Faith in its far-seeing vision yoked him to the divine purpose, and enabled him to see all those lands as his own, as he embraced them within the covenant promise. The man of faith saw all those lands which his nephew had chosen. All that territory stretching north, occupied by strange, strong, hostile tribes. All those lands lying south on the way down to Egypt, and all those fertile borderlands that lay westward to the seaboard. All, all were his by virtue of the covenant. Yea, more by far than these, he saw the entire habitable earth as his possessions (Rom. 4:13). Abraham's faith embraced infinitely more than his physical eyes beheld. Does yours? Mine does. Ah, yes, that man I see moving along and pitching his tents for the night on land occupied by others is the owner by virtue of deed and bequest of the Almighty.

Has Abraham possessed the promised inheritance? The Scriptures must answer the question, or it is not answered at all. The great Patriarch (Please turn to Page Nine)

A Child's Hymn

God make my life a little light,
Within the world to glow;
A little flame that burneth bright,
Wherever I may go.

God make my life a little flower,
That giveth joy to all,
Content to bloom in native bower,
Although the place be small.

God make my life a little song,
That comforteth the sad;
That helpeth others to be strong,
And makes the singer glad.

God make my life a little staff,
Whereon the weak may rest,
That so what wealth and strength I have
May serve my neighbors best.

God make my life a little hymn
Of tenderness and praise;
Of faith, that never waxeth dim,
In all His wondrous ways.

—M. Betham-Edwards.

Like Priest, Like People

THE old statement that a river will not rise higher than its source will ever remain true until there is a change in the law of gravity. The people will never become more moral than the morality of their spiritual teachers, is likewise a fact. It will remain so until there is a change in human nature. Human nature is as fixed as is the law of gravity.

The airplane starts out with a full tank and defies the law of gravity. For a time it is successful. But finally the law of gravity wins, and the plane comes down, either safely or tragically; but in either event it must yield to the mandates of gravity.

People will grow no better than their spiritual teachers. If they follow immoral spiritual teachers they, as a people, will become immoral. If the leaders are moral, then the people, as a people, will become moral.

TWO PHASES

We have come to think of Christianity as teaching two distinct lines of conduct: one doctrinal, the other spiritual. In thus thinking we designate the doctrinally sound as being the one who is sound in believing that Jesus is the Christ, that the Bible is the actual Word of God, that Christ died for our sins and arose from the dead. These are some of the fundamental things that he believes. If we are doctrinally sound we not only believe on Christ, but we accept Him as our personal Savior, we confess our faith in Him and are by baptism buried with Him and raised to walk in newness of life.

THE NEW LIFE

This walking with Christ in newness of life is the spiritual side of Christianity. Here is found the prayer life. We add all the Christian graces of love, joy, peace, long-suffering, kindness, goodness, modesty, chastity, and the many other Christian virtues.

LAX LEADERS MUST BE OUSTED

When those in places of spiritual leadership become lax doctrinally, then the people ease up on rigidly following the thus saith the Lord in doctrinal matters. The people, as a people, will not be more doctrinally sound than their spiritual leaders. Hence, it is easy, if we know the mind of the people of today, to tell accurately what was the doctrinal position of the leaders of yesterday. Likewise, by knowing the doctrinal position of the spiritual leaders of today, we can accurately prophesy what will be the doctrinal position of the people tomorrow.

The infidelic doctrinal position of so many of the spiritual leaders of yesterday is the reason we have so much laxness in doctrinal matters today. This condition will continue growing worse and worse until those who are sound in these matters exert themselves sufficiently to counteract the influence of the doctrinally unsound and place into positions of leadership those who are sound doctrinally.

A spiritual leader may be unsound doctrinally and at the same time moral. But this is not the rule, for one who is not sound doctrinally does not have as much to hold him morally as does the one who is fully committed to those fundamental principles of Christianity in belief and practice.

MEN-SERVERS

Here is a minister. He is sound in his doctrinal preaching. By inherited weaknesses, or otherwise, he fails to develop the true spiritual life. He is more anxious to please men than to please God. He is looking more for number of additions during his meeting or pastorate than number of real conversions. He becomes so absorbed in seeking for the plaudits of men that he conducts himself so he cannot receive the blessings of God. He remains doctrinally sound in his preaching, but is growing more and more lax in morals. Before he realizes it he falls an early victim to criminally immoral man or woman.

If he is unrepentant and the church where he holds his membership disapproves of his immoral conduct, then he takes membership in a congregation where he will feel at home. (If he is repentant, he will make restitution and do works worthy of repentance.)

Even with all this background he may continue to remain doctrinally sound in his preaching, and people are turned to Christ. The numbers may be large. The church for which he labors, either as pastor or evangelist, may grow in numbers,—but.

IN YESTERDAY'S SHADOW

Let us at this point remember that the members of the churches of America today are no more moral than were the preachers of the churches of America yesterday.

While the gas supply held out, the airplane could successfully defy the law of gravity. Until the inherited prestige of godly men wears out, the immoral leader may be able to maintain a leadership; but his influence cannot long be other than bad.

A GREAT RESPONSIBILITY

These self-evident truths compel us to conclude that it is the duty of the eldership of every congregation to see to it that no immoral man or woman be permitted to assume either temporary or permanent leadership in their congregation, lest the congregation over which the Lord has made them bishops shall be spiritually degenerated.

“Like priest, like people.”—World Evangel.

Our Stewardship

By James A. Patrick

“AND you know also, O Philippians, that in the beginning of the glad tidings, when I departed from Macedonia, no congregation communicated with me in the matter of giving and receiving, except you alone; and that to Thessalonica, you sent once and a second time also, for my need; not because I earnestly seek the gift, but I earnestly seek that fruit which abounds to your account.”—Phil. 4:15-17, Emphatic Diaglott.

Paul here states that no church communicated with him in the matter of giving and receiving but the Philippians. What were they to give and what to receive? Whatever they gave was for Paul's needs. What would they receive? He said that he sought fruit that would abound to their account. Whatever they got was something placed to their account for future payment. What was Paul seeking? With all the power he had, Paul was preaching the gospel, and he tells us that nothing else counted with him. What would be the fruit of such labors? The gospel of Christ “is the power of God unto salvation.” The fruit of Paul's preaching would be saved ones, and the Philippian brethren would have some of this fruit placed to their account, because they made it possible for Paul to do the preaching—they were preaching through Paul's lips. Those Philippians could not go out and preach the gospel, but they could have fruit in the labors of others which would be placed to their account.

It ought to be borne in mind that every act that we perform should be done with a view of promulgating the gospel. Whether we pay the preacher, build a chapel, buy an organ or piano, print a paper or tract, or build a Golden Rule Home; all should be done with the one object in view—the promulgation of the gospel. It might be asked how we can preach the gospel by building a home for the aged and alone ones. Suppose there is an aged brother or sister in the poorhouse and our people provide the means and he or she is taken out of that poorhouse and sent to the Home. People at once begin to inquire, “Who is doing this?” And when it is said that it is the Church of God, this church at once rises higher in the estimation of those people and they will be willing to listen to any preacher of the Church of God. But suppose there is a poor, unfortunate one that has no home and no means of support and he belongs to the Church of God, and the time comes when he must be sent to the poorhouse. Some one asks, “Does he belong to any church?” “O yes, he belongs to the Church of God.” “Then I don't think much of the Church of God, and I don't care to hear any of its preachers.” What good does it do to preach the gospel to people if they see us saying to the needy one, “Depart in peace, be ye warmed and filled; notwithstanding ye give them not those things which are needful to the body; what doth it profit?”

“Is it possible for anyone to be a child of God and not bear fruit?” Mr. Patrick herein answers his own question. The article formerly was published as a tract by the National Berean Society, but is now out of print.

The fruit we are to bear is what results from preaching the gospel, and everyone must bear some fruit. And this fruit is not the saving only, but the keeping of that which is saved by the preaching of the gospel. So homes for the aged and dependent are a part of this great work.

Is it possible for anyone to be a child of God and not bear fruit? In John 15:1-8 we learn that the fruitless branches are cast forth and become withered and men gather them and they are cast into the fire and are burned. Those that abide in the vine bear fruit and those that do not abide in the vine do not bear fruit but come to destruction. This is a very serious matter—a matter of life or death, isn't it?

“Let him that is taught in the word communicate unto him that teacheth in all good things. Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting. And let us not be weary in well doing: for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not.”—Gal. 6:6-9.

In this language Paul tells us that the one taught should communicate to the teacher in all good things. There is a difference of opinion, sometimes, as to what is meant by the “all good things.” Sometimes it is said this means that the one taught should teach the teacher, or give back in kind. But this is not the case, for the word rendered “things” means: first, moral qualities; second, temporal things, wealth, etc. And when Paul says, “all good things,” we can readily see that he not only wants the one to render moral conformity to the teaching, but to render temporal things to the teacher as well. This thought is clearly brought out by his teaching to the Corinthian brethren. “Have we not power to eat and to drink? . . . Who goeth a warfare any time at his own charges? who planteth a vineyard, and eateth not of the fruit thereof? or who feedeth a flock, and eateth not of the milk of the flock? . . . For it is written in the law of Moses, Thou shalt not muzzle the mouth of the ox that treadeth out the corn. Doth God take care of oxen? or sayeth he it altogether for our sakes? For our sakes, no doubt, this is written: that he that ploweth should plow in hope; and that he that thresheth in hope should be partaker of his hope. If we have sown unto you spiritual things, is it a great thing if we shall reap your carnal things?"—1 Corinthians 9:5, 7, 9-11.

Nothing can be clearer than that in these verses and the ones considered in Galatians 6, Paul has in mind the giving of temporal things by the one taught in exchange for the spiritual things of the teacher. What is the result if this is not done? "Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting." To whom is Paul writing? The Galatian brethren, and not to the world. About what are they not to be deceived? Communicating to the teacher in all good things. And he that withholds the good things and uses them for his own gratification is sowing to his flesh and shall of the flesh reap corruption. When will the reaping take place? In this same connection these brethren are told: "And let us not be weary in well doing: for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not." The reaping time is at the resurrection, and the one that sows to his flesh will reap corruption. So you can see, dear reader, just what a serious matter this is.

Since this is a matter of so much importance and means so much to us, we ought not to pass it by lightly. What is our portion and how much are we to give are questions that should be very carefully considered. People are always wanting to do things their own way and sometimes try to find proof for their actions in the Bible. Isaiah tells us, 53:6, that our own way is iniquity, so we ought to want to find the Lord's way and walk in it.

We are often referred to the ninth chapter of 2 Corinthians for proof that one can give what he pleases. Please turn and read the first eight verses. Now notice again the sixth and seventh. "But this I say, He which soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly; and he which soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully. Every man according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give." Many times the reader stops and exclaims, "There, I told you, Paul says, 'According as he purposeth in his heart,' so he can give what he pleases." Not so fast, my friend, read all the verse. "Every man according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give: not grudgingly, or of necessity: for God loveth a cheerful giver." If a man is going to give, let him purpose in his heart to give willingly, not grudgingly or of necessity; "for God loveth a cheerful giver." Paul, here, is not taking into consideration the amount to be given, but the manner in which it is given.

In 1 Corinthians 16:1, 2 we have the thought of proportionate giving. "Now concerning the collection for the saints, as I have given order to the churches of Galatia, even so do ye. Upon the first day of the week let every one of you lay by him in store, as God hath prospered him, that there be no gatherings when I come."

Lay by in store as God hath prospered you. Here the Corinthian brethren are told to lay by in store in proportion as God has prospered them. But this does not tell what the proportion is. In 1 Corinthians 9 we have something along this line. After asking the Corinthian brethren,

"If we have sown unto you spiritual things, is it a great thing if we shall reap your carnal things?" Paul goes on to say: "Do ye not know that they which minister about holy things live of the things of the temple? and they which wait at the altar are partakers with the altar? Even so hath the Lord ordained that they which preach the gospel should live of the gospel." How were the temple and altar services provided for? By the tithes and offerings. "Even so hath the Lord ordained that they which preach the gospel should live of the gospel." The Lord ordained this matter and it behooves us to take heed. This is in accord with what Christ said to the Pharisees: "Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye pay tithe of mint and anise and cummin, and have omitted the weightier matters of the law, judgment, mercy, and faith: these ought ye to have done, and not to leave the other undone." Some might say that tithing isn't so important, because Christ said the other matters were weightier. In what way were they weightier? He said that tithing ought to have been done. Judgment and mercy were weightier because tithing could be done as a form which would avail nothing with the others, which arose from impulses of love without which no act counts with God. In this connection read 1 Corinthians 13. Nevertheless Christ said they had done right in giving the tithe, thus putting the stamp of His approval on tithing. Many times it is said by those who try to evade the force of this statement, "Yes, but this was said under law regime, and we are not under law, but under grace." Yes, but the Sermon on the Mount was under law regime and under the same order the Master said, "Except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish." Most of His teaching was done under the old dispensation. Let us not try to evade the force of these scriptures.

This matter of stewardship is as much a life or death matter as repentance, baptism, or any other act of our Christian experience. I have come to the conclusion from observation and a very careful study of this subject from a Bible standpoint, that neglect of this matter will cause the loss of eternal life to more professors than any other of their shortcomings. Dear reader, will you not give this matter very careful consideration? In the words of the poet Eller we say:

"Give as you would if angels awaited your gift at the door,
Give as you would if the morrow found you where giving is o'er,
Give as you would to the Master, if you met His searching look, Give as you would of your substance if His hand your offering took."

Sometimes we are told that to tithe takes us back under the law. But it does not. Tithing came into God's economy long before the law. Abraham paid tithes to Melchisedec, God's high priest, many years before the law was given. Under which priesthood are we? The Aaronic or the Melchisedec? God said of Christ, "Thou art a priest for ever after the order of" (Please turn to Back Page)

Signs of the Times in the Religious World

WHETHER we regard this entire list of sins as having reference to the church or not, the fact remains that self-love, covetousness, boastfulness, unthankfulness, unholiness, and pleasure loving, as well as many of these other sins, are found today in the professed Christian church to an unprecedented degree. Since the middle of the last century these things have been more and more in evidence in the religious life of the people.

In the very period in which we have seen the appalling increase of crime, we have seen the spirit of self-love—grasping after worldly wealth and running after worldly pleasures—developing among the professed followers of Christ to an alarming degree.

It would seem from the reading of the prophecy that the entire charge was made against last-day religionists, for notice that without any break between the fourth and fifth verses, it says they will be "traitors, heady, highminded, lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God; having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof."

Many, if not all, of the troubles of the days in which we live, together with the distress of nations that we are now seeing, are the direct result of undermining the faith of the people in the Word of God by so-called doctors of divinity and philosophy. We say that the world must get back to God if it would be saved from the present distressing conditions; but is it not true that the turning to God must begin with the church?

Of course, if we deny the supernatural power of God in Christian experience, the result will be an expression of the natural in our lives, and that means self-love, covetousness, pride, a craze for pleasure, etc.; and these are the very things that have brought the world into such sore straits. These the prophecy says are the perils of the last days.

My friends, we cannot please God with a mere form, no matter how good the form.

The church can only give in harmony with what it has. It can give no power, unless the power of God is present in those who make up its membership; and Jesus plainly declared: "Ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you: and ye shall be witnesses."

The church cannot be a witness for God until the power of the Holy Spirit has come upon the people.

They may witness to morality, to form, to doctrine and ethics, but not to the power of Christ.

Now to such as call themselves fundamentalists, let us sound a warning.

"This know also, that in the last days perilous times shall come. For men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy, without natural affection, trucebreakers, false accusers, incontinent, fierce, despisers of those that are good, traitors, heady, highminded, lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God; having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof: from such turn away."

Fundamentalism means to too many today simply an adherence to the doctrines of the Book, that is: to creed without regard to its application to everyday living.

Professed Christians can get angry, sow discord among brethren, speak in an uncharitable manner, be palpably covetous, and still be regarded as fundamentalists. They can be filled with self-love, the love of the world, can run after the pleasures of the world, and make worldly people their associates, and still be members in good standing of a fundamentalist church.

What the church today is forgetting is that spiritual standards are just as fundamental and positive as the doctrines of the virgin birth or the resurrection of the dead. Without the spirit of Christ we are none of His, and God makes an absolute condition of sonship that we come out from the world and be separate.

The church that is not founded on the spiritual truths of this Book must fail; but it will not simply fail, it will also contribute to the perils of the last days.

Jesus said: "Every one that heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them not, shall be likened unto a foolish man, which built his house upon the sand: . . . it fell: and great was the fall of it."

Please notice that Jesus did not make the question of believing what He said the important thing, but doing what He said; and He said, "They are not of the world, even as I am not of the world." He said to let your light so shine before men that they, seeing your good works, shall glorify God. He said to seek first the kingdom of God—that is: to make Christian life come first in your plans, deeds, and thoughts.

The Christian life is an experience of power, and many by denying the power are making it a thing of weakness, thus robbing the church of its influence, removing the greatest check to crime the world has ever known, and making the times perilous. There is but one comfort in all this, and that is that Jesus said concerning these very perils: "He that shall endure unto the end, the same shall be saved." It means much to endure in the face of ridicule and the charge of narrowness that must be borne from those who call themselves modernists; but it means salvation in the end.

I feel especially concerned for the young people of our age, in their constant contact with skepticism in high school and college during the week, and a powerless modernistic church influence on Sunday. Miracles are rejected by these churches because they say (Please turn to Page Nine)

Bible Study for Personal Spiritual Growth

THE spirit of devotional Bible study should be an earnest of intense spirit. Ruskin says, "He who would understand a painting must give himself to it." He who would understand the deep things of God must give himself to them.

(2) It must be a spirit of dependence upon the Holy Spirit. The Spirit must interpret what the Spirit has inspired.

(3) This suggests that it must be a prayerful spirit. George Mueller, in writing of his experience in Bible study, says: "Spending three hours on my knees, I made such progress that I learned more in those three hours than in years before. From that time I became a lover of the Word of God." Does he mean that he learned more facts in three hours than in years before? No; he means that he spent enough time with the light of God's presence shed upon the Word to have revealed to him a secret which in turn unlocked other secrets, and thus to have opened before him a whole vista of truth. Many times we need to turn from the sacred pages with this prayer: "Open thou mine eyes, that I may behold wondrous things out of thy law." We can see the ordinary things without the help of God; but the unaided intellect, at its best, is absolutely unable to grasp the wondrous things of God.

(4) It should be a childlike spirit. Bacon urges, "One must enter the kingdom of the natural sciences like a little child." Christ insisted, "Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven," still less understand its deep mysteries.

(5) It should be an obedient spirit. We must be willing to let the Bible mean what it wants to mean. We must be willing to have our lives changed, cost what it may. "The organ of spiritual knowledge is an obedient spirit."

(6) Finally, it should be a practical spirit. This term is best defined in the Scripture language, "All that the Lord hath spoken we will do." If we would determine at once that henceforth in our Bible study, as we come to commands which we have not obeyed, we would with God's help obey them; as we come to precepts which we have not heeded, we would in His strength heed them; as we see examples which we have not imitated, we would under the Spirit's influence imitate them—our lives would grow by leaps and bounds.

TIME FOR DEVOTIONAL BIBLE STUDY

(1) Let it be a regular time. We should have a Median and Persian hour, that is, an unchangeable hour. It is a well known law of psychology that to form a habit we must suffer no exceptions.

(2) Let it be a daily time. Some of us may have a regular time, for example, once each week; but the daily plan is the more excellent one. The world pulls us daily. Satan spreads his snares for us more than once each day. Self asserts itself many times each day. Therefore, we should fortify our lives spiritually at least once a day.

(3) Let it be an unhurried time. We should give ourselves believing time. It takes time to become spiritual. Spirituality is not a matter of chance; it must be preceded by an adequate cause. If we would have large spiritual results in our lives, there must be sufficient spiritual causes. There is natural law in the spiritual world. But some one asks, How much time is unhurried time? We trust that it will not mean less than half an hour each day for any of us. Yet more important than this, it means time enough to forget time; time enough to forget the watch and the clock; time enough to forget the thing we have been doing, and the thing we mean to do next; time enough to meet God, and to hear Him speaking to the depths of our lives. We are not pleading for a mere form, but for an actual, personal, daily meeting on the part of each soul with its God.

(4) Let it be the very choicest time in the day. When is that? We used to think it was the last thing at night, but we found that usually the mind was tired or occupied with the many things which had taken place during the day. Then we tried the middle of the day, but found it impossible to avoid interruptions at that time. At last, several years ago, when we were at Cambridge, we heard of the Morning Watch—the plan of spending the first half hour or first hour of the day alone with God—and adopted the plan. With some of you who are following the same plan, we firmly believe that it is the best time in the day. The mind is less occupied. The mind is, as a rule, clearer, and the memory more retentive. But forget these reasons if you choose. The whole case may be staked on this argument; it equips a man for the day's fight with self and sin and Satan. He does not wait until noon before he buckles on his armor. He does not wait until he has given way to temper, or to unkind words, or to unworthy thoughts, or to easily besetting sin, and then have his Bible study. He enters the day forewarned and forearmed.

John Quincy Adams, President of the United States, noted in his journal, in connection with his custom of studying the Bible each morning, "It seems to me the most suitable manner of beginning the day." Lord Cairns, one of the busiest men in Great Britain, devoted the first hour and a half of every day to Bible study and secret prayer. We have all heard how Chinese Gordon, while in the Sudan, had a certain sign before his tent each morning which meant that he must be left alone. A friend recently saw his Bible in the Queen's apartments at Windsor, and told us that the pages of that book, which was his companion in the morning watch, were so worn that one could scarcely read the print. He always reminds us of Sir Henry Havelock, who took care to be alone each morning to ponder some portion of the Bible. When on the heaviest marches it was determined to start at some earlier hour than that which he had fixed for his devotions, he arose quite in time to hold undisturbed his communion with God. Ruskin, in speaking to the students at Oxford, said, "Read your Bible, making it the first morning business of your life to understand some portion of it clearly, and your daily business to obey it in all that you do understand." Francke spent the first hour of every day in private devotions. Wesley, for the last forty years of his life, rose every morning at four o'clock, and devoted from one to two hours to devotional Bible study and prayer. Rutherford was accustomed to rise every morning at three o'clock, and the whole of the earlier hours of the day were spent by him in prayer and meditation and study. Greater than all, we have it on the best of evidence that Christ rose a great while before it was day to hold communion with God. What He found necessary or even desirable can we do without? Spirituality costs. Shall we pay what it costs?—John R. Mott.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES IN THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

Continued from Page Seven

they are contrary to law; but are they?

Augustine, that great servant of God of the third century, who was himself a miracle of God's power to transform the life, said, "Miracles are not against nature, but only against nature as we know it." Fifty years ago, to speak around the world would have been a miracle to us, because it was contrary to nature as we then knew it. It is in reality only an extension of law into a field of which we had hitherto been ignorant.

There is a life of power of supernatural keeping, of joy that is unspeakable and full of glory. This, if you believe the Bible, is only a normal Christian experience.

Creation was a miracle, and even the modernist claims to believe in God as the Creator. But grant us a God who was capable of creating a world like this, and no miracle is too hard for Him to perform.

These men who call themselves Christian, and yet who deny the power of God, take from religion all the joy of the Christian life, and leave us nothing but the husk of duty. There is no greater comfort in the Christian life than to know that God answers prayer, and no greater joy than is found in communion with God; but much of present-day religion destroys all this.

These signs in the ecclesiastical world might not in themselves be convincing, but when you remember that Christ said it would be the condition of the church in the time following the age of persecution, and during a time of abounding iniquity, while the gospel of the kingdom was being preached in all the world as a witness, the whole prophecy dovetails together in such a remarkable manner that we cannot doubt this sign is here now.

In closing, let me ask you, As a professed Christian have you the power of God in your life, or is your religion simply a form? If only a form, then you are a sign of the times.

Did you once love the Lord your God with all your heart, but have lost the love and the sense of His presence? Find it again, friends, at any cost, for otherwise your religion is vain. Are you lukewarm in your religion? Then there will be nothing for you but to be spewed out of the mouth of God (Rev. 3:16).

Friends, we beseech you, do not constitute one of the perils of the last days.—Dr. Irving F. Barnes in World's Crisis.

JEHOVAH'S COVENANT WITH ABRAHAM

Continued from Page Three

Stephen is speaking: "And he (God) gave him none inheritance in it, no, not so much as to set his foot on."—Acts 7:5. Not a foot of it. Listen to the Apostle Paul's comment: "By faith he (Abraham) sojourned in the land of promise, as in a strange country, dwelling in tabernacles with Isaac and Jacob, the heirs with him of the same promise . . . These all died in faith, not having received the promises (the fulfillment of them), but having seen them afar off, and were persuaded of them, and embraced them, and confessed that they were strangers and pilgrims on the earth."—Heb. 11:9-13. No possession but a grave, and that resting place was purchased for coin current with the merchants (Gen. 23:1-9). The people of Heth would gladly have given the patriarch a place to bury his beloved Sarah, but no, he could not receive it as a gift, for it was already his own by virtue of the covenant.

IV

Has the Almighty forgotten His covenant? No! And Abraham greeted it from afar, and saw the ultimate realization in some future time, and with that confidence becoming a man whom God has been pleased to call his "friend," he pillowed his head upon the hope, and died, not having obtained possession. But as surely as God liveth, this old-time covenant sets aside every other right or claim to any other inheritance. The advocates of the so-called "Zionist Movement" may have in their propaganda the return of the Jews to their fatherland, but the Word of the Lord declares their national inheritance has been forfeited by reason of their rejection of the holy Son of God when He came to them as their long promised Messiah (Matt. 21:42, 43). The conditions of inheritance were clearly stated by Moses in Deuteronomy 28 and 29, and those conditional claims have been violated, consequently their polity is gone. There is no land to which the Jewish people can lay any legal claim, for all the land is embraced within the covenant made unto Abraham. Their nationality is now a thing of the past, and not until the "bottle" which the Prophet Jeremiah was told to break in the presence of the people of Israel can be put together again, can the Jewish nation be restored (Jer. 19:1-12).—Samuel Forsby in The Messiah's Advocate.

Abreast of the Times

“As the World Seethes With Unrest”

“They shall not prosper: their everlasting confusion shall never be forgotten.”—Jer. 20:11.

CHICAGO, Ill., March 1.—“Riots in France . . . civil war in Austria . . . unrest in Germany. . . Italy armed and waiting . . . Britain slapping back at France’s trade duties . . . Russia alert for action on the Japanese border . . . throughout the globe a growing fear that a new world conflict is in the making.”

Thus The Chicago Tribune calls attention dramatically to the chaotic conditions prevailing everywhere. In its news columns and editorials this paper shows a commendable spirit of conservatism, but in its advertising sections, in which the preceding statement appears, it speaks more freely and warningly of the situation.

“At no time since 1918,” the paper continues, “has world news held such wide interest for Americans. Every day brings new developments in the amazing world picture. The march of events sweeps forward with quickening tempo. Today’s petty incident may prove to be tomorrow’s second Sarajevo.”

From every capital of the world comes the sound of confusion and uncertainty as never before. It is no longer possible for the “watchman on the walls of Zion” to keep “Abreast of the Times.” The following abbreviation of news reports from various parts of the world strongly confirms the analysis made by The Chicago Tribune.

From Tokio, under date of February 28, comes the announcement that Russia and Japan “exchanged sharp protests concerning military airplane flights over each other’s territory.” The Japanese Government protested that Soviet planes had recently flown over Manchukuo and Corea, while Russia complained that Nipponese planes had violated Soviet territory near Pogradichnaya and Iman, and at the same time denied the allegation of Japan.

To allay the fears of the world a Japanese official declared that “the world need not be afraid that Russia and Japan are on the verge of war. All of these protests and the noisy fuss are a good sign that the danger of war is far away. When both sides are silent, look out.”

Also from the capital of Japan came the report of the coronation of Pu-Yi, twenty-three years old, as the Emperor of the new Manchurian state. The Emperor will hereafter be known as “Kang Teh.” Observers generally recognize the new nation as a future province of Japan, and a probable menace to the peace of Asia, especially with reference to the relations of Russia and the Sunrise Kingdom.

Vienna continued nervous and excited as the Nazi ultimatum that they be given positions in the Government expired. Troop movements continued throughout Austria and talk heightened of a restoration of the Hapsburgs.

Paris reports the demand for the immediate construction of a new 26,000 ton battle cruiser of the same type as the Dunkerque to match Germany’s 10,000 ton “pocket” battleships, as a part of the Government’s new defense policy, which undoubtedly is aimed at Germany.

Referring to the present European situation as it is pictured in the press, the Christian Herald remarks editorially in the current issue, “It is an ugly, ominous, disheartening page. The world, which killed the last generation of young men, appears to have learned nothing. It is preparing itself, feverishly, to make the same sacrifice of the present generation.”

May Renew Relations With Vatican

“Because of unbelief they were broken off, and thou standest by faith. Be not highminded, but fear.”

ROME, Italy, Jan. 26.—It is of special interest to those who look for political developments in the old Roman Empire to take on a religious appearance just before the Lord comes, to learn that the rumor persists in Rome that there may be a renewal of diplomatic relations between the United States and the papal authorities in the near future.

The legality of such a movement was recognized in the fact that since the United States’ last official intercourse with the Pope, which ceased in 1867, the temporal power of the Bishop of Rome has been established over Vatican City and a small contiguous territory, thus creating a new sovereign State in the midst of the Italian kingdom.

However significant or insignificant the recognition of the Vatican State may be, the student of prophecy will observe with keenest interest all that takes place within the borders of the ancient Roman Empire.—Item selected by Sr. Elta M. Fitz.

—0—

Canada Rebukes Nazi Envoy

“They that seek my hurt speak mischievous things, and imagine deceits all the day long.”—Psalm 38:12.

OTTAWA, Canada, Feb. 28.—“Grossly offensive” was the way in which Sam Jacobs, Jewish member of the House of Commons, described a publication entitled, “Germany’s Fight for Civilization,” which Dr. Ludwig Kempf, German Consul General in Montreal, is alleged to have caused to be distributed in this country. So serious were the objections to the publication that for a time it appeared that the Canadian Government might be forced to ask Germany to replace Dr. Kempf with a representative more acceptable to the Jewish citizens of the Dominion.

The Government, however, according to press dispatches, “has asked and received assurances that no further copies will be circulated” of the offensive anti-Semitic literature.

National Berean Department

Miss Genniel Carpenter, Editor, Oregon, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Cecil A. Smead, President
Blanchard, Michigan

Virgil Claypool, Treasurer
506 E. Chestnut St.
Robinson, Illinois

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
Oregon, Illinois

WORDS OF COMFORT

"Ah Christ, that it were possible,
For one short hour to see
The souls we loved, that they might tell us,
What and where they be!"—Tennyson.

Death, the grim enemy of mankind, has entered your home and cast the dark shadow of his presence over your heart. We most deeply sympathize with you, because we have passed through the same sad experience ourselves. While we realize the futility of attempting to bring you comfort by words only, yet we hope that you will find some degree of solace in the knowledge that you do not weep alone.

A curtain, which our eyes cannot penetrate, has been lowered between us and our loved ones on the other side, and nothing but the mighty power of God's eternal Word can draw it aside. Let us, therefore, seek therein for the assurance which it alone can give.

Death is a most dreadful reality, a most relentless enemy! The ordinary problems of life sink into comparative nothingness when we stand face to face with this, the greatest of all mysteries! We would not deceive you, even in our desire to comfort; for such would but add to your distress. So we shall speak plainly, as God speaks in the Scriptures.

Death is real! Death is terrible! Of this there can be no doubt. The Bible calls it the "last enemy" of man. No! Death is not a friend sent by the Father to usher our loved ones into eternal bliss. God must not be held responsible for our sorrow. He who loves us, He whose heart is filled with tender pity for our distresses, surely would not bring this evil into our lives, for "God is love!"

What, then, brought death about? Paul answers our question very clearly: "By one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned." Sin, therefore, brought death into the world, and God is not the author of sin. Then let us not blaspheme the sacred name of our loving heavenly Father by saying, "God has robbed us of our loved one!" God is our Friend and "very present help in trouble"; and He assures us that He has "no pleasure in the death of him that dieth." Man brought sin into the world, and sin brought death, for "the wages of sin is death." But "God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

The same blessed Lord, He who suffered and died that we might live, is coming again in like manner as He went away—literally, visibly, gloriously—and those who have served Him here, those who have believed in Him, those who have obeyed Him, "though (they) be dead, yet shall (they) live: and whosoever liveth" in that glad day "and believeth in (him) shall never die. Believest thou this?" "For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first: then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord. Wherefore comfort one another with these words."

"Words of Comfort," written by G. E. Marsh and first published as a tract by the Churches of God at Niagara Falls, New York, and Fonthill, Ontario, about 1925, has been republished in tract form by the National Berean Society. Copies of this new edition may be secured in quantities, free and postpaid, by addressing the Society at Oregon, Illinois.

REPORT OF ROCKFORD BEREANS FOR 1933

THERE were forty-four regular meetings held during the year with an average attendance of twenty. We studied the Senior Berean Book No. 1, The Gospel Plan. On February 17, there was a junior Berean class organized with John Railton as teacher and a primary class with Verna Thayer as teacher.

On February 10, the class enjoyed a Valentine party which had been planned as a surprise at the close of the lesson.

On May 26, the review lesson was conducted in the form of an old-fashioned spelling-bee.

Instead of the regular lesson, June 30 the class enjoyed listening to a debate, "Resolved: That the righteous do not go to heaven at death."

Brother Marsh came up from Oregon on October 20 and gave a very interesting talk on prophecy.

On November 3, after a short devotional service, the ladies of the Dorcas Society held a pie social.

Esta Starbuck had charge of the meeting December 22. She presented a Christmas service which was effective.

The following officers were elected for 1934: Esta Starbuck, president; Earl Mogle, first vice president; Ruth Starbuck, second vice president; Bess Kasper, secretary-treasurer.

—Bess Kasper, Secretary.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"Of a truth thou art the Son of God."

WHAT LOVE AND FAITH CAN DO

A BUSY man was Jesus. Not one idle moment in His life, scarcely enough time for rest! The time between our lesson of last Sunday and this was filled to overflowing with deeds of kindness—feeding the five thousand, healing the sick and crippled, feeding also four thousand people, teaching, and preaching.

All of this came within His mission, which was to preach the kingdom of God. For in the kingdom of God there will be no sickness, no cripples, no hungry people, none who do not know about God and His Son Jesus. And the best way Jesus could explain God's kingdom to the people was by healing them, showing them God's love in their own lives.

You know, Jesus was sent especially to the Israelites; the "lost sheep" they were sometimes called. But here in today's lesson He helped one who was not an Israelite. Perhaps it is given to show us that we, too, can come to Jesus and ask for help, even if we are not Israelites or Jews, as we call them.

Jesus had gone away to rest and to talk to His beloved apostles for a little while. Even then He wasn't selfish, but gave of His healing power when it was asked. There was one thing He required, though. Do you know what that was?

Let's see if we can find out just what faith is. Most of you have been sick and Father has called in the doctor at some time or other. The doctor studies your case, decides just what is the trouble, and leaves some medicine for you to take.

You haven't the least idea what kind of medicine it is, and you can hardly swallow the bitter stuff sometimes. But you take it right down, because you think your doctor knows what he is about, and if you follow his directions you will soon be well.

Why, that is just what faith is! You don't understand all about it, but you believe just the same. And that is what Jesus requires—faith. Really, one who doesn't have faith in Him isn't worthy of the things Jesus can give, is he?

This mother in today's lesson didn't hesitate because she thought Jesus had come especially to help the Jews. She had heard of His wonderful love, and she may even have seen Him over near the shores of the Lake of Galilee. So, when He came to her country, she hurried to ask Him to heal her little daughter.

As you read the story over in your Bibles, you may think at first that Jesus didn't want to help her. But, remember, Jesus never refused anyone who asked, and He was happy when they wanted His help. So read the story over again.

At home was the little girl "out of her head," as we say, not having her right mind. There was Jesus, able to heal any and every disease. Here was the mother, who loved her little girl and was so sad because of her illness. What more natural thing than that she should ask Jesus' help, even if they were not Jews?

Jesus didn't heal the little girl after the mother's first request. Not because He wasn't sorry for her and didn't want to help her, but to see how strong her faith was. And she didn't give up, did she, until she had Jesus' promise? That was strong faith, the kind of faith that pleases God.

Can you picture the little home when the mother got back? She had left her little girl "out of her head," perhaps not knowing even her mother. She came back and found her well and happy, most likely trying to do a little work around the house.

And we are sure the mother told her all about Jesus and how He had healed her. They must have loved Him above all else, and told others about Him, too. That's what love and faith can do, if we ask Jesus to help.

Our Savior is just as willing to help us today as He was those about Him when He walked over the hills of Judea and along the sandy shores of Galilee. He will help us each day if we only ask Him—help us in our work at school, in our play to act fair and square, in our Sunday school lessons, in everything.

But Jesus doesn't want us to sit down and wait for His help. The way to show that we have faith in Him is to ask for His help and then go ahead and do things with all our might as nearly as He would have us do them as we can. That's being real "Sons and Daughters of the King."

And now, listen, there is a knock at our clubhouse door! Go quickly and open the door, Jeannette, for it's cold outside. A girl and a boy from up north, Hector, Minnesota, ask to enter and become members. Come in, Ruth and John Anderson, we're very glad to have you join us. Let's widen our circle, girls and boys, and make room for them. Ruth is seven, and John is eleven.

As soon as I get more seals you will receive your membership cards, Ruth and John. Remember to study your lesson every week and try to follow our King every day.

The Sunday School Lesson

FROM TRUTH SEEKERS' QUARTERLY

LESSON 11. — March 18, 1934

JESUS RESPONDS TO FAITH

Matthew 13:53 to 16:12

Devotional Reading: Psalm 4

GOLDEN TEXT

Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you.—Matthew 7:7.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Aim: To impress upon the pupil's mind the importance of faith in God and in the Lord Jesus Christ.

Basic Truth: "Be not afraid, only believe."—Mark 5:36.

I. The Reward of Faith. (Matt. 15:21-28.) In the persevering faith of the Gentile woman whose story is so graphically told in our lesson, and in the grace which Jesus showed in finally granting her repeated appeals, we have one of the most wonderful lessons our Lord has left us. This was Jesus' only excursion beyond the bounds of Israel, and apparently the first thing He did was to respond to the prayer of one who had no legal claim upon His mercy. Cornelius, although "a devout man, and one that feared God with all his house, which gave much alms to the people, and prayed to God alway" (Acts 10:2), was still a Gentile "in the flesh" and an alien "from the commonwealth of Israel," a stranger "from the covenants of promise, having no hope," i. e., no legal claim on God's promises, "and without God in the world." Yet his prayers were heard by the Father of mercies, and he was led into the fullness of knowledge of the gospel and into obedience to it. While the contention of the blind man is true, and "God heareth not sinners" (John 9:31), our Father is infinitely merciful, and, moved entirely by grace, will hear and answer the prayer of the humble, whether or not they have as yet met all the conditions of eternal salvation. Such an answer does not carry with it the assurance of salvation, however, but is an evidence of God's universal love.

II. Our Lord's Resistless Power. (Vv. 29-31.) No disease could withstand the healing power of Almighty God, and that was the power wielded by His Son our Lord. Every affliction, even though it meant the restoration of a lost hand or foot or arm, was healed with equal ease by Jesus Christ. This same resistless force will be brought to bear to eradicate the sorrows and weakness of the whole world, "when the times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord; and he shall send Jesus Christ" to bring about the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began" (Acts 3:19-21).

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

A Definite Work. Jesus had a definite work to do. His work was confined to the "lost sheep of the house of Israel." He came unto His own (John 1:11). His work was cumulative and progressive, outlined and defined. His life's work of accomplishing a set and predetermined purpose can well be patterned after. Unless we have some definite purpose in view, our labors are more or less at random. Every person, every church, every Sunday school, every Bible class should have a definite and prearranged purpose always in mind; and then every effort should be bent to attain unto that end. Of course, our plan should coincide with the plan of the Father.

Despair. The woman from Canaan was in despair. She had been passing through the valley of trouble. Her daughter was grievously vexed with a devil. They needed help. All previous attempts had ended in failure. The Son of God was her only hope. There was a great chasm between her and the "lost sheep of the house of Israel," but that could not stop her. She would bridge that gap ahead of other Gentiles, and she did it by her faith. Many times it requires extreme circumstances to bring people to the realization that they need the Son of God. Like the Master, we are oftentimes led unto perfection through the garden of suffering and humiliation. If such accomplishes the task, it has not been in vain. Despair may be a door of hope to us as it was to the woman of Sidon.

Glorifying God. The works of Jesus were a source of glory to the Father. He glorified the Father by doing the Father's will. Men saw His good works and glorified the Father (Matt. 5:16). This is the sum total and grand finale of a successful life (Rev. 4:11). All our efforts should be to the end that the Father may be glorified. Self should be submerged in the glory.—C. E. R.

GOLDEN TEXT

"Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you."—Matthew 7:7.

There is an old saying that "one sees the thing he is looking for, even if he looks in a mudhole." How truly this applies to our text: if one is looking for good, he usually sees it; if he looks for underworld things, he finds them. If we seek Christ, we are sure to find Him; if we ask of the Father in His name, we have the promise of receiving; if we knock at the door of Christ, it swings open.

All this takes faith and persistence as the woman in today's lesson showed her faith. Simple, childlike faith brings its reward. Try it in sincerity and reap the results of an ever abiding faith. It will pay a hundredfold in this life and in the life to come, everlasting life.—L. A. R.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULTS

Faith Tested and Triumphant

Faith is the one thing that will make us pleasing to God (Heb. 11:6). Man is so evil by nature that he cannot hope to please God by his goodness. God is fully aware of the carnal nature of man and has, in His mercy and love, made it possible for him to have a substitute for the righteousness he is unable to attain; but no substitute is available for the righteousness man can attain but doesn't. God expects man to do his part.

The substitute is faith. Paul tells us that "Abraham believed God, and it was counted unto him for righteousness. . . . Now it was not written for his sake alone, that it was imputed to him; but for us also, to whom it shall be imputed, if we believe on him that raised our Lord from the dead."—Rom. 4:3, 23, 24. Cf. Eph. 2:8, 9. "Now faith is a confident assurance (the ancients used this word for 'title-deed') of that for which we hope, a conviction of things which we do not see. By it the saints of old won God's approval."—Heb. 11:1, 2, Weymouth.

Faith is essential to salvation, but it must be the variety that will stand testing. Peter encouraged those of his day with these words: "Ye are in heaviness through manifold temptations: that the trial of your faith, being much more precious than of gold that perisheth, though it be tried with fire, might be found unto praise and honour and glory at the appearing of Jesus Christ."—1 Pet. 1:6, 7. See also 1 Pet. 4:12; Jas. 1:2, 3; 1 John 5:4.—H. A. S.

PRIMARY CLASS

Topic: Jesus Helps a Roman Soldier.

Memory Verse: "Ask, and it shall be given you."—Matt. 7:7a.

Once when Jesus had come into Capernaum, a centurion came to Him. A centurion was a man who had charge of 100 soldiers. The centurion said to Jesus, "Lord, my servant is very sick of the palsy."

Jesus said, "I will come and heal him."

"No," said the man, "I am not worthy to have You come under my roof; but if You speak, my servant shall be healed." He had great faith in Jesus, to think that He could heal his servant without even going to his house.

Jesus thought he had great faith, too. So He said to the man, "Go thy way, it shall be done." And the servant was healed.

This man asked a great favor of Jesus, and Jesus granted him his wish. Our Father in heaven is waiting for us to ask things of Him. The Bible says, "Ask, and it shall be given you." Let's all repeat it together.

But that doesn't mean we get everything that we ask for. For sometimes we ask for things that we should not have. Rather let us say, "If it is Thy will, may we have so and so."

God will grant us all we need and all He thinks best for us. Remember, "Ask, and it shall be given you."—V. C. T.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

1934 GENERAL CONFERENCE 1934

Each succeeding year brings us just that much closer to the last General Conference of the Church of God, when the faithful of all ages shall meet in the presence of the King. As we realize the passage of time, the shortening of opportunity for labor, and the importance of preparation for the glorious consummation of all our hopes we naturally are moved to deeper consecration and to more earnest service.

The time will soon be here for another great meeting at Oregon, Ill., like those that have been held for so many years in the past. The date has already been set, July 31 to August 12, inclusive, and plans are being mapped out for the most blessed assembly of our people in history.

Pray now for the success of the gathering, and begin at once to budget your time and resources in such a way that, by the blessing of God, you may be able to attend.

Remember the date—July 31 to August 12, 1934.

G. E. Marsh, Secretary.

A CHANGE IN THE OFFICE FORCE

Miss Hazel Wilde, who for a number of years has been the bookkeeper of the National Bible Institution, and has also acted as assistant treasurer, being appointed to that position by Treasurer T. J. Ellis, has resigned her position with us to accept a flattering offer from the Ogle County Farm Bureau.

Miss Wilde, although not a member of the Church of God, has proven herself an exceedingly efficient and conscientious member of our headquarters force. In fact, we could not hope to find a person in or out of the church who would have manifested a greater interest and concern over the success of our general work than has Miss Wilde, and she goes from us with the hearty good wishes of all who have known the splendid service she has so long rendered.

The board at a specially called meeting recently took up the matter of arranging for a successor. The entire board was present and discussed freely the needs of the Institution in this regard, and finally decided on the appointment of Bro. Arlen Marsh as bookkeeper and assistant treasurer in place of Miss Wilde. Bro. Arlen has been employed on an hourly basis as proofreader for some time, at the lowest figure allowed by the NRA. He now goes on full time at a weekly wage of less than two thirds of what was formerly paid for bookkeeping alone, and carries the proofreading, bookkeeping, stenographic work, and assistant treasurer's duties. This means an appreciable saving to the Institution.

RECEIVED ON NEW INDEBTEDNESS FUND

To date	$239.50
Mr. and Mrs. M. Feters	5.00
Mrs. Virtie V. Sitler	25.15
Lillian Sweeney	5.00
Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Sprinkle	2.00
E. E. Elton	50.00
Lottie E. Young	100.00
Total	$426.65
Total pledges	504.00
Total pledges and contributions	$930.65

RENSELAER, INDIANA

A baptismal service was held at Rensselaer, Ind., on Sunday, Feb. 11. Sylvia Eileen Eldridge, young daughter of Bro. and Sr. Korah Eldridge, was baptized by Bro. Paul Magnus. Sylvia has attended the Church of God Sunday school at Rensselaer for some time.

Mattie H. Scott.

REPORT FOR FEBRUARY

Sermons: Pleasant View, 10; Rensselaer, 2; Hillisburg, 2. Funerals, 2. Marriages, 1. Money received: Pleasant View, $20.50; Rensselaer, $24.60; Hillisburg, $15.00. Expenses, $10.45.

Because of bad weather we were unable to get to Plymouth and North Salem for services on the fourth Sunday.

J. H. Anderson, Indiana Evangelist.

MORA, MINNESOTA

The congregation at Mora, Minn., greatly enjoyed the two services conducted Thursday and Friday evenings, Feb. 22 and 23, by Elder Adna Hoskins of St. Cloud. The meeting Thursday night was at the G. W. Randall home, where Bro. Hoskins showed pictures with a magic lantern of his trip east last fall to Niagara Falls and Fonthill, Ont., Can. These, with a song service, Scripture, and prayer, and a running comment as the pictures were shown, made a full evening. The next night preaching services were held in the McKinley Schoolhouse with nearly as many present.—A chart was used and a good sermon enjoyed.

Bro. and Sr. William Ecklund of Mora celebrated their silver wedding February 20. They were tendered a surprise reception with a program of music and talks. Refreshments were served and the honor guests presented with a purse of money, both responding with a few words of appreciation.

Mrs. E. J. Randall.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

Full audiences have been attending the Sunday morning chart sermons on The Plan of the Ages. The Sunday school, Berean, and Dorcas departments are also showing increased interest and activity and every attempt is being made to cope with the problem of providing room. Some real plans are in the minds of our workers and we hope to be able to announce something definite soon.

On February 28 a meeting of Sunday school teachers and officers was held. Supt. Townsend has in mind another church census of our community in the near future.

The Sunday night service of February 25 was made a matter of spiritual strength to all of us by the obedience of Mrs. George Witham, 225 Himes St., S. E., and Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins, 250 Walter St., S. E. After their baptism they were welcomed into the church by the hand of fellowship. We are thankful to have these parents as part of our church group.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO N. B. I.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Claussen	$10.00
J. W. Sweet	1.50
Maurertown, Va., Sunday School	1.50
Orland F. Marsh	3.00
Mrs. Chaffee	.50
C. E. Hatch	3.00

ASHLAND, OHIO

I have just been reading and rereading some of the articles in The Herald of February 20. I think this issue is especially good. All are good, but this one is especially good, because it lays stress upon what seems to me a neglected subject among our people; that of the spiritual phase of the Christian life. I don't think anyone can accuse me of neglecting the doctrinal side, for I have been one of the strongest doctrinarians among us. Some of our people have said that we have neglected the spiritual side for the doctrinal, and that is true to a certain extent; yet I think we can develop the spiritual without in any way minimizing our teaching of the doctrinal. My thought is that we study the Scriptures in such a way as to make them a part of our very being so that we live the doctrines of Christ.

Take for instance the doctrine of the coming of Christ with the resurrection of the dead and the setting up of the kingdom. These are THE doctrines of the Bible. These are the center, and everything else revolves around these. If we study these aright our very being will be thrilled, and as Dr. Barnes says in "A Great Denominational Need," "If we were boiling, fervid in spirit, there would be little trouble in paying the bills necessary to the conduct of the work of Christ." Dr. Barnes says that the Greek word "zeo" rendered "fervent" is defined, "To boil, be hot, fervid." What will make us boiling more than a diligent seeking after the purpose of God in a study of the glorious coming of our Lord, the resurrection of the dead, and the appearance of His glorious kingdom? The contemplation of such things ought to thrill us through and through. I guess the trouble is we do not meditate day and night as David said we should. The cares of this world and the deceitfulness of riches choke out the word before the fire can be kindled.

Everything is going with us about as usual. I am hoping to be able to attend the General Conference this fall.

Your brother in Hope,
James A. Patrick.

Begin to plan now to attend your state and national conferences this next summer. You need the inspiration these great gatherings give.

FINKBEINER - HOLLY

It was our privilege on February 18 to officiate at a very pretty home wedding at the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Holly when their older daughter, Olive, became the bride of Mr. Sammie I. Finkbeiner.

This spacious farm home is well known to many of our people, having been for years in the past the home of Bro. and Sr. George Holly, parents of Henry and grandparents of Olive, and nearly all of our ministers who have worked in Michigan at any time have enjoyed its hospitality.

The home was daintily decorated for the occasion, and some fifty relatives and close friends were present.

Olive is a bright, industrious girl, and Sam a very steady, dependable young man; so we feel very safe in predicting a happy, successful life together.

May God tenderly guide them all the way.
F. E. Siple.

BETWEEN YOU AND ME—

The National Berean Society is publishing a new tract for free, postpaid, distribution: "Words of Comfort," by G. E. Marsh. Read it on the Berean Page of this issue. Copies will be mailed as soon as printed upon request to the Society at Oregon, Illinois.

Without asking permission to do so we are publishing in another column a letter from Elder James A. Patrick, former president of the General Conference. This letter is so exceedingly helpful in its suggestion that we call your attention to it specially. Another article from Bro. Patrick's hand will also soon appear.

"Betty Jean" is the young lady's name, and she arrived with the sun last Wednesday morning, Feb. 28, 1934, at the home of Bro. and Sr. Frederick Claussen in Oregon, Ill. She has been invited to stay as the playmate of little Barbara Ellen who preceded her by a couple of years. Bro. Claussen is one of our print shop operators.

Speaking of the election of new Sunday school officers, which in this instance included two young men, Sr. Dorothy M. Demmitt, Tippecanoe City, Ohio, remarks, "We are glad to see these capable young men take hold of their new offices so willingly and earnestly." Young people should be encouraged to assist in every department of church and Sunday school work. The churches need their energy and progressiveness.

Pledges and remittances continue to come in to the New Indebtedness Fund for which the board is deeply grateful. Come on, brethren, and we'll go over the top together!

It is an indication of spiritual growth to find several of our churches endeavoring to build up and strengthen the worship part of their services, and to enter upon the study of prayer as systematically as they do that of any other subject. The Church of the Golden Rule, Cleveland, Ohio, we understand, is now arranging such a course of study. It cannot be other than beneficial.

We are glad to receive so many helpful articles from former members of the Training School. Our readers always welcome the work of these young people, as they handle their subjects in a fresh and interesting manner.

Many appreciative letters reach us concerning the Children's Page, conducted by Sr. Mary A. Gesin. Mrs. G. B. Sprinkle, Cheyenne, Wyo., says, "I often read the Children's Page to my little Sunday school class, and it proves of much interest to them."

Arthur Gilbey of the Fonthill, Ont., congregation reports that he recently accompanied Elder F. L. Austin to Penfield, N. Y., where Bro. Austin delivered two addresses at the Advent Christian Church.

Sr. Catherine Davis, Freeport, Ill., says that as soon as she has read her Restitution Herald each week she passes it on to others, and thus doubles its circulation and usefulness. Surely that is a form of missionary effort that many others might well engage in.

In a letter asking that her paper be discontinued we learn of the death of Mrs. Margaret Allen, of Sac City, Iowa, which occurred December 27, 1933. Sr. Allen was eighty-nine years old, and our informant declares, "She had strong faith in her belief." She therefore rests in hope, awaiting the Master's call. We regret we had no earlier information concerning her death, and that no obituary has reached us.

The second of the series of sermons on the church which the editor is presenting at Oregon was received by an unusually large audience last Sunday night. Nearly half of those present were not of the church membership. The pastor compared the church to the Government Civil Service Commission, by which the workers of the Government are chosen. The church is God's instrument by which future kingdom rulers are being selected and qualified. The subject next Sunday night will be "The Waning Belief in Heaven and Hell."

MRS. JOHN DAVIS

Mrs. John Davis passed away with a heart attack at her home in White Salmon, Wash. (date unknown). She was born in Freedom Township, Carroll County, Ill., in 1864, the daughter of David and Elizabeth Renner. United in marriage to John H. Davis in 1887. Husband and two sons preceded her in death. Surviving are three sons: Robert, Howard, and Leo Davis, residing in the West. One daughter lives in Alaska; three brothers, Reuben, David, and John Renner in Wisconsin; four sisters, Mrs. Ella Tracy in Wisconsin, Mrs. Sarah Keyser, Centralia, Wash., Mrs. Ida Barker, Portland, Ore., Mrs. Catherine Davis, Freeport, Ill.; and several grandchildren.

Sr. Davis united with the Church of God in her nineteenth year, baptized by Elder T. J. Whitesitt, and often expressed her faith in the soon coming of our Lord. She was a devoted mother, a true wife and friend. She was laid to rest February 22 beside her husband and son to await the call of the Master.

"Asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep,
From which none ever wake to weep:
A calm and undisturbed repose,
Unbroken by the last of foes."

Mrs. Catherine Davis.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mrs. R. E. Arthand (for self and another); John D. Davis; J. E. Herriott; Mrs. Jennie McDonald; G. A. Carpenter; Thomas Davis; Freeman Fike (for others); Mrs. John Coyner; William Moore; Mrs. Frances Wynn; Mrs. W. L. Robbins (for another); J. W. Cooper; Mrs. Eva L. Underwood; Mrs. Sarah Manuwal; Mrs. Alice Aken Price; Mrs. Jesse Weaver; F. C. Stilson; S. A. Dorris; Mrs. Edwin Crosby; D. G. Harvey; Mrs. J. M. Reid; Samuel T. Kee; Mrs. Eva C. Collins; Mrs. Claude A. Graham; C. E. Hatch.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by
National Bible Institution
Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. Sample copy, Free.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

CONTRIBUTORS TO DOLLAR-A-MONTH CLUB

Mr. and Mrs. M. Fetters; Mr. and Mrs. Delos Andrew; Mr. and Mrs. George M. Siple; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Starbuck; Mrs. Levi Mick; Mrs. Marian R. Richards; Mrs. Eva H. M. Fletcher; Mrs. Helen M. Chisholm; Mrs. D. W. Brown; Mrs. Lillian A. Greiner.

OUR PRESENT GOAL

As our president and manager announced when the present Indebtedness Fund drive was inaugurated, the goal of our effort at this time is to secure pledges and contributions of at least Two Thousand Dollars within ninety days of the date the appeal was sent out. If this amount can be raised in that time it is believed that a satisfactory settlement can be made at a great saving of money to our brethren with the defunct bank that holds the notes of the Institution. This debt must of course be met, but if the amount mentioned can be secured at once it is thought a more favorable adjustment can be made with the receiver.

Please remember that any who pledge funds for this particular purpose may have their pledge cancelled or, if they have sent in the amount in cash, their money returned to them, if the amount needed is not fully raised, providing they express such a desire.

This is a splendid opportunity to help free your Institution of debt, and start it out with a clean slate into the great task of evangelistic service and publication work.

Let's
climb
the Ladder
to Success

$900
$800
$700
$600
$500
$400
$300
$200
$100

OUR STEWARDSHIP

Continued from Page Six

Melchisedec." Under which priesthood was tithing instituted? Think it over.

There are two kinds of precepts in law: the moral and positive. A moral precept is one that is commanded because it is right. A positive precept is one that is right because it is commanded. A moral precept is one that always was right and always will be. A positive precept is one that is only right for the time of its operation under the command. To illustrate: "Thou shalt have no other gods before me." This was right before it was commanded and always will be right. Circumcision was not right before it was commanded nor is it right since the command ran out by limitation. That tithing was right before it was commanded in the law is shown from the fact that it was practiced by the friend of God; and by the one who was named Israel because he prevailed with God, long years before the law was given. Dare anyone say it is not as binding today?

Again, we hear it said that Paul never took wages for his work. The first quotation made from Philipians would disprove this assertion. Besides, he told the Corinthians, "I robbed other churches, taking wages of them, to do you service."—2 Cor. 11:8. And in the thirteenth verse of chapter 12 he asks them "to forgive me this wrong." How was he wronging them? By taking wages of other churches to do them service. But how was this a wrong to them? By not giving them the opportunity of seeking fruit that would abound to their account.

Again it is objected: "But you make it a matter of compulsion." I am only trying to tell you what the Bible says about it. You don't have to do it unless you want to. But Paul says, "He that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption," and he was speaking of this matter of giving to the cause of Christ. "But," says the objector, "you are making it a matter of compulsion. If I don't give what God requires I will lose eternal life." Well, Christ said, "Except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish." You don't have to repent, do you? No. But if you do not you realize there will be no eternal life for you. Again, Christ said: "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned." You don't have to believe, do you? There is no compulsion about it, is there? Then why do you do it? Are you looking only at the reward? Isn't it because you have learned to love God? Isn't it a spontaneous act because of your love for the Father?

When we come to the Word of God and learn of Him as the omnipotent One that brought the universe into existence and gave us our being, we at once believe, or have faith, which is the first step in pleasing Him. Then, when we behold His purity and holiness, our sins stand out in contrast as did Isaiah's (Isa. 6), and we see that we are undone. And as we begin to take stock of ourselves we find that we have nothing of our own—even our very lives are forfeit. Then in love He points us to the One who gave Himself a ransom for all, and when we behold the great sacrifice of our Father and of His Son our Savior, we are led to cry out, "What must we do to be saved?" Then in love we are told that it takes "repentance toward God, and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ." And as we come to know more and more of the love and sacrifice bestowed on us, the death to sin and burial in the waters of baptism become a matter of joyful service in obedience to His commands, and we rise from the watery grave and cry: "Lord, what can we do to serve Thee?" The reply comes: "Present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service." How much compulsion in it all? Didn't we gladly and joyfully yield? Is there anything that He requires that we will not as joyfully give? And let us not talk about giving anything until we have paid our debts and done it joyfully. When we have done this we will be in a position to make an offering to the Lord.

—0—
 "THE soul who cannot pity those in affliction will some day need others to pity it."

THE BEAUTY OF SERVICE

By Mildred L. Crofton

—0—
 "Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, To visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world."—James 1:27.

I GO to church on Sunday, perhaps I sit in the front pew. I listen attentively. I may compliment the preacher on his sermon if I feel so inclined. I go through all the necessary ceremonies, sometimes sincerely, sometimes mechanically. My conscience is soothed. I feel somewhat inspired and closer to God.

Or I write an article for my church paper and use my best English and my most flowery language. I air my knowledge of prophecy and ancient history and the events of the day.

But how often am I seen hovering over a sick bed and cooling a fevered brow, or uttering kind words of sympathy for some poor aching heart, or drying the orphan's tears, washing dirty little faces, and soothing hurt little fingers, or trying to lighten the load of some more unfortunate brother and make him happier, or helping any of the poor and needy ones?

Insignificant and menial tasks, perhaps; but until we have learned to perform them graciously, joyfully, and lovingly we are far from Christianity, for these things are the very core of Christianity itself.

How clearly these words of the Master ring down through the ages, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 23

OREGON, ILLINOIS, MARCH 13, 1934

NUMBER 24

THE NATURE OF MAN

WE cannot suppose that all bodies are the same, and that it is the life imparted to them that makes the difference. These differences are in the cells from which the different beings proceed. Scientists no doubt affect to regard these primordial cells as all alike, and argue that because man proceeds from a cell and the simplest life also proceeds from a cell which looks exactly like it, therefore man and the simplest life are really linked together in a chain of evolution. But the cell of man grows up into man only, and never under any circumstances could become anything else. It is really as different in its constitution from other cells as man is from the complete animal or tree.

The essential differences between living things are from the first in the protoplasmic cells with which they begin. Life only gives them a chance to develop. Thus we see that there is absolutely nothing in Genesis 2:7 to give the smallest support to the Platonic doctrine that man is a spirit-being incarnated in a body as in a house. Acknowledging this fact some have sought for the proof that man is a "spirit-being," or may become one, in the act of regeneration. If that were so then it follows that only regenerate persons would be "spirits," and not the unregenerates.

Man, who has become carnal and "earthly" through sin, by the operation of the Holy Spirit becomes spiritual. So it is imagined that a spirit-being has been born in him. But this is by no means the only or the most satisfactory explanation, since man would thus become two beings blended into one in some strange way, and we are given to understand that it is not a part of man but the whole of him, "body, soul, and spirit," that is renewed in regeneration.

The body is to share in that renewal as well as the "soul." Paul tells us in Romans 8:23 that we are "waiting for the adoption, to wit, the redemption of our body." This will be completely realized in the resurrection, for it is certain that resurrection does not mean some spiritual change taking place at regeneration as some have argued when hard put to it to make current ideas square with Scripture statements. Something of this kind was probably the error of Hymenaeus and Philetus who said (2 Tim. 2:18) that "the resurrection is past already." To sum up, tradition says man is essentially a spirit-being condemned to occupy a material body as a house or tent for the probationary period of this life and then to be released by death, and immediately, apart from resurrection and judgment, glorified in the very presence of God, or consigned to prison in hell, and yet can also be in some degree in touch with this earth and able to influence those left behind, thus establishing the claims of Spiritism.

The Herald commends this essay by H. Temple Wills, M. A., not only as a scholarly treatment of a familiar subject, but as a fragment of really good literature. The article was selected by R. A. Curtis from "Resurrection and Other Essays."

The Bible, on the other hand, says man is essentially a body to which the spirit, or breath of life, has been imparted, and that in consequence he has become, he is, a living "soul" or creature; and that this man, having forfeited his life through sin, suffers death in body and soul; that from this death he will be restored to life by resurrection, when he will be judged for reward if among the "just" at the coming of Christ, or for punishment if among the "unjust," at the end of the millennial reign. Tradition says that man being a spirit can never die or be destroyed.

The Bible again and again reiterates the fact that "the wages of sin is death," and that the possession of eternal life is conditioned by faith in the full atonement of our blessed Lord and Savior.

It must surely be clear to any unprejudiced reader that these two positions are opposed and contradictory. Both cannot be true at the same time. So if Plato and the traditional views based on his philosophy are right, the Bible, and our Lord and the apostles who support its teaching, are necessarily in serious error. Surely no one who realizes what this alternative implies can say or think for a moment that this is not a vital matter, and that men should be left to go on in their denial of Bible truth without a protest, or a serious attempt to point out their error!

We are sure that Satan will leave no stone unturned to lead the best of men astray; (Please turn to Page Nine)

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879.

G. Eldred Marsh, Editor

Two Dollars per Year

Paul C. Johnson, Associate Editor

"Lo, children are an heritage of the Lord: and the fruit of the womb is his reward."—Psalm 127:3.

A PRAYER FOR OUR CHILDREN

Most gracious Father, with a constantly deepening sense of gratitude we approach Thee by that most beloved of all titles, to thank Thee for the children Thou hast given unto us. Thou hast placed their lives in our keeping, Thou hast entrusted their future to our hands, and how inadequate we feel for the task assigned us! Yet we know this to be our duty and our opportunity. Through them may we bring blessing and comfort and spiritual light to generations yet unborn, should the Lord delay His coming. Help us, we pray Thee, to guide their youthful energies aright, to direct their opening minds to the truth that endures throughout eternity, to fit them to become useful, God-fearing men and women who will be prepared to hand down to their children the lessons we have learned of Thee. For Jesus' sake. Amen.

—0—

OUR CHILDREN

PERHAPS no people in the history of the world appreciated their children more than did the people of Israel. To them in a very peculiar way, children were "an heritage of the Lord," they were the gift of Jehovah, an indication that the parents had found special favor at Jehovah's hand. To be unblest with children was looked upon as evidence of the withdrawal of God's favor.

It remained for Jesus, however, to place children on the exalted plane to which Christianity has ever assigned them. He taught by precept and example that children were worthy of every attention and of every care. No hour could be so occupied with the teaching or with the healing of adults that time could not be found to take a little child in His arms to comfort and to assure it. Love, sympathy, understanding—these are the keys that unlock the child-heart!

In many localities the Church of God Sunday schools are drawing hundreds of children from homes outside of its church membership, and with the aid of our Truth Seekers' Quarterly, which places the strongest emphasis possible upon the splendid truths for which we stand, great good may be accomplished. With people hungering for the Word of God as is the case in these days, and with so many churches ignoring their desire, the way is open as never before for the presentation of the truth.

A FRIENDLY GESTURE

AT A TIME like this when the entire world is in a state of political, social, and religious unrest; when the general tendency is toward division and away from unity; when suspicion and uncertainty mark the attitude of nation toward nation, and man toward man, it is gratifying indeed to be able to call attention to the following friendly and fraternal suggestion which appeared in the editorial columns of the Present Truth Messenger, an Advent Christian weekly, published in Live Oak, Florida.

"One thing this writer would like to see is for all of the Adventist bodies that hold to the true Bible position on the life and death question and the true position on the two covenants to unite their efforts in these latter days. There is no sound reason why the Church of God people with headquarters at Oregon, Illinois, and the Advent Christian people should not unite their forces and thus greatly strengthen the effort of both to give 'meat in due season.' The opinions of a cross section of the membership of both groups would reveal an astonishing agreement in matters of faith and hope. Both bodies have passed beyond the controversial stage of their development. What marvelous strength this would give to both bodies could they but function as one. It is also interesting to note that the institutions of both groups fit admirably into a single program. Think of what Aurora College (Aurora, Ill., sixty-three miles east of Oregon) would mean to our Church of God folks and in turn think of what that fine paper and publishing house at Oregon, Illinois, would mean to Aurora. The same possibilities apply to all departments."

Our older brethren will recall that many of our early evangelists came to the Church of God through Advent Christian channels, and for the most part were men strong in faith, courage, and biblical knowledge. It is not at all strange, therefore, that with such close and sympathetic relations in the past there should still exist between these bodies a deep feeling of fraternity. And while complete organic union between us may be neither feasible nor altogether desirable at this time, nevertheless an effort should be made to strengthen that spirit of brotherhood which has been allowed to languish for many years, and for us to endeavor to become better acquainted with each other. For, as Editor Burr Bixler suggests, when it comes to the matter of biblical understanding there is much more that unites us than there is that keeps us apart.

The Land of Palestine

Views of the Nineteenth Century

By D. M. Hudler

IF England had no Ireland, and the world no Palestine, the history of both would be materially changed. Though many countries invite our attention, and command the interest of men and nations in general, none can compare with Palestine in this respect.

How limited and barren the Bible would be if naught was said of this land of Canaan, and of the Jews and Israelites. Especially would this be true of what we call the Old Testament. We will agree that this country has had a peculiar history, and that prophecy and the human instincts of this age are interested in the future glory and condition of this wonderful land. Its history is not yet complete.

It is a theater of the future, in which God will yet enact, through His people, great and marvelous deeds.

The simple fact is, God has reserved to Himself 192,000,000 acres of land, out of the 640,032,000 that compose the land surface of the earth.

Having thus preempted this three million square miles, He has forever forbidden it to be sold! This you will see if you read Leviticus 25:23: "The land shall not be sold for ever: for the land is mine."

This land was given unto Abraham and his seed forever. Am I to believe that this land was really given unto Abraham and his seed forever?

Several times the covenant, or bargain, is restated and referred to in the sacred Word. The gift I take to be a bona fide one, an actual, literal gift. The articles of the covenant, as you may read for yourself, made their uninterrupted possession of the same conditional.

Had the seed of Abraham proved faithful, they could have kept that land even to this day. They, however, as we know, broke their part of the covenant, and because of their unfaithfulness, they were by degrees exported, and scattered among the nations of the earth.

Ten parts of Abraham's seed, after their exportation, were to become lost to themselves, and to the rest of the world, for hundreds of years. That these ten tribes are lost, I think no one can doubt.

All along the whole line of controversy, this fact is admitted. Those who are trying to identify them are proof of that, and our opponents, by their vigorous protests against such an effort, prove the same.

They declare most emphatically that the lost tribes are neither found nor identified as yet. Be it so, all agree that they have been lost, as afore told by the mouth of the prophets, and all agree that they are lost, up to the present time.

Our sympathies and honor prompt us to wish that the Jews had been lost as the ten tribes—then, indeed, judging, humanly speaking, they would have saved much unjust persecution and much suffering. Our honor would have been purer and brighter and our heritage more noble, had not the Christian church, so-called, so shamefully stained her hands with innocent blood, and so unmercifully mal-treated the brethren of our Lord, according to the flesh. As a bloodhound can scent by trail its victim, so can an honest instinct follow the exiled sons and daughters of Israel down through the centuries.

The hypocrisy and vengeance, labeled with truth and meekness, that wielded the sword of persecution against the wandering children of Abraham are something terrible to think of! Sad, indeed, are the wail and woe, the agony and the blood, that one can see on the page of history—all of which but seals and echoes prophecy.

Why should the Jew have been subject to such strange persecutions, and the limitations of individual and governmental liberty? My brethren in the pulpit in all sects are willing to take up as an example of fulfilled prophecy the people they call the Jews. Is there a man but will admit that the prophecies referring to the Jews have been fulfilled?

There is a pride in the pulpit all around the earth, in Christian churches, to cite the Jew as an example of fulfilled prophecy.

Is it not folly to expect that prophecies predicted on two tribes of Abraham should be fulfilled, and not expect that the prophecies that refer to Israel, or the ten tribes, also should be fulfilled?

There is no reason why a man should talk about two tribes of Abraham's seed having been on the line of fulfilled prophecy, and when you turn to ten tribes, deny it—as if ten were not as important as two. If it had been the other way, I could have allowed for that kind of reasoning.

That is, if I were the advocate of prophecy that referred to only two tribes, and not to ten, you might say I was weak; but as there are three times more prophecies that be-

Tomorrow Will Never Come

Lord, what shall I do today
To honor my Lord and King?
My child, go forth with the message,
And praise to Jehovah sing.

But, Lord, I toiled all yesterday,
For a hearing ear I sought.
My child, if you slack your hand today
All yesterday counts for naught.

But, Lord, I will go tomorrow;
My feet shall your errands run.
My child, today, if you hear My voice;
For tomorrow will never come.

—Mrs. Ada Nichols in "Present Truth Messenger."

long to Israel than belong to Judah, why should I cut off the prophecy of the ten tribes as false?

The absence of the Hebrew people for some four hundred years, in their slavery and sojourn in Egypt, did not destroy the covenant nor vitiate their title to return to their land.

Nor does their present absence make void the same title. Hence, God has in reserve 192,000,000 acres of land, that He has given to Abraham and his seed forever, a special heritage.

At the appointed time, God will place Israel in possession of this land, and it will be opened up for settlement of the Jews. Toward this central idea all history, strife, and diplomacy are now tending.

The tide of events that is setting in, is alarming Russia, gives distrust to Turkey, neutralizes France, makes Austria careful, Italy suspicious, Spain indifferent, the United States hopeful, and England confused and divided.

Let us go back some three thousand years, return to the times of Israel. Look with the seer, prophesy with prophets, and listen to the messages of God—for these men of old spake as they were moved by the Holy Spirit.

Then the people, especially our Jewish brethren: what a marvelous career they had, what a wonderful monument in the midst of the civilized nations of today! Ring out the Book, the land, the people, all a trinity of evidence, and make the infidelity and incredulity of the age incomprehensible.

If you come, my friends, to look at these prophecies carefully, you will see that many events they foretell have been fulfilled, and that many are now fulfilling around you, and you see that the gathering elements portending the fulfillment of others that are near at hand. Some of the events they foretell are now being realized; the battle is close upon us, and the victory and glory are now near in their fulfillment.

Jeremiah 33:14: "Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that I will perform that good thing which I have promised unto the house of Israel and to the house of Judah."

What good thing has God promised? That He will restore them again to this land.

Jeremiah 31:28: "And it shall come to pass, that like as I have watched over them, to pluck up, and to break down, and to throw down, and to destroy, and to afflict."

No man denies this; no man will object to that kind of prophecy, or to say that it has not been fulfilled, but will you read on—God says, "So will I watch over them, to build, and to plant."

For confirmation, now, if you please, take a few of the special facts and events that have occurred, events that occurred in 1882. You take, for instance, Egypt. How naturally, yet mysteriously and unexpectedly, Egypt went under control of Britain.

Ezekiel 29:12: "And I will make the land of Egypt desolate in the midst of the countries that are desolate, and her cities among the cities that are laid waste shall be desolate

. . . : and I will scatter the Egyptians among the nations, and will disperse them through the countries . . . And I will bring again the captivity of Egypt, and will cause them to return into the land of Pathros, into the land of their habitation; and they shall be there a base kingdom. It shall be the basest of the kingdoms; neither shall it exalt itself any more above the nations: for I will diminish them, that they shall no more rule over the nations. And it shall be no more the confidence of the house of Israel, which bringeth their iniquity to remembrance, when they shall look after them: but they shall know that I am the Lord God."

Jeremiah 30:3: "For, lo, the days come, saith the Lord, when I will bring again the captivity of my people Israel and Judah, saith the Lord: and I will cause them to return to the land that I gave to their fathers, and they shall possess it."

Do you believe that? Or do you think that it is nonsense? When they have returned to this land, they are to be one nation and have one king.

Ezekiel 37:22: "And they shall be no more two nations, neither shall they be divided into two kingdoms any more."

Here are the simple statements of God, and these facts of history, and I will repeat, there is not an honest man anywhere who dares say that these things have been fulfilled. And Judah and Israel are to be restored. Israel must be found; and you can talk as you like, God will find her. If these people are not to go back, the last eight chapters of Ezekiel were written for nothing. For the Prophet shows you in thirteen longitudinal strips, each tribe has a provision of land, and provision is also made for the temple, and for the portion of the princes. What would be the use of these last eight chapters if this thing is never to take place?

Isaiah 11:2: a beautiful reference to the same event spoken by the Prophet Jeremiah, referring to the time when Jehovah shall set His hand a second time to recover the people of Israel from the countries in which He had scattered them,—and by this term "a second time" we are to understand this people has once been delivered.

In the sacred page, as well as in history, we have ample evidence of such a deliverance, and when you come to think of it, it is presented to us today by evidence, namely, in the Passover which the Jews keep, and in the Lord's supper which Christian churches celebrate, for no man can understand the Lord's supper without reference to the Passover; and so we are carried through the sacred ceremony, back to the deliverance of the mighty host of the Hebrews from the bondage and slavery of Egypt.

I suppose we will all agree that was the first deliverance. Since that time there has been no great nor general deliverance of the Jew, so far as returning to his own land is concerned; we all know that they are scattered, and yet God, through the mouth of His prophet, does declare that He will set His hand a second time for the recovery.

As the Jews now say, and repeat at their Passover service: "The Lord liveth, which brought us up out of the land of Egypt." God says that they shall no more say, "The

Please turn to Page Nine

Tithing and Spiritual Development

CHRISTIAN stewardship is a subject that has not been in the past, and is not today, very well understood. The average speaker or writer leaves his hearers with no definite understanding that the principle of man's stewardship and accountability to God for his possessions has anything to do with his spiritual development. He emphasizes spiritual growth and omits the very thing that produces it.

Financing the Lord's church has been a bothersome problem, and a large percentage of our brethren have tried to soft pedal the thing for fear that some might become offended. The average Christian minister is not uneasy about offending folk when he presents baptism or the Lord's Supper, but he begins to go easy when it comes to the very foundation stone upon which Christian growth exists. A prominent woman made the statement at a convention: "Our minister is truly a wonderful man; he has been pastor of our church for five years and has never mentioned money." May the Lord have mercy on the soul of this type of preacher.

Our people have had very little education along this line, other than that a man should give as he "purposeth" in his heart, etc. We have not had the courage to speak where Scriptures speak on all matters. We have gone to seed on counting numbers, and have failed to develop. We stop at matriculation, and fail to go on to graduation.

Our churches are facing a crisis. Many of them, notwithstanding the glowing reports we see in the papers, are not holding their own. Men who are constantly coming in contact with conditions know some things they do not read in the papers. Spirituality is at such a low ebb that it is appalling, and all for the reason that our ministers are so everlastingly afraid they will say something about God's law that produces spiritual life. The church member is being constantly admonished "to give a little more," but he is left with no intelligent understanding of God's ownership and man's stewardship.

ROUT DISAPPOINTMENT AND DISCOURAGEMENT

The crying need of the church is a program of education, teaching our people to systematically set aside some definite part for God, a program of teaching backed up by intelligent leadership.

Everywhere we face dissatisfaction and discouragement. Our people are not satisfied with the present lack of system, and our leaders, while claiming to be scriptural in their teaching, are evading the only system God has ever revealed. The golden grain of the mission fields is left to rot, and the homeland is unevangelized and still we cut the budget. Instead of teaching our people to acknowledge God's ownership by setting aside a definite part for Him, we send for a money raiser and put on a day of high-pressure methods which results in pledges being made that will never be paid.

Money is not the sole object in urging tithing. Here is presented a challenge which, although originally directed in the "Christian Standard" by George F. Bradford to the Church of Christ, defies anyone to show that the tithe system has been divinely abrogated.

After all, that is nothing more than mob psychology and lacks the power of a higher obligation. These men-made plans may get money, but they do not develop spiritual life. It is very much like giving a sick man who has a pain a hypodermic, instead of treating him for removing the cause of the pain. Too many hypodermics will kill the patient.

The average minister has not been fair toward Christian stewardship. He goes out of the way to tell his people that tithing is not fair to the poor man, that it passed with the Mosaic dispensation, that the rich ought to give more than the poor, winding up with "the Lord loves a cheerful giver." The people go home with no intelligent, definite teaching, and their souls have no chance to grow. Then we wonder why people do not attend church and support it financially.

The church member must be taught that the things in his possession are not his. He must be taught that God is the owner, and that man is a steward and will be called upon to give an account of his stewardship. The hour has struck to stop our side stepping and teach our people these truths, and that there should be a fair distribution of the pay check between partners. It is time to teach our people to take God out of the pauper class, and put Him into the partner class. There is no real fellowship with the Lord without a sense of partnership with Him. A man's holdings in the bank vault are under the same direction that controls and inspires his soul when at the communion table. A vast majority of church members are thoroughly paganized in the idea of property, and it profoundly affects their own lives and the life of the church. The man who says "my house" or "my bank" is not using the right possessive pronoun.

Teaching that God is the owner and that man is a steward, and that man owes God a definite part of his income in acknowledgment of His ownership, is not a call for money. It is not claiming that all that is needed is money. Right here is where the criticism begins. Those who criticize tithing tell us that money is a secondary consideration, and that when our people become spiritual the money will be provided, etc. Well, a definite part of man's income set apart for God acknowledges His divine sovereignty. It links a man's life up with God. It brings him into a sacred relationship with God and develops his spirituality. I want to say that we do not preach tithing to get money. We preach it to develop spiritual life. We do not present tithing to raise money for current expenses, nor for missions, nor to pay the debt on the church. Such preaching would be an act of violence against the whole Christian structure. The man who teaches tithing in order to raise money, unwittingly cheapens a great message. Tithing is not a pious acknowledgment of duty, but a personal fellowship and spiritual partnership. It is the beginning of a new life. It means the identification of a man with God. It goes back to the secret recesses of a man's heart. It is a participating partnership, and means seeking first His kingdom. The moment a man accepts partnership with God he is driven to the policy of the separate portion. Without it, the claims of the church are shut out of his life. It gives the soul a chance to grow.

WHERE'S THE LORD'S REPEAL OF IT?

I demand some word of fair implication that God's definite financial system has ever been set aside. There is no ingenuity of interpretation by which it can be set aside. The officers of a church have as much right to frame up a man-made law of admission into the church as they have to frame up a man-made financial system. A man has no more right to determine the terms and conditions of his stewardship than he has to determine the terms and conditions of admission into the church.

Our people should be taught that tithing is not giving. Certainly the rich should give more than the poor, but giving comes in after the tithe has been paid. Tithing does not meet the requirements of stewardship. The very poor will pay the tithe, but the wealthy must go far beyond it. The rich man should pay his Lord the debt in acknowledgment of His ownership, and then make gifts. When Jesus mentioned giving, He was talking to those who had already paid their tithes. When Paul said as a man "purposeth" in his heart he was addressing those who had already paid their tithes, and then freewill offerings came in.

This system means a nearness to God and is not a drive for money. It is neither legalism nor compulsion, but loving loyalty. The finite mind cannot grasp it in its unthinkable entirety. It is the very corner stone of character building. It is impossible to set aside the definite portion for the Lord without praying and being drawn closer to Him. We have gone along for more than one hundred years with no definite teaching, and the average church member has never heard anything about partnership with God and the debt he owes Him. How much stewardship teaching, other than "Give all you can," have our churches had within the past seventy-five years? Two of the most prominent ministers in the state of Missouri made the statement that they did not have time for a stewardship campaign in their churches. That is very much like not having time to put the foundation under the house.

I stand for and teach the tithing system for the reason that it links up lives with God. It standardizes and stabilizes the finances of the church. It is understandable and workable. It works no hardships. It solves our spiritual and financial problems and dignifies the church. There is no record nor suggestion that it was ever abrogated, and Jesus left it where He found it.—Selected by J. W. Cooper.

NO GIVING, NO BLESSING

THE very establishment of the Christian church implies that ample provision was made in the divine plan for its maintenance. In the Old Testament, all the people were commanded to set aside the tenth and the freewill offerings for the Lord's worship. The Jewish religion, although confined to a single nation, required the tenth for its maintenance. Christianity confers larger benefits on its followers; intended to be a world-wide religion, it calls for no less liberal but even greater provision for its maintenance.

As a matter of practical experience, it has been found that the existence of a church in a community is so closely associated with the provision for its support that any one of its members who declines or neglects to pay his just share toward its maintenance loses, by that very act, the full measure of grace which should come to him from the establishment of the church.

The love of Christ within the soul constrains the individual to deem it a privilege to be a liberal supporter of the means of grace which have been instrumental in bringing the blessings of God into his own life. Hence it is an impossibility for a man whose heart is full of the grace of God to keep his pocketbook closed. Where there is no giving, there can be no blessing. Not that there is a bargain involved, but genuine love in the human heart responding in truth to the love of Jesus Christ demands an opportunity to assert itself in some practical way, and there is no better way than by liberal giving of his substance for the maintenance of the church and for the spread of its influence.

Not only is giving a necessity as a condition of growth in spiritual things, but it must become a habit. Spasmodic or irregular giving is not satisfactory; it can no more bring adequate results than can spasmodic attendance upon public worship or spasmodic reading of God's Word be attended with real spiritual progress. In the true Christian there is a hunger of soul which will only be satisfied by regularity in church attendance, and regularity in the consideration of the great truths of God. This becomes, therefore, the habit of a Christian life and the normal means of its constant growth in spiritual things.

No Christian can afford to withhold doing his just share in a financial way toward sustaining the worship of God and the spread of His kingdom. Giving is the only preservative of the human soul from the canker of greed and selfishness. It is the open door to the vision of larger and better things. Besides all this, Jesus Christ as the Head of the church has entrusted to His followers the great work of evangelizing the world. He expects us to put our best into this great work on earth. Not all can go as missionaries, but each one can give the Lord's portion of his weekly earnings toward the advancement of the kingdom.

"Give, and it shall be given unto you; good measure, pressed down, and shaken together, and running over, shall men give into your bosom. For with the same measure that ye mete withal it shall be measured to you again."
—Bible Faith Mission Standard.

Jesus Is Coming Again

JESUS will come again. There are many reasons why He should, a few of which follow.

If He never comes He will never receive us unto Himself: "I will come again, and receive you unto myself."—John 14:3. He is in heaven now, but did not go there until after His resurrection (John 20:17). No one goes to heaven at death, for a thousand years after David died, Peter said: "For David is not ascended into the heavens."—Acts 2:34. Why not? "For David, after he had served his own generation by the will of God, fell on sleep, and was laid unto his fathers, and saw corruption."—Acts 13:36. Because Paul said that the dead saints will not ascend until Jesus descends and resurrects them, and then all will ascend together (1 Thess. 4:16, 17). This being true, Jesus does not receive us to Himself when we die, and for this reason He must come again and resurrect us so He can receive us to Himself.

Jesus says that both good and bad will be in the graves—not in heaven—when He comes, and that they will then come—not from heaven, but from their graves (John 5:28, 29). If the saints enter heaven at death, why is it that He will find them in their graves when He comes again?

The righteous are not rewarded at death, for Jesus says: "I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to give every man according as his work shall be."—Rev. 22:12. Not when we die, but when He comes, He will bring our reward—we do not need to go after it—and will give to every man according to his works. As all are to be rewarded when He comes, it is evident that they do not get it at death.

When speaking of his death, Paul said: "Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day: and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing."—2 Tim. 4:8. He did not expect his reward at death, but said it would be "laid up" from that time; and that he, and all who have loved—or may yet love—the Lord, will get their rewards at the same time—when Jesus comes.

Jesus said: "For the Son of man shall come in the glory of his Father with his angels; and then he shall reward every man according to his works."—Matt. 16:27. "And then," when He comes with His angels, and not until then, will we be rewarded.

For good works, Jesus says: "For thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the just."—Luke 14:12-14. This is positive proof that we are not rewarded at death, but at the resurrection of the just, and that will not be until "the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trumpet of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first: then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord. Wherefore comfort one another with these words."—1 Thess. 4:16-18.

"Comfort one another" with what words? With the words that Jesus is coming again; that the dead saints will then be raised; that the living saints will then be changed, and that all together—not one at a time, but all together—will then be caught up to meet the Lord in the air, and that at that time we will receive our rewards. But few of the preachers now try to comfort people with these words; they try to make them think that their dead friends met the Lord at death. They are entirely out of harmony with Jesus and Paul on this subject.

The wicked do not receive their punishment at death, for 2 Peter 2:9 says: "The Lord knoweth how to deliver the godly out of temptations, and to reserve the unjust unto the day of judgment to be punished." As the wicked are reserved unto the judgment to be punished, it is evident that they will not be punished before then. When will the judgment be? Paul said Jesus will "judge the quick (the living) and the dead at his appearing."—2 Tim. 4:1. The wicked are reserved until the judgment to be punished, and as that will not be until He comes, it is evident that they will not be punished until He does come.

Jesus says that when He comes the wicked will then come out of their graves (John 5:28, 29). As they will stay in their graves until He comes, can they be punished before He comes?

Paul said that when Jesus comes "to be glorified in his saints" He will at that time "be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels, in flaming fire taking vengeance on them that know not God, and that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ: who shall be punished with everlasting destruction."—2 Thess. 1:7-10. This clearly teaches that sinners will not be punished until He comes to be glorified in His saints. Has He so come? No! and the wicked will not be punished until He does come.

Paul and Peter harmonize with Job, when he said the wicked are reserved to the day of wrath and destruction (Job 21:29, 30). Why brought forth to the day of wrath and destruction? "Because he hath appointed a day, in the which he will judge the world in righteousness" (Acts 17:31), when He will take vengeance, punishing the wicked with an everlasting destruction.

Both saints and sinners will be recompensed on the earth when Jesus comes to reward the righteous (Matt. 16:27) and to punish the wicked (2 Thess. 1:8, 9). "Behold, the righteous shall be recompensed in the earth: much more the wicked and the sinner."—Prov. 11:31. Why recompense them on the earth? Because "the heaven, even the heavens, are the Lord's: but the earth hath he given to the children of men."—Psalm 115:16.

Heaven is the Lord's, but He gave the earth to man for an abode, not once intimating that he should ever have any other. It was on earth—man's home—that he sinned, and on the earth—man's home—the Lord will deal with him. Jesus will come to this earth in flaming fire, taking vengeance, which will be an everlasting punishment to sinners. What will be the nature of that punishment? They "shall be punished with everlasting destruction."—2 Thess. 1:9. It will not be a temporary destruction—from which they will be brought back to life—but one that will be eternal. The destruction that came upon the Sodomites was temporary, as they will live again; but when the wicked are destroyed at the coming of Jesus, it will be an everlasting destruction—one from which they will never be raised. That destruction will be an everlasting punishment.

Jesus says the meek shall inherit the earth (Matt. 5:5); hence, it will be their eternal home, because "the righteous shall inherit the land, and dwell therein for ever" (Psalm 37:29); "but the wicked shall not inherit the earth" (Prov. 10:30). When will the saints inherit the earth? "Wait on the Lord, and keep his way, and he shall exalt thee to inherit the land: when the wicked are cut off, thou shalt see it."—Psalm 37:34. As the saints, when the wicked are cut off at the coming of Jesus, shall inherit the land and dwell therein forever, it is evident that they will be rewarded on the earth. As Jesus is going to bring our reward when He comes, we see that one reason for His coming is that He may reward the saints in their eternal home—the new earth.

Therefore, according to the Bible, if Jesus never comes again, death will put an eternal end to man, as there will be no resurrection: hence, there will be no judgment, after which the wicked will be punished and the saints rewarded. The wicked will never be cut off from the earth so that the saints can inherit it, and the promise of God will fail.

Reader, are you ready to meet Jesus at His coming? If not, you will have no time to prepare after He comes. You cannot afford to lose eternal life for a few worldly pleasures. Get ready to meet Him!—J. C. Vanzandt.

Seven: Jehovah's Perfection Number

By John E. Hammond

IN HARMONY with what can be seen in earth and sky reflecting the wisdom and power of the Designer and Creator of all things, we can also expect perfect order and system in all His purposes for man's salvation. From ancient times God has been working, and working through man, accomplishing many things which in type point forward to greater things of which the former are but shadows.

All through the Bible from Genesis to Revelation we find the number seven used as a number of completion and perfection. As Creator, Jehovah completed His work and rested on the seventh day, not in the sense that human-kind grows weary, but that His creative work was perfected.

This prefigured another glorious seventh day of perfection under the guiding hand of the Son of God. As God's purpose in Jacob and his sons unfolds we find them in a seven times punishment of 2,520 years. Many see also a final seven-year furnace of affliction period, to mold and perfect them as Jehovah's appointed servants.

Last day Christians finding themselves confronted with very distressing conditions, should remember that there is perhaps a perfection attained through suffering which they may not understand as God understands. Naaman the leper was required to dip in the Jordan waters seven times, and, thus rendering perfect obedience, was cleansed. In the Mosaic law seven is prominently used in connection with a period of cleansing.

In the account of the fall of Jericho we find again the finished work accomplished in the seventh period of time, the marching around the city the previous six days being preparatory acts of obedience for the consummation of the downfall of the city, when on the seventh day Joshua was told to march around the city seven times blowing trumpets and giving a shout. Likewise, in the book of Revelation, we find a scroll sealed with seven seals presented to Jesus, the Lion of the tribe of Judah, by His Father. We find also that under the seventh of these seals there are seven trumpet judgments, and under the seventh trumpet there are seven last plague judgments. We find here an array of sevens which may prove of great interest to last day Christians.

As a Christian, each one should realize that our vision is dimmed by darkly colored glasses, hence it seems the Lord's purpose for mortality to know only in part until the mystery of God is finished. It behooves us then to approach the Word of God in humility and prayer, seeking what truth the heavenly Father may desire for us to know.

In the Apostle Paul's discussion of the resurrection in 1 Corinthians 15:51, 52 he places the resurrection of those in Christ and the change of the living at the last trumpet, which is the seventh. In Revelation 10:7 we find that when the seventh trumpet shall begin to sound the mystery of God shall be finished. Until this period of time is reached this finished mystery will not be known but will be understood by those partaking of the divine nature.

When God elaborates, it is for the instruction of those that hear. May it not be His will and good purpose for the church to pass through a brief but severe period of testing under His protection during the trumpet judgments, reaching perfect redemption through the blood of His beloved Son when they are called at the last trumpet? Following the seven trumpets the seven last plagues are poured out, which comprise the darkest part of the night, when the whole earth shall be devoured (Zeph. 1:14-18) and the way prepared for the inauguration of the kingdom of God.

Evidently, then, if this order of events be correct the church escapes the destructive last plague judgments.

What a comforting thought that the earth as we behold it today, torn by strife, injustice, and iniquity abounding, will some day be filled with the glory of God even as was Solomon's temple and the tabernacle in the wilderness. Do we appreciate as we should the grace of God extended through His Son in the privilege of occupying a place of protection as we see the oncoming disastrous tumult?

(Note: Although THE HERALD itself does not endorse all of the views herein presented, especially in regard to definite periods of time, it presents the article for study by those interested in this subject.)

— 0 —

FRAGMENTS ON CHURCH WORK

By J. G. Haupt

MOST appreciative words were uttered concerning the church of God at Berea in Asia Minor. They were more noble than others in that they searched the Scriptures daily to learn whether the things that they had heard from the apostles and evangelists, from Moses and the prophets, were true and at the same time what were the truths uttered by these holy men. The world-wide Bereans at the present day are nobly pursuing their diligent search for truth.

God willed that His church should bear the name of God Himself and remain His church in all lands. There was no church in Old Testament times, the trustful ones accounted God's chosen people having their laws prescribed by God Himself.

The Messiah or Christ called upon His disciples to say whom the people round about thought Him to be. Their replies included none but most worthy men. Among these was John the Baptist, raised to life again. The most important question came next, "Whom say ye that I am?" Peter's prompt response followed, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." The fitness of these words coming from Peter was evident. "Thou art Petros, and thou hast expressed the most important petra." Petros was the man's name. The petra was a firm foundation upon which Christ would build His church. This petra would not be destroyed by the inroads of hades, the death state. It would live forever. Like the Bereans, the church of God, God's church, has a home in every quarter of the globe.

The church was established on the great Pentecostal day after the resurrection of Christ. This church grew very rapidly from the beginning. Its name appears in the latter part of the book of Acts. In the first chapter of Paul's first epistle to the Corinthians, in the second verse, Paul especially states that he wrote his epistle to the church of God which is at Corinth. The same language appears in the first verse of Second Corinthians. It continues to be found in all the epistles.

The Apostle Paul early opened "his own hired house in Rome" for the preaching of the truth under the auspices of the church of God. Years after a larger Roman church was established there as a Catholic church. When the Eastern or Grecian portion separated from Rome the latter was called the Roman Catholic Church while the former became the Greek Catholic Church. Later when King Henry of England rebelled against the refusal of the Pope of the Roman Church to grant him a divorce from his wife, King Henry organized what he called the Holy Catholic Church though it was evidently no more holy than the two other churches. Dr. Martin Luther also separated from the Roman Church, organizing the Lutheran Church.

A Mexican radio station has lately sounded a terrific alarm over the vices dominating American institutions of learning. I am afraid gross exaggerations have been indulged in, although notes of warning are sometimes perfectly proper. This radio advocates international fellowship. This would dispossess the God-given faith and place on an equality all kinds of sectarianism.

— 0 —

THE LAND OF PALESTINE

Continued from Page Four

Lord liveth, which brought us up out of the land of Egypt," but, "The Lord liveth, which brought his people Israel out of the north country, and from all countries, whither he has scattered them."

You will notice that in connection with this deliverance, if you have carefully read the Prophets, that in connection with Israel's deliverance there is always an ensign, or flag, or token that will be thrown out in the sight of the whole world, and it is around this ensign, or flag, that Israel will rally, and it is by this that they will be led.

This is in keeping with God's ancient method of leading them out of Egypt, the first time, with the pillar of a cloud by day and a pillar of fire by night. And so again, in this second deliverance there is to be an ensign that shall be raised, and all the nations shall see it, and this ensign shall guide and direct Israel to their future home.

We are all, I suppose, persuaded that the times are indicative of mighty changes; there is a strange spirit of unrest abroad; there is a strange spirit of expectation in the hearts of men, and of the best people of the earth.

— 0 —

THE NATURE OF MAN

Continued from Front Page

and he will rejoice if he can keep any from faith by "lies taught in the name of Jehovah." Therefore we are greatly constrained by the Holy Spirit to "contend for the faith which was once delivered unto the saints," but lost when the church became worldly and paganized.

Abreast of the Times

German-Jewish Marriage Annulled

"Thou shalt make no . . . marriages with them; . . . for they will turn away thy son from following me."—Deut. 7:2-4.

KARLSRUHE, Germany, March 7.—According to The New York Times, for the first time a high court in Germany handed down a ruling by which the annulment of a marriage between a German and a Jewess was declared valid on the ground of "ignorance concerning the nature and importance of race purity." The court declared that marriages between Aryans and Jews are recognized as reprehensible because they tend to " estrange Aryans from their own race and produce offspring of an alien type."

"The gap between these races is now realized to be so wide that such misalliances are not likely to be formed in Germany again," the court continued. "It must therefore be assumed that the plaintiff (the German husband) would not have contracted that marriage if he had been aware of the true state of things."

To the student of the Bible it is interesting to note the way in which the Germans have turned the old Hebrew law concerning alien marriages against the Jews themselves. Moses was instructed to command the children of Israel to make no marriages between themselves and certain other Gentile nations. "For," said he, "they will turn away thy son from following me, that they may serve other gods."—Deut. 7:1-4.

The growing tendency in Germany to restore the ancient paganism and to remove from religious teaching all distinctly Hebrew characters and ideas indicates the desire of the leaders of the Hitler regime to prevent their Aryan sons and daughters from being led into the worship of other than German gods.

Jewish Hope of Immortality

"Their inward thought is, that their houses shall continue for ever."—Psalm 49:11.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Feb. 1.—In the current issue of The American Israelite an editorial of unusual interest appears from the pen of Victor Emanuel Reichert, entitled, "The Hope of Immortality." Students of conditional immortality have long known that Jews in past ages did not believe in the Platonic theory of the inherent immortality of soul, but rested their hope of a future life upon a resurrection from the dead. The Jewish Encyclopedia asserts that the philosophy of Plato, with its later developments of a fiery hell and elusive and mystical heaven, was unknown to the Jewish religion until after the Persian conquest.

While the belief of the Jews in a future state appeared to be more or less hazy, it was always closely associated with their national restoration. With many later Hebrew commentators the thought seemed to be that

*"Our lives shall go on in our children,
In their lives our lives be blessed."*

Referring to this ancient idea which places stronger emphasis upon racial than upon individual immortality, Mr. Reichert says:

"It is the immortality of the heroes of the race whose lives and teachings, the living spirit of their ministry to men, goes gallantly marching through the years, defying the silence of death and the dust of oblivion. A Jeremiah, like Socrates, wins immortality because he is willing to take the risks of living the best life he knows. Immortality is not a cheap and easy thing. It is not to be had merely by living. It is the accolade of glory, the kiss of eternity which God impresses on the souls of His faithful servants. We must earn and win immortality.

"In the long march of Judaism," continues the writer, "there is a preponderant emphasis and healthy insistence that eschatological problems will take care of themselves if only we see to it that we give the best we have in the here and now. It is, after all, profitless and futile to lose oneself in the labyrinthian paths of Olam Ha-Bo—the world to come—while we neglect our opportunities in Olam Ha-Zah—this world."

Star of Bethlehem Mystery

"We have seen his star in the east, and are come to worship him."—Matt. 2:2.

PASADENA, Calif.—A distinguished Swiss astronomer, Professor Fritz Zwicky, associated with the California Institute of Technology and the Mt. Wilson Observatory near here, suggests that cosmic rays may reveal the secret of the star that led the wise men from the East to the birthplace of the world's Redeemer. He says that perhaps it was a great super-novae, an exploding star, such as he believes to be the source of cosmic rays.

Referring to its marvelous brightness a traditional hymn tells how

*"To the earth it gave great light,
And so it continued both day and night."*

This continuous shining provides a clue to the mystery, Dr. Zwicky thinks, since only a super-novae in the Milky Way galaxy could be seen burning brightly both night and day. Astronomical records show that Tycho Brahe, the Danish astronomer, saw such a one in 1572.

Another coincidence is that the kingdoms of the traditional wise men, Kasper, Melchoir, and Balthasar, were about a thousand miles from Bethlehem, and it would take about ten days for men to travel that distance by camels, and ten days is about the normal life of a super-novae, after which it explodes.—Selected by Sr. Lottie Young.

National Berean Department

Miss Genniel Carpenter, Editor, Oregon, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Cecil A. Smead, President
Blanchard, Michigan

Virgil Claypool, Treasurer
506 E. Chestnut St.
Robinson, Illinois

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
Oregon, Illinois

“HE WILL TEACH US OF HIS WAYS, AND WE WILL WALK IN HIS PATHS.”—ISAIAH 2:3.

DID YOU EVER SEE A DREAM WALKING?

ADAM had scarcely followed Eve in a hasty retreat from the Garden of Eden before men began to plan Utopias. The dreams of the centuries have been centered upon securing the highest type of everything, from government to locomotives. Thomas More and Stevenson were thus working to a common end, although along widely different routes: the one desired perfection through a sort of communism, the other sought perfection in the unromantic outlines of steam engines.

The Bible, however, gives promise of perfection, not merely in government, not merely in steam engines, but in humanity itself. Men have dreamed and worked and imagined vain imaginings for millenniums without result, for the earth rapidly grows worse; but those dreams will have their fruition and their personification at the consummation of the plans outlined by the Word of God.

Isaiah has provided descriptions of coming conditions that would cause the jaws of the most violent advocates of the New Deal to droop. He remarks on deserts blossoming as the rose under the beneficent effects of the rule of Jesus Christ on earth, and continues with mention of now fierce animals so tame that they may be led by little children. Politicians need no longer, under this new order, worry about changing the name of Boulder Dam to Hoover Dam and back again, for the world itself, the solid rock, will burst into expressions of joy for the alleviation of sickness and aridity: Where once was wilderness will be the acme of fertility; where once was war and death will be the peak of peace and quiet.

It is, therefore, at the setting up of the throne of the Christ in Jerusalem that men will see dreams walking, such dreams as the most imaginative of song writers could not conceive. The hope held out before the Christian is indeed one that is worthy to cause anyone, no matter how ambitious, to abandon himself to the purposes of God and to seek the reward that accompanies obedience to Christian precepts—a place within an animated dream.

—Arlen Marsh.

WHAT DOES THE CHURCH NEED?

ACCORDING to the World's Crisis, Dr. Augustus H. Strong has the correct answer to this question. “Not the vagueness and freedom of rationalism, but the self-limitation of a scriptural faith. Not the methods of the politician or the worldling, but Christ's ways of regeneration and faith and prayer. An authoritative Bible, an evangelical theology, a spiritual church—these are our instruments for winning men. They are God's appointed means: and I would rather send out . . . ten consecrated preachers and missionaries than a hundred brilliant scholars and critics. Our first need is to be great believers. If we seek first the kingdom of God, all other things needed shall be added to us.”

REASONS FOR BEREAN ORGANIZATION

Many have asked this question: “What is the need of a national Berean organization, and why should it be supported?” A few reasons are given below:

1. Because the only way to have any general unity among Berean societies is to have one general, central head, where all matters of general interest may be discussed, and plans made for the work.

2. Because a system of lessons for general Bible study can be prepared by all states for all states, and the advantage of a united study realized.

3. Because a general Berean conference can be held each year where our societies can come together to hear some of our best speakers present solutions to our Berean problems.

4. Because it furnishes an organization to look after isolated persons and lonely persons who need the help of the Berean work and the social correspondence work, far more than the members who have church homes.

5. Because it gives us a field for extensive tract distribution and for missionary work, for carrying the gospel to new fields where they have never heard the kingdom message. “Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap.”—Gal. 6:7.

6. Because it means enlargement of vision for Bereans. It is often asked, “How can I make my society grow?” The answer is, “By doing more to help others.”

“There is that scattereth, and yet increaseth; and there is that withholdeth more than is meet, but it tendeth to poverty. The liberal soul shall be made fat: and he that watereth shall be watered also himself.”—Prov. 11:24, 25.

Who shall be members of the National Berean Society? Every person who desires to study God's Word, through a local society or as an isolated member. (See constitution.)

—From an old tract.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"Jesus of Nazareth . . . went about doing good . . . for God was with him."—Acts 10:38.

YOUR SAVIOR AND MINE

READ again, boys and girls, the verse across the top of the page. "Jesus of Nazareth . . . went about doing good." Doesn't that bring before your minds a clear picture of our beloved Master? Everywhere He went, He left behind Him the memory of a kind deed, a blessing to those in need, a bit of comfort to those who were sad. And why was it that He was able to do so? Because He never got tired, never needed to rest? Oh, no! But because "God was with him." His Father gave Him the strength and the wisdom and the power to do all those wonderful things.

As you study for this last lesson of the quarter, think of Jesus often going alone at night to pray to God, which really was only talking to His Father. All of you often ask your fathers to help you with something that is just a little hard for you, I'm sure. And that is exactly what Jesus did.

If Father asks you to do something for him on Saturday, you try your best to do it just as you know he wants it done. You try to have it all ready for his approval when he gets home from work at night. And you're very happy when he tells you that it is well done.

Jesus, as He went about doing good, was doing His Father's work. He was preaching and teaching and healing—preaching the good news of God's coming kingdom here on the earth. He was teaching the people all about what kind of person His Father was. He was healing their diseases so that they would be very sure to know that God's heart was filled with love for all and that in His kingdom there would be no sickness, sorrow, or pain.

The power that God gave His well beloved Son to perform miracles—heal the sick, cure the crippled, feed the hungry, and even raise the dead to life—also proved to those about Him that He was God's Son. All this helped them to believe the words that He spoke when He told them about God's coming kingdom here on the earth.

Naturally, then, Jesus wanted to know who the people thought He was. Not so much for Himself, but because He was anxious that they should understand His Father and His Father's plans for them.

In today's lesson, Jesus asks His disciples who people said He was. Read their answer in verse 14. Then He asks them who they thought He was. Learn Peter's answer in verse 16. Learn it perfectly so that you will know it when you are fifty years old.

Now suppose, boys and girls, some wealthy man in your town offered to send a boy and a girl to college after they were graduated from high school, provided their grades were over ninety-five. Any boy and girl who didn't study hard and attain that high standing couldn't expect to receive the reward, could they? Of course not!

And it's just that way with Jesus. During the days He lived on earth, He expected those who asked to be healed to believe in Him. Those who wouldn't listen to the good news of God's coming kingdom on earth, just lost that much out of their lives. Those who weren't willing to give up the things of the world to follow Jesus, weren't worthy of the reward.

So it is even today with us. We might study all about Jesus, but if we do not do as He asks us to do, it will be of no benefit. We may be able to recite many verses, but if we do not try to be the sort of person Jesus wants us to be, it will be time wasted.

Now turn in your Bibles to verse 27 in the lesson chapter. That tells you that when Jesus comes in all His glory, He is going to bring a reward to all those who have been true to Him.

But all the rewards aren't away off in the future. Don't you believe, girls and boys, that those who love Jesus and serve Him are much happier today than those who do not? And not only happier, but stronger in their bodies, brighter in their minds, and truer in their actions.

Wouldn't you just love to have seen Jesus as He went about doing good in Galilee and Judea? Some day we'll see Him going about doing good, not only in Palestine but in all the world. And better still, He will let us help Him, if we follow in His steps now.

"We would see Jesus! We would look upon
The light in that divinely human face,
Where lofty majesty and tender grace
In blended beauty shone.

"We would see Jesus, and would hear again
The voice that charmed the thousands by the sea,
Spoke peace to sinners, set the captives free,
And eased the sufferer's pain.

"We would see Jesus, and let Him impart
The truth He came among us to reveal,
Till in the gracious message we should feel
The beating of God's heart."

The Sunday School Lesson

FROM TRUTH SEEKERS' QUARTERLY

LESSON 12. — March 25, 1934

CONFESSING AND FOLLOWING CHRIST

Devotional Reading: John 10:7-16

GOLDEN TEXT

Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God.—Matthew 16:16.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic: Confessing and Following Christ.

Basic Truth: "I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father but by me."—John 14:6.

I. The Testimony of the World. (Matt. 16:13.) "Whom do men say that I the Son of man am?" Even in Jesus' day those who did not believe in Him as the Messiah saw in Him something more than an ordinary man. "Never man spake as this man," was the testimony of the world of His day concerning Him. If the world is able with its carnal vision to see in Jesus the greatest influence for good it has ever known (and it does!), then the disciples must see in Him something still more wonderful and blessed. No student of history, believer or unbeliever in Christ, can deny that Jesus has contributed more of lasting benefit to society than any other man who ever lived. His influence on the world has justified His claim of divine Sonship.

II. The Testimony of His Disciples. (Matt. 16:14-20.) The benefits that Christ has brought to the world may be called the "by-products of Christianity." The great purpose of His life and teaching was not to make the world better, although it has done that; but the great motive of His life was to "create new creatures" in Himself, to make Christians. The testimony which His followers bear in word and deed tells of the success He has attained in His principal objective.

III. Reward of Sacrifice. (Matt. 16:21-27.) Without effort there can be no reward. Whole-hearted service is what the Lord demands. He declared that "ye cannot serve two masters." One's own will must be subjected to that of God in all things. One cannot even seek to preserve his life if by doing so he is unable to carry out the Father's purposes. But Jesus taught that the true value of life can be realized only in eternity, and for this reason the saving of the life today was of little moment as compared with being assured of eternal life in the future. To believe in Jesus and in what He taught, to obey Him in baptism and in service, to confess Him before men, are the conditions of salvation He lays down.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Confessing Christ. "With the mouth confession is made unto salvation."—Rom. 10:10. This is more than mere lip service. This confession that Jesus is Christ must come from a knowledge that is obtained because we have come into contact with Christ and know that He is the Son of God because we KNOW Him. True confession is based on true knowledge, and true knowledge is rooted and grounded in the Word of God and is linked to the Son by that great unseen force called the Spirit of God. Unless we have our anchor imbedded in the Word of God and securely fastened by the Spirit of God, there is no justifying result to us in acknowledging that Jesus is Christ. It is one thing to confess and a vastly different thing to know Him. True confession is a natural outburst of knowing Him.

Revealed to Man. The knowledge that Peter had that "thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God," was revealed knowledge. It came not through the channels of flesh and blood. The carnal mind cannot comprehend such things. It must be revealed through the medium of the spiritual. The carnal mind is not subject to the law of God (Rom. 8:6-8). As "the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God," it therefore must be revealed to him by some one that does possess the Spirit; and when he has received the knowledge through the channel of the Spirit, he can then take turn and reveal it to some one else. Thus it can be said that we who have the Spirit of God are the revealers of God to those who do not profess the Spirit. This is a grave and great responsibility.

Profit. The material things of this world are temporal and lustful and are doomed to pass away. If we in our search after these material things neglect the weightier affairs of life and fail to lay hold on that life which is to come, what profit will we have when we must lay down the life that now is (1 Tim. 6:7)?—C. E. R.

GOLDEN TEXT

"Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God."—Matthew 16:16.

"Thou art the Christ," the Anointed, the Holy One of God. It was the Father Himself who revealed this to Peter. This was direct evidence that Jesus was the One of whom the prophets had written. In the New Testament the name "Christ" is used as equivalent to the Hebrew "Messiah," also meaning "Anointed."

As the Son of God, Christ is "the heir of all things" (Heb. 1:2), and is invested with "all power," and is "the resurrection, and the life" (John 11:25). He is the One through whom Christians obtain eternal life. Jesus, the Christ, the Messiah of the Old Testament, the Son of the living God, came into the world to save even you and me if we accept Him.—L. A. R.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULTS

What Think Ye of Christ?

Quite often one hears the statement: "It doesn't matter what we believe, just so we live right." This may seem like a very charitable attitude to take when speaking to one of a different religious persuasion, but it certainly shows very little serious thought on the matter. One's actions are largely the result of his thought or beliefs.

If one is erroneous in his beliefs, he will be erroneous in his actions. Eve believed the serpent, and her actions were displeasing to God. The natives of India believe cattle to be sacred, so they established homes for aged cattle years before they built them for aged people. Certain of the Jews believed Jesus was an imposter, so they clamored for His death. Pilate believed he could win the favor of the Jews, so he had our Savior crucified. Jesus predicted that the day would come when "whosoever killeth you will think that he doeth God service." Saul believed Christianity was wrong, so he persecuted the early church. Three Hebrew captives believed they should worship only God, so they faced the fiery furnace. Some in Paris today believe there is no God nor Christ. They prove their disbelief by worshipping the devil in 22 different chapels. Does it make a difference what we believe? What is the testimony of the above examples?

Our response to Christ will depend upon what we believe Him to be. What we think of Christ can be determined by our actions. If we think Him an imposter, we will crucify Him; if we believe Him to be less important than gold, we will betray Him with a kiss; if we believe Him to be the Savior, we will look to Him for salvation; if we honor and respect Him, we will keep His commands; if we believe He is going to judge the world in righteousness, we will live the "new life."

—H. A. S.

PRIMARY CLASS

Memory Verse: "He hath done all things well."—Mark 7:37b.

In the first lesson this quarter we learned how the wise men came to see Baby Jesus. They followed the star until they came to Bethlehem, where they found Baby Jesus and His mother, Mary. Next we talked about the baptism and temptation of Jesus. He was baptized by John in the River Jordan. He was tempted by the devil three times, but not once did He yield to him. In lessons three and eight we found out about how Jesus picked out His helpers and sent them out. Here is a list of things Jesus taught us from lessons four and five. He taught us how to pray and gave us a model prayer. He told us how God will care for us as He does for the birds and flowers. In another lesson Jesus brought a little girl back to life. Still in another He cured the centurion's servant. He painted a beautiful picture for us when He told us the story of the sower in lesson ten. In lesson six He showed us a picture of a tree. What part of the tree are we? Best of all, in lesson nine Jesus said, "Come unto me."

When we think of all the things Jesus did in these lessons, we should all say, "He hath done all things well." Repeat it, thinking of the things Jesus has done and will do.

—V. C. T.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

BURR OAK, INDIANA

Evangelist F. L. Austin, whose home address is 5439 Ohio St., Chicago, began a series of special meetings at the Church of God in Burr Oak, Ind., March 12. The services will continue until April 1, closing on that day with special Easter sermons.

Bro. Austin will remain in Burr Oak for a time as temporary pastor of the church.

FONTHILL, ONTARIO

The Fonthill Church of God celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of the dedication of the present church building Sunday, Feb. 18, 1934. The pastor, C. E. Randall, directed the program, while F. L. Austin, who was pastor of the church at the time of its construction, was the speaker of the occasion.

Although the writer was not present at the services that filled this memorable day, from his personal and intimate acquaintance with the congregation he knows that the spirit of three strong men of God, one living and two dead, was deeply felt throughout.

First in point of time should be mentioned Peter H. Bouk, a pioneer of the faith in Canada, and a man who by his uprightness of character, generosity of heart, and spiritual nature has left a lasting impression for good, not only upon the church of which he was so useful a member, but upon the entire community in which he lived.

The second name that always arises when the past work in Fonthill is mentioned is that of Albert Railton. In Bro. Railton the Church of God possessed one of those rare characters, who by their lives of devotion to the common good and to the heavenly Father endear themselves to everybody. It was one of the happiest experiences of a lifetime to know Bros. Peter Bouk and Albert Railton.

The third name on the list of those who were so vitally concerned in the furthering of the effort at Fonthill is that of Bro. F. L. Austin, who was the speaker of the memorial services held recently. Bro. Austin needs no commendatory words from anyone who has known him. His depth of consecration, his scholarship, and his intense energy, which has always been devoted to the service of God and man, contributed to the success that crowned his efforts at Fonthill, and later in the organization and establishment of the General Conference of the Church of God, together with its working body, the National Bible Institution.

Behind every great work are to be found the divine and human influences that have made such work possible, and in the present instance the human side of the equation undoubtedly consisted of the three men named, but their success was made possible by the splendid support and cooperation given them by many other equally faithful brethren of the Fonthill community.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO DOLLAR-A-MONTH CLUB

Mrs. C. Seely; Silas M. Claypool; Grand Rapids Sunday School ($3); Ella M. Siple; Mrs. A. M. Siple; Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Updike; Anna Mae Bottolfs; George Long ($5); Mr. and Mrs. Paul C. Johnson; Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Railsback; Mrs. Mary Calkins; Jessie M. Wilson.

EASTER EDITION

Manuscript intended for the Easter edition of this paper must be in the office of The Herald before March 21. Any Easter material received after that date cannot be given consideration. Ordinarily the paper is made up three weeks in advance of publication, except for the news and special pages; but this practice will be suspended for the issue of March 27 to permit late writers space.

MINISTERS ATTENTION

The Northwestern Conference of Oregon and Washington is interested in securing a minister for its territory. Application blanks may be secured by addressing the secretary's office.

Gladys Barber, Sec.,
1553 Adams St., Corvallis, Ore.

WE LOOK AHEAD

March 20, 1934

"Boot Hill," Arlen Marsh. On the building of cemeteries and its results.

"Jehovah's Covenant With Abraham," Samuel Forsby. The last of three articles.

"On Drunkenness," Benjamin Franklin. A departure from our usual contents, but of great truth.

"Enjoy It!" J. W. Lent. Why not? The apostles did.

"God Is My Father," George W. Haskell. All the more reason to enjoy it.

With other articles and special pages.

PERRY WASHBURN SMITH

The Plymouth, Ind., church has been called upon to suffer the loss of a faithful member, Bro. Perry Washburn Smith, who passed away Tuesday morning, Feb. 27.

Bro. Smith had not been feeling well for some time and when pneumonia set in he soon succumbed. He was born August 22, 1867, near what is known as Poplar Grove. He was the youngest of seven children, of which only two survive. He was united in marriage to Daisy M. Francis June 16, 1901, and together they have enjoyed a sweet companionship, not only in their home, but also in living Christian lives. When a young man he united with the Plymouth church, and with Sr. Smith was punctual in attendance and always ready to be of service in the Master's cause. He was firm in the hope that Jesus was soon coming and that in God's own time he would come forth from the grave to enjoy the blessings promised to all those who love the appearing of their Redeemer.

Bro. J. H. Anderson spoke words of comfort at his funeral, which was held Thursday afternoon, March 1, in the church, which was filled to overflowing with friends, who wished to show their respect and also to express their sympathy for Sr. Smith and other relatives.

Eva L. Underwood.

NORTHWESTERN CONFERENCE

The Northwestern Conference of Oregon and Washington closed a three-day meeting March 4 at Corvallis, Ore.

The meetings were opened with a most interesting Bible study, 1 Corinthians 7:39 being the text chosen. A second study was 1 Corinthians, first chapter.

Bro. A. W. Darby gave five discourses on "The New Covenant," using the chart for several of them. Particular emphasis was placed on the promise made to David.

On Sunday afternoon Sr. Rogers of Eugene conducted a social meeting. General discussion of various passages of Scripture became so interesting that it was five o'clock before we realized it.

Following Sunday school, a business meeting with President Woolf in charge was held.

The attendance averaged ten, the greatest attendance being eighteen.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Kerr are now located in Corvallis. Mr. Kerr will continue with his work as assistant state milk inspector.

Joyce Morgan, a member of the junior Sunday school class, has been seriously ill of pneumonia. At the present writing she is gradually improving.

Bro. and Sr. Carl Weatherwax are now located at 841 E. 69th St., Seattle, Wash. They were formerly located at 215 W. Sixth St., Aberdeen, Wash. They expect to be in their new location about a year.

Vance Galbraith of Felida, Wash., is recovering from an attack of flu.

Gladys Barber, Secretary.

GUGE - SOWARDS

In the presence of the groom's mother and a few other relatives and friends a quiet home wedding was solemnized between Charles Elmer Guge and Ethel Marie Sowards, both of Plymouth, Ind., at 400½ West Jefferson St., on Wednesday, Feb. 14, 1934, Evangelist F. L. Austin officiating.

The bride recently moved from Minneapolis, the city of her birth and of her people, to Plymouth, where she became the tender and faithful caretaker of a family of motherless children. Her gracious life made her favorably known by those who came to know her service of love.

The groom, a respected member of the Burr Oak church, has for some years made a home at the above address for his aging mother. Here the home will be continued, and Mother's comfort will still be a subject of thought and effort.

May the Father's blessings richly strew the pathway of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Guge unto ripe and honored years, ever inspiring them to press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mrs. Charles Harris; Herman Dickel; C. W. Howe; Mrs. Hedvie Jackson; Mrs. O. J. Dorsey; C. D. Balliet; E. E. Giesler; D. Hatten; Vernon W. Chaplin; Mrs. Alma Orr; C. E. Mills; Mrs. Edith M. Richardson (for others); Mrs. F. M. Cawby; Earl Taber (for another); Jessie M. B. Kauffman; A. Nichols; Glyn L. Starbuck; Ruchie Alexander; William Platts (for another); Mrs. A. M. Scroggs; J. J. Handley; Mrs. Earl Bowen; Jessie M. Wilson; Mrs. Pauline Chapman.

BETWEEN YOU AND ME—

Bro. F. L. Austin, our "Back-to-the-Bible" evangelist, while in the East recently held two services for the Advent Christian brethren at Penfield, N. Y., which gives point to our editorial in this issue.

Sr. B. F. Cook, 2255 - 30th Ave., San Francisco, Calif., informs us that her husband has recently suffered from attacks of agina, but is now recovering. Let us pray for these faithful old people who are shut off from others of their own faith.

Bro. F. L. Austin, for many years Executive Secretary of the National Bible Institution, has accepted a call from the church at Burr Oak, Ind., to act as temporary pastor. Knowing Bro. Austin as we do we congratulate the brethren at Burr Oak on securing a man who will emphasize both the spiritual and the doctrinal truths of the Bible.

Sr. Anna Eychaner, wife of our beloved brother, A. J. Eychaner, passed the eighty-second milestone on the journey of life on March 2, 1934. Sr. Eychaner has endeared herself to the church everywhere by her sympathetic helpfulness, especially on behalf of young people. May she remain to inspire us all until the Master comes.

Sr. Mick, the efficient Matron of Golden Rule Home, was called to Toledo, Ohio, some time ago to visit her father, Nathan Heacock, who is now in his ninety-third year and very feeble. Sr. Mick returned to her duties in the Home last week. During her absence everything was kept in good running order by Sr. Elizabeth Ordnung, who responds to every emergency call at the Home, and who was ably assisted by Sr. Olive Wood, a member of the Home family.

Under the able leadership of Pastor Harvey U. Krogh, Jr., the work at Plum River church near Mt. Carroll, Ill., continues to press forward. This is one of the points which the Illinois State Conference is assisting. There are other places in the state where congregations are too small to meet the expense of regular services, but where the work is badly needed. Those who contribute to the state work find their present reward in the results attained in these places.

One of our occasional contributors, sending in some copy for the Easter number, remarks, "If for any reason you cannot use this, you will not hurt my feelings in the least if you leave it out. I know you cannot give the brethren a one hundred per cent paper and print everything you get." We appreciate that spirit.

Yes, as Pastor Randall says, "Now is the time to begin planning for May Meeting at Fonthill, Ont." And also, it is not too early to plan to attend the General Conference at Oregon, Ill. July 31 to August 12 is the date.

"I must say again," writes Mrs. O. J. Dorsey of Denver, Colo., "that each paper is full of such good and interesting articles that are surely worthy of our time and study." Thank you, Sr. Dorsey, we know our writers will appreciate your commendation as much as does the editorial staff.

Three responded to the call of the gospel at Anniversary Day services at Fonthill, Ont. Two of the number, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McArthur, were the first fruits of Bro. Randall's labors at Welland, Ont., and the other, Clarence Moore, comes from the New York side of the line. We wish for the three the keeping power of God until the Master comes.

If the secretaries of the various state conferences will promptly send in the announcements of the summer gatherings we shall be glad to get them before the public early so that the brethren can plan to spend their vacations in the study of the Bible and in the enjoyment of Christian fellowship at these great annual meetings.

That the churches on the Pacific Coast are looking for an evangelist is a pleasing indication of increasing interest in that locality. The coming of the Lord is at hand. Let us send out the glad news everywhere.

There is still time to get your orders in for the Easter Herald. And, incidentally, we still have room for an article or two on the inspiring resurrection theme from some of our younger writers. The spirit of youth reflects the spirit of the resurrection message.

Among the interesting letters the editor found waiting his attention on Monday morning was one from a tiny "girl friend" in Oregon. The little lady is not yet in school and writes a hand that none but an editor or a parent could comprehend. But we read what she termed her "wroting" with ease, just as the heavenly Father reads the childish hearts of His adult children.

Sr. F. M. Cawby of North Judson, Ind., tells of a surprise visit she recently enjoyed from Bro. Cecil Smead, pastor of the Blanchard, Mich., church. Bro. Smead was accompanied by his mother, Mrs. John Hammond, his sister Ruth, and Sr. Hatten of Culver, Ind. Sr. Cawby also infers that her "housework suffers on account of the interesting articles in The Herald each week."

only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church to be joint heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

SPECIAL INDEBTEDNESS FUND

Previously reported	$426.65
Silas M. Claypool	5.00
"Michigan"	5.00
A. C. Boyer and Mrs. John Piper	10.00
C. D. Balliet	1.10
W. E. Boyer	10.00
C. E. Mills Family	18.00
Mr. and Mrs. R. Harman	10.00
Total	$485.75
Pledges reported	504.00
Mr. and Mrs. R. Harman (pledge)	10.00
Total pledges and contributions	$999.75

HALFWAY TO THE TOP!

We're doing well! Rung by rung we're climbing the ladder toward the top. We are halfway there right now! Small amounts and large amounts continue to come in day after day, but we still need more to reach our goal. God has been wonderfully generous to the Church of God during the years of depression. He has kept us going, yes, and gaining ground all the time. Let us show our appreciation in a material way. In the office we will cut every corner of expense possible, make every sacrifice to carry on, and we ask no more than that you who have this work at heart shall stand behind us as you have done in the past. Victory is in sight!

Let's
climb
the Ladder
to Success

$1000
$900
$800
$700
$600
$500
$400
$300
$200
$100

THE RESTITUTION HERALD
Published by
National Bible Institution
Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents
Sample copy, Free.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

The RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: the near return of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life

TOO LATE

By E. E. Giesler

IN THE summer of 1912 the writer, then occupied at mission work in Houston, Texas, had quite a singular experience one evening when, just before the time to preach, he was strangely impressed to go to the door of the hall and obeyed the leading, and was surprised to meet a young man who asked for food, declaring he had gone three days and two nights without anything to eat. His immediate needs were supplied, and through the generosity of Mother Dulaney (deceased) room and board were secured until he could find work. He was soon employed as chauffeur by a doctor and was faithful to duty until he earned enough money to pay his way back home to England. So one day with a light heart he went to Galveston, Texas, to take ship, and through carelessness all his own, was a little late; the ship had sailed, and not another for a month. He was overcome with grief, and spent all his savings that night in a drunken debauch.

"Too late," Noah faithfully warned the people, and by faith prepared an ark to the saving of his house, by which he condemned the world, and became the heir of righteousness which is by faith. Eight souls were saved by water, because they believed and obeyed the Prophet of God and entered the ark. Then, when God shut to the door it was forever too late for others, and so they perished.

Moses led the children of Israel out into a land of milk and honey, and there taught them the law of God until they understood all that was required of them. God had put His holy Word in their mouths and in their hearts (Deut. 30:14). "But the word is very nigh unto thee, in thy mouth, and in thy heart, that thou mayest do it." They would not obey God, but willingly served idols, and grieved the heart of God until He allowed the enemy to come from Assyria, capture their king, kill many hundreds of them, and take the rest prisoners. Down in Babylon, in grief and sorrow, they longed for their own land, where they could worship God in freedom; but it was too late, they had signed away their day of grace, and now they would have seventy years of prison life until all of the ones responsible for their sins passed unto the embrace of death.

Christ came to His own, taught them the Word of God, healed their sick, and raised some of the dead. He stretched out His hands to them for three years and bade them come to Him. They were blind, yes; but why? Matthew 13:15: "And their eyes they have closed; lest at any time they should see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and should understand with their heart, and should be converted, and I should heal them." Luke 13:34: "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, . . . how often would I have gathered thy children together, . . . and ye would not!" Now it was forever too late, and the end had come. "Your house is left unto you desolate." Matthew 21:43: "The kingdom of God shall be taken from you." Matthew 8:12: "But the children of the kingdom shall be cast out into outer darkness: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth." Over nineteen hundred years have passed away since Christ, and again the age end is at hand. The Bible has been printed in several hundred languages and sent to all parts of the earth. Churches everywhere. Faithful ministers, and other workers ever at their post of duty, some hardly getting enough money to pay their rent: in the pulpit every Sunday with a message of warning, declaring that the end of the age is at hand.

The nations are ready for the last great struggle, and soon the midnight hour will strike. Soon the salt of the earth will be removed. Soon the last week of Daniel's prophecy will have come, when the inhabitants of the earth will go mad. The foolish virgins will seek for the truth, and it will not be found, for the famine of the Word of God (Amos 8:11) will have come, and the church been taken away. O then, brother, sister, friend, it will be forever and eternally too late.

Are you walking in all the light that you have? Are you doing all you can to spread the gospel? Are you holding with the people that preach the truth? Or have you stepped aside and are now walking in an easier path? In the language of the Master (Luke 13:24) let me speak to your heart. "Strive to enter in at the strait gate: for many, I say unto you, will seek to enter in, and shall not be able. When once the master of the house is risen up, and hath shut to the door," then, forever, it is too late.

WONDERFUL

By C. E. Randall

God's dealings with the Jew are simply wonderful, and their modern movements in the light of prophecy are as marvelous as many of their previous deliverances. Israel have always, since their very beginning, had a prominent part in the purpose of God. For many centuries or during the "times of the Gentiles" they have been for the most part obscured and dormant. As "Gentile times" close, Israel awakens. It is this great awakening that we wish to call attention to.

A few years ago, the majority of Bible students could not see how Palestine could be delivered out of the hands of the "Unspeakable Turk" and given to the Jew. Therefore, they refused to accept the view of Israel's being restored to their nation. From the time that the "Lovers of Zion" were organized in 1882 and then the Zionist Movement of 1887 and onward little headway was made.

What appears impossible to man is no barrier to God. He works in mysterious ways His wonders to perform. God had promised that Jerusalem would be trodden down of the Gentiles only till the "times of the Gentiles be fulfilled."—Church of God Messenger.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 23

OREGON, ILLINOIS, MARCH 20, 1934

NUMBER 25

BOOT HILL

By Arlen Marsh

OUT OF the West that is not yet entirely dead, the West of mushroom towns, of caballero and plain cowpunch, has drifted a roster of names that must forever be etched on the monuments to the building of a nation. Dodge City, Ogallala, Santa Fe, Tonopah, and Goldfield; Houston, Cody, Carson, Fremont: these are the words that have lent a specious color to the drab history of a people falsely presumed to have been founded upon the austerity of Plymouth Rock. New England held its place in the creation of the new America, but Santa Fe was founded a century before the Separatists left off fighting a bigoted Queen to take to fighting Indians—was founded and was civilized.

Only the West could have produced Boot Hill, the West, grim as leagues of sand and yucca and blasted rock can make it, arid, fertile, deadly as a rattler, beautiful beyond compare. Under the kindly ministrations of such iron-fisted men as Wild Bill Hickox, the West in its travail gave up not one Boot Hill, but several, whereon were planted those of violent disposition who had been so unfortunate as to have incurred the enmity of those more fitted to be violent. Death was sudden, swift, and sure; but this was due to the environs of the West far more than to its character.

With Boot Hill came into being the eloquent phrase "the Great Divide," the master of Boot Hill, the arbitrary line over which men slid, voluntarily or otherwise, to regions beyond the pale. Precisely what lay over the Great Divide the West itself was hesitant to say; hell then, as now, was an indefinite location existing more in the imaginations of the gullible than in all the reality of truth, and men who died there in the West were not presumed to go to any other place. But the Great Divide was real and terrible, and Boot Hill was the expression of its results and mastery.

Philosophical discussions of the questionable theology of the times were not among the vogues of the West of Carson, Houston, Cody. That Moses had once lived and died the people held a vague idea, but as to who he was or what he was they knew absolutely nothing. His laws, however, ruled; and the precept of an eye for an eye and a shot-gun charge for a Colt .45 held the reins of what government there was until the advancing steel of the railroads brought more settlers and, subsequently, peace. Meanwhile, the population of the several Boot Hills grew apace.

In common with Jonathan Edwards of the severe New England already mentioned, therefore, the West based its text upon Deuteronomy 32:35 ("their foot shall slide in due time"); but, contrary to the precepts of the earnest Mr. Edwards, it denied the theory that "there is nothing that keeps wicked men at any one moment out of hell, but the mere pleasure of God" and proceeded to the task of making such men slide. The thinking of the West, like the climate and geography, was stern and just, whether righteously or otherwise, and the doctrine of self-determination was accepted by a common consent.

The West, indeed, settled perforce in the ways of violent living and violent death by the very character of the country and the rabble which infested it, went further than a haphazard denial of the teachings of such men as Mr. Edwards and a simple procedure in the even tenor of its ways. Faced with the problems of maintaining life among the rigors of a frontier never approximated elsewhere on the earth, they who inhabited the West came to believe with the anonymous author of the lines that

"One ship sails east, and another sails west
With the selfsame winds that blow;
'Tis the set of the sails
And not the gales
Which decides the way they go.

"Like the winds of the sea are the ways of fate,
As we voyage along through life,
'Tis the will of the soul
That decides the goal,
And not the calm or strife."

Adoption of the ideas of a true theology of which they consciously knew nothing, however, was not enough; these

Please turn to Page Nine

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879.

G. Eldred Marsh, Editor

Two Dollars per Year

Paul C. Johnson, Associate Editor

"As he sat on the Hill of Olives opposite the temple, Peter and James and John and Andrew asked him in private, 'Tell us, when is this to happen? What will be the sign for all this to be accomplished?'"—Mark 13:3, 4.—Moffatt.

A PRE-EASTER PRAYER

O God, Thou who art the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ and who hast not disdained to call us Thy children, we invoke Thy blessing to rest upon us as we approach the day on which we celebrate the resurrection of Thy Son. As we meditate upon that most significant of all miracles, may we make it the focusing point of our own hope. Because that event took place, because Christ was really made to live again, may we also look forward to a resurrection from the dead at His coming. In His dear name. Amen.

—0—

"TIME, PLEASE?"

WE borrow the caption from the front page of The Morning Star, published by Pastor A. E. Hoskins in the interest of the Church of God at St. Cloud, Minnesota. We regret we are unable to reproduce the excellent illustration with which he vividly portrays the thought suggested in the title.

This is an arresting question. A request to know the time—the time in which we live—and the meaning and the value of the passing days. We recall that the disciples asked a similar question of the Master on an occasion when He was passing out of the temple into the Court of the Gentiles. They had directed His attention to the beautiful buildings within the inclosure, and the Lord, observing them, commenting perhaps upon their massiveness and stability, remarked to the astonishment of His followers: "See ye not all these things? verily I say unto you, There shall not be left here one stone upon another, that shall not be thrown down."

It was after He had introduced this prediction that the disciples approached Him with the question mentioned: "Tell us, when shall these things be?"

It is natural and right that men should want to know something about the time of the Lord's coming and the end of this age. They are deeply concerned with it. And this is especially true of those who have united themselves for eternity with the destiny of Christ. They want their Lord to come, and to come quickly, and so they ask, "When?"

The inspired writers repeatedly call our attention to the fact that the time that remains for preparation is short (1 Cor. 7:29), and that the ordinary affairs of life should be governed by that fact. The Coming One Himself asserts that the exact hour when He is to appear is not only uncertain, but entirely unknown to both angels and men, and, consequently, watchfulness should be the motto of every disciple (Matt. 24:36, 42-44).

Paul, with his masterly ability to place his finger upon the weakest point in human nature with unfaltering precision, warns against indifference with regard to this matter of time, and says that, knowing the time to be so short, slumbering disciples should be aroused to a sense of their need for watchfulness, and to the realization that their salvation is nearer than when they first believed (Rom. 13:11).

The proximity of the Lord's coming being clearly indicated by all manner of world events, the worker is inspired to zealous activity on behalf of the unsaved. The harvest is great, the laborers are few (Luke 10:2), the time is short, and "now is the day of salvation" (2 Cor. 6:2). Therefore let us respond to the challenge of the times in which we live.

—0—

"DO YOUR EASTER SHOPPING EARLY"

SUCH is the appeal made on the front page of one of America's great newspapers at the approach of the Easter season: Do your Easter shopping early! How significant that is of the trend of the times! It makes no difference what the occasion may be, religious, political, or social, that calls people together or that arouses public attention, profit-hunger of the American business man prompts him to make an appeal to the carnal desires, the inclinations of pride, and the fleshly longing for personal display which are a part of depraved human nature. He seeks material gain from every source and under all circumstances. Such is his one purpose in life.

The commercializing of Christmas, Mother's Day, Memorial Day, and the Fourth of July has reached such a point that the true meaning of these annual celebrations has been submerged in an avalanche of merchandise. The humble spirit of the Christ-child is forgotten, the self-sacrificing nature of Motherhood is ignored, the real defenders of liberty overlooked, and the birth of a great nation forgotten, through the avaricious appeals of commercial advertisers.

On Drunkenness

Dogood Papers, No. 12

Quod est in corde sobrii, est in ore ebrii.

TO THE AUTHOR OF THE NEW ENGLAND COURANT.

SIR,

IT is no unprofitable tho' unpleasant Pursuit, diligently to inspect and consider the Manners & Conversation of Men, who insensible of the greatest Enjoyments of humane Life, abandon themselves to Vice from a false Notion of Pleasure and good Fellowship. A true and natural Representation of any Enormity, is often the best Argument against it and Means of removing it, when the most severe Reprehensions alone, are found ineffectual.

I WOULD in this Letter improve the little Observation I have made on the Vice of Drunkenness, the better to reclaim the good Fellows who usually pay the Devotions of the Evening to Bacchus.

I DOUBT not but moderate Drinking has been improv'd for the Diffusion of Knowledge among the ingenious Part of Mankind, who want the Talent of a ready Utterance, in order to discover the Conceptions of their Minds in an entertaining and intelligible Manner. 'Tis true, drinking does not improve our Faculties, but it enables us to use them; and therefore I conclude, that much Study and experience, and a little Liquor, are of absolute Necessity for some Tempers, in order to make them accomplish'd orators. Dic. Ponder discovers an excellent Judgment when he is inspir'd with a glass or two of Claret, but he passes for a Fool among those of small Observation, who never saw him the better for Drink. And here it will not be improper to observe, That the moderate Use of Liquor, and a well plac'd and well regulated Anger, often produce this same Effect; and some who cannot ordinarily talk but in broken Sentences and false Grammar, do in the Heat of Passion express themselves with as much Eloquence as Warmth. Hence it is that my own Sex are generally the most eloquent, because the most passionate. "It has been said in the Praise of some Men," (says an ingenious Author,) "that they could talk whole Hours together upon any thing; but it must be owned to the Honour of the other Sex, that there are many among them who can talk whole Hours together upon Nothing. I have known a Woman branch out into a long extempore Dissertation on the Edging of a Petticoat, and chide her Servant for breaking a China Cup, in all the Figures of Rhetorick."

BUT after all it must be consider'd, that no Pleasure can give Satisfaction or prove advantageous to a reasonable Mind, which is not attended with the Restraints of Reason. Enjoyment is not to be found by Excess in any sensual Gratification; but on the contrary, the immoderate Cravings of the Voluptuary, are always succeeded with Loathing and a palled Appetite. What Pleasure can the Drunkard have in the Reflection, that while in his Cups, he retain'd only the Shape of a Man, and acted the Part of a Beast; or that from reasonable Discourse a few Minutes before, he descended to Impertinence and Nonsense?

I CANNOT pretend to account for the different Effects of Liquor on Persons of different Dispositions, who are guilty of Excess in the Use of it. 'Tis strange to see Men of a regular Conversation become rakish and profane when intoxicated with Drink, and yet more surprizing to observe, that some who appear to be the most profligate Wretches when sober, become mighty religious in their Cups, and will then, and at no other Time address their Maker, but when they are destitute of Reason, and actually affronting Him. Some shrink in the Wetting, and others swell to such an unusual Bulk in their Imaginations, that they can in an Instant understand all Arts and Sciences, by the liberal Education of a little vivifying Punch, or a sufficient Quantity of other exhilarating Liquor.

AND as the Effects of Liquor are various, so are the Characters given to its Devourers. It argues some Shame in the Drunkards themselves, in that they have invented numberless Words and Phrases to cover their Folly, whose proper Significations are harmless, or have no signification at all. They are seldom known to be drunk, tho they are very often boozey, cogey, tipsey, fox'd, merry, mellow, fuddl'd, groatable, Confoundedly cut, See two Moons, are Among the Philistines, In a very good Humor, See the Sun, or, The Sun has shone upon them; they Clip the King's English, are Almost froze, Feavourish, In their Altitudes, Pretty well enter'd, &c. In short, every Day produces some new Word or Phrase which might be added to the Vocabulary of the Tipters: But I have chose to mention these few, because if at any Time a Man of Sobriety and Temperance happens to cut himself confoundedly, or is almost froze, or feavourish, or accidentally sees the Sun, &c. he may escape the Imputation of being drunk, when his Misfortune comes to be related.

I am Sir,

Your Humble Servant,
SILENCE DOGOOD.

The Herald does not often present treatments of such matters as that discussed in the accompanying satirical letter on drunkenness, written by Benjamin Franklin under the pseudonym "Silence Dogood" for the "New England Courant." It is, however, certain that neither "thieves, nor covetous, nor drunkards, nor revilers, nor extortioners, shall inherit the kingdom of God," for so Paul wrote in 1 Corinthians 6:10. Consequently, The Herald offers this one of the Dogood Papers as a novelty, as good literature (although it preserves an antique flavor), and as a solemn warning, feeling that the truth of the argument is too well settled to allow haggling over questions of self-determination of moral conduct according to individual conscience.

God Is My Father

WE hear much about the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man, as though the whole world were one happy family, with no discords, and no broken family ties, and everyone acknowledging God as Father.

Our secret orders teach this in theory, but in practice their brothers are only those who have "taken the degree" and pay their dues, thereby establishing their right to be called brothers among the affiliated membership.

Many of our modernisms are founded upon the theory, even claiming that their structures are built upon the word of God.

Our modernistic schools and colleges, ignoring the teaching of the Bible, are leading their scholars away from such sublime truths as the divinity of Christ, the adoption into the family of God, the advocacy before the throne, and the return of the Lord for His own.

In an article in a current magazine entitled, "How College Changed My Religious Views," Miss Pearl Brown says: "When I entered college four years ago I firmly believed that God was omnipotent and omnipresent; that Jesus Christ, His Son, was the most nearly perfect man that ever lived; and that the virgin birth was not to be questioned. . . . The first jolt I received during my freshman year was when an English literature professor informed his class that there was no God. . . . If a teacher in a university could dare to make such a statement, perhaps I could dare to think about it. . . . After taking a psychology course I was more sure than ever that I could think about religious things. . . . Five of us girls would meet in our rooms to voice our doubts and disbeliefs. . . . Certainly I was a most unhappy and unhopeful creature. . . . Albert Palmer's Drift Toward Religion, and Bruce Barton's The Book Nobody Knows gave me new thoughts. I saw that I was not getting anywhere believing—or disbelieving—as I did. The course in psychology also increased my doubts, because the professor explained so many of the miracles in purely physical terms. . . . And now, miracles, special creation, immaculate conception, the virgin birth, the resurrection, and controversial matters have little to do with my religious faith. I could believe all of these, yet it would not necessarily make my life any better. If, however, I live in accordance with my belief in the Fatherhood of God and Brotherhood of Man, my life will be far more serviceable."

The Fatherhood of God and Brotherhood of Man! Only in the physical world does God's Word recognize such a relationship. Paul mentions this in this connection in his address on Mars' Hill when he quotes: "For we also are his offspring" (from the Greek poet Aratus).

From time immemorial men have been trying to find God through their various forms of worship. And in these latter days a large part of the investigations of our scientists is a search for God, though they designate the object of their search by some other name.

They train their huge telescopes upon the stars of night in an endeavor to find a first cause. They uncover the geological strata with pick and shovel, and estimate the different ages of earth's history, ever working back toward a first cause. They search among the minute things of creation with their powerful microscopes, and their ultimate aim is a first cause. With their most sensitive instruments they study even the tiny atom with its swiftly moving electrons in an endeavor to find a first cause.

Our philosophers are searching for the "absolute" in vain, hearing only the echo of their own voices.

All the while many of our churches have left their first love in an endeavor to keep in the good graces of present-day materialists. This is so noticeable that Count Keyserling, after a visit to this country, voiced the following sentiment, "The more normal churches in America really no longer play a part worth mentioning in spiritual life. . . . Most Americans belong to their churches in no other sense than they belong to their golf clubs, or their Rotary clubs."

Psychology is in the limelight, and its devotees are searching the workings of the human mind to find an explanation of life and its source. Dr. Frank B. Robinson, the son of a late Baptist clergyman, is responsible for a correspondence course which he designates "Psychiana"; a teaching based upon the New Psychology. In a recent article, after telling of his experiences of forty years of mishaps and failures, he says that in his researches into the teachings of psychology he finally found God enthroned in his own subconscious mind.

A man-created god just as much as the "gods of gold, or silver, or stone, graven by art and man's device." This reminds one of the Hall of Mirrors in which one sees only his own reflection.

Eddington remarks: "We have found a strange footprint on the shores of the unknown. We have devised profound theories to account for its origin. At last we have succeeded in reconstructing the creature that made the footprint. And lo! it is our own."

It has been said, "All roads lead to Rome"; but in our day and generation, thanks to the vagaries of modern philosophy, it would seem that all roads lead to Athens; and we find ourselves among the polytheists of ancient Greece, as it were, prostrate before the altar "TO THE UNKNOWN GOD." And in the gloom of philosophical doubt we are groping to touch the Eternal. Is there no hope? Is there no light? Listen! Out of the dim past comes the voice of the Prophet of old: "The people that walked in darkness have seen a great light: they that dwell in the land of the shadow of death, upon them hath the light shined." —Isa. 9:2. Let us arise then, and go to Capernaum, for there on the shores of beautiful blue Galilee walks the One of whom the Prophet spoke. It is Jesus "the Light of the world." And listen again! This time it is the voice of the great Apostle Paul, speaking of this same Jesus: "God sent forth his Son, made of a woman, made under the law, that we might receive the adoption of sons. And because ye are sons, God hath sent forth the Spirit of his Son into your hearts, crying, Abba, Father."—Gal. 4:2-7.

Heeding the words of Paul, we travel the road of repentance, through the blood atonement, to the state of adoption as sons, and then, and not until then, can we exclaim, "God is my Father."

Reasoning from these premises that God is our Father only as we come to Him through Christ, let us study the meaning and responsibilities of such a relationship.

We will follow the analogy of a father who is at the head of a great business, and who has taken his sons into active partnership.

The greatest business in all the world is winning men and women for Jesus. God our Father is at the head, and by virtue of the Great Commission He has intrusted to us the carrying out of the details of the work. All business represents values, but His business represents the greatest values—values far beyond the price of earth's richest merchandise, for in His business we deal in the souls of men. Jesus Himself asks: "For what shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? Or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?"—Mark 8:36, 37. In these questions Jesus appeals to man's sense of the worth of his own soul. At another time He presents the Father's estimate of the soul's value, when He asks: "Are not two sparrows sold for a farthing? and one of them shall not fall on the ground without your Father. But the very hairs of your head are all numbered. Fear ye not therefore, ye are of more value than many sparrows."—Matt. 10:29-31. Having thus established the character of the business as dealing in the souls of men, we perceive that its values are social, spiritual, and eternal. To these foundational values, the Father's business requires that other values be added, and in this accretion we have His cooperation, for we are "workers together with him" (2 Cor. 6:1). We will consider this under three heads:

First. As workers with the Father we add character values that are of the greatest worth, not only in our social economy, but in the economy of the promised kingdom of God.

"Years ago Prof. Pellman, of Bohn University, traced the descendants of one Ada Jurke, an abandoned woman. Out of 800 descendants thus traced there was a record of 769 who were thieves, drunkards, murderers, prostitutes, degenerate, and insane. Their activities cost the State millions of dollars, and down to the close of this investigation this family was still producing its kind."

This is a negative illustration, but suppose that Ada Jurke had become a follower of Christ at the beginning of her career, and had inspired her offspring with the importance of becoming children of God. What a different family history this would have been, and what character values would have accrued.

Second. As workers with our Father we change liabilities into assets. (Please turn to Back Page)

ENJOY IT!

By J. W. Lent

THE practice of religion is and ought to be a form of entertainment, a practice of happiness, which in fact should be more generally recognized.

Why shouldn't people enjoy their religion? The right kind of religion is all sweetness and joy and light, not gloom and sadness. It is a thing so deep and wide and high that it comprehends everything that makes life worth living here below.

We look up to see the sun shining on high, hear the song of the birds, the shouts of happy children, smell the perfume of the flowers, see the expanse of valley and hill, the sheen of the brook wandering through the meadow and send a paean of thanksgiving up to the Father for the wonderful gifts that He has given to the children of men.

Why shouldn't there be lots of fun and enthusiasm about it right now?

Instead of singing lugubrious hymns about a future state at a distant date, let everyone remember that the Christ is not on some far off distant planet, remote and inaccessible, but He is here, right now, in spirit, near to everyone that seeks to find Him, ready to help him in his everyday trials and troubles, ready to join in his smiles and tears, his joys and sorrows; a Comforter who brings joy, deep and abiding, and gives the peace of God that passeth all understanding.

Why shouldn't people be entertained and enjoy their religion, a thing that comes to the lives and hearts of us all, nearer and closer than anything else in this world?

To read and appreciate the Bible, a collection of books that contains some of the greatest literature the world has ever seen, to follow its precepts and walk in the paths of the men of old, is to stand for high and lofty ideals, to attain nobility of character, become men and women of truth and righteousness, and to be akin to those who in times past attained to that crown of righteousness which fadeth not away, to be children of God and heirs of the resurrection: and God Himself shall wipe away all tears from our eyes.

"For he shall give his angels charge over thee, to keep thee in all thy ways."

Messianic Prophecies

IT was in fulfillment of a prophetic utterance that Jesus was sold for thirty pieces of silver. The value or worth of the money was that of the price of a slave.

Judas had, undoubtedly, attached himself to Jesus because he deemed Him the Messiah and expected reward and honor in the Messianic kingdom. After disillusionment came to Judas, he appeared at the threshold of the high priest and bargained to betray the innocent Jesus. They offered him thirty shekels of silver, and he accepted the price of a slave for betraying the innocent red blood of Jesus into wicked hands. I think the insult was aimed less at Jesus than Judas, for it was the traitor that they purchased at a slave's price. Those priests paid Judas the money on the spot as though to be done with him at once.

I can imagine that Judas followed after Jesus and the crowd from the Garden of Gethsemane throughout the whole procedure of the seven trials, hoping that if Jesus was the true Messiah He would free Himself. But it was not so, for Jesus had prayed, "Not my will, but thine, be done," and was giving Himself a willing self-sacrifice for all men of all ages who would accept Him.

After Jesus was convicted before the Sanhedrin, a wierd figure approached the Sanhedrists as they left the Hall of Hewn Stone and passed out into the temple court. It was a remorseful Judas, haggard and wild. He rushed to them and cried out, "I have sinned in that I have betrayed innocent blood." A reply came, "What is that to us?" The priests entered the inner court, or Holy of holies, to perform their priestly duties. Judas followed them to the threshold, but he could not enter, and there he hurled the money, the thirty shekels, a slave's price, upon the floor of the house of the Lord. Those priests were terribly embarrassed in that they had their money now back on their hands. With those thirty pieces of silver they purchased the Potter's field—the Field of Blood.

On the night of the betrayal of Jesus, His disciples became frightened and fled, leaving Him alone to pay the price for the sin of the first Adam. The prophetic Word had declared that the disciples would not stay with Him, and we find that utterance was fulfilled to the letter.

The Messianic prophecy of Isaiah declared that He was to be dumb and wounded (I think the most beautiful and touching Messianic prophecy of the Bible is found in Isaiah's utterance).

Crucifixion was a Roman form of punishment, and was one of the most terrible, most dreaded, and most shameful punishments of that day. It was not a Jewish punishment, but was used or practiced by the Romans. As soon as the sentence had been placed upon a criminal, preparations were made for the execution. In the case of Jesus the soldiers stripped Him of the purple robe and reclothed Him with His own clothes. Then the soldiers selected a cross from those stored in the Praetorium. It was customary that the criminal should bear his own cross to the place of execution, and a ghastly one was laid upon Jesus' shoulders. Jesus was not alone on His way to execution; there were two brigands lying under sentence, and Pilate, regardless of the Jewish law which forbade more than one execution on one day, sent them along to be crucified.

Everything was in readiness ere they started out on the longest road that led to Calvary. All was under direction of a centurion who headed the procession. Next was a herald carrying a large board with the offence written upon it.

The scene was an appalling and a terrible one as the procession moved forward through the busiest streets of Jerusalem. When the prisoners staggered beneath their crosses, they were driven forward by lash and goad. Many people followed in this procession, some only to jeer and mock, while others went along in sympathy. And there were those along who loved Jesus.

Jesus was worn from brutal handling and was enfeebled by fasting and excitement, and when He reached the city gate, His strength utterly failed Him. There remained nothing to be done except relieve Him of the cross by transferring it to stronger shoulders. On looking around to see whom they might compel to carry the cross, the soldiers spied a stranger who was about to enter the gate. This stranger was a Jew named Simon of Cyrene. He had come to Jerusalem to celebrate the feast. The soldiers arrested him and compelled him to bear Jesus' cross to Calvary. While the procession was stopped, the women greatly lamented Jesus, and He turned and spoke to them the words found in Luke 23:28-31.

It was nine o'clock when they reached Golgotha, and without delay the victims were nailed to the cross through hands and feet, and with a terrible thud the crosses were dropped into the rocky holes.

Jesus refused the narcotic draught offered Him by the charitable women of Jerusalem, for He desired to remain conscious throughout His suffering and speak pardon to sinners and glorify His Father even in the hour of death.

Before the victims were nailed to the crosses they were stripped of their clothes, and these were divided among the soldiers. Jesus' inner garment was woven throughout without seam, and the soldiers agreed to cast lots for it, fulfilling the Scriptures: "They part my garments among them, and cast lots upon my vesture."

Jesus was alive on the cross for three hours, from nine until twelve, and during that time He spoke seven times.

The two malefactors crucified with Jesus reviled Him, hoping to win mercy from their executioners. When He spoke the prayer of forgiveness, one of them relented. He bowed his head in awe, and ceased his reviling, and reproved his comrade when he continued to do so. The repentant one was made doubly so when Jesus prayed, "Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do." He asked to be remembered in Christ's kingdom, and there in the awful agony of the cross, Jesus gave him promise of that. That prayer of forgiveness reaches onward to the end of the age.

In the declining part of the evening, the soldiers were ordered to go perform the Curifragium; when they arrived at Golgotha's hill they found that Jesus was already dead, and therefore it was not necessary for them to strike His legs with the heavy mallet. They only speared His side, and "forthwith came there out blood and water." It had been prophesied that not one bone of His body would be broken, and again we find God's Word to stand. The prophecy was fulfilled.—Mae Turnbow in The Messiah's Advocate.

Jehovah's Covenant With Abraham

IN this our concluding article on the vital question of the divine covenant, we shall endeavor to show that its fulfillment lies before us in the immediate future; certainly not in the past. We have already referred our readers to the testimony of the patriarch Stephen, to the effect that Abraham had not received as much as a "foot" of the land in his day, but purchased a burial place when Sarah died (Gen. 23:1-20; Acts 7:5). Paul's witness is to the same effect (Heb. 11:13). Such testimony cannot be impeached. What shall we do? Believe God as Abraham did, and wait for it as he has done. How long must we wait? Until Christ shall come from out the heaven of heavens and awaken the heirs and co-heirs of whom Christ the Royal Seed is chief.

II

The resurrection is an absolute necessity to the fulfillment of this gracious enactment. Death is no barrier to the sublime project in the divine purpose, since Christ our blessed "blood brother"—Abraham's greater Son—is alive to see it carried through to a final issue. The indications world-wide prove that in a very, very little while there will be a stirring in old Machpelah. The trumpet's blast will penetrate the long silence of the tomb, and announce the "morning" has come. The "voice" of the heavenly Bridegroom will tell Abraham that it is time to arise and live and possess the land. We solemnly declare, regardless of the theories and vain philosophies of men, that in order to the redemption of this old-time promise, and a possession of the "land" involved, there must be a living again of those really dead heirs. But it can be accomplished only by the Son of God, who was Himself once dead. He is the "Sire" of eternity. He is the "Father" of the immortal race or family (Isa. 9:6, 7). The "land" of which we speak is the fatherland of God's deathless family: all such as have by sovereign grace been salvaged from the flotsam and jetsam of the centuries of sin and the curse. Abraham's faith did not waver, why should ours? "What saith the scripture? Abraham believed God, and it was counted unto him for righteousness."

God evermore honors the faith that does not stagger, and so it is written: "He staggered not at the promise of God through unbelief; but was strong in faith, giving glory to God; and being fully persuaded that, what he had promised, he was able also to perform. And therefore it was imputed to him for righteousness."

Abraham's faith was of that type that could bring life out of death, and God put His seal of approval upon it. But that is not all there is to the story. No!

"Now it was not written for his sake alone, that it was imputed to him; but for us also, to whom it shall be imputed, if we believe on him that raised up Jesus our Lord from the dead."

Since God is no respecter of persons, to all who will submit to the simple claims of the gospel as contained in this old, old story it will be imputed unto righteousness together with faithful Abraham.

III

There is no difference between the Jew and the Gentile in relation to the covenant. Let us hear the Apostle Paul on this wise: "For there is no difference between the Jew and the Greek: for the same Lord over all is rich unto all that call upon him. For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved."—Rom. 10:12, 13.

Those words are sufficient to settle every disputation as touching the matter of any favoritism toward the Hebrew race above that of the Gentile people. Why should we make a distinction, since God does not (Acts 15:9; Gal. 3:28)? There is one privilege alike to Jew and Gentile during the day of salvation, and that day is now (2 Cor. 6:2). God has caused to be broken down the wall of partition (Eph. 2:14). Why should any man seek to build again what God has "broken down"? Echo answers, Why? It can only be done by placing arbitrary constructions upon Old Testament conditional prophecies, which in so doing will repudiate New Testament statements. God's No Distinction will stand, whether we believe it or not. If men would stop their theorizing and believe God, confusion of thought and teaching would likewise come to an end.

It is clear to us that the Jews, separated from Christ their Messiah, can have no legal claim to any God-given land except by virtue of the covenant confirmed of the Almighty in Christ. The whole matter is summed up in the words of the Apostle: "Now to Abraham and his seed were the promises made. He saith not, And to seeds, as of many; but as of one, And to thy seed, which is Christ."—Gal. 3:16. Not to the Jews, but to Jesus, their long looked for, and finally sent, but rejected, Messiah.

"For ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus. For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ." That is written to, and is distinctly the property of Gentile believers, and so it is further declared: "And if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise."

Unbelieving Israelites have no portion in this inheritance. All must comply with the conditions under the new covenant in the Messiah. As "natural branches," they were "cut off." And why? Because of "unbelief." They are just "broken off," and lifeless "branches," and they can only be "grafted" in by faith (Rom. 11). The Jews, as such, may hope, but hope in vain, for any polity to be restored to them by the resetting up of the Davidic throne in Jerusalem. The propagandist, however zealous he may be, who seeks to spread such doctrines is in error, and grievously so. It is so much dust in the eyes of the people; it is misleading and deceitful. It is dishonoring to God; it contradicts His Word, and robs Christ of His glory. Should the Hebrew people, scattered all over the face of the earth, and in every nation of the world, migrate to the land of their fathers en masse, it would not make the least difference to the divine arrangement, for it is their nationality and not merely where they reside that is at stake (Matt. 8:11, 12; 21:43-46; Luke 19:11-27). Christian believer, let us rejoice in our joint heirship with Christ.

"I see them on the fair, green lands
That skirt the sands of time's bleak shore,
At home, amid the blood-washed bands,
To tread these rugged paths no more.

Soon, soon will come the glorious day,
When this faith vision shall be known,
When earthly things are passed away,
Then shall the saved surround the throne."

—Samuel Forsby in The Messiah's Advocate.

Everybody Does

By Richard Le Crone

WE have all been amused at times to note how eagerly children watch their growth, rejoicing in every inch added to their stature because it brings them nearer to the height that they most desire. In all probability, the height and breadth aspired to by a child will be found to equal that of the person whom he most admires. That person may be his parent or it may be some one else, but always it is some one more mature and developed than himself. He strives to emulate the object of his admiration in all that he does.

Children, in their innocence and hero worship, have provided many a lesson and much food for thought for thoughtful adults. Their wisdom sometimes reveals to us our foolishness.

We have yet to hear a child say of his fellow, "I am as big as John. I don't need to drink any more milk or eat any more bread. I don't want to grow any more." If he gives the matter a thought at all, he knows that his playmate John, like himself, is only partly grown, and therefore unfit as an example for himself. He is more likely to say, "I must eat and drink a lot and get lots of exercise so I'll grow up and be like father." Father to him represents all that he wishes to be.

Every Christian has accepted Christ as his perfect example, and has expressed a desire to grow in grace and develop into the fullness of the stature of Christ. Yet just recently, when we attempted to point out to one of these what we believed to be a hindrance to his development toward that ideal, he immediately began to point out the faults and shortcomings of all who held office in the church, ending with a statement that he is "just as righteous as any of them."

Oh, Christians, how prone we are to compare ourselves with ourselves, forgetting completely that there is only one whom we may take as a measuring rod, even Jesus. Can we, who are babes in Christ, or at best only partly grown, compare ourselves with our brethren, also babes in Christ, and finding ourselves as large as they, rest therewith content? Can we say that it is enough, that we have no more need of the milk of the Word, the first principles of Christianity?

Of course, dear Christian, you are just as good, just as righteous, just as zealous as any of your brethren, but are they your examples? Are they perfect? Is it enough to be as good as they? You yourself have pointed out their many shortcomings, proving their unworthiness as examples. Why, then, must we persist in attempting to justify ourselves by their deeds of unrighteousness? As well might the little fellow at school say, "I'm as large as the rest of the boys in my class, I don't need any more growth."

Dear friends, let us ever keep in mind that the Master is our model and the only safe pattern after which to shape our lives. Let us compare spiritual things with spiritual, and not make the mistakes of others justification for our own, but rather let us see them as warnings that we do not make the same mistakes. "For even hereunto were ye called: because Christ also suffered for us, leaving us an example, that ye should follow his steps."— I Peter 2:21.

We all need this warning, for it is human nature to justify our faults by comparing them with those of others. At some period of his life everybody does.

BOOT HILL

Continued from Front Page

husky pioneers, due again to the obvious facts of life and death which they endured daily, came to refer to the heaven and hell of which they had been taught in the more effete and gentle East as the megrims and vapors of the unknowing and dull. True, they spoke of the orthodox views, but Boot Hill was too obvious and too firmly engraved upon their minds to permit any conception of a life beyond the Great Divide other than a definite place of rest upon that Hill. Boot Hill, in brief, spelled the end, the terminus, of human activity; and anything beyond it assumed the form of humorous or skeptical speculation.

Thus, unconsciously, the West drifted toward the views that were originally set down in the Bible which it had come to class with vagrant sky pilots and fearful tenderfeet. The ironclad justice of the code of Moses and Aaron it appreciated and employed; but the nebulous, indefinitely located, ill-defined future abode of the dead it shoved to the category of ghosts and fairies—interesting, if true. Consideration of such problems, even beneath the fiery speech of the wandering preachers, led only to one point: Boot Hill.

Boot Hill in a sense was the Calvary of the West, for to it traveled both the good and bad; and the sacrifices made upon it were for the building of a dream and of a people. Further than this, those who found in this creation of the grim frontier the termination of their mortal activities were quite as dead as the pair of thieves and Jesus Christ, who died on Calvary. Good and bad went to Boot Hill to demonstrate the fallacy of the idea of immortality, as Perfect and bad had gone to the hill outside Jerusalem to demonstrate that and to demonstrate that the power of Boot Hill and its master, the Divide, was broken.

That Calvary was intended to bring about a reinstatement of the life of which men are deprived when they make their final excursion to Boot Hill or its counterpart is made clear as the waters about Bermuda by the biblical assertion that the Christ died that "we might have life, and that we might have it more abundantly." It required no knowledge of the grammar of ancient Greece or Rome to enable the West to determine in general the facts of life and death; but, presented only with the vague theorizings of dullards masquerading under the more complimentary title of theologians, the self-confessed students of religion found no difficulty in ignoring the mental picture of Boot Hill and creating in their own imaginations a nether world nowhere described but in the mythology of the heathen. Although the West, with pure unconsciousness, accepted in a nebulous way the idea that Boot Hill was the end of man, these students of the Bible, acknowledging the divinity of its origin but denying its truth, felt that the death of Jesus Christ was vain because men were possessed of endless life. And it is true that, if Boot Hill were not the termination of present human action, thought, and word, no more empty, nugatory statement was ever devised than the one that Jesus died that we, men, might have life.

"The wages of sin is death," wrote the inspired penman, and man, given his choice of good and evil, had chosen the course that led to death. God had not murdered him, God had not even called him; God had permitted him to commit a hasty suicide. A vision of Boot Hill had been given to him, and he had of his own volition sought and succeeded to create it. The penalty had been made plain; he had been warned that he was dust; it had been indicated that death awaited sin, and that Boot Hill and nothing else awaited death. The end of man was in Boot Hill, and nought but the sacrifice of Calvary could cancel or extend it by a resurrection from the dead.

PRESENT DANGER AND DUTY

By R. V. Lyon

(The following stirring appeal was made by Elder R. V. Lyon nearly seventy-five years ago, but is as fresh and timely now as it was then. Elder Lyon was one of the powerful evangelists of the Church of God throughout the East. He was born in Southbridge, Massachusetts, October 21, 1809, and died at Niagara Falls, New York, July 24, 1891.)

THIS world is all out of gear! All is confusion! All are rushing into a state of anarchy with lightning speed. Every bond of union is being broken, save that which is produced by God's immutable Word! Three unclean spirits have gone forth out of the mouths of the dragon, the beast, and the false prophet to the kings of the earth and the whole world, dividing them into three grand divisions, headed by Satan! And each of those divisions is violently opposed to the coming of Him who has been elected by God, and chosen by His people, to come and take the throne of David, and on it sit, and reign over the house of Jacob forever: and of His kingdom there shall be no end.

Glorious day, this will be to those who have chosen Him as their Life-Giver and King, but an awful day to those who are found connected with either of the three grand divisions named!

O reader! in the name of Jesus, I call upon you to separate yourself from the world and all its chartered bodies. Choose Jesus for your Life-Giver and King! by believing the gospel, repenting of your sins, and being immersed into the name of Jesus for the remission of sins; then throw your colors out at masthead, never take them in; and upon them write: Jesus our Life-Giver and King evermore! And then, in that grand and awful hour, you will be able to stand upon the sea of glass mingled with fire!—come into possession of this earth in its renewed state!

Abreast of the Times

Jews Should Appreciate This

"Through faith . . . turned to flight the armies of the aliens."—Heb. 11:33, 34.

BERLIN, Germany, March 12.—According to press dispatches, men with one or more Jewish grandparents hereafter will be barred from service in the German Army and Navy. The measure was put into effect over the protest of President von Hindenburg, who feared that such action would be detrimental to the discipline of the Army. Many of the officers in the Army were sons and grandsons of aristocrats who married rich Jewesses that they might afford to remain in the Army and Navy. Only a Jew who fought in the trenches during the World War, or whose father was killed in action, will be permitted to become a sailor or a soldier under Germany.

Bootleg Liquor Still Sold

"Thou shalt be filled with drunkenness and sorrow."—Ezek. 23:33.

NEW YORK, March 12.—Bootleg liquor is still being sold freely in the city's better bars. This was indicated today in the results of a survey by the Department of Health, which covered the city from Greenwich Village to the midtown section and included some of the exclusive hotels, declares a special correspondent writing in the decidedly "wet" Chicago Tribune.

The annulment of the Eighteenth Amendment was to put a final end to vicious bootlegging, which was said to be the cause of many deaths through poison liquor. Strange to relate, it has been found that the bootleg product is much less dangerous than that manufactured by supposedly reputable concerns. In fact, tests that have been made show that the liquor dispensed by the bootleggers is more pure than that frequently sold in the post-prohibition saloons.

And that word "saloon" reminds us again that there was to be no return of that old disreputable institution under the new arrangement. But, like the Jews who were never going back to Palestine, both saloons and Jews are fulfilling their destiny and staging a "comeback."

Profit Motive May Wreck Civilization

"He that is greatest among you shall be your servant."—Matt. 23:11.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, told the trustees of that great institution in his report the past week that the profit motive will wreck civilization if allowed to rule unchecked, according to an editorial in Labor, the official organ of the railroad labor organizations.

"If profit alone be the end sought by human effort," said Dr. Butler, "then society must reconcile itself to steady disintegration, increasing conflict between individual groups of nations, and eventual destruction. It is only when men rise above the profit motive and learn to subordinate profit to service, that social, economic, and political order begin to come within sight of a firm foundation and a continuing existence, with peace and happiness assured to the great mass of mankind."

Commenting on Dr. Butler's remarks, Labor tersely says:

"It is strange that these wise words needed to be said at this day. History has been teaching them for millenniums. The great basic, lasting work of the world is not done for profit, and never was. Children are not reared for profit, schools are not built for ten per cent returns, the great religions were not founded as promising speculations, and every nation has been saved at some time by men who were not thinking of dividends."

Quoting again from Dr. Butler's report, Labor continues: "'Service first, and you serve God; profits first, and you serve the devil.' That is a slightly modernized version of Ruskin's maxim, which Butler has repeated and amplified."

Sheba's Capital Rediscovered

"The kings of Sheba and Seba shall offer gifts. To him shall be given of the gold of Sheba."

CAIRO, Egypt, March 14.—The discovery by the French airman, Capt. Edouard Cornignion-Molinier, and Andre Malraux, eminent Orientalist, on March 7, of what they believe to be the ruins of the ancient capital city of the Queen of Sheba, which has been long and vainly sought by archeologists, is arousing much interest among historians, Bible students, and scientists.

The discoverers describe their first view of the renowned but long-lost city in a most interesting manner. They were crossing the desert of Rub-el-Khali, an uninhabited area in the heart of Arabia.

"Flying out of a volcanic valley we were bewildered by the extraordinary sight which met our eyes. We saw the ruins of a great city, with huge buildings and towers built up several stories, each smaller than the one beneath it. The city appeared so white that it seemed as if all the buildings were of marble. A wall, in ruins, surrounded the city, which lies on a hill of volcanic stone. It was black in color, which rendered the city's whiteness more brilliant."

According to the apparent size of the town it must have possessed a population in excess of 200,000 at one time. The observers stated that the city was located about 150 kilometers (94 miles) from Sana.

National Berean Department

Miss Genniel Carpenter, Editor, Oregon, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Cecil A. Smead, President
Blanchard, Michigan

Virgil Claypool, Treasurer
506 E. Chestnut St.
Robinson, Illinois

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
Oregon, Illinois

CHRISTIANITY AN ACTIVE PRINCIPLE

CHRISTIANITY is exhibited as an active, and not a passive, principle, under every phase of Christ's teaching, whether by plain precept, or parables; as for instance, His Sermon on the Mount, or His reasoning with the Sadducees, who denied the resurrection of the dead.

In order to be a disciple of Jesus, it is necessary to be self-denying, and to take up the cross and follow Him, implying strong exertion to follow Him, too, through evil, as well as good report.

Pure religion, or Christianity, is a positive, and not a negative, principle. The plain and the parabolic teachings of Christ are replete with proof of this position. "Every tree which bringeth not forth good fruit, is hewn down, and cast into the fire," not to be spared, although it might not produce poisonous or deleterious fruit. It must bring forth positive good fruit. The point deducible from this strong figure is that every person must develop a positive character, he must be active and energetic, "not slothful in business," but "fervent in spirit." He must occupy until the Master comes. Power will be given to "rule over the nations" to those who overcome; they are to sit on thrones, and wield the scepter. In order to be prepared for this, they must be diligent students in the school of Christ, they must understand the true science of government; and this will require study.

The gospel, being the motive power, or the power of God unto salvation to those who believe and obey it, is sufficient to dispel the darkness and the gloom which sometimes hang over our spiritual horizon. When we look on the prophetic chart, and view the closing scenes on earth's great drama, a chord is struck which quickly vibrates through the whole physical, mental, and moral system, and intensifies the desire for the kingdom of God to be established, which shall subvert all other kingdoms, and stand forever.—Bradley Crundwell, Los Angeles, California.

ILLINOIS STATE BEREAN SOCIETY

THE Illinois State Berean Society had 9 societies and about 100 members in 1926. In 1927, there were 8 societies and about 145 members. Most societies showed good interest. In 1928, there were 8 societies and about 147 members, showing a very slight increase. In 1929, there were 7 societies and 117 senior members, besides 48 junior members. In 1930, there were 5 societies and 123 members, senior and junior. In 1931, there were 5 societies and 128 members, senior and junior. In 1932, there were 5 societies and 109 members. At the present time, we have 4 societies and about 70 members.

Our Society reminds me of a team of horses going up a hill. When they stop to rest, they take a few steps down the hill. When our Society stopped increasing, we began going down the hill, and we are still going. Let's start up the hill again. Let's have a little more faith and pray a little more.

Bereans, it makes no difference where you live, start a Berean society. Remember our young people need to be taught God's Word more than ever now. May we each of us have more faith in Him, asking for strength and guidance from the only One who can give it.

—Edna H. Wood, Ill. State Secretary.

ILLINOIS BEREAN REPORTS FOR JANUARY

DIXON

Adult class, membership 6, average weekly attendance 6, interest good. Senior class, membership 9, average weekly attendance 8, interest fair. Junior class, membership 8, average weekly attendance 7, interest fair.

Mary McClintick, Secretary.

ROCKFORD

Membership 24, average weekly attendance 16, interest good. We are studying Senior Series Book Three—God's Kingdom. The lessons are very interesting.

Bess Kasper, Secretary.

OREGON

Membership 14, average weekly attendance 12, interest good.

Evan Knodle, Secretary.

The Ripley Berean Society has discontinued its Berean service.

The following are local reports of elections:

DIXON

Officers for the coming year for the Dixon Berean Society are: President, Mary Jane Eckert; Vice President, Jean Ford; Secretary, Mary McClintick; Superintendent, Mrs. Conner.

—Mary McClintick, Secretary.

OREGON

The annual business meeting was held Sunday, Jan. 7, 1934. The officers elected were: President, Edward Lindsay; Vice President, Harold Hardesty; Secretary, Evan Knodle; Treasurer, Dorothy Nedrow.

Evan Knodle, Secretary.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"Mary Magdalene came and told the disciples that she had seen the Lord, and that he had spoken these things unto her."

THE RISEN SAVIOR

How nice it would be if all of you who read this page were around me in a big semicircle. Perhaps we would need three or four of them, or a half dozen. The little tots would be in front, then the older girls and boys, and then, I suspect, some mothers and aunts, and even a few grandmothers and grandfathers.

Stop and think very hard for a few minutes, boys and girls! What does Easter mean to you? When you speak the word what pictures come into your mind? What is the first thing you think of on Easter morning when you open your eyes?

When you think of Easter, do you think first of a new dress and hat? Do you think of all the eggs you can eat, candy eggs and colored ones? I hope not; but if you do, perhaps it isn't exactly your fault. And it's never too late to change our thoughts, you know.

As we think of Easter, let's think of the most important thing in all the world. Most important to everyone, from the youngest of us to the oldest. And that is—our Savior's resurrection! Let's think of that first.

Why is it that Jesus' rising from the dead is so important? First, because it means that we love and worship One who is alive for evermore; One who is our Friend, at the right hand of God, speaking to His Father in our favor. Second, because He lives, we, too, shall live, and without life we couldn't enjoy anything.

Do you see now why our Savior's resurrection is the most important thing in all the world to us? Vastly more important than mere clothes and food! More important than anything else we can imagine!

Right here may I whisper a word to the mothers who read this page? If you do not wish your children to grow up with the thought of Easter that so many have, do not stamp it on their impressionable minds by arraying them in new clothes particularly on Easter Sunday. Do as one of the lovely mothers of my acquaintance, now sleeping in Jesus, waiting for His call—give them the new spring garments before or after, but not on that day for the first time.

And, boys and girls, now that we have higher and finer thoughts for Easter, let's see what Jesus' resurrection has to do with us. It's hard for you, I know, to think of death, but still all of you have known some one who was laid away in the quiet grave. If our Savior hadn't risen, that one who was so dear to others would have to stay there. But because Jesus arose, we know that some day all others who have died will also arise. And that will happen when He comes again.

What a happy time that will be! As you read the story of that first Easter in any one of the four Gospels—Matthew, Mark, Luke, or John—you can almost feel the joy of the disciples and the women when they finally realized their beloved Lord was alive again because of His Father's power. And that same joy will be repeated over and over when Jesus comes again and wakes up all our sleeping ones.

If Jesus Himself hadn't come forth to endless life on that first Easter morning, He wouldn't be able to call all the dead ones, would He? He wouldn't be listening every time we pray to God, telling Him all about us, just as our dear Friend. He wouldn't even be able to come to earth again. And that's the great thing we are waiting for, isn't it?

John 20:20 tells us that "then were the disciples glad, when they saw the Lord." And then will we be glad when we see the Lord!

"Christ has died and Christ is risen,
Children, praise His holy name;
'Twas for you His life was given,
Loves He evermore the same.

"Come, then, bring your hymns of gladness,
Gratefully your tribute pay,
Christ the Lord is now in heaven,
Watching o'er us day by day.

"Children, sing your sweetest praises
Unto Jesus Christ your King;
For His ear is ever ready,
Listening while you speak or sing.

"Children, bring your sweetest praises
To the Lord who'll come again,
Leave for you His Father's presence,
And bring joy for every pain."

The Sunday School Lesson

FROM TRUTH SEEKERS' QUARTERLY

LESSON 1.—April 1, 1934

THE RISEN CHRIST

John 20:1-16

Devotional Reading: Ephesians 1:15-23

GOLDEN TEXT

If ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God.—Colossians 3:1.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic: The Risen Christ.

Aim: The resurrection of Christ proves the possibility of a resurrection for others.

Basic Truth: "Now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the firstfruits of them that slept."—1 Cor. 15:20.

I. The Disciples Doubt a Proof of Jesus' Resurrection. (John 20:1-10.) The closest disciples of Jesus were not expecting His resurrection to take place as it did. He had assured them plainly that He would be crucified and that after three days He would arise from the dead, but they did not understand, and consequently they did not believe it. The fact that it required "many infallible proofs" (Acts 1:3) to convince them that He was really alive again, provides indisputable evidence that the event actually took place. Further, the resurrection of Christ furnishes a strong argument in favor of the inspiration of the Bible. The prophets predicted His resurrection long before it occurred, and therefore must have been possessed of supernatural power. "It is instructive," Dr. Hallock remarks, "to think of the resurrection (of Jesus) as the fulfillment of Scripture."

II. The Resurrection of Jesus a Reality. (John 20:11-16.) The glory and the power of the resurrection of the Lord depends altogether upon its reality. Unless Jesus really died, that is, unless the death of Christ meant more than the suspension of bodily animation, and unless the resurrection of Christ signified the real living again of the Son of God, the Easter message is robbed of its greatest value. But it is evident from this lesson that the disciples were convinced that Jesus actually died, and that after His death He was not alive anywhere or in any sense. Following His resurrection they were with difficulty convinced that He was alive, but when He had proved beyond all doubt that such a miracle had taken place the disciples were filled with intense joy, because if Jesus arose from the dead there was hope and assurance that others of their loved ones—and they themselves—might live again after death. They appreciated the truth afterward voiced by Paul, that our only hope of future life depends upon the resurrection of Christ.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

The Resurrection of Christ

- was real; a.
- was essential to future life; b.
- began a new and lively hope; c.
- presupposes His literal death; d.
- insures our resurrection. e.

a. Acts 2:30-32; 13:28-35. b. John 14:19.
c. 1 Peter 1:3, 4. d. Matt. 28:5, 6. e. 1 Cor. 15:12-22; John 11:25.

Resurrection a Transforming Doctrine.

In reviewing the lives of the early Christians following Christ's resurrection, we note a great transformation. Their faith, wavering to resurrection, now becomes of unflinching kind. A new hope inspires them. Doubt and question give way to the glorious reality of a resurrected and ever-living Savior. Christ and the resurrection form the heart and soul of their teaching. Acts 23:6; 24:14, 15; 26:6-9. Discuss the effect Christ's resurrection had on the spiritual life of His followers. If we have a true concept of the resurrection, will it have the same effect on our lives?

Knowledge a Valuable Aid. "For as yet they knew not the scripture, that he must rise again from the dead." See also Luke 24:12. It is very evident from the record given that the lack of knowledge of the Scriptures by the followers of Christ was a great handicap in their believing many things that were said and done. And what was true in a measure with the immediate followers of Christ is many times more true of Christendom at large. Point out the need of searching the Scriptures and cite cases of your own observation where a lack of knowledge has been a real handicap. —C. E. R.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"If ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God."—Col. 3:1.

Baptism is a symbol of the death, burial, and resurrection of Jesus Christ, and "we are buried with him by baptism into death: that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life" (Rom. 6:4). When we arise from the watery grave we are new creatures in Christ Jesus, and we should walk no longer after the ways of the world but seek the will and way of the Father and His Son.

Christ is now at the right hand of God making intercession for us, so our minds should constantly be on the things that draw near to Him. The things below are carnal, that is, fleshly, or things of the earth; the things above, which are to be sought, are spiritual, that is, Christlike, or godlike. That is why that after baptism we are to seek things above. "To be carnally (worldly) minded is death; but to be spiritually minded is life and peace." —Rom. 8:6.—L. A. R.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULTS

The Reality of the Resurrection

Many in this day of decreasing faith and increasing skepticism are doubting the fact of resurrection. Some have always doubted. Paul (1 Cor. 15) reasons, in substance, as follows: If there is no resurrection then Christ was not raised, and conversely, if Christ was raised then resurrection is an assured fact. The question then is: WAS Christ raised from the dead?

The Book states that He was. Skeptics, sincere enough to search for and honestly weigh the facts, have been forced to admit that the resurrection of Christ is a well established fact—proven beyond doubt.

The greatest proof of the resurrection of Christ is in the lives of the apostles themselves. Peter, cursing, denied Christ at His trial. Fifty days later he faced the still angry leaders of that murderous mob and said; "Ye . . . killed the Prince of life, whom God hath raised from the dead."—Acts 3:15. Could anyone less than a living Savior have thus inspired and changed Peter?

Saul was a zealous persecutor of the church. One glimpse of the risen Jesus changed him into the great Apostle Paul. He suffered much persecution which he could have escaped had he continued with the popular crowd. Nearly all of his trouble was caused because he taught the resurrection. Only firm conviction can cause a conscientious man to change his ways. Paul's life was proof of his belief in a literal resurrection of the dead.—H. A. S.

PRIMARY CLASS

Memory Verse: "He is not here, but is risen."—Luke 24:6a.

Jesus had died on the cross, and had been buried in the tomb of Joseph. Three days had passed since that time.

Very early on the first day of the week, Mary Magdalene came to the tomb. But she found the stone rolled away and Jesus gone. Oh, how excited she was!

She ran until she met Peter. She said, "They have taken Jesus away," thinking of course some one had taken away His body.

Peter and John ran quickly to the tomb. They looked into the tomb, but no trace of Jesus could they find. All the clothes He had worn were there, but no Jesus. They left and went to their homes.

Mary stood at the tomb weeping. She looked into the tomb again and saw two angels. They said to her, "Why do you weep?" She answered, "Because they have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have taken Him."

She turned back, and there before her stood Jesus, but she didn't know Him. Jesus said, "Why do you weep?"

Mary said, "Oh, if you have taken away my Lord, tell me where He is."

Jesus answered, "Mary."

Then Mary knew it was Jesus. How happy she was! She immediately ran to tell the disciples.

In Luke 24:6 in telling this same story it says, "He is not here, but is risen." Can you say this verse?—V. C. T.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

NORTHWESTERN IOWA

Announcement is made by Mrs. Anna Boyanovsky that services will be conducted at the home of Carl Bjusklind, three miles west of Webb, Iowa, on Easter Sunday, April 1. In addition to the two sermons, the children will put on an Easter program. All in this section of the state should make an effort to be present at these services.

ARE YOU ON THE MAP?

The Exhibit Committee plans this year to devote a separate space to the contributions from each church, grouping all your features together. Begin to prepare now so that your space will be filled with suggestions and projects of value to all in attendance. That popular department at General Conference will need contributions from every one of our churches if it is to be of the greatest value to all. Begin to plan your exhibit now.

Mary A. Gesin,
Esta L. Starbuck,
Genniell Carpenter—Committee.

SPECIAL INDEBTEDNESS FUND

Previously reported	$485.75
Mrs. E. C. Railsback	10.00
Mrs. Mandes Reed	1.00
Maybelle Hanson	5.00
Mrs. Alletta J. Renner	5.00
Mrs. Lulu Johnson	5.00
George Rennard	2.00
Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Sprinkle	1.00
Mrs. Diana Murphy	5.00
Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Bell	25.00
Mrs. M. A. Woodward	2.00
Glenn M. Birkey	10.00
Mrs. E. H. Magaw	1.00

Total	$557.75
Pledges previously reported	$479.00
Clifton R. Stearns (pledge)	100.00
Total	$579.00

Total pledges and contributions $1136.75

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

At a meeting of the church on March 13 decision was made to get under and behind our church building fund with our hearts and hands. Splendid response was given that night and a real progressive feeling is with us as we hope before another winter to have more room both for taking care of class and Sunday school work, and also for comfortably seating a much larger audience at church services. To help out temporarily we have arranged to buy the house next door to the church which we have been renting and which we call the "Annex."

Our pre-Easter meetings begin next Sunday, and we are hoping all to be benefited and drawn closer to God by the effort. Easter will be the climax and we plan to have a baptismal service in the afternoon followed by communion. At night an Easter service of song and recitation will be rendered. Sr. Hotchkiss is busy now working for this.

A real spring-like enthusiasm is filling the hearts of our people, for which we are thankful.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

NEWS FROM ST. CLOUD, MINNESOTA

The work thus far this year is one of the best we have experienced since we began our labors at this place. We have been praying for a spiritual revival. Prayer is being answered. Therefore "we praise God."

Attendance is very good, our evening service being the best attended. Last Sunday (March 4) was a red letter day. In the morning four of our Bible school boys accepted Christ. In the evening, sixteen came forward for a reconsecration of their lives.

The young people's choir under Bro. Gourhan's direction gives us a helping hand in song at the morning worship. These young folks are to be commended for their consecrated lives.

At the evening service we have the glorious privilege to hear what we think the finest music one could listen to. This choir is directed by our able Sr. Madge Savage.

Each Wednesday evening for an hour and a half we have a real old-fashioned prayer service and Bible study. We are studying out of our Bibles, using the new text-book, "God's Kingdom." This book should be in every home. It is the great theme of God's Word. The attendance averages from fifteen to nineteen. At one of our prayer services a brother renewed his covenant with God. Lord bless him that he may continue in the faith.

Young people's Bereans meet each Sunday evening for study under our able teacher Bro. Denchfield.

The Lord willing, we shall have a pre-Easter campaign, ending with a program suitable for the occasion.

A. E. Hoskins, Pastor.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO N. B. I.

Jessie M. B. Kauffman	$10.00
Mrs. Alma B. Steffa	15.00
Arlen Marsh	2.10
J. W. Sweet	1.50
Total	$28.60

CONTRIBUTIONS TO DOLLAR-A-MONTH CLUB

W. A. Reid ($2); Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Netts ($5); Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Kirkpatrick ($6); Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Sprinkle; Mr. and Mrs. M. Fetters; Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Lansbery.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mrs. S. W. Coffman; Albert Eberhardt; J. W. Helms; Almada Wertz; R. A. Humphreys; Maybelle Hanson; Mrs. Mandes Reed (for self and another); Mrs. Alma B. Steffa (for self and others); Clyde M. Long (for another); Albert S. Perry; Grover Gordon; Mrs. Alletta J. Renner; Mrs. Eva L. Stearns; F. W. Ficken; Mrs. Edna Brewer; Mrs. Charles Dupree; Mrs. George Reighard; D. G. Harvey; Alma Brandt; Anna E. Drew.

"Do you know that last week's issue of The Restitution Herald was the best ever? Borrow it from some one and read it carefully. Better than that, send your $1.50 (new subscribers only) to Oregon, Ill., that it may come to you each week."—"The Morning Star," St. Cloud, Minn.

FONTHILL, ONTARIO

On February 18 the Fonthill church observed the twenty-fifth anniversary of the erection of the church building. An all-day meeting was held. The anniversary sermon was given at the morning service by Bro. F. L. Austin, who was pastor at the time the church was built. Large gatherings marked each of the three services of the day.

The afternoon sermon was delivered by the pastor on "What the Church of God Stands For." At the close two came forward and accepted Christ, Thomas McArthur and Clarence Moore (Ransomville, N. Y.).

The evening service was a dedication of the remodeled basement. At the close of this service Maria McArthur presented herself in company with her husband to the Lord and both were baptized in the name of Jesus for the remission of sins. Bro. and Sr. McArthur are the fruits of the Welland effort and have proven themselves to be very faithful. Their address is 17 Hester Lane, Welland, Ont.

Sr. Austin accompanied Bro. Austin on this trip. It was her first visit to Fonthill and this initial trip won for her many new friends.

Now for a word concerning the basement. The remodeling of the basement was done as a memorial to Sr. Weldon by Bro. Weldon. The very first work done was the installation of a baptistry with stairs leading directly to dressing rooms below. All of the old partitions were removed. The furnace was moved from the center of the basement to one corner and closed off by a furnace room. The old round hot air pipes were replaced by flat ones. The large cement posts under the street beam were replaced with steel posts. The cement floor was covered with matched flooring and the ceiling ceiled with V-joint. The entire basement was redecorated. New cupboards were made for the kitchen. A gas range was installed. Hot and cold water was piped throughout. Collapsible tables were made for the dining room. Sliding screens are being made for the Sunday school work. This afternoon we are going to get a piano for the basement. The screens and piano were made available by donations from among the membership. Mr. and Mrs. Beemer of St. Catharines have made a contribution toward improvements and it is expected this will be used for new windows in the main auditorium.

Things have been happening so fast here of late that it has kept one "a-stepping" to keep in line. And right here let me say that the Falls church is getting squared around to do some "stepping" too, and we are going to have some soft walking if it is nothing more than a new carpet to walk on. It is indeed inspiring to note the enthusiastic manner in which the workers are taking hold.

This report is getting along. There are many other things I would like to add. But I do want to say that "A New Day" with a "New Deal" has arrived for our young people. We are recognizing the God-implanted craving for play, and the church is going to meet this need and supply the necessary supervised entertainment and not force the young people to go out into the depraved world for their social life and then condemn them for becoming contaminated. The best way to keep control is not to lose it. We are meeting the challenge of our times.

C. E. Randall, Pastor.

SILAS W. HARLAN

Silas W. Harlan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Barton Harlan, was born February 20, 1847, in Indiana, and died at his home in Holbrook, Neb., March 9, 1934.

When a small boy he moved with his parents to Hardin County, Iowa; later he came to Nebraska and homesteaded seven miles south of Holbrook. In 1918 he with his family moved to Holbrook, where he resided until death. He leaves to mourn his loss, his wife and two daughters: Mrs. Maurice Ball of Corvallis, Ore., and Mrs. Ben Parrish of North Platte, Neb.; eleven grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren; two brothers: Ash Harlan of Portland, Ore., and Alf Harlan of Corvallis, Ore.; three sisters: Mrs. Anna Cady, Corvallis, Ore., Mrs. Elizabeth Adams and Mrs. Ida Stowe of Holbrook, Neb.; besides a host of other relatives and friends. He was one of a family of twelve children; two sisters died in infancy, the rest grew to manhood and womanhood. The members of the family who preceded him in death were Tilson Harlan of Teuton, Tenn., Marion Harlan of Brooklyn, N. Y., Allen Harlan of Holbrook, Neb., and Mrs. Hannah Cramer of Portland, Ore.

In 1872 he was united in marriage to Susie Whitney of Union, Iowa, who preceded him in death, passing away in 1885. To this union was born one child, Mrs. Maurice Ball. In 1889 he was married to Jessie Scott of Hendley, Neb.; to this union were born two daughters, Gladys and Nellie. The youngest daughter, Mrs. Nellie Roepke, preceded him in death two years ago.

He was a loving husband and father and will be greatly missed in the home. For many years he has been a faithful member of the Church of God. He longed for the return of his Savior and often expressed a desire to live until that day.

He now sleeps, but not forever:
There will be a glorious dawn.
We will meet to part—no never—
On the resurrection morn.

Grover Gordon.

“IT IS ALL GOOD”

The editorial staff of The Restitution Herald appreciates constructive criticism and words of pointed approval, as it helps greatly in planning the contents of the paper, and thus making it what our readers desire it to be, helpful, uplifting, and prophetically informative.

The following from a recent letter from Sr. Mandes Reed, of Attica, Kan., is, therefore, very welcome.

“We cannot afford to be without The Herald, especially in these times. The paper is getting better and better all the time, and I enjoy it all, but more especially do I appreciate the ‘Abreast of the Times’ page, and ‘Papers on the Lord’s Coming,’ by F. L. Austin. The articles on ‘Radio in Prophecy’ were very good, and—well, there is no place to draw the line, it is all good.”

BETWEEN YOU AND ME—

Read Bro. Hoskins’ report of activities at St. Cloud. Then seize a pen or pencil and dash off your order for “God’s Kingdom,” published by the National Berean Society, Oregon, Ill., at 25 cents a copy. Reductions for quantity orders.

Among the many brethren whom we have come to know and love through their correspondence with this office is Bro. R. A. Humphreys of Bear, Ark. Bro. Humphreys can get more Scripture into a short business letter than anyone else we know.

Pre-Easter services will be in progress next week in the churches at Cleveland, Ohio; Grand Rapids, Mich.; St. Cloud, Minn.; Oregon, Ill.; and no doubt in other localities which have not as yet reported. The thought of our Lord’s resurrection presents an inspiring theme for such evangelistic efforts. Pray for the success of these various gatherings.

With deepest sorrow we learn of the death of Bro. Silas W. Harlan, of Holbrook, Neb. He was a quiet, unassuming man, whose sympathetic nature endeared him to old and young alike. To the editor of this paper he was counted more as a father than as just a brother in the church, for the Harlan home in Holbrook has been the editor’s “home” on many happy occasions. We look forward to making our home again with “Uncle Si” when the Master comes. May God comfort his widow and daughters.

Another of our aged readers writes of her enjoyment of The Herald. Sr. George Reighard, Wauseon, Ohio, says she is now past 85 years of age, and has taken the paper for more than twenty years. She never destroys one, but gives them all to others to enjoy with her.

“We greatly enjoyed those articles by the famous John Mott (Restitution Herald, beginning in the issue of February 20), and wish we could get them in tract form. Such articles are surely needed in these times,” writes Mrs. H. H. Kent, Pueblo, Colo.

If you have not as yet ordered your “Truth Seekers’ Quarterly” for the next quarter please do so at once. If the Sunday school officer to whom they are to go has been changed since the last order was sent in be sure to give the names and addresses of both the former officer and the new one, in order that we may keep our records corrected, and so that you may be sure of not receiving duplicate orders.

To our older readers: Do not fail to read the contribution by Bradley Crundwell of California, which appears on the Berean Page in this issue. It is worthy of careful meditation.

The editor wishes to apologize to Eld. A. E. Hoskins of St. Cloud, Minn., for borrowing the thought presented on the title page of the last “Morning Star” and using it as the basis for our main editorial in this issue. The idea was too good, however, to be restricted to the more limited circulation of the “Star,” and we are sending it forth appreciatively to the larger audience of The Restitution Herald.

Next Sunday the Church of the Golden Rule in Cleveland, Ohio, begins a series of pre-Easter services. “Six nights of soul-searching study of the Word,” is the way in which it is announced by Pastor Melville W. Lyon. The pastor also calls upon his people to “make this a month of prayer for a great outpouring of God’s spirit.”

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by
National Bible Institution
Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. Sample copy, Free.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

LET’S PAY UP BEFORE THE LORD COMES!

Such is the inspiring appeal of Sr. Lulu Johnson of Freedom, Neb., as she sends in a contribution to give us another boost up the ladder.

“I believe our debts should all be paid,” says Sr. Johnson, “that we may owe men of the world nothing when the time comes for us to be taken away from among them. Then the sooner we get this matter attended to, the better!”

Another rung is being filled in this week to make glad the heart of our Manager, L. E. Conner, who is putting forth every effort in his power to clear up every indebtedness of the National Bible Institution at the earliest possible moment.

Let’s
climb
the Ladder
to Success

$1100
$1000
$900
$800
$700
$600
$500
$400
$300
$200
$100

THE "LITTLE SPEECH" ON LIBERTY

THERE is a twofold liberty, natural (I mean as our nature is now corrupt) and civil or federal. The first is common to man with beasts and other creatures. By this, man, as he stands in relation to man simply, hath liberty to do what he lists; it is a liberty to evil as well as to good. This liberty is incompatible and inconsistent with authority, and cannot endure the least restraint of the most just authority. The exercise and maintaining of this liberty makes men grow more evil, and in time to be worse than brute beasts: omnes sumus licentiâ deteriorés. This is that great enemy of truth and peace, that wild beast, which all the ordinances of God are bent against, to restrain and subdue it. The other kind of liberty I call civil or federal, it is also termed moral, in reference to the covenant between God and man, in the moral law, and the politic covenants and constitutions, amongst men themselves. This liberty is the proper end and object of authority, and cannot subsist without it; it is a liberty to that only which is good, just, and honest. This liberty you are to stand for, with the hazard (not only of your goods, but) of your lives, if need be. Whatsoever crosseth this is not authority, but a distemper thereof. This liberty is maintained and exercised in a way of subjection to authority; it is of the same kind of liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free. The woman's own choice makes such a man her husband; yet being so chosen, he is her lord, and she is to be subject to him, yet in a way of liberty, not of bondage; and a true wife accounts her subjection her honor and freedom, and would not think her condition safe and free, but in her subjection to her husband's authority. Such is the liberty of the church under the authority of Christ, her King and Husband; His yoke is so easy and sweet to her as a bride's ornaments; and if through frowardness or wantonness, etc., she shake it off, at any time, she is at no rest in her spirit, until she take it up again; and whether her Lord smiles upon her, and embraceth her in His arms, or whether He frowns, or rebukes, or smites her, she apprehends the sweetness of His love in all, and is refreshed, supported, and instructed by every such dispensation of His authority over her. On the other side, ye know who they are that complain of this yoke and say, let us break their bands, etc., we will not have this man to rule over us. Even so, brethren, it will be between you and your magistrates. If you stand for your natural corrupt liberties, and will do what is good in your own eyes, you will not endure the least weight of authority, but will murmur, and oppose, and be always striving to shake off that yoke; but if you will be satisfied to enjoy such civil and lawful liberties, such as Christ allows you, then will you quietly and cheerfully submit unto that authority which is set over you, in all the administrations of it, for your good. Wherein, if we fail at any time, we hope we shall be willing (by God's assistance) to hearken to good advice from any of you, or in any other way of God; so shall your liberties be preserved, in upholding the honor and power of authority amongst you.—John Winthrop (1588-1649; first governor of Massachusetts Bay Colony).

GOD IS MY FATHER

Continued from Page Five

Consider the late D. L. Moody with his wonderful personality and persuasiveness with men. His power might have been a great liability for evil had not some one spoken the word that turned him to God. Instead of a liability he became a valuable asset for good. Such assets are cumulative. Mr. Moody brought Dr. Grenfel to Christ, and the work of the beloved doctor in cold, storm-beaten Labrador, the suffering he has alleviated, and the souls he has won, speak of the loving sacrifice of one who realized the importance of the business of his heavenly Father.

Third. As workers with our Father we shift men from the wrong side to the right side of the ledger.

Years ago in Richmond, Virginia, there lived a slave, John Jasper by name. He worked in a large tobacco warehouse belonging to his master. This poor colored man was mightily converted. (Isn't it a shame that more of God's children are not mightily converted?)

John Jasper said something like this, "Ah must tell 'bout what the dear Lord done fo' me, or I'll sure bust wid de glory pilin' up in mah soul." He began to tell his fellow workmen what Jesus had done for him, but his foreman rebuked him, telling him that his work was not preaching, but getting out tobacco barrels. Fortunately his master was a man who respected religious things, and he allowed John to tell his story to every man in the warehouse. After this John Jasper became one of the most powerful colored preachers of his time; and thousands of his colored brethren were influenced to move from the desert of sin to the fertile land of hope.

In these three lines of action we have seen the advantage of working with our Father in this present world, and we are led to ask: What of the future? for we read, "The night cometh, when no man can work." There is undoubtedly a glorious future for God's children, for the Prophet says: "They that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars for ever and ever."

There is coming a time, then, when the faithful worker shall surely reap his reward. We read: "When the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him. . . . Then shall the King say unto them on his right hand, Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world."

World conditions seem to point to an early fulfillment of this promise. Let us, then, strive to be among the faithful workers with our Father, to whom it shall be said: "Well done, thou good and faithful servant: thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy of thy lord."—George W. Haskell in The World's Crisis.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 23

OREGON, ILLINOIS, MARCH 27, 1934

NUMBER 26

“He Saved Others!”

When scorn and hate, and bitter envious pride,
Hurled all their darts against the Crucified,
Found they no fault in Him, so tried?

“He saved others!”

Those hands, thousands their healing touches knew;
On withered limbs they fell like heavenly dew;
The dead have felt them, and have lived anew:

“He saved others!”

So many fettered hearts Thy touch hath freed,
Physician! and Thy wounds unstanched must bleed;
Hast Thou no balm for this Thy sorest need?

“He saved others!”

Lord! and one sign from Thee could rend the sky,
One word from Thee and low these mockers lie;
Thou makest no movement, utterest no cry,

And savest us.

—Author unknown.

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879.

G. Eldred Marsh, Editor

Two Dollars per Year

Paul C. Johnson, Associate Editor

"Go quickly, and tell his disciples that he is risen from the dead; and, behold, he goeth before you into Galilee."

HE IS RISEN!

WITH hearts overflowing with gratitude, O God, we come into Thy presence on the day wherein we celebrate the resurrection of Thy Son to thank Thee for this most precious evidence of Thy love. Shrinking in fear from death, the dreadful result of our own sin, we find hope and consolation in the assurance this joyful event provides that Thou hast accepted the sacrifice of Jesus Christ on our behalf, and that for His sake Thou wilt grant Thy gracious pardon to all who believe in Him in truth. Help us, O Father, that we may prove true to Thee and true to Him until He comes once more to place the crowning gem of glory in His diadem of service by calling from their tombs those who sleep in Him, and bestowing upon them, together with the living saints, immortal life.

— 0 —

THE CHRIST OF THE LONELY ROAD

THE day was done. The slanting rays of the evening sun brushed lightly across the pathway that crept crookedly over the Judean hills. The olive trees on either side loomed darkly green against the azure sky, and left splotches of velvet blackness where their shadows fell.

A spirit of peace brooded over the quiet countryside as two lonely travelers made their way along the road. Unmindful of approaching night, heedless of their isolation, they walked with bowed forms as though they bore unseen burdens upon their shoulders. Their dragging feet raised little clouds of dust from the age-old trail as they walked, and their scanty conversation was carried on in monotonous tones, with voices muted by recent sorrow.

Abruptly, his approach unseen, they observed a stranger walking with them. They hardly glanced in his direction when they saw him, so heavy were their hearts, until a gentle questioning voice broke into the trend of their meditation.

"What manner of communications are these that ye have one to another, as ye walk, and are sad?"

One of them, whose name was Cleopas, answered surprisedly, "Art thou only a stranger in Jerusalem, and hast not known the things which are come to pass there in these days?"

"What things?" their questioner continued.

"Concerning Jesus of Nazareth, which was a prophet mighty in deed and word. . . But we had trusted that it had been he which should have redeemed Israel."

They then told of their perplexity when certain women came insisting that they had seen a vision of angels which declared He was risen from the dead.

The stranger listened attentively to the explanation of their distress and uncertainty of mind, and then, as he so frequently did, he turned to the Scriptures and pointed out the startling fact that the prophets had foretold all these things concerning the Messiah.

The travelers were deeply impressed with his words and manner, and besought him to tarry with them for the night. As they sat down together at the supper table, the stranger took bread and blessed it, and gave it to them. He then vanished as suddenly as he had appeared, but not before their eyes had been opened to his identity, and they knew him to be their risen Lord!

"The Christ of the Lonely Road" is abroad in the world today. He is going about seeking the sorrowing, the perplexed, the anxious-hearted. We may find Him still, or, more true by far! He will find us still, as we walk the long and dreary path of mortality. And should we invite Him to tarry with us for the night, I'm sure He would gladly accept our invitation, for has He not said, "I stand at the door, and knock: if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me"? And has He not also promised, "Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world"?

Thus side by side we may travel the journey of life with our risen Lord. He will lead us ever onward safely toward the welcoming doors of the Father's house. Each step we take with our Lord beside us brings us "one step nearer home."

When the journey is ended in the security of that place of eternal rest, our once-stranger Friend will be a stranger to us no longer, for He will reveal Himself fully to our rejoicing hearts when He comes to be with us in person, as He is with us in spirit and love today. Then

"We shall know as we are known,
Nevermore to walk alone,
In the dawning of the morning,
When the mists have cleared away!"

He Lives For Evermore

By the Editor

WILD and rugged and girt by a storm-tossed sea, lay the little island of Patmos, some twenty-five miles to the west of the mainland of Asia Minor.

Far up on a rocky hillside overlooking the village by the beach was a dark and gloomy cavern. Within that cavern reposed a man. His long white beard and snowy hair showed dimly silver in the shadows. More than ninety years had passed over his head, and marvelous and varied were the experiences he had known. But now he was old, forgotten, forsaken—a lonely exile far from the sacred land of his fathers, the beloved land of his birth.

Such is the last picture the Bible paints of John, "the disciple whom Jesus loved; which also leaned on his breast at supper" on the fateful night of His betrayal. Alone, forsaken, neglected, and forgotten by all.

No! Not by all!

The friends of his youth are gone, it is true. Most of them are sleeping the last long-sleep of death in distant lands. His fellow apostles are gone, dead, martyrs all to Jesus Christ their Lord. And none is left but John alone.

Alone, I say, yet not alone! For there amid the gloomy shadows of the hillside on the barren little isle where he is held captive "in tribulation, and for the word of God, and for the testimony of Jesus Christ," to quote his own words, John the Aged is not alone!

John will never be alone! For his Lord never forgets. He never fails to keep the promises He makes. And He promised long ago, when John possessed the strength of youth, "Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world!" So Jesus Christ the faithful Friend is there with John the Aged on the lonely Isle of Patmos, and John feels His presence and hears His voice, and is given a wonderful message of hope and of comfort for the sorrowing peoples of the world!

Here is a part of the story he has to tell: "I was in the Spirit on the Lord's day, and heard behind me a great voice, as of a trumpet, saying, I am Alpha and Omega, the first and the last: and, What thou seest, write in a book, and send it unto the seven churches which are in Asia."

And then He names them all. But we are not interested in the names they bear, but we are interested in the fact that—this wonderful message of consolation is addressed to seven churches, that is, to all churches, for seven is the complete number, and signifies "all."

So this splendid message comes to us and to God's people everywhere, of every race and nation. It comes to all who are members of the body of Christ, "the church of God, which he hath purchased with his own blood."

John continues his narrative:

"I turned to see the voice (of him) that spake with me . . . and his countenance was as the sun shineth in his strength. And when I saw him, I fell at his feet as dead.

And he laid his right hand upon me, saying unto me, Fear not; I am the first and the last: I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore, Amen; and have the keys of hell (the grave) and of death! Write the things which thou hast seen, and the things which are, and the things which shall be hereafter."—Rev. 1:10-19.

Jesus Lives!

By G. E. Marsh

This the message we have heard—

Jesus lives! Jesus lives!

Send it ringing round the world—

Jesus lives! Jesus lives!

He who once for man did die,

Lives forever now on high,

And He's coming by and by.

Jesus lives! Jesus lives!

Let us watch and wait and pray—

Jesus lives! Jesus lives!

Soon will dawn the glad new day—

Jesus lives! Jesus lives!

When He comes in glory bright,

Clothed in majesty and might,

We shall meet Him, robed in white.

Jesus lives! Jesus lives!

Back into the past reaches this wonderful Revelation of Jesus Christ. On through the present period of grace it passes swiftly. Into the future it sweeps with its strange and startling unfolding of events, until it is lost to view in the vast stretches of Eternity, far beyond the present power of the human eye to see!

But it is not of this eternity of interests and of revelations that I would speak. It is a simpler song, a sweeter refrain, a more personal message, that I would bring at this glad Easter time!

The language is plain—not too difficult for us to understand—and so infinitely comforting in its import!

John the Aged is burdened with the infirmities, the sorrows, and the disappointments which come to one who has lived a long and active life. And John has known much of love and of sacrifice. More than half a century ago he witnessed the demolition of his hope, the shattering of his faith, the destruction of his dearest aspirations, in the tragic death of his beloved Master upon the cross. He remembers well those three days and nights of bitter agony which were crowned at last with glorious hope born of the Savior's resurrection from the dead.

But the weary years drag on. Decades come and decades go, and John is now an old man, and his Lord has not returned. In his lonely isolation no word has reached him from that absent One. He is weary now, weary and sad and discouraged perhaps at the long delay.

Please turn to Back Page

The Resurrection of Christ

By R. H. Judd

SURELY it must have been an intensely new experience to the disciples to hear their Master deliberately, calmly, and seriously talk about His resurrection, and the life following it. To talk about one's death, and the manner of it, has been no new thing since the world began. Death is so sure, so certain to us, that it inevitably enters into much of our necessary conversation. But here is One who actually talks with the assurance of certainty concerning His resurrection and events subsequent thereto. A little reflection on this thought will help to open our eyes to the wonder of it. The reader will readily recall several instances in the Gospels where Christ definitely forecast His resurrection on the third day following His death. From among these I wish to draw particular attention to two for an Easter message.

The first is in John 2:19. "Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up." John 10:17 and 18 is the second. "Therefore doth my Father love me, because I lay down my life, that I might take it again. No man taketh it from me, but I lay it down of myself, I have power to lay it down, and I have power to take it again."

The question may well be asked, How did Christ come by this knowledge of His resurrection? The answer is to be found in Luke 24:44-46, for is it not one of the things which "must be fulfilled, which were written in the law of Moses, and in the prophets, and in the psalms" concerning Him?

Let us now give a few moments' thought to one or two of the many lessons that may be gleaned from a study of these verses. "Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up." The Greek word here translated "temple" evidently has two significant meanings. The margin of the Revised Version (and by the way, Dr. Schofield highly commends the readings of the R. V. margin) gives us the word "sanctuary." We agree this is most probably the sense in which the word was used by Christ, the purpose of the edifice rather than the edifice itself being the predominant thought, though in the nature of things one cannot well exist apart from the other.

The purpose of the temple was that it might be a sanctuary. The fact that the Scriptures tell us that He had reference to the temple or sanctuary of His body confirms this, and we cannot help thinking it possible that the Master had in mind Isaiah 43:7, which tells us that man was created to glorify God. We gather another thought from this verse as we read the first part of 2 Corinthians 13:4 in connection with it. "He was crucified through weakness." How can we reconcile such a statement with the bold pronouncement of the first part of John 10:18? Turning to 2 Corinthians 13:4 and again looking to the margin, we find a reference to Philippians 2:8. Here is stated the fact of His common humanity, and to this we might add many scriptures in support. Christ realized both these facts, but it would seem to the writer that He also recognized that Isaiah 43:7 could never have its full realization in mortal flesh, and that resurrection to incorruptible being was absolutely necessary to Himself and to us before God could be glorified in us as God intended. Time will not permit of further comment here, as I wish to make reference to the word "power" contained in these verses.

One of the strongest proofs of the divine inspiration of the Scriptures is the remarkable fact that fresh knowledge is continually to be found in their pages. Meditation never exhausts their capacity to deepen and enrich the life of the man or woman who delights therein.—R. H. J.

Many believe that these passages teach that Christ is God, because of the statement that He would raise Himself. But those who teach this have not given the passage the careful study it deserves. All possible things are possible with God. They are not so with man. But Scripture teaches that God also has His limitations. "He cannot deny himself." Moreover, He cannot die. Were either of these to become fact, He would, Himself come under the law of sin and death. For Christ to raise Himself from the dead is an idea so contrary to possible fact that one is surprised that so many fail to see the impossibility of it. Such an idea presupposes intelligent action, and intelligent action necessarily presupposes life, and would itself preclude the idea that death had ever actually taken place. Further, how is it they do not seem to have noticed the words a little further down in this same chapter of John 2 (verse 22): "When he was raised from the dead" (R. V.). Here is clear and unmistakable evidence that He did not raise Himself. Besides, the Scriptures have declared over twenty times that "God raised him from the dead."

It will be noticed that the marginal reading of the Revised Version gives us the word "right" in John 10:17 and 18. This is undoubtedly more correct, as will be seen by reference to Young's Concordance. Two different Greek words, each translated "power," have distinctly different meanings. In John 10:17, 18, the word used is exousia, and in every instance the sense intended to be conveyed is that of "authority" or "right." Power may be connected with authority, but not necessarily so. It is remarkable that this is the only instance of the use of this word (exousia) in connection with resurrection, and that it is spoken previous to resurrection. The latter part of 2 Corinthians 13:4 makes this difference very clear—"he liveth (now) by the power. (dunamis) of God." Here the word means "power," "ability," "might."

If we can take the time to follow up and examine these two sets of passages as exemplified by these two different Greek words a wonderful lesson is in store for us. Paul wished to know the power (dunamis) of His resurrection. Paul in his wonderful resurrection chapter tells us that we shall be raised "in power." Then in Hebrews 7:16

Paul uses that same word, "the power of an endless life." From these and many other passages we may rightly conclude that our resurrection life will be one of power. The weaknesses with which we are now so familiar will be things of the past. Paul speaks in 2 Corinthians 8 of certain ones being "willing beyond their power." That is our present condition, but then power will be commensurate with willingness in our service for Him.

Why Do Children Die?

By James C. Jackson

"WHEN God gives me a babe, I say, I thank God for this lamp lit in my family. And when, after it has been a light in my household for one or two years, it pleases God to take it away, I can take the cup of bitter or sweet: I can say my light has gone out; my heart is sick; my hopes are desolated; my child is lost! or I can say in the spirit of Job: 'The Lord gave, and the Lord taketh away; blessed be the name of the Lord.' It has pleased God to take five children from me, but I never lost one and never shall."

This extract is said by The New York Tribune to be from the pen of Henry Ward Beecher, and if so, is a good instance of that distinguished man's views. The Tribune thinks it manifests a profound sentimentalism, and that it is worth exemplifying by all who have lost children. For myself, I feel called on as a Christian to protest against it, and to affirm my utter disbelief of its soundness. I do not believe that the Bible, or Science, or Common Sense, or our Spiritual Instincts, or all combined, support the view that the Creator is to be held responsible for the deaths of little children. The truth lies in the opposite direction. Their deaths are to be laid at the door of the Destroyer. God takes no pleasure in the deaths of little children, and among the derelictions of duty for which parents will be held strictly accountable are those of so relating the conditions of their children to earthly existence as to render it quite impossible for the Creator under the ordinary operation of physical laws to keep them alive.

Why, then, when children die, as in ninety-nine cases in a hundred they do, from neglect to obey the Creator's laws, should one take an outburst of a pious heart like that of Job, when in very extraordinary circumstances, which led him to say, "The Lord hath given, and the Lord hath taken away: blessed be the name of the Lord!" and quote it to justify events for the occurrence of which there is no necessity? Depend upon it, all such resignation is blind, is forced, is unnatural, is unwarranted by the teachings of the gospel. Who believes that in order to bring these five babes to untimely graves their Creator interposed so as to violate the laws upon whose operation the continuance of their lives depended? Who believes that had God's laws, as written in and upon the bodies of these babes, been obeyed they would have died? Who, then, is responsible for their deaths? Most certainly not God, whoever else is.

It seems to me that it is not at all needful to be illogical in order to be pious, or irrational or unjust in order to show resignation. No parent is justified either by the teachings of his own nature or by the teachings of the gospel—and he ought not to be by public opinion—in being resigned to the deaths of his children, who have died not by act of God, but by violations of physical laws, obedience to which would have kept them alive. Ninety-five children in each hundred who die with proper care and nursing might have lived! Of this there can be no well founded doubt. For a much larger percentage of the whole number born live than die, and while some of those who die do so from casualties or providential interpositions, the vast majority die from neglect to train them to obey the laws of life and health.

Now with such wholesale slaughter of Innocents going on before our eyes are we to have resignation preached to us? And are we to accept it, and argue ourselves into the belief or feeling that their deaths are by act of God? Never! One might as well be resigned to murder, rapine, or arson. Submit we must—for we cannot help ourselves, but resigned—not at all.

I have lost one child. I was not, I never have been, and I never shall be, resigned to her death. But for her parents' ignorance of her physician, she might have lived. Her death I doubt not was as displeasing to God as it was distressing to me, for she was as clearly the victim of drug poisoning as though she had been intentionally poisoned. When will Christians learn to make distinctions and cease to think and act as though it were incumbent on them to ascribe every such event to such directly divine interposition as to shift the responsibility off human shoulders? The Creator governs mankind as well by laws as by special providences, and it is wise in us to recognize the former as the general rule by and through which His government is administered. Only in so doing can we hope to grow into His image and represent Him.—From an old publication of the Church of God.

On the Road to Emmaus

By Mary A. Gesin

OF all the events that cluster about that first Easter so long ago, perhaps the story of the two disciples on the way from Jerusalem to their home in Emmaus is the most touching in its naturalness and humanity. These two, one of them Cleopas, the other unnamed, talked as they walked of the sorrowful occurrences of the past week. The distance of six and a half miles consumed perhaps two hours of their time, and the hour was drawing toward sunset as they approached the village.

Quite naturally their thoughts were occupied with their suffering and dying Lord, whom they now firmly believed lay cold and still in Joseph's tomb. Their hearts were burdened with sorrow, their eyes dulled by grief. In Him they had placed their highest hopes, only to have them frustrated by the chief priests and Roman rulers.

As they walked along with downcast glances, a stranger drew near and joined them. Inquiring the cause of their only too evident grief, their companion was answered with the question, "Art thou only a stranger in Jerusalem, and hast not known the things which are come to pass there in these days?"

Surely everyone had learned of the betrayal and death of the One who had gone about only to do good to all! "A prophet mighty in deed and word before God and all the people," they termed Him. But their greatest disappointment lay in the fact that they "trusted that it had been he which should have redeemed Israel."

A glance into the history of this suffering people will serve to clarify those words for us. Long years had they bent the back to foreign oppressors, without a ruler of their own upon the throne of David. Dear to every Jewish heart were the prophecies of One who was to come and rule His people justly and mercifully. But the vast majority of His own had not recognized in Him their fulfillment and had concurred in His condemnation.

But let us listen to their conversation further. Now they are relating to the stranger the improbable and almost impossible report brought to them of the disappearance of the body of their dead Master and "a vision of angels, which said that he was alive." Gently rebuking them, the stranger says, "O fools, and slow of heart to believe!"

During the term of Christ's ministry they had surely been given ample time to learn of God's plan for the redemption of men, as it was unfolded to them through the work of His Son. To us they appear very dense. Some of the prophecies they had grasped, but His humiliation and death so clearly predicted by their beloved Isaiah, they could neither comprehend nor accept.

How familiar, then, with Old Testament Scriptures the stranger proved himself to be. For beginning with the very first book, "he expounded unto them in all the scriptures the things concerning himself." He must have quoted from Genesis 3:15, also chapters 12 and 22, and 49:10; from all the other books of the Pentateuch; from Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel, Zechariah; from many of the Psalms, and other scriptures, too lengthy for enumeration.

Well versed as the stranger was in the Scriptures so dear to their hearts, still no light of recognition came to them. And as they drew near their home, seeing his purpose to go further, they urged him to "abide with us." Not through all the elucidation of prophecy, but in the simple hospitality which they offered him, they recognized in the stranger their Lord and Master! In the dear and familiar gesture of taking of bread, offering His gratitude to God for it, breaking it, and giving to them, they knew at last for a certainty that He whom they believed dead was alive again.

"Their eyes were opened, and they knew him; and he vanished out of their sight." His mission of bringing comfort and understanding to two loyal but sorrowing disciples was completed. The Savior, no longer a stranger to them, had others to whom He must minister, and He did not tarry.

In study and contemplation, not alone of the prophecies of our Lord, but of His life and service among men, we, too, will find comfort and understanding. And if we pursue that study with faith and reverence, God will bestow added comprehension and blessing. Nothing can be compared to this for casting out fear, setting our feet firmly upon the rock, and bringing a peace that passes understanding.

The matchless beauty and wisdom of God's Word, the power of the gospel which finds its climax in the resurrection of Christ, are disclosed to us more and more perfectly as we bring to our study hearts of simple faith in the Author. "The Spirit of truth" will prove itself a "Comforter" and abide with us until the return of our Lord. The very incident of the walk to Emmaus inspired the beautiful hymn, "Abide With Me," which contains these treasured thoughts in its third and fourth verses:

"I need Thy presence every passing hour:
What but Thy grace can foil the tempter's power?
Who like Thyself my Guide and Stay can be?
Through cloud and sunshine, oh, abide with me!"

"I fear no foe with Thee at hand to bless;
Ills have no weight, and tears no bitterness;
Where is Death's sting? where, Grave, thy victory?
I triumph still if Thou abide with me!"

JESUS LIVES! DO YOU?

By Richard LeCrone

WHAT is life? Webster defines it as "the quality or character which distinguishes an animal or a plant from inorganic or from dead organic bodies, and which is especially manifested by metabolism, growth, reproduction, and internal adaptation to environment."

According to the above definition we all have life, yet the Master, speaking of people, all of whom had the powers of growth, reproduction, and adaptability to environment, said, "I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." What did He mean?

In asylums and penal institutions in America and elsewhere are thousands of individuals who are cut off from the rest of the world, and condemned to spend their life, or a fraction of it, within the four walls of their prison. We frequently hear them spoken of as "the living dead." Yet they, too, possess the powers of motivation; they eat and assimilate food; they are alive.

For a class in zoology or botany Webster's definition would be adequate, but when we speak of humans we must seek further. We do not think of prisoners as living, we think of them merely as existing. To our minds there is a vast difference.

What has departed from those in prison that we call them "living dead"? They have food, clothing, and shelter. What need they yet?

Life, you say, is not worth the living without freedom, ambition, friends, brothers, sisters, love, and home. To be deprived of them is to be deprived of a motive for living. Without them life becomes tasteless, flat, and useless. It is a salt that has lost its savor. Without them, whether our bodies are confined by prison walls or not, we become "living dead."

Is it not in the very nature of sin to destroy those things which we hold most dear? I shall not take the time to enumerate them, but check them over and see for yourself. While it may not put us behind bars, will not our friendless and loveless estate be the same as though we were?

In this sense, then, Christ provides a fuller, more abundant life, in that He multiplies unto His followers the things which make life worth while. Listen to Him: "Verily I say unto you, There is no man that hath left house, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my sake, and the gospel's, but he shall receive an hundredfold now in this time, houses, and brethren, and sisters, and mothers, and children, and lands, with persecutions; and in the world to come eternal life." —Mark 10:29, 30. Surely that is a more abundant life!

But Jesus went even further and provided for those who would accept His gift now in this time, in the world to come "everlasting life." Thus He provides not only a more abundant and more complete life, but He also holds forth the promise of lengthening it into eternity. "He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life: and he that believeth not the Son shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him."—John 3:36.

They who have not Christ shall not taste the fullness of this present temporal life, nor shall they experience eternal life. They are the "living dead."

Great, therefore, is the joy of those of whom it may be said, as Paul said of the Ephesians, "You hath he quickened who were dead in sins."

We now are celebrating the resurrection of the One who died and rose again that in Him we might have life. Jesus lives! and we may if we will.

THE REUNION OF THE RESURRECTION

"The dead in Christ shall rise first: then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air."

HERE is the inspired picture of the marvelous reunion of the resurrection. The dead in Christ are raised first. Then the living in Christ are instantly "changed," that is, glorified. And thus reunited the glorified living are caught up "together with them," that is, together with the glorified resurrected ones, and so shall they "ever be with the Lord." Whether we are dead or alive when Jesus comes, we must all be changed, for flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God. Not carnal, natural bodies, but only glorified, spiritual ones, shall enter there. With but a breathless instant intervening, the glorification of God's living children shall accompany that of His dead ones. The corrupted ones will put on incorruption, but the mortal ones shall immediately put on immortality without ever seeing corruption, and then, with this wondrous reunion brought to pass, as if by a rushing mighty wind, in one outflashing of supernatural glory, living, working, waiting men and women shall be whirled up to meet the Lord in the air.

So sublime is the simple statement, "Then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air," that our feeble human imagination, striving to soar to this lofty height, falls back like a spent bird, gasping and breathless with its failure of the wing to reach the dazzling summit which the eye has scanned. Caught up! Who can picture it? While men and women walk the busy streets they shall be caught up! While they bow in the secret chamber of prayer they shall be caught up! While with burning hearts they ponder the Word that tells of His coming they shall be caught up! While patient, suffering ones lie in beds of pain they shall be caught up! While the living stand by the open graves of the dead they shall be caught up! And as the startled world wonders, the only record left shall be that of Enoch's—"And they walked with God, and were not, for God took them."—The Resurrection Victory.

MALICE VERSUS LOVE

By Glenn M. Birkey

I AM fearful that many of us who profess to be followers of Christ and His teachings do not have the forgiving spirit that Christ taught and showed by example. We love those who treat us well, but do we love those who have done us wrong?

Here are Christ's own words: "Ye have heard that it hath been said, Thou shalt love thy neighbour, and hate thine enemy. But I say unto you, Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you, and persecute you."

This seems very hard for us to do, as it is contrary to our carnal natures. Yet our Lord gave this instruction in His Sermon on the Mount. St. Matthew 5:23, 24 shows what our attitude should be toward others before giving.

And finally these words of Paul in Ephesians: "Let all bitterness, and wrath, and anger, and clamour, and evil speaking, be put away from you, with all malice: and be ye kind one to another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you."

The Lord's personal return seems near at hand. Would we want Him to come while we held malice or an unforgiving spirit toward anyone? Let us think carefully about this.

"THE LAST NIGHT"

IF Judas had waited two more days alive, he would have discovered how sometimes power pours out of that other world into this one; he would have seen it in the radiance of the risen Christ, and known that he had an answer, even to death.

The resurrection was also one of the facts of life; it is, indeed, life's greatest Fact, in the light of which all of life takes on greater reality.

So don't run. Stand by. Grasp the nettle. Face the music. Begin with the facts. Dwindling fortune, diminishing health, age creeping up, increasing temptation somewhere, a difficult decision to be made, the difficulty of life itself. Face it and don't run away from it. And don't fool yourself, either, about motives that make you want to run. But face the other facts, too—God, and faith, and the way believing in God and obeying Him turns life into clear sailing for those who believe and obey, so that they are victorious in the same life which swamps other people.

Face that fact, too, and also the fact that life is a problem that never was meant to come out without God.

Judas ran away. Jesus stood by. They died within a few hours of each other. The death of one is the shame of history; and the death of the Other is our hope of salvation. One dropped himself into oblivion. The Other forgot Himself into immortality. Jesus lived in the real world. Judas lived in a world of his own wishing. Where are you living?—Selected by Elizabeth Louise May.

E A S T E R

By S. J. Lindsay

THE term "Easter" is synonymous with the term "Passover." In fact, with the Greeks the event is called pascha, the root of our word "Passover."

The term "Easter" comes to us, however, from the old Teutonic festival of the goddess Ostara. The Anglo-Saxons called it Easter. This festival came about the same time of our Easter time. As we write, the thought occurs, How hard it is for the human race to worship the only true and living God without getting mixed up with heathen gods and goddesses!

The Library of Universal Knowledge says: "Many of the popular observances connected with Easter are clearly of pagan origin. The goddess Ostara, or Eastre, seems to have been the personification of the morning or east and also of the opening year or spring. The Anglo-Saxon name of April was Estormonath; and it is still known in Germany as Ostermonath. . . With her usual policy, the church endeavored to give a Christian significance to such of the rites as could not be rooted out."

Then it goes on to show how the heathen idea of Easter was worked over into a Christian festival in honor of the resurrection of Christ, but as the account is continued, one would think from reading it that the conduct at these festivals was much more in keeping with the heathen ideas than with Christian conduct.

It is not our thought to be lengthy with this history of Easter; but it may be well here to ask in what way is the feasting upon eggs connected with Easter. The making of presents of, and the eating of, eggs was a custom with the Jews in their Passover time, and history says that the Persians, when they kept the festival of the solar new year (March), mutually presented each other with colored eggs. The egg is a symbol of future life, for while the egg cannot be said to be alive, yet it has within it those elements which when cared for properly will cause life to spring forth. Thus it is a very fitting symbol of our hope of a future life.

Easter should be an occasion of joy to the one who has the Christian hope. All round we see the suggestions of the almighty power of God, in the swelling bud and the starting grass, and the deadness of winter giving way to the renewed life of spring. May we all look forward with joy to that greater Easter time when the winter of death gives way to the springtime of eternal life; to the time when those who are now sleeping in the grasp of the winter of death will awaken in answer to the warm rays of the rising Sun of Righteousness who comes with healing in His beams.—THE RESTITUTION HERALD, April 3, 1912.

THE DYING THIEF'S REQUEST

By George T. Rennard

THEN when they came to a place called "Calvary," there they crucified Him, and two thieves with Him, one on His right hand and the other on the left.

And one of them said, "If Thou be Christ, save Thyself and us."

The other said, "Dost thou revile the Son of God? seeing that thou art in the same condemnation, and we indeed justly, but this Man hath done nothing amiss."

And he said unto Jesus, "Lord, remember me when Thou comest into Thy kingdom." (Luke 23:39-42.)

Two thieves hung on a cross one day
Close by the Savior's side,
One on His right, one on the left,
And one did Him deride:
"If Thou be Christ, then save Thyself;
Let us Thy power see."
The other said, with pitying voice,
"Dear Lord, remember me."

Remember me, remember me,
Dear Lord, remember me.
When to Thy kingdom Thou shalt come,
Dear Lord, remember me.

Those cruel nails that held Him there
To suffer, bleed, and die—
In all His agonizing pain
The dear Lord made reply:
"When to My kingdom I shall come,
Thou shalt sit down with Me.
When paradise shall be restored,
I will remember thee."

AN EARLY EASTER AFTERMATH

By Paul M. Hatch

THE Easter story is ever new, for it is a story of life and a story of hope. It vivified anew in the disciples and the early Christians unbounded enthusiasm in preaching the glad news in every place. It set up in their hearts an endurance that shines resplendent and rings with increasing clarity down the corridors of the centuries.

Peter, disciple and apostle, especially took new courage, denying never again his Master, born again in a vestment of eternal nature. Years after his pen brought out that zeal those people displayed in their lively hope of the gospel.

"Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which according to his abundant mercy hath begotten us again unto a lively hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, to an inheritance incorruptible, and undefiled, and that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven for you, who are kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation ready to be revealed in the last time."

Oh, that the present-day church could capture the spirit of zeal and fortitude that characterized the churches and members of the apostolic times. How more pleasant it would be for Christian accord to work out a common effort, not sullied by jealousy or bickering over non-essentials or trying to impress a special hobby of doctrine or interpretation.

The most needed thing today is that renewal of lively hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ that caused such conscientious building of faith, hope, and love in those early days. Is it not worth trying? Why not this Easter, an aftermath?

Renan scoffingly said, "Christians live on the fragrance of an empty vase." Such an empty vase, indeed, is that vacant tomb in Joseph's garden, and Christians have never ceased to live on its fragrance.

THE PLACE OF A SKULL

To the "Place of a Skull" did they lead Him,
With its terrible, gaping ghost-eyes,
And its sinister, stone-like ghost-glances
'Neath the blue, shrouded dome of the skies.

To the "Place of a Skull" where the crosses
Their eerie-like shadows did cast
They led Him one day our guilt-debt to pay—
The sinnings of all of the past.

To the "Place of a Skull" He did travel
To that cranium-poll in the rock.
There spilled He His blood with a cry unto God
While the thief and the mob joined to mock.

On the "Place of a Skull," hallelujah!
He met the demands of my soul,
And I'm fully free from the wrath that's to be,
Made clean, and made sound, and made whole.

On the "Place of a Skull" with my Master
'Mid the shadows of Golgotha's Hill,
There's a place there for thee in the shade of the tree
With the soul who with Him says, "I will."

To the "Place of a Skull" men must travel,
By the way of a cross homeward plod;
Step by step on the road with their burden and load
Till they stand in the presence of God.

—W. Merton Snow in World's Crisis.

Abreast of the Times

Unwanted Babies

"It is not the will of your Father which is in heaven, that one of these little ones should perish."—Jesus.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., March 21.—It was only a brief item tucked away in the corner of a page to fill up space, but it told a story that would have touched the heart of the Lord Jesus with tender pity.

"A baby girl, still alive, was found tied up in a big cardboard box in an alley here by a bakery wagon driver this morning. She was taken to St. Mary's Hospital where she is reported thriving."

According to the People's Tribune of Shanghai, China, more than 24,000 dead babies were picked up on the streets of Shanghai last year. This is a condition that happens every year in this city, declares the Tribune.

No matter where it may be, Christian America or heathen China, hundreds of thousands of unwanted babies are born into the world every year. And while only a small proportion of them suffer death from starvation or exposure as is the case in China, India, and elsewhere, they grow up undernourished and neglected, and fall easy victims to the alluring call of crime.

When the King shall come who loved the children, and who loves them still, "the streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing in the streets," happy, carefree, and safe (Zech. 8:5):

Colleges and Crime

"The carnal mind is enmity against God: for it is not subject to the law of God."—Rom. 8:7.

CHICAGO, Ill., March 21.—The mysterious desperado known as the "college gangster," who has been sought by Chicago police since 1927, came to his end at last, but not through the efforts of the state or city authorities. He was found slain at an early hour this morning in front of a restaurant in Cicero, and was later identified from fingerprints as Fred C. Goetz, wanted by various state and national authorities on charges of rape, bank robbery, and murder.

According to press reports, Goetz's police record began in 1925. He was a graduate and a former football player of the University of Illinois. He was arrested for the attempted rape of a little seven year old girl. His parents posted a $5,000 bond, which young Goetz promptly forfeited and fled. Since that time, now nine years ago, although he has been wanted for many other major crimes in which he was known to have participated, the police and Government officers have sought him in vain.

Gangland's leaders, however, better informed as to the location and activity of its citizens than are city, state, or national officers, for some unrevealed transgression of gang-land law, condemned Goetz to death, and carried out the sentence.

What a commentary this tragic occurrence is on the futility of our modern educational system from a moral standpoint! Parents should ponder this over carefully. When you are planning for the education of your children do not take alone into account the intellectual advantages provided in the great institutions of learning, but prayerfully consider the probable moral and spiritual influences by which they will be surrounded for four or more of the most important years of their lives. Spiritual values must be kept uppermost in the minds of the college faculty, rather than academic, scientific, or commercial, or else education is as apt to equip the student for a life of professional criminality as it is for one of honest industry and usefulness.

When the Sky Rains Fiery Stones

"The heavens being on fire shall be dissolved, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat."—Peter.

NEW YORK, March 17.—Dr. H. H. Nininger, an authority on meteorites, writing in The Literary Digest, says that "for many years astronomers have known that our sun controls the orbits of several great swarms of stones, traveling through space at almost unthinkable velocities. When our earth passes through one of them, a shower of meteors occurs."

These great swarms of stones are thought to be the wreckage of comets which have been torn apart by the powerful gravitation of the sun and the larger planets in our solar system. Vast sections of the world, it is declared, have from time to time been deluged by these fiery missiles. One particular meteorite storm swept an area reaching from a central point along the coast of the Carolinas far out into the Atlantic on the east, and as far west as Ohio.

"The shores of Europe were probably deluged by an enormous tidal wave; and a fiery blast must have completely devastated the entire eastern half of North America below the St. Lawrence River."

Will something like this mark the coming of the Lord?

The Wages of Sin

"The way of the transgressors is hard."—Prov. 13:15.

PARIS, France, March 22.—Dishonesty brings its own punishment sooner or later. Jean Brunsvick, a diamond merchant, was found dead by his own hand in a hotel here today. This adds another name to the long list of suicides and murders that have resulted from the $60,000,000 municipal pawnshop scandal that threatened the overthrow of the French republic. The police linked the name of Brunsvick with that of Stavisky of the pawnshop scandal through stubs found in his checkbook.

National Berean Department

Miss Genniel Carpenter, Editor, Oregon, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Cecil A. Smead, President
Blanchard, Michigan

Virgil Claypool, Treasurer
506 E. Chestnut St.
Robinson, Illinois

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
Oregon, Illinois

CANTATA

HELEN went to the Easter services with little enthusiasm, except, perhaps, for the weather. It was a perfect April evening, the kind of evening that follows an early spring day of sunshine and the sweet south wind. As Helen walked slowly toward the church, she could see the little orange blobs of the street lights stretching far into the dusk. Here and there groups of leisurely people were approaching the church, and cars shining and shabby slid to a stop to let out well dressed men and women.

It was not normal for Helen to be apathetic. Usually she would have been thrilled at the prospect of hearing the organ and the Easter singing. Easter in the past was to her the most glorious of days. It always impressed her with the greatness and goodness of God's plan, and the wonderful fact that she might be a part of it and work to bring it to its consummation.

But Helen had recently read a book. Not a thick book nor an important book, but what an insidiously persuasive manner it had! She read it with the idea of discovering what nonsense the skeptical writer had devised about subjects she was very sure of—God and the Bible. At first she assured herself stoutly that it was nonsense, but how horribly plausible it began to seem. She would have thrown it down in disgust, but she could not help feeling her faith should withstand this small test. So she read it through. Afterward she was afraid that if she opened her Bible she would find an inconsistency, and how, she wondered, could her prayers be of any use: for had she not committed the grave sin of lacking faith? She was very young, and she told no one that she was troubled. She only sat in the dim church, wondering unhappily, among the lilies and new hats, and watched the choir march in. The singers stood to begin the cantata.

The Man called in mockery King of the Jews seemed not to hear the shouts from the mob. People milled about the cross from which He hung, some only curious, some coldly despising, others with fanatic hate. The song of their hatred rose to a veritable shrill orgy of sound, which ebbed only with their exhaustion. But Jesus was silent as before. That He was untouched by their taunts infuriated them, and they roared again. Presently, some remembered duties elsewhere, a few were suddenly sickened at such savage delight in the spectacle, and the shouting ceased. There was a certain uneasiness which increased as the people became quieter. Surely it was growing strangely dark!

After all, it was said this Man had done marvelous things. What if . . . He were the Messiah? In the gathering gloom there was panic. But no! He should die for blasphemy! He still hung in silence. The crowd was assured once more by His meekness, and they began to taunt Him again.

Suddenly Jesus cried out loudly, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" The people murmured uneasily. Some had not understood His words. Some said, "He is calling Elias." They offered Him vinegar to drink, and the crowd waited to see whether or no Elias would come and take Him down. But Jesus prayed for their forgiveness with inconceivable mercy, and He died. There was great commotion and fright among the people. When they saw the darkness and the earthquake, the centurion and those with him said that He must surely have been the Son of God.

In the fair dawn the women went to the grave. In gentle, sweet voices they talked of their sadness. And the great stone—what of it? They could not roll it aside. When they came nearer, they saw it had already been moved. They ran to the tomb in fear, wondering what they might find. The young man inside arose, and as they drew back afraid, he said in tones and words of unearthly beauty: "Be not affrighted: Ye seek Jesus of Nazareth, which was crucified: he is risen; he is not here: behold the place where they laid him. But go your way . . . ye (shall) see him, as he said."

Death was conquered! The whole earth seemed to join in the triumphal song. "Now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the firstfruits of them that slept." "O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory? The sting of death is sin; and the strength of sin is the law. But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." The rapturous praise and rejoicing ceased. The cantata was ended.

When Helen rose and went out into the night with the rest of the crowd, she did not hear the things they were saying. She was confused among their greetings and conversation, because an event of centuries ago was so strangely real to her. It had never been so vivid before. The little book was forgotten; all she could think of was the truth the wonderful music had made plain to her. She went home with a prayer of thanksgiving in her heart.

Who could estimate the value of the talent God gave to the insignificant-looking man who wrote the music long ago?

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"Suffer little children, and forbid them not, to come unto me: for of such is the kingdom of heaven."

AS A LITTLE CHILD

WE are beginning now on the lessons for the second quarter of the year, and from them we will learn more about the very important subject we studied during the first quarter. And that, you know, girls and boys, was God's kingdom and His King, Jesus.

Many times we read throughout the first four books of the New Testament that Jesus' special work was to tell the people all about His Father's kingdom. He used stories, parables, objects—many things—to show them just what sort of kingdom it will be.

You see, God's kingdom is going to be very much like the kingdoms we know about and yet very different. Sounds queer, doesn't it? But it's true nevertheless.

The ways it will resemble other kingdoms are these: it will have a king who will have helpers; it will have territory; and it will have subjects.

I imagine every one of you who read this page could tell me who the King will be. I can hear even the tiniest one say, "Jesus." And that is a name we all love. We love to serve our King now, and when He comes to earth to set up His kingdom, we'll be happier than ever to serve Him.

And right there we've hinted at the helpers and the territory! Those who love Him now will be His helpers then, and His kingdom is going to be on the earth.

Now the reason it is sometimes called the kingdom of heaven, as in the verse across the top of the page, is because it will be a kingdom with heavenly ways, heavenly ideas, and heavenly actions. That is, ways that please God, ideas that are upright and honest, actions that are kindly and loving and true.

Remember, Jesus taught us to say when we pray, "Our Father which art in heaven, Hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven." There are no wrong things in heaven, we are sure. And when God's kingdom comes, everyone will do as God wants him to do, which will be right.

Now, in today's lesson Jesus used another example to show us what sort of people will be in God's kingdom. It was a little child. The disciples didn't want Jesus to be bothered with little children and would have sent them away. But Jesus loved the little ones, and they loved Him. He liked to have them around Him.

What do you suppose there was about the little ones that made Jesus love them? Why, I think it was their loving ways and their trusting hearts. That is what I love about them.

When I tell you something on this page about Jesus, you believe it. And that is the reason I pray I will never tell you anything wrong about Him. Because you believe, as you grow older you will want to know more and more about Him, and you will put your whole faith in Him. You will believe in Him even more than you do in your father.

That's what Jesus wanted the disciples to learn from the little children—to believe fully in Him and try to do as He wished. In fact, Jesus said no one could be in His kingdom when He comes again who did not learn that lesson well.

Another thing Jesus loved about the children was their humility. That's a long word for you smaller boys and girls; but it means just the opposite of pride. You all know what sort of a person a proud person is, that is, one who feels too good or too big to associate with others.

Jesus wanted His disciples to learn that from the little ones, too. Because, you see, even some of the disciples were proud and wanted to have the best seats in the kingdom and the highest honor. Jesus Himself wasn't the least bit proud, you know. Why, one day He even washed the disciples' feet! Their own Lord and Master! He was willing and glad to do anything for them that they needed.

And so let's be glad that we are still children and know what it is to believe and to trust and to be humble. And let's stay that way, even as we grow up. Let's keep on in simple faith that Jesus will do for us all He says He will do. Let's put our hand tightly in His and know He will lead us through every hard place. Let's keep our eyes on Him, knowing that He knows what is best, and trusting Him to bring it all out right.

Then we will be the sort of people He will want in His kingdom when He comes to set up His throne on this earth, and gather His loved ones about Him.

"When He cometh, when He cometh
To make up His jewels,
All His jewels, precious jewels,
His loved and His own:

"Like the stars of the morning,
His bright crown adorning,
They shall shine in their beauty,
Bright gems for His crown."

The Sunday School Lesson

FROM TRUTH SEEKERS' QUARTERLY

LESSON 2. — April 8, 1934

THE CHILD AND THE KINGDOM

Matthew 18:1-14; 19:13-15.

Devotional Reading: Luke 2:8-16

GOLDEN TEXT

Suffer little children, and forbid them not, to come unto me: for of such is the kingdom of heaven.—Matthew 19:14.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic: The Child and the Kingdom.

Aim: To show that the basis of saving faith may be laid in the heart of children.

Basic Truth: "Lo, children are an heritage of the Lord."—Psalm 127:3.

I. The Child As an Example. (Matt. 18:1-6.) Jesus the master Teacher of all time depended much on pageantry, that is, object lessons, to impress His thoughts on the minds of His hearers. When questioned concerning the payment of taxes He asked for a coin, and holding it in His hand, pointed out the owner's name engraved upon it. The coin in which taxes were paid belonged to Caesar, therefore it should be returned to him. In this lesson He chooses a child as the illustration of His thought. As they looked upon that little one He suggested the qualities of innocence, humbleness, and faith of which it was a living embodiment. Only such as possess these qualities are eligible to a place in the kingdom of God.

II. All Men Are Children Before God. (Matt. 18:12-14.) Like a helpless child wandering aimlessly and alone, or like a sheep that has gone astray from the flock, humanity has lost itself in the wilderness of sin. It can by no means find its way out without help. So God sent Christ into the world to "seek and to save that which was lost." The wanderers may not respond to His call. They may not even consent to return to the fold when they are made to see the danger that threatens. But Christ in His great love for them will seek them every one and provide the means by which they can be delivered if they will but give themselves wholly into His keeping.

III. Jesus Has a Place for the Children. (Matt. 19:13-15.) Religion, even among the Jews, was looked upon largely as something for adults to enjoy and to practice, until Jesus revealed the fatherly heart of God clearly. Christianity makes a mother a more sympathetic and understanding parent, and the child through her attitude and teaching gains a knowledge of the meaning of true spiritual living long before he can understand the factual teaching that pertains to Christianity. As he grows older he longs for the time to come when he, too, may become a baptized disciple of his mother's Lord.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Little children

- are born imitators;
- are molded by their teachers;
- are made or unmade by their parents;
- should receive every attention by the church;
- are the men and women of tomorrow.

Children are precious in God's sight. They are heaven's choicest blessing to mankind. Parents are stewards of their lives. It has been said, "The child is born in part, he is made in part, in part he makes himself." "Hereditry" and "making" or environment are under the power of the parents. That parents will be held responsible for their part in thus forming the life and character of the child goes without saying.

Our lesson reveals the attitude of the disciples toward children coming to Christ. They were hindering rather than helping; they were standing in the way. How often this is done today. Adults who should be models and leaders are standing in the way, preventing children from coming to Christ.

"Open the door for the children,
Tenderly gather them in,
In from the highways and hedges,
In from the places of sin.

"Some are so young and helpless;
Some are so hungry and cold;
Open the door for the children,
Gather them into the fold."

—C. E. R.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"Suffer little children, and forbid them not, to come unto me: for of such is the kingdom of heaven."—Matt. 19:14.

A little child is dependent, trusting, loving, knows naught but good in everyone. Not so with grownups. They are in a sense independent and suspicious. Note the difference between them. Jesus loved the children and made an example of them.

In the third verse of our lesson, Jesus in talking to His disciples said, "Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven." We would think the disciples had been converted, but something must have been lacking. He wanted them to be humble and trusting as children, so that they would the better serve Him.

We too must become as little children in some things, that we may be acceptable to Him and enter into that kingdom.—L. A. R.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULTS

Sin of Neglecting and Misguiding Children

Of all creatures the infant of the human race is among the most helpless and is subject to the longest period of infancy. This makes necessary a long period of care which endears the little one to its parents and prompts them to noble efforts of service. A baby is born without a sense of right or wrong; without a feeling of obligation to God; without a conscience; without speech, love, hate, or knowledge. This animated clay is ready to be shaped into a vessel of honor or dishonor. The training of a child is a test of stewardship.

A young child will absorb something, good or bad, from everyone he contacts. His character will be a composite of all characters which have touched his life. Solomon wrote: "Train up a child in the way he should go: and when he is old, he will not depart from it."—Prov. 22:6. The long period of infancy is the formative period of character, but, like clay, when this plastic period is passed little can be done to alter the shape or design—the molding is finished. "Train up a child in the way he should NOT go: and when he is old, he will not depart from it," is as true as the statement of Solomon.

Jesus said that it was better to have a millstone about one's neck and be cast into the depths of the sea than to misguide a little child. Read Matthew 18:14. Sometimes children are taught to do evil things because it looks "cute." Remember the words of Jesus! An eternal life, if not two, is in jeopardy. Be an influence for good or none at all.—H. A. S.

PRIMARY CLASS

Memory Verse: "Suffer little children to come unto me."—Luke 18:16a.

You have all seen a father or mother take a small child, toss it up in the air, and then catch him as the child came down, haven't you? Was the child afraid? Oh, no, he knew that Father or Mother would catch him.

One day the disciples came to Jesus and asked, "Who is the greatest in the kingdom?" Jesus called a little child to Him. He said, "You must be like a little child if you want to be in God's kingdom." By this He meant that they must have faith in God, just as the little child had faith that he would be caught when he came down.

Jesus loved the little children. When He was here on earth He called them to Him, took them in His arms, and blessed them. He still loves them and watches over them every day.

Did I hear some one ask, "Will there be any children in God's kingdom?" Yes, indeed, for Isaiah, the Prophet, in describing God's kingdom said that a little child should lead the lion, leopard, and wolf, and that a little child could play on the hole where the asp and adder (snakes) were.

Jesus once said, "Suffer little children to come unto me." He still wants them, so let's all say it just as Jesus said it, to help us remember that Jesus still loves the little children.—V. C. T.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

EDEN VALLEY, MINNESOTA

Special pre-Easter services, conducted by Pastor Richard LeCrone, are now in progress. They will continue each evening of the week, culminating in a full day of spiritual activity on Sunday. In addition to the preaching services, a fine program is being prepared which also will be presented on Sunday.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

When these lines appear we expect to be in the midst of our pre-Easter meetings. The church is working hard to cause this to be a Passion Week properly observed in honor of our Savior's trying week that led up to His glorious victory on Easter morn. Different church families are arranging special music for the various services to add to the interest.

Among those whom we hope to have at church on Easter are Sr. Harold (Ada) Simpson, who has been ill since December, and Sr. Conlin, who has been confined by sickness for a month. How happy we are when sick ones recover,—and how happy we'll all be when there shall be no more sickness.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

BLANCHARD, MICHIGAN

It has been our pleasure to have Sr. J. E. Hammond and Sr. Ruth Smead spend the winter here. These are the pastor's mother and sister. We have appreciated Ruth's help with playing the organ both at the church and at the Gospel Mission services. May God speed them on their journey to California.

The Wyman Gospel Mission has been under way almost two months now, and is proving to be a very good thing. There is no other religious service for at least three miles around, and the families of the community are taking advantage of the opportunity to give their children spiritual instruction also, and are coming themselves. It meets Sunday mornings at 10:30. May God give the increase.

The Shepard Gospel Mission was started last fall, and has come through the winter months with colors flying. On some of the coldest nights when it was almost impossible to drive a car, we have had as large crowds as any time. The people have been learning about God's dealings with Old Testament characters, and are now having their attention directed to the signs of the Lord Jesus in the Gospel of John. The children last week presented a playlet on the healing of the blind man. Much of the interest and success of the meetings has been due to the cooperation of the school-teacher, Mr. Emery Toogood. This meeting is held every Thursday evening. We pray for the Lord to make Himself felt to these people.

At the Brick Church on Sunday nights the young people have a Berean class commencing at 7:30. Meanwhile the adults are led in singing in the main auditorium by Sr. Laura Briggs. The young people have been making up a choir to sing in the Gospel Mission Service which follows. We are praying now for the Lord to touch some hearts to get down into the watery grave to come up immediately to walk in newness of life. We are praying that some might make this step on Easter afternoon. We need your prayers.

C. A. Smead, Pastor.

CALIFORNIA QUARTERLY CONFERENCE

Advance announcement is being made of a quarterly conference to be held at Pomona, Calif., on May 6, 1934. There will be sessions in the morning, afternoon, and evening. Full details will be published later.

Norman John MacLeod, President.

BRUSH CREEK, OHIO

Beginning on Tuesday, March 27, a series of pre-Easter services will be conducted at the Brush Creek Church of God. Sermons each evening throughout the week will be illustrated by a colored chart 21 x 4 feet representing God's Plan of the Ages.

Sydney E. Magaw, Pastor.

WE LOOK AHEAD

April 3, 1934

"Passing Through," Lottie E. Young. "I expect to pass through life but once"—how?

"Restitution," Harvey Krogh, Jr. First of two articles "written in appreciation of . . . The Restitution Herald."

"Established in the Present Truth," J. H. T. The Bible speaks contrary to traditions, but in truth.

"Truth vs. Fiction and Fables," M. W. Perrine. Wherein truth is held up as superior to fiction in its lasting effects.

"Sawdust and Shavings," L. B. Sherman. "To have faith one must have vision."

And other special pages and articles.

ESTABLISH FINANCIAL FREEDOM IN YOUR CHURCH: IT CAN BE DONE

Put your church on a paying basis! Let the time-tested Layman Company's Tithing Pamphlets do the work. These pamphlets as issued by the Layman Company offer every church a most effective education. They have convinced people by the thousands. Send sixty cents to the Layman Company and you will receive thirty 8-page pamphlets, which can be used for general circulation; three sermons; one account book; two short, convincing playlets; one copy of our new text-book, "The Scriptural Basis for the Tithe."

The church that is carefully, wisely, and systematically taught to tithe will become a tithing church, free from financial difficulties. Sample package, sixty cents.

Please mention The Restitution Herald; also give your denomination.

THE LAYMAN COMPANY,
730 Rush St., Chicago, Ill.

CONTRIBUTORS TO DOLLAR-A-MONTH CLUB

Leota B. Hanson ($3); Mrs. Mae Mick; Florence Hanson; Mrs. Arra Hanson.

I AM GLAD

O for so many things. The articles on tithing are especially good and much needed. We never know how much real good it does us to practice tithing until we make a business of it ourselves, then to feel we are giving for the Lord's work His own money, in the way He asked us to do. And the little free-will offerings, though so small, are such a blessing to every real child of God.

So glad I have a son who counts it a blessing to serve the Lord, and garner in the sheaves for His glory and their future joy. So glad this son knows how to make the rough places smooth for Mother in her old age, and trusts God for His keeping power; and just now so glad he can be working in the Master's cause.

Why is it our people do not see how much more good can come of systematic tithing than the haphazard way the majority of us give? If we all gave our tithe, however small the sum we have to tithe might be, we would not have to write and beg for money to pay our indebtedness, but we would have more than enough to meet the required needs. Do not say, I do not believe that. The only way to prove it is to practice it for a year and see the result, and O the spiritual uplift it gives one! As the writer in this week's paper says, "It links a man up with God." How true! It brings one into a sacred relationship with the most High and develops spirituality. The more we talk with God, the more spiritually animated we become, the easier we find it to be patient under depressing and unpleasant conditions.

How good it was to read "The Land of Palestine" under the name of D. M. Hudler. I wondered if he was the Hudler whom the Plum River people knew so well and who was working for them when Bro. Woodward and I were helping there so many years ago. (He was.—Ed.) He has been sleeping a long time in Virginia, where he made his home with Bro. Good's people. How appropriate the article is right now! We all called him "the gusher," for he would get so happy he would fill up and burst out in tears and shout, "Praise the Lord!" and I often think God would be pleased with us if we would let our feelings have full vent and shout, "Glory to God!" many times when our hearts are overflowing with joy. It used to be a frequent part of our meetings and would add much warmth and interest to them yet. Do not be afraid, beloveds, to praise God audibly if the spirit thus moves you to speak.

I am glad for Sr. Gesin's good articles on the Children's Page. I hope the mothers will call the attention of the children to them and help them get interested in that page. Tell them that page is theirs. Sr. Gesin writes it for them, and hopes it will always be an inspiration to them to live for the dear Christ who loved the young people and children.

I am so glad for our good religious paper, and the many loyal hearts who write for it. God bless them all is my prayer.

M. A. Woodward,

5439 Ohio St., Chicago, Ill.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO N. B. I.

Mrs. Jennie Baker	$1.00
Mrs. Ethel Johnson	5.00
Mrs. Mae Mick (Easter Offering)	1.00
Richard LeCrone (Old Ind. Fund)	5.00

SPECIAL INDEBTEDNESS FUND

Previously reported	$557.75
Mrs. Lena Drew	1.00
Ripley, Ill., Church of God	13.25
Mrs. E. M. Hall	3.50
Mary Howard	5.00
J. W. Lent	5.00
Rose Miller	5.00
Total	$590.50
Pledges previously reported	$579.00
Miss Mattie Benjamin	100.00
Total	$679.00
Total pledges and contributions	$1269.50

HERALD RECEIPTS

Howard H. Moore; Mrs. E. M. Hall (for another); Mrs. M. D. Newell; Mrs. Ruby A. Johnson; Elsie Bradley; Glenn M. Birkey (for others); Harry Goekler (for others); Rose Miller (for others); Mrs. Diana Murphy (for others); Sydney E. Magaw; Clarence Baker; Mrs. G. E. Black; Mrs. Myrtle J. Norris; W. W. Cooper; Thomas McArthur; Theron Murphy; Loren L. Burnett; J. W. Cooper (for others).

FRED S. JENKINS

Fred S. Jenkins was born May 22, 1876, at York, Neb. He lived with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John P. Jenkins, in Polk County until he grew to manhood. He was educated in the schools of that county, later studying music at the Conservatory of Music at Lincoln.

In early manhood he began work as a salesman, and followed that occupation most of the time until his health failed in 1928.

He was married in Blair, October 8, 1901, to Miss Elizabeth Newell, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Newell. Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins have lived in or near Blair most of their married life.

Three children were born to them: Mrs. Ruth Suverkrubbe, who resides on a farm near Calhoun; Edward N., who is at present in the Civilian Conservation Corps at Garden City, Kan.; and Miss Catherine, who lives at home; also one grandchild. He is also survived by three brothers: James of Lincoln, Ralph A. of Talmage, and Frank M. of Decatur; and one sister: Mrs. B. M. Utterback of Arlington. The sister and one brother were present at the funeral, the brother Frank being unable to be present on account of serious illness.

Mr. Jenkins became a member of the Church of God about seven years ago and was an active and interested member. Especially did he enjoy working with the young people in their music and programs.

He was an invalid and a patient sufferer for more than four years and passed away at his home on West Nebraska Street on Tuesday morning, March 6,

PHOEBE AUSTIN

Phoebe Dangler, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Dangler, was born August 28, 1844, in Putman County, Ohio, and departed this life March 13, 1934. She was married to Timothy Austin, who preceded her in death about nineteen years ago. They lived south of Blanchard, Mich., for many years, having moved there when the country was yet a wilderness.

She died at the home of her daughter, Sr. Joseph Wilhalf, the only surviving child. Another daughter, Grace, died several years ago. She leaves to mourn their loss one daughter, six grandchildren, thirteen great-grandchildren, and, residing in Ohio, one brother and two sisters.

The funeral was held Friday afternoon, March 16, at the home of her daughter near Blanchard. Elder C. A. Smead spoke words of comfort from the Scripture: "Casting all your care upon him; for he careth for you."

"Though we sleep 'tis not forever,
There will be a glorious dawn.
We shall meet to part, no, never,
On the resurrection morn."

A HELPFUL LETTER

Sr. Catharine Davis of Freeport, Ill., writes interestingly of the way in which she joins in the blessed task of bringing the gospel of the kingdom to the world today, though she herself is unable to hear a sermon or to attend a service.

"I have taken The Restitution Herald for fourteen years, and before that I took 'The Restitution' published by R. G. Huggins in Cleveland, Ohio. I have given all of my papers to others to read when I had finished with them. Being deaf I cannot hear sermons clearly, and so enjoy reading a great deal.

"I have a copy of 'The Way of Life Eternal' by Lyman Booth. I think this book ought to be in every Christian home. Its sound teaching would be a help to all students of the Bible. I also have 'The Mystery of Iniquity' by the same author. That, too, is a very good work. In addition I get much comfort out of our Restitution Herald, and would not do without it, as I never get to meet with any of our people, but can read of them and their doings in the paper."

Note: The two works by Lyman Booth, of which Sr. Davis speaks so highly, are for sale at this office. "The Way of Life Eternal" may be secured for 40 cents per copy, post-paid, and "The Mystery of Iniquity" for 75 cents.

GOD'S FAVOR CONTINUES!

There is really no reason to mention it to the constituency of The Restitution Herald because it is so obviously true, but for the sake of any who may not be altogether familiar with the wonderful way in which God blesses His people we thankfully acknowledge again His goodness to us. In those localities where depression has hit the hardest, the larger cities, our churches are increasing the capacity of their building and doing it right now! In smaller towns and rural places where the gospel of the kingdom is being preached with positive assurance widespread interest is being developed. If we do our part, God will always do His.

Just see how much higher we are on the ladder today! "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse," challenges God, and see "if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it."—Mal. 3:10. We have tested this plan, and found it is good.

BETWEEN YOU AND ME—

An able young worker of the North speaks of a certain "Weakness" (please observe the capital) that he hopes will "afflict" him with "its" presence over Easter. Strange! Strange!

The ladies of the Oregon, Ill., church met recently and reorganized their workers' society, changing its name from "Ladies' Aid" to "Doreas Society," thus emphasizing its charitable purpose as well as the fact that its energies are expended in behalf of the welfare of the local church body.

Sr. Mary A. Gesin, editor of the Children's Page, is under observation in the hospital at Rockford, Ill. Sr. Gesin has been unwell for a long time, and has at last been persuaded to undergo a complete medical examination to determine the cause of her trouble. We pray that it may be quickly located.

Information reaching us from northwestern Iowa is encouraging. The services being conducted in the vicinity of Webb, Marathon, and Albert City by Bro. Arthur Johnson and others continue to attract increasing attendance, and a number from other churches are being inspired to "search the scriptures" as for hidden treasure. May God continue to bless the work in the entire state.

Sending in the names and addresses of twenty families whom she was anxious to have receive the Easter issue of The Restitution Herald, Sr. Rose Miller, Adrian, Mich., says, "I think this is a splendid way to get folk acquainted with our church paper, and how proud I am to have my friends see and read it. Thanks so much to our editing staff and God's guidance."

Let's
climb
the Ladder
to Success
!

$1200
$1100
$1000
$900
$800
$700
$600
$500
$400
$300
$200
$100

HE LIVES FOR EVERMORE

Continued from Page Three

So it is with us all, for God's thoughts are not our thoughts, neither are His ways our ways. "One day is with the Lord as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day."—2 Peter 3:8. It is hard for mortals to be patient, and so John, waiting there alone, is longing for a sign, for some assuring word that his Master still lives, that He has not forsaken forever the world for which He died.

Then out of the darkness comes the Voice! The soul-stirring Voice of power and of love! His Lord speaks once more!

"Fear not; I am the first and the last: I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore, Amen; and have the keys of (the grave) and of death!"

That sign was not given for John alone, it was not intended for his solace only. "Write," said the Voice, "these words in a book, and send it unto the seven churches which are in Asia!" That is, send it unto the waiting, praying, sorrowing, and discouraged people of God everywhere, that all may be assured and comforted by it.

Of this inspiring message the sum total is this:

Jesus lives! Jesus lives! Jesus, who once gave His life for men is alive again today! He is not dead! And nothing else matters when Jesus lives!

It is not strange that the early Christians when they met greeted each other with these words, "The Lord is risen indeed!" And to that joyous assurance gave the response: "And hath appeared unto Simon!" Luke 24:34.

To realize the truth of that announcement imparts a power, a hope, and an assurance which nothing else can supply. It was their definite knowledge of their Lord's resurrection that gave the early disciples the courage to press forward against all opposition and in the face of constant danger, preaching the glad tidings of the kingdom of God. The King had come! What if His enemies had rejected and crucified Him! All that was in the past, for Jesus was alive again to die no more! Fearlessly "they that were scattered abroad (by persecution) went every where preaching the word." But they did not go alone, for Jesus went with them "confirming the word." The inspiration for all missionary work comes from the consciousness that Jesus lives!

The redemption of man consists in the forgiveness of his sins. It is in fact from sin and death that we are redeemed. And this great work of grace is accomplished through faith in the living Savior! Hence Paul declares, "If Christ be not raised, your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins." If Jesus has not risen from the dead we are still bearing our own guilt, and the death of Christ was of no avail, for our justification was dependent upon His resurrection. Rom. 4:25.

Paul carried the logic of his argument beyond the mere theoretical and dogmatic, into the realm of the definitely practical, within the reach of the "common people" who listened gladly to the teaching of Jesus before His crucifixion, down to the basic need of men, their need for life, real life!

"If Christ be not raised, . . . ye are yet in your sins. Then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished!"—1 Cor. 15:17, 18. What a fearful possibility Paul suggests here! "If Christ be not raised, . . . then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished!"

In this connection let us ask ourselves this question: How can the non-resurrection of Christ affect those who sleep in Him? William Tyndale, an early translator of the Bible, expresses the question thus: "The true faith (setteth forth) the resurrection, which we be warned to look for every hour. The heathen philosophers, denying that, did put (set forth) that the souls did ever live. . . . And ye, in putting them (the souls of the dead) in heaven and hell and purgatory, destroy the arguments wherewith Christ and Paul prove the resurrection. . . . If their souls be in heaven, tell me why they be not in as good case as the angels be; and then what cause is there of the resurrection?"

The "Father of the English Bible" places the question before us fairly and clearly. The language of Paul would have no meaning if it were possible for men to go on living regardless of whether Jesus died and rose again. But if we are wholly dependent upon Him for life, if we cannot live without Him, if He is our only hope, then we can readily see the vital necessity of His resurrection.

"If Christ be not raised, . . . then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished!" Allow the word "perished" to mean what we will—separation from God; conscious and eternal suffering; or extinction of being—the word "perished" describes the fate of every Christian who has fallen asleep in Christ, if Christ has not risen from the grave!

This text puts an awful emphasis on death. It gives to it a dreadful finality. And it offers no alternative. "If Christ be not raised" there is no hope for dying men!

Nature and Revelation assure us that man is mortal, subject to death because of sin. So far as Nature is concerned "death ends all!" Revelation, however, assures us that there is a possibility of life after death by a resurrection from the dead, and that the evidence of this is provided in the resurrection of our Lord. For "now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the firstfruits of them that slept!"

Let us send the glad echoes ringing round the earth until He comes: Jesus lives!

—0—

Hawthorne compares Christianity to a grand cathedral with divinely pictured windows. Viewed from without, it is impossible to gain the slightest conception of the beautiful forms and radiant colors manifest to those who look at them from within. In Christ there is a glory visible only to those who dwell in His heart.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 23

OREGON, ILLINOIS, APRIL 3, 1934

NUMBER 27

RESTITUTION

By Harvey Krogh, Jr.

SHORTLY after Pentecost Peter and John came to the temple one day at the hour of prayer and seeing a lame man asking alms they healed him. Immediately the people marveled at the miracle, but Peter plainly told them that it was done by the power of God in the name of Jesus, whom they had denied and killed. Peter confessed that it was probably through ignorance that they rejected the "Prince of life," but he also said, "Repent ye therefore, and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out, when the times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord."—Acts 3:19.

These people well knew the meaning of having their sins blotted out, for the whole law of Moses taught them atonement for sins. They also knew what it meant to be refreshed, because they lived in a country that was sometimes hot and dry. A cool spring at the foot of the Mount of Olives or Jacob's well gave them the meaning of "times of refreshing."

Peter further said to them, "And he (the Lord) shall send Jesus Christ, which before was preached unto you: whom the heavens must receive until the times of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began."—Acts 3:20, 21.

Restitution means restoration; reestablishment from a state of ruin; the act of making good any loss; injury or damage; compensation; making amends.

It has been taught by some that the earth and all shall be destroyed and burned up at the end of the world. "Restitution" and "restoration" seem to cast a different light upon that view.

Since we know that restitution is the making good of any loss, let us begin at the beginning and find out what has been lost or damaged. "And God saw every thing that he had made, and, behold, it was very good."—Gen. 1:31. God had placed Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden and had given them the commandment that they should not eat

This, the first of two articles by the young pastor of the Plum River, Illinois, Church of God, deals with the problem of what purpose restitution will serve. The twin scripts were prepared, according to the author, "in appreciation of our well loved church paper, The Restitution Herald."

of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil—and what happened? Eve did eat and gave also to her husband with her; and he did eat. Paul says concerning this, "Wherefore, as by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned."—Rom. 5:12. Don't blame the woman.

When sin entered the man and woman were no more "very good." God therefore pronounced a curse upon the man and the woman and upon the earth. "Cursed is the ground for thy sake; in sorrow shalt thou eat of it all the days of thy life; thorns also and thistles shall it bring forth to thee; and thou shalt eat the herb of the field; in the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground; for out of it wast thou taken: for dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return."—Gen. 3:17-19.

Before this we have no record of the earth ever having brought forth thorns and thistles, but we know that the soil now is foul with the noxious weeds.

So God drove the man and woman out of the garden, and their right to the tree of life was taken away. They were given two children who grew to be men. These men, Cain and Abel, offered sacrifices to God, but Cain's offering was not respected by God. Cain therefore was angry and slew his brother Abel. The first death. God asked Cain where his brother was and Cain lied to God. Can we see the result of sin?

When we look over these things we find a great many things to be restored and many wrongs to be righted. Some of these to be restored are: the quietness and beauty of the Garden of Eden; the purity and goodness of man before he sinned; the earth's beautiful production of the useful vegetation.

In Revelation 22:3 we are told that "there shall be no more curse: but the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it." That is one of the blessed times that Peter was speaking of, the times of re- (Please turn to Page Nine)

54 29
ohio St

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879.

G. Eldred Marsh, Editor

Two Dollars per Year

Paul C. Johnson, Associate Editor

“Repent then, and turn to have your sins blotted out, so that a breathing-space may be vouchsafed you, and that the Lord may send Jesus your long-decreed Christ, who must be kept in heaven till the period of the great Restoration.”

THE EDITOR'S PRAYER

FOR the blessings and comforts of this present life we thank Thee, O Lord our God. For the hope of the life that is to come and for the glories to be revealed in us when Jesus comes we praise Thy holy name. Help us, we beseech Thee, to feel even now something of the peace, the contentment, the freedom from anxiety and care, that will be our ever present experience when that eternal day shall dawn. For peace of mind we know is promised to those who put their trust in Thee. May we lay hold upon that promise through Jesus our Lord. Amen.

THE RESTITUTION

“RESTITUTION!” The word itself thrills the heart of the watching, praying followers of Jesus Christ like a strain of heavenly music. And such indeed it is. For “restitution,” like “gospel,” is a word of supernatural joy and promise emanating from the God of love, and intended by Him to bring gladness and hope to His weary and sorrowing children on the earth.

The assurance is fully and clearly given: “He shall send Jesus Christ, which before was preached unto you: whom the heaven must receive until the times of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began.”—Acts 3:20, 21.

The blessedness of this promise is made more vivid still in the Diaglott and in other corrected versions of the Scriptures, where the word “restoration” is substituted for the word “restitution.” The Diaglott, a translation from the Greek by our own revered brother, Benjamin Wilson, was made nearly twenty years before the Revised Version was produced, and was the first so far as we are able to discover to render the Greek word apokatastasis, “restoration” rather than “restitution.”

Defining this inspiring Greek word Thayer's Greek-English Lexicon says, “Restoration: the restoration not only of the true theocracy but also of that more perfect state of even physical things which existed before the fall.”

Restitution or restoration is thus seen to extend far beyond the matter of individual salvation from sin, and to reach out in its promise to touch with the glory of regeneration the physical earth and all that is within it. To accomplish this purpose, so majestic in concept and so far-reaching in results, God “shall send Jesus Christ” back to this earth again in mighty power.

The definition of “restoration” made by Dr. Thayer is fully supported by Liddell and Scott's authoritative work, which declares the original word means “a complete restoration, reestablishment, restitution,” and was used with reference to “the return of the stars to the same place in the heavens as in the former year.”

To these suggestive definitions Dr. John Groves adds somewhat in his Greek Dictionary, as follows: “Renewal, renovation, new beginning; regulation, settlement, arrangement.”

All in all the biblical idea of restitution is exceedingly broad in subject matter and as far-reaching in the scope of time covered as eternity, for “all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began,” are to be restored. And this, of course, includes the redemption and restoration of the saints of God to divine favor, the conferring upon them of immortality, and the restoring of the earth “to that more perfect state that existed before the fall,” that it may become the home of bounty and of beauty, the home of peace and of love, the home of gladness and joy and life for the children of Jehovah for all eternity.

“Oh, the day of joy that's coming,
When the reign of sin is o'er,
And the earth renewed and ransomed,
Paradise shall bloom once more.

“Coming, coming, surely coming,
Christ shall reign as Prince of Peace;
And through all His vast dominion,
Strife and wrong and sorrow cease.

“Eyes that wept shall shine with rapture,
Hearts once broken, sing for joy,
And the peace that passeth telling
Fill each heart without alloy.

“Aye, that day is coming, coming,
Sing, ye saints, rejoice and sing,
Like a 'bride prepared' to meet Him,
Who is coming as thy King!”

Established in the Present Truth

THE gracious purposes of God as revealed in the Scriptures of truth respecting man's salvation are manifold. That we have been favored in so many ways by the acquisition of the knowledge of the mind and will of the great Eternal is an evidence of His goodness and loving-kindness toward us.

Continuing our subject concerning the nearness of our salvation, let us look at 2 Peter 1:12, more particularly the words "present truth": "Wherefore I will not be negligent to put you always in remembrance of these things, though ye know them, and be established in the present truth."

Peter's glowing desire to be always ready, any time, at all costs, to refresh the memories of those having obtained a like precious faith is commendable, and constitutes him a faithful servant, and magnifies his official position as an apostle of Jesus Christ. The knowledge and experience the apostles had were calculated to have a rousing effect, and would far surpass the wildest dreams of our imagination in regard to the gracious gifts of God and our future state.

What then did the Apostle mean when he said "established in the present truth"? Did he mean that God is changeable, and that what was truth to the disciples might not be truth to us? Did he mean that the truth that was present with them was contradictory of what was called truth in previous ages? Did he mean that we, like Pilate, can never be certain, but must always have a doubt as to "what is truth?"

From any such conception of the Apostle's meaning we are preserved by our Lord's words in His prayer to the Father (John 17:17), "Sanctify them through thy truth: thy word is truth."

God's Word is the truth. In the Scriptures are gathered for our learning the revelations of God given in previous ages, together with comment on the history of our race and God's promises to and dealings with His people. All this is truth to us.

Let us make a brief reference to things previously revealed. Take the Creation, whether it apply to the planet, or the creation of man upon it. God in His wisdom and loving-kindness has given us through His servant plain and emphatic statements; for example, "In the beginning God created." This should be a consolation and satisfaction to all truth seekers amidst the confusion of the evolution theory as it is applied to blind chance, or the supposition that the race existed in Mongolia before the human race described in the Bible as having descended from Adam and Eve. The statement of Genesis is "present truth" to us today rather than the modern theories that contradict the Word.

Take, again, God's dealings with the patriarchs, Abraham in particular and the gracious promises that were deposited in him and which have been fulfilled to the extent of God sending His own dear Son, the promised Seed of blessing, as stated in Galatians 3:16—"And to thy seed, which is Christ." Abraham believed God, and in due time the prophecy concerning the Seed was fulfilled. This would be a great incentive to the faith of God's people all through the age. We believe with the Apostle that the promised Seed came in the person of Jesus Christ, the Anointed of God. This is present truth today as it was present truth when the Apostle wrote the words in his letter to the Galatians.

PRESENT TRUTH IN THE LAW AND PROPHETS

Again, in the inauguration of the Law Covenant, given through Moses at Mount Sinai, with its attendant glory and manifestations of divine power.

That covenant was "present truth" to them as something they must take hold of and keep and obey its commandments. It is "present truth" to us to know this, and to realize that we are not under it but under a better covenant established on better promises. It is also "present truth" rightly to appreciate its many types and ordinances, which we now understand were shadows of the substance that was to come in the due time. Even the Law Covenant, when observed with some degree of faith and consistency, helped the nation of Israel to an honorable position and to great wealth and the blessings of God.

Take again God's kindly interest in sending them instruction in the persons of the prophets, correcting and restraining them in their evil ways, and giving them encouragement by foretelling the coming of a Deliverer. For, notwithstanding Israel's perverseness, God's purposes were proudly marching on, to establish His kingdom among men and to glorify His

If We Knew

If we knew the cares and crosses
Crowding round our neighbor's way;
If we knew the little losses,
Sorely grievous day by day,
Would we then so often chide him
For the lack of thrift and gain—
Casting o'er his life a shadow,
Leaving on his heart a stain?

If we knew the silent story
Quivering through the heart of pain,
Would we, with unkind words, dare doom them
Back to haunts of guilt again?
Life hath many a tangled crossing,
Joy hath many a break of woe,
And the cheeks tear-washed seem whitest:
This the blessed angels know.

Let us reach into our bosoms
For the key to other lives,
And with love to erring nature,
Cherish good that still survives;
So that when we reach the judgment,
And the world that knows no pain,
We may say, "Dear Father, judge us
As we judged our fellow men."

—Author unknown.

holy name. It was "present truth" for them to be looking for the promised Messiah, "the Anointed of God," and it is "present truth" now for us to realize that many things that happened to them were for our learning that we might avoid the pitfalls into which they fell.

TRUTH, NOT CUNNINGLY DEvised FABLES

In respect to the King and kingdom for which Israel was told to look, no one was better qualified to speak than the Apostle Peter; for to him our Lord gave "the keys of the kingdom of heaven," and with James and John he was given a vision of the King in His majesty and glory. Referring to the transfiguration of Jesus, just prior to His cross, Peter said: "For we have not followed cunningly devised fables, when we made known unto you the power and coming (literally, "presence") of our Lord Jesus Christ, but were eyewitnesses of his majesty. For he received from God the Father honour and glory, when there came such a voice to him from the excellent glory, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased. And this voice which came from heaven we heard, when we were with him in the holy mount."—2 Peter 1:16-18.

This revelation from God the Father to all concerned would be of great importance—not only then, but in the coming years. Though not understood at the time, the transfiguration gave great light to Peter and those with him after Pentecost and the giving of the Spirit which called many things to their remembrance; and those men not only valued truth, but were ready to stand by it at any cost.

In preaching the gospel Peter and the other apostles were obliged to go contrary to the prejudices and traditions of the Jews. In opening to them the kingdom of heaven, it was necessary to teach that Jesus was the Messiah, their King, the One for whom Moses had told them to look. His wonderful miracles were a testimony of His Messiahship, as were also the testimony of John the Baptist and the voice from heaven at His baptism, as well as on two other occasions. John 12:28; Matthew 17:5. But Peter was also an eyewitness of His resurrection, and the resurrection of Christ became an important part of the teaching. In 1 Peter 1:4 we read that the Lord Jesus was raised to "an inheritance incorruptible, and undefiled, and that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven for you." The law having promised them blessing on earth, an inheritance in heaven would appear to them fantastic—as cunningly devised fables to draw them away from the law and the prophets. To this objection Peter replies.

No indeed, said Peter, we have not followed cunningly devised fables, but glorious realities, of which the manifestation of power, majesty, and glory in the mount is confirmation. It is important to notice that there appeared in vision Moses and Elijah talking with Jesus. Matthew 17:3. We remember that the law was given through Moses, and for a long time he filled a very important place in the economy of God for the nation of Israel. Elijah, too, was a great prophet (although not the greatest), and was used by God to turn the nation of Israel from the worship of Baal to the true worship of the living God temporarily or for a time.

Their presence then in the vision would seem necessary, for they had been important representative servants of God during the Law Covenant age; and in the vision they are seen to be talking with Jesus.

We are not told in the vision what was the nature of the communication between the Lord and these two representative men. But we have much in the New Testament writings that they did say respecting this Prophet of God. We remember what Philip said to Nathanael, as recorded in John's Gospel (1:45)—"We have found him, of whom Moses in the law, and the prophets, did write, Jesus of Nazareth, the son of Joseph." (Not that Jesus was the son of Joseph, but it was thus that He had been generally known, Joseph being the husband of His mother Mary.) Just a little later Nathanael had reason to say, "Rabbi, thou art the Son of God; thou art the King of Israel."—John 1:49. Moses had said, "The Lord thy God will raise up unto thee a Prophet from the midst of thee, of thy brethren; like unto me; unto him ye shall hearken."—Deut. 18:15.

Now if we read Matthew 11:13 we have these words—"For all the prophets and the law prophesied until John." And is it not significant that John the Baptist came "in the spirit and power of Elias"? Luke 1:17. ("Elias" is the Greek equivalent of "Elijah.") So we have the greatest of the prophets to herald the Beloved, and by a voice from heaven the Father's attestation and approval of His only begotten Son, full of grace and truth: "Hear ye him."—Matt. 17:5. To this Hebrews 1:1, 2 agrees—"God, who at sundry times and in divers manners spake in times past unto the fathers by the prophets, hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son, whom he hath appointed heir of all things."

Now, says Peter, "We have the prophetic word confirmed, to which you do well, taking heed, as to a lamp shining in a dark place, till the day dawn, and the Light bringer may arise in your hearts."—2 Peter 1:19, Diaglott. So present truth for that day showed how the law and the prophets were eclipsed by the glory that excelleth. They were superseded by the greater Light—the Light from heaven. And the same is present truth for us today.

PRESENT TRUTH ON THE COVENANTS

The writer to the Hebrews, especially in chapters 9 and 10, has much to say, by way of contrast and comparison, respecting the Old and New Covenants. We can only in a very brief way refer to a few scriptures with comment.

Verse 9, chapter 10—"Lo, I come to do thy will, O God. He taketh away the first, that he may establish the second." Jesus came by mutual arrangement to do the will of the Father. The Old Covenant is superseded by the New Covenant.

Verse 10 (R. V.)—"By which will (i. e., God's will) we have been sanctified through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once for all." He "offered (past tense) himself without spot to God." (9:14.) The Greek word ephapax rendered "once" (verse 10) means, according to Strong's Exhaustive Concordance, "once for all," that is,

"upon one occasion (only)." Hence, never to be repeated.

Verse 11—The high priest (after the Aaronic order) "standeth day by day ministering and offering oftentimes the same sacrifices, the which can never take away sins."

—R. V.

Verse 12—"But he, when he had offered one sacrifice for sins for ever, sat down on the right hand of God"— to signify His work of sacrifice finished. Jesus said, "It is finished." The Lord Jesus Christ having gone into heaven itself to sprinkle, in an antitypical sense, the blood of atonement on the antitypical Mercy Seat, the promise that God would make a New Covenant with Israel went into effect officially from Pentecost, the Holy Spirit bearing witness, as shown in Hebrews 10:15. (Please turn to Page Eight)

Passing Through

By Lottie E. Young

A FAMILIAR motto is found on the calendar hanging on my wall; it is headed "Opportunity" and reads—"I expect to pass through this life but once. If therefore there is any kindness I can show, or any good I can do to any fellow being let me do it now, let me not defer or neglect it for I shall not pass this way again."

There are several words which I think should be emphasized in this verse, the first being "any." How often we hesitate about doing a kindness because it is so small, perhaps not more than a smile, or "a cup of cold water," and yet some heart may be hungering for just that touch of sympathy. "Now" is another word—the "straightway" of Mark's Gospel when referring to the work of the Master. Frequently we say "tomorrow" or "next week" when a helpful action is intended, but tomorrow may never come, today is all the time we have for working. "Pass" is my third word, and a solemn one it is as I realize how fast days, weeks, months, and years are going, and that no moment of any one can ever be recovered! How often we hear of "pastime" and know it is waste time, holding nothing good or helpful in it for anyone.

A one-time celebrated clergyman of New York is now in his last resting place, and at the head of the grave is a stone on which are cut the words "Passing through—he preached." These were taken from Acts 8:40 telling of the work of the evangelist Philip as he taught "in all the cities." What about the "living epistles" all of us are?

Preaching does not necessarily mean standing in a pulpit or by a table exhorting a gathering of people, but the quiet word dropped as we, too, "pass through" life. And may we ever remember "I shall pass this way but once"; there may never be another opportunity for helpful service. Some one had mentioned to blind Bartimeus, the beggar on the Jericho road, of a wonderful Man who could open darkened eyes, and so as he heard "the multitude pass by" and was told Jesus of Nazareth was with them, he ran with all haste and implored the good Physician for one of the greatest blessings vouchsafed to mankind—sight—and the All-Merciful granted his prayer. Jesus never passed that way again; suppose Bartimeus had waited!

Telling the story of Jesus' mission, His love and compassion brought joy to hundreds when the Master walked among men. The first chapter of the Gospel by John tells how Andrew brought Peter, and John brought James, to the Messiah. Philip found Nathanael and gave the glad message to him, and when the latter questioned any good thing coming out of Nazareth, he was told, "Come and see"; and after his interview with Jesus he said, "Thou art the Son of God; thou art the King of Israel." How different the lives of these men would have been if they had deferred passing on the truths they had learned from Jesus the day they first met Him.

How far the knowledge of a Savior who not only died but "passed through" the death state, ascended to the Father, and promised some day to return spread in the first century just by word of mouth, none can estimate; but we know before the Apostle Paul's death thirty years later there were many true followers in Rome, three thousand miles from Jerusalem, ready to seal their belief by martyrdom. Why is it that we in this day are so timid about telling others of the happiness we have in knowing our best Friend? Let us ask ourselves how long it is since we spoke to anyone about Jesus. Are we sure that our milkman, our grocer, our newsboy are Christians? May we recall the solemn words of Jesus, "Whosoever therefore shall confess me before men, him will I confess also before my Father which is in heaven. But whosoever shall deny me before men, him will I also deny before my Father which is in heaven," and remember that silence is equivalent to denying. We do not need to cross the ocean to preach and teach about Him, as many with whom we come in daily contact are ignorant of the truths of the Bible. We need not learn a new tongue, but can speak to foreigners from all parts of the world in English. If we knew persons were in a burning house how we would try to rescue them, but how few we warn of the wrath to come, as well as tell of the joy of the future to the Christian. Why has the family altar almost disappeared in the homes with which we are familiar? The earnest, outspoken prayers of Father and Mother have saved many a boy and girl even after they have left home and are among strangers. We are seemingly afraid of giving offence in some way, and yet recognize no work is so worth while as leading others to become Christians. The days are "passing by" as we "pass through"; may every one of them be filled with worth while words and deeds.

Truth vs. Fiction and Fables

By M. W. Perrine

IT is an old saying that "truth is stranger than fiction," but when we come to investigate, while we find that this may be true to a certain extent, we have abundantly satisfied ourselves that of the two truth is far more profitable to the person seeking after something that will tend to our eternal good, tend to build us up and set our feet upon a good foundation, something stable because founded upon the Word of God, which is truth.

Fiction has its foundation in the imagination and in the brain of some dreamer. Men may get material to edify and to build up the carnal mind and weave into a character founded upon carnality, but the Apostle Paul tells us, "To be carnally minded is death; but to be spiritually minded is life and peace."

Things that are seen are temporal, but things that are not seen are eternal. The carnal can be seen, but the spiritual never.

The Christian is striving to build a character that will stand the test of ages, building for eternity. Stability and uprightness are two elements that must enter into it.

Jesus prayed for His beloved disciples (John 17:17): "Sanctify them through thy truth: thy word is truth." Truth has its foundation in God and in His Word. Truth is more profitable to contemplate and to store up in our minds for edification, because it has its foundation in fact and you can assimilate it and store it up in your heart and it always leaves there something lasting and worth while.

Fiction pleases the imagination for a little while, and, like the vapor that it is, soon vanishes in air and is gone; while God's Word abides forever: and Paul says (Heb. 4:17), "It is sharper than any twoedged sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow, and is a discerner of the thought and intents of the heart. It has power also to purify one's life if he is obedient to it. 1 Peter 1:22: "Seeing ye have purified your souls in obeying the truth through the Spirit unto unfeigned love of the brethren, see that ye love one another with a pure heart fervently: being begotten again (Diaglott), not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, by the word of God, which liveth and abideth for ever." Then Peter adds, "And this is the word which by the gospel is preached unto you."

So you learn by these words of Peter it is the begetting power which makes possible the birth. James 1:18: "Of his own will begat he us with the word of truth, that we should be a kind of firstfruits of his creatures." This corroborates Peter's word that it should be begotten instead of born (Diaglott). And Paul says this gospel of which he is not ashamed is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believes it. Rom. 1:16.

So we can see what wonderful saving power God's Word of truth has in it when believed and obeyed. And the best of it is, God's Word is always truth, and there are no two or three ways of looking at truth.

God said to Moses in the wilderness when he was about to construct the tabernacle, "See that thou makest all things according to the pattern showed to thee in the mount." When God lays down a pattern, a rule, or a law, He allows no deviation from it. And can you imagine He will work on any other principle than to conform strictly to the plan of salvation revealed to us by the Spirit in the Word? Saul, the first king of Israel, thought it would make no difference if he took his own way, and he lost his kingdom and God's favor and his life.

Too many people in these days think that it makes no difference, we can't all see alike. But God doesn't do things in that loose manner. He has a definite plan, and it is laid down in His Book, and He expects us to work by it. Was ever anyone saved by reading fiction or by believing fables? I have never heard of it, but the tendency is in the opposite direction.

Man's word, unless it has its foundation in the Word of God, is counted by the inspired writers as fables, not to be depended upon. This would cover all man-made creeds,

David says (Psalm 33:4), "For the word of the Lord is right; and all his works are done in truth. He loveth righteousness and judgment: the earth is full of the goodness of the Lord. By the word of the Lord were the heavens made; and all the host of them by the breath of his mouth . . . Let all the earth fear the Lord: let all the inhabitants of the world stand in awe of him. For he spake, and it was done; he commanded, and it stood fast." The word of the Lord is surely a wonderful power: no wonder there is salvation in it. Where has any such power ever been ascribed to any heathen god?

What is the trouble with the world today? The whole world is gone mad and is putting its trust and confidence in fiction and fables; it is not standing for God's truth. In 2 Timothy 4 the Apostle Paul charged Timothy to preach the Word, and declared that the time would come when they would not endure sound doctrine but after their own lusts would they heap to themselves teachers having itching ears. "And they shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables. But watch thou." And don't we need to watch in these days? We hardly hear a sermon preached that we don't hear statements made from the pulpit that you cannot find in the Bible.

So we can plainly see by the testimony of the inspired Apostle that God's truth and man's teaching, which he calls fables, cannot possibly harmonize. And the Apostle further declares that while they have a form of godliness they deny the power thereof. So they must deny the gospel, for that is God's power for saving people.

Instead of preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God which Jesus preached for salvation, they cry for a baptism of the Holy Ghost, which Mark declares was for the purpose of confirming the Word. Mark 16:20. (Hebrews 2:4 says it was also given for the purpose of bearing witness to the truthfulness of the Word.) David said (Psalm 14:2), "The Lord looked down from heaven upon the children of men, to see if there were any that did understand, and seek God. They are all gone aside, they are together become filthy: there is none that doeth (Please turn to Page Eight)

Sawdust and Shavings

"For none of us liveth to himself."—Romans 14:7.

ONCE upon a time there lived a man who was very economical. He believed in economy. He figured everything very closely. He hated waste. He wanted one hundred cents for every dollar. So he lived very closely. Very stingily, even miserly.

There came a time when he decided to build a home for himself. So he figured everything down to the one cent. From the galvanized nails in the roof to the cement for the cellar floor. From the cellar to garret he knew what his house was going to cost. After days and days of figuring he was going to have a home built and there was going to be no waste. Nothing but sawdust and shavings.

But he did not figure on sawing off an inch here and a foot there. He did not figure on boards with knot holes nor on the two-by-fours that might be warped. He did not figure on the broken bricks that might be left from building the fireplace and chimney. Nor the half gallon of paint and the broken sack of cement. So when it was all finished he had a back yard full of trash that could not be used.

So—many of us live life with only one thought. To get out of life all that we desire. With no other aim than to please ourselves. It may be pleasure, it may be wealth or the desire to rule supreme among those with whom we have to live. Either in private life or public that desire has actuated us to the exclusion of living normal lives such as God intended us to live. And because we couldn't have what we wanted our lives have left nothing but Sawdust and Ashes.

Too many of us crave all the world has to give and desire what the church may be able to give both at the same time. And in the end what we had is taken away and what we hoped for does not develop. We live with the thought that if there is anything to be desired it is not to be left out. And in the final analysis there are just the Sawdust and Shavings left.

There is in the thought of most of us that we have been cheated. That life has not been kind to us. We see so much that other people have and mourn because the god of fortune has passed us by. There is hardly exception to this statement.

Some of us want a home on the rock-bound shores of Maine. Others where the sun fades in the glimmering sea of the Pacific slope. The snows and forests of the Far North attract some, while some of us want a home where we can sit under a palm tree and look out across the Gulf. Most of us are somewhere else.

Some of us wanted friendships that we couldn't have. It has left us hurt and silent. Friendships perhaps mean more to us in the long run than anything else. The man who finishes life without friends, with the knowledge that some of the world's millions are not in harmony and communion with him, who understands his virtues and vices, has nothing else but Sawdust and Shavings. He may well die poor who is long remembered after his passing. Not because he was faultless but because of them. His failures will be forgotten and only his virtues will be remembered. He has lived with life and he will not need flowers nor memorials to perpetuate his memory. Such a man will no doubt make bitter enemies. Such a man is never without them. Yet enemies will remember—after his passing.

The man who lives without love must live an empty and vacuous life. Love the impelling force back of every good act or thought or deed. The one who repels all suggestions of fellowship, who lives for himself alone. To such a one there comes a time when he realizes that his life is barren. And the ghosts of a misspent life must show a result that is not satisfying. The man to whom a welcome cannot be given because he has shut out a welcome. Souls who live withdrawn. Hermits' souls. Sawdust and Shavings. Such ones leave hope out of their lives. Hope of a better year next year. Hope of less suffering. Hope of better times and hope of a future life. Hope, the substance of expectancy. That which cheers and gives courage for the day's task. Most of us have a large degree of hope.

To have faith one must have vision. To come to the passing out of life without faith is nothing short of tragedy. Sometimes I wonder why the future staggers us when life has brought us so much of tragedy. Abraham faced the frontiers of this life with faith of a great future. If we could have more faith in our fellow men and more faith in a righteous God who will see that justice will be given unto all fairly! Faith, which can forget disappointments in the hope of a better day. Faith in ourselves, believing that we are filling the place God gave us. And believing this sufficiently enough to keep us busy until He come. The faith of Livingstone in Africa, the faith of Washington at Valley Forge, the faith of Abraham as he came out of Chaldea Ur. Such faith will not leave us fruitless. There will be more than just Sawdust and Shavings. There will be God's tomorrow when doubts will give way to surety, when mists shall be cleared and we shall know as we are known.—L. B. Sherman in Present Truth Messenger.

ESTABLISHED IN THE PRESENT TRUTH

Continued from Page Five

At this stage of our all-important subject, which forms the basis of the gospel of God's grace, we ask another very vital question, viz.—

The remnant of Israel: how did they escape the penalties of the Law Covenant, which came upon them through their inability to keep the law inviolate?

Hebrews 9:15 is the answer—"And for this cause he is the mediator of a new covenant, that a death having taken place for the redemption of the transgressions that were under the first covenant, they that have been called may receive the promise of the eternal inheritance."—R. V. This scripture is self-explanatory. Jesus is the one and only Mediator, and His death was the redemption price. By His death our Lord redeemed or bought back the whole of Israel from under the curse of the law. Peter confirms this—the Jews were redeemed by the precious blood of Christ. 1 Peter 1:18, 19.

And the Gentiles? Where do we come in? Again we have a Scripture answer, 1 Timothy 2:5, 6—"For there is one God, and one mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus; who gave himself a ransom for all, to be testified in due time" (or, a testimony in its own season). That is where we Gentiles come in, who were aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without God in the world. We come in because Christ died for us, as well as for the Jews under the law. We see by Ephesians 2 that both Jew and Gentile were invited to become reconciled through the one way—the cross of Jesus.

And now for a few words in conclusion. Having traversed the subject of "present truth," we have found it to consist of what God would have His people believe and live up to in the time in which they were living. It includes as historical knowledge of great value what has been "present truth" at previous periods in the world's history. For example, that there would be a flood was "present truth" in Noah's day. Believing it and acting upon it, Noah and his family were saved in the ark. Present truth to us includes the flood—not as a calamity to be looked for, but to be looked back upon. As a historical fact, the flood was vouched for by the Lord Himself. Present truth today includes many other historical facts as desirable knowledge, as well as all the teaching given out by the Lord and the apostles, some of which has a special application to our day, and some to the age coming soon. In addition "present truth" includes all the precepts on holy living, with all the promises which God has been pleased to grant.

May we as the people of God receive the present truth into good and honest hearts, appropriating all the precious promises, and in all diligence make our high calling and election sure by superadding to faith virtue, knowledge, temperance, patience, godliness, brotherly kindness, and love. "For thus shall be richly supplied unto you the entrance into the eternal kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ."—2 Peter 1:11, R. V.

Being made unto God kings and priests, and joint heirs with Christ in that eternal kingdom, the church will assist in bringing the blessing to humanity.

So we join with those hearts that say—

"God bring the day, when every tribe and nation
Glory to His name triumphantly shall sing:
Ransomed, redeemed, rejoicing in salvation
Shout, 'Hallelujah, for the Lord is King.'"

—J. H. T. in The New Covenant Advocate.

—0—

TRUTH VS. FICTION AND FABLES

Continued from Page Seven

good, no, not one." And why? They refuse to draw water out of the wells of salvation. They don't draw inspiration from the Word of God, which is truth.

Elijah was God's Prophet, yet he failed to grasp the truth as to the true condition of things in Israel, and God found it necessary to correct him. A prophet may err, for he is human, but not when writing under the influence of the Spirit of God.

David asks the question (Psalm 119:9): "Wherewithal shall a young man cleanse his way?" And his answer is: "By taking heed thereto according to thy word." Verse 11: "Thy word have I hid in mine heart, that I might not sin against thee."

No man ever learned righteousness, meekness, and humility by studying Rex Beach or Harold Bell Wright. Go to Jesus, who said, "I am the way, the truth, and the life," for in Him are hid all the characteristics of a true Christian. His invitation is, "Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls." In giving His life for the life of the world, He showed us what true love meant.

"The word of the Lord endureth for ever." No work of fiction ever had the enduring effect for good that God's truth has upon the world. The sower in the beginning of the gospel age that went forth to sow, sowed the seed of the kingdom, the Word of God. And Jesus said he that received seed into good ground is he that heareth the Word, and understandeth it: which also beareth fruit, and bringeth forth some an hundredfold, some sixty, and some thirty. And the finished product was heirs of the kingdom and joint heirs with Jesus Christ, who were said to be kings and priests unto God and Christ, and were to reign with Christ a thousand years. Rev. 5:10. This seed was sown in the heart.

Then Jesus spake another parable unto them which had to do with the planting of a people in the territory that was to constitute the kingdom of God. We want to bear in mind the parable of the mustard seed, which was very small when planted, yet when it grew became the greatest of herbs. The seed that the Son of man sowed in this field were the "children of the kingdom." God is planting a people in the land that was promised to Abraham, and He declares (Amos 9:15): "And I will plant them upon their land, and they shall no more be pulled up out of their land which I have given them, saith the Lord thy God." But the devil sowed tares among the children of the wicked one. The Son of man said, "Let both grow together till the harvest. In the time of the harvest I will say to the reapers, 'Gather first the tares, and bind them in bundles to burn them; but gather my wheat into my barn.'" Isaiah 66:15 pictures the burning of the tares.

HOLINESS UNTO THE LORD

By A. E. Hoskins

ONE of the supreme teachings of the Church of God is a "holy life." Rom. 12:1: "I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service."

Teaching in accordance with the above scripture, we are making preparation for that glorious resurrection morn when the righteous shall be immortalized at the coming of Jesus Christ.

A holy life is demanded of a Christian more today than ever before in the history of the world. It is not so easy to live a Christian life as in previous years. Therefore to withstand these evil days, we must "put on the whole armour of God." We must be sure to know that upon our heads we are wearing "the helmet of salvation." The true consecrated Christian knows that if Jesus should come now he is ready to be accepted into His kingdom.

Then why do we (as some do) nurture a doubting mind? Let us be sure. "Wherefore take unto you the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand."—Eph. 6:13.

A holy life in Christian living is essential unto salvation, "because it is written, Be ye holy; for I am holy" (1 Peter 1:16).

To live a holy life, we must, as the Scriptures teach, "pray without ceasing." This means not a prayer today and then six months from now pray. It means that upon the early morning when the day dawns, to bend before God in prayer. It means that at noonday, to pray, "as one ought always to pray." It means at the close of day, to pray. Yes, it means to live a life of prayer. To one that has honestly done this with all sincerity (not to be heard of men, but of God) God opens the windows of heaven with an ear ready to listen and to answer.

"The fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith."—Gal. 5:22. A spiritual life develops a holy life.

We pray for more holy lives in our churches, that the unsaved will not have to stumble over dead bodies to get to Jesus.

"If we live in the Spirit, let us also walk in the Spirit."—Gal. 5:25.

When we have done this, my dear reader, we will not be "desirous of vain glory, provoking one another, envying one another."

"Stand fast therefore in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free."—Gal. 5:1.

WE LOVE THEE

By Madge Savage

Early in the morning our praises rise to Thee,
And we seek Thy guidance on bended knee;
So we read our Bibles Thy way to see,
Early in the morning: we love Thee.

At the busy noontide, we come to Thee,
At the busy noontide, Thy care we see.
Thou, O Lord, most holy, we come to Thee.
At the busy noontide, we love Thee.

Then in the evening from burdens we're set free;
As we take our Bibles we worship Thee.
Surely Thou art leading; Thy will we see,
Yes, in the evening, we love Thee.

Man is not merely an organism; he is also an intelligence served by organisms.—Hamilton.

RESTITUTION

Continued from Front Page

freshing and the times of restitution of all things.

Something shall be done for sins committed, so John the Baptist told us of a redeemer when he said, "Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world."—John 1:29.

Compensation for loss of life and for pain and sorrow must be made, and we are glad to know that the time will come when life will be given to God's people, "and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away."—Rev. 21:4.

Among other things to be restored is man's fellowship with God which was lost when sin entered the world. That precious fellowship also shall be restored as prophesied by John. "Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God."—Rev. 21:3.

May we all earnestly look for that day when God will begin that great work of restitution and restoration of all things by His Son Jesus Christ.

Abreast of the Times

Advertising Value of the Bible

"Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth."—2 Tim. 2:15.

CLEVELAND, Ohio.—The Christian Herald, published in New York City, in an article by Stanley High, calls attention to an unusual method of arousing interest in the study of the Bible.

"A few weeks ago a young lady—Miss Harriet Louise Patterson by name—appeared at the office of the manager of a large department store in Cleveland, Ohio. She had a proposition. The manager was hardened to propositions and he was particularly cold to this one. For Miss Patterson wanted to start a department-store Bible study class for customers. About the only thing to commend the idea, from the managerial viewpoint, was the fact that it had never been done before. He decided to give it a trial—one only. A date was set, modest announcements posted, a few chairs arranged in rows in a small room.

"On the appointed day the manager, dropping around to see for himself that the idea wouldn't work, found the place crowded to more than twice its capacity. Well, Bible study, forthwith, was put among that store's permanent features. Still turning people away for lack of room, Miss Patterson gives her Bible lectures on the second and fourth Tuesdays of every month. And the book shop in the store reports that the Bible has become more than ever its best seller."

The Innocent Bystander

"A foolish son is a grief to his father, and bitterness to her that bare him."—Prov. 17:25.

CHICAGO, Ill., March 27.—"Attorney Harold W. —, brother of Dr. Frank —, state Commissioner of Health, and son-in-law of former Mayor —, was seized and lodged in the county jail yesterday after he had been named in the confession of a prisoner in the jail as the one who had smuggled a loaded revolver to Francis (Mickey) O'Gara, robber and parole violator. . . . According to the confession of Carl De Salvo, an habitual criminal who turned informer, — was to have received $6,000 if the jail break had been successful."

According to the press O'Gara, who planned the escape, is a confessed participant in more than forty local holdups. The plot was frustrated when the loaded weapon was found hidden in O'Gara's cell.

Such is a part of the detailed story of a crime alleged to have been committed by a young professional man, whose family and social connections were of the best. The saddest part of the affair, however, is not the commission of the crime itself, nor even the punishment that may be brought upon a young man with the major part of life opening before him.

The real punishment of this crime will be meted out, not upon the one who perpetrated the deed, but upon the wife, the brother, the parents of the young man, and the family and friends of his wife. These are the "innocent bystanders" who will be made to suffer the most.

The time is coming under a divine government when "the son shall not bear the iniquity of the father, neither shall the father bear the iniquity of the son."—Ezek. 18:20.

Roman Primacy of the World

"There shall be in it of the strength of the iron."—Dan. 2:41.

ROME, Italy, March 18.—Addressing the Quinquennial Assembly of the Fascist regime, one week before the five-year election (which took place Sunday, March 25), Premier Mussolini outlined a political program covering a period of sixty years, which he stated would result in internal and external expansion that in the twenty-first century should give Italy "the primacy of the world."

The Literary Digest, commenting on the speech of the Premier, declares that "when Mussolini linked Italy, Hungary, and Austria in a diplomatic and commercial pact at Rome, he not only fixed the political focus of all Europe on that ancient capital, but also eased the minds of European statesmen who had been gravely concerned about the possibility of Nazi Germany taking over Austria in the Anschluss or union."

The student of prophecy will watch with much interest for further developments in southern Europe, and especially in the Italian Peninsula, for it is apparent that Rome will be one of the deciding factors in the working out of the plans of the Antichrist.

Germanizing the Psalms

"That . . . invent to themselves instruments of musick, like David."—Amos 6:5.

BERLIN, Germany.—A new version of the Psalms of David has been published in Germany which is said to be free "from Jewish taint," according to the Associated Press. The book, containing seventy-five revised Psalms, is by Wilhelm Teudt, a pioneer leader of the new Germanic cult. Excerpts from the author's rendering of the eighty-seventh Psalm will suggest the changes made.

"The Lord loveth the height of Germany more than all the dwellings abroad. The Lord loveth the yew tree of Odenwald and the oak of the Baltic. . . . Behold the lands of the Goths, the Longobards, and Andalusians: It shall be said our brethren were born there."

National Berean Department

Miss Genniel Carpenter, Editor, Oregon, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Cecil A. Smead, President
Blanchard, Michigan

Virgil Claypool, Treasurer
506 E. Chestnut St.
Robinson, Illinois

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
Oregon, Illinois

TO THE ILLINOIS BEREANS WITH LITERARY ABILITY:

MANY, many times in the past, the Editor of this page has appealed for articles. I have noticed that several articles have been sent in from Indiana, California, and other states, but a very few from Illinois. What is the matter? Let us from Illinois respond to these appeals and send in a few articles, which I know will be appreciated by the Editor.

Your President,
Gerald L. Cooper.

Editor's note: This interesting letter to Illinois Bereans is very gratifying to the Editor, and we think its message very good advice. It might be added, however, that the articles from Indiana, California, and other states were also much appreciated. We hope they will continue to be sent in.

FAITH MISPLACED

"If thou canst believe, all things are possible to him that believeth."

WE are now living in a time that calls for faith. The people of the United States have shown their faith in a man at the head of our Government. This man, we believe, will do all in his power to reach the end which he has in view, that is, a revival of the industrial world. The people have great faith in this man. They are following the line laid down for thousands of years, of trusting one man and his judgments to give them a land free from all worry, and in which will be peace and joy. But the Scriptures point out that we are in the last days, and conditions are to be more severe than ever.

Again, we hear of peace and safety as the cry of the world, and pacts are being signed, treaties arranged, and armaments decided on. This also should be for the good of mankind, but—when they cry, "Peace and safety, then sudden destruction cometh." Faith in man is always misplaced when given precedence to faith in God.

Some men's religion today is "do as you please, then just ask for forgiveness, and you will be all right." God's Word says that He hears the prayers of the righteous, and His ears are turned against the wicked. Those who trust God's power will enter into the promised land, and see faith justified.

We find in Numbers 1:46 that there were 603,550 Israelites that were able to fight the enemy. Yet this vast number feared to fight only a small army. They were trusting in their own power and might. They feared the reputation of the army they were fighting. How much different was Gideon, who, with three hundred men, met and defeated the great army of the Midianites. Gideon let the Lord God direct him in this battle, even to the selection of the men.

We then can see that faith in man is misplaced, while all who have trusted God have been victorious. When we place our faith in man and our own powers, we are defeated before we start. We should rather transfer that faith to One who is all-powerful, and having placed our faith in that One, pray that Christ may come and do that which man has been trying to do ever since he has had any form of government—bring world-wide peace, joy, and plenty. The kingdom of God is the only remedy for the cries of the people who desire a land of bliss and joy.

Friends, read this description of the perfect government and land, and you will see that it is what the people long for. "And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away."

And so we say with the Revelator, "Even so, come, Lord Jesus."

Charles Martin, Kokomo, Ind.

THESE ADVANTAGES CAN'T BE MISSED

TRACTS are an excellent method of distributing the gospel to those who have never heard it, it is true; but Berean books are better. In place of a brief study of some one important subject, the Berean book gives a complete course in detail of all the important subjects taught by the Bible, giving references and comments.

The National Berean Society now has in stock books priced at ten cents a copy, postpaid, which contain seventy-five lessons or more on the great essential elements of the gospel. These seventy-five lessons are the equivalent of seventy-five good tracts and possess the added advantage of being unbiased by the author's own peculiar hobbies. Seventy-five tracts of the usual size and quality would cost approximately fifty cents. Consider this saving, and order today. Just ask for "Bible Lessons" and enclose a dime.—Sales Committee.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"Even as Christ forgave you, so also do ye."—Colossians 3:13.

FORGIVING

IT all started when Aunt Ruth gave Marian a lovely pair of roller skates for her birthday. They were shining and new and oh, ever so fast. Just as soon as school was out, Marian ran as fast as she could to get her skates and be off to skim over the smoothest stretches of sidewalk until supper time. This was such fun she didn't want to stop for supper, even.

Steve had some skates, but they weren't as nice as Marian's. They were old, and once Steve had forgotten and left them out in the rain, and they were all rusty. Steve liked to skate, too. He and three or four other boys often went so far that they were late getting home. But the other boys had new skates like Marian's and Steve wished he did, too. One morning when Steve started to school before Marian, he looked at the two pairs of skates, his so rusty and old, and hers so shining and new, and he decided to buckle Marian's on, just to see how they would feel. He liked them so much that he skated right on to school, and Marian didn't know about it until afternoon.

When she saw they were gone, she was cross for a moment; but she had only intended to go over to Jane's, whose baby doll, Belinda, was very sick, so the skates wouldn't have been so much fun anyway. Marian decided she wouldn't be angry with Steve this time. When Mother tucked her into bed, she told her about how she had forgiven Steve, and Mother smiled and said she was glad. After Marian said her prayer, she asked Mother if Jesus was glad, too. Mother said she thought He was, and she told Marian a little story.

If you would like to know where Marian's mother found the story, look up Matthew 18:21, 22. It was about Peter, who was a follower of Jesus. Once Peter came to Jesus and asked Him how many times he ought to forgive some one who did something wrong against him. He asked if he should forgive him as often as seven times. But what do you think Jesus said? Probably Peter thought seven times was a lot, but Jesus told him to forgive seventy times seven, which means that there is no limit to the times we should forgive.

Then one lovely spring day, Jane and Betty and Marian decided at recess that they would go skating after school. They were going clear to the other end of town, and they meant to have a very good time. They ran home after school to get their skates and some cookies. They were all out of breath when they got to Marian's house, but they hadn't run fast enough after all, because Steve had been there before them and Marian's skates, her beautiful new skates, were not to be found. And even the rusty old ones were gone, because Steve had lent them to one of his friends. There wasn't any use trying to find them, either, because they had skated away as fast as they could go.

Marian was so angry that she wouldn't play with Jane and Betty at all, and she was rude to Mother. She cried and cried, and all the time she was getting more furious. She wouldn't even listen to Mother. She thought everyone should be just as cross as she was, and she tried to think of something very naughty to do to get more attention. After Mother went upstairs, Marian began to play with the pretty little china shepherd and shepherdess that Mother never let her touch. Mother kept them because her grandmother had given them to her when she was a tiny girl, and she didn't want them broken. Marian put them on the floor and moved them around and pretended they were talking to each other. Then she had them quarrel, and she pushed them together to make them hit each other. It was fun, and she was beginning to forget all about the skates. But suddenly the little china boy hit the little china girl too hard, and her tiny arm came clear off! But that wasn't the worst—the same blow had made a great crack in the boy.

Marian looked up guiltily, and there was Mother standing in the doorway. Marian had never seen Mother look that way; she thought she was going to cry. Instead, Marian cried, because she was so very sorry. She would rather have given Steve the skates than break Mother's keepsakes. She begged Mother to stop looking so sad, and to forgive her. Of course, Mother forgave her, and dried her tears and washed her face.

When Marian had found the skates gone, she meant to do something as horrid as she could think of to Steve, but do you know, after she thought about how she had disobeyed Mother and how kind Mother had been, she forgot to be angry with Steve at all. Instead she thought about all the other naughty things she had done, and how Mother forgave her every time. She remembered the story about Peter and Jesus, too, and she multiplied seventy by seven, wondering if Mother hadn't forgiven her more times than that already, and realizing how few times she had ever forgiven Steve or anybody else.

And that's how one little girl found out what forgiving meant. Does it mean the same thing to you?

The Sunday School Lesson

FROM TRUTH SEEKERS' QUARTERLY

LESSON 3. — April 15, 1934

JESUS TEACHES FORGIVENESS

Matthew 18:15-35

Devotional Reading: 1 Corinthians 13:1-8

GOLDEN TEXT

Forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors.—Matthew 6:12.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic: Jesus Teaches Forgiveness.

Aim: We cannot keep the friendship of men or the favor of God unless we manifest a forgiving spirit.

Basic Truth: "If ye forgive men their trespasses, your heavenly Father will also forgive you."—Matt. 6:14.

I. How Often Shall We Forgive? (Matt. 18:21, 22.) The teachers and interpreters of the Mosaic Law, disregarding the spirit of its teaching, reduced all conduct to hard and fast rules governing every act. The law required men to forgive those who had injured them. So the rabbis developed a system by which one need but forgive the same person three times, and then he would be at liberty to have him punished. Jesus, however, insisted that forgiveness, like love, "is not to be limited by the multiplication table." The Golden Rule applies here. As often as we need forgiveness, just that often we must forgive!

"For still in mutual sufferance lies

The secret of true living;

Love scarce is love, that never knows

The sweetness of forgiving."—Whittier.

II. A Hopeless Debt Forgiven. (Matt. 18:23-34.) The king's servant who had apparently appropriated to his own use a vast sum of his lord's money begged that his sin might be forgiven. He realized that unless the king forgave the debt his wife and children would suffer as well as himself. But the king granted his plea and set him free. But an exactly similar case arose between himself and a fellow servant, only in this instance he was the one who was called upon to forgive the debtor, and he reversed the manner of his master and sent his fellow servant to prison. By doing this he brought upon himself all that he would have escaped through the pardon of the king. Our refusal to forgive others from the heart often results in added sorrow to ourselves.

III. God's Grace Conditional. (Matt. 18:35.) God's grace is limitless in its possibility of blessing, but may be restricted in its application by the rebellious attitude of men. He has forgiveness for all, but those who would receive it must themselves forgive others equally graciously.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Forgiveness

- is evidence of God's mercy;
- is necessary to obtain forgiveness;
- should never be withheld;
- is Christianity at work;
- is a forerunner of happiness.

The forgiveness of our sins is conditioned on our forgiveness of those sinning against us. "Forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors."—Matt. 6:12. The lack of a forgiving spirit is the root of many divisions in church bodies. Where there is a dearth of this spirit, there will be found hatred, envy, malice, and grudges.

Christ enjoins us "to love your enemies"; "do good to them that hate"; "pray for them which despitefully use you"; and "whosoever shall compel thee to go a mile, go with him twain." These teachings are not idle sayings impossible of living. Christ gave them by precept and carried them into use by example (1 Pet. 2:23; Luke 23:34). Discuss the effect on the church life of a congregation if every member actually practiced the foregoing.

The Christ spirit impels one to bless when persecuted, to "overcome evil with good," and entreat when defamed (Rom. 12:14, 17-21; 1 Cor. 4:13). This same spirit, which may be termed a "forgiving spirit," causes one to be kind, tender-hearted, forbearing, and ever bestowing a blessing where the sinner would rail (Eph. 4:32; Col. 3:13; 1 Pet. 3:9).

Will not the practice of these "Christ ideals" bring about the transformation for which Paul prayed in Romans 12:1, 2?—C. E. R.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"Forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors."—Matt. 6:12.

If we have ought against anyone and do not forgive him, we have no right to go to the Father and ask Him to forgive us. If we do ask the Father to forgive our many sins, we do not need to expect Him to do it until we are at least willing to forgive others as we wish the Father to forgive us. In praying what is known as "The Lord's Prayer," we ask to be forgiven only as we forgive. That means much more than many, many people really comprehend. If we do not forgive, then we are not asking to be forgiven. Did you ever think of it in that way?

I should think that "debts" mean sins, rather than the common use of the word "debt" today. Yet it can be applied the same way should it mean indebtedness as we use the term. The Golden Rule is very applicable here as in all other cases through life.

—L. A. R.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULTS

What Is True Forgiveness?

True forgiveness is a maintaining of that state of mind toward a transgressing brother which one would desire that God should maintain toward oneself. Three very outstanding examples of true forgiveness are recorded in the Book. First in magnitude and importance is the forgiveness extended to us by our most merciful and loving God. He forgave us our multitude of offenses while we were still hostile and unrepenting. If we but return to Him He will make us His children, give us unending life, and place us on thrones to assist His Son to rule the nations. The forgiveness not only restores man to his original state but it places him in advance of the position enjoyed by Adam in the garden. This is true forgiveness.

The second example is that of the "Captain of our salvation," Jesus Christ. Although misquoted, misrepresented, mistreated, forsaken by all, nailed to the cross, and scoffed, yet forgiveness was heard from His dying lips.

Third is the devoted Stephen. They could stone him to death but they couldn't keep him from forgiving them. His salvation depended upon forgiveness—and so does yours and mine. Jesus taught: "If ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses."—Matt. 6:15.

Paul's instruction to the Ephesians was: "Let not the sun go down upon your wrath." This was obeyed by both Christ and Stephen. It should be the rule for every person truly interested in eternal life.—H. A. S.

PRIMARY CLASS

Memory Verse: "For if ye forgive men . . . your heavenly Father will also forgive you."—Matt. 6:14.

One day Peter said to Jesus, "How often should I forgive my brother if he does wrong against me? Should I forgive him seven times?"

Jesus answered, "You should forgive him seventy times seven." This, you know, would be 490 times.

Then to explain just what He meant Jesus told this story: Once upon a time there was a king. This king had a servant who owed him a great amount of money. The servant could not pay the king, so the king said, "Then I shall sell you, your wife, your children, and all that you have to get the money."

But the servant begged so hard for the king not to do this that finally the king felt so sorry for him that he let him go and told him that he need never pay the debt.

Now another servant owed this same servant a small amount of money. He could not pay his debt either. But the servant had him thrown into prison.

Well, the king heard what he had done, and he sent for him. He said, "I did not make you pay your debt, now why didn't you do the same for this man?" So the king made him pay the debt.

Jesus wants us to forgive all those who do wrong to us, for He said, "If ye forgive men . . . your heavenly Father will also forgive you." Repeat this verse, trying to forgive anyone whom you feel has done wrong to you.

—V. C. T.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

STANHOPE, IOWA

According to a letter from Sr. Esther Sealine, Bro. J. W. Williams of Gladbrook, Iowa, has resumed regular meetings at this place after an interruption of several months. The second Sunday of each month is the time appointed.

Sr. Sealine also says that Bro. O. J. Allard of Cedar Falls, Iowa, held three services at Stanhope some time ago.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

With the beginning of the new church year in January of this year the Church Board of the Los Angeles church met at the call of the pastor to consider means of improving the services in every way possible. Many things were proposed and have been carried out successfully in most instances. The gap between Sunday school and church services has been bridged so that the usual commotion which interrupts our attitude of worship has been greatly reduced. A male and a female quartet have been organized, and each has rendered a selection as part of the regular worship service. Each Sunday the pastor has some one in the pulpit with him to give a short discussion of some current event of the week, or some such item for exhortation. These among other things have added to the interest of the services. A special program for Easter has been under preparation both for Sunday school and church services, and we are looking forward to the celebration of the resurrection with a great deal of pleasant anticipation.

Bro. and Sr. Railsback have just returned from a short trip to San Diego and points south, where Sr. Railsback gave of her best in the spreading of the good news. They spent one night in Perris with Sr. Knott, where Sr. Railsback spoke to the Union Church. After conducting the class at Norco in conjunction with Bro. W. A. Reid, she returned to Pomona, and thence took her way to Long Beach. On the last Sunday in March Sr. Railsback will give her sermon on the two covenants to the church in Pomona. Such activities are a wonderful help to the cause of Christ and of the church in California.

Norman John MacLeod.

INDIANA REPORT FOR MARCH

Sermons: Pleasant View, 2; Rensselaer, 2; Hillisburg, 2; Plymouth, 1; North Salem, 1; Lakeville, 1. Funerals, 1. Money received: Pleasant View, $25.00; Rensselaer, $24.60; Hillisburg, $15.00; Plymouth, $12.00; North Salem, $7.00; Ernest Logan, $5.00, $1.00 for expenses of Lakeville service, $4.00 for state work; Conference Board, $30.00, part of it for work of last January and February. Expenses, $16.00.

J. H. Anderson, Indiana Evangelist.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO DOLLAR-A-MONTH CLUB

Mrs. Eva L. Page; Mary E. Carter; Mr. and Mrs. George Siple; Mr. and Mrs. Delos Andrew; Mr. and Mrs. John Miller.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO N. B. I.

F. C. Montross	$18.00
Mrs. Sid Martin	2.09
Mrs. A. Moreland (Easter offering)	5.00
Maurertown, Va., Sunday School	1.75

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

These lines are being written on Thursday of our pre-Easter week of meetings. Up to now these have been about the best attended of any meetings the writer has seen held at this place. Not only is a good share of the membership proving loyal, but many who are not members are showing much interest and new faces are seen in the audience each night. It is evident that if a much longer series of meetings could be held more far-reaching results could be realized.

At present we are all looking forward to Easter—thankful for our Lord's victory over death.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

WE LOOK AHEAD

April 10, 1934

"Modern Movements in Palestine," Arnold's Practical Commentary. "Some of the striking changes in Palestine."

"What Is Man?" Calvin P. Bollman. "The doctrine of natural . . . immortality is . . . a pagan conception."

"Abounding Iniquity," Mrs. H. H. Kent. On modern world conditions.

"The Origin of Sin," James A. Patrick. Definitely, God did not create sin.

And the above only sketches the next issue!

CALIFORNIA OPINION

Editor, The Restitution Herald:

Your editorial in a recent issue of The Restitution Herald regarding the attitude of our related church, the Advent Christians, strikes in me a responsive chord. I wish that you might convey to the columns of The Herald my impressions in that respect. To my mind one of the most tragic things that happened in the history of our church was the attitude of intolerance that caused the separation of the two church bodies that should be working as one in these last days. Nothing has been nearer to my heart than the working in closest harmony with those who believe in all essential things as we do. If such groups as have been allied in their conferences among the more popular churches can feel that they can work together, why should we who hold all essential doctrines alike not work in many points in harmony? The line that divides tolerance from indifference may be hard to draw on the one hand, but I think that we have spent too much time in trying to draw the lines on the other side. Why not let us try to find all the things in which we are at harmony with each other and even if we go no further toward a union, let us press on in a united front with those so surely believed among us.

Yours for the unity of the faithful,
Norman John MacLeod, President,
California Conference of the Churches of God.

PLUM RIVER, ILLINOIS

In spite of the inclement weather a fairly good sized crowd gathered at the church Easter morning for the special Easter services. Several special numbers were given during the Sunday school hour to commemorate the resurrection of our Savior.

Several members received a six months' pin for perfect attendance.

The last few Sunday nights our minister has been conducting a Bible class and although the crowd has been small much interest has been shown by those present and an earnest desire to learn more about the Scriptures has been shown. We have been studying mainly from the Minor Prophets and the Gospels.

It's as thrilling as a treasure hunt, this task of searching for truth and understanding from God's Word. We have to dig deeply and sift out the teachings of men and find the pure nuggets of truth and beauty that are to be found only in the holy Scriptures. Sometimes we flounder about and questions arise that none of us can answer, but we know if we seek we shall find if we know it shall be opened unto us, and if we cannot interpret all correctly God will reward our efforts.

Knowledge and understanding are increasing. Prophecy is being fulfilled. We shall soon know in full what we now only know in part, for we know that we are drawing near to the return of the King.

Mildred Crofton, Secretary.

VISITING THE BRETHREN

Our trip to San Diego and other points to look up isolated members proved to be more profitable than we had at first thought it would, as far as opportunities to sow the seed were concerned. While we did not succeed in finding some of the members at home in San Diego, we called on others and looked up a young sister who is only there temporarily, Mrs. James D. Nelson, formerly of Denver, daughter of Sr. O. J. Dorsey of that city. When she returns to southern California next fall we hope to keep in close touch with her. We had a delightful visit with Bro. William J. Smith and family of the Advent Christian Church who formerly lived in Culver, Ind., and have many mutual acquaintances. Were glad to have a brief visit with Mrs. Adele Hutchins, daughter of our late Sr. Elizabeth Morton of LaPorte, Ind. Bro. W. R. Young, who is nearing the eighty-sixth anniversary of his birth, is still a devout student of the prophetic time periods and feels that 1934 will bring some great change in the affairs of the world.

The old battleship Constitution, which we had seen in Boston Harbor some seven years ago while it was undergoing repairs, we found to be the object of interest in San Diego Harbor, and after inspecting its interior we saw it depart for the return trip to the eastern coast.

Arriving at Perris Tuesday afternoon, we found an invitation waiting to speak in the Congregational Church that evening. On being told that we did not hold the same views as they do, they replied, "Just so she gives us Scripture." No doubt I gave them more than they could digest at one time; however, the attention given could not be excelled and a number asked questions at the close and came to the meeting the following night, which we held in the home of Sr. Knott, where more questions were asked at the close of the talk on the second coming of Christ, which we took up by request. Sr. Ora Knott and Bro. Roscoe Alexander are the only ones of the faith in this little village, which is showing much activity at present owing to the building of the new aqueduct through the tunnel near this place. We plan to visit them again soon.

After the close of the Wednesday night meeting we accompanied Bro. W. A. Reid to his present palatial home in Riverside, where we enjoyed their hospitality, and Bro. Reid accompanied us next day in making calls in Riverside and Redlands. We found Sr. H. E. Shepherd recovering from an illness and able to enjoy a visit with those of like faith. Sr. Howard is still sojourning with Sr. Ida F. Orem in her cozy home and regaining her strength after her confinement owing to Bro. Howard's long illness.

Thursday night found us with the class at Norco in the home of Sr. Dora Courtney, where a goodly number gather each week to be led by Bro. Reid. Our lesson was on the atonement, followed by a brief review of God's two covenants with Israel. We spent the night in Pomona with the MacLeods. Friday evening we took dinner with Bro. J. E. Hammond and daughters, called on Sr. Mary Chapman of Lynwood, who has had another long siege of confinement but is slowly improving at present, then to our regular Friday night class in the home of Bro. and Sr. Rich, Long Beach. Sr. Rich is still confined to the wheel chair, but quite generally is cheerful. We spent Saturday at home and found that night driving after class had been a little too strenuous, and I developed a nervous headache, but was able to keep my appointment with the Pomona church at 11:00 a. m. Sunday, when I spoke on "Zion" after an interesting lesson and the communion service conducted by Bro. J. E. Adamson.

I neglected to state that we visited Bro. and Sr. C. E. Hatch of Santa Ana and Bro. and Sr. Enos Elton of Tustin on the way to San Diego. Found them not so very well, but all trying to keep cheerful under somewhat depressing circumstances, through which many of us are passing these days. May we all continue to work, watch, and pray.

Emma C. Railsback.

RACHEL M. WHITCOMB

Sr. Rachel M. Whitcomb, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Thurman, was born November 22, 1859, and fell asleep in Jesus March 21, 1934. She was united in marriage to W. A. Whitcomb December 25, 1881. Ten children were born to this union; two have fallen asleep, and eight are living. She also left five brothers and sisters, twelve grandchildren, and a host of friends. Her husband died in 1908. She was baptized into Christ fifty-four years ago. Since that time she lived true to her Lord. Funeral services were held in the Hillisburg Church of God, by the writer, March 23, from the text found in Genesis 48:7. Then she was placed by the side of her husband to sleep until Jesus comes.

J. H. Anderson.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mrs. W. L. Canode; Willard M. Naylor; Mrs. J. M. Kiger; F. C. Montross; P. H. Overholser; Mrs. Sid Martin (for others); Esther Sealine (for others); Alex. D. Donaldson; J. E. Coverston; Mrs. A. Moreland; Cecil A. Smead; Mrs. C. H. Bassett; Mrs. Elnora Skinner; Mrs. Elnora Waldo.

SPECIAL INDEBTEDNESS FUND

Previously reported	$590.50
Mr. and Mrs. R. Harman	10.00
Mary E. Waller	1.00
Mary E. Carter	1.00
J. E. Coverston	20.00
Total	$622.50
Pledges previously reported	669.00
Total pledges and contributions	$1311.50

PRAY THE DEBT MAY BE LIFTED

Prayer is always helpful, but the prayer that is accompanied by works in harmony with the petition is the most helpful of all. God expects us to do our part. Bro. and Sr. R. Harman send $10.00 to help us climb the ladder and at the same time inform us that Bro. Harman's work has been reduced to three days per week. With the sacrifice contribution they say, "We earnestly pray that this debt may be lifted, that we may all give freely of what the Lord has blessed us with, and also that we may be able to meet our personal debts fully." How few there are who recognize that their debt to the Lord is as binding as their debts to their fellow men! How much we would suffer should God press His claims against us!

BETWEEN YOU AND ME—

Loren Burnett, superintendent of the Sunday school at Ripley, Ill., reports an attendance last Sunday of 51. He says the average this winter has been between 45 and 50, which is certainly very good for a small rural community with three churches.

The following preliminary announcement of the Minnesota State Conference appears in the current number of "The Morning Star" issued by the St. Cloud church. "Our great annual State Conference will be held this year in St. Cloud, the first part of June. Plan now to save your eggs, chickens" (best suggestion of all, agree the ministers), "and money for this gathering."

A special meeting is planned for Clear Lake, Wis., for the week beginning April 16. Elder A. E. Hoskins will be the speaker.

Letters are coming in from various sources concerning the editorial that appeared in our issue of March 13, entitled, "A Friendly Gesture," having to do with the attitude of the Advent Christian brethren toward the Church of God. The President of the California Conference, Norman John MacLeod, whose letter appears in these columns, is one of a number who comment favorably on the idea of seeking to establish closer and more fraternal relations with all others who hold to conditionalism and the Lord's coming. Other communications will be published later.

Sr. Mary A. Gesin, the beloved editor of the Children's Page, passed safely through a major operation at St. Anthony's Hospital, Rockford, Ill., last week, and, while not as yet permitted to have visitors, is slowly recovering strength. Greetings from her many devoted children over the country will reach her if addressed to Mrs. Mary A. Gesin, in care of St. Anthony's Hospital, Rockford, Illinois.

Material for the Children's Page this week was prepared by Sr. Genniel Carpenter, editor of the Berean Department. Sr. Carpenter is a willing and efficient "pinch hitter" in every time of need.

Large audiences joined in the Easter services at the Oregon, Ill., church. In the morning the pastor spoke on "With Christ on Calvary," and in the evening his topic was, "The Power of His Resurrection." Next Sunday night the sermon will have to do with "Forty Days With the Resurrected Savior."

Your attention is called to the advertisement regarding Berean books for cheap distribution on this week's Berean Page. Educate your friends in the Bible doctrines for only a dime a year!

We regret to learn that Bro. A. J. Chaplin of Arkansas City, Kansas, suffered a stroke of paralysis on March 20, and that his condition is still serious. Sr. Chaplin asks an interest in our prayers on his behalf.

Let's
climb
the Ladder
to Success

$1300
$1200
$1100
$1000
$900
$800
$700
$600
$500
$400
$300
$200
$100

WATCH

By Gerald L. Cooper

IN the thirteenth chapter of the Gospel According to St. Mark, we read of our Lord Jesus Christ preaching one of His greatest sermons. In it He foretold the destruction of the temple, told of the signs of the last days, and of great calamities that shall befall the Jews.

The last verse of this great chapter reads: "And what I say unto you I say unto all, Watch." What was it that Christ entreated His disciples and all to watch? Perhaps we can obtain this knowledge in the following manner.

The first letter of the word "watch" is W. Watch your walk. There are two highways on which to walk while living this life, the straight and narrow way that leads us to eternal life, and the broad way that leads us to destruction. The Savior had this to say concerning this subject: "Enter ye in at the strait gate: for wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be that go in thereat: because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it."—Matt. 7:13, 14. Are you watching your walk?

The next letter in this word is A. Watch your actions! If we are Christians, all of our actions are carefully noted by those who are not Christians. Especially is this true of a young person trying to lead a Christian life. Everything we do, our every action, is watched and commented upon. If that action is not a Christian one, then we shall be talked about and ridiculed. Oh, Christian brethren! watch your actions!

We find that the third letter in the word "watch" is T. Let this letter represent the word "thoughts." Watch your thoughts. In Matthew 9:1-7 we find the record of the healing of the man sick of the palsy. In the fourth verse are these words: "And Jesus knowing their thoughts said, Wherefore think ye evil in your hearts?" While these accusing Jews said nothing, yet they sinned by thinking evil. We can do the same thing by permitting our thoughts to dwell on things evil. Let us think on things eternal. Watch your thoughts!

Next is the letter C. Watch your character. One definition of this word is reputation. How is your reputation in your home community? Many so-called Christians have the reputation of being hypocrites or "Sunday Christians." Is this yours, or are you reputed to be an honest, upright man, a real, true Christian? It pays us to watch our character, because if it should be found wanting it might cause some one to not become a Christian. So, I say, watch your character!

The last letter of this great word is H. H stands for both habits and heart.

Watch your habits. In 1 Thessalonians 5:22 we find these words: "Abstain from all appearance of evil." Our habits can be our worst enemies and our best friends. If the habits we have often cause us to make excuses for them, we must have a feeling that they are not right and should drop them immediately. Watch your habits, and if they have even an appearance of evil, shun them. Our good habits, however, should be developed. Again, I say, watch your habits!

In Psalm 19:14 we find the beautiful words: "Let the words of my mouth, and the meditation of my heart, be acceptable in thy sight, O Lord, my strength, and my redeemer." Watch your heart. Is its every meditation acceptable in the sight of God? Let us all keep our hearts in accordance with God's will. There is an old song that says: "Every cloud will wear a rainbow if your heart keeps right." Watch your heart!

We have now found, in a measure, what to watch. Now why should we watch these things? Christ tells us why in the following words, speaking of His second coming. "But of that day and that hour knoweth no man, no, not the angels which are in heaven, neither the Son, but the Father. Take ye heed, watch and pray: for ye know not when the time is . . . And what I say unto you I say unto all, Watch!"—Mark 13:32, 33, 37.

Let us earnestly heed the words of our Master, so that we may be ready, watching and waiting, when He comes.

IN DEFENSE OF THE OLD TESTAMENT

By C. E. Randall

OFTENTIMES we come in contact with those who have no use for the Old Testament. They seldom, if ever, read it. There are still others who seem to be content with a portion of the New Testament, usually the Gospel of John.

In referring to the Scriptures we read: "All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness."—2 Tim. 3:16. If this statement is true, then all Scripture is profitable, and if profitable, then it should not be discarded and disregarded.

Paul in writing to the Romans in 15:4 said: "For whatsoever things were written aforetime were written for our learning, that we through patience and comfort of the scriptures might have hope." The Master said: "Search the scriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life: and they are they which testify of me."—John 5:39. The Scriptures mentioned here are the Old Testament Scriptures.

It is impossible to have a correct and thorough understanding of the New Testament unless we understand the Old Testament. The Old is a type of the New. To understand the antitype, we must be familiar with the type. All of the experiences of Israel have been written for our admonition (1 Cor. 10:11). These experiences are given in the Old Testament.—Church of God Messenger.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 23

OREGON, ILLINOIS, APRIL 10, 1934

NUMBER 28

THE ORIGIN OF SIN

By James A. Patrick

"IN the beginning God created the heaven and the earth"; and from what followed we are assured He had in mind to people the earth and have a sinless people upon it.

The creation of the Garden of Eden and the placing of a sinless pair in it gives us some idea of His intentions. This garden must have been a place of beauty such as no human eye has since beheld. Every sight was one of beauty and every sound one of music; there was nothing unharmonious or discordant in the picture. God placed in this beauty spot a man and a woman, who were absolutely pure and innocent.

I suppose Eve was the most beautiful woman that has ever lived or will live this side the new earth, and Adam the most handsome man.

If we look out over the world today and see the thorns, thistles, brambles, and briars, and see the human derelicts floating down the stream of time, we realize that the picture has been very badly marred. Who was to blame?

Paul said, "By one man sin entered into the world." What is sin? Violation of divine law. Yes, and it is the power to do good turned into the wrong channel. Let me illustrate: Every power God gave to Adam was a power for good. Adam was given the power to eat and to drink. This is a power for good. God commanded Adam, saying, "Of every tree of the garden thou mayest freely eat: but of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, thou shalt not eat of it." It was good for Adam and Eve to eat of the fruit of all the trees but one. The power to eat was a God-given power and was for the good of Adam and Eve. There was just one prohibition, and it was not good for them to eat of that one prohibited tree. But by the same power they used to eat of the other trees, they ate of the forbidden one. This was the power to do good turned into the wrong channel; it became sin, and here sin entered into the world. Who was to blame?

When the serpent called Eve's attention to the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, we are told, "When the Here again is a discussion of that perennial problem of whether or not God keeps a finger in each individual pie. Mr. Patrick's argument is strong, based factually upon the Bible, and offered in a style both affirmative and inoffensive.

woman saw that the tree was good for food, and that it was pleasant to the eyes, and a tree to be desired to make one wise, she took of the fruit thereof, and did eat, and gave also unto her husband with her; and he did eat." So we read in Genesis, chapter 3, verse 6.

Eve was tempted through the three points of contact through which Christ was tempted: the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life; and everyone else is tempted through these same three channels. John says, "For all that is in the world, the lust of the flesh, and the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life, is not of the Father, but is of the world."—1 John 2:16. Then it is certain that sin is not of the Father. John says these three are all there are in the world, and are not of the Father. So Paul was right when he said it was by one man sin entered into the world.

Adam turned the power to do good into the wrong channel and it became sin. God told him not to eat of the forbidden fruit; did He then predestine Adam so that he had to eat? Nay verily. The satisfying of the lust of the flesh is not of the Father. Therefore God did not predestine sin.

In Revelation 4:11 we read, "Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory and honour and power: for thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created."

Some one may say that if God created everything, He created sin. If He did He created it for His pleasure, yet He cannot look upon sin with the least degree of allowance.

Let us see. Is sin a created thing? God gave man the power to love, but there was no love till man exercised that power. Love is an attribute of man that came to him by the exercise of a certain power. So also hate came in the same way. Love is a certain power exercised in the right direction, hate is the same power exercised in the wrong direction. So we can go through the whole catalog of sins, and we find that all (Please turn to Page Eight)

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879.

G. Eldred Marsh, Editor

Two Dollars per Year

Paul C. Johnson, Associate Editor

“When Christ, who is our life, shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory.”—Col. 3:4.

THE EDITOR'S PRAYER

WE thank Thee, our Father, for the splendid moral lessons Thou hast given us through Thy Son; we appreciate still more the forgiveness of our sins made possible by His sacrifice; but most of all, O Lord, do we thank Thee at this time for the promise of immortality brought to us by His resurrection from the dead. Amen.

WHO HONORS HIM MOST?

THE Modernist declares Jesus to have been the greatest moralist of history. The Fundamentalist acknowledges Him to be the Son of God and our Savior from sin. The Conditionalist confesses all this to be true, and in addition glorifies the name of Jesus Christ as the only bestower of eternal life!

There can be no doubt in the mind of the student of history that the teaching of Jesus has resulted in raising the moral standard of the world to the highest point it has ever attained, and that His influence has stimulated culture, encouraged good government, and provided the strongest motive for carrying the benefits of civilization to all quarters of the earth.

The more thoughtful realize, however, that man does not live by bread alone; that he possesses a spiritual nature that high ethical standards, great material prosperity, and intellectual enlightenment do not altogether satisfy. While these things ennoble his manhood, enrich his experience, and broaden his mental horizon, they do not bring to him that sense of God's nearness and reality which he so greatly desires.

The Fundamentalist finds in Jesus Christ the One, and only One, who can lead the individual into the very presence of the heavenly Father. He firmly believes the Lord's promise will be kept in this present time—“And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me.”—John 12:32. And so he prays in song:

“Lord, lift me up and let me stand,
By faith, on Heaven's tableland,
A higher plane than I have found;
Lord, plant my feet on higher ground!”

And rejoicing in his new-found Savior, he believes his prayer is answered, and humbly confesses before the world:

“From sinking sand He lifted me,
With tender hand He lifted me,
From shades of night to plains of light,
O praise His name, He lifted me!”

Then comes the Conditionalist, the believer in “conditional immortality,” thankfully acknowledging with the Modernist the world's debt to Jesus Christ for the vast benefits it has come to enjoy under the leadership of Christian civilization. He then falls into step with the Fundamentalist, rejoicing with him in salvation from sin through the Lord Jesus Christ, and in the communion with the heavenly Father such deliverance from transgression affords.

But the Conditionalist does not stop here. He finds yet another and more marvelous reason why men should “praise the Lord for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men!” The Conditionalist rightly concludes that blessings, however rich, cannot be fully and freely enjoyed while the threatening clouds of death hang over his head. He must have life, everlasting life, if he is to come into the “fulness of joy!”

With the introduction of the principle of universal brotherhood into the world, Jesus made civilization possible. With His sacrifice upon the cross He made communion with God possible to all men, breaking down the wall of tradition and law that separated Jew from Gentile, “that he might reconcile both unto God in one body by the cross” (Eph. 2:16). For these splendid accomplishments the Conditionalist joins with the Modernist in part, and with the Fundamentalist altogether, in praising the name of the blessed Son of God, our Savior.

And the Conditionalist swings into an even more glorious refrain, to which the others unfortunately have not as yet learned to tune their harps, the refrain that gives to the Lamb of God the glory due unto His name as our only Life-Giver! Only because of His conquest of death may men hope for life eternal, for “if in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable. But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the firstfruits of them that slept” (1 Cor. 15:19, 20).

The record of His death and resurrection concludes with these words: “These are written that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God; and that believing ye might have life through his name.”—John 20:31.

Modern Movements in Palestine

THE recent trend of affairs in the land where Jesus performed His earthly ministry is of interest to so many people the world over that the little district at the southeastern end of the Mediterranean has inspired the writing of more books and magazine articles in the past six years than any other territory of equal size in the world. The universal interest in Palestine is due to its historical connection, running back over thousands of years, with events and teachings which are most sacred to the human heart, and to its prophesied future relation to world affairs.

Any tourist visiting Palestine during the last few centuries who could not read a sacred meaning into the hills and valleys and mountains and ruins of ancient cities would not be able to read anything else of value into the territory, for Palestine is not a rich land, "flowing with milk and honey," as it once was. To a visitor from a prosperous land Palestine has seemed to be a hopelessly barren waste. On the whole there are almost no trees; little vegetation can be seen; and the surface of the ground seems covered with loose rocks. The retaining walls that once curved around the hillsides, banking up the earth for the planting of vines and olive trees are fallen down and the stones lie scattered everywhere. H. E. Fosdick writes that the uplands of Judea seem to have been stoned to death.

But Palestine was not always barren. When the twelve Israelite spies, in Moses' day, returned from a forty days' examination of the country they differed sharply about some things, but they were a unit in declaring that the land was most productive, and they exhibited samples of the abundant, luscious fruit. For three hundred years after the Israelites took possession, their choice, fertile country was the constant prey of marauding neighboring peoples who annually invaded and overran the country to steal the products of the grainfields and vineyards and orchards. The Romans during their occupation in the time of Christ, and later, developed irrigation projects and the land bore plentifully.

Once there were forests where not a tree can be seen now. Saul's army, in pursuing the Philistines, encountered a forest southwest of Jerusalem (1 Sam. 14:25). David hid in a wood in Ziph to escape the wrath of Saul, and Jonathan safely visited him there (1 Sam. 23:16). The battle between David's army and the rebel forces under Absalom took place in the forest of Ephraim, between Judea and Galilee. Twenty thousand men were lost in the battle, which was scattered over a wide territory; but more men died of exposure after being lost in the forest than were killed by the sword (2 Sam. 18:6-8). All of this in a territory which is now almost treeless.

This little land of Palestine which now supports only eight hundred thousand people was once rich enough in resources to support in comfort a population of more than three million. There must have been some products for export also; for Solomon sent to Hiram, king of Tyre, 160,000 bushels of wheat each year for a term of years in exchange for cedar timber from the Lebanon Mountains for use in building the temple (1 Kings 5:11).

There is a reason for the present barren condition of Palestine. For more than a thousand years the country has been under Moslem control; and the Arabs who occupy the territory are an illiterate people who boast that they have made no changes in their agricultural methods since the time of Abraham. They have built no roads or bridges; they have drained no swamps; they have devised no irrigation projects; they have planted no trees; they have constructed no public utility plants; they have developed no schools, and have built no hospitals or charitable institutions of any kind. Their villages are squalid clusters of mud huts. In the spring they scratch over the surface of the ground wherever they can find a fertile spot, sow their wheat or barley, camp alongside until harvest time, then tread out the grain, and carry it away on the backs of camels to some comfortable place where they wait until the sowing time returns. They use the same kind of tools and animals in their work that were used centuries ago. The ground is plowed with a crooked branch of a tree, drawn by bullocks. The grain is reaped by hand with a sickle, and is threshed out by the treading of the sharp hoofs of goats.

The forests have suffered at the hands of the armies that have swarmed over the land. Forty per cent of the olive trees were destroyed by the Turkish and British armies in the World War. The armies had to have wood for many purposes. What was done to the forests in the last war has been done over and over again as Roman, Turkish, Crusader, and French . . . have stalked through the country and laid siege to its cities. During the Roman invasion

Patient Waiting on the Lord

In the toil and stress and burden of life's way,
How much we know of fret and harsh discord,
Till peace we find, one long bewildering day,
And rest in patient waiting on the Lord.

To haste by waiting, O wondrous paradox;
To overcome resistance by patience and concord;

To know our best most closely interlocks
With quiet, patient waiting on the Lord.

O Thou unhurried and unworried One,
May we with Thee be in love's sweet accord;
And live to find in life's brief day more done,
By timely, patient waiting on the Lord.

—Eldon G. Burritt in Arnold's Practical Commentary.

in A. D. 70 it is said that every tree within ten miles of Jerusalem was destroyed. Swarms of locusts had a great part in preventing natural reforestation by destroying the tender young growth as fast as it appeared. The shiftless, hand-to-mouth method of living practiced by the Moslems has never included in its program the planting of any trees for the future; and the present denuded condition of the mountains and hills is the result.

In view of the glory of Palestine in the centuries long gone by, the present condition of barrenness is not an entirely hopeless condition. To such reclamation engineers as Elwood Mead, United States Commissioner of Reclamation, splendid agricultural possibilities still exist. This official made a special study of Palestine at the request of the American Review of Reviews and declares that the land can be made a replica of southern California.

The Jordan Valley alone, exclusive of the gorge which contains the crooked bed of the stream, contains 128,000 acres "over which the surface is as level as a prairie, and as free from stones, and which could be irrigated at the present time and made as fertile as the Valley of the Nile"

Please turn to Back Page

Faith and Truth

THERE are many persons who do not clearly understand what faith is. To them faith is what they believe, or say they believe. They have faith that certain things will come to pass, which never do come to pass; they "believe without a doubt," certain things which prove to be utterly false.

Men are saved by faith: "Without faith it is impossible to please" God; but men are damned by believing a lie; therefore believing a lie is not faith, but something entirely different from faith. It is useless to believe a thing is true when we know it is false.

A somewhat zealous person was once endeavoring to persuade some one, not a Christian, to believe in Christ. The sum of the story was, "Believe you are saved, and you will be saved."

"But," said the man who was thus addressed, "you believe you are a Christian? You know you are?"

"Yes."

"Well I know I am not a Christian, and what is the use of believing I am?"

Believing that a jackknife is a pickaxe does not make it so; believing that a penny is a pound does not make a man one copper richer. Believing that a man is all right, when you know and he knows that he is all wrong, is simply believing a lie, and running the risk of perdition.

We are not to delude ourselves with dreams and fancies. True faith has respect for the promises of God, for "faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God." What God's Word clearly and unequivocally states, faith believes; but there are many things which men undertake to believe for which there is no distinct, direct warrant in the Scriptures; and Christian men are to take heed and not deceive their own selves. We may believe in the power of God and in the goodness of God, for these things are plainly revealed in the Word. We may believe in the promises of God, which are yea and amen in Christ Jesus; but we must also believe in the limitations which He sets upon His promises. We must believe that if we regard iniquity in our hearts the Lord will not hear us. We must believe that while the Lord is "rich unto all that call upon him," yet whom He loveth. He chasteneth; and scourgeth every son whom He receiveth. We must believe that sins separate men from God; and that iniquities hide His face from them, and though they offer many prayers He will not hear them when their hands are "full of blood." We must accept both the promises and the threatenings, the rebukes and the chastenings, the commands and the prohibitions, and then we can say, "Whatsoever things we ask of Him we receive, because we do the things that are pleasing in His sight."

If we expect the Lord to hear us when we pray, we must hear Him when He speaks. If we would have Him answer our prayers we must respond to His precepts. Again and again we are warned against being deceived, and against deceiving our own selves. We are to let no man deceive us. We are told that because of certain sins the wrath of God cometh on the children of disobedience, and if we do the things that God forbids, how can we hope to escape the wrath which He threatens? Unless our hearts and lives are right in His sight, what can we expect but chastening and reproof? But if we are ready to turn from our wanderings, to put away our sins, to forsake the wrong, to hate every false way, to be no more like the horse and the mule whose mouth must be held in with a bit and bridle, but to be willing to receive instruction and not despise reproof; then we may be sure that the eyes of the Lord are over the righteous, and that His ears are open to their prayers; while the face of the Lord is against all that do evil, to cut off the remembrance of them from the earth.

How many people have had faith without regard to facts; how many have believed things were done when they were not done, and never have been done, and when God had never promised that they should be done. How many people pray blindly and from sheer force of will, when they should be humbling themselves under the mighty hand of God, remembering that they know not how to pray as they ought, except the Spirit helpeth their infirmities. Let us pray, "Lord, increase our faith," and let us see to it that our works keep pace with our faith, for it is only by works that faith is made perfect.—C. H. Pratt in The Messiah's Advocate.

Of Unity in Religion

RELIGION being the chief band of human society, it is a happy thing when itself is well contained within the true band of unity. The quarrels and divisions about religion were evils unknown to the heathen. The reason was, because the religion of the heathen consisted rather in rites and ceremonies, than in any constant belief; for you may imagine what kind of faith theirs was, when the chief doctors and fathers of their church were the poets. But the true God hath this attribute, that He is a jealous God; and therefore His worship and religion will endure no mixture nor partner. We shall therefore speak a few words concerning the unity of the church; what are the fruits thereof; what the bounds; and what the means.

The fruits of unity (next unto the well-pleasing of God, which is all in all) are two; the one towards those that are without the church, the other towards that are within. For the former, it is certain, that heresies and schisms are of all others the greatest scandals; yea, more than corruption of manners: for as in the natural body a wound or solution of continuity is worse than a corrupt humor, so in the spiritual; so that nothing doth so much keep men out of the church, as breach of unity; and therefore whensoever it cometh to that pass that one saith, "Ecce in deserto" (Matt. 24:26: "Behold, he is in the desert"), another saith, "Ecce in penetralibus" (Matt. 24:26: "Behold, he is in the secret chambers"); that is, when some men seek Christ in the conventicles of heretics, and others in an outward face of a church, that voice had need continually to sound in men's ears, "nolite exire,"—"go not out." The doctor of the Gentiles (the propriety of whose vocation drew him to have a special care of those without) saith, "If a heathen come in, and hear you speak with several tongues, will he not say that you are mad?" (1 Cor. 14:23: "If therefore the whole church be come together into one place, and all speak with tongues, and there come in those that are unlearned, or unbelievers, will they not say that ye are mad?") and, certainly, it is little better: when atheists and profane persons do hear of so many discordant and contrary opinions in religion, it doth avert them from the church, and maketh them "to sit down in the chair of the scorers" (Psalm 1:1: "Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful"). It is but a light thing to be vouch'd in so serious matter, but yet it expresseth well the deformity. There is a master of scoffing that in his catalogue of books of a feigned library sets down this title of a book, "The Morris-Dance of Heretics"; for, indeed, every sect of them hath a diverse posture, or cringe, by themselves, which cannot but move derision in worldlings and depraved politicians, who are apt to contemn holy things.

Here is an essay that requires what few readers are willing to give—study. Francis Bacon of classical fame was the author, and his thoughts on the matter of church unity, although four centuries old, are well worth considering.

As for the fruit towards those that are within, it is peace, which containeth infinite blessings; it establisheth faith; it kindleth charity; the outward peace of the church distilleth into peace of conscience, and it turneth the labors of writing and reading of controversies into treatises of mortification and devotion.

Concerning the bounds of unity, the true placing of them importeth exceedingly. There appear to be two extremes: for to certain zealots all speech of pacification is odious. "Is it peace, Jehu?"—"What hast thou to do with peace? turn thee behind me." (2 Kings 9:18.) Peace is not the matter, but following and party. Contrariwise, certain Laodiceans (Rev. 3:14) and lukewarm persons think they may accomodate points of religion by middle ways, and taking part of both, and witty reconcilements, as if they would make an arbitrament between God and man. Both these extremes are to be avoided; which will be done if the league of Christians, penned by our Savior Himself, were in the two cross clauses thereof soundly and plainly expounded: "He that is not with (us) is against (us)" (Matt. 12:30); and again, "He that is not against us is with us"; that is, if the points fundamental and of substance in religion were truly discerned and distinguished from points not merely of faith, but of opinion, order, or good intention. This is a thing may seem to many a matter, trivial, and done already; but if it were done less partially, it would be embraced more generally.

Of this I may give only this advice, according to my small model. Men ought to take heed of rending God's church by two kinds of controversies; the one is, when the matter of the point controverted is too small and light, not worth the heat and strife about it, kindled only by contradiction; for, as it is noted by one of the fathers, "Christ's coat indeed had no seam, but the church's vesture was of divers colors"; whereupon he saith, "In veste varietas sit, scissura non sit" ("In the garment there may be many colors, but let there be no rending of it"), they be two things, unity and uniformity; the other is, when the matter of the point controverted is great, but it is driven to an overgreat subtilty and obscurity, so that it becometh a thing rather ingenious than substantial. A man that is of judgment and understanding shall sometimes hear ignorant men differ, and know well within himself, that those which so differ mean one thing, and yet they themselves would never agree; and if it come so to pass in that distance of judgment, which is between man and man, shall we not think that God above, that knows the heart, doth not discern that frail men, in some of their contradictions,

Please turn to Page Eight

What Is Man?

THREE thousand years ago, David, "the sweet singer," and king of Israel, contrasting in thought the wisdom and power of God with the ignorance and weakness of our sinful race, exclaimed: "What is man, that thou art mindful of him? and the son of man, that thou visitest him?"—Psalm 8:4.

A similar thought is expressed in the book of Job written probably more than four hundred years earlier than the Psalms: "Man that is born of a woman is of few days, and full of trouble. He cometh forth like a flower, and is cut down: he fleeth also as a shadow, and continueth not. And dost thou open thine eyes upon such an one, and bringest me into judgment with thee?"—Job 14:1-3.

Outside the Bible, no satisfactory answer to this old, old question, "What is man?" has ever been given. Man cannot by searching find out God, neither can he by human wisdom find out his own origin, nature, and destiny. But the sacred Scriptures tell us definitely just what man is and who made him, together with his nature and destiny.

Man has ever, except in comparatively rare cases, clung tenaciously to life, and has a longing for immortality; from which many have argued that human beings have an immortal part, an entity or being within that never dies, that lives in, and acts through, the body, but is capable of conscious existence apart from it, and is therefore the real person.

But though this, in varying forms of expression, has long been the belief of a very large part of the human race, it finds no support in the Bible, unless prejudiced opinions and human traditions cause one to read into the text of that sacred Book something that is not there in fact.

The account of the creation of man, as it appears in the first and second chapters of Genesis, gives us no ground on which to claim natural immortality for man, nor for any part of him.

In Genesis 1:27 the fact of man's creation is stated, but the details are not given. In the second chapter the record is fuller; but, instead of there being even a hint of inherent immortality or of an immortal part, Adam was told plainly: "Of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, thou shalt not eat of it: for in the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die."—Verse 17.

Thus from the very first hour of his existence, man stood face to face, as it were, with death; and this was true, not merely of a part of man, not of man's body apart from his soul or his spirit, but of the whole man. The penalty of disobedience was death; and death is something that can come only to mortal beings.

In the book of Job widely different conclusions are reached by that patriarch and by his friends who came ostensibly to comfort him, but, in fact, who reprove and condemn him. We find, however, no difference of opinion as to the being and character of God; for, when Eliphaz exclaimed, "Shall mortal man be more just than God?" he was introducing no new conception of the great contrast between the nature of the divine Being and man, but was appealing to a truth recognized both by Job and by his friends. They all knew that God was immortal, and therefore ever-living, while they themselves were mortal, and therefore dying creatures.

GOD ONLY HAS IMMORTALITY

AND this same thought and understanding of the mortal dying nature of man, made so prominent in the book of Genesis, and recognized thus conspicuously in the book of Job, runs through all the Hebrew and Christian Scriptures. In both, God is declared to be immortal, and therefore ever living, while everywhere the fact of man's mortality is stressed frequently and strongly. So true is this that in 1 Timothy 6:15, 16 we find the Apostle Paul describing God as "the blessed and only Potentate, the King of kings, and Lord of lords; who only hath immortality."

How utterly vain, then, not to say presumptuous, is it for man to arrogate to himself that which inspiration plainly declares belongs only to the Creator! Should we not then give earnest heed to the counsel of Proverbs 30:5, 6: "Every word of God is pure: he is a shield unto them that put their trust in him. Add thou not unto his words, lest he reprove thee, and thou be found a liar"?

A PAGAN CONCEPTION

THE doctrine of natural, inherent immortality is not a Christian, but a pagan conception. It has come down to us, not from Hebrew, but from Greek sources. Andrew C. Zenos, M. A., D. D., LL. D., Dean and Professor of Biblical Theology in the McCormick Theological Seminary, Chicago, practically admits this in his article on Eschatology in the new Standard Bible Dictionary, in which he contrasts "the platonic doctrine of immortality" with the doctrine of the resurrection, remarking that to the Jew "immortality in any sense worth considering was, apart from the body, unthinkable."—Page 226.

The doctrine of natural, inherent immortality springs from distrust of the power of God. Its author is Satan, who, in the guise of a serpent, said to Eve: "Ye shall not surely die: for God doth know that in the day ye eat thereof, then your eyes shall be opened, and ye shall be as gods."—Genesis 3:4, 5.

And this first lie has been the chief stock in trade with all false systems of religion from that day to this. Such was the charge brought against the false teachers of Ezekiel's day: "With lies ye have made the heart of the righteous sad, whom I have not made sad; and strengthened the hands of the wicked, that he should not return from his wicked way, by promising him life."—Ezek. 13:22.

It was the hope of life independent of God that emboldened our first parents to put forth their hands and take the forbidden fruit, and that same false hope is still the will-o'-the-wisp that everywhere lures men and women into the morass of sin. But the Bible teaches the doctrine of eternal life only in Christ: "He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life: and he that believeth not the Son shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him."—John 3:36.

While men are not immortal by nature, immortality is set before men as something possible of attainment; for, in

Romans 2:7, we are told that "to them who by patient continuance in well doing seek for glory and honour and immortality," God will reward "eternal life."

Thank the Giver of all good that through Christ there is restoration to the favor of God and to eternal life at His right hand. Not from Adam by inheritance, but from Christ by gift, must immortal life come.—Calvin P. Bollman in Signs of the Times.

Abounding Iniquity

By Mrs. H. H. Kent

DURING the past decade or more, we have all seen, heard, and read of so many crimes and exceedingly sinful conditions, both in the common and the higher walks of life or society (so-called), that many have become hardened in sin, it being so common that they have become accustomed to it. The sad part of it is that many are no longer disturbed by it. Should our Lord tarry much longer, one almost shudders at the thought of what might be.

Even very young children think they must be amused and entertained all the time, for children's minds are becoming more and more active. And the little child, old enough to talk, cries to go to the movies, because he loves excitement, of which there seems to be plenty. The pity of it is that these little ones often see much more than their parents think they do. Their sharp little eyes and sensitive nervous systems, in many cases, can comprehend more than their parents ever thought of. One often wonders, Where are we drifting?

Are we surprised then that there is so much unrest? This restless, dissatisfied condition by which we are surrounded everywhere and which seems to be growing is something like a disease disturbing the nervous system. And when we judge our present conditions by God's thermometer, the Bible, truly we can say, "The wicked are like the troubled sea when it cannot rest, whose waters cast up mire and dirt."

Every age has ended in catastrophe after warnings were given by God. The majority of the people did not heed the warnings and were swept away by judgments. From present unrest and disturbed conditions everywhere, it is evident that the coming judgments will far exceed anything in the past. In preparing the church of God for the coming age, God has most wonderfully opened up the avenues of knowledge, truth, and holiness. Daniel tells us that the increase of knowledge was one sign of the end of this age. With increase of knowledge have come opportunities unheard of before, which men have seized for selfish purposes, for Satan has also been more active than he has ever been before. Men have turned the grace of God into ungodliness, craftiness, selfishness, and greed, causing much suffering everywhere. Time with God is progressing, and as He works out His program Satan is also busy. Man has either forgotten or has refused to learn that his iniquities will be handed down to his children, and that they will also share in this harvest of sin, which is usually much greater than what is sown, unless delivered by the grace of God, which is the only remedy. That alone is a great punishment when realized. As harvest time is near, it is getting rather close to many who have lived on "Easy Street," and they are becoming more and more fearful at the present outlook, which isn't very promising to anyone except those who are clinging to the Rock of Ages.

The time is coming, and we are hastening to it, when God says He "will bring distress upon men, that they shall walk like blind men, because they have sinned against the Lord." The preceding verse says, "A day of the trumpet and alarm against the fenced cities, and against the high towers." Read Zephaniah 1:14-18. Doesn't it look as if these exposures of graft in large salaries of some of our corporations are the beginning of the fulfillment of some of these scriptures? What will the end be? Surely iniquity has been abounding in many high (?) places. "Neither their gold nor their silver shall be able to deliver them in the day of the Lord's wrath." And we are hastening to that time.

People often ask, "Who is responsible for our present conditions, and the depression?" One hears many answers and solutions to this. One of the most important reasons is because they have forgotten God and are without hope. Everyone will be responsible for the attitude he has taken before God, rich or poor, but the man with wicked devices who is "at the top" will undoubtedly receive the greatest judgment. Some may see the work of a lifetime, home, and all that they held dear, swept away in the coming judgment, because they would not acknowledge God as the giver of every good and perfect gift. But the greatest loss will be that of their own life, the soul. For the soul that sins shall die. Ezek. 18:4, 20.

Many think that we will be out of the depression soon, but God's children know that conditions have gone too far now, and that we could never return to conditions as they were again, for we are rapidly nearing the end of this age and the national trouble mentioned in Daniel 12:1, 2, or the "distress of nations" as Luke calls it. It looks as if this trouble will soon be in the process of fulfillment, and it is this trouble that lies "right around the corner" and not an ever increasing prosperity as many predict. Paul tells us what we may expect (1 Thess. 5:3) when we see the distress of nations with perplexity.

It looks as if many of our leaders have done the best they could with conditions they had to meet, and we are told to pray for them, but everything being so out of harmony with God, with iniquity abounding everywhere and such a great lack of the knowledge of truth, justice, holiness, and peace, the time has come for God to act. So the nations are fighting a losing battle till they meet their defeat at Christ's return. Daniel tells us the end of this age will come at the appointed time, i. e., God's appointed time. The true church will not be in this wrath that is to be revealed from heaven (Rom. 1:18) upon all ungodliness and unrighteousness of men (1 Thess. 1:10; 5:9). For all who are overcomers escape the wrath, for they are divinely protected.

We may expect men to make a desperate effort and struggle to defend their works, but we know that whatsoever is built on sand will go down in the coming crash that almost everyone seems to be looking for, and which seems close at hand, for God is going to shake all things that can be shaken. When other ages closed, many conditions were carried over into the next age, but the cleansing and purifying will be so thorough this time when the Lord sets up His kingdom on earth we hardly know what to expect, but we rejoice because we know that justice and righteousness shall reign then. This age has had more light than any other, hence more will be expected of it. But with Christ as our King and with God's holy nation, "the church of the firstborn" (Heb. 12:22, 23), as earth's future rulers, conditions will be very, very different from anything in the past. How we sigh for that time to come as we witness the struggles of our present time! David expressed the desire of every Christian when he said, "As the hart panteth after the water brooks, so panteth my soul after thee, O God."—Psalm 42:1. Then the downtrodden with honest hearts will be given a better opportunity and all graft and corruption will be done away.

Until that time, our only hope is the God of peace that purifieth our hearts daily. He is the only refuge from these evil surroundings. The pressure of our times is such and the nervous tension so great at times that even we, as Christians, do things that we wonder at later on. It reminds us of the scripture, "If the righteous scarcely be saved, where shall the ungodly and the sinner appear?" Judgment begins with the Christian and it continues until Christ comes, when there will be deliverance. Our time is short, so let us be kind and merciful to all, for by so doing we may "pull some out of the fire."

"Ye have heard how I said unto you, I go away and come again unto you."—John 14:28.

OF UNITY IN RELIGION

Continued from Page Five

intend the same thing; and accepteth of both? The nature of such controversies is excellently expressed by St. Paul, in the warning and precept that he giveth concerning the same; "Devita profanas vocum novitates, et oppositiones falsi nominis scientiae" (1 Tim. 6:20: "Avoiding profane and vain babblings, and oppositions of science falsely so called"). Men create oppositions which are not, and put them into new terms, so fixed as, whereas the meaning ought to govern the term, the term in effect governeth the meaning. There be also two false peaces, or unities; the one, when the peace is grounded but upon an implicit ignorancè: for all colors will agree in the dark: the other, when it is pieced up upon a direct admission of contraries in fundamental points: for truth and falsehood, in such things, are like the iron and clay in the toes of Nebuchadnezzar's image; they may cleave, but they will not incorporate.

THE ORIGIN OF SIN

Continued from Front Page

of them came from the exercise of certain powers in the wrong direction. All those powers were intended for good, for when God had finished His creation work, He said, "Behold, it is very good." Everything He had created was very good.

That God did not predestine evil is shown in Jeremiah 7:31 and 32:35. I will quote 32:35: "And they built the high places of Baal, which are in the valley of the son of Hinnom, to cause their sons and their daughters to pass through the fire unto Molech; which I commanded them not, neither came it into my mind, that they should do this abomination, to cause Judah to sin."

PERFECT TRUST

It is said that during an earthquake some years ago in a small village the inhabitants were very much alarmed, and, as might be expected, some nearly wild with fear. To the amazement of many there was one old lady who was not only calm but seemed joyful. Some one said, "Mother, are you not afraid?" "No indeed! I rejoice to know I have a God that can shake the world."

How grand it is that we can have such perfect trust that no matter what comes we are not moved.

This old world and all that is in it are now on the verge of an awful shaking. God's people can rest calmly and feel secure when the old earth is passing through its fiery ordeal of purification. The child of God is safe above it all.—H. A. Mitchell in World's Crisis.

RESTITUTION

By Harvey Krogh, Jr.

UNDER the broad subject of restitution we find a study of the rise, ruin, and restoration of God's kingdom on earth. God had a kingdom here on earth at one time. Often it is just spoken of as God's nation, but it was a kingdom because it had a king and all that goes to make a kingdom.

You may remember that when God called Abraham He said to him, "I will make of thee a great nation." God was in no great hurry, He had all eternity to work out His plan in the way that is best. It was about 455 years from the time Abraham was called until a nation of probably three million people marched out of Egypt, a horde of rebellious slaves. But God was leading them; they were His nation.

At first God ruled over that people through Moses and Aaron. Then He ruled and led them by judges such as Othniel, Deborah, and Gideon. God chose which way they should go, He decided their questions and led them as long as they would follow. Later they asked for a king that they might be as other nations, so God gave them Saul to be their king. Saul was not true to God and David was his successor. "Then Solomon sat on the throne of the Lord as king instead of David his father."—1 Chron. 29:23.

During Solomon's reign was the highest state of the kingdom, but sin began to creep in and as sin destroyed the much coveted conditions of the Garden of Eden so it destroyed this great kingdom. God promised those people wonderful blessings if they would keep His commandments. These are some of the promises: "Blessed shall be the fruit of thy body, and the fruit of thy ground, and the fruit of thy cattle, the increase of thy kine, and the flocks of thy sheep . . . The Lord shall cause thine enemies that rise up against thee to be smitten before thy face: they shall come out against thee one way, and flee before thee seven ways."—Deut. 28:4, 7.

Israel did not keep the commandments and all know that the prophecy concerning their failure is true. "The Lord shall cause thee to be smitten before thine enemies: thou shalt go out one way against them, and flee seven ways before them: and shalt be removed into all the kingdoms of the earth."—Deut. 28:25. The once proud nation of God has been scattered for twenty-five hundred years, but God has not forgotten some of His other promises.

"Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that I will raise unto David a righteous Branch, and a King shall reign and prosper, and shall execute judgment and justice in the earth. In his days Judah shall be saved, and Israel shall dwell safely: and this is his name whereby he shall be called, THE LORD OUR RIGHTEOUSNESS. Therefore, behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that they shall no more say, The Lord liveth, which brought up the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt; but, The Lord liveth, which brought up and which led the seed of the house of Israel out of the north country, and from all countries.

whither I had driven them; and they shall dwell in their own land."—Jer. 23:5-8.

Who is that righteous Branch? Matthew 1:21: "And she shall bring forth a son, and thou shalt call his name JESUS: for he shall save his people from their sins." Their sins broke their nation and led them to every corner of the earth. God said, "I will overturn, overturn, overturn, it: and it shall be no more, until he come whose right it is; and I will give it him." Ezekiel recorded those words concerning the throne of the Lord over Israel. May we enquire of Isaiah, whose right it is to be on that throne over Israel? "For unto us a child is born, . . . and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called . . . The Prince of Peace. Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to order it, and to establish it with judgment and with justice from henceforth even for ever."—Isaiah 9:6, 7. Jesus the Christ is the only one whose right it is to be such a ruler, such a prince.

The apostles were looking for that restoration of the kingdom. It was entirely fitting and proper for them to ask the Master, "Wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?"—Acts 1:6. They had a perfect right to expect the kingdom to be restored, for Jesus had before spoken to them and said, "Ye which have followed me, in the regeneration when the Son of man shall sit in the throne of his glory, ye also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel."—Matt. 19:28. It is that same Christ "whom the heaven must receive until the times of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by . . . all his holy prophets since the world began."

God's nation Israel shall be restored to the very land that God once gave them here on earth. "And they shall dwell in the land that I have given unto Jacob my servant, wherein your fathers have dwelt; and they shall dwell therein, even they, and their children, and their children's children for ever: and my servant David shall be their prince for ever."—Ezek. 37:25. David, the man after God's own heart, will be resurrected and shall be a prince over the restored kingdom, but Jesus shall be the everlasting King. At that time the peace and quietness that Israel experienced during part of Solomon's reign will be restored even as the Prophet foretells. "Moreover I will make a covenant of peace with them; it shall be an everlasting covenant with them: and I will place them, and multiply them, and will set my sanctuary in the midst of them for evermore. My tabernacle also shall be with them: yea, I will be their God, and they shall be my people. And the heathen shall know that I the Lord do sanctify Israel, when my sanctuary shall be in the midst of them for evermore."

May the day of the restitution and restoration of Israel come soon for the sake of the wandering Jew.

Abreast of the Times

Jews and Masons Excluded by Nazis

"These be the days of vengeance, that all things which are written may be fulfilled."—Luke 21:22.

BERLIN, Germany, April 5.—A mandate was issued today by the leaders of the Nazis that all Jewish members of the party must immediately resign under the new membership regulations. This action is a part of the party's effort to eliminate from public life all "undesirable elements." No person is eligible to membership whose ancestors back to the year 1800 were of the Jewish race. Marriage to a Jew also necessitates resignation, but it is said that a loophole is provided in such cases, as the regulations add, "if the marriage is continued."

According to press dispatches Freemasons are strictly excluded. If they resigned from their lodges before January 30, 1933, they may remain within the Nazi Party, but are barred from holding any party office. Members of several other orders and societies come under the new "cleaning up" policy.

Mystery of Death Probed

"The living know that they shall die: but the dead know not any thing."—Ecc. 9:5.

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—An extraordinary series of scientific efforts to find out if there is any life beyond this life and what, exactly, it feels like to be dead, was revealed here during the second session of the annual American Medical Association Convention. According to press reports investigation of these hitherto insoluble problems was made possible by the fact that Shakespeare's celebrated description of death as "that bourne from whence no traveler returns," is no longer strictly true.

About one hundred persons who have gone into the "great beyond"—who have been medically, biologically, physically, and legally "dead"—have been brought back to life and then questioned about their experience on the "other shore," was disclosed by Dr. Albert S. Hyman, of the Witken Foundation for the study and prevention of heart disease, of Beth Israel Hospital, New York.

Dr. Hyman raised these people from the "dead" with his recently devised "artificial pace-maker" of the heart. In all the patients the heart had stopped beating for at least one minute, and in some cases "death," due to heart inaction, had lasted as long as eighteen minutes. The instrument used consists of a huge needle with a slender tip which is thrust into a certain region of the heart when it has stopped finally as a result of disease or major surgical and accident shocks. Mild electrical charges and injections of various heart stimulating drugs directly into the heart tissue start the heart action again, and in a large number of cases have led to recovery from "death" itself.

Clergymen who have been attending the patients during their "last moments" first began the questioning of the recovered patients. This gave Dr. Hyman the idea of continuing the questioning systematically, he said.

Among the recovered patients were members of all the major faiths in the United States. They were asked first: "What is it like to be dead?" In all cases, with no exceptions, asserts the doctor, the former "dead" individuals answered that they had not known that they were dead, and did not feel or remember anything about the experience. Ecc. 9:2-10; Job 14:21; Psa. 115:17.

They were then asked: "Did you get even a glimpse of any other life, different from this?" To this the answer was, "No," in all cases.

Dr. Hyman said that various clergymen visited a number of the "resurrected" patients and got similar replies to like questions. He said he plans to continue the systematic questioning of patients he manages to revive from "death."

Jewish Physicians in Austria

"Certain of the children of Israel . . . skilful in all wisdom, . . . and understanding science."—Dan. 1:3, 4.

VIENNA, Austria, March 22.—"One way to describe Adolf Hitler's first year is merely to report that among Germans now in exile are five winners of Nobel prizes," observes the Buffalo Courier-Express. Germany has long been renowned for the scientific attainments of its people, and now that a division is being made between the racial elements in its population it is instructive to note how large a proportion of distinguished scientists of that country are of the Jewish race.

In spite of wide differences of political opinion that exist between Germany and Austria, the latter country is following in the footsteps of the former as far as its attitude toward the Jewish intelligentsia is concerned, and Italy is apparently preparing to emulate their example in this matter.

While the new Austrian constitution provides for Jewish representation in the Government, nevertheless much opposition is manifested, according to The Welt Blatt, organ of the Government, against what it calls the "predominance of Jews" in the learned professions. The paper reports "with satisfaction" that the process of weeding out Jewish surgeons from the Vienna hospitals has already started.

The Welt Blatt declares that of all the physicians and surgeons employed in Vienna, "the capital of the new Christian Austria," only one fifth are Catholics. Four fifths, the paper insists, are "either Jews or Free Thinkers," and "more than half of these did not become Austrian citizens until after the Socialist revolution in 1918."

National Berean Department

Miss Genniel Carpenter, Editor, Oregon, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Cecil A. Smead, President
Blanchard, Michigan

Virgil Claypool, Treasurer
506 E. Chestnut St.
Robinson, Illinois

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
Oregon, Illinois

“THOU SHALT LOVE THE LORD THY GOD WITH ALL THY HEART, AND WITH ALL THY SOUL, AND WITH ALL THY MIND. THIS IS THE FIRST AND GREAT COMMANDMENT. AND THE SECOND IS LIKE UNTO IT, THOU SHALT LOVE THY NEIGHBOUR AS THYSELF.”—MATTHEW 22:37 to 39.

ILLINOIS BEREAN REPORT FOR FEBRUARY

DIXON

The membership of the adult class was eight, the average weekly attendance seven, and interest was good.

The membership of the senior class was eleven, the average weekly attendance ten, and interest was good.

The membership of the junior class was nine, the average weekly attendance eight, and interest was fair.

—Mary McClintick, Secretary.

ELDORADO

The membership was nine, the average weekly attendance was ten, and the interest was fair.

—Mrs. Grace Wiggins, Secretary.

OREGON

The membership was thirteen, average weekly attendance was ten, and interest was fair.

—Evan Knodle, Secretary.

Edna H. Wood, State Secretary.

Use Berean lesson books for cheap distribution in place of tracts. At ten cents a copy, books containing seventy-five or more lessons on the great truths of the Bible may be secured from the National Berean Society, Oregon, Illinois. This is a saving of at least forty cents over the cost of the same thing in tract form.

“SPRINGTIME”

No more significant, spontaneous, or universally attractive festival has ever been instituted than that which celebrates the return of spring, the budding of leaves and flowers. There is good cheer in the sight of flowers lifting their faces once more towards the sunlight, after the frosts and storms of winter. The swelling seeds and changing tints of green give God's promise of the coming harvests; the songs of birds and the humming of bees remind us of the rising tide of life that surrounds us and through countless channels is rushing onward with the pulse of recurring years. In all this stir of creative energy, this bursting of winter's fetters and the renewal of life's struggles for undisputed supremacy, we feel a kindling interest and secret joy. So when it is winter in your life, snowbound and ice-bound, frozen up and frozen in, pull out the full organ stop of your soul, and let the music out, for there's a spring coming.—Anonymous.

A NEW BEGINNING

Every day is a new beginning,
Every morn is the world made new.
Ye who are weary of sorrow and sinning,
Here is a beautiful hope for you.
A hope for me and a hope for you.

All the past things are past and over,
The tasks are done and the tears are shed;
Yesterday's errors let yesterday cover,
Yesterday's wounds which smarted and bled
Are healed with the healing which night has shed.

Yesterday now is part of forever,
Bound up in a sheaf, which God holds tight,
With glad days and sad days, and bad days which never Shall visit us more with their bloom and their blight,
And fullness of sunshine, or sorrowful night.

Let them go, since we cannot relive them,
Cannot undo and cannot atone;
God in His mercy receive, forgive them;
Only the new days are our own,
Today is ours, and today alone.

Here are the skies all burnished brightly,
Here is the spent earth, all reborn;
Here are the tired limbs, springing lightly
To face the sun and to share with the morn
In the chiasm of dew and the cool of morn.

Every day is a fresh beginning;
Listen, my soul, to the glad refrain,
And spite of old sorrow and older sinning,
And puzzles forecasted and possible pain,
Take heart with the day and begin again.

—Susan Coolidge.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"Offer unto God thanksgiving."—Psalm 50:14.

GIVING TO THE MASTER

THIS is the time of year many people think is the most beautiful. Now we are beginning to think of flowers again, and playing outdoors without heavy coats and mittens. Instead of ice and snow, we have warm rains to water the little new plants starting to grow in the ground. People like to go out in the country now, too, and smell the sweet spring air and look for the very first flowers. Maybe you have done that already. If you did, what did you see? Trees and fields and farmhouses, I suppose, and people working, maybe. Now is the time when farmers drive the patient horses back and forth, back and forth, planting seeds. Did you see any cows? On some farms there are black and white Holsteins, and on others you see the brown Jersey cows that have such lovely soft-looking eyes. Aren't they pretty when they stand eating grass on a green hillside?

I wonder if you thought about who owns all the cows. If you want to know for sure, read the tenth verse of the fiftieth Psalm, where the Lord God says He owns "the cattle on a thousand hills." Think how many cows that would be! But God has given the cows and horses and every other good thing to us to use and enjoy. Everything on the earth and the great round earth itself really belong to God, for didn't He create them? God gave us all these beautiful things that surround us, to take care of and use, and every blessing that we have comes from God.

When you think of it, don't you wonder why God is so very good to us? What have we done to make God want to give us so many pleasant things? And God gave us more than food to eat and clothes to wear and comfortable homes. He loved us all so much that He gave us His Son, Jesus. Can you find the verse in the Bible that says so? We can't realize what wonderful blessings Jesus brings to us. God is going to change the earth, and make it far more beautiful than it is now, and there will be nothing at all that is bad or unpleasant anywhere on the earth. If we are good followers of Jesus, we may live in that wonderful new earth.

Hasn't God given us many lovely gifts? How good it is to be alive and able to enjoy them, and how grateful we must all be for them! It makes us want to do something to show God how glad and thankful we are, doesn't it?

Maybe you think you have nothing to give. But you have! It isn't only your pennies and nickels that are needed to carry on the work Jesus started while He was here. Oh, no. Think of all the boys and girls you know—do they all go to Sunday school? Look around you, and you will see things you can do to please the heavenly Father, who has given us so much.

"Give of your best to the Master,
Give of the strength of your youth;
Throw your soul's fresh, glowing ardor
Into the battle for truth.
Jesus has set the example,
Dauntless was He, young and brave;
Give Him your loyal devotion,
Give Him the best that you have.

"Give of your best to the Master,
Give Him first place in your heart;
Give Him first place in your service,
Consecrate every part;
Give, and to you shall be given,
God His beloved Son gave,
Gratefully seeking to serve Him,
Give Him the best that you have."

—Genniel Carpenter.

ABOUT THE LESSON

OUR lesson tells about a young man whom Jesus told to give away his possessions and to follow Him. He would not, for his heart was set upon his riches. He should have obeyed Jesus, for God really owns everything that we have, and He has a right to tell us what to do with it. We show that we believe that God owns everything when we give Him a part of the money we get. Money is needed to send missionaries, to carry on the work of the church, and to relieve those in distress. . . .

We do not have a right to waste the money that God entrusts to us and helps us to obtain. What are ways of wasting money? It is proper to use some money to give us pleasure, as well as to buy things we must have. If young people earn more money than they need to use, they should strive to save some with which to go to college. Some may be spent for good books and papers if one's parents do not provide them. Young people should talk over the use of their money with their parents.—Arnold's Practical Commentary.

The Sunday School Lesson

FROM TRUTH SEEKERS' QUARTERLY

LESSON 4.—April 22, 1934

OUR ALL FOR THE KINGDOM

Matthew 19:1-30

Devotional Reading: Psalm 50:7-15

GOLDEN TEXT

It is more blessed to give than to receive.—Acts 20:35.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic: Our All for the Kingdom.

Aim: We should be willing to give all we have that we may gain eternal life in the kingdom of God when Jesus comes.

Basic Truth: "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you."—Matt. 6:33.

I. The Danger of Riches. (Matt. 19:16-23.)

The young man who came to Jesus with his important question concerning the conditions of salvation had several admirable qualities. He was sincere. He had tried to live in harmony with the requirements of the law of Moses. He was not seeking to entangle Jesus by his question. Not a hint is made against his character. He was faithful in his worship of Jehovah as it was practiced by the Jews. His one great fault was that he placed a higher valuation on material things than he did on eternal life. His outward life was blameless, but inwardly he was governed by selfishness. Jesus, seeing into his heart, admonished him to cut loose from the sin that prevented complete consecration to God.

II. Man's Ways Are Not God's Ways. (Matt. 19:24-26.)

The disciples were amazed that one who had kept the law faithfully and had apparently been blessed with riches by God could not enter the kingdom. They were judging from what they could see on the surface of the young man's life. They were looking upon salvation as something that could be bought with money or with works. They had not yet learned that eternal life was the "gift of God through faith which is in Christ Jesus," and would only be bestowed upon those whose hearts had been cleansed by the power of the gospel. This was something which men could not accomplish, it was something which God alone could bring to pass.

III. The Reward of Faith. (Matt. 19:27-30.)

Peter and his fellow disciples had "left all" to follow Jesus, and now they wanted to know how they were to be rewarded. Jesus did not reprove them for their question, but plainly said that not only they, but all others who gave their lives into His keeping, would be rewarded a hundredfold in this present time, and receive eternal life in the world to come.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Freewill offering

- of one's substance is well pleasing to God;
- of self is essential to salvation;
- unto the Lord should be given with simplicity;
- should be bountifully given with thanksgiving.

We often forget that all our possessions come from God and in reality belong to Him.

Even "the cattle upon a thousand hills" are God's (Psalm 50:10). These material blessings oftentimes through improper use prove to be our undoing. When this happens, the blessing is by man's own act turned into a curse. Man is merely a steward of these Heaven-given blessings and will be held responsible and accountable for their use. The breakdown in the world's economic structure can be directly and easily traced to a false stewardship.

True Stewardship. There are several requirements or rules governing true stewardship.

1. We must recognize the Source of those things over which we are stewards.
2. We must be willing to adjust ourselves to the wishes of Him who appoints us as His stewards. For instance:
 - a. "Honour the Lord with thy substance, and with the firstfruits of all thine increase."—Prov. 3:9; 2 Cor. 9:6-12.
 - b. "He that giveth unto the poor shall not lack."—Prov. 28:27; 1 Cor. 16:1-3.
 - c. "Distributing to the necessity of saints; given to hospitality," and ever ready to "communicate" the carnal for the spiritual. Rom. 12:13; Heb. 6:10; 13:16; 1 Cor. 9:9-14.—C. E. B.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"It is more blessed to give than to receive."

To be able to give is indeed a great blessing. To be willing to give is Christlike. Christ gave His all even to the death on the cross for the good of others. He gave not money, but blood. Some people seem to think that the more they can get from another the happier they will be, but true happiness does not come that way. Christ taught the opposite.

Our text is the words of the Master, and He knew the Father's will. He knew the true meaning of giving, and gave in service the things which counted for more than money. Since blessings come from the Father, and it is more blessed to give than to receive, it must be the Father's will that Christians give of whatever they have, whether it be money, time, service, or any other thing which they may possess. Let us be willing and Christlike.

—L. A. R.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULTS

All things in this world are God's by right of creation (Rev. 4:11; Hag. 2:8). David recognized God's right of possession. He wrote: "I will take no bullock out of thy house, nor he goats out of thy folds. For every beast of the forest is mine, and the cattle upon a thousand hills. . . . If I were hungry, I would not tell thee: for the world is mine, and the fulness thereof."—Psalm 50:9-12. We, recklessly, lay claim to the goods of this world. We assume full right of possession, but it must be remembered that "we brought nothing into this world, and it is certain we can carry nothing out."

Because all belongs to God. He had a perfect right to demand the best of the herd or the flock as a sacrifice. He is still within His rights to demand a tenth of our incomes today. We can plant and water but we must turn to, and rely upon, God to give the increase. We recognize our stewardship by returning a portion to Him in tithes and offerings. Job said: "If I have made gold my hope, or have said to the fine gold, Thou art my confidence; . . . I should have denied the God that is above."—Job 31:24, 28.

God's work is largely unsupported today because we do not properly recognize the superior rights of God. Israel robbed God in tithes and offerings and were cursed with a curse (Mal. 3:8, 9). Our nation today is in distress because its people are not recognizing God. They have robbed Him as did Israel. The days of prosperity were not prosperity for the church. When the depression (God's judgment) came, the church was the first to suffer. Can God bless such a stewardship?

—H. A. S.

PRIMARY CLASS

Memory Verse: "Come and follow me."

When Jesus went about teaching the people, some of them often wondered what they could do to get the eternal life that Jesus so often spoke to them about.

Once a young man came to Jesus and asked, "What good thing shall I do, that I may have eternal life?"

Jesus answered by saying some of the ten commandments. (Teacher should give these.)

The young man said, "Why, I have done all these things."

Then Jesus said, "If you really want to be good, go sell all you own and give the money to the poor."

But the young man must have been just a mite selfish, for the Bible says he went away feeling very sad, for he was a rich man. No, we can't be selfish and expect to have eternal life.

At another time Peter said, "Who then will be saved? (Or, as the young man said, "Have eternal life?") We have given up everything and followed You, now what shall we (the disciples) receive?"

Jesus answered, "You shall each sit upon one of the twelve thrones, and rule the twelve tribes of Israel."

Now that seems to be a very great reward, does it not? But Jesus didn't stop here, He said, "Come and follow me." If we do, He has promised that we shall have everlasting life and shall be rulers in God's kingdom, also. Each day He says, "Come and follow me." Who is ready now to follow?—V. C. T.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

ARE YOU ON THE MAP?

from each church, grouping all your features together. Begin to prepare now so that your space will be filled with suggestions and projects of value to all in attendance. That popular department at General Conference will need contributions from every one of our churches if it is to be of the greatest value to all. Begin to plan your exhibit now.

Mary A. Gesin,
Esta L. Starbuck,
Genniel Carpenter—Committee.

HELENA, OKLAHOMA

The churches of this town united for services during the week before Easter. The meetings were held in a different church each night, with no pastor speaking in his own church. The interest and attendance were splendid throughout. It was the writer's privilege to speak on Thursday night in the Methodist Church. These services were surely inspirational to all.

Easter morning we assisted with a sunrise prayer service which forty of the young people attended. I think this was splendid because the time was 5:30. Breakfast was served to all at the close of the service.

Easter was a beautiful day in every sense of the word. The weather was ideal. One hundred forty-five were present for the Sunday school hour. A fifteen minute program by the children was well presented and much appreciated. Many new faces in addition to all the familiar ones greeted us at the worship hour. A reverent, worshipful attitude prevailed through the entire service. We truly thank our Father in heaven for our Easter day services.

We had planned to spend this week in Arkansas City getting acquainted with the brethren there, but the meetings had to be postponed on account of the illness of several of their members. We are hoping to be able to go in the near future, however.

Lucille LeCrone.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

Easter day brought not only a splendid attendance of local people, but several from a distance to help celebrate the resurrection of our Lord. The Sunday school was jammed with 334 and the house was filled for morning worship. Beautiful lilies, palms, and other decorations made a pleasing spring scene.

In the afternoon a baptismal service was held, followed by extending the hand of fellowship to five new adult members, and the communion service. Those received into the church upon that occasion are: George Witham, 239 Himes, S. E.; Mrs. Herman Hilliker, 331 Walter, S. E.; Mrs. Merton Sleeper, 3419 Oakley Ave., S. W.; Mrs. Harold Rice, 15 Antoine, S. W.; and Mrs. Katherine Hoag, 3647 Florence, S. E.

The church is happy to have these add their strength and faith to the cause, and prays for God's guidance in the future work.

A very appropriate Easter cantata was rendered at night to an overpacked house, and many were the expressions of gratitude for the manner in which the activities of the day had been arranged—all definitely connected with the great Easter theme—resurrection.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

An unusually large group enjoyed the Easter program both at Sunday school and worship service in Los Angeles. At Sunday school the children and young people performed under the direction of a committee headed by Sr. Hazel Cripe. At the regular worship hour the special features were musical numbers by a women's and a men's choir.

At a meeting of the Conference Board held at the home of the President in the afternoon plans were matured for the coming quarterly conference to be held on the first Sunday in May. At the Sunday school hour the special features of the program will be in charge of the Pomona group in charge of Sr. Adamson. At 10:45 will begin the regular worship service, Bro. E. E. Groat of Hanford being the principal speaker. Following the sermon will be held the communion in charge of Bro. W. A. Reid of Riverside. After picnic lunch at the park the afternoon service will be called at 2:00 and will consist of fifteen minute talks by various leaders, interspersed with choir and congregational and instrumental music. Those who live in California should make note of the time and place of the conference meetings: the Williams Street Chapel in Pomona, May 6, 9:45 a. m.

Norman John MacLeod, Pres.,
California Conference of the Churches of God.

A THOUGHT-PROVOKING LETTER

Easter Sunday we took Miss Leona Marsh and a friend of ours, Emir Burget of Ft. Wayne, Ind., with us and drove to Burr Oak to hear Bro. Austin's Sunday morning Easter sermon. We arrived there in time to attend Sunday school. We had a drive of ninety-five miles, so we were really desirous of hearing Bro. Austin. We were wonderfully inspired by his message and felt ourselves spiritually paid for our effort.

We wish we lived near enough to hear him every service. It is wonderful to have such an inspiring leader. We pray God may bring a strong spiritual awakening to this church that the whole surrounding community may look upon them as a shining light in the world, that they may grasp their duty or rather their privilege of being God's chosen vessels for the Master's use.

May we remember "if God so loved us, then we ought to so love one another." When this spirit prevails in the local church body, then God's Spirit will work amongst those of the world.

It is not the bringing of worldly entertainment into the church that brings the people of the world into the church, but the bringing of God's Spirit into the heart of every member of the church until it overflows into the world; then the people of the world will see we have that peace and joy which they do not have; then will we find people seeking the Lord in our places of worship.

If it is true that when we give of our earthly or temporal blessings to the Lord He will repay us and bless us a hundredfold, how much more will He bless us if we are filled with His Spirit and go our way rejoicing, pouring out our joy unto others.

We need the spirit of reverence in the church; it is not the place for the gossip and laughter of the world. Let our joy be in the Lord. Mr. and Mrs. Russell Harman.

EASTER AT CLEVELAND, OHIO

Joy and thanksgiving is the prevailing sentiment at the Church of the Golden Rule because of the happiest and most successful Easter services held here in many years. All classes were out in force to smash the Sunday school attendance record and set a new one at 247, which is fifteen more than the former record.

But the church services provided the reason for the most rejoicing. Easter marked the conclusion of our week of evangelistic meetings, during which fourteen came forward for baptism, twelve of whom are adults who will bring an immediate addition of working strength to the church. The interest was especially good throughout the week, and attendance, while not unusually large, was consistent.

Eight were baptized, four on Good Friday, and four on Easter morning, and were received into church fellowship. Meet our new members: Mrs. R. V. Spencer, 13614 McElhattan Ave.; Mrs. J. Tekanic, 14125 Jenne Ave.; Mr. Bruce Thompson, 1434 W. 77th St.; Mr. Fred Austin, 13608 Othello Ave.; Mrs. Ella Berryhill, 13814 Deise Ave.; Mrs. Opal Melvin, 13814 Deise Ave.; Mr. Willis McMurtrie, 12515 Gruss Ave.; Mr. Thomas Hall, 13810 Kelso Ave.

All of these have been actively associated with our church for quite awhile, except Bros. Thompson and McMurtrie, both young men, who have been attending only a few weeks. Bro. Thompson is a college student here in Cleveland; Bro. McMurtrie is a brother to Geo. McMurtrie, one of our deacons. Srs. Spencer and Tekanic are the mothers of growing families which form part of our large Sunday school. Sr. Melvin is a daughter of Sr. Berryhill, and both have been active for quite awhile. Bros. Austin and Hall are the heads of families whose wives have for years been members of our congregation.

Another baptismal service is being planned for the Sunday after Easter, and still another later in the spring. Already there are several others who have become interested in our doctrines and are asking to join a study class. For all this we are thankful, and feel that the Lord has blessed us above anything we deserve. Our membership is now eighty-one, and is just double what it was when our church building was dedicated five and a half years ago.

Our people have been giving special attention to the study and practice of prayer, and we attribute much of the blessings we have received directly to this.

M. W. Lyon, Pastor.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO DOLLAR-A-MONTH CLUB

Mrs. Eva H. M. Fletcher; Mrs. Helen M. Chisholm; Albert Siple ($2); Mrs. A. M. Siple; Ella M. Siple; N. Goodreau ($3); Golden Rule Berean Society ($7); Adult Class, Golden Rule S. S. ($3); Golden Rule S. S. ($3); Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Updike; A. L. Corbaley ($3).

CONTRIBUTIONS TO N. B. I.

Norman John MacLeod	$ 5.00
South Bend, Ind., S. S. (Easter Offering)	10.00
R. H. Judd (Easter Offering)	1.15
Mr. and Mrs. Russell Harman	1.10

SURPRISE WEDDING

Overmyer - Railsback

All Nature was glittering and sparkling at Burr Oak, Ind., on Sunday morning, March 18, 1934. A heavy fall of snow had dressed field and orchard in spotless white. As the rising sun sped its radiant rays to greet the un-kissed crystals on the leafless twigs, the whole landscape responded with joyous glisterings in bewildering maze.

Some of the roadways were impassable throughout the day. But most of them yielded to the efforts of worshippers, of whom a goodly number, in excess of usual attendance, gathered at the Burr Oak Church of God for ten o'clock Sunday school. Others arrived for the hour of worship at eleven.

At close of service the congregation was seated and Sr. Jacob Vanderweele of Argos was called to preside at the piano. Soon, upon the arm of his brother, Dewey Overmyer, Albert Overmyer marched down the right aisle. The querying audience was awakened to realization when Miss Evelyn Railsback, daughter of Bro. and Sr. Victor Railsback of Argos, proceeded down the left aisle, accompanied by her sister Norma. The parties met before the pulpit when the temporary pastor, F. L. Austin, received from these two young people of high esteem in their respective churches and communities, their mutual vows of lifelong love and fidelity, after which he solemnized their marriage each to the other in accordance with the laws of Holy Writ, and commended them to Him who guides to godliness and life eternal.

After partaking of a wedding feast at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Overmyer went to the home of the groom's mother, Mrs. Della Overmyer, near Culver, Ind., where they will make their home and where the groom, aided by his life-companion, will continue to farm his own and his mother's lands.

Many are the friends whose best wishes go out to this new home and who unite in prayer to God for their continued faithfulness in Christian word and work till the prize of the high calling shall be theirs. F. L. Austin.

ST. CLOUD, MINNESOTA

Our pre-Easter services came to a close Sunday, April 1. We were blessed by the good attendance with one confession, and Sunday night following the pageant given by the young people, twenty-four came forward to rededicate their lives in service. The pageant rendered refreshed our memories of Jesus' crucifixion to His ascension. The church was filled and all enjoyed the spiritual atmosphere. The choir with their splendid music added greatly to the service.

In the forenoon I spoke to a good attendance on the subject, "In Remembrance of Me"; following we observed the Lord's Supper. Our young people at 6:00 a.m. had a sunrise prayer service with fifteen present.

Last but not least, we were surprised and blessed by having with us during the day Bro. George Randall, Bro. Emil Fredlund, wife, and daughter Roslaid, and Clara Broberg of Mora.

There are so many coming to our services that need salvation. We are working diligently to bring them into the Abrahamic faith during this year. Pray for us, that God will use us more than ever, and that we may recognize our weakness and dependence on the heavenly Father's arm of strength.

A. E. Hoskins, Pastor.

SPECIAL INDEBTEDNESS FUND

Previously reported	$622.50
Mrs. Rena Willard	2.00
Mrs. Eva Phelps	3.00
Mrs. E. A. Gordon	2.00
Gerald Cooper	5.00
Mrs. Charles Jewell	5.00
Hammond, La., Berean Society	10.00

Total	$649.50
Pledges reported	659.00

Total pledges and contributions $1308.50

NOT QUITE ENOUGH THIS WEEK

We are still climbing, but we did not advance enough during the past week to make possible the marking up of another rung in the ladder. Interest in the effort has not slackened up in the least, judging from the letters that reach us, as for instance one from an aged sister in Florida, who says, "I am enclosing five dollars. It will help a little. My son sent me a little money and I wish I could send a hundred."

It is such sacrifice and devotion as this that makes it possible for The Restitution Herald to be continued and the indebtedness of the Institution met in these trying times.

BETWEEN YOU AND ME—

Again the St. Cloud, Minn., church has put on a most inspiring Easter program which is brought to our attention in a unique and attractive bulletin issued by the artistic pastor of the church, Eld. A. E. Hoskins.

With deepest sorrow we learn of the death of Bro. A. J. Chaplin of Arkansas City, Kan. In a recent issue attention was called to his serious illness. May God comfort his dear ones! Obituary will appear later.

The "Prayer Circle" of the Church of the Golden Rule of Cleveland, Ohio, continues its study of prayer from various standpoints, and is apparently finding it both a profitable and an interesting effort. Of course, under the general oversight of Pastor M. W. Lyon, the Bible would be the text-book employed.

Speaking of this active Cleveland congregation, we notice the following from their latest bulletin regarding the Sunday school: "We are growing steadily and consistently. Our present enrollment stands at 256, with an average attendance of 208 for last quarter, or 83 per cent."

Do not fail to note the rapid approach of "Conference Time." How many conferences, including the General Conference at Oregon, Ill., will you be able to attend this summer?

An interesting letter from Pastor C. E. Randall, Fonthill, Ont., concerning our editorial of March 13, entitled "A Friendly Gesture," will appear in our next issue. Bro. Randall strongly favors closer relations with the Advent Christian brethren.

The special services at Burr Oak, Ind., brought to a close Easter Sunday by Bro. F. L. Austin, resulted in one baptism and four additions to the church by letter. This new work so encouragingly started, gives promise of a general renewal of Christian activity in that community, and opens up a wide field of opportunity for future effort. A full report will be given later.

"We surely enjoy the weekly visits of The Restitution Herald," write Bro. and Sr. Richard E. Powell of Eureka, Calif., "and appreciate the efforts of each one that helps to make it so interesting, helpful, and instructive." We join these brethren in the prayer that we may all "be faithful until He comes."

The encouraging news reaches us that the brethren of Texas are trying to arrange to hold a state conference next July. The Lone Star State has been in the past one of the strongholds of the church, and we pray that it may again come into its own, and carry forward the banner of Christ's coming and kingdom as energetically as it did for so many years.

Sr. Mary A. Gesin, editor of our Children's Page, continues on the highway to complete recovery from her recent operation in St. Anthony's Hospital in Rockford, Ill. Could you drop into her room you would realize in a moment that she was remembered by her many friends, as sometimes it is difficult to find places for all of the beautiful flowers that are sent in to cheer her up. Let us not forget her in our prayers.

Let's climb the Ladder to Success

MODERN MOVEMENTS IN PALESTINE

Continued from Page Four

(Merrill, in the International Bible Encyclopedia). The coast plains are as fertile as is the land in the rich, highly cultivated European countries bordering on the Mediterranean. The Esdraelon Valley, north of Mount Carmel, cutting across Palestine in a southeastern direction to the Jordan, is a large and very fertile territory.

Following the Great War, Palestine was assigned to England under a mandate, one of the terms of which was that the land should be opened up to immigration by the Jews for the purpose of establishing a national home for the Jewish race. Many thousands of these people have migrated to Palestine in the past eight years. Some were disappointed and have returned to their former homes. However, at the end of 1925 there was in Palestine a settled Jewish population of about 135,000. The immigration rules now provide for admission according to the trade needs. In the fall of 1925 no barbers or shoemakers were needed; but there was need for more than a hundred tailors, so that class was favored.

Two powerful agencies are now at work in Palestine and give promise that future years shall see at least a measure of the country's former industry and prosperity restored.

1. The British Government. About eight years ago the British authorities established a Department of Agriculture. Through this department the Arabs are being taught better orchard and farm methods, the use of modern tools, how to control disease among the animals and in the fields, how to rebuild terrace walls on fertile hillsides, and how to provide better sanitary conditions in homes and villages.

2. Greatest results in improved agriculture are being realized through the efforts of the Zionist Organization. Fully two thirds of the Jewish immigrants are being settled upon the soil. There are now more than one hundred agricultural colonies scattered over the country—a few in Judea, but most of them in the coast plain and in the fertile valleys of Galilee. In the Plain of Esdraelon these colonies have sprung up as if by magic during the past five years. In striking contrast with the wretched farming done by the Arabs, these colonies are doing modern, successful farming. Their work is under the direction, in many instances, of graduates from the University of California who were sent to that university to receive their agricultural training in a territory and climate very similar to Palestine's. In the stone dairy barns in these colonies are found stanchions from Iowa, and in the fields the most up-to-date machinery obtainable in either Europe or America. They are able to produce from two to four times as much wheat and barley per acre as their Arab neighbors. When this new, intensive farming is extended over the entire 275,000 acres now owned by the Jews, and then over the two million acres of cultivable land, and another million acres are reclaimed and put under the same kind of cultivation, the country will return to a semblance of the populous and prosperous condition which prevailed in the days of David and Solomon.

More than forty million dollars of Zionist money has been spent in Palestine in the past ten years. While most of this amount has been used directly in agricultural development, other interests have not been neglected.

Tens of thousands of trees, mostly eucalyptus, have been planted on the hills and mountains as well as in the valleys. Goat herds are being barred from certain districts, as the sides of Mount Carmel, and already the sides of that mountain are becoming hidden under a young growth of oak trees. A splendid system of road building, begun by Germany and England during the war, is being extended to every part of the country. There are now over six hundred miles of hard surface roads. Marshes are being drained. This not only lessens the malaria spots, but adds to the cultivable area. In draining one of these marshes, a well preserved portion of an old Roman irrigation plant was brought to view. This has been repaired and is now being used again as it was and where it was a thousand years ago.

In the matter of manufacturing and allied industries Palestine is on the same economic plane with any other country. A good beginning has been made. The following are some of the industries already established: (1) Milling of flour. There is a large mill at Haifa. (2) Production of oils and soap. (3) Making bricks and tiles. (4) Bottling mineral waters. (5) Making simple furniture. (6) Making boots, shoes, and wearing apparel. (7) Making sanitary and mechanical appliances. (8) In October, 1925, the Portland Cement Company began operating a cement plant five miles from Haifa. (9) Printing. (10) Manufacturing hats. (11) Making confectionery.

One great necessity in the development of the country is electricity for lighting and for power. Tel-Aviv, a new Jewish city on the coast—a city with broad, paved streets, waterworks, and sewer system—and Haifa and Tiberius are now furnished with electric lights and power furnished by fuel-power plants. The same wealthy company that owns these fuel-power plants secured a concession, signed by the British Government in March, 1926, for putting a dam across the Jordan River below Lake Galilee where the Jordan River falls 550 feet in two miles, and building a water-power plant which will produce enough electric current to furnish light and power for manufacturing and for pumping water from wells for irrigation for the whole country. This great project will raise the level of Lake Galilee one or two feet, and the control of the spring floods in this way will conserve water that can be carried along the eastern slopes of the Jordan Valley for the irrigation of some thirty thousand acres of good land. Work on the building of the great dam has been started.

Such are some of the striking changes in Palestine which are deeply interesting Bible students and which are forcibly reminding us of the prophecies made centuries ago of a return of the scattered Jews to a permanent settlement in their own land. Perhaps these modern movements are the beginning of the fulfillment of those prophecies.—Arnold's Practical Commentary.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 23

OREGON, ILLINOIS, APRIL 17, 1934

NUMBER 29

"MY KINGDOM"

By T. A. Drinkard

BY divine right according to promise Jesus Christ had a legal right to call the coming kingdom His. He could truly say that it was "not of this world" by way of order or make-up, as well as age or dispensation. He was born to be a king; not only so, but to "bear witness unto the truth" as well. The truth of the matter was that in due time when He became a king He would verify the Word of God by the establishment of this kingdom of promise.

God has given a description of the kingdom and its location, but Modernists have sought to change much of this by what is termed spiritualizing, thus withholding the true meaning from those who would accept the gospel message concerning it. The kingdom system has never been acceptable to those "blind leaders of the blind." It was not accepted in the days when Jesus Christ walked and talked among men, neither is it now. To convince yourself of this, bring the message of the kingdom to some of your near friends and ask them to give you their thoughts relative thereto. I suggest that some of them will spiritualize the true meaning away. God wants men and women to know His truth; to understand the seeming mysteries of the kingdom as Jesus promised, saying, "Unto you it is given to know these things."

It is true that we meet criticism along the way as we repeatedly say that it was not God's will to establish the kingdom during this age, not until Jesus Christ should come the second time.

Far back upon the pages of written prophecy we read, "I will overturn, overturn, overturn, it: and it shall be no more, until he come whose right it is; and I will give it him."—Ezek. 21:27. I want you to notice these statements very carefully. God had them recorded for all men to read, especially for those whose hearts are only satisfied by feeding upon the Word of God (Matt. 4:4), namely, (a) "I will overturn it"; (b) "it shall be no more";

"Jesus answered, My kingdom is not of this world: if my kingdom were of this world, then would my servants fight, that I should not be delivered to the Jews: but now is my kingdom not from hence."—John 18:36.

(c) "until he come whose right it is"; (d) "I will give it him."

Facts lead us to believe that Jesus Christ is the one to whom reference is made. He appeared once in the end of what may be termed the Jewish world and died for the sins of men. Heb. 9:26, 28. His second coming is assured by the promises given. Whatever may have been written which seemingly teaches that the kingdom would or could be established this side of the coming of Jesus Christ the second time is fully explained by several scriptures.

The first I wish to call your attention to is, "He added and spake a parable (first) because he was nigh to Jerusalem, and (second) because they thought that the kingdom of God should immediately appear. He said therefore, A certain nobleman went into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom, and to return."—Luke 19:11, 12. They no doubt based their idea upon such scriptures as Matthew 3:1, 2; 4:17; 10:5-7.

These scriptures can only be understood by unlocking them with the key of Him "who quickeneth the dead, and calleth those things which be not as though they were" (Rom. 4:17). The scriptures were perfectly safe and reliable. They misunderstood and misapplied them. Jesus Christ herein dethrones the thought that the kingdom could or would be set up during His personal ministry.

Coming to the cross, following Him on through death and resurrection, we come to the moment of His ascension when He was preparing to leave them. "They asked of him, saying, Lord, wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?"—Acts 1:6. This verifies Luke 19:11, 12 and shows that the kingdom's establishment had not taken place. The kingdom here is the very same one of Ezekiel 21:25-27 and Daniel 2:44; 7:27.

Coming to Acts 15:14-18, we notice that before the kingdom could or would be established God would visit the Gentile people for the (Please turn to Page Nine)

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879.

G. Eldred Marsh, Editor

Two Dollars per Year

Paul C. Johnson, Associate Editor

"It shall be said in that day, Lo, this is our God; we have waited for him, and he will save us: this is the Lord; we have waited for him, we will be glad and rejoice in his salvation."—Isaiah 25:9.

MADE FOR THYSELF, O GOD!

Made for Thyself, O God!

Made for Thy love, Thy service, Thy delight;
Made to show forth Thy wisdom, grace, and might;
Made for Thy praise, when veiled archangels laud.
Oh, strange and glorious thought, that we may be A joy to Thee!

Yet the heart turns away

From this grand destiny of bliss, and deems
'Twas made for its poor self, for passing dreams,
Chasing illusions melting day by day,
Till for ourselves we read on this world's best,
"This is not rest!"

—Frances Ridley Havergal.

THOSE SILVER SHIRTS

THE political transformation through which the world is now struggling might well be called "The Age of the Varicolored Shirts." The red shirts of Russia, the black of Italy, the brown of Germany, the blue of Ireland, and now the silver shirts of the United States, to say nothing of the shades adopted in England, New Zealand, and other lands as the official uniform colors of various political factions and parties, almost make one's head reel with their kaleidoscopic hues!

Behind these rainbow tints that cover the backs of marching men in practically all parts of the world there is a significance that is far from amusing. In fact, the student of the Bible finds in all of these strange developments, so different in their place of origin, and frequently so antagonistic one to the other, a unity of principle that is at once sinister and prophetic; for, without exception, these varicolored shirts are the uniforms of world revolutionaries whose avowed determination it is to overturn institutions of democracy which mankind has been painfully building up for ages, and to establish in their place an autocratic dictatorship that means a reversion to the ancient tyrannical absolutism from which humanity has struggled so long to escape.

It is astonishing to one unfamiliar with prophecy to observe the rapidity with which this great political upheaval has taken place, how republic after republic has been changed almost in a night to some form of dictatorial government. A recent writer has said that "the progenitor of Fascism was the Communist International set up by the Moscow dictators at the beginning of 1919. At that time, Bolshevism started out to conquer the world. The methods it employed consisted of the abuse of democracy, the wrecking of socialist labor unions and political parties, conspirative propaganda, terrorist tactics in combat, and military forms of organization. These methods were all adopted by Fascism."—Today.

Nearly one fourth the population of the world lives today under some form of dictatorship. If we were to include the vast population of China in this estimate, which no doubt should be done, we would find that almost if not quite half the people living on earth are ruled by dictators.

Soviet Russia, with its communistic dictatorship, governs 168,000,000, while the following nations are listed under Fascism: Germany, with its population of 66,000,000; Italy, with its 42,000,000; Poland, 32,000,000; Yugoslavia, 14,000,000; Turkey, 14,000,000; Hungary, 8,700,000; Austria, 6,750,000; and Estonia, 1,150,000. A glance at the map will show that the larger part of Europe is now under the rulership of dictators.

Attempts are being made to cover up the fact that the present "Silver Shirts" movement in this country has relation to the Nazis and Fascists of Europe, but it is apparent that the underlying purpose is the same. The Silver Shirts are said to distribute literature in an envelope inscribed as follows: "Halt Gentile! Act to Save Your Home, Your Family, Your Country, and Your Constitution. In this envelope you will find The Truth about the Alien International Bankers, Communists in Our Government, The Secret World Conspiracy."

That the movement, like that of the Nazis in Germany, includes a special effort to eradicate the Jews from American political life is obvious. One can sympathize with the patriotic thought behind the effort, for beyond a doubt the leaders of the Russian communistic movement are mostly Jews. But it is not the patriotic meaning for which we seek at this time, but the divine and prophetic.

To what, then, does this world-wide demand for dictators point? There can be but one answer. The nations are preparing to accept with welcoming arms the greatest dictator of all time, the Antichrist!

A Dream of Life

By Lyman Booth

THE voice of a man who was possessed of much worldly goods and commanding influence came to me in the silence of the night and said, "Why do you live in such a small, insignificant house, where the surrounding scenery is mainly what nature has supplied, in a small village where the society is of the plebeian class, with little or no evidence of any knowledge of the arts and sciences as found in abundance in large cities? I say, why do you continue to live here amid such scenes when you could have a larger place, dwelling in a mansion? Instead of merely existing as you do, you might be enjoying the exciting pastime of the day, and associating with a more refined and fashionable society."

To his queries I made reply, "My dear sir, I do not live here. It is true I labor, eat, and sleep here, and find rest and comfort beneath a humble roof, but it is not my home. It is only a transient stopping place.

A person's home is that sphere in which his interests lie, and upon which his affections are centered. Where his treasures are, there will his heart be. You may live in opulence, in extravagant indulgences, in the pleasures of the senses, in the height of fashion, and revel in the lap of luxury and ease, and still be miserable. An inordinate desire for gain may drive contentment from your mind, sleep from your eyes, and rest from your body. Finally, with bitter lamentations and many mournful regrets, close your eyes for the last time upon the things you have ever held near and dear to your heart, and sink down into the silence of the tomb without one ray of hope for the future.

"Though you may be the royal heir to a kingly throne, I would not exchange positions with you. You are welcome to your palace. I do not covet it. I prefer a humble cottage where peace and contentment sweetly reign. This is only a pilgrim's camping tent. My home is in a foreign land that is fairer than day. My citizenship is in that glorious realm. My title to it is in heaven, written by the hand of God, and my life is hid with Christ in God. Here life is but a vapor; there the life of its citizens will never end. They will know no sorrow, nor feel any pain, nor grow old and feeble.

"While tenting here I never feel lonely, for I have many friends with whom I visit daily. Their society is the purest in the world, their honor is untarnished with evil, their knowledge the most profound. They bring to me sweet messages of love from the Father above, which have circled the globe. They are repeated in all languages and gladden the hearts of millions. They have made joyous the lives of many, and filled the minds of others with the unflinching hope of life beyond the shadows and gloom of death.

"I visit with Moses and love to have him recount his experiences in his service as the mightiest general that ever led a people from bondage, and besides this honor he bears the envied title of being a friend of God. Another of my distinguished guests is the sweet singer of Israel. His psalms and hymns have never lost their melody. Besides Moses and David I have frequent calls from the prophets, who wrote and spoke as utterance was given them by God's Spirit.

"I am living with the ancient fathers and prophets, who through faith beheld a world filled with the glory of God. I am living with Jesus and His apostles. I love the story of their labors of love and mercy, and of their journeys from place to place preaching the "glad tidings of the kingdom of God" and to witness the miracles and deeds of kindness to the sick and afflicted; and when I stand beside the tomb and hear the call, 'Lazarus, come forth,' I marvel at His mighty power, and then I hear the assuring promise 'that all who are in the grave shall . . . come forth' also. He leads me through the Garden of Gethsemane up to Olivet's rugged steep to Golgotha's brow to be offered as a ransom for the sin of the world where, in His agony, He prayed for His persecutors' forgiveness. In this He proved His love for sinners and has left the consoling promise to His faithful servants that they shall live because He is alive—was dead, and is alive for evermore.

"I also listen to Paul as he stands on Mars' Hill, preaching to the assem-

What Must I Do to Be Saved?

Can this question be answered intelligibly in two hundred words or less? We invite our readers to make the attempt. A competent committee, not of our editorial force, will pass on the answers submitted and the four that are considered to be the most clearly and scripturally expressed will be published soon after the contest closes, together with the names of all contestants. Each of the four winners will receive as a reward for his effort a copy of the one hundred page book, "The Way of Life Eternal," by Lyman Booth.

The rules governing the contest are simple. (1) Answers must be limited to two hundred words. (2) They must be written legibly and on but one side of the sheet. (3) Ministers are barred from participation. (4) No manuscripts are to be returned. (5) Answers must reach this office not later than May 10, 1934. (6) One need not be a subscriber to this paper in order to enter the contest.

Here is an opportunity for you to express your understanding of the conditions of salvation as they are given in the Bible, and perhaps help some one to find the truth as it is in Christ Jesus.

bled multitude the truth concerning the unknown God. I love to listen to his story of love and devotion to the heavenly message till he ends his labors in the proud city of Rome, without a murmur or regret, but with the blessed promise of a crown of endless glory.

"Last of all I visit with the beloved John in his solitude on the Isle of Patmos, and listen to his heavenly message concerning the events that trouble the nations with plagues and woes till at last universal and eternal peace shall prevail, and the redeemed millions unite in singing the glorious anthem of praise to Him that sitteth upon the throne, crowned with the diadem of universal authority and power.

"You may call me poor while you boast of a million; but I would not exchange titles to wealth with you. Your treasures will perish. Moth and rust will corrupt them. Thieves and robbers may carry them away. A man with a million may be a miserable, unhappy creature—never satisfied—always striving for more and clinging to his possessions with a miser's grasp. You have a princely fortune, but it is cumbered with many worries. I have learned the lesson to be content with little. I have food and raiment and shelter; but best of all I have the kind ministration of true and loyal friends, and am an heir to the wealth of the world. An heir of God, and a joint heir with Jesus Christ. The will has been written and is deposited in heaven's vault where moth and rust cannot corrupt and where thieves do not break through and steal. No one can deprive me of my rights but myself, and I cannot except I become reprobate."

The voice said, "You have spoken plainly and I presume truly. Although you have censured me quite severely, you have told me of things I never thought of before; but I cannot take time to parley with you. I will call at a more convenient time."

"That is just what Felix said; but we have no record that he ever called, and I greatly fear the result will be the same with you."

Definitions

THOMAS Jesse Jones, the educational director of the Phelps-Stokes Fund, is to be thanked not only for his own reply to the question, "What is education?" but also for recalling the classic answer of Thomas Huxley, made sixty-five years ago in an address at the South London Working Men's College:

"That man, I think, has had a liberal education who has been so trained in youth that his body is the ready servant of his will, and does with ease and pleasure all the work that, as a mechanism, it is capable of; whose intellect is a clear, cold, logic engine, with all its parts of equal strength, and in smooth working order; ready, like a steam engine, to be turned to any kind of work, and spin the gossamers as well as forge the anchors of the mind; whose mind is stored with a knowledge of the great and fundamental truths of Nature and of the laws of her operations; one who, no stunted ascetic, is full of life and fire, but whose passions are trained to come to heel by a vigorous will, the servant of a tender conscience; who has learned to love all beauty, whether of Nature or of art, to hate all vileness, and to respect others as himself."

The emphasis is here upon the development of the individual. There is no suggestion of the relation of the liberally educated man to the social, economic, or political order of which he is a beneficiary and to which he has an obligation, save as suggested in the phrase "to respect others as himself." Respect for others may embrace all those relationships which enable the fully developed individual to do his whole duty by his fellow men. It is the recognition of that obligation, especially in a democracy, that becomes essential to any adequate scheme of education.

The fullness of the individual life must embrace sharing in the common burdens of mankind. Huxley in an explanatory word speaks of the educated man as the "mouthpiece of Nature, her conscious self, her minister and interpreter." But that does not include the range of human interests unless Nature includes the soul of man in her domain of beauty and of duty.

It is all very well, said the head of the English department of a Western teacher's college a few days ago, to teach our students that life is real and earnest, but they should not be allowed to go out into the world believing that life is simple. It is complicated, and "it cannot be reduced to a few rules or slogans." There is no better way, he added, to impress this truth than to make them alert to what is going on in the world day by day. This is not the business of the social science department. It is the business of the school as a whole. Attitudes toward the world in which we live and move and have our being should be ready to function "just as language skills should."

It is pertinent to recall also Ramsay MacDonald's definition of an educated man given a few years ago to the graduates of a workingman's college in London:

"The educated man is a man with certain subtle spiritual qualities which make him calm in adversity, happy when alone, just in his dealings, rational and sane in the fullest meaning of that word in all the affairs of life."

And as to where he may be found, the Prime Minister added, he may be back in the country somewhere singing the old folksongs or talking about his sheep or dogs or quoting Burns. He may never have been in a college or a university even.—Jewish Courier.

"It Is Done"

By Norman John MacLeod

TO ANYBODY living in the broad expanse of the Mississippi Valley it would be nothing unusual to say that "the mountains were not found." And to anybody living in continental United States there would appear little queer in saying, "And every island fled away." But to the Californian who could look out of his bedroom window as he arose each morning or as he went to bed at night, or as he worked in the orange groves could look up and see the ever-present mountains, a thing fraught with a great deal of misgivings would be the statement that "the mountains were not found." Or to one living in England, Ireland, or Scotland, to say that "every island fled away" might be cause for consideration. What would be the situation where those most astonishing phenomena would happen? Let us examine the implications of the Scripture passage quoted above.

Following that great last wierd struggle in the "valley of decision" there are to come events the like of which we have not seen in times past. For evidence that that time is not far distant let us mentally review the various articles, books, sermons, and opinions on that much discussed subject. It is discussed in the monthly magazine, the latest weekly current events magazine; the sensationalist speaks of it on the street corner; the man of the street tells his neighbor in no uncertain terms that the American Navy is not prepared to meet the attack of the Japanese Fleet. These opinions are bolstered up by the latest news dispatch from every quarter of the globe, and from the expert in the various spheres of international relations. The pacifist views with alarm the darkening war cloud; the mother with sons that are nearing the military age is frightened by the struggle that is to come; the economist notices that civilization cannot stand another such struggle; and the minister of the social pulpit tries to tell mankind that another great struggle cannot come so that he will gain the prestige of being on the side of the pacifist. But all are sure in their hearts that there is another great war in the offing. The Scriptures tell of it; the newspapers confirm it; and the nature of man's mind insures it. Only the wilfully ignorant could shut his eyes to the coming conflict.

After that great conflict, as predicted in vision in the Revelation, we read that there shall be a terrible earthquake such as never was before since men were upon the earth. Just what will be its nature? Far be it from me to say that there will not be an actual earthquake; but let us look at the reasonableness of the statements. The state-

"And the seventh angel poured out his vial into the air; and there came a great voice out of the temple of heaven, from the throne, saying, It is done. And there were voices, and thunders, and lightnings; and there was a great earthquake, such as was not since men were upon the earth, so mighty an earthquake, and so great. . . . And every island fled away, and the mountains were not found."—Revelation 16:17-20.

ments found in the twentieth verse of the above quoted chapter are manifestly possible, but rather improbable. Nobody says that such a terrific earthquake is impossible, but might the passage mean something else? We are told in the Psalms that we must not fear even though the mountains be cast into the sea, though the waves thereof roar and are troubled. To ask a man to sit calmly by while the mountains should be cast into the sea would be asking a little too much of human nature. Such a phenomenon would be appalling even to the calmest individual. So must we conclude when looking at the passages found in 2 Peter 3 where it says that we should be the proper kind of Christian though the elements shall melt with fervent heat and the heavens pass away with a great noise. Such things would be impossible unless the Christian were miraculously rescued. A careful study of this and many other scriptural passages will convince even the most literal minded person that many are the figurative statements in Holy Writ. But what might it be in natural phenomena that could be applied to the figurative world of the Scriptures?

Ordinarily we think of war as being the most disturbing thing in the political world because of its death-dealing nature. But let us look at some of the figures brought out about a year ago in The Saturday Evening Post, and more recently repeated in the Readers' Digest. War is not nearly so deadly as it used to be: at the battle of Cannae which took place during the wars between the two ancient kingdoms of Rome and Carthage, seventy out of every seventy-six men were killed; at the battle of Bunker Hill in the American Revolution one man out of every eleven was killed; in the battle of Gettysburg during the American Civil War one man out of every eighty was killed; and during the Meuse-Argonne (the greatest single battle of history from the point of view of number of men engaged and the use of the latest equipment of modern warfare) only one man out of each one thousand was killed! Where is the terrible nature of war? The story was told of the British junior officer who, in order to quiet the fears of his men, took a few hand grenades in his pocket, his side arms, and a walking stick in his hand, and went out for a stroll between the two lines of barrage. Though we would not care to minimize the deadly nature of war to that extent, still we know from experience that it is not nearly so bad as often pictured. More men were killed with ten bullets in the battle of Bunker Hill than were killed with ten thousand during the World War! In 1870 it took eighty rounds of artillery fire to kill a man; in the World War it took 860 rounds per man. The fear of bombing raids has paralyzed the imaginations of many of us. But bombing is not nearly so deadly as advertised. We can recall how during the World War that most of the bombs that we knew of being dropped did no harm, or at least very little harm. They were dropped in the middle of vacant fields very often where they did no harm to anybody. Then we must remember that the defense airplanes, not to mention anti-aircraft guns, are at work making life miserable for the bombing plane. During a period of four years 670 persons were killed in bombing raids over the British Isles; more than twice that many were killed in one year in traffic accidents! Gassing is not nearly the mighty "stab in the dark" that it is supposed to be. Out of seventy thousand soldiers that were gassed, 1,399 died—only two per cent. A gas that is deadly enough to cause all the devastation that is commonly mentioned in connection with it, would be so dangerous to handle that no one would belong to the attacking army. During the World War the German Government attempted to use cyanide gas, but the soldiers absolutely rebelled at using it because it was too dangerous to the user. For each new invention there is a counter invention: for the thicker armor plate on the battleship there is invented a new, more powerful explosive to penetrate it; and in turn the armor plate is perfected to prevent it. During the World War the British surprised the Germans by bringing into play tanks: but the Germans soon found out how to trap the tanks and to develop guns that would disable them. The gas that the Germans used did them no good, for gas will kill Germans just as quickly as it will Canadians if the former follow into the gassed area. In spite of all the foregoing more men were killed in one battle of the War of 1914 than were killed in whole wars of previous times. Why?

When Napoleon's Grand Army marched on Moscow we are surprised to learn that the number fell far short of a million men. The largest army ever assembled before the beginning of the present century was used by the Union Government during our Civil War: roughly one million men were under arms. But during the World War a nation that could not put at least a million men into the field was not considered as of much importance. In the time of Napoleon an army of 500,000 was considered to be quite large—now it is only a drop in the bucket! The wars in which Washington and Andrew Jackson fought were decided by a mere handful of men; sometimes by a mere half dozen. It is estimated that if the French had had fifty more men in India during the time of Dupleix and Clive the British would have been unable to conquer the French there. This gives us the queue to a phase of modern warfare which makes it a thing to be reckoned with. The effects of so tremendous a mobilization are bound to be felt for many years. During the days toward the end of the World War Lloyd George remarked that it was not a matter of who could fire the first shot in the war, but who could fire the last one. The entire resources of the nations were strained to the utmost. At the end of the war it was costing about $4,500,000 an hour to carry on the conflict. We are still paying for that war, and, if history moves on long enough, we will be paying for it for years to come: victors and vanquished alike. Every time we lose a piece of property due to a heavy mortgage assumed in the period of wartime prosperity we are helping to pay for the devastating guns that echoed over northern France. You are helping to write off the indebtedness acquired by the warring nations.

After that last great struggle that is rapidly coming to a climax in the Near East when all nations shall be involved, then comes the voice from the throne in the temple, saying, "It is done." Then comes that great earthquake. The crushing burden of indebtedness of the late war has almost wrecked every Government on the face of the earth; where they are not wrecked they have been changed. Any economist or historian will tell you that civilization cannot endure another war of such proportions. What a tremendous earthquake that will be when the Governments of this world go down in ruin never to recover. Then is when every man's sword shall be against his brother as is mentioned in Ezekiel's description of that last great struggle. Winning the peace is often more difficult than winning the war. That is a state of turmoil which only a superhuman power can rectify.

What a revolution there will be! We have seen Governments changed with alacrity. We have seen changes take place in a single year that have waited for a lifetime. But they will pale into insignificance beside that greater revolution that will take place when "a king shall reign in righteousness, and princes shall rule in judgment." Or as pictured in Revelation 11:15: "And there were great voices in heaven, saying, The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever." That will be an "earthquake" the like of which mankind has never seen before.

TEN COMMANDMENTS

Thou shalt not come to service late, nor for the end refuse to wait.

Thy noisy tongue thou shalt restrain, while speaks the organ its refrain.

But when the hymns are sounded out, thou shalt lift up thy voice and shout.

The endmost seat thou shalt leave free, for more must share the pew with thee.

The offering plate thou shalt not fear, but give thine uttermost with cheer.

When the Lord said, "Occupy till I come," He meant that we should do a lot of hard, honest-to-goodness work in His vineyard. Are you occupying?

The Gospel of the King and the Kingdom

IN all these striking characteristics of Matthew, we have noted that the message from beginning to end centers about the kingdom. Matthew must needs open with the ancestry of the King, following the line of kings through Solomon. At His birth, the wise men of the East came to worship the King. The usurping king of the Jews, Herod the great monster, sought to destroy Him, surmising more correctly than he knew that the reign of this righteous King would forever destroy such reigns as his. The gospel message is the message of the kingdom of heaven at hand. The Sermon on the Mount presents first the subjects of the kingdom, then the righteousness of the kingdom, then the choice of the kingdom. The sixteen parables of Matthew are all parables of the kingdom of heaven; even that of the lost sheep, which does not directly refer to the kingdom, illustrates the teaching just given that except we become as little children we shall not enter the kingdom of heaven. When our Lord predicts the preaching of the gospel, it is "the gospel of the kingdom," while in Mark it is "the gospel" (Matt. 24:14; Mark 13:10).

Was this kingdom proclaimed in Matthew different from the kingdom of the other Gospels, of the Acts and Epistles? The expression "kingdom of heaven" occurs in Matthew thirty-three times, and not once in any other book in the Bible. This was the rabbinic expression, carrying out the custom of the Jews to avoid using the name of God; it is one of the many indications of the Jewish character of Matthew. But it seems quite clear that this expression means the same as "the kingdom of God," or "the kingdom," "my kingdom," "thy kingdom," "everlasting kingdom," "his kingdom." In exactly parallel passages Matthew uses "kingdom of heaven," while Mark, Luke, and John use "kingdom of God." Matt. 3:2; Mark 1:15; Luke 4:43; Matt. 11:11; Luke 7:28; Matt. 18:3; Mark 10:15; Luke 18:17; John 3:3, 5; and many others. Matthew himself also uses the expression "kingdom of God" five times (6:33; 12:28; 19:24; 21:31, 43). In one passage "the kingdom of heaven" is used in one verse, and in the next verse, referring to the same subject, "the kingdom of God" is used. Matt. 19:23, 24. The same things are spoken again and again of the kingdom of heaven and the kingdom of God, or of one of the other designations.

While this is true, it is also true that the kingdom has several different manifestations, and thus may be spoken of in different ways. When we are born again we enter the kingdom of God, which is equivalent to the poor in spirit entering the kingdom (Matt. 5:3; Luke 6:20), or becoming as little children. The preaching of the gospel is preaching the gospel of the kingdom, as shown in the parables that prophesy the present age of preaching. Luke speaks of the kingdom which was immediately to appear, not meaning that it was in the hearts of the Pharisees, but that it was an inward matter in the heart.

But the kingdom of God is yet to be established on earth, when the Lord returns to take the throne of his father David. When the disciples drew near to Jerusalem they thought that the kingdom was immediately to appear on earth. Luke 19:11. After the resurrection they asked the Lord if at this time He would restore the kingdom to Israel. Acts 1:6.

When Christ proclaimed the kingdom at hand, it was true that it was at hand. Did He mean it was at hand in case Israel accepted their Messiah and King? They rejected Him. What would have happened had they accepted Him? It may be said that in that case the Romans would have crucified Him. But it is not a profitable question. For God did not make His plans in view of what the Jews did not do, but in view of what they did. It was prophesied that Israel would reject: "The stone which the builders rejected, the same is become the head of the corner."—Matt. 21:42; Psalm 118:22. Messiah was to be a stone of stumbling and a rock of offence to both the houses of Israel. Isa. 8:14. Our Lord knew this from the beginning. Yet His offer of Himself as Messiah was a genuine offer, and He wanted with all His heart to have Israel accept. The law and the prophets were until John, and from then the kingdom of God was preached (Luke 16:16). This present age is a manifestation of the kingdom, but not the final one. The kingdom of God is still at hand, and future. Matthew makes these apparent contradictions plain.

The Jews, and the disciples themselves, had three mistaken views regarding the kingdom. They did not see the truth of the Sermon on the Mount and of the parables, also of the message to Nicodemus on the new birth, that there must be an inward change of heart. They were mistaken also as to the time of the manifestation of the kingdom. John the Baptist proclaimed the kingdom, and expected the grace and the judgment both to come in the lifetime of Messiah. The disciples expected the kingdom to appear immediately when they entered Jerusalem. They were not mistaken in the view that there would be an earthly kingdom. Had they been, the Lord would surely have told them. The third mistake was as to the process by which the kingdom was to be inaugurated. They were not mistaken about the kingdom coming like lightning. But they did not see that there was to be a long period of suffering and persecution in connection with proclaiming the gospel before the glory would follow.

None can understand the message of Matthew, nor the message of the Bible, unless he give heed to the teaching concerning the second coming of Christ. Why were not the prophecies concerning the glory of Messiah fulfilled? The answer is that they are yet to be fulfilled. That is why our Lord in the farewell message in Matthew spoke concerning His return. The whole gospel message, and the mystery of the time of waiting, was bound up in the truth that they were to expect His return in glory to establish His kingdom on earth. The Great Commission is a commission to preach, with the assurance that He would be with them till the consummation of the age. This present age, He told them, would have wars, famines, pestilences, earthquakes, and these things were the beginning of travail. That is, the birth pains are to increase in intensity at the end, until there come the throes of the birth anguish of a new age. Our great work during this age is to preach the gospel to all nations. Our Lord Himself did not know the time of His coming. He said that He told His disciples all that the Father had made known to Him. How precious that He shared with His people this lack of knowledge of the times, in order that we may expectantly wait.

As we close this preview of the lessons in Matthew, let us go back to the opening verse of Matthew. Five references to the Old Testament are in that verse. And five great thrills a godly Jew would have as he read it: "The book of the generation." Only once before does the expression occur: "The book of the generations of Adam."—Gen. 5:1. Now he is to have the book of the last Adam, the second man from heaven! "Jesus" is the "Joshua" for whom he has been waiting. "Christ," the Messiah, the Anointed One, eagerly looked for through the ages. "The son of David," the great King, not Solomon, but the real "Prince of Peace." "Son of Abraham," the true Isaac, Savior of the world. Let us also enter into the glory of this One who is our Savior and Lord, and will yet be King over all and the Savior of the world.—Robert O. McQuilkin in The Sunday School Times.

In the Twinkling of an Eye

"Behold, I shew you a mystery; We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye."—1 Corinthians 15:51, 52.

IN some respects God is not in a hurry. God often moves slowly. There seems to be a majestic calm about God's wondrous ways. But there is coming a day when the Lord will do something in a hurry. He will do something amazing in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye. He will cause death to be swallowed up in victory in one moment. He will clothe the mortal bodies of His believing children with immortality in the twinkling of an eye. Without death touching us, the Lord will change the bodies of our humiliation like unto His own glorious body, and He will do it with incomprehensible swiftness. Like a flash, in an instant, the bodies of living believers will be changed into everlasting radiance, and endless perfection. What an amazing wonder that will be. No wonder God's Word says it is a "mystery."

What a rebuke that will be to man's vain reasoning. How the theory of evolution will be refuted before the miracle of the rapture. Instead of man moving Godward and upward through long ages and centuries, we who believe will be changed into His likeness in one moment, in the twinkling of an eye. Before the miracle of the rapture man's vain philosophy and speculation must collapse in everlasting disgrace, and only the wonder-working power of God Almighty be triumphant.

"Behold, I shew you a mystery; We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump." Think of it! One moment a poor imperfect human being. The next moment in the likeness of the Lord. One moment a frail, weak, faltering mind. The next moment knowing "even as also I am known." One moment in the dust. The next moment glorified. One moment a frail body of humiliation. The next moment a celestial body, shining forth as the sun.

One moment marked with the furrows of earthly cares and burdens. The next moment without spot or wrinkle or any such thing. One moment stained with sin. The next moment whiter than snow. One moment tears and sorrow, and heartache. The next moment rejoicing with joy unspeakable and full of glory, and no man taking our joy from us. One moment in poverty and want. The next moment hungering no more and thirsting no more. One moment in sickness and infirmity. The next moment the groaning forever gone in that wondrous redemption of the body. One moment in bondage and prison. The next moment the fetters all snapped in glorious and endless liberty. Oh, the wonder of that "twinkling of an eye." Oh, the wonder of "the exceeding greatness of his power to usward who believe, according to the working of his mighty power, which he wrought in Christ when he raised him from the dead, and set him at his own right hand in the heavenly places."

Suppose that "moment" of wonder should come to-night while you are sleeping? Never again then would you see the light of day with eyes unchanged. Never again then would you speak another word with lips unchanged. How that ought to arouse us to earnest thought and preparation for that solemn "moment" that may come soon.

Is there not something you would like to do or change before the "moment" comes? You will not have time to get ready when it comes. It will come too quickly. You will hardly have time to drop the tool in your hand. You will not have time to finish the thought in your heart. The words on your lips must remain unsaid. You cannot get out of the theater. You cannot even lift your eyes to heaven, nor murmur a prayer. You cannot give away a dollar of your earthly possessions. You cannot say, "Forgive me," nor can you say, "Good-bye." You will have no time to plead with your unsaved loved ones. Are you ready, Christian, for that wondrous moment when you shall be changed in the twinkling of an eye?

But there will come still more blessings with that glorious "change." We shall be "caught up," caught away from this weary old earth together with our departed "dead in Christ" who shall be raised from the dead just before we are thus marvelously changed. And so, with the world's tears and its graveyards all gone for us forever, will come the great reunion. Then once again shall we see the radiant faces of those we loved long since and missed awhile. What a happy, hallowed reunion that will be. But still more wonderful—together with our risen Lord in the air, and behold the blessed face of Him who loved us and gave Himself for us. "And so shall we ever be with the Lord. Wherefore comfort one another with these words." God hasten that wondrous day. "Even so, come, Lord Jesus." "Watch and pray."—Selected by R. A. Curtis from The Evangelistic Messenger.

Nothing but the infinite pity is sufficient for the infinite pathos of human life.—Shorthouse.

PRAYER

By Glenn M. Birkey

THE RESTITUTION HERALD has contained some very good articles by its editor and others on the above subject. As prayer is such a power to change things, I feel it cannot be written about any too much. I feel we all as Christians neglect it. I know I do, and am determined to pray more as we see the day of the Lord's return approaching. I quote some references that impress me with the necessity that we pray often.

"Now when Daniel knew that the writing was signed, he went into his house; and his windows being open in his chamber toward Jerusalem, he kneeled upon his knees three times a day, and prayed, and gave thanks before his God, as he did aforetime."—Dan. 6:10.

"And it came to pass in those days, that he (Christ) went out into a mountain to pray, and continued all night in prayer to God."—Luke 6:12.

In the seventeenth chapter of St. Matthew contrast if you will the powerless disciples with the mighty Christ in casting the evil spirit from the lunatic. Christ admonished His disciples for lack of faith and said, "Howbeit this kind goeth not out but by prayer and fasting."

Take your concordance and turn to the word "prayer" and with your Bible you will derive great benefit by noting what an important part prayer has accomplished down through the ages. May all of us see the importance of communing with God by prayer is my sincere desire.

"MY KINGDOM"

Continued from Front Page

purpose of taking out a people for His name, and after this is done, "I will return, and will build again the tabernacle of David, which is fallen down; and I will build again the ruins thereof, and I will set it up." Amos 9:11, 12 foresaw this time and referred to it.

Let us come to some of the "things which must be" after John talked with the angel of Revelation 4:1. The seventh angel is sounding his message. Note that the seventh trumpet is the last by 1 Thessalonians 4:16, 17; 1 Corinthians 15:52. The judgment of the dead takes place. God then rewards His servants. The kingdoms of this world become the legal property of the Christ. See Revelation 11:15-18.

Let us go back to Acts 15:14-18. Note the people of verse 14. These can be no other than the church over which Christ is head and builder. Matt. 16:18; Eph. 1:22, 23; 2:20-23.

There is no greater message than the gospel of the kingdom. Not only will this gospel bring joy to the hearts of men and women, but the kingdom when established will bring matchless blessings to the world.

Did you ever read Isaiah 11 and Psalm 72? Not only these, but Isaiah 2:2-4; Micah 4:1-8? But before the coming of the Lord of James 5:7, we are having the condition of James 5:1-6. Oppression on every hand, and no permanent relief from a human source. Permanent relief is coming through Jesus Christ. That is God's promise. Are you, dear reader, helping to send forth this message? The only hope for the world is the coming of the Christ. Thank God that He is coming soon.

"I am the way, the truth, and the life."

GOLDEN RULES FOR HAPPINESS

GRENVILLE Kleiser, whose books have aided thousands to improve their English and, consequently, their writing and speaking, sets down ten golden rules for happiness.

1. Live a simple life.
 2. Spend less than you earn.
 3. Cultivate a yielding disposition.
 4. Think constructively.
 5. Be grateful.
 6. Rule your moods.
 7. Give generously.
 8. Work and pray with right motives.
 9. Live in a daylight compartment.
 10. Keep close to God.
-

Two men please God—he who serves him with all his heart because he knows Him; and he who seeks Him with all his heart because he knows Him not.—Panin.

Abreast of the Times

Anti-Semitism in the United States

"Thou shalt lend unto many nations, and thou shalt not borrow."—Deut. 28:12.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., April 7.—The Silver Shirts are said by Today to be an organization wholly American in conception and origin but, in the hatreds and the reprisals it seeks to provoke, paralleling the Hitlerism of Germany with which it professes a common purpose. Violently anti-Semitic, the Silver Shirts have enrolled a membership of 75,000 and are now centering attention upon the "actionist arm," a uniformed military branch called the Silver Rangers.

The official organ of the Silver Shirts, published in this city and edited by William Dudley Pelley, is called Liberation. A second journal, representing the uniformed "actionist arm," is issued in Los Angeles, California, under the name, Silver Legion Ranger. Both papers are of the so-called "100 per cent American" variety, bitterly opposed to Communism and to the Jews. Panics and political rioting wherever they may occur are blamed on the Jewish people. Even the present Administration in this country is said to be controlled by Jewish influences.

In the January 27, 1934, issue of Liberation, the following charges are made: "In America a great stock market crash occurred involving a Jew in command of the American Federal Reserve acting with a Gentile President shown to have achieved his high position at the behest of certain great English Jews. A great depression came on the land; a depression in which great hordes of Jews grew wealthy through foreclosures and foreign manipulation politely styled, 'international banking.'"

It is further contended that the President "is reliably reputed to be the descendant of certain Dutch Jews," and that his "Recovery Act was written and sponsored by Jews." In a bulletin issued by the Silver Legion the question is asked, "Do you know that the present NRA was set up by the Jews, foisted on a political administration by the Jews, and that known Communists, wartime, seditionists, or affiliates of the nefarious American Civil Liberties Union, are heavily sprinkled throughout NRA officialdom?"

In Liberation of March 17, 1934, it is said that "none but the adept may successfully follow the trail of the serpent of Jewry." To emphasize what the Silver Shirts assert to be the greatest menace now facing the American people, the paper states: "Civilization has become decadent, with the Jews the epitome of that decadence." In support of the contention, their writers declare that "thousands of pages of photostatic evidence are at hand to prove that the Jew—the epitomization of materialism—is the pollution of the bloodstream of civilization, and that any attack that does not center on the Jew is simply scratching at the scabs instead of treating the cause."

The American people have deplored the persecution of the Jews in Germany. We will now watch carefully to see what their reaction is to the appeal of the Silver Shirts. No doubt many of the charges made against this long-suffering people are true, and will lead in the end to the final punishment of backslidden Israel.

Increasing Drunkenness

"Thou shalt be filled with drunkenness and sorrow, with the cup of astonishment and desolation."

NEW YORK, April 14.—Noted for its unbiased and astonishingly accurate polls conducted in the past on various matters of nation-wide interest, The Literary Digest has solicited comments from leading newspapers over the country regarding the practical results of the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. Increased drunkenness, with a consequent increase in automobile accidents, is reported from many major cities, while it is generally conceded that bootlegging has not diminished to any noticeable extent, and in some localities has actually become more prevalent.

The Boston Post reports twenty-five per cent more arrests for drunkenness this year, and thirty-four per cent more for drunken driving. "Bootleggers still doing heavy business." Hartford, Conn., says, "Bootlegging arrests continue high." Newark, N. J., is disappointed in the quality and price of liquor now on legal sale, and with the fact that revenue to the state falls far below "rosy predictions of the wets." Washington, D. C., reports marked increase in intoxication, but traffic accidents less. Raleigh, N. C.: "Bootlegging activities and liquor consumption continue unabated." Charleston, S. C.: "Virtually no enforcement of state dry law. Widespread sale of liquor, in volume perhaps larger than during national prohibition. Speakeasies operating with great freedom." A somewhat contradictory report emanates from the Columbus (Ohio) State Journal to the effect that "observers say liquor consumption in Ohio has materially declined," but at the same time the Columbus police records increase in arrests for intoxication. Minneapolis says, "State Liquor Commissioner has expressed disappointment over revenues accruing from taxes. . . . Moonshine believed superior to many grades of legal liquor." Omaha, Neb.: "Bootlegging continues as before." Denver, Colo.: "Bootlegging has increased almost twice since last August." Portland, Ore.: "State Liquor Commissioner said recently only one fourth of liquor sold in Portland is legal liquor. State-owned stores have meager sales." The Los Angeles Times declares, "Saloons in operation in both Los Angeles and San Francisco, while bootleggers active and supplying better stuff often than legal distributors. Arrests for drunkenness show marked increase."

National Berean Department

Miss Genniel Carpenter, Editor, Oregon, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Cecil A. Smead, President
Blanchard, Michigan

Virgil Claypool, Treasurer
506 E. Chestnut St.
Robinson, Illinois

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
Oregon, Illinois

MY SAVIOR

I love my Savior dear,
To Him I owe my life, my all.
When He is near, I have no fear
That I shall ever fall
Into ways of sin and sorrow;
Today or on the morrow.

He guides and directs me
In the straight and narrow way;
His teachings say that I should be
His humble servant every day,
That I should always do His will
And never fail my humble place to fill.

He answered a sinner's prayer,
And now, through Him, I'm saved;
I hope some day to see Him there,
In a city where the streets are paved
With gold—where all will rejoice and sing Until loud and clear the echoes ring.

—Alice Heeren, Forreton, Ill.

THE LORD'S COMING THE KEY TO THE SCRIPTURES

WHY does this truth take such a prominent position in the Old and New Testaments? For this very reason, that the Lord's second coming is the objective point to which all God's past and present operations are tending; it is the crowning fact in His redemptive work; and, therefore, it is the truth that stands out preeminently. All that God has done and is still doing, is for the purpose of bringing about the Lord's coming. It is only when you see that truth in its clearness that you can get a proper conception of what the Bible really does teach. It is indeed the key to holy Scripture. Without this knowledge the Bible is a disjointed book, apparently full of contradiction. You cannot understand it. You can see it only in its separate parts, and you will never get a vision of the whole until you realize the fact of the Lord's coming.

Sabatier tells us of the contradictory impressions made upon those who view the wonderful frescoes of Giotto in the basilica in Assisi when seen under different conditions. He describes an occasion when an art critic went in to inspect those wonderful paintings. It happened to be a very dark, dull, cloudy day. The only light that he had by which to investigate them was a small lamp with a reflector, and the best he could do was simply to turn the light upon separated details of the great pictures. It was not very satisfactory. He saw perhaps an arm, or a hand; or perhaps a hideous face, or a beautiful face, as the case might be; but he could not put it all together. He had a very poor impression of what the frescoes really were. However, the next day the sun shone out, the day was bright and clear and beautiful, and then, when he went into the basilica, what a vision of beauty burst upon his view! How distinctly the frescoes appeared! Now he saw the purpose of the artist; now he could take in a general view of the whole thing; now he could study them as they could only be studied, in the light of God. Beloved, it is just the very same thing with regard to the Word of God itself. Without the centralizing truth of the Lord's coming, you can never appreciate the Bible as you should. But with that truth realized the Bible becomes plain, sublime and beautiful, and we value the precious Book at its true worth.

—F. E. Howitt in The Coming and Kingdom of Christ.

WORK FOR THE DAY IS COMING

Work for the day is coming,
Out from the throne divine,
When Christ the star of morning,
Upon His own shall shine.
Work for His beams of glory,
Shall end our sorrow's night,
And the sunshine of His presence,
Bring day of endless light.

Work for each gospel message,
In home or foreign land,
Prepares for our King a highway,
Fulfilleth His last command.
Work for the light eternal
Soon will be bathing thy brow,
Then by the side of Jesus,
We shall know the meaning of now.

—Selected.

Ten cents for a complete education in the essential teachings of the Bible! Send a dime to the National Berean Society, Oregon, Ill., and ask for "Bible Lessons."

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"Whosoever will be chief among you, let him be your servant."

WHAT IS GREATNESS?

YOU can all think of people who are great, can't you? The newspapers and radios keep telling us about men and women who are famous for things they do, whether they are good or bad. Some people want to get their names and pictures in the papers so much that they do all kinds of foolish and wrong things to get everybody to talk about them. Sometimes rich men give away a big sum of money to a school or a church, just to get praised for it. And maybe those same rich men got their money by cheating others, but people praise them anyway.

What do you think of those ways of being great? They aren't very good ways, are they? But when you stop to think about it, it's plain that such people aren't great at all! Because greatness and fame are not the same thing. What is greatness, after all?

Perhaps the easiest way to answer that question would be to find out who is the greatest man who ever lived. Some of you have an answer all ready, I'm sure! Maybe some one will suggest George Washington, or Abraham Lincoln. Ye-e-es, they surely were great. But the very greatest of them all? There are so many we might name who were great. I know some one is bursting to tell. Jesus! Of course, for whom could we think of as great as He? Lots of men were good, but sometimes they did wrong, and Jesus never did wrong. Lots of men were famous, but after they died no one thought much about them; and many more people know about Jesus and love Him today than when He first started to teach them.

Now that we have decided who was the greatest man, let's see what He was like, and what He thought about greatness. For we all want to be great as Jesus was. I wonder what your idea of being great is. Sometimes people think about greatness as if they were playing games, and wanted to be "it" always, or wanted to choose what game they would play. But that isn't greatness at all; it is just plain selfishness. Jesus was never selfish, but some of His followers were.

Once two of Jesus' followers, named James and John, asked a great favor of Him. Jesus had been telling them about the kingdom He is going to rule over on the earth some day, and the disciples wanted to be great men in this kingdom. So they asked if they might sit beside Him, one on His right side and the other on His left, when He came to rule. You see, they wanted to be "great," just like people now who want to have power to order others around, and feel very important.

But Jesus understood them, and how selfish they were. He did not tell them that they could have the high honor they asked for. To rule with Jesus would be the highest honor one could get, wouldn't it? That would be real greatness. Jesus wants us to be great in His kingdom, though, so He has told us what we must do in order to be just that. Look at the twenty-seventh verse of the lesson, in the twentieth chapter of Matthew. There Jesus says:

"Whosoever will be chief among you, let him be your servant."

That would be a good verse to memorize. Remember it as you try to follow Jesus, when you might want to get cross because you can't "boss," or because Mother wants the table set. Remember to be like Jesus, the very greatest man, who was always serving others.

—Genniell Carpenter.

JESUS CALLS US

Jesus calls us, o'er the tumult
Of our life's wild, restless sea;
Day by day His sweet voice soundeth,
Saying, "Christian, follow Me!"

Jesus calls us—from the worship
Of the vain world's golden store;
From each idol that would keep us,
Saying, "Christian, love Me more!"

In our joys and in our sorrows,
Days of toil and hours of ease,
Still He calls, in cares and pleasures—
"Christian, love Me more than these!"

Jesus calls us! by Thy mercies,
Savior, may we hear Thy call;
Give our hearts to Thy obedience,
Serve and love Thee best of all!

—Mrs. C. F. Alexander.

A GREAT MAN OF THE PAST

David was one of the greatest men who ever lived. He was called "a man after God's own heart" because he did what God wanted him to do. Even though he was a king, he served God by helping men. Do you?

The Sunday School Lesson

FROM TRUTH SEEKERS' QUARTERLY

LESSON 5. — April 29, 1934

CHRIST'S STANDARD OF GREATNESS

Matthew 20:1-34

Devotional Reading: Philippians 2:1-11

GOLDEN TEXT

The Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many.—Matthew 20:28.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic: Christ's Standard of Greatness.

Aim: Faithful service, rather than desire for honors or rewards, is the test of true greatness.

Basic Truth: "He that is faithful in that which is least is faithful also in much."—Luke 16:10.

I. Jesus' Foreknowledge. (Matt. 20:17-19.) One evidence of the humanity of Christ is found in the fact that He was not possessed of detailed knowledge concerning His own future far in advance of events that were to transpire. Had He actually been God, or even equal with God in knowledge, He would have known the end from the beginning. Acts 15:18. But at the outset He was ignorant of many important happenings that were in store for Him, especially as to the time when they were to occur. Mark 13:32. As the time for His death drew near the Father made the awful truth known to the Son, and from that time forward Jesus seemed to be preparing Himself to meet the fate that awaited Him.

II. Worldly Ambition the Foe of Christianity. (Vv. 20-23.) It is right, both from a divine and from a human standpoint, for men to aspire to the highest possible attainment (1 Tim. 3:1), that they may serve God more fully. But to seek positions of honor or authority simply for the reward or credit such positions afford is contrary to the spirit, teaching, and example of the Lord. Worldly ambition is selfish, and selfishness is the foe of Christianity.

III. Christ's Standard of Greatness. (Vv. 24-28.) The new civilization, which will be introduced into the world a thousand years before the "new heavens" and the "new earth" are fully manifested, will be brought about through the establishment of a new spiritual culture and a higher order of government based on principles of service rather than material reward. He who serves the most faithfully will be the one to whom will be given the most responsible posts under the King of kings. Opportunity for service, rather than hope of personal reward, will be the incentive to men to seek office in that eternal realm of righteousness and love.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"The Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many."—Matt. 20:28.

Christ ministered in many ways. He fed the multitude, healed the sick, gave sight to the blind, and raised the dead. But this was not all; He called sinners to repentance and in some instances forgave them. He taught, He preached, He plead with the people, He gave His life that those who believe on Him should not perish, but have life beyond the grave.

This was no easy task, but He did it all cheerfully. Neither is it an easy thing for Christians to give up all and follow Him: but our faith and service are what count. He wants followers that are worthy of the name, so if we want to be like Him and see Him as He is, we must do the things that are laid down for Christians to do, and be willing to serve in so far as possible as He served.

—L. A. R.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

The ministry

- of service is ever open to all;
- of sacrifice is a vocation of happiness;
- of true helpfulness is done in the name of the Lord;
- of charity is an outward act of an inward grace;
- of glorifying God is man's highest office.

Service of Love. All our service should be inspired by and performed in love. Therefore it can be called a "Service of Love." The first aim of all such labor should be to glorify God, and the secondary purpose to help and bless those being served. That these noble aims and purposes may be realized, we suggest the following biblical formulas:

1. Render all service in the Father's name (Col. 3:17).
 2. Do all for the glory of God (1 Cor. 10:31; Matt. 5:16).
 3. "Let all your things be done with charity."—1 Cor. 16:14.
 4. Do nothing "whereby thy brother stumbleth" (Rom. 14:21).
 5. "We then that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak."—Rom. 15:1.
 6. "Bear ye one another's burdens."—Gal. 6:2.
 7. "As we have therefore opportunity, let us do good unto all men, especially . . . the household of faith."—Gal. 6:10.
 8. "Lest any man should boast," "take heed that ye do not your alms before men, to be seen of them."—Eph. 2:9; Matt. 6:1.
- All thus serving will have attained unto true greatness. They will be living examples of the Golden Rule and their faith spoken of everywhere.—C. E. R.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULTS

Greatness Through Self-Denying Service

Alexander the Great was lying on his death-bed when his friends asked him to whom he desired to leave his kingdom. He replied: "To the worthiest." Twenty years of strife finally divided the kingdom to three men. "Worthiest" in this case proved to mean "strongest."

Julianus bought his right to rule Rome and a few years later Caracalla killed his brother to become first in the Eternal City. Free bread and circuses won places of prominence to other men. Nations have spared themselves much graft and bloodshed by making the office of king hereditary.

Salome, and perhaps her husband Zebedee, desired that her two sons, James and John, should occupy the two most important positions in the kingdom. They thought these positions could be obtained through "political pull," but they hadn't yet learned to locate the door to the kingly positions in the righteous kingdom of God. Jesus informed them that the positions of the kingdom were not His to give. God is giving the positions to those who are qualified. We should learn a very valuable lesson from their mistake. We now know how we cannot enter the kingdom. Jesus said that he who would be first in the kingdom must become the servant of all.

Paul has left us the testimony that we can become "joint-heirs with Christ; if so be that we suffer with him, that we may be also glorified together."—Rom. 8:17. "If we suffer, we shall also reign with him."—2 Tim. 2:12. True greatness will be revealed only in the kingdom.—H. A. S.

PRIMARY CLASS

Memory Verse: "Whosoever will be chief among you, let him be your servant."—Matt. 20:27.

You have all played with boys and girls who wanted to be "it" all the time. If they could not play just what they wanted to play or be "it" all the time they would say, "Well, I won't play."

It seems we all like to be great, or be "it." Jesus knew that we had those feelings. Two of His disciples showed they had about the same feeling. One day they came to Jesus and asked if they might sit one on His left side and one on His right, when He came to rule over the earth.

The other ten disciples were much displeased over what the two had asked of Jesus. He answered, "I cannot promise you such greatness. God only can give you such things. But if you really wish to be great in God's kingdom, I can tell you what you must do. You must be as a servant."

Now you know a servant is one who waits on and works faithfully for his master.

Therefore, if you wish to be great you must do good deeds for others. Let's see, who can name some ways that we can be servants? Of course, John, I know you can run errands, and Mary certainly does make friends by her sweet smile. What others have we? Remember, if we wish to be great in God's kingdom, we must be as servants now.—V. C. T.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

SPECIAL CONFERENCE OFFER

We will send The Restitution Herald for the next fifteen weeks to new subscribers for fifty cents! This period covers the time of the major conferences and Bible schools of the country together with that of the General Conference and ministerial convention which is to be held at the same time.

You will want your friends to catch an echo from these inspiring summer gatherings, so just send in their names and addresses, with fifty cents to cover their subscriptions for fifteen weeks, and we will see that they receive the paper and also a card informing them that it is through your kindness they are to enjoy its messages during that time.

DIXON, ILLINOIS

The Sunday school at Dixon, Ill., is steadily pushing forward. The attendance Easter Sunday was sixty-two, in spite of the unpleasant weather. The average attendance during the first quarter of 1934 was between fifty-five and sixty. Lack of room is beginning to manifest itself on Sunday morning. Our young people seem to be increasing both in number and in interest.

There were thirty of our members who received honor pins for having attended every Sunday during the first quarter of the year.

We are asking God's help as we strive to make our Sunday school one of the finest.
Elizabeth Ford, Secretary.

Baptismal services were held, Friday evening, April 6, at the Christian Church, when Bro. Conner performed the services which brought three dear ones into the body of Christ.

Three of our dear young girls, Katherine Ruppert, Edythe E. Webster, and Mary Frances McClintick, felt the need of a Savior's love and the salvation He so freely offers, and gave themselves a willing sacrifice to be buried with Him in the cleansing waters of baptism; and as He rose to newness of life from the tomb, they likewise, in the symbol of His resurrection, rose from the watery tomb to walk, new creatures, in the path of Christian service and love, until their Lord and Master comes.

We all rejoice with these young people, and our prayers are that God will care for and watch over them, giving them strength to meet all temptations in their daily lives, so that they may live lives that will merit the welcome greeting from our Savior when He comes, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant: thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."
Mrs. Edith Miller.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mrs. Eva Phelps; Mrs. Bena Willard; Mrs. Mary Eckroy; Mrs. Mary Goekler; Mrs. Harvey Krogh; Mrs. Sadie Clark; Mrs. Charles Jewell; Mrs. Sarah Dashwood (for self and another); Mrs. Minnie Rogers; Mrs. Mauvine H. Greene; Mrs. Della J. Keefe; Mrs. Anna D. Springer; M. W. Lyon; George Huffman; Harvey Krogh, Jr. (for another); Mrs. John Guthrie; Mrs. Emma C. Railsback (for others); Lucille LeCrone (for another); Mrs. A. J. Chaplin; R. H. Judd (for others); Russell Harman; D. S. Kirkpatrick; A. L. Corbaley (for others).

IOWA STATE CONFERENCE

The Iowa State Conference Board met Sunday afternoon, April 8, at the home of Bro. and Sr. W. H. Allard in Cedar Falls, and the dates for the annual Iowa Conference were set for August 21 to 26, inclusive. The gathering of course will be held on the beautiful campground at Waterloo.

Esther Sealine, Cor. Sec.

ILLINOIS BIBLE SCHOOL

On Friday afternoon, April 13, the Executive Board of the Illinois State Conference met at the home of Bro. and Sr. Harold Starbuck in Rockford for the purpose of laying plans for the 1934 Bible School and Conference. Bro. Marsh met with the state Board as a representative of the General Conference, which meets in conjunction with the state gathering. We pray that our plans may meet with our Lord's approval.

Let everyone remember that canned goods of all kinds can be used to advantage. There is need also for sheets, pillow slips, pillows, and such like for the beds.

Paul C. Johnson, Pres.

WE LOOK AHEAD

April 24, 1934

"God's New Covenant With Israel," Emma C. Railsback. "The view generally held by the Church of God on this subject."

"A Forest Hymn," William Cullen Bryant. One of the greatest paeans of praise ever written.

"Master," Paul M. Hatch. A study of Jesus the Christ.

"God's Personal Magnetism," Cecil A. Smead. On the power of the Holy Spirit.

And an article on church history by Lyman Booth.

PUYALLUP, WASHINGTON

On February 9 my wife and I left Puyallup for Felida, Wash., to visit the brethren there and to hold services as thought best. We went to the home of Bro. Eddie McIrvin, where a meeting was held that evening. The next evening a question meeting was held at the meetinghouse in Felida. On Sunday at eleven o'clock services were held again in the church building; about thirty-five were present, with quite a number from Vancouver, Wash., and Portland, Ore. The subject of the discourse was, "The Perils of the Last Days." All seemed deeply interested in the events which are transpiring in the world today.

After the meeting a basket dinner was prepared in the basement. Not only was the repast enjoyed, but also the friendliness and Christian fellowship of those who are waiting for the coming of the Bridegroom. It reminded one of Malachi 3:16-18. "They that feared the Lord spake often one to another: and the Lord hearkened, and heard it, and a book of remembrance was written before him for them that feared the Lord, and that thought upon his name. And they shall be mine, saith the Lord of hosts, in that day when I make up my jewels; and I will spare them, as a man spareth his own son that serveth him. Then shall ye return, and discern between the righteous and the wicked."

Brethren, what a splendid lesson for us members of the Church of God! When we meet together, do we talk of the soon coming kingdom or of the gossip of the day, the latest scandal, the most popular novel, the styles and fads of the day, such as "Imp," golf, bridge, and the like, amusements which are so dear to the hearts of worldly minded people, but are an abomination to the Lord? The Apostle Paul has told us of the evil conditions of the last days, and warns us, "Be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect, will of God."

When the dinner was over a question meeting was held which lasted until 5:00 p. m. We met again at 7:30 and had another question meeting which lasted until 10:30. All present took an active part in these meetings, and we believe this form of Bible study is very profitable and instructive, when carried on in the spirit of the Master.

Sunday night we spent at the home of Bro. and Sr. Wallace Woolf. On Monday Bro. Woolf took us to Vancouver to the home of Sr. Lena Upton. This dear sister's husband, Benjamin Upton, was drowned some thirteen years ago, near Eden, Wash., leaving her with a family of five small children, the youngest of whom was born shortly after his death. She has fought nobly the battle of life, and has kept her family together. Here we met Bro. Elmer Upton, who obeyed the gospel some years ago at Vancouver.

The next morning we left for home, stopping overnight at the home of Bro. Ralph Newbury, whose home is six miles from Chehalis, Wash. Here we held a Bible study at the home of a neighbor.

The next evening Bro. Ralph took us to Centralia, where we visited with Sr. Helen Newbury, and also the home of Bro. and Sr. William Keyser. He is in a very bad condition with that dread disease, internal cancer. His hope is fixed, however, in the soon coming of the Lord, "who shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body, according to the working whereby he is able to subdue all things unto himself."

From here we returned by train to our home, where we remained the next day; then in company with Bro. Lyle Rankin and wife we journeyed to Wild Rose Prairie, a distance of four hundred miles, to the home of Sr. Grove Chadbourne, where we held meetings in a near by schoolhouse.

A. L. Corbaley.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO DOLLAR-A-MONTH CLUB

Mrs. Ray Maysilles ($3); Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Railsback; Mrs. Mary Calkins; W. A. Reid ($2); Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Halls ($6); Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Lansbery; Mrs. Marian R. Richards ($3); Harvey Krogh, Jr.; Miss Leota B. Hanson ($5); Mrs. Jessie M. Shea ($3); Mrs. Eva L. Page; Mrs. Ida F. Orem ($3); Mrs. Margaret J. Donaly ($6).

CHURCH OF THE GOLDEN RULE

Sunday after Easter our hearts rejoiced to witness two more come forward for baptism at the close of the morning service. This makes sixteen who have accepted Christ since the beginning of the pre-Easter meetings.

At the Sunday evening service another baptismal service was held in which four others put on Christ. We introduce to Herald readers the following new members of the church: Mrs. Dorothy Frazier, 666 E. 140th St.; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hollinshead, 13913 Diana Ave.; Miss Mae Lewis; Care John Miller, Highland Road, South Euclid, Ohio.

The first three are young parents who have been active in church work in the recent past, and Sr. Lewis is a young lady who has attended for some years. All of these we warmly welcome to the fellowship of faith with the prayer that they may ever be true to the stand they have taken. M. W. Lyon, Pastor.

WILLIAM L. CANODE

The church and the community at large at Oregon, Ill., were saddened last Thursday by the sudden death of Bro. William Canode. While not strong, Bro. Canode went to his work at the foundry where he was employed as usual at six o'clock in the morning, but before he had removed his overcoat he sank to the floor in death.

William L. Canode was born in Montalto, Penn., November 12, 1865, and came to Illinois in 1876, where he lived near Paynes Point, Ogle County, until his marriage to Miss Margaret Swingley, December 1, 1892. He is survived by his widow and three children. The latter are, Mrs. Loyal Sittler, whose husband is pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Antioch, Ill.; Mrs. Delos Andrew, Oregon, Ill.; and Ralph W. Canode, Franklin Grove, Ill. Five grandchildren and one brother, Dr. J. F. Canode of Oregon, Ill., also remain to join more distant relatives and hundreds of friends in mourning his absence.

Quiet, even-tempered, and lovable in nature, Bro. Canode endeared himself to all who knew him, as was attested by the gathering that filled the Oregon Church of God on Saturday afternoon to pay their respects to his memory.

It was the writer's happy privilege to assist Bro. Canode in pledging himself to Christ in baptism, September 5, 1933, and it also fell to him to draw from this man's humble faithfulness to God and family an uplifting lesson that others might follow in his steps. The text for the sermon was found in Psalm 37:37—"Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright: for the end of that man is peace." G. E. Marsh.

ARTHUR JONES CHAPLIN

Arthur Jones Chaplin, youngest son of Morris and Sarah Chaplin, was born near Pierceton, Ind., June 14, 1856, and died March 31, 1934, at Arkansas City, Kansas.

His childhood and young manhood were spent in Indiana. He was united in marriage to Lydia Reed at Knox, Ind., December 12, 1883. To this union were born seven children, three of whom preceded him in death.

In February, 1884, they came to Kansas, residing first in Geuda Springs, later moving to a farm near Ashton, Kansas. In 1903 they moved to Arkansas City, Kansas, where they have since resided.

He united with the Church of God of the Abrahamic Faith in early manhood and remained a faithful and devoted Christian until his death.

He leaves to mourn his death, his widow and four children, Mrs. J. R. Fisk, Milan, Kansas; Mrs. Bernice Brown, Mrs. William H. Hardy, and L. A. Chaplin, all of Arkansas City; besides other relatives and a host of sorrowing friends.

By request the following scriptures were read: Job 14:1, 2, 11, 12, 14, 15; 17:13; 1 Cor. 15:1-4, 12-23; 1 Thess. 4:13-18. Words of comfort and admonition were spoken by George A. Waters of Newkirk, Okla. Just as each piece of material for the temple was hewn to fit and lain aside until all were prepared, we, as living stones, are prepared for that spiritual building, that house not made with hands, and it behooves us to "make our calling and election sure," for the coming of our Lord draweth nigh. We will miss the presence and counsel of Bro. Chaplin greatly, but we know he sleeps in Jesus and we are comforted by Paul's assurance that those who sleep in Jesus will God bring with Him when He comes. May He come quickly. George A. Waters.

JOSEPH T. ROSSER

Rest has come to another of the old faithful soldiers of the cross, Bro. Joseph T. Rosser, who died March 24, 1934. For many years he was an elder in the Parkwood Church of God, now the Church of the Golden Rule, and with his faithful wife was always in his place at worship.

Four years ago his wife preceded him in death, but due to a loss of his mental faculties shortly before, he never knew she was gone. These last years meant nothing to him, and sleep is a blessed privilege. We laid him to rest March 28 to await the coming of his dear Lord to restore the bloom of health and strength in the resurrection life. M. W. Lyon.

SPECIAL INDEBTEDNESS FUND

Previously reported	$649.50
F. A. Stilson	10.00
Zenas Murphy	10.00
Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Lansbery	2.00
Donation	100.00
Mrs. Jessie M. Shea	2.00
Mrs. Mary F. Cook	7.00
Mrs. Mae Mercer	1.00
Miss Maybelle Hanson	10.00
California	100.00

Total	$891.50
Pledges reported	657.00

Total pledges and contributions $1548.50

TWO RUNGS HIGHER THIS WEEK

Last week we advanced a little less than the amount needed to carry us up one rung on the ladder that is taking us out of indebtedness, but this week through your generous efforts we climb two rungs in a single issue! And what a splendid spirit is being displayed by those who make these contributions. A one hundred dollar bill reached us from one who is working only on part time, with the request that no name should be attached to it. On Monday morning a postal money order came in the mail for another one hundred dollars from a sister who has already helped in this matter most generously, also accompanied by the request that her name be not published. From many sources came other contributions equally appreciated.

Let's climb the Ladder to Success

$1500
$1400
$1300
$1200
$1100
$1000
$900
$800
$700
$600
$500
$400
$300
$200
$100

BETWEEN YOU AND ME—

Our readers will be pleased to learn that Sr. Mary A. Gesin returned to her home in Oregon on Sunday afternoon following her stay in the hospital in Rockford where she underwent a major operation. Bro. and Sr. Gesin's daughter accompanied Sr. Leota B. Hanson, who was an Oregon and Rockford visitor over Sunday, to St. Louis, where Alice will receive further surgical treatment.

Our new bookkeeper and assistant treasurer, Arlen Marsh, is revising and simplifying the entire bookkeeping system of the Institution. It will be remembered that the auditing committee appointed by the General Conference last August reported the records to be much more elaborate and cumbersome than was necessary.

The pre-Easter services at St. Cloud, Minn., proved to be one of the most successful series ever held. The attendance increased throughout, and resulted in one confessing Christ, and a solemn rededication of twenty-five others to lives of devotion to Him.

We have several splendid articles on file which were written by some of our oldest and best contributors, and which we shall publish as soon as we can find time to copy them on the typewriter for the linotype operator. We are very glad to receive these good articles, but owing to our present very limited office force have as yet found no time to get them into shape for the printer. Please, be patient, brethren, in the interest of economy.

SIN AS SOCIAL

SINCE the time of the Reformation the Protestant churches have been accustomed to consider sin as individual. It was not so with the prophets. Israel sinned in permitting the rich to oppress the poor. So Amos thought. Jesus considered anything which would keep men from entering the kingdom as sin. Wealth prevents its possessors from having fellowship with men who are less favored. It prevents their fuller recognition of the claims of God. By the standard of the perfect society it is condemned.

On the individual level we have been quick to condemn murder, theft, lying, and other sins. Yet the church as an organization has not been so quick to condemn murder when it is carried on, not at the individual level, but as a social activity. During the World War no organization was stronger in furnishing morale than the church of Christ. Recruiting was carried on in the pulpit and by the pulpit. Yet what is more obvious than that war is organized murder—social murder? On the occasion when one of Jesus' followers resorted to the sword He condemned its use and healed the wound inflicted. Through the ages we still hear the profound truth that those who use the sword will perish by the sword. A Christian must condemn war as a system and demand that nations settle disputes in some other fashion.

Theft as a private act is condemned by church and pagan alike. But it is accepted by both when it is permitted on a grand scale. No man by his own efforts can make a million dollars. Yet any city of size in the United States has its millionaires. The excessive accumulation of property by a few when many do not even have bare necessities is a case in point. Society has permitted it. It is social theft. It is another social sin. I do not say each millionaire is a thief. I do say that a society which permits such accumulations is guilty of permitting social theft.

On the private level we condemn the liar. And what is a lie? If I make a misstatement of fact to deceive you and secure some advantage for myself, then you classify me as a liar. Yet could one describe any more clearly what passes under the name of a large part of national advertising? Statements are made which distort, overemphasize, and confuse. These statements, selected out of a context, suppressing more than they tell, known to be inaccurate if not indeed positively false, are made with the intent of inducing the reader to purchase one brand of goods rather than another. The intent is to make a profit on the goods so misrepresented. Those engaged in advertising do not like the term "lying" so they invent a new one. They call the practice "puffing." Puffing is just organized lying. The sooner we so designate it the sooner the ordinary consumer will make headway in the effective use of the money which he seeks to use to the best advantage for his family. The church has not yet developed any conscience which condemns social lying.

I could go on and point out that other sins are social, but are not recognized as such. Organized vice may be traced directly to the underpayment of girls in industrial centers; crime has been traced by careful studies to homes in those parts of our cities which lack the opportunity for an American standard of living. But I have illustrated sufficiently to make my point. There is a great level of social activity before which any one individual seems powerless. The church as an organized body of Christ should take just as strong a stand in condemning such sins as it has in condemning sins and creating a conscience on the private level. One task of the church is to open its eyes to the present social order and to develop a conscience among its members on social practices which are clearly contrary to the Christian spirit.—Chester M. Kearney, Ph. D., in The World's Crisis.

Sixty thousand Chinese and Tibetan portions of Scripture have recently been circulated on the borders of Tibet, in almost entirely unknown territory, by one of the agents of the National Bible Society of Scotland.

"WINDS OF DOCTRINE"

By C. E. Bandall

"That we henceforth be no more children, tossed to and fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the sleight of men, and cunning craftiness, whereby they lie in wait to deceive."—Eph. 4:14.

THIS admonition to steadfastness in truth implies the existence of "every wind of doctrine." It also presupposes the "tossing to and fro" of many by these winds of doctrine. This scripture well defines the multitude. People of this day are like the Athenians of Paul's time who "spent their time in nothing else, but either to tell, or to hear some new thing." There is little stability in things religious today. Shifting from doctrine to doctrine, being easily enamored by every teaching or teacher that comes along, is strong indication that one is not "rooted and grounded" in the truth. When truth becomes a part of our life, steadfastness is apparent. We are not easily moved. We prove all things and hold fast to that which is good.

In judging a doctrine or teaching we cannot be guided by the flowery words in which it is couched, or moved by the personality or the psychological effect it has on its adherents, but measure it according to the Word. "If they speak not according to this word, it is because there is no light in them."—Isa. 8:20. The Bereans of old set us a good example in this respect. Acts 17:11. "The proof of the pudding is in the eating" may be true of food, but the proof of truth is in the Scriptures.—Church of God Messenger.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 23

OREGON, ILLINOIS, APRIL 24, 1934

NUMBER 30

THE MASTER

By Paul M. Hatch

ALL that you or I can know about the life and activity of Jesus is presented to us in four comparatively short discourses of the four chroniclers. Yet for their brevity the most wonderful lessons of life that you or I can ever learn are contained therein. A cursory reading of them will never do if we are to mine out the precious golden wealth of character that they exhibit. With much meditation and diligent pecking the stratum of just mere words and actions as recorded do you and I uncover the golden, unalloyed character of the Master of all mankind.

I for one stand in reverent awe at the tender mercy and affection that the Master bestowed on His contemporaries in their affliction. When I say that we, you and I, have to diligently peck the stratum of mere actions as recorded to bring out the precious character of Jesus, I mean in partial measure that we have to shed from our own selves carnal coverings such as prejudice, lack of appreciation, misjudgment, and many other blinding influences. Not until that is accomplished can you or I appreciate the majestic Being set before our senses.

Therefore with humble awe, knowing full well these blinding influences that beset myself, do I take the opportunity of setting forth these few words.

Jesus is constantly as a refreshing shower that washes the dust and grime from everyday living, because He knows its every problem. With knowing compassion His instruction and guidance smooth out the obstacles on our pathway. Not always actually, of course, but the pathway is not so hard, so tortuous, as we fear, when we know Him in deep reverence that is His due.

Jesus was worthy of any and all of His majestic qualities. Not least among them was His lack of cowardice and resolute determination to finish His ministry to the very cross. He never shrank back from that obligation that He was to fulfill. In fact a later apostle said it was the joy that He saw on the other side that made Him unmindful of the brief suffering He was to go through.

Many times we see men and women every bit as brave in facing the crises of life and death. Napoleon was a good general, certainly he was not a good man; yet it is said that the soldiers that followed him had a deep love and will to sacrifice themselves in carrying out his masterful military strokes. Napoleon was himself a brave man, never shrinking from eventualities that came before him. His bravery was not, however, the kind to promote reverence. It was the bravery of self-exaltation on selfish motives. Jesus had bravery so much finer, so much lovelier, because His was a sacrifice of love to God and to mankind.

I for one could never think of Jesus being at any time fearful or shrinking away from that test, for when He was many leagues from Jerusalem in Jordan Valley, the chronicler tells that He set His face resolutely toward Jerusalem. If there had been any cowardice in His great soul, He certainly would have not gone up that strenuous Jericho road to Jerusalem.

When we can grasp these qualities, then we can appreciate some of the things that occurred in the night of His betrayal, some of the soul-testing experience that He suffered. Just the few hours before the actual betrayal, Jesus actually suffered immensely more than from the cruel mockings and nails of the cross that came later. It was the acid test of His ministry. To shrink from it never occurred to Him. But He was so fearful of the awful predicament of one thing that it brought on the second and He perspired blood in agony.

The compassionate Master at one time gave to His disciples the parable of the one hundred sheep, one of which became lost. Safely securing the ninety-nine the good shepherd went searching for the lost one until it was found and brought back to the fold. Using this in illustration of Jesus' own followers, it became the very essence of His ministry to seek out and save that was lost. Now in the peaceful Garden of Gethsemane all this love for Judas, the lost, came out in a terrible light. Judas, in whom Jesus had manifested faith and trust—for he carried the bag—and of course heavenly love, was at that very hour betraying that love, faith, and trust of the Master in the

Please turn to Page Nine

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879.

G. Eldred Marsh, Editor

Two Dollars per Year

Paul C. Johnson, Associate Editor

"Ye are dead, and your life is hid with Christ in God."—Col. 3:3.

OUR BELOVED SLEEPS

Safe in Thy care shall our beloved sleep,
While round his bed the angels vigil keep,
Till Christ shall come and call him from his rest;
And bid him rise immortal with the blessed!

This blessed hope which glows within the heart,
Brings solace sweet, as from our friend we part;
For well we know, O Lord, that by Thy grace,
Yet once again we'll see him face to face!

Till that glad day shall dawn and shadows flee,
O keep him sheltered safely, Lord, in Thee.
With confidence and hope that glows more bright,
Our dead we leave with Thee, and say, Good night!

THE PROSPEROUS BOOTLEGGER

ATTENTION has been called in our "Abreast of the Times" department to the increasing use of liquor under the "New Deal," and also to the fact that illegal liquor is still being sold freely throughout the country. In this connection it is interesting to note the commendable candor of Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., regarding the situation.

Mr. Morgenthau said the other day according to press dispatches that the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment "hasn't even put a dent in the operations of large scale moonshiners and bootleggers." To drive the moonshiners out of business the Secretary has at his disposal 700 raiders in the field who last week seized 73 stills, arrested 84 persons, and confiscated 7,000 gallons of illicit liquor and 173,000 gallons of mash.

"The situation as far as the big stills are concerned is as bad as it ever was," Secretary Morgenthau declared. "Bootlegging is still a very husky industry, but we hope to hit it and hit it hard."

It must be becoming apparent, even to the most enthusiastic "wets," that it is impossible to make a lawless business, or those who patronize a lawless business, submit to law, regardless of how lenient the legal requirements may be that are imposed. The liquor business always was and always will be a lawless industry.

THE HEALING MINISTRY OF JESUS

WITH no desire to detract from the glory due the Lord Jesus Christ for the sympathy and love He undoubtedly manifested in His ministry of healing, we must confess that to relieve suffering was not the primary object of those miracles. They were evidently performed first of all to prove to those who witnessed them that Jesus was all that He claimed to be, the Son of God and the Messiah of Israel.

His acts of bodily restoration were accompaniments and illustrations of His preaching. They evidenced the fact that He was sent of God and endowed with divine authority and power, and therefore His message must be received as coming from Jehovah Himself. Those who were given health and sight and hearing—yes, and even life itself—became living pictures of conditions that were to be brought about in the age of restitution, when the kingdom of which He continually taught should be established on the earth.

That the miracles of healing accomplished but in a measure the work for which they were performed, is apparent also. The scribes and Pharisees were not convinced of the truth of His claims even when they were compelled to acknowledge the reality of His miracles. Neither wonderful works nor impressive words were sufficient to break down their bitter denial of His Messiahship.

One could expect no better results to come from the performance of miracles today should supernatural power be really restored to the church in this age.

As we study the influence which our Lord still exerts over the lives of men nineteen hundred years after His death and resurrection, we are impressed with the fact that it is not because of the miracles He wrought so long ago that Jesus lives in the hearts of many people today, but it is because of the power of His life! It was His helpfulness, His self-forgetfulness, His kindness, His gentleness, His brotherhood, that so impressed His followers that they carried His message of love and good will into all the world. And it is His spirit of service that has kept His memory green throughout the centuries.

It is not what men say, but what they do, that carries their influence beyond the grave. The thing that is right must of course be taught by word of mouth, but if you would have it really live and exert a lasting influence on the destinies of men you must "confirm the word with signs following" in your own life.

Church History

By Lyman Booth

AMONG the ministers who visited Antioch Church in Ogle County, Illinois, I recall the names of Brothers R. Corbaley, J. T. Whitsitt, John Howell, and George Moyer. September 21 to 23, 1866, a conference was held at this place in the new and unfinished church building. Brethren from eight other localities met and reported their work. Antioch had 4 members in 1860 and on this date there were 25. They had services every Sunday. Paynes Point met every two weeks, present membership 10. Silver Creek met every Sunday, with preaching every two weeks, membership 21. Pine Creek, membership 15. Lanark met every two weeks, number 9. Plum River was not reported in full, but their number was not less than 15. Twin Grove, members 10. Mt. Pleasant, Wisconsin, was not reported, although C. W. Tompkins was present. Dixon had no stated preaching. Though some had moved away their membership was 10.

I obtained the above from the minutes of the meeting which were published in The Prophetic Watchman, edited by J. M. Stephenson and H. V. Reed, and published at Harvard, Illinois, Bro. Reed's home town. In some of the above localities none of the members now reside. They have either died or moved away.

The Prophetic Watchman was discontinued and the editors gave their labors to The Restitution, which was published in Chicago. It was edited and published by Brother Thomas Wilson. To save on the expense account The Restitution was moved to Plymouth, Indiana. Brother S. A. Chaplin was installed as editor, I believe, and Brother Arthur Underwood, who had worked in the office in Chicago, moved to Plymouth, and later became editor. I do not remember the year. He ceased to be editor when R. G. Huggins secured control of the paper. Then came the birth of THE RESTITUTION HERALD at Oregon, Illinois, with Brother S. J. Lindsay as editor. The founding of this paper was mainly through efforts of Brothers Lindsay and Conner. I doubt very much if it had not been for the interest and efforts of Brother Lindsay whether the present site of the National Bible Institution property would have been secured, not because others were not willing; but because certain conditions presented the opportunity to him, which he improved at no little expense and sacrifice. To him I gladly give credit for the initial move, which has been followed by many other loyal and faithful workers.

For a few years previous to 1891 the Church of God seems to have gone to sleep. No conferences convened. Several places of worship were closed and many members scattered to various points. Most of the interest in church work seemed to have died out. But in 1892 there was a shaking of the dry bones, and awaking of the slumbering ones to action. The party who sounded the alarm that woke the brotherhood to renewed activity was none other than Brother David M. Hudler, from Davenport, Iowa, of whom it may be told, he was a devout and most earnest worker for the Master.

I will give his biography, in brief, as he gave it to me. He had been a careful and thoughtful student of the Bible, had attended other churches but could not harmonize their doctrines with the Scriptures. He struggled along for many years in this unsettled frame of mind until finally he learned of Brother Levi H. Chase's address, which he obtained from reading an article written by Brother Chase which expressed views so different from any preaching he had ever heard. Wishing to learn more about this new-found doctrine, he decided to send an invitation to Brother Chase to visit him and to preach a few sermons. The arrangements were made and Brother Chase went to Davenport and to Brother Hudler's home, which was a short distance from the city. Services were conducted in a near by schoolhouse. The result of the services was that Brother Hudler was immersed.

Before Brother Chase returned to his home, he gave Brother Hudler the address of Brother J. M. Glotfelty at Lanark, as the nearest member of the Church of God. Brother Hudler decided that he would go to Lanark, which he did, and there he began his preaching career. From Brother Glotfelty he learned of brethren at Dixon, Antioch, Chicago, and other localities. He visited these three places in the order given. From the brethren at these churches he learned of the past flourishing condition of the churches and the splendid conferences throughout the territory. He also learned that the zeal and activity in such matters were but a memory. Immediately he began encouraging the brotherhood to convene at some suitable place to discuss the question of organizing a state conference. The brethren (a few of them) agreed, and Lanark was the place selected. Although there were but few present the conference was organized with Brother James Wilson of Chicago as president and myself as secretary. I cannot at this time name the members of the board.

There was some discussion about employing some one as evangelist, but no decision was made on account of the means of support. I believe it was a year later arrangements were perfected and Brother Hudler was employed. He served two years, and then traveled as far south as New Orleans. In the South he met with bitter opposition to such an extent that he was boldly persecuted. But, like Paul, no opposition, no matter how bitter, no persecution, however severe, could deter him from preaching the Word. I believe, if my memory serves me correctly, that he died some place in Kentucky, where his preaching aroused the animosity of some of the citizens to such a degree that it was considered by some that his death was caused by evil agencies. He became suspicious that he was being foully treated, for he wrote to a brother (cannot recall his name) "to come and get me or they will kill me." The brother went to his aid, but found he had died. The brother had him returned to his family.

When Brother Hudler came into the state he found the church in general very feeble, but he lived to see it revived and in a growing condition. Although he has gone from among us his labors follow. His work may be compared to a pebble thrown into a pool. The wave it causes is small at first, but it continues to expand till it reaches the shore. Though his work began at Lanark, it began to grow and expand until it reached to the boundary of other states. Today the field he first began to cultivate, and in which he scattered the good seed of the kingdom, presents a striking and happy contrast, the center of attraction being at Oregon, where annually many congregate to worship Him who is the light and life of those who seek Him.

Brethren, please do not think for a moment that this glorious result has been attained by any one person. Though one made the initial move there have been others who have been loyal and labored arduously and are deserving of much credit. If the giving of a cup of water in the Master's name to a thirsty soul is worthy of a reward, how much greater shall it be for those who through years of toil and self-denial have striven to scatter sunshine and roses along life's pathway that leads to the land of promise and the home of the good of all the ages. May their names be remembered and their labors richly rewarded when the King in His beauty shall crown them with victory and clothe them with the vestments of His holiness.

CHISELERS

By D. G. Harvey

"U. S. Cracks Down on NRA Chiselers," shriek the headlines of the Sunday papers. "The time has come when uncertainty of enforcement by legal proceedings must end," says Gen. Johnson.

The day of the industrial chiseler must end. But there is another type of chiseler that is also due to receive a severe shock. Who? The so-called Christian, the chiseler of religion. You know the type.

The man who dons his religion each Sunday morning, when he dresses to attend the Sunday school and morning services at his particular church; perhaps he may carry his Bible under his arm. Mr. Chiseler is very friendly this morning. Everyone he chances to meet receives a cheerful, "Good morning. Yes, a wonderful day, isn't it?"

As he returns home his children are playing in the front yard. "Here you kids, get out in the back yard. Don't you know this is Sunday?"

Isn't it Sunday in the back yard also?

Then Mr. Chiseler eats a hearty dinner, reads the paper, or attends the Sunday ball game during the afternoon. But as the bells announce the hour of evening worship he again dons his pious expression and with Bible under his arm strolls to his church again.

Perhaps he turns to the text given by the good old minister to assure himself that it is properly given. "Yes, it is really there." Then during the discourse by the good man, he allows his mind to go on a vacation so as not to get bored by the minister's remarks.

Yes, the minister is a brave man; he certainly took some of his flock over the coals. But nothing he has said can ever affect Mr. Chiseler. He applies all such remarks to others.

Soon the short hour of worship is over.

Mr. Chiseler now returns home. He is so tired. He has spent the one whole day "suffering for Christ." He carefully removes his Sunday suit; it is placed on a hanger; and into the wardrobe it goes. And his religion goes with it.

On Monday Mr. Chiseler enters the busy business world: he must battle for the things of this life, for he has little faith in the words of Jesus, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you."—Matt. 6:33. Oh, yes, that will do fine for Sunday, but Monday a man must be careful of his business. Surely the teachings of the Sermon on the Mount and the Golden Rule of that humble Man of Nazareth have no place there. What banker could force the poor widow and her brood of hungry children into the streets? What farmer could put rotten apples in the bottom of the basket, hidden by the fine smooth ones on top? What grocer could weigh his hand every time he sold five pounds of sugar? No, the teachings of Jesus will not do in business. They would interfere with the profits.

Industrial chiselers are not an honorable class of citizens today. But the day comes when the religious chiseler will find himself outside the wedding supper, in that class spoken of by the Master—"Inasmuch as ye did it not to one of the least of these, ye did it not to me. And these shall go away into everlasting punishment: but the righteous into life eternal."—Matt. 25:45, 46.

A Forest Hymn

The groves were God's first temples.

Ere man learned

To hew the shaft, and lay the architrave,
And spread the roof above them—ere he framed
The lofty vault, to gather and roll back
The sound of anthems; in the darkling wood,
Amid the cool and silence, he knelt down,
And offered to the Mightiest solemn thanks
And supplication. For his simple heart
Might not resist the sacred influences
Which, from the stilly twilight of the place,
And from the gray old trunks that high in heaven
Mingled their mossy boughs, and from the sound
Of the invisible breath that swayed at once
All their green tops, stole over him, and bowed
His spirit with the thought of boundless power
And inaccessible majesty. Ah, why Should we, in the world's riper years, neglect
God's ancient sanctuaries, and adore
Only among the crowd, and under roofs
That our frail hands have raised? Let me, at least,
Here, in the shadow of this aged wood,
Offer one hymn—thrice happy, if it find Acceptance in His ear.

Father, Thy hand

Hath reared these venerable columns, Thou
Didst weave this verdant roof. Thou didst look down Upon the naked earth, and, forthwith, rose
All these fair ranks of trees. They, in Thy sun,
Budded, and shook their green leaves in Thy breeze,
And shot toward heaven. The century-living crow,
Whose birth was in their tops, grew old and died
Among their branches, till, at last, they stood,
As now they stand, massy, and tall, and dark,
Fit shrine for humble worshiper to hold
Communion with his Maker. These dim vaults,
These winding aisles, of human pomp or pride
Report not. No fantastic carvings show
The boast of our vain race to change the form
Of Thy fair works. But Thou art here—Thou fill'st
The solitude. Thou art in the soft winds
That run along the summit of these trees
In music; Thou art in the cooler breath
That from the inmost darkness of the place
Comes, scarcely felt; the barky trunks, the ground,
The fresh moist ground, are all instinct with Thee.
Here is continual worship;—Nature, here,
In the tranquillity that Thou dost love,
Enjoys Thy presence. Noiselessly, around,
From perch to perch, the solitary bird
Passes; and yon clear spring, that, midst its herbs,
Wells softly forth and wandering steep the roots
Of half the mighty forest, tells no tale

Of all the good it does. Thou hast not left
Thyself without a witness, in the shades,
Of Thy perfections. Grandeur, strength, and grace
Are here to speak of Thee. This mighty oak—
By whose immovable stem I stand and seem Almost annihilated—not a prince,
In all that proud old world beyond the deep,
E'er wore his crown as loftily as he Wears the green coronal of leaves with which Thy hand has graced him. Nestled at his root
Is beauty, such as blooms not in the glare
Of the broad sun. That delicate forest flower,
With scented breath and look so like a smile,
Seems, as it issues from the shapeless mould,
An emanation of the indwelling Life,
A visible token of the upholding Love,
That are the soul of this great universe.

My heart is awed within me when I think
Of the great miracle that still goes on,
In silence, round me—the perpetual work
Of Thy creation, finished, yet renewed
Forever. Written on Thy works I read
The lesson of Thy own eternity.
Lo! all grow old and die—but see again,
How on the faltering footsteps of decay
Youth presses—ever gay and beautiful youth
In all its beautiful forms. These lofty trees
Wave not less proudly than their ancestors
Moulder beneath them. Oh, there is not lost
One of earth's charms: upon her bosom yet,
After the flight of untold centuries,
The freshness of her far beginning lies
And yet shall lie. Life mocks the idle hate
Of his arch-enemy Death—yea, seats himself
Upon thy tyrant's throne—the sepulchre,
And of the triumphs of his ghastly foe
Makes his own nourishment. For he came forth
From thine own bosom, and shall have no end.

There have been holy men who hid themselves
Deep in the woody wilderness, and gave Their lives to thought and prayer, till they outlived
The generation born with them, nor seemed Less aged than the hoary trees and rocks
Around them;—and there have been holy men
Who deemed it were not well to pass life thus.
But let me often to these solitudes
Retire, and in Thy presence reassure
My feeble virtue. Here its enemies,
The passions, at Thy plainer footsteps shrink
And tremble and are still. O God! when Thou
Dost scare the world with tempest, set on fire
The heavens with falling thunderbolts, or fill,

With all the waters of the firmament,
The swift dark whirlwind that uproots the woods
And drowns the villages; when, at Thy call,
Uprises the great deep and throws himself
Upon the continent, and overwhelms
Its cities—who forgets not, at the sight
Of these tremendous tokens of Thy power,
His pride, and lays his strifes and follies by?

Oh, from these sterner aspects of Thy face
Spare me and mine, nor let us need the wrath
Of the mad unchained elements to teach
Who rules them. Be it ours to meditate,
In these calm shades, Thy milder majesty,
And to the beautiful order of Thy works
Learn to conform the order of our lives.

—William Cullen Bryant.

God's New Covenant With Israel

By Emma C. Railsback

IN some recent issues of THE RESTITUTION HERALD, there have appeared some articles taken from another religious journal which contain ideas that manifest a wrong conception of the Abrahamic promises. I think the writer is perfectly sincere in all the statements he makes and no doubt feels that he should set others right on this very important subject.

But when he states that "the advocates of the so-called Zionist Movement may have in their propaganda the return of the Jews to their fatherland, but the Word of God declares their national inheritance has been forfeited by reason of their rejection of the holy Son of God when He came to them as their long promised Messiah," I believe he unintentionally nullifies many important Scripture statements.

He states that Israel's nationality is a thing of the past and not until the bottle which Jeremiah was told to break in the presence of the people of Israel can be put together again can the Jewish nation be restored. Jer. 19:1-12. This symbolical action which Jeremiah performed before the priests and people of Israel foretold the end of the old covenant, which cannot be renewed. It has served its purpose, been fulfilled; therefore, it is ended. It is a grave mistake to attempt to apply such prophetic utterances to God's new covenant with Israel.

The scriptures used by this writer to disqualify the Israelites for a future nationality in the kingdom of God refer to the "royal priesthood" which God offered to Israel under the old covenant (Ex. 19:5, 6) and which they failed to obtain because of lack of faith in God's promises (Heb. 4:2) and their consequent rejection of the Messiah when He came unto His own and His own received Him

It is against the policy of The Restitution Herald to publish direct criticisms of articles that have appeared in its columns in the past, but in this instance we "suspend the rules" for the moment and gladly give space to the following clear and scriptural review of a selection that was made from an exchange. Mrs. Railsback is an accomplished student of the covenants, and presents the view generally held by the Church of God on this subject.

not, but as many as received Him to them gave He the power or privilege to become the sons of God (John 1:11, 12).

When Israel as a nation rejected God's offer of sonship in His royal family, the high calling of God in Christ Jesus (Phil. 3:14), lo, He turned to the Gentiles to take out of them a people. However, those who, under the old covenant, having obtained a good report through faith, died in faith not having received the promise, will be made perfect, partakers of the divine nature, adopted sons of God, and made joint heirs with Christ, who put on immortality "with us" (said the Apostle Paul), meaning all those who have complied with God's laws of adoption this side of Calvary.

But these promises do not refer to the nation of Israel. The new covenant that God has promised to the house of Israel and the house of Judah is to put His law in their inward parts and in their hearts, to take away their hearts of stone and give them hearts of flesh, to call them His people, and He will be their God. Jer. 31; Ezek. 36; Heb. 8. God plainly states that He will do all this for His holy name's sake and warns Israel to be ashamed and confounded. After God has done this for them, they will remember their evil ways and will loathe themselves in their own sight (Ezek. 36:31), and they will cease to use the proverb, "The fathers have eaten a sour grape, and the children's teeth are set on edge."—Jer. 31:29, 30. In other words, they can no longer lay their sins and weaknesses upon Father Adam.

These few thoughts should be carefully compared with the Scriptures to see whether or not a part of "the counsel of God" has been rejected by some. Let us try to grasp the full gospel message.

FAITH

FAITH is a general term, and the more I thought about it the more I realized it is necessary to define it. For instance, one may have faith in many things, good and bad, but as I understand the question, and for the purpose of this little talk, I will qualify it and confine my remarks to Christian faith.

Faith is a fundamental in the Christian religion, and as Peter says, add to your faith, virtue, knowledge, temperance, patience, and godliness; so you see Peter starts at the bottom with faith as the foundation, and then adds those other very necessary qualities. When one starts to build a house, the first thing to be considered is the foundation, and this is exactly the position faith occupies in the Christian religion. Unless there is a foundation of faith to build upon, it is impossible to raise the superstructure of godliness and love. I would also remind you, however, that it is the duty of a Christian to add these qualities to faith.

It is obviously impracticable for the purpose of this article to attempt to prove the authenticity of the Bible, the personality of God, or the divinity of Christ, etc., as these subjects must be treated separately, but I hope I will be able to make clear that faith is not synonymous with credulity. The agnostic tries to make it appear that these two words are synonymous, and this reminds me of a story I recently read, to the effect that a Christian man, whom we will call Mr. Jones, got on one of these English trains where they have the little compartments, and, as it happened, there were several men in the compartment, one of which was quite an aggressive sort of individual, and no sooner had Mr. Jones seated himself when this other man said to him that he would like to ask him some questions. Upon receiving permission, he said, Do you believe in the existence of a God? Mr. Jones replied that he did. The questioner then said to the other gentlemen in the compartment that he had asked the same questions of other people and had always got the same answers, and he felt that he would get the same replies now, so he repeated, You believe in the existence of a God? Yes. Have you ever seen Him? No. Can you measure Him? No. Feel Him? No. Smell Him? No. Taste Him? No. Do you know anything about Him, humanly speaking? No. Turning with a look of disgust, the questioner said to the other gentlemen, There are tens of thousands of people putting their faith in this Person they call God, and if we were to apply as much reasoning to our business, where would we be? I don't think much of their brains.

While all this questioning was going on, Mr. Jones was thinking of what he was going to say; so in reply he moved his fingers in front of the other man's face and asked, What moves these fingers? The agnostic replied, after thinking about it, that life did. Mr. Jones then said, Have you ever seen life? No. Can you measure life? No.

Weigh life? No. Feel life? No. Smell life? No. Or taste life? No. Do you know anything about life, or where it is located? No. So Mr. Jones then turned to the other men and said, Here is a man who believes my fingers are moved by life, but he knows nothing whatever about it; but believe me there are tens of thousands of people who do believe this, so you see it is not possible to test everything in the world by the five senses.

As a matter of fact, we all have to have faith in something. It is one of the commonest things in life.

I would also like to state very clearly that I do not believe humanity knows everything nor that it can know everything in its present state, so it is well to remember that no matter how much knowledge is increased, it is going to be necessary for the Christian to have faith in that which he cannot absolutely prove, and this qualification I might remark, is not confined to Christians, but applies to everybody. Man is too much inclined now to get arrogant over the knowledge he has.

Nevertheless, God has by no means left us in the position where we do not have evidence that appeals to our reason and to our senses to justify our faith. I really believe, in too many minds there is a very inadequate idea of the supporting evidence that can be brought to bear in support, and which lies ready at our hands. On the other hand, many people today are giving up their faith in God by reason of the mass of statements being made by those opposing Him. Satan and his emissaries have attacked God and His plan right from the beginning, and while the attack has varied in method through the ages, it has nevertheless been a persistent and steady attack. Today the form of attack is from the so-called scientific standpoint, particularly in connection with trying to disprove the Bible record of creation as contained in the first chapter of Genesis, but although I have talked with scores of people who have advanced the theories of evolution, the researches of geology, biology, etc., I have yet to hear one that can offer convincing proof that the Bible story of creation is incorrect or unscientific. This may sound a bold statement, but I may say a good deal of the trouble lies in the believer in the Bible trying to defend doctrines and statements it does not contain.

No, the fact is that God in His holy Word has made statements regarding the creation which are absolutely in accord with the facts and then has gone on and detailed in a broad as well as minute way His plan of salvation. I thank God that He has a plan that will meet all the conditions and requirements of man, and that in His love and mercy He has offered it to mankind. Not only that, He has in addition provided a means in the person of His Son to put by divine power that plan into execution.

So you see, if God has a plan which is perfect, and which will be executed perfectly by divine power, and which plan, when compared to any plan of man's, is so transcendently beautiful and complete, you can see the Christian has something to have faith in, which something is well worth while giving earnest consideration.

Just let us look back for a few moments. God at no time has asked man to have faith in Him and in His promises, and at the same time left man without evidences to support that faith.

Adam and the early patriarchs certainly had abundant evidence to support their faith. Of course you hear the statement, Adam never existed. If he is a myth, how can one explain the future generations' belief in him, the New Testament references to him? The only alternative is, that it is a lie from beginning to end. If Adam is a lie, Moses is a lie, Christ is a lie. The Mohammedan as well as the Christian and the Jew believes Moses, Abraham, and Christ actually lived. Is all the existing history of the world a lie? And if so, and you take it out, where is the record in which we can believe that can fill the void that is left? Really, when one just stops and thinks about it, it is a hopeless mixup once you stray from the plain statements of God's holy Word. To me the credulity lies on the part of the skeptic who seems so able to swallow the latest effusion of science rather than on the part of the Christian who has seen one after another scientific theory exploded that was pronounced a certain proof of the incorrectness of the Bible.

We have the story of the children of Israel. God asked Moses and the people to have faith in Him and He would lead them out of the land of Egypt into the Promised Land. Did not God, in the plagues of Egypt, the crossing of the Red Sea, the providing of food and water in the wilderness, the pillar of fire by night and the cloud by day, give ample evidence to the Hebrew people to support their faith? Do we not have the fact of the Jews and the fact of their belief in this Old Testament record before us for observation and test today?

Do not the Scriptures of the Hebrews which we call the Old Testament relate instance after instance, too numerous to mention, of God's supporting hand, to say nothing of the fact that His actual presence in the tabernacle and temple gives the Jews evidence to support their faith? Neither can we ignore His words through the prophets.

Coming down to a later date, did not the fact that He sent His Son to the earth as a sin offering, according to the Old Testament prophecies, give further evidence on which to base our faith?

I should also like to specially call your attention at this time to the miracles of Christ as very weighty evidence in support of our faith in the execution of the plan of God in relation to man and earth, which plan is yet to receive its expression in perfection in the future. While it is true that the miracles Christ did were credentials and proved that He was what He claimed He was, yet these miracles have a much wider significance and larger bearing on our faith than only this. What is necessary to bring into actual being the plan of God? Is it not the execution on a world-wide scale of the miracles of Christ? In other words, if Christ raised Lazarus and others from the dead, is it not proof to you and me that He has demonstrated He has the power to raise all the dead? If He cured the leper and other forms of sickness, is it not proof that He can cure and make an end to all sickness?. If He could control the evil forces of the world so that even Satan and demons obeyed Him, is not the promise that Satan and evil will be destroyed forever worthy of our acceptance? If He controlled the elements and they did His bidding, is it not evidence in support of our faith that by divine power He can order the remaking of this physical world so that it will be a fit habitation for those counted worthy of being in the perfected state? If He could arise from the dead by the power of His Father, with an eternal life principle within Him, to die no more, is it not evidence to support our faith that God will carry out His promises that those who partake in the first resurrection will be endowed with eternal life, and will die no more?

Yes, I say, and again, yes. It is quite possible, and it is frequently done, that men will throw aside all of this evidence and deny it utterly, but mark you, if it is a fact, this does not change it. It is, to put it plainly, entirely a lie or it is worthy of all acceptance as truth. There is no halfway measure, and I have no hesitation in saying that the Christian is treading on very dangerous ground when once the question of doubt enters into his mind that this part of the Bible may be all right, but another part is of doubtful origin or correctness. The comforting thought I have is that I do not have to dodge questions such as these, but have a simple and natural explanation to give.

While we, as Christians, have faith that these events which have occurred in the past are true and are therefore a basis of our faith, still they are much more than this, as they give us a faith in something definite for us to look forward to in the future.

The Bible holds out the promise of a wonderful future on this earth. It gives a reason why this future is to be; it details the means by which it will be accomplished; it states where it will take place; it states within close limits of when it will take place. I challenge any religion in the world today to answer these questions in the affirmative, definite way that the Christian Bible details.

I said awhile back that faith was a common thing in this world, and this is necessarily so, or how else could the life of the world go on? When we go to a letter box to post a letter, we do so with profound faith that the letter will reach its destination. When we get on a railroad train, we have faith that that train will take us to the place that we wish to go. You all believe when some one tells you about the radio and ether waves. Well, the principle of the radio has been in the world all these centuries but has only just been discovered. Is it really harder in principle for God to hear our prayers without wires than for you to listen to a band playing 150 miles away?

Faith in something is an absolute requirement of the human heart and mind whether one is a Christian or not. Where would we be without the faith that we each and all of us have in some other human being: our wives, our mothers, our fathers, our brothers, our sisters, our friends? What is it that has made us have faith in these other human beings? It is the record of their lives, with which we have come in contact. It is the same with God; we have faith in His promises that are yet to be fulfilled by reason of the knowledge that we have of the promises that were made years ago and which have been fulfilled.

This faith which we have is not simply for ourselves individually, as it does bring a simplicity and peace of mind and comfort of spirit to all who have it. I would emphasize the fact that it is given to us principally for a purpose, and that purpose is to spread it for the salvation of others. You can see therefore how precious a thing our faith is, how we should cling to it, and defend it. Let no man tell you without protest that science has disproved the Bible; let no man tell you that the first few chapters in Genesis are an exploded theory. They are nothing of the kind, and I venture to remark that they will be in existence and believed when the current day theories of science will have been exploded and lost sight of, the same as the ones that have come and gone into the forgetfulness of the past. The Bible is the living Word of God, and it liveth and abideth forever.

My mind runs along concrete lines, and it is with a sense of ever deepening gratitude and thanksgiving that I can honestly say to you today that the faith in the Bible as the divinely inspired Word of God which I received as a boy from my parents has stood the test of examination by the man, so that I feel today more certain than ever that not only is the Bible the Word of God but that it contains the conditions that God has placed before man, out of which are the issues of life and death.

It places before us a glorious and beautiful picture that God has painted for all humanity who will have faith and belief in Him, and a picture I firmly believe that He with omnipotent power will make a reality, which I sincerely and verily trust will soon come to pass. Oh, that all who hear my voice would realize the value of this great prize of life eternal in God's kingdom on this earth that He in His love has set before us, and would accept the opportunity now by laying hold on the same through faith, confessing and asking pardon for their sins so that this great prize might be theirs. This is my message and prayer. May God grant it.

—Arthur G. Young in The Messiah's Advocate.

THE MASTER

Continued from Front Page

hands of sinful men. Judas was lost and the good Shepherd could not go to find Him. Lost! What a fearful possibility came before Jesus. The very words and teachings that He uttered were powerless to be accomplished. So agonizing to the Master was it all that the second assault now came in the fear of dying ere the due time. Now in the dismal sylvan darkness the prayer went forth to have the cup to pass; thrice repeated ere He was comforted. The disciples, heavy with sleep, were awakened, and they crossed the Brook Kidron to the second and successive trying experience.

Almost every known sin of mankind was heaped upon the lowly Master in the last few hours of His life. But as you and I look upon Him, the sins are not greatly observed; they become obscure in the splendor and brightness that increase until now spiritual life in all its glory is set before us. How thinkest thou, reader, about the faith, love, and compassionate goodness of the Master? Can you in all your experiences and searchings find His equal?

ARABS BOYCOTT PALESTINE JEWS

Arabs are to sell to Jews anything except land, and they are to buy from Jews nothing except land, is the guide and principle of the latest anti-Jewish boycott proclaimed recently by the Arab Executive in Palestine.

THE MANDATORY'S WOE

WITH the best of intentions to please everybody Great Britain is displeasing everybody in Palestine. She is displeasing the Arabs so much that she has a lively insurrection on her hands.

Worthily influenced by humanitarian motives the British Government has increased the maximum limit of Jewish immigration into Palestine. Certain Jewish leaders feel that, in view of the exodus of Jews from Hitler's Germany, the increase should be more generous. The Arab leaders insist that it is much too generous.

To date Arab violence in Palestine has not been in any measure directed against the Jews. The Arabs are jealous of the Jews in Palestine, and they fear that increasing immigration may in time reduce the Arabian population to a minority. The Jewish influx has already greatly modernized the country, and the Arabs do not regard this as an unmixed blessing. The Arab uprising is directed wholly against the British, who are accused of breaking faith.

For many centuries men of Jewish and Arabic blood have lived together in amity in many parts of the world. The Jews of Spain, persecuted by the Christians both before the Moslem conquest and after the Moslem expulsion, were treated with every consideration during the Arab and Moorish ascendancy. Today anything like anti-Semitism among the Arabs is impossible, for the Arabs are quite as Semitic as the Jews.

Not because the Jew is a Jew but because he is a European who brings in European ideas the Arabs of Palestine dread the prospect of Jewish domination of a land which has been essentially Moslem ever since the days of Mohammed. They do not wish to be Europeanized.

Meanwhile the mandatory Power is compelled to suppress the Arab uprising, and can only pray that it will not attain the magnitude of such a war as that which was forced on the French in Syria.—Selected.

Abreast of the Times

Carnegie Peace Report Hopeless

"Put not your trust in princes, nor in the son of man, in whom there is no help."—Psalm 146:3.

NEW YORK, April 15.—Reporting for the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, Dr. James Brown Scott, Director of the Division of International Law for that organization, held out little hope for world peace through the efforts of treaties and conferences. According to the Associated Press Dr. Scott believes the nations of the world are leading a "treadmill existence—stationary although going through the motions of progress"—and will continue to do so unless "morality and good faith" can be introduced into international relations.

Dr. Scott cited the many pacts and treaties that have been entered into by the nations in their desire to outlaw war, all of which have proven futile. Each succeeding agreement, he asserted, but reiterated and confirmed the one before it. "If good faith is lacking in the first and the second and the third and the fourth, how can it be expected that a fifth assertion of the same obligation will be more efficacious?" he asked. "The morality and good faith which we would like to think permeate the transactions of individuals in private life" should be introduced into international relations, he declared. "Again the same question, and again the same answer, as old as the New Testament. 'Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian.' The 'almost' is fatal. It should be 'wholly' a Christian," he concluded.

Deep Sea Exploration

"These see the works of the Lord, and his wonders in the deep."—Psalm 107:24.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 21.—"Imprisoned in a steel shell, four and one half feet in diameter and weighing two tons, Dr. William Beebe, in July of this year, is to attempt a diving expedition to a depth of one half mile," declares S. R. Winters in The Literary Digest. The descent of this famous oceanographic naturalist is to be made in an enclosure of his own design, which he calls the "Bathysphere," a word coined from a Greek word meaning "deep," and the word "sphere."

Dr. Beebe is already credited with the greatest descent of any living person below the surface of the ocean, having previously descended to a depth of approximately one third of a mile.

Strange as it may seem in the light of the fact that men have traveled around the earth in every direction innumerable times, they have never succeeded in rising more than thirteen miles above its surface, and the deepest point to which they have sunk a mining shaft is 7,500 feet. This was the depth, approximately one and one third miles, that the Morro Velho, Brazil, gold mine had reached in 1931. And now Dr. Beebe says that "next to going to Mars, there seems nothing more exciting and unpredictable" than the results of this little journey of half a mile into the depths of the sea that he is planning for this summer!

"Monroe Doctrine" of Japan

"Why do the heathen rage, and the people imagine a vain thing?"—Psalm 2:1.

TOKIO, April 17.—Foreign Minister Koki Hirota was today planning the issuance of a manifesto setting forth the Japanese policy with regard to China. The document comprises what some observers call a "Japanese Monroe Doctrine" for Asia, in which the Island Empire asserts its determination to maintain its position as the virtual dictator of Chinese foreign affairs, practically reducing China to the place of a protectorate of Japan.

The manifesto was in part as follows:

"We regard Japan principally responsible for the maintenance of peace in east Asia and we are determined to fulfill this mission. In order to do so, Japan must share China's responsibility for the maintenance of peace.

"Japan sincerely desires the integrity, unification, and restoration of order in China. History teaches that that is only achievable through China's own endeavors.

"Japan, therefore, must break China's anti-Japanese movement and eliminate China's traditional policy of setting one Power against another.

"In the situation which has arisen since the Manchuria and Shanghai incidents, if other Powers attempt to cooperate in assistance to China, whether under the guise of financial or technical assistance, ultimately such efforts almost inevitably produce political results.

"The outcome for China may be calamitous, endangering her integrity and producing a division of spheres of influence.

"Japan does not object to other Powers individually negotiating with China for assistance in the fields of economics and commerce, provided such do not disturb peace and maintenance of order in east Asia.

"But if such efforts lead to a disturbance of the peace Japan must object."

It is apparent that the manifesto is inspired at least in part by the fact that American-made airplanes have recently been sold to China and aviators from the United States are instructing the Chinese in their use.

The latest development in Asia is in harmony with the conclusion of many students of prophecy that Japan is destined to exercise a predominant influence over China and later is to be aligned with Russia, Turkey, and parts of India, in the final gathering of the nations to judgment.

National Berean Department

Miss Genniel Carpenter, Editor, Oregon, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Cecil A. Smead, President
Blanchard, Michigan

Virgil Claypool, Treasurer
506 E. Chestnut St.
Robinson, Illinois

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
Oregon, Illinois

JESUS

THE freshness and interest of the name of Jesus, and its power as a great factor in the spiritual history of the world, increase with each generation. The influence of His life, His words, and His death have, from the first, been like leaven cast into the mass of humanity. He made religion spiritual, instead of ceremonial and external; universal, instead of local. He gave us the magnificent dowry of a faith in one common Father of the whole human race, and, thus, of a world-wide brotherhood of all mankind . . . All reforms of individual and public life lie veiled in these principles, awaiting the advance of our moral sense, to apprehend and apply them. They have already given freedom to the slave; raised woman; purified morals; mitigated war; created liberty; and made humanity a growing force, in things private, civil, and political. All that love to our fellow man can promptly find itself only a copy of that Life which was spent in continually doing good, and the noblest self-sacrifice for others finds itself anticipated by Calvary.

To the individual Christian, Jesus is the divine Savior, to believe in whom is life everlasting: to know whom is to have peace with God. Love has no diviner emblem than the good Shepherd: beneficence no ideal so perfect, as that "it is more blessed to give than to receive": fidelity to duty no loftier standard than a life laid down at its command: self-sacrifice no dream so perfect as the record of His death on the cross.—Cunningham Geikie, from Preface to The Life and Words of Christ.

BRIDGES

I have a bridge within my heart,
Known as the Bridge of Sighs;
It stretches from life's sunny part
To where its darkness lies.

And when upon this bridge I stand,
To watch life's tide below,
Sad thoughts come from the shadowy land
And darken all its flow.

Then, as it winds its way along
To sorrow's bitter sea,
Oh! mournful is the spirit-song
That upward floats to me.

A song which breathes of blessings dead,
Of friends and friendships flown;
And pleasures gone!—their distant tread,
Now to an echo grown.

And hearing thus, beleaguering fears
Soon shut the present out,
While joy but in the past appears,
And in the future doubt.

Oh! often then will deeper grow
The night that round me lies;
I wish that life had run its flow,
Or never found its rise!

I have a bridge within my heart,
Known as the Bridge of Faith;
It spans, by a mysterious art,
The streams of life and death.

And when upon this bridge I stand,
To watch the tide below,
Sweet thoughts come from the sunny land
And brighten all its flow.

Then, as it winds its way along
Down to a distant sea,
Oh! pleasant is the spirit-song
That upward floats to me.

A song of blessings never sere,
Of love "beyond compare,"
Of pleasures flowed from troublings here,
To rise serenely there.

And, hearing thus, a peace divine
Soon shuts each sorrow out;
And all is hopeful and benign
Where all was fear and doubt.

Oh! often then will brighter grow
The light that round me lies;
I see from life's beclouded flow
A crystal stream arise.

—Anonymous.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord."

JESUS THE KING

WHEN Jesus was here long ago, He went to the humble, poor people to teach them and heal their diseases, although He is to be the great King of all the earth, and one might suppose He would be with the rich and proud rulers instead. But Jesus loved the poor, and He saw how much they needed Him, so He spent most of His time helping them. When He comes again, Jesus will reign over all the earth as King, but the first time He came He was hailed as a king only once.

That was the time when Jesus and His followers were going to Jerusalem, not long before His death and resurrection. They were in a little country town called Bethphage, and a short distance away was another little town. Jesus sent two of His followers to this place, which was called Bethany, and He told them they would find a colt tied with its mother, and that they should untie them and bring them to Jesus. Maybe the two disciples were a little afraid to take what belonged to some one else, but Jesus told them that if anyone tried to stop them, they should just say, "The Lord hath need of them." Jesus is the King over all, so He could command the animals to be sent. And just think what a great honor it was for the man who owned the colt and its mother to have Jesus use them! In our country, people send presents to our presidents, and they are very proud to have them accepted. But how much more wonderful it would be to serve Jesus, the great Ruler! We can do just that very thing, too, in many different ways. But I'm sure you know that, and do give Him useful presents of your time and service and money, so let's go on with the story.

The disciples found everything just as Jesus said they would, and they brought the animals to Jesus. They put their clothes on them, and Jesus rode on the colt. Long before this it was prophesied that the King would come to Jerusalem riding on a colt. Isn't it wonderful to realize the great blessings foretold by the prophets, and how they are all really going to happen, just as this one about Jesus did? See if you can find the prophecy about Jesus coming as King to Jerusalem in the Old Testament. It is in the ninth chapter of the book of Zechariah.

While Jesus was riding along on the road to Jerusalem, the people began to notice Him and follow Him. Soon there was a crowd around Him. They treated Jesus just as a king. They took off their coats and laid them down on the road in front of Him. Some of the people cut off branches from the palm trees, which stand for joy and victory, and spread these before Jesus. All the people near shouted and sang:

"Hosanna to the son of David:

Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord;
Hosanna in the highest!"

All the men and women praised Him, and the little children ran along, too, repeating the words of their fathers and mothers. The older ones recognized Jesus as their promised Messiah and King, of the line of David; but the boys and girls saw He was kind and gentle, so they praised Him, too.

But Jesus didn't rule as King then, because He had other work to do first. He is coming back one of these days, though—perhaps very soon!—and we ourselves may be among the happy crowd to hail Him King of kings, if we will only obey Him and be loyal to our King until He comes.

A LETTER FROM THE EDITOR

Dear Girls and Boys:

You can't possibly be missing me as much as I have been missing you, because Genniell has been talking so nicely to you every week.

The letters I have received from you girls and boys have brought me your love and best wishes in such a way that I can't help but be glad I am getting well.

I am glad you are continuing to study the Page each week. I think it would be nice if you would write Genniell and tell her how much you enjoy her talks.

Wasn't her story on forgiveness wonderful? It's a good story to remember every day. Get that paper out and read it again. It was the paper of April 3.

George Cleek, Warm Springs, Virginia, knocked at the door of the clubhouse while I was sick, but I haven't had opportunity to enter his name on the Page as one of the Sons and Daughters of the King. Come in, George, you are welcome. George was one of the first members of the Bible Scrapbook Club, and sent a very fine scrapbook to the Exhibit last year.

As I grow stronger day by day, I think much of my girls and boys, some of whom have written me that they were praying for me; and it makes me very happy.

Working with you in the service of our King,

Mary A. (Aunt Mame) Gesin.

The Sunday School Lesson

FROM TRUTH SEEKERS' QUARTERLY

LESSON 6. — May 6, 1934

JESUS ACCLAIMED AS KING

Matthew 21:1-46

Devotional Reading: Hebrews 1:8-12

GOLDEN TEXT

Wherefore God also hath highly exalted him, and given him a name which is above every name.—Philippians 2:9.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic: Jesus Acclaimed As King.

Aim: Although rejected by the Jews Jesus is to be their future King and King of all other nations when He comes again.

Basic Truth: "I will give thee the nations for thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession."—Psalm 2:8, A. R. V.

I. The King Acclaimed. (Matt. 21:1-11.) The common people, more inclined to faith than the proud and affluent leaders among them, accepted without question Jesus as the Messiah, and joyously acknowledged His Kingship. The same conditions exist generally today. Those whose humble faith in the Bible has not been spoiled "through philosophy and vain deceit, after the tradition of men, after the rudiments of the world, and not after Christ" (Col. 2:8) gladly confess allegiance to the Lord today, and await His second coming with "power and great glory" when they will welcome Him as "King of kings and Lord of lords" of the whole earth.

II. The King Cleanses the Temple. (Vv. 12, 13.) "The time is come when judgment must begin at the house of God," declares Peter (1 Pet. 4:17). The temple of the most High must be cleansed of its defilement before it can be made a "house of prayer" for all nations. The church is the "temple of the living God" and must be found occupied wholly with the sacred work assigned it when the King comes. 1 Cor. 3:16, 17; 2 Cor. 6:16-18; Eph. 2:19-22. The Lord's first act upon His return will be to call His own to meet Him in the air. 1 Thess. 4:16, 17. This will result in the separating of the righteous from the wicked, the faithful from the unfaithful, in the visible church of God, thus casting out all that offends the purity required of those who are to rule with Jesus upon His throne.

III. The King Shows His Power. (V. 14.) Following the choosing from among the many who profess faith in Him the limited number who are "fit for the kingdom of God" (Luke 9:62), the King will set up His millennial kingdom, and put into operation those beneficent laws and those healing ministrations that will result in the world blessing of health pictured by the prophets. Isa. 33:24; 35:3-6.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Jesus the King

- will soon reenter Jerusalem as King of kings;
- will remove the money changers from their temples of authority;
- will destroy all caste systems;
- will purge the temples of worship;
- will meet all the needs of a groaning creation.

A Great Day. It was a day of rejoicing when Jesus entered Jerusalem as the multitudes shouted, "Hosanna to the son of David." This joy was short-lived. It was but a fore-runner of what is to take place in the near future. When Jesus shall come the "second time without sin unto salvation" the whole world will be a groaning creation and will hail Him as their great Deliverer—the Prince of Peace. Surely, it will again cause the "morning stars" to sing together, and all "the sons of God" to shout for joy.

A Great Change. Jesus exercised His authority upon His triumphal entry and drove out the money changers. What a great change will be wrought by the reign of Christ! There will be a great fleeing of those who live in the temples of finance and who have by fraud kept back the hire of the laborers. Their gold and silver will not deliver them in that day, but it shall "eat their flesh as it were fire."

Temples of Worship. The temples of worship will be in for a thorough cleaning and overhauling. An apostate church cannot long endure. Truth, righteousness, and purity are enduring, but the corrupt systems of worship are sure to come in contact with the sentence of judgment. Christ will again, but more completely, exercise His authority and cleanse the temples of worship by driving out the polluters.—C. E. R.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"Wherefore God also hath highly exalted him, and given him a name which is above every name."—Phil. 2:9.

God raised Christ from the dead and set Him at His own right hand in the heavenly places. What more exalted could one be than that? "And he that shall humble himself shall be exalted." Christ humbled Himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross. He has been exalted far above all else.

Isaiah says, "And his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The mighty God, The everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace." He is "above all principality, and power, and might, and dominion, and every name that is named, not only in this world, but also in that which is to come."—Eph. 1:21. "That at the name of Jesus every knee should bow . . . and that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father."—Phil. 2:10, 11.—L. A. R.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULTS

Acknowledging the Lordship of Jesus
Jesus said: "Every man who acknowledges me before men I also will acknowledge before my Father who is in heaven. But whoever disowns me before men I will also disown before my Father who is in heaven."—Matt. 10:32, 33; Weymouth. We can acknowledge Jesus by word of mouth and by actions.

Peter and John healed the cripple at the Beautiful Gate. When confronted by the angry priests they openly acknowledged that they had performed the act of healing in the name of Jesus. They did even more! They refused to stop teaching and healing in His name. They were acknowledging Jesus before men.

Gabriel told Mary that her Son should be given the throne of David and that He should rule over the house of Israel forever (Luke 1:32, 33). The Jews refused to accept Him as their ruler. They publicly denied Him, yet He was crucified as "King of the Jews." To publicly confess Jesus in those days meant that one must acknowledge His Kingship.

This confession is just as necessary today. Jesus is yet to ascend the throne of Israel and rule all nations. This great truth is the essence of the gospel. Everywhere Jesus went He taught the things concerning the kingdom. He sent the seventy out with the same message. No one was considered qualified for baptism until he had heard of, and accepted the fact of, the kingdom and Kingship of Jesus. This is still fundamental, it should be the burden of our public acknowledgment.

—H. A. S.

PRIMARY CLASS

Memory Verse: "Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord."—Matt. 21:9b.

One day as Jesus was walking along the road to Jerusalem with His disciples He said to two of them, "Go over to the village. There you will find an ass (donkey) tied, and her colt. Untie her and bring them to me. If anyone asks you why you are taking them, you just say that your Lord has need of them."

The disciples obeyed and went to bring the ass. When they returned with her they spread their coats upon the ass. Jesus got upon her back and started toward Jerusalem.

As He passed people gathered in great multitudes to see Him. They spread their garments on the road. They cut down palm branches from the trees and spread them also in the road. Yes, they did with Jesus just as they did their great kings in those days.

How the people shouted and sang. Here is the song they sang: "Hosanna to the son of David: Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord; Hosanna in the highest."

When He came to Jerusalem the people said, "Who is this?"

The answer was, "This is Jesus."

Now let's imagine we were among the number going with Jesus into Jerusalem singing this beautiful song, "Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord."—V. C. T.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

VARINA, IOWA

Services will be held at the home of Fred Kidder near Varina, Iowa, Sunday, May 6. Bro. A. M. Jones of Eagle Grove will be the speaker at eleven o'clock in the morning, and Bro. Arthur Johnson of Sac City will deliver the sermon at two o'clock in the afternoon.

Mrs. Anna Boyanovsky.

ARE YOU ON THE MAP?

from each church, grouping all your features together. Begin to prepare now so that your space will be filled with suggestions and projects of value to all in attendance. That popular department at General Conference will need contributions from every one of our churches if it is to be of the greatest value to all. Begin to plan your exhibit now.

Mary A. Gesin,
Estal L. Starbuck,
Genniel Carpenter—Committee.

OREGON, ILLINOIS

The church at headquarters was made glad last Sunday morning when eight brothers and sisters from other places were received into the local membership. Three of them had been residents of Oregon for some months and had been numbered with us since the first of the year but had not been formally received into the church. These consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lindsay and their son Edward. Others received at this time were Mrs. Olive Wood, formerly of Riverside, Calif., but now a resident of Golden Rule Home, and Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Ellis, their son Eldridge and daughter Margaret, of Waterloo, Iowa. The latter have contemplated for a long time placing their membership with the Oregon church. Bro. Ellis is treasurer of the General Conference and of its working body, the National Bible Institution.

SPECIAL INDEBTEDNESS FUND

Previously reported	$ 891.50
Mrs. Mary E. Carter	2.00
S. H. Boyer	10.00
Mrs. R. A. Robinson	2.00
Miss Mattie Benjamin	100.00
Mrs. E. L. Griffin	5.00
Mrs. Lucy B. Groat	30.00
Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Sprinkle	2.00
T. J. Ellis	100.00
Mrs. Clara Chaffee	1.00
Total	$1143.50
Pledges previously reported	427.00
Total pledges and contributions	$1570.50

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mrs. Edith Miller; Mrs. G. E. Stauffer; Rose Miller; Mrs. Marian R. Richards; Miss Leota B. Hanson; Mrs. Mae Mercer; Wesley Stephenson; Miss Fay Logan; C. H. Adams; J. D. Fyfe; J. E. Wilson; Miss Leila E. Whitehead; Mrs. Lottie Graham; N. S. Westfall (for another); C. A. Kelley; Mrs. George B. Graves; Mrs. Catharine Davis; Mrs. Ella MacDonald; Mrs. J. C. Thoms; Verna Himmelright; Dallas Lehman.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

Our entire group is feeling very thankful just now for the assurance that Sr. Townsend is on the road to recovery after a very serious seige of pneumonia. God has been good to us again.

The attendance record continues to hold well above the three hundred mark, taxing the capacity of both the church building and the "Annex."

Sr. Fletcher of Kalamazoo spent two days recently visiting the pastor's family and making calls on others of the church people. Sr. Fletcher has always taken a genuine interest in the little church here, and is a very welcome guest at any time.

Some specially appropriate music is being prepared for Mother's Day, and we trust the day may prove to be one of credit and inspiration.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

WE LOOK AHEAD

May 1, 1934

"Where Do We Go?" T. A. Drinkard.
Mr. Drinkard doesn't speak as men wish to hear.

"Not Written for His Sake Alone,"
Norman John MacLeod. Ancient examples for our benefit.

"The True Trinity," Lyman Booth. "If there is a false trinity there must . . . be a true one."

"The Days of Noah," L. B. Sherman.
A comparison.

Also other articles of interest to Bible students.

IN GRATITUDE

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

After almost a month's stay at the hospital it is good to be back with home folk, brethren, and friends. One feels more or less like a piece of public property in the hospital, while at home he seems to belong to some one.

Despite serious handicaps, the doctors and nurses were constantly amazed at the improvement shown daily. But how could it be otherwise, with such a loyal band of brethren from the north, south, east, and west, praying continually for me? My heart wells up in gratitude to God for your faithfulness.

The Rockford church, some of whom daily planned something to cheer and comfort me, and the messages from my Oregon brethren, as well as scores of letters and cards from near and far, were a constant inspiration in the fight for returning health. As soon as strength permits I hope to answer each one.

Many of the wonderful promises of God came to mind to lighten the weary hours, one particularly: "He shall give his angels charge over thee, to keep thee in all thy ways."

With continual thankfulness to the Giver of all good,

Mary A. Gesin.

BLANCHARD, MICHIGAN

Thursday evening by the sharp light of the gasoline lamp the Shepard Gospel Mission met in the schoolhouse to honor the One who had purchased the earth by His death and lay in the tomb for them nineteen hundred years ago. But, "As Jonas was three days and three nights in the whale . . ."

And Easter morning at the Wyman Gospel Mission the happy voices of the children were lifted up to praise their living Redeemer.

So Easter afternoon at Blanchard four splendid young people set sail in the Boat of Jesus Christ for the Port of Eternal Life: Sr. Thelma Egbert; Bros. Emery Toogood, Raymond Stewart, and Almond Reynolds. They are starting a new life from the waters of baptism, even as their great Captain started a new life centuries ago as He came from the tomb. Living for Jesus! Hallelujah! The baptismal service was followed by communion. Plants and an Easter lily graced the church.

Easter evening the young people's choir led the singing again. It is wonderful to have those of youthful vim to turn their abundant energy into the channel of service for Christ.

C. A. Smead, Pastor.

STILSON - BOYLE

On Sunday, April 15, we were called upon to solemnize the marriage of our eldest son, Everett E., and Gladys E. Boyle.

When the ceremony was finished the noon-day meal was next in evidence and enjoyed by the family and guests, after which the couple departed for a day or two in the Windy City.

The bride's family are in the Southland and could not be present, with the exception of her brother, Homer, of South Bend, who was present with his family.

We pray the heavenly Father may bless them in all good things, that their joys may be multiplied by sharing them, and their troubles be lessened by dividing them.

They will reside at 310 S. Franklin St., South Bend, Indiana.

F. A. Stilson.

MARY ELIZABETH SIGLER

Mary Elizabeth Harrison was born in Hagerstown, Md., August 16, 1843, the daughter of Andrew and Anna Harrison, and the eldest of their nine children. She was married April 2, 1869, to Abraham Sigler. Thirteen children were born to this union, of whom two sons and four daughters survive. In addition to her children, twenty-three grandchildren, thirty great-grandchildren, and two great-great-grandchildren.

The husband passed away February 28, 1914, since which time she has made her home with her daughter Gertrude, who has practically given her life to her mother's care.

Sr. Sigler, lovingly known to the Oregon church of which she was long a faithful member as "Grandma," was of a most cheerful disposition, a great lover of the Bible, and one who found much joy in prayer.

The funeral was conducted by the pastor of the Oregon church, and was largely attended. She awaits the Master's call in River-view Cemetery. Her death occurred peacefully on Monday, April 16, 1934.

BETWEEN YOU AND ME—

Sr. A. J. Eychaner informs us that Bro. Eychaner and herself plan to leave Florida, where they have spent the winter, April 26, and return at once to their home in Cedar Falls, Iowa.

Sr. Mary E. Carter, Mt. Vernon, Mo., sending in a contribution to the Special Indebtedness Fund, says, "Our redemption draweth nigh. I mean to give the tenth, be it ever so small, to the work of the Lord." There is a close connection between these two ideas. We have little time left to sacrifice on behalf of the gospel.

Writing of our beloved Bro. A. J. Chaplin's death, Sr. Della J. Keefe, Geuda Springs, Kan., says thoughtfully, "Yesterday we laid Bro. Chaplin away, but not for long. I feel that he was ready to meet his Lord and Savior when He comes." What a consolation such an assurance is!

Next Sunday, April 29, is Bro. J. H. Anderson's regular appointment at the Blush Church near Fredericktown, Mo. The church at this place meets each Sunday for Sunday school and Bible study, and Bro. Anderson preaches for them on the fifth Sundays.

Evangelists, pastors, Bible teachers: Are we making use of the significant times in which we live to press home upon our hearers the necessity for preparing for the Lord's coming? Each day brings its quota of fulfilling prophecy and its assurance that the day of the Lord is near.

Bro. and Sr. F. L. Austin of Chicago, accompanied by Sr. Leila E. Whitehead of the same place, were welcome but brief callers in Oregon, Ill., last Saturday.

Bro. Lyman Booth of St. Louis, Mo., author of several splendid works on biblical themes, and whose writings are gratefully received by our readers from time to time, passed his eighty-fifth milestone in the journey of life last Sunday, April 22. May he remain in active service until the Lord comes.

The prayer poem on the editorial page of this issue was composed in memory of Bro. William Canode of Oregon, Ill., and read at his funeral service. The lines may be sung to the familiar music of "Abide With Me!"

All of the properties owned by the National Bible Institution, the income of which goes to the support of Golden Rule Home, are now rented satisfactorily. For a time, owing to the depression, it was hard to find renters who were altogether desirable.

Have you prepared your two hundred word answer to the question, "What Must I Do to Be Saved?" Look up the conditions of the contest on page 3 of the last issue. Please remember that all answers must reach this office by May 10.

According to the "Messenger of Truth," published by Eld. S. J. Lindsay, pastor of the church at Tempe, Ariz., the brethren at that place were recently "made to rejoice over the baptism of Mr. Paul A. Trimble, Miss Doreta Mae Shaw, Mrs. Mary Shaw, and Miss Marjorie Saylor. These young people will be of very great help to the work in this place. May God bless and keep them all."

The family of "Grandma" Sigler, whose obituary appears in this issue, wish to express their thanks to the brotherhood for the many expressions of sympathy they received on the occasion of their aged mother's death.

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO MATTHEW

The Sunday school lessons for the first six months of 1934 are based exclusively (with the single exception of the Easter lesson, which is taken from John) upon the record of the life and teaching of our Lord as recorded by Matthew.

In addition to the facts noticed in the editorial in the first quarterly of the year, the following information will be found of interest and value as we pursue our study of the book.

Commenting appreciatively on the great value of the first Gospel, a recent writer says: "The splendid record is quoted more frequently than all the others by early Christian writers, and in view of the fact that it is aimed at a reconciliation between a Jewish and a cosmopolitan conception of Christ as 'legal, yet above the law, as Jewish, yet above Judaism,' it has been characterized by Renan as 'the most important book ever written.'"

Opinion varies among the critics as to the date of its production, but it is generally be a short time after 70 A. D. Regardless of the exact time and circumstances of its writing it is one of the valuable books of the Bible.

CHILD MISSIONARIES

Many of the pupils in our Sunday schools come from homes where the gospel of the kingdom of God, the coming of Christ, and the resurrection of the dead is but little understood. What a splendid opportunity this situation affords the faithful superintendent and teacher to engage in effective home missionary work.

These little folks, thrilled by the wonderful reality of Christ's return, carry the message back to their Bible-less homes and tell it to fathers and mothers who seldom if ever go to church, and thus become active little home missionaries to their own parents.

Beyond this lies the influence the Bible teaching of the Sunday school will eventually have upon the developing lives of the boys and girls themselves. Lessons learned in childhood are never forgotten, but become as permanent parts of the individual as is his physical body.

"PRESENT CONDITIONS IN THE LIGHT OF PROPHECY"

Such is the title of a timely little work by Elder J. H. Anderson on the "Cause and the Remedy" of present world-wide distress and perplexity. It is a booklet of 24 pages, envelope size, that is priced at ten cents per copy, postpaid. It may be secured from the author, J. H. Anderson, Michigantown, Indiana.

THE BIBLE

After Lord Byron's death the following lines were found written in his Bible:

"Within this awful volume lies
The mystery of mysteries;
And happy they of human race
To whom our God has given grace
To hear, to feel, to read, to pray,
To lift the latch and find the way.
But better they had ne'er been born
Who read to doubt, or read to scorn."

A LITTLE GIRL GIVES ALL

"My little granddaughter wanted to see the ladder full to the top, and I said, 'Well, Sallie Ann, I am going to help a little if I can get to the post office today.' So she gave me three cents and said, 'Maybe that will get it to the top!' She hasn't been to school yet, but she is good company for me. After she goes to bed at night she sings, 'God Will Take Care of You.'"

The dear sister who sends us this letter with her contribution says of the amount she incloses, "It seems so small, though if we all will live as we should I think we will get God's debt paid. My income is only one dollar a month, and I failed to get it in money this month, and I had to take it in work."

Your contribution "small," Sr. Robinson, under such circumstances? A two dollar contribution to the Lord's work when your income is one dollar a month! Why, you are putting us all to shame! May God bless you and Sallie Ann, and we know He will.

Let's
climb
the Ladder
to Success

$1500
$1400
$1300
$1200
$1100
$1000
$900
$800
$700
$600
$500
$400
$300
$200
$100

GOD'S PERSONAL MAGNETISM

By Cecil A. Smead

IN the Arabian Nights is a tale of a mountain that drew out the iron fastenings from passing ships and sank them instantly. A child plays with a magnet in the sand and watches it pick up iron filings. One day I watched a big electrical magnet pick up piles of scrap iron. The magnet, about four feet in diameter, would settle down upon the pile, the power would be applied, and up would come the pile, chunks hanging to the magnet and to each other, hanging by invisible chains. The power shut off, down the iron would crash.

Certain speakers attract their hearers in some intangible way, while others—well, some are born great, others achieve greatness, and others just grate upon you. It's in the nerves, and we all know that the nerves are in reality electrical wires; the human machine is run by electricity. A ship generates electricity with the fuel, and then turns the electricity into motive power right down on the spot by the propellers. So does the brain send electricity through the nerve to the muscle and expends it there, causing the muscle to contract. Some people, by nature or by habits, can use their electricity to magnetize, and the result is what is called personal magnetism, or sometimes, personality. It is too bad, but it can be used for either good ends or bad ends. Lucky is the person who is endowed with this power, for it is the open sesame into the hearts of men. This power is transmitted by radio as witness the last presidential election.

Now that we see what is done by human power plants, let us turn our thoughts to God, the Father and Creator of all, the great power plant of all. Who will dare deny to God powers that He gives to His creatures? So we see that the eternal Father must also possess personal magnetism, the only differences being that God's power is used only for good and is not bound. It is infinite. It must reach far and near, completely filling all space. It is all-powerful, perfectly controlled by the Father for every purpose. While the persons of the Father and the Son remain located in heaven the Holy Spirit is everywhere. Such is the personal magnetism of God.

This personal power of God must be something He has always possessed, ever since "in the beginning God." So we find that when God created "the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters" (Gen. 1:2). Thou sendest forth thy spirit, they are created: and thou renewest the face of the earth."—Psalm 104:30. So now we begin to realize some of the uses to which God puts His personal magnetism.

Now, there is a certain part of this great fund of power that God uses especially to attract people to Him, and by this special part of the element God communes with those who yield themselves to the attraction. This is called in the Scripture the Holy Spirit, or the Comforter: "But when the Comforter is come, whom I will send unto you from the Father, even the Spirit of truth, which proceedeth from the Father."—John 15:26. "But the Comforter, which is the Holy Ghost."—John 14:26. "Holy Ghost" and "Holy Spirit" are identical in the original language of the Bible, and always should be read "Holy Spirit." It is in the neuter gender in the Greek, being neither masculine nor feminine, but "it." It is the personal magnetism of God. It attracts us to Him.

Every Christian is "sealed with that holy Spirit of promise, which is the earnest of our inheritance until the redemption of the purchased possession, unto the praise of his glory."—Eph. 1:13, 14. We read that "the eyes of the Lord are in every place, beholding the evil and the good."—Prov. 15:3. But we also read, "For the eyes of the Lord run to and fro throughout the whole earth, to shew himself strong in the behalf of them whose heart is perfect toward him."—2 Chron. 16:9. Here we have the Holy Spirit in action. In passing we might remark that true holiness disregards actions, words, or even thoughts, on account of the human traits of lack of knowledge, bad judgment, and so forth, and instead is fixed on the motives or purposes of the heart. For "the Spirit also helpeth our infirmities," and Christian growth will be manifested in those other things. But the requirement is purity of heart, sinless in heart. Then "the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance."—Gal. 5:22, 23. Truly the personal magnetism of God is a marvelous power.

To be personally magnetic is splendid if one uses the power for good purposes. You attain it, first by being worthy of confidence, and then by being self-confident. But how much better it is to have the personal magnetism of God expressed in and through your life. The way to attain that is to be perfect in heart toward God, which is the only perfection possible in this mortal life, and then be Christ-confident. If you do that, you can be sure that the Holy Spirit will find you out. And it will be strong on your behalf.

TRUTH loses value if people do not understand it.—
Japanese Proverb.

A TESTIMONY

THE vigor of our spiritual life will be in exact proportion to the place held by the Bible in our life and thoughts. I can solemnly state this from an experience of 54 years. . . . In July, 1829, I began this plan of reading from the Old and New Testaments. I have read since then the Bible through one hundred times, and each time with increasing delight. When I begin it afresh it always seems like a new book. I cannot tell how great has been the blessing from consecutive, diligent, daily study. I look upon it as a lost day when I have not had a good time over the Word of God.—George Mueller.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 23

OREGON, ILLINOIS, MAY 1, 1934

NUMBER 31

"Not Written for His Sake Alone"

By Norman John MacLeod

THE picture we usually carry in our minds is of an old man well seasoned by experience rising to the sublime height of faith that was willing to offer its most priceless possession at the behest of God. Almost do we think of Abraham's faith being of such high quality that we can never attain to it. We feel that surely Abraham never was a young man filled with the real zest for life which we feel, and confronting the same problems as we. He surely never could have had the high spirited impulses or the abject feelings of timidity that we feel, or he could have not arisen to the heights of faith related of him. But when we realize that after all Abraham was a mortal being such as we are, we are compelled to ask the question: how did he achieve it? Was Abraham ever the man of faith? Did he ever face moral issues the like of those with which we are familiar? Did he always trust God? No, we must answer, Abraham did not always have that abiding faith in God and His plans.

Abraham faced real moral issues. He had once been a young man who dissembled rather than face the issue. We see Abraham going into a foreign country and telling a "white lie" to keep out of trouble: "his wife was his sister." Yes, she really was related to him. He almost involved himself in severe trouble. Had not God intervened we cannot tell what might have been the sad issue of that trip to Egypt. The salesman is often confronted by much the same situation that presented itself to Abraham here. If we put our property in the hands of a real estate man to sell we would not think he was a very good salesman if he told the prospective customer that the roof leaked quite badly during the last rain; that the soil in the back acre was of very poor quality that would not yield even to our best efforts; or that the income did not meet the expenses in these times of depression. We would think that he was not onto his job. The young person meets just such situations, and so does the older one. To tell the truth about our own good points, but lay little stress upon the weaker ones, is the natural tendency of human nature. We are not lying, we tell ourselves, we are just suppressing part of the truth. Not so long ago we were in a gathering of people who had come to listen to a discussion of problems in which we were vitally interested. It was noised about that we made our living by preaching the gospel. One lady said that she was glad to hear that, and wondered what church it was, and what its principles were. Of course we told her, but we wonder yet if the woman really got the information she sought. There were too many people there to begin to tell her of those things, we argue to ourselves.

"He (Abraham) staggered not at the promise of God through unbelief; but was strong in faith, giving glory to God; and being fully persuaded that, what he had promised, he was able also to perform. And therefore it was imputed to him for righteousness. Now it was not written for his sake alone, that it was imputed to him."—Romans 4:20-23.

The very name of the child of promise was also a gentle reminder of a time when Abraham's and Sarah's faith did not measure up to the full stature: "Isaac" means "laughter," in commemoration of the day when the coming of the child was announced by the angels and the announcement was received with laughter. Abraham did not always have that implicit trust. How did he attain the heights of faith seldom reached by mankind? What lessons brought him to the humble attitude of the Father of the Faithful?

Our childish ideas of the Bible stories persist with us even though we have outgrown the kindergarten in other respects. The baby Moses being found in the bulrushes by Pharaoh's daughter, or the man of extreme patience leading the children of Israel out of bondage: those are the conventional ideas of Moses. The impulsive man who slew the Egyptian oppressor is forgotten. Joseph, the "much-abused" boy who rose to be the hero of a mighty tale: did he ever suffer temptation? We often read the story of the young man in Potiphar's house, and we slide over unnoticed the fact that Joseph proved himself worthy of greater trust by overcoming the temptations common to mankind. It would have been so easy for Joseph to have yielded to the temptations put before (Please turn to Page Eight)

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879.

G. Eldred Marsh, Editor

Two Dollars per Year

Paul C. Johnson, Associate Editor

"I have chosen the way of truth: thy judgments have I laid before me."—Psalm 119:30.

THE EDITOR'S PRAYER

MOST holy Father: We need Thy presence in our homes in these days of uncertainty and increasing doubt, to strengthen our faith and the faith of our children in Thee and in the truth of Thy Word. Be Thou with us, we pray, that we may not be moved, that we may not be overmuch discouraged and disheartened when we see so little fruitage of our labor. Help us to use the disappointments of life, the apparent failure of our efforts to serve Thee, as stepping-stones to eternal success. May we ever remember that we labor not in vain in the Lord, and that eventually the crown of victory will be ours. Amen.

0

FELLOWSHIP WITH GOD

SO strongly have the Church of God and its leaders been impressed with the importance of the great material realities of which prophecy treats, and with the failure of the majority of religious teachers to give these things the attention they so richly deserve, that the church has directed much of its time and energy to these matters, sometimes, we fear, to the exclusion of the equally vital spiritual realities revealed in the Bible.

Our "fathers in the faith" of a half century ago were influenced against anything that savored of mysticism by the excessive religious emotionalism that was so generally practiced in those days. They felt that such extreme excitement of mind did not permit a calm and thoughtful meditation on the truths of the Bible. In their ardent desire to avoid such excesses and arrive at the truth of the Scriptures, they came to place less stress on prayer, worship, and heart consecration than would otherwise have been the case.

Another element that entered into the situation was the opposition they faced everywhere to their doctrinal teaching. They were constantly on the defensive, and compelled to "search the scriptures daily" in their effort to maintain their position on such subjects as the mortality of man, the literal coming of Christ, and the future kingdom of God on the earth. This continual search for doctrinal evidence placed them in the forefront of biblical technicians of their day, but at the same time developed a tendency on their part to overemphasize the literal and the material application of the Scriptures.

The time has now come, however, when the strength of the opposition we once faced is dying out, and we should approach our study of the Bible from another and less technical standpoint. We have many things to learn from others of fellowship with God, of deep spiritual experience, of prayer and worship and consecration of heart.

There are many among us who have long enjoyed such blessings, but the great majority of our people we fear are strangers to them. That this dearth of spiritual perception is not confined to the Church of God is apparent from what one of the most able ministers of the English Baptist Church said long ago: "There is a Christian life, which, in comparison with that experienced by the majority of Christians, is as summer to winter, or, as the mature fruitfulness of a golden autumn to the struggling promise of a cold and late spring. It is such a life as Caleb might have lived in Hebron, the City of Fellowship; or the Apostle John was living when he wrote his Epistles. It may be fitly termed the Blessed Life."

Such a life is a life that is always conscious of the presence of God. To one who gains this blessed experience God is not a dim and misty picture, not the figure in a dream, but a glorious living reality, who lives in one's home, who remains at one's side throughout the busy day, who is never far away, but who stands ready and willing to help in every time of need. God is here, not there! He is present, not absent! He is no longer merely the mighty Creator of the heavens and the earth, but the kind, the affectionate, the sympathizing, and the helpful Friend, Guide, and Comforter of our daily walk!

To come to know God in this intimate way is wonderful indeed. It brings a joy, an assurance, and a comfort into life that no other experience can produce. Such an understanding of God casts new light and glory upon His precious Word. Not that the meaning of the Bible is changed in the least! Far from it! But splendid new truths are seen in the old texts that formerly provided nothing more than a proof that man was mortal, that the kingdom was to be on this earth, and that future life depended upon a resurrection from the dead. To feel that God lives in us today, that He is working in and through us, lends a dignity and a beauty to our service and a meaning to our Bible study more wonderful than we have ever known before.

The True Trinity

By Lyman Booth

SHOULD a person ask me whether I am a Trinitarian or a Unitarian, I would reply that I am both. That is to say, I believe in one eternal, self-existent Being who is the first cause, who created all things—the starry heavens, and earth, and all things therein except sin, as shown by the following scriptures. In Isaiah 44:24 we read, “I am the Lord that maketh all things; that stretcheth forth the heavens alone; that spreadeth abroad the earth by myself.” The word “Lord” in this instance should have been “Jehovah,” as in every other instance where the word “Lord” is in capital letters. In Deuteronomy 4:35 it is recorded: “Unto thee it was shewed, that thou mightest know that the Lord he is God; there is none else beside him.” “By the word of the Lord were the heavens made; and all the host of them by the breath of his mouth.”—Psalm 33:6. “I have made the earth, and created man upon it: I, even my hands, have stretched out the heavens, and all their host have I commanded.”—Isa. 45:12. “For thus saith the Lord that created the heavens; God himself that formed the earth and made it; he hath established it, he created it not in vain, he formed it to be inhabited: I am the Lord; and there is none else.”—Isaiah 45:18. The above agrees perfectly with the account of creation in Genesis 1.

The above embodies my reason for being a Unitarian. I will now try to explain why I am a Trinitarian. When I shall have finished I believe most, if not all, will agree with my solution of the seeming contradiction.

In the first place I will state that I do not believe in the Trinity as taught by the clergy of our present time; which to my mind is in error. They teach that the Trinity is composed of God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Ghost. That the Holy Ghost is a bodily Being, and that the three Beings are One, and the One is Three. If you ask any of the advocates of that thought to explain how such a seeming impossibility could be, they say, “Oh! that is a mystery, and we cannot fully understand God’s mysteries.” That is as far as their explanation extends, and we are as much in the dark as we were before we asked.

Some critics have called that form of the Trinity a false one, but fail to satisfy our minds by telling of the true. If there is a false Trinity there must of necessity be a true one. The true or genuine must exist before it can be counterfeited. A silver dollar cannot be counterfeited except there is a genuine silver dollar. No counterfeiter can copy or imitate a genuine paper dollar except there is one to copy, and their attempts to do so often lead them into trouble.

Jesus said, “I am the way, the truth, and the life.” Here we have three offices filled by one person. Christ is in the three, and the three are in Him. This, however, is not the trinity to which I wish to call attention, although closely related.

Angels are sometimes spoken of as God. In Genesis 32:1 Jacob met the angels of God. In verse 24 he wrestled with a man, this man being one of the angels. In the thirtieth verse Jacob said, “I have seen God face to face.” Here he calls the angel he wrestled with “God.”

Since all the types and shadows as represented under the law service center in Christ, we will omit them for the sake of brevity, and will look to Christ as the life-giver. In John 5:26 we read, “For as the Father hath life in himself; so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself”; and in the fortieth verse: “Ye will not come to me, that ye might have life.” In John 10:10: “I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly.” In John 11:25: “Jesus said unto her, I am the resurrection, and the life: he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live.” In John 17:2 Jesus said in His prayer, “As thou hast given him power over all flesh, that he should give eternal life to as many as thou hast given him.” These scriptures clearly teach that Jesus is the only one through whom eternal life can be secured. Therefore we may justly say He is the life-giver.

In 1 Timothy 2:5 we read, “For there is one God, and one Linger Not!

The time is short!
If thou wouldst work for God, it must be now;
If thou wouldst win the garland for thy brow,
Redeem the time.

Shake off earth’s sloth!
Go forth with staff in hand while yet ’tis day;
Set out with girded loins upon the way;
Up! linger not!

Fold not thy hands!
What has the pilgrim of the cross and crown
To do with luxury or couch of down?
On, pilgrim, on!

With His reward
He comes; He tarries not; His day is near;
When men least look for Him, He will be here;
Prepare for Him!

Let not the flood
Sweep thy firm feet from the eternal Rock;
Face calmly, solemnly, the billows’ shock;
Fear not the storm.

Withstand the foe;
Die daily, that forever thou mayest live;
Be faithful unto death; the Lord will give
The crown of life.

—Horatius Bonar.

mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus; who gave himself a ransom for all, to be testified in due time." Christ Jesus is a mediator, a ransom, and life-giver. Since He is God's Son He inherits the name "God" according to Hebrews 1:4. "Being made so much better than the angels, as he hath by inheritance obtained a more excellent name than they." Therefore He is a God by virtue of being the Son of God, and God the ransom, and God the life-giver. Here we find the three in the man Christ Jesus, and Christ Jesus in the three. A perfect and holy trinity, ordained by Jehovah. Some may question this thought; but why so? (Please turn to Page Nine)

Where Do We Go?

By T. A. Drinkard

"Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might; for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave, whither thou goest."—Eccl. 9:10.

I HAVE for many years affirmed that it is impossible to persuade men to accept and embrace the truth until they understand the nature of man. You may disagree with me in my conclusions, but I ask for your candid consideration of these statements.

We learn sometimes by asking questions. I have never held a series of meetings without granting to the people the right of asking me questions at any time, even during my speaking hour. And a number have taken me at my word and called me down to answer their questions, which I gladly did. Possibly not according to the way they wanted to hear, but nevertheless according to the Scriptures.

Speak to many today about the coming of Jesus Christ and the establishment of His kingdom on the earth, and they are not interested, and why? They expect to go to heaven when death comes. Suppose that men go to heaven at death—what interest would we need in the coming of Jesus Christ and His kingdom; in the covenant of promise to Abraham, to Isaac, to Jacob; in the resurrection?

It is true that we go somewhere when we die, and it is clearly taught in the Scriptures of divine truth. Read carefully the text at the head of this article and see how strongly the writer affirms that man goes to the grave. Notice, too, that that which goes to the grave is said to have knowledge, wisdom, and the ability to work before going there. I say it without fear of successful contradiction, that every inspired writer of the Scriptures agrees upon this question. And it is for the reader's good that I write.

Another fact is also true, and that is: If it were not for the opposition of the clergy you would see more men and women accepting the teachings of the Scriptures. Jesus Christ referred to those in the days of His personal ministry upon earth as being "blind leaders of the blind." Jesus Christ was the greatest militant defender of the truth of our God. He never once pulled down the flag; He never once compromised for the sake of popularity. And you will note that in His advice and charge to His apostles He said, "Occupy till I come."

I find a statement that includes man. It reads, "All go unto one place; all are of the dust, and all turn to dust again."—Eccl. 3:20. How did Solomon know that all this was true? Surely he in some way had access to the word of Genesis 3:19: "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground; for out of it wast thou taken: for dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return." Thou wast taken or made from dust; and thou wilt return to dust.

There are some among those who oppose these views who have very keen minds and many are unable to meet them as they should. For this reason alone we should know our Bible. Carefully follow Paul's advice to rightly divide the Word of truth and you will be safe and sure. I enjoy affirming that man of the Bible is mortal. That is the man who is promised a resurrection. No promise of resurrection is made to that which lives and never dies this side of the resurrection, for example an immortal soul.

If the study of this question is unimportant why do we find so much teaching along this line? Job wrote something worth while, and here is what he said: "As the cloud is consumed and vanisheth away: so he that goeth down to the grave shall come up no more."—Job 7:9. Yes, man goes somewhere, and Job tells us it is to the grave. Notice again, "Before I go whence I shall not return, even to the land of darkness and the shadow of death."—Job 10:21.

Not only this, but some of the inspired writers tell us that at death man returns to the earth. This would indicate that man was "formed . . . of the dust of the ground" as Genesis 2:7 and 1 Corinthians 15:47 teach. David in Psalm 104:29 speaks of men "return(ing) to their dust." By Genesis 3:19 the same return is referred to. Job sees man at death returning to dust (Job 34:15). David seems to be deeply interested in the subject and says that man "returneth to his earth" (Psalm 146:4). Study carefully Job 14:7-14; 17:16.

The purpose of Christ's coming to the world was to bring man again from the dead (1 Cor. 15:21, 22). If there is no death, there is no need for a resurrection. By John 5:28, 29 we see that man is in the grave at the coming of Jesus Christ. All classes receive payment according to the way they have lived previous to death (Gal. 6:7, 8).

The Days of Noah

THERE have been three periods in the world's history which have been outstanding as crises among nations and each has run parallel to the others and each crisis has needed a leadership which would bring the world out of chaos.

No student of world's events does not know that the entire world is in the greatest chaos in the annals of history. No period of world's history presents a greater lack of confidence, distrust, fear, perplexity, and a feeling of mystery that forebodes evil and calamity.

From the man who seeks shelter from the wintry blasts, to the man who receives aid from the welfare societies for his family needs, to the man whose salary has not been tampered with, to the financier, banker, and money lender, that hidden undercurrent of unrest has so sapped the courage that not only this nation but the nations of the world are held in a bondage of fear for those things that are coming upon the earth.

Laws that were made for the average man are subverted to take away the little that he has. Banks, corporations, Wall Street, are sweating the last pound of flesh out of humanity and leaving them stranded and struggling. Absolutely without conscience politicians are digging into the graft system without compunction, betraying public trust, appearing in public with an air of helping and taking out with one hand as much as the other hand could put in ten times over. The conditions of today would make the ward heeler of forty years ago look like a Wednesday night prayer meeting.

Yesterday—a woman discharged from the hospital with a two weeks' old baby with no place to go, a disgrace to civilization. Today the baby dead from exposure and the mother in critical condition from exhaustion and cold, wandering the streets until taken care of by the police.

A mother and daughter commit suicide together because of poverty. A young man commits suicide on the grave of his bride-to-be because of loneliness. A sweat shop operator is fined five hundred dollars for working girls twelve years old making dresses from 4 p. m. to 11 p. m. He should be set up against a brick wall. Officials of a city in New England with good salaries chiseling in on the CWA, taking the bread of men who are hungry and justifying themselves. Investigation after investigation into the crooked dealings of the NRA until one wonders if there is an honest person left in the world.

The representatives of Greece running mad wondering why Greece could get no orders for pure olive oil. They found out when they were told that as long as Greece entertained Samuel Insull, Greece would not get any orders, and Insull was ordered to vamoise by January 21.

A nearness to civil war in France. The persecution of the Jew in Germany. Sterilization, a new religion, defiance of all precedents by Hitler, German money in sunken vaults. A fleet of airplanes flying to Honolulu just to show the Japs we can do it. The United States planning a naval base in the southern Pacific to offset an antagonistic effort of Japan. Russia and Japan in plot against China. Enemies of the President opposing every effort that might bring something of normality. Enemies in Congress and the Senate who would see the country worse than it was or is in order to save for themselves the graft which is obtainable through their crooked dealing.

Four states at one time fighting kidnaping and extortion and lynching. And still it goes on. From Al Capone and his liquor rackets and white slave operations to the most disgraceful crime of the century, the Lindberg kidnaping, to the Bremer case whose tabloids covered the front page of every American newspaper. Underworld operations have so gripped the nation by the throat that a man hardly says his soul is his own.

We often speak of the underworld of the racketeer. There is the underworld of the gangster. There is also an underworld of society. Fifth Avenue and the Bowery have their systems as well as the gangster. If the lid of society might be removed it would startle the world. There is the underworld of blackmail. Millions are spent annually through this channel and the greater part never comes to the surface. The divorce court can only give an idea of the intrigues that are being carried on. Men and women of note and famous in their careers are too often examples of the lowest of debauch.

The church has not escaped this. There is in the church a membership that lives and thrives on the faults and failings of others who propagate lies and scandal, until scarcely a person can come through with a decent reputation. There are those who come to the service and sit through the hour of worship with the look of sanctimonious saints but whose minds are working on everybody with an imputation of evil. And the next day the scathing denunciations would make the first spoken-of underworld tame in comparison. The question on every hand, "Is he straight, is she straight?" comes up so often that it makes one wonder if anyone is straight.

We know this to be so because once in so often we hear from our leaders and read articles in our papers pleading for our people to stop lying and scandalizing and gossiping. Why should such a plea have to be offered to the church? Jealousies, fears that some one is looking for our positions, have driven more than one minister to a positive lowering of his abilities.

Ministers jealous of other ministers, churches jealous of other churches, conferences jealous of other conferences, and sections the same. Many willing to crucify anyone and everyone to further their own ends. Then we ask God to bless us. He does not and He will not bless to any great degree until these methods are obliterated. Whoever said,

"Religion, what crimes are committed in thy name," knew what he was talking about.

This is the day of one of the crises which we mentioned and of which Jesus spoke when He said (Matt. 24:37), "But as the days of Noe were, so shall also the coming of the Son of man be." It is going to take more than the placid Dr. Cadman or the militant Father Coughlin, friend of the man on the street, to bring out of the chaotic condition the peace and quiet that the world stands in so much need of.

II

Nineteen hundred years ago was another period. A crisis appeared which changed the thought, system, and polity of the entire known world. The prowess of the Roman Empire, the culture of the Greek, and the theology of the Jew were made to realize that a change came through the birth of the Lord Jesus Christ. The real condition and thought of the times are explicitly expressed in the first chapter of Paul's Epistle to the Romans. There was a premium on suicide. Morals and ethics were hardly known. Ninety-five per cent of the population was in slavery. Tiberius Caesar, who was contemporary with Pontius Pilate and whom Pilate chose for a friend rather than the people whom he ruled, was a slothful, scheming, ruthless, profligate, sensual, conscienceless ruler. He was despotic, cruel, and vindictive, jealous of every ruler and distrusted by everyone under him. His favorites were of the vilest type. His vices and crimes were monstrous over a period of over twenty-three years. His troubles and ailments drove him to despair and to insanity and he died insane with a loathsome disease. This was Tiberius Caesar and a fair sample of emperors of the first century. Caligula and Nero come in the same category.

This was the world which Jesus faced, imperialistic, ritualistic, desperately in need of a great leader. And when He would have and could have led them out to a higher and better life they killed Him.

III

The history of the world up to the time of the flood is very meager. No historian will risk much of opinion outside of the Bible. And Moses has used only five chapters to cover a great period of the world's history. But it only takes seven verses of the sixth chapter to depict a condition which is only paralleled in the conditions of the present hour.

When God cursed the ground for the sin of Adam and Eve, when Cain was made a vagabond for killing his brother, evil was started upon the earth. When Cain went out into the east country he turned his back on God voluntarily. And we read that Cain built a city. The correct version is, "He was ever building." He was a wanderer and never could stay very long in any particular place. Yet he kept saying, "I will build a city." Being inventive and a man of ability he invented agricultural and musical instruments. His genius kept him on the move and he locked God out of his life, his civilization, and out of the city that he built.

On the other hand there was Seth. He had not the genius of Cain, but he kept step with God. He built an altar, and his life was moved from the place of that altar and worship. He never built a city. He was not an inventor. He only built up a civilization that worshiped God, and in his generation continued unto Enoch.

Now trace Cain through the building until we come to the seventh generation as Seth comes to his seventh generation. Cain's civilization that locked God out headed up with murder, bloodshed, and human carnage.

Then at the end of this seventh generation the sons of Seth saw, heard, and envied the progress of the Canaanites. Their inventive genius, the music of their instruments, the beauty of their women lured these sons of Seth, and they went over into the camp of the Canaanites and married their daughters.

They federated their divine, God-given worship with these worshipers of idols, and they lost that which they had and they lost what they got. These sons of God looked on the daughters of men and saw that they were fair; and they took wives of all which they chose.

It is coincidental to say the least that Enoch, the seventh from Adam of the posterity of Seth, invented letters and made laws and prophesied a second coming, while Lamech, seventh from Adam of the posterity of Cain, became a bigamist and started the beginning of an awful finish. This was all seven generations from Adam. "As it was in the days of Noe." From this time on men lived as men are living today, marrying and divorcing, eating and drinking.

All this led up until the time of Genesis 6:4: "There were giants in the earth in those days."

In this instance the word giants means "fallen earth men; with animal and devilish minds." They were giants in intelligence and intellect as well as in stature. They were able to force their will on other people. They were able to commit great violence. Might made right. What they saw and wanted they took. Without force if it came that way, with force if not. They were men of blood. It was the iron rule. And God saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth and every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was evil continually.

They carried their power to such an extent as to become degenerate. They were flesh whose minds were wholly sensualized and brutalized so as not to retain God in their knowledge. They were in a state of wickedness, and their wickedness was multiplied so that the whole earth was filled with violence. Wickedness had doubled to what their virtue had been. Profligacy among the lower classes, cruelty and oppression among the higher, predominated.

The imagination of their thoughts was evil. The first embryo of every idea, the figment of every thought, the very material out of which perception and conception and ideas were formed, were all evil.

The fountain which produced every thought was poisoned. It was evil without any mixture of good. It was rapine, luxury, and riot. They resisted the Spirit of God until evil held sovereign sway.

And God saw and said, "I will destroy."

Truly those days were a counterpart of this present day. Jesus could bring no greater comparison of the times of the end. Neither could Peter or Paul in their Epistles picture a more complete description of the day of His coming.

We are substituting science and philosophy for Christianity, a worldly wisdom for the wisdom of God; and the time has now come when, as the Psalmist says, "And the Lord looked down to see if there is one good." Jude quoted from Enoch, the seventh from Adam, and John the Revelator said that the church of the judgment would be neither cold nor hot, just lukewarm, nauseating, revolting, and in God's eyes deserving a more severe judgment than the other six churches.

Again, "As the days of Noe were, so shall also the coming of the Son of man be."—L. B. Sherman in Present Truth Messenger.

The Tacklings of the World Are Loosed

"Say to them that are of a fearful heart, Be strong, fear not: behold, your God will come with vengeance, even God with a recompense; he will come and save you."—Isaiah 35:4.

IN spite of the desperate attempts of the world's leaders to turn the tide of depression, thus far no real solution for the world's ills have been found, nor have the nations considered it important to turn to Almighty God in a call to repentance and prayer.

Harry Carr, the news writer, says: "I have talked with some of the greatest economists in the world. They agree on certain points. That Germany is certain to have a major revolution within three years. That the deaths of Von Hindenburg, Mussolini or Calles will cause chaos in their countries; that Europe's Bolshevik troubles are coming."

Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War, says: "The world is setting on a powder magazine. What happens in Germany in the next few months, will determine what kind of a world our children shall live in. This is the seventeenth year since the World War started. Greeds and hatreds that start war are being kindled anew."

A gloomy picture of the world, with the dissolution of the British Empire and the possibility of another world war, is being painted by Bertrand Russell, noted English philosopher. In spite of the general sentiment throughout the world for disarmament, he believes another great conflict is to come.

Frank H. Simonds, World War historian, writes a book (Can Europe Keep the Peace?). In it he reaches the conclusion that war debts and reparations will never be paid; that the League of Nations has failed; that Germany committed suicide with American money; that France caused the downfall of the first MacDonald Ministry and the English financial collapse, and that France has exploded all disarmament conferences.

"Nations are bankrupt," he says, "trade is reduced to barter, money has lost its value, even the pound sterling has faltered. The unemployed millions are meagerly fed by public treasuries, themselves inadequately filled by taxation which is extortionate. The miseries of the so-called peace of today, miseries reaching to every human being within national limits, defy exaggeration. It is clear that what has been going on cannot continue."

As to the notion that reduction of armaments can solve the world's ills, William G. McAdoo says that a reduction in armaments unless accompanied by profound economic adjustments, will never end wars. "The primary cause of all wars in modern times is economic strain," he says, "and that in turn is the result of intense financial and commercial competition. To abolish war effectively we must contrive to lessen the intense economic situation which is, in this era, one of the outstanding characteristics of our civilization. That all men are brothers is a noble and Christian thought, but human experience has demonstrated that it is, at best, nothing more than a pleasant theory."

Ex-President Hoover points out that within two years there have been revolutions or acute social disorders in nineteen countries, embracing more than half the population of the world. Ten countries have been unable to meet their external obligations. In fifteen countries, embracing a quarter of the world's population, former monetary standards have been temporarily abandoned. In a number of countries there have been acute financial panics or compulsory restraints upon banking.

"Behold, their valiant ones shall cry without: the ambassadors of peace shall weep bitterly."—Isa. 33:7. Prophecy is being fulfilled. All human government is proving a miserable failure. Man's government has failed in every dispensation. It will fail in this one. Says the Lord: "Ye shall conceive chaff, ye shall bring forth stubble; your breath, as fire, shall devour you."—Isa. 33:11. "Thy tacklings are loosed; they could not well strengthen their mast, they could not spread the sail: then is the prey of a great spoil divided; the lame take the prey."—Isa. 33:23.

One of these days God's declaration will be fulfilled: "I will cause the arrogance of the proud to cease, and will lay low the haughtiness of the terrible."—Isa. 13:11.

"Who among us shall dwell with the devouring fire? . . . He that walketh righteously and speaketh uprightly; he that despiseth the gain of oppressions, that shaketh his hands from holding of bribes, that stoppeth his ears from hearing of blood, and shutteth his eyes from seeing evil; he shall dwell on high. . . . Thine eyes shall see the king in his beauty."—Isa. 33:14-17.—Prophecy.

"NOT WRITTEN FOR HIS SAKE ALONE"

Continued from Front Page

him by his master's wife. How many are the young men who have yielded to their hurt! How many fail in the hour of stress. But Joseph, the man who was trusted so much by his overlord, could not betray a trust even though his course of action led to prison. How did he reach that point of trust in God that carried him through temptation? How did Moses acquire that great patience for which he was noted? Not surely by wishing for it! Not surely by being taken out of the world that he might not suffer temptation. NO! But by those very temptations were those men strengthened!

How may we, like them, learn the lessons of abiding faith? and of those other things for which we admire these great characters of Scripture? How learn to trust God as Abraham did? Did Abraham learn that trust from his father? No, for that man started out on the great adventure, only to give up before he reached the Land of Promise. We learn to trust God by seeing His power at work in our lives and in the world. How may we see that? By prayer! Do we ever really try it? Will prayer really work? Most of us are like the little girl and boy pictured in the comic magazine who found a gasoline can and prayed God to give them an automobile and gasoline with which to run it. God does not work that way. Prayer is a transforming influence in our lives when we are like the man in the parable (Luke 11:5ff) who would not let his neighbor sleep, but pestered him until he got the provisions he desired. Or like the widow in the parable of the unjust judge who bothered him until he worked for her. Do we ever "bother" God by our much praying? Or do we let a few words suffice in an off-hand manner? Persistence in prayer is taught by Jesus. Not that we are to expect the impossible, but that we are to give our utmost attention to the things of God. The "righteous acts of saints" are some of the most effective prayers.

Another way in which we can learn to have faith in God is to realize that men cannot extricate themselves from the dilemmas in which they place themselves. The present economic, political, and social condition of the world is such that no man is wise enough, even though he may be the President of the United States or the Prime Minister of Great Britain, to extricate the civilization of mankind from its dread maladies. When we are confronted by the confusing voices of the sociologists, the great philosophical thinkers, the economists, and the agitators, we should anchor ourselves all the more firmly in the things that God has given us for our learning. Joseph realized that he had been sent to Egypt for a purpose. He did not realize it, I dare say, on that day when his jealous brothers sold him into slavery. But he could see that God had placed in him a great trust: he would not betray it by dragging his character down into the mud of immorality. God would not use such a person for His purposes. Moses learned by hard lessons that infinite patience was needed to fashion a slave people into a nation that could stand before God. But when he as a young, high spirited man slew the Egyptian who was oppressing a Hebrew he did not possess that patience. Only by long years of discipline on the back side of the desert mountains did he have the continuity of purpose that would make him the leader of his people.

By doing things for God can we learn the influence of His guiding care and protection. He has seen to it that the stories of the ancient worthies have been put down in writing for our learning. Let us use them as men should do, and not in the kindergarten style of children. Not that we should neglect to bring the story of the little baby to our children: that would be to throw away the tender beauty which has been woven into the great religious teachings. But let us grow in our ideas as well as in our religious learning. Abraham came out from a degraded civilization as is evidenced by the laws which were in Babylon in his days (the Code of Hammurabi, the monarch of Babylon in the times of Abraham). They were worshipers of a great array of gods—Abraham worshiped the one true God. Moses gave up opportunities the like of which most of us would spend our entire life to gain, that he might suffer affliction with the people of God. That took courage of a very high order. Joseph suffered imprisonment rather than betray a trust. These things were not written that Abraham might glory in his faith; that Joseph might delight his own ears with the story of his loyalty to a trust; that Moses might be exalted by his own humility and patience. They were not written for their sakes alone, but for our sakes. "For it is written in the law of Moses, Thou shalt not muzzle the mouth of the ox that treadeth out the corn. Doth God take care for oxen? Or saith he it altogether for our sakes? For our sakes, no doubt, this is written: that he that ploweth should plow in hope; and that he that thresheth in hope should be partaker of his hope."—1 Cor. 9:9, 10. May we believe God even as Abraham did, and have it counted unto us for righteousness, "to whom it shall be imputed, if we believe on him that raised up Jesus our Lord from the dead; who was delivered for our offences, and was raised again for our justification."—Rom. 4:24, 25.

Some people desire infallible authority to save them the trouble of thinking—M. W. Lyon.

A SLIP OF THE MINISTERIAL TONGUE

A NEW pastor had recently been installed, and with the official board of his church had gone over the list of membership, checking the names of those who had died and of those who had moved to other localities. The following Sunday he addressed his congregation as follows: "Brethren, we have carefully inspected the church membership records and find that at least a hundred names should be removed, for," said he, "some fifty have gone to heaven, and the rest elsewhere!"

THE BURIAL AND RESURRECTION OF THE MESSIAH

By J. G. Haupt

THE resurrection of Jesus is very definitely described. He rose very early in the morning while it was yet dark. We may plausibly say that He rose immediately after midnight, thus starting the midnight beginning of the day as followed in the Christian Era.

In the Old Testament, from Moses on, the seventh or rest day of God had been pointedly imposed upon the Jewish people, but they refused to obey God, even putting God's only begotten Son to an ignominious death. God's people will never forget that the last of creation, the creation of four-footed or mammal beasts, with the creation of man, was left for the sixth day. God rested from His creative work on the seventh day, no longer creating newer types of things, but leaving to man to add to the storehouse of God's perfect gifts to man. Beginning with the seventh day and continuing onward to the end of time God has man use his ingenuity to improve and make manifold things as man sees the light and the need of new things.

The Messiah rose on the first day of the week. From that resurrection day dates the new beginning of God's great plan. Man is no longer to be guided by such holidays as were introduced in the former dispensation, but is to use the first day of the week to impress upon all Christian people the new order that God has ordained.

The church was instituted on the great Pentecostal day when the Spirit of God rested upon all believers and they were enabled to do wonderful things. God retained His own name for the great church, but He made the Christ, His only begotten Son, the head of the corner of the church, its great corner stone, placing Christ at His right hand in the heavens as priest. At His conception the Messiah had been made prophet and teacher after the order of Melchisedec. This position He took at His ascension. He is to come again in royalty at a time in the future the day and hour of which not even the angels in heaven are informed; only God knoweth. When He will let the Christ come back to earth must depend upon man's readiness for Him.

The important words of the inspired Apostle Paul to the Galatians were that if any man preach a false gospel, a gospel different from that of the holy apostles, let him be accursed. Paul says this in a double announcement. Correctly the preacher is thus held accountable for false teaching. The Bible is filled with numerous warnings to bring about a more perfect faith and a greater degree of obedience.

PIRACY used to be legal, but when made a crime, it disappeared. The same is true of slavery. Why should war, the most stupendous of curses, wear the crown of legality?

—Senator Borah.

THE TRUE TRINITY

Continued from Page Four

An angel sent from God with a message to man is called God. It is the message that gives the angel the right to that title, and not because he is an angel. The message originated in the mind of God. This is the same as saying John Jones is sheriff, and the sheriff is John Jones. Which is one in two and two in one. It is thus with the ransom, mediator, and life-giver. They were ordained of God and by Him made known to mankind. They are absolutely necessary to the salvation of men. One is just as important as the other. Omit either and there is no hope for the salvation of a single soul.

In Romans 7:14 Paul said, "For we know that the law is spiritual: but I am carnal, sold under sin." The whole human family, like Paul, is carnal, sold under sin by Adam, and is under the bondage of sin—servants of sin. In slavery days the negroes were in bondage to their masters or owners. There were instances where one or more were bought and then given liberty. The price paid was their ransom. The one who paid the ransom was their redeemer from bondage. Thus it is with Adam's posterity. Occasionally one or more are bought by the precious blood of Christ, and given liberty, the glorious liberty of the children of God (Rom. 8:21), and Jesus is their ransom or redeemer from the bondage of sin.

If a negro who had obtained his liberty by ransom were arrested for an offense, as they often were, the party who purchased his liberty appeared before the court and plead his cause and secured his release or justification. Thus it is with those whose liberty Christ Jesus has purchased. He is their mediator making intercession for their release from faults, and securing their justification.

Under the law the high priest entered the Holy of Holies once a year as a mediator to make atonement for the people of Israel (Lev. 16:34). But our High Priest hath an unchangeable priesthood whereby "he is able to save them to the uttermost that come unto God by him, seeing he ever liveth to make intercession for them" (Heb. 7:25).

The ransom properly comes first because men must first be freed from sin. The mediator the second, because He keeps them in the truth that leads them into life eternal. Thus we have the ransom, mediator, and life-giver, which correspond to the way, the truth, and the life.

Men are separated from God as criminals; the communion or friendship is restored by God's free pardon, and their acceptance of that pardon. Men are separated from God as unholy and their communion is restored by accepting the sacrifice of Christ, and when all are thus restored the harmony of the universe will become complete through the mediation of Christ Jesus, who is the resurrection and salvation of men. He is the guide of the erring, the shepherd of the redeemed, the light and life of the faithful, the King of kings, to whom be glory and honor forever and ever. Amen.

Abreast of the Times

Curbs Drive on Jews

"I was a stranger, and ye took me not in."

BERLIN, Germany, April 23.—German authorities are apparently beginning to see that to drive the Jews entirely out of the country at once would result in much distress to Germany itself. Recently the German Minister of Labor, Franz Seldte, addressed a letter to the Government's "labor trustees," in which he said, "Non-Aryan (Jewish) workers and employees are protected by the Government." He further instructed the labor trustees to prevent mass action by Nazi workers, which aimed to bring pressure to bear upon employers to dismiss their Jewish employees.

Fascist Gains in Great Britain

"Come out of her, my people, that ye be not partakers of her sins, and that ye receive not of her plagues."

LONDON, April 23.—Parliamentary government based on universal suffrage is rapidly disappearing in many parts of the world and is being superseded by powerful individual dictatorships. It is said that more than 100,000,000 people in some nine nations of Europe have submitted to that form of rulership without serious objection. Under the general name of "Fascism" the new theory of government is threatening the last ramparts of democracy on the Continent, and is even making considerable advance in this country.

The leader of the English Fascists, Sir Oswald Mosley, is authority for the statement that Fascism is growing more rapidly in Great Britain than it has grown in any country in the world. The fact that the Rothemere Press, with a circulation of four million in London and two million more outside the city is now supporting the movement is deeply significant.

The nations are preparing themselves to receive the master dictator of the ages, the Antichrist, when he comes!

No Depression in Palestine

"He which soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully."—2 Cor. 9:6.

MINNEAPOLIS, March 14.—There actually is one place—Zionist Palestine—where there is a real shortage of labor, and unemployment is unknown.

That was the word Joseph Sprinzak brought with him to Minneapolis Wednesday from Tel-Aviv, Palestine, where he is an editor of the daily and weekly labor newspapers sponsored by the Federation of Labor in Palestine.

"Zionist Palestine now has a population of 300,000, which was increased by 40,000 last year," Mr. Sprinzak said at the Curtis Hotel. "While the depression hit the other countries of the world, our fruit and agricultural products exports increased 56 per cent over the past year."

Mr. Sprinzak is on a national tour during which he will address Jewish youth groups in cities throughout the country.—Minneapolis paper.

The World in Fear

"I also will choose their delusions, and will bring their fears upon them."—Isa. 66:4.

TORONTO, Canada, March 31.—Present world conditions are summed up graphically in the March issue of the Defender by Rev. Oswald J. Smith of this city as follows. We reprint without quotation marks.

War in Europe is now almost a certainty. The entire continent is in uniform. To be exact, one man out of every nine men in Europe is in uniform. The whole continent bristles with bayonets and guns. An atmosphere of nervousness, never before known, has gripped every country.

Russia fears Japan, as well she may. Her armies are already mobilized for action.

France is in fear of Germany. She knows that Germany is rearming, and that the intention is to crush her.

Italy fears that the day may come when Germany will win Austria and thus place 75,000 men along the Italian border as a menace to her own proposed advancement.

Dr. Henry Morgenthau, Sr., father of the Secretary of the United States Treasury, says that "behind the smooth words of diplomacy, European thought runs toward war. The disarmament discussions at Geneva are a fine example of hypocrisy or farce—or perhaps I should say, tragedy—because most participants, discussing proposals blandly, know that nothing can or will be done. Each knows precisely the extent to which the others are armed; that each is still increasing armaments steadily; and, finally, that general staffs actually are already on the 'alert' for the signal of war."

The League of Nations is absolutely impotent. It was successful in dealing with small countries, but just as soon as it was faced with a major Power it found itself helpless. Mussolini has stated again and again that what it needed was "teeth." In other words, it has no way of enforcing its edicts.

In addition to the preceding analysis of world affairs by Rev. Smith, attention should be called to the pressing danger that has arisen in the Far East during the last few days through the announcement by Japan that she will not permit any nation to negotiate directly with China, and is apparently determined to close the "open door" policy which that nation has maintained for many years. Let us watch and be sober!

National Berean Department

Miss Genniel Carpenter, Editor, Oregon, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Cecil A. Smead, President
Blanchard, Michigan

Virgil Claypool, Treasurer
506 E. Chestnut St.
Robinson, Illinois

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
Oregon, Illinois

A PRAYER

OUR God and Father, to Thee we pray for strength. May we with all Thy creation glorify Thy name. Help us to know our faults, that knowing we may lose them. Let us realize Thy presence always near us, and give us of Thy gracious favor, Lord. We humbly ask forgiveness for the wrongs that we have done, and may our sins not be between us and Thy glorious Self. We ask Thee through Thy Son. Amen.—Anonymous.

THE NAME OF CHRIST

Does Christ save you from your sin?
Call Him Savior!
Does He free you from the slavery of your passions?
Call Him Redeemer!
Does He teach you as no one else has taught you?
Call Him Teacher!
Does He mold and master your life?
Call Him Master!
Does He shine upon the pathway that is dark to you?
Call Him Guide!
Does He reveal God to you?
Call Him the Son of God!
Does He reveal Man?
Call Him the Son of Man!
Or, in following Him, are your lips silent in your incapacity to define Him and His influence upon you?
Call Him by no name, but follow Him!

—Howard S. Bliss in The Atlantic Monthly.

"BE YE READY"

THE story is told of a traveler who chanced upon a beautiful villa situated on the shores of a beautiful lake in Switzerland far from the beaten track of tourists. The traveler knocked at the garden gate and an aged gardener undid its heavy fastenings and bade him enter. The aged man seemed glad to see him and showed him around the wonderful garden. "How long have you been here?" the traveler asked. "Twenty-four years." "And how often has your master been here meanwhile?" "Four times." "When was he last here?" "Twelve years ago." "He writes often?" "Never once." "From whom do you receive your pay?" "His agent in Mailand." "But he comes here often?" "He has never been here." "Who does come, then?" "I am almost always alone—it is very, very seldom that even a stranger comes." "Yet you have the garden in such perfect order, everything flourishing, as if you were expecting your master's coming tomorrow!" "As if he were coming today, sir, today!" exclaimed the old man.

It is our duty to be ready for our Lord's coming today, though His coming may be far in the future.

—New Century Leader.

THE LAW OF LOVE

THERE is a very simple law to follow. It is Paul's law. . . . It is the law of love. It speaks thus:

Whatever dulls the sensitiveness of my spirit towards God, or takes the fine, tender edge of my thought of Him must be ruled out, for He is my Lord.

Whatever injures or weakens my body, or affects my mastery of it, must be ruled out, for it is the temple of my Lord.

Whatever affects hurtfully the earnestness and clearness of my witness to Jesus Christ before others must be ruled out, for it was His parting wish that I be a witness for Him to all men.

Whatever lessens in any way, even through prejudice or misunderstandings, the results of my service must be ruled out, for to influence men for Him is to be the passion of my life.

Whatever may cause my brother to stumble in his Christian life must be ruled out, for that would grieve Jesus.—S. D. Gordon.

THE GREATEST MENACE

THE greatest menace to the success of many Berean classes, as in the case of many churches and Bible schools, lies not in the teachers nor in the subjects studied, but in the students themselves. Regardless of how excellent a teacher may be, he can accomplish nothing if his students fail to cooperate either through neglect or through positive disinclination.

The Bible was made to be studied. Berean lessons were made to aid in that study. But the average Berean goes to his class with no idea of the substance of the lesson.

Such a condition must be corrected before a Berean class can be effective; else, members and leaders lose all interest in the work. Study precedes success.

—Arlen Marsh.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart."

JESUS CHRIST AND OUR COUNTRY

THERE is a story about the beginning of this wonderful country of ours, the United States of America, which you have all heard probably many times. It is the story of the Pilgrims, who came across the ocean and braved so many dangers in order to live in our land, which was then a wilderness where very few people but Indians lived. Do you remember why the Pilgrims came? That is the finest part of the story. Yes, it was because the Pilgrims wanted to worship God the way they thought they should. In the country they came from, the people in power did not agree with them about religion, so the Pilgrims didn't have very happy lives. Wouldn't it be unpleasant to live in a country where you weren't allowed to go to church and believe in the Bible? Some countries used to be like that, and right now in some places you would be treated very unkindly or even cruelly for believing in God and the Bible. We should be thankful that our land is not like that. It is a wonderful thing to realize that our own beloved country was started with high, Christian motives.

So there is a connection between our loyalty to Christ and our loyalty to our country, isn't there? We must be careful, though, to put the more important thing first.

Once when the Pharisees were trying to trick Jesus into saying something they could use against Him, Jesus gave them a clear illustration of this problem. They wanted to know if it was right to pay taxes to Caesar. That was a hard question to answer wisely, because Jesus would be opposing the Roman Government if He said, "No," and He would displease the Jews if He said, "Yes."

But the cleverest questions the Pharisees could think of were not too clever for Jesus. He said, "Shew me the tribute money." They brought Him a coin. Then He asked whose picture and name were on the coin. By that time the Pharisees saw they couldn't trap Jesus, but they had to answer, "Caesar's," because there it was as plain as could be right on the money. So Jesus said, "Render therefore unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's; and unto God the things that are God's."

Wasn't that a wise answer? It is a good sentence to memorize and live up to.

Later Jesus gave another reply that we should never forget. A lawyer asked Him, "Master, which is the great commandment in the law?" Jesus said then, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment. And the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself. On these two commandments hang all the law and the prophets."

That covers every good law there is, doesn't it? Think about that last sentence. Just what does it mean?

We all want to be good citizens, but more than that we want to be good Christians. We won't have any difficulty with either one, though, if we do as Jesus said and put God first. Because if we're good Christians, you see, we can't help but be good citizens, too.—Genniel Carpenter.

FOR MOTHER'S DAY

On the Sunday we have this lesson, we will also be celebrating Mother's Day. Here is a poem about Mother that was written by some orphan boys, between eight and ten years of age, at Girard College, Philadelphia.

THE ORPHAN'S HOMAGE

The roses in the garden
Are fair, as fair can be;
But Mother's smile is sweeter
Than any rose to me.

The merry little robins
Are singing in the tree;
But Mother's song is sweeter
Than robin's song to me.

The stars that shine so brightly
Like diamonds seem to be;
But Mother's eyes are brighter
Than any stars to me.

Men go to seek great fortunes
They go o'er land and sea;
But Mother's love's more precious
Than any gold to me.

—Church Management, May, 1927.

FOR some kindnesses we do we get paid right away, in thanks, in appreciation, or maybe in money. But that is not true of all the good services we render. But it pays to do right anyway. There will be payment at some time, in some way.—G. B. F. Hallock.

The Sunday School Lesson

FROM TRUTH SEEKERS' QUARTERLY

LESSON 7. — May 13, 1934

CHRISTIANITY AND PATRIOTISM

Matthew 22:1 to 23:39

Devotional Reading: Romans 13:8-14
GOLDEN TEXT

Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment. And the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself.—Matthew 22:37-39.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic: Christianity and Patriotism.

Basic Truth: "Render therefore to all their dues: tribute to whom tribute is due; custom to whom custom; fear to whom fear; honour to whom honour."—Rom. 13:7.

I. The Duty of Citizenship. (Matt. 22:15-22.) Allegiance to Jesus Christ affects every relationship of life. Not only does it change one's relation to the Lord, but it alters one's entire outlook upon the world. The motives that prompt us to action are all different from what they were before. Even one's patriotic impulses are lifted to a higher and more spiritual plane. To the Christian respect for law becomes a matter of conscientious devotion to God, and such material acts as the payment of taxes for the maintenance of government takes on the guise of spiritual service. Everything that one does is influenced by the thought and purpose behind it. Recognizing the debt he owes the state and nation which protect him in the free exercise of his religious convictions, the Christian is glad to pay his part of the cost of such government. The spirit of Christ impels him to do this.

II. The Final Purpose of the Gospel. (Matt. 22:34-40.) In summing up the entire purpose of "the law and the prophets," that is, the complete revelation of God's will for men, Jesus declares it to consist of love for God and for humanity. "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, soul, and mind," is the substance of the "first and great commandment. And the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself." Love is the propelling power in each of these commandments, "for God is love." The law and the prophets provide a revelation of God, and therefore a revelation of love. That is their purpose. And so it is with the gospel itself. It, too, is a revelation of God's wonderful love for mankind. When its promises are fully realized, its predictions accomplished, its aims reached through the establishment of the kingdom, the earth shall be filled with knowledge of God's love as the waters cover the sea.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment. And the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself."—Matt. 22:37-39.

When Jesus was asked, "Which is the great commandment?" His answer was our golden text. The first is love to God, the second is love to our fellow man. If the first one is kept one is apt to be a Christian in the fullest meaning of the word. If the second one is kept, no harm will be done the neighbor and the Golden Rule will guide the actions.

If we love God, we will want to know His will and live accordingly, and if we love our neighbor as ourselves, no tempting cup will be offered him, nor anything else done that would lead in the downward course, but rather we would be building for eternity in the kingdom. Let us honor our Father and His Son by keeping these commandments that we may be called when the Savior comes to claim His own.—L. A. E.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

A good citizen

—must love the Lord God with all his heart;

—will love his neighbor as himself;

—prays for those who are in authority;

—will submit himself unto every ordinance for the Lord's sake;

—will gladly render tribute and custom to the higher powers.

Duties of a Citizen. There are certain duties scripturally enjoined on people in regard to their relationship to government. Obedience to authority: Scripture is very plain in its instructions regarding our having respect for those in authority. "Thou shalt not revile the gods, nor curse the ruler of thy people."—Ex. 22:28; Acts 23:5; Rom. 13:1-7; Tit. 3:1. Respect laws: Laws and ordinances are made for man and his protection and should be obeyed rather than endeavor to find ways and means to circumvent them. "Whosoever will not do the law of thy God, and the law of the king, let judgment be executed speedily."—Ezra 7:26; 1 Pet. 2:13-17. Pay taxes: Constituted law and authority cost money to insure proper functioning. A good citizen will obey Scripture and "render tribute to whom tribute is due" (Matt. 17:24-27; Rom. 13:6, 7).

Rights of Good Citizens. Every law-abiding citizen has an inalienable right for protection in his lawful pursuit of life and happiness (Acts 22:25-29; 25:16). Wicked rulers who "frameth mischief by a law" will in due time receive a recompense meet for their works (Psalm 94:20, 21). A righteous king is a blessing, an evil ruler a curse (Prov. 29:2, 4, 12).—C. E. R.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULTS

The standards of Christian citizenship have not always been the same. Neither are they the same in all countries today. Each country has set up standards that will be of the greatest benefit to itself. Citizenship demands that a person be loyal to his country whether right or wrong. Christ can tolerate only that which is righteous. It is claimed that everything would go to the bad if Christian people didn't cooperate in the suppression of evil. This sounds logical but it is nationalistic reasoning rather than Christian. Evil was suppressed long before Christianity was in existence. Christianity is not based upon suppression. Rome was very corrupt during the days of our Savior, yet He didn't send out the twelve or the seventy to teach political reform or to instruct people to vote. He sent them to teach the things concerning the kingdom of God.

Jesus, before Pilate, stated that His kingdom was not of this world, if it were His followers would fight. Jesus obeyed the laws of the land wherein He lived if they did not conflict with the laws of God. However, we do not find Him teaching politics or even working for reforms in the government of His day. Christ's kingdom is to be an entirely new one, not a present government reformed and made over. "Christian citizenship" as it is commonly interpreted is antagonistic to Christ's kingdom. A Christian is not a "reformed" person but a "new creature" working with all energy for the coming kingdom. —H. A. S.

PRIMARY CLASS

Memory Verse: "Render therefore to all their dues."—Romans 13:7a.

It doesn't matter how hard we try to do things just right, it seems there is always some one who likes to find fault with us. But we shouldn't get discouraged and quit trying.

Do you know Jesus had just such experiences? He healed the sick, made lame people walk, opened the eyes of the blind, raised dead people to life, preached, and taught; yet some were always trying to find fault with Him.

At one time some Pharisees came to Jesus and said, "Do You think it is lawful to give tribute (tax money) to Caesar?"

Now Jesus knew that they were just trying to test Him, so He answered, "Show Me some of the tribute money."

They brought a penny to Him. He asked, "Whose image (picture) is on this penny?"

They answered, "Caesar's."

Then said Jesus, "Give unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and give unto God the things that are God's."

By this Jesus meant that it was very well for them to pay tribute to Caesar. It was their duty as citizens of that country. But they should remember also to give service to God. They were so surprised at Jesus' answer that they went on their way and left Him there.

We, too, must serve our country, but let's put God's work first. Let's "render (give) . . . to all their dues."—V. C. T.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CONFERENCE DATES

Fonthill May Meeting at Fonthill, Ontario,	May 25 to 27
Minnesota State Conference at St. Cloud,	June 14 to 17
Brush Creek June Meeting at Brush Creek Church in Ohio	June 17 to 24
Illinois Bible School and Conference at Oregon,	July 31 to Aug. 12
General Conference at Oregon, Illinois,	July 31 to Aug. 12
Iowa Conference at Waterloo,	Aug. 21 to 26

BURR OAK, INDIANA

Sunday school	10:00 a. m.
Morning worship	11:00 a. m.
Evening worship	7:30 p. m.

F. L. Austin of Chicago will conduct services at Burr Oak, Ind., May 6. His morning theme will be "God's Viewpoint Versus Man's." His evening theme will be "Salvation—What Is It?"

Mrs. Dewey Overmyer, Sec.

ILLINOIS BIBLE SCHOOL

From July 31 to August 12 it is expected that some of the best teachers of the Church of God will be conducting Bible classes in the annual Illinois Bible School at Oregon. You are invited and urged to attend that you may receive the benefits of the instruction given.

HOW GOOD IT IS

Yes! how gloriously good it is to read in The Herald so often letters from our young ministers. On the first page of the issue of April 24 was the stirring article from Bro. Paul M. Hatch, "The Master." Such a magnificent character he portrays Christ to be, and with all we would say of Him, we cannot begin to fill it at all full, but it helps us to read these splendid thoughts from others. Then on the last page of the same paper is the splendid article from Bro. Smead, who is doing such fine work in Blanchard, Mich.

And I was so glad to read in Bro. Lyman Booth's "Church History" of Bro. D. M. Hudler. It reminded me again of Bro. Woodward's and my work with him in Illinois. He never became too tired to preach or visit on gospel themes. How Bro. and Sr. Good did mother him and care for him in sickness until he was so bad he had to be taken to a hospital. Bro. Good visited him and did much for his comfort. Nothing could keep him from talking about the Bible and his hope of the coming Christ and the setting up of His kingdom.

I spent two winters in New Port Richey, Fla., where Bro. and Sr. Good and family of two boys and one girl lived. We had many good meetings in the Methodist Church there, for Bro. and Sr. Good were very earnest Christians. Bro. Woodward baptized them in Dutton, Mich., many years ago. She is a widow now, and lives in Colorado Springs, Colo. A letter from her recently said, "O how I wish I lived where I could hear and talk of the gospel of the kingdom! How good it is to live lives that it is a pleasure to think and talk of while we are absent in the body."

Mary A. Woodward.

THE COMING APOSTASY

"Let no one delude you by any means, because the apostasy (falling away) must come first, and there must be revealed that man of sin, that son of destruction."—2 Thess. 2:3.

In my work I find it necessary to spend one Sunday each month in a small city in western Iowa. It is a county seat of about five thousand inhabitants. As there is no church there of our faith, I visit the other Protestant churches of the town. Only one church in the city holds Sunday evening services. It was my privilege to attend last Sunday evening. The night was a beautiful moonlight one. The church was of the leading denomination of the town, a new, large, commodious building recently built, equipped with a fine pipe organ. There were present forty-eight people, including the choir and the pastor. On my way back to the hotel after the service I crossed the business section of the city. The people were lined up on the sidewalk waiting for the second show at the movie theaters of the town. The liquor taverns were full of men, mostly young boys in teen age. My thoughts carried me back to Paul's warning in 2 Timothy the third chapter: "Lovers of pleasure rather than lovers of God." Does this condition show we are in the last days of this dispensation? I leave it for you to decide.

Glenn M. Birkey.

CLEAR LAKE, WISCONSIN

The attendance and interest at the meetings conducted at this place by A. E. Hoskins of St. Cloud, Minn., were splendid throughout. As a result of the effort a Sunday school has been organized, and a building committee appointed, consisting of the following brethren: Bro. Edmonds, Willis Ziemer, and Ora Hillman. They are to ascertain the cost of excavating a basement for the church, and to solicit subscriptions to meet the expense, and report their findings to the church May 1.

A piece of land in Graytown has been contributed to the church by Bro. and Sr. Edwin Engebretson, which will assist in providing the means for the erection of a church. The congregation plans to start regular services soon.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

Our entire group is thankful for the rapid recovery being made by Sr. Townsend from her recent serious illness. One happy factor that fitted into her recovery was the return of her son Robert from a winter in Florida.

One of our newest members, Sr. Sleeper, had a serious fall down the cellar stairs recently, breaking a rib and causing much suffering and pain. Sr. Conlin also has suffered severe attacks of gallstones, and her heart will not permit an operation.

These and other sicknesses and problems impress upon us the great need of our coming Lord.

Special plans are being made for Mother's Day, and for musical numbers at other church services. The earnest, self-sacrificing enthusiasm being put into the work by many is an inspiration.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

EDEN VALLEY, MINNESOTA

We are glad to report good interest in the work at Eden Valley. Sunday school and preaching service each Sunday are well attended and the interest always good. The young people's class is outstanding in attendance and activity. Bro. LeCroae is their teacher in Sunday school and Berean class. This class has taken over the choir work entirely now and has choir practice each Thursday evening following the Berean lesson, with Sr. William Ruhn as choir director. This month's social meeting was held at the home of Iris Jones, Friday evening, April 20. All report a very enjoyable time.

The monthly board meeting was held April 6 at the home of Bro. and Sr. Floyd Mills. A profitable evening was spent in discussing and planning the work.

Adult Bible study and prayer meeting was held this week at the home of Bro. and Sr. W. F. Hoskins. The lesson, on the Signs of the Times, was very interesting.

Bro. and Sr. John Denchfield were callers in the neighborhood week before last and Bro. Denchfield spoke to a good sized audience Sunday morning, April 15.

A number of friends surprised the chairman of the board Saturday evening, April 21, the occasion being his fifty-first birthday.

We are sorry we did not get a report in of the pre-Easter services and program, but our little granddaughter, Joyce Darlene Hamilton, came into our home and hearts March 17. Therefore all thought of writing was put aside for awhile.

Mrs. Herman Ruhn, Clerk.

A BULLETIN IDEA FOR PASTORS

The Layman Company is now putting out its tithing pamphlets in four page bulletin form, printed on two inside pages only, other two pages blank for local news and announcements. The cost will give a saving of at least $5 per week to any pastor who uses four page bulletins in his Sunday services. A good opportunity for five or ten weeks of tithe education without expense or special distribution. Thirty-two subjects to choose from. Sample set, 15 cents. Prices: 40 cents per 100; $3.00 per 1000. These may be assorted in any way to meet your needs!

The Layman Company,
730 Rush St., Chicago, Ill.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO N. B. I.

J. W. Sweet	$1.50
Maurertown, Va., Sunday School	2.00
Interested Member	2.00
Geraldine Miller (Easter Offering)	2.00

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mrs. John S. Taylor; Mrs. Amy L. Weaver; Mrs. O. W. Umphrey; Walter Gray; Ora Burnett; Mrs. Hilding L. Anderson (for another); Mrs. Elizabeth O. Frier.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO DOLLAR-A-MONTH CLUB

Mr. and Mrs. Paul C. Johnson; Mrs. D. W. Brown ($2); Mrs. Lois Hunt; Mr. and Mrs. M. Fetters; Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Sprinkle; C. L. Netts ($5); Mrs. Mary E. Carter; Hilda Fetters ($4).

BETWEEN YOU AND ME—

We understand that Bro. S. J. Lindsay, one of the founders and for many years editor of this paper, who is now pastor of the church at Tempe, Ariz., will start on his usual summer trip to his home in Oregon, Ill., May 29.

Manuscripts are coming in for the "What Must I Do to Be Saved?" contest which closes May 10. When all are in they will be turned over to the committee for examination. Remember, please, they must reach this office not later than May 10, and not contain more than two hundred words to be eligible for the contest.

The Oregon church was glad to see Sr. Mary A. Gesin again in her usual place at the Sunday morning worship hour. Sr. Gesin is gradually regaining strength after her recent operation.

Do not overlook the dates of the early state and district conferences. The first of the season is probably the annual May Meeting at Fonthill, Ont., which is announced for the last Sunday in this month. The annual State Conference of the Minnesota Church of God will be held in St. Cloud, Minn., June 14 to 17 inclusive. The Brush Creek, Ohio, gathering will start on the day the Minnesota Conference closes, June 17. Bro. Magaw, the pastor, will be assisted by Bro. S. J. Lindsay in the latter series.

In an early issue will appear an important announcement from Norman John MacLeod, pastor of the Los Angeles church, concerning the issuance of a correspondence course in history which will be of special interest to the ministry. Watch for it!

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by
National Bible Institution
Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents Sample copy, Free.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

The RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: the near return of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church to be joint heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

ESSENTIAL TRUTHS—

Anonymous

A brief arrangement of the necessary requirements of salvation as to faith and works. It provides copious Bible references showing that belief in the coming kingdom of God on the earth, the restoration of Palestine to Israel, the reign of Christ and His saints over all nations, the resurrection and immortalization of the dead in Christ, eternal life to be obtained only through Christ at His coming, the final destruction of the wicked, repentance and baptism for the remission of sins, followed by a holy life of Christian service, are included among the "Essential Truths" of the Bible.

1 page. Per dozen 10¢; per hundred 30¢.

ROCKFORD, ILLINOIS

We hold our services in the W. C. T. U. Hall at 1904 North Main Street. Sunday school convenes every Sunday at 9:45; and Berean class every Friday evening at 7:45. Bro. Conner preaches for us on the second and fourth Sundays each month: morning service at 11:00 o'clock, and evening service at 7:30. We cordially invite all who can to meet with us in any of these services.

BAPTISM—

by S. J. Lindsay

This is a treatise on the significance, importance, and mode of baptism by one of the most able Bible teachers. The subject is presented in an interesting and logical manner, setting forth the biblical truth that baptism by immersion in water, following a definite belief in the gospel, is essential to salvation.

8 pages—2 for 5¢; per dozen 20¢; per hundred $1.20.

HELL—WHAT IS IT?

Anonymous

A concise study of all the occurrences of the word "hell" in the Bible, giving the original Hebrew and Greek words from which it is derived, and showing "that through the Bible excepting in twelve instances, hell has reference to the grave and the grave condition." In the remaining instances it does not refer to a place of eternal torment.

8 pages. Per dozen 20¢; per hundred $1.20.

SPECIAL INDEBTEDNESS FUND

Previously reported	$1143.50
Mrs. Mary E. Elton	125.00
Wilson Calkins	25.00
Mrs. E. C. Rallsback	5.00
Mrs. O. W. Umphrey	2.35
Mrs. Susan T. Long	25.00
Mrs. Mary E. Carter	4.00
Mrs. Hilding L. Anderson	5.00

Total	$1334.85
Pledges reported	302.00

Total pledges and contributions $1636.85

SPLENDID, BRETHREN, SPLENDID!

Again we go up a rung in the ladder that we hope will carry us out of our indebtedness to the defunct bank of Oregon. Less than Four Hundred Dollars remains to be raised for us to reach the top! This is indeed a splendid response you are making to the appeal of Manager L. E. Conner to help him lift this burden from the National Bible Institution before next conference.

To do our part in the office we have cut expenses to the bone, and in fact, we have reduced our working force to such an extent that it is necessary to let some work go undone for a little while until we have reached our objective. We know you would rather we would delay a part of our service to you for a time in order that the Institution may free itself from debt. So please be patient, brethren, for our mutual good.

Let's
climb
the Ladder
to Success

$1600
$1500
$1400
$1300
$1200
$1100
$1000
$900
$800
$700
$600
$500
$400
$300
$200
$100

WISDOM OF THE ATHEIST

REGARDING the present-day propaganda of atheists, we are frequently being asked what answer we would give to their blasphemous statements. To deal with them in detail without writing a book is impossible. To their position as a whole, we have something to say.

The atheists want our youth to believe that our world and the vast universe were made by chance. An atheist is one of the most daring beings in creation. He thinks he can put God out of the universe. He hopes to persuade the human race that he has such an immense intelligence that he can tell us there is no God anywhere. He seeks to convince all that they are deceived by the inborn instinct that there must be a God and a hereafter and that the marks of intelligent design and purpose in all creation are simply delusion.

Did you ever stop to think what remarkable wisdom an atheist must have? In order to know that the Being he rejects does not exist, he must be omnipresent. To make such claims as atheists make involves the very attributes of divinity. If he does not know every agent in the universe, the one he does not know might be a God. If he does not know everything that has been done in the ages that are past, some things may have been done by a God. Yet high school and college youths of very ordinary intelligence present themselves to you as atheists and tell you there is no God.

All about us there is order, beauty, design, adaptation of means to ends. How often might a man jumble the letters of the alphabet in a bag, fling them out on the ground and cause them to fall into an exact poem? How long might a million blind men, who should be sent out from the most remote parts of the country, wander up and down before they should meet on the western plains and fall into rank and file in the order of an army?

These are things far more easy to imagine than that the innumerable blind parts of matter formed themselves into a world. As soon might a man look at the great Los Angeles City Hall and declare that it was never contrived or built by any man, but that the building materials just happily met together and fortunately arranged themselves.

"You can't prove that there is a God," they say. We have never seen Him, it is true, but we are surrounded on every side by things that look like the handiwork of a supreme Intelligence, and those who recognize Him and the revelation He is said to have given in His only begotten Son, find their hearts strangely warmed and their lives mightily transformed.

If in the end we find that there is no God and no Savior, we have gained unspeakably in peace and joy in this life and have no more to lose than the atheist. If God does exist and His Word is true, the atheist has lost his soul and the believer enters into eternal reward. Since there is nothing to be gained in atheism and a possibility of losing everything, the common sense thing to do is to stick to the God of our fathers and mothers and live for Christ and eternity. Put the burden of proof on the atheist. He says there is no God. Let him demonstrate the proposition.

—Selected by R. A. Curtis from Prophecy.

—0—

Our pledges speak louder than our hymns.—M. W. Lyon.

—0—

G O D

By B. H. Judd

"Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path."—Psalms 119:105.

Oh, let us take God at His word (Psalms 119:100, 101)
And believe His statements true (Psalms 12:6),
That He Himself alone is God (Deut. 6:4; Isa. 45:21),
That no other can be, too (Isa. 44:6; 45:5, 6).

Let us believe that Christ His Son
Taught this truth in accents clear,
His Father is "the only God" (John 5:44, R. V.; 17:3),
And none other need we fear (Isa. 8:13):

"To us," said Paul, "there is one God" (1 Cor. 8:6),
That one we call "the Father."
No matter what men now may say,
Accept His Word the rather:

Oh, those who teach that "Three are One"
And that One is really Three,
Deny divinely uttered truth,
That "there is no God but Me" (Isa. 44:8).

May God, whose mercy still looks down
With pity on mankind,
Forgive those who through fault of these
Are to plain truths so blind.

May God forgive those, too, who lead
Astray the unsuspecting flock;
For they themselves are led astray
By those unfounded on the Rock (1 Sam. 2:2).

—0—

CONFIDE IN HIM

WE are ever ready to confide in weak friends, and we are afraid to trust in God. We believe the promises of the world, but we cannot believe the Word of God. Let us make an effort to restore the divine order; let us confide with moderation in what depends upon ourselves, but let us set no bounds to our confidence in God. Let us repress all eagerness, all inquietude, all that we call zeal. He who thus trusts in God becomes immovable as Mount Zion. Our trust should be more firm and elevated. "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me."—Fenelon.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 23

OREGON, ILLINOIS, MAY 8, 1934

NUMBER 32

THE FAMILY NAME

By C. E. Randall

"For this cause I bow my knees unto the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, of whom the whole family in heaven and earth is named."—Ephesians 3:14, 15.

THE Diaglott brings out the thought a little clearer. "For this cause, I bend my knees to the Father, from whom the whole family in the heavens and on earth is named." Bullinger renders the text: "Of whom every family in heaven and earth are named."

The Greek word patria from which "family" is translated occurs only three times and carries the thought of a group of families descending from a common stock or father. Thus every group or family that God has called and set aside have taken the family name, which is the Father's name. It matters not whether this group be a heavenly one or an earthly, His name is the family name. He called a nation and set them aside as His wife (Hosea 2:19) and called her by His name, Isra-EL. EL is one of God's names and He has called His wife Israel after this name. God respects and honors His name and will allow no one to take His name in vain and still be guiltless. Israel, God's wife, has profaned His name among the heathen where she has gone after other lovers and, "therefore, behold, I will hedge up thy way with thorns, and make a wall, that she shall not find her paths. And she shall follow after her lovers, but she shall not overtake them; and she shall seek them, but shall not find them: then shall she say, I will go and return to my first husband; for then was it better with me than now. . . . And it shall be at that day, saith the Lord, that thou shalt call me Ishi (margin, "My husband"); and shalt call me no more Baali (margin, "My Lord")."—Hos. 2:6, 7, 16. Why will God do all this? "I do not this for your sakes, O house of Israel, but for mine holy name's sake, which ye have profaned among the heathen, whither ye went."—Ezek. 36:22. God has done a mighty work with His wife because of His name. He will yet do a marvelous work in order that His name may be vindicated.

Now let us see how Israe-EL came by their name. To begin with, we might say that they received it by inheritance from the head of the nation. Here is the way it came about. "And God said unto him, Thy name is Jacob: thy name shall not be called any more Jacob, but Israel shall be thy name: and he called his name Israel."—Gen. 35:10. It was God who changed his name and gave him his new name. Hence the beginning and naming of God's family Isra-EL.

We now turn our attention to another family with a different head, concerning which we are more interested and concerned. This family is also God's family and likewise is called after the Father of whom all families are named. This family is scripturally called the "church of God." This family also receives its name by inheritance through its Head, as "Christ is the head of the church" (Eph. 5:23). God named the head of this family as He did the family of Israel. "And she shall bring forth a son, and thou shalt call his name JESUS."—Matt. 1:21. This is the name He obtained by inheritance (Heb. 1:4). It is the Father's name. It is composed of JAH (Jehovah) and SHUA (Mighty or Powerful One). As a Son He inherited the Father's name. He was a true Son, a faithful Son, an obedient Son. Unlike the people who settled on the Plain of Shinar who said, "Let us make us a name, lest we be scattered abroad upon the face of the whole earth" (Gen. 11:4), He remained under the true family name, the Father's name. He had no ambitions to make Himself a name. His purpose was to glorify the Father (John 17:4). In setting forth the ways in which He glorified the Father, He said: "I have manifested thy name unto the men which thou gavest me out of the world." He was not ashamed of the Father's name. He gloried in the name. Not only did He manifest the Father's name but He kept them in that name. "While I was with them in the world, I kept them in thy name."—John 17:12. Further, He earnestly prayed that those that should after believe should be kept in that name. "I come to thee. Holy Father, keep through thine own name those whom thou hast given me, that they may (Please turn to Page Nine)

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879.

G. Eldred Marah, Editor

Two Dollars per Year

Paul C. Johnson, Associate Editor

"O love the Lord, all ye his saints: for the Lord preserveth the faithful. . . . Be of good courage, and he shall strengthen your heart, all ye that hope in the Lord."—Psalm 31:23, 24.

WE PRAY FOR COMFORT

OUR FATHER, with sorrow we come unto Thee, seeking the comfort Thou alone canst give. Two beloved leaders of outstanding character and of great spiritual attainment have fallen from the ranks of Truth's defenders in a single day! Our hearts are burdened with the loss we share. Grant us the assurance that we shall see them again in the gladness of the new day. Amen.

LET US STAND FIRM

IN THESE days of loose religious thinking, teaching, and preaching, when almost anything in the name of religion is presented as "Christianity," it is important that the Church of God and its ministers should be repeatedly and earnestly admonished to stand firm in the faith of the gospel.

The great danger today does not lie so much in false religious teaching as it does in the substituting of worldly instruction for the truth of the Bible. Many ministers and churches are so taken up with social problems and political reform that they have little or no time left to preach the simple gospel of Jesus Christ.

Years ago our main effort was directed against unbiblical doctrines held by other religious bodies. We were justified in defending the truth and seeking to overcome error which obscured the glorious and essential revelations of the coming kingdom. But now an entirely new development has come about as a result of which our opponents no longer attack our position with Bible in hand, for they are not sufficiently acquainted with the mighty power of the Spirit's Sword to wield it to any advantage to themselves.

Turning away from the Scriptures, they are addressing themselves to moral, social, and political problems of many sorts, and leaving the field of real religion largely to us who are still so lacking in the modern viewpoint as to be willing to accept the Word as true. This situation provides us with a splendid opportunity to plant long despised, but to us very blessed, truths in the hearts of men and women who are really hungering and thirsting after righteousness. Brethren, let us stand firm!

COMMUNISM AND THE CLERGY

A MINISTERIAL friend from an adjoining town dropped into the office the other day for a little printing. We have known this man for two years or more, and appreciate the fact that he, too, is looking hopefully forward to the coming of the Lord and the establishment of His kingdom on the earth. Further, he is a firm believer in the inspiration of the Bible, a devout and earnest preacher of what is termed "fundamental Christianity."

What was our amazement, therefore, when he somewhat sorrowfully told us that the KKK had threatened him with summary judgment, even suggesting the burning of a fiery cross upon his lawn, because of certain utterances he had made that convinced that organization of his sympathy with Communism.

The situation had been aggravated by the radical political stand taken by the pastor of another church in the same small city. The latter, it appears, had permitted a lay speaker to deliver a bitter denunciation of the United States Government from his pulpit, and at various times had expressed in no uncertain terms his own disapproval of the existing capitalistic system.

Our friend has little in common with this second man from a religious standpoint, as the latter is a pronounced Modernist, and the former, as we have said, is a Fundamentalist. Knowing that the Lord is coming soon to put a final end to all political intrigue and disagreement, and to establish an empire of righteousness upon the earth, and how futile it is to attempt the regeneration of the nations by reform or revolution, this pastor has largely destroyed his value as a messenger of the coming King through his association and expressed sympathy with one who believes none of these vital elements of gospel truth!

This is but an isolated instance that has come under our own observation, but it serves to show the trend of the times among the clergy of this country. A news item appearing this week in "Abreast of the Times" mentions the fact that a radical division of the May Day parade in Detroit was aided by a young Presbyterian minister.

It is strange that men supposedly educated in the gospel of Christ do not realize the futility of attempting to redeem the world by political revolution, nor see how they are destroying their spiritual usefulness.

Unbelief—Its Effect

By M. W. Perrine

ACCORDING to my understanding what God wants us to do and to be in order to manifest the spirit and the true characteristics of a Christian and our love for God the Father and His Son Jesus is to believe His Word and obey it. That is the only way of showing our confidence in His ability and His purpose to bring to pass all the great and precious things He has promised. The fact that Abraham believed God was why he was accounted as righteous and was called the friend of God. Our first parents disbelieved God in the beginning, which brought the curse upon the world and introduced sin into the world, which brought death.

Now the sin of today is believing that when God pronounced the penalty of death upon Adam He did not mean utter extinction of being. God placed in the Garden of Eden cherubim and a flaming sword to prevent Adam from partaking of the tree of life and eating and living forever (Gen. 3:22-24). This surely ought to convince any reasonable man of the falsity of believing that man has an immortal soul or a spark of immortality in him.

But God made known His purpose, His love, mercy, and favor, toward the human race when He uttered these words to the serpent: "I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed; it shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel." Unbelief of God's word brought death upon the whole human race.

Now let's see what death means. If we can catch the meaning of Scripture it means utter extinction.

Psalm 37:9, 10: "For evildoers shall be cut off: but those that wait upon the Lord, they shall inherit the earth. For yet a little while, and the wicked shall not be: yea, thou shalt diligently consider his place, and it shall not be." Men shall be cut off from life. Psalm 37:20: "But the wicked shall perish, and the enemies of the Lord shall be as the fat of lambs: they shall consume; into smoke shall they consume away." Malachi 4:1: "Behold, the day cometh that shall burn as an oven; and all the proud, yea, and all that do wickedly, shall be stubble: and the day that cometh shall burn them up, saith the Lord of hosts, that it shall leave them neither root nor branch."

No possibility of regaining life will exist for the wicked.

Unbelief is the curse of the world, yet there are some things men do believe. They believe what the serpent said to Eve, as also do a great many of the churches. He said, "Ye shall not surely die," and they believe it. He has no power to give them life, being himself under condemnation.

When God decided to destroy all flesh from the face of the earth with a flood, He sent Noah, a preacher of righteousness, to warn the people. He preached for a period of one hundred twenty years, and not a single one of them believed Noah's preaching. As a consequence they perished.

When the children of Israel were called out of Egypt to take possession of the land God had promised to Abraham, they showed a spirit of unbelief in God's ability to give them possession of the land, and they were doomed to wander in the wilderness forty years, till all that were twenty years old and upwards when they crossed the Red Sea had perished. Paul gives the reason why God destroyed them (Heb. 3:10): "Wherefore I was grieved with that generation, and said, They do alway err in their heart; and they have not known my ways. So I swear in my wrath, They shall not enter into my rest. Take heed, brethren, lest there be in any of you an evil heart of unbelief, in departing from the living God."

How appropriate and timely Paul's warning would be to so many of the present-day churches. And he gives us this blessed consolation (Heb. 3:14): "For we are made partakers of Christ, if we hold the beginning of our confidence stedfast unto the end. . . . But with whom was he grieved forty years? was it not with them that had sinned, whose carcasses fell in the wilderness? And to whom swore he that they should not enter into his rest, but to them that believed not?" So we see that they could not enter in because of unbelief.

Hebrews 4:1: "Let us therefore fear, lest, a promise being left us of entering into his rest, any of you should seem to come short of it. For unto us was the gospel preached, as well as unto them: but

He Served

He couldn't sing and he couldn't play,
He couldn't speak and he couldn't pray,
He'd try to read, but break right down,
Then sadly grieve at smile or frown.
While some with talents five began,
He started out with only one.
"With this," he said, "I'll do my best,
And trust the Lord to do the rest."
His trembling hand and tearful eye
Gave forth a world of sympathy,
When all alone with one distressed,
He whispered words that calmed that breast.

And little children learned to know,
When grieved and troubled, where to go.
He loved the birds, the flowers, the trees,
And, loving him, his friends loved these.
His homely features lost each trace
Of homeliness, and in his face
There beamed a kind and tender light
That made surrounding features bright,
When illness came he smiled at fears,
And bade his friends to dry their tears;
He said, "Good-bye," and all confess
He made of life a grand success.

—John L. Shorey.

the word preached did not profit them, not being mixed with faith in them that heard it. For we which have believed do enter into rest, as he said, As I have sworn in my wrath, if they shall enter into my rest: although the works were finished from the foundation of the world."

"There remaineth therefore a rest to the people of God." This refers without doubt to the antitypical Sabbath of a thousand years.

The believer's rest is in Christ Jesus till He comes. Psalm 37:7: "Rest in the Lord, and wait patiently for him." 1 John 2:28: "And now, little children, abide in him; that, when he shall appear, we may have confidence, and not be ashamed before him at his coming." To abide in Christ means to abide in His Word, and God's Word is truth.

Few church members seem to comprehend that every item of their faith must be founded upon God's eternal truth; and this doesn't coincide with what they have been taught, that there is a multitude of faiths, and that any one of them is just as good as another.

The Apostle Paul says, "Examine yourselves, whether ye be in the faith; prove your own selves." He also said (Eph. 4:5): "One Lord, one faith, one baptism."

If we are believers of the gospel, we must have for our foundation something that is sure; and there is nothing so sure as the Word of God. And that was what Paul meant when he wrote (Eph. 2:19): "Now therefore, ye are no more strangers and foreigners, but fellowcitizens with the saints, and of the household of God; and are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone; in whom all the building fitly framed together groweth unto an holy temple in the Lord: in whom ye also are builded together for an habitation of God through the Spirit." The admonition from the same Apostle to examine yourselves whether ye be in the faith is good advice.

Now we will begin with the Head of the church, Jesus Christ. By referring to the Apostle Peter, then to John, and lastly to the Apostle Paul, I think we can get a connected history from beginning to end.

1 Peter 1:18-21: "Forasmuch as ye know that ye were not redeemed with corruptible things, as silver and gold, from your vain conversation received by tradition from your fathers; but with the precious blood of Christ, as of a lamb without blemish and without spot. Who verily was foreordained before the foundation of the world, but was manifest in these last times for you, who by him do believe in God, that raised him up from the dead, and gave him glory: that your faith and hope might be in God."

When was He manifested? John 1:14: "The Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us, (and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father,) full of grace and truth." 1 Timothy 3:16: "Great is the mystery of godliness: God was manifest in the flesh, justified in the Spirit, seen of angels, preached unto the Gentiles, believed on in the world, received up into glory." He was foreordained before the foundation of the world in the same way that He was a lamb slain from the foundation of the world. He existed, and was slain, in the mind and purpose of God only.

Galatians 4:4: "When the fulness of the time was come, God sent forth his Son, made of a woman (not before the woman), made under the law (not before the law), to redeem them that were under the law," and not the spirits of them that were destroyed by the flood.

Yet this is not believed.

Next after the Head is the body, the church, a people called out from the world and prepared by the preaching of the gospel of the kingdom of God. That means you must believe it, be baptized in the faith of it after turning away from your sins. Is it believed? Is it practiced?

Get your Greek lexicon and learn what it means to baptize. It doesn't mean to dampen the forehead with a few drops of water.

Jesus and Paul didn't preach a kingdom that was in the hearts of those hypocritical Pharisees. Read Peter's Pentecostal sermon in Acts 2 from the twenty-second verse to the fortieth, and compare it with the modern Pentecostal sermons. 1 Corinthians 4:15: "For though ye have ten thousand instructors in Christ, yet have ye not many fathers: for in Christ Jesus I have begotten you through the gospel." This is the very beginning of the Christ life in you. "Of his own will begat he us with the word of truth."—James 1:18.

Jesus said to Nicodemus, "Ye must be born again." You were born once of the flesh; you must be born again of the Spirit. Jesus was born again of the Spirit when God raised Him from the dead by His Spirit. Colossians 1:18: "And he is the head of the body, the church: who is the beginning, the firstborn from the dead; that in all things he might have the preeminence." A man will never be born again, born of the Spirit, and be a flesh and blood being, for that which is born of the Spirit is spirit (John 3:6). He will be spirit as Jesus was spirit. He can come and go like the wind.

Paul tells us (Gal. 3:26): "For ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus." And Jesus tells us when we will become children of God, or sons by a resurrection from the dead. Luke 20:34: "And Jesus answering said unto them, The children of this world marry, and are given in marriage: but they which shall be accounted worthy to obtain that world, and the resurrection from the dead, neither marry, nor are given in marriage: neither can they die any more: for they are equal unto the angels; and are the children of God, being the children of the resurrection." They will be born from the dead as Jesus was; only He was the firstborn.

Men don't believe this, but believe they are born again in this world; while we are only begotten and born into the world to come, which gives us eternal life: for Jesus said, "In the world to come eternal life."—Mark 10:30. We don't get our eternal life until Jesus our life-giver comes. Then we will be born again into a new life and into a new world.

Another source of unbelief is the doctrine of the Trinity. Three Gods in One and One in Three; while Paul, writing to the churches, said (1 Cor. 8:6): "But to us there is but one God, the Father, of whom are all things, and we in him; and one Lord Jesus Christ, by whom are all things, and we by him." Two Persons. Paul forgot to mention the third Person. Jesus in His prayer to the Father (John 17:3): "And this is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent." Jesus forgot to honor the Holy Spirit in not mentioning His name.

And in the baptismal formula (Matt. 28:19): "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." If there were three Persons, it should have read "names." Men were baptized into only one name. The name "Yahweh" applies to both the Father and Son, and the Holy Spirit is the Father's Spirit. We are baptized into one name. Isaiah recognized but one God in his day (Isaiah 43:10): "Ye are my witnesses, saith the Lord, and my servant whom I have chosen: that ye may know and believe me, and understand that I am he: before me there was no God formed, neither shall there be after me." Isaiah 45:5: "I am the Lord, and there is none else, there is no God beside me: I girded thee, though thou hast not known me: that they may know (Please turn to Page Nine)

No Gospel Substitute

IN HUMAN affairs we are often asked to use substitutes. "We cannot fill your order in all particulars. We are out of one article, but we have something just as good. May we substitute?" Substitutes may be all right in earthly deals, but in heavenly affairs we cannot substitute with safety. Both Scripture and secular history furnish examples of those who have brought sorrow to themselves or trouble to others by trying to substitute something for that which God has commanded or promised.

Nothing can take the place of the gospel. God's Word contains this gospel. It tells of God, the Father; of Christ, the Son; of the Holy Spirit, the Comforter. There can be no adequate substitute for any of these. It is sadly true that many papers which are supposedly Christian and many pulpits dedicated unto the glorious gospel of Christ are constantly offering that which has no suggestion of the true gospel. One writer has expressed his conviction in this language: "Week after week the people go to church to hear no more than political harangues, moral dissertations, ethical illuminations, intellectual orations, or literary declamations."

We give thanks to God for the pulpits and publications that are true to the gospel, but we are not blind to the fact that there are numerous substitutes offered for that gospel. Satan is in the substituting business. Many unsuspecting ones take his baited hook. The political reformer convinces us that we need better political conditions, and then the devil makes us think that these better conditions will take the place of salvation. The sociologist leads us to believe that things will never be better till we change our systems, and then the devil comes along and makes the sinner believe that sociology is his salvation.

Fables are substituted for facts, human efforts for divine energy, logic for love, Santa Claus for Christ, carnal enlightenment for divine light, noise for true spirituality, science for salvation, formality and ceremonialism for consistent Christian living, human reason for divine revelation, human resources for divine assistance, human generation for supernatural regeneration, evolution for revolution, the working out of human life for the coming in of the divine life.

Many church members today regard the church as a mutual congratulation society or an entertainment bureau. All they know about church work is selling ice cream and cake or doing that which any sinner can do. They are substituting profession for possession, pledge-signing for conversion, turning over a new leaf for sanctification, churchianity for Christianity, charity for righteousness, Modernism for the old-time religion, doctrines of devils for the first century gospel, worldly banquets for evangelism, outward activity for inward reality, the new social gospel for saving grace.

The writer makes no plea for dull services, but he deplores the fact that the church is sometimes guilty of catering to the amusement houses, concert halls, pictorial entertainment rooms, and athletic clubs. The church will not make an impression on the world while it is an ally of the world. The church is a soul-saving institution. The church is to preach Christ, to lead to Christ, to build up in Christ. When the Spirit of the living God is present, the church furnishes thrills, but not of the worldly type. Thank God, I know churches where young people are held by the blessed gospel and not by substitutes. Evangelist Sunday is reported as saying: "True, we can't compete with the vaudeville for snap and speed, but we can shine up for God and make the services snappy and up-to-date."

The Tower of Babel and the story of Cain and Abel teach us what God thinks when we substitute our thoughts for His thoughts and our ways for His way. It does not pay. There is no adequate substitute for the blessed gospel. In the day of need all substitutes fall short. Modernism is not the gospel. Science is not the gospel. Each and every substitute lacks the power of the gospel. God still lives. Jesus still saves. His blood continues to be efficacious. The Word, proclaimed in the power of the Spirit, still convicts and brings people to a decision for Christ.—W. S. Bowden in The World's Crisis.

Prophetic Movements in Ancient Israel

THE JEW is the center of prophecy, and now it almost seems as if God is through with the ecclesia, and is dealing with the earth and His ancient people in accord with the predictions made of old. Jeremiah speaks of a time when the sons of Israel will be driven into all lands, especially those north of Palestine, from whence He will send fishers to fish them and hunters to hunt them. Moreover, He says, "Mine eyes are upon all their ways: they are not hid from my face, neither is their iniquity hid from mine eyes."—Jer. 16:15-17. Present conditions seem to fulfill this prophecy. They are being both drawn and chased back to the Land of Promise.

God declares that He knows their iniquity. And now the world is waking to the fact that their greed for gold leads them to exploit the lowest passions of the peoples. Almost all of the questionable and profitable avenues of wealth are in their control. They do not hesitate to suck the financial blood of any nation in order to enrich themselves. Of course this does not apply to the individual, but the nation, for Israel is a nation, in spite of all the efforts of some to be loyal to the land in which they live. Israel is the international nation, and, for its size, is easily the first in power and influence. By means of publicity, business, and finance, they are able to wage a bloodless but powerful campaign against any nation which displeases them.

The really remarkable sign for the student of prophecy is the effect on the Jews of the German tide of nationalism. The German leaders are seeking to unite their own nation, but it may be God's intention that they unite Israel. At any rate, the Jews have risen as one, in spite of all their differences and internal strife. Perhaps we may go so far as to say that never before has the Jewish dispersion shown such a solid front, or made it so clear that they are really a nation, with national traditions and aspirations. Israel cannot be absorbed by the Gentiles. They have a race consciousness which is ready to assert itself at any suitable opportunity.

I very seldom assume the role of prophet. But when I learned that the national movement in Germany was unfavorable toward the Jewish exploiters of the people, I could not but feel that God might use them as hunters to drive these men and their money back to Palestine and Babylon, where the next act in the great world drama is to be staged. I rashly predicted that they would come into power. This has now come to pass, and among the first results was an exodus of Jews to other lands, and a world-wide effort to discredit the new regime by atrocity charges which remind one of war propaganda. This, I fear, will only serve to accentuate the feeling against the Jews, both in Germany, where the charges are indignantly denied, and also in other lands, when the facts become known, and a reaction sets in.

Even in the United States there is a strong feeling that much of the financial distress is due to the money-lending Jew and that what has impoverished the nation has enriched him. It is said that an immense amount of property has passed into his hands, not by paying a proper sum, but by foreclosure and forced sale. Whatever the facts are, all seems to be in direct line with what is written. The Jews are getting richer in money and greater in influence no matter what happens to the rest of the world. And we are already beginning to see the hatred of the ten horns (Rev. 17:16), which will eventually lead to the utter destruction of the apostates in the nation of Israel.

But the Jews are not only being pushed to Palestine, they are also being pulled there. The land seems to be the only white spot in a black world. I am told that, except for the tourist trade, business is good, and many Jewish enterprises are being started, which means that considerable Jewish wealth is being invested by men of means. The land seems more attractive today, for the sons of Jacob, than it has ever been since the dispersion. So long as there was little chance of making money in Palestine, and good opportunities developed elsewhere, there was little to appeal to the practical Jew. - But now that business is bad everywhere else, the call of the land is more effective than ever before.

The connections between Jerusalem and Babylon are being continually bettered. There is a new stage line across the Damascus desert which starts further south, where the railway from Haifa joins the line from Damascus toward Mecca. It is probably near the course of the railway survey, which will join Iraq with the coast. When we remember what a long, weary journey it once was, this is most remarkable. The desert was almost impassable, so it was necessary to go far north, and then south along the Euphrates, double the direct distance between the two cities. An aeroplane could easily do it in one day, and the train will probably do it in two.

But ways of transportation are by no means the only things that have been accelerated. Events are following each other with express speed. The situation at the time of the end is rushing toward us. Iraq (the ancient Babylonia) is now a recognized, independent nation. Syria is asking for a king. Egypt is rising. The whole world is beginning to see that the Jew cannot be digested, and is sick of him, and is preparing to spew him out, as the fish did Jonah. God is putting it into the hearts of the leaders of the nations to drive the sons of Jacob back to the land of their fathers, and to the land of Shinar, there to establish that great city of the end time, Babylon.

But it must be evident to all that even if all the Jews were to leave all other lands for the East, that would not end their influence, or lift the burden of their wealth. Their "interests" would remain and would bring them a stream of golden "interest" on their capital investments in the countries they had left. Financially, the Gentile has become the vassal of the Jew, and he will remain so until the fall of Babylon.

I am not a prophet, and I do not wish to prophesy, but does it not seem that the general trend of the times agrees with the predictions of the prophets, which call for an exodus of the Jews from the lands of the north? This seems to refer especially to the rich among them, who will, however, convert their wealth into "bonds," by means of which they will be able to subject the nations and control their governments. The difficulties they are now having are the one thing needed to force them to unite and fulfill the part foretold of them. These trials are a sign that the conclusion of the eon is very near.

The judgments ahead will be executed "swiftly" (Rev. 1:1). It may be that the faulty translation of the Authorized Version ("shortly") is true today. It does not seem possible that it will be long delayed. If the end itself proceeds at such a terrific pace, it is most apt that the time just preceding should show signs of speed. May it go faster and faster until the time arrives when this dreadful judgment era is past, and when chastened Israel exchanges the evil power they now possess to injure and drag down the nations, for that blessed kingdom which shall be theirs under the Messiah they now reject. But long before that our work on earth will be done, and we will be caught away to meet our Lord in the air, thenceforth to be with Him and like Him and for Him alone. How long, O Lord?—A. E. Knoch in Unsearchable Riches.

Facts for Thinkers

1. An immortal being cannot die. If Christ had been an immortal God He could not have died. God cannot die. Christ died. Ergo: He was not God.

2. An immutable being cannot be changed. If Christ had been an immutable God, as Trinitarians teach, He never could have been changed into a man. If the "Word was made flesh" it was not an unchangeable God. A thing which is made differs from what it was before it was made.

3. An omnipotent being cannot become impotent. Christ could not have been an omnipotent being and a helpless babe at one and the same time. If all power was given unto Him He did not have it before it was given. If He had been omnipotent, and God gave Him His omnipotence, then He was doubly omnipotent. A divine attribute cannot be lost. But omnipotence is a divine attribute. Ergo: Christ could not lose His omnipotence by incarnation.

4. An omniscient being can never become destitute of knowledge. If Christ had been an omniscient God He would have known as much two hours after His birth as thirty years afterwards. He would have known the time of His second advent; but He said God was the only one that knew. Omniscience is one of God's attributes. But a divine attribute cannot be lost. Ergo: Christ was not an omniscient God.

5. An omnipresent being cannot be compressed into an atom. That which is everywhere cannot be confined to one spot. If Christ had been an omnipresent God prior to His birth, He never could have been compressed into "the seed of the woman." That Christ could not be in two places at one time is proved by the angels when they said, "He is not here: for he is risen . . . Come, see the place where the Lord lay."

6. The doctrine of the Trinity—a plurality of Gods—is a mixing of paganism and Christianity. It is not taught in the Bible, as the Bible never uses any such terms, nor asserts that there are three persons in the Godhead. The Scriptures never tell us that there is any such mystery as the Trinity in the Godhead, which is too mysterious to be revealed. Supposing the orthodox doctrine to be the true one, the Scriptures must be wrong, for the Scriptures are not orthodox. To be orthodox they ought to use such phrases as "God the Son," and "God the Holy Ghost," as well as "God the Father." To be orthodox, they should call Christ and the Holy Ghost God, as often and as plainly as the Father. But what is the fact? The Father is called God 1326 times; the Son, even according to orthodox interpreters themselves, only thirteen times; heathen deities, eleven times; heroes, five times; messengers, twice, etc. And the thirteen times that Jesus is supposed to be called God, when examined, dwindle down to one or two; and in those one or two the word is applied, not in the highest sense, but in the same sense as it is applied to Solomon.

7. If the theory of the preexistence of Christ is true, then the Scriptures ought to plainly teach that there were two distinct natures and persons in the one Christ; that He had a human nature and a human personality and also a divine nature and a divine personality, hence that He said and did some things as a man, and other things as a God. And to uphold this theory, they ought not to say the Father was incarnate; that the Father dwelt in the man Christ Jesus; they ought to say the Father remained in heaven, that it was God the Son that became incarnate, and dwelt in Christ, and taught the doctrines, and did the works. Whereas the Scriptures always speak of the Father as dwelling in Christ; and never give us a hint that another person, called God the Son, dwelt in Him.

8. If an incarnate God dwelt in the body man, Jesus; then, to be orthodox, the Scriptures should represent Christ as strong enough, and wise enough, in consequence of God the Son dwelling in Him, to teach right doctrine, and do the wonderful works Himself. And yet the Scriptures represent Christ as obtaining His strength and wisdom from the Father, and not from God the Son. But if an omnipotent and omniscient God dwelt in Him it would be unnecessary to have the Father aid Him. In the Scriptures, in order to teach His preexistence as a God, when Christ is said to have been sent from heaven, to be in heaven, etc., it should not be as the Son of man, but as God the Son! But He is regularly called the Son of man, when spoken of as coming from God, from heaven, etc.

9. If the preexistence is an essential doctrine it should have been clearly, expressly revealed; whereas all its believers still speak of it as a mystery, hence admitting that it is not clearly revealed, but only partly revealed. No essential doctrine should be left to inference. It is not supported by plain verbal statements.

10. In Hebrews 2:17, we are told that Christ was made in all things like unto His brethren. But His brethren are not made up out of a preexistent God and a perfect man in one person. In chapter 4 of the same Epistle, verse 15, it is said Christ was "in all points tempted like as we are." But God cannot be tempted as we are; nor can a person who is made up out of a perfect God and a perfect man be tempted as we are. It is also said that Christ was "touched with the feeling of our infirmities," or weaknesses. But God cannot have our infirmities, nor feel them as we do; neither could a being made up out of a perfect God and a perfect man; Jesus is called a man. If He preexisted, He must have done so as a man. If He was "a man approved of God," then He was not God Himself. Jesus claimed that He was "sent" of God (John 8:42; 17:18). But God could not send Himself into the world, neither could one God send another that was co-equal and eternal with Himself. Again: He is said to be raised up by God. See Acts 13:23—"Of this man's seed hath God according to his promise raised unto Israel a Saviour, Jesus." But God could not raise up God. Neither could He fulfill His promise by incarnating another God in human flesh. Jesus is also said to be sanctified or set apart, by God, and sent into the world (John 10:36). But how could God sanctify or separate God? Did God separate Himself? He is said to have been anointed of God. See Acts 10:38: "God anointed Jesus of Nazareth with the Holy Ghost and with power . . . for God was with him." It does not say—"for He was." It is absurd to teach that one God anointed another God with another God! If Jesus was God the Son and equal with the Father, He did not need the anointing of the Holy Spirit. Christ is called the "Son of God." But it is impossible that He who is the true God should be His own Son! or the Son of God be His own Father! The word "son" implies derivation and dependence. If Christ is "the only begotten Son of God," then there was a time when, a place where, and a manner how, and a person by whom. If there was a time when, then He did not exist from all eternity. If a place where, then Bethlehem is the only place named in the Bible. If a manner how, then the overshadowing power of the Holy Spirit upon the virgin Mary is the Bible explanation of the method of begetting. If He was begotten of God, then He is not as old as God, and did not exist prior to His begetting. That Jesus Christ was not an eternal God incarnate in human flesh is abundantly proved by the following Bible facts:

(a) Because Christ most clearly showed that He was not God. The Jews who were making a charge against Him said, "He made Himself God." Christ immediately repudiated the falsehood—"Jesus answered them, Is it not written in your law, I said, Ye are gods? If he called them gods, unto whom the word of God came, and the scripture cannot be broken; say ye of him, whom the Father hath sanctified, and sent into the world, Thou blasphemest; because I said, I am the Son of God?"—John 10:34-36. He whom Christ addressed in His prayer was the only true God (John 17:3). He said, "I ascend . . . to my God, and your God."—John 20:17.

(b) Because the New Testament in various passages declares that God is "the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ" (Eph. 1:3, 17; Rom. 15:6). God could not be the God of a God as old as Himself and co-equal in power. Neither could He be the Father of a person who bore no relation to Him.

(c) Because the Scriptures teach that Jesus grew and increased in favor with God. If He had always been in God's favor, and was equal to God, how could He grow in His favor? How then could He be God? Luke 2:40, 52.

(d) Because the New Testament teaches that all power and authority possessed by Christ were given to Him of God (John 5:19, 30; Eph. 1:22; 2 Cor. 13:4; John 10:18). Now if He was an incarnate God He possessed all power by virtue of His nature. There would be as much sense in saying the Son gave all power and authority to the Father, as to predicate the same of the Father in relation to the Son, if the theory of preexistence be true.

(e) Because Jesus Christ says He is inferior and subordinate to the Father: "My Father is greater than I."—John 14:28. "My Father . . . is greater than all."—John 10:29; Matt. 20:23; Mark 13:32. If He was equal with the Father, the Father could not be greater than He was. If, prior to His incarnation, He was an immortal, immutable, omnipotent, omniscient, and omnipresent God, did He lose all His divine attributes by coming in the flesh? If not, then when in the flesh He was equal with the Father. To save their theory the preexistents must either admit that Christ spoke falsely, or else had lost all His divine attributes. But Deity cannot commit suicide!

(f) Because the Scriptures teach that Christ died. Now if it be heresy to believe that Jesus did die, then I am a heretic. If it be infidelity to refuse to believe that the God who created the universe died on the cross, then I am an infidel. Was Jehovah crucified? Did the creature crucify his Creator? Talk about Rome's bread gods! The gods of Protestantism are not on a much higher scale, if man can destroy them at will. If it be said that only the human part died, then there was only a human sacrifice, and all their slurs on that line become boomerangs and return on their own heads. The Christ of the Bible was born, lived, died, was raised again from the dead, and is now alive for evermore.—Selected from the writings of H. W. Bowman by R. A. Curtis.

GIVE TO THE WINDS THY FEARS

Give to the winds thy fears;
 Hope, and be undismayed:
 God hears thy sighs, and counts thy tears;
 God shall lift up thy head.

Through waves, and clouds, and storms
 He gently clears thy way:
 Wait thou His time; so shall this night
 Soon end in joyous day.

Still heavy is thy heart?
 Still sink thy spirits down?
 Cast off the weight, let fear depart,
 Bid every care be gone.

What though thou rulest not?
 Yet heaven, and earth, and hell
 Proclaim, God sitteth on the throne,
 And ruleth all things well!

Leave to His sovereign sway
 To choose and to command;
 So shalt thou wondering own His way,
 How wise, how strong His hand.

Far, far above thy thought
 His counsel shall appear,
 When fully He the work hath wrought
 That caused thy needless fear!

Thou seest our weakness, Lord;
 Our hearts are known to Thee:
 O lift Thou up the sinking hand,
 Confirm the feeble knee!

Let us in life, in death,
 Thy steadfast truth declare,
 And publish with our latest breath
 Thy love and guardian care.

—Gerhardt.

UNBELIEF — ITS EFFECT

Continued from Page Five

from the rising of the sun, and from the west, that there is none beside me." Men don't believe it.

Of all the human family, and Jesus was one of them, He alone has immortality; and that is one of the things we are to seek after, so we surely don't possess it (Rom. 2:6, 7). 1 Timothy 6:14: "That thou keep this commandment without spot, unrebukeable, until the appearing of our Lord Jesus Christ: which in his times he shall shew, who is the blessed and only Potentate, the King of kings, and Lord of lords; who only hath immortality, dwelling in the light which no man can approach unto; whom no man hath seen, nor can see: to whom be honour and power everlasting." That this refers to Jesus there can be no question, for He is the only one to whom is applied this title (Rev. 19:16): "KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS."

Men don't even believe the gospel as much as they profess to preach it. They deny that the restoration of David's throne and kingdom in the land of Palestine with Jesus seated on the throne in Mount Zion and in Jerusalem for the purpose of subduing all the nations, blessing all the families of the earth, bringing everlasting righteousness, and filling the whole earth with His glory, has anything to do with the gospel. Isaiah says the eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, nor has it entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath in store for them that love Him.

—0—

THE FAMILY NAME

Continued from Front Page

be one, as we are."—John 17:11.

When we separate ourselves from the world and all that is opposed to Christ and become "espoused . . . to one husband," that we may be presented "as a chaste virgin to Christ" we are received as sons and daughters and God becomes our Father, and we then become members of the family that take the Father's name whereby we say, "Abba Father," that is, "Our Father" (2 Cor. 6:14-18; 2 Cor. 11:2). If we are true, faithful, and loyal sons and daughters as Christ was faithful in His Sonship, we will likewise manifest His (the Father's) name and will "keep" and be "kept" under and in the family name, which is the Father's name, God's name, hence the family of God, which is the "church of God."

THE FAMILY NAME

- is the Father's name;
- is received by inheritance;
- is not a man-made name;
- is just one name;
- is scripturally "the church of God."

THE distribution of tracts is a modest and successful way of getting the truth in where the people refuse to buy books and take papers. It has been said that "a drop of ink may make a million think"; then what might the message of a little tract do, if given in the name of the Lord. J. Hudson Taylor, the founder of the China Inland Mission, was converted through reading a tract which he picked up in his father's library. Richard Baxter got hold of a little tract called "The Bruised Reed," and through its reading was converted. Remember that in these apparently trifling ministries, "He that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him."—Selected.

Abreast of the Times

May Day Demonstrations

"In the latter times some shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits."—1 Tim. 4:1.

DETROIT, Mich., May 2.—Among the May Day demonstrations which the police were called upon to quell, was one in which a young Presbyterian minister took a somewhat leading part in that he drove the truck in which some thirty students of sociology, including several acknowledged Communists, rode. The young minister protested vigorously against the manner in which the police handled the demonstrators, asserting that they were far more severe than the occasion called for. It is apparent that hundreds of the students of social science are Socialists, and many of them avowed Communists, among the latter being numbered students for the ministry.

Palestine Haven for Nazi Refugees

"In the fear of the Lord is strong confidence: and his children shall have a place of refuge."—Prov. 14:26.

LONDON, England, May 2.—According to Associated Press reports James G. McDonald of the High Commission for Refugees said today that Palestine offers the only immediate area of colonization for German refugees—who are mostly Jews—as far as operations on an appreciable scale are concerned. The head of the League of Nations Refugee Group said that none of the other many proposed schemes is at present practicable. These involved areas in North and South America and the Mediterranean region of Africa. There were openings in these areas, however, he said, for small groups.

McDonald said the plight of the refugees is desperate, since tens of thousands are "destitute, homeless, and uncertain of tomorrow." He pleaded for a more practical and sympathetic consideration by various Governments in order to permit refugees to travel unmolested. The refugees, still moving from Germany in an orderly fashion, have increased in number from 59,300 in December to 63,200 in April.

Thus is it found that God's ways for His people are always the best and most practicable possible. The Jews are going home! Messiah comes!

"No More Wars," Say Preachers

"They have healed the hurt of the daughter of my people slightly, saying, Peace, peace; when there is no peace."—Jer. 8:11.

NEW YORK, May 1.—Of 20,870 American clergymen who replied to a questionnaire submitted by representatives of twelve religious groups, 13,997 think it is time for the churches of the nation to go on record refusing to sanction or support any future war.

That was revealed today when the answers of the clergymen were published. The questionnaire was sent out over the signatures of the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, pastor of the Riverside Baptist Church; the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman of Central Congregational Church, Brooklyn; Bishop Francis J. McConnell, Methodist Episcopal Resident Bishop in the New York Area, and Rabbi Edward L. Israel of Baltimore.

Answering personally, 12,904 ministers said they would not participate as armed combatants in any future war. A total of 5,208 signified an opposite stand, and 2,503 were in doubt.—Selected.

Greece Approaches Dictatorship

"And the king shall do according to his will; and he shall exalt himself, and magnify himself."—Dan. 11:36.

ATHENS, Greece, May 2.—The streets of this ancient capital hummed today with talk of a dictatorship as the result of stiff political opposition the Government faces on the matter of international and domestic policy, says the Associated Press. The picturesque figure of Gen. George Condylis, the Minister of War, and one of Greece's "strong men," looms up as the one most possible to be called upon to assume dictatorial powers if such are declared. The General recently asserted in an interview that "nowadays dictatorship is the normal condition of a State."

One by one the geographical and political divisions of the old Roman Empire are coming unresistingly under the control of single individuals, in preparation for the coming of the mighty Antichrist.

Nations Arm for Next War

"He shall stir up jealousy like a man of war."
—Isaiah 42:13.

GENEVA, May 6.—From this city, the nerve center of the nations, come alarming signs that the much feared armament race is in full swing the world over. To quote directly from the Associated Press reports: "Under the placid surface in England, there is concern over the future. During the last three years France has increased her fighting force by 65,000. Germany, in open rebellion against treaty restrictions, has increased her military budget for 1934 nearly $90,000,000, her aviation budget $56,000,000, and in addition allotted $100,000,000 to the Nazi storm troopers. Russia has increased her army in the last two years 116,000. Japan in January of this year increased her complete military forces by 100,000. Italy and Poland are engaged in the same effort."

National Berean Department

Miss Genniel Carpenter, Editor, Oregon, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Cecil A. Smead, President
Blanchard, Michigan

Virgil Claypool, Treasurer
506 E. Chestnut St.
Robinson, Illinois

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
Oregon, Illinois

JESUS SHALL REIGN

WHEN JESUS was here on earth, He was the meek and humble teacher and prophet; now He is sitting at the right hand of God to be our advocate; and soon He is coming back to the earth as the glorious King over all. But in the lowliness of the past, the grace of the present, or the glory of the future, He is the same wonderful Jesus, the same Good Shepherd. When He comes, He will have dominion over all things. With the mind's eye of faith, we can glimpse a vision of the majesty that will be His.

This reign of our Lord is the consummation of the work of the ages. No power can stop the progress of the plan of God. As it develops the world will see the great blessings God has in store for the faithful.

Christ will reign until all things are in subjection to Him. There will be no exception to His sovereignty, only as His power is merged with that of His Father.

Although the space taken in by God's plan of salvation is all space, and the time all time, it is still a great circle, and it returns to the point from which it started. The paradise that man lost in the beginning is to be his again through the saving grace of Christ. Again the tree of life will be beside the river of the water of life, and the curse is gone. All of God's blessings are won back, and won back through His Son, in the new Jerusalem, the City of God.

We can see in the glorious words of Revelation something of the splendor the earth will have in the kingdom. No more will the earth be the grave of our dead loved ones, no more are men separated from God by their sins, no more war and hate and bloodshed. Even the elements will cease to afflict man as lightning, wind, and hail. And in the midst of this new, sinless earth, the holy city of God will be established, and sin and the curse of sin will be banished forever. The sea will no longer separate people from each other, death is vanquished, sorrow gone, the darkness of night will no longer bring fear of the unknown. And this beautiful kingdom will last forever. The Scriptures testify to this fact clearly and plainly.

The Bible gives us such graphic impressions of the new earth without sin and sorrow, wherein dwelleth righteousness, where the redeemed of all time shall live forever under the sunshine of God's love—such graphic impressions that it is difficult to understand the vague and hazy notions many have about the kingdom Jesus will rule over in the future.

This very earth of ours, then, is the place sacred to the union between our Lord and His followers. God Himself is bringing about the perfection of His plan. It is the only hope for the weary, sinful world. For Jesus Christ the world waits, though it may be unaware, waiting in its sins and sorrows for a solution for all its problems, and relief from its pain. Jesus left a last comforting message with His followers, "Surely I come quickly." Let us all echo the response, "Amen. Even so, come, Lord Jesus."

—Selected.

P S A L M

The heavens declare Thy glory, Lord;
In every star Thy wisdom shines;
But when our eyes behold Thy Word,
We read Thy name in fairer lines.

The rolling sun, the changing light,
And nights and days Thy power confess;
But the blest Volume Thou hast writ
Reveals Thy justice and Thy grace.

Sun, moon, and stars convey Thy praise
Round the whole earth, and never stand;
So when Thy truth began its race,
It touched and glanced on every land.

Nor shall Thy spreading gospel rest
Till through the world Thy truth has run;
Till Christ has all the nations blest
That see the light or feel the sun.

Great Sun of Righteousness, arise!
Bless the dark world with heavenly light:
Thy gospel makes the simple wise,
Thy laws are pure, Thy judgments right.

—Isaac Watts.

HAVE YOU A FRIEND?

IF SO, you have an opportunity for spreading the message that God gave the world through the Christ. And if you have more than one friend, and few of us have not, you will find that "Bible Lessons," published by the National Berean Society, Oregon, Illinois, is one of the very best ways of teaching them the gospel that will give them eternal life. Ten cents for eighty-six lessons on the great Bible truths!

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"BEING READY"

DID you ever look forward for a long time to some event? Something you could hardly wait for? Maybe it was taking an exciting trip, or a picnic. You did everything you could to help prepare for it, and when the time really came, you were all ready!

That is the way we should be—always ready. When Jesus was talking about the wonderful kingdom He is going to establish here, He told us to watch and be ready for His coming. We don't know the day He will come, so we must be ready all the time. Every day we should do our best to live as Jesus wants us to, so we will be ready for anything, and never be disappointed because we were left behind through our carelessness. Once there was a little girl who wasn't ready, and her name was Dorothy.

Dorothy had a lovely white silk dress with roses embroidered on it. Aunt Edith gave it to her for Christmas. Dorothy's mother called her and showed her the beautiful dress when it came.

Then Mother said, "Now this is a very special dress, and you'll have to take special care of it. See, it has a hanger with it, to hang it on." Then Mother frowned, because Dorothy was such a careless little girl, and she said, "And you must always hang it up, too, and never throw it down in a heap on the floor as you usually do." So Dorothy promised faithfully to take the very best care of it, and her everyday clothes, too.

There weren't many parties after Christmas, and Dorothy wore the white dress only two times. She was ever so careful, and she put it away so neatly that Mother was surprised. But Dorothy wasn't careful with her other things. Mother shook her head sadly at the kicked-off shoes, the scattered cut-outs, and the open books Dorothy left on the floor in her room. Scolding didn't seem to do any good, because Dorothy just didn't think it was important to put things away.

One spring day Dorothy came home from school and ran to tell Mother about the party Virginia was going to have. A real party, in the evening, with ice cream. But she couldn't find Mother anywhere, so she went up to her room. The dress! She could wear it to Virginia's birthday party. It would be fun to try it on and see how it looked in the long mirror in Mother's room. Dorothy's hands were a little sticky, so she touched the silk gingerly. But the snap was fastened and the dress wouldn't go on, so she pulled as hard as she could. The snap came off, and some grimy fingerprints went on.

She was just taking it off when somebody called, "Dorothy, Dorothy!" She dropped the dress on the closet floor, and ran downstairs, because she was in such a hurry to tell Mother about the party. She could come right back and hang the dress up.

It wasn't Mother, though, who called her; it was Aunt Edith. Grandma was sick, and Mother had to go and stay with her, so Aunt Edith had come to stay with Daddy and Dorothy. Dorothy told Aunt Edith about Virginia's party, and while she was talking, Virginia herself came along and wanted Dorothy to go skating with her. They talked about the party, too, and Virginia told her about her new dress. Dorothy thought of hers then, and resolved to hang it up the very minute she got home. But it was so exciting to have Aunt Edith there that she forgot all about it, and when she undressed, she dropped her dusty shoes in the closet and her clothes in a heap on top of them. When Aunt Edith came to tuck her in, she told Dorothy a lovely story, but it was a long one, and Dorothy was sound asleep before it was finished.

The afternoon before the party Dorothy came home early to get ready, but Aunt Edith worked down town, and she wouldn't be home for a long time, so Dorothy wandered outdoors. The boys next door were digging a cave, and she wanted to help them. At first they wouldn't let her, but she had a little spade and she could dig so fast that they agreed to let her help. It seemed no time at all before Aunt Edith was calling her to come to supper. It took quite awhile to get all the dirt from the cave washed off, too. When she finally went to get dressed, it was almost time for the party.

At first Dorothy couldn't find the white dress at all. She looked through all the hangers, but there were only everyday dresses. Maybe it had fallen on the floor. Suddenly she remembered! She looked at the pile of clothes on the floor. There was an old torn dress, some shoes, and at the very bottom in a crumpled heap, the white silk dress!

Oh, it was a sorry sight. She held it up and looked at the wrinkles and dust and fingerprints and the spots from the shoes. She just stood looking at it for a moment, but when Aunt Edith came in and saw what had happened to the lovely dress, Dorothy couldn't help crying. Aunt Edith dried her tears and forgave her, of course. But Dorothy had to go to bed, instead of to the party, because she had been careless, and wasn't ready.

We must try to follow Jesus all the time, and always be ready, so if Jesus came this very minute we would be glad to greet Him, and not ashamed because we weren't ready.

—Genniell Carpenter.

The Sunday School Lesson

FROM TRUTH SEEKERS' QUARTERLY

LESSON 8.—May 20, 1934

THE FUTURE OF THE KINGDOM

Matthew 24:1 to 25:30

Devotional Reading: Revelation 21:1-7

GOLDEN TEXT

The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever.—Revelation 11:15.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic: The Future of the Kingdom.

Aim: Only those who are constantly ready are assured of a place in the kingdom when Christ comes.

Basic Truth: "Be ye also ready: for at such an hour as ye think not the Son of man cometh."—Matt. 24:44.

I. The Waiting Time. (Matt. 25:1-5.) "Hope deferred maketh the heart sick" (Prov. 13:12); not only that, but hope deferred frequently loses its vitality and ceases to stimulate one to activity and watchfulness. "The Lord is not slack concerning his promise," declares Peter, "as some men count slackness; but is longsuffering to us-ward, not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance."—2 Peter 3:9. The delay in the coming of the Lord provides an opportunity for salvation for many out of Christ, and, incidentally, an opportunity for you and me to lay up additional treasures in heaven. Each hour our Lord delays His coming we should add to our oil of spiritual service.

II. Eleventh Hour Preparation. (Vv. 6-9.) When the midnight cry was made and the virgins arose with eyes dimmed by sleep, all found it necessary to make last moment preparations for the part that each expected to take in the welcoming of the bridegroom. But a short time remained. Little could be done. What was done must be done quickly and with such materials as were then at hand. We are now living in the midnight hour that marks the Lord's return. Let us use the materials we have, the knowledge we have, the financial and spiritual resources now at our command, in preparing to welcome the Bridegroom!

III. The Tragic Word, "Too Late!" (Vv. 10-13.) "Behold, now is the accepted time; behold, now is the day of salvation" (2 Cor. 6:2), rings forth the voice of Paul to all mankind! No one, not even the angels in heaven, knows the exact hour of the Lord's return, the hour when "the door is shut" forever for entrance into the body of Christ and a position upon His eternal throne of glory. When the trumpet sounds, may we not hear the words, "Too late! The door is shut! I know you not!" but rather, "Enter thou into the joy of thy Lord!"

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Salvation

- is of God;
- cannot be borrowed;
- should be obtained now;
- will not always be offered;
- is not obtained by pretense or claim.

Take Heed. The contrast between the wise and foolish virgins is very marked. The wise took heed to make their calling and election sure. The foolish were like Felix, before whom Paul reasoned of "righteousness, temperance, and judgment to come"—they were procrastinators (Acts 24:25). They were putting off until a more "convenient season" their acceptance of Christ. They were unprepared when the cry went forth. Too late—they couldn't borrow. If we are to avoid the same fate, we must "take heed" now. A few things to which we must take heed are: 1. Take heed to the Word. 2. Take heed to your spirit (Mal. 2:15). 3. Take heed in doing your alms (Matt. 6:1). 4. Take heed of the leaven (false doctrines) of the Pharisees and Sadducees (Matt. 16:6). 5. Take heed not to cause a little one to fall (Matt. 18:10). 6. Take heed that no one deceive you (Matt. 24:4). 7. Take heed that you hear (Mark 4:24). 8. Take heed, watch and pray, for ye know not when the Lord cometh (Mark 13:33-37). 9. Take heed that your light be not darkness (Luke 11:35). 10. Take heed lest ye fall (1 Cor. 10:12). 11. Take heed to your doctrine (1 Tim. 4:16). 12. Take heed lest there be in you an evil heart of unbelief (Heb. 3:12).—C. E. R.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever."—Rev. 11:15.

Daniel 2:44: "In the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed: and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand for ever." It was revealed unto Daniel concerning God's kingdom in the future, and he has left on record for our benefit the things which God revealed to him.

Our text is still future, but nearer now than when spoken of by Daniel and also nearer than when it was written by John. The time will come when it is no longer future, and the Christ will reign. Quite different from now. The righteous Ruler will be on the throne and all will be peace and happiness. Shall we qualify to be there?—L. A. R.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULTS

Christian Preparedness

One of the most urgent warnings in the New Testament is that to Christians to be ready for the coming of Christ (Matt. 25:13). This warning was repeated on several occasions. The apostles spread the same warning. Paul reminded the elders of the Ephesian church to "watch, and remember, that by the space of three years" he "ceased not to warn every one night and day with tears."—Acts 20:31. Six years later, in a letter to Timothy, he wrote: "No man that warreth entangleth himself with the affairs of this life; that he may please him who hath chosen him to be a soldier."—2 Tim. 2:4. As a soldier of Christ we must be ready at all times for service in any place. When Christ comes to call His soldiers for a new service they must be ready. Jesus expressed the same thought in Luke 21:34. "But of that day and hour knoweth no man, no, not the angels of heaven, but my Father only." He compared the days of His coming to the days of Noah. In that day those who were ready entered the ark and the doors were closed and sealed by God's hand. Others may have pleaded, but the day of salvation was past. God's judgment will again come in an unsuspecting moment, but His people will be delivered first. "Then shall two be in the field; the one shall be taken, and the other left. Two women shall be grinding at the mill; the one shall be taken, and the other left. Watch therefore: for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come."—Matt. 24:36, 40-42.—H. A. S.

PRIMARY CLASS

Memory Verse: "Come, ye blessed of my Father."—Matt. 25:34a.

Will you use your imagination and see if you can see Jesus sitting out on the Mount of Olives? His disciples slowly climb the mountain, for they have a very important question to ask Him.

Many a time they have heard Him tell about His kingdom, about His second coming to the earth, and they have wondered and wondered so much about it. Finally they have decided to ask Him more about it.

As they come near to Jesus we can see them gathered close around Him as they ask, "When will all these things happen, and how are we to know when the time comes for You to come again?"

How earnestly they watch Jesus to see if He will answer them. Yes, He does. He tells them all about the things that will be done just before His coming back to earth. (Teacher should give some of these things from chapters 24 and 25.)

They listen carefully to Jesus' words. He describes so clearly what things will happen that we open our eyes and say, "Those things are happening now, at least some of them!" Surely they are, so we know that it is nearing the time for Jesus to come again. We hope we will live such lives that we can sit by Him in His kingdom as the disciples did in the picture described in this lesson.

—V. C. T.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CONFERENCE DATES

Fonthill May Meeting at Fonthill, Ontario, May 25 to 27
 Minnesota State Conference at St. Cloud, June 14 to 17
 Annual June Meeting at Brush Creek Church near Tippicanoe City, Ohio June 3 to 10
 Illinois Bible School and Conference at Oregon, July 31 to Aug. 12
 General Conference at Oregon, Illinois, July 31 to Aug. 12
 Iowa Conference at Waterloo, Aug. 21 to 26

BRUSH CREEK, OHIO

The Church of God at Brush Creek, Ohio, near Tippicanoe City, will hold its annual meeting June 3 to 10, both dates inclusive. Eld. James A. Patrick of Ashland, Ohio, will be our visiting minister this year. Bro. Patrick is one of our most experienced ministers, and one of the former pastors at Brush Creek. Further announcement will be given later. Sydney E. Magaw, Pastor.

KOKOMO, INDIANA

Elder J. H. Anderson will conduct a series of services beginning Tuesday, May 8, and continuing over the 11th, when he will be away to fill appointments elsewhere. He will return to Kokomo on Tuesday, May 15, and resume the meetings until Friday, May 18, at which time they will close.

Elder C. A. Smead plans to be here the 21st and help us until June 1. We are planning to have a Bible school each afternoon for those of school age.

The brethren near Kokomo are invited to attend.

D. G. Harvey.

GRAYTOWN CHURCH, WISCONSIN

Bro. A. E. Hoskins of St. Cloud, Minn., held a short series of meetings here April 16th and lasting over April 20. This was Bro. Hoskins' first visit among us and we all enjoyed the fellowship together and were glad to become acquainted with a brother of such ability and character.

Fair attendance and interest were manifested throughout. Bro. Hoskins gave us a real feast of good things, and the church is renewed with zeal to press onward.

We feel we have been greatly blessed and strengthened by these services to carry on the work of the Master. We trust the seed that was sown will bring forth fruit for the Master. We hope to have Bro. Hoskins with us again.

At the close of the two last services we held a business meeting, appointing a committee to find the cost of excavating a church basement to start with. If the Lord is willing, we may have one built in the near future. A Sunday school has been started again, for which we are grateful.

The children that have been sick with measles are better at this writing.

We are glad that Sr. Gladys Thomas, who underwent an operation for appendicitis, is able to be home again from the hospital.

Mrs. Ed Engebretson.

INDIANA REPORT FOR APRIL

Sermons: Pleasant View, 2; Rensselaer, 2; Hillisburg, 2; Plymouth, 1; North Salem, 1; Blush, Mo., 5. Money received: Pleasant View, $18.25; Rensselaer, $24.60; Hillisburg, $15.00; Seircleville High School for Baccalaureate Sermon, $5.00; North Salem, $6.50; Plymouth, $12.00; Conference Board, $39.00 (part of this for work in the past winter). Expense: $15.00. Baptisms: 4.

J. H. Anderson, Indiana Evangelist.

GEORGE B. ALLDRIDGE

To his hundreds of friends over the country, as well as to those of us who knew him best, it comes as a tragic shock to know that Bro. George B. Alldridge is dead. After an illness of only six days, which rapidly developed into pneumonia, he lost his valiant fight for life and fell asleep in Jesus on Monday, April 30. His heart, for years in a weakened condition, was unable to bear the strain.

Bro. Alldridge was born in Portsmouth, England, August 3, 1863. He was educated in a private boys' school, and at the age of 14 entered the British Navy, where he made such rapid progress that today, in the Portsmouth dockyard, is a bronze plate giving his name and the high position to which he attained at the age of 23. This is to show all new cadets what can be done. Owing to the temporary loss of his eyesight, he was invalidated from the Navy.

April 4, 1887, he was united in marriage with Elizabeth Pearce, and came to this country a short time after. Four children were born to this union: Elizabeth (Mrs. H. H. Hawkins), George, Nellie (Mrs. Wm. J. Halls), and the late James. There were nine grandchildren, seven of whom are now living.

He has always led a spiritual life. On June 1, 1913, he was baptized in the Church of God, and has always been an earnest contender for the faith. He occupied the position of elder in both Cleveland churches, and his wise counsel was eagerly sought and valued. His mind was exceptionally fertile and active to the very last. His brilliant intellect and retentive memory made him an interesting and instructive speaker on almost any subject. Especially did he love the Bible, and his devotion to it increased with the years. He was a willing assistant wherever needed, and was always ready to serve as a teacher, or in the pulpit, or wherever there was need. Due to inability to hear, he turned to writing as an outlet for his wonderful mind, and it is in this field that Herald readers will miss him most.

The influence of his life will live long in the experience of those who knew him. The inspiration of his high example of Christian living will form an ideal which many will set before themselves to endeavor to follow. The funeral service was conducted by Bro. W. S. Tomlinson and the writer, on May 3, before a multitude of his friends and brethren. A profusion of lovely flowers gave evidence of the affection in which he was held by many. With heavy hearts we laid him to rest in Lakeview Cemetery, until the Lord of Life shall come with resurrection power to wipe away the tears from all faces.

M. W. Lyon.

SARAH ANN ARTHAND

Sarah Ann Arthand, who lived through the pioneering days in Nebraska, died at the home of her son, Riley Arthand, in Aberdeen, Wash., on March 16, 1934, after a short illness. She had been in the West three months of an intended four months' visit.

She was born in Canada in 1858, coming to Nebraska at the age of seventeen.

She was married to Jonathan Arthand in 1876 and six children were born to this union of which two sons and two daughters survive. She is also survived by ten grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. Jonathan Arthand died thirty years ago and since that time she has resided with her children, at the present time making her home with her daughter, Mrs. Helen Dennison, in Rawlins, Wyo.

She united with the Church of God of the Abrahamic Faith about forty years ago in Nebraska, being baptized by Almus Adams, and has remained a devoted and faithful Christian since. She longed for Christ's return, and her wish was that she might live till that day.

Mrs. Riley Arthand.

ATTENTION, BIBLE STUDENTS!

I feel that many of the ministers of the Church of God do not appreciate the value of historical information in their preaching. I have had inquiries from some few as to correspondence work in history, but feel that due to lack of time and interest they have not responded to the opportunity. This is the price list which I worked out and sent to a few of those who inquired. These prices are very reasonable. Ordinarily I would receive $2.00 per lesson for such instruction, but I am offering it at a much reduced price.

Group 1. 80¢. Lessons on the ancient world as a whole: Egypt, Assyria, and Early Babylonia; Later Babylonia; the Hebrews; Persia; Macedonia; the Pharisees, Sadducees, and Herodians; Rome to the Barbarian Invasions.

Group 2. 80¢. Making of Modern Europe: rise of the Papacy; the Holy Roman Empire; Mohammedanism; Luther and the Revolt from Rome; Calvinism and modern Protestantism; Loyola and the Reformation; rise of intolerance and indifference; Asia and the rise of atheism; war and peace and the League of Nations; expansion of Europe; World War and the period of Peace Conferences; Japan, Germany, Italy, and the United States.

Group 3. 50¢. The Dawn of History: Ancient Egypt; pre-dynastic Pyramid Age, Empire, Religion; Old Babylonia; Assyria; Chaldea.

Group 4. 50¢. Persia and the Hebrews: Media and Babylon (Chaldea); the Hebrews and the Captivity; Isaiah and the Empires; Persia and the Restoration of the Jews; the Fall of Persia; Ezra, Nehemiah, Esther, Haggai, Zechariah, and Malachi; Ezekiel and Daniel in Babylon; the religion of Persia in relation to the Bible.

Group 5. 50¢. Greece, Macedonia, and Between the Testaments: The three Greek Empires; Greek culture and religion; Macedonia and Alexander the Great; the succession states; Maccabees and the Sadducees; Herodians and the coming of Rome; coming of the

BETWEEN YOU AND ME—

In the death of Bro. George B. Alldridge of Cleveland, Ohio, the Church of God has lost a most valuable servant. His influence for good has reached far beyond his own community, and only eternity will tell the fruitage of his efforts. Editorial appreciation will appear in our columns next week.

The sad news reaches this office that another valuable defender of the truth has dropped from the ranks, Bro. Thomas Savage, Sr., of Waite Park, Minn. No man in all that great state was more highly respected or dearly loved than "Tom" Savage. The entire church has sustained a serious loss through his death. Obituary will no doubt reach us in time for our next issue.

Only a short time left for the eastern brethren to prepare to attend the Fonthill, Ont., May Meeting! This has always been a time of spiritual refreshing, and all who are able to come should make an effort to do so.

Through an error in a report received at this office some time ago the announcement was made in our last issue that Bro. S. J. Lindsay was to be guest speaker at the June meeting in Brush Creek, Ohio. It is officially stated that Bro. James A. Patrick is to be the principal speaker. We regret the mistake.

This week closes the "What Must I Do to Be Saved?" contest. The response has not been so large as we had hoped would be the case, but the articles that have reached us are of much interest. The result of the contest will be announced in the near future.

SPECIAL INDEBTEDNESS FUND

Previously reported	$1334.85
Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Bottolfs	10.00
Mr. and Mrs. Frank Marsh	10.00
Mr. and Mrs. Horace G. Pierce	25.00
Frances Pierce	10.00
Icel Stedman	2.00
Alice R. Young	5.00
Amy L. Young	3.00

Total	$1399.85
Pledges previously reported	277.00
Mrs. Eva H. M. Fletcher	30.00

Total pledges and contributions $1706.85

TO OUR BROTHERHOOD

I just want to express my very deep appreciation of the splendid way in which you have responded to this special call. It now appears evident that we are going over the top with this proposition, which could only come about by your united effort. You have been so generous from small amounts up to reasonably large amounts, far better than I had reason to hope could be done. I sincerely hope that we may be able within a very short while to report that we have gone over, and I want to thank you for the splendid work you have been doing.

L. E. Conner, Manager.

Old Testament; Pharisees and the rise of Judaism.

Group 6. 50¢. Rome to the Barbarian Invasions: Roman World of the Bible; the Roman Empire as a State: the two centuries of peace; Constantine and the coming of Christianity; Roman religion and its relation to state organization; Christianity as a cause of decline in the Roman Empire; the early church councils; the rise of early ecclesiasticism; superstitions.

Group 7. 70¢. The Renaissance and Reformation: Papacy and politics; the age of revival; age of discovery and its effect on religion; humanism and the revolt from Rome in Germany, France, Switzerland, and England; the Protestant revolt summarized; the Turk, the Comet, and the Devil; the Jesuits; the Council of Trent; Papacy and Empire.

Group 8. 70¢ for ten lessons on any one of the following: Great Britain; Russia; Japan; Germany; the Balkan States.

Group 9. 70¢. The Mohammedan countries (10 lessons).

Any group at price quoted; own groups can be selected at 70¢ for ten topics; lessons include references to books; explanations of various features of the subject in hand that are not handled in any book; quick methods for getting the essential features of any subject; and questions and suggested topics for writing.

Norman John MacLeod,
1105 Val Vista St.,
Pomona, Calif.

HERALD RECEIPTS

H. S. Bell; May Moore; Nancy B. Robison; Mrs. A. M. Scroggs; H. S. Lasher; Mrs. J. T. Whitley; Isabelle Smith; J. T. Rutherford; L. B. Boggs; Ethel Johnson; Mary E. Carter; Josephine Engebretson (for self and another); Inez Gordon (for others); W. A. Wilson; Mary E. Good; J. M. Boyer; Richard E. Powell; Mrs. Wallace Woolf; Ferne Moore; Ada Simpson; B. F. Skeels; S. W. Harlan; J. R. Harn; Mrs. I. L. Wood.

CONTRIBUTORS TO DOLLAR-A-MONTH CLUB

H. S. Lasher ($6); Silas M. Claypool; Mr. and Mrs. George M. Siple; Helen M. Chisholm; Eva H. M. Fletcher; Anna Mae Bottolfs; Lillian A. Greiner; Amy L. Young ($10).

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by
National Bible Institution
Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents
Sample copy, Free.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

The RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: the near return of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church to be joint heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

ESSENTIAL TRUTHS— Anonymous

A brief arrangement of the necessary requirements of salvation as to faith and works. It provides copious Bible references showing that belief in the coming kingdom of God on the earth, the restoration of Palestine to Israel, the reign of Christ and His saints over all nations, the resurrection and immortalization of the dead in Christ, eternal life to be obtained only through Christ at His coming, the final destruction of the wicked, repentance and baptism for the remission of sins, followed by a holy life of Christian service, are included among the "Essential Truths" of the Bible.

1 page. Per dozen 10¢; per hundred 30¢.

Let's
climb
the Ladder
to Success

$1700
$1600
$1500
$1400
$1300
$1200
$1100
$1000
$900
$800
$700
$600
$500
$400
$300
$200
$100

CHILDREN AT THE MOVIES

THE following letter, which appeared recently in a Chicago paper, reminds us of a resolution which is being published in a Roman Catholic weekly, denouncing unclean movie shows and asking that parents shall sign the resolution as a protest to the powers that be. Sr. Maybelle Hanson of Chicago called our attention to this protest, and says, "I think it would be an excellent idea if our Protestant churches did something in the same line."

Parents would do well to take into prayerful consideration the seriousness of the situation outlined below.

"One Sunday afternoon when our typical spring weather lured me out for a walk my attention was attracted by long lines of children who were eagerly buying admission tickets to their neighborhood movie. I am not a movie fan, but seeing the title of the play and anxious to see the reaction of such a play on children not yet in their teens I decided to enter. The plot was taken from a well known French novel and the heroine was a woman of the streets. My attention was focused more on the children than on the play and this observation convinced me more than ever that while our authorities are making preparations to study the mentality of some of the school children that it would also be timely to urge the parents to be more careful of what kind of plays their children are attending.

"The children are perhaps allowed to go to the movies for being good, but it seems rather paradoxical to allow them to see a play, the effect of which on many of them must be—to put it mildly—far from desirable. When I saw how some of the more realistic or even suggestive scenes elicited subdued snickering, laughter, and mysterious whispering when the appearance of the woman had awakened the dormant passion in a superannuated, decrepit nobleman and the older boys were eagerly explaining to their younger companions what apparently they did not understand, I left the place with the sad reflection, 'If such seed is planted in the youthful, plastic mind of our children what will the harvest be?'"

THE WORLD'S BIRTHDAY

OUR old world has had a birthday. When it was swung out into space "the morning stars sang together, and all the sons of God shouted for joy." How gay its youth! How sad its manhood! How mournful its old age! The fever of sin entered its vitals and coursed through its veins. In its wild delirium it has raved with cyclonic fury, groaned with seismic spasms, and cried with the voice of pestilence. And now the world is dying. The death damp is on its brow. Its heart beats with the quick throb of nearing dissolution. High runs the fever of sin. Its brain reels with delirium. Doctors fail to aid it. Dr. Ecclesiasticus has seen his prescriptions fail. Dr. Politics has given him legislative pellets and found they could not purge his system. Dr. Philosophy has dosed him with wisdom pills without giving permanent relief. Dr. Socialism has proposed dissection and reconstruction. Dr. Spiritualism has advised taking a dose of spirit information, and Dr. Prophecy says his only hope lies in taking a drink of restoration tonic. But he will die before he takes it.

Our old world is drawing near its end. Its tragic history of sin will be finished. Its race of unrighteousness will soon be run. Its career of crime will come to a close. Finis shall be written on its tale of woe. Prophecy shouts: "The end of all things is at hand!" And history echoes: "Is at hand—at hand."—H. W. Bowman.

HAVE THE BEST CHOIR POSSIBLE

THERE is no absolute standard by which the choir of any church is to be measured. The "best" that any church can be expected to attain to is always only the best possible under given conditions, and they vary with every church. What may be the acme of attainment in one church, may be positive mediocrity in another. Now the choir that is really the best that a given church can have, will be a blessing to that church, while the same choir would be a sorry misfit in another church with larger possibilities. When a congregation builds a church, it is not always able to put up a cathedral, or to have in its house of worship all the splendid appointments that some of the modern buildings in our large metropolitan centers have. The great majority of church buildings throughout the land are very modest in their pretensions, but they serve their purpose exceedingly well, for they were the best the people could afford. And just as little as we must put up architectural monuments on cathedral plans whenever we need a house of worship anywhere, just as little need we build our choirs on the cathedral plan, if we are to have one at all.

The best a given church may be able to possess, for the time being, may be only a junior choir of boys and girls in their teens, singing but two parts. Then let us have that junior choir there. By the way, a junior choir is nothing to be despised, and we have enthusiastic ones in many of our city churches along with their very efficient senior choirs. But let no church despair that can have only a junior choir. There is fine music available for them, written just for such needs, and with the junior choir often begins the training for bigger things. Or a church may only be able to have a two or three part women's chorus, or a four part beginners' mixed chorus with the simplest kind of music. Or a church may be blessed with many good men's voices and could easily have a men's quartet, or double quartet, or men's chorus. There are so many possibilities, that really no church need be without its choir of some kind. Let that choir be really dedicated to the service of the Master, and it will prove a great blessing to the church that has it.—H. von Berge in The Baptist Herald.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 23

OREGON, ILLINOIS, MAY 15, 1934

NUMBER 33

THE CRIMSON MENACE

By the Editor

UNDER the red flag of Soviet Russia marches the largest military force ever organized in the history of the world, numbering as it does some 18,850,000 men. Such is the startling assertion of Lowell M. Limpus, a Reserve officer of the United States Army. This vast body of troops is thoroughly schooled in the tactics of modern warfare, and equipped with the most destructive weapons science can devise, and serves a mighty communistic, atheistic, empire that occupies one seventh of the land surface of the earth.

That a military engine built on so gigantic a scale is a menace not only to the peace of the world but also to Christian civilization itself, is clearly apparent. No nation would prepare for war on so vast a scale unless it entertained dreams of far-reaching conquest. The crimson menace of Communism threatens the very existence of our most cherished institutions—the home, the church, and all other forms of government now in operation.

The Christian home as we have known it in America, and as our fathers knew it in the Christian lands from whence they came, is named as the first point of communistic attack. The Christian home must go! Such is the edict of Communism.

The Christian church and the spiritual realities for which it stands are likewise looked upon by this enemy of all religion as an evil to be speedily eradicated. The Christian church must go! Such is the edict of Communism. But if they only knew, these enemies of the church, that among the acknowledged leaders of Christianity are some of Communism's strongest defenders perhaps its atheistic advocates would recall their edict that the church must go!

This Christian nation, founded by Christian men and Christian women who were willing to brave the dangers of the wilderness in order that they might freely enjoy the worship of God; this Christian nation, with all other Christian nations of the world, is the direct object of attack by

The following article is the first of two papers prepared by the editor of this journal in which he views the spread of atheistic Communism in the world, and points out the danger attending it. In the next article the author draws certain conclusions from prophecy regarding the significance of these developments.

the crimson menace of Communism. The Christian nation must go! Such is the edict of Communism.

These statements are not simply phrases, but facts! It is candidly admitted, nay, it is proudly and boastfully asserted, that the purpose of Communism is to utterly destroy the entire existing order of Christian civilization and to build upon its shattered ruins a new atheistic state of grossest materialism. Christian civilization must go! Such is the edict of Communism.

It is hard for one to understand how statesmen of unquestioned ability come to place any reliance on the pledges and promises of a nation like Russia! Even during the imperialistic regime Russia was regarded as not to be depended upon to keep the covenants she made with other nations, and with the establishment of the Soviet order her reputation has become worse rather than better. Because of her obvious lawlessness in her dealings with other nations all United States Administrations since the War, both Republican and Democratic, until the present Administration came into power, have declined to grant Russia recognition.

Among the solemn pledges made by the Soviet authorities when seeking recognition, and upon which pledges its recognition was based, was the assurance that Russia would not engage in communistic propaganda in this country. Of course the same pledge had been made previously to France, England, and Italy, and broken with such impunity that recognition was withdrawn for a time, but in spite of that being true, our Government trusted that Russia would keep her word to us.

Here is the result:

Agents of the United States Department of Justice report that their investigations show that Moscow has already formed a "national red squad" in this country to which has been assigned the task of organizing four million CWA workers in the hope (Please turn to Page Nine)

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879.

G. Eldred Marsh, Editor

Two Dollars per Year

Paul C. Johnson, Associate Editor

"God is my witness, whom I serve with my spirit in the gospel of his Son, that without ceasing I make mention of you always in my prayers."—Romans 1:9.

A PSALM OF SPRINGTIME

For Springtime's sunshine and its showers,
For woods and hills and shady bowers,
For singing birds and fragrant flowers—
We praise Thy name, O God above!
For friends and home and all that's dear,
For faith that banishes our fear,
For everything that brings good cheer—
We praise Thy name, O God of love!

To Thee, O Lord, our hearts we raise,
To Thee we offer ceaseless praise,
To Thee, whose goodness crowns our days—
Be glory now and evermore!
To Thee we come who claim Thy care,
To Thee, whose love with Christ we share,
To Thee we would address our prayer—
Thy wondrous name we would adore!

MANIFOLD GRACE

BENEATH the surface of the English words in which God's precious truth is brought to our understanding lies a deeper substrata of revelation which it is hard for the translators to carry over from the original tongues and express fully in our language. Many of the finer shades of meaning are thus lost in the process of translation. Of course this does not in any way affect the essential truth contained in the Bible, but it does detract somewhat from the beauty of Oriental imagery that so graces the speech of the East.

For example, when Mark in his sixth chapter relates the story of the feeding of the multitude, the English rendering declares that Jesus "commanded them to make all sit down by companies upon the green grass. And they sat down in ranks, by hundreds, and by fifties."

The Greek expression translated "in ranks," means literally, "like beds in a garden." While the former words, "by companies," describe the arrangement, this latter one suggests the colors. Dr. Vincent declares that "the red, blue, and yellow clothing of the poorest Orientals make an Easter crowd full of color." Seated in groups on the green grass of the hillside the brightly garbed multitude presented to Peter's beauty loving eye the picture of a garden made up of many beds of tinted flowers. (Peter is thought to be the one from whom Mark obtained the material for his Gospel.)

Another striking example of Peter's colorful language is found in his first Epistle, where he twice uses the word "manifold." The Greek word from which "manifold" is derived is poikilos, and means "many colored." It is found nowhere else in the New Testament.

In its first occurrence (1 Peter 1:6) the Apostle says, "Now for a season, if need be, ye are in heaviness through manifold temptations." What a vivid picture this presents of the alluring character of sin! The brilliant promises of the world, the glowing truths of carnal ambition, the constantly changing colors that attract the lustful eye on every side! Such is the picture Peter paints of temptation. It is not surprising that Isaiah asserts that our sins are "red like crimson"!

In the second place where the word appears (1 Peter 4:10) Peter is speaking of the use that should be made of the gifts that God has bestowed upon us, admonishing us that "as every man hath received the gift, even so minister the same one to another, as good stewards of the manifold grace of God."

If the temptations we are called upon to meet are "many colored," so is the grace which God bestows upon us "many colored"! Perhaps it was some such thought as this that Paul had in mind when he wrote in 1 Corinthians 10:13 that "there hath no temptation taken you but such as is common to man: but God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation also make a way of escape, that ye may be able to bear it." Every shade of temptation, no matter how attractive it may be, may be vanquished by the counteracting power of the "many colored" grace of God.

The glorious colors of God's grace exceed in their beauty, as they exceed in their power and appeal, all the varied shades of carnal temptation. "Many colored" grace overcomes "many colored" temptations. If the world has to offer that which appeals to our physical senses, God has much more to offer that appeals to our higher spiritual nature. And the joy that comes through the latter is far more satisfying than the former can provide.

The Agreement of Peter and Amos

THE council at Jerusalem, of which we have an account in Acts 15, was a most important event in the early propagation of the gospel. It settled a question that was assuming grave and disastrous proportions.

The Gentile converts were being required by the Jewish converts, or, at least, by a strong party of them, to be circumcised and observe the Mosaic ritual. That is, they must become Jews as well as Christians.

This was contrary to the spirit and purpose of the gospel, that faith was the sole principle that brought into right relation with God, and no added works were necessary to that end. Works were to follow as evidence and fruit of faith, but not to precede or supplant it.

The question must be settled or the cause would be wrecked. Evidence was given by Peter, Paul, and Barnabas of the work God had done among the Gentiles, giving them the Holy Spirit in response to their faith, thus sealing the validity of the gospel of simple faith in plain evangelical facts.

Prophecy is quoted in confirmation of the movement. We note that what was done was in agreement with all the prophets (v. 15) as well as Amos. Amos is quoted as a sample. Peter's statement, as quoted by James, was that "God at the first did visit the Gentiles, to take out of them a people for his name." "To this," says James, "agree the words of the prophets." He then quotes Amos 9:11, 12.

We note he does not say, in this was fulfilled the words of the prophets, but to this agree the words of the prophets. At first sight fulfillment and agreement might appear the same; but a closer look reveals a difference. The Greek for "fulfill" is pleero, while "agree" is symphone, the word from which "symphony" comes. The word symproneo is used by Luke (the writer of Acts) in his Gospel, chapter 5:36, in connection with the new cloth and old garment illustration. The piece of new cloth, as a patch on the old garment, shrinking, tears away from the old and makes the rent larger. This failure to perfectly fit is stated by Luke as not agreeing (ou symphonei).

This agreement would not have meant that the patch-piece would be the same in shape and size as the garment, but rather a completing piece to the rent garment, filling up what was lacking in the old.

According to this interpretation of "agreement" we should not expect to find Peter's statement of Amos' prophecy identical in terms or as to events, but the one the completion of the other, and the two the statement of a complete plan.

We do not find in Amos one word about a taking out, but we do find the term "residue." Now a residue is what is left after a taking out. Peter speaks of the taking out and Amos of the residue, and James says these symphonize, or form a complete plan (Gr. symphoonousin).

Here is an article taken from an Advent Christian paper which offers a pleasing contrast to a series recently reprinted in The Herald from another of that denomination's journals. Mr. Kearney's opinions point to the return of Israel as a prediction for future fulfillment. His argument is unusual.

The rebuilding of the fallen tabernacle of David was not for the taking out, but that the residue might seek the Lord. Now as the residue must follow the taking out; and as Peter's speech, as declared by James, was a statement of a taking out as the work of this dispensation, which was then under way by the ministry of the apostles and has continued to the present time and will to the end of the dispensation; and as the rebuilding of the tabernacle of David was for the purpose that the residue might seek the Lord, both the rebuilding of the tabernacle and the seeking by the residue must be after the taking out is complete.

The tabernacle of David is only mentioned in one other place (Isa. 16:5), and is connected with the reigning upon the throne, and the execution of judgment and the hastening of righteousness.

The rebuilding of the tabernacle of David then must correspond to the many statements in the prophets of the restoration of Israel; for James says Peter's words agree with the prophets, and quotes Amos as a sample.

That there is the promise of such a return none can deny who have any familiarity with the prophets. It may be claimed that these prophecies, having been given prior to the Babylonian Captivity, had their fulfillment in the return under Zerubbabel, Ezra, and Nehemiah, by the decrees of the Persian kings. But several features of those prophecies did not receive their fulfillment in that return.

1. They were to be the possessors instead of vassals under others.

2. They were to be no more removed.

3. They were to have a time of unprecedented trial from which they were to be delivered. No such thing has ever happened to them yet.

4. They did not consider this restoration any more than a "little reviving in our bondage" (Ezra 9:8).

5. Zechariah gives similar prophecies after the Babylonian Captivity.

Some further explanation needs to be made concerning the quotation from Amos. Most New Testament quotations from the Old Testament were taken from the Septuagint Version, which accounts for the variations in so many cases from the Old Testament reading. There is variation in this case.

The Amos passage as translated from the Old Testament

Hebrew reads, "In that day will I raise up the tabernacle of David that is fallen, and close up the breaches thereof; and I will raise up his ruins, and I will build it as in the days of old; that they may possess the remnant of Edom, and of all the heathen, which are called by my name, saith the Lord."—9:11, 12.

Luke's record of James' quotation reads, "After this I will return, and will build again the tabernacle of David, which is fallen down; and I will build again the ruins thereof, and I will set it up: that the residue of men might seek after the Lord, and all the Gentiles, upon whom my name is called, saith the Lord, who doeth all these things."—Acts 15:16, 17.

Horne's Introduction gives us, in parallel columns, the Hebrew, Septuagint Greek, and New Testament Greek of all quotations in the New Testament from the Old, with the English translation of each.

The English translation of the Septuagint as given by Horne is, "In that day I will raise up the tabernacle of David, which hath fallen; I will rebuild those parts of it which have fallen to decay, and repair what have been demolished. I will indeed rebuild it as in the days of old, that the rest of mankind may seek (the Lord), even all the nations who are called by my name, saith the Lord who doeth all these things."

One significant difference between the Hebrew and Septuagint is the use of the word "mankind" for "Edom." The New Testament quotation has the "residue of men" for the "rest of mankind." The New Testament quotation is evidently from the Septuagint.

Horne, in a footnote, says, "This quotation, in general, seems to be taken from the Septuagint; but with several verbal variations. The passage, however, varies more materially from the Hebrew, especially in the clause, That the residue of men may seek after the Lord; which in the authorized English version from the Hebrew, is rendered, That they may possess the remnant of Edom. The Septuagint translators evidently read yidrosua (they may seek) not yirshua (they may possess) and adam (mankind) not Edom (the descendants of Esau): and the quotation of it by the Apostle or the evangelical historian, according to that reading, gives great sanction to it."

The Isaiah mention of "the tabernacle of David" is found in chapter 16:5, "And in mercy shall the throne be established; and he shall sit upon it in truth in the tabernacle of David, judging, and seeking judgment, and hastening righteousness."

This established throne and righteous judgment are to follow the consumption of spoilers, extortioners, and oppressors out of the land (v. 4).

Marginal references, though only the practical comments of men, yet show the connection in which they are regarded as standing by those men. There are two such references from Isaiah 16:5, one Daniel 7:14 and the other Luke 1:33. In the first, reference is made to the assumption of kingly authority by one like the Son of man; the other, the announcement to Mary of the kingship of her Son. The tabernacle of David, then, has essential connection with the Davidic throne, and the righteous King sitting upon it. For some time this tabernacle was to lie in ruins; and a time was to come when it was to be restored to its former state, or as the Amos prophecy says, as in the "days of old."

To apply the restoration of the tabernacle of David to the bringing in of the gospel dispensation displaces the promised special reign of Christ from the future to the present. The statement of Peter (Acts 2:30) that He was raised up to sit upon the throne of David does not necessarily imply that He entered upon the occupancy of that throne when He was raised up.

The throne to which He was elevated at His ascension was the Father's, and He is reigning with Him in heaven as associate regent. But a special throne is promised Him in this world, called the throne of David, which He will occupy when He returns from heaven. These two phases of kingship are definitely and clearly stated in Revelation 3:21, "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne."

He overcame when on earth and is honored as co-regent with the Father during this dispensation. But this cannot be said to be the fulfillment of the promise made to Mary that her Son would have the throne of David. That promise awaits fulfillment in this world. The throne of David was on earth and not in heaven. Moreover, there is the promise of co-regency made to overcomers in this age. Those overcomers are the taken-out ones, from Jew and Gentile, in this dispensation, and they are specially promised to reign with Him. And this reigning is in the tabernacle of David, which shall be restored and rebuilt, and the special feature of that reign will be promoting judgment and lasting righteousness in the land.

Note the quotation from Amos in Acts 15 couples a return with the rebuilding of the tabernacle of David. The words "after this I will return" are not in Amos, but they stand, in the quotation, in place of the words "in that day." The Holy Spirit, whose guidance is so clearly seen in all the movements in the book of Acts, is recognized as a Sitter in the assembly where this quotation from Amos was given, guiding them in their deliberations and conclusions, so that the summary of the council's doing was "it seemed good to the Holy Ghost, and to us" to do the things mentioned, and that same Holy Spirit guided them in their use of this quotation, substituting the words "after this I will return" for "in that day."

A return means a coming back to a place from which one has gone. To whom can this apply but to our Lord Jesus Christ, who shall return to rebuild the tabernacle of David, and set up His promised throne in executing judgment and righteousness in the earth?

While we are waiting for that return, we are the agencies by which a people for His name is being taken out of the nations of earth, while He is sitting at the right hand of the Father, on His throne, cooperating in the providential administration of world affairs.

But this joint reign is to end, and Christ is to take His own throne promised Him, and the taken out ones, the overcomers, are to have places with Him in the rulership of the earth.

Another reason why we believe this return applies to Christ is that, according to the introduction to Acts (chapter 1:1-3) by Luke, the writer's reference is made to the former treatise of what Jesus began to do and teach. The plain and legitimate inference is that He is about to relate what He continues to do and teach. He is the great actor. The acts are His acts, and He is credited with saying He would return and rebuild the tabernacle of David, which is in a fallen, dilapidated condition.

The day spoken of by Amos is evidently not the gospel day, but the day ushered in by the return of Jesus. This is the way the language is applied by the Holy Spirit, whose presence was so manifestly evident in the first Greek church council.—A. H. Kearney in Present Truth Messenger.

In the Name of Religion

By Arlen Marsh

WHOEVER laid down the hoary saying, "Religion, what crimes are committed in thy name!" was guilty of no sin except that of minimizing. Religion in general, and Christianity in particular, has managed to lend the protecting cloak to as large an amount of petty crimes and misdemeanors as the far-famed Underworld.

From the very earliest times the United States Government has seen fit to protect the publisher who desires such protection with the enactments known as the copyright law. Unfortunately, the idea has gone the rounds that if a service is done in the name of the church or school or for non-profit motives it can be taken feely from copyrighted material, and that in the offering of such a service the necessary material may be gathered from a single copyrighted book and copied so that each participant may have the piece he has to do or speak.

Thus, alas! have the members of the Church of God and other religious denominations fallen from grace and violated the exhortation of Paul to obey rulers and those with authority. With the thought of saving money, the leader or supervisor of the Children's Day, Easter, Mother's Day, Christmas, or other program, purchases one copy of a copyrighted program and from it copies recitations, dialogues, songs, and poems galore.

And that is strictly against the law. No part, no line, no score of music, may be copied from any copyrighted publication in any way, whether by hand, typewriter, mimeograph, or printing press, for any purpose whatsoever, without the written permission of the owner of the copyright. So every individual who has at one time or another copied from any copyrighted book, magazine, or other publication, has been an infringer of the law of the land.

The penalties for breaking the copyright law are not the slightest. Section 25 of the Act provides minimum damages due the owner of the infringed copyright of $250, plus the costs of court prosecution, plus (in some circumstances) a $1000 fine.

To quote exactly from the law: "That any person entitled thereto (that is, to a copyright) upon complying with the provisions of this act, shall have the exclusive right: (a) To print, reprint, publish, copy, and vend the copyrighted work."

Emphatically, therefore, it must be stated that for no purpose and in no way may copyrighted programs for special or other days be copied. Saving money must be subordinated to the obedience to law. If more than one copy of a copyrighted poem, speech, or recitation is required, then additional copies of the book containing that poem, speech, or recitation must be purchased. If, for example, a dialogue has ten parts and each participant needs a copy, ten copies of the dialogue must be bought.

It would, of course, be utterly impossible for a publisher to stay in business if he did not make a profit on his investment. The Profit Motive, at which so many uninformed and ridiculous theologians now are hammering, is the very life of American and every other business. Were it not for profit, no man could have employment.

But if those who desire to be saving are saving at the expense of the publishers, the publishers must protect themselves. The stocks into which they have put millions in producing cannot be left idle. They must be sold. And if one copy of a program is purchased and recopied by each of a thousand churches, the publisher loses an enormous amount of business which legitimately is his.

In all fairness, therefore, the Christian must observe the copyright regulations, not because they are law, but because they are just. THE HERALD cannot under any circumstances reprint copyrighted material without first obtaining the permission of the owner of the copyright, nor can it print long quotations from copyrighted books without going through a similar procedure. In the past it has done so unaware, and it now requests the cooperation of its readers to eliminate such infringements of the law from its columns.

Medo-Persia in Daniel the Eighth

THE gripping thing of Daniel's vision here of Medo-Persia is the conquest of that dual kingdom. The prophecy declares (Dan. 8:4) that Daniel "saw the ram pushing westward, and northward, and southward," until he became the champion conqueror of the world. In other words, the Medo-Persian power was to subject and render tributary to itself the great Babylonian Empire of universal supremacy which preceded it. More than one hundred years before the birth of Cyrus (which occurred about B. C. 599), the Lord spoke prophetically of the coming ruler of this empire and called him by name: "Cyrus, whose right hand I have holden, to subdue nations."—Isa. 45:1. Cyrus was the son of Cambyses, of Persia, and his mother, Mandana, was sister of Cyaxares, king of Media. In the year B. C. 559, Neriglissar came to the throne of Babylon and immediately made great preparations to fight the Medes. At this time, says Prideaux's history, "Cyaxares called Cyrus (his nephew) out of Persia to his assistance, and on his arrival with an army of 30,000 Persians, Cyaxares made him general of the Medes also, and sent him with the joint forces of both nations to make war against the Babylonians." Cyrus was well fitted for this position by his early education and a previous residence at the court of Media for a few years with his grandfather, which endeared him to that people. He was a skillful general, and in twenty-one years by his military genius, under God, made himself master of a great empire by the conquest of Babylon.

In B. C. 558 he adroitly gained a victory over Armenia and adjacent places on the north, and in B. C. 546 he engaged in a fierce battle with the Babylonians on the west, when Neriglissar the king was slain and the Assyrian army was routed. A few years later he made great progress by gaining victories and taking their fortresses, towns, and provinces. In B. C. 548 he fought with Croesus, king of Lydia, and a confederate of Babylon in Asia Minor of the west, gained a victory and shut him up in Sardis, his chief city. As early as B. C. 540 he had subdued all the nations from the Aegean Sea on the west to the Euphrates and upper countries on the north, and Syria and Arabia on the west and south, so that no place in all that region opposed him except the city of Babylon. Cyrus soon fought a battle with Belshazzar, the king, gained a victory, and shut him up in Babylon. The subjugation of that city was a difficult one, for the walls were very high and impregnable, and moreover were defended by a great many men who had provisions in store for twenty years. But the invisible guide led him on to victory.

By a stratagem (Jer. 50:24), he turned the Euphratean waters which ran under the city from their usual course, marched his army under the walls in the river bed as soon as fordable, found the inside gates open through the general negligence attending Belshazzar's bacchanalian feast (Dan.

5), entered the city, and slew the king, when that metropolis of magnificent grandeur collapsed, and General Cyrus was master of the great empire. Thus in B. C. 538, Darius (another name for Cyaxares the Median ruler) "took the kingdom" (Dan. 5:30, 31), and fulfilled Jeremiah 50:18; 51:11; Isaiah 45:1-3.

II

THE next thing is the rulers. Does the matter of ruling show up in Daniel 8? Yes. Cyrus and his uncle reigned jointly two years, but in B. C. 536, on the death of Darius, i. e., Cyaxares, he became sole monarch. According to Daniel 6:1, there were at this time 120 provinces in the empire, but later additional conquests were made, and in the reign of Ahasuerus (Artaxerxes Longimanus), there were 127 provinces (Esther 1:1). Cyrus did much for the restoration of the Jews, for the seventy years of prophecy for the captivity of Judah (2 Chron. 36:21, 22; Jer. 29:10-13), were expiring. After reigning sole monarch seven years, he died, according to Rollin, B. C. 529. In B. C. 526 Cambyses, his son and successor, invaded Egypt in the south with a large army, took Pelusium, the key of Egypt, besieged Memphis, gained a signal victory, and all the country submitted to him. Both Darius Hystaspes and his son Xerxes desired to extend their conquest in the west, and invaded Greece, but were defeated. The army of Darius was driven back from the plains of Marathon by the Athenians, and the invasion of Xerxes (B. C. 480) with more than five million soldiers and camp followers was inglorious, and met a very humiliating disaster. Up to this time Medo-Persia had mostly done its work, and the prophecy had been fulfilled.

The ram had pushed "westward" to Babylon, Asia Minor, and the boundary of Europe; "northward" to Armenia, Cappadocia, and other northern countries; and "southward" to Arabia and Egypt. Cyrus is reputed to have been a humane and wise ruler, and to have laid a solid foundation for a future government; but his successors according to history were "the worst race of men that ever governed an empire." According to this prophecy (Dan. 8:4), the ram "did according to his will, and became great," or as Herodotus, as quoted by Birks, says, "Wherever Cyrus turned himself to march, it was impossible for that nation to escape." In B. C. 331, after a period of 207 years from the taking of Babylon, Alexander, the great Grecian warrior, gained a decisive victory (near Arbela, east of the Tigris) over Darius Codomanus, the last king of Persia, who was soon after assassinated. The Persian measure of moral corruption was brimful, the great empire lost its prestige and glory, and the universal supremacy was transferred to "another third kingdom" (Dan. 2:39). This second prophetic vision of Daniel was fifteen years before the conquest of Babylon, and 222 years before the downfall of the Persian monarchy. God has spoken! His word is true from the beginning (Psa. 119:160)!

III

Now what may be said about the light that comes from the study of prophecy? Whether fact or fiction, distinguished writers have given us a beautiful illustration of our work (Prov. 2:3-5) in the study of the prophetic Scriptures. They say that anthracite coal is "fossil sunlight," and that "the vast stores of sunlight poured out upon the globe in past ages were consolidated and packed away in the earth because this busy nineteenth century of railroads, steamers, and manufactories would need it." Well, perhaps so! We are more fully assured, however, that in bygone centuries a vast amount of prophetic light was stored up in the inspired writings of Daniel and other prophets, and is now being developed by diligent workers in the mines of eschatological truth, and the Lord's watchmen can discern the fore-thrown glory beams of morning light. This stored-up material, when dug out and used, gives light and heat to our souls, fires our hearts with a love for the revelation of God, and gives the grand motive power for enthusiastic work in our Lord's service. As we continue our prophetic studies on the rise and fall of earthly dynasties, let us fervently pray for the coming of that holy kingdom of resplendent glory and universal empire which will never be destroyed (Dan. 2:44).—The Messiah's Advocate.

The Personal Touch of the Christian

By Melba Glanton Arlington

THREE young men, one afternoon, stood by a very famous river conversing earnestly on a subject quite new to them. One, an attractive personality with dark eyes and an abundance of dark hair, possessed all the attributes of the leader. His garments were plain and his spare face gave mute testimony of a clean life, always the product of temperance in everything.

The second was a different type, something of the intense character of the first, yet with a certain finesse peculiar to him. He talked very little. The third man was different from either of the others. He could only ask questions.

As the conversation grew in interest, a stranger came down the road and passed them without a word. The first of the three called attention to the stranger and almost immediately the other two started to follow him. Quite unexpectedly, the stranger turned and said, "Whom are you looking for?"

The young men were confused and answered him with a question, "Where are you going?"

The stranger quick of perception merely replied, "Come over and take tea with me."

Friendships begun that day lasted throughout their lives. They talked about Him always. The stranger was endowed with the qualities of His Maker—the priceless gifts bestowed upon the seeker—the magnetism of the spiritually controlled.

Jesus attracted attention as no other man did. His presence in any room or among any group immediately brought all eyes toward Him. The fact that He was the Son of God was not alone responsible, for many did not believe Him as such. And his mortal body proved that He was not immune to the conditions about Him. That great something which attracted and held the attention of even His enemies was the electrified current of hourly communion with God.

This personal contact is the definite key to all service. The close, personal touch and contact with Jesus Christ, our mediator, establishes and holds. Personal contact with our fellow men must follow.

Jesus was a guide-post, ever bright and shining, an illuminated sign pointing the way to salvation.

If we would be servants of the great Master, it is essential that we walk upon the same road. If we would really serve, we must act as guide-posts to the unenlightened. Grasp that current of hourly communion with the Father and hold it. Storms of adversity may rage, flashing fires of many trials may dance upon the invisible wires, but the connection is never broken unless the servant so wills it.

Our Commander has ordered us to go into every nation and teach all people. We, as individuals, cannot do that. Only a few are sent to the far corners of the earth, but we can reach the family next door with that personal touch.

As the son is like his father and the daughter like her mother, so do we become like those with whom we go. It is the law of unconscious assimilation. If we can visibly prove to others that we really do possess that heavenly contact and can commune at will, then and then only will the guide-post be accurate.

S. D. Gordon recalls a poem he once read about a man riding on horseback through a bit of timberland in one of the southern states. "It was a bright October day and he was riding along enjoying the air and the view, when all at once he came across a bit of clearing in the trees, and in the clearing an old cabin almost fallen to pieces, and in the doorway of the cabin an old negress standing. Her back was bent nearly double with the years of hard work, her face dried up and deeply bitten with wrinkles, and her hair white. Her eyes were like the stars. And the man called out cheerily, 'Good morning, Auntie, living here all alone?' She looked up with her eyes brighter still with the thought in her heart and said, 'Jes me 'n Jesus, Massa.'

"But a hush seemed to come over the whole place, the old broken-down cabin seemed haloed, and he imagined he could see somebody standing by her side—his form resembled that of the Son of God."

The personal touch with Jesus gives us that assurance. The Holy Spirit comes only to the fully consecrated life. It may be "quenched" by our own unyielding to Christ's entire will after we have known the way, but it does not leave.

Nothing could be more misdirected than a self-directed life. It is our giving up to His will that seals the commission of service. A full dedication of our bodies is definitely required. The flesh must be subdued—appetite, vain glory, worldly desires—all must be crucified if one would be a personal messenger. We must live in a sin-ruled world, yet not be a part of it. The line is very closely drawn about the individual who accepts the call.

A woman had instructed her daughter that playing cards was vulgar and not suited to Christians. One day, the daughter, several years older, came to her mother and said, "Mother, it must be all right to play cards. I went to Ruth's home yesterday and our new minister was there playing bridge." The mother rather amazed, replied, "Well, then, it can't be so bad if our minister plays."

Our lives must be above reproach and we who have accepted the call to service must sacrifice for the sake of example and leadership.

The really great people of the earth are the people who pray. Not the ones who merely talk about it nor those who say they believe it. The great people are the ones who truly pray—taking time from other duties. A definite time each day, alone with God. These are the people who are doing the most good, winning souls, in solving problems, in awakening churches, in supplying both men and money for foreign mission posts, in keeping fresh and strong these lives afar off in sacrificial service, in keeping the old world sweet awhile longer.

It is a secret service, for we do not always know just who these people are, though we may guess. Many times it is a plain looking woman sitting quietly in church or in the home. Doing her daily tasks unnoticed by the world, hardly given a second thought. Perhaps she is doing more for her church or her community than a dozen others receiving more attention. Simply because she prays, really prays, as God inspires and directs her.

Without this yielding of body and mind, without the daily conversation with God, personal service is futile. That is the stamp of difference upon God's people, "a peculiar people," He tells us. That is the peculiarity which marks the Christian. It is the personal touch which soothes the sin-cursed heart, comforts the grief-stricken soul, cheers the lowly in spirit. Fine words will not do, scholarly preaching before the masses will not suffice—it must be the personal God-given touch of the Christian.

The words from an old hymn come to my mind as I think of the complete surrender in service:

"Oh, to be nothing, nothing,
Only to lie at His feet,
An empty, broken vessel
For the Master's use made meet.

"Empty that He might fill me,
As on to His service I go;
Empty that through me
His love and power might flow."

When all of me has been laid at the Master's feet and I can be as a broken vessel, ready and willing to be filled with the power of the Holy Ghost, then am I ready for service. The contact can only be established through prayer, sometimes agonizing prayer. The prince of evil will block the way, if he can. Daniel tells of a case delayed for twenty-one days—the answer could not get through because the prince of Persia had interfered. The petition goes at once to the Master if the conditions are right with the individual, but many times the answer is delayed. Then it means a firmer hold must be taken and a deeper consecration. Prayers are always answered if we have the patience to wait, according to His will.

The personal touch of the Christian through Jesus Christ takes away the sting of martyrdom, heals the thorn in the flesh, and puts a callus upon the wound inflicted by the arch enemy. The personal touch will reach where others fail—it is the key to Christian service.

—0—

EVEN THE APOSTLE PAUL NEEDED BOOKS

PAUL had a few books, which were left perhaps wrapped up in the cloak, and Timothy was to be careful to bring them (2 Tim. 4:13). Even an apostle must read!

• He is inspired, and yet he wants books.

He has been preaching for thirty years, and yet he wants books.

He has seen the Lord, and yet he wants books.

He has had a wider experience than most men, and yet he wants books.

He has been caught up into the very heavens, and heard things which it is unlawful for a man to utter, and yet he wants books.

He has written the major part of the New Testament, and yet he wants books.

The Apostle says to Timothy, and so he says to every preacher, "Give thyself unto reading." The man who never reads will never be read; he who never quotes will never be quoted; he who will not use the thoughts of other men's brains proves that he has no brains of his own. Brethren, what is true of ministers is true of all our people—you need to read.—Spurgeon.

THE CRIMSON MENACE

Continued from Front Page

of bringing them into the Communist Party. At the same time every effort is being made to instil in the youth of America a disrespect for our republican form of government and to enlist them as world revolutionaries.

How far this effort has reached in other countries is indicated by the fact that several South American republics found it necessary to make a thorough "house cleaning" in their educational systems from the common schools to the universities in order to rid themselves of communistic instructors, who, it was found, numbered more than seventy-five per cent of those employed.

Conditions in this country are nearly if not quite as bad. For years we have been aware that a large cross section of our educational force, especially in the universities, were openly teaching atheism and Communism to the young people of America. Since the recognition of Russia it is said that Soviet agents have brought college students into the picture by contacting them with communistic agitators during their vacation periods, and sending them back to school to spread the infection.

In this connection I beg to quote the following from an editorial recently appearing in the Daily Star of Tucson, Arizona.

"Astutely and wisely, quietly but firmly, without blares of violence and campaigns of class hatred, a new communistic offensive has been launched in the United States. . . . Its immediate objective is the school system of the United States, which it plans to secure by the power of persuasion rather than by the club.

"The movement originated, not in Russia, but in a small group of professors of education in the Teacher's College of Columbia University. With the prestige of this great school behind it this group, in the disguise of improving education, has begun its program."

The editor then calls attention to the fact that the teachers are being urged to prepare their pupils for a "Collectivist social order which our country would see in the future."

Mr. Carveth Wells, in his new book, Kapoot, makes some startling observations drawn from his own experience in Russia during a recent unsupervised journey through that country. Mr. Wells asserts that he went to Russia favorably impressed with the new political system, and that he studied the fruitage of Communism first-hand and with an unbiased mind. The result of his investigations is summed up as follows:

"Compel them to spend at least a month in Russia without the benefit of Intourist guidance (guides provided by the Government who direct the course of the tour), and I'll warrant that ninety-nine per cent of our drawing-room Bolsheviks, especially Senators, university professors, and well-fed columnists, will come scuttling back to the United States so fast that you'll not be able to see them for dust!"

A philosophy of government that repudiates the Christian home, the Christian church, and the principles of Christianity in the nations of the world, cannot be other than a serious menace to Christian civilization. But the Lord is coming! So let us watch and not lose hope.

"Sedentary work," said the college lecturer, "tends to lessen the endurance."

"In other words," butted in the smart student, "the more one sits the less one can stand."

"Exactly," retorted the lecturer; "and if one lies a great deal, one's standing is lost completely."—Christian Standard.

RECEIVE MY SPIRIT

By Emma C. Railsback

THE words of the martyr Stephen as found in Acts 7:59: "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit," sometimes confuse the minds of those who have previously held to a belief of a conscious existence of the spirit after death; and a few comparisons may help to set the matter straight in the minds of any thus confused.

In Psalm 31:5 David exclaims: "Into thine hand I commit (or "commend," Revised Version) my spirit: thou hast redeemed me, O Lord God of truth." Speaking prophetically, he thus expressed his unshaken confidence in God, resting on God's faithfulness to His promises. Our Savior in Luke 23:46, when approaching the cruel death on the cross, exclaimed, "Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit: and having said thus, he gave up the ghost," or "breathed out," which is the meaning of this last phrase according to Young's Analytical Concordance. The word rendered "spirit" in this passage as well as the one in Acts 7:59 is the Greek word pneuma, meaning "breath," and in the interlineary column of the Emphatic Diaglott reads, "I commit the breath of me."

Then "spirit" in each of the above references is the breath of life. David and Christ each committed their lives to God, but Stephen committed his life to Christ. God had raised Christ from the dead to an endless life and had given into His hands the keys of death and the grave, the power to give life to whomsoever He would (Rev. 1:18).

In his dying moments Stephen honored Christ, as he was given a vision of Christ on the right hand of God in glory, by acknowledging Him as the life-giver.

"Lord Jesus, receive my spirit," or, "I commit my spirit, my life, unto Thee." May we all fully commit our lives unto Him, who is the way, the truth, and the life, even as the Apostle Paul has said—may we know whom we have believed, and be persuaded that He is able to keep that which we have committed unto Him unto that day (2 Timothy 1:12).

Abreast of the Times

Jail Better Than Home

"Fathers, provoke not your children to anger, lest they be discouraged."—Col. 3:21.

CHICAGO, Ill., May 9.—That the county jail should be looked upon as a "mighty fine place" by a thirteen year old boy confined there for murder and kidnaping is a sad commentary on the kind of a home from which he came, and perhaps accounts in a measure for his presence in prison.

George Rogalski, confessed kidnaper of three year old Dorette Zeitlow, and who left her unclothed and alone in an abandoned icehouse so long that she later died from exposure, said today: "I like jail better than I did my home. All I got to drink was water when I was at home, but in jail I get a quart and a half of milk a day."

Commenting on the way in which he spent his time in prison the boy said: "There's lots of fun. We play quoits with rubber rings. There's one fellow who's pretty clever and he's teaching me to box. I've been cutting out jig-saw puzzles, too. I've sold three puzzles for 35 cents each. I'm making my own living, you see."

When the Friend of the children comes again "the streets of the city"—but not the jails—"shall be full of boys and girls playing in the streets thereof" (Zech. 8:5).

Princes of India Prepare for War

"Scatter thou the people that delight in war."

LONDON, May 8.—The futility of attempting to bring about world peace by international agreement is becoming ever more apparent. The British Cabinet struggled vainly today to decide whether to "chuck" the whole disarmament business as a bad job or to continue to negotiate with other nations.

While the British Cabinet was thus engaged the princes of India, which is perhaps the richest and most populous dominion of the Empire, were planning the organization of an air force of nearly five hundred fighting planes. The native rulers of India already maintain cavalry, infantry, and artillery forces in the imperial service.

It may be recalled that over a year ago the editor called attention to the fact that the prophets indicated that India would probably play an important part in the developments of the last days, especially with reference to Japan and China. This thought seems to be supported by recent revelations in the land of the Moguls. For the latest reports state that the princes of India are deeply concerned about the possible extent of Japanese activities in Asia, and have concluded that an efficient air corps would be the best means of stopping any Nipponese aggression.

These warlike gestures from all parts of the world emphasize the futility of offering the prayer suggested in the text accompanying this item, as God is undoubtedly calling the nations to conflict rather than to peace.

Africa Offers Home to Jews

"I will scatter them also among the heathen, whom neither they nor their fathers have known."—Jer. 9:16.

NAIROBI, Kenya Colony, East Africa, May 8.—A plan was formulated today to settle one thousand Jewish families in East Africa where, it was said, good land is available. It was understood the suggestion will be placed before Jewish leaders in London and that memoranda outlining the project will be submitted to the League of Nations for its approval.

World Fellowship of Faiths

"Come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord."—2 Cor. 6:17.

NEW YORK, May 12.—A world religious conference meets in this city today the purposes of which are "to unite the inspiration of all faiths, races, and countries upon the solution of man's present problems." According to The Literary Digest a special feature will be a procession of people of all faiths, races, and countries on Sunday, May 13, from the Pennsylvania Station to the convention hotel. On May 15 a reception and banquet will be held. Among the sixty-five speakers who will address the convention is Sir Francis Younghusband, famous British explorer, statesman, and author. Others will be representatives of religions of India, Persia, Japan, etc.

Germany Buying Jewish Oranges

"The fruit of the earth shall be excellent and comely for them that are escaped of Israel."—Isa. 4:2.

MADRID, Spain, May 11.—Much to the annoyance of Spain it has been discovered that German anti-Semitism has its limitations. The German appetite for the large, seedless oranges produced by the Jews in Palestine has not been affected by Hitler's antagonism to that race. In fact, the oranges of Palestine are growing in favor throughout Germany, and the result is that the Valencia oranges of Spain are no longer finding as good a market in that country as was formerly the case.

Last year Palestine sold eight times as many oranges in Germany as she did in 1928. In 1928 Palestine orange growers shipped only 45,000 quintals (a quintal equals 220 pounds) to Hamburg. Since then the annual sales of Palestine oranges have risen to 226,000 quintals. The growers of Spain are seeking now to improve their own product that it may compete successfully with that of Palestine.

National Berean Department

Miss Genniell Carpenter, Editor, Oregon, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Cecil A. Smead, President
Blanchard, Michigan

Virgil Claypool, Treasurer
506 E. Chestnut St.
Robinson, Illinois

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
Oregon, Illinois

ILLINOIS BEREAN REPORT FOR MARCH

OREGON

The membership was 14; average attendance 9; interest, fair.

—Evan Knodle, Secretary.

DIXON

The membership of the adult class was 10, the average weekly attendance 9; and interest good. The membership of the senior class was 11; the average weekly attendance 10; and interest good. The membership of the junior class was 9; the average weekly attendance 8; and interest fair. The membership of the primary class was 5; the average weekly attendance 3; and interest was good.

—Mary McClintick, Secretary.

Edna H. Wood, State Secretary.

COMING AGAIN

THE disciples continue gazing, held spellbound by the sight, thinking they may get another look. Then two men in white apparel are in their midst and speak to them: "Men of Galilee, why do you stand gazing up into the heavens? This Jesus who was received up into heaven shall so come in like manner as ye beheld Him going into heaven." That word at once sends them back to the waiting-place of which the Master had spoken. From that time they never lost the upward glance, but they were ever absorbed in obeying the Master's command.

Jesus' ascension was a continuation of the resurrection movement. . . . On His way up from the tomb to His Father's home and throne, He tarried awhile on the earth for the sake of these disciples and leaders, then yielded to the upward movement. The two men in white apparel gave a key to the ascension. Jesus will remain above until the next great step in the kingdom plan. Then He will return to carry out in full the Father's great love-plan for man and for the earth.

His last act with these men was conducting them to the Mount of Olives. That is ever to be the point of outlook for His followers. Yonder in full view is Gethsemane and Calvary. Following the line of His eyes and pointing finger, as the last word is spoken, leads us ever to the man nearest by, to the uttermost parts of the earth, and to all between. Following His disappearing figure keeps us ever looking upward to Himself and forward to His return.

—Samuel D. Gordon.

THE PEACE OF GOD

We ask for peace, O Lord!

Thy children ask Thy peace,
Not what the world calls rest,
That toil and care should cease,
That through bright sunny hours,
Calm life should fleet away,
And tranquil night should fade
In smiling day.

It is not for such peace that we would pray.

We ask for peace, O Lord!

Yet not to stand secure,
Girt round with iron pride,
Contented to endure;
Crushing the gentle strings
That human hearts should know;
Untouched by others' joys,
Or others' woe.

Thou, O dear Lord! wilt never teach us so.

We ask Thy peace, O Lord,

Through storm and fear and strife,
To light and guide us on Through a long, struggling life;
While no success or gain
Shall cheer the desperate fight,
Or nerve what the world calls
Our wasted might:

Yet pressing through the darkness to the light.

It is Thine own, O Lord!

Who toil while others sleep;
Who sow, with loving care,
What other hands shall reap;
They lean on Thee, entranced
In calm and perfect rest;
Give us that peace, O Lord!

Divine and blest,
Thou keepest for those hearts that love Thee best.

—Anonymous.

When sending in your order for copies of the book "Bible Lessons" (10 cents a copy), don't forget the other Berean publications. Books for all ages on Bible themes. Catalogue on request.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

OUR KING REWARDS AND PUNISHES

IN your "Current Events" class in school, girls and boys, you no doubt have been reading about affairs in Europe. Perhaps you have noticed particularly the cruelties that are being heaped upon the Jews by some of the nations. They have been forced from their homes, had their stores, work, and all means of making a living taken away. They are being driven from one place to another, suffering hunger and pain.

Do you know, that is the very thing Jesus is talking about in our lesson for the last Sunday in May? And if you do not study current events in school, just look at Bro. Marsh's page, "Abreast of the Times," and you will learn something about it in nearly every RESTITUTION HERALD.

When you look up the biographies of the great men of science and of art, you often discover that they are Jews. For among the great professions in life, calling for the finest minds, we find many Jews. And so, it would seem, these nations that are driving the Jews from their countries are really harming themselves most.

More than that! God is watching over His people, the Jews, and He will punish those who are cruel to them. But God is using these very sufferings of the Jews to help bring them back to their homeland, Palestine. And even you younger boys and girls who read this page have often heard your minister say that after the Jews get back home, a great event will take place.

A great event? Why, the greatest event of all history since the beginning of time! I wish I could hear your young voices say, "Jesus is coming!" Yes, that is what will happen then.

When Jesus, our King, comes, it will not only be an important event for His own people, the Jews, but for the whole world also, even ourselves. Many of you, I'm sure, can repeat verses that show how the coming of our Savior is going to make this whole world happier and better.

Now, if you will turn again in your Bibles to the lesson in Matthew 25, perhaps it will be a little clearer for you. The Son of man, of course, is Jesus. He is going to be Ruler, you know, when He comes again. Those nations who have been kind to the Jews He calls "sheep," and those who have been cruel, "goats." Pretty good names for them, eh?

Notice, in verse 34, the reward the King gives for kindness to the Jews. We read that Jesus says the kindness was shown to Him, and it was, in a way, because Jesus is a Jew. Any kindness shown to one of your family makes you happy, and any wrong makes you sad. Isn't that true? It's the same way with Jesus. The Jews are His family.

Even though Jesus is talking to the nations in this lesson, we also must watch ourselves and see that we are always kind to His people. Some of you do not know any Jews, but those of you who go to city schools meet many of them. Always treat them as you like to be treated yourself, and that will make Jesus happy.

And now, Sons and Daughters of the King, we have another new member for our club. It's David Harrington, and his home is away up in Tring, Alberta. Get out your encyclopedias and look up the province of Alberta, Canada. It's very interesting reading. You have some beautiful scenery, David, and some very important industries in your country.

If some of you boys or girls would like to write to David, I'm sure he would enjoy hearing about our country. Address him just as I have it above. Tell him all about your school, your home, and your state. If you have a snapshot of yourself, I know David would like that, or a postcard of your town would be nice.

Right here I want to thank one of our club members—Erma Jane Hunt, of South Bend, Indiana—for the lovely letter she wrote me when I was sick. Some of you remember when Erma Jane was in the hospital so long. She knows what it means not to be able to run about or play like other little girls. She said she liked the hospital, and, do you know, I did too. The nurses were so good to me. But I like home better. Don't you, Erma Jane?

All of you Sons and Daughters of the King who have studied your lesson each week and have a "seal" over every date on your membership card, please write and let me know. I want to put your name on this page as an honor member of the club. Write to me as soon as your card is full. Let's see how many of us are honor students.

And now, good-bye until next week.

WHAT IS A CHURCH?

Your church is God's house; it is not your own. When you are at a church service, you are showing your respect to God; you are showing how much or how little you love Him. If you are noisy, if you do not pay attention to your teachers, you are telling God you do not care much for Him. The church is a place for your very best behavior.

The Sunday School Lesson

FROM TRUTH SEEKERS' QUARTERLY

LESSON 9. — May 27, 1934

THE LAST JUDGMENT

Matthew 25:31-46

Devotional Reading: Psalm 86:1-7

GOLDEN TEXT

We must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ.—2 Corinthians 5:10.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic: The Judgment of All Nations.

Aim: Christ will judge the nations by their treatment of His brethren the Jews.

Basic Truth: "He that toucheth you" (Jerusalem and her people) "toucheth the apple of his eye."—Zech. 2:8.

I. All Nations Are Judged. (Matt. 25:31-33.) The lesson for today presented a most impressive picture of national judgment. The kingdom of God which Christ is to establish when He comes is to be extended throughout the earth, but before that can be done the power of the nations must be broken. This will be accomplished at least in part by the wars that are to rage during the tribulation period, which precedes the personal appearing of Christ. For their final struggle the nations are to be assembled before Jerusalem. Here it is that the Lord finds them, fighting for possession of the Holy City, and it is here that He sets up His throne for the judgment of all nations.

II. Righteous Nations Are Rewarded. (Vv. 34-40.) A different test of righteousness is applied to the nations than that which is observed in the case of individuals. The Jews have been scattered throughout the world because of their sins. At the same time they provide a means of trying the nations among whom they reside. They are still God's people, although they have rejected the Messiah, and just as Jehovah "divided to the nations their inheritance . . . according to the number of the children of Israel" (Deut. 32:8), so will He also determine their worthiness or unworthiness by their conduct toward the descendants of Jacob.

III. Wicked Nations Are Destroyed. (Vv. 41-46.) Destruction is the punishment God will mete out to the nations that disregard the warnings. He has issued in the past concerning His people. Ezek. 38:18-23; 39:21, 22. Such nations He will utterly destroy. Obad. 15-18. While the nations which have manifested a humane consideration for His suffering people will be continued for a season as subject states of the great empire of God. What is true of nations is also true of individuals. The wicked are to be destroyed utterly, while the righteous are said to enter into life eternal when the Life-Giver comes.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ."—2 Cor. 5:10.

Time after time in the history of God's people judgment has been passed and the sentence executed. Another judgment is coming, "That every one may receive the things done in his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad." A record is kept, the judge will be just and there will not be nor can be any appeal from His decision. "Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."

Let us watch every step that we do not sow to the flesh or worldly things and reap corruption; but let us sow to the Spirit so that the Judge may say enter into everlasting life. The reaping is just as sure as the sowing. The Judge of all the earth will do right. It is up to us to qualify.—L. A. R.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Judgment

- is certain;
- will be progressive;
- will be universal;
- will be administered under Christ;
- will be given and executed in righteousness.

Certainty of Judgment. It is an appointed day assured by the resurrection of Christ. Acts 17:31. All must appear in judgment. 1 Cor. 5:10. Some, however, are sending their sins beforehand to judgment. 1 Tim. 5:24. These will not come into condemnation. John 5:24. Judgment will reveal the secrets of all hearts. 1 Cor. 4:5.

Righteousness of Judgment. Judgment will be a righteous determination of an individual's or nation's standing before God in respect to His purpose with a righteous reward according to the works reviewed, whether of sin unto death or righteousness unto life. The righteousness of the judgment administered in our lesson for today is based on works. However, this is in respect to nations. It is true, nevertheless, that the works of an individual do follow. Evidence to the fact: Matt. 12:36; 1 Cor. 3:13; Rev. 22:12.

Christ the Judge. Judgment will be taken from man. Man's day and man's authority will have come to an end. The poor will no longer be oppressed. John 5:22, 27; Psalm 72:1-4. Judgment will be accurate and laid "to the line" (Isa. 28:17). Christ will not judge by sight or hearing, but in righteousness. Isa. 11:3, 4.—C. E. R.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULTS

Christ Our Judge

We usually think of a judge as one who weighs the evidence of guilt and then fixes the punishment. This will be a portion (but only a portion) of Christ's work as a judge. Paul tells us that we shall all stand before the judgment seat of Christ. He will decide rewards as well as punishments. Paul refers to the latter in 2 Thessalonians 1:8. His judgment in this case is "everlasting destruction," but even this will be righteous judgment, for the "spirit of the Lord shall rest upon him, the spirit of wisdom and understanding, . . . and he shall not judge after the sight of his eyes, neither reprove after the hearing of his ears: but with righteousness shall he judge the poor, and reprove with equity for the meek of the earth: and he shall smite the earth with the rod of his mouth, and with the breath of his lips shall he slay the wicked. And righteousness shall be the girdle of his loins."—Isa. 11:2-5.

The book of Judges gives us the key to the work of Christ, the great Judge. The work of a judge was always (1) deliverance from bondage, (2) instruction in righteousness, and (3) punishment or reward as the case might be. Christ's first work was to deliver people from bondage of sin. When the adulterous woman was brought to Him, He did not condemn her, but delivered. His work now is that of deliverance, guidance, and instruction. He is pleading our cause before the Father who is in heaven. Soon He will come with our reward or our punishment, whichever it is we have chosen.—H. A. S.

PRIMARY CLASS

Memory Verse: "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."—Matt. 25:40.

In our lesson today Jesus describes what will happen when He comes back to earth. Jesus said to His disciples, "When the Son of man (meaning Himself) comes back to this earth, He will come and sit upon His throne in Jerusalem. Gathered all around Him will be many, many nations. To some He will say, 'Come, and sit over here on the right side, you may have part in My kingdom, for when I was hungry you fed Me, when I was thirsty you gave Me a drink, when I needed clothes you clothed Me, and when I was sick you came to visit Me.'"

But they will answer, "Why, Lord, when did we do all this?"

The King will answer just the words given in our memory verse. Let's say it together.

How surprised they will be to think they are to get a part in His kingdom for doing these little things.

To the others He will say, "You may depart, you will be destroyed because you have not done those things that these nations have done."

Now while this lesson refers to nations, is not there a good lesson in it for each one of us? I am sure it is very necessary for us to do these same little acts of kindness for others. Now next Sunday will each child tell his teacher some of the things he has done that would make Jesus say the memory verse to him!—V. C. T.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CONFERENCE DATES

- Fonthill May Meeting at Fonthill, Ontario, May 25 to 27
 Minnesota State Conference at St. Cloud, June 14 to 17
 Annual June Meeting at Brush Creek Church near Tipppecanoe City, Ohio June 3 to 10
 Illinois Bible School and Conference at Oregon, July 31 to Aug. 12
 General Conference at Oregon, Illinois, July 31 to Aug. 12
 Iowa Conference at Waterloo, Aug. 21 to 26

IOWA STATE CONFERENCE

The Iowa State Spring Conference will be held at Stanhope May 19 and 20 in the Methodist Episcopal Church Saturday 8:00 p. m., Sunday 2:30 p. m. and 8:00 p. m.; and at the home of Elmer Berggren Sunday 11:00 a. m.

Come and make this an interesting meeting by your presence.

Esther Sealine, Cor. Sec.

MARATHON, IOWA

The brethren at Marathon are planning increased activity for the summer months. Services will be held every two weeks, with Sunday school at 10 a. m., and preaching services at 11 a. m. and at 2 p. m. The speakers will be A. M. Jones of Eagle Grove, and Arthur Johnson of Sac City. All who live within driving distance of these gatherings are invited to be present.

The next meeting will be held at the Boyanovsky home near Marathon, on May 20.

BRUSH CREEK, OHIO

The Church of God at Brush Creek, Ohio, near Tipppecanoe City, will hold its annual meeting June 3 to 10, both dates inclusive. Eld. James A. Patrick of Ashland, Ohio, will be our visiting minister this year. Bro. Patrick is one of our most experienced ministers, and one of the former pastors at Brush Creek.

Further announcement will be given later.
 Sydney E. Magaw, Pastor.

ARKANSAS-OKLAHOMA

The Church of God of Arkansas-Oklahoma Conference will convene August 2, 1934, with the church at Beckett Mountain Schoolhouse, in regular session, for transaction of all legal business, as heretofore practiced. Brothers and sisters, this is our conference. I hope all will so consider and bring all friends they can get to come who are interested in gospel work.

Those from the west and south will come to Conway, take Highway No. 64 to Crow's Store, eight miles east of Conway, then take No. 36 running through Naylor and Mt. Vernon, eight miles north of Mt. Vernon, then west one and one half miles to Beckett Schoolhouse, a distance of about thirty-five miles from Conway, Falkner County, Ark. Those coming by train or bus to Conway, and wanting conveyance to Beckett Mountain, write T. F. Pressley, Mt. Vernon, Ark., the time you will arrive at Conway.

R. M. Shewmake, President.

HIS WORKS DO FOLLOW HIM

In the death of George B. Alldridge, whose obituary appeared in our columns last week, the Church of God throughout the country has lost a strong and able advocate, and The Restitution Herald a deeply appreciated contributor. The literary efforts of Bro. Alldridge will be greatly missed by our readers.

During the past year, owing to his failing eyesight, Bro. Alldridge found it necessary to write with a soft, broad-pointed pencil, which made it necessary to copy his articles on a typewriter after they reached our office. The consequence is that we now have on hand two or more splendid studies which will be published as soon as they can be prepared for the printer.

Bro. Alldridge was a widely read man and a most earnest student, and the results of his devotion to the truth appeared in our columns regularly for several years, and will remain a lasting monument to his consecration and usefulness.

We shall see him again when the Master comes!

ELDORADO, ILLINOIS

We have just returned from the southern part of the state and I have been holding a short series of meetings over the fifth and first Sundays for the Eldorado brethren. We had pretty good attendance throughout the series and I believe we were all strengthened in faith toward God. We had the largest attendance at the last Sunday evening service we have had since last summer when Bro. Lindsay was there. There were no confessions of faith but with the strength that God gave I tried to sow good seed and with His blessing I am sure it will grow.

C. E. Lapp.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

While these lines are being written the final touches are being put on preparations for the "Mothers' and Daughters' Banquet." This is being sponsored by our Sunday school ladies, and held in the Godwin School dining room in order to have sufficient room. This pre-Mother's Day activity is a very proper gesture.

Bro. Bridegam has begun a very pleasant and helpful feature by making multigraphed programs for our services each Sunday. These include the order of service, hymn numbers, sermon subjects, program for the week, etc. This improvement is deeply appreciated.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO DOLLAR-A-MONTH CLUB

W. A. Reid ($2); Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Kirkpatrick ($6); Lucy B. Groat ($6); Mary Calkins; Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Railsback; Mr. and Mrs. Delos Andrew.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Harriet E. Shepherd; Sydney E. Magaw (for another); Elmer Baxter; Emma Fugate (for self and another); Mrs. L. C. Anthon; James E. Long; Mrs. Charles Moore; Mrs. W. A. McKinney; Lucy B. Groat (for others); D. E. Prutzman.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

Another very interesting and spiritual conference was held at the Williams Street Chapel in Pomona Sunday, May 6, with a splendid attendance.

The Sunday school lesson was turned over to the boys and girls, who gave responsive readings, and the girls described by maps they had made themselves the location of the twelve tribes. "Onward Christian Soldiers" was sung as the children passed out to the different classes and the adults gathered for the morning worship.

Sr. Railsback gave a short talk preceding the baptismal service, proving that without baptism there is no remission of sins. Bro. MacLeod administered baptism to three, Mrs. Cecile Newlun of Long Beach, and Kathleen and Virginia Knott of Perris, Calif. All rejoiced to see these young sisters take the step that will lead them to the gift of eternal life.

The morning worship was opened by an anthem sung by the choir and then a new brother from Hanford, Calif., Bro. Groat, gave us a very interesting talk. He said we are living in such a fast age we should slow down and take more time to be careful in our selection of things, to see that we select the best in life, and if we believe that Christ is the best, we should serve Him wholeheartedly. And we should build our house on the rock rather than on the sand and have Jesus as our Pilot and Guide and, although rather queer to express, we should rejoice in the depression, for in it we see victory in the air.

After the sermon the right hand of fellowship was extended to the three new members of the body of Christ of the real church of God. Another selection from the choir, "Send Out Thy Light," and then Communion service conducted by Bro. Will Reid of Riverside. Five little girls sang "In the Garden" and then Bro. Reid gave a discourse on the importance of the Communion, how we are fed by it to give us strength to go on in these troublesome times, and how it keeps us together in the thought of Christ and of His coming again when we will all partake with Him in the kingdom.

Dinner was enjoyed in the lovely park where brothers and sisters get together to talk over the things that are uppermost in their hearts. The afternoon meeting was one long to be remembered, as we had the little leaflet "Some Things for Which We Stand" and several gave short sermonettes on "Mortality of Man" by Bro. Norman MacLeod of Pomona, "The Resurrection" by Sr. Railsback of Los Angeles; "The Judgment" was to be by Bro. S. G. Elton of Ventura, but as he was unable to be present he sent a paper on the subject and Bro. MacLeod read it. "Ascension and the Second Coming" was handled by Bro. Hammond of Los Angeles, and "Israel and the Kingdom" by J. E. Adamson of Pomona. For "Repentance, Baptism, and Consecration" Bro. MacLeod substituted for Bro. Brady of Los Angeles, who was not present. Great subjects to be given in a few minutes, but all so worth while, and subjects a lover of the truth never grows tired hearing and feeling a certain pride that we are able to say Amen to all.

If everyone gave out to the world this little tract, "Some Things for Which We Stand," we would be spreading our light more and more as we near the glorious time of the things that God has prepared for all those who love His appearing, things that eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither has entered into the heart of man. What a picture, what a reward, for those who are the called according to His purpose.

The meeting closed by singing the grand old hymn, "Abide With Me." Old-time songs we all love played an important part all through the services and were much enjoyed, especially by the older brethren.

The next quarterly Conference will be held the first week in September. We are assembling ourselves together to sing praises and to exhort ourselves all the more as we see the day of the Lord coming in the near future. "Rejoice . . . always, and again I say, Rejoice."

Jessie M. B. Kauffman, Secretary.

MARTIN - PRICHARD

In the presence of relatives and friends, a quiet home wedding was solemnized between Charles H. Martin and Ellen Prichard, on Wednesday, May 9, the writer officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elza Prichard, 1100 E. Vail Ave.; the groom, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy R. Martin. Both are members of the Kokomo Church of God, and are active in both Berean and Sunday school work. Many interesting articles, the work of this young couple, have appeared on the Berean Page of The Herald during the past year.

May the richest blessing of the Father rest on these young people as they continue their work and lives together as one.

D. G. Harvey.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO N. B. I.

A Sister	$.50
Verna Himmelright	3.00
Arlen Marsh	1.50
Genniell Carpenter	1.05
D. W. Kirkpatrick	1.72

THOMAS M. SAVAGE, SR.

Bro. Savage died Monday, April 30, a resident of Waite Park, Minn., for more than forty years. Born in New Castle, N. B.; Canada, April 5, 1862.

For a number of years he was presiding elder in the St. Cloud church, maintaining faithful interest until his death. Also active in the state conference work, and served the last year as president of the Minnesota Conference Board.

May 17, 1893, Bro. Savage married Sr. Mamie Dell Bowers. They would have celebrated this month their forty-first anniversary.

He leaves to mourn his death a vast number of friends; wife; five sons, one daughter, George, Thomas, Jr., Sadie, Frank, Harry, and John, all of Waite Park; two brothers, Matthew and Frank of Winnipeg, Canada. Two weeks previous to his death his sister, Mary Reid, passed away.

The funeral was held in the church he loved so well, Thursday, May 3. Assisting the pastor were Eld. Richard Le Crone of Eden Valley, and Eld. John Denchfield. Pallbearers were his five boys and Elmer Bowers.

Bro. Savage now sleeps in the North Star Cemetery awaiting the call. "For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first: then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord."

This was his hope; he was a faithful servant even unto death. May the dear Lord comfort his loved ones in his absence, for we feel that the time is not long when we shall meet the Lord and our loved ones in the air.

A. E. Hoskins, Pastor.

SPECIAL INDEBTEDNESS FUND

Previously reported	$1399.85
Emma Fugate	1.00
Eva H. M. Fletcher	1.21
Lucy B. Groat	10.00
Mr. and Mrs. Howard E. Huey	5.00
Maybelle Hanson	5.00
Total	$1422.06
Pledges previously reported	295.79
Etta Elton	10.00
Total pledges and contributions	$1727.85

ONLY THREE RUNGS MORE

We must remain another week on the seventeenth rung of the ladder. But after all we have done remarkably well, and the manager is very much pleased indeed with the progress made. We will soon be going over the top without a doubt if all continue their sacrifice for a little while. We expect to see the time come in the near future when the National Bible Institution, representing the Church of God at large, will be financially able to enter more largely into the work of religious publishing, and, if the brethren think best, we might send out a general evangelist to open up new fields. This latter is a matter of great importance which should receive the prayerful consideration of the entire church.

BETWEEN YOU AND ME—

From now on it is wise to watch the Conference Announcements carefully. They appear each week at the top of page 14. Be sure to attend some of these inspiring summer gatherings. You will be amply repaid for the effort.

Again we say: Remember the General Conference at Oregon, Ill., July 31 to August 12. Come, and enjoy this splendid gathering again this year!

The "What Must I Do to Be Saved?" contest is now closed, and the committee, consisting of Srs. Anna E. Drew, Dixon, Ill., and Mary A. Gesin, Oregon, Ill., will report their decisions in the near future.

I. H. Carter, Mt. Vernon, Mo., has announced to the office the death of Mrs. Mary E. Carter, of the same place, on May 4. Mrs. Carter was for many years a loyal member of the Church of God and a firm supporter of the general work.

Another church is soon to be added to the growing list of those which publish local bulletins. Pastor Clarence E. Lapp of the Ripley, Ill., congregation is planning to issue a four-page monthly for the benefit of his widely scattered membership.

An unusually large number of interested ones took part in the Thursday evening prayer meeting and Bible study period at Oregon, Ill., last week. The theme considered was life in its various meanings.

"Remember the time, the place, and the conference," says Elder A. E. Hoskins with reference to the great annual gathering to be held in St. Cloud, Minn., June 14 to 17. Bro. Hoskins says, "Everybody is going," but won't you please write and tell him so!

We are glad to welcome back to her usual place on the Children's Page Sr. Mary A. Gesin, who has sufficiently recovered from her recent illness to take up her duties on behalf of the little folks again. Sr. Genniell Carpenter, editor of the National Berean Department, very kindly and efficiently carried on Sr. Gesin's work during her absence.

We are glad to report that the various members of Golden Rule Home Family are reasonably well and enjoying the fine spring weather. Our hard working matron and her worthy husband are busying themselves with painting, house cleaning, and other seasonable activities about the Home on the hill. Some of the individual rooms are being redecorated—an improvement that was greatly needed. Other rooms must soon have the same attention.

Sr. Mary A. Woodward says of last week's Herald, "Every article was just what I want my friends to read!" And she asks to have a copy sent to a ministerial friend of another denomination.

One Dollar and Fifty Cents will bring The Restitution Herald to that friend of yours for a full year! Why not see that he gets it?

Let's
climb
the Ladder
to Success

$1700
$1600
$1500
$1400
$1300
$1200
$1100
$1000
$900
$800
$700
$600
$500
$400
$300
$200
$100

THE LIFE BEYOND

DO WE believe in immortality? Are we looking for a time when we shall be changed?—changed “in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump”? Or are we trying to believe that our life of today is to continue beyond the present state, and that we are to be transported into another realm of existence—a spirit realm? Not changed but liberated? Not at the last “trump,” but at the last breath? Not when we appear “in the likeness of his resurrection,” but when we are divested of all likeness in the cold chambers of death? One of the convincing evidences of the truth of the Scriptures is discovered in the plainness of its statements, the consistency of its narrative, and the constant fidelity with which it recognizes the credibility of the evidence of the senses.

The history of the life of Jesus Christ while in this world is a constant appeal to our natural senses. Listen to the words of John in his first Epistle: “That which was from the beginning, which we have heard, which we have seen with our eyes, which we have looked upon, and our hands have handled, of the Word of life; . . . that which we have seen and heard declare we unto you, that ye also may have fellowship with us.” Here is the principle on which the evidence of the resurrection life, the life beyond, is based.

Commencing with this fundamental principle—the validity of the witness of our senses—we may follow the life of the Son of David from the Annunciation till He bade farewell to His adoring disciples on Mount Olivet, and every step is marked by the plainest exhibitions that He was a living Savior in reality—tangible, visible,

IN VERY DEED THE CHRIST

Even more than this, Jesus had promised, “If I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also.”

As Jesus passed beyond the vision of those who saw Him enter the cloud two witnesses declared: “This same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven.” “’Tis the very same Jesus!” And so the Word of life has come to us. To Thomas He said, after His resurrection: “Reach hither thy finger, and behold my hands; and reach hither thy hand, and thrust it into my side: and be not faithless.” In another place, speaking to His frightened disciples, He said: “Handle me, and see; for a spirit hath not flesh and bones, as ye see me have.” Jesus lives again. “I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore.” What a resurrection! Scripture leaves no gaps in the chain of evidence, no room for curious speculation.

Judged from the point of human evidence, and in accord with the rules of human reason, the resurrection life of the Master from Galilee is

BEYOND DISPROOF

Its position in the realm of true religion is invulnerable. History has never turned back the clock of revelation. No scientific experiment has ever resulted in any new life. The most careful research has not brought to light the faintest ray of hope of any other release from human ills, any other surety of life beyond death, than through our risen Lord.

Fancies have lost their charm, speculation has failed to satisfy. But in the gospel of the Son of man the Son of God has been revealed. “In him is life, and the life is the light of men.” So completely, so effectively, so perfectly has Jesus the Nazarene exemplified this life that it has awakened every spiritual power we possess to understand its beneficence and enjoy the hope of immortality. Our world today is an object lesson of this new creation. From a tiny center, the manger at Bethlehem, the spirit of good works, the spirit of justice tempered with mercy, the spirit of joy adorned with Christian charity, has penetrated to the remotest haunts of men. The leaven of truth is constantly transforming this world, regardless of the scoffs of the emissaries of evil. The Christ lives, and because He lives, we shall live also.

Hope sits upon the grave and sings
“It is better farther on.”

—George H. Dewing, Ph. D., in The World's Crisis.

When you meet temptation, turn to the right.—M. W. Lyon.

FAITH

By C. E. Randall

“When the Son of man cometh, shall he find faith on the earth?”—Luke 18:8.

THE MASTER well knew the extent to which sin would increase. The forces of evil are waging a relentless attack on Christianity, therefore on Christians. Organizations are springing up everywhere whose sole purpose is to eradicate Christianity. People are being drawn away from Christ and into sin. The popular church is contributing to this apostasy. Bishop Manning said a few months ago: “I believe we are facing today one of the greatest crises in Christian history. The Russian warfare against God is not confined to the land, its influence is being felt throughout the world.” How true this is! Satan is inspiring and marshaling his forces for the last conflict of the ages, for he knoweth that his time is short. The Satan-sponsored Communism, which is anti-Bible, anti-God, anti-Christ, anti-church, and anti-Christian is spreading like wildfire and many of the outstanding ministers of the country are its leading proponents. In the last presidential election a great number of ministers and professors of theological schools played a prominent part in organizing and campaigning for the Communist candidates, Foster and Ford. “When the Son of man cometh, shall he find faith on the earth?” Will you possess it?—Church of God Messenger.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

OREGON, ILLINOIS, MAY 22, 1934

NUMBER 34

WHAT IS SAVING FAITH?

THE salvation revealed in the Scriptures is not made known elsewhere. It is to them we are indebted for all reliable information upon the subject. At no stage of the world's mental development have its foremost thinkers managed to hit upon an analogous scheme. To the oracles of God, therefore, we turn for the one true solution of the problem which meets us at the earliest dawn of reason. In them alone do we read of a salvation that answers to our deepest needs.

It is therein connected with, and made conditional upon, a certain attitude of the mind which is described by the word "faith." The house of Israel is spoken of in Deuteronomy 32:20 as "children in whom is no faith." This accusation is borne out in the Epistle to the Hebrews (4:2), where is a reference to those who fell in the wilderness, of whom it is said, "The word preached did not profit them, not being mixed with faith in them that heard it." In the same Epistle (11:6), it is broadly stated that "without faith it is impossible to please (God)." This being the case, it is clearly of the utmost consequence that we be well informed as to the nature of faith—what it rests upon, how it is produced and sustained, and what it will end in.

Now what is the demand here made upon us? Is it a blind and unquestioning acceptance of certain propositions without regard to their coherence, or probability, or reasonableness? That would be mere credulity—not faith. God does not ask us to close our eyes. It is the well known contention of the Papacy that reason steps out of its proper province the moment it employs itself on matters of religion. There is, of course, no imaginable absurdity that might not be defended on such grounds. But the Scriptures invite us to a reasonable service. The wisest man of his day applied his heart "to know, and to search, and to seek out wisdom, and the reason of things."

It is the peculiar province of faith to deal with the future. In this respect it may be said to differ from belief. The latter is concerned with what is past—with the things God has already done upon the earth. He has chosen the nation of Israel, dispersed them among the Gentiles, and promised of old to restore them to their land, and place them under the care of a King and Shepherd of His own. He has raised His Son, Jesus Christ, from the dead in view of this, and has committed to Him the jurisdiction of the whole earth. It is quite possible for a man to believe all this who is but imperfectly acquainted with all the evidence that goes to prove it. For it is not like an abstruse literary question requiring for its settlement an extensive acquaintance with books. No erudition is needed to enable a man to know and understand the promises of God, which are the foundation of saving faith. He has simply to turn up his English Bible and search those promises out. There they are, couched in no ambiguous terms; and not all the ministers and clergymen in the world could make them one whit plainer. The only mistake he is in danger of is in supposing that they mean something other than that which is warranted by the simple grammatical import of the terms in which they are expressed.

With the article "What Is Salvation?" (page 3 of this paper), this essay by Robert Ashcroft, formerly pastor of the Rock Ferry Congregational Church, Liverpool, England, offers a fairly thorough exposition of the major teachings of the Church of God. Although long, it is well worth reading through.

What was it on which rested the faith of God's saints in ancient times? Surely there ought to be no great difficulty in answering a simple question like this. "Abraham believed God, and it was accounted to him for righteousness. . . . They which be of faith are blessed with faithful Abraham."—Gal. 3:6-9. In order thus to share the blessing of Abraham, we must have his faith, and this we cannot have unless we know and believe what was promised him. It is unfortunately the case that much of the faith of which we hear in religious circles is in no way founded upon any promise which God made to Abraham. If you were to examine all the definitions of saving faith contained in theological literature, you would not find a sentence referring you to any covenant which God made with the progenitor of the Israelitish nation. And it is by no means clear how those can be said to be "blessed with faithful Abraham" who do not

(Please turn to Page Eight)

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879.

G. Eldred Marsh, Editor

Two Dollars per Year

Paul C. Johnson, Associate Editor

GOD OF OUR FATHERS

God of our fathers, whose almighty hand
Leads forth in beauty all the starry band
Of shining worlds in splendor through the skies,
Our grateful songs before Thy throne arise.

Thy love divine hath led us in the past,
In this free land by Thee our lot is cast;
Be Thou our ruler, guardian, guide, and stay,
Thy Word our law, Thy paths our chosen way.

From war's alarms, from deadly pestilence,
Be Thy strong arm our ever sure defense;
Thy true religion in our hearts increase,
Thy bounteous goodness nourish us in peace.

Refresh Thy people on their toilsome way,
Lead us from night to never-ending day,
Fill all our lives with love and grace divine,
And glory, laud, and praise be ever Thine.

—D. C. Roberts.

THE "IFS" OF JESUS

NO teacher has ever claimed the attention of the world who was more positive in his instruction than was the dean of all masters, the Lord Jesus Christ. The people were "astonished at his doctrine: for he taught them as one that had authority, and not as the scribes" (Mark 1:22). He knew His message was of divine origin, and therefore true, and He spoke accordingly, with a positive assurance.

Yet we find ten "ifs" in a single chapter recording one of His most splendid sermons. In the fifteenth chapter of John Jesus inserts ten conditional "ifs" into His discourse. Each of these "ifs" stands between His disciples and some blessing they might come to enjoy, or some loss they might sustain, in case they met, or failed to meet, the conditions suggested by the numerous "ifs."

And so it is throughout the Scriptures. The blessings of God are placed on a conditional basis. An "if" of faith or of obedience is found between the promise and the realization of the promise. While God is infinitely good and gracious to His children, He demands of them certain services and certain faith before He will pour out upon them the fullness of salvation.

MAKING THE MOST OF OUR FACULTIES

ONE of the greatest differences between men and animals is the fact that God has endowed the former with the ability of self-improvement. It is possible for men to increase in wisdom and knowledge as they increase in physical size and bodily strength.

The possession of this faculty of development places a responsibility upon us that cannot be denied. God demands that we exercise the powers He has given to the fullest possible extent. He wishes His people especially to "grow in knowledge" that leads to a fuller apprehension and deeper appreciation of His own greatness and love.

Further, God undoubtedly expects each individual to make a constant effort to utilize his God-given powers of self-development and self-expression to the best of his ability. That is, if by study and careful training one can cultivate a clarity of verbal expression, which is but another way of saying a grammatical manner of expression, he is expected to put forth an earnest effort to do this. If it is possible for one to write interestingly and convincingly of the truth of God, it is required that he should prepare his "copy" with the utmost care "as unto the Lord." Slipshod diction and careless composition would undoubtedly be looked upon by the Father as an evidence of indifference to the sacred nature of the task in which the writer was involved.

Under the Mosaic dispensation only the best could be used in the construction of the objects to be employed in divine service. Writing and speaking for the Lord is divine service! The best that we have in the way of literary talent and of spiritual attainment should be consecrated to the Lord.

This rule should be observed throughout our religious activity. The house of worship should be the finest and most attractive building possessed by the members of the congregation, just as the temple was the finest building in all Jerusalem. It should be kept in the neat and orderly way that a careful housekeeper maintains her home, for in our churches we are not only entertaining men and women, but we are welcoming almighty God into our midst!

The instrumental and vocal music should likewise be of the most dignified character and of the highest quality the congregation can produce. And, further, it should be provided by consecrated instrumentalists and singers as an offering unto the Lord God of heaven!

What Is Salvation?

AS WE consider this important topic, "The Nearness of Our Salvation," we all feel, I trust, that it is the greatest and most important matter, affecting, as it does, both the present and future welfare of every child of God. In all the wide universe there is nothing which we, as members of the fallen human race, need so much as salvation. As we survey the condition of mankind, as a whole, degraded by sin, imperfect morally, physically, and spiritually, subject to disease, sickness, and death, and all the gigantic evils which afflict the world, we can truly realize that the prime necessity for the "groaning creation" is salvation. This brings us to the consideration of the question—"What is salvation?"

Many and conflicting are the views put forth by various creeds and sects concerning this question, which only tend to confuse and bewilder the earnest seeker after the truth. It is only as we discard all human creeds and theories, and come with a humble teachable mind to the Holy Scriptures, that we are enabled to arrive at a clear understanding of this important subject.

Salvation, as set forth in the Scriptures, conveys the thought of "deliverance," "safety," "ease," "comfort." There are hundreds of texts which could be cited, but a few quotations will suffice. The Psalmist sings—"That I may shew forth all thy praise in the gates of the daughter of Zion: I will rejoice in thy salvation."—Psalm 9:14. Here the Psalmist rejoices in the safety which the Lord's overruling providence brings to His people—Israel—and their deliverance from their enemies. Also—"The Lord is my rock, and my fortress, and my deliverer; my God, my strength, in whom I will trust; my buckler, and the horn of my salvation, and my high tower."—Psalm 18:2. How strikingly these words convey the thought of safety in danger, when under the protective care of the Lord.

In the New Testament we find the same thought of safety and deliverance conveyed in the various texts referring to salvation. The Apostle Paul states that the gospel is "the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth"; both Jews and Greeks (Rom. 1:16). Jude speaks of that "common salvation" which had come to them—not common in the sense that it was a salvation inferior to some other salvation, but a salvation common to all, in which all had a part; a salvation which had come to all, irrespective of whether they were Jews or Greeks (Jude 3). For centuries God's favors had been only to the Jews, who were the covenanted people of God. Now, since Christ came, and by His death on the cross paid the ransom price for all mankind, both Jews and Greeks, that death broke down the middle wall of partition between them. Now the offer of salvation is common to all—both Jews and Gentiles, the same gracious terms of the New Covenant being open to all.

The whole world of mankind are fallen—bondslaves of sin, and condemned to death. Christ Jesus died to redeem the whole race from sin and death; and Jews from the condemnation of the law, which brought death upon those under it (Rom. 7:9, 10). Thus when Jesus the Deliverer had opened the way, He was authorized to make an offer of salvation to all those bound under sin and death (Matt. 28:18-20).

DELIVERANCE FROM WHAT TO WHAT?

Therefore we can realize that the plan of salvation has been in process all down the various ages of the past. When man fell into sin, and death came upon all as a consequence, the first step in God's plan was to provide a Deliverer. Hence salvation is deliverance from sin and its consequence—death.

Deliverance from implies deliverance to something better. Deliverance from sin implies deliverance to purity, as the Apostle states the matter—"For God hath not called us unto uncleanness, but unto holiness."—1 Thess. 4:7.

This offer of salvation is entirely unmerited on our part. It is wholly an exhibition of God's free grace or favor, as the Apostle explains in Titus 2:11—"For the grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared to all men."

PROMISES CONCERNING THE DELIVERER

Deliverance is required also from Satan, who first led men astray, and who has been deceiving and misleading mankind ever since (Eph. 2:2). From the beginning salvation was promised through faith in the coming Deliverer. The promise was made that the seed of the woman should bruise the serpent's head (Gen. 3:15). Later, a more definite promise

A Goal to Try For

Give me always a goal to try for,
Let me fight till my breath be spent,
Give me a dream to live and die for,
And I shall be content.
Keep for others your silken leisure,
Drowsy days in the shade or sun,
I was never a one to treasure
Rest, till my work is done.
No, for sloth is the worst of sinning,
Give me the joy and the zest of the fray,
Finding true reward in the winning—
Not in the prize or pay.

And if victory be denied me
I shall not shrink from another test,
Nor care at all if my foes deride me,
Knowing I did my best.
Somewhere still there are roads uncharted,
Somewhere still is an unfound Grail.
Let me go onward, valiant-hearted,
To the end of the last long trail,
Give me always a goal to try for,
Let me fight, till my breath be spent,
Give me a dream to live and die for,
And I shall be content.

—Olson.

was given to Abraham that "in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed" (Gen. 12:3). "And in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed; because thou hast obeyed my voice."—Gen. 22:18.

When our Lord Jesus came to His own people, the Jews, He made the offer of deliverance from the curse of the Law—in view of His coming death—"Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."—Matt. 11:28. The Ten Commandments and numerous other commandments, together with the various rites and ceremonies under the law, and "traditions" added by the scribes and Pharisees, had made the law intolerably burdensome to the people, and our Lord was pointing out the way of deliverance through the New Covenant, which He would seal and institute by the shedding of His own blood on the cross—not only for the sins committed under the law, but for the sins of the whole world (Rom. 8:1-4).

SALVATION AND THE NEW COVENANT

Since our Lord's death, salvation is offered by pointing back to the Deliverer. Thus "we see Jesus, who was made a little lower than the angels for the suffering of death, crowned with glory and honour; that he by the grace of God should taste death for every man" (Heb. 2:9). We can look, by the aid of the Scriptures, back to that time and see what He did on our behalf, on the cross of Calvary. By His death on the cross He purchased the entire race, Himself being the price paid, and God gave Him authority to open up a way of deliverance from the curse of sin and death passed upon us and all mankind at the beginning. This salvation or way of deliverance involves our acceptance of the terms on which it is offered, which are faith and obedience to all the requirements of the New Covenant.

This New Covenant is a better covenant than the Law Covenant was, inasmuch as the New Covenant makes ample provision for the forgiveness of sins, as we read in 1 John 1:9—"If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." Under the Law Covenant, it was only a temporary cleansing, arranged in the law as from year to year. The cleansing was not permanent because "it is not possible that the blood of bulls and of goats should take away sins" (Heb. 10:4). These animal sacrifices, repeated yearly on the Day of Atonement, brought their sins in remembrance before God, hence all previous offerings must have failed to render them perfect in God's sight (Heb. 10:1-4).

But now we realize that the one perfect offering for sins was given nineteen hundred years ago, and was accepted by the heavenly Father. Consequently, the gracious provisions of the New Covenant then began to operate for the benefit of all mankind, the first benefit being enlightenment with a knowledge of the truth. The purpose of enlightenment is that the one who believes may repent and receive the forgiveness of sins, and be brought into harmony with God.

SALVATION TO WHAT?

Faith and obedience are the great requirements to progress in this deliverance from sin and death. But the question still remains—Salvation to what? In the present life, as already seen, there is to those who believe deliverance from the power of Satan, and from the condemnation resting on the race, and from the dominion of sin the taskmaster. And there is deliverance to the favor of God and the enjoyment of holiness. But this is not all. Salvation has to do with the future life as well. There is to be a resurrection, and the called of this age are to receive a glorious inheritance in the heavens, to be with and like the Lord. To attain to this requires a lifetime of devotion to the will of God. It is only the victors who will receive the crown of life; only those "faithful unto death" will receive that "crown" which the Lord has promised to them that love Him (Rev. 2:10; 1 Cor. 2:9). The Apostle reminds us that God is on our side—"For God hath not appointed us to wrath, but to obtain salvation by our Lord Jesus Christ, who died for us, that, whether we wake or sleep, we should live together with him."—1 Thess. 5:9, 10.

To live together with our Lord Jesus Christ is the hope of salvation held out in the present age when the "high calling" is the only call the Lord invites us to accept.

Under the gracious provisions of this high calling God stands pledged to grant every assistance to all the faithful and obedient. Hear what the inspired Apostle says on that subject—"What shall we then say to these things? If God be for us, who can be against us? He that spared not his own Son, but delivered him up for us all, how shall he not with him also freely give us all things? Who shall lay any thing to the charge of God's elect? It is God that justifieth. Who is he that condemneth? It is Christ that died, yea rather, that is risen again, who is even at the right hand of God, who also maketh intercession for us. Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? shall tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword? . . . Nay, in all these things we are more than conquerors through him that loved us."—Rom. 8:31-37.

With all these gracious promises contained in God's Word, we are strengthened and encouraged to press onward in the "narrow way" which leads unto life; knowing that we have our heavenly Father's guidance and care over us in all our endeavors to faithfully serve Him; and we have the one great Mediator and Advocate who ever liveth to make intercession for us, in all our weaknesses and imperfections.

But we should fall short of the full teaching of the Scriptures on the subject of salvation did we not refer to an age following the one we are living in. In that age there will be another call to salvation, a call to salvation under the same New Covenant terms of mercy and forgiveness, but with the offer of a lesser reward. Salvation from sin and death will be in the terms of faith and obedience, as in this age, but the reward will be an earthly one, everlasting life on the earth. Even myriads of the dead will be brought from the grave and given an opportunity to receive that salvation; for "there shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and unjust" (Acts 24:15). Concerning that age the Prophet wrote—"And it shall be said in that day, Lo, this is our God; we have waited for him, and he will save us: this is the Lord; we have waited for him, we will be glad and rejoice in his salvation."—Isa. 25:9.

We can surely praise and glorify God for the wonderful plan of salvation, which He has wrought through His dear Son, our Lord Jesus Christ. For "he will swallow up death in victory; and the Lord God will wipe away tears from off all faces." "And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain."—Isaiah 25:8; Rev. 21:4.—A. M. A. in The New Covenant Advocate.

Can Matter Think?

By W. Lawrence

"His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth: in that very day his thoughts perish."—Psalm 146:4.

SHALL I be told that thought is inconsistent with matter; that we cannot conceive how medullary substance can perceive, remember, judge, reason? I acknowledge that we are entirely ignorant how the parts of the brain accomplish these purposes—as we are how the liver secretes bile, how the muscles contract, or how any other living purpose is effected—as we are how heavy bodies are attracted to the earth, how iron is drawn to the magnet, or how two salts decompose each other.

Let us survey the natural history of the human mind—its rise, progress, various fates, and decay; and then judge whether these accord best with the hypothesis of an immaterial agent, or with the plain dictates of common sense, and the analogy of every other organ and function throughout the boundless extent of living beings. The senses and brain begin to be exercised as soon as the child is born; and a faint glimmering of mind is dimly perceived in the course of the first months of existence: but it is weak and infantile as the body. As the senses acquire their powers, and the cerebral jelly becomes firmer, the mind gradually strengthens; slowly advances with the body, through childhood to puberty; and becomes adult when the development of the frame is complete. In the perfect period of organization, the mind is seen in the plenitude of its powers; but this state of full vigor is short in duration, both for the intellect and the corporeal fabric. The wear and tear of the latter is evidenced in its mental movements; with the decline of organization the mind decays; it becomes decrepit with the body; and both are at the same time extinguished by death.

What do we infer from this succession of phenomena? The existence and action of a principle entirely distinct from the body? Or a close analogy to the history of all other organs and functions?

The number and kind of the intellectual phenomena in different animals, correspond closely to the degree of the development of the brain. The gradation of organization and of mind passes through the monkey, dog, elephant, horse, to other quadrupeds; then to birds, reptiles, and fishes, and so on to the lowest links of the animal chain. In ascending the steps of our ladder, following in regular succession at equal intervals, where shall we find the boundary of unassisted organization? Where place the beginning of the immaterial adjunct? In that view which assimilates the functions of the brain to the other organic parts, this case has no difficulty. As the structure of the brain is more perfect, exquisite, and complex, its functions ought to be proportionately so. It is no slight proof of the doctrine now enforced, that the fact is actually thus; that the mental powers of brutes, so far as we can see, are proportional to their organization.

If the intellectual phenomena of man require an immaterial principle superadded to the brain, we must equally concede it to those more rational animals which exhibit manifestations differing from some of the human only in degree. If we grant it to these, we cannot refuse it to the next in order, and so on, in succession, to the whole series—to the oyster, the sea-anemone, the polype, the microscopic animalcules. Is anyone prepared to admit the existence of immaterial principles in all these cases? If not, he must equally reject it in man.

Thought, it is dogmatically asserted, cannot be an act of matter. Yet no feelings, no thought, no intellectual operation has ever been seen, except in conjunction with a brain; and living matter is acknowledged by most persons to be capable of what makes the nearest possible approach to thinking. The strongest advocate for immaterialism seeks no further than the body for his explanation of all the vital processes, of muscular contraction, nutrition, secretion, etc.—operations quite as different from any affection of inorganic substance, as reasoning or thought; he will even allow the brain to be capable of sensation.

Who knows the capabilities of matter so perfectly, as to be able to say that it can see, hear, smell, taste, and feel, but cannot possibly reflect, imagine, judge? If the mental processes be not the function of the brain, what is its office? In animals which possess only a small share of the human cerebral structure, sensation exists, and, in many cases, is more acute than in man. What employment shall we find for all that man possesses over and above this portion, for the large and prodigiously developed human hemispheres? Are we to believe that these serve only to round the figure of the organ or to fill the cranium?

—Gospel Banner and Millennial Advocate.

The Great Red Dragon

COLORFUL and significant is the language of Scripture describing the coming of the great anti-Christian power of the last days, that power which is to attempt the overthrow and utter destruction of all forms of religion and of all political systems that are based on a recognition of God's authority over men. The book of Revelation, which covers the entire period of that reign of evil, paints an especially vivid picture of the conditions that are to obtain at that time.

"There went out another horse that was red: and power was given to him that sat thereon to take peace from the earth, and that they should kill one another: and there was given unto him a great sword."—Rev. 6:4.

"And there appeared another wonder in heaven: and behold a great red dragon, having seven heads and ten horns, and seven crowns upon his heads. And his tail drew the third part of the stars of heaven, and did cast them to the earth."—Rev. 12:3, 4.

The earlier work of the Antichrist is evidently to arouse bitter international jealousies, antagonisms, and suspicions, and his later efforts will be even more warlike, for John declares that he "saw three unclean spirits like frogs come out of the mouth of the dragon, and out of the mouth of the beast, and out of the mouth of the false prophet. For they are the spirits of devils, working miracles, which go forth unto the kings of the earth and of the whole world, to gather them to the battle of that great day of God Almighty" (Rev. 16:13, 14).

The bitter enmity shown by the Antichrist against all religion (2 Thess. 2:4), the color, red, in which he is painted by Inspiration, the international confusion and bitterness which his presence arouses and which are so vividly described in Revelation, the northern region from which his legions sweep down upon Palestine at the last (Ezek. 38:1-4), together with his violent attack on the capitalists of the world (Ezek. 38:12), would seem to show a more or less close connection between the government of the Antichrist and that of Red Russia.

But let us not be too precipitate in drawing our conclusions, for it is evident from many other scriptures that Russia of today with all of its red iniquity, with its hatred of God, with its underhanded efforts to bring about war among its enemies, is not the red horse of Revelation, nor the final development of the great red dragon power.

Soviet Russia with its atheistic philosophy, its immorality, its menacing red army threatening world-wide destruction, presents but a preview, a type, a suggestion, of that dreadful power that is to arise in the closing days of

This article comprises a sequel to "The Crimson Menace," which appeared in our last issue. Here the editor voices a warning to the people of this country against being led away from God by the alluring claims of Communism, and assures them that the great Judge of all will reward nations for their righteousness as He will reward individuals, by granting them prolonged life and blessing.

human government upon the earth. That power will also be anti-Christian; it, too, will endeavor to smother the spiritual sensibilities of the people in nauseous clouds of atheistic materialism; it, too, will seek to eradicate God and morality and religion from the world.

It is apparent that for a time it will seem to succeed in its evil mission, and the result will be the most violent persecution believers in God have ever been called upon to endure. Of course this persecution will not affect the actual body of Christ, the choice ones whom God has called out of the sin-filled world; for at the time when these calamities come upon humanity the church will have been taken away, caught up to a place of security in the presence of her Lord.

We even find a degree of hope held out to certain nations, as well as to certain individuals, who are not thus snatched away from the engulfing red menace that is to sweep the world with destructive fury. While it is true that all nations are to be gathered together before Jerusalem to battle (Zech. 14:2), and that that assembly of the nations will be for judgment, it does not of necessity follow that all thus brought before the bar of eternal justice will be condemned. In fact our Lord clearly asserts that in the judgment of the nations certain ones will "inherit the kingdom prepared for them" because of the consideration and kindness they have shown to His brethren, probably His Jewish brethren, during the period of their distress (Matt. 25:31-40).

This being true, would it not be wise for the American people to remember the warning of the Prophet: "Thus saith the Lord of hosts; After the glory hath he sent me unto the nations which spoiled you: for he that toucheth you toucheth the apple of his eye."—Zech. 2:8.

That nations, as nations, are subject to reward for righteousness and punishment for sin, is evident from other scriptures. For example, "The wicked shall be turned back into Sheol, even all the nations that forget God."—Psalm 9:17, A. R. V.

The King is coming to sit in judgment over the nations of the earth, for God "hath appointed a day, in the which he will judge the world in righteousness by that man whom he hath ordained; whereof he hath given assurance unto all men, in that he hath raised him from the dead."—Acts 17:31. When that great day dawns "The Crimson Menace of Communism," together with all other forms of iniquity, will be wiped from the bloodstained face of the earth forever. Then follows the glorious age of restitution for which we so hopefully wait and watch and pray.

PAUL'S CHARGE TO TIMOTHY

1. "Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth."

2. "Continue thou in the things which thou hast learned, . . . the holy scriptures, which are able to make thee wise unto salvation."

3. "Preach the word; be instant in season, out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort with all longsuffering and doctrine."

4. "Watch thou in all things, endure afflictions, do the work of an evangelist, make full proof of thy ministry."

5. "If thou put the brethren in remembrance of these things, thou shalt be a good minister of Jesus Christ."

6. "Let no man despise thy youth; but be thou an example of the believers in word, in conversation, in charity, in spirit, in faith, in purity."

7. "Give attendance to reading, to exhortation, to doctrine. Neglect not the gift that is in thee."

8. "Rebuke not an elder, but intreat him as a father; and the younger men as brethren."

9. "Charge them that are rich in this world, that they be not highminded, nor trust in uncertain riches, but in the living God."

10. "Fight the good fight of faith, lay hold on eternal life."

—Christian Worker's Magazine.

THE USE OF THE PARABLE

A PARABLE, some one has said, is "an earthly story with a heavenly meaning." Better, it is an illustration from the material side of life designed to carry with it a lesson from the spiritual side of life.

Jesus justified its use by saying: "Unto you it is given to know the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven, but to them it is not given." Again He said: "Therefore speak I to them in parables; because seeing, they see not, and hearing, they hear not, neither do they understand."

The design was to fortify His apostles for coming years through which they would have to pass, and at the same time interest and instruct the people who, for the present at least, need not know His plans. A third thing accomplished is the ministry of these parables to us who live later and can view them in the light of what has taken place and what is now taking place.

A parable, bear in mind, has always one central theme—one special message to convey. Let it do that, and it serves a very helpful purpose. Press it beyond that, and the parable may be spoiled, while the one main lesson is lost.

The one-time habit of allegorizing or finding some separate significance or deep lesson in every detail of a passage of Scripture containing a parable, was often destructive to the underlying truth of the teaching and frequently destructive of the faith as well.—S. S. Lappin.

THE JEW

Scattered by God's avenging hand,
Afflicted and forlorn,
Sad wanderers from their pleasant land,
Do Judah's children mourn;
And e'en in Christian countries, few
Breath thoughts of pity for the Jew.

Yet listen, Gentile, do you love
The Bible's precious page?
Then let your heart with kindness move
To Israel's heritage:
Who traced those lines of love for you?
Each sacred writer was a Jew.

And then as years and ages passed,
And nations rose and fell,
Though clouds and darkness oft were cast
O'er captive Israel,
The oracles of God for you
Were kept in safety by the Jew.

And when the great Redeemer came
For guilty man to bleed,
He did not take an angel's name.
No—born of Abraham's seed,
Jesus, who gave His life for you,
The gentle Savior, was a Jew.

And though His own received Him not,
And turned in pride away,
Whence is the Gentile's happier lot?
Are you more just than they?
No; God in pity turned to you—
Have you no pity for the Jew?

Go, then, and bend your knee to pray
For Israel's ancient race;
Ask the dear Savior every day
To call them by His grace;
Go, for a debt of love is due
From Christian Gentile to the Jew.

—Selected by D. G. Harvey from The Jewish Hope.

THY CLOTHING

A CHRISTIAN man noticed a poor brother whose clothes were very ragged, so he took him to his home and gave him a suit of clothes to put on. When the man had got them on, he said, "Now, sir, what do you think of me?" "Well, I think you look very respectable." "Oh, yes, sir," replied the man; "but it is not me, it is your clothes that are respectable." So the sinner, cleansed and clothed by the Savior, when the Lord says, "Thou art all fair, my love, there is no spot in thee," answers, "No, it is not I, Lord, it is Thy righteousness. I am comely because Thou art comely."

WHAT IS SAVING FAITH?

Continued from Front Page

believe what God told him, or who are ignorant upon the point. His faith was no hazy, nebulous impression that, somehow or other, all would come right in the end. It was the belief of specific testimony. "The scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the heathen through faith, preached before the gospel unto Abraham, saying, In thee shall all nations be blessed."—Gal. 3:8. If our faith is to be of any advantage to us, must it not rest on that ancient foundation? "He staggered not at the promise of God through unbelief; but was strong in faith, giving glory to God; and being fully persuaded that, what he had promised, he was able also to perform."—Rom. 4:20, 21. We certainly can have no simpler or more scriptural definition of saving faith. What bishop could give us a better, or one easier to understand? A full persuasion that God will do what He has said—a persuasion based upon His own promises. This is that which constituted Abraham "the father of all them that believe" (Rom. 4:11)—an honorable distinction truly! Righteousness is to be imputed to all who walk in the steps of his faith.

Then comes the question—What sort of a promise did God make to Abraham? For whatever it was, Paul regarded it as lying at the very foundation of the gospel which he preached. He declared that he was "judged for the hope of the promise made of God unto our fathers" (Acts 26:6). He says also that "Jesus Christ was a minister of the circumcision for the truth of God, to confirm the promises made unto the fathers" (Rom. 15:8). Thus it is abundantly manifest that the very gospel itself, which we are required to believe, finds its germ and significance in that which God covenanted to Abraham.

In Romans 4:13, Paul defines the promise as a guarantee that Abraham should be "the heir of the world." In Galatians 3:18, he says that God gave him the inheritance (of the land which his fleshly seed afterwards possessed under the law) by promise. And in Hebrews 11:8, we read that he "was called to go out into a place which he should after receive for an inheritance." Turning to Genesis 13:15, we find that this inheritance of land was to be held on no limited tenure, but on one that should be permanent—"All the land which thou seest, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed for ever." Paul shows that the "seed" in this case is Christ (Gal. 3:16), and as many as have been baptized into Him (vv. 27, 29).

Anyone can see what such a promise as this involved. A mortal man can inherit nothing forever. He might inherit a property for the term of his natural life, but that would be all. We brought nothing into this world, and it is certain we can carry nothing out. No man's goods or glory can descend after him into the grave. But Abraham did not even have his inheritance for this limited period, and he quite understood that such was to be the case. As Stephen said (Acts 7:5), God "gave him none inheritance in it, no, not so much as to set his foot on: yet he promised that he would give it to him for a possession." He was told, when the promise was made, "Thou shalt go to thy fathers in peace: thou shalt be buried in a good old age." "He sojourned in the land of promise as in a strange country"—a country in which he had no sort of proprietorship; and he was content to do so down to the day of his death, in sure trust and confidence that the whole territory would one day have him as its perpetual owner and lord.

He must, therefore, have been a believer in the resurrection of the dead. His must have been the conviction that God would bring him back to life again, and give him a nature that would last as long as his everlasting inheritance. And what better hope could any man in any generation have or want? There were life and incorruptibility hidden in that promise, which quite enables us to understand how the gospel was preached unto Abraham, for Paul says that Christ "hath abolished death," and brought these things to light through the gospel (2 Tim. 1:10).

We have simply to let our faith run in this groove. It will be worthless and unavailing if we place it anywhere else. It must be Abrahamic. Deliverance from the power of the grave and a permanent inheritance in the earth, are the things to which it must ever and exclusively point as the needle to the pole. This is real, scriptural belief on the Lord Jesus Christ, who has been constituted a name of salvation. God has deposited these things in Him who by delivering over to the claims of death the nature inherited from Adam, has become free from its dominion, and by His resurrection has opened the gates of death, and prepared the way for the fulfillment, in due time, of all that was promised to the fathers. To Him has been committed the honor of recalling them from their long sleep in the oblivion of the grave, and of endowing them with that immortality which will qualify them for their everlasting inheritance in the glorious land.

It would seem indisputable that before we can have saving faith we must know what it is that we need to be saved from. Faith implies intelligence on this point. It does not admit of our being in a state of uncertainty about it. If we were struggling in the water, and believed that we should get out, our faith would fix itself on one distinct form of salvation. Under such circumstances we should know the precise nature of the peril to which we were exposed. But there are, unfortunately, so many different opinions in the world touching what is to happen in the future that most people are really unprepared to speak very definitely upon the subject; and the few that are, run the risk of exciting the pity or indignation of the rest.

But, pray, what is it from which we all need to be saved? What great question does the Bible deal with from first to last? What news would be most welcome to us in our present evil plight? Here we are, getting older every day—the grave ready for us at any time. If we form friendships, they are snatched from us, or we from them, by the ruthless hand of death. If we are in tolerable health one day, we are liable to be prostrate and incapable the next. Besides all which, we are harassed with a thousand cares which arise from the difficulty of getting enough for the requirements of this present vanishing existence. Surely deliverance from all this, even though not involving our transfer to some other part of the universe, would be exactly the salvation we need. We should be satisfied if we could permanently remain on this beautiful earth, under better conditions than those which at present prevail—if we could always be strong and well, and be entirely free from distress and care, and see all mankind living in purity, and peace, and plenty, and the fear of God.

Well, all this is wrapped up in the covenant made with Abraham. We read the Scriptures and find that this is none other than the salvation which God has provided in Christ. The whole human race is death-stricken because of sin. "By one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin." This is what is amiss! The nations of the earth are mortal—hastening to the grave. Their succeeding generations vanish from the scene, and are no more. Men fail to realize this, and cherish the delusion that they are deathless beings—the heirs of an illimitable duration. Hence they are blind to the peril which actually lies before them, and are scarcely prepared to listen to any way of salvation which recognizes the real facts of the case. No doubt it is pleasanter to live in ignorance of those facts, for there is not a little that is distressing and sad about them. But earnest minds are more anxious to know what is the bitter truth than to cherish attractive fiction. The truth may indeed be dreadful, and stern, and repellent, but the opposite of it can do us no real good. Let us then by all means open our eyes to the exact position of affairs. If we do we shall see that the tribes and families of mankind are in the state we have already described. They are doomed to the dissolutions of the grave, and they cannot deliver themselves from this destiny by any act or virtue of their own. The strictest morality we may practice cannot alter our natural relation to the law of sin and death. The gospel alone is the divinely appointed of salvation. "Jesus said, I am the resurrection, and the life." . . . "No man cometh unto the Father but by me." Paul declared that it had "pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe." It would be difficult to justify the mission of the apostles if salvation were attainable independently of their testimony.

This is no merely speculative affair, or bit of barren theological discussion. It goes down to the root of all that concerns us as living men and women who desire to live forever. The possession of a saving faith will work wonders for us even now. It will do for us what it did for Abraham. It reconciled him to his lot as a stranger and pilgrim on the earth. He did not look for a real and permanent satisfaction in this mortal state. His faith saved him from perpetual fret, and worry, and chafe over the vanities of a transient existence. His worldly affairs might prosper, or they might not. It did not matter a very great deal. All would soon be over and gone, and his body would rest in peace against the promised day of endless inheritance and blessing. He would then wake up surprised to find how long, and yet how short, his many-centuried sleep had been; for "the dead know not any thing," and are as oblivious to the lapse of time as they are of the eternity that went before their birth.

I know that such views of life would by many be pronounced unhealthy and abnormal; but are they not, after all, in strict accord with obvious fact? Think of the generations that are gone, with all their business, their anxieties, their worldly hopes and fears! There are thousands of skulls lying empty and pulseless in the cemetery that once were the seats of a thought as scheming and distracting as yours today; and in a very short time (shorter, perhaps, than you may suppose) yours will be lying in a similar condition! What, then, is the good of fixing your whole heart's sympathy and care upon a vanishing picture—a mere passing panorama? "The fashion of this world passeth away." "He that doeth the will of God abideth for ever." Life may be full of troubles, and barren of joys, but it cannot last beyond a certain time; and if it be lighted up with the glorious hope of the gospel, it will not be very difficult to lay it down. There is, after all, to the believer, a genuine satisfaction in the fact expressed so pathetically by David in his declining years—"We are strangers before thee, and sojourners, as were all our fathers: our days on the earth are as a shadow, and there is none abiding." With the worldling it is far otherwise; the prospect of death darkens his brightest hours, and the well assured fact that he must soon bid farewell to his cherished associations infixes a sting in his fondest joys.

Even if there were no issues to faith of the kind the promises exhibit—if the whole affair turned out a magnificent dream and fiction, and there was in reality nothing but an eternal grave before the sons of men—still let me pass through life under the inspiring and purifying influence of this splendid lie, rather than exist without aspiration, and die without hope! Expectancy, joy, nobility, and elevation of character are better than their opposites, even though the foundation on which they rest be a foundation of sand.

But we are by no means driven to this alternative. There are issues to faith of a demonstrably certain character. Its roots stretch far out into the historic past, and entwine themselves around facts which are among the best accredited of all that appertain to the human race. And it will culminate in such blessedness as hath not entered into the heart of the natural man. It is no trifling thing to be offered a body that will never decay, but have life in itself, and be perpetually resplendent, and vigorous, and perfect in all its faculties and functions. To be accounted worthy of recognition by Him to whom God has given all power in heaven and in earth—to be called to His side, and invited to follow and assist Him in the great work which the Father has given Him to do—to wield authority over the cities of the nations, and have unlimited resources of wealth, and wisdom, and beneficence, and strength at instantaneous command! These are the prominent characteristics of a future that will be crowded with transcendent glories—"an inheritance incorruptible and undefiled, and that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven" in the person of Christ, in whom is treasured up all promised blessing for them "who are kept by the power of God unto salvation ready to be revealed in the last time."—The Scriptures Opened.

Abreast of the Times

League of Nations Discouraged

"The ambassadors of peace shall weep bitterly."—Isaiah 33:7.

GENEVA, May 14.—The League of Nations met in its seventy-ninth session here today. The dominating note was a sense of discouragement and futility due to the failure of the disarmament conferences to accomplish anything of value. Swiss newspapers declared today that Premier Mussolini of Italy said in a recent interview that it will be unnecessary to reform the League if disarmament fails, that the only thing left to be done is to formally acknowledge that the League is dead.

Among the many problems facing the present session, most of which appear impossible of solution, are the following, all of which are of major importance to the peace of the world. Two serious disagreements in South America, first, the unsettled dispute that brought on the long war between Colombia and Peru, and the other which threatens the peace of Chile; the German situation in the Saar, from where rumors had come recently of a plan to seize the region by armed force; and the determination of France not to consider any degree of disarmament unless Great Britain would guarantee her security against German aggression. A French spokesman said further that "France cannot accept a legalization of German rearmaments which violate the Treaty of Versailles."

Improvements in Ancient Babylon

"For every purpose of the Lord shall be performed against Babylon."—Jer. 51:29.

LONDON, May 15.—A correspondent of the Chicago Tribune learned today that the Iraq Council of Ministers has sanctioned a five year plan of national construction and industrialization. The plan includes the romantic project of rebuilding Babylon. A total of $2,200,000 is to be spent immediately for the construction of an escapeway on the Tigris River for the generating of electric power for the textile mills. Another concession of $5,000,000 has been given to the French for the construction of a great dam at Kut-el-Amara. The two schemes will flood the area around Hilleh, the elevated site of Babylon, and, for the same reason as obtained in antiquity, the city will have to be built above the flood. According to the preliminary plan Iraq expects to spend about $25,000,000 in the next few years on textile and electrical machinery and the two new iron bridges that will span the Tigris to replace the present pontoon bridge.

The student of prophecy is interested in these great schemes of development throughout the Near East, as he knows they are preparing the way for the general recovery predicted for the Bible lands before the Lord's return.

The Shifting Gulf Stream

"He gave to the sea his decree, that the waters should not pass his commandment."—Prov. 8:29.

HARBOR GRACE, N. F., May 12.—From a number of reliable observers, among whom is Capt. Charles Jokstadt, commander of the Dollar liner President Monroe, have come reports of changes in the location of the Gulf Stream. On May 8 Capt. Jokstadt reported concerning the shifting of the warm southern waters as follows: "We would have docked yesterday if the Gulf Stream had not delayed us. I was amazed to find it fifty miles further north than I had ever found it before. And the temperature of the Labrador current, instead of averaging 48 or 50 degrees, as usual, was up to 75 and 80 degrees. Whereas we expected the usual cold weather, the air temperature was up to 78. The speed of the Gulf Stream, instead of being one half knot per hour, was one and a half knots. And it all happened in a space of two hours. There is no question about it," the Captain declared, "the Gulf Stream has moved northward."

Further evidence in support of the claims of the seamen is provided by the fact that five cables out of nine belonging to one company which reach land in Newfoundland have recently snapped about 500 miles off shore, and in 1,900 fathoms of water.

It is believed that the disturbance was effected by a great submarine upheaval or submergence of the ocean bed.

The importance of this sudden change will be apparent to the Bible student, as it suggests a means that may be employed by God in reclaiming the cold regions of the earth in the process of the restoration. Were it not for the warm Gulf Stream that bathes their shores the climate of the British Isles would be as cold as that of Labrador, as both lie between the fiftieth and sixtieth degrees of north latitude.

Tiberias Hit by Floods

"The rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell."

JERUSALEM, May 15.—Two terrific cloudbursts struck the ancient city of Tiberias within twenty-four hours, causing the death of more than twenty persons, ten of whom were children, and an enormous property loss which is not yet estimated. The streets of the city, which is situated on the western shore of the Sea of Galilee, were swept by two great walls of water on succeeding days, which carried away everything before them, in some cases washing the goods out of the shops. A thousand soldiers and police were hurried to the scene of the disaster following the first storm, but the salvage work they accomplished Tuesday was wrecked today. The inhabitants of the city fled to the surrounding hills outside the city, and were afraid to return.

National Berean Department

Miss Genniel Carpenter, Editor, Oregon, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Cecil A. Smead, President
Blanchard, Michigan

Virgil Claypool, Treasurer
506 E. Chestnut St.
Robinson, Illinois

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
Oregon, Illinois

“THOU SHALT LOVE THY NEIGHBOUR AS THYSELF.”—LEVITICUS 19:18.

TALENTS

“Oh,” sighed Jean, “if I could only sing like Linda. That song she sang Sunday was beautiful!”

“Yes,” Anne assented, “she is certainly talented. The boy who accompanied her is, too.”

“And the picture you drew to illustrate the Sunday school lesson was just lovely, Anne. Why, everybody seems to be talented,—everybody but me,” Jean added ruefully. “It must be wonderful to have a special talent and be able to create beauty, to please yourself and to help in church work.”

Anne thought a moment and then she said:

“You know, I believe you have the very best talent of all!” Smiling at Jean’s incredulous face, she continued, “You have a talent for friendliness, Jean. You make people feel at ease and happy. I don’t know how you do it, but everyone just seems to cheer up when you’re around. Some people have the opposite effect, and make everyone uncomfortable. I think you’re lucky.”

Jean laughed and said, “Well, I do like people, and I like them to be happy, but I’m afraid that isn’t much of a talent, compared with singing or painting.”

“Yes, it is,” insisted Anne. “You said it must be nice to create beauty, and I think that’s what you do. You create a beautiful feeling of friendliness among people. And as for church work, I noticed the way you helped that bashful, embarrassed little stranger to have a good time at the Young People’s Party. She’s been coming to church since then, too, and she probably wouldn’t if you hadn’t been so kind to her.”

Almost everyone has a specialty, something he does better than anything else. Sometimes we underestimate the importance of our talents, as Jean did. It is pleasant to have a lovely voice, or artistic skill, but those aren’t the only talents.

There are people who have a talent for sympathy. You feel they are genuinely sorry about your troubles and glad about your triumphs. Such people make the pains and sorrows of life easier to bear and the joys twice as joyful.

Another beautiful talent is hospitality. There are homes you enjoy visiting because their atmosphere of cheer makes you feel liked and welcome.

We sometimes think of talent as being inherent and innate, and not something we can acquire. But we can all try to develop in us the talents for friendliness, unselfishness, and consideration for others that will make us better men and women, more and more like our Lord, and be of great help in carrying on His work.

TRUST IN GOD

Man hath a voice severe,
His neighbor’s fault to blame,
A wakeful eye, a listening ear
To note his brother’s shame.

He, with suspicious glance
The curtain’d breast doth read,
And raise the accusing balance high,
To weigh the doubtful deed.

Oh, Thou, whose piercing thought
Doth note each secret path,
For mercy to Thy throne we fly;
From man’s condemning wrath.

Thou, who doth dimness mark
In Heaven’s resplendent way,
And folly in that angel host
Who serve Thee night and day.

How fearless should our trust
In Thy compassion be,
When from our brother of the dust
We dare appeal to Thee.

—Lydia Huntley Sigourney.

AS TO ATHEISM

I had rather believe all the fables in the “Legend,” and the “Talmud,” and the “Alcoran,” than that this universal frame is without a Mind. And, therefore, God never wrought miracle to convince atheism, because His ordinary works convince it. It is true that a little philosophy inclineth man’s heart to atheism; but depth in philosophy bringeth men’s minds about to religion. For while the mind of man looketh upon second causes scattered, it may sometimes rest in them and go no further; but when it beholdeth the chain of them, confederate and linked together, it must needs fly to Providence and Deity.—Francis Bacon.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"There appeared an angel unto him from heaven, strengthening him."

SOME HAPPY AND SOME SAD PICTURES

IN our study of the life of Jesus we have come to the last few days before His crucifixion. Though the picture that comes before our minds in thinking over this lesson is a very, very sad one, yet there are two or three bright spots in it. And you, boys and girls, are no different from the older ones, in liking happy things rather than sad ones.

Jesus had been invited out for dinner. But it was not to the home of a wealthy or a prominent person. He was at the home of Simon, the leper. You know, Jesus always went where He could bring the most happiness, where He was needed most, or where He could teach a valuable lesson.

When He accepted an invitation, it wasn't because He considered His own preferences, but because He thought always of others. Knowing the hour was drawing near when the cruel Roman soldiers would arrest Him, He probably would have preferred to spend these hours out on the mountain side talking to His Father. But, let's see! Something nice happened.

Open your Bibles to the twenty-sixth chapter of Matthew, and read verses 6 and 7. While Jesus was eating, a woman came up behind Him, and, as a sign of her love for Him, she opened a little box of perfume and poured it over His head.

Mark tells this story also in chapter 14 of his book, and he calls the perfume "very precious," or costly, as we would say. I hope each of you boys and girls who read this page will take your Bible and read the story. Always study your Bible along with this page and your Truth Seekers' Quarterly, if you have a quarterly.

When in school you learned to use the dictionary or encyclopedia to help you with your lessons, you felt quite proud, didn't you? And I don't blame you; it is quite an accomplishment to learn how to study and look things up yourself. Do you know, it's even more pleasure to learn how to use the Bible!

It always makes me happy to see a boy or a girl who knows where to turn to find the story of Jesus' life, or the life of Joseph, or Paul's travels, or some other person or event. Why, none of the Sons and Daughters of the King would think of looking in the New Testament for the life of Samuel or that of David, I'm sure. And now, back to our lesson.

Although the disciples were angry because, as they thought, the precious perfume was wasted, Jesus understood the love that prompted the woman, and He said her kindness would never be forgotten.

Soon after this Jesus told His disciples to prepare the last supper they should eat together. He instructed them to go to a certain man's house and tell him that they would all meet there and he should give them a room. Wasn't it strange that, though Jesus owned no property or home, yet when He needed anything all He had to do was to say so and it was His? Remember the time He wanted the colt to ride into Jerusalem?

In after years as the disciples looked back on the time they ate this last supper with their Lord, it must have made them both happy and sad. As they were eating, we read, Jesus took the bread and the cup, and told them they represented His life given for them. He gave His life for them day by day, as your father and mother give their lives for you. And finally He gave His life altogether on the cross for them and for us also.

Jesus told them of the terrible suffering that was before Him, and they could not believe that it would come to Him. But He painted one bright spot in the picture. Can you find it? He did as He promised them He would do, too. After they had finished the supper, they sang a farewell song and went out to the Garden of Gethsemane.

This is the first "Communion" we read about, and we still keep the "Communion" in memory of our Lord and in glad hope of His coming again. For He promised He would partake of this supper again with His disciples in the kingdom of God, and we hope to be among that number then.

Now come the sad scenes in the Garden of Gethsemane, when Jesus found the courage to face the cross by praying for hours to His Father, while the thoughtless disciples slept. Turn over to Luke's story of the Savior in the garden (Luke 22:39-46). Here you will find one of those bright spots we have been looking for. I'll give you a hint: it's almost in the middle of the story. Do you know when that wonderful thing happened before in Jesus' life? Look in Matthew 4:11.

The Sons and Daughters of the King Club has three new members this week. They are Paul, David, and Mary Sprinkle, from Cheyenne, Wyoming. We are happy to have three such fine new members, and they will receive their membership cards as soon as I get some more seals. In the meantime, study your lessons every week and follow in our King's footsteps.

The Sunday School Lesson

FROM TRUTH SEEKERS' QUARTERLY

LESSON 10. — June 3, 1934

JESUS IN THE SHADOW OF THE CROSS

Matthew 26:1-75

Devotional Reading: Psalm 42:1-5

GOLDEN TEXT

He went a little farther, and fell on his face, and prayed, saying, O my Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me: nevertheless, not as I will, but as thou wilt.—Matthew 26:39.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic: Jesus in the Shadow of the Cross.

Aim: The suffering of Jesus was very great before His crucifixion, and it was for us.

Basic Truth: "Ye were not redeemed with corruptible things, as silver and gold, . . . but with the precious blood of Christ."—1 Pet. 1:18, 19.

I. "Thou Shalt Deny Me Thrice." (Matt. 26:31-35.) Gently, sadly, sympathetically, Jesus warned His disciples of the way in which they would all turn away from Him that very night. Vigorously they protested their faithfulness, but the Lord insisted that such a rejection and denial would take place. But after all that had come to pass, after they had left Him alone in His hour of deepest pain, yet would He go before them into Galilee! He would not forget nor forsake them no matter how faithless they should prove in their attitude toward Him. That is ever Jesus' way! He is a Friend indeed! Loving, tender, self-sacrificing, and true. Let us accept His blessed friendship and pray that we may be true to Him until He comes.

II. "Thy Will Be Done." (Vv. 36-44.) Out under the quiet stars of midnight, among the olive trees and clinging vines, was fought the greatest battle of all history—the battle of Jesus Christ for the salvation of a sinful world! Armed with the resistless power of prayer the victory was won, but won in such a way that the world would count it lost. For the Victor gave Himself freely into His enemy's hands to be destroyed! And yet we know that the apparently vanquished won the victory over the world. "Therefore doth my Father love me, because I lay down my life, that I might take it again."—John 10:17. It was a sacrifice willingly made, but the battle was fought and won, not upon the cross, but in Gethsemane!

III. "The Hour Is at Hand." (Vv. 45, 46.) The struggle was over. The sweat, like drops of blood upon His furrowed features, could dry forgotten. His followers could sleep and take their rest, and leave their destiny in His hands! "Rise, let us be going!" No shrinking from the betrayer's kiss; no resistance would be offered whatever might ensue—for a world must be saved from sin! All was given, freely given, that you and I might find eternal life through Christ!

THE GOLDEN TEXT

The agony that Christ endured in the Garden of Gethsemane was terrible. I doubt whether any human being can realize how great were His sufferings. Can you picture Him there with His face bowed to the ground, and the sweat as it were great drops of blood running down to the ground? O, how He must have suffered, and yet He said, "Not as I will, but as thou wilt."

How truly great He is, and how much we ought to love Him. Can we do at least something to show that we appreciate what He did for us? Can we be as humble as He, and can we as willingly say, "Father, not as I will, but as Thou wilt. Father, help us to believe on His name, and follow in His footsteps as nearly as Thou wouldst have us do?"
—L. A. R.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Jesus

- met temptation with prayer;
- was made perfect through suffering;
- submitted His will to the Father's;
- was left alone to suffer by His disciples;
- endured because of the joy set before Him.

Prayer. Prayer was continuously practiced by our Lord. It was His bosom companion, His daily friend. When in need of strength and guidance, He resorted to prayer. He was persistent in prayer. Well did He know the truth of the Psalmist's words: "The eyes of the Lord are upon the righteous, and his ears are open unto their cry."—Psalm 34:15. Christ taught prayer and taught people to expect answers to their prayers. For example: "All things, whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer, believing, ye shall receive."—Matt. 21:22. He also taught by example that our prayers should be answered in accordance with the will of the Father. "Not as I will, but as thou wilt." Prayer is ever available to the righteous, and we are admonished:

- "Men ought always to pray."—Luke 18:1.
- "Pray without ceasing."—1 Thess. 5:17.
- "Pray with the spirit and . . . with the understanding."—1 Cor. 14:15.
- "In every thing give thanks."—1 Thess. 5:18.
- "The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much."—James 5:16.
- "Let us therefore come boldly unto the throne of grace."—Heb. 4:16.—C. E. R.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULTS

Gethsemane

One week before His death Jesus was given His last task to perform. He must now die as a sin offering. To give Him courage for the ordeal God transfigured Him on the mount. From there He turned toward Jerusalem and began to be sorrowful. On the road He told His disciples that the Son of man was to be betrayed and put to death. He knew that at Jerusalem He would suffer death, yet, with courage, He turned His footsteps toward the City of Peace. The increasing hatred of the Jews during the intervening days must have increased His anxiety of mind.

When the time arrived for the supreme test we find Him in the garden sweating "as it were great drops of blood falling down to the ground." Small wonder that He prayed that if it were possible the cup might pass from Him. Three times He besought the Father and three times He surrendered to the Father's will. The greatest battle and victory of all and yet not included in the decisive battles of the world.

Gethsemane held still another test. Jesus had power to protect Himself from the mob and the temptations must have been great. The first advance of His enemies was repelled by His power. "They went backward, and fell to the ground."—John 18:6. Again Jesus conquered Himself and surrendered to God's will. When His disciples came to His aid He rebuked them, saying: "Thinkest thou that I cannot now pray to my Father, and he shall presently give me more than twelve legions of angels?" Gethsemane was conquered.
—H. A. S.

PRIMARY CLASS

Memory Verse: "Watch and pray."

Jesus knew that He was soon to die on the cross. So He told His disciples that He would soon die. They could not believe it could be true.

He took His disciples, gathered them around a table in a room upstairs, and there they ate their last supper together. Here He told them about Judas betraying Him. Also at that time He told them how to keep the Lord's Supper, or the communion service, we often call it.

Perhaps the last thing we read about Jesus before He was crucified was where He took some of His disciples and went to the Garden of Gethsemane. He went here to pray. As they journeyed He said to them, "You stay here while I go pray."

He went on a little farther and oh! how earnestly He prayed. When He returned He found His disciples sleeping. He awakened them and said, "Could you not watch with me one hour?"

The second time, He went to pray. He came back and found them sleeping again. Back He went again to pray. He came again to His disciples and found them sleeping. This time He said, "Sleep on."

Immediately after they started back and as they went along, a great group of men headed by Judas met them on the way, and oh! here Judas betrayed Jesus by kissing Him. But we will learn more about Jesus and the cross in our next lesson.—V. C. T.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CONFERENCE DATES

Fonthill May Meeting at Fonthill, Ontario, May 25 to 27
 Minnesota State Conference at St. Cloud, June 14 to 17
 Annual June Meeting at Brush Creek Church near Tippecanoe City, Ohio, June 3 to 10
 Illinois Bible School and Conference at Oregon, July 31 to Aug. 12
 General Conference at Oregon, Illinois, July 31 to Aug. 12
 Iowa Conference at Waterloo, Aug. 21 to 26

ROCKFORD, ILLINOIS

We are very glad to welcome Bro. and Sr. Gayle Somers back into our midst. They recently moved back from Rochelle, Ill., where they have been living for almost the past year.

Sr. Somers is treasurer of the Illinois State Berean Society; therefore, will all the treasurers of the local societies in Illinois please note that her new address is 1807 Ridge Ave., Rockford, Ill.

Bro. and Sr. Glen Starbuck left Friday morning for their new home in Seattle, Wash. We shall miss their able assistance in our work here, but we pray that the Father's blessing may attend them in their new home.

At our morning service on Mother's Day Bro. Conner gave us a very inspirational sermon on the Devotion of Mothers. Special music by our male quartet was in keeping with the thought of the day.

Bro. Conner is with us on the second and fourth Sundays each month, at which time we have preaching services both morning and evening. Sunday school convenes every Sunday morning at 10:45, and Berean class every Friday evening at 7:45. Our meeting place is 1904 North Main St., and we extend a cordial invitation to anyone who can meet with us in any of these services.

KOKOMO, INDIANA

We have just closed a very successful first half of our May series of meetings. Eld. J. H. Anderson was the speaker during this period of two weeks.

The first week the subject was "The Gospel," Bro. Anderson speaking on those things essential to salvation. The second week was taken up with studies in prophecy. Interest and attendance were very good.

Two obeyed in baptism. We are glad to be able to introduce Bro. and Sr. Leon Thomas to the brotherhood.

A large group from the Hillisburg church gave us a very pleasant surprise Friday evening, driving over by bus for the services. Come again, brethren.

We take up the second half of our month's meeting with Eld. C. A. Smead of Blanchard, Mich., as speaker. We plan a Bible school for the junior ages each afternoon after the public school hours. On Sunday, May 27, there will be an all-day meeting. Basket dinner will be served in our new basement.

All the brethren and friends near Kokomo are invited to share these good things with us.

D. G. Harvey.

CHURCH OF THE GOLDEN RULE Cleveland, Ohio

The Church Board, which has been working since last summer on the proposed new constitution for the church, has completed its work and is now ready to report back to the church. Accordingly, the moderator has called a special meeting of the congregation to take action on this matter so that the coming June election can be held under the new rules. This meeting is to be Monday, May 14, at 8 p. m., at the church.

The proposed constitution, in its latest form, carries the unanimous approval of the Board and is recommended for adoption by the church. It represents a great deal of thought, prayer, and discussion and is meant to set a new standard in our church procedure, and to express the highest spiritual ideals of the church as well as outlining the rules by which the business affairs are to be conducted. You will note by even a casual perusal that some very far-reaching changes are proposed in our organization, manner of elections, rules, and even a change in our church name.

Pastor M. W. Lyon is now giving a series of Sunday evening sermons on Old Testament men. Those to be studied this month are Joseph, Moses, Joshua, and Caleb, in the order named. The studies should prove both interesting and helpful.

When you are planning your vacation this summer, remember that one of the finest ways to spend it, or part of it, is at the General Conference and Bible School at Oregon, Ill., which will be held this year from July 31 to August 12. This would be a fine way for some of our new members to get acquainted with their church in other places, and see what our national organization is doing.

—Golden Rule News.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

The pastor's home was pleased to receive a 'phone call from Sr. Leona Marsh early on Mother's Day morning. Sr. Marsh, who is located in Indiana, was with friends passing through our city and inquired as to the location of our church, hoping they might be able to get to services, but unfortunately this proved not to be possible.

Mother's Day began with a dreary rain that cut the Sunday school attendance down to 267, but the house was full of adults at the sermon hour, and the remainder of the day was beautiful. Sr. Townsend's and Sr. Schooley's classes of girls provided carnations for the mothers again this year. Several special features added to the interest of Sunday school and of church services.

Sr. Townsend and Sr. Charles Simpson were out for the first time since their serious illnesses, and our hearts were all glad. We were also happy for Sr. Conlin to be out again.

At present the Witham family is quarantined for scarlet fever.

For the third consecutive year our church is requested to conduct the baccalaureate service for the Godwin High School. Due to lack of space in our building this will be held at the school next Sunday night.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

REBECCA MACY

Rebecca Knife was born to Jonathan and Elizabeth Knife June 8, 1851, in Monroe Township of Miami County, Ohio, in which county she always lived. On February 12, 1870, she was married to Thomas Jefferson Macy. To this happy union seven children were born, five now living. They are John, Casstown; Estie, West Milton; Mrs. Adie Black, Tippecanoe City; Jesse, Troy; and Mrs. Flora Saul, Fletcher; all points within the state of Ohio.

In 1897 Mrs. Macy was converted and baptized by Bro. F. L. Austin, and she continued a member of the Brush Creek Church of God until death.

Death claimed her on May 2, 1934, at the home of her son, Jesse, where she had been cared for the past two years and a half. Her husband preceded her in death August 18, 1903.

There are left to mourn Sr. Macy's death in addition to the named children, one brother, George Knife; one sister, Mrs. Martha Pearson; thirty-two grandchildren; twenty-six great-grandchildren; and a host of more distant relatives and friends.

Funeral services were conducted by the writer from the home of Jesse Macy and the Church of God at Brush Creek on Saturday, May 5, after which she was laid to rest by the side of her husband in the Curtis Cemetery, there to await the coming of her Lord and the resurrection.

May the eternal God bless and comfort the bereaved.

Sydney E. Magaw, Pastor.

MINNIE FRIER

Minnie Richie Frier, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Roberts, was born in Cambridge City, Ind., December 27, 1857. She was married February 2, 1891, to William H. Frier, who preceded her in death. She fell asleep in death April 26, 1934, following an illness of many months with dropsy.

One half-brother, George Raber of Cambridge City, and one half-sister, Miss Sadie Raber of Scireleville, survive with many friends.

"Aunt" Minnie Frier, as she was lovingly known in the little town of Scireleville where she had spent the greater part of her 77 years, united with the Church of God at Hillisburg early in life; she remained active in attendance until prevented by advanced years and her illness.

The funeral was conducted at the Hillisburg church by Eld. O. J. Parker of Kokomo. She rests in the peaceful little Plummer Cemetery to await the voice of her Master. May He come quickly.

D. G. Harvey.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Glenn M. Birkey; Clifford Wilson (for another); Mrs. F. M. McCrory; Mrs. George Sitler (for another); Clarence Carpenter; Mrs. J. E. Lawrence; Helen Schafer (for self and another); Ellen Riesener; Clint Scott (for another); John F. Green; Curtis Vance; Mrs. H. H. Kent; Mrs. W. L. Canode.

IN MEMORIAM

The passing of Thomas M. Savage removes a stalwart defender of the Church of God. For years he has been an executive member of the Minnesota Conference Board. Few figures in the history of the Minnesota work possessed the burning passion for the church that "Tom" Savage had. The flames of this passion were ever fanned by an undaunted zeal and fervent love and his whole being thrilled and enamored with a matchless enthusiasm that even radiated in the lives of those with whom he contacted. Duty to God and man was uppermost in his mind and unflinchingly he shouldered his responsibility and "did with his might what his hands found to do." He plowed in hope, always furrowing "toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

Some of the most treasured memories of life will be those that were filed away during those several years of intimate contact and collaborating with this soldier of the cross with a "give and take" spirit. Fair in his dealings, liberal in his reasonings, and charitable in his associations, he fostered friendliness and goodwill wherever he went and was a past master in the art of cheering the despondent.

He was an elder that "ruled well his own house." His home was Samaritan in character and every minister of the gospel who has labored in the Minnesota Conference could say with Shakespeare, "The air of paradise did fan the house, and angels officed all." His home was my home. The greatest tribute I can pay to this collaborator can be stated in simple words: "He was a Christian." He believed in Christianity, he preached Christianity, he lived Christianity, he died in Christianity's hope, he sleeps in peace. Therefore we need not sorrow as others which have no hope.

So farewell, O fellow pilgrim, we carry on, yea, we may follow on;

Whatever our lot may be, we wait, but not in vain.

Ere long with resurrection song we will rise to join that everlasting throng;

And face to face will meet and will forever more "carry on."

C. E. Randall.

IN MEMORIAM

My eyes dimmed with tears as the news of Bro. Alldridge's death came to me. My mind retains many pleasant memories of him. He was a kindly man. If bitter feelings toward another ever entered his heart, they were not allowed to remain there. He was tenderly considerate of others, whether he agreed with them or not.

I have a sweet recollection of my introduction to him. He was then a member of a congregation that would have no fellowship with me because of my so-called "broader hope" views, and because I practiced open communion; and he had doubtless heard some very unfavorable comments concerning me. Anyway, he looked me over for a moment and then, with a quizzical twinkle in his eye, asked: "Where are your horns and hoofs?" as he gave my hand a hearty, friendly shake.

Not long thereafter I invited him to occupy my pulpit during my absence, which he did repeatedly, with cheerful, becoming dignity and pleasure. From the first time we met we continued to grow into closer fellowship relations.

Bro. Alldridge was not stubborn nor selfish in disposition, but considerate and generous. When matters or views with which he did not agree were presented to him he would consider them kindly, and if convinced that he had been in error, or had taken an attitude that was not fully justified, it did not seem to hurt him to change, but he would do so with apparent rejoicing in the thought that he had taken another step in the right direction.

I loved him and admired his sunny disposition. He looked for better things in the future, and lived to that end. One of the very enjoyable articles from his pen appeared in The Restitution Herald last fall early in November, if I remember well, under the heading, "Good News." It ran into two numbers of the paper. It was inspiring. I am not a writer, I am a reader, and think I recognize good things when I read them.

Bro. Alldridge was mortal, and, like all mortals, possessed inherent weaknesses and no doubt yielded to them at times, as we all do. But his was a devoted, sweet, and cheerful life of service to God. The last time I met him was on occasion of my last visit to the city of Cleveland. I was a little late in arriving at the church on Sunday morning, and the first face I saw was that of Bro. Alldridge. As I approached the entrance he met me with his cheerful smile and outstretched hand. He stated that since his hearing had largely faded away he could best serve the church in greeting and welcoming others to its service and worship.

I thank God for his rich, cheerful life, and for the pleasant experiences in my associations with him that are now left in my memory.

L. E. Conner.

SPECIAL INDEBTEDNESS FUND

Previously reported	$1422.06
Mary A. Woodward	1.00
Clifford Wilson	3.00
Eva H. M. Fletcher	1.70
Mr. and Mrs. M. Fetters	1.00
Mrs. Isaac Fish	2.00
Beulah Fish	3.00
Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Cook	6.00
Nora Johnson	3.00
Total	$1442.76
Pledges previously reported	304.09
Total pledges and contributions	$1746.85

BETWEEN YOU AND ME—

The prolonged drought which covers a large part of the country is arousing much concern both from a material and a spiritual standpoint. Many people are suggesting that perhaps this is God's way of punishing a people who destroy food for the sake of raising prices when there are thousands of men out of employment whose families are in want. While we cannot agree that God is bringing these things upon us in direct punishment, one cannot help but think that it is sin to destroy food in a hungry world.

The congregation at Rockford, Ill., has parted with regret with one of its most faithful young families, Bro. and Sr. Glen Starbuck having removed to Seattle, Wash. We are sure they will receive a hearty welcome by the brethren on the west coast.

The latter part of the present week the editor and his wife leave for the East, where he is to assist Pastor C. E. Randall in the annual May Meeting at Fonthill, Ont. During his brief absence the work of the office will be in charge of the associate editor, Paul C. Johnson, who will provide the editorial material for our next issue.

Sr. L. M. Kiger, Marengo, Iowa, writes encouragingly of the work in Iowa, and especially in Koszta, with which church she is associated. She says, "I feel there is more harmony and spirituality than ever before throughout the state. Koszta still has preaching once a month, with more of our members attending regularly than was the case six years ago."

The Illinois State Conference is glad to announce that the services of Bro. S. J. Lindsay, founder of the Illinois Bible School, have been secured for the school this year. Bro. Lindsay will have charge of a class on fundamentals. Announcement of the complete teaching force will be made later.

The offer still holds good: We will send The Restitution Herald to new subscribers for 15 weeks, covering the major conferences of the country, for 50 cents. This would be a good missionary investment.

Pray for the success of the conferences and Bible schools soon to be in progress in various localities.

Let's
climb
the Ladder
to Success

$1700
$1600
$1500
$1400
$1300
$1200
$1100
$1000
$900
$800
$700
$600
$500
$400
$300
$200
$100

NO TIME FOR CHRIST

By M. W. Lyon

"How often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not!"—Matt. 23:37.

THERE are so many today who do not know anything about Christ, and they have no time to study about Him! Their time and interest are taken up with many other things. They find time to study philosophy, history, poetry, and the writings of agnostics; but is it not true that the entire philosophy of the agnostic cannot forgive a sin, reform a sinner, smooth a dying pillow, dry a tear of sorrow, or help a faltering brother?

The world may need philosophy, demonstration, and logic; but each of these, or all of them combined, avail nothing unless they are linked up with Jesus Christ. Separate and apart from Him, they are impotent and powerless. Love for the Lord Jesus produces love for our fellow men, and leads us to them with the words of eternal life.

It was Pilate who cried in pitiful weakness at the trial of Christ, "What shall I do then with Jesus which is called Christ?" O vacillating and cowardly Pilate, it does not make any difference what you do with Him! You may scourge Him, deride Him, spit upon Him, drive cruel nails through His hands, and plunge the terrible spear into His side; but you cannot crucify truth, you cannot annihilate the Christ, you cannot obliterate the love of the human heart for Him. Three days hence the sealed tomb will burst asunder, and the risen Lord will come forth in garments of celestial light; and the multitude will hurry to His wounded side and look upon His pierced hands and feet and, with wonderment and love, cry out, "My Lord and my God!"

What do you know about, and what will you do with, Jesus? The world cast Him out. Poor, finite man rejected the Prince of life; but Jehovah, the sovereign Ruler of the universe, welcomed Him into the very heavens. Helpless, lost men crowned their Lord with a cruel crown of thorns. The heavenly host crowned Him with glory and royal majesty. Shall we follow the way of the world, and reject the Christ? or shall we choose God's way, and receive the Son as our personal Lord and Master?

Will you think about Christ and let Him rule, or will you reject Him and choose Barabbas? Remember, that blessed One who once stood before Pilate, crowned with thorns, is now standing before the throne of Jehovah in the heavenly court, clothed with glory and everlasting light; standing there as the Friend of sinners, making intercession for earth-born, ruined, and lost man.

We may feel that we have no time to think of Him; but He, the blessed crucified One, ever lives to think of us. He lives to intercede for all who love and think of Him.

—Golden Rule News.

COMMENTS ON THE BIBLE

THE first and almost the only book deserving of universal attention is the Bible. I speak as a man of the world and I say to you search the Scriptures.—John Quincy Adams.

IT (the Bible) is the rock on which our republic rests.—Andrew Jackson.

I AM profitably engaged in reading the Bible. Take all this Book upon reason that you can and the balance by faith, and you will live and die a better man.—Abraham Lincoln.

A MAN has deprived himself of the best there is in the world who has deprived himself of this (knowledge of the Bible).—Woodrow Wilson.

READ your Bible—make it your daily business to obey it in all you understand.—John Ruskin.

IF asked the remedy for the heart's deepest sorrow, I must point to the old, old story told in the old, old Book, and taught with an old, old teaching, which is the greatest and best gift ever given to mankind.—William Gladstone.

THE Bible is not only many books; it is a literature, history, poetry, prophecy, theology, oratory, humor, irony, sarcasm, music, drama, strategy, love-tales, war-tales, travelogues, laws, jurisprudence, songs, prayers, all are here.—J. Erben Moore, in The Bible Advocate.

ALMOST every man who has by his life work added to the sum of human achievement of which the race is proud, of which our people are proud, almost every such man has based his life work largely upon the teachings of the Bible.—Theodore Roosevelt.

IF we read the Bible aright, we read a book which teaches us to go forth and do the work of the Lord; to do the work of the Lord in the world as we find it; to try to make things better in this world, even if only a little better, because we have lived in it.—Theodore Roosevelt.

THE Bible has been the Magna Charta of the poor and of the oppressed.—Theodore Roosevelt.

THE patriots who laid the foundation of this republic drew their faith from the Bible.—Calvin Coolidge.

IF American democracy is to remain the greatest hope of humanity it must continue abundantly in the faith of the Bible.—Calvin Coolidge.

I ASK of men and women that they will realize that part of the destiny of America lies in their daily perusal of this great Book of revelations—that if they would see America free and pure, they will make their own spirits free and pure by this baptism of the holy Scripture.

—Woodrow Wilson.

It reveals every man to himself as a distinct moral agent, responsible not to men, not even to those men whom he has put over him in authority, but responsible through his own conscience to his Lord and Maker.—Woodrow Wilson.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 23

OREGON, ILLINOIS, MAY 29, 1934

NUMBER 35

"SOME DOUBTED"

By the Editor

IN these days of universal education, when all men are inclined to a scientific outlook on life, when the slogan of the times is "Why?" and "its coat-of-arms an interrogation point rampant," the custodians of the gospel of Christ should make an honest effort to meet the questioning spirit of their contemporaries by supplying the evidence they demand of the value and truth of Christian teaching.

It is no longer sufficient for the preacher to command his hearers to "Believe!" They want to know definitely what they must believe, why they must believe it, and they require a certain amount of proof that the thing they are asked to believe and to live by is true. Men have been taught to examine every question in detail. They are not satisfied with a casual glance. They must pull the thing apart, and see "what makes the wheels go round."

This questioning tendency does not indicate that one is a willful skeptic, or an infidel. It simply suggests that he is a man who thinks for himself, and who wants to know "the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth." Nothing less than that will satisfy his mind. And such an attitude is praiseworthy, for it leads to intellectual growth and to spiritual development.

One might wish that the experience of mankind had been of such a nature that it had reason to trust, rather than to doubt, but since sin has ruled the world for so many thousands of years men have been reared in an atmosphere of general suspicion. They have learned to take every statement, no matter from whom it comes, with the proverbial "grain of salt." They are no longer contented with unsupported assertions or with poetical fancies. They want the truth!

All this is particularly true when it comes to matters of religious belief. With hundreds of conflicting creeds demanding attention, the advocates of each contending that it alone contains the truth of God, it is not surprising that the thoughtful "man on the street" should seriously question the possibility that there is truth in any of them!

This being the unfortunate condition prevailing in the religious world today it becomes ever more necessary that the defenders of primitive Christianity should study diligently that they may discover the strongest possible evidence that can be brought to bear in its defense. And such evidence must not be limited to the testimony of the Bible. For there are a great many honest doubters who question the authority as well as the divine origin of the sacred Volume.

We are convinced that it is possible to positively demonstrate that the Bible is of more than human authorship. That it must have come from the God of all truth. That its predictions and revelations are amply verified by the detailed fulfillment of prophecy. That its moral and spiritual code is infinitely superior to any standard of ethics that man's unaided scholarship has been able to produce. All this we believe can be proved conclusively by the earnest efforts of painstaking students of the Word.

It is readily admitted that such a task is not an easy one. It would require much research both within and without the Bible. Further, the utmost care must be observed throughout the preparation of such a defense of Christianity, that its opposers may find little of which to complain in the way of unsupported assumptions, or weak and faulty arguments.

History provides the strongest of all the supports of the truth of God's Word. Then comes an appeal to logic, experience, science, and natural phenomena of all kinds. It is true that there are "truths that never can be proved," that must be taken entirely as matters of faith by the believer, but these are for those whose minds have been spiritually enlightened by the gospel, and not for the world. The honest doubters of whom we speak are such as have not yet come to believe the "first principles" of Christ. These are the ones we would seek to influence through the presentation of evidence.

While history, science, and observation serve strongly to establish the inspiration of the Bible, there is something that is even more potent than these by which the basic realities of Christianity may (Please turn to Page Nine)

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879.

G. Eldred Marsh, Editor

Two Dollars per Year

Paul C. Johnson, Associate Editor

RICHES AND POVERTY

Who walks beside a rosebud
And does not sense its bloom,
Its lovely form and color,
Its delicate perfume;
Who walks beneath the heavens
And does not see the sky,
The sunrise and the sunset,
The tints that glow and die;

Who treads a rural pathway
And never hears a bird,
Nor notes the trembling grasses
A passing breeze has stirred;
Who dwells among his fellows,
And sees them pass his door,
Nor ever hears their heartbeats—
Is pitifully poor.

—Author Unknown.

OUR SUNDAY SCHOOL RESPONSIBILITY

THE true Christian calling is the greatest calling in the world. No other is greater because no other can bring a greater satisfaction in this life or give full assurance of a perfect existence after this present life has ended.

The Bible is the only textbook available in which we can find the complete course of instruction to fit us for this great calling. Upon one occasion our Lord asked the twelve disciples if they would leave Him as some of His other followers had done. Peter's prompt reply was, "Lord, to whom shall we go? thou hast the words of eternal life." So it is with the Bible today; there is no other book which contains the "words of eternal life."

The Sunday school is the only place where many children come directly in contact with Christian teaching. For an hour each week we have a chance to give these children a few of "the words of eternal life." In these cases the Sunday school is the only point of contact between the church and the world, one that should be used to the best advantage at all times.

The Bible is, or should be, the textbook of every Sunday school. In it are the teachings of vital importance to the Christian growth and development of those who come under the school's influence. These teachings (doctrines) are milk and meat to that Christian growth. The "words of eternal life" are "the bread of life." The old and the young need to eat of this food, perhaps in different quantities, but eat they must if they are to "grow up into him in all things, which is the head, even Christ."

In the public schools the fundamental principles of the three R's are given in simple form to the smaller children. Yet there are those who insist that the fundamental principles of our Christian textbook should not be given to the younger ones in our Sunday schools. But, as one author has said, "The little child is credulous and suggestible. He believes anything you tell him, simply because of his lack of experience. He has no fund of established ideas as the rest of us do, to serve as a basis for distinguishing truth from falsehood. The suggestion remains uncontradicted." This shows the opportunity we have of planting in the child's mind the germs of truth, and as he develops they may be developed. It also shows the responsibility resting upon us to make sure that what we give him is truth—the truth of "the words of eternal life."

Moses commanded the children of Israel concerning the law of God which had been delivered to them: "These words, which I command thee this day, shall be in thine heart: and thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children, and shalt talk of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down, and when thou risest up. . . . And the Lord commanded us to do all these statutes, to fear the Lord our God, for our good always, that he might preserve us alive. . . . And it shall be our righteousness, if we observe to do all these commandments." One hour a week in Sunday school comes far from following this command.

Now consider the words of the Psalmist in 78:5-7: "For he (the Lord) established a testimony in Jacob, and appointed a law in Israel, which he commanded our fathers, that they should make them known to their children: that the generation to come might know them, . . . that they might set their hope in God, and not forget the works of God." What greater thing can be done by anyone than to be the means of getting a child to set his hope in God?

So help us, Lord, to make the most of the opportunity before us in our Sunday schools and to present to our own children and the children of our communities "the words of eternal life" as these words are found in our great Textbook, that they may set their hope in Thee and come to know the greatness of the Christian calling.—P. C. J.

The Deeper Courage

THERE are some naturally timid persons whose courage needs to be revived and polished up for every occasion of conflict. And under such stimulation they acquit themselves quite creditably. There are others born seemingly without fear, to whom each conflict is a joy, each testing time a feast. It would be unnecessary to say to such brave men: "Be thou strong and of good courage!"

Yet strangely enough it is exactly that course the Lord Jehovah pursues with Joshua, the great military genius of the Hebrews. Moses dead and laid away in his unknown grave, the new leader assumes control. It is the leadership of an unusual people, a people only six hundred years old—and that is very young for a race—who have been carefully nurtured by God into a people with a genius for religion who shall after another fourteen hundred years produce the perfect One—the Messiah.

Under a divine tutelage, astounding in its intensity, packed tight with experiences that other nations gather only after much longer time, the Hebrews had reached the threshold of their new home. They brought with them a set of national laws that had not been wrought out by their own experience, but had been given them out of the millenniums of God's experience as a guide for their coming days. With the equipment of a law from the mountain, the experience of a desert and a slave land behind them, they were to "possess" themselves of their new land. A new chapter in their national biography was beginning, and Joshua, the brave and optimistic, was in command.

To him at the outset of the new adventure comes the voice of God, not once, but repeatedly: "Only be thou strong, and of good courage!" As if he wasn't that already—and always.

Under the circumstances this is exceedingly significant, and, for the Bible student who is constantly seeking the divine interpretation of his own day by the light of Holy Writ, the study of Joshua will prove unusually illuminating.

There was no doubt about Joshua's courage. He had shown it in a dozen bloody battles. He was a good strategist, a skillful fighter, one whom odds did not frighten, whether they were "giants," the taskmasters of Egypt, the roving robbers of the desert, wild beasts, cold or hunger. But God knew and Joshua would soon discover the need for a deeper courage. Mere physical courage was slight equipment for a national leader of a spiritual race.

Joshua would need enough courage to maintain the mastery of himself. To him, as to any leader, would come the danger of the two extremes—inferiority or superiority. The former would make him uncertain how adequately he might replace Moses. Moses had been such a predominant figure, so peculiarly endowed by Jehovah, so kind, so true, so patient, so wise, so beloved—how could he, a mere soldier from the ranks, hope to do as well? That sort of thing gnaws at a man, no matter how boldly he may face an outward foe, and after awhile it will eat away the inner braces, and then he crumbles even before the outward foe. There are more men incapacitated by fear of themselves than by fear of outer circumstance. It is not only "conscience" that "doth make cowards of us all." It is mental uncertainty, the worries within, the fear concerning ourselves.

On the other hand, it takes real courage to fight the superiority complex too. Joshua's rise to power had been phenomenal. It was one of those swift, meteoric ascendencies that sometimes carry a man to heights so suddenly as to make him dizzy. Most of Joshua's friends were back there in the ranks—at least among the lower officers. And now he was catapulted to the supreme place. It is conceivable that he might develop a conceit, an inflated self-esteem that eventually might make him unbearable and unpopular—as some of Israel's later kings became for the same reason. To remain humble in the seat of power, kind in the hour of authority, to carry the new dignity with the old, sweet grace, that is not genius, that is courage—of the rarest sort.

Israel had need, these days at the Jordan, of a leader with the deeper courage, for Israel's greatest danger was not physical defeat at the hand of the Canaanite. The land was to be theirs. God had

Mary and Martha

"Mary . . . sat at Jesus' feet, and heard his word. But Martha was cumbered about much serving."—Luke 10:39, 40.

Martha was busied and hurried,
Serving the Friend divine,
Cleansing the cups and the platters,
Bringing the bread and the wine;
But Martha was careful and anxious,
Fretted in thought and in word,
She had no time to be learning
While she was serving the Lord,
For Martha was "cumbered" with serving,
Martha was "troubled" with "things"—
Those that would pass with the using—
She was forgetting her wings.

But Mary was quiet and peaceful,
Learning to love and to live.
Mary was learning His precepts,
Mary was letting Him give—
Give of the riches eternal,
Treasures of mind and of heart;
Learning the mind of the Master,
Choosing the better part.

Do we ever labor at serving
Till voices grow fretful and shrill,
Forgetting how to be loving,
Forgetting how to be still?
Do we strive for "things" in possession,
And toil for the perishing meat,
Neglecting the one thing needful—
Sitting at Jesus' feet?

Service is good when He asks it,
Labor is right in its place,
But there is one thing better,—
Looking up into His face;
There is so much He would tell us,
Truths that are precious and deep;
This is the place where He wants us,
These are the things we can keep.

Annie Johnson Flint; selected by Mrs. E. E. Otey.

said so. He would not let them down now. If necessary, the invisible hosts of heaven would march and fight beside them. But the greatest danger lay in a possible moral defeat. Essentially sensitized to religion, they found themselves among a people who invested every hill and field and stream with gods, who saw gods in the sun and the moon and the stars, who set up little idols in their homes, to the spirits of dead ancestors, who gave animal and human sacrifice to keep this vast army of gods appeased, who celebrated in their honor with drunken feasts where moral looseness was the crowning event. Can you imagine the temptation to a people, made of human stuff, yet sensitized to the slightest exposure to religion—any religion? Such a people needs heroic leadership.

Moreover, there was little or no unity among the tribes. They would scatter and settle far from each other. And here for the first time they would be in a land whose soil responded generously to human effort. Israel saw rest and peace and prosperity beyond that winding Jordan River. And days of luxury are always dangerous days—we in this twentieth century have discovered that! With material contentment there seems to come a moral backset. Man seems unable to be materially wealthy and morally good at the same time. To be leader of two million people wandering in the desert, fighting beasts and raiders, was one thing. To be leader of even just thousands, scattered comfortably over a new land, among a people with a religion tremendously tempting to the flesh, and keep their souls marching to a high spiritual destiny—that called for a deeper courage than the desert needed.

It is no wonder, then, that Jehovah God solemnly repeats to such a leader the very thing which is that leader's strength: "Only be thou strong, and of good courage. Fear not, for I am with thee!" Many a time Joshua would be remembering that—in the hours when the clouds hung low and it seemed futile to continue a losing fight for a people who went off after Baal and made again in their souls, if not on a hill, the golden calf.

It may well be that the deeper courage is our present need also. If it has been uncomfortable, at least the depression has taught us something. We have learned that certain kinds of heroism make for defeat rather than victory. It does take one kind of courage to do what Americans have done. It takes courage—of a kind—to speculate frantically in stocks and bonds and grain and land—to "purchase" a $40,000 farm with $500 cash and sell it twenty-four hours later at $50,000. Personally, I am too timid for a venture of that kind. But thousands of people did venture so, and all I can do now is to share in the disaster they have caused.

It takes a certain kind of courage, I suppose, to experiment with the moralities—or immoralities—as some have done modernly. A clever writer, some years back, said that "by youth's time it is sex o'clock" Certainly there has been an astounding "frankness" in sex relationships, all the more dangerous because youth has learned to guard against the physical consequences. From being a sin, immorality has become an art. That this courage has not brought us victory is clear. Instead, we have suffered the loss of sanctities and refinements and restraints, the breakdown of nervous energy and spiritual resources.

We have with us also the courage of crime and open defiance of law. I guess it takes some nerve even to be bad. Well, we have seen much badness. The United States Government spends annually for the prosecution of crime about as much as three Old World nations owe us in war debts—an average of $80 for every man, woman, and child in the country each year. "Two-gun" men are the pride of popular literature, and crime is the regnant theme of amusements. The "bold bad man" stalks our cities, and the little boys in the back yard play "hold-up man." The economic depression is not helping this matter any. Under cover of it, many heretofore law-abiding citizens have thrown away their self-restraint and become heroes of the highway, with the bold assertion that if they cannot earn their living they will take it unearned—and woe to him who tries to stop them.

There is still another bit of "courage" coming to the front—the courage to cut loose from God. Not all our past piety has been religious—some of it has been superstition and timidity. There has been inner rebellion without the courage to secede. But two things have happened to make "heroes" out of these timid souls. Russia, going communistic, has declared against religion. Its educational system is openly teaching Russian children "there is no God." And since God did not destroy that daring nation and since the rest of the Christian world did not chastise her, it is evidently no longer a disgrace to deny God. Hence, atheism has increased—much as divorce has done.

The other factor has been the materialistic emphases of science—which explains in mechanistic terms the beginning and the end of all things, presenting a world that can move along quite happily and effectively without supernatural agencies.

Thus supported by the example of a great nation and the discoveries of "infallible" science, there has flowered out the cult of those who lift their heads high and declare themselves free from the age-old enthrallments of Deity.

These are some of the heroics we have practiced in the last few years, and they have brought us no laurels. Most of them are the children of animal courage.

America—and certainly the Christian people of it—must hear and heed the call to a deeper courage, a courage that is neither violence nor gambling. Rather is it the courage that will not surrender, will not admit defeat, will not stop marching. The worst evil upon us would be a plague of cowardice. These are days for truly heroic living. "Only be thou strong, and of good courage." That is a word for the bravest of us.

There is need to take seriously the principles of Jesus which were taught two thousand years ago—to take them seriously enough to give them a fair demonstration in business, in play, in politics, and in private living. Why, in two thousand years the church people themselves have not had the courage to take their religion outside the church and place it in control of their stores, their governments, their games, their families. Most men hold an ideal, and their religion is it, but few have the courage to put it to work. I still have the feeling that these times are a real test of the validity of Christianity, the most outstanding opportunity of this generation to determine whether the program of Jesus is right everywhere and all the time. But in a world where restless and reckless competition, based on an absolute individualism, dominates the affairs of men, it will take the finest sort of heroism of which humanity is capable to effect the control through unselfish individual and social living—the program of Jesus.

There is need for the courage to walk openly and unashamed with the unseen Companion. There may be an element of boldness in declaring oneself a materialist, yet that is little real courage. But to mingle daily with a world which pays homage to "things" alone, and say: "There IS a God—I believe in Him—He is my Friend, and I am His—no matter what may happen—come storm or sun, come poverty or wealth, come sickness or health, come life or death—He will not fail, and I here declare that I will not fail Him!" That sort of sentence has a hero swing to it. It is not quite modern, I know, but each man, when he reaches the innermost shrine of his soul, knows that it is true. A courage that confesses an unfailing God in a failing time is the sort of which Joshuas are made.

And might it not be well to recall that we do need the courage to come out of this depression, scarred perhaps, but not broken, not tainted. It is not quite like going into war. There one has no control over bullets and gasses. But the depression need not break our spirits or taint our souls. Yet, regrettably, both are happening. For lack of the deeper courage, some will never be the same again.

Those among us who have the deeper courage will come out "with clean hands and pure hearts," with "souls that have not been lifted up to vanity," with "lips that have not sworn deceitfully."—O. G. Herbrecht in The Standard Bible Teacher, copyright, 1933, reprinted by permission of the Standard Publishing Company.

Spiritual Seasoning

By M. W. Lyon

JUST as no meal would be satisfying without salt in any of the food, so no life can be its best without the seasoning of faith in God and religion. This is probably the basic reason underlying all of the world's discontent and unrest. No life philosophy can be complete without taking into consideration our Maker and our obligations to Him.

The godless life is like a stool with only two legs; it lacks balance and stability. It is like a man with a hand, or a foot, or an eye lacking; handicapped for all the highest joys of life and even for the commonest daily tasks. If a man has no fountain of energy and inspiration higher than himself, then he cannot hope to rise any higher than self; but there is no limit to the possibilities of that man who knows the courage and the calmness of spirit which spring from contact with the infinite Father.

When you can your winter fruit you season it with sugar to keep it from spoiling; you salt down your pickles and your meat to preserve them from decay. Without such vital seasoning you would be unable to keep them long. So also without the salt of God's Spirit character deteriorates. In this connection Jesus spoke, "Ye are the salt of the earth" (Matt. 5:13), for it is the fear of God alone that preserves men from corruption and decay of character.

It has been well said that education without religion is like dynamite in the hands of a lunatic. All the polish our best universities can give will not make a man honest and kind and just and pure. All the amassed wealth of the world's richest men will not of itself cause them to use it wisely. Character and happiness have not gone hand in hand with material prosperity because it cannot result from such a source. But where God's Word dwells there are righteousness and simple honesty and peace of heart and the genuine joy of living even with but little of those things the world esteems of value.

Those who do not continually feed upon the Word of God, that is, those who are spiritually undernourished, are in grave danger of becoming criminals. They lack the spiritual stamina to resist the lure of temptation. Not all the laws and prisons of our land can make men good. Only the teachings of Christ in the heart can do that. You need God in your life more than you need food, and raiment, and shelter, and fuel. Without Him your existence will be as flat and unsatisfying as the unseasoned food you might set on your table at home.

Neglect the laws of health and you cannot hope to long escape the inroads of disease. Disdain to use the brain God has given you and you can never know the joys of intellectual progress. But ignore God, and your life can never be anything but a two-legged stool, devoid of all that is highest and noblest and most conducive to lasting happiness.—Golden Rule News.

2,520 Years, Then and Now

THE theory that Gentile Times is a period of 2,520 measured years is, of course, a matter of interpretation, and is held by Futurists as well as Historicists, and also by a group who believe that the wiser thing is to tie themselves to no particular school of thought, taking the good and reasonable from the offerings of all schools.

Those who hold to the 2,520-year theory usually represent that 1914, 1917, and 1924 are the terminal dates thus far, their important events being (1) the outbreak of the Great War so quickly involving Turkey; (2) the taking of Jerusalem and the Holy Land from the Turk; and (3) the abolishing of the Ottoman Empire. These three great hammer blows resulted in the overthrow of that great Power, but left its religion dominating the holy mount with profane Gentile feet treading down the most sacred spot in the land.

These things may be only coincidences, or perhaps another of the strange outcroppings of the wonderful law of sevens connected with Israel's history, or again they may mean all that prophetic students are telling us these days.

One has rightly stated that he who ignores the "progressive beginning" of Gentile Times makes serious mistake. It may be also said that he also makes mistake who refuses to recognize that Gentile Times is a period during which power over the Holy Land is granted to the Gentiles on account of and as punishment for the sins of Israel. Every victory that was gained by Nebuchadnezzar in the old times was a defeat to Judah. Therefore every defeat which has come to the Ottoman Turk, the desolator of the centuries, (as stated above) has been a victory for Judah.

It seems to the writer that we have been strangely blind in failing to take note that when a criminal of any sort has served to the full his measured punishment he is released. And therefore when the final step in the progressive ending of Gentile Times is taken—if the theory is worth our consideration—we must expect that the criminal will be set free—the "wandering Jew" allowed to return to his land and nationhood.

Moreover the Master has plainly taught that Gentile Times and "the treading down of Jerusalem" have a coincidental ending. Hence if Gentile Times is progressive in beginning and ending, it stands proven that "the treading down of Jerusalem" cannot be consummated until the final step in the successive terminal events has been taken. And what is more, until the Temple Mount is freed from the domination of the Moslem the "treading down" cannot be truly said to have been completed.

The 2,520th anniversary of the final taking of Jerusalem, the destruction of the city, and the burning of the temple by Nebuchadnezzar falls either this year or next, as one may reckon the initial date. Thus if the theory is working and God extends our lives we shall see the complete termination of the Times of the Gentiles in Palestine and the cessation of the treading-down process and all that that implies within a few months.

W. Merton Snow, writing in "The World's Crisis" without its editorial approval, and an eminent pastor of the Advent Christian Church, herein offered one of the sanest expositions of Gentile Times we have yet read. His reasoning is commended to every student of prophecy.

This to the writer must logically mean but one thing—the restoration of Jewish nationhood and the rebuilding of his temple without which, as has been wisely said, he cannot be a nation.

Facing the possibility of new developments in the Holy Land as a result of this coming "final anniversary" let us remember this: that when Nebuchadnezzar took the overlordship over Judah he took it from other Gentile hands. But Gentile Times officially began with Nebuchadnezzar. ("Thou art this head of gold.")

Therefore when Gentile Times end and restoration is granted to the Jew he can only receive again what he lost when Gentile Times began—the status of a subject nation. Israel's independence from foreign control can never come again until Jesus Christ sits upon the throne of David.

It may as well be admitted now as at any time that the ending of Gentile Times may well not bring the Christ to His throne—that the age will not come to its end with the termination of this period, for the Scriptures certainly gave Judah a place in her sins in the Holy Land prior to His appearing in His glory.

Repeatedly God extended opportunity to Judah. As repeatedly she repudiated His way, and met punishment at His hands. In this one more chance she will, if I read the Book aright, comport herself after the time-honored way, seeking the support of a heathen alliance to make herself secure without yielding to God. And the result will be "Jacob's Trouble" and will be terminated as God has plainly indicated. "Jacob's Trouble" will be the "Great Tribulation" and will come to its end immediately with that cascade of celestial signs which did not manifest themselves immediately after the tribulation which occurred as a result of the so-called setting-up of the "Abomination of Desolation" in A. D. 70—or did they? Let the proponents of that theory give answer, but with more convincing "proof" than hitherto has been presented.

Why either seek to make a case for or against the 2,520-year theory when a few months will settle the question beyond reasonable doubt? And meanwhile the progressive expiration of a world order indicates the incoming of God's own blest kingdom of power, peace, and plenty, and the weary heart finds its comfort in "looking for that blessed hope."

Hidden From Their Eyes

By Mrs. H. H. Kent

IN Luke 19:42 it is said that as Christ was entering Jerusalem, He exclaimed as He wept over it, "If thou hadst known . . . the things which belong unto thy peace! but now they are hid from thine eyes." How sad that they were so blind! As we read on, we learn in the few following verses some of the terrible things that happened in 70 A. D. because they gave no heed to Christ's oft-repeated warnings to the Jewish leaders and their followers. As a consequence, they did not know the signs of the times, and did not follow the directions given in Luke 21:20-24 for their safety when the time came.

Christ knew what the outcome would be and He did not fail to make the way of escape plain to those who listened to Him. Some of the prophets had also foretold some of these things. Those were the days of vengeance for the Jewish nation. They were warned to flee to the mountains when Jerusalem was to be surrounded by armies. But not many were willing to go. It happened that at the beginning of the siege of Jerusalem they were keeping the Jewish national holiday, the Passover, and great numbers had gathered for the occasion.

The well known Adventist, E. P. Woodward, quotes from Josephus in his book, Christ's Last Prophecy, in which he says the account that the priests gave out of the paschal lambs that were slain at that time was 256,500. And Josephus says that the regulations of the feast made it obligatory to have at least ten persons to each paschal lamb. And he inferred from that that there must have been 2,565,000 persons who had no ceremonial impurity, while the whole number present may have been nearly three million.

The above figures are given so as to give some estimate of the magnitude of that catastrophe. No wonder Christ wept as He thought how they would be scattered and punished, and how their beautiful temple would be completely destroyed by the Roman army, thus fulfilling the words of the rejected Christ when He said there would not be left one stone upon another. No doubt there were many who obeyed and escaped to the mountains. Perhaps there were no Jewish Christians left in the city after the siege began. Josephus tells of some of the outrageous things that were done by the Roman army, who were unmerciful and cruel. After a siege of over five months, Jerusalem fell, ending some of the worst tragedies recorded in history. He estimates that the number that perished in the siege was 1,100,000, while 97,000 were carried away captive. Many of the latter were sent away as slaves to Egyptian mines. And Bro. Woodward calls our attention here to the fulfillment of the prophecy of Moses in Deuteronomy 28:68, where he speaks of them being bondmen again in Egypt, where, because of there being so many slaves, no one would buy. Others were reserved for destruction by wild beasts in Roman theaters. Thus ended the Jewish Age, leaving those who remained to be scattered among the nations.

After pronouncing the judgments that were to come at the end of the Jewish Period, Christ, in the same discourse, looked forward to another period of time which would likewise end in very serious judgments. Daniel calls it a time of trouble such as never was, and shall never be again. Luke speaks of it and says there is "distress of nations with perplexity" and describes conditions as they exist now at the end of the Gospel Age when the judgments seem to be world-wide. How true the words of our text are as we apply them to the wise (?) men of our day who correspond largely with the scribes and Pharisees who were the leaders when Christ lived on earth. The real situation is indeed hidden from the worldly wise. Instead of seeking God for a way out, they are still trusting in their own strength and wisdom for deliverance.

The Gospel Age has been the greatest period of enlightenment that the world has known, no doubt. But many of the leaders at the end of this age are far from being God-fearing men and women. In the past four or five years, we have had a number of serious national conditions to meet, which seem to be settled for awhile, but the actual situation gets worse from year to year, until everything seems to be tottering because its foundation is unsound. We thank God for our leaders who are honest, but we know that the majority do not realize that our Lord will soon appear on the scene to take over the affairs of earth and together with the true church (Heb. 12:22, 23) rule this world with a rod of iron (Rev. 2:26, 27; 11:15). The Word of God teaches that because men have rejected the only source of peace, there will come a time of great distress upon the whole world. There is no peace except in the individual heart that has obeyed God.

The nations have forgotten God, except for a form of godliness that seems to exist in the lukewarm church. And just as the Jewish people in 70 A. D. clung to the temple and its ceremonies, because it had protected them in the past, when God had dealt with them as a nation, so the people of this age cling to the errors, traditions, and forms that exist in many of our present modern, apostate churches. Many of these errors have been handed down to them from Romanism (the prevailing religion outside of true Christianity), which has been the means of excluding the pure truths of God's Word.

Most of our leaders tell us that we are getting out of the depression now, and that we will soon be upon our feet again, but we know they fear to tell the world situation as it is and much of the news is censored. However the

Please turn to Page Nine

The Bible Figure of the New Birth

By E. O. Stewart

"He that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting."—Galatians 6:8.

BIRTH is defined by Webster to be the act of coming into life.

The Bible mentions two lives. The life that now is, and the life which is to come.

James compares the present life to "a vapour, that appeareth for a little time, and then vanisheth away" (James 4:14).

The life to come is hid with Christ in God (Col. 3:3). "Reserved in heaven for you, who are kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation ready to be revealed in the last time."—1 Peter 1:4, 5.

Our first, or natural birth is the act of coming into natural life. Our second, or spiritual birth will be the act of coming into eternal life.

Jesus said, "I am the way, the truth, and the life."

His way is the way that will lead us to eternal life.

His words are spirit and life. If we sow to the Spirit, we shall of the Spirit reap eternal life.

Jesus was baptized in Jordan, not for the remission of His sins, for He had no sins to remit. He was baptized to prefigure His own burial and resurrection. In the act of His own baptism, He manifested His faith in God's power to raise Him from the dead.

Baptism is the scriptural figure of burial and resurrection.

In passing through the act of baptism, we answer a good conscience toward God, by the resurrection of Christ from the dead (1 Peter 3:21). "Buried with him in baptism, wherein also ye are risen with him through the faith of the operation of God, who hath raised him from the dead."—Col. 2:12.

To be scripturally baptized, one must first confess with his mouth the Lord Jesus, and believe in his heart that God raised Him from the dead (Rom. 10:9).

After one has come to believe this in his heart, he must then obey from the heart that form of doctrine delivered unto him (Rom. 6:17). And the doctrine which Paul declares that he delivered unto them first of all was that Christ died, was buried, and rose again (1 Cor. 15:2, 4).

How may we obey from the heart that form of doctrine? By the answer of a good conscience toward God. And baptism is the answer of a good conscience toward God, because it proves that we believe in our heart that God raised Christ from the dead.

Christ shed His blood in His death (John 19:34). Without the shedding of blood there is no remission of sins (Heb. 9).

In order to obtain remission of past sins, one must in some way come in contact with the shed blood of Christ. This you know does not mean a literal contact with the literal blood of Christ. It is only in a figurative sense that we come in contact with the blood.

If in a figurative sense we must come in contact with the blood, we must use a figure to make the contact possible.

As Christ shed His blood in His death, it will be necessary to go into His death to reach His blood. How can this be done? It can be done only in a figure, for no one can literally go into the death of Christ.

"Know ye not, that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death? Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death: that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life. For if we have been planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall be also in the likeness of his resurrection."—Rom. 6:3-5.

This is the form of doctrine one must obey in order to be made free from sin (Rom. 6:17, 18).

The newness of life in which we are raised to walk, after being buried with Christ in baptism, is described in Romans 6:22 as follows: "But now being made free from sin, and become servants to God, ye have your fruit unto holiness, and the end everlasting life."

Being made free from sin, and living a life of holiness as the servants of God, is just what Paul in Galatians 6:8 terms sowing to the Spirit. And he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap the kind of life the Spirit can give. That will be life by the Spirit, which can certainly be nothing but the new, or spiritual birth.

The religious world has mistaken the figure of the new birth for the reality. It does not seem to dawn upon them that a begettal must precede birth, and that after begettal there must be a period of development before the birth can take place.

Before the spiritual birth can come to an individual, he must be begotten again. He cannot be born again unless he is first begotten again. After he is begotten again by the Word of truth, he must add to his faith virtue, knowledge, temperance, patience, godliness, brotherly kindness, and charity.

These are the things that develop him for the new birth. This is what Paul terms sowing to the Spirit, and the end will be eternal life, or the new birth.

HIDDEN FROM THEIR EYES

Continued from Page Seven

signs of the times are not hidden from prophetic students. We have not paid dearly enough for the past World War, results of which were shocking, and it looks as if when we see such extensive preparations being made for defense, as are being made today, that they are apt to make use of their armaments. There seems to have been no true repentance when the Armistice was signed and the nations did not seem to learn the conditions of peace then or later, so the dangers of our time are increasing. Of course we are thankful that some things are better economically, but since the nations have been bankrupt spiritually for such a long time, and now are "in the red" financially, how long will they be able to stand on such an unstable foundation? It may be near the time when Psalm 9:17 will be fulfilled. It says that all nations that forget God shall be turned into hell ("sheol" or "the grave," R. V.).

For this is the real reason for all this calamity. The nations have forgotten God. The question of sin in the human heart has not been dealt with. The only hope for the world's peace would be a world-wide revival of Bible truth and teaching, but it does not look as if the Word of God predicts that, for when Christ was here in the flesh, He asked the question, "When the Son of man cometh, shall he find faith on the earth?" He implied that He would not. And the latter rain predicted by Joel was mainly to ripen the grain, or rather to mature the Christians in order that they might be ready for the coming of Christ so that they would be fitted to fill a place in His coming kingdom.

So we have in our present time a crisis in religious affairs very similar to that of the Jewish dispensation, only this one will be much more extensive. It is evident that the Laodicean period of the church's history which is mentioned in the third chapter of the book of Revelation, corresponds to what we are now facing in the lukewarm, modern church that has departed from the pure teachings of the gospel. And these conditions have largely affected society and made it corrupt. John says they are "blind" and that corresponds with our text, for things that are about to take place in the world as well as spiritual things are hidden from their eyes and most of them are satisfied to have it so. In Revelation 3:17, it says they "are wretched, and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked." This is their spiritual standing, which seems quite discreditable. And we notice, farther on, in verse 20, that Christ is standing at the door, "knocking," which implies that He is outside the modern church. Yet He has not entirely rejected the individuals of this church, for in the same verse He says that the door will be opened to those who hear His voice. And even later when Babylon, the false church, is about to fall a voice is still calling to those Christians left in Babylon, saying, "Come out of her (Babylon), my people, that ye be not partakers of her sins, and that ye receive not of her plagues" (Rev. 18:4). The individual may not be rejected yet, but if God's warning is not heeded when it is heard, he is very apt to be rejected for not accepting the light when it came to him, and his fate then will be that of Babylon.

It would seem as if one of the greatest evils of the modern church, or the spiritual Babylon of Revelation, is that of taking up religion without giving up sin and evil. Perhaps this is true of all times of apostasy. Evil that is religionized seems to be the very worst kind, and much of our modern preaching does not make sin appear sinful. People go into our modern churches rather with the idea of gaining social prestige with no thought of becoming better acquainted with God and Christ whom to know is eternal life (John 17:3). The trend of modern life is away from God. Our earthly standards have become so high that we are apt to forget God if we do not realize the danger, and this is one of the snares that Christ warned us about when He was here.

"SOME DOUBTED"

Continued from Front Page

be sustained. It consists of Christian living! And so the Apostle admonishes: "Let your manner of life be worthy of the gospel of Christ."—Phil. 1:27, A. R. V. Peter advances a definite reason why this should be done. "Beloved, I beseech you as sojourners and pilgrims, to abstain from fleshly lusts, which war against the soul; having your behavior seemly among the Gentiles; that, wherein they speak against you as evil-doers, they may by your good works, which they behold, glorify God in the day of visitation."—1 Peter 2:11, 12, A. R. V.

There is no argument so strong as the argument of a transformed life! The one who loves and serves and sacrifices on behalf of others while he is preaching the gospel of Christ verbally makes a far deeper and more lasting impression on the minds and hearts of his hearers than does the one who only utters the truth by word of mouth, though he speak "with the tongue of men and of angels."

"The Word had breath, and wrought
With human hands the creed of creeds,
In loveliness of perfect deeds,
More strong than all poetic thought."

IS GOD DEAD?

A little girl, whose father had once been very active in the work of the church, but who had ceased to work or to pray, climbed on his lap one day and said, "Papa, is God dead?" "Why, no, my child; why do you ask?" "Oh, you never talk to Him any more, and I thought perhaps He was dead."

Judging by the lives which many Christian people live the world might be uncertain that God still lives.

Abreast of the Times

Britain and the Next War

"They fled from the swords, from the drawn sword, . . . from the grievousness of war."—Isa. 21:15.

LONDON, May 15.—From every land come unceasing rumors of war. The most peace-loving of nations are preparing for a coming conflict of unprecedented proportions. In an address to the students of King's College, London, Alfred Duff Cooper, Financial Secretary of the British War Office, declared that it would be impossible for that country to remain neutral in the case another major war came about. "Americans did not desire to come into the last war," he said. "Their first President, George Washington, warned them of entangling alliances, but they were compelled to enter, and so would England be compelled to if there were another war."

He asserted that the disarmament conference, while still alive, was at its last gasp and held out little hope to the world.

Mark of the Beast Foreshadowed

"No man might buy or sell, save he that had the mark, or the name of the beast."—Rev. 13:17.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 17.—Under a final ruling handed down today by Comptroller General J. R. McCarl, who passes on the legality of Government contracts, neither the Ford Company nor any of its dealers may bid on Government contracts. A significant fact is that the basis of McCarl's ruling was an executive order issued in March by President Roosevelt, in which the President declared that the Government should not purchase anything which was manufactured or sold in whole or in part by an agency not under the code. The Comptroller contended that the President's order superseded the law requiring the Government to accept the lowest bid regardless of all other considerations.

It was acknowledged that the Ford Company had met every requirement of the NRA with the single exception of signing the code. Wages, hours of labor, and all other conditions demanded of those working under the Blue Eagle had all been complied with. But because Mr. Ford would not sign the code, and permit his cars to be put on the market bearing the Blue Eagle, he was said to be ineligible to sell cars or trucks to the Government.

To acknowledge that a presidential fiat "supersedes laws" governing the purchase of goods would seem to approach the recognition of a dictatorship over this department of the Government at least. While the beast will not come into being until the establishment of the empire of the Antichrist, it is quite apparent that the way for his coming is being prepared.

Church Changes Front

"Ye should earnestly contend for the faith which was once delivered unto the saints."—Jude 3.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 18.—Before bringing its three-day convention to a close this afternoon the Community Church Workers' Conference approved a formal statement defining the functions of the church in modern life. Among the functions of modern churches as presented in this statement the following were emphasized:

"Interpretation of the facts of economic injustice in the light of Christian ideals.

"Development of social consciousness through the technique of education.

"Interpretation of morality in terms of current sins.

"To give encouragement to people suffering from economic, intellectual, and spiritual depression."

Approving fully every legitimate effort that can be made for the relief of suffering humanity, whether in the church or out of the church, one can scarcely overlook the fact that the emphasis of the nominal church has been shifted from the idea of saving men and women from sin through faith in the gospel of Christ to the reformation of the unregenerate world through moral education, and economic and political reconstruction.

Britain Aids Palestine

"Ye shall eat the wealth of the nations, and in their glory shall ye boast yourselves."—Isa. 61:6, A. R. V.

LONDON, May 11.—The British Government has authorized the treasury to guarantee a loan of $10,000,000 to be raised by Palestine. The loan is to be used for the resettlement of Arabs who occupied territory being taken over by returned Jews, for water supply and drainage in Jerusalem, and to provide additional educational and other public buildings in that city.

Sir Philip Cunliffe Lister, Colonial Secretary, in advocating the loan, painted a rosy picture of financial conditions in the Holy Land. He pointed out that in 1926 the Government guaranteed a loan to Palestine of $22,500,000. He declared the financial condition of the country is now so vastly improved that the security for a loan is incomparably better than it was then. He asserted that there was a deficit in Palestine's revenue in 1930 of $730,000. By 1932-33 this had been converted into a surplus of $2,500,000 and in 1933-34 it was thought the surplus would reach five million dollars. It is thought that most of the money to be expended will be used in such a way as to repay itself in the form of revenue from various enterprises, similar to that of the Haifa oil dock, where $1,050,000 was expended, but which will bring an annual return of $150,000.

National Berean Department

Miss Genniell Carpenter, Editor, Oregon, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Cecil A. Smead, President
Blanchard, Michigan

Virgil Claypool, Treasurer
506 E. Chestnut St.
Robinson, Illinois

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
Oregon, Illinois

BEREAN DAY

A DAY for Berean activities will again be set apart at the General Conference at Oregon, Illinois, this coming August. A program committee has again been appointed, and each Berean is urged to send suggestions as to what you want included in the program to this committee. It is to be your program—to help get you acquainted with the different departments and functions of the Society. Plan now to be present, and send your ideas now to Arlen Marsh, Oregon, Illinois, chairman of the Program Committee. Cecil A. Smead, President.

THE KINGDOM OF GOD

As Jesus stood talking to the disciples, He suddenly ascended into heaven. An angel said to the disciples, "Behold, as you see Him leave, He shall come back to you in like manner." At such a time as we know not, the Son of God shall come, with the shout of the archangel and the trump of God. The dead in Christ shall rise first, and we who are alive shall be caught up to meet Him in the sky. Thus will His kingdom be established on earth, and every knee shall bend before Him.

Every nation shall be judged by Him, and He shall separate the goats from the sheep.

In that great day, the child shall play with the lion and the flowers shall bloom in the desert. All wild beasts will be tame. There will be no more sickness or tears, and death, the last enemy, will be destroyed. All sinners who are destroyed will be entirely forgotten by the members of the number saved. The conditions of the earth shall remain somewhat similar, with buildings, cars, and other inventions.

—William Cullen, I3, Oregon, Ill.

Have you as clear a conception as this boy has of the kingdom?

ABUNDANCE OF POWER

In ancient days when mastery of the forces of nature was not even dreamed of, men were almost overwhelmed by their sense of the abundance of power in the world. Unable to see much order in this power, unable to utilize it, they took what came and wondered. Often personifying the various forces, they brought thank offerings when these were benign and sacrificed when they were hostile. Short-sighted and timorous, they paid heavy premiums to experience, and yet were slow to learn. It may be, however, that they excelled us, in whom familiarity has bred commonplaceness, in their keener sense of the abundance of power in the world. It seems sometimes as if we needed an earthquake, a volcanic eruption, a tornado, a comet, to reawaken us to a sense of the . . . powers that make our whole solar system travel in space, that keep our earth together and a-whirling around the sun, that sway the tides and rule the winds, that mould the dewdrop and build the crystal, that clothe the lily and give us energy for every movement and every thought—in short, that keep the whole system of things agoing.

"Trees in their blooming,
Tides in their flowing,
Stars in their circling,
Tremble with song."

And one note in that song is Power, which we cannot think of as beginning or as ending, which never seems to alter in quantity though it is always changing in quality, which is not a whit less wonderful though we say that it is "all electricity," and certainly not less wonderful if we . . . say,

"God on His throne
Is Eldest of poets,
Unto His measures
Moveth the whole."

—J. A. Thomson, in The Bible of Nature.

PSALM 95

Come, sound His praise abroad,
And hymns of glory sing;
Jehovah is the sov'reign God,
The universal King.

He formed the deeps unknown;
He gave the seas their bound;
The watery worlds are all His own,
And all the solid ground.

Come, worship at His throne,
Come, bow before the Lord:
We are His work, and not our own,
He formed us by His word.

Today attend His voice,
Nor dare provoke His rod;
Come, like the people of His choice,
And own our gracious God.

—Isaac Watts.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me."

OUR SAVIOR DIES ON THE CROSS

WHEN the time comes for you to study this lesson, most of you will be out of school, enjoying vacation time. You will have so much more time for everything then—more time for work, more time for pleasure, more time for rest.

Vacation time! Did you ever stop to think that there is no vacation time for your busy brain? Even though there is not now the need for regular study each day as when school is in session, yet you keep right on thinking. The "factory" that is located in your head keeps on producing. For thoughts produce actions, you know.

Just try for a moment to think of nothing at all. Why, the first thing you know you are thinking of a gold mine in Colorado or that good game of ball you played last week! You just can't stop thinking while you are awake.

Do you really believe that your actions are the result of your thoughts? Of course you do; every intelligent person does. Well, then, if you admire the one who acts wisely and kindly, you try to think properly, as that person does. You guard your minds, like a strict policeman, so that no evil thoughts enter.

In order to keep your "factory" busy during vacation with worth while thoughts, a certain part of each day should be spent in worth while study. You may say, "Oh, we don't want to study now; we have enough of that from September to June!"

Did you ever see a man trying to grow a garden on a plot of ground that had been left for years producing nothing but weeds? Had a pretty hard time of it, didn't he? Doing no worth while study during vacation makes it that much harder to buckle down in September. And, you know, there are often hours that hang heavy on your hands after the first couple of weeks of freedom.

How would you like to form neighborhood branches of the Sons and Daughters of the King Club? I think you would find a lot of enjoyment doing that, as well as something very much worth while. Then your "factory" would certainly be busy turning out good actions this summer.

Those of you who already are members, ask your playmates to join, if their mothers are willing. Set aside a certain day each week to call your club together. Morning is best, if those who want to join are free to come then. Perhaps Mother or some other grown-up will be within call if you need advice.

All members must bring their Bibles, if they have them. Make that your "password" into the club. Quarterlies, Bible dictionaries, concordances, all these will help so much, if you are fortunate enough to have them to use.

Now just a word to you who will be the leaders in these neighborhood branches. Remember to follow the footsteps of your King. Don't get "bossy"; don't make fun of some one who doesn't know as much about the Bible as you do. Jesus wouldn't do that, you know.

For this lesson you might look up the word "cross" in the concordance, and then the word "crown." Jesus bore the cross, died on it to save us, and now He wears the crown of immortal life. When He comes again He will wear the crown of a King. Those who like to draw might draw a cross, a crown, and a throne.

Look at the golden text, Hebrews 12:2. What was the "joy" set before Jesus that helped Him endure the suffering of the cross? If you can't find out, ask Mother to help you. Bring notebooks to your club meetings and write the story of the lesson and the golden text, and illustrate them.

If you have a sheltered place out-of-doors where you can meet that will be the best kind of a clubhouse you can find. All about you will be the beauties that God has created—the towering trees, the soft grass, the whispering wind, the singing birds, and the nodding flowers.

Those of you who live in the country are especially fortunate in this respect. Most country children have a playhouse where the club could meet. If not, perhaps Father will help you make a tent and a table just the right height so you can sit on the ground and study.

We have club members in Canada, Wyoming, Minnesota, Virginia, Michigan, Missouri, Indiana, and Illinois. The boys outnumber the girls now. Who will be the first to organize a neighborhood branch of the Sons and Daughters of the King? Write and tell me about it so I can tell all the readers of this page.

"Jesus, may we learn of Thee,
Gentle, humble, each to be;
For our Father loves to see
Hearts from pride and envy free.

"Sing hosannas to our King;
Praise and honor to Him bring!
May our hearts His temple be,
From all sin and evil free."

The Sunday School Lesson

FROM TRUTH SEEKERS' QUARTERLY

LESSON 11. — June 10, 1934

JESUS ON THE CROSS

Matthew 27:1-66

Devotional Reading: Psalm 22:1-5, 14-19, 27, 31

GOLDEN TEXT

Looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith; who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God.—Hebrews 12:2.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Aim: Our redemption cost the death of the Son of God, and is too valuable to be neglected.

Basic Truth: "Christ died for our sins according to the scriptures."—1 Cor. 15:3.

I. The King of the Jews Is Crucified. (Matt. 27:33-38.) In their own council the Jewish leaders charged Jesus with blasphemy (Matt. 26:65), but the Romans, who alone had authority to put Him to death, would not accept such an accusation, and for that reason the Jews told Pilate that Jesus claimed to be their King, and therefore, an enemy of Caesar (John 19:12). Thus, because of the enmity of the Jews, the right of Jesus to the throne of David (Ezek. 21:25-27; Luke 1:32), which was denied Him in life (John 19:15), was acknowledged before all men in the hour of His death (John 19:20-22). "This same Jesus" (Acts 1:11) shall return to the earth and "build again the tabernacle of David, which is fallen down" (Acts 15:16) and "reign over the house of Jacob for ever" (Luke 1:33), and "all people, nations, and languages" shall serve Him (Dan. 7:14).

II. The Son of God Is Reviled. (Vv. 39-44.) Just as His Kingship was emphasized by the accusation put upon the cross, so was His divine Sonship revealed by the mocking voices of His accusers. "If thou be the Son of God, come down from the cross," was the challenge of the Jews. It was His divine origin and authority they questioned. When He comes again the same people that mocked His claims shall cry, "This is the Lord; we have waited for him, we will be glad and rejoice in his salvation."—Isa. 25:9.

III. The Savior of Men Dies on the Cross. (Vv. 45-50.) Our Lord was crucified because He claimed to be the King of the Jews. He was reviled because He said He was the Son of God. He died because He was all He claimed to be and infinitely more than His accusers or even His friends of that period realized that He could be. For He was not only the King of the Jews and the Son of God, but the Redeemer of the world from sin and death. As splendid as were His accomplishments when He was first here, as glorious as are His victories in this age, these achievements will be eclipsed in magnitude by the service He is to render in the ages that are to come!

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"Looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith; who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God."—Heb. 12:2.

It was not an easy thing for Jesus to ensure as He did, but He knew there was joy before Him and no doubt He kept His mind on the future rather than on His sufferings. It was a shame, a disgrace to be hung on the cross, but He endured it all to obtain the joy which God had in store for Him. He succeeded and God raised Him from the dead and set Him at His own right hand.

Jesus is the beginning and end of our faith. It is through Him that we can go to the Father. He stands before us an example, a pattern for us to live by. He gave His life on the cross for you and for me providing we look to Him and make our calling and election sure. It is worth the effort. Try it and be convinced.—L. A. R.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

The cross

- became the way of salvation;
- means life to some, death to others;
- is not easy to carry;
- comes before the crown;
- brings temporary reproach; then follows eternal joy.

If. The "if" of doubt and tempting was just as big at the time of the crucifixion as it is today. Man "without faith and hope" suggested to Christ what He should do to prove His claims. This same spirit prevails today. Why does God do thus? or why doesn't He do this? It is a modern method of mockery. There is no faith connected with the "if" of doubt or unbelief.

Sufferings Increased. The sufferings of Christ were not eased or in any way relieved by the multitude, but taunt was added to insult and pain to agony. When He thirsted, He was given vinegar to drink. How oftentimes today when opportunity affords the privilege of helping some one in need we turn a deaf ear and present a cold heart. "Do good unto all men" will be a service well pleasing to the Father and a spring of blessings to the doer. It is a sin of no small degree to withhold help when it is within our power to ease the pain or soothe the wounded. A cup of cold water given to a deserving soul in the name of Christ will not escape the attention of the One who is touched by the feelings of our infirmities.—C. E. R.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULTS

Calvary

"My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" Many sermons have been preached with these words as a text. Many conjectures have been advanced as to the true import of these words. It is usually considered that God forsook our Savior when He took upon Himself the sin of the world and that Jesus cried at the time of His removal. This would hardly be in keeping with other facts of Scripture. God never forsakes the sinner who turns to Him, much less would He forsake His Son who was but carrying out His (God's) expressed will.

Dr. George M. Lamsa, a Bible scholar from Kurdistan who speaks the Aramic language spoken by our Savior, and who, therefore, has access to the untranslated original Scriptures, states that what Jesus really said was: "My God, my God, this is my destiny—for this I was kept." The word "lama" (why) of the Authorized Version should be "lmana" which means "for this." "Sabachthani" is a form of the verb "to keep."

It is commonly thought that Jesus quoted Psalm 22:1, but in this Psalm the word "sabachthani" does not occur. We do find the word "azabthani" which is properly translated "forsaken."

This interpretation of Jesus' words would reveal that He had accepted and finished the task which fully qualified Him as God's Christ. Calvary was not His defeat but His triumph. The forces of evil were never farther from victory than when they nailed Jesus to the cross of Calvary.—H. A. S.

PRIMARY CLASS

Memory Verse: "THIS IS JESUS THE KING OF THE JEWS."

The day had now come when Jesus was to be nailed to the cross. The soldiers took Him into the governor's house. Here they stripped off His clothes and put a scarlet robe on Him. They made a crown out of thorns and placed it on His head. They put a reed in His hand. Then, worst of all, they made fun of Him by pretending to worship Him. They bowed before Him and mocked Him and said, "Hail, King of the Jews." They even spit upon Him and took the reed and smote Him on the head. They took off His robe now and put His own clothes back on and took Him out to be crucified.

He was taken out to Golgotha. Here He was nailed to the cross and the cross was set up. Above His head was written these words, "THIS IS JESUS THE KING OF THE JEWS."

Here Jesus hung until He died. After His death He was taken from the cross and placed in Joseph's of Arimathaea tomb.

How sad they were to see one so good and true die on the cross. But just wait, in our next lesson we will learn what happened three days later.—V. C. T.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CONFERENCE DATES

Minnesota State Conference at St. Cloud,	June 14 to 17
Annual June Meeting at Brush Creek Church near Tiptecanoe City, Ohio	June 3 to 10
Illinois Bible School and Con- ference at Oregon,	July 31 to Aug. 12
General Conference at Oregon, Illinois,	July 31 to Aug. 12
Iowa Conference at Waterloo,	Aug. 21 to 26

NORTHWESTERN IOWA

According to a report received from Mrs. Anna Boyanovsky, services are to be held in northwestern Iowa as follows: June 3, at the residence of Arthur Carlson, near Marathon; June 17, at the residence of Anna Fales, Storm Lake; July 1, at the residence of Harold Smith, near Varina; July 15, at the residence of Sam Titus, near Varina.

BRUSH CREEK CHURCH OF GOD

Final plans are being made for our annual June Meeting June 3 to 10. Daily Bible study classes will convene at 2:00 p. m., and preaching service will begin at 7:45. Bro. Patrick will conduct lessons on The Two Covenants for the senior class, and the writer will give lessons on Prophecy in the Psalms for the young people's class. There will be classes for children.

Bro. and Sr. Lapp of Ripley, Ill., will be present for at least a part of the meeting, and will be called upon for service. We also expect Sr. Patrick to accompany Bro. Patrick. Any others from a distance who can come are cordially invited. Drop us a card at 243 N. 2nd St., Tiptecanoe City, Ohio.

Bro. Patrick will deliver sermons upon the following subjects: The World Pointing to the Coming of Christ, The Antichrist, The Jew in God's Economy, The Church, Nature Pointing to Proof of the Existence of God, and The Beatitudes.

Pray for the exaltation of truth and growth of the Lord's people in these meetings.

Sydney E. Magaw, Pastor.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

Bro. Cecil Smead, pastor at Blanchard, together with his sister Ruth and their mother was a brief caller at the pastor's home May 22. They were en route to Indiana, and Bro. Smead expected to be gone from his Blanchard charge about two weeks.

Sr. Edna Carpenter has been appointed chairman of the Children's Day program, and this event is being prepared for as a joint Sunday school and church event on the lawn, as last year.

The deacons are engineering some lawn improvements at the church, having some black dirt hauled, and preparing for seeding and beautifying.

Sr. Georgie Shepherd is spending a couple of weeks visiting friends in northern Ohio.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

BLANCHARD, MICHIGAN

The first Sunday in May the pastor preached at the town hall near Bro. Emery Toogood's home near Big Rapids. The message was on "Life Only Through Christ at His Second Coming." The people were very much interested.

Vacation has begun for Bro. Toogood's school, and so he will be home for awhile. We will miss him very much from the Shepard Gospel Mission and from the Blanchard church. He has always assisted with enthusiasm in all the activities of the church, Sunday school, Berean society, and choir. We pray God's blessing on him.

The pastor's mother and sister, who have been in Chicago the past two months, spent the third week in May at Blanchard. We enjoyed their presence very much, and especially so since Sr. Hammond (the pastor's mother), and Sr. Cummings of Flint were guests of honor at the Mother's Day program.

The many friends and relatives of Mrs. Maggie Welch of Belding will be saddened to learn that she died May 17. She was laid to sleep in Decker Cemetery to await the Master's call. She was the aunt of Bro. Almon Kelley, Blanchard church elder.

The Brick Church has had a new coat of paint on its ceiling, the gift of the Blanchard Sunday school.

Plans are under way for an outdoor Sunday school and picnic for the Wyman Gospel Mission. We plan to have a baptismal service also.

The pastor is away in Kokomo, Ind., for special services in the church there.

C. A. Smead, Pastor.

CORVALLIS, OREGON

The Bible study class of the Corvallis church has completed a study of the first eight chapters of Revelation. We feel fortunate in having Bro. J. C. Wilson with us at our last meeting to conduct a review. He also gave a discourse on Sunday evening on "The Body of Christ."

Bro. Maurice Kerr and wife have moved to Klammath Falls, their new headquarters.

We were saddened by the news of the death of Bro. George Alldridge, whom we had learned to love through his writings in this paper. Our heartfelt sympathy goes out to the family and to the church which has lost a faithful brother. We find great comfort in these words of another faithful believer in God, "If a man die, shall he live again? all the days of my appointed time will I wait, till my change come. Thou shalt call, and I will answer thee: thou wilt have a desire to the work of thine hands."

Mr. and Mrs. Hal Gross (nee Sr. Evelyn Kerr) departed Monday for San Francisco, where they will visit Mr. Gross' brother and family. They will sail soon for Honolulu and the Hawaiian Islands on a pleasure trip and may decide to spend two months abroad.

Plans are being completed for the annual Northwestern Conference. Watch the paper for announcement of dates.

Gladys Barber.

ANDERSON - CLARK

Elder J. H. Anderson of Michigantown, Ind., wishes to announce the marriage of his daughter, Maggie, to Orville Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Clark of Frankfort, Ind., which took place Sunday, May 20, at the Church of God near Hillisburg, the bride's father officiating.

The bride looked charming in white; the bridegroom wore gray.

The bridal couple was accompanied by the bride's brother and sister, Harold and Pearl Anderson. Mrs. Otto Dick of Kempton played Mendelssohn's "Wedding March," while the bridal party took its place in front of the altar and during the ceremony. The single ring ceremony was used.

The church was attractively decorated with ferns and bridal wreaths. The bridegroom is employed at the Indiana Public Service Company. The bride has been a member of the Church of God for the past twelve years.

Pearl Anderson.

REFERRED TO OUR CONTRIBUTORS

To the Editor of The Herald:

If there is space in your paper for the answer to the question I'm sending you, and if God so wills that the question should be asked and answered there, will you print it in your paper? I have prayed God earnestly about sending in this question and am led to do as I am doing. May God see fit to use some one to answer this question in a way that will bring satisfaction to all who honestly ask the question of themselves and of others.

Why are so many Christians poor financially when God has promised His people material prosperity? This question has been put to me time and again and I must admit that most professed Christians, I know, are poor in this world's goods. According to the Word of God, this ought not to be. I believe the fault is all our own somewhere. We are not getting all out of God's Word that He intended we should get. We are not willing to pay the price and trust God for all or we'd have what God promises. It discourages the sincere non-believer, who really desires to know why most Christians are financially where they are. Will some one who is willing to let the Holy Spirit guide write an answer to this question which comes from honest hearts?

I have derived more good from The Restitution Herald than money could buy from any worldly material source and I thank God for all those who have put real spiritual articles in the paper to lead one onward and upward.

May God help those who write articles for The Restitution Herald to write in such a way that the words will sink way down deep in the hearts of the readers so they'll have a burning desire to live so close to God that the world can see they have been in close contact with God. That kind of living for all professed Christians would do more than we can imagine for the conversion of those still out of the fold. They must see something worth more than they are enjoying before they can see their way clear to follow in the Master's steps. I firmly believe it is the professed Christian's fault today that the world can't see.

Mrs. E. C. Olmstead.

OUT OF THE MAIL BAG

To the Editor of The Herald:

Your editorial, "Fellowship With God," in the May 1 issue of The Herald, is, in my opinion, one of the finest articles that has appeared therein, in many a long day.

As you say, our denomination has been on the defensive for its beliefs so long that those doctrines have come to be the main, and almost only, theme of sermon and printed word. That they are absolutely necessary, one does not for a moment deny, but one wonders, should they take preeminence over other great truths that are in the wonderful Book? One would be pretty safe in saying that no matter what church of our denomination one visited on Sunday, one would hear a sermon on "the mortality of man, the literal coming of Christ, or the future kingdom of God on the earth." It is necessary that one should know and understand these things, but is it wise that one should be called upon to listen to these, and little or nothing else, Sunday after Sunday? It is not my idea to criticize, other than in a constructive way. It is said that the movies of today are as they are because the people make little or no protest. Perhaps our sermon "themes" are as and what they are because the listeners make little or no comment, hence the pastor has no idea but what his listeners are quite satisfied. Yet, if one will engage others, here and there, in conversation, one finds that changes of subject would be welcome; but no such requests are made, so the pastor is perfectly justified in believing that he is giving his people what they need. The fault lies with our people, not with our pastors.

These are, and have been for several years back, times of stress and distress, and people need to be told and reminded of "the fellowship of God," the fellowship and brotherhood of Christ, and that both stand ready and willing to help in every time of need, that Christ is the "kind, affectionate, the sympathizing, the helpful Friend, Guide, and Comforter of our daily walk." Our people need to be taught how to pray and to worship, how to get and keep Christ in the heart, as well as to learn of how He is to establish His kingdom on earth. To me, the most important thing in life is to learn what God wants me to do TODAY, how He wants me to do it, and how to bring people to a knowledge that Christ is their Savior. What His plan is for hereafter is also necessary for me to know, that I may strive to do all I can to further His plan and purpose in my own little sphere. TODAY is the time we need to know how Christ will enter our hearts, how we can keep Him there, how we can call upon Him for comfort and guidance in our problem TODAY, and when the "Great Tomorrow" comes, He will see that we are taken care of, and have a further work to do in His great kingdom. We need to know how to pray, how to study His Word, to secure from it those words of comfort and guidance that will help us through these present troublous times, and those times that are before us. Those are the things that we are looking to our pastors for, if I have been rightly informed by those with whom I have discussed such matters. I discussed this with one good member, who countered with, "We are beyond the stage where milk satisfies us, we need strong meat." Quite true, but there are many young people in our congregations who do need "milk" and older ones, too, who would greatly benefit from a change of diet. I have been in the faith for some twenty-two years, and, with my family, was among the isolated ones for a number of years, only having the privilege of meeting in our own church two or three times a year, and I confess, to my own embarrassment, that it is only during the last two years that I have been able to make a public prayer, and even now I confess to my inability to offer up a prayer as I feel it should be offered. All I can do, is to do the best I can, but I have often wondered if it is not part of the duty of a pastor to instruct the young people, and the older ones, too, in prayer.

I urge every one of our Herald readers to preserve that May 1 copy of The Herald, and to read that editorial daily, till it sinks into the heart, especially the last two paragraphs. Teach us to appreciate that God is with and in us today, that He is a very present help in time of trouble, that we can talk to Him, not as some far-off Being, but as one who knows and understands our everyday language, as one who answers prayer. May our pastors not only explain the things that are to come, but give us something in the Sunday sermon that we can carry away with us, to cheer us, and upon which we may meditate and extract joy and comfort, during the week.

Arthur Gilbey.

BETWEEN YOU AND ME—

One of our most active young ministers has sent us an article which we shall publish in the near future. In a note accompanying his contribution he says, "You don't have to use the article unless it meets with your approval, but I want to do more writing as I believe it will improve my speaking." If more of our ministers, young and old, realized how much it does improve one's speaking, and also his arrangement of his sermon, to do a good deal of writing, even if he uses no notes in preaching, we are sure we would have much more original material for The Herald.

The engagement and approaching marriage (June 16) of Miss Margaret M. Ellis, daughter of the treasurer of the National Bible Institution, to Mr. Edward H. Berek of Detroit, Mich., was announced in Waterloo, Iowa, Saturday, May 19.

The first issue of "The Beacon," the local church bulletin published by C. E. Lapp, pastor of the churches at Ripley and Eldorado, Ill., has made its bow to the public. It is an attractive four-page folder, the outside pages containing church announcements and news of special interest to the congregations of Bro. Lapp, and the two inside pages are given over to a most helpful article on "How to Tithe and Why."

Tuesday evening, May 22, twenty-two church folks, friends, and neighbors surprised Bro. Harvey Krogh, Jr., at his home in Pearl City, Ill., with a goodly number of cans of vegetables and fruit and other things.

Miss Jessie M. Wilson has requested The Herald to announce her address is now 3531 Rhoda Ave., Oakland, Calif.

HERALD RECEIPTS

B. N. Berry (for self and another); Lottie E. Young (for another); Mrs. A. J. Eychaner; Jennie Salisbury (for self and another); O. F. Marsh; Glenn M. Birkey (for another).

CONTRIBUTIONS TO N. B. I.

J. Arthur Johnson	$ 2.75
Gertrude M. Logan	4.50
Lottie E. and Alice R. Young	15.00
Vera M. Lewis	10.00
Mr. and Mrs. Russell Harman	5.00

CONTRIBUTIONS TO DOLLAR-A-MONTH CLUB

Eva L. Page; Mr. and Mrs. M. Fetters; Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Sprinkle; Lois Hunt; Mae Mick; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Netts.

SPECIAL INDEBTEDNESS FUND

Previously reported paid	$1442.76
Lottie E. and Alice R. Young	10.00
Anonymous	5.00
Etta E. Elton	10.00
Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Eychaner	2.40
Jennie Salisbury	1.00
Mr. and Mrs. Charles Miller	50.00

Total paid	$1521.16
Pledges previously reported	294.09

Total pledges and contributions $1815.25

Let's
climb
the Ladder
to Success

$1800
$1700
$1600
$1500
$1400
$1300
$1200
$1100
$1000
$900
$800
$700
$600
$500
$400
$300
$200
$100

WHAT WAS JESUS' FIRST MISSION?

By Mrs. Alice Aken Price

Although the subject treated by Mrs. Price is pure speculation inasmuch as God knew that His Son would be rejected and laid His plans accordingly, The Herald presents the article for study by those who may be interested in theoretical possibilities of Christian philosophy.

REMEMBER the former things of old: for I am God, and there is none like me, declaring the end from the beginning, and from ancient times the things that are not yet done, saying, My counsel shall stand, and I will do all my pleasure."—Isa. 46:9, 10.

But when the fullness of the time was come God sent forth His Son, made of a woman, made under the law, to redeem them that were under the law, that we might receive the adoption of sons. Paul says Jesus was sent to redeem, or to pay the redemption price, through the sacrifice of Himself. He told His disciples, saying: "The Son of man must suffer many things, and be rejected of the elders and chief priests and scribes, and be slain, and be raised the third day."—Luke 9:22; Matt. 16:21; 17:23.

In His prayer to the Father He said: "I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do." Would Jesus have said, "I have finished the work," if He had not completed the task? No, Jesus knew just what His work consisted of, and when it was done.

In Luke 18:31 He said, "Behold, we go up to Jerusalem, and all things that are written by the prophets concerning the Son of man shall be accomplished." Isaiah 53; Psalm 22. The "all things" concerned His suffering which He was to endure for the sins of the people, that through death He might deliver them who through fear of death had been all their lifetimes subject to bondage (Heb. 2:14, 18).

He said the Son of man must go as it was written of Him, but His disciples were slow to understand, and asked Him, saying: "Lord, wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?" He told them, saying: "It is not for you to know the times or the seasons, which the Father hath put in his own power." And after His resurrection He reproved them and said: "O fools, and slow of heart to believe all that the prophets have spoken: ought not Christ to have suffered these things, and to enter into his glory?"—Luke 24:25, 26. Then He opened their understanding, and expounded unto them the scriptures concerning Himself.

But He did not tell them anywhere that if they would accept Him He would set up the kingdom and be their King at that age: He did say, in verse 46, "Thus it is written, and thus it behoved Christ to suffer, and to rise from the dead the third day: and that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in his name beginning at Jerusalem." Mark 16:15, 16: "And he said unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned." They were to preach to all nations, to the Gentiles as well as to the Jews, but they were slow of heart to understand the Scriptures until after Jesus arose from the grave and "opened their understanding."

Paul's letter to the Hebrews makes it very plain concerning Christ's first work, and that He is now our mediator or high priest (Heb. 3:14-16; 7:11-21; 10:4-16). "For it is not possible that the blood of bulls and goats should take away sins. Wherefore when he cometh into the world, he saith, Sacrifice and offering thou wouldest not, but a body hast thou prepared me: in burnt offerings and sacrifices for sin thou hast had no pleasure."

An everlasting kingdom would of necessity need an immortal king. And in answer to Pilate's question Jesus said: "If my kingdom were of this world (or age), then would my servants fight, . . . but now is my kingdom not from hence."—John 18:36. Notice Jesus said, "My kingdom is not from hence." Why? Because if He established His kingdom then He could not "through death" win the triumphant victory over death and the grave; and, too, His blood could not seal the "last covenant" as it was written of Him. Also, He could not have redeemed the people from under the curse, or bondage, wherein they were placed by Adam's and Eve's disobedience.

MORE CHRISTLIKE

By Mrs. Charlotte Hoskins

HOW easy it is for us to see the other fellow's faults; but how hard to see our own. It almost seems as if we are farsighted at times, for we can see that which is away from us, or in some one else, better than we can see that which is in our own selves.

Have you ever noticed, though, that the faults we see first in the other fellow are our own worst faults? At least I've found it so with myself. So I wonder if, when we start to criticize the other fellow, it wouldn't be a good idea to examine ourselves to see if we don't have the same fault. Also let's ask ourselves the question, "Will it do any harm to this person or will it do him good?" If it will do him good, go ahead and say it. If it will harm him, it is much better unsaid.

Also, "Do I know this to be an absolute truth?"—If we don't, let's be careful, lest we bring ourselves into condemnation. Rather than criticize the other fellow's mistakes let's take them unto ourselves and try to profit by them. And rather than talk about him, talk to him and tell him of the better way. Wouldn't that be more Christlike? And isn't that what we're all striving for? So let's first take the beam out of our own eye before we try to take the mote out of our brother's eye.—The Morning Star.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 23

OREGON, ILLINOIS, JUNE 5, 1934

NUMBER 36

A Study of Mark's Gospel

A SERIES of lessons based on one Gospel record, such as that of Mark, which is the basis of our lessons during the first half of 1933, is necessarily different from a series that embraces a survey of all four records. In such a study we may worthfully note some of the special characteristics of the particular Gospel under consideration. In order to do this it is well to be familiar with the writer of this Gospel, his objective, his associations, his inspiration, and even something of his career as a missionary of the faith.

The name of the writer is not mentioned in the Gospel itself. He shows a self-effacement in his wish to center the reader's attention wholly on the Lord Jesus, and in so doing sets a worthy example for the leaders of the church today. He keeps himself entirely in the background and exalts the Lord Jesus Christ above all.

It is necessary for us to consult some of the early church historians and other writers to learn the author of this record, and to understand why his name is rightly given in the oldest manuscripts now in existence. The early post-apostolic church writers claim that this Gospel was written by Mark under the guidance of the Apostle Peter. Papias says that John the Presbyter called Mark, Peter's hermeneut. Just what is meant by that term is uncertain. Some claim that Peter gave the record in the Aramaic language, and that Mark rendered it in Greek. Others said this means that the gospel message which Peter gave orally was put into writing by Mark. In either event the Gospel would have the apostolic witness of Peter, and the writer would have the inspired guidance of the Holy Spirit. It is interesting to note that Justin Martyr quoted passages from the Gospel of Mark, stating that they were from the "Memoirs of Peter." This occurred early in the second century.

Included in the testimony of the early church concerning the authorship of this Gospel, we have the statement by Irenaeus, who lived at the time of Justin Martyr. He not only mentions and quotes from this Gospel, but likewise calls Mark its author. All the ancient testimony is in full agreement with this position regarding John Mark as the author of this Gospel.

Wherein the authorship, purpose, evidence, and other important facts are given consideration for the student of the Bible by Frederick J. Gielow, Jr., M. A., B. D. Taken by special permission from The Standard Bible Teacher, copyrighted.

Another point mentioned by the leaders in the early church, concerning this Gospel, is that Mark "wrote down accurately, but not in order." For this reason the student need not be disturbed by the chronology of Mark, since Mark presented events for effect, as did Peter in his preaching, and did not strive to follow a rigid chronological order. In making a study of the exact sequence of events in the life of our Lord, it is necessary for the student to take into consideration the records as given by all four of the Gospel writers.

The writer is generally called John Mark. Sometimes he is referred to by his Jewish name, John; at other times he is referred to by his Roman surname, Mark. His mother's name was Mary. She lived in Jerusalem, and her home was a meeting place for the disciples and the apostles. A relation similar to that between Paul and Timothy existed between Peter and Mark. Each of these apostles called his understudy "my son." In his letter to the Colossians, the Apostle Paul states that Mark was a cousin of Barnabas.

The life of the writer is portrayed in the Acts, and by references in some of the apostolic Epistles. The first mention made of Mark concerns his return from Jerusalem to Antioch with Paul and Barnabas. A few years later he accompanied Paul and Barnabas as a minister on their first missionary journey. With them he visited Cyprus, which was the native land of Barnabas. The Apostle then proceeded from Cyprus to the mainland, and when they arrived at Perga in Pamphylia, Mark left their company, returning to his home in Jerusalem. In the record of the book of Acts, no reason is given for this action on the part of Mark. Whatever the reason might have been, it seems that Barnabas had a better appreciation and understanding of it than Paul had, as is indicated by later developments in the relationship between these three great leaders in the early church.

(Please turn to Page Nine)

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879.

G. Eldred Marsh, Editor

Two Dollars per Year

Paul C. Johnson, Associate Editor

"They shall speak of the glory of thy kingdom, and talk of thy power; to make known to the sons of men his mighty acts, and the glorious majesty of his kingdom."

THE EDITOR'S PRAYER

MOST holy Father, yet once again we approach unto Thee to express our gratitude for the rich blessings that have come from Thy hand in the past. We thank Thee, O God, for health and strength, for food and shelter and raiment, for temporal rulers who grant to us the privilege of worshipful assembly and free access to Thy Word. In addition to all these things we would glorify Thee for our spiritual inheritance in Christ Jesus our Lord. Grant unto us, we pray, a constant realization of His spiritual presence in our lives. As we meet in our great state and national conferences may we make devotion to Thee and to Thy cause the chief object of every service. May we reconsecrate ourselves unto Thee without reserve. Keep us watchful, prayerful, and attentive to Thy Word at all times. Create within us clean hearts and renew right spirits within us that we may remain humble and serviceable unto Thee until the Lord comes.

REVOLUTION, EVOLUTION, OR RESTITUTION

THE President of the United States said recently in answer to the critics of his Administration that the New Deal of which he is the sponsor was "Revolution without the R." In other words the Chief Executive characterized his policy as evolutionary, rather than revolutionary. Evolution means the development, or opening up, of something that previously existed in a less highly cultivated state, while revolution describes a radical overturning of existing institutions and their replacement with a system or order that is entirely new.

That the world is facing momentous economic and political changes is certainly apparent. So far as statesmen can foresee but two paths lie before them from which they may choose, the ones suggested by the President's words—that of Revolution and that of Evolution. Some nations, like Russia for example, have already chosen the former and discarded almost every vestige of their historic political systems and established in their stead new and unique orders. Other countries, as Germany, Austria, and Italy, have elected to follow a somewhat less radical course, satisfying themselves with the evolving out of the older economies what they believe to be improved forms of rul-ership. To accomplish this purpose these latter nations have broadened the functions and centralized the authority of their governments.

The revolutionary and the evolutionary groups of economic and political reformers, however widely they may differ on many points of policy, have one basic principle upon which they are united. We observe that the attention of both parties is directed exclusively to the attempt to solve the economic problems of the world. Little or no thought apparently is being devoted to those great spiritual and moral questions that have arisen since the World War.

To the materialistic mind of the modern world (if the modern world took sufficient interest in the matter to think about it), it would appear strange indeed that the Bible gives so little attention comparatively to the subject of economics. The political-religionist of today only by a wide stretching of the Scriptures can find in them support and encouragement for any existing political system. The teaching of the Word of God just does not fit into the scheme of man's thinking. The gospel plan for world recovery is entirely foreign to any reformatory purposes now being considered by the politicians of any party.

God speaks neither of revolution nor of evolution. He does speak, however, most hopefully of restitution! And this idea is quite different in concept and in purpose from any recovery program dreamed of by the statesmen of the world. The plans of man naturally enough are of human origin and limited in their scope and power of accomplishment to the wisdom and power of man. On the other hand, restitution is the product of divine mind, and is as infinite in its possibilities of achievement as the omnipotence of God.

Revolution has failed in the past. It will fail in the future. Evolution has proved ineffectual in the past, and will without a doubt be no more successful in the future. But restitution, depending for its success not upon the weak efforts of men, but upon the resistless power of almighty God, is sure of accomplishment in every detail.

Included within this supernal program of world recovery are plans for the universal regeneration of the earth, the enrichment of the soil, the restoration to every suffering man and woman of health and bodily strength, the establishment and maintenance of universal peace, and the deepening of humanity's spiritual apprehension and appreciation of God's greatness and goodness and love!

God's House

By Emma C. Railsback

"These things write I unto thee, hoping to come unto thee shortly: but if I tarry long, that thou mayest know how thou oughtest to behave thyself in the house of God, which is the church of the living God, the pillar and ground of the truth."—1 Timothy 3:14, 15.

IN the Apostle's instruction to Timothy in the above scripture, he makes the positive, concise statement that the church of God is God's house. This is the house not made with hands, the building which is being fitly framed together, growing unto an holy temple in the Lord, builded upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ Himself being the chief corner stone (Eph. 2:19-21). It is the same building to which the Savior refers in Matthew 16:18: "Upon this rock I will build my church." In Hebrews 3:1-6 the Apostle compares the house builded by Christ to the one builded by Moses, but he states emphatically that He that built all things is God.

God through Moses builded the house of Israel. They were the natural descendants of Abraham through Isaac, the heir of promise, and Jacob the prevailer. They became a great people while sojourning in the land of Egypt. Through Moses, God called them forth and entered into covenant relationship with them. They were offered the priesthood in the kingdom of God, and Moses verily was faithful in all his house (Israel) as a servant (of God) for a testimony (witness) of those things which were to be spoken after; but the word preached (the gospel) did not profit them (Israel), not being mixed with faith in them that heard it. So while Moses was faithful, his house was not faithful. Jesus came unto His own, but His own received Him not; therefore seeing they counted themselves unworthy of eternal life, God turned to the Gentiles to take out of them a people for His name.

But Christ was a son (of God) over His own house, whose house are we, if we hold fast the confidence and rejoicing firm unto the end. As God has builded the house of Israel through Moses, He is and has been building the church of God through Christ.

The martyr Stephen speaks of the church which was in the wilderness (Acts 7:38), the "ecclesia" (Grey), called out ones, called out from unbelieving Israel, they for whom the Apostle Paul had great heaviness and sorrow of heart, whom he tried to provoke to emulation that he might save some of them. And it was "not as though the word of God had taken none effect" (Rom. 9:6); for some did believe and received a good report through faith, having seen Christ in the types and shadows, having believed the promises of God, been persuaded of them, and embraced them and confessed that they were pilgrims and strangers who had received not the promise, God having provided that they should not be made perfect without those from among the Gentiles, when the fullness of the Gentiles be come in.

And so they are not all Israel which are of Israel, said Paul, for the Word of God hath taken some effect, or effect on some, and they have become new creatures in Christ Jesus; they have left Moses' house and entered Christ's house; they are no longer children of the bondwoman, but have become children of the free woman. They have come out from Israel. Some students get the impression that those who come out are Israel, spiritual Israel, and the unbelieving are no longer to be called Israel; but this view nullifies many Scripture statements, and is not a logical conclusion to be drawn from the Apostle's reasoning in Romans 9:1-7 and 11:14-26.

"He that built all things is God."—Heb. 3:4. "And ye are Christ's; and Christ is God's."—1 Cor. 3:23. So the building is being fitly framed together as in the construction of Solomon's temple (1 Kings 6:7); the stones are being made ready before they are brought together; they are being chiseled, hammered, and polished, so that when the assembling time comes they will all fit perfectly into God's house.

In John 14:2, 3 we find another phase of Christ's work in the building of God's house. "In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also." Keeping in mind that the Father's house here is the church, let us try to grasp the meaning of "many mansions" to be found therein. The Greek word for "mansions" is monai, and we find it also in verse 23, where it is translated "abode," meaning abiding place. The many abiding places in God's house are described by the Apostle in 1 Corinthians 12 under a different figure of the same group of called out ones constituting the body of Christ. There is one body, and it hath many members. As the body is made up of many members, the house of God is made up of many stones, lively stones, the Apostle Peter terms them, which are built up a spiritual house, an holy priesthood (1 Peter 2:5); so these many mansions must be these same lively stones being fitly framed together. We sometimes feel that perhaps the translators might have held to an erroneous doctrine, causing them to employ the word "mansion" in preference to "abiding place," and yet when we look deeply into the subject, we find that a mansion is a large, handsome dwelling. Then looking at the high calling of God in Christ Jesus we see that God is offering to these called out ones the highest, most beautiful and glorious position in the kingdom of God: that of being heirs of God and joint heirs with Christ, kings and priests to sit with Christ in His throne, having power over the nations, being clothed in white raiment.

How wonderful that God has offered the faithful such an exalted position, such a beautiful mansion; and Jesus sought to comfort the sorrowing disciples with the promise of future power and glory before He left them to take up the next phase of His redemptive work, that of preparing a place for them, of becoming the advocate (1 John 2:1), the high priest of good things to come (Heb. 9:11), the high priest over the house of God (Heb. 10:21), sitting at the right hand of God until His foes become His footstool, interceding on behalf of these called out ones, the stones which are being made ready for the great spiritual temple of God, who will become a pillar in the temple of God (Rev. 3:12). Enter God's family; take His name. What an exalted position, what a wonderful mansion! There truly can be no greater.

Prophetic utterances coupled with present world conditions indicate that this "house" is nearing completion. May the times of refreshing soon come from the presence of the Lord and may He soon send Jesus Christ to begin the times of restitution, when these called out ones will share with Him in the completion of His work, His honor, and His glory. Even so, come, Lord Jesus.

Deacon Philip

ONE of the remarkable characteristics of the writings of the New Testament is the briefness of its narratives, which, at the same time, are so comprehensive as to reveal in a few words events and personalities of the greatest importance. Is it a divine gift enjoyed only by these writers, but is not met with in other writings? We leave the answer to the reader. An instance of this peculiarity is found in the book of Acts, in the account of Deacon Philip. His entire qualifications for the office are given in a dozen words—"Of honest report, full of the Holy Ghost, full of wisdom." Subsequent history indicates that his equipment was complete. He was nominated and elected by the "whole multitude" and consecrated by the apostles. These few words indicate what Philip had done up to that time. He had studied all the practical problems of Christianity carefully and met the tests fully. The seven deacons, of whom he was one, began work at once, and we read: "The word of God increased, and the number of disciples multiplied in Jerusalem greatly; and a great company of the priests were obedient to the faith." One of the essentials for good evangelistic work on the field is to have good deacons in the churches. It is a great office.

About a year after the above-mentioned events, the disbelieving Jews succeeded in breaking up the congregations in Jerusalem, and "they that were scattered abroad went every where preaching the gospel." "Then Philip went down to the city of Samaria, and preached Christ unto them." Please emphasize the word "them," for we read that the people with one accord gave heed to the things that Philip spoke. Acts 8. Beyond all question this deacon had become an accomplished preacher. Yes; the people of Samaria had heard of Jesus one time when He was down that way. Since then, however, that Jesus had died, had been placed in a tomb the door of which was sealed, watched by a guard of soldiers—but He arose from the dead.

Philip was preaching the Christ of the resurrection, the Savior of men. The apostles heard of it and sent Peter and John down to confirm the news. It was true, and the Lord honored the preaching, and the Holy Ghost came to Samaria. Then the angel of the Lord (whoever it was) sent Philip the deacon down to the south, on the Gaza road from Jerusalem. Queen Candace's chamberlain saw him on foot and stopped. Then the Spirit said to Philip: "Join the chariot," and he did so. What an opportunity! The man was reading in Isaiah: "He was led as a sheep to the slaughter." Said he, "Of whom speaketh the prophet?" Then Philip "preached unto him Jesus," and he was baptized and went on his way rejoicing. Tradition tells us that the Coptic Church of Africa was an outcome of this conversion. Philip, however, went over to Azotus and on and "preached in all the cities till he came to Caesarea."

Another twenty-five years passes. The gospel has been carried east to Persia, to Babylonia. Churches are already to be found along the great trade routes through Asia Minor, Macedonia, Greece, and at the ports of Italy, probably also in Spain and the south of Britain. Roman armies are now moving into the Holy Land to preserve order among the bigoted and rebellious Jews, and not long hence to destroy Jerusalem. Paul, the Apostle to the Gentiles, is on his way with his companions, going from Ephesus to observe Passover at Jerusalem; and they came to Caesarea and were entertained at the home of Philip—now called "the evangelist." Here the former deacon was in charge of the churches in that vicinity, assisted by his four unmarried daughters, all of whom were prominent teachers (Acts 21). Not long after this, so church history relates, Philip and three of his daughters moved to Hierapolis in Asia.

The history of Deacon Philip closes at this place. In the churches in Asia he carried on the work of an evangelist begun fifty years before until an advanced age. Here he died and was buried in the full hope of the resurrection. What a church there would be today were all deacons to emulate his example! What a benediction it would be to suffering humanity!—George H. Dewing in The World's Crisis.

The Sleep of Death

"Lest I sleep the sleep of death."—Psalm 13:3.

THE doctrine of the sleep of the dead is scriptural, it being named in no less than sixty-five texts. We now wish to see how the term "sleep" is used in this connection, and note the following:

1. It is applied only to man. One apparent exception is found in Psalm 76:6, "Both the chariot and horse are cast into a dead sleep." Taking this literally as it reads here, the chariot sleeps in death as well as the horse; but the text is translated by Rotherham, "Stunned are the horsemen," which makes it plainer. The words "cast into a dead sleep" are but one word in the Hebrew, we are told, and the Hebrew word means, "to stun, i. e., stupefy (with sleep or death)" (Strong's Concordance). In the case referred to the horsemen are stunned, or stupefied, with the sleep of death.

2. It is applied to both good and bad men. If the reader will turn to the sixty-five texts which have been noted he will see that not only David, Asa, and Hezekiah, each "slept with his fathers," but also each of the wicked kings, Jeroboam, Rehoboam, and Ahab. Whatever the term means when applied to one class, it must have the same meaning when applied to the other class. One class may awake "to everlasting life," and the other "to shame and everlasting contempt" (Dan. 12:2), but in the meantime both classes are asleep in death.

3. It is applied to the man, not merely to the man's body. So many will say, "It is not the real man who sleeps, but only the man's body. The real man goes to heaven and is as much alive as ever, while the body sleeps in the dust." But the Bible never makes this distinction. "Our friend Lazarus sleepeth," said Jesus; "but I go, that I may awake him out of sleep." Had Lazarus not been raised up, his body would have soon gone back to dust, and the man Lazarus would have slept on. "We never read," says Constable, "that man sleeps as to his body, while he is wakeful and conscious as to his soul." "It is not called 'the sleep of the body,'" says Bullinger, "as many express it; or 'the sleep of the soul.' Scripture knows nothing of either expression. Its language is, 'David . . . fell on sleep' (Acts 13:36), not David's body or David's soul." The nearest approach to the thought of the body sleeping is found in Matthew 27:52, "And many bodies of the saints which slept arose." But it is plain that while the bodies of the saints arose, they were the "bodies of the saints which slept," the term "sleep" being applied to the saints.

4. The term is a figure of speech, representing death. "They are as a sleep."—Psalm 90:5. The literal use of the term "sleep" is limited to the living. It is an experience we all know something about. But when applied to the dead it is always used figuratively. It is used ten times in the Scriptures literally before it is used figuratively in Deuteronomy 31:16. Jesus makes use of the figure in preference to the literal and harsher term "death" when speaking of those whom He is about to raise from the dead; but that He uses it simply in a figurative sense is evident from the explanation given in connection with Lazarus. Says Bullinger: "The Lord first uses the figure, and says, 'Lazarus sleepeth'; and afterwards, when He speaks 'plainly,' He says, 'Lazarus is dead.'" When Jesus said, "Our friend Lazarus sleepeth; but I go, that I may awake him out of sleep" (John 11:11), He was speaking figuratively; when He said, "Lazarus is dead" (v. 14), and, "Thy brother shall rise again" (v. 23), He was speaking plainly. Paul writes of those "which sleep in Jesus" (1 Thess. 4:14), meaning literally "the dead in Christ" (v. 16). They are not literally asleep, only figuratively. They are literally dead.

5. Why the figure is used. There is always a divine reason for figures of speech in the Scriptures. It is a matter of divine inspiration. In the first place, the figure "sleep" is a softer, sweeter term than the literal term "death," and helps to relieve death of its terrors. God might have said to Moses, "Thou shalt die and be buried in the ground," but how much easier for Moses to hear the words, "Thou shalt sleep with thy fathers"—"shalt lie down to sleep." "A beautiful euphemism for death" (Companion Bible). Now according to Webster, a euphemism is "a figure in which an agreeable or non-offensive word or expression is substituted for one that is harsh, indelicate, or otherwise unpleasant; a way of describing an offensive thing by an inoffensive expression; a mild name for something disagreeable."

Jesus and Paul made use of this beautiful figure; and we have the Christian word "cemetery," sleeping chamber, as contrasted with "necropolis," city of the dead. In the second place, there is a remarkable analogy between the sleep of the dead and the sleep of the living. There must be, else the figure would be inappropriate. That analogy must not include the thought of the dead being in reality only asleep in the sense of "taking a rest in sleep," as the disciples supposed with regard to Lazarus. The term would then cease to be a figure; but "Jesus said unto them plainly, Lazarus is dead." In order, however, for the term to have any meaning to us, there must be a likeness between that sleep which comes within the realm of our present daily experience and the experience death of which it is a figure.

We have no human authority as to what the death condition is. Men may speculate, but no one who has entered that realm has told us about it. The lips of Lazarus and others who have come back from the dead are sealed in so far as that experience is concerned. Only God can tell us what death is like, and our only revealed authority is the Bible. But we all know something about the experience of sleep, and the figure "sleep," which occurs so often in the Bible when death is referred to, will help us to understand something about that condition into which our friends have entered, and into which we, too, must enter if the procession is not halted soon by the coming of the great Life-Giver. Thus the great value of the figure, from which we may learn at least two things about the death which it illustrates:

First, it is a condition of unconsciousness and inactivity. To quote once more from Bullinger, "In normal sleep, there is no consciousness. For the Lord, therefore, to have used this word 'sleep' to represent the very opposite condition of conscious wakefulness, would have been indeed to mislead us. But, all His words are perfect; and are used for the purpose of teaching us, and not for leading us astray." Or as Archbishop Whately put it, "It must be allowed to be strange, that the word 'sleep' should so often be applied to the condition of the departed, if they are in a state of as lively consciousness and sensibility as before death, and in the actual perception of more unmixed pleasure and pain."—Future State. Not only does the figure of sleep teach that the dead are unconscious and inactive, but the same truth is taught emphatically and in literal language in more than one text of Scripture: Psalm 6:5—

"For in death there is no remembrance of thee." Psalm 146:4—"His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth: in that very day his thoughts perish." Ecclesiastes 9:5—"The dead know not any thing." Ecclesiastes 9:6—"Also their love, and their hatred, and their envy, is now perished." Ecclesiastes 9:10—"Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might; for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave, whither thou goest." See also Job 3:17-19; Psalm 115:17; Isaiah 38:18, 19.

Second, there is an awakening. This is true of literal sleep. The person who sleeps wakes up. And when the word is used as a figure of death, it suggests a resurrection. Both good and bad men sleep. Both classes must wake up. The figure of sleep is used only of the first, or temporal, death. We lie down to sleep, and the next thing we are conscious of, we are awakened, and arise to live forever or to be condemned to the second death from which there will be no awakening.

It was in view of the fact that He was about to raise her from the dead that Jesus said of the little girl, "She is not dead, but sleepeth." It was known that she was actually dead (Luke 8:52), as is also evident from the fact that "her spirit came again" (v. 55). We do not think for a moment that she was only asleep literally; but she was asleep figuratively, not dead forever.—Linden J. Carter in The Messiah's Advocate.

The Cross of Christ

By M. W. Lyon

OUT of the blackness of the midnight hour, silently, swiftly, relentlessly, stark tragedy descended upon a stricken population in the days of long ago. So long ago it is that most of us forget it and the grim lesson it teaches. It is probable that no scourge so terrible ever fell upon any other whole nation in all the history of man. For in every house, from the palace of the king upon his throne down to the slave dungeons, and even the very cattle stalls, there lay a corpse!

Yet in the midst of this all but universal plague, there was one spot immune. In the tents of Israel there was safety. For they had obeyed a certain commandment of the Lord, to take of the blood of a slain lamb and strike it upon the doors of their houses, and God's promise was, "When I see the blood, I will pass over your door, and will not suffer the destroyer to come in." Ex. 12:21-23. So Israel was saved by the blood that never-to-be-forgotten night. The lesson is too obvious to be escaped. Whether high or low, rich or poor, good or bad, none of these things availed—one thing alone mattered: was the blood there? And if it was not—woe to the inhabitants of that doomed house!

Now these things are not mere idle tales. Why did God require such a strange observance, and why did He inexorably condemn all those who failed of fulfilling it? We are plainly told (1 Cor. 10:11) it was for our learning, to teach a great lesson. What a flood of light it throws on that significant statement (1 Cor. 5:7), "Christ our passover is sacrificed for us." And what meaning there comes to such statements as these, of Christ and His apostles, "Whosoever believeth in him shall not perish." "No other name under heaven whereby we can be saved." "Without the shedding of blood there is no remission." "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved, but he that believeth not shall be damned."

This is the meaning of the cross of Christ. There was no other way for Him: there is none for you. As Egyptians perished without the passover blood, so will you perish without the blood of Christ. Does that saving blood safeguard eternal life for you? Look and see, and if not—oh, hasten to place it upon your life, for the midnight hour of judgment approaches!—Golden Rule News.

Who Is Lucifer?

By Harvey Krogh, Jr.

"How art thou fallen from heaven, O Lucifer, son of the morning!"—Isaiah 14:12.

WHEN we study a certain subject in the Bible it is always a wise plan to read the whole chapter in which the subject is found. A plan that is even better than this is to obtain an idea as to what the whole book is about and it will be much easier to understand the subject.

We find that Lucifer is mentioned only once as Lucifer in the Bible (in Isaiah 14:12). From a brief study of the book of Isaiah we will see that his prophecies concern Judah, Jerusalem, Israel, and some of the nations which come in contact with God's people.

Beginning with the first verse of Isaiah 14: "For the Lord will have mercy on Jacob, and will yet choose Israel, and set them in their own land: and the strangers shall be joined with them, and they shall cleave to the house of Jacob." Also, those who carried Israel captive will be Israel's captives and Israel shall rule over them.

In verse 3 we are told that something is going to come to pass in the day that the Lord gives His people rest from their sorrow and from their fear. That something that is to come to pass "in that day" is plainly told in verse 4. "Thou shalt take up this proverb against the king of Babylon." It seems that they are waiting a long time to take up a proverb against the king of Babylon. Israel is still scattered somewhat and God has not yet brought them (all twelve tribes) into their own land and freed them from their sorrow and from their fear. They haven't taken up that proverb against old Nebuchadnezzar yet and he has been dead close to 2,500 years.

Ah! but maybe this king of Babylon spoken of in Isaiah 14 is a different king of Babylon, since they are to wait till the restoration of their nation before they start this taunting saying (proverb).

Over in Revelation 18 we have a whole chapter of twenty-four long verses all devoted to the destruction of what is called "that great city Babylon." According to the first verse of Revelation all of the things in the book were future at the time of its writing, and we are certain that most of that prophecy is still future, although very soon to be fulfilled. A vivid description of that city is verse 16. "Alas, alas that great city, that was clothed in fine linen, and purple, and scarlet, and decked with gold, and precious stones, and pearls!"

Let us read a line of that triumph-song (proverb), in Isaiah 14:4: "How hath the oppressor ceased! the golden city ceased!" I wonder if Babylon against whose king is this proverb, and the Babylon of Revelation, are the same? If so, their kings may be the same and it remains for us to name the king of Babylon of the future and compare him with Isaiah's king of Babylon.

We believe the Antichrist is the king of the Babylon of Revelation 18. In the thirteenth chapter he is described as a beast having seven heads and ten horns. "And he opened his mouth in blasphemy against God, to blaspheme his name, and his tabernacle, and them that dwell in heaven." And all, both great and small, rich and poor, free and bond, are caused to receive a mark in their right hands, or in their foreheads: "And that no man might buy or sell, save he that had the mark, or the name of the beast, or the number of his name."

The beast or Antichrist seems to be an oppressor even as the king of Babylon of Isaiah 14. Now to continue this proverb: "The Lord hath broken the staff of the wicked, and the sceptre of the rulers. He who smote the people in wrath with a continual stroke, he that ruled the nations in anger, is persecuted, and none hindereth. The whole earth is at rest, and is quiet: they break forth into singing."—Isa. 14:5-7. When is the whole earth at rest? Not until "the beast," the Antichrist, "that man of sin," is slain by the King of kings and Lord of lords near the close of the great tribulation that is coming upon the earth (Rev. 19:16-20).

We shall read more of this proverb or taunting speech. "Thy pomp is brought down to the grave, and the noise of thy viols: the worm is spread under thee, and the worms cover thee." A picture of death? "How art thou fallen from heaven, O Lucifer, son of the morning! how art thou cut down to the ground, which didst weaken the nations! For thou hast said in thine heart, I will ascend into heaven, I will exalt my throne above the stars of God: I will sit also upon the mount of the congregation, in the sides of the north: I will ascend above the heights of the clouds; I will be like the most High."—Isa. 14:11-14.

Is this not almost identical with Paul's description in 2 Thessalonians 2:3-10? "Let no man deceive you by any means: for that day shall not come, except there come a falling away first, and that man of sin be revealed; the son of perdition; who opposeth and exalteth himself above all that is called God, or that is worshipped; so that he as God sitteth in the temple of God, shewing himself that he is God. . . . And now ye know what withholdeth that he might be revealed in his time. For the mystery of iniquity doth already work: only he who now letteth will let, until he be taken out of the way. And then shall that Wicked be revealed, whom the Lord shall consume with the spirit of his mouth, and shall destroy with the brightness of his coming: even him, whose coming is after the working of Satan with all power and signs and lying wonders, and with all deceivableness of unrighteousness in them that perish; because they received not the love of the truth, that they might be saved."

Continuing the proverb: "Yet thou shalt be brought down to hell, to the sides of the pit. They that see thee shall narrowly look upon thee, and consider thee, saying, Is this the man that made the earth to tremble, that did shake kingdoms . . . ?" Ah! Yes, he is only a man empowered by Satan. "That made the world as a wilderness, and destroyed the cities thereof; that opened not the house of his prisoners? All the kings of the nations, even all of them, lie in glory, every one in his own house." Yes, they are all neatly laid in their sepulchres; in honor they lie. "But thou art cast out of thy grave like an abominable branch, and as the raiment of those that are slain, thrust through with a sword, that go down to the stones of the pit; as a carcase trodden under foot. Thou shalt not be joined with them in burial." Why not joined with them in burial?

Revelation 19:20 tells us why: "And the beast was taken, and with him the false prophet that wrought miracles before him . . . These both were cast alive into a lake of fire burning with brimstone."

With the twenty-first verse of Isaiah 14 this proverb, taunting speech, or triumph-song against the king of Babylon is ended. It is not to be taken up until the day that God shows His mercy on Jacob and sets Israel in their own land, not until they are given rest from their sorrows and from their fears. The king of Babylon spoken of in Revelation is the beast or Antichrist, and Lucifer, which means "day-star" or "morning star," is only a taunting name for him.

Read the whole fourteenth chapter of Isaiah and see if the man called Lucifer is any more a man whose identity is questioned. Let us study and seek out these things for ourselves that we may be workmen that need not to be ashamed.

Nothing Will Be Withholden

THESE words were spoken by God of cooperation. We know the great works of the world are done only through cooperation of many workers guided by a master mind who has all the plans and blueprints for the task in hand. Many times in a gigantic work different units work on the same job, but all in unity. God gives us an example of the human body which is made up of many organs, but all work in harmony.

Now if the words of God about those intending to build a tower to reach unto heaven are true, and we know them to be; then just what will be withholden from the Church of God if we all cooperate in sending the message to a dying world? Surely when we have God's purpose in mind we will be much more successful, and instead of God confounding our method of cooperation, He will abundantly bless it.

We all have access to history, and know that never was there a time before when men's hearts were failing them for fear of the things coming on the earth. Never was there a time when the cities of the nations were tottering under a debt which they could not pay. Never was there a time when the nations of earth were struggling under a load of debt which could not be paid. Never was there a time when there was such an abundant amount of food, and yet so many millions of idle laborers who were unable to feed themselves or families. Never was there a time when nations were so well prepared for war, and struggling for mastery. Never was there a time when the ultra rich feared for their lives and those of their families as now. With kidnapping and robbery an everyday affair, the rich are beginning to reap the penalty as James 5 gives. Now that we see these things, can we look up and rejoice, knowing our redemption draweth nigh?

The Church of God recognizes the task God has given it to do; and we also recognize Jesus as the Head of the church to whom we should all go for wisdom to carry on the work orderly. He has given us a plan to follow in which all lines of work are coordinated.

We have many ministers in the field giving the third angel's message who cannot stay in the field without cooperation. This cooperation does not consist only in financial help. In Acts 12 we read of Peter in prison, with the Roman king intending to kill him to please the people. He was king in name, but slave in reality, as he wanted to please the people instead of using his kingly authority to see that justice was done. But consider what the church did to release Peter from the grip of a world Power. They prayed without ceasing! Prayed against the Roman nation's guards and soldiers. And who won? Read the wonderful account of it and see. That is what prayer can do today, and will do when we are in earnest in our work of spreading the message.

But although God will do His part when we ask Him, yet He has given us a part to act in order to get the blessing He is anxious to bestow upon us. And that part is in supporting the work. Man has carried many schemes in collecting taxes and revenues to sustain a government and business, but never has a system been devised so just as the tithing system. It calls for little when little has been gained and much when much has been gained.

The writer does not wish to make a hobby of the tithe and in every article bring to the reader's attention its benefits, as there are many other things that bring a blessing. But it is God's wish that we should all prosper and be in health. Now if it is His wish that we prosper, then should we not be interested enough in His work to do our just share? I have never seen a man or woman who covenanted with God, as Abraham did, to pay tithe but felt he was bountifully blessed; and if we make a freewill offering besides, the blessing may be more than our barns will hold. 2 Chronicles 16:9 reads, "For the eyes of the Lord run to and fro throughout the whole earth, to shew himself strong in the behalf of them whose heart is perfect toward Him." Our hearts cannot be perfect before Him if we disregard our fellow men and allow them to go without hearing a message of salvation.

We are living in turbulent times, and God said, through Paul, that men would try to draw others from the truth to them. A church that the devil leaves alone he has already in his grip, but when you find a church in which you find the prophecy of Paul fulfilled you may know Satan has not got that church, but is working to pull it to pieces so they cannot cooperate, for he knows also that there is nothing like cooperation in bringing work to a successful end.

Unity on all essentials of salvation reigns among us, and we ask our heavenly Father to guide in all things so we may merit the blessings promised to those who are striving to enter into the kingdom.—A. S. Christenson in The Bible Advocate.

A STUDY OF MARK'S GOSPEL

Continued from Front Page

When Paul started his second missionary tour, Barnabas wished to take Mark along, but Paul refused to let him go because on the former tour he had turned back. This resulted in a realignment in the evangelistic teams. Barnabas then took Mark to Cyprus, whereas Paul chose Silas as his traveling companion and proceeded to Asia Minor.

Years later the differences that appeared thus early in their missionary work were wiped away, and, when Paul was suffering his first imprisonment in Rome, Mark came to him. Later he returned to Asia Minor, and, when Paul was again arrested and was suffering his second Roman imprisonment, the great Apostle wrote to Timothy, his "son" in the Lord, to bring Mark (whom Peter called his "son" in the Lord) with him. From the writings of the church historian Eusebius, we note that, after the martyrdom of Peter and Paul in Rome, Mark went to Alexandria, where, after establishing the church, he likewise suffered martyrdom.

Where and when was the gospel written? Different scholars make different claims. The majority of ancient churchmen claim it was written in the city of Rome. Jerome says that Mark wrote the Gospel by request of the brethren in Rome. The great orator and preacher, Chrysostom claims it was written when Mark was in Alexandria. This would place it after the death of Peter and Paul, whereas, if it were written in Rome, it would most likely have been written prior to the death of Peter and Paul. Eusebius claims it was written during the third year of the Emperor Claudius, which would be A. D. 43.

Others place the date later. Those who declare it was written in Rome would most likely also declare that it was written while Peter and Paul were still alive. This would be about A. D. 63 or earlier. Those who claim that it was written after the death of the apostles, if they also insist that it was written at Rome, would have to place the date in the interval between the martyrdom of the apostles and the departure of Mark for Alexandria. It is easy to understand why Chrysostom would have claimed Alexandria as the place where it was written, in view of the claim that it was written after the death of Peter and Paul.

The claims of the radical modernistic scholars are so utterly far-fetched and motivated by modernistic prejudices and narrowness that they do not merit serious consideration. It is safe to say that the Gospel of Mark was written sometime between A. D. 60 and A. D. 70 at the city of Rome, or possibly at the city of Alexandria.

Another interesting point is the question "To whom?" To whom was the record written? The Gospel itself substantiates the view of tradition that it was written for the Gentiles, especially for those of the city of Rome. Jerome is in agreement when he declares that it was written at the request of the brethren at Rome.

There is internal evidence for this position. There is no reference made in the Gospel of Mark to Jewish laws, and when the writer refers to Jewish customs he explains their meaning. This would not have been done had the Gospel been addressed to the Jews or to those familiar with Jewish customs. For example, in Mark 7:3 we read, "The Jews eat not unless they wash their hands oft." In Mark 14:12 we read, "The passover was killed on the first day of the unleavened bread." Furthermore, he explains Aramaic and Jewish words that a Gentile reader might not understand, such as talitha cumi and corban. This would not have been necessary if addressed to Jewish readers.

There is a tradition which claims that the Gospel was written originally in the Latin language and later translated into Greek. To this point of view many of the Roman Catholic theologians formerly held. It was based on the fact that what is claimed to be a portion of the original manuscript on display at Venice was written in Latin, but this manuscript is no doubt a much later copy based on the translation into Latin and known as the Vulgate. At the time the Gospel was written, Greek was the language of the people. Latin was not used, even in the services of the church, until long after the Gospel was written, and then its use was introduced into the church first at Carthage.

In summarizing we might say that this Gospel is the first Gospel written; it was written by Mark, according to the testimony given by Peter and according to the inspired guidance of the Holy Spirit; it was written to the Gentiles at Rome, in the city of Rome, sometime between A. D. 60 and 70; it portrays Jesus as the miracle worker, the One with divine authority; it gives greater emphasis to the deeds of our Lord than to His teaching. Events are not given in their chronological order. In order to have a thorough survey of the life of our Lord, a study of all four Gospels would be necessary.

Abreast of the Times

Disarmament Conference Near Collapse.

"They shall speak lies at one table; but it shall not prosper: for the end shall be at the time appointed."—Daniel 11:27.

GENEVA, May 31.—Even the most enthusiastic and optimistic of the delegates to the international Disarmament Conference are forced to confess that unless some miracle occurs the conference must speedily collapse. One observer quotes Arthur Henderson of Great Britain, "the conference's official optimist," as dolefully asserting: "The clouds have never hung so low" as at the present time.

Evidently discouraged by the outlook for peace the nations of Europe together with Japan are engaging in a feverish military program that augurs little for the security of the world. The impending struggle is quite evidently approaching with great rapidity, "for the end shall be at the time appointed." No one but God knows the day and the hour when the dogs of war will again be unleashed to ravage the world for the last time. Watchfulness, prayer, consecration to the service of God, are indicated as the course for the Christian to pursue in these threatening days.

Drought Menace Growing Acute

"A land of drought, and of the shadow of death."—Jeremiah 2:6.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 31.—Deeply concerned over the spread of the devastating drought over the larger agricultural areas of the country the federal agencies are making frantic efforts to provide relief for the stricken farmers and to assure the nation against a serious shortage of food for the coming winter. Twenty-one states are now affected, ten of them acutely by the prolonged lack of rainfall. Several of the grain provinces of western Canada are likewise suffering from the same cause.

The situation is described as gravely menacing over at least three fourths of the Mississippi and Ohio River valleys, extending almost to the Atlantic Seaboard throughout the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence River region. All drought records have been shattered in the states of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, and Nebraska. Observers declare that the assurances of the Government are overly optimistic, and that the prospect is that the wheat crop will be far below average, and probably result in an actual shortage of bread in the United States.

Similar reports of drought come from Europe and especially from England, where it is said the wells and streams are running dry in many places.

It is becoming ever more apparent that man's attempt to limit agricultural production is no longer necessary, but that the efforts already made may be exceedingly disastrous and result in widespread famine.

Drought is one of the punishments that will be inflicted on ungodly people in the age to come, for "it shall be, that whoso will not come up of all the families of the earth unto Jerusalem to worship the King, the Lord of hosts, even upon them shall be no rain" (Zech. 14:17). In the past God has withheld rain in certain localities and bestowed it at the same time upon other places as expressions of divine approval or disapproval. In this connection it is instructive to read the warning of Amos 4:6-9.

Wants to Be a Dillinger

"They lay wait for their own blood; they lurk privily for their own lives."—Prov. 1:18.

HARLINGEN, Texas, May 21.—Confessing to the murder of J. M. Brinck, who was a member of the rowing team representing the United States in the Olympic Games in 1928, sixteen year old William Osborne told the sheriff that he wanted to become another John Dillinger or a Clyde Barrow.

The boy is the son of a dairy farmer near Premont, Texas, where he attended high school and played in the high school band. He confessed that Brinck had given him a ride in his automobile, en route from Falfurrias to Edenburg, Texas, and while on the trip young Osborne shot his companion to death and robbed him of $70.00.

Perhaps a little more money spent on the boy's moral education, a little more encouragement given to his attendance at Sunday school and church services, might have brought him to quite a different point of view. We suggest you read again the associate editor's editorial of last week in this connection.

Gathering Tares

"Come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, . . . and I will receive you."—2 Cor. 6:17.

BERLIN, Germany, June 1.—The Protestant Christian element in Germany is putting up a vigorous battle to prevent the complete loss of their independence through the autocratic control of the church by the Nazi Government. Almost every week brings its new religious development in this country. On May 21 an Association of All Believers in the German Faith (the movement that has as its objective the restoration of the old Germanic paganism) was perfected at Scharzfeld. In reply to this anti-Christian effort the Protestants this week held a meeting and appointed a new body of Elders to whom they assert they will henceforth give their allegiance rather than to the church authorities appointed by the Government.

National Berean Department

Miss Genniel Carpenter, Editor, Oregon, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Cecil A. Smead, President
Blanchard, Michigan

Virgil Claypool, Treasurer
506 E. Chestnut St.
Robinson, Illinois

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
Oregon, Illinois

A PRAYER

O GOD, we who are alive from the dead through faith in Him, and are waiting for His coming, do now yield ourselves unto Thee. - We present our bodies unto Thee as living sacrifices; our eyes, our ears, our tongues, our hands, our feet, our brains, holy, and acceptable, which is our reasonable service; that Thou wouldst fill us with Thy Holy Spirit, that henceforth we may not be conformed to this world, but be transformed by the renewing of our mind, and so prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God, to the glory of the Father. Amen.

—James M. Gray.

MARSHALL, ILLINOIS

The Salem Berean members met at the Salem Church on Wednesday night, May 16, 1934, to organize a Berean society; 18 were present at this meeting. The class will use the new Berean books. There will be special music at each meeting.

The results of the election were as follows: president, Harry Goekler; vice president, Ivan Veach; secretary-treasurer, Edna Wood; pianist, Ruth Goekler; assistant pianist, Edith Hendrix.

The president appointed Sr. Edith Hendrix chairman of the Membership Committee. He also appointed Edna Wood, Edith Hendrix, and Mrs. Allen Claypool to be on the Program Committee. May God help each of us as we study His Word and may we each one grow closer to Him.

Edna H. Wood, Sec.

ILLINOIS STATE BEREAN REPORT FOR APRIL

DIXON

Adult class: membership, 8; average weekly attendance, 6; interest, good. Senior class: membership, 9; average weekly attendance, 8; interest, good. Junior class: membership, 9; average weekly attendance, 8; interest, fair. Primary class: membership, 4; average weekly attendance, 2; interest, good. Mary McClintick, Sec.

OREGON

Membership, 12; average weekly attendance, 9; interest, poor. In explanation of the interest: When the members come to class they settle down to work, but seldom does anyone study his lesson beforehand. Evan Knodle, Sec.

Edna H. Wood, State Sec.

SERVICE

Does this remind you of anyone you know?

I'll go where you want me to go,
Dear Lord.

Real service is what I desire.
I'll sing a solo any time;

Dear Lord,
But don't ask me to sit in the choir.
I'll do what you want me to do,

Dear Lord,
I like to see things come to pass,
But don't ask me to teach girls or boys,
Dear Lord,

I'd rather just stay in my class.
I'll do what you want me to do,
Dear Lord.

I yearn for the kingdom to thrive.
I'll give you my nickels and dimes,
Dear Lord,

But please don't ask me to tithe.
I'll go where you want me to go,
Dear Lord,

I'll say what you want me to say;
I'm busy just now with myself,
Dear Lord,

I'll help you some other day.

—Chimes, Walnut Street Baptist Church,
Louisville, Kentucky.

BEREAN DAY

Berean Day at the past conferences in Oregon has been a time for vacationing from Bible School. Young people (and older ones, too) have deemed it their privilege, whether Bereans or not, to use the day in whatever way they might desire, regardless of the program scheduled.

This year the Program Committee is hoping to do away with a considerable amount of this by not disrupting the regular schedule of Bible classes except from 8:30 to 10:00 a. m., when reports of the national and state work will be given. It is hoped to enliven this usually dry-as-dust session with descriptions of the workings of committees of which the public has known nothing but the names during times past.

The afternoon session, 3:00 to 5:00, will consist of the business meeting and a brief discussion of local organization. Harry Goekler will deliver the evening sermon.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"These are written, that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God; and that believing ye might have life through his name."

CARRYING ON JESUS' WORK

DID you ever have a piece of work to do which didn't go right? You gave up in the middle of it because you didn't know how to go ahead, and went fishing! Well, you know, many others, some older than you, have done the same thing. Today we'll read about a man named Peter who did just that.

Peter, you remember, had been chosen along with eleven others to help Jesus in His great work of telling the people about the kingdom of God. Jesus had been his Teacher, and he had learned most of his lessons well. But there were some which he couldn't understand, just as there are some of yours which are hard for you.

Jesus was to be King in God's kingdom which was to be on the earth. Those who loved Jesus and tried to do as He wished would be in that kingdom. When that kingdom should come, there would be no more war; everybody would be happy, for there would be nothing to make them sad.

All of this Peter understood well and went about teaching it to all who would listen. For he wanted many to be ready for that kingdom. But there was one thing he couldn't understand, although Jesus had explained it to him.

Peter couldn't see why Jesus had to die, and he couldn't believe that Jesus would rise from the dead after being in the grave three days. And so, when he knew that the One who was to be King was dead, he didn't wait to see what would happen. He went fishing!

Back to the work that Jesus had called him from went Peter. One night, with six other disciples of Jesus, he fished from sunset till morning, but they caught not so much as one little fish. Did you ever fish all night and catch nothing?

When it began to get light some one who stood on the shore called to them and asked them if they had caught anything.

"Cast the net on the right side of the ship," he called. And when they did, they caught so many they couldn't draw the net in. One of the men, John by name, knew then who the stranger was.

"It is the Lord," John exclaimed.

They all went to shore then, and found that Jesus had built a bonfire and was roasting some fish for their breakfast. When they counted the fish they had caught, they found they had 153 big ones! Then they realized Jesus really was alive again.

After breakfast Jesus took Peter to one side and told him that He wanted him to leave his fishing and go back to preaching the gospel. "Feed my sheep," is what He said to Peter, and He meant that Peter was to tell everybody all about Jesus and His resurrection.

Peter must have been very happy that day, because, you know, he had denied Jesus, and he wasn't sure whether Jesus had forgiven him. Now he knew that everything was all right, and he could go on preaching.

Jesus also told the other disciples that evening that they should go into all the world and tell the good news of God's coming kingdom to everybody. He said He had received all power from His Father and that He would give some of that power to them. They could perform miracles, touch a poisonous snake and it wouldn't hurt them, and such things.

Jesus said He would be with His disciples "even unto the end of the world" and that takes us in, too, you see. We are His disciples if we do as He asks us to do, and He wants us to tell others all about Him. Even the little boys and girls can do that by bringing their little playmates to Sunday school; if they don't go to any other. We can all act as Jesus wants us to, and that is better than talking, for, you know, "actions speak louder than words."

Last week by mistake Texas was omitted from the list of states having members of the Sons and Daughters of the King Club. And here we have a Texas member the first one to report having a Bible seal on every date for three months! Jack Parsley is his name, and he is from Abilene, Texas.

Jack sent such a fine Bible Scrapbook to the exhibit at General Conference last year. I remember one picture he drew; it was a little boy with a Bible in his hand. I think that was Jack's picture of himself, because having his membership card filled means that Jack studied his lesson every week. Good work, Jack. Now who else is on the honor roll?

What did you think of the idea of forming a neighborhood branch of our club for vacation time? Talk it over with Mother, and see what she thinks of the idea. And by all means, if you start one keep it up as long as you are home. It's one of the best habits in the world to learn to keep at a good thing when once you have started.

The Sunday School Lesson

FROM TRUTH SEEKERS' QUARTERLY

LESSON 12. — June 17, 1934

THE RISEN LORD AND THE GREAT COMMISSION

Matthew 28:1-20

Devotional Reading: Psalm 116:1-9

GOLDEN TEXT

Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world.—Matthew 28:19, 20.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic: The Risen Lord and the Great Commission.

Basic Truth: "Christ both died, and rose, and revived, that he might be Lord both of the dead and living."—Rom. 14:9.

I. The Manner of His Resurrection. (Matt. 28:1-4.) The resurrection of Jesus was an event that affected both heaven and earth, angels and men, and therefore was accompanied by celestial as well as terrestrial manifestations of power. At His birth, His death, and at His resurrection, unusual happenings in the earth and heavens indicated that the God of the universe was concerned in Jesus Christ. When He comes again tremendous seismic disturbances will also take place which no human power can resist.

II. The Reality of His Resurrection. (Vv. 5-17.) "Fear not ye" is the assuring word of the resurrected Savior. He faced the agony of the cross and the silence of the tomb that He might be able to speak those blessed words with power and with authority. The reality of the death of Christ was as necessary as was His resurrection to bring hope to a dying world. Unless He actually died He could not have actually arisen from death and brought to the sorrowing world positive proof of the possibility of a future life. But Christ really died, and Christ really lives again, and the believer may rejoice in full confidence and hope.

III. The Results of His Resurrection. (Vv. 18-20.) "All authority in heaven and in earth" could not have been given to a mortal man, even though He were the only begotten Son of God. It awaited the immortalization of Jesus to be conferred upon Him. He is now able to see as God sees into the future, and can say, "Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the" age. We may go forth, then, confidently into the great task of world evangelism without fear, for the Master of heaven and earth is with us to give us power to carry on until the new age of glory and of deathlessness is ushered in at His coming!

THE GOLDEN TEXT

Between the time of Jesus' resurrection and His ascension into heaven, He gave His disciples this command which is known as "the Great Commission." He wanted the gospel carried to all nations. He wanted them baptized in the ONE NAME. The name of the Father and His Son is the same.

The disciples were to teach the people to observe all things which Christ had commanded. We are many generations from that day, but we too should observe the things Christ commands, and we learn these things by the study of the Bible, for they are all there, and it is up to us to find the things left on record for us. It takes time and deep study to find everything, but they were put there for our benefit and it behooves us to find out the will of the Father and Son, and then do it.—L. A. R.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

We

—can tell others the joyful news of resurrection;

—can share in the benefits of Christ's resurrection;

—have no reason for doubting the resurrected Jesus;

—must participate in carrying the gospel news;

—are included in the promise of Christ's abiding protection.

Telling Others. The Great Commission is one of "going and doing." If we have found joy and happiness in the gospel news, then it is our duty to share it with others. Christ is counting on His faithful followers to carry on while He is away attending to His ministry of priestly service. We must teach men and women to observe all things taught by Christ and His followers. We must live these teachings. Matt. 5:16; 2 Cor. 3:1-3; 1 Thess. 1:6-8. If we really and actually believe in Christ's resurrection, we will do all things to carry this message forward to the glory of God. 1 Cor. 10:31.

Resurrection. The gospel is "gospel" because of Christ's resurrection. His resurrection insures our resurrection. Men and women who understand and who have a true concept of the resurrection will be willing to do like the faithful in ages past, who were willing to be stoned, sawn asunder, cast into prison, be destitute and homeless in order that they might obtain a better resurrection. Heb. 11:32-37. Are you willing to make such a sacrifice to carry the gospel story of a coming resurrection and kingdom?—C. E. R.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULTS

What is usually meant by the Great Commission is the command to go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature (Matt. 28:19; Mark 16:15, 16). This command was given a very literal interpretation by the early Christians. These followers of Christ started out with zeal making converts wherever they went. Many of the less timid were driven to new fields by the persecutions against them. The Nestorian Christians (so called because they were converted by Nestor, a man who was called a heretic for believing some of the things we know to be true) sent more than two thousand missionaries to China and India. So industrious were they that Marco Polo told of seeing Christian missions all of the way from Bagdad to Peking. These efforts of these missionaries were neutralized by the reactions that later set in. The Christians were killed, or forced to give up their religion, by successors of the great Genghis Khan. Today little progress is being made in these countries.

The Great Commission was to preach the gospel. Unfortunately, men added many of their own dogmas, morals, and manners and taught them as a part of it. Each missionary has felt it necessary to teach the special rites of his church. The missionaries from the various countries have felt duty bound to teach the form of government, dress, morals, and culture of the country from which they came. These are often unsuited to the people and but tend to increase the antagonism against Christianity. The gospel is all that Jesus requested a missionary to teach.

—H. A. S.

PRIMARY CLASS

Memory Verse: "He is risen from the dead."

For three days Jesus lay in the tomb. The soldiers were so afraid that some one would try to steal Jesus' body that they sealed the door of the tomb and rolled a great stone in front of the door.

Very early on Sunday morning Mary Magdalene and the other Mary came to the tomb where Jesus lay. They had wondered how they would get the stone away to get into the tomb. But when they got there the stone was rolled away.

Seated on it was an angel. The angel said, "Fear not, I know you are looking for Jesus, but He is not here, He is risen. Come and see the place where He lay. Go quickly, and tell His disciples that He is risen from the dead, and has gone into Galilee."

They hurried away to tell the disciples. How happy they were. On the way they met Jesus. They fell at His feet and worshiped Him.

Yes, Jesus died on the cross, but He rose again and has gone to heaven. Some day He is coming back to make alive all those that are dead.—V. C. T.

LEVONA WATTS THOMPSON

Levona Watts was born in Merenci, Mich., October 29, 1871. On February 22, 1900, she was united in marriage to Allan Thompson, farmer and Farm Adviser in and about Tulare, Calif. To this marriage were born four children: Claire, Georgia, and Wayne of Tulare, and Mrs. Frank Roberson, of Fresno, Calif. Besides these and her husband, and several grandchildren, she is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Parry Luce, Mrs. Lulu Morrison, and Mrs. Flora Sayre, all of Tulare; and one brother, Mr. Ai Watts of Visalia, Calif.

When Bro. S. J. Lindsay was at Los Angeles, he and the Railsbacks visited Tulare on several occasions, and on one of these trips Sr. Thompson was baptized into the saving name of Jesus. She had the great pleasure of seeing her son Wayne and her daughter Georgia also unite themselves to the household of faith at a later time. Hers was a good fight of faith, and it was not realized until about two weeks before her death that her condition was serious, though she had been in failing health for some time. No human aid could remedy matters, and she fell asleep in Jesus, May 18, 1934, at her home in Tulare. Sr. Railsback and the writer journeyed to Tulare to lay her away in the cemetery there, where she rests from her labors as mother and wife, awaiting the call of the Master when He comes in power and glory. Man is weak and must look to that great and glorious day when all shall be made new. In these perilous times in which we live, we can say truly, "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord."

Norman John MacLeod.

Please send all remittances by postal money order rather than by personal checks, as we are compelled to pay a high rate of exchange to get checks cashed.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by
National Bible Institution
Oregon, Illinois

The RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: the near return of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church to be joint heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. Sample copy, Free.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

BETWEEN YOU AND ME—

The editor and his wife, accompanied by Robert Hardesty of Oregon, Ill., spent a most enjoyable time with the brethren at Fonthill, Ont., and at Niagara Falls, N. Y. And what a meeting the gathering at Fonthill was this year! And how our hearts were made to rejoice to learn at first hand the splendid work Bro. C. E. Randall, pastor of the two churches (three, with the new work at Welland, Ont.) is doing. We leave further comment for the full report which will no doubt reach us soon.

The contest articles on "What Must I Do to Be Saved?" will be published in our next issue.

We regret to learn of the continued illness of Bro. Isaac Fish of Maxwell, Iowa. Bro. Fish has been a lifelong supporter of the work in Iowa, as was his father before him. May God bless him and restore him to health is our prayer.

Some localities are talking of getting up auto parties to come to the General Conference this year. This is a splendid plan, as it would reduce the cost of transportation greatly. With the splendid corps of teachers arranged for by the Illinois Bible School management the gathering is sure to result in much good. Come, and enjoy this great conference with us.

Our bookkeeper is getting the books of the Institution into such a condition that he will be able to make a complete and detailed report of the condition of our work up to July 31. This will be the first time that such a report has been possible.

Bro. Arlen Marsh filled the pulpit in Dixon, Ill., last Sunday. Pastor L. E. Conner had been called away and was unable to return in time to prepare for the service.

THE WORLD OUTLOOK

THE Sunday School Times tells of a traveler meeting a Jew on the road from Jerusalem to the Mount of Olives who told him that every morning for fourteen years he had made this journey, and in explanation said: "I am an orthodox Jew. By watching the signs of the times and what is happening today among the nations and in Palestine, we orthodox Jews have come to the conclusion that the day of Messiah must be at hand. I read in my Bible that 'his feet shall stand in that day on the mount of Olives.' Therefore I go every day to the Mount of Olives, for when His feet stand on the mount I want to be there to give him a welcome."

The Bible, or some part of it, has been printed in 936 languages and dialects, according to a recent statement of the American Bible Society. This figure represents the publications of the American Bible Society, the British and Foreign Bible Society, and the National Bible Society of Scotland, and a few smaller missionary societies.

Criminal statistics published by the British Home Office show that robbery accompanied by violence is increasing rapidly in England. London leads all other cities in this matter. The figures also show increase in fraud, suicide, manslaughter, and murder. This cannot be attributed to prohibition as would certainly have been done in this country.

A Christian writer recently said that as a result of hundreds of conversations with people whom he casually met, a scant four per cent were able to tell him how a person could be saved. He said that the great mass of men and women in Christian America, many of whom are nominally church members, do not know the Bible method of salvation.

Frank H. Simonds, writing in The Literary Digest for November 11, says: "Fifteen years after the World War, Europe is visibly headed for another conflict." He adds that it is not likely to come immediately because Germany, though morally prepared, is materially unready; while her neighbors are materially but not morally ready. Germany's exit from the League of Nations and the collapse of the Geneva Disarmament Conference reveal the seriousness of the whole European situation. The old struggle for the balance of power is on again in Europe! Another struggle for the domination of Asia is also going on simultaneously, with Japan and Russia at loggerheads. One wonders just what the lineup of nations would be if both of these dynamite boxes should explode at the same time, to produce the second great World War.—Bible Faith Mission Standard.

RESURRECTION: A BIBLE STUDY

By Mrs. L. M. Kiger

"I know that my Redeemer liveth,
And on the earth again shall stand;
I know eternal life He giveth,
That grace and power are in His hand."

I. Resurrection means living again. Rev. 20:5. This requires three things: 1. To have lived once. 2. To have ceased to live. 3. To live again. During death there cannot, therefore, be resurrection.

Three facts pertaining to Christ's resurrection are especially worthy of notice: 1. Christ died to mortality. 2. He was in the grave three days and three nights. 3. The third day He was raised by the power of God to immortality.

II. Resurrection is illustrated in the Scriptures by eight examples besides that of our Lord. Three are given in the Old Testament, three were accomplished by our Lord, one by Peter, and one by Paul. The occurrences are as follows: 1. The widow's son, raised by Elijah (1 Kings 17:17-24). 2. The Shunammite's son, raised by Elisha (2 Kings 4:18-37). 3. A man being buried touched Elisha's bones and lived (2 Kings 13:21). 4. Jesus raised the maiden (Luke 8:54, 55). 5. Jesus raised the young man (Luke 7:14, 15). 6. Jesus raised Lazarus (John 11:43, 44). 7. Peter raised Tabitha or Dorcas (Acts 9:40). 8. Paul brought Eutychus to life (Acts 20:9, 10).

The word translated "breath" in 1 Kings 17:17 means the same as the word rendered "spirit" in Luke 8:55. Both words mean the breath of life.

III. Resurrection is spoken of in Scripture both literally and figuratively. The cases mentioned previously are literal. The figurative is seen in such passages as Ephesians 2:1, 2; 5:14; and John 5:24. The thirty-seventh chapter of Ezekiel tells of the national resurrection of Israel from their scattered condition to restoration to nationality in Palestine. This is a very good illustration of the literal resurrection also.

IV. Resurrection is either to immortality, as in 1 Corinthians 15:52, or to judgment, as in John 5:28, 29. The latter evidently requires mortal resurrection. The church will be in the immortal class, and the world or sinners in the mortal class.

V. Our resurrection depends upon that of Christ (John 14:19; 1 Cor. 15:17, 18).

VI. Christ's resurrection was attested for forty days to the disciples by sight, hearing, and touch, for they saw, heard, and handled Him after His resurrection. Above five hundred brethren saw Him at one time (1 Cor. 15:6).

VII. The figurative resurrection spoken of in John 5:24; Ephesians 2:1, 2; and 5:14 is referred to in 1 Corinthians 15:34 as the crowning proof of resurrection. Those who know the Savior's power to save from sin now have a foretaste of His power to save from death later, and thus righteousness by Him becomes a proof of later resurrection, for both are called a quickening of the dead.

Revelation and Nature say that man is mortal, and because of sin is subject to death. "Death ends all" according to Nature, but Revelation assures us a life after death by a resurrection from the dead, and gives proof by the resurrection of our Lord. "Now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the firstfruits of them that slept."—1 Cor. 15:20.

VIII. Mary asked for Jesus' body, thinking it had been stolen. She received His living presence instead, proving that God's bounty always exceeds our requests. Jesus calls us each by name. We recall Him saying, "Mary!" Are we as ready as Mary was to answer, "Master"?

"O Master, let me walk with Thee,
In lowly paths of service free.
Tell me Thy secret; help me bear
The strain of toil, the fret of care."

How does my devotion to my risen Lord compare with that of Mary? Does it mean anything to you and me that our Savior lives? In our heart of hearts, how do you and I think of our friends who have departed this life? On what do we base our expectation of seeing them again? Did our spiritual preparation for last Easter cast out of our hearts all the "leaven of malice and wickedness"?

"Seeing is believing," but "blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed." Let us send the glad echoes ringing round the earth until He comes, Jesus lives!

—0—

THE MOST AMAZING BOOK

THE following was not taken from a religious journal, but from the editorial columns of a great daily newspaper (Times—Los Angeles).

"What book sold 438,765 copies in eighty different languages on the Pacific Coast alone last year?"

"What book distributed 1,000,000 copies in Japan in 1932 and 3,000,000 in China?"

"What book was popular enough to have 9,750,000 copies published in 300 different languages and dialects in America in 1932? And in England 10,500,000?"

"What book warranted the purchase of 100,000 copies in one year by one company, Selfridge in London?"

"First editions are usually rare and exceedingly valuable. What first edition copy commanded the astonishing price of $106,000 and that with forty-five known copies in the world—thirty-five in Europe and ten in the United States?"

"What book is so universal, so loved, so highly prized, so popular, so useful, that a day has been devoted to it all over the world—and today is the day? Universal Bible Sunday.

"The most amazing book—the Bible.

"And yet a glib Frenchman a little over a century ago gave this book but one hundred years to run its course and be forgotten. Not long ago the ninety-two volumes written by the voluminous Voltaire owned by the Earl of Dudley sold at auction for eight shillings—about two cents each! Voltaire is the forgotten."

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 23

OREGON, ILLINOIS, JUNE 12, 1934

NUMBER 37

The Church of Christ

IN Alexandria, Louisiana, the other day, a man addressed this remark to the writer, "I am not opposed to the church, but if the church has been successful, then why hasn't it more customers after nineteen hundred years of selling itself to the world?"

Now this question should not be treated with a flare of fury, but must be considered honestly and kindly, for it was honestly and kindly presented. Furthermore, there are many thousands who perhaps agree with this questioner, and who are not intimately acquainted with the task of the Christian church.

There is a distinct difference between selling toothpaste and virtue. The toothpaste maker studies the tastes of men; builds into his product an appeal to the salivary glands. He makes the breath sweet with a deodorant; injects something to remove nicotine stains from the teeth. He makes his toothpaste pleasant to use.

The appeal to virtue cannot be so easily concocted. For ten thousand years men have wallowed in licentiousness. The harem has never needed an advance agent. Youth by nature has been conscripted. Alcohol has always been stimulating, and men usually seek stimulation rather than edification. Thus virtue cannot be wrapped in cellophane, attractively labeled, and peddled at popular prices.

II

There is no royal road to geometry, and for the same reason Christian faith cannot be manufactured in mass production and peddled across the counter in five and ten cent stores.

As a commercial product Christian religion is very unsatisfactory. It cannot be ballyhooed as a circus performance. It cannot be blended as the tobaccos, good and bad, that go into a cigarette, for the blending of virtues and vices for popularity's sake seems to remove the lasting appeal, and accordingly the customers, who otherwise would be permanent, would refuse to make repeat orders. They would become indignant, and walk out.

Religion can be commercialized, indisputably so; but not Christian faith. In the hands of cunning salesmen religion could be popularized in the fashion of a new breakfast food. A new ritual could be created, and in it authority be given to provide an open door to everything the hearts, minds, and passions of men might crave. Men could be afforded many wives. The treasures of neighbors could be treated lightly. No restrictions need be placed on the morals of an individual, and the code of ethics could be simply to be a good fellow; and to live without moral restriction or personal discipline. Thus religion, like toothpaste or breakfast food, would appeal to the tastes of men and go over big. There would be more "customers."

III

But the product would be different. Cheap religion is like anything else that is cheap. But if immortality is to be one of the ingredients, then the price appeal must be forgotten, and the product sold exclusively on the basis of its quality; for with such values low prices would lead only to bankruptcy for the sponsoring organization.

Speaking in the commercial vernacular the Christian church has more "satisfied customers" than any other institution in the world. No organization can produce such fervent testimonials of approval. No institution, governments of the world not excluded, can show evidence of such far-reaching influence.

IV

After nineteen hundred years, we contend, the church of Christ reveals more progress than any other movement on the face of the globe. But its growth cannot be measured exclusively in terms of "customers."

Its good is seen in the saving grace to millions. Its power in uplifted men. Its mercy is reflected in thousands of hospitals, orphans' homes, slum missions. Its penetrating influence is seen in Christian colleges, foreign mission centers; pulpits everywhere. Its force is found directing governments. Its enrichment is detected in the commercial leadership of the world. Its goal is admitted as the eventual abolition of war, freedom of social strife, economic security, and spiritual salvation for all mankind.

Anyone who says that the church has too few "customers" is wrong. For everyone today within the expanding reach of civilization is a recipient and beneficiary of the church. All may not be paying "customers" but they are customers just the same. (Please turn to Back Page)

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879.

G. Eldred Marsh, Editor

Two Dollars per Year

Paul C. Johnson, Associate Editor

"What seest thou? And I said, A basket of summer fruit."—Amos 8:2.

LOVING FATHER, GREAT CREATOR

Father, Thy great name confessing;
To Thy presence we repair;
Seeking here Thy gracious blessing,
As we humbly bow in prayer.
Loving Father, great Creator,
Thou hast made us, Thine we are;
Loving Father, great Creator;
Thou hast made us, Thine we are.

When temptations strong assail us,
Keep us by Thy mighty power;
May Thy Spirit thus avail us
Strength to meet each trying hour.
Loving Father, great Defender,
Be to us salvation's Tower;
Loving Father, great Defender,
Be to us salvation's Tower.

Keep us ever, O our Savior,
That from Thee we may not stray;
Grant us still Thy ceaseless favor,
As we walk the narrow way.
Loving Father, bless'd Redeemer,
Lead us on to endless day;
Loving Father, bless'd Redeemer,
Lead us on to endless day.

—0—

WHY NOT?

THE great annual conferences of the church are just before us. That in Minnesota convenes this week, the Northwestern June 20 to 24, then follows Indiana, Illinois, the General Conference, Iowa, Nebraska, and various others. So why not make these gatherings the object of special prayer? Keep the dates in mind, and if you cannot be present in person while each conference is in session carry its needs as you see them to the throne of grace.

Further, why not make these conferences this year prayer meetings for the entire church? No work for God can succeed unless the prayers of His people bring it constantly before Him. So, brethren, why not pray for Bible schools and conferences right now, as well as while they are in session?

PRAYER AND THE DROUGHT

THE prolonged and widespread drought that seems to threaten the entire country with a shortage of food for the coming winter has, as is the case with any dire calamity, turned the thoughts of thousands toward God. It is a strange thing that prosperity and health will not serve to arouse the masses to a sense of their dependence upon God for every good thing so much as will the loss of these blessings. "In my distress I cried unto the Lord," declared the Psalmist.

What a sad commentary it is on the unappreciative tendency of humanity that it requires distress and want to bring men to realize that "every good gift and every perfect gift is from above"!

The threatened famine in this country has driven many people to prayer. In some sections of the United States mass prayer meetings have been held, to which all denominations were invited. It was the thought of the sponsors of these assemblies that if the united voice of the Christian people of America could be raised to God in pleas for relief such a mighty outpouring of desire would surely reach the ear and touch the heart of the heavenly Father.

The reason why such prayers are not more quickly answered is perhaps due to the fact that the people ask for the wrong thing. They ask for relief from drought when they should ask for relief from sin. They pray for rain, when they should pray for forgiveness. They overlook the fact that if it is true, as many believe, that the drought has been sent upon the world because of man's iniquity, then the thing the world needs first of all is not showers of literal water, but spiritual "showers of blessing" to wash away our sins. For if sin is the cause of the drought then the cleansing of sin should bring the desired material relief in its wake.

While we do not understand that the present dearth of moisture is the result of a direct judicial act on the part of God for the punishment of the world's sin against Him, nevertheless the first thing to pray for at any time is pardon. For it is sin that shuts us away from God and His richest blessings, both spiritual and material. So with the priest in the days of Samuel, may we say, "Let us draw near hither unto God."—1 Sam. 14:36. Whatever the danger may be, whatever the need may be, the first thing for us to consider as we contemplate calling upon the Lord for help is our own relationship to Him.

Millions of Women

By Lottie E. Young

THE undoubted object of the New Testament is to present the life of the only perfect Being who ever walked this earth, and while many names of men and women are mentioned in the Book, how little we know about their lives! With some of the men we are more or less familiar—impetuous Peter, loving John, and James, first of the apostles to suffer death for the Master, forming the “inner circle,” history or tradition telling us of some of their work; while the record of all the immediate followers of the Lord is martyrdom for His cause. But the story of the women who come into the account, and what they did for the comfort of the Savior, is presented in very brief fashion.

We recognize in Mary, the mother of Jesus; not the divinity which the Roman Catholic Church claims for her, but a woman who must have led a wonderfully pure life to have had the greatest of honors conferred upon her, and we know she was amongst them who at Pentecost received the gift of the Holy Spirit. Mary and Martha are familiar names, each ministering to the Lord in her own peculiar way. Three Marys are mentioned as being at the cross during the last hours of awful suffering of the Son of God, and Luke tells us how the women who had come with Him out of Galilee (a long journey in those days) beheld the tomb in which He was laid, and then prepared spices and ointments for the final burial.

It was a woman who had the privilege of being the first to whom the resurrected Lord spoke, while others carried the good news—“He is not dead, but is risen”—to the men who mourned the death of the One whom they thought would have restored then the kingdom to Israel.

In Romans 16 Paul mentions Phoebe as having been “a helper of many and of mine own self,” while the record of Priscilla, who with her husband Aquilla worked with the great Apostle, is, “They for my life laid down their own necks.” Then think of the millions of women who under the rule of pagan and papal Rome made the supreme sacrifice rather than deny the One who died for them.

Housekeeping in the eastern countries has never been the complex thing the women of the West have made it, but have you not sometimes wondered who washed the clothes, furnished the meals, and generally ministered to the Savior and the twelve as they went from place to place? The lives of these women were very different from the free ones we enjoy, and even though the motive power was love for the dear Master and His followers, they must have sacrificed more than we can understand for the services rendered. The same condition exists in many Oriental lands today. We may have wondered why more of the people of Asia and Africa have not forsaken the dreadful gods they serve and accepted the Lord Jesus Christ when He has been presented to them by missionaries, but few of us realize that to do so means awful persecution, and often death, for those who openly confess their belief in the Savior whom we love and try to serve.

We are apt to think of the Chinese as a heathen people, but the following incident, which was told to me by one who knew it to be true, will show how far some of them have learned this same spirit of sacrifice. Two Chinese women had heard of a wonderful Savior whose life was being taught a hundred miles from where they lived, and they decided to find out more about His love, and how He could save from sin; so, one of them carrying a baby in her arms, they started out to walk this distance. They finally reached the mission station and were eager listeners to the truth taught in the Bible. On the way back home, part of the journey being in a blinding snow-storm, and later in such an intense cold that feet were frozen, one said to the other, “Do you think this is suffering for Christ?” to which her companion returned a decided negative with, “Is it suffering when you are so happy to know about such a Savior?”

How much of this spirit of devotion and sacrifice does anyone possess whom we know in this highly favored land, how much of the spirit of the Master who spent long hours in prayer with the Father, rising up a great while before it was day to have this communion? And if Jesus needed this fellowship, how much more do we! How many of us when we are praying have our thoughts wandering in every direction and are not concentrating them on the petition we are presenting to the Ruler of the universe? If we were talking to an earthly king how we would watch every word and thought and keep our minds fixed on what we were saying, not adulterating our requests with thoughts of material things. I am sure we all believe in the power of prayer, and that the Father answers our petitions in

A Jingle of Joy

By the Editor

When the rains don't come, and the crops
don't grow,
And prices, in spite of the drought, are low,
There is nothing better to make you glad
When things look dark and your heart is sad
Than to sing, just to sing and sing and sing,
Praises to Jesus your Savior and King!

When skies are shining, or the clouds hang low,
The birds still sing in the trees below!
So let us also in the same glad way,
Lift up our voices in a cheerful lay,
And sing, joyfully sing and sing and sing,
Praises to Jesus our Savior and King!

His way; not always the way we want, but the best way.

It is nineteen hundred years since Pentecost, and if the succeeding generations had all been as faithful as the early Christians were, what a different world we would have from that which now exists! We believe in the future but often live for today. There is a true saying, "One always has time to do the things he most wants to accomplish." How much time do we give daily to newspapers and story books, and how much to the study of the Bible and religious literature? Why not have a time each day for devotional thought and not let the world in? We sing, "Take time to be holy," but are apt to postpone our talks with God until all the non-essentials of daily toil have been finished, when we are often too tired to keep our eyes open. Were you ever in a room where a dozen women were all talking energetically about clothes, children, cooking, etc., but if a religious topic was started how "dumb" most of them became? Why?

The Apostle James says, "The supplication of a righteous man availeth much in its working." So let us implore constantly that more of the spirit of the Master, and the devotion and sacrifice of those with whom He associated while on the earth, fill our lives. May our first prayer each morning be, "Use me, Father, today, so that I may be a blessing to all those with whom I come in contact," and our last thought at night, "I will both lay me down in peace and sleep, for Thou, Lord, only makest me dwell in safety."

God's Way the Best Way

"The judgments of the Lord are true and righteous altogether." — Psalm 19:9.

SOMETIMES men think of God as the Autocrat of the universe, and of our duties to Him as exacting and arbitrary, and in viewing our relations to God from that standpoint, we almost feel justified in resisting them. There is another and truer viewpoint. It is the viewpoint of our own good and of the well-being of society. If we will but stop and think, we shall see that there is not a single duty laid upon us, but what leaves us better men, nobler women, and far happier, when performed. Not only so, but each act, thus performed, leaves its benediction on society; so that there is an upward lift of the world toward God, by every duty performed.

The basis of our obligation to render to God obedience in the things which He requires of us, is centered in the very nature of our relations to Him. In a brief way let us notice these relations:

We are related to God, as created beings to an almighty creator; as dependent creatures to the source of life; as beings made a little lower than the angels, to one infinitely above them; as intellectual beings, to the supreme intelligence; as the recipient of blessings, to the bestower of them; as a child to its parent.

The obligations we owe to God constitute a code of conduct; yet the trouble with most codes is that they are too lengthy. We cannot hold them in mind. Jesus bridges this gap. He knows that the law of Moses is made up of many volumes; and while these have been condensed into ten laws written on stone, yet He goes even beyond that, and lays down two laws, the duty of loving God, and the related duty of loving man, as covering, not only all the law, but the prophets as well. To love God and to love one's neighbor. How simple!

Everything we have said in the opening paragraph regarding the beneficial results of duties performed, applies with full force to the simple obligation to love God and to love one's neighbor. God is the revealer of good to man. Where His revelations present judgment, dire and dreadful, it is only as warnings, that man may be aided in choosing the right path, which is the path of good for him.

The path shown to Adam was the good path. Nothing higher or better could have been devised for him; yet he chose the lesser good. God's way for the first king of Israel was the good way, the way leading to personal exaltation and greatness; yet Saul selected the path of pleasing himself and the people rather than God; and in so doing lost the crown and the throne and his own life. God's way for the nation, Israel, was the best. By it the top round of the ladder of national greatness would have been reached; but Israel in the mass was no wiser than Israel in the unit, and so the counsel of God was rejected and the path of expediency taken instead; with the result that the nation which God designed for the head of all nations became the tail of the procession, an astonishment, a byword, and a hissing, among the nations of the earth.

Ought we not, as individuals, to learn this lesson of ourselves? Ought we not to see that God's way for us is the right path leading to more of real happiness in this life than any other path we could select? Then why not cease rebelling against God's desire for us and fall in line with His plans and purposes? Since it is true that He is able to do for us exceedingly abundantly above all that we can ask or think, why not open the avenues of life heavenward, and let Him surprise us with His ability to exalt and bless us here in this life; holding in the background of our consciousness the fact that the things of eternity are all ahead?—H. E. Thompson.

What Must I Do to Be Saved?

The following articles comprise the four prize-winners in the recent contest for essays of two hundred words or less on the subject indicated by the title. The length of the scripts varied from six words to close to one thousand.

THE question gives rise to another question which first requires an answer. What does the subject title mean? What is it to be saved? This is answered by comparing Acts 16:31 with John 20:31 (samples of many), which show that "to be saved" and to "have eternal life" are equivalent terms. Popular teaching proclaims, "The sinner has nothing to do, Jesus did it all." The Scriptures quoted reveal belief itself is regarded as an act, for belief in a person requires intimate knowledge concerning him, his character, and his mission. Attainment of such knowledge demands earnest and intelligent action. It must be belief founded on facts.

But there is a further requirement recorded by Christ in Matthew 10:22 and elsewhere—"He that endureth to the end shall be saved." Again, He says, "Labor (R. V., "work") . . . for the meat that endureth unto eternal life." The whole is beautifully summed up in John 20:31—"These are written, that ye may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God; and that believing ye might have life through his name."

Here is information—things "written," the purpose of their record, the process, and the objective to be attained.
—R. H. Judd.

1. "Have faith in God," for "without faith it is impossible to please him" (Heb. 11:6).

2. "Repent ye therefore, and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out."—Acts 3:19. "Except ye repent, ye shall . . . perish."—Luke 13:3.

3. "He that believeth and is baptized," calling on the name of the Lord, "shall be saved" (Mark 16:16; Acts 2:21).

4. Live a life of practical Christianity, by showing your faith by your works; and "follow peace with all men, and holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord" (Jas. 2:14-18; Heb. 12:14). Be equipped with "the whole armour of God" (Eph. 6:13-17). "Fight the good fight of faith."—1 Tim. 6:12. "Endure hardness, as a good soldier of Jesus Christ."—2 Tim. 2:3. Unswerving loyalty to the truth and faithfulness, not only until death, but "unto death," if need be, by martyrdom, "looking unto Jesus," as their illustrious "leader and commander," who will eventually lead them to an enduring home in His "everlasting kingdom," should be incentive enough to encourage them to "press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus" (1 Cor. 15; Rev. 2:10, 11; Heb. 12:2, 3; Isa. 55:4; 1 Peter 1:5-11; Phil. 3:14.) God "will abundantly pardon" a repentant sinner (Isa. 55:6, 7). "If thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved."—Rom. 10:9.

—Rufus A. Curtis.

Who am I? The whole human race since the fall of Adam. He, the highest type of God's creation, was placed in the Garden of Eden to dress and to keep it, with but one restriction. One tree was forbidden. Eating therefrom would bring death.

Satan appeared unto Eve, telling her that it would not bring death but rather a knowledge of good and evil. Eve believed Satan's flattering words, and ate of the forbidden fruit, gave to Adam, and he did eat. And by God's decree all the ills of the present life, including death, were brought upon the human race. Necessarily God had established rules to govern all His creation, earth, animal, and human.

"God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish." Or a way opened by which man should regain the lost estate.

First, man must believe on the Son. Second, repent of his sins. Third, be baptized for the remission of his sins, thereby being brought into a saved condition, acknowledging his belief of Christ's death, burial, and resurrection. A religious life is to follow. —S. T. Shirley.

Saved from:

1. Sin, death (Rom. 8:1, 2).
2. God's wrath to come (Isa. 13:9).

To escape these I must have:

1. Faith—"Substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen" (Heb. 11:1).
2. Believe that:
 - (a) Christ is the Son of God (Matt. 3:16, 17).
 - (b) We are mortal—"Dead know not any thing" (Ecc. 9:4, 5).
 - (c) Dead raised incorruptible (1 Cor. 15:52-55).
 - (d) Gospel of the kingdom (Matt. 4:23).

3. Repentance—become dead to our sins (1 Peter 2:24). Jesus said, "Repent ye, and believe the gospel."

4. Baptism—Jesus requested it (Matt. 3:13-17). He is our example. It is then necessary for us. Ephesians 4:5—"One Lord, one faith, one baptism." Dead to our sins, we are ready for burial in the watery tomb (Rom. 6:3-5). Peter said, "Repent, and be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins."—Acts 2:38.

5. Lead a holy life. Walk in newness of life (Rom. 6:4). Obey God's commands (Eph. 5:1-10). Jesus said, "Love the Lord thy God with all thy heart," etc. "Thy neighbour as thyself." "On these two commandments hang all the law." Matt. 22:37-40. Add to your faith, virtue, knowledge, etc. (2 Peter 1:5-8).

The result: "The gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord."—Rom. 6:23.

—Mrs. Orval Shepherd.

The Wild Olive Tree

Do you know that all you have comes from the Jew? Do you want to found a nation and establish laws for that nation? Then must you pattern after that pioneer lawgiver of old—Moses, a Jew! Are you in some great sorrow that would overwhelm your very soul? How reviving is the strength you get from that sweet singer of Israel, the Hebrew poet and little shepherd of the plains, David! A Jew! Would you lift up the curtain of history and peer into the wondrous future to behold visions of God's glory revealed to the children of men? Then turn your ear to the thundering oratory of that prince of prophets and seers, Isaiah, and behold with him visions wondrous fair. He, too, verily a Jew! And would you delve into the depths of the mysteries of the kingdom to know more of the revelation of Jesus the Christ? I bid you sit at the feet of the matchless and incomparable master-theologian, Paul, the Paul who boasted of being a Hebrew of the Hebrews! And lastly, do you want a salvation—a hope—a future life? Oh, then fasten all your hopes and all your expectations upon that Man of Galilee, from whose own lips we have the word, "Salvation is of the Jews" (John 4:22).

Salvation is of the Jews! The Christ was a Jew, the disciples were all Jews; the first church was of the stock of Israel; the first foreign missionary was a Hebrew, and he was a foreign missionary unequalled to this day; and he had no society to send him out and give him a salary! No, he made tents long into the weary nights in order that Gentiles should have the gospel.

ISRAEL'S REWARD

From the world as such: "All thy lovers have forgotten thee."—Jer. 30:14. One would naturally expect after learning what a blessing this people has been to all the earth that all nations would rise to call Israel blessed and surround her with honor and kindness. But ah! how cruelly disappointed has Israel been! In all the history of mankind there is no nation which has been the object of such unremitting, general and relentlessly bitter persecutions as the Jews, to say nothing of the notorious persecutions to which they have been subjected in Rome, Russia, and Roumania during the whole of the present era. France but a few years ago passed through the violent anti-Semitic upheaval attendant upon the Dreyfus trial, and even as to old England—the so-called "Christian nation"—there is much to be regretted. And now it is Germany!

Thus, in the histories of all nations the pages are replete with the same story—Israel ostracized, oppressed, mobbed, massacred, and banished.

Israel's reward from the church as such. Oh, you say, of course the nations would not love Israel, but the church does. Does it? Let us see. Does your individual church love the Jew? Does it express this love in some tangible form?

The church in America is doing practically nothing for the three million Jews at her doors!

A sermon on the Jews from a Christian pulpit is practically unknown; prayer for the Jew in a Christian pulpit is seldom uttered, although we have heard the pastors pray for everybody, beginning with the President of the United States and ending with the Hottentots, but always omitting the Jew; (it is true that in the Episcopal prayer book there is a prayer for the Jew, but in that prayer he is classed with the infidel and with the Turk). How many churches in this country (and we know what we are talking about) take a stated collection to be used for Jewish work? Once in a while some poor, discouraged Jewish Christian is allowed to address a Christian audience, and occasionally a spasmodic collection is given him; more often, however, he is told that on account of the financial system of the church, no collection can be taken, but he may get something privately from any individual who might feel led to respond to his appeal! We could go on and give dozens of such illustrations which might be so startling as to lack credence. But the facts are all true, and we can vouch for them. They are not generally known, however, and perhaps it is better so, but there is One above who does know, and some day a strict account will be required.

Too many demands? Can it be possible that the cry of Israel in bondage shall be turned away because "my own denominational work" requires all your giving? Does your denomination preach to the Jews? Could you look into the face of your Master, and tell Him, "I had too many other demands and so could not send the gospel to the Jews?" Could you—to that Man of Galilee, whose very heart was breaking as He cried out, "Oh, Jerusalem, Jerusalem, how oft would I have gathered thy children together . . . and ye would not?" Can you love Israel like that? It is the lack of such love and interest that makes Jewish mission work impossible.

Here and there in our large cities a Hebrew Christian moved with compassion towards his brethren and inspired by the Master's command would undertake a Jewish mission, but failing to enlist the sympathy and cooperation of the churches, he struggles for a year or two until he must give up in despair. And so there does not exist in this country today one properly equipped mission to the Jews. There is no training school where workers can be prepared for this work. Facilities for the proper care of converts do not exist. The apathy of the church in the presence of such an obligation is the most alarming of the difficulties that confront the worker for Israel.

Hear, then, the conclusion of the whole matter. What is our duty toward Israel? An impression is abroad that nothing can be done. Has not "blindness . . . happened to Israel"? And what is the use of preaching to them? They will not heed it. Our Lord knew all that and yet He commanded His disciples to begin in Jerusalem, for the blindness was only "in part" and "at the present time there is a remnant according to the election of grace." They will not all receive the gospel, but that is also true of Gentiles and no one would advocate the suspension of all preaching to Gentiles. The church can never be caught up to her Lord until this elect Jewish remnant is brought in. O, do not doubt the power of God: the gospel is just that—"the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek."

Beloved, let us arouse ourselves from this stupor. The Lord has heard the cry of Israel, and the Holy Spirit is moving away the darkness, and calling God's elect to cooperate in giving the gospel of the Christ their Messiah to this neglected people, and you and I are invited to cooperate with Him. It will be worth everything when we come before the King of kings, their Messiah, to know we did what we could for these, the Lord's brethren in the flesh (Matt. 25:31-46).

"For if the casting away of them be the reconciling of the world, what shall the receiving of them be, but life from the dead?"

"Pray for the peace of Jerusalem:
They shall prosper that love thee."

The Talmud says, "The day is short, the work is vast, the reward is great, the Master urges." God's Word says, "The king's business required haste."—1 Sam. 21:8. And, They that did the king's business helped the Jews (Esther 9:3).—J. H. C.

Why Do You Attend Church?

By C. E. Lapp

"They that feared the Lord spake often one to another: and the Lord hearkened, and heard it, and a book of remembrance was written before him for them that feared the Lord, and that thought upon his name."—Malachi 3:16.

AS I stand before my congregations from time to time, the question often comes to me, "Why do you attend church?" Is it because of a lifelong habit which directs you each Sunday to find your place in the house of God? Is it because you feel that duty calls you and that you must be obedient to that call? Do you go because of the social contact and the opportunity that comes to visit with people and see your friends? Are you attending to widen your circle of friends that your business may prosper? Do you go to find fault with those who are trying to carry on the work? Is the music so beautiful that you come only for that and then wish you were at home the remainder of the hour? Is the preacher such a perfect speaker that you just like to hear him speak? Do you attend the church where the minister never denounces sin but only tickles your ears? Do you always desire the truth rather than error? Or, do you attend church for the purpose of worshipping God?

David said in Psalm 122:1, "I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go into the house of the Lord." Do we all unite with the Psalmist in this or do we feel bored and is the entire time irksome? David was glad because God was real to him and he knew it was in God's house that He was supposed to meet His people. It was there David could shut away the world with all its care, sorrow, and pain and meet the One and only one who could forgive his sins.

Is it possible for God's presence to be felt, when before and after every service politics and business are discussed and the latest gossip and crude jokes are passed from lip to lip with no more thought of being in God's house than we would have in being at the county fair? Where is the spirit of worship and the prayer-filled hearts? Jesus said, "Out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh." Is it possible that our drawing near to God is like that of the Pharisees? "This people draweth nigh unto me with their mouth, and honoureth me with their lips; but their heart is far from me." Are the spiritual sacrifices we offer to God pleasing in His sight or is it possible that we may be offering strange fire upon the altar of our hearts to our God? The sons of Aaron offered strange fire upon the altar and God destroyed them by fire that came from His presence.

When Jesus spoke to the woman at the well of Samaria, He said, "God is a Spirit, and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth." How much greater would be the influence and power of the church, if we would every one remember that when we step across the threshold of the edifice in which we are to worship God, a spirit of true worship should fill our whole being. A prayer should come from our hearts which would influence others and then with everyone in the same attitude God's Spirit would prevail and men and women would come under its convicting power. With a deep spirit of reverence and devotion coming from everyone, our churches would soon become a real sanctuary where we could worship in spirit and in truth.

Sons of God

By M. W. Perrine

NO honor in all the creation of God can be greater than to be made a partaker in all the joys and blessings of that little flock to whom Jesus said, "Fear not: for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom." He gives them a number of titles, but they seem to me to be crowned by "sons of God." The flock stand next to the Father, and Jesus is the captain of their salvation.

Paul speaks of this call and the glory of it. Hebrews 2:9: "But we see Jesus, who was made a little lower than the angels for the suffering of death, crowned with glory and honour; that he by the grace of God should taste death for every man. For it became him, for whom are all things, and by whom are all things, in bringing many sons unto glory, to make the captain of their salvation perfect through sufferings."

Jesus was the Father's only begotten Son, and in order to accomplish His purpose God sent Him into the world to save His people from their sins. We read in John 1:11: "He came unto his own, and his own received him not. But as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name."

Paul said to the Galatian called-out ones, "For ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus." But they needed to be developed. In writing to the Hebrews (6:1), Paul said, "Therefore leaving the principles of the doctrine of Christ, let us go on unto perfection." They had the faith. And that was the foundation upon which to build. John said Christ gave them power to become sons of God. They already believed, and it was to these believers that He gave the power to become sons.

Peter tells us what is necessary after we have the faith in order to grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. 2 Peter 1:3: "According as his divine power hath given unto us all things that pertain unto life and godliness, through the knowledge of him that hath called us to glory and virtue: whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promises: that by these ye might be partakers of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust. And beside this, giving all diligence, add to your faith virtue." Some translators render this word "courage," and surely courage is a very necessary virtue, without which many weak-kneed children by faith make shipwreck of their faith and drop out of the race.

"And to virtue knowledge." I have heard some apparently good, straightforward Christians claim that it was not necessary to have a knowledge of God's plan and of the great and precious promises upon which our faith ought to be built. But I must confess that I would not know what to found my faith upon were it not for a knowledge of the things God has promised.

Then Peter adds an array of virtues and graces the which, as he says, if they "be in you, and abound, they make you that ye shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ."

Now Jesus was the head, the firstborn from the dead, and the firstborn among many brethren, and as a Son He was the captain of their salvation. God's way of perfecting all His creatures seems to be through suffering, and speaking of Jesus Paul said (Heb. 5:8): "Though he were a Son, yet learned he obedience by the things which he suffered. And being made perfect, he became the author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey him."

Jesus was perfect in all things except His body, and Paul says (Heb. 2:16): "For verily he took not on him the nature of angels; but he took on him the seed of Abraham. Wherefore in all things it behoved him to be made like unto his brethren." He was mortal, else He could not have offered Himself as a sacrifice. As Jesus was made perfect through suffering, being without sin, how else could He perfect sinful man but by the same method? Hebrews 12:3-11: "For consider him that endured such contradiction of sinners against himself, lest ye be wearied and faint in your minds. Ye have not yet resisted unto blood, striving against sin. And ye have forgotten the exhortation which speaketh unto you as unto children, My son, despise not thou the chastening of the Lord, nor faint when thou art rebuked of him: for whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth, and scourgeth every son whom he receiveth. If ye endure chastening, God dealeth with you as with sons; for what son is he whom the Father chasteneth not? But if ye be without chastisement, whereof all are partakers, then are ye bastards, and not sons. Furthermore, we have had fathers of our flesh which corrected us, and we gave them reverence: shall we not much rather be in subjection unto the Father of spirits, and live? For they verily for a few days chastened us after their own pleasure; but he for our profit, that we might be partakers of his holiness. Now no chastening for the present seemeth to be joyous, but grievous: nevertheless afterward it yieldeth the peaceable fruit of righteousness unto them which are exercised thereby."

So the good all depends upon the effect the chastening has upon us, and how we take it.

David said, "The Lord is righteous in all his ways, and holy in all his work," so we can always depend upon a righteous deal.

John, in saying, "It doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is," would seem to indicate that a very great change would be necessary in the body as well as in the mind. Paul had said (Rom. 8:6), "For to be carnally minded is death: but to be spiritually minded is life and peace."

The body must undergo a change as well as the mind, for it is this mortal that puts on immortality. So Paul tells us who it is that brings about this marvelous change, which will complete and perfect us as sons of God. Philippians 3:20, 21: "For our conversation is in heaven; from whence also we look for the Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ: who shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body, according to the working whereby he is able even to subdue all things unto himself."

So when this carnal mind is changed and we become spiritually minded, and this mortal body is changed and becomes immortal like unto the glorious body of Him who is the captain of our salvation, the work is complete and the many sons made glorious.

0

THE DAY OF GREAT THINGS

IT must be a large matrix that receives and molds the major events and movements of these stirring times. A Harvard professor has made a study of the great wars of history. Commencing five hundred years before Christ, the professor swept through the centuries down to our late World War, rolling up the conflicts and revolutions of twenty-five centuries into one vast aggregate of human carnage, and the cost and destruction that go with war—and what a summary of horror and of death! But here is his comparison and ultimate conclusion: That the massing of the major wars of 2,500 years into one great whole was in magnitude exceeded five or six times over by the recent World War. This is a shocking revelation of the magnitude which an international war in these times may assume.

INCREASE IN MAGNITUDE

And is it too much to say that the law of increase in magnitude that marks almost every great issue and movement of these times is governing as well in the realm of preparation for war in the future? In spite of unpaid national war debts that are staggering, the nations are almost in a frenzy of expenditure, preparing for the next war. And this is going forward on a scale that puts it in a class with the biggest things of our time.

Our own Government is preparing to spend $300,000,000 in preparation for war, and the more enthusiastic war fans are now urging an additional $500,000,000. These and the freehand expenditures in our present national upheaval prepare us to believe our President when he said in his recent message to Congress that by 1936 our national debt would reach $31,000,000,000, a figure big enough to match the biggest things in our big day.

The wars of the past have been on land and on sea. But preparations for the future must cover a third field. It will be: earth, sea, and air. The latter is a new field, but may prove the decisive field in future conflicts. At least the leading nations are greatly increasing the air armaments. In 1931 France had 2,800 war planes, the United States 3,000, England and its Dominions 2,400, Russia 1,700, Italy 1,500, and Japan 1,000. But these figures, if brought down to the present time, would be very largely increased.

As these lines are being written, there is a very serious economic and political tension on throughout Europe. France has been in serious ferment; and Austria is near civil war. Under Europe and the world there are very dangerous forces working, and our very civilization seems in peril.

THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

While economic and political upheaval seems to be the order of the day, and the underworld is very much in evidence about us, there are evidences also of a stirring and a new sense of spiritual need in the religious world. Even in this period of marked depression, statistics show an increase in church attendance, and in membership. And this movement toward awakening and revival is taking on proportions that place it among the big things of our time. Among these we have the Oxford or Buchman Movement, now reaching into many countries, numbering half a million more or less, and largely from "society," the well-to-do, and the professional classes.

Lately we have had the call of Episcopal leaders, headed by Presiding Bishop Perry, asking that 1934 be made memorable in that body as a year of spiritual awakening and of general religious activity. These leaders affirm "the only reconstruction that will satisfy this shaken world must rest upon foundations built in conformity with God's purpose and in obedience to His will."

A still later call comes from the leaders of the Federal Council of Churches, representing thirty communions. Under their own caption, in "The Present Crisis As a Summons to Spiritual Advance," they say in part:

"We are agreed in holding the personal experience of fellowship with God in Christ to be the supreme value in life and the foundation of any Christian program adequate for a fear-stricken and bewildered world. Unless the gospel is first lodged in the heart of the individual as a renewing and transforming power, it can have no healing for society as a whole.

"We are agreed in dedicating ourselves afresh to the task of securing an international order in accordance with the mind of Christ. We note the forbidding aspect of the present world situation, the clashing interests, the swollen armaments of rival Powers, the exaggerated nationalism, the suspicions and the heated passions which presage war. But knowing peace to be God's will for men, we must maintain our faith that it can truly be achieved. If others surrender to the necessity of war, we the more must see clearly and say boldly that the spirit of war and the Spirit of Christ can never be reconciled and that we do not hesitate which to choose."

May not these and many other like tokens presage one more great religious awakening?—F. L. Piper, D. D., in The World's Crisis.

Abreast of the Times

Russian Famine Reported

"Therefore shall her plagues come in one day, death, and mourning, and famine."—Rev. 18:8.

PARIS, France, June 7.—It is being found in Russia, as is also the case in the United States, that political philosophy alone will not fill the granaries nor relieve the country of the danger of famine. One of the most determined efforts the Soviet Government has made has been to place the farms of Russia on a collective and on a scientific basis. That the effort has not only met with strong opposition from the peasants, but also that it has failed to provide the entire people with the bread they need, is becoming ever more apparent.

According to reports published in the Chicago Daily News 65 per cent of the Russian peasants are now established on collective farms. The remaining 35 per cent nominally own and manage their own farms.

One of the most serious causes of opposition to the present system is the fact that when crops are short as was the case last year, the Government, in order to feed the industrial workers of the cities upon which it depends mostly for the support of Communism, takes virtually all that the farmers raise, sometimes leaving not enough for the farmer to feed his family.

It is said that last year, because of widespread crop failures, from four to seven million peasants died of famine. Another crop shortage threatens this year. It is asserted that the price of bread has already been doubled and that serious need will prevail accompanied with much loss of life from starvation during the coming winter.

Science Promises Earth Renewal

"Nevertheless we, according to his promise, look for new heavens and a new earth."—2 Peter 3:13.

ROME, Italy, June 4.—"Evidence that the world will grow young again and its materials will be renewed," was foreseen today by Senator Marico Corbino when he made the announcement to the Lincei Academy of the discovery of a new element, known as "No. 93," which was artificially created from uranium.

Corbino told his distinguished audience, which included King Victor Emmanuel, that "the study of the nucleus, now in its beginning, aims at the ambitious plan of giving back to the earth the youthfulness of its materials. One can now affirm," he declared, "this ambitious design has been converted into reality. Fermi's discovery," he added, "is in effect a manifestation of youth communicated by nuclear collision to old established material."

One of the most interesting facts to the believer in biblical restitution is found in the Senator's further comment. "Since uranium was found," he continued, "discoveries of new elements had the effect of filling up vacancies among simple bodies between the extremes of No. 1, hydrogen, and No. 92, uranium. (Of elements known to exist two, Nos. 89 and 91, have not been discovered.) In the case of the new element, 93, however, we deal instead with the artificial fabrication of a new element constituted outside the series of elements known on earth."

That there are latent forces created by God still unrecognized by the wisest of scientists becomes plainly evident. And is it unreasonable to suppose that God may cause these forces and elements that will make possible the renewal of the earth to be discovered and put to their divinely intended use of "restitution" at the appointed time? With no desire to minimize the miraculous character of the restitution, we feel reasonably sure that God will continue to carry on the larger part of His redemptive work during that period, as it pertains to both humanity and to the earth, in harmony with the fundamental laws He established in the beginning. To do this would in no way detract from their divine nature.

Those Unpaid War Debts

"The Lord shall go forth as a mighty man, he shall stir up jealousy like a man of war."—Isaiah 42:13.

LONDON, England, June 4.—With the decision of Great Britain to make no further payments on her obligations to the United States until this country will consent to a general revision of the war debts of all nations, the greatest economic problem the world has ever faced is again brought to the front. Fifteen nations owed this country more than $11,000,000,000 on July 1, 1933, for credits advanced to them to carry on the World War. One after another these countries have defaulted on their payments, and it now appears as though a general decision has been reached to repudiate them all. Should this be done it would throw the major cost of the World War upon the people of the United States to pay through taxation.

The vast resources of this country, coupled with its comparative prosperity in the past, seems to have stirred up the envy of the world to such a pitch that the nations have concluded if we are as rich as we seem to be we might as well pay the entire cost of the war.

The whole world is bankrupt owing to the wars of the past, but at the same time it is engaged in a feverish preparation for further conflicts on a major scale. By no possible means could the nations ever pay off their war debts with accrued interest. It is a physical impossibility. And yet every day is adding to those heavy obligations for military preparedness which the various Governments are now fostering.

The war debts of the world, as well as its war machinery, will trouble us no more when the Lord comes!

National Berean Department

Miss Genniel Carpenter, Editor, Oregon, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Cecil A. Smead, President
Blanchard, Michigan

Virgil Claypool, Treasurer
506 E. Chestnut St.
Robinson, Illinois

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
Oregon, Illinois

WAR AND VICTORY

"WAR is not two great armies meeting in the clash and frenzy of battle. War is a boy carried on a stretcher, looking up at God's blue sky with bewildered eyes that are soon to close; war is a woman carrying a child that has been injured by a shell; war is spirited horses tied in burning buildings and waiting for death; war is the flower of a race, battered, hungry, bleeding, up to its knees in filthy water; war is an old woman burning a candle before the Mater Dolorosa for the son she has given."

The above is from a book written by Mary Roberts Rinehart, who was in Europe during the World War and witnessed many of its tragedies. It gives rise to the following thoughts on victory.

Victory is not a land made secure and happy after the conflict. Victory is a large hospital ward with rows of white beds, and in those beds men suffering and still to suffer as long as life lasts. Victory is a man in the prime of life groping his way from room to room, blind since the war; victory is a nation burdened with enormous debt; victory is a large annex to a hospital for the insane and strong men from whom reason has fled, being cared for and classed "incurable"; victory is an aged couple, lonely and grief-stricken dreaming of a grave in France.

How aptly it has been said, "Victors in great wars are little better off than the losers."

—Mabel Lindsay, Oregon, Ill.

MIRACLES

Sick of myself and all that keeps the light
Of the blue skies away from me and mine,
I climb the ledge, and by this wind-swept pine
Lingering, watch the coming of the night.
'Tis ever a new wonder to my sight.
Men look to God for some mysterious sign,
For other stars than those which nightly shine,
For some unnatural symbol of His might:—
Wouldst see a miracle as grand as those
The prophets wrought of old in Palestine?
Come watch with me the shaft of fire that glows
In yonder West; the fair, frail palaces,
The fading Alps and archipelagoes,
And great cloud-continents of sunset-seas.

—Thomas Bailey Aldrich.

Oh, do not pray for easy lives. Pray to be stronger men! Do not pray for tasks equal to your powers. Pray for powers equal to your tasks! Then the doing of your work shall be no miracle. But you shall be a miracle. Every day you shall wonder at yourself, at the richness of life which has come in you by the grace of God.

—Phillips Brooks.

"Can a planet wander away even from the power of the sun? How, then, can man fall out of the love of God?"

No one is useless in this world who lightens the burden of it to anyone else.—Dickens.

Half the world is on the wrong scent in pursuit of happiness. They think it consists in having and getting, and in being served by others. It consists in giving and in serving others.—Henry Drummond.

WE MOVE TOWARD DEATH

The Illinois Bereans as a class are as dead as last year's newspaper. So are the Iowa Bereans. So are the other state Berean organizations.

This is a blanket accusation. Necessarily, therefore, there are exceptions. Certain localities in each of the states now possessing state societies are living things, active and interested in their work. But on the whole, it is the isolated society in an unorganized state that now is carrying the brunt of Berean work.

Precisely why this is, is difficult to say. Perhaps the state officers have in years past been negligent, perhaps not. Perhaps the organized states have been too thoroughly organized, organized to the point of stultifying themselves. For excessive organization is always foolish.

Whatever the causes, however, the fact remains that the old organizations are moving to their death, while the societies unaided (or possibly unhampered) by state supervision are going ahead rapidly. This must, of course, be remedied—how, is for the various state Boards, with their knowledge of their own circumstances, to say.

Berean work introduced organization to the Church of God. Berean work has built more than one local church. Berean work must not be allowed to die!—Arlen Marsh.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

THE GLAD TIDINGS OF JESUS

TURN in your Bibles, boys and girls, to the first book in the New Testament, chapter 4, the last three verses. Although we find these words near the very beginning of the story of Jesus' life, yet they give us a clear picture of Him. As we think about it, if we were artists, we would paint a scene something like this.

In the background would be Mt. Lebanon, lifting up its snowy crown, as if in worship to its Creator. Stately green cedars adorn the slopes. Then we would trace the lower ridges and foothills, coming down to the shore of a beautiful lake.

To do justice to this scene we will need our very best blues. For those who have been to Palestine and have looked upon Galilee, say that it looks as if an immense bottle of bluing had been poured into it. We will paint its surface calm and peaceful, though, you remember, it was often stirred into fury by the sudden winds that swept down from the mountains.

In the foreground of our painting are the sandy shores of Galilee, which were the scenes of so many of Jesus' miracles, His lessons, and His sermons. We read in the verses that gave us the inspiration for our picture, that Jesus went about teaching, preaching, and healing.

But when it comes to painting the central figure of it all, we are simply at a loss. As we think of the Son of God, His perfection of character, the love shining from His eyes, His hands extending in blessing over everyone, we know we are neither worthy nor able to present Him. We will simply keep His image enshrined in our hearts, as our example to follow as closely as we can.

As we look at our finished painting, let's study Matthew's word picture again. We know there must have been a connection between Jesus' preaching and teaching and His acts of healing. For no one as honest as the Son of God would say one thing and do another.

So, as we review the life of Jesus, we realize that His message was a glad message. His lessons were lessons filled with hope, and His acts were acts of mercy and love. No wonder "there followed him great multitudes of people"!

Now let's look at some of the lessons He taught. One of the first ones was the lesson of faith. And that, you know, is the most important thing in life. We must have faith in everyone about us and in everything we do—faith in our parents and our teachers, in each other and our work, but in our heavenly Father and our Savior first of all.

If you aren't certain about that, turn to that great faith chapter, Hebrews 11, and read verse 6. We see there that if we want to please God, we must have faith in Him, believe that He really rules over all, and that He will reward those who follow Him.

Then we find the lesson on forgiveness, and how glad we are for that lesson. What if, when we have disobeyed Mother, she should never forgive us? Why, we couldn't bear it, could we? It's hard to imagine, because Mother forgives us over and over again. It's just that way with God, only even better. For His forgiveness, if we ask for it, will bring us everlasting life.

Farther on we studied about giving part of what we possess for Jesus because He gave so much for us. We ought not spend every penny we get for our own pleasure or comfort, nor should we use all our time for ourselves, or our talents, whatever they are.

In all of this Jesus gave those who listened the glad news of His coming kingdom. Telling them how things will be when He comes as King, He showed them by example—healing the crippled, curing the diseased, raising the dead, thus forgiving all their sins. It also helped them to believe that He really had been sent by God, for only God could give such power as He possessed and used for the good of others.

From the shores of Galilee Jesus journeyed up toward Jerusalem in the later months of His life on earth. We say "up," though it is south of Galilee, because all the land of Palestine slopes gradually higher and higher toward the region of Jerusalem. It is true there are very high mountains in the northern part. For example, we have Mt. Hermon, northeast of the Jordan, and where Jesus was transfigured, the highest mountain in Palestine.

It was into Jerusalem He rode as King, less than a week before He was captured by Roman soldiers, to whom He had been sold. The sad scenes that followed are fresh in your minds, for they were the later lessons studied. Possessing the power that He did, we know He could have escaped the guards, but He endured it all in order to be the Savior of the world.

Let's not forget, though, that He told the disciples He would rise again, and that fact is the most important to us today. We have a living Savior, who is coming back to earth soon as King of all kings.

The Sunday School Lesson

FROM TRUTH SEEKERS' QUARTERLY

LESSON 13. — June 24, 1934

REVIEW: THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM

Devotional Reading: Micah 4:1-5

GOLDEN TEXT

Of his kingdom there shall be no end.—Luke 1:33.

Lesson I. John 20:1-16.

Topic: The Risen Christ.

Summary: Mary Magdalene visited the sepulchre before daybreak on Sunday morning after the crucifixion of Christ, and, finding the stone before the tomb rolled back, feared that Jesus had been removed, and ran and told Peter and John what she had seen. They all hurried back to the sepulchre, and Peter, stepping within the tomb, found the grave-clothes neatly folded. Later Jesus appeared to Mary, but was not at first recognized, but soon made Himself known to her, to her great joy.

Lesson II. Matt. 18:1-14; 19:13-15.

Topic: The Child and the Kingdom.

Summary: In answer to the disciples' question as to who should be the greatest in the kingdom of heaven when it was set up Jesus put a little child before them, and said that one must "be converted, and become as little children" or he could not enter into the kingdom. He later told the story of one sheep out of the flock of a hundred that went astray, and how the shepherd rejoiced when he found it. Little children brought to Him were graciously received and lovingly blessed.

Lesson III. Matthew 18:15-35.

Topic: Jesus Teaches Forgiveness.

Summary: Peter asked Jesus, "How oft shall my brother sin against me, and I forgive him? till seven times?" Jesus answered, "Until seventy times seven," that is, as often as the brother sins against him. The Master then told the parable of the king whose servant owed him a vast sum and was forgiven his debt. But the servant refused to forgive a fellow servant and thereby lost the pardon he himself craved. "So likewise shall my heavenly Father do also unto you, if ye from your hearts forgive not every one his brother their trespasses."

Lesson IV. Matthew 19:1-30.

Topic: Our All for the Kingdom.

Summary: Jesus commanded a rich young man that if he would have eternal life and be perfect in God's sight he must not keep his possessions for himself, but give them away to the poor, and follow the Master in a life of service. The young man went away sorrowful. When Peter asked what the disciples should have as a reward for leaving all to be with Christ, the Lord told them that they should be kings over Israel when He came again, and that all others who gave up the things of this life for Him should be rewarded with eternal life.

Lesson V. Matthew 20:1-34.

Topic: Christ's Standard of Greatness.

Summary: Salome, the mother of James and John, asked Jesus to grant to her two sons positions of greatest honor in His kingdom. This He said He had no authority to do. Jesus then explained to His disciples (the twelve) that His standard of greatness, both for the present and the future, was real worthiness, a humble willingness to be of service. He closed His discourse with the assertion that He Himself came to serve, rather than to be served.

Lesson VI. Matthew 21:1-46.

Topic: Jesus Acclaimed As King.

Summary: In complete fulfillment of the prophecy of Zech. 9:9, Jesus rode into Jerusalem mounted on the "foal of an ass." He was joyously received by the greater part of the multitude, who spread the garments and palm branches in His path as an act of honor. He went to the temple, where He found those who changed money and sold doves for the sacrifice within the sacred inclosure. He drove them out, saying they had made God's "house of prayer . . . a den of thieves."

Lesson VII. Matthew 22:1 to 23:39.

Topic: Christianity and Patriotism.

Summary: The scribes and Pharisees became very angry with Jesus because He reproved them severely for their pride and dogmatism. As a result they tried to trap Him in His teaching. First they sent men who asked Him if it was lawful to pay taxes to Caesar. Jesus took a coin, and, calling attention to the fact that it was marked with the picture and signature of Caesar, said that as it belonged to Caesar they must pay it back to him in taxes. They then asked Him which was the great commandment, and He told them that love for God and love for men were the first and the second greatest of all the commandments.

Lesson VIII. Matthew 24:1 to 25:30.

Topic: The Future of the Kingdom.

Summary: Jesus likens the kingdom of God to ten virgins who awaited the coming of the bridegroom whose marriage feast they were to assist in celebrating. All fell asleep. When the call came, "Behold, the bridegroom cometh!" five of the virgins had oil in their lamps, but the others were without oil. Those who were ready were permitted to enter with the bridegroom the house of feasting, but the others were shut out because of their lack of preparation. Jesus warned the disciples to be ever watchful, for no one knew the hour of His coming.

Lesson IX. Matthew 25:31-46.

Topic: The Judgment of the Nations.

Summary: Jesus tells of His future coming with reference to the judgment of all nations. At that time all nations will be gathered before Him and He "will separate them one from another, as a shepherd divideth his sheep from the goats." Righteous nations are those which have comforted His brethren. Wicked nations have failed to do this. The righteous ones are rewarded with life everlasting, while the wicked are to be consumed.

Lesson X. Matthew 26:1-75.

Topic: Jesus in the Shadow of the Cross.

Summary: After the Last Supper Jesus led His disciples out to the Garden of Gethsemane. Taking Peter, James, and John with Him, He went up the mountain a little way and asked them to watch with Him as He went on to pray alone. He fell on His face and asked God to take His cup of suffering from Him if it was God's will to do that. He offered the same prayer three times, returning after each prayer to find His disciples asleep. At last He told them they could now rest, as the time had come for Him to be betrayed to His enemies.

Lesson XI. Matthew 27:1-66.

Topic: Jesus on the Cross.

Summary: After His arrest Jesus was brought before the Jewish council and condemned for blasphemy. Later, taken before the Roman governor, He was accused of claiming to be the King of the Jews. It was on this latter charge that Pilate caused Him to be crucified. Two thieves were executed with Him, one on either side. The populace passed by, challenging Him to prove His claims by coming down from the cross. Profound darkness prevailed for three hours, until Jesus died, at which time an earthquake occurred, and the veil of the temple was rent from top to bottom.

Lesson XII. Matthew 28:1-20.

Topic: The Risen Lord and the Great Commission.

Summary: The exact time of the resurrection of Jesus is not given. Early in the morning of Sunday following His crucifixion certain women came to the tomb and found it empty. An earthquake had taken place, the stone was rolled away from the door, and an angel sat upon it. The angel told the women of Jesus' resurrection, and commanded them to tell His disciples that He would meet them in Galilee. Later Jesus revealed Himself to them all and told them to preach the gospel throughout the world, and He would be with them.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CONFERENCE DATES

Minnesota State Conference at St. Cloud,	June 14 to 17
Northwestern Conference	June 20 to 24
Indiana Bible School and Conference at North Salem Church	July 5 to 15
Illinois Bible School and Conference at Oregon,	July 31 to Aug. 12
General Conference at Oregon, Illinois,	July 31 to Aug. 12
Iowa Conference at Waterloo,	Aug. 21 to 26

NORTHWESTERN IOWA

According to a report received from Mrs. Anna Boyanovsky, services are to be held in northwestern Iowa as follows: June 3, at the residence of Arthur Carlson, near Marathon; June 17, at the residence of Anna Fales, Storm Lake; July 1, at the residence of Harold Smith, near Varina; July 15, at the residence of Sam Titus, near Varina.

MINNESOTA STATE CONFERENCE

The sixtieth anniversary of the Minnesota State Conference of the Church of God will be observed in connection with the annual meeting to be held at St. Cloud, June 14 to 17, 1934.

The Conference of the Church of God in Minnesota was organized at Dassel, December 18, 1874. The first officers were Elder William Parson, president; E. E. Thoms, secretary; William Matheny, treasurer. Simon Peter Matheny was ordained a minister of the Conference at its first session. Six churches were represented: Silver Lake, Swan Lake, Ellsworth, Forest Prairie, Steelville, and Otter Creek. The Swan Lake church was the largest, reporting a membership of 46, and the Steelville church the smallest, with 7 members.

We are indebted to the godly men named above for their sacrifices and loyalty to God and the church that bears His name. Many of us still remember with gratitude also, Elders Scott, Raymond, Wood, Chadwick, Randall, Crawford, Martin, Racy, Jenks, Dingman, Sweany, Brown, Driver, Ranney, Patrick, Win Thoms, Blanchette, Savage, and many others. Some are still living, but most of them are waiting the call to come forth from their graves to be immortalized.

Great sacrifices have been made, and as we are reminded of these gallant soldiers of the cross it stirs us deeply as we plan to gather once more for a great spiritual feast.

The St. Cloud church welcomes one and all. Come, dear ones, and let us enjoy this feast, and also pray that there may break out of this meeting the greatest revival we have ever known. Let us go on our knees together in prayer, that God may awaken every heart to action.

Lastly, this assurance ought to bring everyone to this conference: One of our grand preachers of the gospel will be with us, Elder F. L. Austin, the "Back-to-the-Bible Evangelist" of Chicago.

—The Morning Star.

ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI

On May 31 we filled the regular monthly appointment at St. Louis, and at the close of the sermon Mrs. William McPheeters accepted Christ as her Savior. We were all glad because of her action, and because of the inspiration she gave to the rest of us to work the harder. The following morning a few went with her to the river southwest of St. Louis, where she was assisted in putting on Christ by baptism. We ask the prayers of God's people for this new sister in Christ, and also for the little band of workers who are carrying on at this point.

May God bless and keep us each one until Jesus comes.

C. E. Lapp, Pastor.

CEDAR FALLS, IOWA

On Wednesday evening, June 6, a little company of believers met on the bank of the Cedar River at Cedar Falls, Iowa, and witnessed, in figure, one being born anew. The writer buried Mrs. Evelyn Potter in the waters of baptism, and she arose to begin a new life as a new creature in Christ Jesus. We pray that God's richest blessings may be with her all through her Christian life, and may His Holy Spirit power keep her faithful unto the end.

Charles W. Howe.

CONTEST WINNERS

A number of interesting manuscripts were submitted to the judges, Srs. Anna E. Drew and Mary A. Gesin, for consideration in the "What Must I Do to Be Saved?" contest. After careful comparison the committee decided that the following contestants expressed the conditions the most fully, clearly, and scripturally of all that were sent in. Therefore we take pleasure in awarding the four prizes to:

- Mrs. Orval Shepherd, McCook, Neb.;
- R. H. Judd, Toronto, Ont.;
- Rufus A. Curtis, Dayton, Ohio;
- S. T. Shirley, Rock Falls, Ill.

The order in which these names occur does not indicate the precedence of one over the other. Other manuscripts written for the contest may appear later.

KOKOMO, INDIANA

We have just closed the second half of our May series, which was extended over June 3. Bro. C. A. Smead of Blanchard, Mich., was the speaker, stressing "Common Sense in Religion" and "Conditional Immortality." While there were no additions during this period, we know the seed sown will bring forth fruit. We were indeed fortunate to have Bro. Smead with us again. During the afternoons he conducted a junior Bible class on "The Life of Christ." There were fifteen enrolled in this class.

Attendance and interest were good despite the extreme hot weather.

On Sunday, May 27, we held our all-day meeting. Bro. Smead spoke both morning and evening. Dinner was served in our new basement. The afternoon was filled by a short children's program and music and sermons by Bro. O. J. Parker and Bro. William Huffer of Michigantown, Ind. After supper the writer led a short Berean class, followed by the evening service.

Bro. Parker and I wish to express our thanks to all who assisted in these meetings. The music and songs were inspiring. Bro. Anderson, Bro. Smead, and Bro. Huffer are always welcome in Kokomo. Such cooperation encourages us to carry on the work.

D. G. Harvey.

ANNUAL MAY MEETING

The Annual May Meeting for 1934 is one of many pleasant memories and blessings. It is now history, yet it will live on in the lives of those present and will be reflected in future generations if there are any. Ideal weather graced each day and it seemed that the bright sunshine with temperate warmth found its equilibrium in the hearts and lives of those present. The spirit of peace and goodwill and neighborly and Christian fellowship rang true to the ideal command, "Love thy neighbour as thyself."

The meetings on Sunday were of course the largest. The morning and afternoon services were among the largest of all time. We hope this is a good omen for the meetings and conferences to be held in other states. It seemed that our new basement made a pleasant appeal, for more remained for dinner and supper than ever before. All were amply supplied, but it was necessary to multiply the loaves for the evening meal.

At the close of the Sunday evening message, Clarence Moore, eldest son of Bro. and Sr. Clinton Moore, was baptized into Jesus Christ. Clarence made confession of faith some weeks previous, but circumstances did not allow at the time for his immersion. We pray the Father's richest blessing to rest upon him in his new walk of life. His address is Ransomville, N. Y.

These meetings were the first time Bro. and Sr. Marsh have engaged in spiritual labor here since they left nearly seven years ago. It was a home-coming all around. The churches were happy to see these former workers again and have them in their midst.

The messages brought by Bro. Marsh were timely and were of such high quality that it was an honored privilege to introduce him as our General Conference secretary. His scholarly work was and is a credit to the church he represents.

On Monday evening following the meetings the Niagara Falls church sponsored a picnic supper at Whirlpool Park in order that all would have an opportunity to have a visit with the Marshes. What an evening! Only those present know of this experience and most of this was at the tables where all came near crossing the border line of temperance. Such meetings of Christians where the friendship and fellowship of each other are enjoyed merely bespeak the time when they shall come from the four points of the compass and sit down in the kingdom of God.

C. E. Randall.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

Work on the Children's Day program is progressing well as these lines are written, and a splendid service is anticipated.

Bro. L. E. Conner was a welcome guest in Grand Rapids June 1, choosing the one and only swelteringly hot day which the season has yet produced.

Several cases of scarlet fever in the community called for an order from the Health Department putting a ban on children attending public gatherings for several days. It was feared that our Sunday school for June 3 would have to be omitted, but the ban was lifted in time, and in spite of that and other unfavorable circumstances more than two hundred were present.

Bro. and Sr. Chas. Simpson are on a motor visit with friends in New York State. Sr. Ada Simpson is accompanying them on the trip. Sr. Clyde Thomas and children are visiting relatives farther north in Michigan and Marcile Siple has gone with them. Sr. Niles and children are also on a vacation trip.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

GOLDEN RULE CHURCH OF GOD

The Sunday evening series of sermons on Old Testament Men will be concluded this month with "Eli, the Incapable," "Samuel, the Faithful Witness," and "King Saul, the Selfish." Morning subjects for the month will be, "Gold Tried in the Fire," "The King Who Ruled in Chains" (the latter will be given on Children's Day, June 10), "Faith of Our Fathers" (on Father's Day, June 17), and on the last Sunday of the month, "Called Christians."

"Public Prayer" will be the question discussed this month at the Prayer Circle meeting at the home of Mrs. Sophia Seifert, June 20. The discussion will be led by the pastor.

The annual business meeting of the church will be held under the new constitution, which was recently adopted, on the first Monday after the last Sunday in June, which happens to be the 25th this year. Officers for the coming year will be elected, reports received, and other matters of business considered.

The new constitution provides for the changing of the name of the church from simply "Golden Rule Church" to "Golden Rule Church of God," thus incorporating in the local name the denominational name as well.

Among other changes made effective by the new constitution are the following: A new election procedure, specification of the duties of members, new committees, and an entirely different set-up in organization.

It sets up an Executive Board composed of the officers and heads of departments, who are all required to be members of the church. There are four standing committees, Finance and Music, with three members each, and Social and Welfare, previously called Relief, with five each. No one is eligible to any office who has not been a member for two years, and the ballot is limited to active members.

—Golden Rule News.

We are glad to present herewith a picture of Elder T. M. Savage, Sr., whose recent death cast a shadow of grief over the entire Church of God in Minnesota.

CONTRIBUTORS TO DOLLAR-A-MONTH CLUB

Mr. and Mrs. Delos Andrew; Silas M. Claypool; Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Updike; Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Lansbery; Grand Rapids Sunday School ($3); Albert Siple; Ella M. Siple; Anna Mae Bottolfs ($2); Mae Mick; Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Railsback; Mary Calkins.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Glenn M. Birkey (for self and another); Mrs. A. M. Siple (for self and another); Bertha Logan; Mrs. Ed Tomlin; Winfield T. McKaig; Mrs. Bert Sheets; Mrs. E. L. Griffin; Mrs. G. Marrs; Mrs. A. M. Ross; Elizabeth Louise May; N. Goodreau; Mr. and Mrs. Delos Andrew; Jane Glass; Ernest Crundwell.

BETWEEN YOU AND ME—

Eld. S. J. Lindsay spoke impressively to a large audience at the church at Oregon, Ill., last Sunday night on the increase of infidelity. Bro. Lindsay's many friends were glad to hear him again from the pulpit where he had presided for so many years in the past.

A slight error seems to have been made recently on the address of "packages" delivered in the Niagara Falls District. It appears that a second son, Kenneth Robert, arrived June 1, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rushton, Niagara Falls, while a second daughter, Betty Jean, was left at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Elliott, Fonthill, Ont. We understand, however, the recipients have decided to accept without protest the deliveries as made for the present at least. Kenneth Robert Rushton is the grandson of Bro. and Sr. George Rennard, while Miss Betty Jean Elliott is the granddaughter of Bro. and Sr. C. W. Elliott.

The song poem on the Editorial Page may be sung to the familiar tune of "Savior, Like a Shepherd Lead Us."

Bro. and Sr. S. J. Lindsay, the former for a number of years pastor of the church at Tempe, Ariz., reached home at Oregon, Ill., early last week. Bro. Lindsay made his first appearance at the editor's home with fishpole over his shoulder. We pity the funny tribe of Rock River as we contemplate their forthcoming losses!

The pastor of the St. Cloud, Minn., church and his wife were pleasantly surprised on a recent Sunday when they were presented by their many friends with a token of love on the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage. The remembrance took the appropriate form of a silver offering. Eld. Hoskins says, "It makes us feel young again!"

SPECIAL INDEBTEDNESS FUND

Previously reported received	$1574.96
Verna Himmelright	10.00
Eva H. M. Fletcher	21.70
Mrs. C. Seely	5.00
Lawrenceville, O., Berean Society	5.00
Lydia Railsback	2.00
Maybelle Hanson	5.00
Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Boyer	5.00
Total received	$1628.66
Pledges reported	272.39
Total pledges and contributions	$1901.05

WE'RE UNDER WAY!

Owing to the kindness of our Father in heaven, who has so abundantly blessed our efforts to meet the indebtedness of the National Bible Institution, and to the generous cooperation of the brotherhood throughout the country, our manager, L. E. Conner, expects to open negotiations this week with the receiver of the Oregon bank looking to final settlement. We reach the nineteenth rung of the ladder with this issue, and are trusting you to carry us over the top in time to support the manager's efforts.

Let's
climb
the Ladder
to Success
!

$1900
$1800
$1700
$1600
$1500
$1400
$1300
$1200
$1100
$1000
$900
$800
$700
$600
$500
$400
$300
$200
$100

HIGHER LIFE

THE United States Government has different departments; but the one I wish to notice is the Post Office Department. Thousands of faithful workers are connected therewith, some getting large salaries, and some small. As many of the men and women that work for Uncle Sam (as the Government is called) are obliged to handle money, more or less, this branch is always in need of persons that can be trusted, as we all know. Many mistakes have been made in the past in addressing letters, and they have often gone to the dead letter office. But some of us may ask, What are you writing about these things for as but few of us ever expect to work along these lines? Answer: for the same reason that Jesus in His sermons made references to the beasts of the field, and the fowls of the air, the foxes of the desert, the sower that went forth to sow, the stony ground, and the like. He used the natural things to represent the great spiritual lessons that He taught.

As the United States Government has different departments connected with the post office, so also the church; "To every man his work," says Inspiration. Are you not glad, dear reader, that the all-wise God has a work for you? To do something is beneficial, is better than idleness. Whether you are weak or strong, high or low, rich or poor, the Lord wants you to enlist in His vineyard. However, if you are rich in this world's goods He will ask you to dispose of most of your riches, before He can trust you with the things that are worth more than silver or gold. Will you do it, or do you prefer to cast your gold and silver to the moles and bats later?

As the Government needs trustworthy men and women to handle its funds, so the church needs persons that are sanctified by belief of the truth, not having spot or wrinkle, or any such thing. Those in the employ of the Government get wages, some large, and some small. Not so in regard to the salaries of God's children in the future kingdom. The Lord does not act miserly with them. Their rewards are so great that they are beyond computation. They are so great that they cannot be likened to dollars and cents. Having been there ten thousand years, bright, shining as the sun, we have no fewer days to sing God's praises than when we first began.

Some of the Government employees cannot be trusted. Not so with reference to those who are in the kingdom of glory. Every person will be true to the Lord and his fellow man. We need not lock our doors then. Thieves and robbers will not be there.

Many letters have gone wrong on account of not having the right address, and many have gone to the dead letter office. Can we not apply this part of the illustration in a figurative way? Only those will be saved who have the right address written upon them, or have the perfect life of Jesus reckoned to their account through faith in Him. (See 1 Corinthians 1:30.) Remember, dear reader, that if you go there, you will never get out again. The decision in regard to the disposal of the human letters will be final.

There will be no chance of appeal. Will you let the Lord write His address upon you? He wants to do that, for He says that He has no pleasure in the death of the wicked. He does not write it on the sole of your feet; but in a conspicuous place—on the forehead (Rev. 14:1), for that is the seat of the mind, and He wants people to notice His address. The beloved Apostle John has written something on these points of faith to substantiate the above fact.

"I will write upon him the name of my God, and the name of the city of my God, which is new Jerusalem, which cometh down out of heaven from my God: and I will write upon him my new name."—Rev. 3:12. Three things are usually necessary for an address on an envelope. So also with God's address. First, God's name; second, the name of the city; third, the new name. We cannot write the address upon ourselves, but the Lord can, and He says, "I will write upon him the name of my God," but He will not force it upon us. If we find out what God's name represents, we may understand the above better. This is explained in Exodus 34:5-7: "And the Lord descended in the cloud, and stood with him there, and proclaimed the name of the Lord. And the Lord passed by before him, and proclaimed, The Lord, The Lord God, merciful and gracious, longsuffering, and abundant in goodness and truth, keeping mercy for thousands, forgiving iniquity and transgression and sin."

The above virtues are what the name of the Lord represents. Notice that He is merciful, gracious, long-suffering, good, and always speaks the truth. Then any person that does not bear these fruits has not got the name of the Lord written upon him. Consequently he does not have God's address, and therefore, cannot go to Jerusalem when Jesus comes, unless the righteousness of Jesus is imputed to him, but goes to the dead letter office instead. Part of God's name is, "Forgiving iniquity and transgression and sin." If any of His professed children do not possess a forgiving spirit, then they also will go to the dead letter office. We are pleased to notice that the Lord is merciful—that He treats offenders better than they deserve. Were it not for this spirit, I fear that we all would be lost. While it is true that the perfect life of God's dear Son is imputed to us, so that we stand complete in Him, it is also true that the Lord changes our hearts by the Spirit power so that we are partakers of the divine nature, and then we are in tune with Him.—J. F. Jensen in The Bible Advocate.

—0—

"FAITH is deepened rather than disturbed by reason."

—0—

THE CHURCH OF CHRIST

Continued from Front Page

In truth, the church has many accounts receivable. Millions will not acknowledge their debts. But all are debtors to the church, and being debtors, assuredly they are customers, indeed.—McComb Enterprise; selected by G. M. Siple.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 23

OREGON, ILLINOIS, JUNE 19, 1934

NUMBER 38

Are You a Friend of Jesus?

By D. G. Harvey

"Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you."—John 15:4.

HOW we are thrilled as we read, "Whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promises: that by these ye might be partakers of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust." "And this is the promise that he hath promised us, even eternal life,"—1 John 2:25. "Fear not, little flock; for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom."—Luke 12:32. Oh, the joy, the rapture, the great peace that come as we read these words! But before we dislocate an arm patting our own backs, let us examine ourselves, whether we be in the faith (2 Cor. 13:5). Are we friends of Jesus?

If the question were asked of any church member one meets on the street, the answer without a doubt would be, "Yes." But have we obeyed the commands of our Lord? We have been baptized, yes, but that is but the start of the race, which Paul tells us must be run with patience (Heb. 12:1). It is from this grave of water we rise that we "should walk in newness of life" (Rom. 6:4). There we must crucify the old man, and not, as some one has remarked, "Dress him up to make him look nice."

If you are a friend of Jesus, a Christian, you are a disciple, for Acts 11:26 shows either term may be applied. Therefore the command of the Lord, as recorded by Matthew (28:19) and Mark (16:15), is to you as well as our brethren of the early church. "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations." "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature." It is a command to you, Christ's friend, to proclaim the good news of the Lord's coming and His kingdom.

But perhaps we read, "And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come."—Matt. 24:14. Then we turn to these words: "And this gospel must first be published among all nations."—Mark 13:10. Then we throw out our chests and declare the Bible has been published in every known language and dialect in the world. But what have we had to do with that work? The reward for that labor must go to others.

"We hold," observes Mr. Harvey, "the scriptural name 'The Church of God.' But if we have strife and confusion, have we the right to use that name?" It is an appeal to every individual in the church, especially directed to the summer's conferences.

But we ask, "What can we do? We can do nothing." Why not? The harvest is indeed great, and the laborers are few. For over nineteen hundred years the gospel message has been going forth, but a far larger part of the church membership and, yes, officers, too, has been sitting, content to sing, "I shall never be removed."

True, in the kingdom "they shall sit every man under his vine" (Micah 4:4). But now is the time for work. What will be the reward of those, when He comes "to give every man according as his work shall be" (Rev. 22:12), if there has been no work? Let us again turn to 2 Peter 1, reading the fifth to seventh verses: "And besides this (those promises of the fourth verse), giving all diligence, add to your faith virtue; and to virtue knowledge; and to knowledge temperance; and to temperance patience; and to patience godliness; and to godliness brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness charity." Brethren, may we learn this simple lesson of addition, and after a little study we find the total to be love. Why should this lesson be learned? Note the eighth and ninth verses: "For if these things be in you, and abound, they make you that ye shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. But he that lacketh these things is blind, and cannot see afar off, and hath forgotten that he was purged from his old sins." If each member of the Church of God could learn this simple lesson, there would be no need to fear that the church would become weak. With each member working, and working together, there is not a local church that could not be a shining light in its locality.

Please turn to Page Nine

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879.

G. Eldred Marsh, Editor

Two Dollars per Year

Paul C. Johnson, Associate Editor

A PRAYER FOR THE PASTORS

OUR FATHER, Thou who hast provided so generously for our every need, we thank Thee that in Thy wisdom Thou hast seen fit to raise up for our blessing so many earnest men and women who are devoting their lives to the furtherance of Thy cause among men. Bless them, we pray, as they strive to lead us into closer fellowship with Thee and into a fuller understanding of Thy truth as it is revealed in the Bible. May they see abundant fruitage from their labor and be made to rejoice. Amen.

— 0 —

“WHAT DIFFERENCE DOES IT MAKE?”

THIS is a question that is frequently asked by the more thoughtful concerning the insistence of the Church of God on certain doctrinal teachings pertaining to the nature of man, the resurrection of the dead, the earthly nature of the eternal kingdom, and some other elements of truth for which the church stands. “What difference does it make whether we believe in the immortality of the soul, or in conditional immortality? How can the belief that the righteous go to heaven at death, rather than await the resurrection for their reward, affect our final destiny so long as we have faith in the saving power of Jesus Christ?”

We may not lightly set this question aside as the emanation of indolent and careless minds, for such is not the case. We are living in a logically questioning age. People are educated to demand a reason for all they are asked to believe, and it is right that they should do this. God has given us logical minds with which to weigh all that we see and hear, and He expects us to use them for that purpose. He does not even demand that we accept the truth of the Scriptures unquestioningly, but challenges us to test them in every possible way.

So much of our past efforts to advance what we termed “the truth” has been directed dogmatically rather than logically. We have insisted that people believe our interpretation of the Bible simply because we knew that which we taught was supported by the plain teaching of the Word of God.

Of course that is an argument that is possessed of much weight when addressed to those who are already believers in the inspiration of the holy Book, but it has no influence over the minds of those who are not Christians. When appealing to them we must establish the credibility of the Scriptures before we attempt to use them as the basis of authority.

It is not, however, with the non-Christian that we have to do in connection with the question before us. It is the professing but unenlightened disciple who asks, “What difference does it make?” Hence we must seek to answer his question biblically as well as logically, kindly as well as definitely.

At the outset every devout person will admit that there are some facts concerning God that the mortal mind cannot fully grasp. They go beyond human powers of perception. Some of them we may be able to understand after more thorough study. Others we may come to comprehend when “mortality is swallowed up of life.” Still others we may never be able to apprehend even in eternity itself. This confession will cause us to approach our question humbly, as befits humanity in the presence of omniscience.

The importance of knowing and believing the truth of God is evident from this established fact: Our actions depend upon our thinking. Consciously or unconsciously, we live what we believe, or we live in harmony with our belief.

For an example of the way in which our attitude toward God is influenced by our belief, allow me to suggest this as an illustration: If we are convinced that the righteous go at once to their reward at death, and have no further concern with things of the earth, we will submerge our interest in the world in which we live in an overwhelming concern about our future home in heaven. On the other hand, if we believe, as the Bible so clearly teaches, that “the meek shall inherit the earth,” and “dwell therein for ever,” our interest in developments here will be vastly increased, and we will watch the happenings around us constantly, seeing in them all evidences of God’s management and preparation for the transformation of this earth into the eternal home of the saints. As we think along this line, our lives will fall into step with our thinking, and we will be found watching, waiting, and praying consistently with our faith when the Lord comes.

The same argument holds good with the question of life, i. e., of conditional immortality. To believe that our only hope of immortality rests upon the resurrection of the dead at the Lord’s coming, we will naturally fix our attention and build our actions around that idea.

In addition to all this, to believe God rather than men is of vast importance. “Abraham believed God, and it was counted unto him for righteousness.”

"The Godly Man Ceaseth"

By Norman John MacLeod

"Help, Lord; for the godly man ceaseth; for the faithful fail from among the children of men. . . . The wicked walk on every side, when the vilest men are exalted."—Psalm 12:1, 8.

A COMMON belief among men is that in a crisis a strong man arises to lead the people through to better times. In times of stress men who would ordinarily be mediocre rise to heights, is the substance of the theory. But the cry of David here recorded reminds us of that statement from Ecclesiastes: "The race is not to the swift, nor the battle to the strong."—9:11. "Help, Lord; for the godly man ceaseth." Instead of men's faith and strength increasing in times of stress and strain they fail. The godly man will not stoop to the low things of the present political world, and so the affairs of government are left in the hands of the wicked, and the "vilest men are exalted." Several years ago at a meeting of the social science teachers of southern California in Los Angeles, the Mayor of Los Angeles spoke. He told of his efforts to further good government: when he came into office he found that in one department of the Government there was such corruption, that $50,000 per month was passed around in bribes and "hush money." He knew who was doing the bribing, but so difficult is it for an honest man to work in the field of government that he had to catch the man in the actual act of giving or receiving the money before anything could be done. He discharged one certain crooked politician from a position, and thereby gained over four thousand political enemies who were friends of that man. He said at that time that he feared for good government. He said that so burdensome was the position of Mayor of a large city because of the corruption that existed on every hand, that he would rather do almost anything else than be Mayor did he not feel that he could give Los Angeles a good government. Needless to say he was badly defeated at the next election. "The godly man ceaseth," for he will not become embroiled. "The faithful fail from among the children of men," because they will not lower themselves to take part in government in cooperation with wicked men. And that has always been the history of mankind.

When Israel came out of Egypt and settled in their land, they fell each into his own way and forgot God. God, therefore, allowed them to go into captivity. Only when they repented in the times of their misery did God send them judges to lead them back again. Always has the righteous period been short in comparison to that of the wicked, for "the godly man ceaseth."

True it is that Saul and David both came to Israel at a crisis to lead their people back to God. But Saul soon led them astray again, giving foul example from fair names. Even David, the beloved of God, in his old age caused Israel to stumble. Even the wise Solomon who asked for wisdom to guide the people of God married strange women and set up idol worship when he grew old. Samuel arose at a crisis, but he was rejected by the people of Israel. He became powerless, because of the lack of faith in those that surrounded him. But, if we can name some bright and shining lights as those mentioned, we can overload the color of the picture on the other side. The history of the nations of Israel and Judah is a wearisome repetition of the same story: "And he did evil in the sight of the Lord." Out of all the line of the kings of Judah stands that bright and shining light, Josiah. When but a boy of eight he came to govern Israel. The temple had fallen into decay so that piles of rubbish had been allowed to accumulate in it. Idols had been erected in the sacred precincts of God's house, which was to be "a house of prayer for all nations." So degraded had become the minds of the people and their rulers alike, that the book

Go and Toil

"And ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding; that when he cometh and knocketh, they may open unto him immediately."

If you have not gold and silver
Ever ready to command,
If you cannot towards the needy
Reach an ever open hand,
You can visit the afflicted,
O'er the erring you can weep,
You can be a true disciple,
Sitting at the Savior's feet.

Do not then stand idly waiting
For some greater work to do,
Fortune is a lazy goddess,
She will never come to you.
Go and toil in any vineyard,
Do not fear to do or dare,
If you want a field of labor,
You can find it anywhere.
—Ellen H. Gates of the law had been lost, and the men who were sent to repair the temple found it lying under piles of rubbish. But this boy-king Josiah shows by contrast the very fact that great men do not arise in a crisis. When the crisis came tragedy stalked forth to slay the good boy-king. Caught between the hammer and the anvil as it were, between forces of the rising power of Babylon to the north-east and the waning power of Egypt on the south, Josiah went to an untimely death. His death left the kingdom in the hands of the worst sort of weaklings. The worst of the worst came to the throne in the person of Zedekiah, just when the kingdom needed godly men most of all. When we review the tragedy of Judah we feel keenly the cry of David: "Help, Lord; for the godly man ceaseth." Certainly God alone can help! (Please turn to Page Nine)

Foundations of Truth

By R. H. Judd

"Let that therefore abide in you, which ye have heard from the beginning."—1 John 2:24. "Thy word is true from the beginning"; "The beginning of thy word is true" (marg.); "The sum of thy word is truth" (R. V.)—Psa. 119:160.

THE word "beginning" in Scripture, like some others, is translated from different Hebrew and Greek originals. Not that the Word of God is incapable of utterance in other tongues, but rather that our want of understanding of that word has limited our capacity to express it. Hence, as our understanding of it grows, our ability to comprehend and define it increases also.

To the ordinary mind the word "beginning" is almost invariably associated with the word "commencement." The fact that four Hebrew words are used to express what our translators have given us in one English word is evidence of the lack of understanding referred to.

Our Bibles all give us the opening phrase—"In the beginning God," and so used have we become to it that we would not wish to have it changed. Undoubtedly in earlier years it conveyed the idea of a beginning to which there was no past. According to Prof. McCaul the Hebrew word, in this instance, might more literally be rendered "in former times," or "in past antiquity," or "in former duration." Thus the idea is conveyed that the event referred to has particular point in relation to definite act, but is indefinite in relation to us, and points back indefinitely to time that is past. These facts may be confirmed by reference to Young's Concordance in the passages listed under the various divisions.

That John in the opening verses of his Gospel had specific reference to Genesis 1 is frankly admitted by many eminent Bible scholars. This view is corroborated by the fact that the definite article is omitted (notwithstanding the temptation to supply it), thus giving to the passage the same thought of unlimited duration as does the Hebrew in the Genesis account by Moses. Here I may say incidentally, consistency demands that John's reference to the "Word" be understood in the same sense as was evidently the case with the author of the Pentateuch in his oft-repeated phrase "God said." (See also Psalm 33:6, 9; 2 Peter 3:5.) Further information with scriptural illustrations might easily be given in support of the foregoing remarks, but it is the writer's wish to turn now to some of those passages in which the word "beginning" is used with the definite meaning of commencement.

For many years that the writer can remember the New Testament, apart from the Old Testament, has been almost the sole source of supply for the Christian's daily need; until the world itself has echoed the cry that the Old Testament is obsolete and unsuited to present times. The result developed is a one-sided view of all that goes into foundational truth. Even the God worshiped is not the God portrayed by the Bible in its entirety; and on the one hand Christ is regarded by the world merely as a great Exemplar, and on the other hand He is regarded by the church—not as the "Servant" of Jehovah—but as Jehovah Himself.

I desire specially that our young people may take to heart the words of our text from Psalm 119:160. It will be noticed that three renderings of the verse are given. While each of these is substantially correct, and each one may bring out a particular phase of the one great truth expressed, the interest of our lesson attaches to the first two. While the first is more comprehensive, and undoubtedly includes the second, the second has a directness and particular application that is not so apparent at first. As the marginal note informs us, it is the literal translation of the Hebrew, and consequently probably expresses that thought which was foremost in the mind of the one who uttered it. At the time when David wrote these words—"The beginning of thy word is true"—there was not, so far as history records, a single nation upon earth outside of the Hebrews that had a similar record concerning creation. All the accounts except that of Moses, even the Babylonian, contained ideas that were crude even to absurdity. In the face of universal opinion David here avows his belief in the Mosaic record. Is it any wonder that his name is linked with men of great faith in the eleventh chapter of Hebrews? He did not believe that God's Word, of which Psalm 119 has so much to say, commenced with an untruth. What I desire to point out is that every single subject of God's Word must of necessity be traced "from the beginning." Every reader is aware that in later scriptures many metaphors are used with reference to creation. Had not David's belief been firmly based on "the beginning" he never could have understood the subject as a whole. Having built on that foundation, the metaphors used subsequently help to pleasurable understanding without altering any previously stated fact.

It may not be out of place here to give an instance from my own experience which may be helpful, not only as an illustration, but as a practical method of Bible study. When writing the serial articles on "Jesus Christ: Who Is He?" which later appeared in book form under the title of "Jesus Christ in the New Testament," some passages of Scripture bearing on the subject, such as Micah 5:2, were far from clear to me, and were a strong temptation to me to leave the question altogether. Having, however, a belief already established from a knowledge of the earlier portions of God's Word, I felt justified in continuing, feeling assured that light on the later portions would duly be given, and those who have read that chapter dealing particularly with Micah 5:2 have borne unsought testimony that such has been the case.

On account of preconceived ideas in the minds of the translators more error crept into the New Testament than into the Old, and it has been an interesting study to notice how much nearer to Old Testament truth some New Testament passages have been brought by the various revisers during the past thirty-five or forty years. For as we have already said at the beginning of this paper, as understanding of the truth grew, understanding of the translating grew with it. The great concordances and lexicons such as those of Young, Strong, Hastings, and others, have done marvels to this end by giving unbiased translation of individual words including their variations. Would that these books were more widely in use by Bible students. In this way the student is able by diligent study, as time allows, to ascertain which "key" will fit all the wards of the lock. For instance, it is unquestionably true that the word "ghost" (often applied as "Holy Ghost") will not apply suitably to every passage, if indeed it does to any; but the word "spirit" will fit every instance where the word is applied to the Spirit of God.

Another thought that has frequently been suggested by Bible scholars, and often overlooked, is that almost invariably the sense in which a word is first used gives it its meaning throughout Scripture. Genesis 1:26 and 27 gives us the first use of the word "man." Its application there is undoubtedly to that "created" form which distinguishes it from all other created living forms, and with which we are all familiar through the five senses of our physical being; and such is the unquestioned primary signification throughout Scripture. This is the man for whom (after the fall) salvation was planned. It is the man for whom Christ died, and the man who will "live again" in new corporate being, by resurrection from among the dead ones.

One further thought might be added before we close an article perhaps already too long. It is that once a fact, such as that just mentioned, is fully grasped other facts will continually add to our store of knowledge. If the reader is able to get an interleaved Bible by all means do so. Jot down opposite the passage of interest at the time, as concisely as possible, any fact worth recording, and little by little you will gain an accumulation of information on various subjects that will be always handy for reference, and with which you will never consent to part for any consideration whatever.

TITHING

AN ARGUMENT IN 26 POINTS

1. It is scriptural—approved of God in the Old Testament and supported by Christ's words in the New.
2. It is a good start in the individual's life of giving.
3. It is spiritual, for personal faith is called into play.
4. It is businesslike, for there is definiteness, progressiveness, and system.
5. It is a crushing blow against selfishness.
6. It causes the giver to take the initiative in Christian giving rather than holding back one's response until the money appeal is made.
7. It assures a response to more appeals for the worthy objects of the church, together with outside calls, than before we tithed.
8. It commandeers all alike in quality giving.
9. It frees the church from the disgrace of deficits.
10. It enables the church to frequently plan for an enlarging work.
11. It safeguards the spirituality of the church by eliminating drives for money.
12. It establishes the individual as a financial steward—accountable to God.
13. It gives confidence in the practice of prayer.
14. It awakens thought, as nothing else, regarding time and service for God.
15. It elevates worship to the high plane of rounded-out sincerity.
16. It makes giving a principle and no longer a spasmodic expression.
17. It is likely to result, as it has with many others, in our giving being more than a tenth of all our receipts.
18. It means less of the comforts and pleasures of life—that money can purchase, but the power to enjoy those that are left is expanded.
19. It creates in our lives a commanding position over others, in the matter of giving—we can use the most effective weapon of example.
20. It makes us twofold before God—our hand held out to give as well as to receive.
21. It destroys the domination of circumstances.
22. It transforms life's retrospecting into a joy rather than a dread—we see the line of evidence that permanently records us as givers, through faith and plan.
23. It prevents the church from falling into the hands of the few—those who put up the money.
24. It offers to our boys and girls of today the sure promise of escaping from the mature character's greatest blight—selfishness.
25. It leads, with a magnetic leadership, beyond the mark of money-giving—into the realm of worship and Christian service, for it has been found that most tithers are among the largest proportion of regular worshipers and earnest workers.
26. It is indisputable proof of almighty God being made first by the almighty dollar.—William Porkess.

God a Personal Being

SURELY knowledge arises by comparison. Comparison is possible only between two things or ideas. If we can have in our minds only the image, but never the original, how can we compare them? If we cannot compare them, how can we say one is the image of the other, or are alike? And if we cannot say they are alike, how can we obtain any knowledge which always consists in the perception of likeness, but never in the perception of difference?

Likeness, and likeness only, gives knowledge. Difference is always ignorance. Unless, then, the external world, so-called, is like me, I can never know it. This startling conclusion is now being slowly, but surely, forced upon those thinkers who go seriously into the problems of science, of knowledge, of philosophy and theology. The day of dogmatic ease when people believe it is so, because somebody says it is so, is passing.

Well, what does this signify? First, it means that we cannot know anything except persons. For a moment let us keep cool, and think. What do I know first and best? Why, myself, of course. And I am a person. So I know first and best a person, myself. Next, since all knowledge consists in an awareness of likeness, I know only what is like myself. Therefore, I know next, other persons. I know my own relatives, my own fellow citizens, my own fellow nationals, my own race, better than I know foreigners and aliens whose feelings, ideas, and ways are so different from these. I know human beings better than animals, and know lower animals only in so far as I can read into their actions, experiences like my own. But, when I come to the external world of material things—are they like me? Am I wood, stone, iron? Am I fire? Am I heat or hot? Sick or sickness? Sad or sadness? These are nice problems besides which the problems of differential calculus are child's play.

Let us now look into this thing to see if I am the world outside of myself. Suppose I stand before a blazing fire, warming myself. Pretty soon I say, "The fire is hot." How do I know? Why, because it makes me hot. So, then, to say, "The fire is hot" and "I am hot" comes to the same thing. Only in so far as the fire becomes a part of me can I know it is hot. If besides its heat there is anything to the fire which never gets to be a part of "me," that I cannot know.

Suppose I see a green tree. Am I then green? Or is "green" a part of me? Or is it something entirely outside of me, existing independently of me? Let us see. The physicist tells us that color is a vibration in an "æther," a very tenuous fluid pervading all space. That is the theory our children imbibe in the high school and many a preacher endorses the doctrine from the pulpit and then wonders why his people are materialists. Does this æther exist? About 1896 the late Dr. Michaelson, of the University of Chicago, and his assistants performed an experiment which, as decisively as anything can do that, determined that no æther exists. But all physics, and so all other sciences, dependent upon æther. Without this precious stuff they could not continue. Therefore, scientists in general, true to their method, which has little regard comparatively for facts, disregarded this "crucial test." Only one man, Dr. Albert Einstein, accepted the results, and therefore began his revolutionary revision of the older science, launched his doctrine of relativity, and began to create a new world for us.

But if æther does not exist except as an imaginary fluid in the minds of scientists, what then is color? Color is just what it is, "color." Red is red; blue, blue; green, green. They are ultimate constituents, not of "nature," nor attributes of matter, but of sentient creatures. In man they are ultimate constituents of mind. They are joint products of ourselves and something working independent of us. That something is the universal Mind which makes all "greens" alike.

How are they made? Physical science asserted that all colors are made by the vibrations of æther which is matter in fluid form, exceedingly thin, operating upon the eye and its nervous mechanism. But in man, colors are seen with the eyes shut, in dreams, and in hypnotic states, and even in men who have lost both eyes out of their heads. Moreover, colors, and all other qualities of sensations, are related to, not the up-and-down motion of waves, but with the forward movement which does not entail the translocation in space of any particles of any matter whatever. Consequently, since all scientific instruments of discovery and measurement react only to motions of matter, no scientific instrument known to man is in any way affected by color, or any other quality of sensations. Nothing but mind is sensitive to color. Mind alone makes color. Therefore, mind alone is aware of color. The best that science can do is to say that color, and all qualities of sensations—that is, all music, all tastes, hot and cold, smooth and rough, etc.—are forms of an energy transcending physical energy, and which some psychologists call "horme." We may call it "spiritual energy," or just spirit.

Therefore, startling as it may seem to those who have been long accustomed to thinking in an outworn philosophy and a long discredited impressionistic psychology, the so-called "external" or "material" world, is in reality "spiritual" in the sense that it is made by spirits, human and divine. God and man jointly make the external world. God did not only once for all create it, but also sustains it by the constant and continuous outpouring of His energy. This statement, amazing as it sounds, is simply the doctrine that God is everywhere, that . . . "in him we live, and move, and have our being" (Acts 17:28); that "God that made the world and all things therein" (Acts 17:24) is Spirit (John 4:24).

If, then, we are persons and know ourselves first and best, and other people are persons and we know them because we know ourselves, and the so-called "material world" is a product of spirits, human and divine, and so a part of persons, we know persons only. For everything is either a person or part of a person. Things are constituents of persons. Sticks and stones, stars and seas, are as much a part of persons as sensation, ideas, feelings, and decisions of will—and, in fact, are nothing more than these.

But if we can know persons only, could we know a personal God by studying an impersonal nature made up of material things? Never. We could know Him only indirectly and in part. His power and divinity might be deduced from what we see (Rom. 1:21). If we know persons, and persons only, to make Himself known to man God must manifest Himself before us in the form of a Person. And since we can know only what is like ourselves, He would remain forever unknown if He is a Person wholly transcending us (Isa. 45:12) A true revelation of God must appear in the form of man, or as a person. While an enormous amount might be known about God by means of ideas, God can be known only as a Person, and a person who is "like" men. Man's intellectual limitations are God's opportunity and God's necessity. . . .

If persons alone exist, can God be an impersonal power? No. We can never know an impersonal power. Either God is a Person or we cannot know Him. We may prate much about matter, power, force, and such entities, but we can never know them or know about them unless they are parts of our own personalities. They cannot be constituents of our own personalities without being "personal"; that is, activities of our own selves, our own souls, our own spirits.

From this view it follows that the world is one vast organism in which each constituent works for and with every other constituent and produces something other than a mere sum total on the whole. From the simplest bit of experience we have, up to the present all-inclusive universe, organism appears. Hydrogen and oxygen added together give the sum of their weights. But when some kind of energy—a spark of electricity, for example—is passed through them, they combine chemically and a new marvel is created, which we call "water," and which possesses newly created properties not possessed by either of the dry gasses from which wet water comes. The same rule holds for all higher organisms—inanimate and animate, up to the highest, which is man—a self-conscious organism consisting of the union of . . . soul (mind) and body, which union is created by God and which possesses properties not possessed by the sum of the constituents of which men are formed.

The human organism comes to a consciousness of its own workings, and a consciousness of God working within it. God and man thus working form the rest of the universe. Man alone cannot form it. Thus the whole world becomes an organism, made by God and man working jointly. It is made out of just the material we know—colors, sounds, touches, tastes, smells, temperatures, etc.—and not out of some unknowable substance—matter, atoms, electrons, or any other thing different from and independent of spirits, human and divine. From this point of view, the world is itself a personality, made up of persons as we know them.

In every part of it down to the mote that dances in the sunbeam, is mind, because it is the joint product of two minds: God, the supreme, universal mind, and the man who sees the mote.

Since God works in each human being to make the world, God of necessity is everywhere that man is. He is always with us. Without Him we would be nothing. Were He to withdraw His divine energy from us an instant, we would disappear like the flame of a blown-out candle, like an electric light switched off from its energizing current. Thus God is in us, and we in Him (Acts 17:28). Some people realize this and are never lonely. Moreover, the world organism is so built that every part of it works together with every other part of the organism for the good of those who freely and consciously adopt God's purpose, because they love Him and want to do what He wants done (Rom. 8:28, 29).

But men with strange perversity have insisted that the real world is made of matter. Nature is a vast machine. It has come into being by merely mechanical forces operating upon matter. Did such a world exist, as we have shown, man could not know it. Even if we admit that it is not a machine, but an organism, we could not know it until we ourselves received minds. Even then we could not know that within it God worked as a personality as long as the essential of every person—emotion—did not appear. Even if emotion did appear, we could not know that the God who makes and sustains the world is love, until His nature, or character as the good God, was manifested in a form of love that we could know, or understand, or appreciate.—Standard Bible Teacher, copyright; published by permission.

(Note: The key to the above selection lies in the statement that in every part of the world is mind because the world is the product of two minds—God's, which conceived it, and man's, which perceives it. That matter exists cannot credibly be denied, but that it is only through persons that it can be used is also true.)

READ THIS SLOWLY—AND THINK

Does my life please God?
 Am I studying my Bible daily?
 Is there anyone I cannot forgive?
 Have I ever won a soul to Christ?
 How much time do I spend in prayer?
 Am I trying to bring my friends to Christ?
 Have I ever had a direct answer to prayer?
 Is there anything I cannot give up for Christ?
 How does my life look to those who are not Christians?
 How many things do I put before my religious duties?
 Have I ever tried to give one tenth of my income to the Lord?
 Is the world being made better or worse by my living in it?
 Am I doing anything I would condemn in others?

—Selected.

Conditional Immortality

“CONDITIONAL immortality,” as defined by the Standard Dictionary, is “the doctrine that man has no immortality naturally, but acquires it by faith in Christ.”

The ancient Egyptians, Hindus, Greeks, and all nations of antiquity, except the Hebrew nation, taught that man is inherently immortal. Herodotus, called “the Father of History,” speaking of the belief of the ancient Egyptians, says, “On the dissolution of the body, the soul immediately enters some other animal, and . . . after using as vehicles every specie of terrestrial, aquatic, and winged creatures, it finally enters a second time a human body. . . . It undergoes all these changes in the space of three thousand years.”

The ancient Greeks held a similar idea, and the Hindus still hold it. Plato taught and represented Socrates as teaching that the soul of man is in its own nature “immortal and indestructible.” It is quite evident that this and other unscriptural teachings came into the church from paganism, at an early date, accelerating the great apostasy which precipitated the Reformation under the leadership of Martin Luther.

Inherent immortality is contrary to the Bible statement of the creation of man and the teachings of both the Old and New Testament. The simple record of man’s creation reads, “And Jehovah God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul.”—Gen. 2:7, A. R. V. Man thus formed of the earth and vitalized by the breath of life was placed in the Garden of Eden, where he was subjected to trial. After he had yielded to the temptation, the record reads, “And Jehovah God said, Behold, the man is become as one of us, to know good and evil; and now, lest he put forth his hand, and take also of the tree of life, and eat, and live forever—therefore Jehovah God sent him forth from the garden of Eden, to till the ground from whence he was taken. So he drove out the man; and he placed at the east of the garden of Eden the Cherubim, and the flame of a sword which turned every way, to keep the way of the tree of life.”—Gen. 3:22-24, A. R. V.

To believe and teach inherent immortality is to believe and teach that man has the power to live forever in sin, the very thing God guarded against in driving him out of the Garden of Eden. It also robs Christ of the glory of providing life and immortality for him as taught by Paul. No, immortality is not inherent, but is a gift of God to be bestowed at the resurrection (1 Cor. 15:50-54) upon all who diligently seek for it (Rom. 2:7).

Of all the writers of the Scriptures, Paul is the only one who uses the words “immortal” and “immortality,” and he never uses them in connection with man or any part of man this side of the resurrection. He makes it clear in Romans 2:7 that immortality is to be sought. It follows naturally that according to Paul’s teachings man does not have inherent immortality, for he says in Romans 2:7 that those who “seek for glory and honour and immortality,” will be given “eternal life.” Therefore it is clear that the church in Paul’s day did not teach that man has immortality here and now, but it was to be sought for diligently, and 1 Corinthians 15:51-54 tells us when and how it is to be received.

The word used by our Lord to describe the final punishment of the unrepentant is the Greek word gehenna, which means the valley of Hinnom, that lies just outside the city of Jerusalem. It was used at the time of Christ as a dumping ground for all the refuse, bodies of dead animals, etc. It was the city’s incinerator, and the fire burned continually, day and night, entirely destroying all combustible matter thrown into it. Carcasses that did not reach the fire when thrown over the bank were devoured by worms, hence the expression, “Where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched.” The whole thing was a symbol, not of preservation, but of utter destruction. Therefore Jesus said, as recorded in Matthew 10:28, “Fear not them which kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul: but rather fear him which is able to destroy both body and soul in hell (gehenna).” This is proof positive that God can destroy the soul.

We have here, in the language of Joseph Parker, for many years the pastor of City Temple, London, England, “the determination on the part of God to destroy evil. And by destroying evil, I do not mean locking it up by itself in a great moral prison which shall be enlarged from generation to generation until it becomes the abode of countless millions of rebels, but its utter, final, and everlasting extinction: so that at last the universe shall be without spot or wrinkle, or any such thing—the pure home of a pure creation.”

The above statement we believe to be in perfect harmony with the familiar and much-loved passage of Scripture, John 3:16, the gospel stated in a single sentence, and all other scriptures which point to Christ Jesus as the great Life-Giver. In fact, it is in harmony with the entire Bible when divorced from pagan ideas and correctly interpreted.

Petavel well says, “Jesus leaves no hope of imperishable life to the man who despises His invitations. It is necessary to give oneself to Him or perish; to commence straightway this surrender to Him or to begin at once to decay. He who obstinately rejects the Savior will at last perish altogether and forever.”

Thus we see conditional immortality points to a gospel of life and death, life to all who accept Jesus Christ as their personal Savior and obey His commands, and death to all who reject Him. It offers to everyone the boon of living forever in a realm of sinlessness, Paradise restored.

Conditional immortality “removes the foundation on which has been built the doctrine of purgatory, eternal torment, universalism, the transmigration of souls, and such teachings. It is felt that this view is in harmony with science, and is in line with the Word of God. It holds out to the penitent soul the gift of life, Romans 6:23, but threatens with death the one who persists in sinning. It offers a solution to the age-old problem of evil. It preaches Christian optimism, which is the final triumph of the good. Evil is to meet with an everlasting defeat. When God's plan of salvation is consummated, there will not remain a rebel in any part of the Almighty's universe. The consummation of this age will witness the eternal exit of evil."

"As therefore the tares are gathered and burned in the fire; so shall it be in the end of this world. The Son of man shall send forth his angels, and they shall gather out of his kingdom all things that offend, and them which do iniquity; and shall cast them into a furnace of fire: there shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth. Then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father."—Matt. 13:40-45.

(This article by R. M. Simmons has been published as a tract for free distribution. Send orders to the author, Carnation, Wash. In ordering tracts, kindly send stamps for mailing when possible.)

— 0 —
"PERSISTENCE paves a path to prosperity."

ARE YOU A FRIEND OF JESUS?

— 0 —
Continued from Front Page

During the next few months a large number of state conferences and the General Conference will be held. If we could but bundle up our pet difference and hide it in a manhole (if we never fished it out, we would be a happy people)! Let us meet in these conferences with our brethren in love, for each will be doing his or her best to obey the commands of our Lord. Mistakes have been made in the past, it is true; we are but mortal. Let us as a body forget these minor errors, and by cooperation strive to make the coming conference year the greatest in united service in the history of the church in America.

We hold the scriptural name "The Church of God." But if we have strife and confusion, have we the right to use that name? "For God is not the author of confusion, but of peace, as in all the churches of the saints."—1 Cor. 14:33. Remember the Master's prayer: "That they all may be one; as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us: that the world may believe that thou hast sent me. And the glory which thou gavest me I have given them; that they may be one, even as we are one."—John 17:21, 22.

If the church obeys the commands of her Lord she will never hear, "So then because thou art lukewarm, and neither cold nor hot, I will spue thee out of my mouth."—Rev. 3:16.

"THE GODLY MAN CEASETH"

— 0 —
Continued from Page Three

We do not need to devote our time exclusively to the kingdom of Israel, for history is replete with similar circumstances. Mighty Caesar was stabbed to death when Rome needed his strong guiding hand. Marcus Aurelius, the philosopher-emperor, allowed the defences of the Roman Empire to become weakened just when they needed to be strongest; and Graeco-Roman civilization went down in the deluge of the barbarian invasions. Louis XVI and Marie Antionette ruled France when real rulers were needed; either one alone might have handled the situation quite well; but together they could not dam the floods of revolution. In the crisis the godly man is not to be found who can lead the people safely through.

A new crisis has arisen in the affairs of men. A time like this is when men who put faith in God and ask for wisdom are needed. Oh, that all the rulers of God's people might call more earnestly to God that they may rule with wisdom. All the wisdom that man can have is not too much to lead "this thy great people." But in the political affairs of men there is none that seeketh after God.

Where is our Moses to lead us through the wilderness out of slavery into the glorious land of promise? When the people came to the boundaries of Canaan they wanted to turn back for fear of the men of the land. And they cried all night for fear, we are told. Oh, for a leader like Moses to lead us through the trying times when people are crying both night and day for fear of those things that are coming upon them. Where is our David to slay the Goliath of greed and corruption? Before the World War a thing that would cost $1,000 in governmental functions performed now costs $50,000. Why? Graft and greed! Men pocket the tax money that comes in. Where is our race of prophets like Isaiah of old who told the kings of his day when they went wrong? For them we have substituted a so-called "Brain Trust" which relies on its own great wisdom to set the affairs of the world aright. And when anybody dares to tell the "Brain Trust" that they are wrong a violent storm is created. The godly man would certainly not find himself entangled in any such affairs as those of the present-day politics (or the politics of any ungodly nation at any time). "The faithful fail from among the children of men."

But Isaiah did not leave us in despair. Men's governments will fail because of the frailties of human nature, but the godly need have no fear in those times, when "the wicked walk on every side, when the vilest men are exalted." "Who among us shall dwell with the devouring fire? who among us shall dwell with everlasting burnings? He that walketh righteously, and speaketh uprightly; he that despiseth the gain of oppressions. . . . He shall dwell on high; his place of defence shall be the munitions of iron; bread shall be given him; his waters shall be sure. Thine eyes shall see the king in his beauty: they shall behold the land that is very far off."—Isa. 33:14-17.

Abreast of the Times

Terrific Quake Hits India

"And there shall be famines, and pestilences, and earthquakes, in divers places."—Matt. 24:7.

CALCUTTA, India, June 14.—According to reports from Afghanistan and Baluchistan it is feared that many may have been killed by a severe earthquake that rocked the Himalayas today. No detailed reports have yet come in, but from the severity of the disturbance great anxiety is felt as to its results. It is apparent that the worst part of the quake was felt at Mach, near Quetta, a place that was practically destroyed from a similar occurrence in 1931. It may be recalled that a quake in the Himalayas last January caused the death of 8,940 in Bihar and Orissa provinces. Pestilence nearly always follows in the wake of an earthquake in that region owing to the fact that the regular routine of life is interrupted.

Treasures of Ancient Ur Recovered

"In the land of his nativity, in Ur of the Chaldees."—Genesis 11:28.

PHILADELPHIA, June 16.—Out of the dusty treasure chest of the past has been brought to light relics of remarkable beauty and richness. A joint archeological expedition conducted for the past twelve seasons by the British Museum and the Museum of the University of Pennsylvania completed its digging in the ruins of Ur, the native city of Abraham, in the land of the Chaldees, and Pennsylvania's share of the rich results of its long labors is now on its way to this country. According to The Literary Digest, "stone vases, copper bowls, beads of lapis lazuli and carnelian, crystal, shell, marble, and chalcedony—relics which had lain undisturbed in the clayey soil of Mesopotamia for 6,000 years," have been unearthed and are soon to be on display in the two great museums.

It was necessary to sink a pit nearly fifty feet deep to reach the lowest and earliest level that showed signs of human occupation. "The pit was sunk rapidly through the stoneless soil until fragments of vessels began to appear. The remainder of the way the excavators used knives and brushes for their excavation," says the writer in The Digest.

Among the notable discoveries made by the archeologists was the remains of a civilization that antedated anything heretofore known in that region, and which is thought to reach back to at least 3500 B. C. Royal tombs which were uncovered revealed evidence of human sacrifice on a lavish scale: "the bodies of kings and queens, soldiers, and domestic servants, were found buried with an unbelievable wealth of jewelry, harps of silver and wood, vessels, weapons and tools of gold and silver, inlaid gaming-boards and vanity boxes—all attesting the artistry, the culture, and the luxury of the court at Ur 5,000 years ago."

A still more interesting discovery in the eyes of Bible students, and one which serves to strengthen the believer's faith in the truth of the divine record of the flood, was that "of a bed of water-laid clay, eight feet thick, deposited below the level—and hence earlier—than the earliest purely Sumerian occupation, and above a level containing remains of a very different type. A silt deposit of such thickness, in the opinion of archeologists, only could have been laid down by a devastating flood." (The italics are ours.)

Reds Would Win Negroes

"With their tongues they have used deceit; the poison of asps is under their lips."—Rom. 3:13.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 5.—According to press dispatches apprehension is being felt throughout the Cotton Belt over activities of the Communists among the Negro workers. A recent issue of the Communist, official organ of the party in this country, said, "The work among the Negro masses must receive more serious attention. The work in the rural districts must receive the attention of the party in every district." An effort is apparently being made to stir up the Negroes against various Government relief agencies, accusing them of discriminating against the colored people.

Filthy Films Condemned

"Whatsoever things are true, . . . whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, . . . think on these things."—Phil. 4:8.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., June 17.—The credit for starting an energetic campaign against salacious films must be given to the Catholic Church, which has for months been circulating pledges among its membership which they are asked to sign promising that they will remain away from all pictures shown at a movie house where filthy films are allowed to appear. The Methodist Church, Jewish leaders, and other large religious organizations have fallen into line until the picture industry is beginning to take notice.

Should all religious people in the country remain away from the picture shows for a single month the producers would lose millions of dollars, and of course that prospect does not appeal to the business heads of the industry, and some indications are observed of an effort being made to improve the deplorable condition which prevails and which is undoubtedly contributing to the moral delinquency of the American people. Of course we realize that such corrective measures cannot be lasting in their effect, and that only the Lord's return will introduce permanent moral improvement in the world, but at the same time it is wise for every Christian to do all things possible to discourage and reprove all that is evil in this present order.

National Berean Department

Miss Genniel Carpenter, Editor, Oregon, Illinois

OFFICERS OF NATIONAL BEREAN SOCIETY

Cecil A. Smead, President
Blanchard, Michigan

Virgil Claypool, Treasurer
506 E. Chestnut St.
Robinson, Illinois

Arlen Marsh, Secretary
Oregon, Illinois

"OUR HELP IS IN THE NAME OF THE LORD, WHO MADE HEAVEN AND EARTH."—PSALM 124:8.

NOTICE

At the spring Board meeting of 1932 Sr. Genniel Carpenter was appointed our Berean Editor. She has very capably and efficiently done the work of Editor ever since. Now she finds it necessary to resign because she will be absent from Oregon for a time. I wish to highly commend her work and thank her for her splendid supervision of the Page. With regret we must accept the resignation. We bid her Godspeed.

We must have an Editor who is thoroughly acquainted with the Word of God, one who will "search the scripture" to find out that certain things are so, and who will staunchly insist that those eternal Bible truths that lead to life must appear often on this Page. He should be a good judge of literature. He should be near by when the paper goes to press in order to tailor the Page to fit the space. I believe we have one who will fit these requirements, and therefore I appoint Bro. Arlen Marsh to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Sr. Carpenter, Berean Editor. I trust that you will each give him your heartiest cooperation by often sending in articles and reports. May the Lord consecrate Bro. Marsh to this service.

Cecil A. Smead, President.

EDITOR'S PLEA

It might be of interest to Bereans to know that since March 1, 1934, your Editor has received five articles and seven reports, all from Illinois.

Sometimes the title "Editor" seems a bit misplaced, because the meaning of that word, according to our dictionary, is "one who superintends, revises, or prepares a literary work for publication." You see, it doesn't give the Editor the job of writing all the "literary work" himself, or hunting up selections that may or may not prove interesting. Wouldn't it be a good idea to adhere a little more strictly to the true meaning of the word, and give your Editor more articles to edit?

IN OUR MASTER'S FOOTSTEPS

A white man once spent a winter's night in the wigwam of a red Indian. In the morning the Indian took him outside and asked him how many people had passed by in the night. Seeing only one set of footprints, the man said that one person had passed. But the Indian told him that hundreds had gone by; the Indian chief had come first, and the others had followed in single file, every man putting his feet in the footprints of the leader. The "author and finisher of our faith" has gone before us; let us put our feet in His steps, so shall we walk aright.

—The Christian Herald (London).

"I WILL ABIDE IN THINE HOUSE"

Among so many, can He care?
Can special love be everywhere?
A myriad homes,—a myriad ways,—
And God's eye over every place.

Over; but in? The world is full;
A grand omnipotence must rule;
But is there life that doth abide
With mine own living, side by side?

So many, and so wide abroad:
Can any heart have all of God?
From the great spaces, vague and dim,
May one small household gather Him?

I asked: my soul bethought of this—
In just that very place of His
Where He hath put and keepeth you,
God hath no other thing to do!

—Adeline D. T. Whitney.

YOUR COOPERATION IS REQUESTED

On this page will be found an appeal from Miss Carpenter, Editor of the Berean Department for the past two years, regarding manuscripts from Bereans. This appeal was written before the former Editor was made aware of the new appointment by the President, also noted on this page.

The facts of the appeal, however, hold true. It has been Miss Carpenter's difficulty, as it has been the difficulty of every Editor of the Berean Page, to fill these columns with her own writings and selections, whereas properly the Editor's duties as defined by the Berean constitution are to "receive articles, notices, reports, and other Society news for publication." The incoming Editor, who assumes charge with the next issue, seeks your cooperation in fulfilling his duties.—Arlen Marsh.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"If thou wilt walk in my ways, as David my servant did, I will be with thee."

A GREAT KINGDOM IS DIVIDED

HOW many of you boys and girls like history? Now don't all of you keep silent! I hope that many of you do like it and many more will learn to like it before the next three months are over.

Don't you boys and girls like to hear what John's grandfather did—the one who was a sailor and crossed the ocean seven times? And don't you girls like to hear about the time Polly's great-grandmother hid her baby in the churn for fear of the Indians? Well, history is just that—stories of what people did, why they did it, and how it all turned out.

We are beginning on July 1 the stories given in the Bible about the prophets and kings of Israel. And if we go at it with the thought in our minds that it's going to be a study about people—what they did, why they acted in just that way, and how it all came out in the end—we're going to enjoy it, I know, and also learn a great deal. For those old Israelites were always up to something—sometimes it was good and sometimes bad, mostly bad, I'm sorry to say.

You all remember the beginning of the nation of Israel, called God's people because God started them out. He wanted a nation that would be different from the other nations of earth, one that would worship Him instead of themselves and the things they could make with their own hands.

God knew that it wasn't good for men to worship idols that way and that the idols could do nothing for them. Besides, God wanted to show the other nations just how people would turn out if they listened to Him and what would happen if they didn't.

So we see God picking one man out from all the people of Chaldea to begin His nation of Israel. You all know his name—yes, Abraham. Many times you have heard Mother or your Sunday school teacher tell the story, and you've read it yourself as you grew older.

Then you'll recall stories of Isaac, Jacob, Joseph, and others; how there came a famine in the land of Palestine to which God years before had led Abraham; how Joseph in Egypt saved his brothers and his aged father from starvation. After Joseph died and another king came to the throne, you remember, Joseph's people were treated cruelly and finally they all became slaves.

Next Moses came on the scene, leading this slave nation away from those Egyptian masters up to their homeland again. After much sorrow and trouble they were once more independent, but we'll see what happened to them.

As we read about them, we think they didn't have much sense, for they were no sooner out of one kind of trouble than they were into a worse one. And what got them into it was the very thing God warned them against—wanting to be like the nations round them.

God had been ruling His people Israel with judges, but that didn't suit them. They wanted a king, and so He let them have their own way. But He told them beforehand that it wouldn't turn out for their good. My, but they were stubborn!

Who knows the standard they used in choosing their first king? Was it God's standard of a pure heart? No, it was very natural they should choose as they did. If you've forgotten, look at 1 Samuel 10:23.

Their next king, David, was a different sort of man. You remember the stories of his great victories because he followed God's commands. His son, Solomon, was also a very great king, but not as faithful to God as David.

Here are some facts easy to remember in this way. Solomon lived about a thousand years before Christ. The first three kings of the united kingdom of Israel each reigned about forty years. Three forties are 120; add that to 1000 B. C. and you have 1120 B. C., about the time Saul was chosen for the first king.

Now we come to the time of our lesson for July 1. Solomon's great kingdom was divided after his death. His son, Rehoboam, ruled over the southern part, called Judah, and Jeroboam over the northern part, called Israel.

Didn't the Prophet Ahijah have a queer way of telling Jeroboam about this division of the kingdom? Read verses 29 and 30 of the lesson. Whenever God brought punishment on His people for sin, He always sent a messenger to warn them of it. What was their great sin? Verse 33 tells you.

Do you know the first time God gave the Israelites the command to worship Him alone? Can you find the verse? They couldn't blame God, then, could they? In trying to be like the other nations, they brought the greatest trouble on themselves.

If you like to work with a ruler and pencil, make a chart with several columns. Write at the top of these columns, kings of Israel, kings of Judah, character of kings, prophets of God. Now write in the names of Jeroboam, Rehoboam, and Ahijah in their proper columns.

The Sunday School Lesson

FROM TRUTH SEEKERS' QUARTERLY

LESSON 1. — July 1, 1934

AHIJAH AND THE DIVIDED KINGDOM

1 Kings 11:26 to 14:31

Devotional Reading: Proverbs 1:20-26

GOLDEN TEXT

Pride goeth before destruction, and an haughty spirit before a fall.—Proverbs 16:18.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic: Ahijah and the Divided Kingdom.

Aim: Impress upon the pupil the blessings that follow choosing God's way of living.

Basic Truth: "Therefore hath the Lord watched upon the evil, and brought it upon us: for the Lord our God is righteous in all his works which he doeth: for we obeyed not his voice."—Dan. 9:14.

I. God the Supreme Ruler. (1 Kings 11:26-31.) Rehoboam, the legal heir to David's throne, possessed the natural right inherent in all kings to choose his own advisers. God did not influence him against the old experienced statesmen of the kingdom, nor did He compel him to choose the young men. The king was given the right of personal choice in the matter. He could exercise his own judgment. But whatever his decision might be the Lord would hold him to account for the result, for God remained the real ruler of Israel regardless of what man might for the moment occupy the throne. So it is still. God continues to exercise supreme control over the nations of men. Those who will not obey His requirements He allows to continue for a time, and then removes them from power.

II. Man's Responsibility. (Vv. 32-36.) To be true to Himself God must always punish sin even as He must always reward righteousness. "Because they have forsaken me," the Lord said, "and have not walked in my ways," the kingdom should be divided, and the royal family, which had led the people into idolatry, punished. Each individual must account for his own acts before God, and also for the influence his deeds have on others. Thus Rehoboam suffered not only because he himself had forsaken God, but because he had led the people into idolatry.

III. A Conditional Promise. (Vv. 37-39.) "If thou wilt hearken unto all that I command thee . . ." Almost if not quite all of God's promises are made conditionally. If man will do his part, God will faithfully carry out the promise He has made. The responsibility for the realization of God's promises is thus placed upon man. The promise to David was also conditional, but David met the conditions, and God will surely establish his throne forever as a result.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

The Kingdom of God

- was divided because of idolatry;
- found sin to be a way of disruption;
- diminished with the increase of sin;
- forsook God, and then God forsook them;
- ruined a great future through sin.

Idolatrous Worship. Israel engaged in idolatrous worship. They served the gods of other nations that could not see, hear, nor speak. It was a false worship, for it was founded on false gods. Error led them away from God. Today, the same thing is true, error leads away from God. Daily contact with sin hardens one to its frightfulness. Discuss the various kinds of sin which we have become accustomed to and which we more or less condone, if not participate in. Israel's proneness to do and live like other nations and peoples was simply the outcropping of the Adamic nature. Gentiles of today are doing the very same thing, only on a larger scale.

Israel's Path. Israel's path has been a rough and thorny one for many centuries. They have none to blame except themselves. They chose their own path. God plainly pointed out the better road and warned them of the ruggedness of their present course. They were disobedient children and disobedience brings its bitter tears and heartaches. The moral is plain. If we travel the way of the world, we must reap its fruitage of cares, disappointments, sorrows, and alienation from God.—C. E. R.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"Pride goeth before destruction, and an haughty spirit before a fall."—Prov. 16:18.

Think of King Nebuchadnezzar when he said, "Is not this great Babylon, that I have built for the house of the kingdom by the might of my power, and for the honour of my majesty?" The words were not out of his mouth when he was told of his downfall, and that he would be driven out to eat grass as the oxen, which he had to do for seven years till he was humbled sufficiently that he was glad to praise God and give honor to the King of heaven.

The wise man also said, "When pride cometh, then cometh shame: but with the lowly is wisdom."—Prov. 11:2. How much better it is to have a humble spirit and be lowly with wisdom, than it is to be proud and haughty. Each has its reward. "Wherefore let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall."—1 Cor. 10:12.—L. A. R.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULTS

Divisions

Jesus said: "Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation; and every city or house divided against itself shall not stand."—Matt. 12:25. The truth of this statement has been proven time and again in the history of the world; each division has resulted in a desolation. Division in the language of the people before Babel resulted in misunderstandings, hatred, war. Israel divided and was soon conquered by other nations. Division has been the curse of the Christian church.

Paul wrote his First Epistle to the Corinthians because divisions were entering their church. See 1 Cor. 1:10. The several hundred denominations of the followers of Christ are but evidence of the extent of the divisions in the body of Christ. These divisions do not all "speak the same things." This confusion has caused grave doubt to enter into the minds of many, causing them to turn from every church, including the TRUE church of God. The influence of Christ is decreasing day by day. The carnality of man is increasing.

Paul warned the Ephesian elders that divisions were coming to them. A division in teaching caused this same Apostle to sharply rebuke the Galatians in these words: "I marvel that ye are so soon removed . . . unto another gospel: which is not another; but there be some that trouble you, and would pervert the gospel of Christ. But though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed." Paul warned Timothy that "evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived" (2 Tim. 3:13). Diotrephes, who wanted to "run things," not only rejected the Apostle John but put out of the church all who would fellowship him, John (3 John 9, 10). One who causes division in a church is a heretic (1 Cor. 11:18). All heretics should be put out of the church (Titus 3:10).

—H. A. S.

PRIMARY

Topic: Our Visit to the Old Testament: First Stop, Ahijah.

We have been studying about the life of Jesus. We have learned many beautiful and interesting things about Him.

But now we must leave the New Testament and take a journey back to the Old Testament. Please take a piece of paper, and draw a line across the page to represent a road. Now this line will be our trip through the Old Testament during this quarter.

Put one dot on this line. This is our first stopping place. We're going to stop and see Ahijah. He isn't in Jerusalem. So we must travel on. There he is, out there in the field. Who is that other man with him? Why, that's a man named Jeroboam.

Look! See what Ahijah's doing! He's taking Jeroboam's new cloak and tearing it into twelve pieces. Let's ask him why he does that. This is what he says, "Solomon is now king, but he won't be king much longer, for God is going to take the kingdom away from him. Ten of the twelve tribes which Solomon rules, God will give to this man, Jeroboam, to rule. The other two tribes will have another ruler." Ahijah knows this because he's a prophet, one who can tell us things long before they happen.—V. C. T.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CONFERENCE DATES

Northwestern Conference at Corvallis, Oregon, June 20 to 24
 Indiana Bible School and Conference at North Salem Church July 5 to 15
 Illinois Bible School and Conference at Oregon, July 31 to Aug. 12
 General Conference at Oregon, Illinois, July 31 to Aug. 12
 Iowa Conference at Waterloo, Aug. 21 to 26

A SPIRITUAL FEAST

Do you know why everyone needs a balanced diet? To provide the necessary elements of food to keep in perfect health. A balanced ration in spiritual food is also necessary to grow spiritually.

Spiritual vitamins for full growth will be the order of the day at the General Conference, Oregon, Ill., from July 31 to August 12. If you are planning a vacation of any kind put this date at the top of the list.

If you are undernourished take no chances! It may be the last stages of that dread disease of sin. There is still hope for you if the "Sin Specialist" is given your case. Hundreds are receiving permanent cure. Go with us to the "Wells of Salvation" and drink of the "Living Waters" which will quench every thirst, and eat of the "Bread of Life" which will satisfy every hunger. Come! feast with us at Conference time!—The Beacon.

ILLINOIS BIBLE SCHOOL

Among the several classes at Oregon this year you will find just the one suited to your needs and preferences. The following corps of teachers will suggest to your mind the variety of subjects to be presented for study: Bros. G. E. Marsh, F. L. Austin, S. J. Lindsay, N. J. MacLeod, C. E. Lapp, Earl Thayer, Srs. Verna Thayer and Louise Lapp. Selective courses for the adults are again being arranged this year.

Come prepared to get the most from this school in the way of Bible study and fellowship.

CLEVELAND, OHIO

Children's Day was appropriately celebrated with a baptismal service at which three of the young people of the Sunday school consecrated their lives to the Master. These three are Charles Jones, Kinsman and Brainard Roads, Warrensville, O.; Miss Mary Walther, 656 E. 162nd St.; and Miss Dorothy Warren, 14710 Aspinwall Ave.

Charles is the son of Bro. and Sr. George Jones, and now they are rejoicing in having the whole family in the church. Dorothy is the daughter of Bro. and Sr. John Warren, who were baptized three years ago. Mary is the first from her family to obey, and we hope she may be the first fruits of others. All of these we welcome to our midst, commending them to the Father's care, that they may ever be true to their vows of consecration.

The Children's Day program by the Sunday school was given at the evening service (June 10) to a full house. It was a beautiful program, and effectively presented.

M. W. Lyon, Pastor,

FOR YOUR COMFORT AT OREGON

The Dorcas societies of the Rockford, Dixon, and Oregon churches have been making some bedding for use at the dormitory during General and Illinois Conference and Bible School. Sr. Sue Williams of the Oregon church, who is almost ninety years of age, has also contributed some of her fine needlework in the way of pillow cases. Towels of all kinds will also add to your comfort and convenience during your stay. Contributions of canned food will likewise be greatly appreciated, particularly as the gardens may be short this year.

KOKOMO, INDIANA

It was a great pleasure to have again the privilege of preaching in the little church in Kokomo. I noticed a number of changes had been made during the past few months in the four-room house which has been so generously loaned by Sr. Parker for the church. The building has been lifted and a spacious basement has been constructed. The auditorium has been enlarged, and a goodly number of other improvements have been made. While I was there it was quite the usual thing to see Bro. Parker go off with Bro. Thomas, one of the new members, and together they would work out some improvement. We pray that the Lord will accept this building and use it to bring to Himself honor and glory.

The month's meetings have been good for the church. The soldiers of the Lord in Kokomo have been encouraged to press on to greater heights of service for the great Commander. Conditional immortality and the second coming of Christ were stressed very much during the last two weeks of the meeting. "I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

C. A. Smead.

BAPTISMS IN VIRGINIA

On Sunday, June 10, it was our privilege to assist two to put on Christ by baptism. These two are: Vernon Funk, Seven Fountains, and Miss Cecil Baggarley, 315 National Ave., Winchester. Bro. Funk is the only child of the late Bro. Will Funk. It certainly was a pleasure to us to see this young husband and father decide to dedicate his life to the Lord and His Son. His anxiety for the future life should prove to be a great source of strength in the years that are coming.

Sr. Baggarley is a fine young girl still in high school. Her love for the pure and noble things of this life had already separated her from worldliness and given ample indication of the Christian life she will live. She attended the Virginia Bible School last year and became convinced of the truths of the Bible as taught there and although considerable pressure was brought to bear upon her she refused to join another church. She is a clear thinker and has excellent ability as a teacher. In this capacity she will be a great benefit to the Church of God.

We pray God's richest blessing upon these two. May they walk worthy of the vocation wherewith they are called and in due time reap life everlasting.

With this we close our pastorate with the Virginia brethren.

Harry A. Sheets.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN Church Building Damaged by Fire

Sunday, June 10, was Children's Day. The committees had worked hard in preparing for a splendid program which was given at the morning hour. An outside rostrum had been erected and beautiful decorations arranged. Seats were arranged on the lawn and the program enjoyed by a good audience.

In less than an hour after the evening service closed the church building was discovered to be on fire. The local fire department responded promptly and did splendid work, extinguishing the flames in a short time. But the terrible amount of smoke followed by steam when the water was turned on, left a heavy toll. Estimates on carpenter work, wiring, plumbing, painting, decorating, and damage to contents total well over one thousand dollars, but no settlement has been arranged with the insurance company when these lines are written. The fire very evidently started from a short in the wiring.

Repair work will be done as rapidly as possible. In the meantime our Tuesday night devotional, Thursday night Berean, and other such activities will be conducted in the Annex, and the Sunday school and Sunday morning services will be held in the Godwin school building. The school board very gladly and courteously extended to us this privilege, which is deeply appreciated.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

BRUSH CREEK, OHIO

The annual June Meeting of the Brush Creek Church of God was held from June 3 over the 10th. Bro. and Sr. James A. Patrick of Ashland, Ohio, were indeed welcome workers among us, Bro. Patrick, a former pastor, doing most of the preaching, and he assisted daily with Bible lessons on the Two Covenants. His sermons dealt largely with the coming of Christ to establish the kingdom of God, and with signs showing that this event is imminent. The evening services were especially well attended.

Bro. and Sr. Clarence Lapp of Ripley, Ill., were present several days of the meeting and both gave of their talents in the services. Bro. Lapp gave a splendid sermon to a receptive audience and both he and his wife assisted in song.

As a result of the meeting we are pleased to introduce to the brotherhood four new members of the faith who were baptized on Sunday afternoon, June 10. They are Miss Ruth Shellhaas, West Milton, R. F. D.; Mr. Carl Lehman, Arcanum; Mr. George Hoke, 19 Ashwood Ave., Dayton; and Mr. Kenneth Brewer, Tippecanoe City, R. F. D. We are surely glad to have these young people added to our membership and pray for them the richest of Christian experience and joyful victory at the coming of our Lord.

One of the most inspiring features of the meeting to us was the straight-from-the-shoulder preaching of Bro. Patrick. After many years of service for the Lord his faith in the things of God has not weakened but rather grown the stronger. We are thankful to the Lord for his ministry, and we hope to yet have other opportunities to work with him in the preaching of the gospel.

Sydney E. Magaw, Pastor,

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

The old saying that "time and tide wait for no man" was demonstrated to a group of young folks who gathered at "Castle Rock" near Santa Monica, Calif., to enjoy a beach party on the evening of Memorial Day. Bro. Richard Rahn was the chief organizer of the party, which included young folks in goodly number. After some of the party went swimming, a most hearty meal was eaten. While the party was engaged in roasting weiners the tide came in and flooded the fire, and forced the party to move. Again the fire was put out by the tide, and the party broke up.

Many visitors have worshiped with us recently in Los Angeles: Sr. Eva Stearns and her son from Rapid City, S. D., and her sister, Sr. Clem De Nise of Rock Springs, Wyo., have been with us for three Sundays; Sr. Lottie Young of Seattle, Wash., came, accompanied by several of the Pasadena people, to Sunday school as well as church; Bro. and Sr. Robert Johns of Oceanside, Calif.; and Bro. and Sr. Roy Juden returned from a visit in Oregon where they had thought of locating. Sr. Austin Scroggs has also returned from Oregon where she was spending her vacation with her husband and his family on their ranch. In spite of the absence of several of our regular members the attendance has been unusually good.

Bro. and Sr. C. A. Emery and family of Pomona have begun a month's visit in the East where they intend to visit many of his relatives and also some of the MacLeod-Adamson relatives in Hamilton, Ont., Canada. They expect to see the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago, and points of interest in Ohio.

Norman John MacLeod.

NIAGARA DISTRICT

The following interesting items are gleaned from "The Church of God Messenger" published by Pastor C. E. Randall in the interest of the churches at Fonthill, Ont., and Niagara Falls, N. Y.

BETWEEN YOU AND ME—

The church at large will deeply regret the loss sustained by the energetic congregation at Grand Rapids, Mich., in the damage their building suffered on Children's Day. We trust that remodeling may be accomplished speedily and that no interruption to the work may result.

The largest General Conference in the history of the Church of God is what many are expecting to see in August. We hope their expectations will be realized as to attendance, but more important by far, we hope it will be the most spiritually uplifting we have ever held. Come, and make one of us!

Bro. S. J. Lindsay left last week for Marshall, Ill., where he will engage in a short series of meetings at the Salem Church.

When you receive your Truth Seekers' Quaterlies for the next quarter, your attention is directed to the editorial page of the book where suggestions are made for the preparation of the lesson and the profitable use of all the departments of the quarterly. Our corps of contributors put a great deal of work on this commentary on the International Sunday School Lessons and we want you to get the most benefit you can out of them.

On May 24 a large number of friends of Peter Standing and Ethel Bell gathered at the church to witness the marriage of this young couple. Peter and Ethel are valued members of the Truth Seeker's Class and our well wishes are extended without limit. They honeymooned for a few days at Toronto and Guelph and then returned to settle in their little nest at Beaverdams. We pray the Lord's blessing to rest upon this couple as they begin life's journey together.

The uncertainty of life was brought vividly to our minds on Wednesday, May 30, when we were called upon to conduct the funeral of Capt. Gordon. Taken seriously ill on Saturday night, he was removed to the hospital where sedatives were given to ease the pain. He lapsed into a sleep from which he never awakened. Three months previous Mrs. Gordon fell down stairs and never regained consciousness. Life is very uncertain. We have no lease on time and should not put off until a more convenient season our acceptance of Christ. We never know when there is but a step between us and death (1 Sam. 20:3).

Sr. Angeline Lent had the misfortune to fall on May 27 and injure her limb. She is improving and will soon be up and about again.

GRATITUDE

We wish to express our gratitude to our heavenly Father in that our son was in a bad auto accident in Milwaukee, Wis., on June 9 when a reckless-driver hit the car that he was driving and overturned it. That he and his companion were not seriously injured or killed was nearly miraculous, and we give the full credit to the heavenly Father's watch care. We recall to our minds this verse of Scripture: "For the eyes of the Lord run to and fro throughout the whole earth, to shew himself strong in the behalf of those whose heart is perfect toward him." In these days when we as God's children are prone to worry over material things, think what a promise and comfort are in these words.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Birkey.

President F. A. Stilson of the Indiana Conference announces that the services of Bro. F. E. Siple, pastor of the Grand Rapids church, have been secured for their Bible school which is to convene July 5 to 15 at North Salem Church, five miles north of Plymouth, Ind. Further announcement concerning teachers will be made later.

Pastor Harvey U. Krogh, Jr., of the Plum River church in Illinois, filled the pulpit last Sunday at Burr Oak, Ind., in the absence of Pastor F. L. Austin, who is assisting in the Minnesota Conference at St. Cloud in that state.

Eld. Harry A. Sheets, who was a graduate of the first Training Class at Oregon, has tendered his resignation to the circuit of churches in Virginia, of which he has been pastor for the past seven years or more. In fact this is the only pastorate Eld. Sheets has held, and the fact that he continued for so long a time in the one place speaks well for his ability as a leader and testifies to the splendid service also rendered by his wife to that community. Bro. Sheets is known for his firmness in the cardinal teachings of the church, and any congregation would be fortunate in securing his services as pastor or evangelist.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO DOLLAR-A-MONTH CLUB

Mr. and Mrs. M. Fetters; Eva L. Page; Mr. and Mrs. Paul C. Johnson; Mr. and Mrs. Glenn M. Birkey ($5).

HERALD RECEIPTS

H. S. Hunt; Mrs. Floyd Mills; Mrs. Arthur Ward; S. T. Shirley; Bernard Crofton; W. B. Ward; Anna D. Springer; B. H. Carpenter.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO N. B. L.

Verna Himmelright	$17.00
Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Marsh	5.00
Mrs. A. M. Ross	1.25
Arlen Marsh	2.23
A Brother and Sister	1.00
R. H. Judd	1.00
Anonymous	5.00
Mrs. Sid Martin (Tithe)	13.34

SPECIAL INDEBTEDNESS FUND

Previously reported received	$1628.66
Ripley, Ill., Sunday School	11.50
Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Eychaner	2.10
R. H. Judd	1.00
Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Crofton	1.00
E. S. Logan	25.00

Total	$1669.26
Pledges previously reported	272.39
E. S. Logan	25.00

Total pledges and contributions $1966.65

Let's
climb
the Ladder
to Success

$1900
$1800
$1700
$1600
$1500
$1400
$1300
$1200
$1100
$1000
$900
$800
$700
$600
$500
$400
$300
$200
$100

IMPORTANCE OF PRAYER

PRAYER is not the overcoming of God's reluctance; it is the taking hold of God's willingness. Prayer is the opening of the heart to God as to a friend. Prayer does not change God; but it does change us and our relation to God. It places us in the channel of blessings, and in that frame of mind in which God can consistently and softly grant our requests. When we pray so as to be heard and receive help there is one thing we must have—a real desire in our hearts. Form of words does not make prayer: we must want something and realize our dependence upon God for it.

"Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning."—James 1:17. "If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him. But let him (or the individual) ask in faith, nothing wavering. For he that wavereth is like a wave of the sea driven with the wind and tossed. For let not that man think that he shall receive any thing of the Lord."—James 1:5-7. "What things soever ye desire, when ye pray, believe that ye receive them, and ye shall have them."—Mark 11:24. For prayer is as the key in the hand of faith that unlocks the storehouse of God's blessings. We are requested, when we pray, to enter our closet, "and when thou hast shut thy door, pray to thy Father which is in secret; and thy Father which seeth in secret shall reward thee openly" (Matt. 6:6).

In Matthew 14:23 we find Jesus sent the multitude away so He could go up into the mountain to be alone in prayer.

One other very important thing is that if we have anything against anyone we must make it right first. "And when ye stand praying, forgive, if ye have ought against any: that your Father also which is in heaven may forgive you your trespasses."—Mark 11:25. "But I say unto you, Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you, and persecute you."—Matt. 5:44.

It is impossible to hate those for whom we pray. We must meditate upon these things; "give thyself wholly to them" (1 Tim. 4:15). Meditation is to the soul what digestion is to the body and makes personal and practical that which has been seen, heard, or read. We have to be constantly on the lookout; "Be sober, be vigilant; because your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour."—1 Peter 5:8. "But every man is tempted, when he is drawn away of his own lust, and enticed."—James 1:14. "Watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation: the spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak."—Matt. 26:41. "Pray without ceasing."—1 Thess. 5:17. "Continuing instant in prayer."—Rom. 12:12. This does not mean that we should be constantly bowed before God in prayer, but that we should not neglect prayer, but always be in a prayerful frame of mind, even when walking by the way, or engaged in the duties of life, always ready to send up our petitions to our heavenly Father for help in time of need.

"But the end of all things is at hand: be ye therefore sober, and watch unto prayer."—1 Peter 4:7. "Continue in prayer, and watch in the same with thanksgiving."—Col. 4:2. God has promised to supply all our needs. Philippians 4:19: "But my God shall supply all your need according to his riches in glory by Christ Jesus." Often it seems our prayers are not answered. At once we become discouraged. In Psalm 37:7 it reads: "Rest in the Lord, and wait patiently for him." Also we find, "Elias was a man subject to like passions as we are, and he prayed earnestly that it might not rain: and it rained not on the earth by the space of three years and six months."—James 5:17, 18.

We must have confidence in God. "This is the confidence that we have in him, that, if we ask any thing according to his will, he heareth us: and if we know that he hear us, whatsoever we ask, we know that we have the petitions that we desired of him."—1 John 5:14, 15. We find God's will expressed in His law, His promise, and His Word (Psalm 40:8; Rom. 2:17, 18; 2 Peter 1:4).

The secret of satisfactory prayer is first to ask for the Spirit of God to direct in such a way as to cause us to hunger and thirst after righteousness, temperance, patience, godliness, brotherly kindness, and charity, as found in 2 Peter 1:5-7. If we have these we surely cannot fall, but with patience wait the coming of the Lord. "Cast not away therefore your confidence, which hath great recompense of reward."—Heb. 10:35.

Solomon asked for wisdom, and because he asked this God granted it, and also blessed him with riches and honor (1 Kings 3:11-13). His prayer was answered, and our heavenly Father will answer ours too. For He is just the same yesterday, today, and forever.

Prayer makes the darkest clouds withdraw,
Prayer climbs the ladder Jacob saw,
Gives exercise to faith and love,
Brings every blessing from above:
Restraining prayer, we cease to fight;
Prayer makes the Christian armor bright.
And Satan trembles when he sees
The weakest saint upon his knees.

Esther Ling in The Bible Advocate.

—0—

THE TITHER'S SURPRISES

THE Christian who begins to tithe will have at least six surprises. He will be surprised:

1. At the amount of money he has for the Lord's work.
2. At the deepening of his spiritual life in paying the tithe.
3. At the ease in meeting his own obligations with the nine tenths.
4. At the ease in going from one tenth to larger giving.
5. At the preparation this gives to be a faithful and wise steward over the nine tenths that remain.
6. At himself in not adopting the plan sooner.—Selected.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 23

OREGON, ILLINOIS, JUNE 26, 1934

NUMBER 39

"SORER PUNISHMENT"

By Norman John MacLeod

EVEN among those people who decry the idea of eternal torment lingers an idea of an angry God who delights in torturing people with terrible affliction. They think that God conceives of some sort of torture for people who do not love Him, and that that punishment shall be drawn out so that the person suffering will remember the punishment as long as eternity lasts. Let us examine this "sorer punishment" here mentioned to see what is meant by it.

In order to understand this phrase we must first know what a punishment is, and its purpose. Where is the line between punishment on the one hand and torment or revenge on the other hand to be drawn? Punishment is for the purpose of correction. If one of us should punish our children, that is its only purpose. If it fails of accomplishing that purpose it is not punishment. Most of the so-called punishment inflicted by human beings upon their offspring is not punishment at all, but is revenge for some breaking of artificial laws set up by misguided minds. A very large portion of so-called punishment is done in anger. If the parent waits until his anger is cooled, the "punishment" is almost never inflicted. True punishment is a part of love. Can love be administered in anger? Can correction be administered by one who at the particular time is in need of correction himself?

God's love is so superior to ours that we cannot fathom it. Jesus went so far as to say that God is love. No comparison is so effective as the metaphor. So great is God's love toward men that He becomes love to us. The punishments that we conceive of then for the Christian are those that purify and that cleanse as the refiner's fire and as fuller's soap (Mal. 3:3). What are those punishments for if they do not purify? They are to destroy the wicked. What are the fires that burn?

"In the last days perilous times shall come," we are told in the letter to Timothy. Why perilous? Because they are times which try our faith to see if it is of the right sort. What happens if our faith does not stand the test? "For, behold, the day cometh, that shall burn as an oven; and all the proud, yea, and all that do wickedly, shall be stubble: and the day that cometh shall burn them up, saith the Lord of hosts, that it shall leave them neither root nor branch."—Mal. 4:1. Is that to be a real fire? Or is it not rather that tremendous heat of passion that shall melt the elements: the governments, and the people. What a tremendous heat of social, political, and religious revolution is gathering itself on the horizons of our present world! Let us notice some features of the coming of the Lord from heaven.

"He that despised Moses' law died without mercy under two or three witnesses: of how much sorer punishment, suppose ye, shall he be thought worthy, who hath trodden under foot the Son of God, and hath counted the blood of the covenant, wherewith he was sanctified, an unholy thing, and hath done despite unto the Spirit of grace?"—Hebrews 10:28, 29.

Just previous to the above reference to refiner's fire and fuller's soap we read: "But who may abide the day of his coming? and who shall stand when he appeareth?"—Mal. 3:2. Then over in Matthew 25:41 we get a picture of another fire prepared for people who oppose God: "Then shall he say also unto them on the left hand, Depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels." Are we to conclude, as is often done, that that fire is going to torment people forever and ever? If not, then we must conclude one of some other things: that there is, or is going to be, some sort of fire prepared some place on earth (probably not inside of it, or on some other planet) that will burn forever, into which these people shall be cast with their leader, the devil; or that there is to be a severe trial, like times of distress, which shall either purify or destroy those people. Is not this latter idea the one that fits in with other Scripture?

War always is the instrument that brings about times of trouble on the face of the world. Every major evil which afflicts the world at the present time can be traced back to war: either the late World War or one that preceded it. Half of our tax dollar goes to pay for war, either past or future! How much (Please turn to Page 39)

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879.

G. Eldred Marsh, Editor

Two Dollars per Year

Paul C. Johnson, Associate Editor

"I will call upon the Lord, who is worthy to be praised."—Psalm 18:3.

The Editor's Prayer

O GOD, Thou who art above all, yet through all and in us all, how strange and how blessed it is that we may address Thee without fear! How wonderful that we should be permitted to approach Thee with our little problems of everyday experience—and with our unutterable longings for eternal life and glory! Revered Father, we humbly thank Thee for this priceless privilege; may we avail ourselves of its comfort and strength unceasingly. Help us, we pray, that we may see in every circumstance and in every happening an expression of Thy love and presence. Forgive our failure to recognize Thy leading and Thy protecting power as it encompasses us on every side and from day to day. For Jesus' sake. Amen.

THE FIRST GENERAL CONFERENCE

MANY interesting and illuminating facts are suggested by the record furnished us in the fifteenth chapter of Acts concerning what might be called the first General Conference of the church. This gathering had been specially called in Jerusalem to consider certain questions of faith and practice that had arisen in Antioch and which threatened the body at that place with division.

First, the conference at Jerusalem and its results emphasize strongly how important it is that the church possess a central headquarters, where recognized leaders of ability whose integrity and worthiness is unquestioned by the majority may meet in consultation on matters pertaining to the general welfare of the church.

Second, it is interesting to note that in spite of the fact that most, if not all, of the members of the body at Antioch enjoyed various "gifts" of the Holy Spirit, including that of inspiration or prophecy, the church sometimes met with questions of faith and discipline which could not be successfully solved locally, but must be referred to a representative group of devout leaders outside of its own membership.

Third, the church at Antioch, which claimed to govern its action by rulings of the Holy Spirit (Acts 13:2), recognized the authority of the central body at Jerusalem and submitted without question to its decisions.

Fourth, this authoritative central group was composed of men of recognized general leadership, and did not include the entire membership of the church. No disputed questions were presented to the general body, but were without exception referred to qualified leaders for careful investigation and decision.

Fifth, the "apostles and elders came together" and listened attentively to the orderly presentation of the matters under dispute, studied them thoughtfully, and having reached a unanimous conclusion not only publicly announced it to the delegates present at the conference, but sent representatives of their own to Antioch to inform the local congregation of "the same things by mouth."

Sixth, it is apparent from the results that followed at Antioch that the decision of the "apostles and elders" was looked upon as final. No matter who the teacher might be, or what his scholarly attainments might be, no one was permitted to teach in the church at Antioch anything that was contrary to the accepted doctrines of the church as interpreted and announced by the general consensus of leadership.

No doubt questions later arose other than that of the circumcision of Gentile converts, as must ever be the case where intelligent men endeavor to seek out the "deep things of God." But in every case the same rule would hold good. Any new discovery of truth which necessitated a revision of established ideas, would be first submitted to the recognized spiritual elders of the church "in conference assembled" before they were presented to the general congregations or published to the world at large.

This divinely appointed method for the handling of "new truth" would accomplish several beneficial purposes. First, it would provide the leaders of the church everywhere, and at the earliest possible moment, with the latest discoveries of truth made by all other students of the Word. Second, it would serve as a check on the impetuosity of some who are so enthralled with a new idea that they feel they must force it upon the minds of everybody at the first opportunity regardless of consequences to the body in general. Third, it would have a strong tendency to unify the teaching of the church by bringing to bear on every question the mature judgment and scholarship of the best minds of the entire body. The conclusions of no one individual, no matter how talented he may be, no matter how great his knowledge of the Bible may be, can be accepted safely as absolute truth until those conclusions have been weighed in the balances of other minds that are equally experienced in scriptural investigation.

A Lesson in Addition

By D. G. Harvey

"Great peace have they which love thy law: and nothing shall offend them."—Psalm 119:165.

TWO small girls were having a stirring discussion. As the summer vacation was almost two weeks old "play school" was in order. One of the "students" did not feel pleased with the grades given by the "play teacher." "Why, she can't even add," was her complaint.

Yes, dear little girl, that is an ability many of us lack. And the lack has been the cause of much, if not all, of the strife and confusion among the followers of the Lord Jesus today.

Let each reader spare but a moment to read the verses in 2 Peter 1:5-9, for lengthy quotations take up needed space which can be saved if the reader of THE HERALD reads with his Bible near at hand. (Would it not be a wise thing to do? Remember that the Bereans "searched the scriptures daily, whether those things were so" (Acts 17:11). If these people were commended for testing the words of Paul and Silas, inspired writers of God's Book, should we not test the writers of our day, compare their words with the Book of books?)

Peter gives us a wonderful lesson—add. "Grow in grace."—2 Peter 3:18. The final result is shown by Peter's words: "Grace and peace be multiplied unto you." How? "Through the knowledge of God, and of Jesus our Lord."—2 Peter 1:2.

"Add to your faith." Doctrine? No. Add to your confidence, your trust in the promises of an all-wise creator, our God, that faith of Abraham, of which Paul writes, "He staggered not at the promise of God through unbelief; but was strong in faith, giving glory to God; and being fully persuaded that, what he had promised, he was able also to perform." Have we that faith of Abraham?

"Virtue": fortitude, strength of character, energy, or power. The Diaglott rendering is "fortitude," which means "firmness" or "courage." "Stand fast in the Lord, my dearly beloved."—Phil. 4:1. We need "virtue," that courage that makes us to stand.

Next Peter says add "knowledge." Why? Let us get Paul's reason this time. "Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth."—2 Tim. 2:15.

One may gain the approval of men, but perhaps because he is a natural speaker, has a wonderful personality. I like Paul's standard, the approval of God.

Knowledge must be gained, but let us notice one more point here: "Now as touching things offered unto idols, we know that we all have knowledge. Knowledge puffeth up, but charity edifieth. And if any man think that he knoweth any thing, he knoweth nothing yet as he ought to know."—1 Cor. 8:1, 2. In other words, don't let a little knowledge change the size of your hat. "For who maketh thee to differ from another? and what hast thou that thou didst not receive?"—1 Cor. 4:7.

The next step, says Peter, is "temperance," not merely the abstinence of intoxicating beverages, but self-control, like the little girl who boasted, "I can make myself mind myself." "Let your moderation be known unto all men. The Lord is at hand."—Phil. 4:5. The Wise Man tells us, "He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty; and he that ruleth his spirit than he that taketh a city."—Proverbs 16:32.

Add "patience," long-suffering, perhaps the most needed of the added fruits of the Spirit (Gal. 5:22, 23). The natural man is not patient; he must see action, must be getting some place. But James tells us to "be patient therefore, brethren, unto the coming of the Lord" (James 5:7). But the Christian who has not this blessed "fruit," being impatient, will come in the class of the evil servant who says, "My lord delayeth his coming."—Matt. 24:48. He will cease to watch, then; he will begin "to smite his fellow servants." And what is his fate? The Lord of that servant shall come when he is not aware, for he is busy with other things, he was not patient, "and shall cut him asunder, and appoint him his portion with the hypocrites" (Matt. 24:51).

Then "godliness." Divine nature, like God's? Not that in this life, but rather piety, cheerful conformity to the will of God; for Jesus said, "For whosoever shall do the will of God, the same is my brother."—Mark 3:35. For example, when Paul was to go to Jerusalem, knowing of his coming arrest, his friends strove to change his course. But seeing Paul was steadfast and ready, they ceased in the attempt, seeing God's will, for they said, "The will of the Lord be done."—Acts 21:14. Why? God knows best. "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God."—Rom. 8:28. We, like our great Example (1 Peter 2:21), must be willing, even as He, in the face of death to say, "Nevertheless not as I will, but as thou wilt."—Matt. 26:39.

"Brotherly kindness," love of the brethren; for Jesus gives us the one true sign of the true disciple: "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another."—John 13:35.

Then "charity," the highest form of love, compassion, pity for the world in darkness. Jesus again: "But I say unto you, Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you, and persecute you." (OVER)

"If ye fulfil the royal law according to the scripture, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself, ye do well."—James 2:8. But why should this be required? There are so many things we ourselves lack. "Who can have compassion on the ignorant, and on them that are out of the way; for that he himself also is compassed with infirmity. . . . For when for the time ye ought to be teachers, ye have need that one teach you again which be the first principles of the oracles of God; and are become such as have need of milk and not of strong meat. For every one that useth milk is unskilful in the word of righteousness: for he is a babe."—Heb. 5:2, 12, 13,

"Therefore leaving the principles of the doctrine of Christ, let us go on unto perfection; not laying again the foundation of repentance from dead works, and of faith toward God."—Heb. 6:1.

What Is Wrong?

IN the current number of the Christian Herald I find an article entitled "Church Weak Spots," which indicates that something is radically wrong, either with the church itself, or with men's conception of what the church should be and do. True, the times we live in; the depression we are passing through; the spiritual declension existing within the nominal church—all have something to do with the situation, and this calls for the serious, prayerful consideration of all who have the real interests of the church at heart. But here is the article:

"After a three-year study, a four-volume report has just been issued which tells, among other things, the educational status of America's Protestant clergymen. The survey, under the direction of the Institute of Social and Religious Research and of Yale University, found that, to support a minister, a church needed 350 members. Of white churches, only 13 per cent have a membership of that size. At least 85,000 churches are too weak to support a full-time preacher. Of churches with full-time pastors, less than one fourth have found seminary graduates for the job, and less than one sixth are served by men with both college and seminary training."

From the standpoint of income, the average minister, in 1923, labored for $1,407, which is only slightly above the wage of an unskilled worker. Today, the ministerial market is glutted, with plenty of trained men to fill the needs, and between forty thousand and fifty thousand untrained ministers who are out of jobs. As for theological schools, the report concludes that their academic standards, if any, are "chaotic."

Now, with this report before us, what comment have we to make, and what do we propose to do about it? Suppose we were studying for the ministry, purposing to devote the rest of our lives to religious work, how would this report strike us? Well, with all due respect to the survey committee, all churches do not need even half of 350 members to properly support a pastor! Very few among the smaller denominations could claim very many churches with that membership. This is admitted in the above article. "At least 35,000 churches are too weak to support a full-time preacher"—that sounds discouraging and somewhat disappointing.

As for the financial end of the article, it is admitted, and to be deplored, that the average minister for these many years past, not only in this depression but even in more prosperous times, has been receiving a stipend somewhat smaller than is paid to a business man or his clerks of the same qualifications, and, in some cases, smaller than the wages of a day laborer, especially if he is a union man. But we have known some ministers who would easily make good as business men, as teachers, or in any of the ordinary professions, who gladly gave their time and talent to the service of the church of their choice, and some of these are now facing old age, or disability, with a dark outlook, especially if the denomination they are serving has no pension system.

But—"the ministerial market is glutted, with plenty of trained men to fill the needs and between forty thousand and fifty thousand untrained ministers who are out of jobs." How does that sound when we are told from the platform and pulpit that there are still plenty of places where the sound of the gospel has never been heard, and we are urged to pray the Lord of the harvest to thrust out laborers into the harvest field, seeing that "the harvest is great and the labourers few"? "How then shall they call on him in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher? and how shall they preach, except they be sent? as it is written, How beautiful are the feet of them that preach the gospel of peace, and bring tidings of good things."—Rom. 10:14, 15.

Here we are told that the preachers must be sent—who sends them? Some one will immediately say: "The Lord of the harvest," and to this we agree. But—has not the church a part in the sending, also? We read, "And when they had fasted and prayed, and laid their hands on them, they sent them away."—Acts 13:3. The next verse tells us that "being sent forth by the Holy Ghost," they traveled along to various points named. Here we see that the Holy Spirit and the early church sent Barnabas and Saul to the work. Does not the same rule hold good today? If therefore "the ministerial market is glutted" today, what is wrong? Shall we conclude that either these men were not called of God to preach, or that the church is not doing its duty in sending forth—or is it that the men will not go where needed? It must be one or the other—possibly both of the last mentioned. What are we going to do about it?

—A. E. Bloom in The World's Crisis.

What Is Meant by Our Salvation?

IN the third chapter, verse 16, of Paul's Second Letter to Timothy we read—"All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness: that the man of God may be perfect, throughly furnished unto all good works." Believing these words, we desire to study the Scriptures that we may be among those who rightly divide the Word of truth (2 Tim. 2:15). Our consideration for the present is found in Romans 13:11—"Now is our salvation nearer"; and more especially would we ask, What is meant by "OUR"?

In the first part of this Letter (1:6, 7) Paul tells the believers that they are among "the called of Jesus Christ: . . . beloved of God, called to be saints." "Our," then, refers to those called of Jesus Christ. In other scriptures we find this calling spoken of as a "holy calling" (2 Tim. 1:9). It is a call to holiness. We are called "out of darkness into his marvellous light," to be "a royal priesthood, an holy nation, a peculiar people" (1 Peter 2:9). The Apostle Peter calls them the elect—"Elect according to the foreknowledge of God the Father, through sanctification of the Spirit" (1 Peter 1:2), and in Romans 8:33 they are called "God's elect."

In 1 Corinthians still more good news is found about the calling, for 1:26, 27 reads—"For ye see your calling, brethren, how that not many wise men after the flesh, not many mighty, not many noble, are called: but God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the wise." This scripture does not say that no wise, or mighty, or noble are called, but "not many." We know that God is no respecter of persons, and any who make their calling and election sure do so by accepting the provision made by God, coming to Him through faith in and obedience to His dear Son, accepting Him as the Christ, the Son of the living God. Some rich, titled, and mighty belong to the "our," the "elect," but the majority constituting the "our" are "the poor of this world rich in faith" (James 2:5).

We find further that those mentioned in our text who can say "our salvation" are also called the church. Jesus and His disciples had been talking together; and Peter answering a question asked by our Lord made this great confession—"Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." Jesus told them this had been revealed from God; and "upon this rock (this confession) I will build my church." From these words we learn that there was to be a church, that the Builder would be Jesus Christ, and that it was something still in the future from the day Peter made this confession. Matt. 16:13-18. The church of Jesus Christ therefore is a body of believers called out of the world to be built up by Him and on Him as the true foundation (1 Cor. 3:11). And we read in Acts 2:47 that "the Lord added to the church daily such as should be saved"—literally, "such as were being saved."

SAVED THROUGH FAITH

The question then arises, If the church is a body of believers, is it saved as a body? That is, Is it sufficient just to belong to some body of Christians? Does membership in some church organization guarantee salvation?

The answer to all three questions is, No; quite the contrary: salvation is an individual matter.

According to Romans 5:12, "by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned." Not only did Adam sin; but all through the ages right down to the present his children have done the same. In Romans 5:8 we read—"God commendeth his love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us," and in 6:17—"Ye were the servants of sin," and 3:22, 23—there is no difference between Jew and Gentile, "for all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God." "The wages of sin is death." These statements show that all the human race was condemned—not only the race as a whole, but every individual member of it, and each individual required to be redeemed.

Every one of the believers, spoken of as the church, was once among these condemned sinners. Of that there can be no doubt. While they were condemned sinners they were not the church. Whilst we see this, we see also that God made some provision or arrangement by which they might be changed from condemned sinners into members of the church. This arrangement was a free gift on God's part, something we could not provide ourselves. "The gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." This gift of God, then, has been accepted by them. They have truly repented, because God "commandeth all men every where to repent" (Acts 17:30). They have come by the way that God appointed. The plan is arranged; it is the finished work of Jesus Christ that has made it possible for them to draw nigh unto God. Faith in that finished work is what is required, and faith is an individual matter.

We do well then to consider the conditions of salvation, and to strive to fulfill them.

Scripture declares that "there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved" (Acts 4:12); and Jesus said (John 14:6)—"I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father, but by me."

Not now, as in former ages, do we come to God through the blood of bulls and goats, but as stated in Hebrews 10:20, we come "by a new and living way, which he (Christ Jesus) hath consecrated for us, through the veil, that is to say, his flesh."

WALKING IN NEWNESS OF LIFE

But acceptance of what the Lord has done is not all that is necessary for our salvation. It is necessary for those who desire to be among the believers to obey the Mediator of the New Covenant in all things (Heb. 9:15). Accepting this gospel or good news, we become willing followers of Jesus Christ. It is not now a matter of our will set up as formerly in opposition to God's will. Now we desire to be led by the Holy Spirit of God, and to do His will in preference to our own.

Having decided to walk, by His grace, in this narrow way, "we are buried with him by baptism into death: that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life" (Rom. 6:4). In this chapter we read how we were once the servants of sin, Sin being personified as a taskmaster who has taken the whole world in bondage; while in chapter 7:14, the Jews under the law are said to have been "sold under sin." But now by the grace of God we are told to "reckon" ourselves "dead indeed unto sin, but alive unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord."

The enlightenment and other favors enjoyed by believers, who constitute the church, bring great responsibility. We must strive to live the new life, or we shall come under God's displeasure; for in Romans 8:13, 14, 16, 17 we read—"For if ye live after the flesh, ye shall die: but if ye through the Spirit do mortify the deeds of the body, ye shall live. For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God. . . . The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God: and if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ." Manifestly those who have taken these steps indicated in the Scriptures have commenced a new life.

But what of the old?—the habits and actions of the past days? Have we put them right away? or do we occasionally indulge them? If we do as the Apostle tells us and reckon ourselves dead to the old manner of life, that means that we should overcome the old disposition, reckoned dead, whenever it seeks to assert itself. To do this it is necessary for us to continually watch and pray for strength; our blessed Lord knows how weak we are, and will hear our humble petition. We can take comfort from His assurance through the Apostle (Rom. 8:1, 4) that "there is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus, . . . who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit." How grateful we should be for such a Mediator and High Priest, who was in all points tempted like as we are; yet without sin; and that through Him at all times we may come for strength, for knowledge, and for forgiveness, knowing that the Father will hear us and accept our prayers offered in His name.

GROWING IN KNOWLEDGE AND GRACE

Words of great comfort are found in Philippians 4:7-9, where the Apostle tells us that if our minds are rightly exercised not only will we have the "peace of God" with us as we run this race, but also the very "God of peace" Himself. The Apostle tells us what to think about—such things as are true, honest, lovely, of good report. With such thoughts in our minds we should be the more able to live the life well pleasing to our heavenly Father.

In Peter's Second Letter he urges us to give "all diligence," and to add to our faith, virtue, knowledge, temperance, patience, godliness, brotherly kindness, and love. The promise is—"If these things be in you, and abound, they make you that ye shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. . . . For so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ."—2 Peter 1:8-11.

Those at Rome to whom Paul was writing had once been in the world, but now through faith in Jesus Christ they were striving to make their calling and election sure.

And we the same. We can look back, perhaps five or ten years, many as much as twenty or thirty years, to the time when we had no hope, when we were without Christ, and without God in the world (Eph. 2:12). But when this good news came to us, what joy filled our hearts, and how we desired earnestly to know what the sacred pages held for us. It all seemed so wonderful—life instead of death, glory and honor and immortality and eternal life.

To be with and like our Lord; this is what "our" salvation means to us; this is what the salvation of the church of believers of this Gospel Age means to every member of it. And not only so, but to be a partner with Him in blessing the families of the earth—those who have lived and died, so many believing such things as were taught them about the Lord by those in high places; others who have never so much as heard the name of Jesus. To the many is still unknown this good news which has enlightened us, and caused us great joy. This opportunity which is ours is certainly something to thank God for. But we rejoice and are thankful that God has arranged that all mankind shall receive an accurate knowledge of the Savior and His love—if not in this life, then the opportunity will be given them when they are raised from the dead in the Kingdom Age; and in that great work of enlightenment the church shall share.

With this glorious prospect for the overcomer, little wonder that Paul wrote—"I reckon that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us."—Rom. 8:18. But what of us? Have we gone on in faith and obedience, filled with love and zeal? There is no place in the Christian race for us to stop: we must press on, running in the race. Since we first believed we have tasted and seen that the Lord our God is good; His mercies are forever sure; and we can truly say—

"He is not a disappointment.

Jesus is far more to me,

Than in all my golden day dreams,

I had fancied He could be."

To attain to our salvation we are engaged in a continual warfare, demanding all our attention; but we realize also that the grace of God is sufficient to enable us to come off more than conquerors through Him that loved us. Therefore, casting all our care upon Him, and looking unto Him for strength, that we may be among those who by the grace of God will be found overcomers, let us press on with joy and confidence. And to Him will be all the glory, now and for evermore.—E. E. in The New Covenant Advocate.

The Christian and the Next War

GREAT BRITAIN, France, the United States, and Japan have all launched programs this year for the bringing of their various navies to full strength as soon as possible. And even Italy threatens to follow suit. Almost every newspaper contains articles on war. Magazines everywhere are freely discussing the coming conflict. The war spirit is once again in the air.

During the late World War the church played a large part on both sides. It will be remembered that ministers in pulpits, both in Germany and in the countries of the Allies, prayed for victory. Each asked the same God to defeat the enemy. Clergymen, who today are crying for peace and disarmament, then urged their young men to don the uniform and fight.

LEGALIZED MURDER

"Make the world safe for democracy," was the appeal. "This war is being fought to end all wars," they explained, as though war could end war. Christian took up arms against Christian. The Lord's servants in one country murdered His servants in another. For men were taught to hate, and murder was legalized. And those who would not murder and could not hate were accused of being unpatriotic and imprisoned as conscientious objectors. Such are the inconsistencies of the war spirit. What a tragedy!

In the olden days, petty nobles in the same country waged war against each other and it was then considered the right thing to do. Today we call such groups "gang-men" and look upon them as criminals. They are classed as murderers. Why the change? When nations go to war, or even the North and the South in the same country, we lift the stigma on murder and authorize it. In fact we write it up in our school books, erect monuments, and glory in it. And oftentimes the man who murders the largest number is decorated with national emblems. Why the difference? When two factions kill, it is murder. When two nations fight, it is war. If I kill my enemy it is murder. If I kill a man belonging to my nation's enemy it is war.

WHAT WOULD JESUS DO?

Are such standards sanctioned by the Christianity of Jesus Christ? Did He hate? Are we putting into practice the precepts of the Sermon on the Mount when we countenance bloodshed? Is not one nation as precious to Him as another? Came He not that men might not perish? Could He, the Christ who loved, take up a bayonet and plunge it into the heart of a Christian boy in his teens? Would He urge His followers today to hate and fight? Is love compatible with hate? Should one govern in peace and the other in war?

"I am always glad," wrote Charles H. Spurgeon, "to hear of a soldier becoming a Christian; I am always sorry to hear of a Christian being a soldier. Whenever I hear of a man who is in the profession of arms being converted, I rejoice; but whenever I hear of a converted man taking up the profession of arms, I mourn. If there be anything clear in Scripture, it does seem to me that it is for a Christian to have nothing to do with carnal weapons. May the day come when war shall be regarded as the most atrocious of all crimes, and when for a Christian man, either directly or indirectly, to take part in it shall be considered as an abjuration of his principle."

WHO IS THE AGGRESSOR?

It is a well known fact that I am absolutely opposed to war. I do not believe that a Christian has any right to take up arms against his fellow men. The only possible justification would be the plea of self-defense. But I am afraid that very few wars were ever fought in self-defense. Lust for territory, lust for power, lust for money, or some trivial misunderstanding, has generally been the real reason. In my mind there is only one way to determine who is the aggressor. The responsibility must be placed upon the nation that first sends its armies across its borders into foreign territory. The nation that does is the aggressor. The soil upon which the war is fought must necessarily be the soil of the nation attacked. Hence the nation fighting on its own territory and within its own borders is on the defensive. The invading foe is the aggressor and must accept the responsibility of war guilt.

If, therefore, the nations of the world were to sign a solemn agreement to a statement like this, "We will never cross our borders for the purpose of waging war," there would be but little danger in the future. And then if they would agree to scrap all offensive weapons of every kind and description, it would still further mitigate against the possibility of war. Thus the problem would be easily solved. But, of course, we cannot hope for anything so wonderful in this day and age.

NATIONS SHOULD CALL UPON GOD

It is my firm conviction that if a nation would utterly trust God and proclaim a day of fasting, humiliation, and prayer on the eve of an attack, that God Himself would defend that nation, confound the enemy, and deliver as in the days of old. But nations prefer to trust in their inventions and arms, rather than to rely upon God.

There are no Christian nations today. A Christian nation would never send its armies beyond its own borders; it would never become an aggressor; it would never seek to take new territory by force; nor would it endeavor to settle its problems by other than peaceful means. It would put its confidence in God, and if invaded, cry to Him for protection. It would always be found on the defensive.

SHOULD TAKE GOD SERIOUSLY

Any nation willing to trust God has every possible assurance from His Word of divine protection. God has pledged Himself to answer prayer. Let me quote from the petition of Solomon which God honored and promised to grant: "And if thy people . . . be put to the worst before the enemy, because they have sinned against thee; and shall return and confess thy name, and pray and make supplication before thee . . . then hear thou from the heavens, and forgive the sin of thy people. . . . If there be dearth in the land, if there be pestilence, if there be blasting, or mildew, locusts, or caterpillars; if their enemies besiege them in the cities of their land. . . . then what prayer or what supplication soever shall be made of any man, or of all thy people . . . when every one shall know his own sore and his own grief, and shall spread forth his hands . . . then hear thou from heaven thy dwelling place, and forgive."—2 Chron. 6:24-30.

When Sennacherib's army surrounded Jerusalem, there seemed no hope of escape. But Hezekiah and Isaiah cried to God. They relied not on their armies, but on God. And in answer to their petitions, God delivered them. And what God did once, He can do again. Oh, that we might trust Him, and put Him to the test, not only as individuals, but as nations. For war settles nothing; it only creates new problems. It takes two to make a fight. And the cost is, by far, too great. Let God be our defense.

The Bible makes it perfectly clear that war is to continue to the end of the age. Mankind loves to fight. The Sermon on the Mount has no place in national life. Not until the dawning of the millennium will war be outlawed. We may not believe in it, we may stand for peace, we may refuse as Christians to engage in it, but as long as the heart of man remains unchanged, just so long will war continue. We may believe that war is murder pure and simple, and we may from actual experience admit that war is hell, but we will not be able to put an end to it until Christ returns.

THE ATTITUDE OF THE CHRISTIAN

Christian believers do not belong to this world; our citizenship is in heaven. This is man's day. God's day is coming. The Christian's day is still future. The best we can do now is to refuse to engage in the wars of the world, to remain separate from every worldly organization, and to live as far as possible as citizens of heaven. We may have to suffer persecution. We will probably be ostracized and cast out. We may even be imprisoned as conscientious objectors. But it is our duty to remain true to the Lord Jesus Christ, come what may. God says in unmistakable terms: "Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers" (2 Cor. 6:14); "Come out from among them, and be ye separate" (2 Cor. 6:17). And His commands are meant to be obeyed.

We long for peace. We thank God for every effort put forth to outlaw war. We pray: "Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven." But we know that even now European nations are preparing for another showdown. It is also our conviction that before long Japan and Russia, or Japan and America, will declare war against one another. And war between Japan and Russia will, in all probability, be the end of Bolshevism, and Russia be open to the gospel.

Thus with war in Europe, and war in the Orient, civilization will collapse. And the next act in the drama will be the advent of the Antichrist and the end of the present age; to be followed, of course, by the millennial reign of Christ, when, for a thousand years, there will be no more war.—Oswald J. Smith in The Defender; selected by G. M. Birkey.

"SORER PUNISHMENT"

Continued from Front Page

of the distress of the present could be avoided if it were not for the war of 1914 and its terrible destruction! Then we read in Ezekiel 38:21 concerning that great leader that is opposing God: "And I will call for a sword against him throughout all my mountains, saith the Lord God: every man's sword shall be against his brother." To compare that statement from Ezekiel with several other statements from the press of the world is startling. From The Reader's Digest for April this year we read: "Another war would collapse because of our inability to carry it on, and what started as war would end up in world revolution. It would be for the world the supreme disaster. So let no one build any hope on a rescue from hard times by war" ("Would War Bring Us Prosperity?" by John T. Flynn, condensed from The Country Home). Then this from the same magazine for May: "Bethlehem's Mr. Charles M. Schwab dismayed the cadets of West Point in 1927 by saying: 'Today the Bethlehem Steel Company has definitely abandoned any thought of ever again engaging in the manufacture of ordnance except in times of great national emergency.' Such times are apparently with us now—have, in fact, been continually with us since Mr. Schwab unloosed this shaft of oratory. In the official listing of Bethlehem's products you will find armor plate, projectiles, gun and shell forgings, battleships, cruisers, submarines, and airplane carriers. The site at Bethlehem where cannon and armor plate are made is guarded, and it may be that Mr. Schwab has never been able to evade the vigilance of his watchmen" ("Arms and the Men" condensed from Fortune). That universal revolutions will be the result of war is a foregone conclusion. Just as the Russian, German, and Austrian revolutions were born of war, so will be the revolutions of the future. This idea is confirmed further by an article which appears in the May issue of Current History entitled: "Keeping the Lid on the Balkans." The author has traveled extensively through those countries and has found quite generally not only throughout the old Balkans, but also the new ones, a tendency to think of Russia as the "mother country," and they are awaiting the coming war in order to set up a Soviet government of their own. Only by the sternest measures are the various rulers of those countries able to keep their thrones by dictatorship terrorisms.

If we bear in mind this idea of the fiery punishment that is coming it is easy to explain or to understand 2 Peter 3:6, 7: "Whereby the world that then was, being overflowed with water, perished: but the heavens and the earth, which are now, by the same word are kept in store, reserved unto fire against the day of judgment and perdition of ungodly men." And then the tenth verse fits right in: "But the day of the Lord will come as a thief in the night; in the which the heavens shall pass away with a great noise, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat, the earth also and the works that are therein shall be burned up." The word "judgment" is often used in Scripture (and otherwise) to denote something that is considered a punishment. When earthquake and fire descended upon San Francisco in 1906 many people said that it was the judgment of God upon that wicked city. Many examples might be cited further to substantiate that point of view. With that in mind let us read another passage that throws light upon the "sorer punishment" that is coming upon men: "And Enoch also, the seventh from Adam, prophesied of these, saying, Behold, the Lord cometh with ten thousands of his saints, to execute judgment upon all, and to convince all that are ungodly among them of all their ungodly deeds which they have ungodly committed, and of all their hard speeches which ungodly sinners have spoken against him."—Jude 14, 15. "The Lord knoweth how to deliver the godly out of temptations, and to reserve the unjust unto the day of judgment (punishment) to be punished."—2 Peter 2:9.

Let us return to our text in Hebrews and read it again in connection with what follows later in the chapter. As we glance down the chapter we see that several things are mentioned: judgment (verse 30), vengeance (verse 30), tribulations and afflictions (verses 32-34), and the coming of the Lord (verse 37). Is this just an accidental relationship? Or is there not some connection?

The same incidents happen to the wicked and the righteous. The grief that comes into life makes the ungodly man bitter: during the war those who did not believe said that there could not be any God, for He would not allow such things to come upon the world. They were turned farther away from God by trials. The godly man on the other hand is chastened (made chaste) by those things. He endures when tribulations come in his pathway. He is brought closer to God. Those trials are like refiner's fire and like fuller's soap. They refine and cleanse the godly man; they destroy the ungodly. When in these times of depression fortunes were swept away we see the difference. The man who has no faith in God resorts to suicide or some other desperate expedient. The man who has faith in God is stable, knowing that he has greater riches than all the worldly wealth there is. The loss is a terrible blow to either one, but the godly man is chastened thereby, the ungodly is destroyed.

In Isaiah 63 we see a picture of the Lord coming in the power of His might, in conquest over those who oppose Him. He has come through the fire that burns at His appearing. He has fought the battles of the righteous against the wicked. Is not that the sorer punishment referred to in Hebrews 10:28, 29?

"OUR CHURCH"

By M. W. Lyon

"The Lord shall cut off all flattering lips . . . who have said, With our tongue will we prevail."

THERE are a great many people in the world, regardless of what their demarcation or religious belief may be, who seem to take great pride in calling the house of worship, as "Our Church"; and multitudes who speak of the church as "Our Church," have scarcely been in their particular church enough to know what the church looks like on the inside, and do not even seem to know how to conduct themselves during the hour of worship, in the dwelling place of the Lord that they call, "Our Church."

There are some who speak of the church as "Our Church" because it is near to their door, because most of their friends belong to it, and because it has never asked them in any way to support the cause of the Master. There are others who speak of the church, as "Our Church," because it is the denomination to which their great-grandparents once belonged, and then there is a third class who speak of the church as "Our Church," because it was the church that pronounced them as a family, or because it was the church that united some loved one.

If all the people who speak of the church as "Our Church" would actually go to church, and make it a point in their life to be as regular in their place in the church as possible, then the average church in our country would be compelled to do one of two things—either put on a new addition, or say as the man in Luke 12, "This will I do, I will tear down and build greater." But since there are so many "Our Church" people in the world who claim to have a church, but who do not seem to know what the church stands for, there is sufficient room and more than necessary in the average church.

If all the people who speak of the church as "Our Church" would do toward the church what the Lord requires of them, then not only would all the missionaries on the foreign field and at home be paid up to date, but then there would also be sufficient funds in the treasuries to send out again as many laborers into the Master's harvest field as what there actually are today, with a solid golden guarantee that they would never need to be afraid that starvation would come to their door.

Before we speak again of the church as "Our Church," let us first ask the question, Am I loyal and true to the church, as I should be, and am I worthy to call the church my church? and then the second question that we should always bear in mind is, Am I doing my share toward the church in some way or other, that I have the right to call it "my church," or am I letting some one else do the part that I should do? These are two questions that we should always consider before we speak of God's house as "Our Church," no matter what our denomination may be or what our religious belief may be.—Golden Rule News.

Abreast of the Times

Light Rays and Restitution

"Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that the plowman shall overtake the reaper, and the treader of grapes him that soweth seed."—Amos 9:13.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 17.—Just a hint of the way in which the entire earth may be restored to its Edenic state of continuous productiveness regardless of seasonable changes has been discovered by Dr. L. H. Flint of the Department of Agriculture. The Associated Press in reporting the discovery calls it "a scientific feat that is almost the equivalent of abolishing winter—a new kind of rejuvenation process for seeds" which ordinarily lie dormant for a period of months after ripening before they will germinate. It was found that the longer wave lengths of light, the red, orange, and yellow rays, have almost miraculous power of rousing seeds from their winter's dormant state, a sort of "living death, a near resurrection," and start them growing several months in advance of their usual schedule. "It was found that seed which failed to grow under ordinary conditions would sprout within twenty-four hours if exposed for a few seconds to sunlight or artificial light of the correct wave length, after having been soaked in water for about an hour." On the other hand it was found that shorter wave lengths, the violet, green, and blue, have the effect of greatly retarding germination. This discovery, it is thought, will be of much practical value to greenhouse growers and to those who live in regions of year-round summer. Thus step by step science is adding to the wealth of evidence we already possess that a vast increase in productiveness of the soil is possible, and the rejuvenation may be brought about naturally at the coming of the Lord. How little we yet know of the strange forces for good God has created!

Drought Drives Russians to Prayer

"In my distress I cried unto the Lord."—Psalm 120:1.

Moscow, June 17.—The strenuous effort made by the atheistic government of Russia during the past fifteen years to eradicate religious faith from Russia; it is said, is now being strongly counteracted by the terrible drought that is sweeping that country, as it is the larger part of the world. The peasants, made desperate by the fear of starvation, have been resuming religious practices, including prayer for rain. Mohammedans in parched Daghestan recently offered 112 sheep and two cows as sacrifices to God in the hope of bringing relief from the drought. So widespread is the religious revival movement induced by the threat of famine that the newspaper Bezebozhnik, which is dedicated to the elimination of religion from Russia, is quite disturbed.

Reports of continued drought come from England, where today prayers for rain were offered in all the London churches. Owing to the failure of the shallow wells on which the people in the country depend for their water supply, the people have been compelled to fall back on stagnant pools, field drains, and other makeshift sources, "many of which were polluted and dangerous to health." Parliament has made an emergency appropriation of $5,000,000 which the Ministry of Health will use to improve the rural water supply, and the people of London have been warned to be very careful in the use of water. The city's supply comes from the Thames and Lea Rivers, which are the lowest for nearly half a century.

France reports a widespread shortage of water which, combined with the intense heat, is threatening the wine-grape crop of the country. Compare Zechariah 14:17.

The World Is Sick

"They see the plagues of that land, and the sicknesses which the Lord hath laid upon it."—Deut. 29:22.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., June 18.—Addressing the 1,756 graduates of the University of Michigan at the baccalaureate service yesterday, Dr. Alexander Grant Ruthvan, president of the institution, warned his hearers that they were entering a world that was "seriously sick. Starvation and superabundance, poverty and wealth, ignorance and unused knowledge exist side by side," the president said. "With means of communication and transportation sufficient to knit most of the world together into one smooth functioning unit, mankind is still attempting to govern and feed itself by methods suitable to the horse and carriage age and even in this century discusses such things as national self-sufficiency and the economic independence of nations."

It is a growing conviction among "Brain Trusters" everywhere that the world must henceforth be considered as a unit, and not a group of antagonistic isolated communities called "nations." The eternal God recognized this thousands of years ago when He planned for the establishment of one mighty universal kingdom which is to include all races of men.

The sickness of Israel, predicted in the text at the head of this item, is a contagious disease that has now been contracted by Gentile nations. The same virulent symptoms are observable in them all, selfishness, pride, discontent, and ungodliness. When the disease attacked Israel it developed within the national consciousness a determination to reject the kingship of Jehovah and to demand a human potentate "like other nations." If the present tendency of the so-called Christian nations continues, as it undoubtedly will, it will lead them to cry, as did the Jews of Jesus' time, "Away with him! We will not have this man to rule over us."

Berean Department

ARLEN MARSH, EDITOR

IT ever has been one of the incomprehensible beliefs of the human race in general that youth has no place in the affairs of men except as learner. They who have been unable to boast two decades, at the least, of practical experience have been regarded during the ages of the past as being of small moment among humankind.

These things are rapidly coming to an end. Youth is beginning to enter into its rightful sphere. The centuries in which it has been denied its proper position are being atoned by places of honor and great authority in government, philosophy, and the professions. Youth, from its post at the end of the procession of events, has moved to the eminences from which men lead.

That there are dangers in this shift to youth is evident. Experience cannot be ignored as the supreme teacher. Youth is prone to errors which more settled, less impulsive heads are not inclined to make. No matter how complete its education, youth cannot approximate the practicality of definite knowledge gained from hard experience.

Nevertheless, youth demands and rightly should receive a more important part in the affairs of government, business, and religion than it has been accorded in the past. It brings with it a fresh impetus, a new zeal, original ideas, and an indefatigable energy that must be recognized as superior in lasting force to the labors of the older generation.

Jesus Christ was a young man. At thirty, without a week of practical experience as men count experience as practical, the Christ entered upon a brief period of preaching that was destined to influence the lives of men more profoundly than anything had done since the creation. By the standards of His day, Jesus had scarcely attained to His majority when He commenced His labors.

They were young men who pointed out his faults to Job. The old, experienced friends of the once wealthy tribal chief brought neither sympathy nor practical suggestions to him in his time of greatest need. Youth set its finger on the flaw and brought comfort, repentance, and, subsequently, riches to the harassed ruler.

Ghenghis Kahn, mightiest monarch who ever walked on earth, commenced his conquests in the early days of youth. Alexander, conquerer of most of western Asia, much of Europe, and a considerable portion of North Africa, began his rule before he had reached twenty and completed it shortly after passing thirty. Josiah, boy ruler of the Israelites, was needed to call the Hebrew nation back to God.

These, of course, have been exceptions. Youth in general is no more qualified for leadership than those in middle life or older. By far the great majority in every generation is mediocre, incapable of thinking for itself. Leaders are the phenomenal element in humanity.

Paul instructed Timothy, who was then a man perhaps forty years of age, to permit no one to despise his youth, but to continue with his preaching and his teaching without regard for the supposed limitations placed upon his ability and influence by his age. Education, differences in custom, variations in the racial mode of thinking have served to make the normal man of twenty-five as influential today as the normal man of forty was in the days of Timothy and Paul.

Youth should, therefore, be given a position in the ruling of the church. Youth's new thoughts, unbiased vision, and adaptability are quite as necessary to the successful operation of Christianity as the more stable ways of age.

The pendulum should not, however, be allowed to swing too far. The second extreme is as injurious as the first. The middle ground upon which every church and every organization of the governing or teaching class should settle requires a carefully maintained balance between the conservatism of age and the desire for new things by youth. The young should not be permitted to exercise their theories at the expense of the people any more within the church than within the Government. But youth is in its ascendancy.

YOUTH

Everywhere, in government, business, religion, education, and practically every field of endeavor, the demand is for youth. It is difficult for a man over forty to get a job in a factory. The age of retirement is being lowered from year to year until now a man is retired in quite early life. To care for this great body of people shelved in middle life insurance of various kinds is being set in operation by the Governments of the earth.

Why is this condition true? We hesitate to venture an answer in the little space we have at our disposal. One of the reasons for this condition is that adult life has not been able to adjust itself to the rapidly changing order of events. There are some who have kept abreast of the times and are still active. The world is moving with such rapidity and change that the passing generation stands aghast and wonders what it is all about. Only youth with dynamic strength, undimmed vision, and courage untouched is able to stand the pace.

It is not the cause so much we are interested in as the fact. The world is turning to youth; so is the church. Whether it is a wise course seems to matter little. Our duty is to recognize the conditions and equip our youth with a faith and a bulwark of Bible strength that will insure them the impregnableness necessary to bring them through these convulsions of world change unscathed and unharmed. We do not need to change our teachings, but we must adapt our approach and adjust ourselves to changed conditions. We must divest ourselves of many of the archaic ways of a score of years ago. Unless we possess a vision that will penetrate through and beyond these upheavals we are not going to be able to withstand. "Where there is no vision, the people perish."—Prov. 29:18. It is youth's heyday; give it your hand!

—C. E. Randall.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"The Lord is with you, while ye be with him; and if ye seek him, he will be found of you."

GOOD KING ASA

GOOD morning, girls and boys! By this time you are all enjoying vacation from school and finding the change very welcome, no doubt. In rest and work of a different kind you will gain new strength for your school duties in September. You want your bodies to grow fine and straight and strong this summer so that you can do your very best work in school. But a strong body without a keen mind would put you almost in the same class as the animals, wouldn't it? You want your minds to grow too.

You not only want a keen mind, but to develop four-square you want a truthful, clean, and an upright mind. In no way can you grow in that direction better or surer than by studying the Book of truth, the Bible. Be proud of the fact that you are a student of that Book. It marks you as a boy or a girl above the average.

This hot weather causes one to be a little lazy and rather opposed to very much activity. But that doesn't hinder one from getting enjoyment by lying in the shade reading about other people's activities. And if you crave excitement of that sort, you can't find it in a better place than among those old kings of Israel and Judah.

So get out your Bibles and turn with me to 2 Chronicles 14 and 15. The very name of the book tells you that you may expect a story on almost every page. And sure enough, you find one!

Asa, our king for today, is the second king over Judah. Rehoboam was the first, and he followed the Lord at first, but when his rule became established, he forgot God. Too bad, don't you think?

Can you get a picture of the land as Asa found it? Groves for the worship of images, altars and shrines for strange gods! And this in the land whose people had been fed by the hand of God, had been given the victory over their enemies, had been protected as no other people had ever been.

Look in Deuteronomy 5, verses 7, 8, and 9. See how God warned them not to follow after the nations around them in worshiping idols. But they obeyed only when they had a king who forced them to do so. And such kings were few and far between.

Asa had plenty of work to do in the forty-one years that he ruled, didn't he? He appointed men to go throughout the country and cut down the groves that held the idols, to break the idols, and tear down the altars. What reward did God give him for doing that? Verse 19 of 2 Chronicles 15 tells you.

But Asa didn't stop with taking away their idol worship. He gave the people something so much better that it can't be compared. He taught them how to worship God once more. For since the days of Solomon they had forgotten.

The people were glad, too, that Asa turned them away from their idols, which had no ears to hear their prayers, nor eyes to see their needs. They found God ready to listen, even though they had sinned so greatly, as He is yet today.

Aren't you glad you live in a Christian land, with Christian parents and friends to love you and help you? Imagine the poor boys and girls of heathen lands kneeling before an idol which cannot hear. But if we do not follow God we are even worse than they, because we have the opportunity.

If you want to find out how Asa felt about his own mother's idol, read verse 16. That took a lot of courage and strong purpose, but Asa knew he was right. God rewarded all his efforts.

The king had much work to do in the temple also. Because of their great value, many of the treasures and furnishings in the house of God had been carried off by the enemy when Rehoboam was king. It must have been a great joy to Asa to restore it to the original beauty that Solomon had built into it.

As we study these Old Testament heroes who tried to lead the people back to God, we say,

"Glory to the heroes,
Who in the days of old
Trod the path of duty,
Faithful, wise, and bold,
For the right unflinching,
Strong the weak to save,
Warriors all and freemen,
Fighting for the slave.

"So we sing the story
Of the brave and true,
Till among the heroes
We are heroes, too;
Loyal to our Captain
Like the men of yore,
Marching with the heroes
Onward, evermore."

The Sunday School Lesson

FROM TRUTH SEEKERS' QUARTERLY

LESSON 2. — July 8, 1934

ASA RELIES ON GOD

2 Chronicles 14 to 16

Devotional Reading: Psalm 27:1-5

GOLDEN TEXT

The Lord is my helper, and I will not fear what man shall do unto me.—
Hebrews 13:6.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic: Asa Relies on God.

Aim: Reliance on God is never misplaced.

Basic Truth: "The Lord God is a sun and shield: the Lord will give grace and glory: no good thing will he withhold from them that walk uprightly."—Psa. 84:11.

I. God Encourages the Faithful. (2 Chron. 15:1-7.) All men, however self-reliant and successful they may be, need encouragement to carry on their tasks. Asa the king was no exception to this rule. He had proved faithful to God and God graciously indicated His approval. In His expression of commendation the Lord took occasion to impress upon Asa that the victory he had won was due to the fact that God was with him. "God and one make a majority." "He that dwelleth in the secret place of the most High shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty."—Psa. 91:1. How assuring it is to know that all who labor for the Lord will be bountifully rewarded!

II. Strength Born of Assurance. (V. 8.) The message of encouragement sent by Jehovah to Asa gave the king increased strength and zeal to press forward in his work of eradicating idolatry from his realm. A little encouragement given at the right time will accomplish wonders in the work of the church today. To give to the pastor, the Sunday school superintendent, and the Berean leader the help of your presence at every service will do much to stimulate each of them to go forward more energetically in the task each has to perform.

III. An Agreement With the Lord. (Vv. 9-12.) To bring together into one united body the diversified elements which had assembled at Jerusalem must have been a difficult task. But Asa was greatly aided in his efforts by the unity of purpose that actuated them all. No matter who they were, Jews, Benjamites, Ephraimites, Manassehites, or the "strangers" who had joined Asa, they were all seeking to get back to God. That was their one and only purpose, and it was that purpose that bound them together. The church or the Sunday school that stands for a definite thing, united in purpose, in zeal, and in love, can accomplish splendid things. Let us make an agreement with each other to seek the Lord with all our hearts.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

The Lord

- is with you only when you are with Him;
- can always be found when we seek Him;
- never forsakes us unless we forsake Him.

Seeking the Lord. It is not hard or difficult to find the Lord. Really, He has made it easy. He has told us just what to do, how to do it, and when to do it, and if we honestly desire to find the Lord, we will obey Him.

The reason more people don't find the Lord is plain and can be simply stated: "They don't want to." As we approach the time of the Lord's return, there will be less seeking after Him. Prophecy clearly points out that sin will increase and true faith decrease. Oftentimes people in trouble turn to the Lord. Israel did this under Asa's reign and God was ready to forgive and receive them. One shouldn't wait until trouble besets him to seek the Lord, but it is better then than never.

Forsaking the Lord. God never forsakes an individual or nation until they forsake Him. A wonderful truth is expressed in the statement: "If ye forsake him, he will forsake you." Our own actions determine His attitude toward us. It might be well to direct attention to ways by which we do forsake the Lord. The foremost way is probably forsaking the Word which reveals the Lord. Next in import is forsaking the place of worship where we can meet the Lord. When these two things take place, a third follows—forsaking the ideals and practices which Christianity embraces and requires.—C. E. R.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"The Lord is my helper, and I will not fear what man shall do unto me."—Heb. 13:6.

Asa was known as "a good king" because Israel had fallen away from God to follow after the ways of other nations, and when Asa became king he succeeded in bringing them back to worship and rely on the true God. Asa had the promise that God would be with him if he would seek God, so he sought God not for himself but for his people, Judah and Benjamin. Asa could truly say, "The Lord is my helper," and for that reason, he need not fear what man did.

In olden times God said to Jacob, "I am with thee, . . . I will not leave thee." God is the same today as He was yesterday and in Jacob's time and I believe He is with His children, the true Christians, today just as much as He was with Jacob, for the true Christian does rely on the Father and can joyfully say, "The Lord is my helper, and I will not fear what man shall do unto me."

—L. A. R.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULTS

The Courage of Conviction

God has respect for one who has courage of his convictions. Saul thought he was serving God when he persecuted the early church. God led him to the light and he became the Apostle to the Gentiles. He was fervent in all that he did. The Spirit told John to write to the church of the Laodiceans "these things": "I know thy works, that thou art neither cold nor hot: I would thou wert cold or hot. So then because thou art lukewarm, and neither cold nor hot, I will spue thee out out my mouth."—Rev. 3:15, 16. God can use anyone who has courage to stand for what he thinks is right. Courage of conviction should not be confused with stubbornness, hatred, or prejudice. These last three never yield to truth, reason, or justice.

The person who wishes to be right will always seek for the right: thus God can use him. The person who will not bother to ally himself definitely on one side or the other is usually either indifferent or unable to make a decision. God wants a person of conscientious, intelligent action. Of course the courage of action which is pleasing to God must result from a knowledge of God and His commands. Courage of conviction is analogous to faith and works. Because of courage of conviction, "Moses, when he was come to years, refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter; choosing rather to suffer affliction with the people of God, than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season" (Heb. 11:24, 25).

We should be sure we are right, than stand on it. One of our statesmen said that he would rather be right than President. Moses chose to be right rather than ruler in Egypt. Daniel and his three companions made similar stands and their courage of conviction brought them blessing.—H. A. S.

PRIMARY

Topic: We Visit King Asa.

We're going to visit a king today. Here we go. Now we're in Jerusalem. Whom are we going to see here? King Asa. But the king is not here. He has been away fighting with the Ethiopians.

Perhaps if we start on, we may meet him. Yes, here he comes now. He's talking to some man. Oh, now I know who it is! It's Azariah, another prophet.

Azariah seems to be doing the talking. "Now King Asa," says Azariah, "your people must not worship idols. God has taken good care of you and your people, but if you worship idols, He will not do so longer."

Now I wonder what King Asa is going to do. He's having all those idols torn down. We'll have to hurry, for he's determined to have all the idols in the land of Judah torn down. Over into the land of Ephraim he goes tearing them down. Not one will he leave standing.

Back to Jerusalem now. Why all the oxen and sheep? Oh! They're for the worship King Asa is preparing. You know they are going to worship God now, and they do it by offering the animals as burnt sacrifices.

How happy the people look now. Yes, much happier than when they were worshipping idols.

Don't forget to put another dot on your road.—V. C. T.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CONFERENCE DATES

Indiana Bible School and Conference at North Salem Church July 5 to 15
Michigan Conference at Dutton, July 6 to 10
Illinois Bible School and Conference at Oregon, July 31 to Aug. 12
General Conference at Oregon,
Illinois, July 31 to Aug. 12
Nebraska Conference at Holbrook August 19 to 26
Iowa Conference at Waterloo,
Aug. 21 to 26

MICHIGAN CONFERENCE

The Michigan Conference of the Church of God will be held this year on the old stamping ground at Dutton, beginning July 6 and continuing over Sunday and ending Tuesday evening, July 10.

Bro. S. J. Lindsay of Arizona will be the speaker, which assures a message of extraordinary richness. It is Bro. Lindsay's wish to again meet all his friends and brethren in Michigan, and for his sake as well as for the conference, we urge everyone to be present.

A picnic dinner will be in order on Sunday, and entertainment will be provided for everyone who will come.

Let us not pass up this opportunity for one more spiritual treat. Who knows, it may be the last one.

L. Bridegam, Secretary.

NEBRASKA CONFERENCE

The annual Nebraska Conference of the Church of God will convene at Holbrook from August 19 to 26 inclusive. There will be Bible classes during the day with preaching services each evening. The visiting minister this year will be F. L. Austin of Chicago. Local leaders will assist with the meeting. We invite all who can to join us in this week of worship.

Carol Wilson, Secretary.

BLANCHARD, MICHIGAN

On Sunday morning, July 1, we are to meet at the First Lake, Six Lakes, for our regular Wyman Gospel Mission service. The morning services are to be followed by a baptismal service and basket dinner. Communion will be held in the afternoon. Everyone in the vicinity is cordially invited to be present.

C. A. Smead, Pastor.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

Sunday school at the schoolhouse is not so easy to handle, but we are getting along very nicely and working hard to repair fire damage as soon as possible. We plan to have a Rededication Service July 22 and hope to have everything spic and span and freshly painted before that.

The Board is also trying to arrange some special meetings and a spiritual uplift week leading up to that Sunday. Further announcement will be made when plans are completed.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

You can still get The Herald sent to any address for fifteen weeks for fifty cents. This would bring the complete reports of the various major conferences and Bible schools. Why not send in a list of new names?

MISSIONARY WORK

Dear Brethren and Sisters in Christ:

Do you believe in missionary work, in sending the gospel message to those in darkness, "to open their eyes, and to turn them from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto God, that they may receive forgiveness of sins, and inheritance among them which are sanctified by faith that is in me" (Acts 26:18)? Do you believe that the "Lord ordained that they which preach the gospel should live of the gospel" (1 Cor. 9:14)?

There is an opportunity for the writer to do real missionary work for the Master, but I cannot do it alone, and for this reason I am making an earnest appeal to you, and I sincerely pray that you will carefully consider it and respond accordingly as God has blessed you. I begin a series of meetings near Glen Rose, Texas, June 22, over the first Sunday in July. I have several more calls for meetings in Texas.

I have no salary, no fund from which to draw expenses for getting to and from these meetings and caring for my family while away, and hence I come revealing the condition to you, knowing that your love for the truth will inspire you with a desire to help me bear the burden by keeping me in the gospel service. I desire no salary, I ask for no salary. Bros. Marsh and Lindsay will vouch for the writer's honesty and ability.

The appeal is now before you, and if you consider it worth while, if you sincerely wish to contribute of your means, a report will be sent to The Restitution Herald and Messenger of Truth showing what has been received. I am giving my address below, and earnestly request an early reply. No matter how small your offering may be, it will help toward carrying the gospel to those who need its comforting influence. If you are unable to send any help, by all means send me a letter promising me your prayers in the work for the Master.

T. A. Drinkard,
Handley, Texas.

DUTTON, MICHIGAN

The church at Dutton, Mich., is one of the oldest organizations of the denomination in the state. For many years the work was successfully carried on by Bro. and Sr. Benjamin Woodward, and after the former's death Sr. Woodward continued to bear the responsibility faithfully as long as her strength permitted.

Thereafter for a few years the work was suspended, but during the past year or more it has been wonderfully revived and is again pressing forward most encouragingly.

On Children's Day the church was filled to its capacity and some were turned away for lack of room, and on Father's Day another splendid audience assembled, at which time the speaker for the occasion, together with special music, was provided by the young people.

The fact that there are sufficient young people to conduct such a program is surely encouraging.

HERALD RECEIPTS

J. E. Hammond; A. E. Hoskins (for another); Jessie W. Donaldson; Hannah Auld; Mrs. Irvin Ferguson; Mrs. J. H. Andrews; J. E. Herriott; William M. Huffer; J. W. Macallister; F. F. Ackeborg.

RIPLEY, ILLINOIS

We are glad to report that Bro. C. E. Lapp has accepted this pastorate for another year.

We had great cause to rejoice Sunday, June 17, when four young ladies accepted Jesus and were baptized into His name. Their names and addresses are as follows: Mrs. Dwight Pestle, Maxine Pestle, Katherine Pestle, all of Good Hope, Ill.; and Kathleen Lindsay, Ripley, Ill. We pray the Father's blessing may rest upon them.

We deeply regret the fact that we are soon to lose Bro. William Lindsay and family from our congregation. They are moving to Ke-wanee, Ill., their former home. Several other families have moved away, making a decrease in our attendance, but still we feel we have been blessed.

Our midweek prayer service continues to be of interest. We now are studying the book of Isaiah.

May the Father's care be over us as we labor in His name.

Ednah Cooper, Sec.

CHILDREN'S DAY AT KOKOMO

The Children's Day Program Committee, Sr. Martha Parker, Sr. Berniece Shaw, and Sr. Alice Gillem, and their little helpers, are to be congratulated on their excellent program given Sunday evening, June 17, at the Kokomo, Ind., Church of God. The program was opened by the choir, Scripture reading by Sr. Edith Collins, the Lord's Prayer by the children, followed by recitations, songs, dialogues, drills, instrumental solos, and duets.

The church was well decorated with roses and other flowers of the season. The entire program was carried out by the children, who entertained the building well filled by adults. Franklin Nay gave the Berean benediction.

We are justly proud of our little folks. While we have not the largest Sunday school, we know that if our Lord carries there will be workers to carry on the work when the labor of the older ones of today is ended.

D. G. Harvey.

DIXON, ILLINOIS

On Sunday evening, June 17, Children's Day was observed in the Dixon church by the presentation of the "King's Service" by the younger members of our Sunday school. The choruses were sung by the junior choir. Mary Jane Eckert sang a solo accompanied by the choir, and Elizabeth Ford and Dale Reis sang a duet. Recitations and exercises were given by the smaller members. A sweet closing song was sung by two of our junior girls, Jean Wagner and Opal Henley; we hope we may hear them often in the future. A good audience was present and appreciated the inspiring service. Much credit is due to the committee in charge, and God will reward their efforts.

Wednesday evening, after the Berean service, a short social time was enjoyed in the church basement in honor of Alice Starkey, Dale Reis, and Robert Myers. Alice is going to Chicago to secure employment, and Dale and Robert are going to take positions in one of the Walgreen stores. We will greatly miss these young people. God guide them and keep them faithful to the truth is our prayer.

Our annual Sunday school picnic was held at Lawrence Park in Sterling, Ill., June 21. We were pleased to have Bro. and Sr. Shirley of Rock Falls, Ill., with us. There were about seventy in attendance. It was a beautiful day and all enjoyed the beauties of nature given us by our heavenly Father.

We are sorry to report that Mrs. Fred Seymour of Tampico, Ill., is ill. Let us remember her in our prayers.

Elizabeth Ford, Secretary.

SAMUEL V. GRIFFITH

Samuel V. Griffith, the son of Samuel and Charlotte (Wiley) Griffith, was born in Wells County, Ind., October 30, 1849. His entire life was spent in the township in which he was born. He died May 21, 1934.

He was married to Margaret E. Runkle on November 8, 1873. They commenced house-keeping on the same farm in a log cabin, both passing away where they lived continuously during their lives. To them were born five children, with all but one growing to adulthood. The children are: Mrs. Ida M. Skinner, Bridgeport, Ill.; Clarence and Clifford, and Mrs. Charlotte M. Furnish, Wells County, Ind.; Eva E., who died February 13, 1878. There are also thirteen grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren; one brother, Columbus H. of Dillman, Ind.; two sisters, Nancy E. Schmidt of Hartford City, Ind., and Martha V. Kirkpatrick of Roll, Ind.

Mr. Griffith had been a member of the Church of God at Roll for many years. He was a devout member and a true believer in the faith. In his passing the community loses a respected and trustworthy friend and neighbor.

I have been intimately acquainted with Bro. Griffith for many years, and the above statement written by a friend who knew him well is true in every detail. Bro. Griffith was a quiet man, but firm, sincere, and true in all his ways—firm and sincere in his religious convictions, and true, honest, and upright in his dealings with others. We loved him while he lived, and we mourn and miss him now. He sleeps in Jesus.

L. E. Conner.

LONG - ANDREWS

A wedding of interest to many readers of The Herald was solemnized by the writer on June 5 at the home of Mrs. Alice Andrews of Hastings, Neb., when her daughter Minnie became the bride of Bro. Clyde Long of Cambridge, Neb.

Mrs. Long was formerly of Holbrook but has been teaching school near Hastings for the past few years. Bro. Clyde Long is a member of the Church of God at Holbrook and has been farming near Cambridge, where he and his wife will make their home.

Congratulations and best wishes of their many friends go with them in their life together.

Grover Gordon.

OVER THE TOP!

By the blessing of God you have carried us to the top of the ladder with a generous surplus! It is surely a splendid record under existing conditions, and indicates that the brotherhood is as anxious as is the Executive Board to get the Institution out from under its heavy obligation to the defunct bank in this city. The Manager is already negotiating with the receiver of the bank and we trust that soon he will be able to make a report of progress. Before settlement can be made, however, unpaid pledges must be received so that he may have the actual cash in hand to pay off the obligation when the time for such payment arrives. We are sure the brethren will do their best to meet this requirement in time, as they have assisted us so faithfully.

SPECIAL INDEBTEDNESS FUND

Previously reported received	$1669.26
Elizabeth Ford	2.00
Pearl Zechiel	1.00
Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Sheets	12.50
H. S. and A. J. Lasher	10.00
Eva H. M. Fletcher	1.59
Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Grubbs	2.00
Mr. and Mrs. William M. Huffer	3.00
Ontario	2.00
Total received	$1703.35
Pledges previously reported	295.80
James and Pauline E. Prime (pledge)	25.00

Total pledges and contributions $2024.15

BETWEEN YOU AND ME—

We wonder how many of those who so fervently prayed for rain in the Middle West are now pouring out their hearts with equal fervency in thanksgiving that their prayers have been answered?

The Restitution Herald appreciates a copy of "What of the Night?" by Arthur I. Brown, an excellent little work on present-day conditions in the light of prophecy. The volume was sent by Jesse Harrold of Blythedale, Mo. A brief review of the book may be given later.

The Sixtieth State Conference of the Church of God in Minnesota is reported briefly as a "splendid" meeting, and F. L. Austin, the "Back-to-the-Bible" evangelist, is said to be rendering yeoman service to produce this result.

Sr. S. S. Claussen of the Oregon, Ill., church still needs the prayers of the brotherhood everywhere that she may recover from the very painful disease from which she suffers and which the best of physicians seem so slow in counteracting.

Bro. and Sr. Frederick Claussen, the former for several years employed in our print shop, left last week for a short visit at Sr. Claussen's former home in Indiana.

Nearer, still nearer, comes the date of the General Conference at Oregon! Pray and work and plan for its success. And of course you intend to be there in person to help in answering your own prayers!

You can still get The Herald sent to any address for fifteen weeks for fifty cents. This would bring the complete reports of the various major conferences and Bible schools. Why not send in a list of new names?

The office is indebted to Bro. R. H. Judd of Toronto, Canada, for a beautifully inscribed motto which now hangs before the editorial desk, bearing this text: "Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of mercies and the God of all comfort." The motto is painted on cloth in attractively blended colors.

The ladies of the Oregon church, accompanied by several husbands (just to see that the work was well done), spent last Friday preparing the church for your reception at the General Conference. This is a part of the service the local congregation gladly renders that you may thoroughly enjoy your ten days' stay among them.

A reception committee consisting of uncles, aunts, a cousin, and a grandmother, welcomed Master Wesley Carter Somers on his arrival June 23, 1934, in Rockford, Ill. The young gentleman has decided to make his home for a time with Bro. and Sr. Gayle Somers of that city, and no doubt will grow up to maintain the family tradition of faithfulness to God and church.

Next Sunday, July 1, Bro. S. J. Lindsay will fill the pulpit of Pastor Harvey U. Krogh, Jr., at the Plum River (Ill.) church, and in the evening will preach in the Methodist Church at Pearl City by invitation of the minister, who was a public school teacher while Bro. Lindsay was Assistant County Superintendent of Schools in the same county.

Sr. T. M. Savage, widow of the late beloved minister of Waite Park, Minn., who has been ill since her husband's death, was operated upon June 18. The nature of the operation is not given, but we are assured that she is recovering nicely from its effects. Let us pray for her complete and speedy recovery.

We've climbed
the Ladder
to the Top
!

$2000
$1900
$1800
$1700
$1600
$1500
$1400
$1300
$1200
$1100
$1000
$900
$800
$700
$600
$500
$400
$300
$200
$100

CHRIST'S PROMISE OF PARADISE

CHRIST'S words to the dying thief are regarded as indisputable evidence that He and the malefactor were together, in a separate state of existence, on the very day they died. "Verily, I say unto thee, To day shalt thou be with me in paradise." Now where is Paradise? Paul was once "caught away" in vision to it. In our version the word is translated "caught up," but it is precisely the same word as that used in the Acts, where we read that "the Spirit of the Lord caught away Philip, that the eunuch saw him no more." In Revelation 2:7 Jesus says: "To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the tree of life, which is in the midst of the paradise of God." And in verse 26 of the same chapter, He promises to give the same class (those who overcome) "power over the nations." As the nations are upon the earth, it is but reasonable to conclude that Paradise will be upon the earth also, since they that are to rule over the one are to eat of the tree of life in the midst of the other.

The Scriptures of the prophets contain many allusions to the changes by which certain parts of the earth's surface will be transformed, in the age to come, and made verdant and beautiful beyond comparison with anything now to be seen. "The Lord shall comfort Zion: he will comfort all her waste places; and he will make her wilderness like Eden, and her desert like the garden of the Lord; joy and gladness shall be found therein, thanksgiving, and the voice of melody."—Isa. 51:3. If Jehovah does this to Zion, then the whole region will be indeed and of a truth "the paradise of God." There was certainly no such Paradise at the time when Jesus spoke those words to the dying malefactor. But can we doubt that His promise had relation to the happy state of things described in the language quoted from Isaiah? "Lord, remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom." The man's request was for a future good—not for any of which there was any immediate prospect. And Jesus told him that it should be granted. The day which the malefactor had in his mind was the day on which he should be with Christ in the Paradise of God.

It has been frequently pointed out that there is an instructive use of the word seemeron, here translated "to day," in the Septuagint Version of Deuteronomy 9:1, "Hear, O Israel: Thou art to pass over Jordan this day." As a matter of fact the passage of the Jordan was accomplished some two months after Moses spoke those words. The Greek translators also rendered by the same word the statement contained in Psalm 2:7: "Thou art my Son; this day have I begotten thee"—a declaration which Paul distinctly applied to the resurrection of Christ, which did not take place for centuries after. The word, therefore, does not necessarily refer to the actual day of twenty-four hours which may be current at the time it is used; but rather to the day or period connected with the particular event in relation to which it is employed. In the case we are considering, the event was the coming of Christ in His kingdom. This was the subject on which both He and the malefactor were thinking; and it is as though Jesus said to him, "This day, which we both anticipate, thou shalt be with me in Paradise." For Paradise will be a glorious fact in the earth when He comes to establish His kingdom, and to restore the desolations of many generations.

As a matter of fact Jesus was not in Paradise with the thief on the day He spoke. Paul says He died and was buried. And so far was He from being in Paradise on that day that Peter says His soul was in hell between His burial and His resurrection. "Thou wilt not leave my soul in hell." And Dr. Eadie says: "It is thus obvious that the argument based upon the idea that Christ's soul went to sheol, and His body to the grave, has no foundation. The Hebrew does not warrant this distinction. Christ's soul, in such an idiom, is His entire person. Now what is meant by sheol? It is a place where corruption is seen—the region of the dead. So the apostles understood it. Though Messiah was to die, death's power over Him was to be very limited. He was not to be abandoned to His dark dominion. His body was to be so short a time in the grave as not to suffer the ordinary process of decomposition. There is no scriptural warrant for the current conceptions of future life. All texts and all arguments that can with the least plausibility be used in their support, turn out when fairly tested to be moldering props. The only remedy for death is resurrection. Since by man came the one, by man has come also the other; and there is not a word in the whole Bible to deprive either of these great facts of its tremendous significance."—Robert Ashcroft in The Scriptures Opened; selected by R. A. Curtis.

—0—

FOR THEIR SOULS? HOW QUAIN'T!

AN exchange tells of the church worker who asked a housewife for some facts about the methods used in rearing her children. The mother declared that they were being brought up right, because—"I've had their tonsils out and they see a dentist every six months. They are given spinach and orange juice. On Monday they go to Scouts and Guides meetings; Tuesday they have music lessons; Wednesday, dancing; Thursday, elocution; Friday they go to pictures; Saturday they play with friends; Sunday they go out in the car for fresh air."

"But," asked the worker gently, "what do you do for their souls?" She was answered by an amused laugh and the words, "For their souls? How quaint!"

Well, it may be quaint, but every little while some statistician pokes around in the records and brings up figures which prove past question that the "quaint" custom of looking after the souls of the children, taking them to church and Sunday school, having family prayers, and the like, has the "quaint" result of keeping these thus trained out of reformatories and jails.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 23

OREGON, ILLINOIS, JULY 3, 1934

NUMBER 40

Does Christ's Coming Interest You?

A BISHOP of one of the leading Protestant denominations is reported to have delivered himself of the following remarks concerning the present conflict going on among churches:

"It is not correct to refer to the second coming. Christ has come often. We have no interest in the premillennial controversy now raging among some denominations which teach the imminent, visible second coming of our Lord in the clouds."

It is a frequent thing for men to attempt to cut the Gordian knot of a problem by assuming the attitude that the matter is really not worthy of discussion, and often such a procedure is altogether justified. But in this case the matter cannot be disposed of so lightly, nor can we feel able to accept the one alleged statement of fact; namely, that "Christ has come often." To begin with, the religious controversy now going on is of such great proportions and its outcome will so definitely affect the religious conceptions of Christians that to take no interest in the matter is to confess that what one believes is of no vital importance.

If we accept the Modernist's side of the case, we shall have an entirely different philosophy of life than if we adhere to the Fundamentalist's position. For if we believe, as do the Liberals, that Christ's coming is not near and that when He finally does come it will not be in a sudden manner to mete out judgment but rather in some spiritual, airy fashion, we may quiet our consciences with the opiate that there is plenty of time in which to reform. We shall feel no need of help from a supernatural source, for Liberalism teaches that we possess inherent powers sufficient to raise us up to perfection.

But if we accept the conservative Fundamentalist position, our whole conception of the future is altogether changed. We look ahead to a day when Christ, coming as a judge of the quick and the dead, will return to this earth suddenly, to cut off evil men and to change the present order of things. Thus the promptings of our conscience will receive, not an opiate, but an impetus from our mental convictions of the nature of future events. We shall realize that, according to the orthodox doctrine of the sinfulness of man, we cannot hope to reform of ourselves but must obtain help from God.

The effect upon even the most hardened sinner of the preaching of the Fundamentalist doctrine is well illustrated in the record of Paul's address before the Roman governor, Felix. For, as Paul "reasoned of righteousness, temperance, and judgment to come, Felix trembled" (Acts 24:25). The second coming of Christ and the attendant judgment were ever favorite subjects of Paul in his various discourses; and as the secret of any man's power to change men's conceptions and to alter the course of history must lie primarily and ultimately in the kind of message he bears, behold what wonders were accomplished by one lone man who went forth armed with right doctrines—the Fundamentalist doctrines!

The modern churchman says: "It is not correct to refer to the second coming of Christ," because "Christ has come often," and finally that he has no "interest" in the matter. Such expressions sound strangely different from those of the great Apostle Paul, who said, "So Christ was once offered to bear the sins of many; and unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation."—Heb. 9:28. Paul knew nothing of the modern doctrine that Christ has appeared many times. He knew only of the first coming of Christ to bear our sins on Calvary and of the "second" coming to bring salvation. He held no vague picture in his mind as to how this "second" coming would take place. To the Thessalonians he wrote: "The Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first: then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord."—1 Thess. 4:16, 17.

Many other New Testament scriptures could be given sustaining the text just quoted. To the one willing to take the Bible as his guide, there will be no airy theories about the coming of Christ. He will see clearly that the "Lord himself," not some spiritualized personification of Him, will come from heaven, and that every eye will witness the sight (Rev. 1:7). And, what is most important of all, as a man gives careful study to the various prophecies that deal with the second coming of Christ, he is brought to the conclusion that we are now living in the time when that great event is near "even at (Please turn to Back Page)

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879.

G. Eldred Marsh, Editor

Two Dollars per Year

Paul C. Johnson, Associate Editor

"According to thy name, O God, so is thy praise unto the ends of the earth: thy right hand is full of righteousness."—Psalm 48:10.

A Patriot's Prayer

GOD of our fathers, Thou who hast given us this fair and fruitful land to call our own, as we approach the birthday of our nation we lift our hearts in gratitude unto Thee, the Author of all good, for the blessings we enjoy, for the peace that prevails, for the liberty we have, for the material wealth we possess. Bless, we pray Thee, those who have authority over us as a people in these trying times. Help us to be patient with their mistakes and shortcomings, remembering that they are but human like ourselves. Continue Thou thus with us until our beloved nation, together with all others, is brought forever under the dominion of Jesus Christ. Amen.

—0—

OUR OPPORTUNITY

UNDER "Abreast of the Times" in this issue appears a resume of Roger W. Babson's report on Protestant church attendance which indicates that the larger proportion of the pews in the Congregational churches of the country are unoccupied at the Sunday services. It is to be observed that no account is taken of evening services, due no doubt to the fact that few churches attempt to hold more than one period of worship on Sunday.

This report should be a source of encouragement to many of our own pastors and evangelists. Not that they should feel elated that other churches are apparently losing their hold on popular interest! Far from it. But many of our own ministers, both those engaged in evangelistic work and in pastoral activities, are reporting increased attendance and a deepened interest shown by members of other denominations in the teaching of the Church of God. And this it is, when considered in the light of the experience of others, that should cause us to thank God in all humility for the success that is attending our efforts.

Not only should we be deeply appreciative of the blessing we are receiving in increased attendance in many localities in these days, but we should not be neglectful of the opportunity this situation affords us for the spreading of the gospel, which alone can save men and women from sin. Every effort should be devoted, every power brought to bear, to broaden the scope of our evangelistic work, local, state, and national.

People are "hungering and thirsting" for the comfort and assurance which the Bible alone can provide, and will come, listen attentively, and heed that joyful message of a coming Savior and the reality of a future life by a resurrection from the dead, if these splendid and appealing truths are rightly presented.

The time for theological bickerings is in the past. No one will say evil against us, no one will seek to combat us in these days, when we earnestly and kindly present "the truth as it is in Jesus" to a dying world. Even "rigid" doctrinal standards will not be resented but rather approved by the more spiritual people of all denominations who realize that looseness of doctrine leads to looseness of morals as well.

The recommendation of Mr. Babson, that sermons must be "vitalized," should not be overlooked. Regardless of the truth we utter, regardless of how amply we may be able to support it by the Bible, the truth must be presented in an attractive form to appeal to the modern educated mind. We can no longer expect men and women to flock to our churches to listen to dry arguments coldly given in a combative and antagonistic manner.

The Church of God preacher who would reap the full benefit of the opportunity that now lies before us must spend more time in his study than ever before. He must give no less attention to his Bible study than he has in the past, but a great deal more attention to outside reading than was necessary in years gone by. He must know what his hearers themselves are reading, what they are thinking about, what conclusions they are reaching, regarding the trend of world events. And having learned all this he must illuminate and drive home into the mind of his audience the saving truth of the Bible by the use of terms and illustrations with which they are familiar. He must be able to bring the testimony of the world's great minds to bear on the fulfillment of prophecy, on the truth of the Bible, and on the importance of right living before God and man, if he would capture the attention, hold the interest, and convert the minds and hearts of those who are leaving the pews of other churches to fill our own!

Christ is coming! The time for labor is short, the work yet to be accomplished enormous; and the laborers are few! Let us reconsecrate every effort and every talent to the task of winning men and women for God and truth and eternal life through Christ Jesus our Lord!

Why Not Be Satisfied?

By D. G. Harvey

"A little that a righteous man hath is better than the riches of many wicked."—Psalm 37:16.

HOW true ring the words of our text. It has been our privilege to meet many of both classes referred to, but it is the poor in this world's goods, yet rich in faith, that we wish to consider at this time. Those content with their lot in life, who can say with the wise man, "Remove far from me vanity and lies: give me neither poverty nor riches; feed me with food convenient for me."—Prov. 30:8. When the just and righteous man learns to trust the Giver of every good and perfect gift (James 1:17) for all his needs; when he remembers that it is his privilege to cast all his cares upon God, "for he careth for you" (1 Peter 5:7), then comes that great contentment and peace, a great gift of our heavenly Father. "And the peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus."—Phil. 4:7.

How often we have a father, after offering thanks for the wonderful blessings of this life, "our daily bread," start the conversation during the meal with, "Well, help yourself, folks. We ain't got much. Mandy, this is the toughest steak I ever saw."

And Mandy will reply, "I know, Pa; and them potatoes are awful strong."

What is wrong here? Is God deaf at such times? Does He hear our thanks, and not our complaints? Why not be satisfied?

Often we hear church members bemoan the fact that they have not the wealth or the high-powered motor cars of the modern gangster. Then is a good time to read that wonderful thirty-seventh Psalm of David starting with: "Fret not thyself because of evildoers, neither be thou envious against the workers of iniquity." Would you exchange your peace of mind, your privilege of lying down for a night's rest in peace, for that constant fear, that unrest of the notorious John Dillinger of Indiana? He has fine cars, yes; but he has not one moment of peace. Always on the dodge, he must sleep with his guns at hand. Could you enjoy wealth at such a cost? Some day he will slip. "For they shall soon be cut down like the grass, and wither as the green herb."—Psalm 37:2.

But perhaps you do not envy the bandit his unlawful, ill-gotten gain. But your eye is turned to the wealthy captain of industry, who in a few years amassed millions in an honest, at least legal, manner. But when you feel the envy in your heart read James 5:1-5: "Go to now, ye rich men, weep and howl for your miseries that shall come upon you. Your riches are corrupted . . . Ye have heaped treasure together for the last days. Behold, the hire of the labourers who have reaped down your fields, which is of you kept back by fraud, crieth . . . Ye have lived in pleasure on the earth, and been wanton; ye have nourished your hearts, as in a day of slaughter." Is there comfort and peace in great riches? No, there is the constant fear of losses, and the ever-increasing greed for gain driving on and on until the love of money has absorbed the love of family, friends, and fellow men; until there is love of self, but no love for God. "For the love of money is the root of all evil: which while some coveted after, they have erred from the faith, and pierced themselves through with many sorrows."—1 Tim. 6:10. "The rich man is wise in his own conceit."—Prov. 28:11. It is not our intention to condemn any who have wealth, but to warn against the danger of gold becoming a god. "A faithful man shall abound with blessings: but he that maketh haste to be rich shall not be innocent."—Prov. 28:20.

Let us, then, be satisfied, content with our lot. There are many examples found among the heroes of the Bible. When Abraham met Melchizedek and paid tithes, the king of Sodom offered him much wealth in goods. But Abraham's answer was: "I have lift up mine hand unto the Lord, the most high God, the possessor of heaven and earth, that I will not take from a thread even to a shoelatchet, and that I will not take any thing that is thine, lest thou shouldest say, I have made Abram rich."—Gen. 14:22, 23. When David was in trouble he fled to God, putting his trust in Him, saying, "Preserve me, O God: for in thee do I put my trust. . . The Lord is the portion of mine inheritance and of mine cup: thou maintain—
Please turn to Page Nine

Hand in Hand

My littl'st lad oft walks with me
As down the street I go,
And laughs with me in childish glee,
His boyish eyes aglow.
He tries to keep his step with mine,
He tries to understand,
But now and then this laddie fine
Says, "Daddy, hold my hand!"

The littl'st lad looks up to me
With all a small boy's trust;
I know that he thinks he can see
In me a father just.
And so he trudges by my side
In boyish joy so grand,
Eyes opened wide, his greatest pride
To hold me by the hand.

O lad of mine, may I prove true
To all you think of me;
May I so do to show to you
What I hope you will be.
As your small hand I warmly clasp
Along life's earthly strand,
So let me but reach up and grasp
The heavenly Father's hand.

Will M. Maupin; selected by N. B. Brown.

Threefold Christianity

By Norman John MacLeod

TO the preacher there is always one great question: What shall I preach? If I preach practical Christianity certain members of the congregation will become disgusted and say that I am afraid to preach the "gospel." They say that you can go to any of the modern churches and hear that sort of thing, that every preacher of the larger denominations dwells on morals, and practical things. Those there are likewise who will say that they are tired of that kind of preaching; that they would like "strong meat"; that the moral things are all right for those who are weak in the faith; that the one who has come into Christ no longer needs practical teachings, but needs the speculative prophecies in order to keep up interest in the ever-fresh gospel of God.

To please the prejudice of his congregation (at least so he thinks) the preacher turns to a prophetic theme. He discusses the intricacies of the various symbols used and develops their values in the light of political, social, and religious happenings of the day. He spreads before his audience the state of affairs in the world, and of the horrors of war and depression and turmoil that are to come before the "great and terrible day of the Lord." He dwells upon the lack of faith that prevails at the present; of the return of Israel; of the gathering of the nations to that last great battle of the time of the end. To his astonishment a large part of his audience remains unmoved. They think that his intricate reasoning is wonderful, that his arguments cannot be refuted, that his style of delivery is perfect, but that somehow the message of the gospel has been left out.

In despair the preacher turns to the "doctrinal" features of the faith of Jesus Christ. He expounds the nature of man, the hope of eternal life, and the great plan of salvation. The new ones in his audience give good attention, for it is new to them; the polite ones among the old-timers applaud with their looks between naps. The older ones among his hearers feel perfectly safe in going to sleep, for they know that the preacher's "orthodoxy" is unquestioned. The firm ground of faith in God and the promises to Abraham they know will be developed with complete accuracy and adherence to the truth.

So goes the old, old story! No matter upon what theme the preacher speaks there will be some who will be interested, some who will be bored. But the successful preacher wishes to speak a "word in season" to the majority of his congregation. What is he to do? Shall he talk of his travels in the Orient or Europe (that is, providing he has traveled); shall he review the latest novel; or shall he deliver innocuous discourses that mean very little, if anything, dodging the truth at every point? In a conversation with a minister of a large denomination in our city some time ago, that man remarked to a friend of ours:

"Therefore leaving the principles of the doctrine of Christ, let us go on unto perfection; not laying again the foundation of repentance from dead works, and of faith toward God, of the doctrine of baptisms, and of laying on of hands, and of resurrection of the dead, and of eternal judgment."—Hebrews 6:1, 2.

"Yes, I believe that all you have said is the truth. I believe every bit of it. But there are many in my congregation who do not believe that way. I must put out things that all will like. It is as if I put on a large banquet: I must spread out food for all." My friend might have added, though he did not wish to be so unkind: "Yes, but I do not like the same old prunes dished up to me at every meal." Thus is presented the perennial problem of the minister. Let us look at it in another way.

From the writings of Confucius I read:

"I. (6) The Master said: 'The young should be dutiful at home, modest abroad, heedful and true, full of goodwill for the many, close friends with love; and should they have strength to spare, let them spend it upon the arts.'

"II. (7) Tzu-yu asked the duty of a son. The Master said: 'Today a man is called dutiful if he keep his father and mother. But we keep both our dogs and horses, and unless we honor parents, is it not all one?'

And from the writings of the Buddha we read this:

"Suppose, O priests, one does evil with his body, does evil with his voice, does evil with his mind. Having done evil . . . he arrives after death at a place of punishment, a place of suffering . . . Then, O priests, the guardians of hell seize him, and they show him to Yama, the ruler of the dead, saying,

"'Sire, this man did not do his duty to his friends, to his parents, to the monks, or to the Brahmans, nor did he honor his elders among his kinsfolk. Let your majesty inflict punishment upon him.'

"Then, O priests, king Yama says to him, 'O man! Did you not see among men a woman or a man, eighty or ninety or a hundred years of age, decrepit, crooked as the curved rafter of a gable roof, bowed down, leaning on a staff, broken-toothed, gray-haired and nearly bald, tottering, with wrinkled brow, and blotched with freckles?'

"He replies, 'Lord, I did.'

"Then, O priests, king Yama says to him, 'O man! Did it not occur to you, being a person of mature intelligence and years, 'I also am subject to old age, and in no way exempt. Come now! I will act nobly with body, voice, and mind?"

"He replies, 'Lord, I could not. Lord, I did not think.'

"Then, O priests, king Yama says to him, 'O man! Through thoughtlessness you failed to act nobly with body, voice, and mind. Verily, it shall be done unto you, O man, in accordance with your thoughtlessness.'"

And so could we find many a noble example of goodly thought, and many that are in accord with the "moral" teachings of Christianity; but they lack the convincing nature of Christian teachings. Why? Because they lack promise! The commandment to honor father and mother that is found in the Mosaic Law differs from that of the sayings of Confucius and the meditations of Buddha ac-ording to what the Apostle says: "Honour thy father and mother; which is the first commandment with promise; that it may be well with thee, and thou mayest live long on the earth."—Eph. 6:2, 3. Those verses give us the key to the preaching of threefold Christianity. It is doctrine, it is prophecy, it is practical instruction, all in one. No sermon is complete that does not embody all three.

How does the Sermon on the Mount differ from the meditations of Buddha and the sayings of Confucius? It has commandments with promise! "Blessed are the meek." Why? "For they shall inherit the earth." "Blessed are the pure in heart." Why? "For they shall see God." "Blessed are they which are persecuted for righteousness' sake." Why? "For theirs is the kingdom of heaven."

Please turn to Page Eight

The Peril of the Times

By M. W. Lyon

WE are living in days of awful import. No man knows what the future will bring forth. The world of nations hangs between peace and war. And this at a time of all times when peace and reduction of armaments are imperative to relieve the crushing burdens of taxation under which every nation is already staggering. A great industrial panic which has thrown millions out of work, the most disastrous in the memory of living man—crime and violence increasing to such an extent that there is little security of life or property anywhere—flagrant flouting of the law of the land by small and great alike—courts of justice as well as administrative officialdom reeking with graft and corruption—is it any wonder men's hearts are failing them for fear of the things that are coming on the earth? We are reminded of that poetic prophecy which seems to be startlingly significant today:

"Ill fares the land, to hastening ills a prey,
Where wealth accumulates and men decay!"

Ye drunken lords of Babylon, take heed to an ancient writing, which once before warned a perishing civilization: MENE, MENE, TEKEL, UPHARSIN! It is written again today, "God hath numbered thy kingdom, and finished it. . . . Thou art weighed in the balances, and art found wanting." Dan. 5:22-28. Scorn not the handwriting which would warn you of coming doom, for ye have sown the wind, and ye shall reap the whirlwind (Hosea 8:7). Judgment lingers but a little, and will ye still defy the God of heaven and trample under foot every principle of justice and decency?

And is there no deliverance? Ah, yes! But that Book which reveals the way to deliverance men have cast aside. They have turned a deaf ear to its counsels because it condemns their hard-hearted sins. But if we, like Jeremiah, must preach doom and not deliverance, let the events that shall come to pass judge which is the word of God and which that of the false prophets. "Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."—Gal. 6:7. And, "All they that take the sword shall perish with the sword."—Matt. 26:52. And again, "Except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish."—Luke 13:3. O turn ye, O turn ye, for why will ye die? "Seek ye the Lord while he may be found, call ye upon him while he is near: let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts: and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him."—Isa. 55:6, 7.

My dear friends, it is appalling when I see the sheer indifference of most people, and the carelessness of even the best, in the face of this great crisis; and I almost despair of adequate words with which to warn you before it is too late! O hearken, ye men of business, ye whose souls are wholly absorbed with the pursuits of things earthly, living carelessly without prayer, without the church, without Christ! "Thinkest thou this, O man, . . . that thou shalt escape the judgment of God?"—Rom. 2:3-6.

Give ear, ye almost Christians, lingering these many years upon the margin of salvation, looking in through the gates but never quite ready to enter, intending but never performing, often wishing but still postponing, hoping without right to hope—the appeal is to you: "How shall we escape, if we neglect so great salvation?"—Heb. 2:3. The gates of mercy are still open for you, but that they still will be for another year, or another month, or another hour, no man on earth or angel in heaven is authorized to promise. To your knees, then; to your Bibles; to the foot of the cross; while it is called today!

For "he that hath the Son hath (promise of) life; and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life."—1 John 5:12.—Golden Rule News.

Convenience

"Go thy way for this time; when I have a convenient season, I will call for thee."—Acts 24:25.

THE study of the principals in any drama is always interesting. In this particular setting there is Ananias the high priest and the elders, Lysias the chief captain, Tertullus a tricky lawyer, Felix the governor, and his wife Drusilla, and Paul.

As far as Lysias was concerned he did what would be expected of him, as the captain of troops. He protected Paul from the infuriated priests and elders and brought him finally to Caesarea. Tertullus needs a little more attention. Tertullus was probably a Roman. He spoke both Latin and Greek. An orator of no mean ability. He was a lawyer who was always on the side of the most money. For a price he would furnish the evidence that would convict or liberate a prisoner. This was the man the chief priests and the elders hired to present their case before the governor. As they, the priests, had plotted to kill the Apostle they certainly had no compunction as to what Tertullus might do.

It is hard to describe a man whose religious zeal carries him to the point where he is willing to sacrifice life itself for the tradition of his sect. Whose tolerance for others who are opposite in thought is nil. If the only examples of this were of two thousand years ago we might understand it. But it is just the same today. Nearly all of us feel toward the man who opposes us in our religious beliefs that he is an atheist. Not many of us are charitable enough for tolerance for anything outside our own narrow confines. Neither was Ananias who was high priest, nor the elders with him. Their souls were wrought up in righteous indignation against the man who preached Jesus Christ and Him the Messiah not only of the Jew but of the world. The church, their church, could not, would not, and did not tolerate anyone who disturbed the system and ritual of that church. The bitterness of bigotry and their hatred of Christ brought them into bright contrast with the Apostle Paul. Paul was now where Stephen had been. It was this Ananias who would refuse Paul his clear conscience and was dastardly enough to have him smitten. Paul had this man's number when he called him a whited wall. Paul knew that behind the whiteness of that wall was rotteness and corruption, yet this man was the high priest of God.

His accusations against the Apostle were false. The charges of sedition and of being a pest were false. I dare say that these charges were embellished by the oratory of Tertullus in a way that tickled the Jews pink.

The next in the list of characters is Felix the governor. In the present day language we would say he came from the slums and reached a high position of honor. He was an ex-slave. He was ruthless. He was not above taking a bribe. He seduced the beautiful and glamorous wife of Axizus, king of Emesa, who was a Jewess and was a sister to Berenece, a friend of Festus. Under the regime of this couple the affairs of their country became worse and worse. In their attitude toward the Jew and the Jewish religion they did not care whether Jews killed each other or not. And it was before this ex-slave, raised to a position of high authority, that the great Apostle of Jesus Christ was to be tried for sedition and considered a pest. And under a guard of two hundred soldiers, two hundred seventy horsemen, and two hundred spearmen Paul was brought to Caesarea to be tried before a man who was a libertine and a woman profligate. And as a river cannot rise above its source neither could the Apostle expect much favor from this kind of a judge. A slave and an adulteress to judge the greatest representative of the Lord Jesus Christ that the world might ever know.

It is not so easy to describe the Apostle Paul. Usually our minds picture our heroes as large, statuesque men, physically attractive, eloquent in speech, and having personality above the average. But Paul was none of these. He was undersized. He was sickly and in his speech there was an impediment. In contrast with Peter, who was strong and aggressive, one who drove his argument home by sheer force, and in contrast with Apollos the orator, eloquent, and who could hold his audiences spellbound by his wonderful magic words and personality. Paul was none of these. He said to the Corinthian church that he came not with the excellency of speech or of wisdom, the world's wisdom, but in weakness and fear and trembling, but he did come in the demonstration of the Spirit and power of God.

As this weary, weather-beaten missionary of the cross stood on trial before this tribunal, it was not sedition that was in his mind but the story of the Christ and the question of the resurrection of the dead. Paul's argument and logic were by the power of the Spirit. He stood hidden behind the cross and Felix could look beyond the emissary of Christ and see Christ instead. The language of this man could whiplash the conscience of this governor as none other ever could. Felix could recognize in Paul what the priests and elders had failed to recognize, that Christ had come into the world to save men from sin. The church failed to recognize in Jesus Christ the promised Messiah but this loose-living governor recognized Him.

This was the chosen vessel to preach to kings and governors. He went from Gallio to Felix, to Festus, to Agrippa, and even to the highest tribunal of the Roman Empire, to Nero himself.

He was neither afraid nor overconfident. He had the evidence of the Scriptures and the evidence of his own experience. He knew the story he had to tell and was glad of the opportunity to tell it. So far as he was concerned it mattered not whether it was dungeon, cell, or temple steps, or the judgment hall of kings. He knew he was to be the herald to carry the gospel beyond the sea and this was only an incident to the journey.

Tertullus was pleading before a human court but Paul was before the great bar of God's righteousness. An unseen power urged him on. We can almost see him as the earnestness of his voice reaches the governor. We can almost hear him as he declares, "Touching the resurrection of the dead I am called in question." It was this argument that threw the Pharisees and Sadducees in an argument among themselves. It was the great cardinal principle of the Christian church. And Felix trembled. He became alarmed. He was afraid of the righteousness of God as Paul reasoned of righteousness, of temperance, and of judgment to come. When the Apostle spoke of justice and morality Felix knew what he meant. He knew that Paul knew he was living in open shame and Paul dared to tell him of it. Like John the Baptist before Herod and Herodias he attacked sin in high places. What Drusilla may have thought is not recorded but Felix trembled. Into that depraved mind there crept the conviction that he was a lost man in the sight of God. As Paul reasoned of temperance and of self-control Felix knew that he had not curbed any desire that he ever had whether it was the life of innocent victims or the fulfillment of lust and appetite. As Paul reasoned of the judgment to come and Felix could picture himself before another throne, not an earthly but a heavenly throne where he would give an answer to the things done in the flesh, and the whole panorama of his life came before him as of a drowning man, no wonder he trembled.

What was it Jesus had said? In John 16:8-10 we read, "And when he is come he will reprove the world of sin, and of righteousness, and of judgment: of sin, because they believe not on me; of righteousness, because I go to my Father, and ye see me no more; of judgment, because the prince of this world is judged."

Felix trembled and answered, "Go thy way for this time; when I have a convenient season, I will call for thee."

A convenient season. More fitting season, a better season, a more opportune time. It has been the tendency of the world to put off for tomorrow that which should be done today. The proneness to procrastination seems to be part of human nature. Felix wanted Christ. There is no doubt of this. Even with his background his conscience had not been so seared that it could not be reached. But he wanted to put it off. To delay. He was in a better frame of mind to reach God than the priests who condemned him. But even while he trembled he stifled the spirit of entreaty which sought to save him. Perhaps he said as many of today say, "I want to be a better man. I am not good enough to take up Christ now." Perhaps he looked at the exotic beauty of Drusilla and realized that she could have no part of his Christianity. If this was the case Felix was not the first or the last to give all for a woman. Perhaps he realized his position as governor would interfere with his religion. And it would. He realized the depths into which he had fallen; yet as he looked up to the heights to which he might be required to reach, it was perhaps the thought of this man that he could not reach. It was Felix who was trembling, not Paul. The prisoner had become the judge. The judge stood before a higher tribunal than that he himself presided over, and he stood condemned.

Yes, my friend, there is danger of delay. The church has delayed long enough. We prepare ourselves for a task and then postpone. We lose more blessings than we realize because we do not act on the inspiration of the Spirit and many a man has gone to an untimely death and grave because we did not act when the moment of opportunity presented itself. Every seaman prepares against the day the storm may break. Then he is ready when it comes.

Delay means resistance. It is always easier to resist after we have refused the first time. Resistance always means being lost.

There is no time like the present. There is no better place than right where you are to start for the kingdom. A more convenient season will never come. God has not promised us any tomorrow. The task left undone will remain undone. Recently a friend said to the writer, "Perhaps your life's work is finished." No man's work is finished until he goes the way of all flesh. As long as we are able to think and act there will be the task of testifying for Jesus Christ. If there is any putting off let it be some one else, not us.—L. B. Sherman in Present Truth Messenger.

HOW TO READ THE BIBLE

1. Read the Scriptures regularly through. Read alternately portions from the Old and New Testaments. Begin at the beginning of each. Mark where you leave off, and begin there next time. When you have finished each Testament, begin it again.

2. Read with prayer. You cannot by your own wisdom understand the Word of God. In all your reading of the Scriptures, seek carefully the help of the Holy Spirit. . . .

3. Read with meditation. Ponder over what you read. The truth is thus applied to your heart. You see new and deeper meanings. It is better to think over a little than merely to read a great deal.

4. Read with reference to yourself. Never read only with a view to instructing others, but for your own teaching. Receive blessings yourself first, and you will communicate them to others. Always ask yourself, "How does this affect me?"

5. Read with faith. Regard it not as statements which you may believe or not, but as the revealed Word of God. Receive every word as true, with simple, childlike trust. Rest upon the promises. Read them as made to you.

6. Read in order to carry into practice. We must accept God's Word as being the revelation of His will. In it, He tells us what to be and what to do. He expects us to be "obedient children."—George Muller.

THREEFOLD CHRISTIANITY

Continued from Page Five

Always the promise! That is doctrine, practical conduct, and prophecy all bound up in one. When shall those that mourn be comforted? When Jesus returns to set up His kingdom. "When shall these things be?" Prophecy unfolds its beautiful symbols to tell the Christian the answer to that most natural of all questions.

The Apostle Peter in telling of the terrible things that shall come in the days before the coming of the Lord, speaking of the dissolution of all things that seem secure and certain in this life, or the things that shall take place to try the hearts of men in those last terrible days, says: "Seeing then that all these things shall be dissolved, what manner of persons ought ye to be in all holy conversation (R. V., "living") and godliness, looking for and hasting unto (R. V., "earnestly desiring") the coming of the day of God, wherein the heavens being on fire shall be dissolved, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat?"

Living! That is the important thing! Yes, but why live the godly life? So that we shall be able to go through the fires that are mentioned by Isaiah (33:14ff) and Malachi (3:2) without being hurt thereby, but be purged. Living! That is the strong meat: the Apostle Paul, writing to the Corinthians, speaks of carnality as shown in strife as a symptom that they were not ready for strong meat, which he explains to be the developing of brotherly love; in Hebrews, going on to perfection is said to be the use of "strong meat." Nowhere does he speak of the understanding of intricate subjects such as genealogies and prophecies as being "strong meat." But rather does he say that if he could understand all prophecies and not have love in his heart he would be worthless.

In order to stay the minds of men in these troublous times, we need to tell them of the love of God and of His mercy toward sinful men; we need to tell them of the great hope that is set forth of eternal life through the resurrection; and we need to delve into the mysteries of the prophetic Word of God in order to build up the rounded spiritual person. If we leave out doctrine and prophecy we might as well teach Buddhism or Mohammedanism. If we leave out practical Christianity and prophecy we might as well set back the hands of the clock to the days of the "Revolt from Rome" and the "Catholic Reformation," when men fought in physical combat over creeds. If we leave out doctrine and practical Christianity we have lost the reason for the existence of prophecy. All prophecy is summed up in love, and in the doctrine of the second coming. All practical Christianity is summed up in the reward of life eternal for those who "love his appearing." Tenets of belief are elaborated in the hope of prophecy and are carried out in the life because of the hope of future events. The good old-fashioned gospel of hope in Christ and the kingdom of our Lord and Savior is carried home to the heart in a pure life lived in expectation that counts its moments in breath-taking anticipation as it reads of the unfolding of the prophets of old. "Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is. And every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as he is pure."—1 John 3:2, 3.

JEHOVAH THE REFUGE OF HIS PEOPLE

THE writer of the Epistle to the Hebrews, speaking of the consolation of believers in Christ, speaks of them as having "fled for refuge to lay hold upon the hope set before us" (Heb. 6:18). Reference is here made, doubtless, to the ancient cities of refuge provided under the provision of the law of Moses, and given to the tribe of Levi in the division of the land of Canaan, to which the unfortunate "manslayer" may flee for refuge from the "avenger of blood." There were some forty-eight such places of refuge provided, each being known by its distinctive name, such as Kedesh, Shechem, Hebron, Bezer, Ramoth-Gilead, Golan, and so on. All these names have their relative meaning, and bear down upon Christ, the great refuge for believers (Num. 35). We cannot now give attention to the native setting of this ancient custom, but desire to make it a present-day meditation. It is one thing, to see and acknowledge the peril that threatens, but quite another thing to have fled away to Christ for refuge.

"God is the refuge of His saints,
When storms of sharp distress invade;
Ere we can offer our complaints,
Behold Him present with His aid."

What a mercy to be found among those "who have fled for refuge" in these tragic final days! Christ is presented to us in all the amplification of sovereign grace in many and varied figures, such as a "fortress," a "tower," a "shelter," a "rock," a "citadel," "bread" to eat, springs of "water" to drink. These are beautiful figures, all suggestive of protection from harm. Christ being our place of defense, our munition of rocks, our city of refuge, then there must be danger lurking, enemies in ambush, else why speak of "refuge"? There is no sound of armed forces pounding against our dwelling. We do not have to wend our way to the place of sacred worship with sword in scabbard. Our lives are not exposed to the merciless assassin's thrust. Why, then, talk of "refuge"?

We are all imperiled. . . . There are not so many venomous serpents in the jungles of Africa, there were never so many hyenas in Asia, there were never so many panthers in the world's forests, as there are hateful transgressions lurking ready to leap and destroy. "Refuge"? Yes, indeed. We care not how men may boast of personal morality. Their lives and characters may be beyond reproach. We may escape many corrupt practices into which others may fall, but if we reject Christ, God's provision for our safety, that is sufficient to plunge us into eternal condemnation. A pure and holy God turns His all-searching and penetrating gaze upon us, and cannot find one single sound spot in us—out of Christ. Sin has put scales on our eyes so that we cannot see either our own corruption by nature or the purity of God in Christ. Sin has deadened our hearing, so that we cannot hear the voice of God speaking to us in tender tones of His infinite love. Sin has palsied us, so that we cannot find any Godward motion. Sin has stunned our sensibilities so that we cannot comprehend the wooing, brooding, and compassionate clemency of the divine heart. What a terrible diagnosis of man's moral state has been drawn (Isa. 1:4-6; Rom. 1:21-32)! The Word of God evermore declares the depravity of the unregenerate heart. "The heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked." "Refuge," yes, indeed. Those most laden with sin are the most loathsome. Christ is the hospital for all diseased sons and daughters of Adam, and one look into God's Institution will reveal the stern fact that the case of every inmate is diagnosed under one word, and that word is S-I-N. But no patient will ever find an incurable ward.

"Youth is the time to serve the Lord,
The time to secure the great reward,
And while the lamp holds out to burn,
The vilest sinner may return."

In addition to sin in all its vicious ruling, there are all those uncounted troubles which follow in the wake of iniquity, and to these the people of the Lord are subject as part of the common calamity. Losses in material things, bereavement, disappointments. A thousandfold troubles like vultures on the wing swoop down upon us. We build our homes, we furnish them, but scarcely have we shaped our nest, when misfortunes come knocking for admission. Pains shoot their poisoned arrows through our quivering flesh. Fevers kindle their fires and burn our poor mortal frames. We simply step out of one trouble and disaster into another. The world at large is like a seething caldron boiling over with trouble (Job 5:6, 7). But God is the refuge of His saints (Psalm 46).

"Let mountains from their seats be hurled
Down to the deep, and buried there;
Convulsions shake the solid world,
Our faith shall never yield to fear."

Praise God! He is the refuge for His saints. He is the fortress into which we run and are safe. No battering-ram of the enemy can demolish the walls of that citadel. No sappers and miners can entrench beneath its ramparts. No storm-bolt of perdition can leap upon its towers. The weapons of defense are omnipotent.—Samuel Forsby in The Messiah's Advocate.

—0—

WHY NOT BE SATISFIED?

Continued from Page Three

est my lot. The lines are fallen unto me in pleasant places; yea, I have a goodly heritage."—Psalm 16:1, 5, 6.

Brethren, God has offered the same care and protection for you and me that He gave David. Can we, like David, say, "I have a goodly heritage"? Should we not be satisfied? Should we not rejoice in the blessing we receive?

Let us think of Saul, a man once high in Roman authority, for he had the power to place the early church brethren under arrest; a man of high education who must have had some wealth; yet this same man turned from this life of comparative ease to become known as Paul, the servant of his Lord. Was Paul content? Did he complain of lack of funds and desire a Roman chariot to carry on his missionary work? No, Paul walked. And listen to his words: "Not that I speak in respect of want: for I have learned, in whatsoever state I am, therewith to be content. I know both how to be abased, and I know how to abound: every where and in all things I am instructed both to be full and to be hungry, both to abound and to suffer need. I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me." "But godliness with contentment is great gain. For we brought nothing into this world, and it is certain we can carry nothing out. And having food and raiment let us be therewith content. But they that will be rich fall into temptation and a snare, and into many foolish and hurtful lusts, which drown men in destruction and perdition."—1 Timothy 6:6-9.

Let us pray God's help to overcome these lusts, desires of the natural man. Let us be content with the blessings our Father sees are best for us.

But some ask: "How can we overcome these lusts?"

I believe James answers the question better than any attempt of my own: "From whence come wars and fightings among you? come they not hence, even of your lusts that war in your members? Ye lust, and have not: ye kill, and desire to have, and cannot obtain: ye fight and war, yet ye have not, because ye ask not. Ye ask, and receive not, because ye ask amiss, that ye may consume it upon your lusts. . . . Do ye think that the scripture saith in vain, The spirit that dwelleth in us lusteth to envy? . . . But he giveth more grace. Wherefore he saith, God resisteth the proud, but giveth grace unto the humble. Submit yourselves therefore to God. Resist the devil, and he will flee from you. Draw nigh to God, and he will draw nigh to you. Cleanse your hands, ye sinners; and purify your hearts, ye double minded. . . . Humble yourselves in the sight of God, and he shall lift you up. Speak not evil one of another, brethren. He that speaketh evil of his brother, and judgeth his brother, speaketh evil of the law, and judgeth the law: but if thou judge the law, thou art not a doer of the law, but a judge. There is one lawgiver, who is able to save and to destroy: who art thou that judgest another? Go to now, ye that say, To day or to morrow we will go into such a city, and continue there a year, and buy and sell, and get gain: whereas ye know not what shall be on the morrow. For what is your life? It is even a vapour, that appeareth for a little time, and then vanisheth away. For that ye ought to say, If the Lord will, we shall live, and do this, or that. But now ye rejoice in your boastings: all such rejoicing is evil. Therefore to him that knoweth to do good, and doeth it not, to him it is sin."—James 4.

Abreast of the Times

Empty Pews

"Lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God."—2 Timothy 3:4.

OBERLIN, Ohio, June 23.—Just one Protestant in ten attends church, and 70 per cent of the pews in the Congregational churches of the country are vacant on Sundays, is the assertion of Roger W. Babson following a four-year survey of conditions in the Congregational churches of the country. Mr. Babson summarized the situation in this way:

"Congregational churches investigated have, on the average, a membership of 322 people per church. They have, on the average, sufficient seating capacity for 370 persons per service. The survey shows the average Sunday morning attendance in these churches during the last four years to have been as follows: 1930, 114.4; 1931, 117.1; 1932, 119.1; 1933, 117. The proportion of actual church members who attend church—as against seating capacity of churches—was more encouraging, Mr. Babson disclosed. He said about 42 per cent of local memberships of churches attended regularly."

Mr. Babson also pointed out the wide disparity between rural and urban churchgoing. "Churches in unincorporated areas had an average attendance of 71 per cent of their members. In incorporated villages under 2,500 the average attendance declined to 66 per cent, in cities of 10,000 to 50,000 attendance receded to 46 per cent, while in cities of 50,000 or more the average attendance was 30 per cent."

At the conclusion of his report Mr. Babson suggested "seventeen points" by which he believed the attendance might be improved, among which the following were recommended:

"Work for the economic well-being of the people.

"Insist on rigid standards for church membership.

"See that sermons are vitalized.

"The influence of the home must be for church attendance."

The three latter suggestions appear by far the most important and valuable recommendations made. This is especially true if under insistence "on rigid standards for church membership" are included both doctrinal and moral requirements. No church can interest thinking people in these days that does not have a definite message of eternal truth to bring to the world. It must make that message vital with the power which Bible evidence, supported by logic, alone can provide. It is not how many can be induced to attend church or Sunday school that marks the success of a church, but how many can be converted to the gospel of the kingdom of God and persuaded to obey its requirements in baptism and to conform their lives to its teaching.

Land Banks Take Over Farms

"So the land became Pharaoh's."—Genesis 47:20.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 1.—The announcement has been made by the Farm Credit Administration that the Federal Land Banks have thus far taken over outright 22,078 farms, valued at $82,939,000. Some observers aver that this constitutes but "a mild forerunner of the enormous amount of property of all kinds which the Government will be forced to take over when the millions of people and corporations which have borrowed money of the Government are unable to pay it back."

The situation now developing in this country provides a striking parallel to the conditions in Egypt in the time of Joseph's administration, when, by reason of prolonged drought, the people were forced to sell their land to the Government in return for food. In an effort to relieve the pressing needs of the people with greater facility they were "removed" from their unproductive farms "to cities from one end of the borders of Egypt even to the other," much after the order suggested by our own country by which unproductive lands will be abandoned and the people placed in locations where they can engage in factory work part of the time and also be able to carry on farm work in a small way.

"The land became Pharaoh's," that is, it was taken over by the Egyptian Government when the people could no longer pay their bills for food. Some see in the situation here the possibility of the Government taking over all means of production and bringing about a socialistic or communistic State. Let us watch developments with the closest attention.

Germany Seethes With Revolution

"Through the wrath of the Lord of hosts is the land darkened, and . . . no man shall spare his brother."

BERLIN, Germany, July 1.—Many leaders of Hitler's famous "storm troops," including Capt. Ernst Roehm, their chief, have been summarily executed by order of the Government in an effort to quench the fires of rebellion that are raging throughout this troubled country. Some of the Dictator's most intimate friends and trusted lieutenants have been among the number whose lives have been ruthlessly taken that the present regime might be maintained. Ten additional leaders are reported to have been executed today, and the entire country is in a state of anxiety, which is greatly increased by the serious illness of President Von Hindenburg, whose personal popularity has done much to hold the masses in check. The address of Vice-Chancellor Franz von Papen last week, in which he criticized the trend of the Hitler Administration severely, appears to have been the first open declaration of opposition to the Dictator.

Berean Department

ARLEN MARSH, EDITOR

Repairs for Society

"The Voice in The Wilderness today is the voice of Youth, bewildered and groping in an age so materialistic that money has become an ideal as powerful and as awe-inspiring as God once was."

So it is Viola Ilma, one-time editor of the now suspended magazine Modern Youth, enters upon her discussion of the current problems of the young in her recently released volume, And Now, Youth!

The sentence quoted is notable primarily for its frank admission that God no longer occupies any great place in the plans of youth, either in this country or abroad. God, like prohibition, bustles, and hoop skirts, has, as far as the world in general is concerned, enjoyed His heyday and is now to be discarded.

The sentence, further, comes from one whose position has kept her in constant contact with the prevailing sentiment of the better educated class of both the present and the passing generations. It possesses qualities of truth which make it, unfortunately, entirely credible.

God has been outmoded. That is the general idea. God was an excellent vent for the ignorant superstitions of past eons. That, too, is the general idea. That Christianity, or, indeed, religion in any guise, has any beneficial influences for the modern world is an idea as remote from the minds of the majority of the intellectuals as the North Pole from the South.

As a direct consequence of this trend in thought, men have evolved so great a number of panaceas for the world's social, economic, and political ills that a thorough understanding of the principles involved in all of them is utterly impossible. And none of them, of course, consider God.

Men have modestly declared themselves to be endowed with a wisdom greater than Solomon's. They have promised to aid society by eliminating useless expenditures in government, and so cutting the costs of living by reducing taxes. They have, contrariwise, succeeded in increasing the burden of taxation to a point which it never has attained before. They have, further, guaranteed society a remedy for the ostensible evil of overproduction, which, in reality, consists of nothing except faulty distribution. They have succeeded in imperiling the food of millions and increasing costs of raw and manufactured products without increasing noticeably the individual income.

These have been the experimental remedies of men. Since God is no longer a power worthy of consideration, they are bound by no religious scruples as to destruction of food that might have been diverted to the service of the poor. Since humanity no longer looks for any regeneration outside of its own creation, the thought that God may insert an unwanted finger in the pie the world today is baking has no part in the struggles of men to establish peace and beauty in the earth.

These conditions make it imperative that youth be instructed in the ways of Christianity, that the young be grounded so firmly in the fundamental teachings of God's Word that no application of Modernism, agnosticism, communism, or simple atheism can shake their faith. Colleges and universities, besides spewing forth omniscient Brain Trusts, are prone to apply all of the systems of philosophy here named.

Age, which endowed its young with war, debt, inequality, and a decided lack of equity, must take the brunt of this responsibility of teaching. It must provide youth with facts and arguments and a deep-rooted consciousness of God. And that, naturally, can be done only if age itself is firmly convinced of the veracity of what it tries to teach.

In the very lack of God the world has lost its only remedy; and this, youth must be taught. The materialism that is destroying civilization can be repaired by nothing but an understanding of God and of His ways. All the experimentation of which men can conceive is unable to succeed in its more or less high purpose. For without God men are impotent.

Permanent repairs, of course, cannot be made upon society until the time has come for the setting up of God's kingdom on the earth. To correct the evils which now beset mankind would require one all-powerful and all-wise. And men are neither.

Use Them for Tracts

Tracts are necessarily limited in their power. In a small folder it is impossible for a writer to discuss thoroughly any biblical subject. Moreover, a tract normally treats of but one theme; and the reader, consequently, is left almost completely in the dark, except by way of inference, as to the author's beliefs on other corresponding themes.

Berean books remedy this. One of the older books published by the National Berean Society, for example, selling at ten cents a copy, postpaid, contains eighty-six lesson outlines on the major teachings of the Bible. This number of lessons permits a much more thorough treatment of each subject than the limited space of a tract; and it permits, furthermore, study of all the fundamental doctrines of Christianity.

These books, old and new, are carefully edited to keep them in strict conformity with the Bible. Baptism, the kingdom, mortality, the resurrection, exemplary living—all are considered by the Berean books. Books may be ordered from the National Berean Society, Oregon, Illinois.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth."

SOME LESSONS FROM JESUS

YOU have just had the review lesson in your Sunday school, finishing up the three months' study of the life and teachings of Jesus our Savior. The girls of my class at Oregon, the King's Daughters, were each given three lessons to review. Arlene Gruber was the only one who completed hers, and she has written it out so nicely in her own words that I thought you would all enjoy it. Here it is:

Jesus had died on the cross and had been buried in the tomb of Joseph. Three days had passed since the time of His death. Very early in the morning of the third day Mary Magdalene came to the tomb. There she found the stone had been rolled away and Jesus gone.

Oh, how excited she was! She thought that somebody had taken Jesus' body away. Peter and John also ran quickly to the tomb and looked in; but they could not see Him in there. All the clothes He had worn were there, but no Jesus!

They all left and went to their homes except one, Mary stood at the tomb weeping very silently. She looked into the opening the second time. Then she saw two angels, who spoke to her.

They said, "Why do you weep?"

She answered, "Because they have taken away my Lord, and I do not know where they have taken Him."

Then Mary turned around, and there stood Jesus in front of her, but she did not know Him.

"Why do you weep?" He asked her.

Mary said, "Oh, if you have taken away my Lord, tell me where He is."

All Jesus said was, "Mary!"

Then she knew Him, and how happy she was! She immediately ran to tell the other disciples all about it.

One day, before Jesus was crucified, some of the disciples came to Him and asked, "Who is the greatest in the kingdom?"

Jesus called a little child to Him and said, "You must be like a little child if you want to be in God's kingdom."

By this He meant that they must have faith and trust in God as a little child trusts his parents.

Peter asked Jesus one day, "How often should I forgive my brother when he does any wrong against me? Should I forgive him seven times?"

Jesus answered Peter by saying he ought to forgive him not only seven times, but seventy times seven. This, you know, would be 490 times. Jesus meant that he should forgive him as often as he wronged him and not count the times. And we should, too.

Then He told Peter this story. Once upon a time a king had a servant who owed him a great amount of money.

So the king said to him, "Pay me what you owe me, or I shall sell you, your wife, your children, and all you have to get the money."

But the servant begged so hard for the king not to do this that finally the king felt so sorry for him that he let him go. He even told him he need never pay the debt.

But the servant didn't appreciate it, because he went out and put another man in jail who owed the servant only a little debt. Because God forgives us our sins, we should forgive others if they sin against us in any way.

Remember Jesus taught us in His prayer, "Forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors."

And now for your lesson for July 15. It's about one of the most interesting men in the Old Testament—Elijah. I'm sure you'll like to read all about him, for he did so many wonderful things. And do you know why? He had a very special Helper.

Turn this time to the first book of the Kings, chapters 17 and 18, and the first eight verses of chapter 19. There are at least seven thrilling stories in those three chapters.

Find out about the trained ravens and what they did. Did you ever hear about a flour bin that never got empty, or an oil can that was always full?

Learn how Elijah repaid the widow for the cake she baked him. Also, read that exciting contest between the prophets of Baal and the Prophet of God. Oh, Elijah was a busy man all right.

How many of you have your membership cards all filled in the Sons and Daughters of the King Club? That is, a Bible seal on every date, showing that you studied your lesson every week for the past three months. Arlene Gruber, who wrote the story on this page, has, and she is one of our members in good standing.

Send me your name as soon as you have completed your card, and it will appear on this page. And now, good-bye for this week. Don't forget to find out as much as you can about Elijah and who it was that helped him.

The Sunday School Lesson

FROM TRUTH SEEKERS' QUARTERLY

LESSON 3. — July 15, 1934

GOD CARES FOR ELIJAH

1 Kings 17:1-24; 19:1-8

Devotional Reading: Psalm 23

GOLDEN TEXT

Your heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need of all these things.—
Matthew 6:32.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic: God Cares for Elijah.

Aim: God always cares for those who serve Him faithfully.

Basic Truth: "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you."—Matt. 6:33.

I. Elijah Speaks for God. (1 Kings 17:1-7.) The drought brought upon Israel was for the accomplishment of most beneficent purposes. First, it would serve to punish Israel for her idolatry, and have a tendency to bring the people back to God. Second, it would prove the powerlessness of Baal in whom they had been led to trust. Third, it would, when the time came for God to send relief, demonstrate the value of prayer and the power of the Lord over nature. Elijah made his announcement boldly, for he was speaking for God. He knew that God would faithfully carry out the prediction He directed him to make, and succeeding events proved that his confidence had not been misplaced.

II. Elijah Proves God's Power. (1 Kings 18:1 to 19:2.) In the testing of the prophets of Baal and of Jehovah on Mount Carmel Elijah was the challenger. No test like that had ever been made before, but Elijah had no fear as to the result. He even poured water over the altar and the offering before calling upon God to send fire from heaven to light the fuel. After the prophets of the false god had been destroyed, Elijah proved God through prayer. He called upon Him to send rain after three years of burning drought. Again the Lord did not fail him, and the rain came in abundance. Those who live their faith in God need have no fear as to their material needs.

III. Elijah Knows God's Care. (1 Kings 3 to 8.) His life endangered because of his faithfulness to the Lord, Elijah fled into the wilderness, and there Jehovah supplied him miraculously with food and water. But more than these material blessings, the Lord brought him spiritual comfort and ease of mind in his time of despondency. The help of God is always complete. He not only feeds the body, but He also sustains the mind and heart and spirit with the assurances of His word of power. And the strength that God provides, as in the case of Elijah, is lasting in its effect.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

God's Care

- is promised to all His children;
- is sufficient for every emergency;
- requires exercise of faith;
- assures peace of mind to all under it.

Supernatural Events. God's care oftentimes requires supernatural intervention. God has promised to and does care for His own, regardless of the power required to extend such care to the ones promised. Our lesson today reveals a miracle performed in giving Elijah the promised care. A few of the scores of cases where God or Christ performed miracles to insure the care of their followers are noted: Pillar of cloud and fire (Ex. 13:21, 22; 14:19, 20). Passage of the Red Sea (Ex. 14:22). Manna and quail (Ex. 16:4-31). Destruction of Sennacherib's army (Isa. 37:36). Stilling the tempest (Matt. 8:23-27). Feeding five thousand (Matt. 14:15-21). Add others to the list. These miracles, which were performed in order that heavenly care might be extended, should create confidence in our Father's promise.

Revenge. Jezebel was revengeful. Her own sins were apparent. Elijah had exposed her sins. It hurt. She would persecute him for telling the truth and living in accordance therewith. There are a lot of Jezebels today. Revenge and retaliation are not Christian acts. Such attitudes and actions must be avoided by Christians. Jesus was an example we might well pattern after (1 Peter 2:21-23). Jesus rebuked two of His disciples for wanting to take revenge (Luke 9:54-56). Revenge comes from a spiteful heart (Ezek. 25:15). Therefore Christians are forbidden to be revengeful (Rom. 12:17, 19; 1 Thess. 5:15; 1 Peter 3:9).—C. E. R.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"Your heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need of all these things."—Matt. 6:32.

God knows all things, therefore He knows our every need. We are dependent on Him for the air we breathe, the food we eat, the water we drink, in fact we have nothing of ourselves; it all comes from Him. How good He is in providing for us. Not a word of complaint should be uttered.

This text is Christ's own words, and He always knew what He said came from the Father. His words are to be depended on. Though Christ was talking to His disciples while on earth, these words are just as true now as then. Sometimes we fail to see the hand of God in supplying our needs, but it is there just the same and we should appreciate it. Look around and realize that it is the Father who supplies our needs.—L. A. R.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULTS

God's Constant Care

When Jesus first told His disciples that He was going to leave them He gave them the promise that He would not leave them comfortless (John 14:18). After His resurrection, when He had commanded them to go to all parts of the world to preach the gospel, He gave them the further assurance that He would be with them "even unto the end of the world." Every true Christian from that day to this has felt the guiding and sustaining presence of the Christ. Men of God have always found that God was near. See Psalm 46:1; Heb. 4:16. Listen also to the comfort of Jesus: "Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light."—Matt. 11:28-30.

Christ and His disciples have left us record that in the last days there is to be a time of trouble such as has never been seen on the earth before. A day of great tribulation and anguish when God shall rise to shake terribly the earth because of the sin of the people. We have the assurance that we may escape. Paul said: "For God hath not appointed us to wrath, but to obtain salvation."—1 Thess. 5:9. The words of Isaiah seem to apply to the church: "Come, my people, enter thou into thy chambers, and shut thy doors about thee: hide thyself as it were for a little moment, until the indignation be overpast. For, behold, the Lord cometh out of his place to punish the inhabitants of the earth for their iniquity."—Isa. 26:20, 21. The faith of the righteous will be shaken. Jesus said: "When the Son of man come, will he find faith?" Let us trust in the Lord, for He has always delivered His people in their time of need.—H. A. S.

PRIMARY

Topic: We Talk to Elijah.

We're going to see a wonderful sight today and meet a very great man. Put another dot on your line.

There he is, that's Elijah. I wonder where he's going? He's hiding by the Brook Cherith. Let's ask him why.

Elijah says, "The king, Ahab, and his people are angry at me because I told them that God would send them no rain, not even any dew. God told me to come here, and He would care for me. I can drink from this brook. Each morning and evening I am fed. Would you like to see how God cares for me?"

We must wait until evening. See the beautiful birds! They're ravens. They have something in their bills! It's food, bread and meat, and they're giving it to Elijah.

The water's all gone from the brook now. I wonder what Elijah will do. God will know.

Elijah is lying under a juniper tree. He's tired and hungry. He falls asleep. An angel awakens him and says, "Arise and eat." And right there before Elijah is a cake and some water.

He lies down again and the same thing happens. He now can go on the strength of this food for forty days and nights while he stays here in a cave. Isn't God taking good care of Elijah?—V. C. T.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CONFERENCE DATES

Indiana Bible School and Conference at North Salem Church	July 5 to 15
Michigan Conference at Dutton	July 6 to 10
Illinois Bible School and Conference at Oregon	July 31 to Aug. 12
General Conference at Oregon, Illinois	July 31 to Aug. 12
Eastern Nebraska Conference at Omaha	August 12 to 19
Virginia Bible School and Conference at Maurertown	August 16 to 26
Nebraska Conference at Holbrook	August 19 to 26
Iowa Conference at Waterloo	Aug. 21 to 26

EASTERN NEBRASKA CONFERENCE

The Eastern Nebraska Conference will be held in the Florence Community Hall of Omaha, Neb., from August 12 to 19. Bro. Lindsay has kindly consented to be with us at this time. We can plainly see that matters are developing very rapidly toward the close of the age in which we are living and should therefore put forth every effort to attend this conference.

Edna Kjargaard, Cor. Sec.

INDIANA

As this issue reaches you, the annual Bible School will have started on another session of profitable Bible study and reasoning together concerning those things which are most commonly believed among us as the word of God. These are times when we need the encouragement that can come by meeting with those "who have obtained like precious faith with us" and more definite knowledge of the times in which we live.

Bro. Siple will make his first pulpit appearance on Sunday evening, July 8, D. V., and continue with us to the close. He and Bro. Anderson, the main speakers for this gathering, should be a strong inducement for many to plan to spend all the time possible at this gathering. If you are unable to remain for full time, arrange for a feast of good things on each Sunday.

Send your church delegates for the business session Saturday, July 14, at 2 p. m. Give them instructions in regard to the work for the following year.

The teaching staff will be as follows: Mabel Alexander, beginners; Mrs. Dale Rouch, primary; Vaughn Long and Mrs. Otto Dick, junior and intermediate; F. E. Siple, J. H. Anderson, and F. A. Stilson, senior and adults; Lulu Stilson and Doris Naylor, matrons.

F. A. Stilson, President.

REPORT FOR JUNE

Sermons: Pleasant View, 2; Rensselaer, 2; Hillisburg, 2; Plymouth, 1; North Salem, 1. Funerals, 1. Money received: Pleasant View, $18.00; Rensselaer, $24.60; Plymouth, $12.00; Hillisburg, $15.00; North Salem, $14.25; Sr. Porter, $1.00; Conference Board, $15.00. Expense, $16.50. In the May report the amount, $9.73, paid by the Conference Board was omitted through an oversight.

J. H. Anderson, Indiana Evangelist,

VIRGINIA

As temporary pastor of the churches in Virginia we find much joy in our labors here. The brethren are congenial and exceedingly hospitable. It is a great pleasure to us to renew old friendships of the past two conferences and meet many new acquaintances who will prove to be valuable friends. Our prayer is that our services here may be worthy of their trust and acceptable in the sight of our heavenly Father.

Both the Dry Run and Maurertown churches greeted our first appointment with them with goodly numbers present.

A special meeting will be held on the second Sunday in July at Maurertown. Sunday school at 10:00 a. m., preaching service at 11:00 a. m. and 2:30 p. m. All are invited to come. Basket dinner will be served. Come, let us enjoy the entire day together.

V. Earl Thayer.

"THE PATHWAY OF SALVATION"

The above appears as the title of a new 16-page booklet by Elder J. H. Anderson, Michigantown, Ind. The work comprises a series of fourteen lessons on fundamentals prepared for Bible class work. The scope is sufficiently wide to cover the major truths which are generally emphasized by the Church of God, and would be found exceedingly profitable by young people and adult Bible classes everywhere. Among the subjects treated are "The Bible," "What Is Man?" "The Resurrection," "The Coming of Christ," "The Gospel," etc. This excellent series of outline lessons may be secured at 10 cents per copy by addressing the author, J. H. Anderson, Michigantown, Ind.

MICHIGAN CONFERENCE

The Michigan Conference of the Church of God will be held this year on the old stamping ground at Dutton, beginning July 6 and continuing over Sunday and ending Tuesday evening, July 10.

Bro. S. J. Lindsay of Arizona will be the speaker, which assures a message of extraordinary richness. It is Bro. Lindsay's wish to again meet all his friends and brethren in Michigan, and for his sake as well as for the conference, we urge everyone to be present.

A picnic dinner will be in order on Sunday, and entertainment will be provided for everyone who will come.

Let us not pass up this opportunity for one more spiritual treat. Who knows, it may be the last one.

L. Bridegam, Secretary.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO DOLLAR-A-MONTH CLUB

Lois Hunt; Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Lansbery; Harvey Krogh ($3); Susan Williams ($2); Mr. and Mrs. Charles Netts ($5); Mr. and Mrs. Delos Andrew; Mr. and Mrs. John E. Miller ($3); Adult Class, Golden Rule S. S. ($3); Golden Rule S. S. ($3); Mrs. D. W. Brown ($2).

CASHMERE, WASHINGTON

On Sunday, June 10, several of our members accompanied our pastor, Thomas D. Foster, on one of his trips to Okanogan, one hundred miles from Cashmere, to visit and "break the bread of life" with the members there. Preaching services were held at eleven o'clock and the members enjoyed a social visit together afterwards. The faithful ones there are always appreciative of these visits and are keeping the light burning.

On the next Sunday (17th), the pastor conducted services at his local church; then on the 24th, as had previously been announced, he made a trip to Lake Chelan, about forty-five miles from Cashmere, to hold a meeting with the brothers and sisters there. A large truckload and two carloads of local members accompanied him. A picnic dinner was served in the city park and preaching services were conducted afterwards. Everyone enjoyed the meeting very much, as it was a glad reunion to many who had not met for several years.

We hope to continue these meetings as the Lord permits, for it draws us together in Christian love and fellowship and inspires us to go steadily on until "the day dawns" when He shall appear.

Cora Foster, Secretary.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

Memories of the most pleasant kind attend us upon our return from the annual meeting of the Northwest Conference. On Saturday of the preceding week Sr. Railsback told us of a special appeal that she had received for help in the Northwest, and so the writer and family, along with Bro. and Sr. Railsback, made a hurried trip to Corvallis, Ore., to participate in what was spoken of by the people there as the best conference in ten years. We were delighted to meet the faithful in the Northwest and to give what assistance we could in pushing forward the work there. We feel that the words of appreciation which the Apostle Paul gave to his Thessalonian church (1 Thess. 1) might be repeated in regard to those who have so diligently carried on the Lord's work in spite of many difficulties. We were thrilled to meet those whom we had seen before of the number there, and to make the acquaintance of those whom we had never seen before. We hope that if the Master delays His coming we may be able to attend the Northwest Conference again.

Bro. and Sr. C. A. Emery and family of Pomona returned from their month's trip east on Tuesday evening, June 27. They had the pleasure of visiting with Sr. Lilian Railton at Fonthill, Ont., and with many others of old acquaintance in those parts, but were not privileged to linger long enough in one place to take much part in church activities at any point.

Bro. and Sr. Stantial of Los Angeles are spending a short vacation in northern parts of California. Others likewise of the Los Angeles district are beginning their vacation period.

We are at the present writing preparing for our trip to the General Conference and to the Virginia Conference. We hope to see those this year that we saw last year, and many more likewise. It is always pleasant to renew acquaintances and to make new ones among the brotherhood of the church.

Norman John MacLeod,

THE WORK OF THE SEVEN

IN the sixth chapter of the Acts of the Apostles, we read about seven men chosen by the disciples to look after the poor. Two classes of people who needed charity are mentioned—some widows of the Hebrews and Grecians. The latter had been neglected; and as soon as the attention of the multitude was called to this fact, they were pleased to have seven men chosen to look after this matter. Both the apostles and the rest of the people knew that there should be a just distribution of the poor fund; and to this end certain men were chosen so that the support of these Grecian widows would not be neglected. There is a lesson for us in that. Paul says, "For I mean not that other men be eased, and ye burdened."—2 Cor. 8:13. God's people are pleased to divide with their fellow men. When our hearts are changed by the divine power, we do not like to see anyone suffer. Love says, "You and yours"; selfishness says, "Me and mine." If any man has not the Spirit of Christ, he does not belong to the Lord. Charity suffereth long and is kind. The apostolic church showed their love in appointing seven men to look after the poor widows.

The Scripture reads thus: "There arose a murmuring of the Grecians against the Hebrews, because their widows were neglected in the daily ministrations. Then the twelve called the multitude of the disciples unto them, and said, It is not reason that we should leave the word of God, and serve tables. Wherefore, brethren, look ye out among you seven men of honest report, full of the Holy Ghost and wisdom, whom we may appoint over this business. But we will give ourselves continually to prayer, and to the ministry of the word. And the saying pleased the whole multitude: and they chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Ghost, and Philip . . . Whom they set before the apostles: and when they had prayed, they laid their hands on them." From the above we glean the following:

Certain Grecian widows had been neglected. They had not had their share of the funds that were available for that purpose. When the apostles and the multitude found out about this matter the apostles said, "It is not reason that we should leave the word of God, and serve tables." They had their spiritual work to look after, and would not permit anything to come in and hinder that work; and they said, "We will give ourselves continually to prayer, and to the ministry of the word." This shows the reason why they chose the seven to look after the poor widows: so that their spiritual work would not be hindered; and this arrangement also pleased the multitude. If we should follow the apostolic order, and choose seven men who were to do the same work as they did in those days, then we could not choose these from the apostles, prophets, and evangelists: for these would have the same excuse as the apostles had in those days, when they said, "We will give ourselves continually to prayer, and to the ministry of the word."

Some have supposed that the seven were to look after all the finances of the church; the pay of the ministers, the support of the poor, etc., but not a word is said that would give us any such idea; and the Lord does not want us to add to His Word (Rev. 22:18). In fact, that is one reason why there are so many churches at the present time. Some desire to take the Bible as it reads; others are anxious that we take their private construction and interpretation of the Word. If Inspiration does not mean what it says, who is going to tell us what it means?

Both the writings of the apostles and prophets emphasize the importance of looking after the unfortunate, the fatherless, and the widows. Isaiah says, "Learn to do well; seek judgment, relieve the oppressed, judge the fatherless, plead for the widows."—Isaiah 1:17. At the present time, poorhouses and farms have in many places been established by the Government, and the financial support of many of these is kept up out of our taxes. This arrangement makes it less important for the church today to appoint seven to look after this matter. But whether God's professed children are led by the Spirit of the Lord to appoint seven as in the days of the apostles, or not, it is certain that we, as far as we can, should have a special interest in the people who suffer for lack of food and clothing. The beloved Apostle says, "Whoso hath this world's good, and seeth his brother have need, and shutteth up his bowels of compassion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him? . . . Let us not love in word, neither in tongue; but in deed and in truth."—1 John 3:17, 18.

"It is not reason that we should leave the word of God, and serve tables." This statement was made by the apostles. If it were not proper that these men, who had their spiritual work to look after, should be appointed as part of the seven to see to it that the Grecian widows had proper food for their tables, it certainly would not be advisable for any of our ministers to be appointed for that work in our day; for the field is great, and the laborers are few.

J. F. Jensen in The Bible Advocate

(Note: Mrs. Orpha Sanford, formerly chairman of the Berean Relief Committee, now conducts independent relief work among the poor of the Church of God. She would be pleased to receive contributions. Her address is 1030 Warren Ave., Downers Grove, Ill.)

—0—
 "Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you."—Matthew 5:44.

DOES CHRIST'S COMING INTEREST YOU?

Continued from Front Page

the door."

If the tenets of Modernism lead its devotees to conclude that they have no "interest" in the greatest doctrine of the New Testament, the doctrine that has been the hope of godly men all through the centuries, we say we have no time for Modernism. "By their fruits ye shall know them."—Signs of the Times.

THE WORK OF THE SEVEN

IN the sixth chapter of the Acts of the Apostles, we read about seven men chosen by the disciples to look after the poor. Two classes of people who needed charity are mentioned—some widows of the Hebrews and Grecians. The latter had been neglected; and as soon as the attention of the multitude was called to this fact, they were pleased to have seven men chosen to look after this matter. Both the apostles and the rest of the people knew that there should be a just distribution of the poor fund; and to this end certain men were chosen so that the support of these Grecian widows would not be neglected. There is a lesson for us in that. Paul says, "For I mean not that other men be eased, and ye burdened."—2 Cor. 8:13. God's people are pleased to divide with their fellow men. When our hearts are changed by the divine power, we do not like to see anyone suffer. Love says, "You and yours"; selfishness says, "Me and mine." If any man has not the Spirit of Christ, he does not belong to the Lord. Charity suffereth long and is kind. The apostolic church showed their love in appointing seven men to look after the poor widows.

The Scripture reads thus: "There arose a murmuring of the Grecians against the Hebrews, because their widows were neglected in the daily ministrations. Then the twelve called the multitude of the disciples unto them, and said, It is not reason that we should leave the word of God, and serve tables. Wherefore, brethren, look ye out among you seven men of honest report, full of the Holy Ghost and wisdom, whom we may appoint over this business. But we will give ourselves continually to prayer, and to the ministry of the word. And the saying pleased the whole multitude: and they chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Ghost, and Philip . . . Whom they set before the apostles: and when they had prayed, they laid their hands on them." From the above we glean the following:

Certain Grecian widows had been neglected. They had not had their share of the funds that were available for that purpose. When the apostles and the multitude found out about this matter the apostles said, "It is not reason that we should leave the word of God, and serve tables." They had their spiritual work to look after, and would not permit anything to come in and hinder that work; and they said, "We will give ourselves continually to prayer, and to the ministry of the word." This shows the reason why they chose the seven to look after the poor widows: so that their spiritual work would not be hindered; and this arrangement also pleased the multitude. If we should follow the apostolic order, and choose seven men who were to do the same work as they did in those days, then we could not choose these from the apostles, prophets, and evangelists: for these would have the same excuse as the apostles had in those days, when they said, "We will give ourselves continually to prayer, and to the ministry of the word."

Some have supposed that the seven were to look after all the finances of the church; the pay of the ministers, the support of the poor, etc., but not a word is said that would give us any such idea; and the Lord does not want us to add to His Word (Rev. 22:18). In fact, that is one reason why there are so many churches at the present time. Some desire to take the Bible as it reads; others are anxious that we take their private construction and interpretation of the Word. If Inspiration does not mean what it says, who is going to tell us what it means?

Both the writings of the apostles and prophets emphasize the importance of looking after the unfortunate, the fatherless, and the widows. Isaiah says, "Learn to do well; seek judgment, relieve the oppressed, judge the fatherless, plead for the widows."—Isaiah 1:17. At the present time, poorhouses and farms have in many places been established by the Government, and the financial support of many of these is kept up out of our taxes. This arrangement makes it less important for the church today to appoint seven to look after this matter. But whether God's professed children are led by the Spirit of the Lord to appoint seven as in the days of the apostles, or not, it is certain that we, as far as we can, should have a special interest in the people who suffer for lack of food and clothing. The beloved Apostle says, "Whoso hath this world's good, and seeth his brother have need, and shutteth up his bowels of compassion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him? . . . Let us not love in word, neither in tongue; but in deed and in truth."—1 John 3:17, 18.

"It is not reason that we should leave the word of God, and serve tables." This statement was made by the apostles. If it were not proper that these men, who had their spiritual work to look after, should be appointed as part of the seven to see to it that the Grecian widows had proper food for their tables, it certainly would not be advisable for any of our ministers to be appointed for that work in our day; for the field is great, and the laborers are few.

J. F. Jensen in The Bible Advocate

(Note: Mrs. Orpha Sanford, formerly chairman of the Berean Relief Committee, now conducts independent relief work among the poor of the Church of God. She would be pleased to receive contributions. Her address is 1030 Warren Ave., Downers Grove, Ill.)

—0—
 "Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you."—Matthew 5:44.

DOES CHRIST'S COMING INTEREST YOU?

Continued from Front Page

the door."

If the tenets of Modernism lead its devotees to conclude that they have no "interest" in the greatest doctrine of the New Testament, the doctrine that has been the hope of godly men all through the centuries, we say we have no time for Modernism. "By their fruits ye shall know them."—Signs of the Times.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 23

OREGON, ILLINOIS, JULY 10, 1934

NUMBER 41

Do You Know the Answer?

By Mary A. Gesin

AS RECENTLY as ten days ago at this writing, there met in the city of London a great assemblage of the foremost leaders of practically every religious denomination in the world. The paramount objective of this gathering was to arrive at some solution of the problems confronting the nations of earth with respect to disarmament.

No less a dignitary of a great church than the Archbishop of Canterbury declared this to be the "most critical hour in history." And he has issued a solemn appeal for peace among the nations. "For," he warned, "sinister forces are at work imperiling civilization itself."

With the Archbishop, all thinking people are agreed in his assertion. The great need and desire of mankind today is a sense of security. But suspicion, mistrust, and fear are so widespread throughout all nations that their governments are practically paralyzed. Lasting peace is further from their borders than in any preceding period of history.

"We cannot forget," urged this great religious leader, "that by the Treaty of Versailles in 1919, limitation and reduction of armaments were imposed upon a certain nation in order to render possible the initiation of a general limitation of the armaments of all nations." And he rightly feels that their governments can no longer acquiesce in the neglect of the moral obligation involved in such a treaty.

The true child of God has at his command the wisdom of the omniscient One. Opening the pages of the Book of Truth he learns that "nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom: and there shall be famines, and pestilences, and earthquakes, in divers places. All these are the beginning of sorrows."

Though all this and much greater distress shall prevail over the face of the earth, the faithful are counselled not to be troubled but to lift up their heads, for their redemption draws near. And "he that shall endure unto the end, the same shall be saved."

"They that feared the Lord spake often one to another: and the Lord hearkened, and heard, and a book of remembrance was written before him for them that feared the Lord, and that thought upon his name."

The great leaders at this gathering perceive on the horizon indications that the "reason and conscience of mankind are moving toward acceptance of the principle" of the brotherhood of man, which, in their opinion, is the only condition that will bring peace. But the student of God's Word knows that "iniquity shall abound"; "the love of many shall wax cold"; and "evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse."

Thus has God chosen "the foolish things of the world to confound the wise." For the "foolishness" of God is stronger than the "wisdom" of men, and He will "bring to nothing the understanding of the prudent," that "no flesh should glory in his presence."

That sense of security which all men are seeking is for you and me by the simple expedient of accepting it from the hands of the omnipotent Ruler of the universe. Now, today, it is ours. We need not wait until our Savior comes to bring peace to the troubled nations. He extends to us a "peace which passeth all understanding."

The faithful know that "in the last days perilous times shall come," but they are not seriously disturbed, because "the steps of a good man are ordered by the Lord: and though he fall, he shall not be utterly cast down." True wisdom, then, is found not in the philosophy of men, but in the simple truths of God's Book.

May we embrace every opportunity for collective and individual study and communion with our heavenly Father, at home, in our places of worship, at our Bible schools and conferences. Thus shall we find true peace and security, which all men crave. The weightiest problems, if unanswerable to us, will be left in the hands of the great Judge, resting assured that He will do all things well. For we know that in Him and in His Son are hid "all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge."

Better than all these, through the searching of the pages of His holy Word we may find eternal salvation when our Savior appears and brings with Him everlasting peace.

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879.

G. Eldred Marsh, Editor

Two Dollars per Year

Paul C. Johnson, Associate Editor

"Then they that feared the Lord spake often one to another: and the Lord hearkened, and heard it, and a book of remembrance was written before him for them that feared the Lord, and that thought upon his name."—Malachi 3:16.

THE PRAYER OF LIFE

Father, to whom men pray: "Thy will Be done," who sayest: "Thou shalt not kill!"
Who lovest all, who seest all,
Who markest every sparrow's fall,
Who helpest the ant to bear her load,
Who showest the homing dove her road,
Who lovest all that Thou hast made,
How wilt Thou answer men that prayed:
"Thy will be done"? Have they no fear
Who hold so cheap what God holds dear?
—Oliver Herford in Christian Science Monitor.

THE OLD RUGGED CROSS

THE other day I heard the highly cultured wife of a clergyman lamenting the popularity of certain religious songs which are familiar to everybody, and among them was "The Old Rugged Cross," which she declared represented them all. Her objection to these "songs of the masses" was that they were lacking in depth of meaning, in dignity of expression, and that their musical settings were often frivolous.

No doubt the literary and musical critics everywhere would agree that all this was true of popular religious hymnology. And many of us who do not possess a Litt. D. or a Mus. D. to attach to our names would concur. But at the same time it must not be forgotten that the purpose of religious singing is to express the spiritual emotions of those who take part in the service of the church, the majority of whom do not "feel" in the "highbrow" terms of the intelligensia, but rather in the simpler manner of childhood. The spiritual reactions of the one group are no less deep than those of the other, and the less cultured will probably exercise a greater degree of faith in God than the more intellectual.

"Not many wise men after the flesh" are called by the simple appeal of the gospel, but it reaches the hearts and transforms the lives of thousands of God's dear children who do not know the meaning of classical literature, nor appreciate the splendor of the profounder musical compositions, but whose hope and faith, whose joys and sorrows, find a satisfactory outlet in the simple songs they love.

CHANGES IN THE CONSTITUTION

AT the last General Conference a committee was appointed to revise the constitutions of the General Conference and the National Bible Institution in order that the operation of the latter might be simplified, and certain statements clarified and made more definite regarding the purpose of the two organizations.

The work of the committee is progressing rapidly and will be ready for final revision when its members meet for consultation the first week of the conference.

Advance information regarding the changes contemplated indicates that no radical alterations will be recommended, but only such as will meet with general approval and which are obviously necessary. These changes will have to do principally with two matters, that of facilitating the transaction of business by the Executive Board, and that of stating more fully and clearly the fundamental purposes of the organization.

To meet the latter need, additional texts are suggested which it is thought will express more definitely the generally held belief of the Church of God regarding the nature and origin of Christ, the destiny of the wicked, the return of Israel, and the kingdom of God.

Of course, everyone is aware that the brief scriptural quotations which are used in the constitution to express the purpose of the organization are by no means designed as a "creed" or even as a "statement of faith," but simply as an outline of biblical subjects which it is the desire of the brotherhood to strongly emphasize "by print and voice," and agreement on which forms the basis of our united effort.

Regarding the simplifying of the business processes of the Institution a recommendation will be made that the formal compliance of the Advisory Board, which consists of the presidents of the state conferences and the President of the National Berean Society, will not be required in the consummation of contracts, deeds, and other legal instruments. The Advisory Board is widely scattered, and it is difficult to reach each of its members by letter, explain the problem fully, allow time for thoughtful consideration, and obtain their signatures to documents that must be exchanged at a given date in order to fulfill the conditions of the transaction.

Other minor changes in wording are also suggested,

Washed, Sanctified, Justified

By Harvey Krogh, Jr.

"These are they which came out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb."—Revelation 7:14.

SHORTLY after the children of Israel had been delivered from the Egyptian bondage God began to prepare that nation so that He might dwell in their midst in the wilderness through which they were to pass. First He called Moses up into the mountain and instructed him in all the things concerning the tabernacle and the sacrifices and sin offerings and all the laws and ceremonies. Now we know from Paul's letter to the Hebrew brethren that all of these things were patterns and types and shadows of the future, when God will again dwell among men and will be their God and they will be His people.

Going back to Exodus 40:12, 13, we find some of the instruction given Moses. "And thou shalt bring Aaron and his sons unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, and wash them with water. And thou shalt put upon Aaron the holy garments, and anoint him, and sanctify him; that he may minister unto me in the priest's office." Aaron the high priest is a type of Christ, the true high priest; and Aaron's sons, along with the other priests, may be said to represent the church, who shall be coworkers with Christ. Aaron's sons were washed and sanctified and cleansed as a preparation for the work they were to perform.

We, like Aaron's sons, are also washed, according to the words of praise by John the revelator. "Unto him that loved us, and washed us from our sins in his own blood, and hath made us kings and priests unto God and his Father; to him be glory and dominion for ever and ever. Amen."—Rev. 1:5, 6. "If we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin."—1 John 1:7. Really cleanses us from all sin? Yes! Even future as well as past if we continue in the faith. Cleansed! Clean! "And you, that were sometime alienated and enemies in your mind by wicked works, yet now hath he reconciled in the body of his flesh through death, to present you holy and unblameable and unproveable in his sight: if ye continue in the faith grounded and settled, and be not moved away from the hope of the gospel."—Col. 1:21-23.

It's a wonderful feeling to be holy and unblameable and unapproachable in the eyes of one that we love, and how much more wonderful it is to be clean in God's sight. And we all can be through His Son Jesus. "But ye are washed, but ye are sanctified, but ye are justified in the name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of our God."—1 Cor. 6:11. Paul named some of the worst kinds of sinners in the preceding verses: thieves, covetous, drunkards, revilers; and said they would not inherit the kingdom of God; but he also said, "And such were some of you." Corinth was what may be called a double seaport city where the scum of the earth gathered, but with all its wickedness some were washed and sanctified and justified, made holy, made pure, who were impure and defiled.

To the Ephesians Paul wrote concerning Christ and the church: "That he might sanctify and cleanse it with the washing of water by the word, that he might present it to himself a glorious church."—Eph. 5:26, 27.

Jesus prayed to the Father: "Sanctify them through thy truth: thy word is truth. As thou hast sent me into the world, even so have I also sent them into the world. And for their sakes I sanctify myself, that they also might be sanctified through the truth."—John 17:17-19. So we are washed and cleansed by His blood and sanctified by the word which He gave us. Now if we are sanctified we shall be like our Master and be kings and priests, "for both he that sanctifieth and they who are sanctified are all of one: for which cause he is not ashamed to call them brethren" (Heb. 2:11). By the will of God "we are sanctified through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once for all . . . For by one offering he hath perfected for ever them that are sanctified" (Heb. 10:10, 14).

You were one time sinners, "but ye are washed, but ye are sanctified, but ye are justified." Pardoned! Declared just, who were unjust! Accounted as innocent!

Christ is the one in whom we must trust; "and by him all that believe are

Time Will Reveal

Some time when all life's lessons have been learned,
And sun and stars for evermore
have set,
The things which our weak judgments
here have spurned,
The things o'er which we grieved with lashes wet,
Will flash before us out of life's dark night,
As stars shine most in deeper tints of blue,
And we shall see how all God's plans are right,
And how what seemed reproof was love most true.

But not today. Then be content, poor heart!
God's plans, like lilies pure and white, unfold.
We must not tear the close-shut
leaves apart,
Time will reveal the calyxes of gold.
And if through patient toil we reach the land
Where tired feet, with sandals loose, may rest,
Where we shall clearly see and understand,
We think that we will say, "God knew the best."

—Lida Pearce Bell.

justified from all things, from which ye could not be justified by the law of Moses" (Acts 13:39). What could you be justified for by the law? "By the deeds of the law there shall no flesh be justified in his sight: for by the law is the knowledge of sin."—Romans 3:20. "Being now justified by his blood, we shall be saved from wrath through him."—Rom. 5:9.

Some people in the Middle Ages misunderstood this blessed truth of being forgiven and being justified for sins and sold what were called "letters of indulgence," or literally permits to sin and promises of divine forgiveness by the one who wrote the letters. We must not misinterpret the Scriptures. We cannot justify; only the Lord can do that. "He that justifieth the wicked, and he that condemneth the just, even they both are abomination to the Lord."—Prov. 17:15.

In Romans 8:30 we find more concerning being justified. "Moreover whom he did predestinate, them he also called: and whom he called, them he also justified: and whom he justified, them he also glorified." There is that word "predestinate" that so often bothers us and sometimes gives us a feeling that we are not fully accountable for all our actions because we are predestinated to do some of those things. Let us see in verse 29 to what extent we are predestinated. "For whom he did foreknow, he also did predestinate to be conformed to the image of his Son." That is as far as we are predestinated. For those that God foreknew would believe, He had already planned a destiny. He that believeth is destined to be saved. He that is sanctified and justified is destined to be like Christ and have a position as a priest and king with Him. Even as it is a predetermined result, he that (Please turn to Page Nine)

She Gave Her God the Best

By Lyman Booth

ONLY a mother can fully understand this pathetic incident. An officer in the army some years ago was walking along the banks of the Ganges, the sacred river, when he heard behind him a moan of agony. He turned around, and there before him was a Hindu mother, with two children. One was a lovely boy, the other a puny, weak, miserable little girl. He asked what was the matter.

The answer of the poor woman was, "The gods are angry with me."

"Why?" he said.

"Because they have given me this miserable little girl."

He replied, "But you have that boy."

All she would say was, "The gods are angry."

He passed on, not knowing what the woman meant.

Presently he returned. There was the same woman, the same little girl. But where was the boy? Thrown into the Ganges! She had given the fruit of her body for the sin of her soul.

He turned to her in astonishment, and said, "Surely if you had to give one, you could have given the girl?"

Listen to her answer: "Sahib, do you think I would give my god anything but the best?"

Her religion broke her heart. Ours binds up the broken-hearted, comforts those that mourn, wipes tears from off all faces. Yet which of us has given the best?

"The heathen in their blindness bow down to wood and stone" and cast their children into the river as food for crocodiles, to appease the wrath of their gods. In this they display a firmness of belief and devotion second only to the faith of Abraham, the difference being in the foundation upon which each belief rests. Abraham relied upon the commands and promises of Jehovah; the heathen follow a custom which sprang up in the dawn of antiquity. But why this difference? What is the force in that form of so-called religion that can overpower a mother's love for her child and cause her to sacrifice it in order to maintain the favor of her god? She evidently thinks she is doing right; else she would refrain from doing it. Is it what people in more enlightened nations call conscience? Some attribute it to the dictates of conscience. Even so, how is one to know whether or not his conscience is leading people aright? In practice it is the result of doing that which we have always been taught is right. It is that which gives peace of mind to the extent that people say, "My conscience is clear." But in plain English we may say it is the result of education. If one has been educated to steal, he can steal without any remorse of conscience. He can still say, "My conscience is clear." Thus we see that an error in education begets an evil conscience.

When Paul was persecuting the church of God, he truly thought he was doing right. He said, "I verily thought with myself, that I ought to do many things contrary to the name of Jesus of Nazareth, which thing I also did in Jerusalem: and many of the saints did I shut up in prison, having received authority from the chief priests; and when they were put to death, I gave my voice against them." His conscience was clear, but his acts were entirely wrong. His prejudices had been bitter and his hostility virulent toward Christ and His disciples. Thus he narrates how with a conscientious enmity he had persecuted, imprisoned, and put to death those he now knew to be saints.

Thus we learn that conscience is not a safe rule by which a correct judgment can be formed. The only safe standard to follow is the Word of God. It is sure and steadfast and will give eternal life to whoever faithfully obeys it, and in receiving it men must give God their best.

Sound Doctrine

By D. G. Harvey

PAUL, when writing to Titus, giving him directions in the work, says, "But speak thou the things which become sound doctrine."—Titus 2:1. Again, in writing to Timothy, the same great writer says, "For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine; but after their own lusts shall they heap to themselves teachers, having itching ears."—2 Tim. 4:3.

But what is sound doctrine? The above texts are quoted by ministers regardless of what their doctrine or creed may be, to show that anyone who does not agree with their teaching is the one who has turned away his ears from the truth.

Surely Paul has not left us in darkness. If we understand his use of the word "sound," he means "free from flaw," a "reasonable" doctrine. Let us see. "Holding fast the faithful word as he hath been taught, that he may be able by sound (reasonable) doctrine both to exhort and to convince the gainsayers."—Titus 1:9. Again, let us get Peter's thoughts on the subject: "But sanctify the Lord God in your hearts: and be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you with meekness and fear ("reverence," margin)."

Paul knew by inspiration that strange doctrines would soon come into the early church, for he warns the Roman brethren: "Now I beseech you, brethren, mark them which cause division and offences contrary to the doctrine which ye have learned (What had been the teachings of Paul? "To speak evil of no man, to be no brawlers, but gentle, shewing all meekness unto all men."—Titus 3:2); and avoid them. (Why?) For they that are such serve not our Lord Jesus Christ, but their own belly (desires); and by good words and fair speeches deceive the hearts of the simple."—Rom. 16:17, 18.

Paul also warns against foolish, unreasonable, strange doctrines of men. "Be not carried about with divers and strange doctrines."—Heb. 13:9. "And this I say, lest any man should beguile you with enticing words . . . Beware lest any man spoil you through philosophy and vain deceit, after the tradition of men, after the rudiments of the world, and not after Christ."—Col. 2:4, 8. "Not giving heed to Jewish fables, and commandments of men, that turn from the truth."—Titus 1:14.

But the early church did not heed Paul's warning, for since the death of the early leaders these fables, traditions of men, have stolen into the church, until today the church is stumbling in darkness, led by blind leaders of the blind; until today we find this condition spoken of by our Lord:

"Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things."—Philippians 4:8.

"This people draweth nigh unto me with their mouth, and honoureth me with their lips; but their heart is far from me. But in vain they do worship me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men."—Matthew 15:8, 9.

Let us turn to Isaiah, for the Lord was quoting the Prophet at this time, and find the reason for all these people who wander from God. "Therefore, behold, I will proceed to do a marvellous work among this people, even a marvellous work and a wonder: for the wisdom of their wise men shall perish, and the understanding of their prudent men shall be hid."—Isa. 29:14.

If you will but turn to this chapter of Isaiah you will note the reference to a sealed book. How often have you heard the saying, "No one can understand the Bible"? To the wise men of today it is foolishness. You can gain a better understanding from some old grandmother who has studied her Bible in the long years, meek, humble, and patient, than from the worldly-wise preacher of today who understands science and philosophy, but knows very little about God's wonderful Book.

There is one more doctrine Paul calls our attention to. "Now the Spirit speaketh expressly, that in the latter times some shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits, and doctrines of devils."—1 Tim. 4:1.

Surely no one need question that doctrine; no one would accept the devil's teaching. Yet millions today, like Mother Eve, are deceived by the same doctrine of the devil: "Ye shall not surely die."—Gen. 3:4. Our Lord tells us, "He (the devil) is a liar, and the father of it."—John 8:44.

Is it in reason to accept the teaching of Satan when you have seen death come to your family and friends? For despite the false hope held out, reason itself proves to you they are dead.

Let us, then, turn from the strange doctrines of men and devils. Let us break the seal of the sealed book; surely it can be understood. How often have you read, "Hear, and understand."—Matt. 15:10. "Whoso readeth, let him understand."—Matt. 24:15.

If we are to know "sound doctrine," doctrine that is reason, without fault, we must find it in the inspired Book of books. "Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth."—2 Tim. 2:15. "Examine yourselves, whether ye be in the faith; prove your own selves."—2 Cor. 13:5. Do not just examine others; put the test to yourself. "And ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8:32.

Mary Hath Chosen the Better Part

MARTHA was a good housekeeper, industrious and careful of her guests, endeavoring to be faithful in her duties as a hostess. Such qualities were commendable and merit praise. Yet, important as such duties were, there was a better thing to do.

It all happened this way. One day Jesus entered a certain village, and a certain woman named Martha received Him into her house. She had a sister called Mary. So as hostess, Martha went about preparing to take care of her guest. Good meals were to be fixed and the house put in its best shape, and everything done to provide for the comfort of the guests; so Martha was cumbered with the work to be done. Luke 10:38-42.

While Martha was working hard to attend to things, Mary, her sister, stopped to talk with Jesus, and sat listening to His conversation. Martha needed help, and thought it more important to get the work done, so she said to Jesus, "Lord, dost thou not care that my sister hath left me to serve alone? bid her therefore that she help me." Jesus answered and said, "Martha, Martha, thou art careful and troubled about many things: but one thing is needful: and Mary hath chosen that good part, which shall not be taken away from her."

Now what did Jesus mean? He admitted Martha was careful and industrious in her duties, as concerning the home life; but He said there was a thing more needful or necessary and Mary had chosen it, which was a good part that should not be taken away. What was Mary doing? Just sitting at the feet of Jesus, listening to His words. Why should that be more important than the duties of life, and in so doing should we be idle and neglectful? Not by any means. Proverbs 31:10-30 describes a virtuous woman, and says she is more valuable than rubies. It tells of her labor from dawn to close of day, her industry and concern for her household. Verse 27 says, "She looketh well to the ways of her household, and eateth not the bread of idleness."

While endorsing such qualities in Martha, Jesus said one thing was needful; and Mary had chosen it. Mary took time from her round of duties to be interested in the things of eternal or future life. We may toil every moment through this life, doing the duties necessary in it, but if we fail to consider the conditions of the future life, and prepare for it, then all our labor is in vain. You see, the sinner will be destroyed (Psalm 37:20; Rom. 6:23; Ezek. 18:4), but the righteous shall inherit eternal life (Psalm 37:29). There are a way and things to do to gain the future life (Matt. 19:17; Rev. 22:14); but if we neglect to do so, we fail in our duties to God. We have homes and families. It is our duty to take care, and provide for the home and family. We have a heavenly Father, God, who gives us life and provides for us, so we have a duty toward God as well as to our families, and as this duty is vital to future life it is needful and a better part to be faithful in it.

Let us notice a few statements of Jesus; then we can understand His reply to Martha. Luke 4:4: "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word of God." Bread is the staff of life. Man eats and drinks many times a day to sustain life, and God's words, by which man may gain a resurrection to a better life at the appointed day, are truly the bread of life, by which he may live. And Jesus, when teaching how to pray to our Father, said: "Give us this day our daily bread" (Luke 11:3-13; John 4:14). John 6:51: "I am the living bread." Peter said (John 6:68), "Thou hast the words of eternal life." Jeremiah 15:16: "Thy words were found, and I did eat them; and thy word was unto me the joy and rejoicing of mine heart."

God's law is His instructions to His children—His condition whereby an inheritance may be gained in His eternal kingdom, and is indeed the very bread and drink of life. Jesus shows the great importance of the words He spoke in the following texts, and how the duties of everyday life, while important and necessary to attend to, yet are a source of danger to everyone. In the parable of the seed (Matt. 13:3-8), the gospel of salvation is compared to seed sown in the ground, which comes up and grows, according to the soil it is in. Verse 22 says the seed among thorns is "he that heareth the word," but the cares of life and deceitfulness of riches choke the seed, and it withers and dies. And this is true. . . .

In Matthew 6:16-34 Jesus says to consider the fowls of the air, the lilies of the field, and how God takes care of them, many as they are. If God can do so great a task, cannot He also care for man? "Take therefore no thought for the morrow"—but seek ye first the kingdom of God, and His righteousness, above all, and when we do that faithfully our daily needs will be added unto us. The righteousness of the kingdom of heaven comes first, above the duties of life; and in attaining it God cares and provides the daily needs. He provides health, food, raiment, shelter, and prospers man's labors, giving peace, love, hope, comfort, and faith. . . .

It is necessary to eat our spiritual food daily, to obey God every day as well as to eat material food to live. So Jesus praised Martha for her dutifulness and concern about the home, but said Mary had chosen a better part when she took time to make Jesus a part of her time.

This life is short and uncertain at its best. The life to come will never pass away, so if we follow Mary's example and sit at the feet of Jesus each day, giving heed to God's counsel and precepts, that good part shall not be taken away. By cultivation and carefulness the seed sown by the sower of the field, Jesus, will grow and flourish to a goodly plant, fit to adorn the Eden restored when Jesus comes.

Reader, the lesson is for you and me; which course do we adopt? Martha's or Mary's? Will it be, at the reaping day, tares for the fire or wheat for the barn? The choice is ours; and as we make the effort, so will it be. Delay is fatal. God says, "Remember," which means, do not forget.

Sitting at the feet of Jesus;
 Oh, what words I hear Him say!
 Happy place, so near, so precious,
 May it find me there each day.

What shall it profit you and me if we gain the whole world and lose the life to come? Worshiping of mammon, the pursuits of the things of this life, neglecting God, and disobeying Him, have brought the harvest of trouble and perplexity to all the world that now exists. God is forgotten, His law trampled on, and there is no peace to the sinner. Let us heed Jesus—seek first God's ways; then He will take care of us (Matt. 6:33; 19:17; Rev. 22:14).

—W. R. Peterson in The Bible Advocate.

Caleb's Confidence in God

WHY does anyone have confidence in God? For the same reason, and on the same grounds, that he has confidence in any person he knows. The man of business has confidence in his associates because of what he hears about their honesty and integrity, their carefulness in business affairs, their soundness of personal living. He adds to this the confidence that is begotten of what he knows about them from his own experience. If the reports tally with his experience, his confidence is assured. The human race has confidence in motherhood because, first, as children we have learned to trust our mothers on account of their goodness; and, second, the reports we have from others indicate the same experience on their part. The same human faculties are used to create our confidence in God. We trust Him because in our childhood we were taught that He is good, and that, in the Scriptures and elsewhere, He has uniformly done good to all men. As we grow older, this teaching is fulfilled in our obedience to God's will, and our confidence grows by trusting God and finding Him trustworthy.

It is no wonder to find that Caleb's faith in God was similarly grounded. It was based, first, on what he had heard about God. As a trusted leader under Moses, he must have heard that great man tell the leaders of Israel how God had called him, at the bush, from keeping sheep to deliver Israel from bondage. Caleb must have been the heir of the religious history of his folk, with the stories of the promise to Abraham, the saving of the people under Joseph, and all the rest. Every story of his people must have led him to have confidence in God.

This trust was apparently strengthened by what he himself had seen and heard. To see the people delivered at the Red Sea, when Pharaoh's army was drowned; to be sustained by the miraculous manna, and later by the flight of quails; to drink of the water brought from the rock by Moses' rod; above all, to stand at the foot of Sinai and receive from Moses the majestic code which the lawgiver had from God—such experiences must have deepened his trust in God. Furthermore, Caleb's faith was a personal matter to him. Some commentators suppose that he was a proselyte to Judaism from the Edomites. Whether this was true or not, Caleb trusted God for himself. No less than five times in Joshua 14:6-14 does Caleb use the expression, "Jehovah spake unto me." Once he links it with Joshua, the other four referring to himself alone. He had appropriated to himself personally the promises of God. His confidence in God was based, as yours and mine today, on the twofold foundation of the reports of others and his own experience.

But why did not the other Israelites have a similar confidence in God? They heard the same reports, and underwent in general the same experiences as Caleb; but they lacked his simple confidence. The answer lies in the correct understanding of God's dealings with men. He has determined that He will compel no one to trust Him. The same evidences are given to all—the reports of friends and parents, the loving support and provision for material needs, and, finally and greatest of all, the salvation which is in Christ Jesus. In response to these we may be, like Caleb, full of confidence, or we may be, like the other Israelites, skeptical and doomed to die. That some are lost despite the evidence is sad, but the choice is their own. God compels no one to trust Him.

Caleb not only said he trusted God; he acted the part as well. The first time his confidence became active was on the occasion of the momentous expedition of the spies into Canaan (Num. 13). Moses had led the people to the southern border of the Promised Land, some two years after they departed from Egypt. From Kadesh-barnea he sent out twelve men, a representative from each tribe, into Canaan, to spy out the land. Moses seems to have had two purposes in mind. First, he wanted to have some first-hand information as to the sort of country God had promised the people—its fruitfulness and its ability to support them. Second, he desired to find out what was the possibility of success in an armed invasion. He received a dramatic answer to both questions.

The spies answered the first question by bringing back a cluster of grapes slung on a pole between two of them, thus supporting their report that it was a "land flowing with milk and honey." As to the second question, they said at once that it was not possible for them to take the land.

"We looked like grasshoppers in the sight of the people, and so did we in our own sight," they said. "We cannot take it, for they are stronger than we." Some of them tried to comfort themselves with the old report of "sour grapes," adding, "It is a land that devours its inhabitants." But most of them rent their clothes and wept. They denounced Moses and Aaron; they bewailed the day they had left their slavery; they even started a movement to slay Moses, elect a new captain, and return to Egypt. Probably they would have done so, had not God intervened to protect the leaders (Num. 13:31 to 14:10).

At this time Caleb's confidence in God took a concrete form. Only he and Joshua, of all the adults in the nation, believed that they could go up and take the land. "If Jehovah delight in us," he said, "then he will bring us into this land, and give it unto us. . . . Do not fear the people of the land: . . . their defence is removed from over them, and Jehovah is with us: fear them not" (Num. 14: 8, 9).

See now the mighty results of confidence in God. His purpose in allowing Moses to send the spies was not the purpose of Moses. God did not desire to learn whether the land was ready for them; He knew that already. He did desire to see whether they were ready for the land, and the answer was decisive. They were still a nation of slaves at heart, fit only for servitude. It was for the new generation to enter the Promised Land. Hence, God placed the penalty upon them, not arbitrary, but eminently just. This penalty might be stated briefly in the following sentence which was placed upon the children of Israel: "You must wander in the wilderness until every adult shall die, and your children shall inherit the land." For the complete penalty the student is referred to Numbers 14:28-35. The children, free-born and desert bred, might be better material for use in the task of conquering the promised territory.

As for Caleb and Joshua, they were spared this dreadful fate. They alone of the heads of houses were allowed to survive the wilderness and enter the land. The basic difference between them and their companions was their confidence in God. All twelve spies found in Canaan the same sky, streams, hills, plains, and people. These things inspired them with hope or dismay exactly in proportion to their confidence in God—and that they took along with them. The ten reported that they could not conquer the land—and they were correct. Caleb and Joshua reported that, with God, they could conquer the land—and they were correct, also. Confidence in God was the basic difference. It is a true saying, "One man, with God, is always a majority."

From this experience, where he exercised his faith in God, Caleb gained two things. First was the promise of survival and inheritance; second was increased confidence in God; and the second of these was the greater. With him, trust in God was not a momentary thought; it was a life-long attitude.

Joshua 14 brings before us what Caleb's confidence had done for him. "By their fruits" is a fair test of any proposition.

A first benefit was the assurance of better things in store. God had promised him two things—that he should survive, and that he should inherit the land. The daily fulfillment of the one promise led him to confidence in the ultimate fulfillment of the other. That which seemed a delay of forty-five years was, to him, the constant fulfilling of God's promise of survival. His life was nurtured on installments of promise fulfilled. The life built on the promise of God has in the happy present the guarantee of the better future.

Again, Caleb found that, in trusting God, he had built a life worth looking back on. Such a looking back as we find Caleb engaged in throughout Joshua 14 is the common practice of the aged; but how often there is nothing of value to look back on! Too many lives, hearkening back through the years, give the vista only of what Abraham saw concerning Sodom: "All the smoke of the land arose like the smoke of a furnace." How pitiful the life which at its close leaves only the ashes of bitter remorse! A prime blessing of the godly life is the happy backward view of a life well spent.

A third fruit of Caleb's confidence in God was his discovery of the secret of perpetual youth. Part of that result was physical; for it is well known that the faith, temperance, self-control, and cheerfulness begotten from godliness are powerful aids to longevity. But, aside from this, eternal youth is more a matter of the spirit than of the body. One is old only when he feels that the most and the best of life is behind him. But Caleb felt that the best of his life lay before him, in receiving the inheritance. His confidence in God had discovered to him what Ponce de Leon sought in vain—the secret of remaining young. So may we all renew our youth.

And last, and perhaps greatest, Caleb's confidence in God fitted him to the very end for a career of danger and enterprise. He comes before us in the chapter from Joshua we have mentioned at the age of eighty-five, a time when most men are willing to retire and let younger men bear the danger and endure the toil. He had survived the years of hardship in the wilderness and the active campaign under Joshua. Now he asks for an added task—the subjugation of an inheritance.

The task he asked for was especially difficult. The town of Hebron was in the hill country; it was well fortified; it was supported by the other towns of its league; and, most of all, it was defended by the "Anakim." One of their descendants was Goliath of Gath, whose mighty bulk filled the Jews of a later day with the most intense terror. Despite the difficulties of advanced age, strongly fortified cities, and powerful foes, Caleb calmly remarks that God is with him and that he has no doubt of the outcome.

The basis of his confidence was simple: God had promised it, therefore it was assured. The experiences of forty-five years riveted his faith on Him who promises and whose Word is immutable.

What a lesson for us! The church needs men like

Caleb, who look forward with eagerness to the battle. Never have the attacks on the things of Christ been so intense as now. A host of foes, ranging from indifference and love of ease to blatant unbelief and arrogant atheism, are abroad in the land. Social evils, long intrenched and boldly defiant, await the attack of the Christian. To offset their might, he has only the resource of Caleb—confidence in God. The times are ripe for Calebs who, secure in that confidence, will go forward to expel the Anakim from the inheritance and possess it for Christ and the church.

Caleb was not the lawgiver—that task was for Moses. He was not the general—that was for Joshua. He was neither priest nor Levite. Those duties were well performed by men equipped for the task. Caleb was the quiet soldier, content to do his duty well, and distinguished by his serene confidence in God. The church needs Calebs today.

—Standard Bible Teacher, copyrighted; reprinted by permission.

WASHED, SANCTIFIED, JUSTIFIED

Continued from Page Four

puts his hand in the fire will get it burned.

We nearly forgot our text. "These are they which came out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb." Did you notice that these came out of great tribulation and they were the ones who did the washing of "their own robes," as some translations give it? There is a difference. We are cleansed by Christ, who loved us and washed us in His own blood. He washed us and we were not asked to wash our robes, but to keep our garments lest we walk naked and they see our shame (Rev. 16:15). Note that Aaron and his sons were washed and had garments put on them. "Let us be glad and rejoice, and give honour to him: for the marriage of the Lamb is come, and his wife hath made herself ready. And to her was granted that she should be arrayed in fine linen, clean and white: for the fine linen is the righteousness of saints."—Rev. 19:7, 8. The bride is to be arrayed in fine linen. She has been in preparation before this. She was washed and sanctified and justified when she accepted the proposal of her Lord. We are the bride if we are prepared when He comes for us.

That group that no man could number which came out of great tribulation had to be in great tribulation in order to come out. They had to wash their own garments because they were not washed before. There is a class, and its number is great, who know there is a Savior; but it will take great tribulation to humble them and open their eyes to accept Him in time to be saved, but too late to be His bride. They are going to suffer many things to prove what they would not prove while things were going smoothly.

Let us again look at these blessed things. Though we have sinned, yet Jesus has cleansed us and sanctified us and justified us. We are set aside and accounted pure and holy and freely pardoned and forgiven for all sins and predestined to be made like our Savior. If we have not taken Jesus Christ as our Savior and have not been baptized into His all-saving name, we are not of that group who are cleansed and forgiven.

May we submit wholly to Him now and prepare ourselves to be His bride while there is yet time.

If we are to covet earnestly the best gifts, we ought certainly to covet the gift of doing our duty to God and man every day quietly, patiently, believingly, in the fear of God and of Him only.—Selected.

WHY JOIN THE CHURCH?

By M. W. Lyon

I OUGHT to belong to the church—Because I ought to be better than I am. Henry Ward Beecher once said: "Church is not a gallery for the exhibition of eminent Christians, but a school for the education of imperfect ones."

I ought to belong to the church—Because of what I can give to it and do through it, as well as because of what I may get out of it. The church is not a dormitory for sleepers; it is an institution of workers. It is not a rest camp; it is a front-line trench.

I ought to belong to the church—Because every man ought to pay his debts and do his share toward discharging the obligations of society. The church has not only been the bearer of good news of personal salvation, it has been and it is the supreme uplifting and conserving agency without which "civilization would lapse into barbarism and press its way to perdition."

I ought to belong to the church—Because of memories; memories of things I can never forget; memories of faces that will never fade; memories of vows that are the glory of youth.

I ought to belong to the church—Because of hope; hope that lives when promises are dead; hope that paves the way for progress; hope that visions peace and social justice; hope for time, and hope for eternity—the great hope that casts its anchor behind Jesus Christ.

I ought to belong to the church—Because of the strong men in it who need reinforcing; the weak men in it who need encouraging; the rascals in it who need rebuking. If I say that I am not good enough, my humility recommends me. If I sit in the seat of the scornful, my inactivity condemns me.

I ought to belong to the church—but not until I am ready to join a going concern; not until I am willing to become an active partner with Jesus Christ.—Golden Rule News.

Abreast of the Times

Encouraging Immorality

"Even as Sodom and Gomorrha, . . . giving themselves over to fornication, and going after strange flesh, are set forth for an example, suffering the vengeance of eternal fire."—Jude 7.

NEW YORK, July 4.—"Nine tenths of all the men I know don't care whether their wives were virgins before they were married," was the assertion made by Dr. Lester W. Dearborn, President of the Massachusetts Society for Social Hygiene, to the two hundred delegates to the Conference on Love and Marriage which came to a close at Teachers' College, Columbia University, today.

The gathering was thrown into an uproar when Dr. Dearborn declared that "continence before marriage, in men or women, does not make for happiness. If my own son or daughter came to me to ask advice I would not advise them against pre-marital relations."

When this open encouragement of immorality was made by the noted hygienist, it was greeted by loud cries both of approval and of disapproval. According to United Press reports of the address, "women in the audience screamed at the physician and shook indignant fingers at him," while others applauded his remarks.

Dr. Robert L. Dickinson, gynecologist, the 70-year old President of the National Maternal Health Association, hurried to the defense of Dr. Dearborn.

"Pre-marital relations," he said, "do not necessarily hurt marriage." In support of his contention he submitted the following results of a national survey: "In 1885 one out of five intelligent men and women had strenuously romantic experiences before wedlock. By 1930 the proportion was one out of three. In 1934, every other young person, man and woman, is not bothering to wait for marriage."

The doctor's bland assertion that such a lowering of the moral standard does not "hurt marriage" is powerfully disproved by the enormous increase in divorces that has taken place during the period cited, 1885 to 1934, many of which can be traced to this cause.

This deplorable condition should stimulate the Church of God everywhere to devote increasing attention to the matter of morality among its own young people—yes, and among the older ones as well. Paul mentions specifically incontinency or unchastity in the long list of sins that in the last days will influence those who "have a form of godliness" but "deny the power thereof."

Immorality and promiscuity have always accompanied the death-throes of a civilization. The warning of James is especially applicable today: "Ye adulterers and adulteresses, know ye not that the friendship of the world is enmity with God? whosoever therefore will be a friend of the world is the enemy of God."—James 4:4.

The Nazi Powder Keg

"Then sudden destruction cometh upon them, . . . and they shall not escape."—1 Thess. 5:3.

BERLIN, Germany, July 6.—The vengeance of God is sure to fall upon the persecutors of His people. No nation, however powerful it may be, can long escape the punishing hand of Israel's God, and it would seem that Germany is to be no exception to this rule. Reports continue to pile up of the increasing numbers slain in the so-called "purging" of the Nazi Party. It is reported that 150 have been shot in Berlin alone and 120 in Munich, with many more in other parts of the country.

Germany is a veritable powder keg which may be set off at any moment, throwing all Europe into war. And so closely connected by commercial interests is Europe with the rest of the world that it is exceedingly doubtful if other continents could long keep out of such a conflict.

Protestants Reluctantly Give Way

"They shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables."—2 Tim. 4:4.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., July 1.—The General Synod of the Reformed Church of America, which met recently in this city, voted 141 to 32 to retain its membership in the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, but at the same time warned the Council that "there is a point beyond which the Reformed Church cannot cooperate." This warning was made because of the extreme liberality in doctrinal teaching shown by the Council, and "its pronouncements are not always welcomed among those of stricter theology."

At this same time the Presbyterians seem on the verge of a denominational split over the newly organized Fundamentalist "Independent Board of Presbyterian Foreign Missions," which was formulated to overcome the modernizing tendencies displayed by such missionaries as Mrs. Buck, a Presbyterian missionary to China, who in a book issued a year or more ago advocated complete disregard for doctrinal teaching in missionary activity.

In an official statement issued by Rev. J. McAllister Griffiths, Secretary of the Independent Board, Rev. Griffiths declared: "We are utterly unable to subscribe to the Modernist propaganda now being carried on and fostered by the Board of Foreign Missions. . . . We rejoice in the knowledge that that propaganda is contrary to the dearest convictions of hosts of earnest Christian people in that (the Presbyterian) church, as well as in other churches."

This seems to be the time for the separating of the tares from the wheat in the religious harvest fields.

Berean Department

ARLEN MARSH, EDITOR

Our Language Dies

THE English language came into existence as an aftermath of the Norse invasion of Anglo-Saxon Britain. Through the centuries, the fusion of the three races, the Angles, Saxons, and Norsemen, and their tongues developed gradually the language which now is admitted to be the most facile and best adapted tongue in the world for literature.

The cause for this admission is that English possesses a wealth of synonyms such as no other language on earth can boast. Scarcely a word in the entire English vocabulary cannot be paralleled by a word of approximately the same meaning. Yet at the same time, it is rare that two words mean exactly the same thing; on the contrary, each word has its own shade of thought which can be expressed by nothing except that word.

As time has passed, new words have come into being and old ones have died. Certain colloquialisms, certain phrases of slang, climb to a riotous heyday and slowly sink from use and memory; and simultaneously words which the dictionaries are willing to grant full place within the English language rise into being, while other words are rendered obsolete.

So it has been in the field of religion. Every church has its own peculiar expressions as its distinct forms and services demand them; but aside from this necessary deviation from the common course, there is a clinging to pet methods of putting forth thought that is neither necessary nor altogether desirable.

Take, for example, the common phrase "the soon coming of Christ." That is not grammatical, and a number of ministers in various denominations are attempting to do away with it altogether on that very ground. Properly, it would be stated "the early coming of Christ."

But this is a minor phase of the whole matter. There is a multitude of oddities in the vocabulary of religion. It is not the grammar of the thing which is important; it is the fact that these oddities, these peculiarities of expression, have become, with the progress of the language, so obsolete as to appear more or less ridiculous to those unfamiliar with the church.

There is, in view of the vast number of words in the English tongue, no reason why the church or its teachings should be made to seem queer in the eyes of the outsider as far as the language employed by the teachers of religion is concerned. There is every reason why the church should endeavor to make its language understandable to the ones it is trying to reach.

Paul, speaking of the inspired "tongues" to which the New Testament frequently refers, observed he would rather say five words in language his hearers could understand than ten thousand words in language they ridiculed because they could not or did not understand.

The same principle holds good today. Although we are not concerned with speaking in the "tongues" mentioned in the Bible, we are concerned with the difficulty of making people outside the church, as well as inside, comprehend the truths taught by the gospel of the Christ.

Men have never been persuaded to follow some one or some creed which they were made to ridicule. Men have followed others whom they at first ridiculed, it is true; but before the leaders' influence could be exerted, it was necessary for them to overcome the laughter and scorn that had been heaped upon them.

As the language of the past has died, the peculiarities in the language of the church should be allowed to die. The church's writing, speaking, and teaching should be done in the language common to the present day, and not in language long since obsolete. The theological twists of speech comprehensible only for the inner circle of the church have no more place with religion's public work.

Illinois Report for May

DIXON: The Dixon Berean Society meets at the Church of God every Wednesday evening at 7:30. The adult class has a membership of 8 and average attendance of 7; the interest is good. The senior class has a membership of 6 and average attendance of 5; the interest is good. The junior class has a membership of 7 and average attendance of 6; the interest is fair.—Mary McClintick, Sec.

MARSHALL: The Marshall Berean Society meets at the Salem Church every Wednesday night at 8:00. We have a membership of 30 and average weekly attendance of 32. The interest is good.—Edna Wood, Sec.

Edna H. Wood, State Secretary.

In Advance of Conference

A business meeting generally is a dry affair. In fact, in the opinion of the majority of people, a business meeting is as dry as a day in the Sahara. But, unfortunately, business meetings are necessary, and some one must attend them.

Elections are important. The people who attend the Berean Day sessions will be obligated to select the best officers to head Berean work for the ensuing year. It is God's work the officers will do, and only the best talent should be employed to guide God's work.

Make up your mind now to have some constructive suggestion ready for Berean Day. And have in mind the ones you feel will best lead your Society.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"What doest thou here, Elijah?"

GOD SPEAKS TO ELIJAH

HOW many of you girls and boys have ever been in a very bad storm? One, I mean, in which trees were uprooted, the waters became a flood, and the very earth seemed to tremble. Elijah was in just such a storm, and let's see what came of it.

You know, Elijah had a big job in life. His work was to try to keep the people faithful to God. In the midst of idols with all the degradation and misery that follows idol worship, Elijah's task was to keep on reminding the people of God's goodness to them so that some of them, at least, would follow the Lord.

Picture to yourselves the land of Israel in Elijah's time. There stood that beautiful temple Solomon had erected in Jerusalem less than a hundred years before, of which they had all been so proud. A temple for the worship of the true God, built by all the people, who gave gladly every penny they could spare. Those who were skilled workmen in gold, silver, or brass, gave of their time and talent. Everyone gave something.

And here they were allowing ugly idols to be erected. Not only allowing, but falling down in worship before them! They had forgotten the true God.

No wonder Elijah was discouraged! He really thought he was the only one left in Israel who served God. For from the king on down to the lowliest servant, it seemed to Elijah they all were exceedingly wicked. When God found out how Elijah felt about it, He told him to go and stand up on the top of Mount Horeb.

Those of you who are so fortunate as to live near the mountains know perhaps how it feels to stand on the top of a peak and look all about you. I can only do it in imagination. But it seems to me that the lesser things in life would fade away. Only the fact that there is a God in heaven who created all this beauty and who cares for all His creation, even me, would seem important.

If you stand on the shore of a great lake, as I have, you feel the same thing. And those of you who have stood upon the seashore, either the Atlantic or Pacific, must feel the greatness and goodness of God even more. We seem to stand before God Himself.

As Elijah stood there thinking of himself and his troubles, God caused a terrible storm to arise. The earth trembled; great rocks rolled down the mountain side; trees larger than a man's body were bent as little twigs. The lightning flashed; the thunder rolled; but Elijah was unharmed. God was with him.

When the storm had passed and all was calm and quiet once more, God spoke to Elijah and asked him why he had run away from his job. And Elijah told Him there was no use; he was the only one left in all the land who still loved God. Poor Elijah!

But the God who could cause such a storm could also see and care for His own. He told Elijah there were seven thousand who still loved and followed Him, and that Elijah should take up his work once more.

Just picture this man of God now. His step doesn't lag any more. His eyes are bright, and his heart is courageous. Hadn't God shown him His great power in the storm, and yet His tender love in caring for him? Now he could return, remembering that God is always present with those who are true to Him, a very real Helper right by their side.

Hand-in-hand with God Elijah went down the mountain, ready to do his work, which was also God's work. And right then God picked out a young man to help Elijah, who was by that time growing old. You can find out the odd way he was chosen in 1 Kings 19:19-21.

"Far out on the desolate billow
The sailor sails the sea;
Alone with the night and the tempest,
Where countless dangers be.

"Far down in the earth's dark bosom
The miner mines the ore;
Death lurks in the dark behind him,
And hides in the rock before.

"Lord, grant as we sail life's ocean,
Or delve in its mines of woe,
Or fight in its difficult conflict,
This comfort all to know

"That never alone is that true one
Who lives by faith and prayer;
For God is a Friend unailing,
And God is everywhere."

The Sunday School Lesson

FROM TRUTH SEEKERS' QUARTERLY

LESSON 4. — July 22, 1934

ELIJAH HEARS GOD'S VOICE

1 Kings 19:9-21

Devotional Reading: Psalm 57:1-5

GOLDEN TEXT

Speak, Lord; for thy servant heareth.—1 Samuel 3:9.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic: Elijah Hears God's Voice.

Aim: God encourages those who listen to His voice in the Bible.

Basic Truth: "Draw nigh to God, and he will draw nigh to you."—James 4:8.

I. Elijah Seeks God for Comfort. (1 Kings 19:9, 10.) Discouraged almost to the point of despair because of the widespread idolatry in Israel, Elijah decides to leave his people to their fate. He journeys far across the desert, going for forty days without food, that he may find comfort from his sorrow on the mountain of the law. He makes an effort to "draw nigh to God," believing that he is the only man in all Israel who remains faithful to Him. Reaching the sacred mountain, he creeps into a cave, perhaps the very cleft in which Moses awaited the appearance of Jehovah, to be alone with his heavenly Father. Solitude and prayer and the voice of God out of the stillness have brought comfort and renewal of hope to many.

II. Elijah Witnesses God's Power. (Vv. 11-14.) Elijah remains in the darkness of the cave, cut off from the sunshine of hope by his own action, until God speaks! No man can get away from God who feels the need of the divine presence. All earthly friends may forsake us, but no matter what our condition may be God is "not far from every one of us: for in him we live, and move, and have our being" (Acts 17:27, 28). The Lord's mighty power is exhibited on every side; His tender care surrounds us, if we will but step out of the darkness where we have hid ourselves and listen to His "still small voice"!

III. Elijah Is Comforted by God. (Vv. 15-18.) Discouragement comes from too much thinking about our own troubles. To be given a work to perform that will test our strength to the utmost, and to be assured that our past efforts were not altogether unsuccessful, will do much to drive away the "blues" and send us back into the forefront of the battle with courage to carry on. That was what God brought to Elijah. He ordered him back to his duty in Israel and told him at the same time that there were seven thousand others like himself who had not "bowed to Baal." When discouragement comes, put forth even greater efforts than in the past to press forward in the struggle.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"Speak, Lord; for thy servant heareth."—1 Samuel 3:9.

It was rare indeed that God spoke directly to an individual. In our lesson it was Elijah who heard the voice, in our text it was Samuel to whom God spoke. Moses also had direct communication from the Father and a voice came from heaven at the baptism of Jesus.

There were others also but this was by no means an everyday occurrence.

These instances are sufficient to convince one that there is a God in heaven who reigns and rules and knows what takes place on the earth. We need not expect such a call but many times in prayer we have the assurance that we have been heard and our petition granted. The closer we live to God the more we realize that He is near and that in some way we are made to know His will.—L. A. R.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

God Speaks

- many times in a mysterious way;
- to those who are in tune with Him;
- today through His Son;
- only through channels of truth;
- when truth is needed.

Faithfulness. The life of Elijah presents many instances of faithfulness. He proved true in face of an overwhelming opposition. His stewardship was well rendered, although at times fear and murmuring took hold of him. One of the requirements of stewards is faithfulness (1 Cor. 4:2). His faith was tried on many occasions. It proved more precious than gold (1 Peter 1:7). Through all these trials of Elijah God was abundantly able to preserve, protect, and keep (2 Tim. 1:12; 4:18). What He did for Elijah He can do for us, yea, He does do! He keeps us "under the shadow of His wing."

Murmuring. Such intense and immense opposition as Elijah encountered discouraged him at times, until he murmured as evidenced in the juniper tree and Horeb experiences. All are so inclined if things don't progress as we wish. David well expressed God's mind in this regard. "Fret not thyself because of evildoers, neither be thou envious against the workers of iniquity."—Psa. 37:1. To murmur is to complain against God. "The foolishness of man perverteth his way: and his heart fretteth against the Lord." When we see the wicked "spreading himself as a greenbay tree" we exclaim or so act, "It is vain to serve God: and what profit is it that we have kept his ordinance . . . ?" (Mal. 3:14).
—C. E. R.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULTS

Hearing and Obeying God

Throughout much of the Scriptures hearing and obeying are used as synonymous terms. God does not recognize that one is "hearing" His Word unless he is obeying, or heeding. Knowing this, we can learn a very valuable lesson from Elisha. He was plowing in the field when Elijah selected him for the service of God. He not only accepted the call but he killed his oxen and roasted them over the fire of his burning farm implements. He thus severed his connections with the past so that the temptation to return to the old would be lessened. When we arise from the waters of baptism we must sever our connections with the old carnal life or we will be overcome by the world again. Peter gives this word of warning to the church in his day. He speaks of some evil persons who will successfully tempt certain ones in the church (2 Pet. 2:18). Those who fall are the ones who do not remove very far from the evil; those who, like Lot's wife, look back with longing eyes to that which they are supposed to leave behind. Peter tells us that those who turn back are fulfilling the old proverb: "The dog is turned to his own vomit again; and the sow that was washed to her wallowing in the mire."—2 Pet. 2:22. These two animals returned to their former ways because their natures were unchanged. Baptism will mean nothing to us unless we arise to walk in a new life. Jesus gave us a good commandment: "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness." Paul stated it differently: "Set your affection on things above, not on things on the earth."—Col. 3:2. If we would hear God we must repent, for God has commanded "all men every where to repent: because he hath appointed a day, in the which he will judge the world" (Acts 17:30, 31). If we will obey, we must "put . . . on the Lord Jesus Christ, and make not provision for the flesh, to fulfil the lusts thereof."—Rom. 13:14.—H. A. S.

PRIMARY

Topic: We Again See Elijah.

We'll go to the cave in Mount Horeb and see if Elijah is still there. Yes, there he is, but how sad he looks. Listen, he's talking; perhaps we can find out why he's sad. "The children of Israel have all become very wicked. They are worshiping those idols made of stone and wood instead of God. They are killing all the prophets and I am the only one left who is true to God. And they are trying to kill me." No wonder he looks sad.

Some one seems to be talking to him. Yes, God is. He says, "Go, stand upon the mount."

What a wind! Oh! an earthquake! See, there's a fire! I hear some one speaking very soft and low. Elijah comes to the mouth of the cave. He hears the voice, too. See, he has his face wrapped in his mantle (cloak). He is saying the same thing he said when we first came to the cave.

The voice says, "No, Elijah, you are not the only one left that is true to God. There are seven thousand in Israel who have not worshiped idols but have been true to Me." Sh! It's the voice of God speaking.

How Elijah's looks change when he hears this message! But we must say good-bye, for Elijah must go to see Elisha, another prophet.

—V. C. T.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CONFERENCE DATES

Illinois Bible School and Conference at Oregon, July 31 to Aug. 12
 General Conference at Oregon, Illinois, July 31 to Aug. 12
 Eastern Nebraska Conference at Omaha, August 12 to 19
 Virginia Bible School and Conference at Maurertown, August 16 to 26
 Nebraska Conference at Holbrook August 19 to 26
 Iowa Conference at Waterloo, Aug. 21 to 26

TWO THOUSAND DOLLARS IN CASH!

More than two thousand dollars in hard cash is what the brethren have now turned into the treasury to be used in the settlement of our indebtedness to the Oregon State Savings Bank. This is truly a remarkable achievement under present conditions and reveals what can be done when all realize the needs of the moment and are willing to "give till it hurts" in a praiseworthy cause.

It is the desire of the Executive Board to keep the brotherhood fully informed of the standing of the Institution in every way. We wish every member of the Church of God to know just what is being done along all lines. It is their right to know—it is our duty to inform them.

It is often difficult, however, to make reports as clear as we would like to have them, and sometimes misunderstandings arise which only personal contact can remove. So we ask that all who can do so will come to the General Conference this year and ask us questions concerning anything which we have failed to clarify in our reports or explanations. The Institution and its records are yours. Come and consult them freely. You will find them completely up-to-date and accessible.

SPECIAL INDEBTEDNESS FUND

Previously reported received	$1793.35
Interested Members	100.00
Ella M. Siple	10.00
Clifton R. Stearns	100.00
W. A. Reid	10.00
Total	$2013.35
Pledges previously reported	82.00
Total pledges and contributions	$2095.35

OREGON, ILLINOIS

A special meeting of the Church of God at Oregon, Ill., was held on July 1, at which time Miss Elizabeth Ordnung was appointed delegate to the General Conference, and a motion was made to invite Bro. G. E. Marsh to remain with us as pastor for another year. This motion was unanimously carried.

(Mrs.) Mabel Andrew, Secretary.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Lena Drew (for another); F. Carpenter; S. P. Dismukes; Stella Pearson; Edna Gruber; Olive Wood; Glenn M. Birkey; John E. Miller; Irvin Lathrop; L. D. Decker; Mrs. M. E. Hatch; George Knife; R. A. Humphreys (for others); H. B. Hathaway; T. B. Conrad; Anna D. Springer; Jesse Harrold; Mrs. Sherman Fauntleroy; E. L. McDaniel.

HAVE YOU APPOINTED YOUR DELEGATES TO GENERAL CONFERENCE?

Many important matters are to be brought before the General Conference this year which are of interest to the Church of God everywhere. Your congregation should be fully represented at the conference. The elders of the local churches have authority to appoint delegates if no general congregational business meeting is held for the purpose, so will all see that their churches are represented.

Among other important questions for consideration is that of the revised constitution of the National Bible Institution. You will want to know about the changes that are made and have a voice in determining what they are to be.

The following excerpt from the constitution pertaining to representation at the conference is republished for your information.

"The General Conference shall be composed of individual members and delegates as follows: Each state shall be represented by delegate or delegates as follows: Where states are organized into state conferences they shall be entitled to vote by delegates appointed by the state conference or its Executive Board 50 per cent of its membership. Each organized church in the state shall be entitled to appoint delegates with power to vote 50 per cent of its membership. Any church or any number of members not associated with a state conference shall be allowed a 100 per cent representation. Any member of any state conference or church who shall be present at any conference session shall be allowed voice and vote, but such vote shall first be deducted from the delegate vote of his church or state conference or both. Any isolated member of the General Conference who is not a member of any state conference or church organization shall, if present, have voice and vote in any conference session.

"The names of members, and if possible, the address of each member, so represented, shall be furnished and certified by the proper officer to the Secretary of the General Conference before the session at which their votes shall be cast."

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

Work on the church building is progressing well. Now that the burned material has all been removed and redecorating is under way we can begin to realize something of how pleasant and attractive it is going to be. A number of very desirable changes are being made in the building.

Rededication services were at first announced for July 22, but have been changed to July 29. The whole week of July 22 to 29 is going to be a rededication week with services each day. Bro. F. L. Austin is to be with us from the 23rd to the 27th, and we hope over the 29th.

Our senior, honorary elder, Bro. Richard Skeels, had a very narrow escape in an auto accident June 28. We are all very thankful that he was uninjured.

Srs. Schooley and Thomas have been suffering, but we pray that the Father may give strength and relief to both.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

APPEAL FROM ARKANSAS CITY, KANSAS

The church at Arkansas City, Kan., are anxious to at least finish their church auditorium. We have sacrificed and worked hard to have a church home here, so that we could better do service for our blessed Lord and Master. I believe the Lord has blessed our efforts in His name.

At the present time we are in need of money to complete the church auditorium, and seat the building. We have the church plastered and the ceiling on. What we need most now is the flooring, window and door casings, and seats. So far the church building is paid for; there is not one cent of indebtedness against it, but we have about reached our limit. Inasmuch as this building is for the Church of God people everywhere, not just for the Arkansas City people alone, this is an appeal to you who love God to help get His house in order so we can go on with the Lord's work as we need to do. You who have met with us so many times in days gone by, it is for you, my brethren. And this is the only building in the states of Kansas and Oklahoma that has been built and financed by the Church of God. Will you help us? God bless each of you. If there should be anyone who would like to help finance the work here, whatever you can give, be it large or small, will be thankfully received. Vernon Chaplin, 914 N. Second St., Arkansas City, Kan., is treasurer. Money sent to him will be promptly acknowledged.

Mrs. A. J. Chaplin, Sec.

ROSA MAE PEARSON

Rosa Mae Pearson was born April 25, 1911, in Washington Township, Miami County, Ohio, and died June 15, 1934, in Concord Township of the same county. The greater part of her life was spent in Miami County near Troy. Having received her education from the public school, she was graduated with her class from Concord Centralized School in May of 1928. She attended the First Christian Church in Troy until her marriage, when she became interested in the Brush Creek Church of God and attended there regularly until her death.

She was united in marriage to Frank Pearson of near Tippecanoe City on March 23, 1934, the two making their home with the husband's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Pearson.

She is survived by her husband; her mother, Mrs. Jennie Russell Pearson, and two sisters, Iva and Goldie of near Troy; and a brother, Marvin of St. Paris, Ohio. She was preceded in death by her father, Ellis S. Pearson, and four brothers, Lee Pearl, Albert, Paul Robert, and Thomas Arthur. She suffered especially the loss of her father, who has been dead the last fifteen years.

Funeral services were conducted by the writer from the home of Bro. and Sr. Earl Pearson and the Brush Creek Church of God Monday afternoon, June 18. The sermon was based upon thoughts from the 146th Psalm, showing the frailty of man but the blessing there is for those who trust in the God of Israel. Burial was made in the Curtis Cemetery near the Church of God. May the eternal God be a refuge to those in mourning.

Sydney E. Magaw, Pastor.

BETWEEN YOU AND ME—

Information reaching General Conference Headquarters indicates that several changes are to take place in various pastorates over the country, some of them being in larger congregations. Any church contemplating such a change of pastor would do well to get in touch with this office, which will be glad to put them into direct communication with ministers who are expecting or desiring to make a change soon.

Bro. L. E. Conner, President and Manager of the National Bible Institution, is to be guest speaker again this year at the Iowa Conference, which meets on the beautiful camp grounds at Waterloo, August 21 to 26 inclusive.

A large audience greeted Bro. S. J. Lindsay in the Methodist Church at Pearl City, Ill., recently. Among those present were delegations from the Churches of God at Plum River and Dixon. Bro. Lindsay leaves this week for Dutton, Mich., where he is to be the chief speaker and Bible teacher at the state conference July 6 to 10.

Pastor C. E. Randall and his wife and son, of Fonthill, accompanied by Sr. Horace Haines of Fenwick, and Sr. MacArthur of Welland, all of Ontario, pleasantly surprised the editor and others of Oregon with an overnight visit last week. The party was on the way to Minnesota for a brief vacation trip to the old home of Bro. and Sr. Randall. During their stay in Oregon they visited Golden Rule Home and were much impressed with its convenience and comfort, and with the splendid care given the "family" by Sr. Mick our matron.

It is reported that owing to the serious illness of his wife Eld. E. O. Stewart of Texas will be unable to make a contemplated trip to the North this summer. Bro. Stewart is one of our most impressive preachers and his absence at northern conferences is greatly regretted.

Attention is called to the editorial on page 2 of this issue in which important information is given concerning several contemplated changes in the constitution of the General Conference and National Bible Institution.

The Niagara Falls, N. Y., church has generously ordered the redecoration of the Niagara Falls Room at Golden Rule Home, an improvement that has been needed for some time. Additions to the Home equipment in the form of small electric fans for each room have just been made which will contribute to the comfort of the family during the hot weather. A new electric table lamp for the sun parlor is also a recent gift from friends.

Reservations are now being made by some who desire private rooms for the General Conference period. Among others who have signified their intention of being in attendance throughout the gathering is Sr. Jessie Kauffman of Riverside, Calif.

Gordon Earl Moore arrived bag and baggage at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Moore of Boulder City, Nev., on June 30, 1934, and signifies his intention of taking charge of affairs in that house hereafter. The father of the young gentleman is Bro. E. L. Moore, formerly of Niagara Falls, N. Y.

Sr. Mary A. Woodward passed another milestone on the long journey of life on July 5. The prayers of many on her behalf evince the love of those who have known her during her half century and more of Christian service. May she be of that select number changed from mortality to immortality at the Lord's coming.

Attention is called to the special subscription blank in this issue. As indicated on the blank, you can send the paper to a friend for fifteen weeks for the small sum of fifty cents. Fifteen numbers of The Restitution Herald contain about the same amount of reading matter as would three 300-page books. This is surely an easy and inexpensive way of preaching the gospel to your friends.

The sad news reaches us that Bro. Edward Engle, Niagara Falls, N. Y., is seriously ill, and that his son, Edward, Jr., is also in the hospital at this time. We pray earnestly for their complete recovery, as they have both been most faithful members of the Niagara Falls congregation since their baptism in May, 1926.

Monday evening the Church of God at Dixon, Ill., at a special business meeting extended a unanimous call to L. E. Conner to continue for another year as pastor of the congregation.

BLANCHARD, MICHIGAN

It was a day of beauty in Wildwood Park, Six Lakes, Mich., where the crowd gathered for the lakeside open-air Wyman Gospel Mission, July 1. The sky was blue, the air was clear, and our hearts were rejoicing in that eleven more persons were making a declaration of independence, renouncing the shackles of sin. The ones baptized into the all-saving name of Jesus Christ are as follows: Mr. Fred Larson and Miss Gertrude Roomsberg of Wyman; Misses Inez Sheets, Frances Sheets, Winifred Reynolds, Beatrice Bush, Margaret Cummings, Vivian Frase, Wilda Frase, June De Witt, and Mrs. Bertha Lesh, all of Blanchard.

May the Lord bless this new brother and these new sisters in God's family, and may they stand fast in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made them free. Their freedom is a result of the work of the Wyman Gospel Mission, the Shepard Gospel Mission, and the Brick Church Gospel Mission, where these have come to know the Lord.

Besides the ones who were here from these three missions, there were visitors, including the Harold Simpson family of Grandville. We were pleased to have Elder Oscar Allen of Sylvester present to help in the services. He gave a very uplifting talk. Communion was also observed.

Truly, the Church of God in these parts is feeling itself stirred to the very depths of its being as was the lame man sitting in the Beautiful Gate of the temple stirred when Peter said, "Silver and gold have I none; but such as I have give I thee: In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth rise up and walk."

Cecil A. Smead, Pastor.

Fifteen Weeks for Fifty Cents—

Simply fill in this blank and return it to us accompanied by 50 cents for each one to whom you wish THE RESTITUTION HERALD sent for the next fifteen weeks and we will provide them with splendid inspirational reading, prophetic information, and comforting assurances of the Children of God for the summer's reading.

GENTLEMEN:

Please send THE RESTITUTION HERALD to each of the following for 15 weeks. I inclose 50 cents for each subscription.

Sender's Name

Address

New subscriber for 15 weeks:

Name

St. and No.

City State

Additional names may be submitted on another sheet.

DEATH

The Bible says: "Man dieth."—Job 14:10. But what is death?

"There is no death! What seems so is transition;
This life of mortal breath
Is but the suburb of the life Elysian,
Whose portal we call death."

These words (by Longfellow) describe the popular, or common, theory. We are told that there is no such thing as death—that we do not really die; that what appears to be death is an illusion; that it is but the passing from this present life to another of greater activity and increased knowledge—in fact a most desirable experience; that it is the gate to glory; that while we are dead, we are alive, and so not dead at all.

But is this true? If death is life, why call it death? If we do not die, who and what are the dead? If death is not a fact, why the signs of mourning—tears, crepe, coffins, hearses, tombs, and cemeteries? And can a man be dead and alive at the same time? While he is dead and in the grave, can he be alive and somewhere else? Is such a claim reasonable? Is it scriptural? What "saith the Lord"? What does the Bible teach about death? That alone can definitely settle the matter.

The Bible teaches the reality of death, but it does not teach that the dead are alive. There is not a single text in God's Word that declares that while one part of man is dead and in the grave, another part is alive in heaven or hell. Such a teaching is unscriptural, and so untrue. It is a physical impossibility for a man to be in two different places at the same time, and we are physical, material beings made of the dust of the ground. See Genesis 2:7.

That death is real is proved by such texts as the following: "Thou shalt surely die."—Gen. 2:17. "And all the days that Adam lived were nine hundred and thirty years; and he died."—Gen. 5:5. "Man dieth."—Job 14:10. "The soul that sinneth, it shall die."—Ezek. 18:20. "Lazarus is dead."—John 11:14. "The wages of sin is death."—Rom. 6:23.

WHAT IS DEATH?

That it is not a friend, nor "the voice which Jesus sends to call us to His arms," is plain from 1 Corinthians 15:26: "The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death." That it is not life, but the loss of life, is clear from Isaiah 38:1: "Thou shalt die, and not live." That it is not a new existence, but non-existence, is shown by Genesis 3:19: "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground; for out of it wast thou taken: for dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return." That it is the result of sin, can be seen by Romans 5:12: "Wherefore, as by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned." And that it is a state of unconsciousness is taught by Ecclesiastes 9:5: "The dead know not any thing."

WHERE ARE THE DEAD?

The wicked dead are not in hell shrieking and writhing in torment. The Bible says: "Let the wicked be ashamed, and let them be silent in the grave."—Psalm 31:17. "Like sheep they are laid in the grave."—Psalm 49:14. The righteous dead are not in heaven praising the Lord, for the Bible says, "No man hath ascended up to heaven" (John 3:13) and, "The dead praise not the Lord" (Psalm 115:17). The reason is that when man dies (see Psalm 146:4) "his breath (or "spirit," see Job 27:3, margin) goeth forth, he returneth to his earth (cf. Gen. 3:19); in that very day his thoughts perish." According to the Bible, the dead are in the grave. "There is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave, whither thou goest."—Ecc. 9:10.

These texts are plain enough to be understood, and the reader only needs faith and willingness to believe that they mean what they say, to understand what the Bible teaches upon the subject. Reader, dare you attempt to make void the Word of God by the traditions of men? If you want the truth, believe God's Word.

Some teach that death is the way to God, heaven, and endless joys, but our Lord says: "I am the way, . . . no man cometh unto the Father, but by me."—John 14:6. If death is the way to heaven, and so the way to reach a better and more desirable condition, why do those who profess to believe it make such frantic efforts to get well when they are sick and threatened with death? Why would it not be much better for them to pass through the experience called death? If death is such a friend and blessing as they describe it to be, why are they so afraid of it? The fact is, their actions contradict their words, and prove that after all death is very real to them, and greatly to be dreaded.

The Bible teaches that death is the same to man and beast; that both go to the same place when they die. Proof, Ecclesiastes 3:19, 20: "For that which befalleth the sons of men befalleth beasts; even one thing befalleth them: as the one dieth, so dieth the other; yea, they have all one breath; so that a man hath no preeminence above a beast: for all is vanity. All go unto one place; all are of the dust, and all turn to dust again." Cf. Gen. 2:7, 19 and 3:19.

The system of theology that will put dead men in heaven will put dead beasts there, also. And the theory that death is life, and the dead alive, is unscriptural, and so untrue.

DEATH IS NEAR

"There is but a step between me and death."—1 Sam. 20:3. Reader, do you realize this? Life is uncertain—death certain. "It is appointed unto men once to die, but after this the judgment."—Heb. 9:27. Are you ready for death—and judgment? Truly a solemn question. Death may come to you suddenly—unexpectedly. What if it should come just now? Would you be lost or saved?—Advent Christian tract.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 23

OREGON, ILLINOIS, JULY 17, 1934

NUMBER 42

While the Church Sleeps

By the Editor

"And a cloud received him out of their sight."—Acts 1:9.

HE was gone! Gone from the earth and from those who stood with straining vision looking into heaven. He was gone! Gone into that far-away mysterious realm inhabited only by God and the angels. Jesus was gone! Gone to an indefinite destination for an indefinite period of time, and His disciples were left alone to carry on the great task He had assigned them.

Following the shock of His departure, they remained for the required forty days in Jerusalem until the Holy Spirit of power came upon them to equip them for the work of evangelizing the whole world.

Although He had left them for a time the length of which they did not know, and for a place where they could not follow (John 13:33), they were not wholly without hope of seeing Him again, for had not the two men in white said plainly: "This same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven"?

And so, with a zeal born of that blessed hope, "they went forth, and preached every where, the Lord working with them, and confirming the word with signs following" (Mark 16:20). Peter and Andrew, and James and John, and Stephen and Philip, and later Paul and Barnabas and John Mark, followed by a host of others, forsook their homes and worldly occupations and hurried forth with the soul-stirring message of the coming King.

Christ was coming! He was coming soon! "It was the universal feeling among primitive Christians that they were living in the last period of the world's history." This being true, nothing else mattered.

Speaking of this early and vigorous faith in the Lord's return, Dr. John Fiske confesses that "the early Christians looked forward to a speedy resurrection from Sheol, followed by an endless bodily existence on a renovated earth." They expected the Lord to come at any hour to set up His universal kingdom of righteousness and peace. And because such was their expectation they cared little for what was happening in the sorry world around them, except as such events pointed to the speedy advent of Jesus Christ.

The following article comprises the first of a series of studies on the second coming of Christ which the editor proposes to publish between now and the conclusion of the General Conference. They will have to do with the attitude of the church toward the second advent in the past and at the present, and serve to stimulate the disciples to increased watchfulness and service.

They were keenly alive to that glorious event, and the hope kept them constantly awake and watchful. It kept them prayerful and active in service. They must preach the glad tidings of the coming kingdom "in all the world for a witness unto all nations," for then should "the end come" (Matt. 24:14).

What mattered it if martyrdom was to be their portion, if the Lord was coming immediately to deliver them from death and crown them with everlasting life and glory? They would but fall asleep for a moment to rise again in the presence of the returning Savior!

Paul reveals his own vivid sense of the Lord's nearness, of the reality and splendor of His return. He asserts that all things pertaining to this life and its enjoyment he gladly renounces that he may "win Christ, and be found in him" when He comes.

The early Christians were not alone in their belief in the coming of a Savior which should be followed by a resurrection from the dead for the faithful ones of God. Neither were they the only ones who have manifested a willingness to suffer all manner of distress, even death itself, that they might obtain a glorious resurrection at Messiah's coming.

Having reviewed the sacrifices and the sufferings of the "ancient worthies," the writer of the Hebrew Letter sums up the entire matter he is discussing with these significant words: "What shall I more say? for the time would fail me to tell of Gedeon, and of Barak, and of Samson, and of Jephthae; of David also, and Samuel, and of the prophets: who through faith subdued kingdoms, wrought righteousness, obtained promises, stopped the mouths of lions, quenched the violence of (Please turn to Page Nine)

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879.

G. Eldred Marsh, Editor

Two Dollars per Year

Paul C. Johnson, Associate Editor

"We know not what to pray for as we ought: but the Spirit itself maketh intercession for us with groanings which cannot be uttered."—Romans 8:26.

THE EDITOR'S PRAYER

O BLESSED FATHER, as we approach Thee seeking to voice the gratitude we feel for the spiritual blessings Thou hast so graciously bestowed upon us, we find the language of men inadequate to meet the needs of our worshipping hearts. We cannot express in the words men use in their material dealings with each other the sense of worship we experience, the depths of love we know, in our relationship to Thee our God. Accept, we pray Thee, the halting thoughts we utter here as but an echo of the profound gratitude we feel.

You Need the General Conference

THE Church of God throughout the world is a united body. "For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ. . . for ye are all one in Christ Jesus."—Gal. 3:27, 28. "So we, being many, are one body in Christ, and every one members one of another."—Rom. 12:5. "And the eye cannot say unto the hand, I have no need of thee: nor again the head to the feet, I have no need of you."—1 Cor. 12:21.

The various individual units that combined form the body of Christ are as dependent upon each other as are the various members of the human body dependent upon each other. Each part is essential to the efficient operation of the organism. The body could not function properly if any one part was absent, for even "those members of the body, which seem to be more feeble, are necessary" (1 Cor. 12:22).

The General Conference of the Church of God comprises representatively the entire body of Christ, as no other assembly of God's people can do. Here the "many members" are brought into working contact with each other. Here their forces and functions are blended into one united whole. Here the spiritual power of the entire church is focused and brought to bear upon the problems of each locality and of each individual; hence, no member of the body can say, "The others do not need me," or, "I do not need them," for you need the General Conference and the General Conference needs you!

Come, and give your support and counsel to this great gathering in Oregon, Illinois, this summer!

Pastoral Responsibility

THE responsibility resting upon the pastor of a church equals, if it does not exceed, that borne by any man in the world. The physician is responsible for the health and present life of his patient. The lawyer is responsible for the material security, and frequently for the life and liberty, of his client. The President of the United States is responsible for the political freedom and the economic well-being of the citizens. But the pastor is responsible in the sight of God for the spiritual development and, in a measure, for the eternal salvation of his people.

With tears furrowing his face at the thought of parting for the last time with his beloved brethren in Ephesus, Paul admonishes the elders of the church at that place most earnestly. "Take heed therefore unto yourselves, and to all the flock, over the which the Holy Ghost hath made you overseers, to feed the church of God, which he hath purchased with his own blood."—Acts 20:28. The Apostle then warns them concerning the certainty of the coming of "grievous wolves" among them who will not spare the flock, and quite definitely declares that the pastors will be responsible for the security of those under them.

He further asserts that these teachers of false and dangerous doctrines will actually develop within their own number, thus making the menace of their influence much more destructive than would be the case should they come from the outside world.

That the danger would be doctrinal is also evident. The greatest watchfulness must be exercised by the pastors that the "flock of God" be not led astray.

Peter foresaw the same condition, and predicted that "there shall be false teachers among you, who privily shall bring in damnable heresies, . . . and many shall follow their pernicious ways" (2 Peter 2:1, 2).

Constant watchfulness, thoughtful correction, sometimes stern rebuke, must be exercised and meted out by the faithful overseer of the flock of God if he is to perform his full duty to Christ and to the church.

It is right and natural that the members of the body should have a great deal of confidence in their spiritual leaders, as they generally do; and for this reason such leaders should be exceedingly careful that they themselves do not lead their people astray from the truth and bring upon them eternal loss.

Peter's Problem in Addition

By Lyman Booth

IN all secular computations ten characters are employed, by the use of which all results, either large or small, are obtained. But Peter, as teacher, has given eight, including faith. He uses faith as the base upon which all religious calculations rest. In the first chapter of his second letter he gives full instructions for the solution of the problem, which is to be obtained "through the righteousness of God and our Saviour Jesus Christ." The result of a proper use of his instructions is "exceeding great and precious promises," great in their extent, because they are admirably adapted to every exigency in our affairs. They include all that God can do for the eternal well-being of man. They represent the length, breadth, depth, and height of infinite love—the love of God and His Son, "which passeth knowledge," that love which grants pardon, grace, and eternal glory. Hence, all there is in reserve in the eternal future for man is opened up to him in "the promises of God," and for the benevolent purpose to entice him "to be a partaker of the divine nature," which is the very highest point of development of man's endeavors.

To be divinely endowed with whatever is important to spiritual life and piety, enriched with those precious promises which insure a participation in the divine nature, which is to be derived only from an acquaintance with Him who hath called us to so high a glory (and having, by this same means, gained freedom from the baneful passions of the carnal mind), we are exhorted to conduct our efforts worthy of our vocation, exercising extreme diligence in the pursuit of Christian excellence. Faith in the promises is always associated with active energy, for without this quality of faith "it is impossible to please" God. The faith that is not faint-hearted, but inspired with courage (virtue), of which we be duly informed by evangelical principles (knowledge), and which requires we take heed that our knowledge (of the gospel) be not mixed with licentious deeds, but rather be united and guided by self-control and temperance. Let not the control of the appetites spring from a distorted temper, but rather from humility and childlike submission. Piety should not be unsocial, but fraught with brotherly affection. And lastly, our sympathy toward our fellows should not be narrow, but expansive; and that is to spring from the fountain of universal love.

Peter uses faith as the foundation upon which the superstructure of a Christian character is to be built. First add virtue to faith. The root of the word is "a chorus." Not a chorus of human voices, but rather a band or company of people composing a group by the taking hold of hands, thereby completing a circle when the last joins hand with the first. In like manner, we are to consider that we have a circle of properties in which each supports and qualifies every other, by beginning with the first joined to the second till the last is joined to the first. As a circle is the emblem of completeness, so these properties, when united in the formation of a character, produce a complete Christian, one that is "neither barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ."

Since faith is the foundation upon which a Christian life is to be erected, every believer is to build upon it by adding those virtues and excellencies that will beautify such a life.

Virtue stands, according to the original import of the word, for "force," "energy," "manly strength," "fortitude." It implies a readiness for action, the disposition and the power of difficult achievements. Then add "to your faith" force—don't be a weakling; be strong, firm, and steadfast.

Add knowledge to virtue. Let practical wisdom direct force. By the union of energy and wisdom, standing together on the basis of faith, there will spring up within the Christian the harmonious cooperation of great powers and habits, high aims, true thoughts, sound judgment, rectitude of purpose, strong impulses, tact to discern every issue of life in a wise and intelligent course of action.

"To knowledge temperance; and to temperance patience." These virtues present a picture of enjoyment and suffering mingled together. We need them both. We need self-control with the power to resist evil to the limit. That which makes temperance necessary will expose us to that which will require patience. The circle of duty seems to be nearing completion. Energy and knowledge, or the motive force and wisdom. These elements of heroic action, of

The Book—With Them

2 Chronicles 17:9

Oh, to have His blessed message
Hidden in my heart and mind,
Ever living, ever working
In my life, in mercies kind.

Words that work in mighty power,
Saving from the guilt of sin,
Keeping from the blight of evil,
Giving purity within.

Words of joy for times of sorrow,
Words enlight'ning when in doubt,
Words of love when tried and tested,
Words of strength to gird about.

Messages of holy comfort
In the watches of the night,
Giving, in the sorest trial,
From the Book His words of light.

From the Book a bright light streameth
O'er the pilgrim's toilsome way,
Guiding, helping onward, upward,
Till we reach th' eternal day.

And these words can be within me,
Graven in my deepest heart,
Lived and loved, and helping others
To become of Him a part.

—L. S. P.

joy and endurance, based upon faith and embellished and beautified by godliness, would seem to provide for almost all the excellence that could be demanded of men. Men are not now living alone; therefore, goodness in the Christian should have a social and human aspect. Hence, the Apostle says add to godliness brotherly kindness, or the love of the brotherhood, "the household of faith." It is the family affection of Christianity which unites, or ought to unite, all who profess to regard themselves as "heirs together of the grace of life." The feeling that approaches

Add to brotherly kindness charity. Charity in this connection, I hold, signifies "philanthropy," or "universal love"; the love of all mankind. It is not an item of beautiful idealism, a vague, philosophical show of fraternity, but a deep earnestness as to its nature, and an effective doer of good works as to its expression.

He who is adorned with all these virtues shall be "neither barren nor unfruitful" and has the assurance of an "abundant entrance into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ."

The Christian life begins with faith and ends in love, a complete circle. We begin by believing, and graduate at last in that holy affection which shall make us "partakers of the divine nature." We can advance no higher. Thenceforth we stand on the summit of God's love, and are one with Him. This is the result obtained by the additions. Then how necessary that we "give diligence to make our calling and election sure."

God's Promises

By Anna E. Drew

"Whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promises: that by these ye might be partakers of the divine nature."

THESSE promises are made by One who is faithful (Deut. 7:9); One who will not alter the thing that goes from His lips (Psalm 89:34, 35); with whom there is no variability, neither shadow of turning; who is fully able to perform what He has promised.

If it is through these promises that we may become partakers of the divine nature, it is important that we know what they are. Upon our faith in these, Peter tells us, we are to build, that we may finally obtain that which is promised. We find that Peter and the other apostles, who had been taught by Jesus, based their hope upon the promise made unto the fathers—Abraham (Gen. 13:14, 15), Isaac (Gen. 26:24), and Jacob (Gen. 28:13)—which is that of an everlasting inheritance in the earth, and the coming of One in whom all the nations of the earth shall be blessed. We find the same promise renewed to David (2 Sam. 7:12-17), to which Peter referred on the day of Pentecost.

Paul tells us these worthy ones of old "all died, . . . not having received the promises, but having seen them afar off, and were persuaded of them, and embraced them." They died "in faith"—faith that God would fulfill all that He had promised. They suffered all things that they might obtain a better resurrection. They "received not the promise, God having provided some better thing for us, that they without us should not be made perfect." They looked forward to the promised seed, but saw not the accomplishment: that was left for a future generation. And when Jesus was born at Bethlehem, the faithful ones of that age, who rejoiced that they should behold the fulfillment of the promises when He had grown to manhood, were doomed to disappointment when He was taken from them to the Father. But He left them the promise that He should return and fulfill all things.

They also died in hope, and we, today, have the same promises, and the conditions by which we may claim them, clearly given us. "Now to Abraham and his seed were the promises made. He saith not, And to seeds, as of many; but as of one, And to thy seed, which is Christ."

Abraham believed God; and the promises to him were made, not through the law, but through the righteousness of faith; and to those who are of the faith of Abraham, the promise is sure—faith in the promised seed, Christ, and in the blessings that shall come to the nations through Him.

To be Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise, we must be Christ's. To be Christ's, we must put on Christ. "Ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus. For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ."

Our faith is imputed to us for righteousness, as it was to Abraham (Rom. 4:22-25). As he received the sign of circumcision, a seal of the righteousness of the faith which he had, so baptism is a seal of our faith (Col. 2:11, 12).

The "exceeding great and precious promises" are embodied in these made of God to the fathers. To claim them there are conditions, and we can become partakers of the "divine nature" only in God's appointed way. His plan is perfect, His commands not grievous (1 John 5:3).

Having believed His promises and sealed our faith, let us add those characteristics that will make our calling and election sure; not only be conquerors, but "more than conquerors through him that loved us," and obtain an abundant entrance into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ.

(The above article may be secured in tract form from the National Bible Institution at 10 cents a dozen or 30 cents a hundred.)

Everlasting Life—What Is It?

By J. C. Vanzandt

I AM conscious of the fact that the terms "eternal" and "everlasting" as used in the Bible are almost invariably translated from Greek and Hebrew words which do not always indicate endless time, but I shall invariably use these terms to indicate endless time.

Although the term "spiritual life" does not occur in the Bible, the Bible clearly teaches that the Holy Spirit dwells in and leads true Christians (Rom. 8:9, 14). The life of such a person may truly be termed "spiritual life" because it is a fruit of the indwelling Holy Spirit. Such a life is not a personal entity, neither is it a spiritual element planted in the heart at conversion. It is simply a fruit of the indwelling Holy Spirit, and begins at conversion. Spiritual death is that state of life in which a person is not indwelt and actuated by the Holy Spirit—one in which the whole being is dead to God and righteousness. It is in this sense that I shall use these terms. . . .

II

Everlasting life, whatever may be its nature, is absolutely endless in duration; therefore, if it is obtained at conversion, all converted people are eternally saved, regardless of what they may do, for they have a life that is absolutely endless.

If everlasting life is actually received into the heart at conversion, then Judas Iscariot, the traitor to Jesus, is now saved, unless Jesus made the awful mistake of calling and ordaining a sinner to the ministry.

In Titus 1:2 Paul said that when he wrote this epistle he was in hope of eternal life. He had no reason to "hope" for what he already had; hence, if everlasting life is received in conversion, Paul was hoping to be converted, although he had been preaching the gospel for thirty years.

If everlasting life is received in conversion, the theory of "once in grace, always in grace" is irrefutably true; hence, all the Bible warning to take heed lest we fall (1 Cor. 10:12), and that if we do fall away after having known the power of saving grace it will be impossible to renew us again unto repentance (Heb. 6:4-6), is useless. Why all this warning if each Christian has an endless life in actual possession?

III

I will now show that everlasting life is the life of the being made endless; that it is conditional, and will come to none but Christians, and not to them until after Jesus comes again.

Let us read and consider Romans 6:21-23: "What fruit had ye then in those things whereof ye are now ashamed? for the end of those things is death. But now being made free from sin, and become servants to God, ye have your fruit unto holiness, and the end everlasting life. For the wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord."

Verse 21 says the end, not the beginning, but the end, of a sinful life will be death. This cannot be spiritual death, for all admit that it takes place in the beginning, and not the end, of a sinful life.

Inasmuch as spiritual death occurs at the beginning of a sinful life, and as the death of verse 21 comes as the final punishment for a sinful life, it follows that it has no reference whatever to spiritual death, but to that death which will yet come as the penalty for sin.

If the death of verse 21 is spiritual death, it follows that spiritual death is the end, or penalty, for sin; hence, that all sinners have received their penalty for sin, and that there cannot be any future punishment meted out to them, as they have already received the end—the penalty for sin.

Verse 22 says we must be made free from sin, become servants to God, and have our fruit unto holiness, in order that the end may be everlasting life; hence, the everlasting life of this verse cannot refer to spiritual life. Why not? Because all admit that spiritual life begins at the very beginning of a Christian life—at the moment of conversion—whereas the everlasting life of this verse comes as an end, or a final reward, to none but those who have in this life been made free from sin, become servants to God, and had their fruit unto holiness. In other words, everlasting life comes to none but those who have maintained a spiritual life during this life.

Inasmuch as the everlasting life of verse 22 comes as a final reward, if it is spiritual life and comes at conversion, it follows that all converted people have their final reward—there is nothing more for them.

Having discussed death and everlasting life as ends, or finalities, of sinful and spiritual lives, Paul drew this conclusion in verse 23: "For the wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord."

Death as the wages of sin is not spiritual death, for all admit that spiritual death occurs at the very beginning of a sinful life, and not as a final penalty for sin.

If the wages of sin is spiritual death, inasmuch as all sinners are spiritually dead, it follows that all sinners have already received the wages of their sins; hence, there is no future punishment of any kind awaiting them.

Inasmuch as 2 Peter 2:9 says the wicked will be reserved unto the day of judgment to be punished, and as the wages of sin is death, if said death is spiritual death, it follows that none will ever be dead spiritually until the day of judgment.

Spiritual life and everlasting life are both conditional.

A heart repentance and faith in Jesus brings spiritual life; but it takes deliverance from sin, and service to God in holy living, to result in everlasting life. The very fact that everlasting life requires additional conditions to that of spiritual life is positive evidence that spiritual life is not what the Bible calls everlasting life.

IV

Now, inasmuch as the death that comes as the wages of sin will not be inflicted until after the judgment, the question arises: What kind of a death will it be? When sinners appear at the judgment they will be void of all life except the life of the being; therefore, it will be impossible for death as the wages of sin to be other than the death of their being.

Inasmuch as everlasting life comes as a final reward for having lived a devoted Christian life, and does not come until after the judgment, it follows that everlasting life comes to none but those who are in full possession of spiritual life; therefore, everlasting life can be nothing other than the life of the being eternalized.

Because Jesus said: "He that believeth on me hath everlasting life" (John 6:47), it is claimed that all believers are in actual possession of everlasting life, and that as the present life of the being is not everlasting, this statement must refer to spiritual life. A little logical reasoning on the Scriptures will make this point clear.

It is God's custom to speak of those things which He has determined as though they were already accomplished; hence, Paul said that God " calleth those things which be not as though they were" (Rom. 4:17). Before Abraham had a child, God said to him: "A father of many nations have I made thee."—Gen. 17:5. God designed that Abraham's offspring should become many nations, and spoke of it as if it was already accomplished; and this is the sense in which the words of Jesus are to be understood when He said: "He that believeth on me hath everlasting life." God has decreed that all who maintain true faith in Jesus shall have everlasting life; hence, they are spoken of as already having it.

Jesus taught that everlasting life will not be given until after the end of this probationary age. Mark 10:28-30 and Luke 18:28-30 say that Peter told Jesus he had left all for Him and asked what he should receive in return, and that Jesus told him that all who forsake all for Him now shall receive an hundredfold now, "and in the world to come life everlasting." The word "world" is from the Greek word for "age," and the literal translation of the words of Jesus would be: "And in the age to come everlasting life." See the margin of the Revised Version.

Why put off the bestowal of everlasting life until the age to come if we get it in actual possession at conversion?

James 1:12 says: "Blessed is the man that endureth temptation: for when he is tried, he shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord hath promised to them that love him."

Jesus said, "Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life."—Rev. 2:10.

Jesus and James did not say that God has already put

"the crown of life" upon all who are converted, but they do teach that He has promised to do so, provided those who are converted remain faithful during their probationary life. Here is positive proof that everlasting life is not bestowed upon us during this probationary age, and also that it is conditional.

Just as sure as man cannot live without life, just that sure he cannot live eternally without everlasting life; and as such a life is conditional, and the conditions cannot have been fully met before the end of this probationary life, it follows that everlasting life does not begin during this age.

If we come into actual possession of everlasting life at conversion, why is it that we must endure temptations throughout life, and be faithful unto death, in order that we may receive everlasting life in the age to come?

From the foregoing we find that everlasting life is the life of the being eternalized; that it is ours by hope and promise (Titus 1:2; James 1:12) and by faith (John 3:16), and that it will be bestowed upon all the faithful in the beginning of the age to come (Mark 10:30).

NEUTRALS

By M. W. Lyon

"THOU art neither cold nor hot." Laodiceans were neutrals devoid of passion, destitute of any enthusiasm, loafing along in moral indifference. In times of great crisis they were "any way," "either way," altogether tepid regarding the issue. And in times of great laxity they maintained the same tepidity, utterly unconcerned with the degeneracy. "Thou art neither cold nor hot."

Now the subtle temptation for characters like these is to regard their tepidity for something better, and to call it by a grander name. Lukewarmness is described as tolerance, or moderation, or charity, or largeness of mind, or breadth of temperament. Dispassionateness comes to be thought of as piety, and moral distinctions lose the sharpness of their outlines.

I am not surprised to find that these "neutrals" were unconsciously losing the truth of moral judgments. "Thou sayest, I am rich, and knowest not that thou art poor." The unexercised powers of discernment had become weakened, and were no longer sensitive to the primary contacts between real poverty and real wealth.

These "neutrals" had forfeited their power to appreciate the ideal. They looked upon trifles, and thought them great. They had ease, and they interpreted it as peace. They had knowledge, and they thought it wisdom. They had many gifts, and they confounded them with grace. They handled ordinances, and they thought they were touching God. And this is always the nemesis which attends the soul that haunts the ways of compromise.

—Golden Rule News.

How a Family Quarrel Was Settled

JACOB, one of the sons of Isaac and Rebekah, seems to have reached mature life with a strong desire to possess the favor of God and the leadership of his tribe, together with a curious twist in his nature which prompted him to plan to secure the first by getting possession of the birthright, which, by the smallest imaginable margin, belonged to his brother, Esau, who seemingly did not regard the honor very highly.

We are familiar with the hard bargain by which Jacob succeeded in purchasing the birthright from Esau (Gen. 25:27-35). We are also familiar with the despicable duplicity of Jacob, in deceiving his blind and aged father into bestowing upon him the birthright blessing which the father expected to bestow on Esau, and which the latter seems to have prized highly.

In the New Testament it is written, "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." This seems to correspond with the Old Testament statement, "He that diggeth a pit shall fall therein." A tracing out of the events in the life of Jacob would seem to indicate that the principle involved was working in his day. He was guilty of shamefully deceiving his father in a matter which was vital to the latter's peace of mind. Later, and in a distant land, he was himself shamefully deceived in a matter even more vital to his own well-being and peace of mind, in that he was led to believe that he was marrying the lady of his choice, when in reality he was taking as wife her sister, for whom evidently he had no high regard. Jacob dug a pit into which the feet of his aged father stumbled; then, as the mills of Justice ground slowly on, another dug an even deeper pit for his feet, into which he stumbled and fell.

Jacob drove an unmerciful bargain with Esau in the purchase of the birthright, and the comeback of this transaction is to be seen in his bitter complaint concerning his father-in-law Laban, when he said: "He changed my wages ten times." Jacob had his own method of seeking to equalize his dealings with his father-in-law; methods which no ethically minded person would even attempt to justify; yet in spite of all, Laban's own words convey the idea that he got good value as a result of his contact with Jacob. He said: "I have learned by experience that God hath blessed me for thy sake."—Gen. 30:27.

Up to the time when Jacob started to return to his old homeland with his wives, children, cattle, and servants, there is hardly a single trait of Jacob's character which could be called commendable; nor a single action worthy of approval unless it be that in which he promised to give a tenth of his increase to God, which promise was made at a time when his only possession consisted of his "staff" (Gen. 32:10). Whether he kept this vow while in a strange land and with an idolatrous people is a matter of doubt; but God seems to have kept in touch with Jacob during all of his wanderings, and Jacob seems to have kept sufficiently close in touch with God as to allow for knowing when God spoke to him, as He did in Genesis 31:3, and directed him to return to Canaan, the land of his childhood and youth.

Twenty-one years may serve to blot out many hard feelings and to modify rash resolves, made under the pressure of injustice and wrong; but Esau's vow to take the life of his brother Jacob, made two decades previously, seems not to have been forgotten. Jacob also felt, as he turned his face homeward, that he was running into extreme danger, and, like many another, in the hour of felt peril, he turned his face toward the God of his father and pled for protection from the vengeance of his brother Esau; and God graciously heard his prayer.

To sense the situation between the two brothers, we need to understand all that was involved in the ancient idea of the birthright. So long as the father lived, he remained the honored head of the family; but on his death, the headship passed to the first-born son, who became the head of the tribe and the agent, for weal or woe, through whom the destinies of the tribe were to be worked out.

During the twenty-one years of Jacob's absence, the situation regarding the birthright had remained unchanged; for the father Isaac was still alive, so that Jacob had not reaped one iota of benefit from all his hard bargain with his brother, or his pitiless deception of his aged father. Before Jacob asked God for protection on his return journey, he evidently had made up his mind to confess his wrongdoing and relinquish all claim on the birthright, and to freely acknowledge the tribal supremacy of his brother Esau. Hence, in the messages which he sent by his servants to his brother, it is worthy of note that he called Esau "my lord," and referred to himself as "thy servant"; while the magnificent presents sent forward to Esau were such as might fittingly be offered to any ruler. In these three respects Jacob had done all that was humanly possible to remedy the mistakes and sins of his youth.

There remained, however, the attitude of Esau to be considered, and this was the unknown factor in the problem Jacob faced. In his extremity he spent one whole night in prayer to God for protection from the sword of Esau. That night God met him in a special way and when the morning came Jacob faced the day with assurance that all would be well; but the struggle left him a cripple. Jacob could not tell why the sinew of his thigh should shrink that night; but from that day forward he "halted upon his thigh." And when Esau, after receiving the various messages of Jacob as well as the presents sent forward to his camp, saw his brother limping along in his crippled condition, his heart suddenly filled with a great wave of pity; and, dismounting from his horse, Esau met his brother Jacob and "fell on his neck and wept." All resentment swept from his heart. Thus the knight of the sword surrendered to the prince of God. (Over)

The later history of these two brothers seems to convey the idea that Esau was content to roam the ranges of Canaan with his troop of warriors and hunters, leaving Jacob to serve as the tribal head of the family. It is interesting to watch the family develop into the tribe, the tribe into a recognized people, and they into a great and victorious nation, out of which came an empire and a throne overshadowed by the favor of God and the promise of eternal perpetuity.—Dr. H. E. Thompson in The World's Crisis.

Recent Events Fulfilling His Word

“And as he sat upon the mount of Olives, the disciples came unto him privately, saying, Tell us, when shall these things be? and what shall be the sign of thy coming and of the end of the world?”—Matt. 24:3.

THE disciples had listened in wonder as Jesus had told of the coming destruction of the temple and of His coming again sometime with power and glory. But now their question was, Will there be any signs before these things take place? Our question today is not so much, Will there be any signs? as, Have there been any of the signs or are any now being fulfilled?

For years we of the Church of God have preached Christ's soon return and we have pointed to the signs. As each year passes, we are just that much nearer to the great event. And as it approaches, let us not become weary. Let us not be found sleeping, but watchful.

“And ye shall hear of wars and rumours of wars: see that ye be not troubled: for all these things must come to pass, but the end is not yet.” Ye shall hear of wars—yes, the history of mankind has been almost continual warfare somewhere on the earth. A war, to be a sign, must be so much greater than anything ever before like it that it may be easily recognized as a sign. And such was the great World War from 1914 to 1918.

But not only were we to hear of wars, but rumors of wars. And surely this is being fulfilled now. Since 1919 there have been a great many peace and disarmament conferences, with the result that the world has now been for some time on the verge of another war, and arms have increased until there never were so many. The world is getting used to being in a critical condition. One crisis follows another, with war seemingly miraculously averted. Reports of new dangers scarcely cause comment these days. But let us as Christians observe and note these things, for we are told to “watch.”

At present, relations are strained between many countries. Japan and Russia; United States and Japan; France and Germany; France and Italy; England and Japan—trouble between any of these might easily start a war which would again involve the world. A disarmament conference has just closed at Geneva—with nothing accomplished. Newspapers spoke of its failure as the “funeral of world peace.” Yes, today there is constant and increasing danger of war, and rumors of trouble are everywhere. Never was there a time when the nations feared and expected war over so long a time. Rumors of war, which Jesus mentioned—yes, we hear them, and they are another sign. Not only a sign of a soon coming, for following this we are told that “these things must come to pass, but the end is not yet.” But they are a sign of the truth of Jesus' words and of the fact that He will come.

All the nations justify their continued increasing of guns, airplanes, and battleships by saying that safety and peace will be assured if the nations are strong. And so, while they build the machines of death, they are crying, “Peace and safety,” even as the Word tells us they will do, in 1 Thessalonians 5:3. The constant peace conferences certainly have done very little to help matters. And here we find fulfillment of Jeremiah 6:14: “They have healed also the hurt of the daughter of my people slightly, saying, Peace, peace, when there is no peace.” And how very slight has been the healing of the war-weary world. The statesmen have feebly continued to cry peace, peace—when they know there is no peace and will be none!

In the past we have seen events which we took to be fulfillment of the signs of Matthew 24. But as time continues, the signs become more impressive—fulfilled in a more striking way. And I am convinced that we will yet see much greater fulfillment of these signs. Two recent events point that way.

Only a few weeks ago an earthquake of sufficient intensity to rattle dishes and frighten the people occurred in Nebraska. The oldest inhabitants do not remember of such ever happening before. Jesus spoke of “famines, . . . and earthquakes in divers places.” A great earthquake in California or Japan would not be a fulfillment of this, for even small quakes in “divers” or different places, may be a sign. And we may yet see much greater earthquakes in these places where they have never before occurred.

Famines in different places are also mentioned. Famines are frequent in China, India, and parts of Russia. But history does not record a famine in the United States. But present reports indicate that the drought of this year in the great grain producing regions of the Middle West is the worst ever known. While stores of grain on hand are perhaps great enough to prevent any famine this year, we know not but that the drought may be repeated.

And so as we see the signs fulfilled in greater measure, let us not be troubled. Let us rather take courage as we see the sure word of prophecy fulfilled. Remember that it is he that "endures to the end" who shall be saved. "Therefore be ye also ready: for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of man cometh . . . Blessed is that servant, whom his lord when he cometh shall find so doing."—Matt. 24: 44, 46.—Stanley J. Kauer in The Bible Advocate.

WHAT MUST I DO TO BE SAVED?

By Mildred Huey

"HE that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." Belief in the gospel preached by Christ is the first requirement for salvation. When we learn of His love and mercy, we will repent of our sins and obey by baptism. We are then in Christ, born again, and will make our works harmonize with our faith.

Christ commands, "Thou shalt not murder. Thou shalt not commit adultery. Thou shalt not steal. Thou shalt not bear false witness. Honor thy father and thy mother. Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." Our neighbor is anyone needing our help. Give material help. "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me." Give spiritual food; preach the gospel. "In all things shewing thyself a pattern of good works." Guard the tongue, being "holy in all manner of conversation."

If we would live in the Spirit, let us walk in the Spirit, bearing fruits of love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, and temperance. Love not the world; endure temptation. "Seek ye first the kingdom of God." Watch and pray, abhorring that which is evil.

ESAU AND JACOB

By J. G. Haupt

IN Genesis 25:25, 26 we have recorded the birth of twin sons to Rebekah, wife of Isaac. The two sons were born practically at the same time, Jacob holding the heel of Esau as they were born. Esau was hairy; Jacob, smooth. There is no mention that this characteristic influenced the characters of the two boys. There was apparently no law of primogeniture involved except as Isaac seemed to regard it as binding. Isaac was blind, and the mother dressed Jacob in the skin of a kid to make him feel hairy as his brother. Upon this ruse Isaac gave his blessing to Jacob, who had secured the esteem of his mother.

We note that God was in agreement with Rebekah, for in extending the great promise made to Abraham that in His seed should all the world be blessed the promise was renewed to Isaac and for the third time to Jacob. Jacob's behavior in youth doubtless influenced the mother, but it had nothing to do, we may be sure, with God's selection.

The promise made to Jacob and his twelve sons was continued in after years. In the New Testament the twelve tribes of Israel, as the descendants of Jacob were known, were promised a special inheritance in the age to come, because the twelve apostles were to be heads of the twelve tribes of Israel.

Early, Jacob made a magnificent present of livestock to Esau, which made the latter quite a sheik of the desert. The descendants of the two brothers remained friends thereafter. The descendants of Jacob continued to worship Jehovah and to look forward to the promised only begotten Son of God, the Messiah. His brother's descendants remained idol worshippers.

WHILE THE CHURCH SLEEPS

Continued from Front Page

fire, . . . and others were tortured, not accepting deliverance; that they might obtain a better resurrection."—Heb. 11:32-35.

The Lord was coming, the resurrection of the dead was at hand, the immortalization of the living saints was near, and the reward of the righteous of all ages would soon be meted out! Because all this was so true and real to them, because they believed it to be immediately impending, the early Christians remained watchful, wakeful, prayerful, and exceedingly busy in the work of the Lord.

But the months went by. They grew into years. The years into decades. The decades into centuries. And the Lord delayed His coming! The hope of the church gradually became less vivid and clear. The coming of the Lord no longer dominated the entire lives of His people. They began to grow cold and indifferent to the thought of His return. Their watchfulness naturally lessened. Their interest in the study of prophecy and in the signs and omens of the second advent succumbed to the enervating influence of repeated disappointment.

The disciples began to embrace the Greek philosophy of the immortality of the soul, and to get away from the doctrine of Christ and of Paul concerning the resurrection of the dead. As Greeks and Romans and Persians came into the church, they brought with them, and were permitted to retain, many ideas concerning God and the future life they had held as pagans, but which were quite out of harmony with the teaching of our Lord and His disciples.

And so the Christian ages passed. The Bridegroom tarried, and "while the bridegroom tarried, they all slumbered and slept" (Matt. 25:5). And so was brought to pass the fulfillment of our Lord's prediction.

Abreast of the Times

Fruitage of Prohibition

"Train up a child in the way he should go: and when he is old, he will not depart from it."—Prov. 22:6.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 12.—The first year of legal liquor selling has been a keen disappointment both to the Government and to the manufacturers of intoxicants. Dr. James M. Doran, chairman of the Distilled Spirits Institute, distillers' code authority, declares that 36 million gallons of legal liquor will be sold this year. This, he commented, is about half the amount that was used in the leanest of pre-prohibition years.

While it is true that vast quantities of bootleg liquor are being consumed, it is evident that the effects of prohibition on the young people of the country and on some of the older ones was highly beneficial in that it provided a long "breathing space" during which many habitual drinkers lost their appetite for alcoholics, and when the opportunity to indulge again legally was presented they had no desire to do so. As a Government administrator said some time ago, the "American people must be educated again to the use of liquor" if the Government is to derive the benefit in taxes anticipated from the vile traffic. Let us pray that the conditions will never become as bad as they were before the "noble experiment" was put into effect!

Boys and the Crime Pictures

"Wherewithal shall a young man cleanse his way? by taking heed thereto according to thy word."

CHICAGO, July 13.—Prof. Howard A. Lane of the Department of Education of Northwestern University recently asked the boys of the St. Charles School for delinquents, St. Charles, Ill., to name the "best movie ever seen." The following five were listed by 605 boys in answer to the question: "Doorway to Hell," "Dracula," "Big House," "Little Caesar," and "Ben Hur." Three of these are gangster pictures, and one a "horror" picture.

"The delinquents have attended movies frequently," said Prof. Lane. "Four fifths have attended at least once a week. It appears the non-delinquent children go to the cinema quite as frequently, however."

Escapes from the school occur often, and generally when they are retaken they are found engaged in the commission of some crime. Prof. Lane was led to undertake the present investigation by Rodney H. Brandon, former State Director of Public Welfare, who in an address to the faculty of the University in 1932 declared that "this training school for delinquent boys, costing a million dollars a year, is not operating to train boys away from crime, but 'we are training them for bigger and better crime.'"

Mr. Brandon said that more than half of the boys who were "graduated" from this school later engaged in the commission of crimes that landed them in the penitentiaries, and that only 7 per cent of those sent from Cook County (Chicago) succeeded in adjusting their lives to sobriety and honesty.

A further study of the causes that led the boys into criminality reveals the problem of youthful crime cannot be successfully considered in mass. Each case must be studied individually and on its own merits. This is an interesting suggestion that the Christian worker should bear in mind. The transforming power of the gospel is not exerted in mass, but according to individual needs. And again we see that God's way of saving young and old from lives of sin is the only logical one, as it is the only successful one. "The gospel is the power of God unto salvation." It is the Word of God that cleanses the hearts of young and old. Nothing else can do it.

Turkey Defends the Jews

"Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

ISTANBUL, Turkey, July 10.—Sixty persons were sent to prison by the Turkish Government today for persecution of the Jews in eastern Thrace. According to Associated Press reports, in addition to the sixty convicted of attacks on Jews large numbers of others were arrested and put through grueling interrogation, and the Government demanded that thieves return, under penalty of long imprisonment, goods looted from Jewish citizens. At present the situation seems returning to normal, but some three thousand Jewish refugees still remain in Istanbul, fearing to return to their homes in Thrace.

When the nations are called into judgment before Jerusalem (Joel 3:12; Matt. 25:31-46), and the King metes out punishments and rewards, it will be done on the basis of the treatment accorded by the nations to Jesus' brethren, the Jews. Even the "bloody Turk" will receive consideration in that day because of the favor and protection he has extended to the Jew.

Divorce Advertising

"What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder."—Matthew 19:6.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 13.—An extensive advertising campaign has been instituted by Mexican lawyers to encourage men and women in this country to procure their legal separations in old Mexico. Attorney General Cummings has ordered an investigation to determine whether the use of the mails to drum up divorce business for Mexico is forbidden by federal law. The investigation of the matter was started by the state authorities of California, which forbids divorce advertising.

Berean Department

ARLEN MARSH, EDITOR

Now We're Thinking

Not long since there appeared in The American Magazine a letter from a high school boy. That letter indicated a desire to succeed in life by means either fair or foul, preferably foul. It held up to the light of cold, hard fact the discovery that dishonesty, and not honesty, seems to pay; that the comforts of life cannot be secured by the observance of the laws of the land; and that the only thing wrong with dishonest business practices is getting caught at them. The letter closed with an appeal for advice.

The American considered the request to be sufficiently out of the ordinary and of sufficient general interest to merit a place in one of its frequent contests for letters from the readers. Among the replies received (replies which presumably were for the benefit of the inquiring boy) were arguments ranging from the heaven-and-hell idea to the thought that dishonesty was to be cultivated.

Shortly after the letter had appeared, a communication from a reader in Arlington, Massachusetts, observed, "'A Young Man Speaks His Mind' causes me to lose faith in your magazine. No high school boy of 18 has sufficient background to write a letter like that."

Unfortunately the opinion expressed by this Massachusetts reader is the opinion held by a very large section of the American people who have passed the line that divides youth from middle age. That any high school student is capable of thinking is an idea as foreign to their minds as conservatism to Professor Tugwell.

Every once in a while, however, high school students do think. It's becoming quite a habit with them. There is, of course, the great mass of students that does not think; but there is an equal mass of the middle aged that does not think.

Students nowadays are taught to think. The courses they take in school require them to think. A student simply cannot earn honor grades in economics, social problems, commercial law, literary criticism, debating, public speaking, and essay and story writing without thinking. Students are taking to reading the papers. Frequently they are more thoroughly acquainted with modern philosophy and current events than their elders.

But youth, in all its incorrigible self-esteem, adds to its thinking the idea that its thinking is invariably correct. Consequently, when Mencken's philosophies and Darwin's theories and Ingersoll's agnosticism appeal to youth, youth seizes upon them as absolute fact, refusing to countenance a suggestion that possibly its development of these new ideas through its own process of thought might well be checked.

It is this type that the religious leader must meet. No longer is it possible for the preacher or the teacher to ha-range an audience with a this-is-the-way-it-is-and-if-you-don't-like-it-you-can-lump-it sort of argument and get results. He must interest his hearers in Christianity on the basis of their current thinking—and that, in view of the indifference wrought by their modern philosophies and sophistries, is the most difficult task in the world.

Bible classes of all sorts, to attract outsiders, must draw for information upon the events of the day, must appeal to their members through the literature those members have been reading.

The average Bible class—and this includes Berean classes, Sunday school classes, and conference and midweek classes—is settled in a groove. The regular church members find something to interest them in arguments about technical interpretations of the Scriptures. "The Bible says this—explain it!" is almost the sole question heard from the leader.

People who think want to know the Bible is true before they accept it as fact. They demand proof of its veracity. And the average Christian can no more prove the Bible is the inspired Book of God than he can describe the functions of the endosperm in seeds.

Not only this, but modern youth must be shown something better than it can receive in the activities it normally would follow before it will accept religion. Youth no longer fears hell; and heaven possesses no appeal. Something concrete and important must be offered to draw the young to Christianity.

Christianity has something concrete and important to offer. Dishonesty never has brought the peace of mind, contentment, happiness, that observance of the laws of God has brought. No reward could be greater than an endless existence on an earth made perfect.

Now that youth is thinking for itself, it must be treated not as freshly graduated from the kindergarten, but as capable of evolving its own ideas. The rewards held out by God to those who are faithful to Him must be described in a way that will appeal to thought as well as to emotion. Blind belief in the Bible merely because it is said to be the Word of Jehovah is no longer the style.

About the Bible

Says Thomas Macaulay: "The English Bible—a book which if everything else in our language should perish would alone suffice to show the whole extent of its beauty and power."

"A matchless temple," exclaims Boyle, "where I delight to be to contemplate the beauty, the symmetry, and the magnificence of the structure, and to increase my awe, and excite my devotion to Deity there preached and adored."

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"Speaking the truth in love, (we) may grow up into him in all things, which is the head, even Christ."

A BRAVE PROPHET SPEAKS THE TRUTH

ONE man against four hundred! Do you think it would take courage for one man to stand up to four hundred men and tell the truth? Surely, so many men couldn't be telling falsehoods! Let's see.

Here we have the wicked king Ahab and his four hundred advisers on one side, and only Micaiah and God on the other. But with God on his side he had more than a multitude of men. I'd rather have God with me than any number of men. Wouldn't you?

It was this way. Three years before this time, the king of Syria had taken the city of Ramoth from Israel in war. There had been peace since that time.

Jehoshaphat, son-in-law of Ahab and king of Judah, was on a visit to his father-in-law and was being entertained most royally. The two kings talked over the affairs of their countries as they sat at their rich banquets. Ahab probably felt that his great power was being insulted, having an enemy occupying one of his cities, right in his own borders. So he asked his son-in-law if he would join him in a war against Syria to get back the city. Jehoshaphat told him that everything he possessed was at Ahab's command. But he thought they ought to ask God about it first.

Willing to please him, Ahab called together four hundred prophets and asked them their opinion as to the wisdom of war. Now these men were not true ministers of God, taken from the tribe of Levi, as all God's ministers were in those days. But they were false prophets, probably given their positions by a former king.

Of course they answered at once, "Certainly, go to war, and you will get back your city!" It would have been an insult to a powerful monarch like Ahab to tell him he'd be beaten in battle. Ahab wouldn't like it, and they'd only get their heads cut off for their pains.

So the four hundred false prophets flattered Ahab and told him he was sure to win. But Jehoshaphat, knowing these men were not really God's ministers, asked Ahab if there were not a true prophet of God, one whom God talked to, that they could call.

Ahab's answer was a natural one and one that makes us smile. He said, "Yes, there is one, but I hate him. He never tells me what I want to hear. He never tells me anything good about myself."

You know, when one is in the wrong the truth does seem to make him angry. And you have all seen people who would rather listen to some one that spoke flattering words to them than one that spoke the truth.

But Ahab told an officer to fetch Micaiah, and they would hear what he had to say. Off he hurried to obey the king.

Now just picture these two powerful kings, who wanted to go to war and who had been told by four hundred advisers that if they did they would be victorious. And one lone man coming before them and being commanded to speak just as they had.

But Micaiah wasn't in the habit of speaking just to please men. He said, "What the Lord saith unto me, that will I speak."

Surely, Ahab and Jehoshaphat couldn't have had wiser words given them than those that came from God. And they couldn't possibly have done better than to follow God's advice. But no!

These kings, so great in their own eyes, thought they knew better than God. For God told Micaiah to tell them they would lose the battle, but they went right ahead as the false prophets told them to do.

Brave Micaiah! He got put in prison and was fed on bread and water for telling the truth. But wouldn't you rather be Micaiah than one of those four hundred men who went free, but knew they had told lies to the king?

And how did it all turn out? Were the four hundred right or was Micaiah? Look in the same chapter you have for your lesson, verses 34 to 38, and see.

"I would be true,
For there are those who trust me;
I would be pure,
For there are those who care;
I would be strong,
For there is much to suffer;
I would be brave,
For there is much to dare.

"I would be friend
Of all—the foe, the friendless;
I would be giving,
And forget the gift;
I would be humble,
For I know my weakness;
I would look up,
And laugh, and love, and lift."

The Sunday School Lesson

FROM TRUTH SEEKERS' QUARTERLY

LESSON 5.—July 29, 1934

MICAHIAH SPEAKS THE TRUTH

1 Kings 22

Devotional Reading: Psalm 119:9-16.

GOLDEN TEXT

What the Lord saith unto me, that will I speak.—1 Kings 22:14.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic: Micaiah Speaks the Truth.

Aim: Only God can see into the future.

Basic Truth: "Behold, the former things are come to pass, and new things do I declare: before they spring forth I tell you of them."—Isaiah 42:9.

I. A Rash Promise. (1 Kings 22:1-4.) It is evident from the text that Jehoshaphat recognized that Ahab and his prophets and priesthood had no standing with Jehovah, and that Israel's general course of conduct was contrary to the Lord's will. Hence when he rashly agreed to unite his forces with those of Ahab he committed a sin against knowledge. It was commendable for him to demand that a true prophet be called, but he had already pledged his cooperation, and when Micaiah predicted the disastrous ending of the campaign he felt he could not withdraw. It would have been better for him to have withheld his decision until Jehovah had spoken, and then to have acted in harmony with His revealed will.

II. The False Four Hundred. (Vv. 5-12.) The four hundred prophets of Ahab took the popular side of the question. They spoke "smooth things" that "tickled the ears" of the king. Criticism is seldom acceptable to men in high office, no matter how justified the criticism may be. Ahab's prophets no doubt found it more profitable as well as much more pleasant to encourage the king in his plans. Further, they learned that they could get further with their influence if they issued their advice under the guise of religion. Unbiblical and even vicious purposes are being advanced today under the name of religion because their advocates realize the power of religion over the minds of the people.

III. The Faithful One. (Vv. 13, 14.) Micaiah was one against four hundred. For his faithfulness to truth and to God he was imprisoned and fed on the bread of affliction. But he lived to witness the fulfilling of the predictions God had given him. To be true to God and to one's convictions is a reward in itself. The faithful preacher and teacher for the Lord today should strive with Paul to say "none other things than those which the prophets and Moses," together with the apostles and Christ, "did say should come" (Acts 26:22).

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"What the Lord saith unto me, that will I speak."—1 Kings 22:14.

Micaiah was a prophet in Samaria and a man of God. He lived so close to the Father and communed with Him in such a way that he was guided by Him, and that was why he could say, "What the Lord saith unto me, that will I speak."

All true prophets were of God and gave forth the things that He gave them to tell the people. That was why they could prophesy. God directed, the prophets obeyed, so the Father's messages went forth to whomsoever He willed.

We are not prophets, but we are His children and we should live so close to Him that we may be directed by Him. Every true child of God endeavors to do the Father's will, just as much as Micaiah of today's lesson did His will. Who can do more?—L. A. R.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Truth

- is priceless, buy it;
- is not usually popular;
- makes us free;
- is the only standard of true judgment;
- is fallen in the street.

Speaking the Truth. It always pays to speak the truth, though oftentimes it means persecution and tribulation. It cost Micaiah dearly in telling the truth. He was smitten, then cast into prison. People hate to be told the truth, especially when it conflicts with some sinister or selfish plan they have in mind or operation. Truth as it is in Christ Jesus is seldom popular. As we near the end of Gentile times this condition will be more prevalent (2 Tim. 4:1-4). Knowing that there will be many who will not speak the truth we must ever be on our guard and prove the teachers whether they are of God (1 John 4:1). We must be established in the present truth, else we will be carried about with divers and strange doctrines (Heb. 13:9).

Power of Truth. Truth is powerful. It has saving power (John 8:32). Through it we are set apart or sanctified (John 17:17). The truth takes us toward and to Jesus, for He is the "way, the truth, and the life." God's mercy is linked together with God's truth. "Mercy and truth are met together." If we are to be recipients of God's mercy, we must be possessors of God's truth. Acceptable worship must be in truth (John 4:24). When we worship in truth and obey the truth we are thereby purified and made meet for the Master's service (1 Peter 1:22).—C. E. R.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULTS

Courageous Truth-Telling

Man, in his insane desire to follow the promptings of his heart (see Jer. 17:9), has often found himself in direct opposition to God and His righteousness. This has made it necessary for God to warn, and in some instances to severely punish, man as a means of redirecting his efforts. This has never been pleasant to carnal man and in his resentment he has often taken vengeance upon the messenger of God whose duty it was to warn of or to pronounce judgment. The prophets were stoned, cast into prisons and wells, beaten, and murdered. It took courage to be a prophet of God. Small wonder that Jonah fled from Nineveh.

Paul said that the elders of a church were to be overseers of the body and Peter said that they should accept the oversight thereof "not by constraint, but willingly." As an overseer Paul directed Timothy not to neglect his work but "them that sin rebuke before all, that others also may fear" (1 Tim. 5:20). Again he directed: "Preach the word; be instant in season, out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort with all longsuffering and doctrine. . . make full proof of thy ministry."—2 Tim. 4:2, 5. We have had ministers confide to us that they did not dare to rebuke as strongly as they should because they would lose their jobs, and the clothing and food of their little children depended upon retaining their pastorates. It is sad, but true, that many ministers are afraid to rebuke their friends or wealthy supporters of the church. Many professed followers of Jesus will not tolerate rebuke. Human nature has not changed and those who would do the work of an elder must expect persecution. Samuel pronounced judgment upon Eli, his friend and tutor; Jesus rebuked His followers and Paul rebuked his friends, even Peter himself. John might have had some noted rabbis as his followers had he not called them a generation of vipers. He chose rather to rebuke sin though it cost him his life. God expects the same loyalty today.—H. A. S.

PRIMARY

Topic: We Meet Micaiah, Who Tells Only the Truth.

We are to see and hear two kings. The king of Israel and the king of Judah.

Both kings are in Samaria. They seem to be plotting or planning something. Let's see what it is.

"I think we should make war with Syria and take Ramoth-gilead," says Ahab, king of Israel. "Will you go with me?"

"Yes, but let's see what the prophets say we should do."

Ahab's prophets say, "Go." Jehoshaphat, king of Judah, says, "Isn't there another prophet we could ask?"

"Yes," says Ahab, "there's Micaiah. But I don't like him. He's always saying evil things are going to happen to me."

"Let's send and see what he says and let's hope he says the same as the other prophets," says one of the kings.

Let's see what Micaiah says. He says, "If Ahab goes to fight he will be killed."

No, Ahab and Jehoshaphat don't listen to Micaiah, for there they go to battle. We don't want to watch this battle, for we know Ahab will be killed, as Micaiah is God's Prophet and speaks only the truth.

Put a dot on your road for our visit today.—V. C. T.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CONFERENCE DATES

Illinois Bible School and Conference at Oregon,	July 31 to Aug. 12
General Conference at Oregon, Illinois,	July 31 to Aug. 12
Eastern Nebraska Conference at Omaha,	August 12 to 19
Virginia Bible School and Conference at Maurertown,	August 16 to 26
Nebraska Conference at Holbrook	August 19 to 26
Iowa Conference at Waterloo,	Aug. 21 to 26

MARATHON, IOWA

I must tell you of the wonderful meetings we are having in this community. Owing to sickness, Sr. Anna Fales could not have the meeting announced for her home on June 17, so we met at our home instead. Sunday school was held at 10 o'clock, followed by a sermon by Bro. Arthur M. Jones at 11. A picnic dinner was served, and we then drove to Pickerel Lake, where Bro. Jones assisted Harold Smith and his wife Edith to put on Christ by baptism. I am very happy to tell you this, for they are very fine young people and well able to carry on a successful Christian life. On our return from the baptismal service we partook of the Lord's Supper, after which Bro. Jones gave us another good Bible lesson.

July 1 we met at the home of our new brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Smith, where we had an unusually large attendance, and were very glad to have Bro. and Sr. T. J. Ellis of Waterloo with us.

We are having such good fellowship at these meetings held in our various homes, and I am sure many of our neighbors and friends who attend them would never come to our church building.

On August 5, the Lord willing, we shall meet with Sr. Anna Fales at Storm Lake, Iowa.
Anna Boyanovsky.

RIPLEY, ILLINOIS

At our morning services, on Sunday, July 8, our hearts were again made glad when three young people came forward and accepted Jesus as their Savior. They were James and Maxine McClain and Lillie McClory, all of whom live near here. The baptismal service was held at the close of the services.

Bro. and Sr. McClain are a young married couple; and as they start their life together in the Christian way, we pray they may be guided at all times by our heavenly Father. Sr. Lillie is at the tender age of 12 and may her life be one lived to the glory of God.

When Bro. Lapp extended the invitation Sunday evening, Clarence Maddock came forward and confessed his faith. The baptismal services will be held at a later date. We pray that God will bless him in his new walk of life.

We had the pleasure of having with us Sr. Mauvine Greene of Quincy, Ill., and Sr. Lola Clark of Mt. Sterling, Ill. As they are both from a distance, they enjoyed meeting again with those of like precious faith.

We feel the Father has poured out great blessings upon us, and we pray that we all may remain faithful until Jesus shall come.
Ednah Cooper, Secretary.

BEAR, ARKANSAS

A joyful meeting was held at Bethaven recently.

Sunday the 24th at 11:00 a. m. the Antichrist was ably discussed by our pastor, Bro. Shelton. See 1 John 2:18, 22; 4:3; 2 John 7. He showed that the Antichrist and antichrists have already made their system of religion.

In the afternoon Bro. J. M. Dorris, with Bro. Shelton and the writer, led the way to a lake and into the water that he might seal the faith in order to have, as Peter words it, "the answer of a good conscience toward God." He is now 63 years of age and, like the writer, had been baptized while in his teens.

The Lord's Supper was served anew to remind us of how our Savior had loved and suffered for His church.

2 Peter 1:1, 10, 18 was read and expounded by Bro. Shelton. He then asked Bro. Jesse Humphreys to take the lead; so after some humble and appropriate words in the same manner Bro. Humphreys read Luke 22:1-30.

On the afternoon of June 15 we had a glad surprise when our son-in-law, Bro. Golie B. Sprinkle of Cheyenne, Wyo., came to see us. He was on his way home from Jasper, Ala., where he had been called to the bedside of his father. He arrived in time to be of much comfort to him and left him much improved. He was also of much comfort to us. He left us June 18.

Kittie C. and R. A. Humphreys.

ARKANSAS CITY, KANSAS

An old adage says, "Better late than never." Therefore, I am sending a belated report of a meeting held in Arkansas City, Kan., over the weekend of June 10.

The weather was extremely hot and it was harvest time, one of the busiest seasons of the year. Nevertheless, we had the pleasure of speaking to fair-sized crowds at each service.

What an inspiration it was to us to meet those good people and see the work they are doing. For these brethren during the hard times we have been experiencing have been building a house for God which is now nearly complete and, best of all, free from debt.

What they have done any consecrated group can do. For they are not large in numbers nor rich as this world reckons riches. But they have been willing to make sacrifices, and now they have a meeting place of which they can be justly proud.

The day after returning from Arkansas City we left for a two weeks' vacation in Nebraska. While there, it was our privilege to speak twice at Blair and to teach several classes. It was good to meet with the home folks again.

After being gone for three weeks we are back at work here in Helena. Things are rather quiet now, but we are praying that with cooler weather may come increased interest and attendance.

Lucille LeCrone.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO N. B. I.

Mrs. Orval Shepherd	$1.00
Ontario	2.00
Roscoe F. Dunbar	3.70
Mr. and Mrs. Howard H. Moore	2.50
Anonymous	5.00

NORTHWESTERN CONFERENCE

The Northwestern Conference closed a 5-day session, Sunday evening, June 24, at Corvallis, Ore.

The opening services were conducted by Bro. A. L. Corbaley of Puyallup, Wash., who spoke on "The Second Coming of Christ." Bro. Corbaley led the singing during the meetings and conducted two Bible studies. We certainly appreciate his willingness to serve where he may be most needed.

We were delightfully surprised when, around dinner time Thursday evening, Bro. and Sr. E. C. Railsback and Bro. and Sr. Norman J. MacLeod and sons Kenneth and John, Jr., drove in.

At the Friday morning service A. W. Darby of Gresham, Ore., spoke, taking his text from 1 Timothy 3:15. This was a very interesting discourse.

The weekly Bible study of the local church was led by Bro. MacLeod, the subject being Revelation 13. At the evening service Bro. MacLeod gave the first of two interesting discourses on "History and World Events," the second talk being given Saturday evening.

The business meeting was held on Saturday morning. Election of officers for the coming year resulted as follows: M. W. Woolf, President; Minnie Rogers, Vice President; Mrs. James Galbraith, Treasurer; Minnie R. Kerr, Secretary. No definite decision has been made in regard to selection of a minister for this district yet.

A general meeting was held Saturday afternoon with Sr. Railsback in charge. The subject, "Worldly Pleasures," was well handled by the leader, who advised us to let go of the world and its lusts and give our time to more profitable things.

Sunday was a day filled with food for both the natural and the spiritual man. Sunday school was held at 10:00 o'clock. Bro. MacLeod spoke at 11:00, giving a very interesting talk. A basket lunch was served at the city park beneath the shade of giant black walnut trees. At 2:30 Sr. Railsback conducted a social meeting, each one present giving a testimony or a scripture reading. The Lord's Supper concluded this service. Supper was served cafeteria style at the home of Sr. Flora Hogue. Bro. MacLeod delivered the closing discourse, admonishing the church to work together and to build up in faith and works.

"The Glories of the Kingdom," a sermon by Sr. Railsback, was given especially for the young people on Thursday evening.

Words cannot express our sincere appreciation of the wonderful spirit of service and brotherly love displayed by the California brethren in driving so far to help make this conference a success.

The work done by this organization is to strengthen the brethren in the faith, and to bring others into a knowledge of the truth.

May God bless our efforts, and we will give Him the praise and honor.

I wish to thank the brethren of the Northwest, and those whom I know only through correspondence, for their wonderful spirit of cooperation and for their confidence in me during the past six years during which I have served as secretary of this conference.

Gladys Barber, Secretary.

MARSHALL, ILLINOIS

Services are held the second and fourth Sundays of each month, Sunday school every Sunday, and Berean each Wednesday night. Everyone is cordially invited to attend these services.

Good interest and fine attendance continue to prevail at our preaching services, for which we are thankful. At our last service there were more than one hundred in attendance, of whom the great majority were young people.

One of the most encouraging features of our activities this summer has been the growth of our Berean class. Inactive for over a year, we reorganized this year and the interest and attendance have been steadily increasing. Our largest attendance numbered 46 and the smallest 18, with the average hovering around 35. We sincerely trust that this interest will continue to prevail throughout the summer.

Harry Goekler, Pastor.

BRUSH CREEK AND LAWRENCEVILLE, OHIO

Services at the Brush Creek Church of God were cancelled on Sunday morning, July 8, to assist in making a more profitable day of services at Lawrenceville, where the brethren were having their regular annual gathering with picnic dinner served on the church grounds. Elder James A. Patrick of Ashland, Ohio, delivered splendid sermons, in the morning on The Beatitudes, and in the afternoon on The Importance of Christ's Return. Two of his children, Ione and Carrol, accompanied him. Though there are not many brethren of the Lawrenceville congregation, it is a pleasure to meet with them and to witness their loyalty of service and to enjoy their hospitality.

The usual evening service was held at Brush Creek, and it was gratifying to see the number who attended their third service of the day. At the close of the service two came forward for baptism, Mr. Ellsworth Routson of Dayton, and Mr. Jesse Pensyl of West Milton, R. F. D. Mr. Routson is a young man who has attended our services frequently the past two years. He may be addressed this summer at Troy, Ohio, care Harold Kessler. Mr. Pensyl is a middle-aged man, and the head of a family of five. He has attended our services the past three years. Without waiting, a baptismal service was held at about 10:00 p.m. in Brush Creek on the farm of Bro. and Sr. Charles Doll. A flashlight illuminated the sacred page as we read of the baptism of the jailor and his family, also held in the nighttime, as recorded in Acts 16. Auto lights shone over the water as the candidates were immersed. We trust the blessing of Jehovah will be theirs in this life and that they may receive eternal reward in the soon coming kingdom of our Lord.

Sydney E. Magaw, Pastor.

OREGON AND WASHINGTON

Mr. and Mrs. Hal Gross arrived recently in San Francisco, Calif., after spending some time in Honolulu.

Members who have been on the sick list recently are Srs. Sarah E. Smith and Alice Darby Prior of Portland, Ore.; Srs. R. E. Nugent and Elsie Galbraith, Vancouver, Wash.; and Sr. W. I. Barber, Corvallis, Ore. Sr. Prior recently submitted to a major operation and is a patient in a Portland hospital. Sr. Galbraith, who is Treasurer of the Northwestern Conference, was unable to attend the annual meeting.

Out-of-town brethren who attended the Northwestern Conference at Corvallis, Ore., were: Bro. and Sr. E. C. Railsback, Bro. and Sr. MacLeod and sons Kenneth and John, Los Angeles, Calif.; A. W. Darby, Gresham; Bro. J. C. Wilson, Lebanon; Sr. Minnie Rogers, Berdina Smith, Bro. C. H. Belshaw, and Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Fisher, Eugene; Bro. and Sr. A. L. Corbaley, Puyallup; Sr. Riley Arthand, Aberdeen; Bro. and Sr. Edward L. McIrvin, and Bro. and Sr. Wallace Woolf, Vancouver, Wash.

The quarterly Northwestern Conference will be held September 7, 8, and 9 at Felida, Wash.

Drop the Secretary a card letting her know that you plan to attend, and when you will arrive. Ask her for names and addresses of members along the route, if you are driving through.

The new Secretary is Mrs. Minnie R. Kerr, and her address is 1662 Harrison St., Corvallis, Ore.

Brethren of the Northwest, give her your hearty cooperation.

One of the small daughters of Bro. and Sr. D. H. Hathaway underwent a tonsillectomy recently.

Gladys Barber.

BETWEEN YOU AND ME—

"The Bible and the Present Political Outlook" is the fascinating general subject announced by Norman John MacLeod for his Bible school lessons in Oregon, Ill. You will not want to miss this splendid series.

With much regret we learn of the sudden death on July 3 of Eld. L. H. Shelton, who has been doing such excellent evangelistic work in Arkansas. Bro. Shelton was to begin a series of meetings on July 20 near Bear, Ark. We hope for a complete obituary soon.

Bro. and Sr. Charles Gesin, Oregon, Ill., are moving to a farm about three miles from Mt. Morris, Ill., but not too far away from Oregon to make it impossible for Sr. Gesin to continue her splendid work in the church and Sunday school, for which we are thankful.

"Germany and the New Age" was the subject that called out a large and attentive audience at the church in Oregon, Ill., last Sunday night. The pastor's theme next Sunday evening will be "Labor and the New Age." These discourses are parts of a series on the new age of glory which is so soon to come.

There is still time to appoint your delegates to the General Conference and to offer your pastor a two weeks' vacation on pay so that he can attend that great gathering and bring its inspiration back to you. Make up an auto party and come with him.

Bro. Eldridge Ellis of Waterloo, Iowa, son of T. J. Ellis, Treasurer of the National Bible Institution, is now in Washington, D. C., where he was called to accept a position in the near future.

Fifteen Weeks for Fifty Cents—

Simply fill in this blank and return it to us accompanied by 50 cents for each one to whom you wish THE RESTITUTION HERALD sent for the next fifteen weeks and we will provide them with splendid inspirational reading, prophetic information, and comforting assurances of the Children of God for the summer's reading.

GENTLEMEN:

Please send THE RESTITUTION HERALD to each of the following for 15 weeks. I inclose 50 cents for each subscription.

Sender's Name

Address

New subscriber for 15 weeks:

Name

St. and No.

City State

Additional names may be submitted on another sheet.

PRACTICAL PROJECTS

TEACHERS in the church school have often been reproached by specialists in the field of religious education for what they claim is the absence of vitality in their teaching. It seems that lesson after lesson is taught in many cases without some obvious and objective effect being noticeable in the life of every class member. The specialist wants to be able to measure objectively the value of instruction. Is it possible for us to adjust our lesson programs in such a manner that an outward effect in everyday life will become evident?

It has been suggested that practical projects be launched by classes in the church school in order that the truth learned in the lessons during the class sessions can be definitely practiced in life. For example, in a lesson on Ruth, it is claimed that the class should take an active interest in interracial relationships at home, or in missionary projects, both domestic and foreign. They can either send gifts to support the missionaries or actually participate in efforts of an evangelistic nature in communities in their city unoccupied by the church at the present time.

But there is danger here that even the practical man may overlook. He may seek to do things outwardly, while being wholly unaware of the greater need of being changed himself inwardly. How often some of us delude ourselves, thinking that we are satisfying the Lord's requirements by outer acts of charity or seeming goodwill to others, whereas, in actuality, these acts constitute nothing but bits of ritualism. They may be mere formal expressions which fail to measure the actual inner condition of the soul!

The Apostle Paul said that nothing availeth except a new creature. Unless the inner change takes place, unless all of our motives are actually molded by the divine will at work within us, unless our desires are brought into harmony with the will of God so that we will be prompted to do that which is well pleasing in His sight, all of these outer acts by which some people would try to measure the religious personality and test the value of church school instruction, become as mere clanging cymbals and sounding brass—or, to put it in modern language, nothing but "a big noise"!

It is well that classes in the church school attempt to find means whereby the truths learned in their lessons may be expressed in action. It is noble indeed to launch forth with worthy projects in which class members may participate and cooperate. But, in doing so, let us be sure that this fundamental requirement in the changed life of the individual (changed on more than the surface or on the basis of mechanical reaction) is never overlooked. Otherwise we shall miss the supreme goal of our effort and fail in realizing the most important purpose to which the church school itself is devoted.—Standard Bible Teacher, copyrighted, 1933; published by permission.

General Conference Representation

EXTRACT from the Constitution and By-Laws:

VIII. (13) The General Conference shall be composed of individual members and delegates as follows: Each state shall be represented by delegate or delegates as follows: Where states are organized into state conferences they shall be entitled to vote by delegates appointed by the state conference or its executive board fifty per cent of its membership. Each organized church in the state shall be entitled to appoint delegates with power to vote fifty per cent of its membership. Any church or any number of members not associated with a state conference shall be allowed a 100 per cent representation. Any member of any state conference or church who shall be present at any conference session shall be allowed voice and vote, but such vote shall first be deducted from the delegate vote of his church or state conference or both. Any isolated member of the General Conference who is not a member of any state conference or church organization shall, if present, have voice and vote in any conference session.

The names of members and, if possible, the address of each member so represented shall be furnished and certified by the proper officer to the Secretary of the General

Conference before the session at which their votes shall be cast. (As amended August 12, 1926.)

The General Conference
Oregon, Illinois
G. Eldred Marsh, Secretary:

This is to certify that have been appointed delegate... to represent the conference church at the General Conference to be held at Oregon, Illinois, July 31 to August 12, 1934. The conference church has members which the above delegate is authorized to represent.

(Signed)

..... Chairman
..... Secretary

Dated, July, 1934.

Names and addresses of members follow:

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 23

OREGON, ILLINOIS, JULY 24, 1934

NUMBER 43

The Promises Made Unto the Fathers

By Lyman Booth

THIS subject presents to our minds two important questions. First, what were the promises? Second, who were the fathers? Because they are so closely related, it is to be expected that the answer to one will lead to the answer of the other.

First, who were the fathers? In Exodus 3:15 we find that God told Moses to say to the children of Israel, "The Lord God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, hath sent me unto you." And in Acts 3:13 Peter said, "The God of Abraham, and of Isaac, and of Jacob, the God of our fathers, hath glorified his Son Jesus." In Galatians 3:16 Paul plainly states that "to Abraham and his seed were the promises made." Because those promises which were first made to Abraham were repeated, in substance, to Isaac and Jacob, they are called "the promises made unto the fathers." By this testimony we learn who were the fathers.

What are the promises made to them? We find that when Abraham came into Canaan the Lord said to him, "Unto thy seed will I give this land."—Gen. 12:7. "Lift up now thine eyes, and look from the place where thou art northward, and southward, and eastward, and westward: for all the land which thou seest, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed for ever."—Gen. 13:14, 15. Later the Lord made a covenant with Abraham, saying, "Unto thy seed have I given this land, from the river of Egypt unto the great river, the river Euphrates."—Gen. 15:18. In speaking of this promise Paul said in Acts 7:5, "And (God) gave him none inheritance in it, no, not so much as to set his foot on: yet he promised that he would give it to him for a possession, and to his seed after him, when as yet he had no child."

In Romans 4:17 Paul, in speaking of the surety of the promise, said, "(As it is written, I have made thee a father of many nations,) before whom he believed, even God, who quickeneth the dead, and calleth those things which be not as though they were." Again the Lord said, "I will establish my covenant between me and thee, and thy seed after thee in their generations for an everlasting covenant, to be a God unto thee, and to thy seed after thee. And I will give unto thee, and to thy seed after thee, the land wherein thou art a stranger, all the land of Canaan, for an everlasting possession; and I will be their God."—Gen. 17:7, 8. "Thy seed shall possess the gate of his enemies; and in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed."—Gen. 22:17, 18. The promises which the Lord had made to Abraham were repeated to Isaac, who also was dwelling in Canaan: "Unto thee, and unto thy seed, I will give all these countries, and I will perform the oath which I sware unto Abraham thy father; . . . and in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed."—Gen. 26:3, 4. To Abraham's grandson, who also was dwelling in the same land, the Lord made the same promise, saying, "I am the Lord God of Abraham thy father, and the God of Isaac: the land whereon thou liest, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed; . . . and in thy seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed."—Gen. 28:13, 14.

From the foregoing we learn that God made the promise of a land estate extending forever, which implies a life of equal duration. If the possession of the land is an eternal possession, it could not be enjoyed except by those in possession of eternal life.

Who are the heirs of the promises? Where is their inheritance? How long will they possess it? How certain or sure are those promises?

How may men secure an interest in those promises? We have shown that Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob are the heirs named in the promise, which promise was made sure by the Lord's unbreakable oath. Now who or what people constitute the seed referred to in the promise is not so easily determined, although it is not left to guesswork, for Paul settled that question when he stated, "To Abraham and his seed were the promises made. He saith not, And to seeds, as of many; but as of one, And to thy seed, which is Christ."—Gal. 3:16. It is evident that Paul referred to land because he called it "the inheritance" (v. 18), and "the inheritance" refers primarily to the possession of the land of Canaan. Since the inheritance involves so many other promises, it may appropriately be called "the promises." In like manner the (Please turn to Page Nine)

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879.

G. Eldred Marsh, Editor

Two Dollars per Year

Paul C. Johnson, Associate Editor

"Be ye also ready: for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of man cometh."—Matt. 24:44.

MY DAILY PRAYER

Just for faith that will not waver,
 Just for truth, great All-in-all,
 Just to serve Thee, O my Savior,
 To be ready at Thy call.
 Just for better understanding,
 Just to help some one in need,
 Just to calm myself in silence,
 Just to hear Thy voice I plead.
 Just to sing when storms o'ertake me,
 Just to love when hate is near;
 To be brave when fears assail me,
 Just to trust Thee, Father dear.
 Just to know when tasks are over
 That my best I've given Thee,
 Just to hear Thy sweet voice murmur,
 "Well done, child, rest thou in Me!"

—May Moore.

PREPARING CANDIDATES FOR BAPTISM

FOR some years several of our churches have maintained classes for the instruction of those who have contemplated baptism in the near future. Regular weekly sessions are generally held, at which time plain and convincing lessons on the gospel and Christian conduct and responsibility are given by the pastor or by other competent instructors, so that when this most vital and important step is taken the individual doing so understands thoroughly the deep spiritual significance of the service.

Such pre-baptismal study under leaders of ability serves a most desirable purpose. In the first place, it impresses upon the mind of the candidate for baptism the great importance of the solemn act he is contemplating. It causes him to feel that on his understanding and response to God's gracious invitation rests in part the possibility of his eternal salvation.

In addition to this, such careful instruction tends to unify the church body in doctrine and practice. After taking a course of this kind no one would have occasion to say in later years, as some have done, "If I had known the Church of God believed so and so I would not have been baptized!" The immersion of one who has no clear knowledge of the gospel is of doubtful value.

"A LITTLE CHILD —"

A MOTHER came to the pastor of one of our churches recently and told him the following touching story. She said her little boy, not yet in school, but who is a most observing little chap, when he is prepared for bed at night, will say, "I'll take Jesus' hand in one of mine and Brover ———'s (naming the pastor of the church) in the other and walk in the beautiful garden."

The pastor could not at first think just what his little friend could mean by this expression, until suddenly it occurred to him that many months before he had talked to the children of the Sunday school about walking through the beautiful garden of life, hand in hand with Jesus Christ, the children's Friend!

For nearly a year that idea had been imbedding itself in the child's mind until at last it found expression in words, and more than words, in actual living, comforting faith! That little lad went into the darkness of each night without the slightest fear, trusting himself to the protecting care of his own best Friend, and, humbling and yet ennobling thought! to the guidance of the pastor's hand!

"Sleep, sweet counterpart of Death,"

O that we who are pastors might realize how powerful and how lasting is the influence we wield over the little ones who sit so apparently impatient before us for an hour or two each week!

When a trusting child associates in his mind his own father and mother, the pastor of his church, or his teacher in Sunday school, with the blessed Son of God; when, in the vivid imagination of childhood, he sees them walking in sweet and close communion with Jesus Christ "through the beautiful garden of life," how can they who walk before him all the time fail to strive humbly and prayerfully to be that which he believes them to be, the constant companions of the children's Friend?

Some day that little lad will have grown to manhood—still, we trust, hand in hand with Jesus Christ. In the course of time he will obey the gospel call in baptism, dying to the world and its deceitful allurements, and arising hand in hand with Christ to carry on our tasks. And then may come the sleep of death, but he will not fear to enter the darkness, for he will be walking hand in hand with the Light of the World! And after the Master comes he will walk hand in hand with Him throughout eternity!

While the Church Sleeps

II

By the Editor

FROM the time when the hope of the Lord's coming was lost in the mists of the Dark Ages to the present moment, the church has not regained fully its intense vitality and zeal which rested upon that hope. To realize the possibility of Christ's immediate presence in the affairs of earth arouses a deeper sense of individual responsibility in the disciple's heart than any other incentive could possibly do.

But it is not so much of this lost hope of the church that I wish to speak as it is of the events that have transpired, and are now transpiring, While the Church Sleeps.

Perhaps I should explain first what I mean by a sleeping church. I can do no better than to call your attention to the warning voiced by Paul so long ago, as recorded in 1 Thessalonians 5:1-11.

The Apostle's opening words are far from applicable to the nominal church member today, I am afraid. "But of the times and the seasons, brethren, ye have no need that I write unto you." How few Christians there are who know anything "of the times and the seasons" of prophecy! And that is what Paul is talking about. How equally ignorant are many of their religious leaders concerning these things! It is evident that not only are the laymen asleep, but their pastors and teachers are generally "slumbering and sleeping" also.

No doubt if Jesus were here today He would address the church with the very words He used in speaking to the Pharisees and Sadducees who asked Him for a sign from heaven, when "he answered and said unto them, When it is evening, ye say, It will be fair weather: for the sky is red. And in the morning, It will be foul weather to day: for the sky is red and lowring. O ye hypocrites, ye can discern the face of the sky; but can ye not discern the signs of the times?" (Matt. 16:2, 3).

The nominal church is awake, fully awake, to many of the dangers that threaten the world on every side. Its leaders are aware that the world is sick, with a grievous and lingering disease that fills the lives of men with pain and their minds with increasing fears. The church, I say, is awake to the sad conditions that prevail among the peoples of all nations, and no doubt the directors of religious thought have rightly diagnosed the cause of this universal distress.

The pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Nashville, Tennessee, Rev. James I. Vance, said recently in a published sermon:

"It is bad for a nation to lose its money, to go bankrupt, to lose its trade, to see its prosperity depart, to be swept with famine and disaster. But it is a thousand times worse for a nation to lose its soul. Can it be possible," he asks, "that this is the trouble with our country today? America is a nation whose soul is sick. Unless its people repent of their sins and return unto the Lord, America will be a country with a lost soul."

The clergyman calls attention to the efforts being made to bring the country back to prosperity. "The nation is feverishly at work attempting to meet the economic crisis, to find work for the unemployed, and to bring back business. To accomplish this purpose it is pouring out money like water."

It is, of course, right that the nation should do this. Such is the duty and function of government. And it is also right that the church should take an active and encouraging interest in all these things. But after all, economic recovery will not cure the cause of the disease that is sapping the strength of America. It cannot do that. We may put all of the men of this country back at work at the highest wages they have ever received. We may place them in beautiful and commodious homes of their own. We may shorten their hours of labor and give them an abundance of leisure to enjoy as they will. We may send their children through the grade schools, the high schools, and the state universities at public expense. But do what we may for the economic recovery and for the material prosperity of America, there will yet remain the problem confronting us of curing

Do Not Judge Too Hard

Pray don't find fault with the man who limps,
Or stumbles along the road,
Unless you have worn the shoes he wears
Or struggled beneath his load.
There may be tacks in his shoes that hurt,
Though hidden away from view,
Or the burdens he bears placed on your back
Might cause you to stumble, too.

Don't sneer at the man who's down today,
Unless you have felt the blow
That caused his fall, or felt the shame
That only the fallen know.
You may be strong, but still the blows
That were his, if dealt to you,
In the selfsame way at the selfsame time,
Might cause you to stagger, too.

Don't be too harsh with the man who sins,
Or pelt him with words or stones,
Unless you are sure, yea, doubly sure,
That you have no sins of your own;
For you know, perhaps, if the tempter's voice
Should whisper as soft to you,
As it did to him when he went astray,
'Twould cause you to falter, too.

—Selected.

the disease that brought about this state of suffering and want.

Let us make no mistake! The cure of the disease will not be found in the halls of Congress! It will not be located in the Chief Executive's chair in Washington! It will not be discovered by any "Brain Trust," however able it may be. The cure for the world's anxiety and pain will never be effected by the legislative enactments of any one nation or of all nations combined, for the cause of the disease is not political nor economic, but spiritual! And spiritual ailments are beyond the reach of material physicians!

The church, and the church only, possesses the remedy that can reach the heart of the disease and remove its cause. For the disease is sin, and the only remedy for sin is found described in the Bible, in the gospel of God's dear Son!

The church nominal is asleep to the fact that she has in her keeping the most powerful cure for depression in all the world. She is asleep to the fact that she possesses in the gospel of Christ the most potent antitoxin that was ever produced. Yet here she lies slumbering nervously, and dreaming of relieving the world's distress by law, man-made law!

A Fast Age

A FEW days ago David Jack of Peru, Nebraska, made a round trip by air between Omaha and Chicago. His wife traveled with him. Many years ago they traveled from Chicago to Omaha in an ox wagon. In the plane they traveled nearly three miles a minute; in the ox wagon they probably made about three miles an hour.

A few months ago Ezra Meeker, a well known pioneer in the State of Washington, drove an ox team from the Pacific Coast to the Middle West, traveling practically the same route (the Old Oregon Trail) he traveled more than a half century before. The journey east in the ox-drawn wagon took about three months, but he flew back to his home in Washington in just a few hours.

While reading the historical records of the Bible, we marvel at the rapidity of the rise and fall of leaders and kings. We look back at those people as being easily persuaded; we conclude that they yielded to their immediate desires, and failed to look into the future for the results of their actions. But let us look at the age in which we live. Surely there never was an age when nations tottered more or governments fell faster.

Look at the nations of Europe and Latin America. Kings have fled and Governments have changed hands so fast the past decade one can hardly keep informed as to what form of government the nations have. You cannot go to the library and take down a history and learn, for the chances are there have been several changes since the history was published, though it be a late one. One day a nation has a king; the next day the nation sends the king into exile and declares itself a republic. Then to the astonishment of all a dictator arises; all eyes are turned to him and kings and presidents are practically forgotten.

We readily concede that the prophets of God prophesied of these conditions hundreds of years before Christ, but the question is asked, "Does the Bible speak of our nation, too?" We answer in the affirmative. The same Spirit that moved the prophets of old prompted the Apostle Paul to say, "In the last days . . . men . . . shall be heady," or rash, hasty (2 Tim. 3:1-4).

This nation has rushed along so fast the past ten years that some of the diplomats actually called for application of the "emergency brake." They, like Daniel of old, have said, "O my Lord, what shall be the end of these things?"

The nation seems in a rash, hasty, unsettled state of mind all the time. When production was good they plowed under parts of the crops. A drought struck most of the nation and immediately famine was feared and cries for relief are everywhere.

A few years ago the people selected a man for the highest national office, and he gained the support of the majority of the people of the nation: four years later he seemed utterly forsaken. People said, "Give us a 'new deal.'" Now they seem like a boy with a new toy: he plays with it for a while; but soon he wishes to take the wheels off, set it down, and go to get another. Are we, as a nation, hasty?

A few months ago the people asked for the repeal of the Prohibition Amendment; there was an overwhelming wet vote, and now the nation is disappointed with the results. They asked for 3.2 beer, then they wanted 6, then they wanted hard liquor. Accidental deaths caused by drunken drivers have increased to an alarming degree. What the next wild dash will be no one ventures to say.

There will be no national, or international, "cure-all" remedy until the return of Jesus; however, it is to be hoped that those in authority will strive to lead the nation, and nations, to higher planes of living. But you and I need not wait for a national movement. Jesus did not wait to be endorsed by the Sanhedrin council. He knew and obeyed the call of His heavenly Father.

The call of the Master today is to go to the closet and "shut the door and pray." Let us ask God to help us to slow down to where we can hear His voice. He is calling for men and women who will lead a quiet and peaceful life and be an "example of the believer." Shall we "slacken our pace" and learn to spend more time at the feet of the world's greatest teacher, Jesus, who said to the storm, "Peace be still," and who is to return and be the Prince of Peace?—Roy Dailey in The Bible Advocate.

Peter and the Resurrection

THIS is more of a study of this subject, and from a standpoint not often taken. We will endeavor to take up this subject as connected with Peter's life and teaching. First, we will notice that the Apostle Peter personally was opposed to this very important message when it was first taught by Christ our Lord. Matthew records its first mention by Jesus (Matt. 16:21) thus: "From that time forth began Jesus to shew unto his disciples, how that he must go unto Jerusalem, and suffer many things of the elders and chief priests and scribes, and be killed, and be raised again the third day. Then Peter took him and began to rebuke him, saying, Be it far from thee, Lord: this shall not be unto thee."

It was at this time that Jesus said unto Peter, "Get thee behind me, Satan." Mark also mentioned the same thoughts in Mark 8:31-33. Up to this time in the ministry of our Lord, the disciples had been proclaiming Jesus as the Christ, the covenanted King of a kingdom promised to the Jews "at hand." But now Jesus makes a change in His teaching. Read again Matthew 16:21, 22. You notice, do you not, that Peter rebukes Jesus by saying, "Be it far from thee"? Then Jesus had to call Peter down. He spoke very sharply to him, calling him "Satan." Did you ever think or wonder why Jesus called Peter "Satan"?

The way marked out by God for Jesus to come to victory was by the way of the cross, and through the tomb. But Satan in His temptation had suggested to Jesus an easier way to the kingdom. His suggestion was, "Bow down to me and all these kingdoms of the world will be yours without risking the way of the cross or tomb." Jesus did not take the bait. Jesus answered the arch fiend just as wisely as He answered all His enemies, "It is written, Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve." After this the devil left Him. But the echo of that temptation came again to the ears of our Master, and this time it came from the very mouth of one of His disciples. But Jesus was not deceived if Peter was, and so He answered the words, or second temptation, of the evil one coming through Peter, by saying, "Get thee behind me, Satan." Here is a lesson for all of us. Let us not be surprised, or deceived, if the devil sometimes uses some of our dearest friends to tempt us in going wrong. That is why we should begin every day by praying the prayer that Jesus taught His disciples, saying, "Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil: For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, for ever. Amen."

Said Jesus to Peter, "Thou savourest not the things that be of God, but those that be of men." The real message of death and resurrection of Christ is not the popular Easter message of today. The popular Easter message that is being sounded from most pulpits does not emphasize the death and resurrection of Jesus, nor does it recognize that there is any death at all, really; but it insists that immortality means the conscious continued existence of the natural life of man under far better conditions. "There is no death; what seems so is transition." So says the poet. But the message of the Bible is that immortality comes through our connection with Jesus Christ by faith, and is to be received through a resurrection from the dead at the last day. Christ demonstrated the possibility as well as the how, by His own resurrection. When He appeared to John on the Isle of Patmos, He said, "I am he that . . . was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore." He had even before His death said to His disciples, "Because I live, ye shall live also."

Let us now consider Peter's experience with Christ's resurrection. You remember that Jesus told the women to tell His disciples, and Peter. Read Luke 24:12; John 20:6. According to 1 Corinthians 15:5 we would infer that Peter was the first of the apostles who saw Jesus after His resurrection.

It is certain that the first sermon preached after the day of Pentecost was an Easter sermon, and Peter was the Apostle who preached it. You will find it in Acts 2:24-32. There are two things about this sermon that should characterize every gospel sermon. 1. It was biblical. 2. The preacher had experiential knowledge in the matter treated. Peter quoted from Psalm 16:10. Peter had not only seen the empty tomb and the linen cloths laid by themselves, but he had seen his Lord. We find that Peter in his second sermon, as reported by Dr. Luke (Acts 3:15), speaks again of the resurrection, and further he says, "We his apostles are the witnesses of that fact." Then in the fourth chapter of Acts in his address to the Sanhedrin, verse 10, he again speaks of Jesus' resurrection. Peter is no longer afraid to stand before the rulers and give his testimony of the fact of Jesus' wonderful triumph even over death. Peter is not only the first to preach of the resurrection of Christ to those of the Jewish race, but he is the first to preach it to them of other races. It was in Cæsarea in the house of Cornelius (Acts 10:40, 41). We find that Peter not only preached about the resurrection of Christ, but he wrote very eloquently about the subject. In his first letter, the first words after his introduction, he gives utterance to such beautiful thoughts as these, "Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which according to his abundant mercy hath begotten us again unto a lively hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead."

I will now close with this illustration. A little boy, on seeing the sun rise, dashed into his grandmother's room, put his hand on her shoulder as she lay sleeping, and shrilled, "Wake up, Grandma, the world's begun." Peter must have had something of the same experience when he saw the empty tomb, and afterwards saw Jesus himself.

His hopes had been dissolved, and his dreams had been shattered. Then he heard the glad news. Then he saw for himself his Lord. For him the world had begun anew. Does it mean any less to you and me? We read Christ's resurrection was the "firstfruits," "then they that are Christ's at his coming." When Christ comes again and all His followers are raised from the dead to die no more, it will certainly be as the little boy said, "Wake up, Grandma, the world's begun."—S. J. Boy in The Messiah's Advocate.

Experience

By Emma C. Railsback

THE knowledge gained by practice, trial, or exercise we call "experience." The Apostle writes, "Tribulation worketh patience; and patience, experience; and experience, hope: and hope maketh not ashamed." In the daily walk experience giveth confidence while inexperience often maketh ashamed. In my youth my mother often made use of the old adage, "Experience is a dear teacher, but children and fools will learn by no other." I can testify from experience to the wisdom contained in this pithy saying. Some are able to learn from the experiences of others and often save themselves much annoyance and grief by close observation of and by heeding the advice of their elders. In the business world most of the avenues of employment require experienced help. The first question to an applicant for a position is, "How much experience have you had?"

Advanced years do not always indicate a rich experience in the ways of life; yet in the main, the experience of age is one that can be depended upon. The Apostle writes that strong meat belongeth to them that are of full age, even those who by reason of use have their senses exercised to discern both good and evil. By reason of use or experience, therefore, those of full age have better discernment. This is quite generally conceded to be the truth not only in the Scriptures but in the business world as well. Yet we see a tendency today to discount the wisdom gained by experience and to exalt the young with only theoretical knowledge.

Attending lectures at teachers' institutes with our daughters, who were teachers, some ten or twelve years ago, I was surprised to hear the educators advise the teachers to "give youth his liberty; do not restrain; allow him to give full expression to every impulse," etc. I sensed a danger to the rising generation then and there. This instruction is contrary to every precept of Scripture. These lecturers were not the only ones to voice this sentiment of "no restraint" for the young. We see it in the popular columns of the daily papers and in the magazines. We are now seeing the results of such teaching on every hand. It is one of the causes of the present demoralized condition of society, of government, of business, of religion. Everywhere we find it bearing fruit. Quoting from The Pathfinder on causes of the depression:

"The younger generation thought they knew it all and insisted on taking charge of business all along the line. All 'men over 40' were blacklisted and told to go away and stay away, as they were too ancient for this new generation. New ideas and schemes, as crazy as anything that ever came out of bedlam, were brought forth and adopted. Of course the young squirts who took command of business during those times were not spending their own money or they would have done very differently. In fact few of them had ever actually earned a dollar by honest work and hence they could not be blamed for having no notion of the value of money."

This writer sees conditions as they are today, and he is not praising the younger generation that has taken command in the business world. There is rather a note of criticism throughout the article.

In every phase of life we see the results of pushing youth to the front before he has gained experience to qualify him to occupy the front of the stage. In religion the elders are informed that they are a hindrance to the young; step down, give way! We see godly parents almost driven to distraction trying to hold their children in restraint from their evil associates in school who are permitted every license. Lack of chastisement by parents according to scriptural instruction is the primary cause for the present lack of reverence for parents and the demand for them to take a back seat and allow the young to have full sway. Poor, misguided youth: he lacks experience; he is impulsive; crimes of every description are laid at his door, and who is more responsible than those who have agitated to "restrain him not"?

This is a part of the perilous last-day conditions; and the church should be on her guard lest she, too, be found promoting the same false principles. Let us not sleep, but let us watch and be sober, being continually on our guard against conformity to the world. Rapid changes are taking place, and there is great danger of being caught in the whirlpool of popular public sentiment. Another danger which I wish merely to mention is the great sacrifice being paid on the altar of vanity. In this, too, there is great danger of the church losing sight of her opportunities of transformation to the likeness of the Son of God.

TO A YOUNG PASTOR

I REGRET exceedingly and am ashamed to realize that our younger ministers should receive such a small wage as to make it necessary for them to economize to the extent that they are unable to furnish their families with a little necessary protection. I trust this will not always be thus. I know your church is a young church and doubtless doing what they can toward your support. But why should our denomination open up a work and be unable to finance it; and expect some young man whom God has called to preach to go and make all the sacrifice himself?

I know our church for years held a pastor to about two thirds of what a pastor should receive. But thank the Lord! one day we got our eyes opened and now we pay our pastor $35 per week and furnish him a parsonage and pay his telephone bill; and about once a year give him an extra token of our love and affection. This is not an enormous salary, but it keeps him from financial worry, and gives him enough to pay his bills, including insurance protection for his family.

Perhaps I should have told you one of the secrets of how we do it. Well, we organized a Tithing Class, and each member pledges to bring all his or her tithe into the class. "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse" (church). From this class we vote ninety per cent of our income to church support. Say, you just ought to attend one of our class meetings and hear of the blessings spiritually and financially which come to those members. We have now thirty-five or thirty-six members, and they pay about seventy-five per cent of the bills of the church. Our church membership is around one hundred and twenty-five. We put an envelope in the regular church offering marked, "Tithing Class," and our class Collector and Treasurer handle these envelopes. Not a soul knows what another gives, as all envelopes are marked alike, "Tithing Class." We have for a class song, "My Cup's Full and Running Over." We meet once a quarter. No money can be paid out except by a majority of the whole class membership.

—Carl S. Magoon in The World's Crisis.

—0—

EVOLUTIONARY DOCTRINES

EVOLUTION destroys faith in the Bible as an infallible guide. It destroys faith in God as the Creator of the universe. It discredits belief in the fall of man. It discourages faith in Jesus Christ as Lord and Savior. It denies the reality of prayer to a heavenly Father. It ridicules the thought of life beyond the grave. . . . This ought to be enough for any true Christian. We are either Christian or evolutionist. There is no middle ground. There is no such thing as a Christian evolutionist. Let every saint of God beware. It is one of Satan's end-time delusions. To conscientiously accept the doctrine of evolution is to refuse Christianity. We have been warned of God to watch for these frightful signs of the end. Evolution is a lying system, hiding behind the mask of science.—Selected.

CONCLUSION RESPECTING HELL

WE have examined all those words that are translated "hell" and all others that bear any relation to the word "hell"; and the result is, the Bible does not teach that there is any place now in existence where the wicked dead are in torments. Nay, that neither the wicked nor the righteous are collected in one common receptacle, except so far as all of them who have died are in the dominion of death—that is, in sheol, or in hades—in a state of entire unconsciousness; of destitution of all life, and not in any particular place. Further, that none of the terms referring to the future punishment of the wicked imply that the wicked will be tormented forever; but that many of these terms do most emphatically teach their utter extermination.

These facts, taken with the mass of direct, positive, and plain testimony that the wicked will be so destroyed as to be entirely put out of existence, as living beings, make assurance doubly sure that the universe will be entirely purified of all wicked beings; not by rendering them holy, but by their annihilation. Rejoice, every creature, that universal holiness and universal happiness will ultimately prevail.

We have seen, too, that as the word "hell" conveys an entirely different meaning now from that which it formerly bore, the word "hell" should be entirely blotted out of any revision or new translation of the Scriptures, there being no Hebrew nor Greek word that corresponds with it, or indeed that bears the slightest affinity to it in its present acceptation.

The ideas that are now so prevalent respecting hell have been necessitated from the erroneous belief that has increased of late years of the immortality of the soul, the consciousness of the dead, and the everlasting misery of the wicked; which three errors have well nigh subverted the gospel of the Son of God. The words from which "hell" is now rendered should either be Anglicized and left untranslated, as in "baptism," or should have a corresponding English synonym, as sheol and hades, death, and the dominion of death; Gehenna, the Valley of Hinnom; Tartarus, the outer regions, or regions of darkness; and Abussos, an abyss, an abyss of waters, or a profound deep. Nothing can be more absurd than to translate all of these words by the word "hell," burdened as it is with its present theological definition.

The terms applied to the ultimate destiny of the wicked are utterly at variance with the fable of "eternal misery" and of the present suffering of the wicked dead in any place called a hell of fire; as these terms all imply the extinction and not the preservation of life and consciousness; and no honest interpreter of the Scriptures will henceforth attempt to reconcile these terms with eternal life in misery.

Consider a few of them: Death—second death—perish—utterly perish—devour—destroy—cut off—burn up—consume—utterly consume—destruction—perdition—corruption—they shall be as though they had not been—and annihilation. The fire that will consume the wicked will be "a fire that consumeth to destruction" (Job 31:12). The theologians that are determined to sustain their tottering sectarian creeds must invent some other words more pliant, and now less known, than the terms we have examined.

May we not indulge the hope that some of these professed teachers for the sake of honesty and the truth will abandon their vain traditions for the teachings of the Bible? Who is on the Lord's side? Who? Who?—Aaron Ellis and Thomas Real in Bible vs. Tradition; selected by R. A. Curtis.

THE FIRST SUNDAY SCHOOL

ONE Sunday morning, over a hundred years ago, a working man, carefully dressed in his best suit, came out of his house on the main street of the old English town of Gloucester and strolled leisurely down the hill. The New Inn was fronted then, as it is today, by a square garden overhung by the carved galleries of the tavern. There was a moss-clad well in the center, and about it were beds of sweet-smelling pinks and columbines.

But the calm of that Sunday morning was destroyed by a crowd of street boys who fought over the flower beds, making the day hideous with their noise and coarse talk.

The printer—for printing was his work on weekdays—stopped in the midst of the crowd and looked steadily at the boys. Presently he said to himself: "At this rate those boys will soon go utterly to the bad. That must not be! There are good possibilities in them. Here boys," he called aloud, "come with me!"

He led them, yelling and pushing, down the street into his own quiet house, planning, as he went, how to keep them there.

"I am going," he said, presently, "to start a school for you—now and here. It shall be a free school; I will be the teacher."

The boys received the news with shouts. They were too ragged and grimy to go to church on Sunday. No other decent place was open to them.

The next Sunday his house was crowded with the same class of children.

The idea of a free school on Sunday appealed to every Christian as a most hopeful plan for the rescue of children from wickedness. It spread through the town, through the shire, through England. It was adopted in France and Germany; it made its way to Australia and to the United States. Now, in every country in the world, and in every sect, there are these schools in which every Sunday morning the Bible story is told without money and without price.

In the staid old city of Gloucester they still show you the New Inn and the garden where the boys played, and the old brown house with its peaked roof in which Robert Raikes, that long-ago morning, taught the first Sunday school.—Selected.

THE BASIC THING

THE acid test of a nation is its capacity for unselfishness, and America more than once has met that test and emerged from it unscarred and clean. The trouble with the world is broken brotherhood, and the answer to the present world emergency is the manifestation of an enlarged allegiance to the vital principles of religion on the part of the moral leaders of mankind.

ACID TEST OF CHRISTIANITY

If General Wood tells us that we need to return to the faith of the fathers and founders of our country; if old Henry Waterson, writing in The Saturday Evening Post—almost his final message to America—could say, "Never in the history of the world was Jesus of Nazareth so interesting and predominant"; if the former President of the Chinese Republic, admitting that he was not a Christian, but a follower of Confucius, confesses that Confucius is not strong enough for the crisis that is now upon us, and advises China to try Christianity; if a prominent banker openly declares at a banquet in a great American city (as one did in my presence not long ago) that America and the world need now more than anything else the religion of Jesus Christ, shall not the church of Christ with enlarged vision and enlarged allegiance interpret the moral issues of this portentous hour to a wearied and worried world, and do her best to bring all the rushing rivers of human life into one central stream of blessing and benediction to mankind?

ACID TEST OF THE INDIVIDUAL

If America forgets the high ideals upon which the nation was founded and slips from them, the world will slip. And America will slip when Americans slip! It comes back to the individual. The redemption of the world rests upon the redeemed man. Jesus Christ is not now saving this world—He has saved it; and upon you and me rests the responsibility of putting the world on the clue to its own salvation.

COSMIC STEWARDSHIP

This is stewardship in a cosmic and in an individual sense. And no man can discharge his obligation toward it by dismissing it. A Christian is a saved man under orders. He cannot choose to be interested in the work of human redemption—he is chosen for that blessed work. Violence and war will never be removed and peace reign in the world merely by the conversion of implements of warfare into implements of agriculture, but by the enthronement of the Prince of Peace in turbulent hearts.

THE BASIC THING

The basic thing in Christianity is the sacrifice of Christ on the cross, and the basic thing in Christ's service is sacrificial stewardship—stewardship in life, of time, of talents, of money. This is the simplest test of the Christian life—and the severest. I knew personally a trustee of a church in a great Eastern state whose net profits from his business in one year were $100,000, and his pledge to missions that year was $5.00. The rich fool of the Bible story was not condemned for making money, but for acting like a fool with the money he had made. There was an Old Testament steward who won distinction and condemnation as a money maker (Gen. 47:14), and there was a New Testament steward who was condemned for not making money (Luke 19:22-24). God is not poor. He simply has a hard time getting what belongs to Him from some of His stewards.

My money is myself. If I work in a steel mill and make $7.00 a day, the $42.00 I receive at the end of the week is simply my own muscle converted into cash. It is I myself put into my pocket and walked home with. If I work as a stenographer and get $150 a month, that $150 is just myself reduced by shorthand to pocketable size. If I work as a bank clerk and get $200 a month, that $200 is just myself changed into some of the currency I have been counting. The sweat of my body, or the sweat of my soul, will always be found sticking to the money in my pocket. Money making is the soul's unveiling of ethical evaluation—money giving is the photography of the spiritual life.

THE STEWARD'S MINIMUM DUTY

The minimum duty of every Christian is to give not less than one tenth of his income to God's work. This is God's law. It isn't the law of Moses; it was instituted before Moses was born. This law has never been abrogated (Deut. 14:22; Mal. 3:10). This law, Christ sanctioned (Matt. 23:23). Being not under law, but under grace, the saved man is not under less, but under greater, privileges of liberality. Law demands more of subjects than grace demands of sons, but grace requires more. The basic thing requires that our Lord be obeyed and followed in all His program concerning a saved world by His saved people.—John Snape in Present Truth Messenger.

THE PROMISES MADE UNTO THE FATHERS

Continued from Front Page

word "seed" may be used with reference to a single person, as in Genesis 3:15, also in 2 Samuel 7:12, which is clearly shown by the pronoun "his," which in both instances refers to Christ. We find that the inheritance promised to Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, and to Christ will be the land of Canaan for an everlasting possession. We also find that none of them have ever been in possession of any portion of the land. Abraham never received enough of it upon which to place his feet. Neither did Isaac nor Jacob. Jesus said concerning Himself, "The foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have nests; but the Son of man hath not where to lay his head."—Matt. 8:20. While they were poor, yet they were heirs to an eternal inheritance in the earth. In fact it will include the whole earth.

The prophets speak of a time when Jesus shall sit upon the throne of His glory and will establish His kingdom in the Promised Land, a kingdom which will break in pieces all forms of human government and fill the whole earth; for His dominion shall be from sea even to sea, and from the river to the ends of the earth (Matt. 25:31; Zech. 9:10; Dan. 2:35). The full import of the promises to Abraham and his seed includes the entire inheritance. Paul called it the promise of the world (Rom. 4:13).

What better thing could God in His mercy provide for His creatures? Christ is the heir of the world, and through Him every obedient believer becomes a joint heir with Him. Paul said to the Galatians, "As many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ." "Ye are all one in Christ Jesus." "And if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise." Heirs of God and joint heirs with Jesus Christ

There is a golden thread of prophecy woven into the Scriptures from Genesis to Revelation relative to the "seed" of the woman, which also refers especially to Christ, as the "seed" of Abraham. The joint heirs are reckoned by adoption as one in and with Christ. So intimate is their union with Him that they are called "the body of Christ." "Now ye are the body of Christ, and members in particular."—1 Cor. 12:27. "For we are members of his body, of his flesh, and of his bones."—Eph. 5:30. Because of this relationship John employed a figure of speech and called this great company "the bride, the Lamb's wife" (Rev. 21:9).

We have shown who are the heirs, and the promises show clearly where the inheritance is located, which is on the earth. It is a land estate, as shown by God's promises to the fathers. "Unto thy seed will I give this land." "To give thee this land." The land "from the river of Egypt unto the great river, the river Euphrates." "I will give this land to thee, and to thy seed after thee, for an everlasting possession." Five times the promise of land. See Genesis 12:7; 15:7; 24:7.

How may one obtain a personal interest in the promises? Or what must one do to become an heir and also obtain that eternal inheritance? Paul described the process briefly to a few who had complied with the requirements. He said, "Ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus. For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ . . . And if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise." "Heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ."—Gal. 3:26, 27, 29; Rom. 8:17.

First, faith in Christ Jesus. To have faith in Him is to believe whole-heartedly the doctrine He taught, which is "the gospel of the kingdom of God" (Mark 1:14). He who truly believes His gospel message is prepared for immersion into Christ. By being immersed, he is counted a child of God and becomes a new creature in Christ Jesus and can rejoice in the hope of realizing a share in the "exceeding great and precious" promises of God made unto the fathers (2 Peter 1:1-4).

In view of these things one can joyfully sing that sacred hymn, with the spirit and the understanding, "I am standing on the promises of God."

Abreast of the Times

General Strike Ended

"Woe unto him . . . that useth his neighbour's service without wages."—Jeremiah 22:13.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 19.—The general strike that has held this city in its relentless grip for seventy-seven hours was called off at one o'clock today. The longshoremen led by Harry Bridges, an Australian radical, said that the strike of their union would continue, however, regardless of the action of the general union of longshoremen which opposes it.

The waterfront employers who deal with the longshoremen agreed to arbitration weeks ago, and the agreement was signed a month ago by the national officers of the longshoremen's union, but was repudiated by the radical element in this city led by Bridges.

Foodstuffs and other necessaries are being moved rapidly into the city and business is once more resuming its customary appearance. Strikes of waterfront workers at other Pacific Coast ports continue, and it is to be doubted that a lasting and satisfactory peace can be brought about for some time.

From other parts of the country, both North and South, come reports of bitter strikes and labor troubles of a harassing nature. These things of course are to be expected with increased frequency and marked by unusual violence as time goes on.

Jewish Archeological Discoveries

"Thou shalt be brought down, and shalt speak out of the ground, and . . . whisper out of the dust."—Isaiah 29:4.

JERUSALEM, Palestine, July 15.—Dr. E. L. Sukenik, archeologist of the Hebrew University at Tel-Jeriseh, reports the recent discovery of a "heart-scarab," the first of its kind to be found in Palestine. The find was made near the Yarkon River. The stone is an unusually large one, dating from the XVII dynasty (Egyptian), and is called a "heart-scarab" because it was placed over the heart of the mummy, and bears a hieroglyphic inscription from the Book of the Dead, the Egyptian sacred book.

The Book of the Dead predicts the coming of a messiah, Osiris, who died, but who is to be resurrected at a future time and restore certain favored ones to life with him.

Jewish Day at the World's Fair

"They traded in thy fairs."—Ezekiel 27:12.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 20.—The great Jewish day at the Century of Progress that aroused so much favorable interest in Jewish progress and culture last year is to be repeated Sunday, July 29. According to the sponsors of the effort, the program this season will be even more interesting than that of last year. Max Shulman, President of the Zionist Organization of Chicago, has announced the determination of his group to cooperate actively in the presentation. The Zionist group is one of more than one thousand Jewish organizations working together to make this year's observance of Jewish Community Day a success. According to the Jewish Courier the day will "be climaxed with a gigantic dramatic musical, dancing, and athletic spectacle in Soldiers' Field, which will be attended by an anticipated crowd of 100,000 persons."

Blood Money

"Your hands are defiled with blood."—Isaiah 59:3.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 20.—A sentiment is growing throughout the country in opposition to what has been aptly termed "Dividends of Death," i. e., profits derived from the manufacture and sale of munitions of war. The American Legion has expressed itself very forcibly with regard to the matter, advocating the total elimination of the profit motive in connection with manufacture of war material. In a recent address before the Army Industrial College Bernard M. Baruch, who was chairman of the War Industries Board in 1918 and 1919, and therefore in a position to understand the matter thoroughly, advocated not the entire extirpation of personal profit but the "elimination of profiteering, and, above all, the profit incentive to war." All industry, he said, "must be denied the right to indulge in a joy-ride at the expense of the nation."

One of the most repugnant things that the returned soldier met upon his homecoming was the fact that those who had remained in safety on the American shores had reaped a great harvest of wealth as a result of his self-sacrifice. He had placed his life upon what he thought to be the altar of patriotism, and for that sacrifice he had received the insignificant wage of approximately one dollar a day, while those who had faced none of the dangers of the battlefield had been paid from ten to twenty times as much.

There is little real justice to be looked for until He shall come who is "to judge the world in righteousness"!

War to Burst Like Thunder

"A day of the trumpet and alarm."—Zeph. 1:16.

SAINT MALO, France, July 22.—Marshal Henri Petain, Minister of War, addressing a congress of reserve officers of the French Army today, declared that the "next war will burst like a clap of thunder." He urged upon the officers the necessity of preparation that they might be ready for "conditions of surprising brutality which will mark the beginning of future conflicts."

Berean Department

ARLEN MARSH, EDITOR

Faith and Works

"For as the body without the spirit is dead, so faith without works is dead also."—James 2:26.

It is not possible to deceive any but ourselves if we claim to believe a faith whose precepts we do not fulfill. "But be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving your own selves."—James 1:22. We are judged by our actions, not by what we think or intend to do. In the eleventh chapter of Hebrews, Paul tells how the patriarchs of old proved their faith by their actions. "And these all, having obtained a good report through faith, received not the promise: God having provided some better thing for us, that they without us should not be made perfect."

It is true that we are saved by faith, but it is imperative to a Christian to prove that faith by works. Indeed, we cannot become Christians without showing our faith by being baptized, and afterwards proving our trust in God by our actions.

Faith without works is worth nothing. "If a brother or sister be naked, and destitute of daily food, and one of you say unto them, Depart in peace, be ye warmed and filled; notwithstanding ye give them not those things which are needful to the body; what doth it profit?"—James 2:15, 16.

If we profess to have faith in God and unlimited trust in His goodness, how can we help doing as He has commanded us? The slightest deviation in our actions from those prescribed by the Word of God proves us unfaithful and unbelieving of His promises.—Laura Marie Bleasdale, Los Angeles, California.

A Suggestion to the States

The accompanying report was received by the Secretary of the National Berean Society from Mrs. Blanche A. Harland, Cedar Falls, Iowa, in charge of the Cradle Roll Committee of the Iowa State Berean Society. It provides an excellent suggestion for possible use among other state organizations.

The Cradle Roll Department was planned for children up to 6 years of age. When a child is enrolled, he is given a cradle roll certificate and a bank. We record his name and date of birth on our cradle roll and keep a card index file showing birthdays. We try to send a birthday greeting to each child.

Just before conference time we remind each member to bring or send the pennies he has saved for the children's offering. Last year eleven children who could not attend conference sent their offerings and their mothers sent their greetings. Two of these mothers have not been at conference for over ten years, but they are still interested in the work and may be able to come when the children are older. We feel that in some cases the parents are kept interested through their children. The funds received from the children's offering go into the general Berean treasury, and the Berean Board decides how they are used. One year part of the amount went toward the new church building (in Waterloo).

We have twelve children on our cradle roll now who will be 6 years old by conference time. We plan to promote these children to be junior Bereans as a part of the Berean program. After this year we hope to make this promotion an annual affair.

We are also starting to organize our junior Bereans in much the same way we have organized our cradle roll. Our work has been somewhat hampered by the lack of suitable supplies. All forms for cradle roll certificates seem to be planned for Sunday schools and the wording has to be changed.

The Cradle Roll Department described was organized in August, 1931. It now possesses a membership of 33, 12 of whom are eligible for promotion to the status of junior Bereans. There were 12 members present at the Iowa Conference of 1933, and 23 members took part in the children's offering.

Golden Rule Berean Society

We have now, with our last meeting of June, brought to a close another quite successful year. As an appropriate ending to a year of work, mingled with pleasure, an outing was held at the home of Bro. Tomlinson. Fifty-six were present, and it is quite fitting to say that a good time was enjoyed by all.

For the 39 meetings held during the year, an average attendance of 50 was maintained. Our record attendance for the year was 74.

At the election, which was held on June 8, the following new officers were chosen: M. Milburn to succeed D. Swartz as President; A. Hollinshead to succeed M. W. Lyon as Vice President; E. Crossley to succeed M. Milburn as Secretary; W. McMurtrie to succeed E. Swartz at Treasurer. Mrs. Richter was reelected Pianist.

The above officers were duly installed at a very effective and inspiring candlelight service on Sunday evening, June 24. Bro. Don Swartz, the retiring President, was in charge of the service.

—Mary Milburn, Retiring Secretary.

The Golden Rule Berean Society belongs to the Golden Rule Church of God, Cleveland, Ohio.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"He that hath pity upon the poor lendeth unto the Lord; and that which he hath given will he pay him again."

HELPING OTHERS BRINGS JOY TO ELISHA

YOU have often heard it said that one can tell what sort of person anyone is by the way he treats his father or his mother. And I believe that is true, don't you? Look around you among those you are acquainted with and see if it works out that way.

We don't need to wonder what sort of person Elisha was, for we know that everywhere he went he did some kind deed for some one. And if we turn back to the first book of Kings, we will find out how he felt about his parents, and how he treated them.

You know, the stories of the Bible, many of them, are told in a very few words. And we must use our best judgment in supplying the details. But when we read that a certain young man who was out in the field plowing for his father felt that he must go home and bid his father and his mother good-bye before taking up a greater work, we know he loved his parents.

Just think of it! A simple farmer lad, accustomed to the humble tasks of the farm, chosen to be the assistant and successor of the greatest man in the country, not even excepting the king himself. And he wasn't in such a hurry to assume his new and very important duties but that he wanted to bid farewell to his parents and also his friends properly.

Surely all of this gives us a glimpse of the tender heart of Elisha, and we are not disappointed in him later. He didn't become so puffed up with his own importance that he forgot he was once a humble lad and belonged to humble folk.

Every one of the miracles Elisha performed, excepting only one, was done for some one in need. His kind and loving heart caused him to go about everywhere doing only good. What greater person was he like that way? I'm sure all of you know.

Now let's look at some of the kind deeds Elisha did that are like those our own dear Savior did. In our lesson today Elisha helped a poor widow pay her debts, when she and her sons were in danger of being sold as slaves. Did Jesus ever help a poor widow? Think hard!

If you can't recall, turn over to Luke 7:11-17. Now you remember, I'm sure. But see how much greater Jesus' miracle was, for this poor widow had only one son, the support and comfort of her old age. He was dead, and she must finish her days alone, depending on others for the care he would have given her. Jesus met the sad procession and turned it to one of joy.

Well, let's see what else Elisha did. Fed one hundred men, you say, on only twenty loaves of bread? Yes, Jesus fed the hungry, too, and every one of you knows the number of people He fed and the number of loaves He used. There are two such miracles. I wonder how many know the number in both of them.

All right, let's look further. Here in 2 Kings 5, we read a most interesting story of the great general of the Syrian army being stricken with leprosy, the most dreaded of all diseases. Elisha heals him, that is, he tells him just what to do to be healed, and after he has followed directions exactly the disease is gone.

Did Jesus ever heal leprosy? More than once, we know. And Luke tells us of His healing ten lepers at the same time. Who can find the story? You'll remember, I know, how only one of them returned to thank Him.

And so we could go on through the kind deeds of Elisha and compare them to those of our Lord, always remembering that our Lord was greater, more powerful, more loving, and more merciful than any other person who ever lived. For He was the Son of God.

Though He was the only Son of the great Ruler of the universe, He, too, was kind and loving to His mother and obedient to His Father. You recall how He asked John to care for His mother when He was hanging on the cross, breathing His last breath. You also know how at all times He asked His Father just what He wished Him to do, and then He tried to do it.

Doesn't all of this make us want to try to be a little like Elisha and also like our dear Savior even more? I hope each one of you will read these stories we have just touched upon today. If they were written in modern speech and printed in the popular style of book, you would all read them over and over again. You couldn't get enough of them.

Won't you take my word for it that they are more interesting than any other stories you ever read? Not only more interesting and more thrilling, but they're true, every word. And that is more than we can say about our popular stories today. For the stories found in the Bible are the words of God.

The Sunday School Lesson

FROM TRUTH SEEKERS' QUARTERLY

LESSON 6. — August 5, 1934

ELISHA HELPS THE NEEDY

2 Kings 4:1-44

Devotional Reading: Psalm 41:1-4

GOLDEN TEXT

Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me.—Matthew 25:40.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic: Elisha Helps the Needy.

Aim: God is able to supply our every need.

Basic Truth: "My God shall supply all your need according to his riches in glory by Christ Jesus."—Phil. 4:19.

I. A Widow's Appeal Granted. (2 Kings 4:1-7.) One of the outstanding facts in the life of Elisha is found in the miracles he performed. With a single exception the wonderful power manifested through this prophet was used in helping those in need. The one exception is the case in which Elisha smote Gehazi with leprosy in punishment for his sin (2 Kings 5:27). In this Elisha provides a type of Jesus "who went about every where doing good." The sons of this woman were threatened with slavery for debt. For such was the cruel custom of that time. The mother naturally turned for counsel to "the man of God," whom she had already learned to trust. He did not fail her. It will be noticed that he required that she should do all that she could to relieve her distress by giving her scanty supply of oil, providing the vessels to contain the increase, and then to take the Lord's bounty and dispose of it in such a way as to meet her financial needs. When she had thus met the condition imposed by the Prophet, God rewarded her faith by giving her enough not only to pay the debt, but to support her family in the future. God does not stop in the blessing of His people when He has given them all for which they ask, but He provides for needs which they cannot foresee.

II. A Hundred Men Are Fed. (V. 42-44.) In this second miracle of our lesson appears a striking parallel to two of those performed by Jesus in the feeding of the multitudes. The man from Baal-shalisha brought an offering to the Lord, but it served to feed one hundred hungry men. It was no less acceptable to God because it was used for this practical purpose than it would have been had it been sold and the proceeds devoted to the beautifying of a temple of worship. So it is with the money we give in tithes and offerings. One man gave—a hundred men were blessed. One disciple may present a small gift to the Lord, and by the blessing of the Almighty it may be made to increase greatly to the saving of many from the fearful results of sin.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."—Matt. 25:40.

The wise man said, "He that oppreseth the poor reproacheth his Maker: but he that honoureth him hath mercy on the poor."—Prov. 14:31. The words of our text were spoken by our Savior. Notice how closely they link together. Elisha, a man of God, ministering to those in need, Jesus teaching that doing good deeds for others was the same as doing them for Him.

A good deed done will have its reward whether it was done in Old Testament times, New Testament times, or the present time. It is not always the poor who need help; many times those in better circumstances need something that money cannot buy. It is to them also that the Christian can minister, doing for them as nearly as possible what we think Christ would want us to do.—L. A. R.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Helping

- the needy is enjoined in the Golden Rule;
- others brings real joy;
- in the hour of need is the time to help;
- for reward is selfishness;
- is a habit worth developing.

A Christian Neighbor. Every Christian should be a good neighbor. Obedience to the Golden Rule will make him a good neighbor. It is a sin to take advantage of a neighbor. "Devise not evil against thy neighbour."—Prov. 3:28, 29. Don't use a neighbor's services without pay (Jer. 22:13). Help your neighbor. "Let every one of us please his neighbour."—Rom. 15:2. Be careful not to speak evil against your neighbor. "Let none of you imagine evil . . . against his neighbour."—Zech. 8:16, 17.

A Christian Helper. It is wrong to see our fellow man in need of assistance and stand by without extending a helping hand (Jas. 2:15, 16). However, a Christian's duty is twofold in this respect. While it is his duty to look after the temporal welfare, he must also look after the spiritual welfare of those needing assistance. Oftentimes one can best help temporarily by aiding spiritually. Poverty of bread and poverty of spirit generally go hand in hand. As a rule the greatest need of those requiring aid is Jesus Christ. We must always bear in mind Paul's admonition, "We then that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to please ourselves."—Rom. 15:1. "Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, To visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world."—Jas. 1:27.—C. E. R.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULTS

Our Responsibility for Others

Christ commanded us to preach the gospel to every creature admonishing them to repent and be baptized. This is a responsibility which we cannot escape without judgment coming upon us. We must train up the children in the way they should go. Jesus, the lover of children, told us not to place a stumblingblock in their way.

We have a very clear and obligatory responsibility to the unfortunate and destitute, but even then our duty consists largely in enabling these people to make their own living. God commanded the Israelites not to glean their fields too closely, neither to pick all of the grapes, but to leave some for the poor; but these people were supposed to do their own gleaning and picking whenever physically possible. On the seventh year the land owners were to do no harvesting but to leave all for the needy. This would teach us that each class has a responsibility before God. The needy must help themselves whenever they can and we must give them the opportunity. God never intended any person to live without work.

Paul instructed Timothy to "charge them that are rich in this world, . . . that they do good, that they be rich in good works, ready to distribute." The reason for this instruction is "that they may lay hold on eternal life." 1 Tim. 6:17-19. Christ's instruction to the rich young ruler was to sell all that he had and give to the poor. While this drastic order was given in this instance to meet the case of a particular individual and was not given as a command to the church, yet it does show that Jesus wanted the poor to be remembered.—H. A. S.

PRIMARY

Topic: We See Elisha Help a Widow.

Wouldn't you like to go see Elisha, the prophet who took Elijah's place? Very well, to Samaria we go. He has other company. It looks like some poor widow. She seems to be in great trouble.

She is saying, "My husband is dead. I owe a man. I cannot pay, so he is coming to take my two sons."

Elisha asks, "What can I do for you? What have you in your house?"

She answers, "Nothing but a pot of oil."

"Go borrow all the pots you can find. Take them to your home, and shut the door. Your sons must be there, also. Take what oil you have and pour into these vessels."

Let's see if she does what Elisha told her. Yes, she does. More and more oil keeps coming. Why, she has enough to fill all those vessels.

Where's she going now? To Elisha? She is telling him about the oil. He says, "Go, sell your oil and pay the man."

We've only a short time to visit Elisha, but let's see what good thing he is doing now. There are a hundred men. They look hungry. But there are only twenty loaves of bread to feed them. But Elisha is having that passed to each one. Well, well, there is plenty for all.—V. C. T.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CONFERENCE DATES

Illinois Bible School and Conference at Oregon, July 31 to Aug. 12
 General Conference at Oregon, Illinois, July 31 to Aug. 12
 Eastern Nebraska Conference at Omaha, August 12 to 19
 Virginia Bible School and Conference at Maurertown, August 16 to 26
 Nebraska Conference at Holbrook August 19 to 26
 Iowa Conference at Waterloo, Aug. 21 to 26

SPECIALIZED WORKERS' CLASS

There will be a special "Ladies' Day" at Illinois Bible School this year. One session of the Workers' Class will be devoted entirely to a discussion of the organization and work of Dorcas Societies. This lesson will be under the able leadership of Sr. Conner, and we are sure there will be a great many interesting and helpful suggestions brought out relative to Dorcas work.

All workers interested in the recreation and entertainment of our young people will find much of interest and help in Bro. Clyde Randall's lesson on "Supervised Recreation."

We are all anxious to learn how we can interest others in the gospel and bring them to share in our church fellowship and activities. There will be some practical tried and tested suggestions along this line in Bro. M. W. Lyon's lesson on "Systematic Evangelism." "The Berean Worship Service" will be the subject of one afternoon's lesson in the Workers' Class, and will contain suggestions for building up and stimulating interest in Berean work through the worship service.

Besides the subjects mentioned there will also be lessons for teachers of various-aged pupils, namely, primary, junior, intermediate, and young people.

Esta Starbuck.

VIRGINIA

The meeting at the Maurertown Church of God on July 8 was very much a success as far as attendance and enthusiasm were concerned. Both morning and afternoon services were well attended. After the morning sermon Sr. Cecil Baggarley, whom Bro. Sheets recently baptized, was received into the church. A short business session was also held and a delegate to the General Conference was appointed. A basket dinner was served and as usual all enjoyed this part of the day's activities.

On Wednesday, July 11, the Stonewall District Sunday School Convention was held at our Maurertown church with speakers from seven other churches present. The ladies of the church entertained all present at noon with a fried chicken and ham dinner, plus all the extras that go along with it. About one hundred were present in the afternoon, a few coming after the noon hour.

Our Dry Run appointment on July 15 was very encouraging. The morning service was well attended, and at the evening service we spoke to a comfortably filled house with several remaining outside by the open windows.

V. Earl Thayer, Pastor.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

When these lines appear we expect to be in the midst of our special week of consecration leading up to the rededication on the 29th. Bro. Austin is the speaker helping to make these meetings a success, and we pray that they may be just that.

The building is finished and ready for use at last, and is very beautiful in its clean appearance.

On Wednesday night, July 18, more than fifty of the church folks gathered at the Annex for a shower and social evening in honor of our newest newly-weds, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Townsend. Many fine gifts were received, and a very pleasant evening enjoyed.

And while these lines are being written God is blessing us with a most seriously needed and refreshing rain.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

RIPLEY, ILLINOIS

We are glad to report that Sunday, July 15, proved to be another day long to be remembered by the church people here. Sr. Ruth Allen, her husband, and two of her daughters were with us. The daughters came forward and confessed their faith in Jesus and were baptized into His all-saving name. Their names and addresses are: Helen and Dorothy Allen, Adair, Ill. Clarence Maddock of Raritan, Ill., was baptized at this time. We are thankful to God that these have given their lives unto our Savior. We pray the blessings of our Father may always be upon them.

Several members of our Sunday school are unable to attend services, being kept out with the whooping cough. We pray they can soon be with us again.

A few are planning to attend the General Conference at Oregon. We pray for the success of each meeting.

May we all be kept true to the cause until Christ shall come.

Ednah Cooper, Secretary.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

The Los Angeles church has indeed been fortunate in the large number of visitors who have attended recently. They have been visitors who have brought a great deal of joy to our hearts, for two have taken advantage of being near church by being baptized into the one and only saving name. Sr. Hazel Burk, daughter of Sr. E. R. Burk of Tacoma, Wash., was baptized by us at Long Beach, Calif., on July 8. One week later, at the same place, Sr. Vivian Beach, of Hillsboro, Ore., a daughter of Bro. and Sr. Rich of Long Beach, Calif., was buried in the waters of baptism by Bro. J. E. Hammond of Anaheim. May they both grow in the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ until full stature is attained.

Norman John MacLeod.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO DOLLAR-A-MONTH CLUB

Silas M. Claypool; Mrs. Ray Maysilles ($3); Lillian A. Greiner ($2); N. Goodreau ($3); Anna Mae Bottolfs; Ruth and W. S. Tomlinson ($10); W. A. Reid ($2); Helen M. Chisholm; Eva H. M. Fletcher; Mr. and Mrs. Glenn M. Birkey ($5).

ST. CLOUD, MINNESOTA

The work here is interestingly growing. Attendance at all services keeps up splendidly for summer. The Bible school is growing steadily; many new scholars are coming. Last Sunday the attendance was 76; a year ago it was 67. Morning worship shows increasing attendance. We have our regular midweek prayer meetings.

Thursday the 12th a Sunday school picnic was held in Wilson Park on the banks of the beautiful Mississippi. There were sports for all, and lunch in the evening. Mr. and Mrs. Dutton furnished home-made ice cream for the occasion. It was a splendid day.

Sunday the 8th, I baptized Bro. Roy Doble, 427 21st Avenue N., in the Lord Jesus. Opening our morning worship, then we went out to the river, where I spoke previous to the baptism. May Bro. Doble find the new life a happy one is our prayer.

Sunday, July 1, in the home of Bro. and Sr. Stowe, Oak Park, we held services with an audience that would please any. Following, they generously served lunch. I have been asked to meet with them once a month. Sunday the 15th I shall speak in the home of Bro. and Sr. Carlson. Pray for the work there.

We are pleased to report the work at the Graytown, Wis., church is doing nicely. They are having Sunday school each Sunday, and the Ladies' Aid is working again. We expect to hold services at this place soon. We are waiting for the epidemic of diphtheria to subside.

We pray for the work everywhere and especially our General Conference. May definite plans be under way to evangelize over this country of ours.

A. E. Hoskins, Pastor.

HALL - TOWNSEND

At a lovely home wedding Tuesday evening, July 10, Miss Elizabeth Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hall of Hillcrest Ave., became the bride of Robert Townsend, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arlie Townsend of Allen Road. Both bride and groom are members of the Grand Rapids Church of God.

The wedding party proceeded down the open stairway to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, played by Mrs. Harry Hotchkiss, and took their places before an improvised altar of ferns. Rev. S. J. Lindsay of Tempe, Ariz., performed the ceremony.

The bride was attired in white organdy and carried a bouquet of pink and white sweet peas with fern, tied with white tulle. She was given in marriage by her father.

The bride's sister, Miss Zoe Hall, was her only attendant. Richard Townsend, brother of the groom, was best man.

A wedding reception was held immediately following the ceremony, at which time ice cream and cake were served.

Out-of-town guests were from Battle Creek, Wayland, Woodland, and Grandville, including Rev. Cecil Smead from the Blanchard Church of God.

After a few days the couple will be at home to their many friends on Berkshire Blvd., S. E., Grand Rapids, Mich.

THANKS

For what? O so many things; especially just now, while I am rounding out my 84th year, I am so very thankful for the dear friends who have stood by me through sickness, sorrow, and pain. The death of many makes the days long, and I have seemingly had to walk almost alone; but through the darkened shadows came a voice fraught with wonderful peace and joy: "Be not afraid, for I am with thee." And looking up, I could see through the darkness the pitying gaze of my Redeemer, who was saying, "I am the resurrection and the life."

How well Jesus knew what would bring comfort, and He gave the very message we would all need. For this I am very thankful, and my daily prayer is, "Dear Lord, always give me the joy of believing and trusting Thee."

I want especially to thank the Dutton Sunday school for the kindly words sent me. Yes, I love every one of you as well as though I were with you; and some glad day, if we are all true to God and His Word, we will all meet again in God's beautiful kingdom.

Again, how thankful I am for the cheering words from dear Sr. Eyers, whom Bro. Woodward baptized many years ago, and who has been faithful and true to God all these years. Several years ago I spent many hours with her in her Florida home.

I am thankful for such words from Sr. Clara Chaffee of the Golden Rule Home, Oregon, Ill.; for the dear son and daughter who very kindly care for me; and for the hope bright with anticipation of the future kingdom home. What more do I need as I journey through the remaining years?

Mary A. Woodward.

CHARLES MOORE

Following four years of illness Bro. Charles Moore entered the last long sleep at his home in Elizabeth, N. J., July 9, 1934. Bro. Moore, whose wife Abbie is a daughter of the late John O. Woodruff, whose writings are well known to many of our people, had been a believer in the things concerning the kingdom of God for more than fifty years. His occupation was that of a stairbuilder, at which work he was employed in one shop for forty years. He was in his 77th year at the time of his death.

May the solace of the blessed hope sustain and comfort his beloved wife, who is his only immediate survivor.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Lula Williams; George Willis; Mrs. A. M. Siple (for another); Charles Anderson; Willis Stedman; Luella Caples; Mrs. I. E. Brown; Nolan B. Orr (for self and another); Mrs. Irvin Ferguson; D. S. Kirkpatrick; Mrs. T. B. Boyd; Ida F. Orem (for another); Sarah E. Smith; C. E. Lapp (for others); Mrs. O. J. Dorsey; Sylvester Logan; Janet Nicholson; Eva L. Page; E. C. Railsback; G. A. Boyer; W. E. Boyer; Mrs. H. H. Kent; Bettie Michaels; Esther Bartmess.

Rosa McCurry; Abbie H. Fiske; Mrs. O. J. Dorsey; F. H. Knodle; R. H. Judd; Peter Bylsma; Mrs. Charles E. Page; Mrs. John H. Long; Mrs. George J. Rahn; Emily Blackwell.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO N. B. I.

E. S. Logan (Spec. Indebtedness Fund)	$25.00
J. M. and Pauline Prime (Spec. Indebtedness Fund)	25.00
Mr. and Mrs. Russell Harman	5.00
Cecil A. Smead (Spec. Indebtedness Fund)	5.00
Arlen Marsh	4.79

BETWEEN YOU AND ME—

The sad news reaches us through a Cleveland newspaper of the death of Sr. Minnie Burnham of Mantua, Ohio. Sr. Burnham had been a beloved member of the Cleveland church for many years, as had her father and mother and her brothers and sisters. Particulars will follow.

A training class in fundamentals has again been opened by M. W. Lyon, pastor of the Golden Rule Church of God in Cleveland, Ohio. It meets each Thursday night for the purpose of instructing those who are preparing for baptism. An editorial in this issue is based on this excellent idea.

An air mail message from Sr. Norman John MacLeod brings the announcement of Bro. MacLeod's serious illness and the consequent cancelling of his conference and Bible school engagements in the Middle West and East. Bro. MacLeod underwent an emergency operation for the removal of his appendix last Thursday. He was resting easier at the time of his wife's writing, but of course would not, under the most favorable circumstances, be able to make the long trip to the East in time for conference. The brethren will be greatly disappointed, and the prayers of all will be offered for his complete recovery.

Encouraging reports come from Eld. Clarence E. Lapp, whose wide circuit of usefulness covers congregations at Ripley and Eldorado, Ill., and St. Louis, Mo. In his bulletin, "The Beacon," Bro. Lapp reports nine baptisms in the last two months, and remarks that "it is gratifying to know that God is still on His throne and is fulfilling His promises." "Nothing today can substitute in any way for God's Word!"

Our President, L. E. Conner, who stopped over for a short time at the Indiana Conference, reports a splendid meeting was in progress and that the attendance was the largest in years.

Some forty brothers and sisters from Rockford, Rochelle, Dixon, Plum River, and Oregon churches laid their dignity aside with their good clothes last Thursday and, donning suitable garb, armed themselves with mops, brooms, cleaning cloths, hammers, saws, carpet beaters, etc., and made a concerted attack on the dust and needed repairs of the Illinois State Conference building. They returned to their homes victors, but proudly bearing the scars of battle in the way of blistered hands and aching muscles. It's ready now, folks, for "you-all."

Fifteen Weeks for Fifty Cents—

Simply fill in this blank and return it to us accompanied by 50 cents for each one to whom you wish THE RESTITUTION HERALD sent for the next fifteen weeks and we will provide them with splendid inspirational reading, prophetic information, and comforting assurances of the Children of God for the summer's reading.

GENTLEMEN:

Please send THE RESTITUTION HERALD to each of the following for 15 weeks. I inclose 50 cents for each subscription.

Sender's Name

Address

New subscriber for 15 weeks:

Name

St. and No.

City State

Additional names may be submitted on another sheet.

WHEN DO WE TRUST?

HE was sitting uncomfortably in an easy chair. Uncomfortably because he was ill, and should have been in bed. But there were reasons. He was troubled and worried, as was his weary companion. Through long years he had earned a living wage. But job and wages were gone and now sickness had come, and dire want would soon be knocking at the door. The weather was severe, but there was still a little coal in the cellar, and friends had sent in something for the table.

The conversation had touched on various sick room topics, among them the religious, and divine care. Then the man in the chair, after a short period of thoughtfulness, said, "Well, I am trusting, and that is about all I can do now."

Later, I, too, fell to meditating, and it was thus, over the sick room lesson: Are plenty and rejoicing one extreme in religious experience, and do want and trust make up the other extreme? One hardly need ask which experience is best. At least there is little doubt as to which we all should choose. But from the viewpoint of universal need, and the suffering of Him who had not where to lay His head, which extreme has the largest possibility of the deeper lessons that light up an experience of real trust?

These times of depression, of illness, possibly of want, may be the season for mounting fears. They may be also the opportunity for new experiences in trust. And if we can marshal our reserves of trust over against our daily fears, we may be living again over the experience of nearly three millenniums ago, and touch the chords that vibrated to David and to Isaiah: "What time I am afraid I will trust in the Lord." "I will trust, and not be afraid: for the Lord Jehovah is my strength."—F. L. Piper in The World's Crisis.

To THE minister who spends little time in preparing his sermons and lessons: "Shall I offer unto my God that which hath cost me nothing?"—Harvey Krogh.

NEW DEMAND FOR ONE-CENT COINS

THE Government of Canada has been compelled to coin an additional 34,000,000 one-cent coins to meet a new demand. One of the churches is requesting each family to place a coin box on the table into which a cent shall be placed at each meal during 1934. Applications have been made for 150,000 boxes. Each box, if the appeal is faithfully followed, will bring in $10, or a grand total of $1,500,000. Much is hoped for the plan. But the diversion of pennies into these boxes has created a serious shortage and the Government mint has had to add a new supply.—Evangelical Messenger.

General Conference Representation

EXTRACT from the Constitution and By-Laws:

VIII. (13) The General Conference shall be composed of individual members and delegates as follows: Each state shall be represented by delegate or delegates as follows: Where states are organized into state conferences they shall be entitled to vote by delegates appointed by the state conference or its executive board fifty per cent of its membership. Each organized church in the state shall be entitled to appoint delegates with power to vote fifty per cent of its membership. Any church or any number of members not associated with a state conference shall be allowed a 100 per cent representation. Any member of any state conference or church who shall be present at any conference session shall be allowed voice and vote, but such vote shall first be deducted from the delegate vote of his church or state conference or both. Any isolated member of the General Conference who is not a member of any state conference or church organization shall, if present, have voice and vote in any conference session.

The names of members and, if possible, the address of each member so represented shall be furnished and certified by the proper officer to the Secretary of the General

Conference before the session at which their votes shall be cast. (As amended August 12, 1926.)

The General Conference
Oregon, Illinois
G. Eldred Marsh, Secretary:

This is to certify that have been appointed delegate.... to represent the conference church at the General Conference to be held at Oregon, Illinois, July 31 to August 12, 1934. The conference church has members which the above delegate is authorized to represent.

(Signed)

..... Chairman
..... Secretary

Dated, July, 1934.

Names and addresses of members follow:

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 23

OREGON, ILLINOIS, JULY 31, 1934

NUMBER 44

WHILE THE CHURCH SLEEPS

III

By the Editor

THE last article closed with the assertion that the nominal church is slumbering nervously and dreaming of relieving the world's anxiety and pain through the enactment and enforcement of man-made law. In her restless sleep she is still moved by Christ-implanted sympathy for the suffering, but is insensible to the life-giving power God has placed in her keeping. While with tender hand the church washes away for a moment the trace of tears from the face of the sorrowing, she fails to provide them with the truth which alone can free them from the cause of sorrow. In her praiseworthy social service activities the church helps to feed the hungry and clothe the naked even as Jesus would do if He were here, but neglects to preach the gospel which alone can effect the permanent cure of sin.

The example of our Lord must ever be our guide in Christian service. And it is true, as Peter affirmed, that "Jesus of Nazareth . . . went about doing good, . . . for God was with him" (Acts 10:38). Much of His reputation rested upon the miracles of material blessing that He wrought. This may not be overlooked. Yet we know that Jesus never performed a miracle simply for the purpose of astonishing the observer, or even primarily for the relief of suffering. All the wonders of healing He accomplished were done for the advancement of the gospel of the kingdom of God which He preached. It was the gospel that was uppermost in His mind and heart; for the gospel alone could bring eternal salvation. It alone could bring the forgiveness of sins. It alone could reconcile iniquitous men with the righteous God.

In these days, While the Church Sleeps, she dreams of performing but half the task Christ gave her to do, and that the less important half. She gives her time, her attention, her efforts, and her money to relieve the physical and material needs of men. That is a great work, a Christ-like work; but if the church could be aroused from her slumber, if she could be awakened to a sense of her real historic purpose in the world—her chief purpose in the world—if she could be inspired again, as she was in the beginning of her career, with a zeal for the salvation of men through the gospel, the disease of sin which is sapping the world of its strength might be stayed.

But this may not be! The Scriptures declare that it will not be! That is, that the church at large will be fully revived and restored to complete usefulness in the service of God and of Christ before the Lord comes.

Listen to the warnings of the Spirit! Warnings that are almost altogether overlooked or disregarded by the church today, While the Church Sleeps.

Peter speaks! "But there were false prophets also among the people, even as there shall be false teachers among you, who privily shall bring in damnable heresies, even denying the Lord that bought them, and bring upon themselves swift destruction. And many shall follow their pernicious ways; by reason of whom the way of truth shall be evil spoken of."—2 Peter 2:1, 2.

I repeat this passage, which was quoted in part earlier in this series, in order to direct attention to several significant facts.

The Apostle speaks of "damnable heresies." There are few recognized heresies today. One hears of Jews, Mohammedans, and Buddhists like Ghandi, people who have shown a degree of charity and humanity in their dealing with others, referred to indiscriminately as "Christians."

There are but few churches left that stand on a definite doctrinal basis. A man can go into the pulpits of almost any Protestant denomination today and present almost any kind of a discourse on any subject without fear of protest from the congregation or reproof from the ministry of the church. It has come to pass that anything that by a stretch of the imagination may be looked upon as intellectually stimulating, morally uplifting, or of a reformatory nature is denominated "Christianity," and often referred to as "gospel."

To return to the text of the series, the language of Jesus in Matthew 25:5: "While the bridegroom tarried, they all slumbered and slept."

Please observe the context (Please turn to Back Page)

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879.

G. Eldred Marsh, Editor

Two Dollars per Year

Paul C. Johnson, Associate Editor

"If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature."—2 Corinthians 5:17.

COME, BLESSED LORD!

Come, blessed Sun, in love,
Shed on us from above,
Thine own bright ray!
Divinely good Thou art;
Thy sacred gifts impart
To gladden each sad heart:
O come today!

Come, tenderest Friend, and best,
Be our delightful Guest,
With soothing power:
Rest, which the weary know,
Shade, 'mid the noontide glow,
Peace, when deep griefs o'erflow,
O grant this hour!

Come, Thou almighty King,
Eternal life to bring,
O Lord, we pray!
Grant us Thy saving grace,
That we may see Thy face,
And find with Thee a place
In that glad day.

—Adapted.

—0—

OUR PECULIAR MESSAGE

THE Church of God, which is now engaged in the opening sessions of its General Conference, has a distinctive message for the world. It has an essential, inspiring, and timely message for the world. And, most important of all, it has a divine message for the world. This fact provides the only justification for its existence and should be kept prominently and constantly before both minister and layman: The Church of God has an essential and distinctive message for the world!

The great outstanding religious ideas upon which we base our unity as a people are familiar to us all. No appreciable changes have been found necessary in the statement of these fundamentals since the organization of the denomination more than a century ago. And it is doubtful that the necessity for basic alterations will be encountered in the future. This fact speaks well for the biblical scholarship and unity of thought which characterized the religious reformers to whom we look as the rediscoverers of primitive Christian teaching.

Among the doctrines emphasized by this denomination and which distinguish it the most clearly from other religious bodies are the following: The natural mortality of man which makes him wholly dependent upon a Savior for eternal life; the identity of the physical body with the "soul"; the literality of the resurrection of the dead at the Lord's coming; the second advent of Jesus as the central hope of the church; the establishment of the kingdom of God upon the earth, together with the associated thought that this earth is to be the eternal home of the redeemed; the joint rulership of Christ and His saints over the conquered nations, which will include restored Israel, during the millennium; an intelligent faith in the gospel of the kingdom of God, followed by immersion into the one name for the remission of sins; after which the "new creature in Christ Jesus" shall wholly consecrate his life to the service of God.

These, together with "kindred truths," as the Declaration of Understanding of the General Conference expresses it, constitute the unit message and the unit faith of the Church of God.

But why call these doctrines distinctive to our denomination, or peculiar to us as a people? Do not thousands of Christian people in other churches also believe and frequently emphasize these things?

Certainly they do! We rejoice to know that such is true. But the Church of God is the only organization of which we know who teaches as a body that an understanding, belief, and obedience to these elements of revealed truth is necessary to salvation! In this lies the most vital point of difference between us and other somewhat similar Christian bodies. As a people we have ever looked upon these things as constituting the gospel message of Christ and the apostles, which alone is "the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth."

This being the case, we do not generally accept into our membership those who have not been thus instructed and their faith sealed in baptism. Unless these truths are essential, if people may be saved without knowing and obeying them, we should drop our organization and blend our resources and activities into other and stronger bodies which teach the same truths we hold dear, but do not consider them of vital saving importance.

CONFERENCES

By Alta King

IN a recent editorial concerning conferences, Bro. Marsh called attention to a fact that is well worth consideration. The record of the first conference reveals that it was called to consider a question, the answer to which was vital to the salvation work of Jesus the Christ among men. It reveals also that the answering of the question was taken over entirely by the apostles and the elders. "The apostles and elders came together for to consider of this matter."—Acts 15:6. The record reveals further that in the final decision the testimony of the apostles only was considered and accepted, and that the testimony they rendered was drawn from what had been done through them under the power of the Holy Spirit, and from the Hebrew Scriptures interpreted and applied by this same power.

The Holy Spirit as it was vested in the apostles and active through them in miracles and in interpretation of the Hebrew Scriptures was the authority in the first conference and in the decisions that were rendered to send forth and to establish the power of the living Christ among men.

The Holy Spirit thus vested in the apostles is the only authority in such work even today. This authority is with believers today as much as it was when the apostles were living, not through their physical presence, but through the record of their work and words. No leader nor set of leaders today has the authority to render decisions concerning the work of the Christ, when those decisions have to do with the way of salvation. The Holy Spirit through the apostles has rendered all decisions necessary to the work of taking out a people for His name and to the edification of this people into the fullness of the knowledge and grace of their Lord and Master, which is the salvation work of Jesus during this age. Present-day leaders can exercise no authority concerning this work. They can, however, come together as believers and seek the united decision of the apostles, and continue seeking until those decisions are discovered. It is only as believers seek together these decisions on questions concerning the way of salvation upon which there is not agreement that there can be a conference comparable to the conference recorded in Acts 15.

Conferences that are being held are not comparable to the Jerusalem conference. They are held to consider finances, leadership, organization, methods of work, and for social intercourse. "Laymen" have foremost in their minds the thought of hearing a favorite speaker or teacher. "Leaders" come to be heard and to get assurance of finances for the work during another year. Finances, leadership, organization, and social intercourse are matters which should receive due consideration, and conferring together for these purposes is necessary. But such conferences cannot take the place of the kind of conference that is recorded in the Scriptures.

In such a conference believers, both laymen and leaders, especially leaders, would meet with the purpose of definitely hearing the apostles' testimony drawn from their work and from their opening up of the Hebrew Scriptures under the dispensation of the Holy Spirit that was given to them as the foundation of the church. Leaders would realize that before the apostles they are laymen in the absolute meaning of that word. Seeking to hear the testimony of the Holy Spirit speaking and working through the apostles, each would be humble in presenting whatever bit of their testimony he had gleaned through study, and humble in hearing whatever bit had been gleaned by another. They would realize the truth of Paul's statement in 1 Corinthians 12:22-25 that "those members of the body, which seem to be more feeble, are necessary: and those members of the body, which we think to be less honourable, upon these we bestow more abundant honour; and our uncomely parts have more abundant comeliness. For our comely parts have no need: but God hath tempered the body together, having given more abundant honour to that part which lacked: that there should be no schism in the body; but that the members should have the same care one for another." And realizing this truth, they would use care that the bit of testimony that even the most "uncomely" member of the Christ's body, who might be among them, is able to bring forth should not be overlooked. The complete testimony of each apostle and prophet on a given question would be sought and carefully considered as a whole, until their unified decision stands forth for acceptance.

There is the same need for conferences with the apostles as there was during the time of Paul. Believers need to seek their unified decision on questions that are troubling them. As surely as there are on record the decisions of the Holy Spirit through the apostles on all questions that are of vital concern to the growth of believers in the knowledge and grace of Jesus the Christ and of vital concern to the outgoing of that knowledge among unbelievers, so surely will believers discover those decisions as they seek together to know them; and thus they will grow into the unity and oneness that is in Jesus.

Believers need to seek apostolic authority. No other authority is to be recognized. Their unified decision is the only basis of unity, and that decision will be rendered to true seekers as surely as it was rendered at the close of the first conference to consider a condition that was hindering the salvation work of Jesus,

The Coming King in Prophecy

HUMAN government is a failure. This may be stated as the reason for the last great war. Ever since man fell, attempts have been made to institute permanent and successful governments, but without avail. At the present time, political philosophers all over the world are planning something new in the form of government. We hear a great deal about a "league of nations" to enforce universal peace. We hear men of great intellectual power talk of a world-democracy based on the so-called "brotherhood of man." And some others are devising other schemes for the successful regulation of the affairs of men. All these plans are commendable in purpose, but leave out of account the plans of the Almighty, the "governor among the nations."

At a time like this, the message of the coming King ought to be sounded out as never before. That coming will be the sure solution of the governmental problems of old earth, and not any form of world or nation union which man may devise. When people in every walk of life are looking forward eagerly toward a world-democracy; when the church as a whole is accepting and promulgating such views, it becomes our duty, as a people, to make use of the opportunity to impress upon inquiring minds the truths that have to do with the kingdom of God.

Never before has the opportunity for presenting the kingdom message been so great as it is right now. And why? Many see in the present set-up an omen of sure and approaching calamity of an uncertain character. Many of our church friends who expect the second coming of Jesus are ignorant as to the real purpose of that coming. The idea that our Lord is to reign on the earth as King is to them "crude." But, dear readers, what do the Scriptures tell us right along this line? What is the divine plan? It is our purpose in this article to tell our readers just what the Book says about it. In this article I do not attempt to discuss questions that have to do with "controverted" questions in the study of prophecy.

THE FIRST DOMINION

In Micah 4:8 we read: "And thou, O tower of the flock, the strong hold of the daughter of Zion, unto thee shall it come, even the first dominion; the kingdom shall come to the daughter of Jerusalem." Now what was the "first dominion"? If we will turn to Genesis 1:26, we will find that the first man, Adam, was given dominion over every created thing upon the earth. There was a divine purpose here. "For thus saith the Lord that created the heavens; God himself that formed the earth and made it; he hath established it, he created it not in vain; he formed it to be inhabited: I am the Lord; and there is none else."—Isaiah 45:18.

There is every reason to believe that if man had stood the test this dominion would have been retained. God gave Adam a chance to choose, and he fell. Satan entered the world, and man's dominion was lost; and Satan has ever since been a usurper of God's territory. In fact, the whole world lieth in the wicked one's lap (1 John 5:19; see your Revised Version). Out of the darkness, following the curse upon man, came the promise of the "seed"—posterity—of the woman, that should crush the head of the serpent—devil (Gen. 3:15; Rom. 16:20). God thus and there instituted a plan for man's deliverance, and provided for the final "restitution of all things." So in Matthew 25:34 we are told of the "kingdom" for the saints which was "prepared" for them "from the foundation of the world."

THE ABRAHAMIC PROMISE

Through the centuries that followed, the promise was kept before God's people. Thus to Abraham was given the promise that to him and his God-selected "seed" all the land that he should see should be given (Rom. 4:13). The Great Apostle tells us that this "seed" is the Lord Jesus Christ. He says that this inheritance in Christ belongs to all who belong to Christ. See Galatians 3. As Abraham never received any of this land promised, it is evident that his possession of it can be obtained only by a resurrection, and that the title is due when Christ returns. The promise of territory for the "King" is found in this covenant with Abraham. Now, what about the throne?

DAVID'S THRONE

The children of Israel became a great nation, and clamored for a king. God was their King. But He gave them what they asked for—a king. Saul was crowned. He reigned for forty years, and the reign was a sad failure. At the close of that reign, God selected David. He was God's divinely appointed king. God also made a covenant with David: "Thine house and thy kingdom shall be established for ever."—2 Sam. 7:16. The same covenant is mentioned in Psalm 89:3, 4: "I have made a covenant with my chosen; I have sworn unto David, my servant, Thy seed will I establish for ever, and build up thy throne to all generations." It will be noticed that the word "seed" used here is singular, and refers to a particular person. Attention should be called to the fact that this is unconditional. There are no conditions attached to the promise. It is absolute.

But there was also a conditional promise made: "The Lord hath sworn in truth unto David; he will not turn from it; Of the fruit of thy body will I set upon thy throne. If thy children will keep my covenant and my testimony that I shall teach them, their children shall also sit upon thy throne for evermore."—Psalm 132:11, 12. The same condition is also mentioned in the 89th Psalm, 29th to 36th verses: "His seed also will I make to endure for ever, and his throne as the days of heaven. If his children forsake my law, and walk not in my judgments; . . . then will I visit their transgression with the rod, and their iniquity with stripes. Nevertheless my lovingkindness will I not utterly take from him, nor suffer my faithfulness to fail. My covenant will I not break, nor alter the thing that is gone out of my lips. Once have I sworn by my holiness that I will not lie unto David. His seed shall endure for ever, and his throne as the sun before me."

It is thus evident that had the successors of David ruled righteously, the throne might have been perpetual. As it was, the rulers became more and more sinful until God sent the Prophet to King Zedekiah with the message, "And thou, profane wicked prince of Israel, whose day is come, when iniquity shall have an end, thus saith the Lord God; Remove the diadem, and take off the crown: this shall not be the same: exalt him that is low, and abase him that is high. I will overturn, overturn, overturn, it: and it shall be no more, until he come whose right it is; and I will give it him."—Ezek. 21:25-27. Let it be noticed that the throne of David was thus destroyed. The reigning king was blinded and led captive with his people to Babylon. Thus their transgression was visited with the "rod" and their iniquity with "stripes." After the return from that captivity, no prince of the royal blood appeared upon the throne of David, and that throne has been vacant ever since, and will remain without an occupant until "he come whose right it is." . . .

DAVID'S HEIR ON DAVID'S THRONE

The conditional promise needs no further consideration, for the conditions were not kept and no resumption of the kingly line is due in this world. But God had promised, "Thy seed will I establish for ever, and build up thy throne to all generations." Who is the "seed"? The Scripture makes this plain. "But thou, Bethlehem Ephratah, though thou be little among the thousands of Judah, yet out of thee shall he come forth unto me that is to be ruler in Israel; whose goings forth have been from of old, from everlasting (marginal reading, "From the days of eternity")."—Micah 5:2. This last thought is in accord with other scriptures. Christ said: "Your Father Abraham rejoiced to see my day: and he saw it, and was glad . . . Before Abraham was, I am."—John 8:56, 57. The Apostle Paul wrote: "For by him were all things created, that are in heaven, and that are in earth, visible and invisible, whether they be thrones, or dominions, or principalities, or powers: all things were created by him, and for him: and he is before all things, and by him all things consist."—Col. 1:16, 17. Christ is the "seed."

The angel Gabriel speaks of Christ to Daniel as the "Messiah, the Prince." What throne was He predicted to occupy? The same angel answers this question in speaking to Mary, "The Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David."—Luke 1:32. In a passage already quoted Christ is referred to as the "tower of the flock," unto whom the first dominion is to come. He is the "seed" of the Abrahamic promise. There is much Scripture along this line, but a few texts only will be mentioned. Peter refers to God's oath to David as follows: "Men and brethren, let me freely speak unto you of the patriarch David, that he is both dead and buried, and his sepulchre is with us unto this day. Therefore being a prophet, and knowing that God had sworn with an oath to him, that of the fruit of his loins, according to the flesh, he would raise up Christ to sit on his throne; he seeing this before spake of the resurrection of Christ, that his soul was not left in hell, neither his flesh did see corruption."—Acts 2:29-31.

In the eighth Psalm, the Psalmist sings: "What is man, that thou art mindful of him? and the son of man, that thou visitest him? For thou hast made him a little lower than the angels, and hast crowned him with glory and honour. Thou madest him to have dominion over the works of thy hands; thou hast put all things under his feet." The Apostle to the Hebrews refers to this passage, saying, "For in that he put all in subjection under him, he left nothing that is not put under him. . . . But we see Jesus, who was made a little lower than the angels for the suffering of death, crowned with glory and honour; that he by the grace of God should taste death for every man."—Heb. 2:8, 9. There is a dominion spoken of here. What is this dominion to be over? "All sheep and oxen, yea, and the beasts of the field; the fowl of the air, and the fish of the sea, and whatsoever passeth through the paths of the seas" (Psalm 8:7, 8) are to be subject to Christ. While on earth among men, Christ gave illustrations of His power over nature. His power as so exercised was the power Adam lost as a result of his transgression. From this hasty survey we see that Christ is to be the King on David's throne, and is to reign over the first dominion restored to its original glory.

CHRIST'S MINISTRY

The ministry of Jesus throws much light upon His kingship. (1) At His birth the angel announced Him as the successor to the throne "of his father David." Herod attempted His destruction for fear He would take the throne. (2) His victory over Satan in the wilderness revealed Him as the one who was to conquer the destroyer of the race. (3) He entered Jerusalem as a king, thus fulfilling the prophecy—"Behold thy King cometh unto thee, meek, and sitting upon an ass, and a colt the foal of an ass." He came, and made claim to the throne of David amid cries of "Hosanna to the son of David! Blessed is the king of Israel that cometh in the name of the Lord! Blessed be the kingdom of our father David!" The people heard the message preached that the kingdom was at hand, and "some thought that the kingdom of God should immediately appear" (Luke 19:11), and believing Jesus to be the King, they were determined to "take him by force, to make him a king" (John 6:15). Yet the mass of the people said, "Who is this?" and Christ was rejected as their King. Had the Jews any longer any exclusive right to the throne? (4) Christ showed His kingly power in the cleansing of the temple. (5) The miracles of Christ showed His power over every force of nature. "They were the credentials of a divine message and an example of His power in the kingdom." (6) The transfiguration was a vivid picture of the King in His kingdom. (7) Christ's death and resurrec-

Please turn to Page Eight

God's Promises

"Come now, and let us reason together, saith the Lord: though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow."—Isaiah 1:18.

ISAIAH was the evangelist of the Old Testament. He was married, lived in Jerusalem, was a favorite at the court of Hezekiah, had two sons. God has spoken to all men through him. The promises which he gives are just as good today as they ever were. They are for all of God's children.

Shall we examine a few of these wonderful promises, which cover every possible phase of life?

1. Do you sometimes doubt?

"The Lord shall guide thee continually, . . . thou shalt be like a watered garden, . . . like a spring of water."—Isa. 58:11.

"Be not faithless, but believing," said Jesus. Over and over again it is said, "Believe, believe, only believe." It is easier to believe God than it is to believe the fables men would teach us. "Stand still, and see the salvation of the Lord."

Are there honest doubters? Yes. Thomas, one of the twelve, was hard to convince, but when he saw and touched the Lord he believed. Gen. Lew Wallace was an honest doubter, but when he really investigated he became convinced of the truth of Christ and wrote Ben Hur. Sir William Ramsay was another honest doubter, but because he searched for the truth he found it. William Miller was a doubter, but God revealed Himself and Miller became a great power for God and truth.

Dr. Torrey gave this advice to a doubter. "Go and pray: Oh God, if there is a God, reveal Thyself and Thy Son to me," and he did.

2. Are you sometimes tempted?

"Fear thou not; for I am with thee: be not dismayed; for I am thy God: I will strengthen thee; yea, I will help thee."—Isa. 41:10.

No person may escape being tempted. Lot was tempted to pitch his tent toward Sodom. He yielded and got into trouble. Esau was tempted to sell his birthright one day when he was hungry. He fell and afterward regretted it, not being able to find repentance when he sought it carefully with tears. Achan was tempted by the gold and the beautiful garment. He appropriated it, but it cost him his life. Gehazi was tempted to run after Naaman and ask for a present. He did so, but brought leprosy upon himself as a result of his sin.

No person needs to fall in temptation. Abraham was tempted to accept reward from the king of Sodom, but he refused. Elisha was tempted to take money from Naaman, but he refused. Job was tempted by his wife to curse God and die, but he refused. Daniel was tempted to be like the other men of Babylon, but he refused to drink the king's wine. Peter refused the offer of Simon for purchase of the Holy Spirit. These men were victorious in temptation.

3. Are you anxious?

"Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee: because he trusteth in thee."—Isa. 26:3.

Worry and trust are the antithesis of each other. They just will not live together. Take your choice, then. The world can't understand the Christian's peace, because the things of the spirit are not discerned by the natural man. They are real, nevertheless.

Trials often help the growth of character. They bring out many things which prosperity does not develop.

4. Are you discouraged?

"They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; . . . they shall run, and not be weary; and they shall walk, and not faint."—Isa. 40:31.

Paul Rader's mother used to say: "Paul, mind the potatoes a bit while I go and pray." In ten minutes she would return to her duties fresh and rested by contact with the Spirit of God.

Once there appeared an advertisement for a lighthouse keeper on the lonely Maine coast. Over one hundred replies were received. Why? Solitude.

Nothing is better to quiet the soul than going apart, alone with God. Many people realize this is true. Jesus practiced it constantly. If it helped Him it will help us. Try it next time.

5. Are you hungry?

"He shall feed his flock like a shepherd."—Isa. 40:11.

This is true both physically and spiritually.

Think of the way Elijah was provided for. First there was the angel, then the ravens, and then the widow's oil and meal. Think how the Israelites were provided with manna and quail.

Many are hungry spiritually and do not understand the symptoms. They don't know just what the matter is with them. It is the business of the Christian to look after such cases and lead them into light.

6. Are you thirsty?

"I will pour water upon him that is thirsty, and floods upon the dry ground: I will pour my spirit upon thy seed."—Isa. 44:3.

Samson was thirsty, but God provided water. Israel was thirsty, and the Prophet brought water from a rock at God's command. Ye shall "spring up as willows by the water courses." Water to a thirsty soul—what is better?

7. Are you an unbeliever—a sinner?

"Come now, and let us reason together, . . . though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow."—Isa. 1:18.

Think of the prodigal son. When he came to himself he said: "I will arise, and go unto my father." That is all you have to do. God has agreed to blot out your sins as a thick cloud (Isa. 44:22); He will bury them as in the depths of the sea—He will remove them as far as the East is from the West.

Friend, why not avail yourself of these precious promises of God? No life is full and complete without Christ enthroned. No life is really happy without Christ. Just accept Him now and enjoy the real fellowship, guidance, and provision that God wants you to have.—C. V. Tenney in The World's Crisis.

A Bit of History

ONE of the outstanding teachings of the Scriptures—of the New Testament—at which our Modernist friends hold up their hands in well-feigned horror and disgust, is "the abnormal emphasis placed upon the cross"—the blood of Jesus—and bloody sacrifice, or, as a writer in The Christian Register expresses it—"the obnoxious exaggeration of the uplifted Christ."

With a coarseness we should not look for in persons of their superior "culture" and "refinement" and "esthetic sense," and with a hardihood that causes us to stand aghast, they do not scruple to characterize it by such coarse phrases as "A Gospel of Gore"—"A Slaughterhouse Religion," etc.—thus "counting the blood of the covenant," "the precious blood of Christ," "an unholy thing." It is "grossly repugnant to their esthetic taste"—it is "a relic of barbarism"—"of heathenism"—it "smacks of the Druids, or the Aztecs"—"of paleolithic ages." It is in the Bible, to be sure—they admit that—but "modern thought has outgrown all such primitive religious concepts."

As one who for many years was an able, brilliant, well known, and justly honored minister—quoting 1 John 1:7—"The blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin"—said with a deprecatory wave of his hand: "Nobody believes that sort of thing nowadays." It is "unworthy of God as we now know Him, that He should need to be so appeased." It is "a reflection upon ourselves that we should tolerate such representations—such misrepresentations—of God," etc., etc., ad nauseam. And this—they say—is "modern"!

How history doth repeat itself! A number of years ago a man who has attained some celebrity in history, holding similar views, came to grief. He, too, "took no stock" in bloody sacrifices. They were revolting to his esthetic nature. Why should the life of an innocent lamb be sacrificed to "placate and appease Deity"? Why should the sweet morning air, laden with a thousand perfumes, be polluted with the smell of blood, or the stench of burning flesh? Bah! It smelled of the shambles. It was repulsive. He would have none of it! Nor did he so conceive of God. True, his parents indeed did so; and his brother was a "traditionalist" and accepted and approved such "antiquated," "primitive" notions without protest. But he—he was "progressive"—"modern"—of more "advanced thought and higher conceptions of Deity."

He was a farmer—a gardener, a horticulturist. He was fond of fruits and flowers; they appealed to his sense of the beautiful—the uplifting, etc. He was proud of his success, recognized and rejoiced in the abundant gifts of the bountiful Father and Giver of all good. He would offer, therefore, appropriate expression of his dependence and grateful appreciation of God's favor. So he "brought of the fruits of the ground an offering to Jehovah," and regarded with undisguised disgust and pity his brother, who still stuck to the bloody sacrifice, and in blind adhesion to traditions which "outraged every sense," "offered of the firstlings of his flock, and the fat thereof."

But, somehow, his fine theory did not work. How, we are not told, but in some way he was made to feel that his offering was not acceptable—that it met neither the requirement nor the approval of Jehovah. Of course that stamped him as a "savage deity," unworthy of recognition as a fit object of worship by souls of refined sensibilities—but nevertheless—the esthetic protestant was angered. "He was wroth, and his countenance fell." His resentment was the greater because his brother's revolting sacrifice seemed to receive more favorable consideration.

The brothers had words over the matter. The "liberal" lost his temper, and the "conservative" was "effectually squelched." In that discussion the Modernist and not the Fundamentalist "won." The "progressive" in thought and practice triumphed over the adherent of "traditionalism"—and to all appearance, finally.

But Jehovah took up the controversy; and with the cry which has rung down through sixty centuries—"My punishment is greater than I can bear!"—Cain "went forth from the presence of Jehovah" with "the brand of Cain" upon him; while the faith of Abel remains to this day, and "he being dead yet speaketh." And his message down the ages has been, and still is—not human opinions, nor tastes—inferences, nor theories—nor philosophical speculations—however elaborate, however alluring, and consonant with the more refined sentimentalism of "the modern"—(Paul would say—"the carnal") mind—but that which God has revealed is the only safe rule for our faith and conduct.

Therefore we continue to preach Christ, and Him crucified, and His blood shed for the remission of sins and "redemption through his blood"—to the Jews a stumbling-block, to the Greeks foolishness, but to us—Christ, the power of God, and the wisdom of God.—Bible Faith Mission Standard.

THE COMING KING IN PROPHECY

Continued from Page Five

tion revealed the power of the Christ to lay down even His life. The sin of Adam brought death. The death of Christ—the second Adam—brought life and immortality to light through the gospel. Consequently Christ could say, "I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore, and have the keys of hell and of death." And the Apostle says, "For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive." Christ not only conquered death, He conquered the Roman Empire. "And having spoiled principalities and powers, he made a show of them openly, triumphing over them in it" (resurrection). (8) Several of the parables of Christ were given to show Christ as the coming King. The parables of the treasure hid in a field and of the merchantman seeking goodly pearls are illustrations.

WHEN WILL CHRIST REIGN ON DAVID'S THRONE?

It is future. Why? (1) Christ is now on the mediatorial throne for only a limited time, and will vacate it soon. When He takes the throne of David, His reign will be "as the days of heaven." He is to occupy the Father's throne until God makes "thine enemies thy footstool" (Psa. 110:1). (2) Christ's reign is to be endless, and there can be but one endless reign. As this reign is to be future, it must be the reign on David's throne. It is to commence at the sounding of the seventh trumpet. Revelation 11:15: "And the seventh angel sounded; and there were great voices in heaven, saying, The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever." This is literal if the wrath mentioned in the eighteenth verse is also literal: "Thy wrath is come, and the time of the dead, that they should be judged, and that thou shouldst give reward unto thy servants the prophets, and to the saints, and them that fear thy name, small and great; and shouldst destroy them that destroy the earth." When are the dead to be judged? "At his appearing and kingdom," says Paul. The recompensing of the righteous is to be at the "resurrection of the just" (Luke 14:14). When does punishment come? "Who shall be punished" when He (Christ) "shall be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels" (2 Thess. 1:7-9). The reign is to commence when Christ comes. The parable of the absent nobleman shows this. (3) Christ locates the kingdom at the time "when the Son of man shall come in his glory" (Matt. 25:31-34). (4) The throne of Christ in heaven cannot fill the bill, as this was never David's throne and was never overturned. (5) Christ is not now on David's throne, as He cannot exercise the functions of judge and mediator both at once, and it is necessary for men to be judged before entering the kingdom.

We can thus locate the reign as due (1) at the day of wrath; (2) at the coming of Christ; (3) at the resurrection of the saints; (4) at the time of judgment; (5) after the destruction of the wicked.

The reign is to be endless. It is to be a reign of righteousness. It is now imminent. How important that those bearing this message press the heralding of it in these last days, that the wicked may be warned and the righteous purified and made white! "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne."—Rev. 3:21.—B. Ray Bowden in The Messiah's Advocate.

A TALK ABOUT JESUS

IN making an effort to induce our children to become religious, which is the greatest problem before us, it is not worth while to discuss the similarities and differences of all the great religions of the world, "for there is none other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved." No other name but that of Jesus Christ of Nazareth. That was settled on the day of Pentecost for all people, for all times.

What think ye of Christ? It is utterly beyond my comprehension how any person of average intellect can face the facts of history for the last nineteen hundred years and fail to think seriously about Him.

Here is One who has made His supposed birthday, though born in the manger of a stable in a small village in an obscure province of the Roman Empire, the starting point from which all leading nations of the world reckon time. Nineteen hundred and thirty-four we say—it is just that long since He was born in Bethlehem of Judea! Here is One who has taken the moral government of the world upon His shoulders, fulfilling exactly the prophecy of Isaiah, uttered seven hundred years before Jesus was born. His "sayings," principles, and spirit have won for themselves a more general acceptance and higher appreciation by the world than those of any other person. He has shown Himself able to meet and satisfy the longings of the human heart as no other person has in the whole history of the race.

Now it must be admitted that there is something wrong with every one of us. We have all failed, morally speaking—you in your way, I in mine; the man who works at my side, and the neighbor who lives across the street. Not one of us could stand up and say, "I am everything a man should be—always have been! I have always done those things that please God. No unjust, untrue, or unkind word has ever fallen from my lips. No one has ever heard me utter a profane or vulgar word. I have never laid violent hands upon anyone. My feet have never walked in forbidden paths. No dishonest or unholy purpose has found place in my heart." Such words coming from anyone whom you know would be considered extravagant and ridiculous. The fact of moral failure is universal; it is written across the whole history of the race in bold characters.

Then there are thousands of people who commit crimes and find themselves behind the bars, and other thousands who are helpless slaves of the coarse sins of the flesh, drunkenness, licentiousness, and the like. And other thousands still who are moral defectives and delinquents who, though they may not be guilty of crime, are nevertheless a menace to society. There are multitudes of people who are selfish, greedy, and inconsiderate of others. Generosity and self-sacrifice for the good of the unfortunate have no place in their philosophy of life. Their motto is to take care of number one. There is no more help in their philosophy of life than would be found in a wet paper bag.

If keeping one's own nest were all that there is to life, we could get along without religion. We could do that little job ourselves. But that is not all there is to life! On everyone of average intelligence and fair physical development there rests a heavy obligation to aid in caring for the less fortunate. The strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak. To whom much is given, of him will much be required. When one dismisses his share of that larger obligation with a shrug of the shoulder and a heartless laugh—"No affair of mine"—he shows himself a moral coward and a quitter. There is something fearfully wrong with all such people.

And now what is the remedy? It is not education, it is not artistic culture, it is not wealth, it is not society. All these are good in their place, if properly used, but it is a fatal mistake to put them in Christ's place. There is but one Savior and He is Jesus of Nazareth.—J. H. Van Dever in The Bible Advocate.

FOR THE STUDENT'S NOTEBOOK

"SATAN, the name applied to the personification of an evil power opposed to God; the great adversary of man; the devil. Satan is mentioned but three times in the Old Testament, once each in the books of Job, Chronicles, and Zechariah. In fact the doctrine of one who works evil in opposition to the Lord, or the doer of good, is not taught in the Old Testament. The Old Testament Hebrew doctrine of Jehovah is given in the book of Isaiah as follows:

"There is none beside me. I am the Lord, and there is none else. I form the light, and create darkness: I make peace, and create evil: I the Lord do all these things."

"The doctrine of Satan as an evil power contending with the power of good finds its counterpart in the theologies of Babylon, Persia, and other eastern nations, where a plurality of supernatural powers was an article of belief. The Anglo-Saxon race inherited from ancient sources, no doubt, a similar belief in adverse powers—'For Satan finds some mischief still for idle hands to do.' . . . The Satan of Milton's Paradise Lost, who was cast out of heaven, appears to be a modern idea for which little foundation is laid in the Old Testament.

"High on a throne of royal state, which far
Outshone the wealth of Ormus and of Ind,
Or where the gorgeous East with richest hand
Showers on her kings barbaric pearl and gold,
Satan exalted sat, by merit rais'd
To that bad eminence."

—Standard Reference Work.

TO PROFESSING CHRISTIANS

DO you use tobacco? It is a bad habit, unholy, unclean, expensive, injurious. It pollutes the breath, injures the nerves, benumbs the brain, and sometimes causes cancer of the mouth or throat.

In view of these facts, can a man who claims to be a Christian be consistent with his profession and use it? "What?" saith the Scripture, "know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own? For ye are bought with a price: therefore glorify God in your body, and in your spirit, which are God's."—1 Cor. 6:19, 20.

Can a man glorify God in his body with his mouth full of tobacco, spitting out the filthy stuff for somebody else to clean up? Read God's command: "Whether therefore ye eat, or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God."—1 Cor. 10:31.

Can a man go around with a cigar or cigarette in his mouth, compelling those about him to take into their lungs what he has had in his mouth, and at the same time glorify God?

We are exhorted in the Scriptures to "cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of God" (2 Cor. 7:1).

Remember, God says, "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."—Gal. 6:7. No matter who does the sowing, this will prove true. The man who sows the habit of using tobacco is certain to reap the harvest. God cannot lie. "He that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption."—Gal. 6:8.

Many have been hurried to their graves and great numbers are in the insane asylums today from the effects of this poisonous weed.

He who is addicted to the use of tobacco is not free; but "if the Son therefore shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed" (John 8:36). Hence, do not try to overcome the practice in your own strength, but seek the help of Him who is "mighty to save."

Brother, if you are indulging in this awful habit, quit it for Jesus' sake, for the sake of others, and for your own sake, and "let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven" (Matt. 5:16).

"Let us lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us."—Heb. 12:1.

"I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service."—Rom. 12:1.

"If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new."—2 Cor. 5:17.

"Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God."—Matt. 5:8.—Selected.

Abreast of the Times

Pope Orders War on Protestantism

"And they overcame him by the blood of the Lamb, and by the word of their testimony."—Rev. 12:11.

VATICAN CITY, July 22.—Seriously stirred by the rapid progress of Protestantism in Italy Pope Pius has called upon all Catholics to rally to the defense of the doctrines of the Roman Church by supporting a campaign to stamp out what he termed "Protestant propaganda" in that country. Delegates to the Italian Women's Catholic Action Society convention who called on the Pontiff were asked to cooperate in the effort. The Pope declared that Protestant proselytism had filtered into almost every diocese of Italy.

Those who have watched conditions most carefully during the past few years have been impressed with the fact that Roman Catholic influence is declining everywhere. The Roman Church no longer controls the politics of any country in the world. While her influence is still strongly felt in some quarters, most of the former so-called Catholic countries have entirely withdrawn their support from the Church of Rome, and in many instances have forbidden the free exercise of the Catholic religion. While this decline in Catholic power is not without its benefits, nevertheless, it is to be regretted that no purer form of Christianity is taking its place, but that the former communicants of that church are embracing communism with its godless teaching.

The Secret Is Out!

"Who is this that darkeneth counsel by words without knowledge?"—Job 38:2.

BILLINGS, Mont., July 22.—At last the secret is out! The extinction of the entire order of dinosauria came as the result of a terrible drought that occurred 125,000,000 years ago! No longer need the perplexed scientist wrack his brain and "imagine a vain thing" concerning the sudden disappearance of those mighty beasts of the Predelugian Period! It is all accounted for, and "appears as plainly as a printed obituary," declares Dr. Barnum Brown of the American Museum's dinosaur expedition at Greybull, Wyo.

"We see a flat land, rich in vegetation and dotted by countless shallow lakes, swamps, and rivers," he said. "The climate is tropical. Pines, cycads, figs, and bananas cover the uplands. Thick grass grows along the banks and rank vegetation thrives in the water. In time creatures from 15 to 20 tons each and measuring nearly 50 feet, with ridiculously small heads, float, swim, and feed in the waters by the tens of thousands."

The scientist accounted for the disappearance of these strange and fearful monsters by asserting that after a long lapse of time during which the larger part of the earth was covered by water (Gen. 1:2-7?), a dry era succeeded and these great creatures, which depended for their lives upon the rich vegetation of the almost universal swamps, perished and sank beneath the surface of the last remaining mudholes. Some, he said, struggled to solid ground, only to be killed by the saber-toothed tigers and other flesh-eating monsters that skulked around the pools to live high for a little time. This theory, he declared, accounted for the fact that most of the remains of these animals were found imbedded in slime pits or mud into which they had stumbled in their fruitless search for water.

Jewish Rock of Offense

"Gather yourselves together, yea, gather together, O nation not desired."—Zeph. 2:1.

BERLIN, Germany, July 28.—The rapid spread of Fascism and Nazism in Europe has greatly increased the interest of the student of prophecy in these political systems, and many have questioned the nature of the two parties and the difference between them. The Associated Press has recently pointed out both the similarities and the dissimilarities, from which the following conclusions are taken.

"Fascism and Nazism have much in common. Both are based on the concept that the State completely transcends the individual. Both operate through strong central authorities. Local home rule is distasteful to both. Each holds that parliamentary government and other machinery of republicanism or democracy may be dispensed with if they stand in the way of the objectives of the central authority."

The difference between the two is found principally in the stress placed upon the racial issue by the Nazi credo. Nazism started in Germany with the formation of the National Socialist Party by Adolf Hitler in 1920, and the word "Nazi" is coined from the name of the party. In Hitler's small, early group of followers there was a strong anti-Semitic element which grew with the increase in party membership and with the increase of power. The Nazis advocated a policy of "Germany for the Germans," placing particular emphasis on the importance of maintaining the purity of the national blood of the country.

On the racial issues Fascism differs sharply from Nazism in that Mussolini has never regarded the racial issue as of very great importance. The Jew is thus seen to be the "rock of offence" on which the two political orders break. The Nazis are bitterly opposed to permitting the Jews to become an influential element in the life of the nation, while the Fascists do not concern themselves with the question to any extent. This tendency to divide on the Jewish question will continue to increase.

Berean Department

ARLEN MARSH, EDITOR

The High Calling

"And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose."—Rom. 8:28.

PAUL is speaking of those who are "called out" by the gospel, called out of darkness into God's marvelous light. They are living by faith, looking forward unto the wonderful promises made by God through His Son.

In 1 Thessalonians 2:12 we are exhorted to walk worthy of God, who hath called us unto His kingdom and glory. His calling is a special one, and God has made exceeding great and precious promises to those that prove faithful (2 Peter 1:4).

Things do not happen by accident or chance in God's plan, for He is working through His "called out" ones. In 2 Timothy 1:9 Paul tells us that God hath called us with a holy calling, not according to our words, but according to His own purpose and grace, which was given us in Christ Jesus before the world began.

Peter's exhortation should be heeded by every Christian. The story of Joseph and Jacob is an example of this truth. Joseph was sold into bondage, and Jacob suffered for many years by the loss of Joseph. But God took this means to make him ruler of Egypt and savior of his sorrowing father and his household. 2 Peter 1:10, 11: "Wherefore the rather, brethren, give diligence to make your calling and election sure: for if ye do these things, ye shall never fall: for so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ."—Charlotte Rahn, Los Angeles, Calif.

The Coming Monday

THE next Monday, August 6, will be National Berean Day. The succeeding Saturday, August 11, will be Illinois State Berean Day.

Each of these days deserves special attention by every Berean and particularly every young person in the Church of God.

The work the Berean organizations have accomplished has been an important one. It must be encouraged. Encouragement comes only through the interest of its supporters.

Those in charge of the two correspondence committees of the National Berean Society have succeeded in winning an enviable reputation among an astonishing number of people. Their letters have comforted the mourning, enlivened the dreary days of the sick, encouraged newly baptized, and bound more closely together the isolated church members. The various isolated and sunshine committees of the state Berean societies have done the same. It is a work fostered by Bereans, maintained by Bereans, and paid for by Bereans.

The two home study committees of the National Berean Society, together with such committees as the Cradle Roll Department of the Iowa State Berean Society, have brought isolated groups and members into closer touch with the main body of the church and have instructed such groups and members in the essential beliefs of the church. It, too, is a work fostered by Bereans, maintained by Bereans, and paid for by Bereans.

The Publishing Committee of the National Berean Society outlines and prepares the Berean lesson books. This alone is sufficient excuse for the existence of the Berean organization. The lessons it prepares teach in detail the great truths taught by the Christ and His apostles.

None of these activities can accomplish its fullest possibilities unless it is given constructive criticisms. The coming Monday is the time to give them. So is Saturday, August 11. So is the Berean Day at any conference.

Attend the Berean Day program of the conference you attend or support. At least, provide the Bereans of your society or state with your ideas on methods, teaching, doctrine, improvements in organization. It is your duty to do so. It is the duty of every Christian to support and aid in every possible way the church that offers him eternal life.

The Purpose of an Editor

AN EDITOR leads a hard life. His editorials indicate radicalism. His editorials indicate conservatism. His editorials indicate an ineffective middle course. His editorials are highbrow. His editorials are lowbrow. His editorials are splendid. His editorials are a blot on the pages of an otherwise good paper.

The editor's duty is to serve the reading public. In a religious journal, it is his problem to present something of value to religiously minded people in every issue of his paper. He must find material that will interest some; he must find other material that will interest some; he must find still more material that will interest the remaining element of the readers.

He can fill his pages week after week with something he feels will be of interest. But he cannot be sure that material will be of value to his audience unless the audience responds.

The problem is not, Do the readers like the paper as a whole; but, Do the readers like this piece or that piece? The editor's job is to publish only the things that are interesting and at the same time valuable. And to do that, he needs the criticisms of those who read his columns.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"All things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them."

GOD SPEAKS THROUGH AMOS

AS you study your Sunday school lessons for this quarter you will often read the words, "In the way of Jeroboam, who made Israel to sin." Jeroboam was the first king of the divided kingdom of Israel, and he led his people away from the worship of God into the worship of idols. And so he was held responsible for the wickedness of Israel in after years. Just as they do today, people follow a good leader into noble actions, or a wicked leader into evil actions.

The lesson for August 12 brings us to the time of another Jeroboam, called the Second. You will find the story of his reign in 2 Kings 15, and you will notice that the same words are used of him as of his predecessor of the same name. Verse 24 tells us that he followed in the footsteps of the first Jeroboam, "who made Israel to sin."

How many of you boys and girls are the leaders of the little group that you know and with whom you associate? If you are not the leader, think for a moment of the one who is the leader. There is always one who is the first to think of doing a certain thing, the first to act. How easy it is for all of the rest to follow, just like sheep.

Now if you are the leader, I'm sure after reading how the kings of Israel and Judah did, you will want to be a little more careful about how you lead. Because the leader is responsible, it should make him more careful and more thoughtful. Don't you agree with me?

What would be more natural after years of evil leadership than that the people should be in the condition Amos found them? Led off into the worship of idols, they easily drifted in more and more evil ways year after year, until they forgot God and His commandments entirely.

Here was Amos, reared in the country south of Jerusalem, a bare and rocky wilderness. Everyone had to work very, very hard for his living. No one even thought of stealing from his neighbor because he knew just how hard his neighbor had to work to obtain his daily bread. And God had a special work for this man to do.

Up north of Jerusalem God sent him, to the city of Bethel, and here he found the people doing things he had never dreamed of doing. Selling the poor for a pair of shoes, taking from the laborer his rightful share of grain, trampling under foot the lower class by heaping heavy taxes upon them—these were some of the things Amos found the rich in Israel doing.

God had been so careful to explain to His people just how they were to conduct their affairs so that there should be no injustice. All were to have equal rights. But they had wandered so far into the worship of idols they had forgotten that God had ever told them anything about it.

So we see how little by little the first act of wrongdoing led them in more and more wrongdoing until God had to send severe punishment on them. It was true the leaders were responsible, but the people had to suffer as well. And just so is it true today.

If you are a leader, be a good leader. Lead your group into activities that will result in good for all. If you are a follower, watch out whom you follow. For even though you are not responsible for the group, yet if you are led into wrong, you will have to suffer.

"A call rings through the land,
'Tis heard on every hand,
A call to join the glorious hosts of light;
Today 'tis ringing clear,
And everyone should hear,
And rally to the cause of right.

"In loyalty to right,
With faces to the light,
Press forward where the hosts of sin assail;
Tho' foes may gather near,
You need not shrink or fear,
For light and right must e'er prevail.

"Our Leader is divine,
His cross, our conquering sign,
Is blazoned on our lifted banner fair;
His call is ringing clear,
Let each man answer, Here,
And in His glorious triumph share.

"Like trumpet tones resounding,
Our Leader's voice is sounding;
There's need for all, so heed His call,
And serve with purpose true;
The hosts of sin are strong,
But right must win ere long;
Do not delay, enlist today,
The Lord needs you."

The Sunday School Lesson

FROM TRUTH SEEKERS' QUARTERLY

LESSON 7. — August 12, 1934

AMOS PLEADS FOR JUSTICE

Amos 5 and 7

Devotional Reading: Proverbs 21:1-7

GOLDEN TEXT

Love worketh no ill to his neighbour: therefore love is the fulfilling of the law.—Romans 13:10.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic: Amos Pleads for Justice.

Aim: Outward religious service cannot take the place of heart righteousness with God.

Basic Truth: "Seek the good, and not the evil, in order that ye may live: and so will the Lord, the God of hosts, be with you."—Amos 5:14, Leeser's Trans.

I. Amos Condemns the Oppressors. (Amos 5:1-13.) Because Amos reproved the oppressors of the poor he was hated by the rich and powerful. It is true today that the man who ventures to censure those who are unjust in their treatment of the poor is hated by the selfish rich. But the time will come, even as it came to the oppressors of Israel, when they will no longer enjoy the wealth and the luxurious homes that they have acquired at the expense of the poor. Amos recognized no nice distinctions among one's religious, social, or political duties. Every act of a man's life was a service to God. The restatement of this principle by Paul establishes it firmly as a rule of Christian conduct (1 Cor. 10:31).

II. The Worship of Sinners Is Rejected. (Vv. 21-23.) The purpose of worship is to express the love and appreciation one feels for the goodness and the greatness of God. To engage in formal religious practice is not only meaningless, but it is actually abhorrent to God unless it is all that it is meant to be. All the prayers, offerings, sacrifices, and singing that one can do is of no value unless he appreciates the goodness of God sufficiently to try to imitate it in his own life. Godliness is of the heart, not of outward show.

III. Hope in Repentance. (Vv. 14, 15, 24.) In spite of his powerful denunciation of the wicked rulers of Israel, Amos did not leave them without hope. He admonished them to change their manner of living. To "seek the good, and not the evil," that they might live. They must restore justice to the poor as well as provide it for the rich. They must cause righteousness to flow through the nation like a resistless stream. While it is true that ideal conditions will not be maintained until Christ comes, it is the duty of Christian men and women to encourage by word and by example all that is best in social and in national life.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"Love worketh no ill to his neighbour: therefore love is the fulfilling of the law."—Romans 13:10.

"Owe no man any thing, but to love one another: for he that loveth another hath fulfilled the law."—Rom. 13:8. When love is in the heart, there is no room for malice or hate. When love rules there will be no murder, no thefts, no false witnessing, no coveting, nor any of the other things which are forbidden in the Ten Commandments. The one who loves will not want to do any of these things either against his friends or his enemies, hence the law would be fulfilled.

Christians should be lovers of all mankind; not that they would love in the near sense of the word, but that they should have the welfare of all at heart. God loved, His Son loved, we should love and work no ill for anyone.

—L. A. R.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Justice

- is due every person;
- is perverted by gifts;
- should be administered without respect of persons;
- standeth afar off in many instances today;
- must take the heart into consideration.

Justice Demands

That "thou shalt not raise a false report" (Ex. 23:1).

That "thou shalt not defraud thy neighbour" (Lev. 19:13).

That "the poor and fatherless" be defended and the "poor and needy" delivered from the hand of the wicked (Psa. 82:2-4).

That the righteous be not overthrown in judgment by the person of the wicked (Prov. 18:5).

That restitution be made for an offense against a brother (Matt. 5:23, 24).

That we submit ourselves "to every ordinance of man for the Lord's sake" (1 Peter 2:13).

That "whether therefore ye eat, or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God" (1 Cor. 10:31).

It must be apparent to all from the foregoing that true justice will never be meted out to all until the righteous Judge comes and establishes justice and judgment in the earth. Under His rule and reign "he shall deliver the needy when he crieth; the poor also" (Psa. 72:12). Christians should and can practice righteous justice and judgment in all their dealings and associations; yes, true Christians will do this.—C. E. B.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULTS

Social Justice As a Universal Duty

As Jesus went throughout the cities and villages there came one to Him with this request: "Master, speak to my brother, that he divide the inheritance with me." Here was a real opportunity for Jesus to teach social justice but He saw something far more important. His reply would indicate this: "Man, who made me a judge or a divider over you? . . . Take heed, and beware of covetousness: for a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth."—Luke 12:13-15.

It is true that the Old Testament contains many examples of social justice, and it is also true that many were punished for fostering these injustices. We must remember that the law was a schoolmaster to bring us to Christ that we might be justified by faith, "not of works lest any man should boast" (Eph. 2:9). But after faith is come we are no longer under a schoolmaster (Gal. 3:24, 25). The schoolmaster should have taught us that carnal man could not be governed by law alone, neither should he look to man for his salvation.

Paul was a prisoner in Rome at a time when social injustice was at its worst. Yet we do not hear him crying out against the injustices. He continued in his own hired house teaching concerning the kingdom of God.

It has become very popular to champion the cause of labor unions and to make a great outcry against the inequalities of our day. This has brought many things into the church that are foreign to the gospel of the kingdom of God. This has led the churches into politics, which in turn has split many bodies, thus limiting their usefulness for Christ. The history of Israel should teach us that inequalities will exist until Christ establishes the kingdom of God.—H. A. S.

PRIMARY

Topic: We Listen to the Prophet Amos.

Today we're going to see a man who is a herdsman, or one who cares for flocks of cattle or sheep. But he's a prophet, too.

He seems to be talking about some one who has done something evil. Let's ask him who it can be.

Amos answers, "I'm telling about Israel. They are very wicked. If anyone tries to tell them what is right, they hate him. The prophets have told them time and time again to do good, but they will not listen. They are very cruel to the poor; they even take their wheat away from them. They have built great houses and planted large vineyards, but unless they change from their wicked ways they will not live here long."

"But what will happen to them?" we ask.

"If we could just persuade them to do good things. They often have, but it seems they change then and become wicked. I know God will be with them if they will follow Him. But if they don't and continue as they are now, He has told me to tell them that they will be captured and carried away to another country."

I hope you are remembering to put a dot on your line each time.—V. C. T.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CONFERENCE DATES

Illinois Bible School and Conference at Oregon, July 31 to Aug. 12
 General Conference at Oregon, Illinois, July 31 to Aug. 12
 Eastern Nebraska Conference at Omaha, August 12 to 19
 Virginia Bible School and Conference at Maurertown, August 16 to 26
 Nebraska Conference at Holbrook August 19 to 26
 Iowa Conference at Waterloo, Aug. 21 to 26

FONTHILL, ONTARIO

While our pastor, Bro. Randall, and party have been burning up the roads in the new V-8, which, by the way, seems to have excited Bro. Hoskins' admiration, we have been "holding the fort" in Fonthill, and in at least two of the services Bro. Randall has missed something.

The writer had charge of the service on July 1, and then on July 8 we had the "service of song" that has been enjoyed so much in other years that it has become almost an annual event. This was ably conducted by Deacon Holland, and was as much appreciated as in the past.

But the crowning event was the service conducted by the members of the Truth Seekers' Class, who number from fifteen to thirty. They took complete charge of the service on July 22 and did a wonderful job. Under the able leadership of Sr. Marion McClellan, the young folks of that class undertook to show the blessings we may obtain in "Doing," "Trusting," "Praying," "Choosing," "Cleansing"; and the writer got so interested in some of the presentations that he forgot to write down the subjects. But they were all good. Even the choir was relieved of their responsibilities for the evening and listened to choruses, solos, and quartets that carried out in song the previous message that was delivered. The bass in the ladies' quartet was particularly fine—we didn't just make up our mind who it was—but it was good. There was only one mistake made that we noted and that was in the introductory remarks of the leader, when she said that no doubt the service would be inferior to the regular service; but we just put that down to pardonable reticence and an effort to avoid boasting—though the class is entitled to boast. One thing that was brought forcibly to our attention was that knowledge of the way of Christian living is not enough—action is necessary if we are to obtain the blessings.

There have been times when we have been sadly in despair as to how our church work would be carried on in the future when we are ready to step aside, as those who have gone before have done; but with such a class of young people so intensely interested, so able (many of them had never taken part in such a service before), we feel that our fears were unfounded, and that God is truly seeing that His work will be carried on. We personally have not enjoyed such a service in many years, not since the original Truth Seekers' Class under Bro. Austin was at its best. There is some talk about the service being repeated at the Niagara Falls, N. Y., church. If it is, we want to hear it again.

Arthur Gilbey.

ILLINOIS STATE CONFERENCE BUSINESS MEETING

The annual business meeting of the Illinois State Conference of the Churches of God in Christ Jesus will be held at the church in Oregon, Ill., on Friday afternoon, August 10, 1934, at three o'clock. All church secretaries please have your reports to the Secretary before that time.

Paul C. Johnson, President.

TEXAS BROTHERS, ATTENTION!

Bro. T. A. Drinkard will begin a ten-day meeting nine miles east of Floresville at the Center Point Schoolhouse August 24 to September 2 inclusive.

We urge any for whom it is possible to make a special effort to be with us in this meeting.

This will be the first time the gospel has been delivered in this immediate section and we pray that the efforts put forth will receive the blessings of the Father.

Any information desired will be gladly furnished if you will address your communication to Route 1, Floresville, Texas.

S. P. Dismukes.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

These lines are being written while we are in the midst of our special week of meetings leading up to Rededication Sunday.

Bro. Austin is giving a splendid series of inspirational sermons, and the audience has been steadily increasing in size each night. We are praying for much spiritual benefit from this week of work together.

The church building stands completed now, and in its beautiful freshness is an inspiration. Many expressions of appreciation have been heard from every side.

Bro. and Sr. Randall accompanied by their son, Celaine, and Srs. Haines and McArthur surprised Grand Rapids friends by stopping on their return trip from Minnesota. Bro. Randall was present at church services Wednesday night, July 25.

Sr. Helen Brauer has accepted work in Kalamazoo for the present and is missed from our local group where she was active.

Wm. Holbrook, ten years old, one of our former Sunday school boys, was drowned July 22.

Majorie Siple, daughter of the pastor, and nurse in training at St. Luke's, Chicago, is home for a month of vacation.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

TITHING LITERATURE AT LESS THAN PRODUCTION COSTS

For 60 cents, the Layman Company, 730 Rush St., Chicago, Ill., offer to send to any address, postpaid, 53 large page, closely printed pamphlets and tabloids, aggregating over 500 pages by more than 30 authors of various denominations. The price is less than the cost of production. Without extra charge, we will include enough copies of pamphlet, "Winning Financial Freedom," to supply a copy for each of the church officials, also an instructive circular on a Ten Weeks' Program of Education in Tithing.

Please mention The Restitution Herald; also give your denomination.

The Layman Company,
730 Rush St., Chicago, Ill.

INDIANA CONFERENCE

The 1934 Indiana Conference and Bible School of the Church of God of the Abrahamic Faith became history with the Sunday evening sermon by Eld. F. E. Siple on July 15.

We were very much gratified with the work and results of the efforts this year. The work began on Thursday, July 5, with a good attendance which increased until a daily class attendance of over one hundred had enrolled. This was a record for class enrollment in Indiana Bible School, and as the majority were found to be of junior and senior ages, the indication is for increased interest another year. 2,626 meals were served during the eleven-day gathering. Nine were assisted in putting on the all-saving name of Jesus Christ at the waters of baptism, four being reconsecrations of those who have come to a more definite knowledge of the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ than when they first believed in early youth.

Bro. F. E. Siple and family made their first appearance on the first Sunday afternoon and he spoke to an interested audience that evening.

The sermons were mostly by Bros. Siple and Anderson, one each being given by Bros. Vaughn Long and F. A. Stilson. In addition to those above named, other teachers were Srs. Alexander, beginners; Rouch, primary; Dick, junior. Bro. Dick also assisted with the senior class.

The business meeting was called at 2:00 p. m. Saturday, July 14, with eight churches represented. In the absence of our Secretary, Verna Himmelright, Sr. Blanche Dick was appointed to act pro tempore.

The usual reports of secretary, treasurer, churches, and ministers were read. A summary of church reports, seven reporting, shows the following statistics. Members, 409; total sermons in state, 287; average attendance at church services, 45; amount paid ministers, $1542.59. Total enrolled in Sunday school (5 reporting), 214, with an average attendance of 32; and total collections, $316.76. Total additions reported by five churches, 25; deaths, 3.

The church showing the largest membership was Hillisburg; the largest total money received, Burr Oak; the largest Sunday school collections, South Bend; and most sermons preached at Burr Oak. Bro. J. H. Anderson reported 127 sermons including Bible lessons in Indiana, and 91 out of the state, a total of 223; baptisms, 63 (two additional next day); 5 funerals; marriages, 2.

The Treasurer, Bro. Willis Roose, reported all pledges paid in full, which was thought to be a record in Indiana. Pledges were again made by churches and individuals sufficient to carry on the work for another year and enough money paid in to meet all expenses of Bible school, for which we feel very grateful.

The election of officers resulted in reelection of the old Board: President, F. A. Stilson; 1st Vice President, O. J. Parker; 2nd Vice President, Paul Magnus; Treasurer, Willis Roose; Secretary, Verna Himmelright. The Bereans reelected Pearl Zeehler President, which places her on the Board again.

Those baptized were Mr. and Mrs. Will Warner, Bremen; Mrs. Mabel Alexander, Hartford City; Mrs. Dora Warren, Plymouth; Mrs. Sara McChesney, Plymouth; Pauline

Welch, Lapaz; Hazel May Huffer, Michigan-town; Mrs. Addie Annis, Bremen; and Glenn Puterbaugh, Argos.

F. A. Stilson, President.

MINNIE STADDEN BURNHAM

The Golden Rule Church of Cleveland has sustained another loss in the death, on July 15, of Sr. Minnie Burnham. Her death was a very tragic one, resulting from an accident sustained about two months ago, when she fell from a stone boat on the farm, tripping her foot as she fell, and breaking both bones in her leg. Pain and worry deranged her mind toward the last so that she was unable to recognize anyone.

Sr. Burnham was born in Cleveland, Ohio, on August 11, 1882. She was the daughter of Bro. Harry W. and Sr. Susan Stadden, both deceased. On February 25, 1919, she was united in marriage to Burr L. Burnham. They made their home on the old homestead near Strongsville, Ohio. Three children were born to this marriage: Elta; Robert, deceased; and Wilbur. Besides these, and her husband, she leaves a brother and three sisters: Harry J. Stadden, Mrs. Carrie Elton (of Tustin, Calif.), Miss Ada Stadden, and Mrs. Mattie Agard. One sister, Mrs. Jessie Leweke, preceded her in death. While a girl in her teens she joined the Church of God, and lived a consistent Christian life to the end.

Several years ago the family moved to near Mantua, Ohio. As this is some distance from the former home, two services were held on July 18, one at Mantua, and the other at Berea, Ohio, in order that the neighbors at both places might attend. There were good attendances at both places, showing the esteem in which their neighbors held them. In many other ways they showed their sincere regard for the family by helping with the farm work and preparing a lunch for the funeral party on their way to Berea.

In the little family lot at Strongsville, we laid her to rest, to await the glad day of resurrection at the coming of her Lord.

M. W. Lyon.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO N. B. I.

Illinois	$1.00
Maurertown, Va., Sunday School	2.50
Dakota	5.00
J. W. Sweet	1.50
Arlen Marsh	2.00

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mrs. C. H. Bassett (for others); Mrs. N. L. Anderson; S. T. Shirley (for others); Sam A. Bradley; G. A. Driskill; Elizabeth Martin; Elta M. Fitz.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO DOLLAR-A-MONTH CLUB

Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Lansbery; Mrs. C. Seely ($6); Mrs. A. M. Siple; Albert Siple; Ella M. Siple; Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Updike; Ida F. Orem ($3); Eva L. Page; Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Railsback; Mary Calkins; Mr. and Mrs. Paul C. Johnson; Diana Murphy ($6).

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by
National Bible Institution
Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents
Sample copy, Free.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

BETWEEN YOU AND ME—

Several members of the Golden Rule Home family have been sick recently, but all seem better at the present time. The extreme hot weather may have something to do with bringing about this condition.

The pastor of the Oregon church laid a foundation for the conference speakers by speaking on the nature and importance of the distinguishing doctrines of the Church of God last Sunday night.

It is not too late to pray for the success of the General Conference, even if you cannot meet with us for the next ten days.

The following would apply to some who argue for argument's sake alone on Bible questions. "If you must argue choose a subject you know a great deal about—then keep still and listen."

The first to arrive for the General Conference was Bro. Lyman Booth, St. Louis, Mo., whose writings have been of such interest to our readers.

As the paper goes into the mail we are looking for the arrival of Sr. Jessie M. B. Kauffman of California and Sr. S. T. Whitley and her two sons of Texas.

Bro. C. E. Randall, pastor of the churches at Fonthill, Ont., and Niagara Falls, N. Y., has been added to the teaching force of the Illinois Bible School, and is now engaged in an interesting series of studies with an adult class.

Among the interesting items in "The Star," published by Pastor A. E. Hoskins of St. Cloud, Minn., the following is especially encouraging. "The summer months find our Bible school climbing in attendance and interest." That is an unusual experience in most schools.

"Golden Rule News," published by Pastor M. W. Lyon of Cleveland, Ohio, with its last issue entered upon its sixth year of usefulness in its local field. Its editor is a strong and vigorous defender of the historic teaching of the Church of God, and the fruitage of his labors indicates the presence of God in his congregation. May it long continue to herald the glad tidings of the kingdom!

After an all-night drive Pastor C. E. Lapp of Ripley, Ill., reached Oregon safely, accompanied by his wife and Bro. Gerald Cooper and the latter's sisters, Ednah and Margaret of the same place, and Sr. Pauline Leithliter of Eldorado, Ill.

Fifteen Weeks for Fifty Cents—

Simply fill in this blank and return it to us accompanied by 50 cents for each one to whom you wish THE RESTITUTION HERALD sent for the next fifteen weeks and we will provide them with splendid inspirational reading, prophetic information, and comforting assurances of the Children of God for the summer's reading.

GENTLEMEN:

Please send THE RESTITUTION HERALD to each of the following for 15 weeks. I inclose 50 cents for each subscription.

Sender's Name

Address

New subscriber for 15 weeks:

Name

St. and No.

City State

Additional names may be submitted on another sheet.

WHILE THE CHURCH SLEEPS

Continued from Front Page

carefully. It has to do with the second coming of Christ! It describes a condition which the Lord says is to exist within the church at the actual time when the Master puts in His appearance.

They all slumbered and slept!

This is a broad statement designed to emphasize the widespread state of indifference to the Lord's coming that will overtake the church just before His advent. It is quite evident from other passages that at least a remnant of His disciples will remain awake and ready to greet Him when He comes.

Now let us return to the prophecy cited from 1 Thessalonians 5:1-11. "But of the times and the seasons, brethren, ye have no need that I write unto you. For yourselves know perfectly that the day of the Lord so cometh as a thief in the night."

How many church members know anything about the "day of the Lord," to say nothing of knowing the things pertaining to it perfectly?

Continuing the quotation: "For when they shall say, Peace and safety; then sudden destruction cometh upon them, as travail upon a woman with child; and they shall not escape."

The church itself is now joining in the cry of "peace and safety" with the nations of the world. That is, the church is praying to the governments of earth, the governments of men, rather than to God, to bring "peace on earth," and thus fulfill the promise of the herald angels at the Savior's birth.

However natural and Christlike it may be for men to desire world-wide peace, it is contrary to the plain teaching of Jesus and of the apostles to expect it to come in this age or through the efforts of unregenerate nations. To look to the nations to bring peace is an indication that those who expect it to come in this way are unfamiliar with the Bible or that they are lacking in confidence in the reliability of its predictions and promises. Sad to confess, the church seems more inclined in these days to depend for world redemption upon the power of nations than upon God.

The Apostle goes on: "But ye, brethren, are not in darkness, that that day should overtake you as a thief."

Is that true of the church at large today? Or is it asleep to all this? How much light, the light sent forth by the advancing Sun of Righteousness, illuminates the hearts of Christian men and women now? Are they thinking of the Lord's coming and of our gathering together unto Him of which the apostles speak so confidently, while they are petitioning worldly governments to do that which the Bible affirms that only the coming of the Prince of Peace can accomplish? Will the day of the Lord overtake these professed disciples of Christ as "a thief in the night," or as an event long anticipated and desired?

Paul continues: "Ye are all the children of light, and the children of the day: we are not of the night, nor of darkness. Therefore let us not sleep, as do others; but let us watch and be sober."

Paul was speaking to a waiting and a watching church. He was addressing a body of Christians who evidently firmly believed in the literal return of Jesus to the earth. The hearts and hopes of those addressed were centered in that event. That was the thing for which they lived and labored and were willing to die! Jesus was coming again!

While the Church Sleeps, the preparatory work of the Antichrist goes on, the reign of sin continues, the world grows worse and worse, as is to be expected under such a condition, and men and women are dying by hundreds of thousands without God and without Christ and without hope in the world—While the Church Sleeps!

While the Church Sleeps, the warning voice of prophecy is stilled, the needy souls of men neglected, and the sinful world not warned of the approach of the One appointed to "judge the world in righteousness"!

While the Church Sleeps, the Lord Jesus Christ draws near! Glorious thought! Inspiring thought! Life-giving thought! Brothers, sisters, friends, sorrowing ones everywhere, you who are longing for peace and assurance of everlasting life, "lift up your heads and rejoice"! Jesus is coming! He's coming again! "Therefore let us not sleep, as do others; but let us watch and be sober."—1 Thess. 5:6.

—0—

THE BIBLE SCHOOL

"And that from a child thou hast known the holy scriptures, which are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus."—2 Tim. 3:15.

THE Bible school is very often the first step in a child's spiritual vision. The influences of the Bible school are far-reaching and important. The child who early in life becomes a member of a Bible school class forms lasting and important ideas of the principles of a Christian life which follow him through his adult life. The child through the Bible school learns the truth in a way that could not be brought to him through his home life. Here it is that the first seeds are sown from which Christian lives later develop. The Bible school cooperates with the home and home training.

Children may for a time be members of a Bible school class and then drift away, but that influence is always with them and is prompting them in their travels through life. Many times the teachings of the Bible school have been the means of holding men and women in line later in life when the ways became hard and dark.

The inspiring, uplifting, and strengthening influences of the Bible school last through generations. The influence of the Bible school puts a stamp upon the child which can never be removed. The Bible school is made possible through the church by the self-sacrificing teachers, who are devoting their time and talents to developing Christian lives.—Bible Faith Mission Standard.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 23

OREGON, ILLINOIS, AUGUST 7, 1934

NUMBER 45

The Cup of Exceeding Sorrow

By Lyman Booth

IN Matthew 26:38 we read, "Then saith he unto them, My soul is exceeding sorrowful, even unto death." He then "prayed, saying, O my Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me: nevertheless not as I will, but as thou wilt."

The question arises, What was that cup? Most people very promptly reply that it was His suffering and death upon the cross. I do not agree with that answer; because it was not the subject about which He had been talking to His three apostles, Peter, James, and John. The "exceeding sorrow" of His soul, which was pressing heavily upon Him, "even unto death," was the subject of His conversation. Three times He offered up the same prayer, and I believe His Father answered Him by sending "an angel unto him from heaven, strengthening him" (Luke 22:43).

His extreme sorrow was, no doubt, caused by excessive pain. Sometimes it may come upon one by slow degrees, and it may attack a person very suddenly. We know that nothing can weaken the body so quickly and completely as a sudden attack of acute pain. I have known of instances where people suffered such intense pain that it appeared that every pore of the skin gave forth a great flow of sweat. No doubt this was our Lord's bodily condition at that time, for we read, "And being in an agony he prayed more earnestly: and his sweat was as it were great drops of blood falling down to the ground." While Matthew does not state that it was blood, still the language indicates a comparison to blood. If it had the appearance or likeness of blood, what gave it that appearance? If we listen to the voice of reason, we must conclude that it must have had the color, otherwise it would not have looked like blood. We also conclude that nothing else could have exuded from His body to give the sweat a crimson color.

While some may doubt the possibility of a person's sweating blood, if we can rely upon the authority of medical statements we can believe that in the highest state of mental agony a blood exudation may take place. If I have not been misinformed, two such cases are on record. The attack is exceedingly painful and proves fatal in a very brief time.

These paroxysms are classed in the medical record under the name "diapedesis." If our Lord was suffering such an attack it would have been a matter of great importance to Him, for if it had continued any great length of time, He never would have reached the cross. I do not believe it was the fear of death on the cross that prompted Him to pray as He did, but rather the fear He might not be privileged to complete His appointed sacrifice, as it had been predicted by the prophets, and to which He had become completely reconciled (as shown in Matthew 20:18, 19 and John 12:33).

If death on the cross was the cup to which He referred, why did He wait until almost under its shadow to pray to have it pass? He had known for a long time that was His portion, and though He often mentioned it to His apostles He never manifested any fear of it nor expressed any disposition to escape it.

It was less than five days after the immense popular excitement which drew the multitude from city and country into a jubilant procession of welcome and honor with palms and garments strewn in His path that He knelt down on the bare ground in the garden, a lonely sufferer struggling with a secret and deadly agony, where no sound broke the silence but His groans as He prayed for relief. That relief came in answer to His thrice-repeated prayer when the angel from heaven appeared and strengthened Him. Paul, in Hebrews 5:7, gives a brief account of that lonely and painful hour. He says, "Who in the days of his flesh, when he had offered up prayers and supplications with strong crying and tears unto him that was able to save him from death, and was heard in that he feared ("and was heard for his devotion"—Diaglott)." He being strengthened by the angel, His cup of sorrow, which had borne so heavily upon Him, passed away, thus permitting Him to complete His sacrificial offering—to make atonement or reconciliation for the people.

It is true that besides this great sorrow there was a burden of many other things that occupied His thoughts, for He well knew of the trial, the persecution, the mockery,

Please turn to Page Nine

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879.

G. Eldred Marsh, Editor

Two Dollars per Year

Paul C. Johnson, Associate Editor

"I am God, and there is none like me, declaring the end from the beginning, and from ancient times the things that are not yet done, saying, My counsel shall stand, and I will do all my pleasure."—Isaiah 49:9, 10.

AN OLD HYMN OF PRAISE

To Thee, my God and Savior,
My heart exulting springs;
Rejoicing in Thy favor,
Almighty King of kings.

We celebrate Thy glory,
With all the hosts above,
And tell the wondrous story
Of Thy redeeming love.

We'll cast our crowns before Thee,
Our toils and conflicts o'er,
And evermore adore Thee
On Canaan's happy shore.
—I. Baltzell.

THE GREAT OBJECTION

THE most serious accusation which the Jews brought against Jesus at the time of His trial was that He claimed to be the Son of God. (Matt. 26:63; 27:40, 43.) The fact that they looked upon this claim as blasphemy of the most repulsive type indicates that they understood that He claimed to be the Son of God in a higher sense than that claimed by every Jew who looked to Abraham as his father. The wealth of evidence provided in the Gospels supports the view that Jesus must have made it very plain to all that He was in a peculiar and miraculous way the "only begotten Son" of the heavenly Father.

His Jewish opposers would not have protested His claim to Sonship had it been based on His Israelitish origin, but when He asserted in no unmistakable terms that His relation to the Father was more real, more complete, more intimate, than that of anyone before Him, they not only denied His claims as preposterous, but accused Him of blasphemy as well.

This objection to Jesus' claim of divine Sonship seems to be more or less overlooked by the unbelieving Jews of today and an even more serious charge has been placed against Him. This latter accusation, if it could be sustained by facts, would, indeed, stamp the claims of our Lord as blasphemous in the extreme.

But the accusation is based, not upon any claim that Jesus or His disciples of an early day made for Him, but upon a mistaken conception of His nature and relationship to God. This new point of opposition on the part of the Jews is best expressed in an editorial which appeared recently in The Daily Jewish Courier of Chicago, from which we quote the following.

Referring to the activities of Christian missionaries among the Jews the editor says: "As a rule these fanatics pretend to be doing the work of God. They fail to explain, however, the particular God they are referring to. Is it the God of the universe, the Father of all mankind, or the human God of the Christian church?" (The italics are ours.)

This is, of course, a reference to the trinitarian idea of Christ. To claim that any human being is God Himself would be blasphemy without a doubt. But such is neither the teaching of the Bible nor was it the teaching of the primitive church. Jesus Himself most firmly and emphatically denies such an allegation. While openly defending His Sonship to God, He repeatedly asserts that He is, and must ever remain, subject to the Father in all things.

Our Lord further acknowledges God's superior power and position with reference to His own. "My Father . . . is greater than all." "My Father is greater than I." "Why callest thou me good? there is none good but one, that is, God." (John 10:29; 14:28; Matt. 19:17.) Paul, speaking of Jesus' future, beyond the kingdom age, reaching out into the farthest periods of eternity, says that Christ "must reign, till he hath put all enemies under his feet. . . . But when he saith all things are put under him, it is manifest that he is excepted, which did put all things under him. And when all things shall be subdued unto him, then shall the Son also himself be subject unto him that put all things under him, that God may be all in all."—1 Cor. 15:25-28.

The most serious objection of the Jews against Jesus finds no basis in the Master's teaching; for according to the Gospels and according to their interpretation by the Apostle Paul, Jesus, although claiming to be the "only begotten of the Father," and the true Messiah of Israel, did not claim to be God Himself.

Shall They Rise to Die Again?

By Harvey Krogh, Jr.

"For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive."—1 Corinthians 15:22.

THE children of Israel had been in Egypt about four hundred years and every one of them living about the time of the exodus was born a slave. Moses may have been a possible exception, for he was a free man, having been claimed by the pharaoh's daughter when yet a child. Moses chose "rather to suffer affliction with the people of God, than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season," esteeming reproach "greater riches than the treasures in Egypt: for he had respect unto the recompence of the reward."

God instructed Moses how to deliver his people out of bondage. He first went to the pharaoh and requested that they might worship their God in the desert. Pharaoh refused to release them and the plagues came. Finally the last plague was brought, which was the death of the first-born. The blood of the Passover lamb on the door posts of the Israelites' houses saved their first-born from death that night. Moses led all the children of Israel to the Red Sea, and by God's wonderful power they all crossed on dry ground. Paul said he would not have us "ignorant, how that all our fathers were under the cloud, and all passed through the sea; and were all baptized unto Moses in the cloud and in the sea" (1 Cor. 10:1, 2). We notice that word "all." They all were saved. Yes! all, and we have no record of one of them being left behind or falling on the way. When they crossed the sea every one of them was freed from the Egyptian bondage and every one was brought under a new master or leader, Moses. They no more had to suffer under their former taskmasters, nor would they die as slaves.

In all this we see a beautiful picture which God has painted for us if we search for it. It is a painting of God's plan, but only in miniature.

We see Jesus our Savior typified by Moses, who delivered Israel. Jesus chose rather to suffer affliction for the people of God than immediately enjoy the power that was His because He was not born a slave, but was the Son of God. He esteemed the reproach of the cross greater riches than "all the kingdoms of the world," "for he had respect unto the recompence of the reward."

We believe that Moses represented Christ and that the first-born represented the church, which is a royal priesthood. Now may we say that the nation of Israel represents the whole human race? the whole world? Moses delivered the whole nation of Israel out of Egyptian slavery. Christ will deliver the whole world out of the prison of death and bring it out from under the curse of Adam. "And he is the propitiation for our sins: and not for ours only, but also for the sins of the whole world."—1 John 2:2. "And know that this is indeed the Christ, the Saviour of the world."—John 4:42. "Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away (beareth) the sin of the world."—John 1:29. As Moses was the new leader over a nation set free from slavery, so, I believe, Christ will be the new leader (in place of Adam) over a world set free from their first leader and from the result of his sin, namely, death.

Ah! some one says this is universal salvation. But let us complete our type as stated in 1 Corinthians 10:5. After all Israel had been freed and placed under Moses their righteous leader, we read: "But with many of them God was not well pleased: for they were overthrown in the wilderness."

Why will God raise all from death just to destroy some or send them back to dust once more? It does not seem just right that God should raise some just to condemn them immediately. This might be answered with another question. Why did Moses deliver every Israelitish soul out of Egypt when God knew that with many He would not be well pleased? God gave them all a fine opportunity to view life under a righteous leader that He might be a just God. Also He did not condemn them immediately, but gave them time and opportunity to follow faithfully.

When Christ returns, the church will become kings and priests and will rule with Him. All those living who have not accepted Him will come under Him, for He shall be Lord of lords and King of kings. None living shall be under Adam any more, but under the Christ. They will no more suffer for Adam's sin. Jeremiah 31:29, 30: "In those days they shall say no more, The fathers have eaten a sour grape, and the children's teeth are set on edge. But

Perfect Love

Perfect love the Father giveth,
Full of grace so rich and free,
Like the rain or dew of morning
Falling now on you and me.

Perfect love is born in Jesus,
Naught of self can victory gain,
Till we find it all in Jesus,
All our efforts prove but vain.

Perfect love will never falter,
Perfect love will never fear;
And when days are dark and stormy
Perfect love will always cheer.

Perfect love will never slander
Friend or foe where'er they go;
But will raise a fallen brother,
And will take his seat below.

Perfect love that long will suffer,
Never murmur or complain,
Never ask her own, or covet
Others' wealth or earthly fame.

Perfect love is meek and lowly,
Perfect love is rich and free,
Perfect love is Jesus only,
Come to dwell in you and me.
—Author unknown.

every one shall die for his own iniquity: every man that eateth the sour grape, his teeth shall be set on edge."

It seems that in that age there will be some with whom God will not be well pleased, some who will not accept Jesus as their new ruler. They will be those for whom there remaineth no more sacrifice for sin because they will have full knowledge of the truth and sin wilfully (Heb. 10:26). Shall they not go into the second death, which is the death they die under Christ as ruler?

When the thousand years are ended, all those who are yet dead because of Adam's sin shall be raised and shall be judged according to their works. We now are judged by faith. Then faith will be sight, and they can see their new Ruler; and if they do not live in conformity with the principles that will be set before them, God shall not be well pleased with them, and their names will not be found in the book of life. What will become of them? They will know their Savior and see Him, but reject Him. There is no more sacrifice for sin, and they shall be lost.

My friend, will you wait till after the resurrection to accept Christ? You are running a great risk of even obtaining life, and you will certainly lose that blessed opportunity of being a ruler with Christ and having an inheritance with Him.

Today is the day of salvation. If you know of Christ today and reject Him, there remaineth no more sacrifice for your sins. Accept Him now.

JUDGMENT

By H. B. Hathaway

"For the time is come that judgment must begin at the house of God: and if the righteous scarcely be saved, where shall the ungodly and the sinner appear?"—1 Peter 4:17, 18.

AS stated here, judgment begins at the house of God, and that is all that is being done in this dispensation. The righteous are being tried now, and all that are worthy will be the rulers in the kingdom of God. The ungodly and sinner will appear in judgment also, but this judgment will be one of correction. Isaiah says when God's judgments are in the earth the inhabitants of the world will learn righteousness.

That is the way Paul learned it. He said Christ came into the world to save sinners, of whom he was chief; that he was a pattern to them which should hereafter believe on Christ to life everlasting. No one could have the experience he had and not believe.

Some say Christ will save the sinners if they will let Him. Some shall receive few stripes and some many. When they get stripes enough, they will, like Paul, say, "Lord, what wilt thou have me do?" Or, like Jonah, after he was cast out of hell, they will be willing to do what is required of them. "God hath concluded them all in unbelief, that he might have mercy upon all."—Rom. 11:32. Some will call for the rocks and mountains to fall on them (stripes); some will be weeping and gnashing their teeth (stripes).

There have been many wicked destroyed in the past and there will be many more. Jude gives an example in the sixth and seventh verses: angels reserved in chains under darkness until the day of judgment; then their present condition is not final. The seventh verse is quoted many times to prove that sinners will never have an opportunity after this life. Now let us see what the Word of God says about a restoration of those very ones mentioned in the seventh verse that are suffering the vengeance of eternal fire.

We believe Jerusalem will be restored, and the Lord says when it is He will bring again the captivity of Sodom and her daughters and Samaria and her daughters in the midst of them. In Ezekiel 16:53-60 the future blessings are mentioned. Those cities are to be given to Jerusalem for daughters by an everlasting covenant. The sixty-third verse says He will be pacified toward them for all that they have done.

The forty-ninth and fiftieth verses tell what their sins were, and that is about the condition the world is in today. Christ said it would be more tolerable for Sodom in the day of judgment than for Jerusalem.

The gospel was preached to Abraham, and that is what I believe. "In thy seed shall all nations be blessed."

There is not a righteous nation on earth, nor ever has been. Isaiah tells how they will become righteous in his second chapter.

When Christ comes to Zion, many nations shall be joined to the Lord (Zech. 2:10-13). "All nations whom thou hast made shall come and worship before thee, O Lord."—Psalm 86:9. But before that happens they will get their punishment by being turned into hell (Psalm 9:17). By fire and the sword will the Lord plead with all flesh (Isa. 66:16). Jeremiah 25:28-31 shows all nations will have to drink of the cup, the battle of Armageddon. Zechariah 14 gives a description of it.

A grand promise is given in Isaiah 25:6-10 to be fulfilled after Christ comes. David's request in Psalm 67 is good. All kings will fall down before God; all nations will serve Him (Psalm 72:11-17; 82:8). The kingdoms of this world are to become the kingdoms of our Lord and His Christ (Rev. 11:15).

"Science, Falsely So-Called"

By Norman John MacLeod

THROUGHOUT all the ages the tendency of mankind has been to seek after various means for revealing the future. Curiosity and worry have led them to great extremes. They would like to know just how their character should be molded so that it will fit into the life which they are to live. They, in other words, are seeking things which God has not revealed to them. God would not reveal to Saul what was going to happen to him, because of his sins. Saul committed further sin by consulting the witch of Endor. He was no exception to the people of his day, nor to the people of other days, even in the "enlightened" twentieth century. How may we test such things to see if they be in accord with God's plans for us? We are told here in Isaiah that if they "speak not according to" His word "there is no light in them." How many of those who read fortunes and the like speak according to the law and the testimony? How many of those who predict events according to the constellations, the signs of the zodiac in other words, speak according to the law and testimony?

In the day when there were no telescopes men gazed into the skies and saw many strange and wierd things there. They thought that the planets and stars that they saw influenced their lives. As a matter of fact when one peers through a telescope at the myriad of worlds that are not visible to the naked eye he might wonder indeed which of those bodies of the universe should influence us most: the insignificant planets which he can see because they are close, or the infinitely larger stars that can be seen only with powerful lenses. If, as is supposed by the theory of "astrology" (the so-called science of the Middle Ages), the stars determine our character and our destiny, man is not a free moral agent and cannot shape his life in accordance with the will of God. He is subject to the whims of pagan gods who are no real gods.

During the Middle Ages only two theories were called "sciences": astrology and alchemy. Both of them were false sciences. The false science of astrology pretended to show that the stars and the planets influence our lives; that the constellations order the events among human beings in the world. How did they come to believe such things? In ancient times each planet and the stars that were visible to the unaided eye were thought to be gods; they still bear the names of those gods: Jupiter, Venus, Mars, Saturn, and others. All sorts of myths were told of the setting up of certain constellations: Orion the hunter with his dog fell in love with the seven sisters, the Plaeides; and to save "And when they shall say unto you, Seek unto them that have familiar spirits, and unto wizards that peep, and that mutter: should not a people seek unto their God? for the living to the dead? To the law and to the testimony: if they speak not according to this word, it is because there is no light in them."—Isa. 8:19, 20.

them from him the goddess Diana put them in the sky; but Orion is always along with them, chasing them: you may even see his dog, called to this day the "Dog Star." But that planets have influence on our lives comes from the idea that each one of them is a god. We still speak of a person as being "jovial," like Jove or Jupiter; or "saturnine," like Saturn; and of a thing as "ill-starred" because the planets were not in the correct position. Do the law and the testimony speak according to such foolishness? Does the law of God approve the idea of pagan gods at all? Does the testimony bear witness to the influence of Mars in our life? In order to tell in olden times whether the stars "approved" of an undertaking, the "diviners" looked in the liver of various animals: if it was not according to certain features, then the "augury" was not good. In Rome the "Augurs" kept flocks of certain kinds of birds which were released upon state occasions and the way they acted was the "omen." The eagle was supposed to tell of the fate of Rome: why? Because Mars was the patron god of Rome, and the eagle was sacred to Mars! The eagle is still associated in our minds with war and all things martial (relating to Mars). Each god or goddess had a sacred animal or animals. The black cat and the bat were sacred to Minerva (Athena of the Greeks): that is why it is a bad "omen" for a black cat to cross your path. Athena was angry with you. That is why the devil came to have bat's wings, for the pagan gods were looked upon as "devils" by the Christians of the early Middle Ages. The devil also borrowed his cloven hoofs from the god Pan of Roman mythology, who was like a man in his upper portions, but like a goat in his lower extremities; he also gave the devil those little goat's horns. (Search the Scriptures in vain for any description of the devil according to Milton.)

But many people will deny all this, and yet say that the moon has a marked effect on our everyday life. But the moon according to astrology is a goddess also: the goddess Diana of the Romans; Artemis of the Greeks; Ishtar of the Syrians. In the early myths the phases of the moon were thought to be due to the fact that some terrible demons captured the goddess of the moon and took her away. That is why the new moon was celebrated by a feast and a celebration. The moon could act in only two ways: by gravity; or by its light. The gravity is present whether the moon is dark or light: therefore it could not vary. Reflected light does not affect the growth of plants. No other force could be present in the moon unless it were the supposed force of the personality of the moon goddess!

More recently has arisen a group of people who style themselves "psychologists." They teach one of the worst mixtures of ideas taken from astrology and its allied falsehoods, numerology and the "science of names." In the first place such things are based upon the fundamental premise of the doctrine of the immortality of the soul, a doctrine which psychology discarded many years ago. The word "psychology" means the "science of the soul"; early psychologists spent their time in examining the doctrine of the immortality of the soul. Before long they decided that there was no such thing as "the soul" as a separate entity. That is why psychology undermined the faith of so many people who studied it, for they could see the truth of psychology, and thought that the Bible taught the immortality of the soul. The result was that psychology discarded the Bible. Psychologically consciousness is the function of the brain. Consciousness does not come from any detached thing such as the "soul," or the "mind," or the "faculties." Real psychology is one of the strongest refutations of astrology, phrenology, palmistry, and all the rest of the "sciences, falsely so-called." The "psychology" taught by the many popular lecturers is based upon the supposed "beauty of personality" of sin-cursed man; upon "self-reliance" rather than upon the weakness of the flesh through lusts; upon "self-conceit" rather than the humility of the Savior of mankind. They are not according to the "law and the testimony."

In more recent times another movement has entered into our field of activity and has come to us through the field of "medicine." A group of teachings that are allied to the falsehoods of "alchemy," from which medicine grew, are the result. Alchemy in its purest form attempted to show that gold could be made from other metals, a thing which real science has achieved in recent years, but not by the methods of alchemy. But as the falsehoods of alchemy were practiced in the Middle Ages and earlier in ancient times, they pretended to suit the medicine to the "vibrations of the personality." That personality was supposed to be made up of certain elements: earth, air, fire, and water. We still speak of a person with a "fiery" temper. Strange to say, we do not hold onto the other names derived from the four elements. Another phase of the teachings spoke of a person as having two substances in him: "phlegms" and "rheums." A person that had too much of the "phlegm" was "phlegmatic"; one who had too much "rheum" was "rheumatic" (not in our specific sense, though our modern disease derived its name from that source). These elements and "phlegms" and "rheums" were, according to theory, combined in certain proportions and composed one's "temperament" (shortened into our word "temper"). Another idea which was taken from ancient mythology was that of the "atomic" and "electronic" theories. They were semi-scientific philosophy in their earlier stages, and from that source have been taken into modern chemistry, physics, and electricity. But in their "mystical" phases they have come into medicine through the newly tried field of "electrotherapeutics"— the treatment of disease by electricity. No doubt exists that as time goes on a great deal will be done in the field of electric treatment of disease. But like all methods it has its "mystical" features. According to a blend of Yogi philosophy and certain unknown aspects of electricity, disease is supposed to be caused by incorrect vibrations of personality as displayed in the "aura" or "astral" body ("astral" referring to the stars again). The "astral" body is supposed to show by its "aura" where there is anything wrong with the person. Normally the "aura" is supposed to be a steel blue color; but if the person is diseased it will be a different color in the particular locality of the diseased organ. If it is tuberculosis the diseased "aura" will be one color; if it is cancer it will be another! But this so-called "aura" is based upon an optical illusion due to the physiological-psychological process of color vision and "after image." If one looks fixedly at bright blue, and then looks at a neutral surface he will see the object in "after image" in yellow; always the complementary color will appear. For yellow the after image will be blue; for red it will be green; for green it will be red; black for white, and white for black. The Hindu "fakir" tells you to stare at his bright blue garment for a time, then as he steps aside you will see his "astral" body in yellow where he stood! The false sciences of magic and fortune-telling are based upon this physiological phenomenon. Various vibratory devices and magnetic contraptions are supposed to correct the vibrations of the electrons of the body: referring of course to the "astral" body.

A man's education, so it has been said, can be judged by the number of spirits in which he believes. The uneducated man can explain everything in the universe: spirits do all the unusual things. Demons make us sick; Thor throws his hammer to make it thunder; Jupiter nods to make the earthquake; a volcano is Vulcan's forge; and great spirits blow to make the winds. Every shadow and river was thought to be haunted by its particular god or goddess; every tree was supposed to have its nymph or satyr. The god Pan caused fear to enter into the human heart; hence our word "panic." Cases might be multiplied at length. But with this in mind we see that Moses was the best educated man of his day when he said: "Hear, O Israel: the Lord our God is one Lord."—Deut. 6:4. The world has forgotten His first and greatest commandment; and, strange to say, many of His devoted followers have followed the "sciences, falsely so-called," not being aware that they are refutations of the first and greatest commandment: There is only one God! If God wishes us to know the future He will reveal it to us in His holy Word; if He wishes us to seek for advice, we can find it in the instructions of His teachers. Let us seek the Word of God to guide us, rather than the wizards that peep and mutter!

WORSHIP:

To worship is to live and serve.

Worship is practicing the presence of God.

RELIGION

A GOOD definition has not been found yet for religion. One conclusion seems true, however, that much of the everyday talk about religion is not concerned with the subject in the concrete use of the term. One of our recent authors says, "Religion is a function of the invisible and spiritual part of man." But man is a unitary being and not made up of parts. Another writer gives a somewhat broader statement thus: "Religion is the life of man in his superhuman relations to the Power that produced him, the Authority that is over him, and the unseen being with whom he is capable of communion."

When we attempt a careful study of the office of religion in living we are forcefully impressed with its influence on the individual's character as exhibited in every walk of life. It is not something to be acquired; it is an essential part of his very self. Religion is a power, a moving source in social life which is universal. Everyone, without regard to his intelligence or to social connections, every person in every condition of life, orders his behavior in accord with his religious convictions. So strong are these convictions regarding the existence of a being whom he believes controls human destiny and recognizes the virtues of human beings that the worshiper counts life worthless if these bonds be broken. From the day when devoted Abel fell before the wrath of Cain till our own day, man has seemed to think his life accursed without the benediction of his God.

Difference in man's religious behavior seems to be determined by his personal manner of thinking about the being he worships. Thus we see the vacillating Greek, who studies to represent his god in the likeness of a perfect human being or form, governed by passions which come and go with the changing temper of self-gratification or revenge, losing his place as an autocrat among his fellows. His family life dissolves—becomes miserable, perishes. His State becomes corrupt, his culture is vitiated, his sovereign rights are misused—lost. But when we turn to the Hebrews, whose Lord is one God, the creator, the protector, provider, and the gracious deliverer in every adversity, whose image can never be discerned, but whose law is righteousness at all times and whose mercy endureth forever, we come to a people whose sturdy virtues have endured all the shocks and destruction of the centuries. When the fullness of time was come, Jesus was born of a woman in whom all the promises of Jehovah were pregnant with a constant faith. Holy men and consecrated women of the household of faith recognized the promised Messiah, understood that His life was a revelation of God in whom Abraham and the patriarchs had believed and of whom the king-ly David sang.

So the centuries, like an ever-moving procession, pass on. The course of history, the advance of coherent civilization, the constant advance of the gospel of life and the hope of the ages, fill the prophetic picture. Kingdoms arise, dynasties fall; but the chariot of salvation moves on. Mankind today has discovered an everlasting possession, the "pearl of great price."

A noted Jewish philosopher of the generation just past, George Simmel, speaking of the nature and function of religion, writes: "Religion must mean life itself, and not any mere content of life." Religion recognizes a guiding and controlling intelligence that has an abiding meaning in all the movements and experiences of the rational being. It implies law and the creator of law. Every human project which adds to man's well-being takes account of this order and considers its certainty, its constant and persistent energy, and comes to believe in a personal source of this universal progression. In short, man comes to believe in a God of infinite wisdom and unceasing providence. Human history abounds with examples where the individual or the people who have sought to understand this law and to adjust their daily lives to comport with the prevailing order of life have risen in a superior degree to eminent service and success. To know God, to be in accord with the mind that creates and sustains the laws of life, is true religion. In this way, and in no other, man has shown his affinity with the spiritual forces of the universe. The methods may vary; but the methods are man-made and are not religion. Every person may choose his mode of life; but he who most closely follows the true order rises to the highest attainment of good. Such is a religious life, and this rule applies to every situation into which human life may fall.

Turning to the book of Romans, we read: "For the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of man, who hold the truth in unrighteousness; because that which may be known of God is manifest in them . . . For the invisible things of him from the creation of the world are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made, even his eternal power and Godhead."—Rom. 1:18-20. What is it that distinguishes man from the world of brutes? Is it not his ability to distinguish in the world about him the perfect order of an overruling Providence? Does not the likeness of man to his Creator consist in his being able to think the thoughts of Him to whom he owes his being? And when man tries to order his own life in consonance with the evident laws about him, and to recognize his dependence upon the manifest goodness of his Creator, then he has entered into communion with the divine; he has become religious in the sincerest desires of the mind and heart. His faith in an all-sufficient Helper is manifest by his works; he is within the sphere of true religion.—George H. Dewing in Present Truth Messenger.

The Teacher Who Lacks Education

AFTER a Sunday school teachers' meeting when an educational specialist had been present and given an address most of the teachers wanted to resign. Probably without realizing what he was doing the specialist had discouraged a group of very earnest Sunday school workers. He had led them to feel that they did not have sufficient training to entitle them to remain longer with their classes. Both the superintendent and the pastor had great difficulty in persuading them to continue as teachers. The pastor in speaking to the writer about what happened said he did not want any more of that kind of specialists around. He added that the only trained teacher the school had was the poorest teacher in the group as far as influence went.

In another school the pastor was talking with a friend about the teacher of a boys' class. He was wondering whether or not to encourage him to remain when sometimes he wanted to give up the class.

He said, "He has no special training and the boys are developing so that in a way they are better educated than the teacher. On the other hand," he said, "he is devoted to the boys and they are devoted to him. The attendance at the class is splendid. Somehow he gets the boys to talking about the lesson and he is always inspiring the class group to undertake some service for others."

"If I were you," said the friend, who was a practical Sunday school man, "I would keep that man right where he is. He may not be able to answer every Bible question, but he is a splendid illustration of the Christian life himself."

A Sunday school workers' conference was being held in an eastern city. A great deal of stress was laid upon the importance of better trained teachers.

When the conference was over for the afternoon a teacher came up to one of the leaders of the conference and said to him, "I want to ask your judgment as to whether you think I ought to give up my class. I am doing the best I can with my boys, but I don't feel as if I knew enough to be their teacher."

The leader looked at the inquirer and said, "Don't you love your boys and don't you want to help them?"

"I certainly do," she replied.

"Then keep on with your class," said the leader. "Love is a first essential in a teacher which training alone cannot give. With love in your heart you can give. With love in your heart you can gradually acquire methods which will make you more efficient."

One other concrete illustration is to the point in connection with the specially trained teacher.

Said a man who was both a Sunday school superintendent and a teacher, "I have been taking teacher training for quite awhile in the community leadership school in a near by city. I have only two more courses to take and then I will be entitled to a diploma as a religious educator."

Perhaps this remark gives enough of an understanding of the man's ineffectiveness as a teacher and Sunday school worker, but in addition the judgment of the pastor of this man who had taken so many courses in teacher training may be given.

The pastor said, "The great hindrance to progress in our school is this man who has been going up to the city to get teacher training. While he thinks he knows it all he is a constant stumbling-block. He just cannot get along with people."

These various instances from real situations in the Sunday school life of today are not at all an argument against trained teachers. Other things being equal the better training a person has the better teacher he or she will make. But many of the best teachers in the Sunday school in past and today have never been to a community training school. They have never read a book on child psychology. They would do better work if they had had special training, but it remains true that without training they are doing a good work. They are leading their pupils into the Christian experience. As the months go by God and Christ seem more real to the members of their classes.

A great deal of emphasis is being laid upon the alleged fact that public school teachers are better trained for their work than are Sunday school teachers. It is of course true that a public school teacher must be a graduate of a teachers' college, of a normal school, or of a training class. Public school teachers in the year 1932 have a better technique for teaching reading, writing, and arithmetic, than had a teacher of the three R's fifty years ago. It is an open question, however, whether the characters of the boys and girls who come out of the public schools today show any marked improvement over the characters of the boys and girls coming from the public schools of fifty years ago.

At a recent meeting of educators Professor Thomas Briggs asserted that all is not well with either secondary or higher education. He hinted that in spite of the doubling of enrollment in each recent decade the schools are not fulfilling their function. He cast doubt on the educational quality of much of the work of the schools. Leaders who heard him or who have read his words have been aroused to not a little heart searching and serious study. Important as educational technique is the public schools need something more. It must be remembered that the call for week day religious education was in part, to start with, a call from the public schools of an Indiana town for help from the churches in developing character among their pupils. It was realized that public school procedure was not getting the character results desired.

The comparison between public school teachers and Sunday school teachers to the disparagement of the latter is usually faulty in that it fails to realize the difference in the objective of the public schools and the Sunday schools. What is the purpose sought for in the Sunday school?

What is the desired outcome? The answer is that these objectives are distinctly religious and Christian.

If the aim of the Sunday school is to lead people into and in the Christian experience it follows that the first necessity of a Sunday school teacher is a vital Christian experience of her own. "What shall it profit a teacher," remarks Professor Norman Richardson, "to learn how to teach religion if he has no suitable religion to teach?" Who would expect a person who had no love of music to become an inspiring teacher of music? Or a person who was lacking in an appreciation of beauty to be a teacher of art? In like manner it must be evident that only a teacher whose life is hid with Christ in God can lead others to love and obey Christ. Conventional courses in leadership training, helpful as they are, will not alone produce this first essential of a good teacher. It is because so many untrained teachers have had this Christian devotion that they have accomplished so much.

A second essential of a good teacher is love for her pupils. In public school life a teacher may do pretty good work although not the best without love for the pupils, but the Sunday school teacher without love is a flat failure even if she has received a diploma as a Master of Religious education. There can be no question that after a vital Christian experience the first essential in a Sunday school teacher is a heart filled with the milk of human kindness. This was strikingly evident in the life of the supreme Teacher. "For their sakes," He said, "I sanctify myself." Moreover, "having loved his own which were in the world, he loved them unto the end."

A person who has a vital Christian experience and who loves people will be eager to share his experience with them. All Christian teaching involves sharing. Many of those who have spent much time in seeking a technique of teaching have not thought of its sharing aspect, and many of those who have not had a technical training by a kind of divine instinct know how to share.

Let no teacher be discouraged because she lacks education, if she possesses a genuine Christian experience, a love of people, and an eagerness to share with them the best in her experience. On the other hand she should not rest content with the teaching ability she has, but constantly seek to learn better how to teach in such a way as to please the great head teacher, Jesus Christ.—J. Elmer Russell in New Century Leader.

THE CUP OF EXCEEDING SORROW

Continued from Front Page

the scourging by an angry and merciless rabble, all of which He endured without complaint, for He looked beyond the cross to the glory that awaited Him. It was not by those things alone that the Lord made atonement for sin, but rather by submitting to that cruel stroke at His life, begotten in malice, assisted by treason; and by bowing to the anguish of the cross over which the skies grew dark without a cloud and beneath which the earth trembled. Thus He passed through death willingly that a sinful world might live. He drank the cup of bitter woe that we might drink of the wine of life. He gained the victory over death, and became the captain of our salvation, able to set the penitent sinner free; to make the publican devout and the weeping harlot an heir of God's promises.

Our Lord's sufferings were condensed into two sections. We can scarcely tell which was the most severe. Why should we not, in the sight of such deep sorrow descending upon Him in the absence of all afflictions from without, in the quiet of the garden, in the loneliness of the midnight hour, before a hand had been laid upon Him, before the thorn had pierced His brow or scourge His back, learn to distinguish the mental and spiritual from His bodily sufferings? He meekly bore it all; He passed through the valley and shadow of death and rose to life eternal—all this that we might walk the golden streets of the eternal city, bearing palms of victory, and clad in robes of white.

THE GREAT HOUR

ONE has to study world conditions as they exist today to find out that the great hour of humanity's trial is near. In glowing headlines the newspapers tell the story of the failure of the Disarmament Conference, the tension between Soviet Russia and Japan, and the attempt to add to America's navy in spite of the protest of the churches of Christ. The capitals of Europe are slowly becoming battlefields on a minor scale which show the way the wind is blowing. Lisbon, Paris, and Vienna are only comma marks in the great parenthesis and the inevitable full stop which is yet to come. Mere man out of his super-intelligence has created the unemployment problem, which like a volcano may burst upon Europe and America at any time.

In India conditions are no better although the false cry of peace is apparent everywhere. It was on the banks of the River Ganges that the false and hard-hearted philosophy which has held India in its octopian grip was propounded, and it is the banks of this mighty Ganges that have been shaken by the recent earthquake which has practically devastated a province almost as large as the State of Maine and has brought famine and pestilence in its train. The new Communistic movement known as the Self-Respect Movement is organized after the plan of the American Atheistic Association. The call of the hour is Christ Jesus. To save people from the materialistic calf of the gold standard, from the Amorite and Moabite snare of the objectionable cinema and talkie world, from the gilded apples of Modernism, we need to hold up Christ Jesus before India and her sons. The great hour that ends man's work may be upon us soon. Let us do our duty in taking the gospel of our Lord to at least a portion of India's sons and daughters.—Bible Faith Mission Standard.

Abreast of the Times

Those Spurious Protocols

"Speaking lies in hypocrisy."—1 Timothy 4:2.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 30.—The Jewish Telegraphic Agency is the authority for the following statement with regard to the famous or infamous "Protocols." The dispatch says:

Richard E. Gutstadt, national Director of the B'rith Anti-Defamation Commission, reveals information indicating that anti-Semitism throughout the United States is regimented and has a hold among hundreds of thousands of people.

"There are 32 anti-Semitic organizations in the country," Gutstadt told a correspondent of the Jewish Telegraphic Agency. "One of them is run by a Baptist preacher, Rev. Gerald Winrod of Wichita, Kan., who tells his 50,000 followers that the long-exploded 'Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion' is gospel truth and the Jews seek to control the world."

He charged Rev. Winrod, who publishes a prophetic monthly of wide circulation, with being prepared to send anyone anti-Semitic literature, including the treatise, International Jew, which was once published and is now disavowed by Henry Ford. "Winrod," said Gutstadt, "is America's prize example of anti-Christian teachings. He is attempting to crucify the Jew on a cross of lies."

It is natural that the Jews should resent the constant dissemination of a work that has been positively proved to be a forgery. Falsehood is never justified, and appears most reprehensible when used in the supposed defense of a religious idea. THE RESTITUTION HERALD has been very slow about publishing articles which make unsupported claims which have a tendency to inflame the mind of the general public against God's chosen people.

Von Hindenburg's Death a Menace

"They shall go to confusion together. . . . But Israel shall be saved in the Lord."—Isaiah 45:16, 17.

BERLIN, Germany, Aug. 1.—The long anticipated death of President Paul von Beneckendorff und von Hindenburg of Germany occurred today, and has resulted in one of the most significant prophetic developments of many months, that of accession to unrestricted dictatorial power over that country of the most bitter enemy of the Jews in all the world.

Immediately on the death of the President, Mr. Hitler had himself declared his successor, and he promptly combined the office of President with that of Chancellor, which he has held for some time.

In connection with this development the following editorial will be of interest. It is taken from the Daily Jewish Courier of July 30, 1934.

"The Nazi press has intensified its attack on the Jews of America by accusing them of harming Germany in order to further the conquest of the world by Communism. Samuel Untermyer, according to the Deutsche Wochenschau, contributed $50,000 to the Communists. Bernard M. Baruch is described as the biggest individual contributor to the Soviet Government, and Professor Felix M. Frankfurter is credited with having elaborated plans for the conquest of America by Communism. . . .

"The attempts to identify Communism and Bolshevism with the Jews, to brand Communism as a distinctly Jewish movement, are not new. The White Russian reactionary anti-Semites have indulged in this sport ever since 1917, even though the facts failed to bear out the accusations made by the Russian pogromists and their dupes in various lands. The Nazis have inherited the Black Hundred anti-Semitism and have added to it the ideology of their own spurious race theorists and demented charlatans.

"The propaganda of the Nazis, by means of fabricating counterfeit facts, is destroying them, for it reveals to the world their utter stupidity, their base motives, their criminal irresponsibility, and their unparalleled incompetence."

Jews Protest Against Missions

"If this counsel or this work be of men, it will come to nought: but if it be of God, ye cannot overthrow it."—Acts 5:38, 39.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 27.—The editor of The Daily Jewish Courier in a recent issue of that paper decries the persistence of certain Christians in pressing the claims of their religion upon the Jews. "The supporters of Christian missions to Jews often disclaim any intention of giving affront to the Jews by their program ad platform. And it is quite possible that they do not realize the affront. But their failure to realize it does not make their conduct less objectionable. It only removes the suspicion of willful hypocrisy and deliberate malice. It reduces the extent of their guilt in that, it convicts them only of stupidity and not of viciousness. But it does not and cannot explain away the objectionable feature of their fanatical scheme and activity."

How much we are reminded of the same objection that was advanced against Jesus and His apostles two thousand years ago! One of the greatest and most loyal Jews of all time has said that the gospel of Christ, Christianity in its fullness, must ever be carried to "the Jew first." That they will continue as a race to reject its tender appeal throughout this age is evident from the Scriptures, but here and there a sincere searcher for truth will joyfully respond, and these few provide ample justification for continuing the work among them even in opposition to the protests of their leaders. We invite you to read this matter treated further on the Editorial Page.

Berean Department

ARLEN MARSH, EDITOR

The Poor Child

THE poor child is the one who is allowed to grow up in poverty of spirit. Financially he may never amount to more than the lowliest of the human race. When he dies, he may need to be buried in a county lot from the county morgue. But his poverty does not lie in that. His poverty lies in his unwillingness to do the tasks that are set before him.

The poor child is lazy. Only the tasks which he enjoys doing are those which he is willing to do. With a vast amount of complaining and coaxing he may occasionally be persuaded to do some of the things he does not enjoy; but such occasions are rare.

The poor child is not wanted by the Christ to perform His work. Yet it is a fact that many Christians are poor children. Confronted with tasks to perform in their church—teaching a class, singing in the choir, superintending a Berean class or Sunday school, playing the piano or organ—they set up a plaint that destroys the vigor of those who are willing to work and that brings an amazing amount of discomfort to those who necessarily surround them.

The spoiled high school or college student or adult is more obnoxious than a spoiled child. The poor child may be adequately punished; but the poor adolescent or adult is a bit too old to receive the beneficial penalties inflicted upon children.

Berean and church officers should be examples to their followers. Paul wrote that to Timothy. But not infrequently they are examples of all that is not to be desired.

Everyone, sometime in his life, must do something he does not like to do. One would not be altogether human if he did not, sometime, complain about his fate. But one would not be altogether Christian if he refused to perform a task that peculiarly was his simply because he did not like to do it.

Poverty of spirit is the hardest of all poverty to cure. Money can be given, but to energize an individual who presumably is setting an example before his fellows as to what a Christian should be—and actually is not—is almost impossible. Because such an individual normally is the type who will not acknowledge a mistake.

Leaders cannot lead properly, especially in the church, and be afflicted with poverty of spirit. When committee work, choir work, teaching, or other labor for the church, Sunday school, or Berean society is offered one whose ability fits him for it, he should receive it gladly and do his best in the accomplishment of it.

The man who wants always to have his own way is not a good leader. The leaders of history who have reached the point at which they have desired constantly to see their will performed have perished. That was the trouble with Nebuchadnezzar and Belshazzar.

Doubly obnoxious to his fellow workers is the man who, in one way or another, indicates to his fellows: Do what I like, sing what I like, teach what I like, preach what I like; or I'll work with you no longer. If the doing, the singing, the teaching, or the preaching is a matter of vital concern, there is reason in his attitude; but unless it is vital, there is no cause for that attitude at all.

Elders, deacons, superintendents, and teachers must be examples to their followers. But Berean leaders must fulfill their duty, too. If a meeting is scheduled for 6:30, they are setting no good example by appearing at 6:45 or 7:00. If a specific task is assigned them, they are showing themselves poor Christians if that task is not performed to the best of their ability.

No church, no Sunday school, no Berean organization can succeed when its leaders indicate their own poverty of spirit. The leaders must, as Jesus did, do the things they do not like to do as well as the things they like to do. Tennyson once wrote of "the graceful tact; the Christian art." It is unfortunate that so few are willing to conceive of Christian living in that guise.

Let the Lord Reign

"The Lord reigneth; let the people tremble: he sitteth between the cherubims; let the earth be moved."

AS TIME moves on, the cry for men to establish peace and safety in the earth rises ever more loudly. Through their own unaided efforts they who cry expect some day, by a method not yet discovered, to bring Eden into a new existence.

God has other ideas. His Word has declared for twenty centuries the ineffectiveness of man's rulership. His Word has declared for twenty centuries the only hope for salvation of mankind lies in His own beneficence.

Men, in the midst of their arrogant self-esteem, have come to regard God as a decrepit Deity no longer worthy of their consideration. They pray to Him to guide their lives with all the enthusiasm of a Congressman preaching economy on the floor of the Senate.

To repair the earth, society, the weather, and their governments, men look only to themselves. That God still reigns among the nations they deny most violently. A great First Cause possessed of a cosmic intelligence would have no interest in the affairs of men. So they say.

But God does reign, and sometime men will tremble. They will learn from the hardest of hard punishments the futility of their own endeavors—a lesson which the history they have so carefully written should have taught them.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall."

AMOS WARNS ISRAEL OF COMING DOOM

THE words of God through His prophet, Amos, are given to us again in our lesson for August 19. God never brought punishment on Israel, nor does He bring punishment on any nation today, without sending out warning ahead of time. The Israelites could have escaped the terrible destruction that followed their sins if they had only heeded these warnings.

God always picked out some one, prepared him, trained him, and then went with him to execute his duties. When we think over the history of Israel we can recall the names of many such messengers for God.

Moses is probably the first one you would name. Then there were Samuel and the judges that followed him, Elijah, and Elisha. And now we hear Amos talking, warning the wicked rulers in Israel as he did in our lesson of last Sunday.

Remember the surroundings in which Amos had grown up, the very opposite of the ones in which he found the wealthy men of the nation. He might have left home and forgotten all about God and living for the good of others. He could have looked upon the possessions of the rich with envious eyes and tried to acquire wealth at the expense of the poor as they did all around him.

But no! Amos lived the Golden Rule, although it was hundreds of years before Jesus' time. For God had given Israel a golden rule to follow, too, but they had forgotten all about it.

Look back in Deuteronomy 16:18-20, and many other places. See how God told the Israelites to do unto others as they would have others do unto them. And it was all written down for them to read and obey if they would.

Amos, true to his God, continued to preach to those wicked people, although they didn't like to hear it and tried to get him to stop. They were wasting each day as it went by, spending the riches they had stolen from others in their own selfish and wicked and riotous ways.

This roughly clad shepherd was saying, "The day is not far off when you will lose all your wealth. Your beautiful homes will be taken from you by an enemy that is stronger than you are. You yourselves will be taken prisoner and carried afar off."

"Why," they said to each other, "that can't ever happen to us. We have wealth in abundance. No one can attack our forts and destroy them. No nation on earth is as strong as we are. See how great we are!"

But let's see! Is anyone really strong who acquires his possessions by taking them away from another? Is anyone truly great who lives for himself alone and for what selfish pleasure he can get out of life? Is anyone really strong who closes his eyes to another's suffering, living in plenty himself?

Amos knew just what would happen to them, and fearlessly he told them all about it. Was he not a messenger of God sent for that very purpose? And it all turned out just as he said, even though they didn't believe it.

It took three years to capture the stronghold of Samaria, but it finally fell. Look in 2 Kings 17:5-18 and find out who the enemy was. You will also learn what was the first and greatest sin of Israel, after which followed all their wicked treatment of others.

"They served idols." That was the reason for the terrible things that happened to them. That was the cause of all their troubles.

But there is another side to this story. And we will learn all about it in next Sunday's lesson.

"Would you find a gift of worth and beauty,
Something at the Savior's feet to lay?
Seek it not in some great task or duty,
Find it here in service, day by day.

"In the simple task that lies the nearest,
We may find this blessing, every one;
In a lowly call that sounds the clearest,
We may hear the Father say, 'Well done'

"What we do for others will be measured
By the dear Lord Jesus as His own;
What we give to others will be treasured
As a gift before the shining throne.

"Deeds of loving kindness day by day,
Cheery words of friendship on our way;
Each shall find approval in His eyes,
Each shall be a gift our King will prize."

The Sunday School Lesson

FROM TRUTH SEEKERS' QUARTERLY

LESSON 8. — August 19, 1934

AMOS DENOUNCES SELF-INDULGENCE

Amos 6:1-7, 11-14

Devotional Reading: Isaiah 55:6-11

GOLDEN TEXT

Seek good, and not evil, that ye may live.—Amos 5:14.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic: Amos Denounces Self-Indulgence.

Aim: Intemperance and self-indulgence in any form leads to suffering and loss of mental and physical powers.

Basic Truth: "If any man defile the temple of God, him will God destroy; for the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are."—1 Cor. 3:17.

I. The Blindness of Pride. (Amos 6:1, 2.) The leaders of apostate Israel had accumulated vast wealth in which they took inordinate pride. Forgetful of the fact that "every good gift and every perfect gift is from above," like Nebuchadnezzar, they took all the credit to themselves. Blinded by their pride of possession, they overlooked the fact that other nations, equally wealthy and strong, had been overthrown, and no doubt enemies could be raised up against them by God, who would bring to them the fate suffered by these others. "Pride goeth before destruction, and an haughty spirit before a fall."—Prov. 16:18.

II. The Folly of Self-Indulgence. (Vv. 3-7.) Intemperance, idleness, self-indulgence, and luxury have always resulted in the loss of virility to both men and nations. Further, overindulgence in anything, however good it may be in itself, soon takes from its use the satisfaction that is found in it when it is used in moderation. Intemperance is not limited to the misuse of intoxicating liquors, but is shown in the craze for amusement, speed, and quick acquiring of wealth. One may even take an intemperate interest in music, literature, art, and other intellectual pursuits. When anything, however good it may be, is permitted to hold our attention to such an extent that it leads us away from the worship of God and the study of His Word, that thing becomes sinful intemperance.

III. The Results of Intemperance. (Vv. 11-14.) Intemperance brings its own punishment in most cases. "Who hath woe? who hath sorrow? who hath contentions? who hath babblings? who hath wounds without cause? who hath redness of eyes? They that tarry long at the wine; they that go to seek mixed wine."—Prov. 23:29, 30. One's standing in the community is quickly lowered, his reputation ruined, and his prospects of social and material advancement destroyed by any form of intemperance. Reputation is too easily lost, and too difficult to regain, to risk its loss for a few hours of sensual pleasure.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"Seek good, and not evil, that ye may live."—Amos 5:14.

Amos was a herdsman in Israel and was called directly by God to prophesy unto Israel. Time and again Israel turned from God to serve others and they wanted no prophecy uttered against them, but Amos did as the Lord said and told them of some of the things that would happen to them. He warned them of impending dangers and begged them to seek the good and not the evils as they had been doing.

It always pays to seek that which is good. The evils of self-indulgence always lead on a downward course. Drink and hilarious times lead toward destruction. As Amos told the Israelites to seek good that they might live, we, too, should do likewise that we may enter into eternal life.—L. A. R.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Worldliness

- doesn't pay;
- will end in destruction;
- is very deceptive;
- prevents transformation;
- is very alluring.

At Ease in Zion. The children of Israel were steeped in worldliness. Like their forebears, they wanted to be like and were like other nations, unmindful of coming judgment. "Folly is joy to him that is destitute of wisdom." This way might have seemed all right to them. But "there is a way which seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death" (Prov. 14:12). They were living in pleasure, hence were dead unto God. "But she that liveth in pleasure is dead while she liveth."—1 Tim. 5:6. All their affections were set on things on the earth, just opposite to what they should have been (Col. 3:2). All these things which happened unto Israel were our examples that we should not lust after the same things (1 Cor. 10:6).

Putting Off Judgment. They were putting off the evil day. This seems to be the practice of most people today. The day of the Lord is going to come as a thief in the night to this class of people, living in pleasure and nourishing their hearts—it will come as a day of slaughter (Jas. 5:5). The certainty of judgment should be always borne in mind (Heb. 2:2). "Every man shall receive his own reward according to his own labour."—1 Cor. 3:8. We must all bear our own sins (Gal. 6:5).—C. E. R.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULTS

Destruction Through Indulgence

When a Roman youth decided to enter the Roman army he would report for duty. Whether accepted or rejected he was always given one meal. This was referred to as "wage" and was the least compensation which he could receive. If he continued in service he received additional wages. Paul wrote to the Romans telling them that "the wages of sin is death." He here used the Roman term which designated the minimum wage of the soldier. This makes it evident then that death is the least, or minimum, wage that can be paid for sin.

When Israel sinned God allowed them to go into captivity until such time as they should repent. When Nineveh sank into sin God caused its overthrow. Sodom sank into immorality and received destruction. Babylon was captured during a drunken, immoral party. Thousands have experienced untold suffering, degradation, shame, and ignoble death as the added wages of sin.

Doctors and scientists are warning the people of our country that insanity and disease are increasing because of the indulgences of the people. Drunkenness is increasing, resulting in increased destruction of human life. The increased indulgence of our day will soon be paid in full (Jer. 25:32, 33).

Jesus said that "except those days should be shortened, there should no flesh be saved." However, He gave assurance that for the "elect's sake those days shall be shortened" (Matt. 24:22). For the sake of His followers Christ will come to end this condition before complete destruction comes upon the human race. "Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth."—H. A. S.

PRIMARY

Topic: Back We Go to Hear Amos.

Amos is still talking about Israel. Listen carefully and we'll hear what he's saying.

"Here they are, the chief or best among all the nations. Look at the other nations, try to compare them with Israel, and you will see Israel is greatest. But no, they are not, if you look at the wicked things they are doing."

Let's go quietly into some of their homes and see what they are doing that Amos says is very wicked.

What a wonderful place. Everything in this house is made of the finest material. They are eating the very best of food. Of course that doesn't seem so wicked, if they really work for it. But I wonder if they have; no one seems to be very busy here. But, see! they're drinking very much wine. We know what that means. Come, let's go back to Amos.

Amos talks on, "Yes, God will send a great nation in here to take these people. They will be very cruel to Israel. They won't have fine homes after that. They do not like to hear these things, but God has told me to tell them, so I must do so."

They try to get Amos to go away and not tell anything more, but Amos refuses.

—V. C. T.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CONFERENCE DATES

Illinois Bible School and Conference at Oregon,	July 31 to Aug. 12
General Conference at Oregon, Illinois,	July 31 to Aug. 12
Eastern Nebraska Conference at Omaha,	August 12 to 19
Virginia Bible School and Conference at Maurertown,	August 16 to 26
Nebraska Conference at Holbrook	August 19 to 26
Iowa Conference at Waterloo,	Aug. 21 to 26

MICHIGAN CONFERENCE

The annual meeting of the Michigan Conference convened on the old stamping ground at Dutton July 6, continuing to July 10.

Bros. S. J. Lindsay and Cecil Smead were the preaching brethren, and from beginning to end the meetings were a spiritual treat of unusual richness; and it, together with the royal entertainment, which only the people of Dutton are capable of, made the conference an outstanding success. It was the consensus of all that this was a conference of the old-fashioned type. The ranks of the Michigan Conference are being thinned by the dread reaper, but for all that the attendance was more than anticipated.

Officers elected for the ensuing year: William Hanson, President; Cecil Smead, 1 Vice President; Arthur Richardson, 2 Vice President; Bernice Slocum, Secretary; Nellie Blakely, Treasurer.

L. Bridgam, Retiring Secretary.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

Our week of special effort came to a climax and close with the rededication services on July 29, and the church was indeed inspired and happy over the results. Bro. Austin had given a splendid series of sermons on "Scaling the Heights," and much spiritual food had been presented.

Among the visible blessings which the church has received at this season is the addition of six new members. Those coming forward to the invitation were: Miss Evelyn Tower, Miss Dorothy Siple, Robert Barr, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Palmer, and Mrs. Marian Melville. The first three named are single young people with life's work largely before them. Mr. and Mrs. Palmer have been active Christian people for years, and now come putting their strength with ours in the cause we love. Mrs. Melville was received as an associate member nearly a year ago, not at that time ready to accept all the things for which we stand, but now she comes to be a full sister in Christ.

Other evidences of spiritual improvement were observed that day and each day since, and we trust that the coming weeks may show a steady and definite upward trend.

The Eaton family are on a motor trip to Minnesota, the old home of Sr. Eaton.

And when these lines appear the pastor and family expect to be on their vacation trip, a part of which will be spent at conference at Oregon.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

BLOOD RIVER, LOUISIANA

Due to the fact that there was a great deal of interest taken in the Berean class established in this district, the members of the class, with the help and encouragement of the leaders in Happy Woods and all the church members, built a log cabin church house and established a Sunday school on July 8, 1934.

The attendance has been real good. It has been increasing each Sunday.

The officers are as follows: Superintendent, Mr. Benard Lobell; Secretary, Mrs. Claiborne Lee; Treasurer, Mrs. A. M. Lobell.

We extend our gratitude to everyone that has helped out, and especially to Bro. M. W. Lyon, who first suggested to us to build a place to have church, Berean class, and Sunday school if we could establish one.

Mrs. Claiborne Lee, Secretary.

PUYALLUP, WASHINGTON

On Sunday, July 8, the Church of God members of Puyallup journeyed in autos over the summit of the Cascade Mountains, a distance of almost one hundred miles, to a beautiful park just beyond Lake Keetchetus, where they met with members from the Wenatchee and Cashmere churches. About sixty persons were present. The tables were spread with a bountiful repast in the shade of the fir trees of the forest, after which the tables were cleared and a song service enjoyed, then a discourse by the writer on present-day conditions and what they mean to the Christian.

Afterwards a social feast was enjoyed, which was as near an approach to the millennial rapture of the saints when they meet together in the resurrection morning as we are likely to experience in this life.

Among those present were Sr. Lucy Lapp and her daughter Ida, and her sons Charles and wife and Paul of Sunnyside, Wash.

This meeting together in the heart of the Cascade Mountains is an annual event, and is looked forward to with much pleasure each year by members of the different churches.

While we read of extreme heat and dryness over so much of the nation, here in the Northwest it has been a delightfully pleasant summer.

A. L. Corbaley.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Ira T. Ritenour; Frances McCrodon; Mary E. Allard (for another); Jesse B. Harrold; A. L. Corbaley (for others); Ella C. Boyer; E. L. Greene; Charles Stedman; J. R. Shepard; Mae Mercer (for others); Ida Vogel (for another); Jessie M. Shea (for others); Jennie Murrey; J. W. Grimsley; Ella M. Rose.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO N. B. I.

Diana Murphy	5.00
Dorothy Magaw (Special Indebtedness Fund)	25.00
Gertrude M. Logan	8.00
Mrs. C. Seely	6.00

CONTRIBUTORS TO DOLLAR-A-MONTH CLUB

Jessie M. Shea ($5); Mae Mick; Mr. and Mrs. Delos Andrew; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Netts ($5); Mr. and Mrs. M. Fetters; Virginia R. Kincheloe ($5); A. L. Corbaley ($6); Dorothy Magaw ($5); Lois Hunt.

MISSIONARY WORK

Under the above heading there appeared an article recently to the brotherhood asking for assistance in carrying the gospel to those in darkness, thus carrying out the Master's command. I am very happy for the fine Christian spirit of cooperation manifested by the response I have received. Beginning June 22 and closing July 1, a meeting was held near Glen Rose, Texas. There were no conversions, but a great interest was shown by all. Some requested that I return for another meeting this fall, which I promised to do, the Lord willing.

I am under promise to hold three more meetings in Texas, the first one to begin July 22, near Stanton, Texas. There are several more being planned. I note that those who have sent help to carry me to these meetings are those who are isolated. They realize how necessary it is that the gospel be preached, and how lonesome it is to live where it is not preached. It will fill your hearts with joy to read some of the letters I have received, and make you want to help me stay in the work of preaching the gospel so much the more as we see the coming of Christ drawing near.

A dear sister in Kansas said, "Dear Brother in Christ: I see by The Restitution Herald your call for help so you can go out and preach the gospel. . . . I am so anxious for the Lord to get the number He is calling for." The sister is right. In due time God sent His Son into the world (Gal. 4:4). In due time the call for the church will close. In the meantime it is for you and me to preach the gospel. That is God's way of calling and preparing His church. Will you stand faithfully behind this effort? I cannot make the appeal too strong. Jesus begs you to occupy till He comes, and that means to keep the work going.

A dear brother in Texas says in part, "Bro. Drinkard, we saw your good letter in The Herald a while back, and in the last paper your appeal for help to preach the gospel. May God help you is our prayer. There seems to be very little we can do here, isolated from any of like precious faith." This brother sends help to send the gospel to others. Will others help to send the gospel to the people in his community? Here is an opportunity, brethren.

Another dear brother in Texas writes, "Dear Bro. Drinkard: After reading your appeal in The Restitution Herald, I wish to extend a bit of cooperation and heartiest congratulations. I truly hope the members of Texas will awake to your efforts and will sufficiently respond that you may be able to meet each and every call for meetings. The Master's work stands greatly in need in our state, and nothing would afford me more real satisfaction than to see it move forward." This brother is a farmer, and farmers in Texas are facing serious times. Plans are under way for a real gospel meeting in his community, near San Antonio, Texas. The brother surely speaks a great fact when he says, "The Master's work stands greatly in need in our state." It is a great missionary field, needing the gospel hope.

Just listen in as I read these words from a sister in Nebraska who says, "Dear Bro. Drinkard: I am sending you such a tiny mite I am ashamed to send it, but my income is so small I have to make a little go as far as possible. I don't know if you remember me, but I remember you and the good inspiring sermons I have heard you preach." I have not forgotten this dear sister and her husband who stood behind me in the years gone by while laboring with the Nebraska brethren. Her husband is now sleeping the sleep of death, and she is all alone, and out of her means she gives, but the greatest gift that she gave was the spirit of sacrifice. May God bless her abundantly.

BETWEEN YOU AND ME—

Hear this soul-inspiring, uplifting letter from another sister who is living in Texas: "Dear Bro. Drinkard: I notice in The Restitution Herald your appeal for help in sending the gospel to those in darkness. Well, I want to help all I can. It is not much I can do, as we are in one of the worst drouths in the history of this country. But I think the gospel message ought to be sent regardless of anything to those who will receive it, for I think the coming of Christ is at hand, and we ought to do all we can to help and pray that much good will be done." Did you get the force of her words: "I think the gospel message ought to be sent regardless of anything"? May these words inspire your hearts to do a greater work for the coming Lord, who promises you salvation for your faithfulness.

Write me at the address below, and if I am not at home it will reach me safely. May God bless you to see the necessity of standing behind gospel effort.

T. A. Drinkard,
Handley, Texas.

ALICE LEAH DRACUP

Alice Leah Breckenridge was born in Ontario, Canada, on November 17, 1889, where she lived until 1904, when she came with her parents to reside in Tacoma, Wash. She was married July 28, 1919, to Christopher Dracup. On January 14, 1934, she united with the Church of God, being baptized by the writer in a bath tub, as her condition did not permit her leaving the home for that purpose. She died July 1, at 4:53 p. m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Pace in Tacoma.

She leaves to mourn her decease a father, C. P. Breckenridge of Tacoma; two brothers, Harry of Oakland, Calif., and Charles of Tacoma; one sister, Grace Hoganson, who now resides near Graham, Wash.

She was laid to rest in the beautiful Mountain View Cemetery, near South Tacoma. She was strong in the hope of the soon coming of Jesus to give eternal life to His sleeping saints. The funeral was held in the Mellinger Undertaking Parlors in Tacoma.

Although she suffered intense pain from that dread disease, internal cancer, yet she read her Bible through twice during her illness.

Words of comfort were spoken by the writer, calling the attention of the hearers to the certainty of death and the necessity of being prepared for the soon coming of the Lord from heaven.

A. L. Corbaley.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by
National Bible Institution
Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. Sample copy, Free.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

Sunday afternoon Austin Railton, son of Bro. and Sr. John Railton, Rockford, Ill., having made the good confession, was baptized into the one name by his grandfather, Bro. F. L. Austin. The service took place in Rock River, a short distance north of Oregon. We pray for a long and useful life of service for our young brother.

Attendance and interest continue at high tide at the General Conference and Bible School. Bro. S. J. Lindsay's class on first principles is attracting the largest attendance, running from 55 to nearly 80 from time to time. Other classes, however, are arousing much attention. Bro. C. E. Randall's lessons on "The Eternal Purpose of God," which he teaches with the use of a chart, is deeply appreciated. Bro. Austin's lessons, treating largely of our relation to God, are also receiving much favorable comment. You who are unable to be here are losing much.

"I am much pleased with your quarterly," writes Mr. L. W. Barber, South Bend, Ind., as he sends in his renewal for the next two years. Mr. Barber is one of many who express approval of the Sunday school lesson commentary we are putting out. Send us the name of a Sunday school teacher who does not get the Truth Seekers' Quarterly and we will be glad to send him or her a sample copy.

Among the recent arrivals at the General Conference are Bro. and Sr. Grover Gordon of Holbrook, Neb. After the conference they will drive on to Virginia where Bro. Gordon is to assist in the state conference and Bible school at Maurertown.

A brief report from Bro. J. W. Williams of Iowa states that he is visiting at his old home in Kansas where he began his teaching experience. On the last Sunday in July he preached in the Methodist church in Attica, Kan., on "Israel's Messianic Hope," and on the following day a man 72 years of age was baptized. It is so dry in that district that they were obliged to drive 20 miles to find a place for the baptism.

Sr. Bettie Micheals, writing from her home in Nevada, Mo., renewing her subscription to The Herald, says, "I often think a single copy of the paper is worth 50 cents for the information it contains." Sr. Michaels regrets her inability to attend the General Conference, a regret which we share with her.

You can still get The Herald sent to any address for fifteen weeks for fifty cents. This would bring the complete reports of the various major conferences and Bible schools. Why not send in a list of new names?

Fifteen Weeks for Fifty Cents—

Simply fill in this blank and return it to us accompanied by 50 cents for each one to whom you wish THE RESTITUTION HERALD sent for the next fifteen weeks and we will provide them with splendid inspirational reading, prophetic information, and comforting assurances of the Children of God for the summer's reading.

GENTLEMEN:

Please send THE RESTITUTION HERALD to each of the following for 15 weeks. I inclose 50 cents for each subscription.

Sender's Name

Address

New subscriber for 15 weeks:

Name

St. and No.

City State

Additional names may be submitted on another sheet.

RELIGIOUS POTPOURRI

By J. G. Haupt

GOD declares Himself to be the only Jehovah, the only God. There was only one Jehovah throughout the Bible, the Old and the New Testaments. After the temptation of Adam and Eve, God declared that the seed of woman would bruise the head of the serpent, sin. The woman was Mary, seed of Abraham, of Ruth, of Jesse, of David. In the immaculate, the spiritual, the miraculous conception of Mary in Nazareth before she left for Bethlehem to be assessed, we have the announcement that the Messiah-Son should be the only begotten Son of God, begotten by the Holy Pneuma, the Holy Breath of God, for God breathed upon Mary His Holy Breath, whereby she became the mother of God's Holy Son. In the Epistles we have repeated a number of times the expression, "Grace be to you from God the Father and his Son Jesus Christ." Jesus was not God but the Son of God. Jesus says that the "Father is greater than I." The Two had the same sentiments, the same plans; but They were not the same person, God did not die on the cross, was not buried in Joseph's tomb, was not resurrected after three days.

Jesus gathered His disciples about Him; He inquired of them what the people round about said Him to be. The replies indicated only great names. He then inquired what they said Him to be. Peter answered that He was the Messiah, the Christ, the Son of the living God. Jesus answered that upon this foundation, this rock, He would build His church.

This church was organized on the day of Pentecost. The plan of God was that the church should be God's church, the church of God. As the Messiah was to be the Head of the church, its chief Corner Stone, all baptism was to be in the name of the Christ. We have six examples in illustration of this baptism. One is in Galatians, which says that they who have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ. They have put Him on as a protecting shield, as a cloak that shields from all evil. Another example is in Romans. Four passages in the Acts state that baptism was into Christ or into His name.

About 1400 A. D. somebody added his own notions. It seems that a student monk in one of the monasteries had apprentice ideas of his own. He knew that God was great, the Messiah was also great, as no one could come to the Father except through Him. He found that a ghost had been considered the same as the Pneuma or Breath of God. In Matthew 28:19 this falsifier stated that baptism was to be in the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost. A similar entry was made in the fifth chapter of the first epistle of John. The Matthew additions were evidently written in the uncial style of Greek, the same as used in the original manuscripts of the New Testament. In John the cursive or new Greek was used. This left the fraud to be very easily found in John, though only discoverable in Matthew by the substance of the additions.

Of the fine scholars of the last century that had charge of the revision of the Authorized Translation, both the British Committee and the American Committee found that John said that three things pertained to one individual on the earth, the pneuma or breath, rendered "spirit," the water, and the blood. These represented the conception, the baptism, and the crucifixion of Jesus. The revisers were obliged to omit the remainder of the fraud's words, for they were not the Apostle's words. The student will be very glad to secure the revised New Testament and to make comparisons. Strong words are uttered by the inspired Apostle Paul in Galatians when he says if any man preach any other gospel than that preached by inspiration let him be accursed, let him be anathema, according to the Revised.

DEATH

HOW some people do exalt death! how they laud the benefits then to be conferred, the glories then to be experienced! To hear them talk, or to read what they have written, one would think death to be man's best friend, his liberator and promoter. And apparently this is, to some extent, what they believe, or try to believe. Yet when this lauded liberator stops at their door, when the liberation so attainable comes to their own home, things seem to speak a different story. In view of what they are supposed to believe, they certainly act strangely and inconsistently, in utter disagreement with what they so dogmatically profess to believe. For they usually shrink away from death's much praised benefits. The promotion to glory it supposedly imparts seems not to look so glorious. As much, e. g., as they love their children, or seem so to do, their love does not seem to bear the test. They do not love them enough to want them glorified—at least, not immediately, not by death. So when the hand of death is laid upon some dear friend, they do not seem exactly to rejoice. And yet, why not? If death is truly the great liberator instead of the grim reaper, if he it is who ushers their loved ones to immediate glory, if through him the blessings of the future world are opened to them and to us, why not hail him gladly? Do we not love our friends, our relatives, sufficiently to wish them good—immediate good? It seems not.

The fact is, death is just what the Bible makes it to be, an enemy (1 Cor. 15:26). It is dark and soul-shadowing. It stills the warm impulses of life, puts an end to all life's activities until the resurrection morn. For it is a state of unconsciousness, where there is "no knowledge nor wisdom"; where indeed "the dead know not any thing" (Eccl. 9:5, 10). For when one dies, right then, "in that very day, his thoughts perish" (Psa. 146:4). So an awakening is necessary. And in God's good time, such an awakening will come; as it is written: "Thy dead men shall live, together with my dead body shall they arise. Awake and sing, ye that dwell in dust: for thy dew is as the dew of herbs, and the earth shall cast out the dead."—Isa. 26:19.

—G. L. Young in The World's Crisis.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 23

OREGON, ILLINOIS, AUGUST 14, 1934

NUMBER 46

BLESSINGS AT CONFERENCE

THOSE of us who were so fortunate as to be able to attend General and Illinois Conference and Bible School at Oregon felt most amply repaid for any sacrifice it might have been necessary to make to do so. Every day was filled with special blessings by way of lessons in class and exchange of fellowship with brothers and sisters from North, South, East, and West.

As we write these lines there come to mind some of the high lights of our ten-day feast, such as the lessons on fundamental truths by Bro. S. J. Lindsay, Bro. M. W. Lyon's voice so beautifully expressed in song, Bro. Austin's exhortation to deeper devotion, Bro. Marsh's welcome extended to every visitor from the tiniest tot to the most aged soldier of the cross. Many more features and names we would like to mention, but space forbids. Each of you as you journeyed homeward, we know, felt strengthened, comforted, and reassured by some particular blessing you received. And not the least of these were the cooling showers sent by the heavenly Father of us all.

The first Sunday, August 5, found Bro. Austin conducting the worship hour at 11:00 a. m. In his characteristic way he led us along the path of reverence and gratitude toward God. Taking for his text the words of our Lord as He taught His disciples to pray, Bro. Austin portrayed to us the many aspects in which our God appears to us, His creatures.

Drawing the similitude of an earthly father in his love and care for his children, he said, "God is our heavenly Father, and our Savior desires us to look to Him, even as He did, as to a real Father. 'Hallowed be thy name,' He taught us to pray. Hallowed in our conduct in such a way that every act will extol His name. We cannot do that without growing as in no other way." Every action of every day bringing honor to Him means much in developing us in the paths of worship.

Taking the next utterance of our Savior in that beautiful prayer, the speaker showed us the importance of a present application of its meaning. "Let Thy rule and authority take hold of me today," he said. "Guide me and lead me in Thine own way, my Father. Be my King today." And this interpretation, rather than detracting from the future glory of His kingdom, enhances its value.

In the following observations Sr. Mary A. Gesin, former Associate Editor of this paper, reviews appreciatively her impressions of the General Conference and the Illinois Bible School. Sr. Gesin, who no longer lives in Oregon, was unable to be present at all the services and consequently could not report several splendid sermons and Bible studies which were given by various speakers. The Editor joins Sr. Gesin in her regret at these unavoidable omissions.

"If we really pray God to rule over our lives, we cannot possibly do anything contrary to His will. Be seeking the Father's will," he admonished us. "Be knocking; be asking. For if we seek His way, do you tell me we shall not find it?"

In interpreting for us the meaning of the words, "Thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven," the speaker showed us that God's will ever leads upward to the heights, never downward. It leads farther and farther along the path of rich blessings to the one who will follow it. And when the descending Christ catches away His faithful, they who have followed God's will and way are the ones who will be fashioned like unto Christ's own glorious body.

The afternoon service, despite the heat, found a large audience present to hear Bro. Lindsay expound God's Word, taking for his theme, "Fire As a means of Punishing or Refining." The attributes of our God were portrayed as those of a loving Father, a considerate Creator, and an infinite God, following closely the theme given by Bro. Austin in the morning, though in a quite different channel.

Perhaps the most arresting and valuable thought obtained was that we become like the God we worship. And if we consider God a cruel tyrant on his throne either we come to hate such a God or we grow to be like our conception of Him. Thus Bro. Lindsay interpreted the words, "As he is, so are we in this world," found in 1 John 4.

Taking up a few of the many texts of Scripture indicating punishment the speaker clearly showed that they are not the threats of an angry or a jealous God. They are warnings of a kind and considerate Father, who has established laws for our good, which, if broken, will cause the transgressors to feel their po- (Please turn to Page Eight)

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879.

G. Eldred Marsh, Editor

Two Dollars per Year

Paul C. Johnson, Associate Editor

"The Lord will give grace and glory: no good thing will he withhold from them that walk uprightly."—Psalm 84:11.

THE EDITOR'S PRAYER

WITH overflowing gratitude, our Father, we would thank Thee for the spiritually uplifting gathering through which we have been led by Thy hand. For the profound lessons in the deep things of God, for the more simple ones treating of our relations to each other, for the invigorating sermons, for the inspiring music, and for the deepened sense of fellowship with Thee and with Thy people which we have experienced, we glorify Thy holy name. Take under Thy protecting care those who are now returning to their widely scattered homes. Continue to lead us all in extended paths of truth, of righteousness, and of usefulness we pray, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

THE VISION OF JESUS

THE story is told of an Indian sage who cut a seed in halves and, showing it to his small son, inquired: "What do you see, my son?" "A seed," the boy replied. "But," continued the father, "what do you see in it?" "I see a small black speck." "Ah," declared the sage, "where you see nothing but a small black speck I see a great tree."

This little story suggests the secret of Jesus' teaching. Where others could see in a child, a man, or a happening nothing of importance, our blessed Lord could see much that was worthy of profoundest study.

Although He knew that the fulfillment of God's plans for world regeneration and the establishment of His kingdom throughout the earth required a long period of time, nevertheless He frequently used the present tense when applying illustrations to impress the gospel truth upon His hearers. "The kingdom of heaven is like —" was the general preface to His kingdom parables. He never said, "The kingdom of heaven shall be like —."

Calling a little child to Him on one occasion He took him in His arms and said, "Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not: for of such is the kingdom of God." The disciples who protested the action of the mothers in bringing their children to Jesus saw nothing in those tiny tots but troublesome interrupters of the Master's ministry. But Jesus was able to see in each one a vision of the kingdom as it is to be when it comes.

He saw in the innocent trustfulness of children the changeless faith that will be the experience of every man who gains an entrance into the kingdom and whose nature is changed from mortality to immortality and whose heart is transformed simultaneously from a condition of recurring doubt to a state of ceaseless confidence in God.

To Jesus the future kingdom was so real, its coming so certain, that it appeared before Him with the clarity and precision of present reality. He saw it in its glorious finished state, just as it would be when fully established, and He spoke of it as though it were already come to pass, even as God "calleth those things which be not as though they were."

This is the highest development of the faith that "is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen." Our Lord suggested this sort of assurance when He taught His disciples how to pray. "What things soever ye desire, when ye pray, believe that ye receive them, and ye shall have them."

How comforting it would be if we, too, could be so fully impressed with the certainty of the coming of the Lord, the resurrection of the dead, and life everlasting in the eternal kingdom of our God that these matters of promise and of hope would become as present to our hearts as are the passing events of today!

And why should we not look upon the promises of God in just that way? Is there any doubt that God will fulfill His Word in every detail? Just as surely as He has kept the "Rainbow Covenant" He made with Noah (Gen. 9: 8-17), just as surely as He has remembered His promise to Abraham (Gen. 12:3), just that surely also will He bring to pass the restitution age with all its splendid realities!

As we bow our heads in the presence of our believing dead, let us not think of them as they lie cold and still before us, but as we shall see them again in deathless vitality when Jesus comes! As we gaze upon the world around us, may we overlook the sordidness, the crime, the tumult, and the strife and listen with ears attuned to the perceptions of faith to the inspiring song of the redeemed as it shall echo through the hills of earth and resound from heaven's vaulted canopy: "Thou art worthy to take the book, and to open the seals thereof: for thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by thy blood out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation; and hast made us unto our God kings and priests: and we shall reign on the earth."

"The Wilderness of the People"

By Norman John MacLeod

"HISTORY repeats itself" is an old adage that cannot possibly be true: history cannot repeat itself. That a set of facts could be exactly duplicated in the course of history is absolutely absurd on the very face of it.

If history did repeat itself man would be able to tell exactly, without divine aid, what the future held in store, and would know how to deport himself in the new situation. On the other hand, however, similar causes produce similar results. Nothing is more apparent in the course of history than the relation of cause and effect. To discover these causes, however, for many events is not an easy thing to do. But in the divine Word we find that very thing illustrated by the prophets: righteousness brings rewards; sin brings calamity. How often that is the burden of the prophets from Moses to Christ! How like an ever-repeated refrain comes the promise of the curse and the blessing as presented by Moses in the book of Deuteronomy! Furthermore, the prophets used historical example to illustrate the things that would come. And from example turned to similitude.

One of the most striking examples of historical similitude used to develop a prophecy which has a world of thought in it is that drawn in the twentieth chapter of Ezekiel. The phases of the deliverance from Egypt were elaborated to the rebellious house of Israel. Before their eyes the vitriolic Prophet shows them—even as did the martyr Stephen—that their history has been one of continual rebellion. They forsook God in Egypt; they rebelled against Him in the wilderness of Arabia; they turned aside from God's ways in the Land of Promise to which God led them by the hand of Moses and Joshua. Hence, they are scattered into the entire world. How vividly the Prophet presents his picture of rebellion and waywardness! How completely he convicts the children of Israel of their sins! How overwhelming he is in his citation of historical fact that cannot be disputed! When God for His holy name's sake brought the rebellious people from the land of Egypt through the Red Sea into the wilderness and miraculously fed and watched over them, then the rebels were purged out from among them. The course of the history of that great migration from Egypt to Canaan is one constant reiteration of the fact that they were a rebellious house. When they were about to come into the Land of Promise they refused to believe, in spite of all past miracles, that God could bring them into the land. They wept all night in anguish of fear.

Do we, like them, weep in anguish of fear that the Lord will not be able to bring us into the Land of Promise? Do

"But with whom was he grieved forty years? was it not with them that had sinned, whose carcasses fell in the wilderness?"—Heb. 3:17.
"And I will bring you into the wilderness of the people, and there will I plead with you face to face."—Ezek. 20:35.

we worry and fret that God will not be able to perform His promises to us? Oh, how often, through worry, we fall short of the comfort, the blessed peace that should be ours! Worry was one of the greatest sins of Israel.

Worry that they would starve in the desert; worry that they would not have water; worry that the people of the land were too large in stature, that God could not conquer them with His mighty power! Worry is lack of faith in God; worry is lack of love for God; worry is lack of hope in His promises. "Perfect love casteth out fear."—1 John 4:18.

When the house of Israel rebelled at Kadesh-barnea they were turned back into the wilderness and there they all perished save Caleb and Joshua. They had come out of Egypt. They were on the way to Canaan. They rebelled. They were turned into the wilderness for forty years. The rebels perished without coming into the land. Those are the historical facts. From those facts Ezekiel draws his historical parallel in one of the grandest of the prophecies.

After the Jews should be scattered into all the nations of the world the Lord would gather them back again out of those nations with great fury and "with a stretched out arm." That does not sound like a peaceful process: God's pleasure is not with the house of Israel. Then Ezekiel under inspiration makes the following pictorially vivid statement: "And I will bring you out from the people, and will gather you out of the countries wherein ye are scattered, with a mighty hand, and with a stretched out arm, and with fury poured out. And I will bring you into the wilderness of the people, and there will I plead with you face to face. Like as I pleaded with your fathers in the wilderness of the land of Egypt, so will I plead with you, saith the Lord God."—Ezek. 20:34-36. What a tremendous summary of historical events written many centuries beforehand! How pressed full of facts is that short passage! Let us follow the history of it as it has been unfolded for us in the few years since the meeting of the first Zionist Congress.

Even before the Zionist Movement received its official sanction at the first Zionist Congress there had been an attempt to repatriate Jews to Palestine. They purchased land from the "unspeakable" Turk on which to settle some of the oppressed Jews of Eastern Europe. The Turks drove a hard bargain, and then defrauded the Jews of their purchased land. At the close of the World War the Jews found that in many parts of the world they were not allowed to stay in their former lands, but they were not allowed to go to Palestine. Their lives "hung in terror" all

Please turn to Back Page

The Death of Optimism

By Arlen Marsh

FEW things are more deadly than an optimism without a basis. Rose-colored glasses have never given a safe view of any important matter. To declare everything is going to be all right when everything is going to be all wrong and when all the indications are that everything is going to be all wrong is neither intelligent nor safe. Plans to be successful, lives that are successful, must be laid upon conditions as they are, not upon conditions as they are desired.

If the Bible teaches definitely that man is mortal, that the grave is his final resting place, it accomplishes no good end to portray the joys of the departed as they gambol about the streets of heaven. If the Bible teaches that wars are to increase, that crime is to be augmented, that the world is to grow worse and worse, then there is no cause for declaring the future will be filled with peace, contentment, and prosperity.

The church in general is excessively optimistic. Faced with the record of history, it insists upon its own ability to educate the world into peace and holiness, in spite of the fact that that record which it faces points to the very opposite condition in the affairs of men. Here and there a voice cries in the wilderness, but, like John the Baptist, such a voice is almost alone in its preachment of the truths laid down long since by the Word of God.

The statesmen of the world hold no brief with the optimism of the church. Diplomacy has failed. The statesmen know it. Education has failed. The statesmen know that, too. And the statesmen are willing to admit it. They describe a world filled with the constant threat of war, a world torn in the death pangs of a moribund civilization.

There is no cause for the church to be so optimistic. That war is not desirable is a proposition already so well established that mention of it is useless repetition. But that war will exist as long as hatred, jealousy, greed, and the desire for self-defense find place within the list of human emotions is also well established. And hatred, jealousy, greed, and the desire for self-defense—the need for self-defense—will never be eradicated by a system of education, theory, or law.

The armaments of the world Powers are greater than they have ever been in history. No nation in the memory of man, if that memory be counted as extending to the dawn of written records, has assembled such a mighty army as Russia now can mobilize. The race for naval supremacy never has been run so swiftly nor with so much persistence.

These things come as no surprise to the informed Christian. Zechariah, five centuries before the birth of the Messiah, predicted the coming of a war more terrible than any cataclysm of any nature that ever had been visited upon the earth with the single exception of the flood.

“For I will,” wrote Zechariah, quoting God, “gather all nations against Jerusalem to battle; and the city shall be taken, and the houses rifled, and the women ravished; and half of the city shall go forth into captivity, and the residue of the people shall not be cut off from the city.”

No stretch of the imagination could place the events herein narrated in a spiritual sense. God does not ravish women; God does not rifle houses. Men alone do things like these. The description is that of an actual armed conflict.

“Then,” continued Zechariah, “shall the Lord go forth, and fight against those nations, as when he fought in the day of battle. And his feet shall stand in that day upon the mount of Olives, which is before Jerusalem on the east, and the mount of Olives shall cleave in the midst thereof toward the east and toward the west, and there shall be a very great valley; and half of the mountain shall remove toward the north, and half of it toward the south.”

These latter events are to occur following the mighty struggle to take place in Jerusalem. “Then”—at the time during which or following which the houses have been rifled and the women ravished and the city taken into captivity—God will defend His people. There is no guarantee here or elsewhere that Jerusalem will be defended by Jehovah until it has been sufficiently punished by war and pestilence for its sins. The battle described is not a battle between God and the forces of evil; it is a war fought between men and men. God only cuts it short.

This combination of verses, furthermore, provides ample evidence that at the time of the Christ's return from heaven the world will be in the midst of war. The penalties inflicted on the warring districts by the Messiah will cause men to flee vainly for protection to the mountains; but it will not be until after the humanly controlled war has been in progress for some time that the return of Jesus will send an awful fear into the minds of men.

Optimism, therefore, in regard to the probability of peace on earth is as empty as a politician's pre-election promises. The Bible has declared definitely in a number of Old and New Testament books that wars are to increase in number and intensity until they are to culminate in the mighty battle about Jerusalem that popularly is known as the battle of Armageddon, which geographically is the Valley of Jehoshaphat.

To preach that war is to be abolished by human agencies is to heap ridicule upon the church. Every attempt of men to evolve some permanent means for arbitration among nations has failed; war always has come despite it. In view of the current condition of world affairs and in view of the obvious predictions of the Bible, pessimism is positively necessary if the outlook on the future is to be kept accurate.

Building for Eternity

By Paul M. Hatch

THE immensity of the meaning of building for eternity would immediately confound our reason or ability to apply anything that is built in illustration thereto.

Building for eternity conveys to our mind first a thought of constructing carefully, diligently, completely, enduringly. Words in themselves do not always convey the thought properly that is in mind. So it is with such a subject as this. On the other hand, illustration in comparison will bring to mind a thought that approaches it sufficiently to comprehend properly.

Let us, then, take illustration of the most enduring thing in building constructed by man. The ancient Greeks, Egyptians, and Romans were careful and thorough builders of temples and monuments in honor and devotion to their idols and philosophies. Many of those temples and monuments are to be seen in Athens, Rome, and the Near East today in a fair state of preservation. Also, some of their philosophies are still incorporated in religious thought today. Both these, however, are crumbling gradually away. They might be called the most enduring things that mankind has built; but they are far from being eternal things of endurance. Coming down to the present, the differentiation between these is more marked, where things are not nearly so well planned; materials are not nearly so well prepared nor put to the test. Buildings do not stand the wear and tear of strain or stress caused by the elements. These are temporary, not approaching even age-lasting endurance.

At about the time of the establishment of the ancient monuments a faith was being founded whereon man could build his life on an eternal foundation of assurance, integrity, and promise made by the Lord Jehovah, the One whose word was immutable, One who could not lie, One whose covenants could not be broken. This foundation and corner stone are mentioned in promise in the book of the Prophet Isaiah (28:16). "Therefore thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I lay in Zion for a foundation a stone, a tried stone, a precious corner stone, a sure foundation: he that believeth shall not make haste." Observing the language here used, all should be impressed with the emphatic and forceful way it is presented. A mere foundation stone? Oh, no; a tried stone! a precious corner stone! a sure foundation!

Peter in his first epistle assures us that the foundation and corner stone were Jesus the Christ. Faith in Him was the foundation of the eternal building that all men who had faith in Him were to build upon (1 Peter 2:3-8).

Paul in his epistle to the Corinthian brethren mentioned the fact of his being a master builder of the church and layer of this foundation faith-truth, Jesus Christ, the corner stone of God's foundation. Paul speaks to them as carnal, as babes that were not able to partake of strong spiritual food. He urged them to build upon the foundation of truth he as a master builder had laid. He went further to warn them to select works worthy of the precious foundation on which they were to build. In the event they built, the building would be tried by fire. That fire would test the eternity of its nature as consists of work, and the man would be rewarded accordingly. If it proved to be gold, silver, or precious stone, it would endure to a great reward; but if it proved to be wood, hay, or stubble, it would not endure the fire test and would be burned up. The man himself, however, would be saved, but as by fire (1 Cor. 3).

Some one will say, though, that we are not saved by works and cite to prove such Ephesians 2:8 and 9, which reads, "For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God: not of works, lest any man should boast." Here the subject is altogether a matter of salvation, while the Apostle in the Corinthian letter is speaking of rewards. Every man shall be rewarded as his works shall be. Faith, however, is of prime importance in the consideration, for our works have to be built upon the foundation stone, which is faith. Faith was embodied in Jesus Christ, who was set in place by the eternal God as the corner stone. That corner stone being an eternal thing, the study of the life, character, work, integrity, hope, faith, and love of our Lord and Master Jesus Christ is of vast importance, for in them is contained an eternal fabric that can be woven into our very lives, so that we can build strongly, firmly, confidently.

The more we study Him, the more our faith will increase. An increase of faith always does or should always produce work, for the man of faith is a working man. James, the Apostle, considers the subject by saying, "Yea, a man may say, Thou hast faith, and I have works: shew me thy faith without thy works, and I will shew thee my faith by my works."—James 2:18. There cannot be any separation of works and faith, for a non-working faith is of no use to anyone. On the other hand, just mere works without faith have no enduring nor eternal principle in them. The two are very closely interwoven when we consider them in their proper place of building upon the foundation that was laid.

A major part of the faith to build upon was in the promises that were made by God unto Abraham, for His promises were of everlasting or eternal scope. Everlasting possession of the land; everlasting God and covenant maker; everlasting blessing him and his seed and those who bless Abraham and his seed; therefore, everlasting life and living to the ones that are included. Other promises concern the everlasting kingdom and everlasting administration of that kingdom (Dan. 2:44; 7:13, 14, 27). (over)

Eternal life or salvation will result from faith.

Eternal reward will result from faith-work.

Combining salvation and reward results in everlasting life of immortal nature and eternal reward of rulership and kingdom administration.

Therefore, search out the great Faith-Stone, build carefully, build diligently, build selectively of faith-work upon it, and thou shall be as those that Paul so beautifully describes to the Ephesian brethren in Ephesians 2:19-22. "Now therefore ye are no more strangers and foreigners, but fellowcitizens with the saints, and of the household of God; and are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone; in whom all the building fitly framed together groweth unto an holy temple in the Lord: in whom ye also are builded together for an habitation of God through the Spirit."

The Great Shaking

By Mrs. H. H. Kent

THE revelation of Jesus Christ to John while he was on the Isle of Patmos is highly symbolic. This book of the Bible was not meant for the ungodly to understand, but, as Revelation 1:1 says, it was given to John to "shew unto his servants." It requires the Holy Spirit, which the ungodly know nothing about, to reveal it to the individual. Christ told His disciples that it was given to them to know the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven (Matt. 13:11), but to them (speaking of those who follow Him because of the loaves and fishes) it is not given.

Many seemingly good people, even now, at the end of the Gospel Age, think it is not necessary nor wise to study this book. But as we read the third verse of the first chapter of Revelation, we learn that a blessing comes to those (and it excludes no one who meets the conditions) who read, hear, and "keep those things which are written therein: for the time is at hand"; which means that it has been unsealed since John wrote it. However, it seems as if the times were such that it would have been hard for the ordinary person to have understood the full meaning until the visions would be understood and revealed, and much of the understanding of this book has come through the fulfillment of prophecy. And it has become more possible through the increase of knowledge (Dan. 12:4), which is one sure sign of the end of the Gospel Age. By comparing John's vision with Christ's prophecies and those of the apostles, together with the Old Testament prophecies, we readily connect their meaning as we watch the signs of our times.

In Isaiah 42:9 we read, "Behold, the former things are come to pass, and new things do I declare: before they spring forth I tell you of them." So here is God's promise to reveal (to those willing to receive) the truths of this book, and also the prophetic events, as God sees the need of doing so. But the majority have always rejected the deeper things of God because of their selfish natures as well as the fact that it takes courage and energy to study and live them. Promises had been given in prophecy that the mysteries of the kingdom would be revealed to the watching, waiting servants; at least enough so that they would be ready and watching for Christ's return. For Revelation 3:3 says that if they were not watching, they would not know the hour or the approximate time of Christ's return.

Christendom in general, which teaches so many errors, does not see the need of preaching and teaching the truth in regard to Christ's return as King and the coming judgment upon all unrighteousness; so it seems as if most Christians are not warning the people of the coming wrath which seems to be approaching rapidly. This wrath comes from above (Rom. 1:18), and it is sent as a snare to all those who are not watching but are engaged in worldly cares and amusements to the extent that they fail to feed their souls. Read Luke 21:34-36. The eye of faith has seen the storm coming for some time, and it also sees that world conditions are beyond the power of human ingenuity to solve, for there are great troubles and unsolved difficulties and problems everywhere, until the whole world is disturbed. The world received a great shaking during the World War and has never returned to normal.

In Hebrews 12:26, 27 we read, "Once more, I shake not the earth only, but also heaven. . . . Yet once more, signifieth the removing of those things that are shaken, . . . that those things which cannot be shaken may remain." Haggai tells us that there is to be a shaking that will include "heaven . . . earth . . . sea . . . dry land . . . and all nations."

Not many people like to be told that these things are right at hand, but they prefer the preachers and teachers who put these things a long way off in the future. The truth has always been unpopular. A poet said, "Truth forever on the scaffold, wrong forever on the throne." But the time for a change has come; God's long-suffering will end one of these days. Isaiah spoke of a time when "judgment is turned away backward," and this fits our time, also (Isa. 59:14, 15).

There has always been a controversy between right and wrong which seems to grow more and more intense as we near the end of the Gospel Age, until there seems to be no remedy except the coming of Christ. When it gets too bad,

God intercedes for the righteous and deals in time, as He sees fit, with all injustice, ignorance, and wickedness, especially in high places.

In the sixth seal (Rev. 6:12-17), we learn something of the nature of this wrath and upon whom it is sent and more of what this great shaking is like. "And I beheld when he had opened the sixth seal, and lo, there was a great earthquake; and the sun became black as sackcloth of hair, and the moon became as blood; and the stars of heaven fell unto the earth, even as a fig tree casteth her untimely figs, when she is shaken of a mighty wind. And the heaven departed as a scroll when it is rolled together; and every mountain and island were moved out of their places. And the kings of the earth, and the great men, and the rich men, and the chief captains, and the mighty men, and every bondman, and every freeman, hid themselves in the dens and in the rocks of the mountains; and said to the mountains and rocks, Fall on us, and hide us from the face of him that sitteth on the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb: for the great day of his wrath is come; and who shall be able to stand?" So God's wrath begins with this seal.

The language describing this seal, as the rest of the book of Revelation, is highly symbolic. Christ always used the natural things or the things people were familiar with in giving His parables. Here in this sixth seal He used the most powerful things in nature, which seem to stand for apostate conditions that will exist at the end of this age.

The first thing mentioned in this seal is "the great earthquake." Some expositors of the Word think that this began with the World War, which truly did change things mightily. At any rate this sixth seal, wherever it begins, is a mighty upheaval that shakes the complete structure and foundation of human society from a social, political, commercial, and ecclesiastical standpoint. If it began then, we seem to be in the midst of it still. It is a world-wide disturbance, because following this commotion in Revelation 7:1 the angels who are about to seal the servants of God are standing on the four corners of the earth.

"The sun became black as sackcloth of hair, and the moon became as blood" as John saw these two heavenly bodies in this vision. Most of the older expositors of the Apocalypse consider this a scene of anarchy, the sun representing the powers that are ordained of God who sadly fail in administering justice at the end of the age, so that a change is about to be brought about. The end of human rule is near and God is preparing the earth for a "new deal" that will be a blessing to all. "Sackcloth" usually implies repentance, and it would seem as if this is what the last part of the seal would depict: repentance because of scenes and conditions of horror coupled with violence brought about through injustice, ignorance, and sin. Later, as the day of wrath advances, and as these great men realize it and also realize that they are far from God and that their life's work has brought nothing but disaster to themselves as well as sorrow and suffering to others, they are seen by John hiding themselves in the rocks from the face of God. The moon seems to stand for the common people, many of whom become revolutionary, as represented by the moon becoming as blood. The Apostle James tells of the laborer whose hire was "kept back by fraud," and who is there who has not discerned that distinct cry in these last days? It might be that some of the cry has been unreasonable that we have heard in our times, but that which James speaks about has a ring of truth in it.

The other events seem to follow in rapid succession. After the earthquake, the sun, and the moon are mentioned, the next judgment falls upon the stars. We note that John saw them fall from heaven "unto the earth." We hear of movie stars, who are called stars because they seem to reach great heights in the realm in which they serve. But these are the "stars of heaven," better known as those ecclesiastical leaders who have held the most conspicuous places in Christendom, perhaps receiving large salaries, yet not preaching the truth, so that they have left their people in darkness, not warning them of the coming judgment. They must be "blind leaders of the blind." Their fate now seems to be, for the present time, that of the common people, for they "fall unto the earth," and may be among the unemployed. They must have built on the sands instead of taking the Scriptures for their foundation. John compares their predicament to the falling of unripe figs, shaken by a mighty wind, which would make them useless.

As a result of the above mentioned "mighty wind," there seems to be no further use for this part of the ecclesiastical order which existed before the sixth seal, so they are rolled up as a scroll, to be a thing of the past, in order to give place to the new order of things that Christ brings about at His return. This new order that Christ is preparing is giving out the judgment message to prepare the people for the coming kingdom. And when Christ comes to sit on David's throne, they will each one fill their respective places in the kingdom. See Revelation 3:21; 2:26; 11:15.

In 2 Peter 3:10, where another aspect of this seal is given, it says, "The heavens shall pass away with a great noise, and the elements (or the different parts of ecclesiastical Babylon) shall melt with fervent heat." It is evident that the fiery judgments that will sweep over Christendom will cleanse and purify everything that will stand the test, as fire is a symbol of purification (Zech. 13:8, 9). But that which will not stand the test and that which rebels against God will go down in the judgment. The Bible says that all the proud will be stubble for God resists the proud and gives grace to the humble. In Malachi 4:1 it says, "The day cometh, that shall burn as an oven; and all the proud, yea, and all that do wickedly, shall be stubble." And everyone knows what happens to stubble.

The day of the Lord, i. e., the coming judgment, is said to come "as a thief in the night." It is unexpected to those not watching the signs of the times. How well it might fit into our present times when the whole world is in a turmoil and everyone fears to take the next step. The majority are asleep spiritually and many have joined in with those who are "eating and drinking" as they were in Noah's time before the judgments came, until they are ensnared by sin and have fallen. And these are days when God's children should be watchful to pull some out of the fire if possible. One of the prophets has told us that the nations are drunk, but not with wine. John tells us that "the inhabitants of the earth have been made drunk with the wine of her (Babylon's) fornication" (Rev. 17:2). And in Revelation 18:3 we learn that all nations have drunk of Babylon's wine.

But now to go back to John's vision. The next thing to follow for judgment is mountains and islands. These are moved out of their places. Surely these must be those who have held high positions and filled prominent places in the world, for mountains are noticeable for their being so much higher than their surroundings, while islands may be those who have isolated themselves from common humanity but now have been brought down to the same level by conditions. Many sincere Christians believe that these changes on the earth will be mainly physical disturbances and convulsions of nature, as we might infer from 2 Peter 3:7-10 and other scriptures. While it seems reasonable to expect these physical disturbances to increase as we near the end of this age, especially as long as our climatic conditions are to be greatly changed, as we anticipate from the teaching of Scripture, yet these physical changes will in turn affect the people and cause them to act unnaturally. We can already see what some of the effects of the present drought may be.

We now come to examine some of the things mentioned at the close of the sixth seal. This seems to be the most distressing part of it. The principal figures are again the most prominent people of the earth. The judgment now falls on "kings . . . great men . . . rich men . . . chief captains . . . mighty men . . . every bondman . . . every free man." As mentioned above, their judgment is most severe, for they cry to the rocks and mountains to fall upon them instead of crying to God for help. John saw them hiding themselves in the caves to escape the face of God. Gold seems to have lost its value now, for Isaiah tells us that they throw it to the moles and bats. Perhaps these are the men who are spoken of at the present time as the "men behind the scenes" who control our present business and finance at their will. This might include many of our leaders. They had founded their hopes upon materialism and had reaped the greatest profits and enjoyed the highest temporal rewards. But now things have changed. Up to this time, it looks as if the poor had suffered alone, but now the tables are turned and the wrath of God is falling upon those who controlled the affairs of this world, for they seem to be the ones who are held responsible for the distress in the land and the changed conditions.

Many of our most intelligent men have, for years, seen this catastrophe coming and have tried to better conditions, but vain has been the help of man to better them. Those who have controlled our great interests were sure that a time of great prosperity would adjust everything. This time of prosperity came and has gone and has left men and conditions worse than they were before. Before 1929, many read with satisfaction the great financial gains on investments which to them spoke loudly of progress. A good financial report to them meant safety. But, eventually, it did not prove to be any security, for they had left God, the giver of every good and perfect gift, out of their plans. Neither did they notice that right along with this time of prosperity, there was a great increase in unemployment and, worse still, a tremendous increase in crime. They can't boast prosperity now, and because they have money they are expected to feed the poor. But perhaps the most distressing problem that is facing us at present and that must be dealt with is the unsettled strike situation, a growing menace that is going to be hard to solve. Men are at their wit's end as one problem after another comes up for solution, and they are looking to the future with fear, as the Bible says they would do (Luke 21:26). For God is going to hold those men who have caused these conditions responsible for them.

While it is true that during the time of this seal, the judgment seems to fall upon the great men, yet the teaching of God's Word is that everyone will reap what he has sown and all those who have rejected light and truth will come in for their share of punishment. All who enter into this strife at the end of the age which is the consummation of all rebellion against God will suffer. God has called His children out of the present wicked world that is drunk with sin in order to separate them from the evils of present-day society. Changes must come and are coming rapidly so that it is hard for most of us to adjust ourselves to meet the conditions. And it is only by committing ourselves wholly to God that we can expect to get through. In 2 Peter 3:14, the Apostle says, "Seeing that ye look for such things, be diligent that ye may be found of him in peace." What is the antecedent of "such things" if it is not the things spoken of in verses 7 to 10 of the above chapter? These correspond with the events of the sixth seal mentioned above as well as some of the things that are happening now. If we are told to "look for such things" and urged to "be diligent" so that we might "be found of him in peace" (when He comes), we will have to be here at least part of the time where these things are going on in order to witness them. We may expect the shaking to go on until we are translated. And God is going to remove the things that He is shaking. And here is comfort for us: "And unto those that fear his name, shall the Sun of righteousness arise with healing in his wings."

I am indebted to Philip Mauro's book, The Patmos Vision, for some of his views on the sixth seal.

BLESSINGS AT CONFERENCE

Continued from Front Page

tency in an opposite way from that God intended. If we break one of God's laws, harm results, and it is not the fault of God. We are merely reaping what we have sown.

Bro. Lindsay's analysis showed his hearers that God uses fire as a refining element rather than a punitive one, and that the references to fire in Scripture must be taken in a figurative sense to harmonize with the wise, loving, and considerate attribute of the Creator. Interesting side lights were brought in by the speaker showing Israel to be the burning bush among the nations and the importance of our listening to God's voice as He speaks through His people; Daniel, passing through the fiery furnace with his God who was able to deliver; and the faithful coming through the trials of this present day, a tried, a refined, and a purified people.

"If we will all meditate upon the love of God and His desire to do us good and not evil, a right conception of God will result and our attitude will be entirely changed. Reverence, humility, and worship will result," the speaker concluded. "We will say with the Psalmist, 'I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go up to the house of the Lord.'"

"Two Great Dictators," was Bro. Marsh's theme Sunday night, August 5, given to a capacity audience, with some occupying benches outside near the windows. "God delights to reveal His secrets to the children of men," he began. And he told us that we should be thankful we have the opportunity of studying His Word. For comforting, indeed, it is in these trying days to know that there is an unseen Hand guiding the destinies of men and of nations.

"God lives in prophecy," Bro. Marsh affirmed. "He proves His faithfulness, enlightening our pathway, assuring us that since He has already kept part of His promises, He will keep all. And as the coming of Christ draws nigh, we find a stimulus to closer devotion and consecration in the study of prophecy."

The speaker described in telling words the rule of the man of sin, for whose coming even now the nations of earth are unconsciously preparing by accepting, nay, desiring, a dictator to rule over them. He gave his hearers a brief resume of world history, showing that the political pendulum has swung from democracy to dictatorship over a vast section of earth's population.

The horrors that will result from the rule of that superman of sin were touched upon by Bro. Marsh sufficiently to cause all to desire to place themselves in such a position before God that they may be found worthy to escape. He urged us to place our Bibles side by side with our daily papers and our histories in an effort to comprehend the events of great import occurring at the present moment.

Showing that this sinful ruler will turn his covetous eyes upon Palestine, where will be gathered the wealth of the world in unprotected abundance, Bro. Marsh said, "The second great dictator, the Lord Jesus Christ, will descend and call into judgment those nations gathered against the glorious land. And the end of human government will come. The man of sin will be overthrown, and the kingdom and the dominion will be given to that greatest Ruler of all time."

The rule of Christ, our Savior, was described in such glowing terms as to cause us to desire and pray for His return to take the reins of government in His own hands. "When we see the pews of our churches empty, the pulpits occupied by political orators, then we know that the falling away spoken of by the Apostle has begun. It is time for the Christian to begin to think carefully. Before the time of tribulation reaches its fullest intensity may we have been caught away to that place of safety God has prepared for His faithful," the speaker concluded.

During the first week of conference Bro. M. W. Lyon one evening gave a sermon, inspiring us to a keener appreciation of the beautiful and noble things of life. Reversing a popular slogan, he said, "Millions, though still living, are yet dead." And he referred to those who have no appreciation of Christianity and all that it brings in the way of harmony and beauty, as dead.

"Is that man living," he questioned, "who lives only for the moment? He may be a millionaire and possess everything desirable, but if his soul does not respond to the nobler things of life, he is more pitiable than the man of the slums. One of the greatest functions of Christianity is that it has made us alive to the beautiful things of life. And in the measure that we show ability to develop responsiveness to spiritual things, in that degree are we alive."

Bro. Lyon held up the two standards, that of the world and that of Christ, comparing their worth and desirability in such a way that the balance of favor lay greatly on the side of Christianity. "The Christian is taught to love more than the worldly man, to feel more; life is infinitely more enjoyable to him. If I am alive in Christ Jesus, nothing will satisfy me but the finer, the nobler things. The words to the church at Sardis will not be applicable to the one who by close association with the Master is keenly alive to what He desires." The concluding admonition was that we make our lives all that the Master wants them to be.

Another strong sermon was given by Bro. Austin, in which he held up for our inspection the people of God, Israel, as the keystone of the arch of revelation. "We are in the dawn of a new period," he declared, "and there are many events transpiring which the Christian should comprehend because of their great import to him. If we leave Israel out of our reckoning we are nonplussed.

"As we go through the volume of the Old Testament," Bro. Austin affirmed, "we see that the vast portion of it pertains to the people God established for His own honor and glory above all the nations of earth. God made them for all time, an everlasting people. Though they stand in unbelief before Him today and will further dishonor His name, yet He will forgive them, and restore them, and re-establish them."

God was revealed to us as a God of surpassing love in that He will make a new covenant with Israel, forgiving their iniquities and remembering their sins no more. The promises to the church were clearly defined as being different, greater, and higher than those to Israel, and our opportunity to stand before Him as a separate people was enlarged to our vision.

"Do the events of today frighten the Christian? No, rather, they strengthen his faith and bring him joy. Let us open up our hearts to God and watch the movements among the nations, seeing His hand guiding and directing His people," the speaker concluded.

Abreast of the Times

Declining Morality

"In the last days" men shall be "incontinent."—2 Tim. 3:1, 3.

ATTICA, Kan., July 30.—Writing from Attica, Kan., Bro. J. W. Williams provides the following for this department.

Two recent news items, a week apart, are mutually interpretative. One tells that at a birth control convention in the East a professor said he would not advise his own son or daughter against illicit relations before marriage, and the chairman of the convention endorsed his remarks.

The other is from Norman, Okla., and tells that Miss Mills, daughter of one of the faculty of the State University there, who was chosen "Beauty Queen" last year, died from a strong dose of criminal medicine which she took to prevent motherhood.

"Keep thyself pure," said the Great Apostle to the young man Timothy.

Balkans in War Fever

"They shall be afraid of that which is high, and fears shall be in the way."—Eccl. 12:5.

PARIS, July 23.—The Balkans, which have been called the "powder keg of Europe," are seething with excited war rumors and the French, Belgian, Czech, and German armament manufacturers are said to be reaping the richest harvest since 1914. The countries of the Balkans generally have maintained armies greatly out of proportion to their size and obvious needs. It is said that during the last three months Jugo-Slavia, Rumania, Bulgaria, Greece, and Turkey have been arming to the teeth "in preparation for the next war, which their statesmen and generals think may break out soon."

It is said that already orders for military equipment total $17,000,000, while plans for increase in armament which are to cover the next five years have been estimated at more than $200,000,000.

The armament program of Greece is not so extensive, but it provides for the supplementary spending of about $25,000,000 during the next three years.

It is said that the Balkan Powers are especially interested in three things: first, the establishment of gas and chemical factories in their own countries with foreign technical aid; second, the establishment of arms and munitions factories in their own countries with foreign aid and capital; third, payment for arms and munitions in kind. In this way Balkan diplomats hope to assure for their countries the advantages of heavily armed and thoroughly up-to-date armies, even though their treasuries are empty and they are heavily in debt.

Later: A member of President Roosevelt's Cabinet, speaking unofficially on August 1, declared that a general war in Europe in the near future is inevitable. This official hoped, however, that the United States might be able to keep out of the coming conflict.

Nazis Arrest Church Leaders

"No man should be moved by these afflictions: for yourselves know that we are appointed thereunto."

BERLIN, Germany, Aug. 12.—The fires of religious revolt which have been smoldering for more than a year in Protestant church circles of Germany continue to agitate the religious situation with increasing power. Associated Press reports indicate that in "a dramatic session of the National Synod amid the solemn protests of twelve representatives of the Bavarian, Hanover, and Wuerttemberg state churches Reichbishop Ludwig Mueller today was made dictator over the Protestant churches in the individual states of the Third Reich," which embraces all Germany.

As a result of this drastic action the Reichbishop now has power to proclaim church laws by decree. Observers believe that it may soon be made punishable for local church officials to collect taxes for the support of their work without Government sanction.

It was reliably reported that secret police arrested a large number of clergymen today who denied publicly from their pulpits this morning the right of the Reichbishop to exercise dictatorial power over them and their congregations. It is anticipated that a bitter fight will develop throughout the Evangelical Church of Germany, as the pronouncement of the opposition group is to the effect that the Government has engaged in continued "uncanonical actions, especially by the Reichbishop, whose business it is to be a warden to the church constitution."

It is further asserted that the "Government disregards the simplest principles of law and justice, . . . and abandons the foundations of the reformed churches, which are built upon the gospel."

The manifesto of the opposition, after quoting 2 Timothy 2:19, concludes: "Therefore, on our conscience and before God, we say to the churches, congregations, and members thereof: 'Obeying this church government is disobeying God.'"

Protect From Gas Attacks

"The great day of his wrath is come; and who shall be able to stand?"—Rev. 6:17.

PARIS, Aug. 13.—Contractors are taking into account the possibility of gas attacks from enemy planes in their plans for the erection of new apartment houses in this city. These modern structures sometimes bear the inscription, "Model Shelter Against Gas Attacks."

Berean Department

ARLEN MARSH, EDITOR

Fan Mail

A writer's magazine taken by the editor recently made the editorial comment that articles written by one of its current contributors had brought more fan mail than any other single writer in the history of the magazine. The comment ended with the observation that any writer who could cause four hundred discontinuances of subscriptions and bring in ten thousand letters must be valuable to the pages of the magazine. The writer in question, therefore, was to be continued as a regular contributor.

All writers are not so fortunate as this one. Editors and ordinary contributors alike find themselves criticized most harshly by those who, either from fear of hurting feelings or from sheer neglect, speak to their neighbors of the whimsies of the writers but never to the writers themselves.

God's servants once had no such fear. Stephen, the moment before his death, was calling the ones who were to kill him hypocrites. The prophets stood before their kings and told them of their sins and errors.

If a writer's work displeases, remarking about it to the next door neighbor will not improve the writer. Tell the writer, and it may improve his work. Informing your classmate that the teacher is teaching the wrong doctrines will not help either the classmate or the teacher; tell the teacher—if he finds himself in error, he can then correct the fault.

The teacher, the preacher, or the writer must depend upon the comments he hears from those he serves to guide him in his work. If nothing but false flattery comes his way, his work will retrograde and never will improve. But if honest criticisms are made of what he does, not criticisms based on prejudice or ignorance, but honest criticisms, he is enabled to check upon his labors and increase their value. Such criticisms are accepted gladly by the man who honestly is striving to fulfill his mission to the world and who desires to do his best for God and man.

When Youth Meets Age

TRYING to bring East and West into union is the easiest task in the world beside trying to bring youth and age into harmony in the church and elsewhere. The ideas of the two age groups are at such variance that few of the members of either group are able to grasp the thinking processes of the members of the other.

Both classes have important parts to play in the work of God. Each is as necessary as the other. By far the majority of Paul's work was completed after he had passed the line that divides youth from middle age. So with the most of God's prophets and apostles.

But to attempt to teach the adolescent and the adult in precisely the same way at the same time and in the same class is the height of folly. To attempt to throw both groups together in a single social gathering rarely is as successful as separating the two.

The mere fact that the older men are biblically proposed for elders does not signify that the older men are intended biblically or otherwise to hold every position in the church. The mere fact that Jesus Christ was barely thirty when He began His ministry does not indicate that every man of that age possesses the Messiah's talent.

Youth and age must each be given its proper place in the labor of the church. Youth and age cannot hope to reconcile themselves to constant harmony. One thing appeals to youth; another thing appeals to age. Each must be given that which will do it the most good.

It is as faulty for youth to insist upon full leadership over the church as for age to do the same. Youth must be balanced by older heads; but on the other hand, it is a fact that older heads usually need the energy of the young to help them carry on their work.

Business demands experience, but business also demands youth. Men over forty are no longer being hired in the majority of factories. Few of the writers who have had best sellers published within the last few years have been over thirty-five. Entertainers, lecturers, teachers, and industries of all kinds are turning to the young to augment their thinning ranks.

Age cannot go on forever. Youth cannot make a success of life alone. Each requires the cooperation of the other. It is no encouragement toward that cooperation to criticize each other. Nor does it tend toward successful operation in business or the church to force the two groups into the same groove and position. Age must be allowed its proper place by youth without demur; youth must be conceded its proper sphere by age.

Illinois Berean Report, June

DIXON: The Dixon Berean Society meets every Wednesday evening at the Church of God. The adult class has a membership of 9 and average attendance of 7; the interest is good. The senior class has a membership of 6 and average attendance of 5; the interest is good. The junior class has a membership of 5 and average attendance of 3.

Mary McClintick, Secretary.

MARSHALL: The Marshall Berean Society meets every Wednesday night at 8:00 at the Salem Church. The membership is 37; the average attendance, 40. The interest is splendid. Although our young folks come from four different churches, they show a great deal of interest in the lessons we are studying.—Edna H. Wood, Secretary.

Edna H. Wood, State Secretary.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"The Lord is merciful and gracious, slow to anger, and plenteous in mercy. He will not always chide: neither will he keep his anger for ever."

GOD'S LOVE FOR SINFUL MEN

YOU know, if anyone treated us as Israel treated God we would just be through with him. We wouldn't stand for any of our friends acting that way—always doing just the opposite of the way we asked them to do.

But God's ways are not like our ways, nor His thoughts like our thoughts. The two are as different as day and night. We read that they are as far apart as the heavens are from the earth. And it's a good thing they are, isn't it?

We all know how good God was to the children of Israel. How He led them out of slavery, through a deep and dangerous sea, and gave them a beautiful land of their own in which to live. Why, when they were on that long journey to their promised home, God even saw to it that their shoes and clothes lasted for forty years!

When they grew tired of the vegetables and fruits they found along the way, God sent down meat from heaven for them to eat. He always provided good cool water for them to drink, too. Yes, He was very, very good to them.

And how did they repay His kindness and His love? When they became established in their own land, they did the very thing God commanded them not to do. They began to bow down before idols as the nations round them did. And sin multiplied on top of sin after that.

Then, because they were such a shame to God, He just had to punish them. Even though He still loved them He allowed their enemies to come up and conquer them. They were taken captive out of this beautiful land God had given them and scattered over many strange lands. Too bad they didn't obey!

And, you know, the descendants of these children of Israel (we call them Jews) still have no land of their own, no government of their own, and no home of their own, except among the other nations of earth.

Their own land, called Palestine, is now under the control of England, and those who live there must obey the laws of England. Even the Arabs, who claim Palestine, do not like the Jews to whom God really gave that land. They are wanderers on the face of the earth.

All of this came to them as a result of their disobedience to God and their worshiping of idols. They couldn't blame anyone except themselves. But will it always be that way? Will they never live at peace in their promised home again? Will they never have a king of their own? Let's see.

Turn to the book of Jeremiah. You know, he also was a spokesman for God. In chapters 31, 32, and 33, we find many promises from God about this very thing. Read verses 33 and 34 of chapter 31. And look at verses 37 to 42 of chapter 32.

Read these words for yourselves. Then when you read in the paper how the Jews are being treated by some of the nations of Europe, you will be glad that it will not always be so. For God is going to "gather them out of all countries . . . and . . . bring them again unto this place," which we know is Palestine, their own promised homeland.

And the best part of it is, they won't want to worship idols any more. They will love God with their whole hearts and serve Him with their whole strength after that.

You all know who is the One that is going to cause them to change their minds. It's Jesus, our Savior and their Savior, our King and their King. Do you know a verse that tells you that? They just won't be able to withstand Jesus when He comes again. Their hard hearts will melt, and they will change their ways altogether. God will once more be proud to call them His people.

And all of this will cause the other people of earth, who do not now love God, to turn to Him for blessing also. And He will bless, "for God so loved the world," you know, "that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

"We've a song to be sung to the nations,
That shall turn their hearts to the Lord,
A song that shall conquer evil
And shatter the spear and sword.

"We've a message to give to the nations,
That the Lord who reigneth above
Hath sent us His Son to save us,
And show us that God is love.

"For the darkness shall turn to dawning,
And the dawning to noonday bright;
And Christ's great kingdom shall come on earth,
The kingdom of love and light."

The Sunday School Lesson

FROM TRUTH SEEKERS' QUARTERLY

LESSON 9. — August 26, 1934

HOSEA PREACHES GOD'S LOVE

Hosea 6, 11, and 14

Devotional Reading: Psalm 36:5-10

GOLDEN TEXT

For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.—John 3:16.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic: Hosea Preaches God's Love.

Aim: God's justice is always tempered with love. When the sinner repents, God is ready to receive him back into favor.

Basic Truth: "Return, thou backsliding Israel, saith the Lord; and I will not cause mine anger to fall upon you: for I am merciful, saith the Lord."—Jer. 3:12.

I. God's Fatherly Love. (Hosea 11:1-4.) "The Prophet of Love" speaks of Israel as the child of Jehovah, whom God has tenderly led and protected throughout its life. He has taught Israel the way that leads to prosperity, contentment, and peace—the way of righteousness. God has gently drawn them time after time back into the paths of truth with cords of tender affection. He has provided for their material needs abundantly, as would a loving earthly father for his children.

II. God's Sorrow That Punishment Must Come. (Vv. 8, 9.) Hosea presents God in an almost pathetic light. He suggests that the heavenly Father sympathizes deeply with His disobedient people when punishment must be brought upon them. Jesus said, "Joy shall be in heaven over one sinner that repenteth,"—Luke 15:7. This being true, it follows that there must be distress in heaven when a child of God turns away into sin and brings suffering and loss to himself. How gracious God is to be willing to receive us again into favor the moment we repent and return unto Him!

III. God's Gracious Promise. (Hosea 14:4-9.) Time after time Israel has fulfilled the prediction of Jeremiah where he pictures Jehovah pleading with His people: "Stand ye in the ways, and see, and ask for the old paths, where is the good way, and walk therein, and ye shall find rest for your souls. But they said, We will not walk therein."—Jer. 6:16. But the time is coming when they will respond differently. "It shall be said in that day, Lo, this is our God; we have waited for him, and he will save us: . . . we will be glad and rejoice in his salvation."—Isa. 25:9. Then again shall Israel be restored to the favor of God and become the center of spiritual influence and blessing to all the world (Deut. 30:1-6). This great regathering will take place under the reign of the Messiah, Jesus.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life."—John 3:16.

God is love, therefore love has been from the beginning. Love has ever been, is, and will be, even throughout eternity. If it were not for God's love for mankind, the promises left on record for us would not be there. God's love for man far exceeds man's love for God. Hosea realized this when he was pleading for Israel to repent and return to the Lord.

The words of our text were spoken by Jesus, and it is a sad fact that many people are indifferent to them. The realization of the truth of this verse is the foundation of the Christian life. Without God's love, without the gift of His Son, mankind would be as naught, without any hope or promise of life beyond the grave. Do you realize how much God's love has done for you? Think seriously about it.—L. A. R.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Love

- "is as strong as death";
- "covereth all sins";
- "worketh no ill";
- "of money is the root of all evil";
- "of Christ constraineth us."

Unfailing Love. God's love is unfailing. It is the strongest force for good in the world. His love begets and woos our love. "We love him, because he first loved us."—1 John 4:19. He loves us with an "everlasting love." Coupled with the Father's everlasting love is Christ's love which "passeth knowledge" (Eph. 3:19). Christ can be termed a "friend that sticketh closer than a brother." And a true "friend loveth at all times" (Prov. 17:17). Therefore we are assured of the continuing love of Christ. This kind of love should be in every Christian. Christ said: "I have declared unto them thy name . . . that the love wherewith thou hast loved me may be in them."—John 17:26.

Love Works. We show our love by our works. True love is not in "word, neither in tongue; but in deed and in truth" (1 John 3:18). If we love the Lord with all our hearts, we will keep His commandments and will keep His words (John 14:15, 23). Thus it appears if we are not keeping His words, it is because we do not love Him with all our hearts. Christ said to Peter, "Lovest thou me?" Peter replied, "Yea, Lord." Then Christ said, "Feed my sheep." Love would obey and serve. One cannot love and remain inactive. This is vividly set forth in 1 John 3:17.

—C. E. R.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULTS

The Unchanging Love of God

"Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning."—Jas. 1:17. James has left us this record as to the stability of God. He, Himself, has given us His word of assurance: "I am the Lord, I change not." What a blessing this was for Israel at the time of making this statement, for He adds: "Therefore ye sons of Jacob are not consumed."—Mal. 3:6. God had promised Abraham that He would never forsake his seed. These promises were repeated to Isaac and Jacob. Because of the unchangeable character of God the house of Jacob was spared in the time of their transgression. God never forgets a promise. What a comfort it is to know that the love of God never changes. We may die and return to our native earth and rest there for many years, yet the love of God will never decrease. At the time appointed He will remember our lowly estate and bring us forth again.

The many examples of God's faithfulness that are recorded in the Old Testament are there for our benefit that we may have faith in the word of God. We are loath to work for a person whose faithfulness to promises is unproved. God has given us adequate proof of His integrity. Jesus as God's Son is equally trustworthy. He has given us this promise: "Whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, that will I do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son."—John 14:13. He is our friend day by day in answering our prayers. He gave still another assurance to John: "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne."—Rev. 3:21. This should strengthen our faith for the daily tests which are sure to overtake us.—H. A. S.

PRIMARY

Topic: Hosea Tells Us About God's Love.

Who do you think loves you best of all? Just listen to the answers: Mother, Father, Grandmother, Sister. Surely they all love you, but let's go visit a man named Hosea. He will tell us something about love.

He's talking about Israel. Amos talked about them, too. He's telling about how God led the children of Israel out of Egypt. We remember that story.

Now he's telling about how they worshiped idols. We studied about that, too.

He says that the reason God helped them out of Egypt when the Egyptians were so cruel was that God loved them. And He still loves them. They may do things that are wrong, but still they are God's chosen and beloved nation.

It is just like your mother loving you when you're naughty. She may punish you in order to correct you, but she loves you just the same.

God loves us, too. God wants us to do what is right, but He never stops loving us even when we do wrong. He wants us to be sorry when we do it, and try harder the next time. He did just that way with Israel, too.

—V. C. T.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CONFERENCE DATES

Eastern Nebraska Conference at Omaha,	August 12 to 19
Virginia Bible School and Conference at Maurertown,	August 16 to 26
Nebraska Conference at Hol- brook	August 19 to 26
Iowa Conference at Waterloo,	Aug. 21 to 26

ILLINOIS STATE CONFERENCE

The annual business meeting of the Illinois State Conference of the Churches of God was held on Friday, August 10, at Oregon, Ill. The meeting convened at 3:00 p. m., with President Paul C. Johnson in the chair, opening with song and a prayer for God's blessing upon our work during the coming conference year. The minutes of the Secretary were read and approved with one correction. The Treasurer's report followed, which was received and place on file.

The following churches in the state reported by blanks sent out by the Secretary: Ripley, Eldorado, Oregon, Plum River, Casey, Marshall, Dixon, and Rockford. These were read by representatives present from their respective churches and were elaborated upon by verbal reports from ministers present. Bro. Lapp reported also on his work in St. Louis, which shows a slight growth in interest the past year. Bro. Krogh verbally reported a spiritual development in some of the members the past year. Bro. Goekler reported the work and interest good at Marshall, and Bro. Conner stated he was much gratified with his work at Dixon and Rockford.

Election of officers resulted in the following: President, Paul C. Johnson; Vice President, Esta L. Starbuck; Secretary, Ednah Cooper; Treasurer, Leota B. Hanson. Secretary Mary A. Gesin asked that her name be not considered, as she had served in that capacity for twelve years, and that a new person in the work would prove valuable by bringing new ideas for consideration. Board members are William Ford and George Siple, for a term of two years. Those holding over from last year are Glenn Birkey and C. E. Lapp.

A question was brought before the house concerning the note for $350.00 held against the Illinois Conference for improvements. It was urged by Sr. Whitehead that members over the state keep this in mind and effort be made to liquidate this note. The response to the tithing letters sent out last year was only $1.00, as stated by the Treasurer, and it was agreed by all present that personal contact was needed. It was suggested by Bro. Lapp that our President visit all points in the state during the year in an effort to stimulate interest in the state work, which he agreed to do. Sr. Whitehead spoke on this question, urging that all bear in mind the three phases of our work—local, state, and national; that we need a strong state organization to have an effective national or local work; that tithers should apportion their contributions accordingly. Speaking on this question, the President said that the need to assist churches which are not able to function alone is similar to our coming to the aid of individuals who are unfortunate in these times of stress, a situation with which we are all familiar. Size of contributions was also discussed, and all were urged to give something to the state work, if only ten cents per month. Pledge cards were handed out to those present and given to officers of local churches to hand out to those at home. Sr. Leota Hanson stated that we have almost five hundred members in the state, and if each gave only 10 cents a month that would amount to $50.

Sr. Starbuck brought to our attention the matter of obtaining accurate lists of members from each church, which the N. B. I. is planning to do. She suggested that the secretaries of the local churches check their lists and cooperate with the state Secretary to that end. The names of all isolated should be included on some church record with their consent and desire.

Accommodations in the dormitory, which was crowded to the limit this year, were brought before the conference. Beds and bedding are needed very badly and all having such to donate are asked to do so. It was decided to bring this need before our several Dorcas societies.

It was moved by Sr. Gesin, seconded by Sr. Ordnung, that the Board be authorized to issue ministerial certificates to those whom it deems proper. Carried. Business session was then adjourned.

Mary A. Gesin, Retiring Secretary.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

The pastor and family are at this writing enjoying the associations and inspirations at General Conference. During our absence the home folks are doing a splendid job of keeping the home fires burning. Bro. L. Bridgman, first elder, is the speaker for the first Sunday, and Bro. Barney for the second.

At last word the infant of Bro. and Sr. Hopkins was improved from a very serious illness, and we thank God deeply for that blessing.

We anticipate a visit from M. W. Lyon upon our return home.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

PLUM RIVER, ILLINOIS

The work here has been coming along quite well through the summer months. The Sunday school attendance has been good.

On June 22 a business meeting was held and an invitation was extended to Bro. Krogh to stay with us another year.

The first Sunday in July we had the privilege of having S. J. Lindsay with us for an all-day service with a picnic dinner. We had a good-sized crowd, several coming from a distance. Bro. Lindsay gave some very inspiring talks. In the evening we heard him in the Methodist Church in Pearl City.

Mildred Crofton, Secretary.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Sue Williams; Ida Eastman (for self and others); Mrs. T. J. Ellis (for another); Pearl Hatten; Eva Phelps; Martha Field; Willis A. Roose; Mrs. C. J. Hanson; Mrs. Henry Fox; Mrs. Sterling Maxwell (for another); Wayne Thompson; Myrtle Oliver; E. S. Logan; Foster Logan; H. S. Bell (for others); Elizabeth Martin; E. H. King (for another); H. W. Patterson (for another).

CONTRIBUTIONS TO N. B. I.

Mrs. F. M. Cawby (Spec. Ind. Fund)	$3.00
W. A. Reid	30.00
Etta Loudenslager	25.00
Ontario	7.00
James A. Patrick (Spec. Ind. Fund)	4.35

CONTRIBUTORS TO DOLLAR-A-MONTH CLUB

Mae Mick; Mrs. A. M. Siple; Ella M. Siple; Albert Siple; W. A. Reid; Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Updike; Mrs. William Lansbery; Eva H. M. Fletcher; Helen M. Chisholm; Hilda Fetters ($5); Silas M. Claypool.

AN INTERESTING QUESTION

"There is a way that seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death."—Prov. 16:25.

For a number of years I lived the Christian life in the way I thought I had to live it because of surrounding circumstances. I never lost faith in God, but I did not feel free to worship God in the way it seemed a Christian should worship Him. Finally, when I became so dissatisfied I could stand things no longer, I prayed God that I might find my trouble, and I prayed for the faith once delivered to the saints.

My eyes have been opened in a most marvelous way and I am constantly strong where I was a coward time and again. Even yet, at times, I am a coward until I remember that God has said that as long as I abide in Him, and He abides in me, I may ask what I will and He will answer me.

What would have happened to me had death claimed me in my years of uncertainty? I honestly believed I was doing the best I could under the circumstances. But now I believe if I had gone to God as I know how to go to Him now, my life for those years would tell a far different story in a better work for God.

Would the verse I quoted from the Bible apply to my case? Mrs. E. C. Olmstead.

WILLIAM E. KEYSER

William E. Keyser was born near Menominee, Wis., January 17, 1863. In 1864 his parents moved to Illinois, where he lived until 1903, when he moved to the state of Washington. In 1883 he was married to Sarah Renner. To this union were born eight children, four girls and four boys, two of whom died in infancy. They moved to Centralia, Wash., in 1918, where they have since resided. In 1926 he suffered a paralytic stroke in his right side, from which he never fully recovered. In 1926 he was baptized by the writer and was an earnest contender for the faith to the time of his death. Fifteen months ago he was afflicted with internal cancer, which resulted in his decease July 13.

He leaves to mourn his loss, a widow, Sarah Keyser; three sons, Elmer of Los Angeles, Calif.; Melvin and William of Centralia; three daughters, Mary McFadden of Ajlune, Wash.; Bertha Darrow of Santa Barbara, Calif.; and Nancy Koski of Nahalim, Ore.; and a host of friends and other relatives.

The funeral was held in a funeral home in Centralia. Words of comfort were spoken by the writer to the sorrowing mourners and friends, taking Job's question, "If a man die, shall he live again?" as a basis for words of consolation and of hope.

A. L. Corbaley.

FROM AN ALBERTA READER

To the Editor of The Herald:

Your paper is always interesting. For the isolated, "Among the Churches" is one of the first pages that draws attention. I find Bro. Siple's little notices very attractive reading.

Sr. Young, in her article, "Millions of Women," draws our attention again to the homely truths in the Bible. The women, too, perform many little acts of devotion which take time, energy, and very real cash, too. I refer to the Berean work.

I should be very glad if one of your students or pastors would tell us about Berea of old. Some may have access to works of reference that isolated members do not have.

The friendly women that write to brethren that are far away or in distress, the Bereans that cheer the sick or discouraged—what a work of love they offer to God, what sweet incense they bring to the Mercy Seat! These good women, even as Mary and Martha of old, who, as Sr. Young says, were "each ministering to the Lord in her own peculiar way," do these services which mean hard work and call for many little sacrifices of time and money.

Yet can they ever be thanked in full measure? Will they ever know how far their light has shone in the gloom? I do not mention the names, but there are letters from one cheerful sister which are so full of brightness and the sweet love of Christ that I have asked her permission to show them to others. One old gentleman said, "What a nice letter, a good letter!" And I was glad to tell him that the members of our faith are like that, not only "nice," but good living people, in fact, living epistles. I could describe other letters, all helpful in our daily battle for Christian perfection.

One of our greatest difficulties today is to talk of Christ. We would have Jesus in our midst; in our business, for He was alert to the rights of law and government; in our play, for He knew the needs of our bodies; in our homes, for He loved little children and all God's creatures.

I find that the articles of Arlen Marsh try to solve for us one of these difficulties—everyday religion. Every preacher should read his articles. We need the statistical sermons. We need the sermons of stern fact and dry, dogmatic searchings. And we find increasingly necessary that we must have an interesting way of "persuading" the young and the "modern" youth. However, we must not reduce our religion to radical and cheap "ways and means." Times may change, but God stands firm.

One of my most precious memories is an upper room where the brethren met in Brooklyn (N. Y.). . . . Only a few are met together to worship: not many more than the original twelve disciples. It is the time for the Scripture lesson to be read. Quietly a firm old man goes up the aisle. He is about the size of King George. He has old-fashioned side-whiskers and is very proper, but not prim. He is dignified without being self-righteous. This old brother reads the same Scriptures that Paul read to the men of Corinth. I, as a child, listen and worship. . . .

Today we need only the Bible and Christ in our midst, and good fathers and mothers who will bring their children to an upper room.

Angeline Harrington,
Tring, Alberta.

You can still get The Herald sent to any address for fifteen weeks for fifty cents. This would bring the complete reports of the various major conferences and Bible schools. Why not send in a list of new names?

BETWEEN YOU AND ME—

Much of the material presented in "Between You and Me" in this issue was assembled by Sr. Mary A. Gesin, who for several years was editor of this department. Our readers will appreciate these personal touches, we are sure.

How refreshing to our sometimes wearied spirits to meet and exchange greeting with brother and sister from here and there! In a little group on the church lawn at Oregon between services we caught a glimpse of Bro. Robbins and members of his family from Texas visiting with Bro. and Sr. Greene from Minnesota.

There also we saw California enjoying a visit with New York, as Charlotte Gardiner and Jessie Kauffman chatted. Toward the river bank were Richard LeCrone, Clarence Lapp, Dorothy and Harvey Krogh, Ednah and Gerald Cooper, Cecil Smead, members of the Training School, sometimes grouped with one of their former teachers, Bros. Austin, Siple, or Marsh, or Sr. Gesin, exchanging matters of weighty wisdom.

An enjoyable feature of the first Sunday afternoon was a number given by the male quartet from our Rockford church, of whom Bro. Conner is justly proud. It consists of Earle Mogle, Herbert Kasper, John Railton, and Lyle Thayer.

Heard at the table one day: "The Illinois Conference Board members certainly did a fine thing for our appetites and digestions when they chose Sr. Anna Smith as chief cook." This was Sr. Smith's fourth very successful year in that capacity.

All were glad to clasp the hand once again of our beloved Sr. Woodward, aged defender and expounder of God's Word, mother of our Bro. Austin.

If you saw Bro. Lapp searching his pockets, he wasn't looking for stray coins. Sometimes he couldn't keep track of his "better half," who kept a large class of kiddies interested and happy.

Give Sr. Thayer a little child and she is happy, and so is the child. She doesn't spurn a broom or a dust pan either.

Many of our young folks such as Harriet and Lucille Smith, Merle and Guilford Bell, Lyle Thayer, Ednah and Margaret Cooper, Pauline Leithliter, Rosalie Carpenter, Thelma Hardacre, and Bob Mattison, ought soon to qualify for a job in one of our large city restaurants. Don't you think so?

Bro. Paul Hatch of Harvey, Ill., on August 1, gave an excellent sermon on "Building Well for Eternity," especially suited to our young people. Comparing the methods, material, and efforts in constructing some of the beautiful architecture of today, he showed how a Christian life should be built, and he held out the rewards for careful building for eternity.

Bro. and Sr. Ellis looked lonesome without Margaret and Eldridge this year. Hope they'll be once more a united family at Conference next year.

Bro. Randall's class of young people who studied social problems together seemed to be much interested in their work this year.

After the picnic Saturday afternoon, the Program Committee thought best to provide an evening of lighter caliber, giving us a full hour of music, with Bro. Paul C. Johnson, President of the Illinois Conference, taking twenty minutes to speak to us on suffering today for our faith. Bro. Johnson told us that instead of complaining if we are being tried today, we should rejoice. For if we do not "suffer persecution," perhaps we do not "live godly." Think it over!

Indiana, our neighbor state, sent a fine, large delegation to General Conference this year, which of course made us all happy. We hope they felt the same about it.

Dormitory full, Golden Rule Home full, homes over the city full, bespoke a good gathering of brethren, which reached 375 in number on August 12, according to Sr. Ednah Cooper, our busy registrar Bros. Austin, Thayer, and Lapp taught classes composed of what is sometimes called the most difficult ages—intermediates and the high school group. Only good words were heard of the work of these classes.

Many expressed themselves as keenly regretting Bro. MacLeod's absence because of illness. We presume his disappointment was also great, but we trust he was resting without pain, enjoying in retrospect last year's association and in anticipation that of next year. Sr. MacLeod and those sturdy Scotch sons were also missed, as well as her parents, Bro. and Sr. E. C. Railsback.

When one is willing to travel the length of the state alone, depending on the sight of others, one is devoted to the truth surely. "Aunt Mina" Martin, our dear blind sister from Eldorado, enjoyed conference greatly, we know.

One of the most profitable and harmonious General Conferences of our denominational history was brought to a close last Sunday night. The sermons throughout were of more than usual merit from a spiritual and instructive standpoint. The Bible school conducted by the Illinois State Conference was equally beneficial. As a direct result of the meeting six young men were baptized into the name of the Lord Jesus Christ.

Bro. and Sr. W. L. Robbins of Texas, accompanied by a son and daughter and two grandchildren, all of whom had been in attendance at the conference, left Oregon Monday morning for Yellowstone National Park.

Sr. S. S. Claussen, who during the latter part of the conference period has been in a constantly threatening condition from cancer, continues to struggle valiantly with the dread enemy. The sympathy of the entire church goes out both to Sr. Claussen and her family.

The son of Bro. Robert G. Huggins, who some twenty-five years ago was state evangelist in Illinois, met with the brethren in Oregon on the last day of conference. He is an advanced student at Aurora College, where he is President of the Senior Class.

The Restitution Herald will welcome short, thoughtful letters in answer to the very interesting and important question asked by Sr. E. C. Olmstead elsewhere in this issue.

"THE WILDERNESS OF THE PEOPLE"

Continued from Page Three

the time. If they tried to leave the country they were shot down like animals. If they remained in the land of their birth they were oppressed and often massacred. In the strictest fulfillment of Ezekiel's prophecy God had brought them "out from the people," but "they shall not enter into the land of Israel: and ye shall know that I am the Lord" (Ezek. 20:38). Shortly after the close of the World War a group of Jews had left Russia and managed to get to Istanbul (Constantinople) only to find that they could go no farther. There they were huddled together into miserable quarters to be starved and slaughtered as the Turks saw fit. Finally a "remnant" of them were allowed to cross over to Asia Minor, and a still smaller remnant finally reached the Holy Land. More recently have terrible persecutions arisen in the Near East that remind us of the words of Jeremiah (16:66ff): "Behold, I will send for many fishers, saith the Lord, and they shall fish them; and after will I send for many hunters, and they shall hunt them from every mountain, and from every hill, and out of the holes of the rocks. For mine eyes are upon all their ways: they are not hid from my face, neither is their iniquity hid from mine eyes. And first I will recompense their iniquity and their sin double; because they have defiled my land, they have filled mine inheritance with the carcasses of their detestable and abominable things." Mr. Rothenberg, head of the Zionist Organization in America, said that in Austria, Hungary, Rumania, and the neighboring countries the life of a Jew was extremely uncertain. If the Jew dared to protest to the treatment he received, his body was found shortly thereafter floating in the Danube. Prof. Einstein said in a book published some few years ago that he hoped that the life of the Jews in the various parts of the world would be uncertain, for he felt that if the Jews were not persecuted, they would lose their identity and become Germans, or Frenchmen, or Englishmen, or Americans. Persecutions have kept the nationality of the Jews pure and undefiled! Since that time Einstein himself has suffered bitterly from the very persecutions that he hoped would come upon the Jews: he was even deprived of his property, his bank account, and all that he had saved during a long life of usefulness to mankind. But even though the Jews in Germany were herded together and driven out of their positions in Germany, they were not all allowed to go to Palestine, even if they wanted to. The British Government allowed a portion of them to go to the Holy Land, but out of approximately 200,000 Jews in Germany who applied for admission to Palestine, only a small fraction were allowed to migrate there. What became of the others? Were they brought into the "wilderness of the people"? Was God "grieved" with them to allow them to perish in that "wilderness," because of their rebellion against Him? The facts would answer in the affirmative!

But the Jews are not the only ones to gain a lesson from the things that are happening to fulfill Ezekiel's prophecy. The Apostle in writing to the Hebrews gives that story to posterity for their instruction. If those of ancient Israel were rewarded according to their iniquities, how about us? "For we are made partakers of Christ, if we hold the beginning of our confidence stedfast unto the end. . . . For some, when they had heard, did provoke: howbeit not all that came out of Egypt by Moses. But with whom was he grieved forty years? was it not with them that had sinned, whose carcasses fell in the wilderness? And to whom sware he that they should not enter into his rest, but to them that believed not? So we see that they could not enter in because of unbelief. Let us therefore fear, lest, a promise being left us of entering into his rest, any of you should seem to come short of it. For unto us was the gospel preached, as well as unto them: but the word preached did not profit them, not being mixed with faith in them that heard it."—Heb. 3:14 to 4:2. Are we going to profit by the example of Israel past and present? Are we going to learn faith by their example of disobedience and its punishment? "Let us labour therefore to enter into that rest, lest any man fall after the same example of unbelief."—Heb. 4:11.

OUR INFLUENCE

By M. W. Lyon

WHAT does the new church member or the non-church member think of us as he meets us and begins to get acquainted with us? Do we impress these folk as being peace-loving, forgiving, serving the Lord and His church, genuinely Christian, or do we impress them as being lukewarm Christians, critical, fault-finding, having our own or our particular organization axes to grind?

The Christian who would be true to his profession cannot be too careful in his attitude or his actions in his relationship to new church members or those outside the church. There have been instances in some churches where new members have been interviewed and have had their minds poisoned against the preacher and the work of the church. In such instances neither the church nor the minister loses so much as the new member affected, for too often he or she becomes discouraged, loses interest in the church, and becomes estranged from the work of the kingdom. How can the man or woman who is responsible for such tragedy in the life of another justly lay claim to the title, "Christian"?

Jesus had this to say in this connection: "But whoever shall occasion the fall of one of these little ones who believe in me, it would be better for him to have a millstone hung round his neck and be drowned in the depths of the sea." As Christians we must look well to the influence we exert on others.—Golden Rule News.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 23

OREGON, ILLINOIS, AUGUST 21, 1934

NUMBER 47

Review of the General Conference

ANOTHER splendid gathering of God's people has come to a close and the hundreds who attended from widely scattered regions in the United States and Canada have returned to their homes carrying with them the sweet spirit of fellowship they experienced here, and with their lives enriched by the uplifting influences brought to bear upon them through personal contact with others of like precious faith.

Sermons, Bible school lessons, devotional services, and business meetings followed one after the other in quick succession, and regardless of the purpose of the various gatherings all were found to breathe the same spirit of unity and love—all were dedicated to the glory of God and to the upbuilding of His people.

While the Bible school was distinctly an Illinois State Conference effort and carried on under the auspices of that body, it was impossible for anyone to detect the least evidence of division between the Bible school and the General Conference in so far as the spirit and aim of the two departments of work were concerned. The summer Bible school plan was introduced to the Church of God by Bro. S. J. Lindsay as an Illinois effort many years ago, and has proved one of the most profitable and interesting departments of our church work. We were exceedingly glad that the Illinois brethren succeeded in securing the services of Bro. Lindsay as a teacher of fundamental Bible truth this year. His class numbered the largest in the school, ranging in attendance from around fifty-five to eighty, and resulted in several baptisms.

For a complete report of the Bible school we must direct your attention to the report of the Secretary of the Illinois Conference, which was published in our last issue.

Again the General Conference sessions of the first week were taken up by sermons owing to the fact that no matters of business or of a doctrinal investigatory nature were presented for consideration. Several of the young ministers of the church gave inspiring discourses on various themes, evidencing in their work the result of profound study of the Word of God. All of the speakers at the afternoon periods were former students of the Bible Training School.

The first business session of the General Conference was called to order by President L. E. Conner at 3:30 p. m.,

August 7, 1934. The meeting was opened in the customary manner with song, followed by a prayer by the chairman.

On motion of C. E. Randall, seconded by Paul C. Johnson, the reading of the voluminous minutes of the last conference was dispensed with, as all reports of last year's gathering had been read at the close of the various sessions and approved.

The Committee on Credentials, appointed by the President on August 1, consisting of the following: Miss Leota B. Hanson, Miss Charlotte Gardiner, and Mrs. Esta Starbuck, reported 2,712 voters were represented in person or by delegates at the opening session.

Under unfinished business the committee appointed last year to revise the Working Rules and Constitution reported through its chairman, Bro. L. E. Conner. Printed copies of the revised document were distributed and the remainder of the session was devoted to its consideration.

In order that the matter of the revision of the Working Rules and Constitution may be more clearly understood, the progress of its consideration to the point of its final adoption will be recorded here.

The chairman of the committee, L. E. Conner, providing a substitute to occupy the place of presiding officer at each session when required, read the entire document slowly, the conference members and delegates following the reading in their own copies and frequently at his invitation interrupting to ask questions for the purpose of clarifying some point, or to suggest such changes as they might consider desirable.

The most important change that was made was the elimination of the Advisory Board, which from the beginning of the National Bible Institution has consisted of the presidents of the several state conferences which are affiliated with the General Conference and the President of the National Berean Society. The chairman of the Committee on Revision pointed out the fact that this Board had proved to be impractical and cumbersome in the management of the business of the Institution, and last year had earnestly recommended its discontinuance. Under the then existing constitution the Executive Board of the National Bible Institution was obliged to secure "the advice and written

Please turn to Page Five

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879.

G. Eldred Marsh, Editor

Two Dollars per Year

Paul C. Johnson, Associate Editor

"Arise; for this matter belongeth unto thee: we also will be with thee: be of good courage, and do it."—Ezra 10:4.

TO THEE WE PRAY

O LORD our God, who turnest into morning the shadows of night, grant that we may be children of the light and of the day. Let the sun of Thy righteousness shine in our hearts. Enlighten our reason, and make clear our conscience, and purify our affections. We give ourselves to Thee this day, beseeching Thee so to rule and govern us that faithless distrust and all evil thoughts may be driven from our minds; that we may walk with joy in the light of Thy countenance for evermore.—Selected.

EVANGELISTIC WORK

"GO YE into all the world," was the command of Jesus to His disciples, "and preach the gospel to every creature." That was the first and most important work of the early church. Following the martyrdom of Stephen "they that were scattered abroad went every where preaching the word." And when those who heard the message of the apostles and other evangelists of that early day, and believed "the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized."

Thus the saving truth of God was spread throughout the Roman world through the zeal and labors of men and women whose energy could not be quenched by the overwhelming flood of persecution.

We sometimes question in these days if the Church of God is not losing something of the intensity of its early missionary spirit. Is it not growing a little cold and indifferent to the needs of those who know not the gospel? Does it realize today, as it so thoroughly appreciated in the past, that there is no hope out of Christ, that millions of men and women are dying in sin, ignorant of the salvation God has so graciously provided in His Son and which He has revealed through the glad tidings of the kingdom?

God "hath committed unto us the word of reconciliation," and we are appointed "ambassadors for Christ, as though God did beseech" our fellow men "by us . . . in Christ's stead, be ye reconciled to God."

May God inspire us all with a sense of our responsibility in this matter, with a realization of our opportunity to render eternal service to our fellows by bringing them to a knowledge of the gospel which alone can save from sin and death!

WHY PREACHERS SELDOM WRITE

THE question is sometimes asked by our older readers as to why more of our ministers do not write for the paper. They recall the splendid articles which appeared in the old Restitution and later in THE RESTITUTION HERALD from the pens of preachers of an earlier day and wonder why it is that more ministers do not write for the paper now.

The answer is found in the change that has overtaken the church in the last ten to fifteen years. Formerly practically all of our ministers were evangelists rather than pastors. They were constantly going from place to place introducing the gospel of the kingdom into localities where it had never been known before. They were not required to prepare from two to three or more fresh new sermons each week, as they were addressing strange congregations to whom everything they had to say was new.

We recall hearing one of our most successful evangelists of a past generation say that he had a list of twenty-eight sermons which he had preached over and over again for nearly forty years! These sermons dealt with the kingdom on the earth, the literal return of Jesus, conditional immortality, and similar themes. And these were the subjects also about which they wrote for the papers.

In these days, however, our ministers generally are in settled pastorates, preaching constantly to the same congregations, and consequently obliged to speak on many subjects to which our older preachers seldom if ever gave a thought. The pastor must keep abreast of his people in their thinking. His sermons must always seem fresh and new and interesting if he is to hold his present membership and add to it from time to time. Twenty-eight sermons would last him about three months instead of forty years! This means that he must spend a great deal of time in his study searching out new ways in which to express old truths in an attractive manner. This leaves the active pastor with but little time for careful writing for publication, for in addition to his regular pulpit and teaching work he has the spiritual welfare of every individual in his congregation to consider, sick ones to be visited, sorrowing ones to comfort, social activities to supervise, and a hundred and one other duties and responsibilities resting upon him to all of which he must devote painstaking attention.

Conference Echoes

By Mary A. Gesin

ON the last Saturday evening of General and Illinois Conference and Bible School those in attendance enjoyed a rather unusual sermon given by Grover Gordon of Holbrook, Nebraska. Bro. Gordon's sermon was unusual in that it contained truths which are not generally taught from the pulpit among us as a people, but the importance of which all recognize.

"Feed the Church of God" was the speaker's theme. He compared the feeding of a church by its pastor to the feeding of stock by a farmer and the care of a family by the mother. He likened the three phases of teaching—doctrinal, practical, and prophetic—to the balanced ration necessary to good growth, naming the first, the roughage, the second, the salt and condiments to whet the appetite, and the third, the dessert. Bro. Gordon served us the relishes in good measure.

He declared it to be possible to answer directly or indirectly from Scripture every question that might occur to the Christian concerning his daily activities. Considering the question of the propriety of the Christian's becoming angry, he referred to the Apostle's admonition, "Be ye angry, and sin not," cautioning us of the liability of sinning if we become angry.

Evil communications, backbiting, the use of tobacco, and other questionable indulgences were each taken up in turn by Bro. Gordon, giving offense to none because of his kindly and Christlike manner of reproof. The speaker included himself in the criticism, showing how he had been corrected and admonished by application of the Apostle Paul's admonitions. He stated that these words, "The reproaches of them that reproached thee fell on me," did more to help him in deciding the Christian's proper conduct than any other. And there is much for all of us to think over in those words.

Taking the incident of the Savior's visit to the home of Zaccheus, he asked how many of us would find it necessary to hide the playing cards, the tobacco, or sundry magazines should Jesus announce to us, "To day I must abide at thy house."

"We find no scripture concerning the use of playing cards, but would Jesus overturn our card tables if He came into our homes today, as He did those of the money changers in the temple when He was on earth?" Bro. Gordon asked us.

The matter of dancing was also considered, and the speaker very cleverly reversed the customary order, "There is a time to mourn and a time to dance," showing by examples within his own knowledge that the mourning follows the dancing. Peter leaves it up to us to decide some of these questions, merely asking, in his second Epistle, 3:11,

"What manner of persons ought ye to be in all holy conversation and godliness?"

Bro. Gordon's concluding admonition was that we live each day in expectation of that greatest Guest so that when He does arrive we will be ready to receive Him.

Following along in a similar channel of thought, Bro. C. E. Randall, who taught the "social problems class" for young people, gave a sermon on Sunday morning, August 12, especially for our younger members. He reviewed first, the condition of the youth of today; second, the position of their elders; and third, their own attitude toward life.

"My sympathy goes out to the youth of our land," Bro. Randall said, "for they are the innocent victims of an unjust and cruel economic and educational system. If our young people are worse than their predecessors, it is not because they are more vile, but because there are before them one thousand temptations where there was one before their elders.

"The faith of our young people has been destroyed. In the majority of our higher halls of learning disbelief in the Word of God is taught. Youth's disrespect of age is the direct result of such teaching. Eight out of every ten boys are socially, morally, and physically corrupted. Our highways are crowded with young men and women wandering without homes or restraint of any sort."

Blame for these deplorable conditions was placed by the speaker squarely on the shoulders of the parents, who have removed their attention from the home and focused it upon commercial ends. The family altar is a thing of the past; parents and children no longer spend their evenings together; home life is gone in the majority of cases. Our most valuable possession—our children—is almost totally neglected.

The attitude of the young people is a natural result of that of their parents toward things religious, for they cannot expect them to take an interest in a thing toward which they themselves are indifferent, was the speaker's opinion. And parents were counseled to be companions to their children; to point out the dangers lurking in their pathways; to train them to conquer the obstacles looming up before them.

The remedy for the unfortunate condition of the young people was pointed out by Bro. Randall to be applied by themselves. A belief in Jesus their Savior, a knowledge of His way of living, a consecration of their time and talents and strength to His service—this is the only remedy, the final solution of their problems. A stirring appeal was made to them to take Jesus as their Pilot, their Friend, and their Companion, while they are in the vigor of young manhood and young womanhood,

(over)

On August 8, those present enjoyed a sermon by Bro. Lindsay on types and shadows, and a thorough knowledge of the Old Testament was recommended for a complete understanding of the New. In the speaker's opinion every truth in the New Testament is given in type in the Old. Our Lord continually referred in His teaching to the "scriptures," which we know, of course, to be the Old Testament.

The first type considered was that of Aaron's rod which budded. "In the narrative given in Numbers 17, we have the report of a miracle," Bro. Lindsay explained. "God selected from Israel a tribe to furnish spiritual power for that people. Aaron's rod, which was a dead stick, produced leaves and fruit. God brought living power out of a condition of death.

"Herein we find a type of the resurrection. God can give us life out of death. And it is more a matter of wonderment to me that God can raise the dead, than that He brought life in the beginning.

"We have the stamp of death upon us because of sin. Not one of us can retrieve his brother from the state of death. But God has performed a miracle; He has brought forth from death a living Rod with living power, even Jesus our Savior."

The brazen serpent which God instructed Moses to erect in the wilderness was also considered. "The children of Israel constantly murmured against Moses and against God, and God caused fiery serpents to bite them so that many of them died. But when they looked upon the serpent of brass they were healed.

"As Moses lifted up the serpent for their healing, so Christ was lifted up for our healing. He was without sin; in Him there was no poison. But He was lifted up and made sin for us that through faith in Him we might be saved."

Bro. Lindsay also referred to the sacrifices offered by the Israelites and their likeness to the great Sacrifice offered in our behalf. "In Christ, the perfect Sacrifice, we come to God, offering Him at the door of the tabernacle. We can never come in our own strength. For if all we have to offer is ourselves, we offer something dead."

The sacrifices of Cain and Abel were explained by the speaker thus: Adam and Eve had two sons, both of whom brought offerings to God. Cain's offering did not speak of the blood of an innocent victim. Why the blood? God never demanded blood, but sin did. Sin in operation afflicts innocent persons.

When Jesus our Lord went before the tribunal, no fault was found in Him. But the rabble demanded His death, saying, "Away with him." Sin demanded the blood of the sinless Son of God. Those who would come before God without the blood of Jesus Christ come in their own strength, offering a bloodless sacrifice such as Cain brought.

Bro. Lindsay urged each of us to consider and meditate upon the matchless Sacrifice offered for us, accepting Him as our Offering before God, for we have no worth in ourselves.

Beginning with Genesis and taking us over into eternity with the use of a chart, Bro. Sydney Magaw spoke on the times of refreshing which shall come from God. The word "restitution" so commonly used among us and "found every week on the reading tables of all good Church of God people," was defined as similar in meaning to the word "restoration."

"For a thing to be restored it must have once been possessed," said the speaker. "In the beginning Adam and Eve enjoyed the presence of God, for we read that God walked with man in the garden. Sin entered, and perhaps the direct result was the loss of that nearness to God. Man's greatest blessing was his opportunity for direct communion with His Creator. But through sin he forfeited that joy."

By the means of the chart we were taken over into the ages of eternity, when the tabernacle of God shall once more be with man. The glories of that age were described in contrast to the sufferings of this present time. Bro. Magaw pointed out to us the unexcelled love of God, who didn't desire the earth to be peopled with eternally living sinners. His original purpose was and still is that the earth shall be the dwelling place of righteous people.

The experiences of Israel in the wilderness and later their establishment in Palestine were described by the speaker. During their idolatry they again lost their nearness to God, which resulted in dire suffering and punishment, the nation sinking lower and lower in degradation.

"But a bright Star appeared on their horizon. Christ was born and hope once more restored. God again dwelt with man in figure, in the person of His Son. However, man did not appreciate this great blessing, and Christ was crucified. Man's greatest Friend was slain."

Bro. Magaw portrayed the glories of life when sin and death shall be no more and God shall be all and in all. He urged us all to be faithful that we might be worthy of sharing in that greatest of all blessings, communion with God in an earth made new.

A valuable lesson from the life of the children of Israel, but in a quite different vein, was given on Sunday afternoon, August 12, by Bro. M. W. Lyon when he spoke on "Remnants."

"A few years ago the majority of the people of our land were busy piling up wealth. Today they are industriously endeavoring to preserve the remnants—remnants of honor, of wealth, of hope, remnants of things spiritual and material," he said in opening. "But there has never been a period in history when things looked to be at their worst when God has not reserved a remnant for Himself. At this very day in A. D. 1934, we still have the remnant of God's ancient people among us."

Bro. Lyon described the persecutions through which this remnant are passing and the purposes and plans of God for their salvation. He declared that God always works through the minority, never the majority. It is His eternal purpose and policy to bless the world of mankind through His remnant. And he illustrated this truth by the consent of a majority of the members of the Advisory Board," which was scattered throughout the country, "to acquire and hold real and personal property" on behalf of the Institution; "to sell or otherwise dispose of property; to raise money by subscription; to receive gifts, donations, and bequests; to receive and hold money in trust as foundations; . . . to employ a competent General Manager; . . ." and "to do any other necessary act for the establishment, prosecution, and accomplishment of the business of the National Bible Institution."

Please turn to Page Nine

Review of the General Conference

Continued from Front Page

The Executive Board thus found its hands absolutely tied so far as the possibility of transacting any part of the business of the Institution was concerned unless it first entered into wide correspondence and awaited the frequently unavoidable delays in communication which such correspondence entailed.

After various amendments had been suggested and withdrawn, and prolonged and thoughtful consideration had been given to every change the Committee on Revision had suggested, it was moved by George Rennard and seconded by Miss Ida Vogel that the entire Working Rules and Constitution as recommended by the committee be adopted. The motion was carried by a non-delegate vote of 31 to 1.

Several changes or additions appear in the Working Rules of the General Conference as now adopted which have to do with the purpose of the National Bible Institution, but which without exception serve only to clarify the biblical statement of the truths to be emphasized "by print and voice" under its auspices. As the entire document is to be published in THE RESTITUTION HERALD it is not necessary for us at this time to call attention specifically to them.

In preparation for the election of officers the President appointed the following Nominating Committee: W. L. Robbins of Texas, C. R. Meyerhoeffer of Nebraska, and Miss Jessie M. B. Kauffman of California. This committee was left to conduct its work wholly without instructions or advice from the chair or from other members of the retiring Executive Board.

At this point in the proceedings of the Conference C. E. Randall of Ontario, seconded by F. A. Stilson of Indiana, introduced the following resolution, accompanied with the stipulation that it be published in THE RESTITUTION HERALD.

"Be it Resolved: That we express our deepest appreciation and gratitude to the Executive Board for their untiring efforts and their unceasing devotion to the cause during the past year." The motion was carried unanimously by a rising vote.

The General Manager's report was given at the morning session on August 9. The report was made verbally and outlined in detail the prolonged effort made to reach settlement with various creditors on a basis of 50 per cent of their accounts. The manager stated that with a single exception creditors agreed that such a settlement was very satisfactory. This one concern, however, brought a suit against the Institution which was later withdrawn and the manager's 50 per cent offer accepted.

The manager further stated that he had made a deposit of $2,500 with the receiver of the defunct Oregon State Savings Bank which was to be returned to the Institution in case the bank refused to permit settlement on an adjusted basis, and in which case the amount contributed by our brethren would be held to their order.

Regarding Golden Rule Home Bro. Conner stated conclusively that it was now in the strongest financial position it had ever held. He said that the Home now held in trust more property available for its maintenance than ever in the past, and that it was his unalterable determination to keep it free from obligations connected with other features of our work.

Regarding the work of the past year the manager asserted that with the exception of a single instance Board meetings had been held every month of the year at which times the plans of the manager were carefully considered and passed upon by the other members. To this statement the editor added that unusual matters pertaining to the admission of articles into THE RESTITUTION HERALD was also presented for the consideration of the Board.

Upon motion of C. E. Randall, seconded by F. L. Austin, and carried by the Conference, the report of the manager was received and placed on file.

The report of Treasurer T. J. Ellis was presented to the Conference at the morning session of August 8, and was as follows:

TREASURER'S ANNUAL REPORT

August 1, 1933, to August 1, 1934

Balance on hand, Aug. 1, 1933		$37.39
National Bible Institution:
Receipts	$13,160.62
Disbursements		$8,764.23
Salaries		4,275.84
			$13,040.07
Home Maintenance Fund:
Receipts	$4,524.31
Disbursements		$3,930.77
Totals	$17,722.32		$16,970.84
Balance on hand, Aug. 1, 1934			$751.48
Analysis of Cash Standing:
General Fund	$300.58
Special Indebtedness Fund	96.35
Old Indebtedness Fund	354.55
Total		$751.48

As items of interest attention is directed to the fact that the publication of THE RESTITUTION HERALD resulted during the past year in a loss of $1,111.41, while the Truth Seekers' Quarterly from Jan. 1, 1934, to Aug. 1, 1934, showed a profit of $409.44

AUDITING COMMITTEE REPORT

An Auditing Committee, consisting of Miss Leota B. Hanson of Missouri and Lacey Compton of Virginia, was appointed by the President to examine the books of the Institution. Their report was as follows:

"Having checked over the Treasurer's report (and examined the books of the National Bible Institution), we find it to be correct, and in addition (to our approval of both the books and the Treasurer's report) make the following statement of the National Bible Institution for the end of the fiscal year July 31, 1934:

ASSETS		LIABILITIES
Cash on hand	$300.58	Accounts payable	$1,936.36
Real estate		Notes payable held by
Vacant lots	700.00	bank	6,582.17
Restitution Herald building	1,000.00	Notes payable held by
Prepaid Insurance	43.35	individuals	6,085.07
Accounts Receivable	237.31	Interest payable	562.60
Interest Receivable	87.25
Restitution Herald equipment	2,500.23
Total Assets	$4,868.72	Total Liabilities	$15,166.20

GOLDEN RULE HOME PROPERTY

Held in trust by the National Bible Institution.

Special Indebtedness Fund	$ 96.35
Old Indebtedness Fund	354.55
Prepaid Insurance	59.76
Real Estate:
Lanark Property	1,300.00
Arkansas Property	100.00
Golden Rule Home	9,000.00
O'Byrne Property (Oregon)	2,400.00
Kerr Property (Dixon)	1,200.00
Wood Property (California)	2,500.00
Total	$17,010.66

(Signed) L. B. Hanson, Chairman."

ELECTION OF OFFICERS

In the afternoon session of August 9, the Conference proceeded to the election of officers, at which time the Committee on Nominations, having carefully reviewed the work of the past and taken into thoughtful consideration the needs of the future, made the following recommendations:

"We recommend the nomination of the following for the offices named:

"For President, L. E. Conner; for 1st Vice President, L. T. Hanson; for 2nd Vice President, J. H. Williams; for Secretary, G. E. Marsh; for Treasurer, T. J. Ellis."

Motion was made by C. R. Meyerhoeffer, seconded by Mrs. Esta Starbuck, that the report of the Nominating Committee be received. The motion was carried and the report received and placed before the Conference for consideration. The Conference then proceeded to the nomination of President. L. E. Conner was nominated and the nominations were closed.

The Credentials Committee announced the number of votes to which each delegate was entitled.

L. E. Conner, having no opposition, received a total of 1,545.2 votes, and was declared elected.

Nominations were made for 1st Vice President, L. T. Hanson and Paul C. Johnson being named. Election resulted in L. T. Hanson receiving 1,524.8 votes and Paul C. Johnson, 71.7. L. T. Hanson was declared elected.

Nominations were then made for 2nd Vice President, resulting in the selection of J. H. Williams and Glenn M. Birkey. J. H. Williams received 1,322.6 votes and Glenn M. Birkey, 297.5. J. H. Williams was declared elected.

The only nominee for Secretary was G. E. Marsh. In the election he received 1,595 votes and was declared elected.

The past Treasurer, T. J. Ellis, was the only nominee for the office he had held. He received 1,568 votes and was declared elected.

Thus the entire Council Board was reelected and became once more the Executive Board of the National Bible Institution.

C. E. Randall (Ontario) expressed his appreciation for the work done by Manager L. E. Conner and W. L. Robbins (Texas) congratulated the entire Board on its services.

At the session held on the morning of August 10, a communication from Herbert H. Holland, Business Manager of the Bible Faith Mission, with headquarters located at Limestone, Maine, and which carries on missionary work in India, was read. It was moved by F. A. Stilson, seconded by C. E. Randall, that the Secretary acknowledge the communication and convey the sentiment in it to such churches as feel the desire and ability to do foreign missionary work. Carried. The general sentiment of the Conference was against cooperation financially at present, however.

A letter from Miss Alta King on behalf of the Waterloo and Cedar Falls, Iowa, Church of God was read. Moved by C. E. Randall, seconded by Miss Leota B. Hanson, to place the report on file without comment. Carried.

A letter from Mr. and Mrs. James A. Patrick was read. It was moved by M. W. Lyon, seconded by Mrs. T. J. Ellis, that the communication be received and placed on file. Carried.

Extensive discussion of the financial condition of the National Bible Institution was engaged in, and the possibility of its endeavoring to do evangelistic work in new and undeveloped fields was taken up. Although the sentiment of the Conference was decidedly in favor of such evangelization, the majority felt that the financial condition of the church in general prohibited it at the present.

The proposal was made by M. W. Lyon that the Secretary hereafter include detailed reports of membership, losses, and baptisms in the several churches and conferences in his annual report. The Conference favored such a policy, and while no definite action was taken the recommendation was made that the Secretary prepare a blank report to be submitted to the various churches and conferences to be filled out and returned to him before each annual General Conference.

Please turn to Back Page

Declaration of Understanding of the General Conference of the Church of God and Constitution of the National Bible Institution

A DECLARATION OF UNDERSTANDING OF WHAT SCRIPTURALLY CONSTITUTES A CONFERENCE

1. We understand that a conference is a conferring together of any or all members of the church who may choose to be present.

2. That by voluntary assembly members of the church meet at designated time and place to confer on any or all matters pertaining to Christian welfare, working toward better understanding of truth and more unity where differences of faith exist, evangelization, pastoral work, church organization according to Bible teaching, printing and dissemination of literature and books, charitable and benevolent work, and all other Christian activity.

3. That the overseers of the church consist of evangelists, pastors, teachers, elders, and deacons.

4. That in such conference each individual member should conduct himself in a Christian spirit.

5. In harmony with the foregoing understanding, we, the people of the Church of God in the United States and Canada, hereby resolve to associate ourselves in General Conference, and adopt the following

WORKING RULES

I. (6) Every member of the Church of God at large who approves of the aforesaid spirit, aim, and purpose upon request and registration shall become a member of this Conference in the full enjoyment of any and all its mutual privileges and services. Those who prefer may be registered collectively through their respective churches or state and district conferences.

II. (7) This Conference shall meet once each year at such time and place as may be determined upon by the Council Board or by action of the Conference, but in no case shall the date fixed be earlier than July 1 or later than August 31; and at such other time or times as may be deemed necessary. Announcement of the time and place of meeting shall be made at least one month in advance of the date set for the Conference by publication in The Restitution Herald.

III. (8) General Headquarters shall be located at Oregon, Illinois, reserving the right to meet at other places as may be determined.

IV. (9) The officers of this General Conference shall consist of President, 1st Vice President, 2nd Vice President, Secretary, and Treasurer, which officers collectively shall constitute a Council Board.

V. (10) The qualifications of the members of the above mentioned Council Board are such as are given in 1 Timothy 3, Titus 1, and such other scriptures as teach what qualifications leaders should have.

VI. (11) For purposes of conducting the business of this General Conference, this Council Board shall be incorporated under the name "National Bible Institution."

VII. (12) The terms of office shall regularly begin at the close of the Conference at which the election of officers shall have been completed, said term to continue for one year or until successors are duly elected and qualified.

VIII. (13) The General Conference shall be composed of individual members and delegates as follows: Each state shall be represented by delegate or delegates. Where states are organized into state conferences they shall be entitled to vote by delegates appointed by the state conference or its Executive Board 50 per cent of its membership. Each organized church in the state shall be entitled to appoint delegates with power to vote 50 per cent of its membership. Any church or any number of members not associated with a state conference shall be allowed a 100 per cent representation. Any member of any state conference or church who shall be present at any conference session shall be allowed voice and vote, but such vote shall first be deducted from the delegate vote of his church or state conference or both. Any isolated member of the General Conference who is not a member of any state conference or church organization shall, if present, have voice and vote in any conference session.

The names of members and, if possible, the address of each member so represented shall be furnished and certified by the proper officer to the Secretary of the General Conference before the session at which their votes shall be cast.

IX. (14) The election of officers shall take place at as early a session of the Annual Conference as may be convenient. Nominations may be made from the floor, but election shall be by ballot only. A majority vote shall elect. In case no majority is received by any nominee by the third electing ballot, balloting shall continue, after eliminating at this and each succeeding ballot the name receiving the lowest number of votes until an election is declared, provided that no officer shall assume duties of office if there is scripturally sustained objection. This rule shall not be waived.

X. (15) The duties of the several officers shall be such as usually devolve upon officers of corresponding designation.

XI. (16) The several officers of this Conference shall, ex-officio, exercise the duties of officers of corresponding designation in the National Bible Institution according to the terms of the Constitution governing said National Bible Institution.

XII. (17) A quorum for the transaction of business in General Conference convened shall consist of not less than 5 per cent of its membership represented either in person or by proper representative.

A quorum for the transaction of business of the Council Board shall consist of not less than three of its members.

Less than a quorum may adjourn from time to time until such time as a quorum is present.

XIII. (18) This instrument as adopted shall be referred back to the membership for ratification; and when one thousand members, including three conferences, shall have ratified it it shall become operative.

XIV. (19) The purposes for which the National Bible Institution shall be incorporated are:

A. That evangelistic work be extended to meet the needs of the church everywhere, and to open up new fields of missionary activity.

B. That publishing facilities be provided under capable editorial supervision for the issuance of all necessary literature, such as books and booklets, tracts, and systematized lesson leaflets, either for sale or free distribution—this not with a view to supplant any other established work.

C. That facilities be provided to aid in the education of those desiring to prepare themselves for the ministry, Bible teaching, or other religious work.

D. That a board of benevolences be organized to minister to individual needs as they may arise.

E. The board which shall be chosen to supervise the labor of executing these purposes is hereby exhorted to walk in a manner worthy of the calling wherewith they were called, "with all lowliness and meekness, with long-suffering, forbearing one another (throughout the church) in love; endeavoring to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace." That in such oneness of Spirit they shall unite in an effort to edify the body of Christ in utilizing the contributed strength of the church to affirm by print and voice the following biblical truths and kindred truths, viz:

(a) That there is "one God and Father of all, who is above all, and through all, and in you all" (Eph. 4:6).

(b) That "God sent his only begotten Son into the world, that we might live through him" (1 John 4:9).

(c) That "God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life" (John 3:16).

(d) That "Christ died for our sins according to the scriptures; and that he was buried, and that he rose again the third day according to the scriptures" (1 Cor. 15:3, 4).

(e) That God "only hath immortality" (1 Tim. 6:16).

(f) That God "will render to every man according to his deeds: to them who by patient continuance in well doing seek for glory and honour and immortality, eternal life" (Rom. 2:6, 7).

(g) That "Christ was once offered to bear the sins of many"; as our High Priest He now sits "at the right hand of God"; "and unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation."

(h) That "when the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory: and before him shall be gathered all nations; and he shall separate them one from another" (Matt. 25:31, 32). And He shall "judge the world in righteousness" (Psa. 9:8). "For he must reign, till he hath put all enemies under his feet" (1 Cor. 15:25).

(i) That we, "are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus. For as many of (us) as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ . . . And if (we) be Christ's, then are (we) Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise" (Gal. 3:26, 27, 29).

(j) That "we are buried with him by baptism into death: that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life" (Rom. 6:4).

(k) That all who are new creatures in Christ Jesus "should not henceforth live unto themselves, but unto him which died for them, and rose again" (2 Cor. 5:15).

(l) That Jesus Christ is to return to the earth "in like manner" as He went away, following which event "the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David: and he shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever," and there shall be "given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom, that all people, nations, and languages, should serve him: his dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed" (Luke 1:32, 33; Dan. 7:14).

(m) That "now being made free from sin, and become servants to God, ye have your fruit unto holiness, and the end everlasting life. For the wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord" (Rom. 6:22, 23).

(n) That "there shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and unjust" (Acts 24:15).

(o) That "all scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness: that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works" (2 Tim. 3:16, 17).

CONSTITUTION FOR NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION

Authorized by the General Conference of the Church of God

ARTICLE I

Section 1. The Council Board of the General Conference of the Church of God shall be incorporated under the name "National Bible Institution."

Section 2. General Headquarters shall be located at Oregon, Illinois, reserving the right to transact business at other places as may be determined by the General Conference when in session or by the Executive Board when the General Conference is not in session.

Section 3. The object for which this Institution is formed is to carry on religious, educational, and charitable work as may be determined from time to time by the General Conference of the Church of God, none of which shall be for pecuniary profit.

ARTICLE II

Section 1. The officers of this Institution shall be President, 1st Vice President, 2nd Vice President, Secretary, and Treasurer. These officers shall constitute its Executive Board.

Section 2. The officers of the General Conference of the Church of God shall be, ex-officio, corresponding officers of this corporation.

Section 3. The work undertaken by this Institution shall be divided into departments as follows: Evangelistic, Publishing, Educational, Benevolent, and other necessary departments as may be essential from time to time, each department to be provided with its own department head, all under the administration of the National Bible Institution.

ARTICLE III

Section 1. It shall be the duty of the President to call and preside at all General Conference and Board meetings, and to perform all other duties properly belonging to the presiding officer, not otherwise provided for.

Section 2. It shall be the duties of the Vice Presidents to assist the President when called upon by him in the discharge of his executive duties, and to act in his stead in their order of precedence in case of the absence or disability of the President.

Section 3. It shall be the duty of the Secretary to keep the minutes of all Board meetings; and a record of the activities and accomplishments of said Institution; to report such minutes and records to the General Conference when requested to do so, and at any other time when called for by the President or Executive Board; to receive all money, making record of the same, and to transfer such funds to the Treasurer, taking receipt therefor; to issue all orders for disbursement of money for whatever purpose, except that the General Manager shall have authority to order the payment of bills in limited amounts; to keep records of such disbursements; and to countersign all checks.

Section 4. It shall be the duty of the Treasurer to receive all money from the Secretary giving receipt therefor, to disburse same, and to keep an accurate account thereof; to safely keep the funds of said Institution, pay out same only upon orders issued by the Secretary or General Manager; to make full annual report of such receipts and expenditures to the General Conference at its annual meeting, and to the Executive Board upon request; to submit such reports for publication; and to keep the accounts of said Institution so as to show its financial standing at all times. The Treasurer's annual report, before presentation to the General Conference, shall be audited by a competent auditor, or auditing committee, whose written report shall faithfully state any discrepancy or failure of the Treasurer. The Treasurer shall furnish surety to the satisfaction of the Executive Board.

Section 5. It shall be the duty of the Executive Board to transact and administer the business of said Institution in accordance with the Constitution and By-Laws as herein provided. Meetings of the Executive Board shall be held at the call of the President, or of two or more members of said Board, notice having been given of the date and place of meeting a reasonable time in advance. Notice by mail, telephone, telegram, publication in The Restitution Herald, or in person, shall be deemed sufficient. The Executive Board shall have power to devise ways and means to accomplish the objects of said Institution as set forth in Article I, Section 3. The Executive Board is also empowered

(a) To acquire and hold real and personal property;

(b) To sell or otherwise dispose of property;

(c) To raise money by subscription;

(d) To receive gifts, donations, and bequests;

(e) To receive and hold money in trust as foundations or endowments, the profits of which shall be used in maintaining the work of said Institution;

(f) To employ a competent General Manager;

(g) To employ competent executive heads over each of the various departments, with the right of combining the work of two or more departments under one head;

(h) To fill temporarily by appointment any office that may become vacant through sickness, resignation, prolonged absence, or death of any incumbent to the expiration of his elective term, except that of the President.

(i) To do any other necessary act for the establishment, prosecution, and accomplishment of the business of the National Bible Institution.

ARTICLE IV

Section 1. The financial policy of the National Bible Institution shall be based wholly upon the principle of voluntary contribution.

The Executive Board shall be governed in the work undertaken by the voluntary support of those interested.

ARTICLE V

Section 1. A quorum of the Executive Board for the transacting of business shall consist of not less than three members. Less than a quorum may adjourn from time to time until such time as a quorum is present.

ARTICLE VI

Section 1. This Constitution may be amended, altered, or revised by a two-thirds majority vote of those present, notice having been given of the proposed amendment or revision in at least three consecutive numbers of The Restitution Herald, the first appearance thereof to be at least thirty days prior to the convening of the General Conference by which it is to be considered. Said notice shall state plainly the nature and purpose of the amendment or revision. Publication in The Restitution Herald as above stated shall be deemed sufficient notice.

Section 2. Necessary By-Laws may be adopted for the accomplishment of the purposes of said Institution as set forth in the Constitution by action of the General Conference. Amendments or revision of the By-Laws may be made under the rules governing such amendments or revisions of the Constitution as provided in Article VI, Section 1, of this Constitution.

BY-LAWS of the

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION

Section 1. The President of the Executive Board of the National Bible Institution shall appoint a competent auditor, or auditing committee, whose duty it shall be to examine the books and other financial records of the Treasurer of said Institution and make a full report of their condition in writing to the General Conference at its annual meeting, or at such other time or times as may be required. Said auditor, or auditing committeemen, shall in no case be a member of the Executive Board, or personally interested in the disposition of the funds of such Institution.

CONFERENCE ECHOES

Continued from Page Four

fact that Noah and seven others were preserved, through the intervening power of God, to replenish the earth.

"Just as it was God's good pleasure to give the earth to Noah and his family, just so will He give His kingdom to the remnant of His people. 'Fear not, little flock,' says the Master; 'it is the Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom.'"

That the faithful today are God's remnant, through whom He will work for the salvation of His ancient people and all of mankind, was shown by the speaker. "That remnant will save the situation for the rest of the world. Man's extremity is God's opportunity. And He has a definite purpose in all that is coming upon man. God plans to make out of all this chaos something more glorious and beautiful than man has yet dreamed of, for salvation lies with His remnant."

Further illustrations were used by the speaker to show that victory lies not in large numbers. Only twelve men were called to be Christ's apostles, but through their efforts the gospel was carried to the ends of the earth. Only ten righteous men would have saved Sodom from destruction, could they have been found. The Christian population of China, only one per cent of all her people, means more to China today than all her ninety-nine per cent of idolaters.

"Let us not fear, nor lose our courage and faith, because we are far outnumbered by non-believers. The majority may rule the world, but God saves the situation through the remnants. God ever keeps watch above His own, and He will continue to do so until we hear the Master's voice calling us to meet Him in the air. What a glorious destiny is ours," were Bro. Lyon's concluding assurances.

The final sermon of the conference was given by Bro. Austin, whose theme was, "Faith, Hope, and Charity." In this sermon he defined each of these important words and showed how important they are in living the Christian life.

Reversing their order, he declared that charity, or love, as other versions render the word, is best expressed in service to others, thus serving God. Our first thought should be to serve God truly and faithfully.

Hope was discussed next, the hope of the Church of God particularly. "My hope is that my Savior will come and banish sin, until the glory of the Lord shall fill the entire earth. My hope causes me to press forward, is the incentive that causes me to serve, as expressed in charity to others. I am saved by my hope."

The real meaning of the word "faith" was dwelt on at more length by the speaker. "Faith is that which I manifest toward my God and my Savior. It is my confidence in His Word, my devotion to His cause. I have faith that God will do all He has promised for me. I question not.

"The scientist doubts the possibility of a resurrection. No science known to man can resurrect; therefore, he says it cannot be done. But the same God who can make man of the dust can remake him. And I have faith that He will.

"God has also assured me that if I ask forgiveness He will grant it. I cannot understand how He can make a vile sinner pure and clean, but I believe it. I take Him at His word. That is faith.

"My Scripture tells me God will go with me to the end of the world. I don't know how He will, but I believe it, nevertheless. He also assures me that whatsoever I ask in faith believing, that will I receive. The promise looms up large before me, so large I cannot fathom it, but I believe it implicitly.

"If I practice charity to my fellow men as my Savior practiced and taught me to practice, then I have some prospect of realizing my hope. And if I have hope, then I begin to have faith. I must start with charity; it blooms into hope, and increases in faith. Faith grows and assures us of life from the great Fountainhead of all life. May we develop a faith that wavers not."

These words but imperfectly express the wonderful admonitions given us by Bro. Austin at the concluding service and those of the other speakers as well. May they bring pleasure and profit to those who were not able to attend the conference at Oregon.

Abreast of the Times

Pope Is Disappointed

"Despisers of those that are good, . . . lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God."—2 Timothy 3:3, 4.

VATICAN CITY, Aug. 14.—The Pope is reported as greatly disappointed in the failure of Italian Catholics to observe the ban his "Holiness" has placed upon certain sex films recently. It is asserted that Catholic patrons of the movies, even in Rome itself, are disregarding the expressed determination of the Pope to prevent the attendance of his people at such shows.

Commenting on the current international film exhibition at Venice, the Osservatore Romano, official newspaper of the Vatican, today deplored the fact that "Little Women," a clean and wholesome picture, got but a lukewarm reception and that a picture of French cathedrals was booed, while the biggest success was the Czechoslovakian film, "Ecstasy"—banned throughout the world except in France.

So long as depraved human nature rules the world commercialized amusement will continue to provide publicly or privately immoral exhibitions. Nothing but the cleansing of the heart by Jesus Christ can change the lustful desires of the heart, and nothing but the coming of the Prince of Righteousness will bring about universal purity.

Surgeons vs. Faith

"Use a little wine for thy stomach's sake and thine often infirmities."—1 Tim. 5:23. "The prayer of faith shall save the sick."—James 5:15.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 18.—"My chance with the living God is as good as your chance with the physicians," declared John Hoffman, a motorman, as he refused to give his consent for an operation to be performed on the leg of his sixteen year old son, who was suffering from the result of an accident he met with two years ago.

Both Mr. Hoffman and his son were members of a faith-healing sect known as the Faith Tabernacle. The father contended with Judge Theodore Rosen that it was not "right to take a matter like this out of God's hands. Somebody will have to answer for it on Judgment Day."

The will of the judge prevailed, however, and John, Jr., was placed under medical observation, and later, despite his and his father's protests, underwent an operation in which three and a half inches of decaying bone were successfully removed from the boy's right leg, which had become stiffened as the disease spread.

Commenting sympathetically on the case, the Ohio State Journal declared editorially, according to The Literary Digest:

"No intelligent person who believes in a Divinity questions the value of faith and prayer in sickness. But, at the same time, a bit of reflection ought to reveal that the same Divinity that can heal by faith and prayer also is able to equip physicians, doctors, and nurses with knowledge, materia medica, and equipment to combat disease.

"Indeed, the most noted of the world's doctors are men who believe whole-heartedly in faith and prayer, as readily and completely as they believe in medicine, surgery, and the hospitals."

Germany Approves Hitler Policies

"Oppress not the . . . stranger."—Zech. 7:10.

BERLIN, Germany, Aug. 20.—By a vote of ten to one the citizens of Germany yesterday confirmed the absolute dictatorship of Adolf Hitler over that country and indicated their approval of his political policies, which include bitter anti-Semitism and the nationalization and governmental domination of religion. This overwhelming vote of confidence in Hitler's ability to lead the nation out of the prolonged period of distress into which it entered at the close of the war was anticipated. The presence at the polls and on every street corner of uniformed storm troopers bearing such slogans as, "Hitler, born of the people, is chosen as leader," and, "The leader commands and we shall obey," no doubt had much to do with the result of the election as well as the fact that the Chancellor had no opposition.

The entire nation turned out en masse to celebrate the popular confirmation of Mr. Hitler in his dual office of President and Chancellor. The Associated Press says that "Germany's great army of voters goosestepping to the polls was a vast demonstration of the dictator's might." Old and young took part in the great victorious parade that marked the "leader's" popularity.

Jewish World Conference

"To make them a desolation, an astonishment, an hissing, and a curse; as it is this day."—Jer. 25:18.

GENEVA, Aug. 20.—A world conference of the Jews will meet today in this city to consider the widespread anti-Semitic sentiment that is said to be developing rapidly in all countries. A protest will be made to the League of Nations in which the League will be asked to bring vigorous pressure to bear upon Germany to prevent further Jewish persecution there. With the establishment of a shadowy government of their own in the ancient homeland of their fathers, coupled with the conviction that their financiers still hold the purse strings of the world, the Jewish leaders are becoming more determined and insistent in the demands they make upon the world for protection from their racial enemies. It is becoming ever more apparent that God's solution of the Jewish problem, that is, to restore them to their own land, is the only feasible one.

Berean Department

ARLEN MARSH, EDITOR

THE Twenty-First Annual Conference of the National Berean Society was called to order in the Church of God at Oregon, Illinois, by President C. A. Smead on August 6, 1934. The program of the day followed closely the regular Illinois Bible School schedule, the only class that was discontinued being that usually held at 10:45 a. m. In its place were substituted the classes generally held at 9:15.

The morning session opened at 8:40 with a song. Prayer was offered by M. W. Lyon. The President read a short excerpt from the Bible. The remainder of the session was devoted to the reception and discussion of reports from the various committees and subsidiary Berean organizations. A paper from Miss Verna Himmelright, Attica, Indiana, describing the work of the Senior Home Study Committee, of which she is chairman, was read. Reports indicated that total membership was approximately the same as it had been the year before; but they also indicated that the state societies were losing their members and influence.

It was decided at this session that the incoming Board should prepare a pamphlet for local societies, indicating the best methods of securing and maintaining organization, giving possible programs, duties of officers, and similar practical aids to local workers. The suggestion included the thought that each officer of every local society should be supplied with a free copy of the pamphlet. At a subsequent meeting of the Executive Board, M. W. Lyon was appointed chairman of a committee to prepare the pamphlet.

At 10:30 the meeting recessed. Prayer was given by Gerald Cooper.

The afternoon session convened at 3:05. Following a hymn, Mrs. Pearl Zechiel, President of the Indiana State Berean Society, offered prayer.

A paper by F. E. Siple was read to furnish the Conference with a description of the organization employed by the Grand Rapids, Michigan, Berean Society, which has four classes with an average attendance of more than seventy. There was a twenty-minute discussion of the best methods for organizing and conducting Berean classes. It was stressed that the various age groups should be separated and that variety should be introduced into the program.

The annual business meeting followed immediately this discussion. Section 6 of Article II of the By-Laws was eliminated by a unanimous vote of the Conference. This action abolished the Relief Committee. The Executive Board determined to place the small amount held by the old Relief Committee at the disposal of Mrs. Orpha Sanford, who conducts private relief work among the church members.

An extended discussion of the purposes of the Berean Department of THE RESTITUTION HERALD resulted in a unanimous determination that the policy described in the box on this page should be continued by the editor.

Nominations and balloting for the various officers resulted in the election of Cecil A. Smead, Blanchard, Michigan, President; Gerald Lee Cooper, Ripley, Illinois, 1st Vice President; Harvey Krogh, Jr., Pearl City, Illinois, 2nd Vice President; Miss Genniel Carpenter, Oregon, Illinois, Secretary; and Mrs. Esta Starbuck, Rockford, Illinois, Treasurer. Arlen Marsh was appointed Secretary pro tempore by the President in the absence of Miss Carpenter.

In the evening, beginning at 7:30, a half-hour song service was conducted under the leadership of Mrs. Esta Starbuck. A quartet composed of Clarence E. Lapp, Gerald Lee Cooper, Harvey Krogh, Jr., and Richard Le Crone gave a special vocal selection.

Harry Goekler, pastor of the Salem Church of God near Marshall, Illinois, delivered the sermon, which was based on the inquiry made by God of Moses: "What is in thy hand?" The sermon pointed out the failure of church workers, and particularly young people, to recognize and to use the talents they possess, and urged a more active participation in the affairs of the Christian church by every member.

Only two committee changes were made during the sessions of the Board: Genniel Carpenter was placed on the Publishing Committee in place of Norman John MacLeod; and Mrs. Lulu Stilson was made chairman of the Junior Home Study Committee, replacing Virginia Kincheloe.

The Policy Stands

Owing to the voice of criticism heard now and then from various parts of the country in regard to the prevailing policy of the Berean Page, your editor put the question before the Conference of the National Berean Society. By a unanimous vote of the Bereans present the Conference declared in favor of the continuance of the editor's policy.

This department, therefore, will be devoted to the service of Christian young people. It will urge young people to take their proper place within the church; it will attempt to provide practical suggestions for the organization and maintenance of Berean societies, which primarily are for the young people of the Church of God and their associates; and it will furnish space for these young people to exchange their views on religion, practical church business, and allied matters. Manuscripts are solicited from those of all ages who are interested in seeing youth's faith in God and in the Bible permanently strengthened.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"Even a child is known by his doings."

AT ILLINOIS BIBLE SCHOOL

SO many interesting things happened at Oregon during our Bible school which just closed that I am going to tell you about some of them today. If all of you could have been there you would have had the best vacation you ever had, because you would have spent your time learning some of the best things there are to learn. Besides, you would have met some of the nicest teachers and many other boys and girls of your own ages there.

First we will begin with the tiny tots' class, taught by Mrs. Thayer. These were little boys and girls who are not old enough to go to school, and you should have seen them act out Bible stories. There must have been more than twenty enrolled altogether in this class. Some of them were real artists, too, coloring their Bible pictures very nicely.

One day when I visited their class they acted out the story of Peter in prison. All except Peter stayed in one room, and they were praying that God should help Peter out of prison. Pretty soon a loud knock came on the door, and one little girl ran to answer it. She was Rhoda, you know, and she just stood there with her eyes and mouth open, saying, "It's Peter!"

All the others said, "It can't be Peter; he's in prison."

Then they let Peter in, and they were so happy to see him out of prison once more. Now if you've forgotten this nice story, look in Acts 12, and then get your playmates together and act it out. It's lots of fun, and, besides, you are learning something about God at the same time. You see, God answered their prayers, and they knew it.

Then another day they played the story of Paul on the road to Damascus. You know, that time when the bright light shone down on him from heaven and he became blind. They seemed to like this story very much. A little boy was Paul, and a little girl was the light, and you could tell what story they were acting all right. Try it yourselves some day.

They did fine with the one about Paul and Silas in prison, too. You know, where the earthquake came and freed the prisoners. You should have seen the stocks and the chains they had made themselves to hold the prisoners fast. One little boy always wanted to be the earthquake which shook the door and loosened the chains and locks.

Then one day Mrs. Thayer made a big sailboat, big enough for the whole class to get into. And here's how she did it. On the floor she drew the shape of a big boat with chalk; then she made a sail from a sheet and fastened it to the ceiling and floor. They all took their places in the boat and played the story of Peter trying to walk on the water. Wouldn't you like to have been there?

Now the boys and girls from 6 to 10 were taught by Mrs. Lapp, and they certainly were busy and happy. She had made fifty books with pictures to color and verses to learn. The books were called, "Model Christians."

On each page was a Bible character, one for each letter of the title of the book, such as Hannah, Lydia, Timothy, and last and best of all, our Savior, Jesus. There was a little poem for each one, too. They colored the pictures and learned the poems and verses, and, of course, the story connected with each name.

When Bible school was over they took their books home to keep, and I know they will look over them often during the year and think of the good times they had at Oregon. I saw several of their books, and they really were fine. Mrs. Lapp put lots of work on them, and the boys and girls appreciated it, I know.

The older girls and boys, from 10 to 13, were taught by Bro. Thayer, and he had a large class, too. I didn't get time to visit them, and I'm sorry I didn't because I could tell you better about it if I had. They studied Bible characters, such as Noah, Abraham, Moses, etc. They wrote, and drew, and learned verses, and did many interesting and valuable things. In this class were girls and boys from Indiana, Texas, Minnesota, Michigan, and Ohio, besides Illinois.

Now, you know, whenever any of these boys or girls have some of the lessons in Sunday school that they studied in Bible school, all the different parts of the story will come to their minds at once. They'll know where to look in their Bibles to find them, and their teachers will surely be glad that they went to Bible school.

Besides all this, they learned many things that will help them throughout their whole lives, things about God and His love for us, about Jesus, our Example, and how we should follow in His steps. Won't you try to come with your parents to Oregon next year to our Bible school?

O Master, deign this church to bless,
This house of prayer, this home of rest;
And let its door a gateway be
To lead us from ourselves to Thee.

—Whittier.

The Sunday School Lesson

FROM TRUTH SEEKERS' QUARTERLY

LESSON 10. — September 2, 1934

MICAH CHAMPIONS THE OPPRESSED

Micah 2 to 4 and 6:1 to 7:6

Devotional Reading: James 1:22-27

GOLDEN TEXT

He hath shewed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?—Micah 6:8.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic: Micah Champions the Oppressed.

Aim: God condemns dishonesty and the oppressions of the poor.

Basic Truth: "Give, and it shall be given unto you; good measure, pressed down, and shaken together, and running over."—Luke 6:38.

I. God's Challenge to Israel. (Micah 6:1-5.) The challenge which God addresses to Israel might be applied to any nation in the world. For there is no people upon whom the Lord has not poured out His abundant blessings, and there is no nation which has not shown the grossest ingratitude. Should our own country be called upon to show cause why it has so grievously sinned against God, what defense could it make before Him? Surely David was right in concluding that God "hath not dealt with us after our sins; nor rewarded us according to our iniquities" (Psa. 103:10).

II. What Does God Require? (Vv. 6, 7.) The questions are put into the mouth of a personified nation, yet they include some of the essential qualities of character God demands in every man. Each should ask himself these same questions, and seek the answer in God's Word. Even under the gospel dispensation the requirements differ with different men. Of course faith and obedience to the gospel is required of all. But in addition to that each entrant into the body of Christ has special services to render. God would not demand of the man who had never used liquor that he cease to be a drunkard. But there would be other conditions for him to meet. There is overcoming for each to do to meet the Lord's requirements and to render acceptable service.

III. Justice, Mercy, Humbleness. (Vv. 8-12.) God required of Israel that justice should be rendered to all. That mercy should be extended and a love for mercy developed in the heart of the nation. That humbleness should mark its attitude toward God. He condemned every kind of dishonesty, especially that which led to the oppression and robbery of the poor, and warned the rich that their sacrifices of dishonestly acquired wealth were an abomination to Him. The three requirements named in this lesson will form the basic law of God's kingdom when Jesus comes.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"He hath shewed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?"—Micah 6:8.

Israel lived under the law, not under the gospel. God dealt differently with His people under the law than He does now with His people in the gospel age. God told Israel at different times what He wanted them to do. In Deuteronomy 10:12 we find that God wanted Israel to fear Him, to walk in His ways, to love and serve Him with all their hearts. If they walked humbly before God, no doubt they would do justly, and love mercy, for with humility comes the other graces of God.

God requires obedience just as much now as He did under the law. He also wants our love and service. Now it is "by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God."—Eph. 2: 8.

—L. A. R.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

What

—has God done that ye should not serve Him?

—can you testify against Him?

—are you doing in return for God's goodness?

—will you say in defense of your slothfulness?

—will you do in the day of judgment?

A Challenge. God challenges Israel to bring forth evidence against Him as reason and justification for their going a-whoring after other gods and not serving Him the only true God. His plea is touching. "O my people, what have I done unto thee? and wherein have I wearied thee?" God had abundantly blessed Israel. He had delivered them out of Egypt in a mighty and miraculous manner; providentially cared for them in their wilderness sojourn; led them into and gave them the land flowing with milk and honey; and continued to daily bless them—and now why should they react against Him in view of His goodness and mercy to them? If Israel were to accept this challenge and testify against God, they would have to say, "He has done us good and not evil all the days of our life."

How Would We Testify? Could Gentiles give any reasons for their continued rejection of and opposition to God? Surely the Father of all benefits has been as beneficent to Gentiles that are under the gospel banner in this age as He has to the dispersed of Israel, yet the bulk are rebellious and altogether indifferent to God's goodness and long-suffering. Ingratitude characterizes the attitude of most people. How can we explain such? Surely all should serve the Lord God "with joyfulness, and with gladness of heart, for the abundance of all things" (Deut. 28:47).—C. E. R.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULTS

Applied Religion

Jesus championed the cause of the poor and oppressed, but He did it in a much different way than it is done today. Were He living now, it is very doubtful if His voice would be heard over the radio condemning the international banker, Wall Street, and a host of others. Neither would He be found striving for the passage of laws that would suppress these. He did none of these things when He was here before and His command to the twelve was to preach the gospel of the kingdom. In His parable of the tares and the wheat He commanded to let the tares grow lest some of the wheat be destroyed. However, He did promise a separation in the last days, which work will be done by angels and not by His followers. Paul tells us that the rulers of the world are God's ministers unto us for good. We who have the gospel to teach should be content to let God and His ministers do their part of the work. We must learn the lesson learned so bitterly by Nebuchadnezzar (Dan. 4:32). Jesus rebuked the scribes and Pharisees for stealing widow's houses but He made no effort to stop them. It is the lot of Christ's followers to warn people of their evil ways and to tell them that God will surely remember their sins in the day of judgment. When we have done that our work is finished. We are not under law today but under grace, therefore let the tares grow until God sends His angels to the harvest. The tares may choke the wheat, but our Master knew this and still said to let them grow. We must have faith.

Applied religion is the living of the Christ-life day by day, keeping His commands as best we can, seeking His strength and guidance in our weakness.—H. A. S.

PRIMARY

Topic: The Farmer Prophet, Micah.

Today we're going to visit a farmer who lives in the village of Moresheth. His name is Micah. He is a great leader as well as a prophet. He was also chosen by God to tell us about some of the wickedness of his day.

He seems to be talking most about the rich. He says they are so very greedy that they try to get even the tiny huts.

They go to war that they may gain more land. They crowd out the men who own small farms. They take women and children out of their pleasant homes.

He sees their wickedness everywhere and he knows that these things will be here until we get a better ruler.

He then tells us how things will be when Jesus comes to earth to be our King. The poor will be taken care of then. There will be no more wars. The people will all live together in peace. Remember when Micah is talking Jesus has not even been born. But Micah tells us where He will be born.

Micah says Jesus will be born in Bethlehem. If he knows this, I'm sure we can depend on what he says about Jesus coming to be our King.—V. C. T.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CONFERENCE DATES

Virginia Bible School and Conference at Maurertown, August 16 to 26
Nebraska Conference at Holbrook
August 19 to 26
Iowa Conference at Waterloo,
Aug. 21 to 26

IOWA CONFERENCE

The following conference announcement reached us too late to appear in our last issue, and consequently is too late to be of much practical use as an advertising effort. We publish it, however, with the hope that it may induce some to attend the closing days of the conference at least.—Editor.

Time: August 21-26 inclusive.

Place: Campgrounds, Waterloo, Iowa.

Speakers and Teachers: L. E. Conner, O. J. Allard, H. S. Hunt, Alta King, Adelle Howe, and Doris Cronbaugh.

Berean Day: Thursday, August 23.

Please bring fruits and vegetables if possible. Also remember Conference dues and local church reports. Tents furnished free. Meals 10 cents.

We especially invite ministers from out of the state to attend these meetings. "Come let us worship together."

Esther D. Sealine, Cor. Sec.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

With disappointment buried deep in our heart at being deprived by ill health of the privilege of meeting with the brethren in General Conference we turn for consolation to renewed effort in the church work in southern California. We know that "all things work together for good" for those who have their hearts in God's work, and are hence looking forward to a better day when we may meet the brethren, if not at Oregon, Ill., then at Jesus' feet.

Sunday morning, Aug. 5, found us indeed thankful to be able to be out to Sunday school and church services for the first time since our stay at the hospital. We know not what a blessed privilege it is to stand and administer the Communion service until we are deprived of that privilege for a time. Sr. Railsback gave a most forceful sermon on the veil that covers the world, taking her text from Isaiah 25:7, preceded by a short talk by Bro. Brady. After the regular services of the morning we were delightfully surprised when Bro. Brady presented us with a beautiful briefcase upon which our name is engraved. No gift could be more appreciated than this one; we do not believe in mind reading, but we are inclined to think that such must have been the case, for we have been desiring a briefcase for many years.

We have been enjoying the visit of the Johns family of Blair, Neb.; they have helped to swell our numbers and to add interest to the various classes which they have attended while here. We only wish they could remain with us permanently. At the present writing we trust that the Crundwells and Cripes are at their destination in Texas and are enjoying their visit. We are gratified to report that Srs. Lizzie Railsback and L. E. Rich are much improved from their long drawn out illnesses. Sr. Chapman of Lynwood is also a great deal better.

Norman John MacLeod.

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA

The attendance at the church services has kept up remarkably well so far through the summer months. We have been pleased to welcome a number of visitors from other states, the last ones being Bro. and Sr. Johns, their son Arnold, and daughters Janet and Mary, from Blair, Neb. Their sons Edmund and Robert with their families of southern California were also guests at our services.

Sr. Alma Brandt is returning to her former home in Yakima, Wash. We shall miss her very much. Sr. Ora Knott of Perris came over to services recently, the first since her recent siege in the hospital. Sr. Mary Chapman is recuperating from another serious illness. Bereans, please write some cheerful letters to her at 3535 Orchard Ave., Lynwood. A call on our isolated friends in Santa Ana found Sr. Elsie Elliott, Sr. Rose Barton, Bro. and Sr. C. E. Hatch, and Bro. and Sr. E. E. Elton in usual health, all eagerly watching for signs of the coming of the Bridegroom.

Bro. D. B. Jackson is enjoying the summer months camping at Laguna Beach. We spent a pleasant evening with him in his elaborate camping outfit. Bro. and Sr. Cripe, Sr. Crundwell, and Bro. Bradley Crundwell are visiting in Texas at present. Bro. E. E. Crundwell plans to join them there soon and return with them later.

Sr. Elizabeth Railsback is now able to do her own cooking, even though she can stand on her feet but a short time. She, too, would appreciate some cheerful letters. Her address is 338 W. 74th St., care H. B. Boggs. Sr. L. E. Rich is gaining slowly. She has the determination to improve and is cheerful, though confined to her wheel chair most of the time.

Bro. MacLeod was able to resume his work in the pulpit the 12th inst., after an absence of three weeks. He is looking and feeling fine, he says. His sermon topic was "Answered and Unanswered Prayer."

Emma C. Railsback.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO N. B. I.

Samuel L. Burk	$10.00
Elizabeth Dauterich	4.25
Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Moore	2.00
Mrs. Sid Martin	2.50
Arlen Marsh	1.45

HERALD RECEIPTS

Eliza M. Cassen (for self and another); Edna Arthand (for self and another); Vera M. Lewis; Annie Broberg; George Randall; A. E. Renneker; Mrs. F. M. Hoskins (for others); Samuel L. Burk; Etta Elton; George F. Scott; Elizabeth Dauterich (for another); Flem Anderson; Misses Penrod; Bert E. Decker; Mrs. E. L. Cronk; Mrs. Hilding L. Anderson (for another); Mrs. E. M. Hall; Frank Bales; Pauline Chapman; Margaret Burns; Lucille Le Crone (for another); Mrs. Jessie W. Lovett; Silas Overton.

"THE HEBREW PEOPLE"

The new Junior Berean Book, "The Hebrew People," is now ready for distribution. The price is 30 cents for single copies; 27 cents each for 5 to 25 copies; 25 cents each for 25 or more copies. This book contains an illustration of the finding of the baby Moses.

Send all orders to National BEREAN Society, Oregon, Illinois.

DELLA ANNETTA CLAUSSEN

After many months of agony caused by an internal cancer which medical and surgical aid could not relieve, Sr. Della Annetta Clausen, wife of Bro. S. S. Clausen of Oregon, Ill., fell quietly asleep on the evening of August 16, 1934. While death must always be recognized as the enemy of mankind, yet through the grace of God its dread approach may take on the guise of kindness under circumstances such as those through which Sr. Clausen had so long suffered.

Sr. Clausen was born in East Friesland, Germany, January 20, 1883, and was brought to this country by her parents in early infancy. They settled in Ogle County, Ill., where she spent her entire life. She was married August 18, 1901, to Siebolt S. Clausen, who, with their son, Frederick, and daughter, Mrs. Jessie Oltmanns, survive her. She also leaves three grandchildren, three sisters, and four brothers to mourn her absence.

Bro. and Sr. Clausen were baptized by Bro. F. L. Austin several years ago and united with the church in Oregon, where they have both remained faithful to their religious obligations. Our beloved sister peacefully rests in the memory of the heavenly Father and of her loved ones until the Life-Giver comes to call her from the grave.

The funeral service was conducted by the pastor of the Oregon church and was largely attended. The speaker chose as his text for the occasion the words of Jesus found in Mark 5:36: "Be not afraid, only believe."

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by
National Bible Institution
Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents
Sample copy, Free.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

Please send all remittances by postal money order rather than by personal checks, as we are compelled to pay a high rate of exchange to get checks cashed.

The RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: the near return of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church to be joint heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

BETWEEN YOU AND ME—

During General and Illinois Conference and Bible School those in attendance enjoyed many fine musical numbers. Among these were two numbers given by the Oregon Community Quartet, directed by Jane Harris Stiles, of which Arlen Marsh is a member. This quartet sings monthly over the radio. Another enjoyable feature was the "brother and sister" quartet, composed of Clara and Harvey Krogh and Margaret and Gerald Cooper. The "Training School Quartet" also gave a good number one evening. In this were Harvey Krogh, Richard Le Crone, Clarence Lapp, and Gerald Cooper. It was nice to have Sr. Bernice Rogers at the organ on the last Sunday evening with her senior choir from the Oregon church. Sr. Esta Starbuck, chairman of music, endeavored to seek out all visiting talent for our enjoyment.

Sr. Leota Hanson, Treasurer of Illinois Conference, was the most "receptive" person on the grounds. She reported sufficient funds received to defray all expenses of the conference and school.

Oregon people particularly were glad to re-new acquaintance with the younger members of Bro. Siple's family, who had endeared themselves to us when their home was here, and whom we had not met for three or four years.

Sr. Smith had a new helper in the kitchen this year who proved very efficient, Mrs. Dora Heeren. She is a reader of The Restitution Herald, and interested in the truths we teach, though not yet one of our members.

You missed a most interesting sermon by Bro. Lapp at conference at Oregon, if you were not able to be present. He spoke on the four things that were too wonderful for Solomon. And who ever thought of getting all of that out of those verses in Proverbs? Perhaps he'll preach it at your church if he visits you some day.

Bro. S. T. Shirley, Rock Falls, Ill., for many years an active worker in various forms of Christian service, including that of lecturer and organizer for the Illinois Christian Citizenship League, although far advanced in years, indicates his continued interest in spreading the gospel by ordering copies of the paper sent to some whom he thinks may be influenced by its teaching. It is always an inspiration to get a letter from this aged brother.

Among the unusual occurrences of the conference was the baptism of three grandsons by two grandfathers, Bro. S. J. Lindsay performing that service on behalf of his grandsons, Donald and Robert Mattison, and Bro. F. L. Austin confirming the faith of his grandson, Austin Railton, in the same way.

An interesting discourse was delivered before the gathering on Tuesday night following Berean Day by Prof. Hewitt of Aurora College. Prof. Hewitt is instructor in Bible literature in that very efficient Advent Christian school.

The sympathy of the brotherhood at large goes out to Bro. S. S. Claussen of Oregon, Ill., over the death of his wife. Many who attended the conference called at Sr. Claussen's home during the last days of her illness and brought much comfort to her family.

Bro. Harvey Krogh proved to be a very efficient "utility man," hustling around for provisions and contributions of eatables, etc.

As this paper is sent out the Iowa Conference opens on the historic campgrounds at Waterloo. Among the guest speakers and teachers from out of the state will be L. E. Conner, President of the General Conference, C. E. Lapp, pastor of the church at Ripley, Ill., and Sr. Lapp. We pray that the gathering will be one of spiritual uplift and that it will mark a decided forward movement in the Lord's work in Iowa.

The church at Dixon, Ill., where Bro. F. E. Siple made his home before accepting a call to become pastor of the church at Grand Rapids, Mich., entertained Bro. Siple, his wife, and four of his daughters at an enjoyable gathering last Tuesday night, after which they left for their field of labor in Michigan.

Among those baptized during conference was John Ward Scott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ward Scott of Lockport, Ill. This young man is a grandson of Bro. John Cross (deceased), who was prominently associated with the establishment of The Restitution Herald and with the organization of the General Conference. John was baptized by the pastor of the Oregon church, of which he will be a member, on Monday morning, Aug. 13.

Another baptism which occurred on Monday morning was that of Kenneth L. Gruber of Oregon, Ill. Kenneth also comes of a long line of believers, his mother, his grandparents, and great-grandparents being members of the Church of God. We pray that all of these young men may be kept true to God until our Lord returns.

On Saturday, Aug. 11, Gail Grimsley of Little Sioux, Iowa, made the good confession and was baptized by G. E. Marsh into the saving name of the Lord Jesus. May he continue as a useful member of the Iowa church and conference and at last receive the crown of life is our prayer.

Last Sunday evening was a happy occasion at the Oregon church when a special service was held to receive four splendid young men into its fellowship. Those thus received were Kenneth L. Gruber, John W. Scott, Robert Mattison, and Donald Mattison. With solemn and impressive words of admonition and encouragement the hand of welcome was extended to them by pastor and congregation. What a wonderful and unusual thing it was to witness in these days of religious indifference among the young four young men formally dedicate their lives to the Lord Jesus Christ!

Negotiations are progressing with the receiver of the closed Oregon State Savings Bank with the object in view of reaching an agreement for settlement of its claims against the National Bible Institution on an adjusted basis that will be satisfactory to both parties.

Fifteen Weeks for Fifty Cents—

Simply fill in this blank and return it to us accompanied by 50 cents for each one to whom you wish THE RESTITUTION HERALD sent for the next fifteen weeks and we will provide them with splendid inspirational reading, prophetic information, and comforting assurances of the Children of God for the summer's reading.

GENTLEMEN:

Please send THE RESTITUTION HERALD to each of the following for 15 weeks. I inclose 50 cents for each subscription.

Sender's Name

Address

New subscriber for 15 weeks:

Name

St. and No.

City State

Additional names may be submitted on another sheet.

YOUTH

By Nettie B. Crundwell

IN the June 26 issue of THE RESTITUTION HERALD there appeared two splendid articles. They were on the same page. One was written by Bro. Randall, the other by Bro. Arlen Marsh.

It would be too bad if any of the brethren, old or young, failed to read them, for they contain a great deal of truth. Bro. Randall calls attention to some very important things in the last paragraph. He says: "The world is turning to youth; so is the church." We are not so much concerned about the world, but the church. He further says: "We must divest ourselves of many of the archaic ways of a score of years ago."

Very true; and the church and Sunday school that do not recognize this fact, but continue to work along the same lines they did some twenty or thirty years ago, will find their membership dwindling down to the older members of the church.

Young people demand more, yes, a change, if you please. And that is as it should be. Quoting from Bro. Arlen: "Youth demands and rightly should receive a more important part in the affairs of government, business, and religion"; for what they lack in experience is more than made up in enthusiasm, self-reliance, and energy. These characteristics are more evident in youth today than in former times; therefore, they must have an outlet. And the congregation that is wise will put its young people to work in the Master's vineyard. Why should they be barred from service; are they not members of the body of Christ, and as such have they not certain duties to perform?

The fact that older people have had more experience in no way proves that they may not make quite as many and as grievous mistakes as younger people.

We have reason to believe that many of God's chosen workers were young men. In fact we know that Joseph was seventeen years old when the Lord began using him, and was only thirty when he was made ruler over all Egypt (under Pharaoh, of course). David was but a youth when God anointed him king of Israel. John the Baptist was not over thirty when he began his ministry. Jesus was a young man, and we have every reason to believe the twelve whom He chose as apostles were near His own age. Peter no doubt was the oldest. The fact that He was choosing them for arduous labor would convince one of their age. No, the young man or woman does not need age and experience to do the King's business so much as he needs faith in God and courage to surmount obstacles.

"Youth should, therefore, be given a position in the ruling of the church. Youth's new thoughts, unbiased vision, and adaptability are quite as necessary to the successful operation of Christianity (today) as the more stable ways of age," as Bro. Arlen has so aptly said.

REVIEW OF THE GENERAL CONFERENCE

Continued from Page Six

Secretary G. E. Marsh addressed the Conference briefly on August 10 on the spiritual purpose of the National Bible Institution and THE RESTITUTION HERALD. The Conference was unanimous in its desire that the present restrictive editorial policy be continued, and by a showing of hands it advised the editor to continue the publication of news items of religious and prophetic value under the heading, "Abreast of the Times."

An effort was made to arouse greater interest in the possibilities held out in Golden Rule Home, and the President stated again that its financial condition was the best now it has ever been. The Home could easily care for six or eight more members, and the delegates were urged to try to induce elderly people to come here to make their home.

At this and other sessions of the Conference the President stressed the fact that the only source of revenue the National Bible Institution possesses upon which it must depend for financial support in the carrying forward of its work is the individual contributions of our brotherhood. The work is theirs, the responsibility is theirs, and the results attained are theirs.

It was moved by M. W. Lyon, seconded by G. E. Marsh, that an effort be made to hold the business meetings of the Conference earlier in the meeting in 1935 to avoid running overtime. Carried. It was determined that the announcement should be made next year that the business meetings of the Conference would be held during the first week of the annual gathering.

Miss Jessie Kauffman (California) expressed her appreciation for the work done by the local and Illinois State Conference workers to make the General Conference a success. A unanimous rising vote of thanks was extended to these workers for their self-sacrificing efforts.

The minutes of each session were read at the following session and approved after corrections or emendations had been made. At the conclusion of the final business session on August 11, 1934, the minutes of that session were also read and approved by the Conference.

Moved by G. E. Marsh, seconded by Miss Leila E. Whitehead, that the Conference adjourn. Carried. Adjournment taken at 12:05 p. m.

G. E. Marsh, Secretary.

0

"Where is the disputer of this world? Hath not God made foolish the wisdom of this world?"—1 Cor. 1:20.

Life is so short we cannot know everything. There are, but few things we need to know; but let us know them well. People who know everything, do nothing.—Talmage.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 23

OREGON, ILLINOIS, AUGUST 28, 1934

NUMBER 48

The Wonder of the Book

THE wonder of The Book, my friends, grows on us as our experience is enlarged. For the more deeply we search it the more we feel that the Bible is not merely a book, but The Book. Sir Walter Scott in his dying hour was right when he asked his son-in-law to read to him out of the Book, and in answer to the question, "What book?" replied, "There is only one book, the Bible. In the whole world it is called 'the Book.' All other books are mere leaves, fragments." Yes. It alone is the perfect Book. It is the eternal Book. It is the Voice; all others are merely echoes. Of course, you all know that The Bible literally means The Book. It is a translation of the Greek title of the Bible, He Biblos; in English, The Book. It is the Book that stands alone; unapproachable in grandeur; solitary in splendor; mysterious in ascendancy. . . ."

Now, one of the first things about this Book that evokes our wonder is the very fact of its existence. Anyone who has studied the history and origin of the divine Word must be overwhelmed with wonderment at the mysterious method of its formation. That it ever was a book, and is today the Book of the modern world, is really a literary miracle. For there never was any order given to any man to plan the Bible, nor was there any concerted plan on the part of the men who wrote, to write the Bible. The way in which the Bible gradually through the centuries grew is one of the mysteries of time. Little by little, part by part, century after century, it came out in disconnected fragments and unrelated portions (Hebrews 1:1), written by various men, without any intention, so far as we can tell, of anything like concerted arrangement. One man wrote one part in Syria, another man wrote another part in Arabia, a third man wrote in Italy or Greece; some writers wrote hundreds of years after or before the others, and the first part was written about fifteen hundred years before the man who wrote the last part was born. Now, take any other book you can think of on the spur of the moment, and think how it arose. You know fairly well how it arose. In nine cases out of ten a man determined to write a book, thought out the thoughts, collected the material, wrote it or dictated it, had it copied or printed, and it was completed within two or three or more months or years. The average book, we may suppose, takes from a year to ten years to produce, though a book like Gibbon's Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, or Tennyson's poems, took longer to complete. But, generally speaking, the average book you think of has been produced by one man within his own generation. Now, here is a book that took at least one thousand, five hundred years to write, and spanned the span of sixty generations of this famous old world's history. It enlarges our conceptions of God; it gives us new ideas of His infinite patience, as we think of the wonder of His calm, quiet waiting as He watched the strain and the haste and the restlessness of man across the feverish years, as slowly and silently the Great Book grew. Here a little and there a little of it came on; here a bit of history and there a bit of prophecy; here a poem and there a biography; here a letter, there a treatise; and at last in process of time, as silently as the house of the Lord of old (1 Kings 6:7), it came forth before a needy world in its finished completeness. When Moses died there were only five small portions; when David sat upon the throne there were only a few parchments more; one by one, princes and priests and prophets laid on the growing pile their greater and smaller contributions, until in process of time the whole of the Old Testament Bible was written in its entirety, word for word, letter for letter, sentence for sentence, book for book, precisely as we have it now, intact and complete; and as Josephus testifies, no one through the ages has dared to add or take away, nor has the Old Testament text been altered in the slightest degree from that day to this.

Dyson Hague, M. A., delivered this as an address to the Parkdale Bible Society, Toronto, Ontario, on May 15, 1912. It is here printed in the original style of the speech. Owing to its length, it must appear in two parts.

But the New Testament is a far greater miracle from the literary standpoint than the Old Testament. The Jews, you all know, were not a writing people. I hardly know of a Jew who ever wrote a book, except Josephus, and I doubt very much if a man or

(Please turn to Page Eight)

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879.

G. Eldred Marsh, Editor

Two Dollars per Year

Paul C. Johnson, Associate Editor

"Give attendance to reading, to exhortation, to doctrine."—1 Timothy 4:13.

LORD OF ALL BEINGS

Lord of all beings, throned afar,
Thy glory flames from star to star;
Center and soul of every sphere,
Yet to each loving heart so near!

Sun of our life, Thy quickening ray
Sheds on our path the glow of day;
Star of our hope, Thy softened light
Cheers the long watches of the night.

Our midnight is Thy smile withdrawn;
Our noonday is Thy gracious dawn;
Our rainbow arch Thy mercy's sign;
All, save the clouds of sin, are Thine!

Grant us Thy truth to make us free,
And kindling hearts that burn for Thee,
Till all Thy living altars claim
One holy light, one heavenly flame.

—Oliver W. Holmes.

A WARNING OF DANGER

A BOMB with lighted fuse is threatening this present evil world with destruction," declared Bro. Richard Le Crone in a powerful appeal addressed to the church at the General Conference. "Shall we warn the world of its danger," he asked, "or shall we sit secure within the house of God without seeking to tell them of the menace that is approaching?"

That is a heart-searching question! So few voices are raised today proclaiming the Lord's coming and the tragic and terrible events that are to precede it! If the Church of God really believes that all who are outside the body of Christ when the Lord returns will be compelled to pass through the fires of the tribulation, if the Church of God fully appreciates the awful terrors that will prevail at that time, how can it keep from crying out in warning to the countless millions who are so unconscious of the danger that lies just before them?

May God give us power, not alone to warn of danger, but to impress upon the minds of men the glories of the coming age of peace that they may believe!

MIRACLES IN THE LAST DAYS

AMONG the many thought-provoking statements made by General Conference speakers during our recent gathering, none impressed the writer more deeply than that of Bro. C. E. Randall, in which he asserted: "I can find no evidence in the Bible that miracles will be performed in the last days except by the man of sin!"

That is surely an arresting assertion, and one that is worth serious consideration in these days when almost countless cults are claiming that the miraculous gifts possessed by the early church have been restored to them, and that this fact indicates the coming of the Lord is at hand.

We do not deny that the Lord's return is near, very near we hope, but we do seriously question whether these purported miracles of healing and gifts of tongues do not point more to the approach of the Antichrist, than they do to the personal coming of our Lord.

With Bro. Randall we are unable to find a definite promise that the gifts, by which the preaching of the early disciples was confirmed, are to be restored to the church in the last days. We do find, however, that "there shall arise false Christs, and false prophets, and shall shew great signs and wonders; insomuch that, if it were possible, they shall deceive the very elect."—Matt. 24:24.

We also find that after the church has been caught away to meet the Lord there shall come one "speaking great things and blasphemies"; and that another shall follow after him who shall exercise "all the power of the first beast before him, and (cause) the earth and them which dwell therein to worship the first beast. . . . And he doeth great wonders, so that he maketh fire come down from heaven on the earth in the sight of men, and deceiveth them that dwell on the earth, by the means of those miracles which he (hath) power to do in the sight of the beast." This strange, ungodly miracle-worker is even to possess "power to give life unto the image of the beast, that the image of the beast should . . . speak."—Rev. 13:5-15.

All this concerning the signs and wonders to be wrought by evil forces in the future is clear, but, as Bro. Randall said, we cannot find a single promise that the miraculous gifts of the Spirit are to be restored to the church in the last days. This being true we should demand strong evidence before accepting as true the assertions of modern wonder-workers and prophets.

Sad Thing About Types

By Arlen Marsh

NOT a few of the members of the Church of God and other religious denominations have a distinct passion for types. In every word of the Old Testament, in every phrase of the New, these seekers after knowledge discover examples of something that had occurred or would occur. Indeed, the earnest desire to unearth new types and to teach lessons about them has led many of these devotees to lead long series of Bible classes on the subject, to write thousands of words about it, and to preach numerous sermons with it as a basis.

Types are, it is true, an element in Bible study that should not be ignored. The Apostle Paul and others of his ilk devoted not a little mention to the examples found in the Old Testament of persons and incidents of the New Testament era. It is, however, also true that types can be exaggerated to the point of being ridiculous. Imagination should not be allowed to run riot with the meaning of the Scriptures in endeavoring to wrest some exemplary value from them; nor should it be declared that certain Old Testament events happened merely to prefigure corresponding events of the New Testament period. All events have definite causes and results, and causes like those of Old Testament times produced like events in the later years of the New Testament.

There is, moreover, one great error which we as a whole make in our searching for types. It is a common conclusion that Israel as a nation represented or served as an example for the church. That there are decided similarities between Israel and the church is obvious; but that there are also dissimilarities cannot be denied.

The point is this: Israel's history is minutely likened to that of the church in every instance except one. Israel's priests were the most highly paid men in the nation. Not infrequently the Christian ministers and workers are the most lowly paid men in the church.

One tenth of the income of every individual in Israel was devoted to the priests, or Levites. One tenth of that income went to the support of the high priest. The latter, therefore, was generally the wealthiest man in the nation and enjoyed luxury commensurate with that of kings of other countries.

But the types found in the history of Israel in regard to the church are allowed to stop before this point is reached. That the Christian worker is more valuable to the world than any other individual is ignored. His pay normally is at a level calculated to eke him out a bare existence and no more.

This is the sad thing about types. They are carried to the point at which it costs us nothing, and there they permanently and definitely are dropped. Language of Scripture is twisted and torn in the effort to secure some new example from it, but the fact that it provides a splendid example for the use of church members in remunerating the men who serve them spiritually is ignored.

Jesus, it is true, was a poor man. Yet neither He nor His apostles ever were in dire want. The food they needed was supplied them; the clothes they wore were furnished; when gold was needed to pay taxes, gold was found miraculously.

Modern ministers cannot find money in the mouths of fishes. Modern church workers must depend upon the support of those they serve to provide them with their living. The things which they contribute to society give to society greater value than any system of education or business yet devised. And the things which they receive place them in a class with section hands.

If types are to be found in the nation of Israel, let this type, too, be found. Aaron was dressed by God's direct command more elaborately than any other citizen of Israel. The priests were supported in comfort and, in fact, a degree of luxury by the tenth of the income of people more poverty stricken than the world today can know, except where stark starvation faces men.

For twenty to twenty-five dollars a month and never more than one hundred fifty, the minister is expected to devote his entire time to the church; to preach the best of sermons; to equip himself with a complete religious library for the benefit of those unwilling either to read or buy; to lead Sunday school, Berean, and Bible classes at the pleasure of his church; and to pay his own expenses from one church to another. If he is forced to augment his little income to keep himself alive and well by working at some other task, the church is prone to criticize most harshly.

There is no type to point to that. There is every type to point to his meriting a comfortable income. He serves gladly, sacrificing not infrequently professions that would net him far more money with much less censure. He is the agent of God. He leads men to eternal life. He is a court of human relations and a general adviser. And he is paid, when he is fortunate, barely enough to support a wife and family by a system of economics that would make a planned economist turn pale.

No justice exists in a system such as this. No minister should be expected to serve any congregation as a full-time pastor if his remuneration is not sufficient to permit more than bare existence. Jesus taught nothing like that. And the types upon which our people so insist teach the extreme opposite as being the correct condition.

Stop! Look! and Listen!

By D. G. Harvey

"Fear ye not, stand still, and see the salvation of the Lord." — Exodus 14:13.

WHEN God by Moses led the children of Israel out of Egyptian bondage, when they had reached the Red Sea, hope died within them, Israel's heart failed. It was then Moses spoke these words of cheer: "Fear ye not, stand still, and see the salvation of the Lord." We remember how God spared Israel, cared for them in the wilderness. So it is with the church today.

God has called the church by the voice of a greater than Moses, Jesus, His own beloved Son, from the bondage of sin. The church has reached the Red Sea, fear of the unknown.

Man today cannot tell what is to come. The present conditions of the world, political, financial, industrial, and religious, seem in a tangle.

"This know also, that in the last days perilous times shall come."—2 Tim. 3:1. "Now the Spirit speaketh expressly, that in the latter times some shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits, and doctrines of devils."—1 Tim. 4:1. "Latter times"? "Last days"? Shall time end? Ah, no; for time must go on all during the ages to come, but not as we mortals count time today. For then age will not mean loss of vitality; for then "his flesh shall be fresher than a child's: he shall return to the days of his youth" (Job 33:25).

But the time has come for the end of man's misrule of the world. The end of civilization! That civilization of which men are so proud. That thin veneer of culture that so easily cracks under strain of excitement. Remember the sensation-crazed mob, who so gladly purchased scraps of paper that had been used to blot up the blood of John Dillinger in Chicago a few weeks ago? How easily man sheds his boasted civilization and returns to his bloodthirsty ways of the Dark Ages.

But it is no marvel when we turn to the eighteenth of Revelation, which we believe teaches the fall of modern civilization (Babylon, confusion). Let us notice the ninth to eleventh verses. "And the kings of the earth, who have committed fornication and lived deliciously with her (they all have), shall bewail her, and lament for her (is this not being fulfilled now?), when they shall see the smoke (sign) of her burning (destruction), standing afar off for the fear of her torment (not wanting to be involved), saying, Alas, alas that great city Babylon, that mighty city! for in one hour is thy judgment come. And the merchants of the earth shall weep and mourn over her; for no man buyeth their merchandise any more."

Now let us notice the seventeenth to nineteenth verses. "For in one hour so great riches is come to nought. And every shipmaster, and all the company in ships, and sailors, and as many as trade by sea, stood afar off, and cried when they saw the smoke of her burning, saying, What city (power) is like unto this great city (great power of civilization)! And they cast dust on their heads, and cried, weeping and wailing, saying, Alas, alas that great city, wherein were made rich all that had ships in the sea by reason of her costliness! for in one hour is she made desolate."

What has come over the business world in the past few years? They tell us there is no business. Why? Do not men and women still require food and clothing? Are not homes, fuel, and all the necessary things for their comfort still needed? Surely the need is greater than in the past. We know there is something come upon the world that natural man cannot understand or give us a cure.

The statements of all noted statesmen indicate another world war is near. Europe is at the boiling point; Asia, too, is ready. But the Powers fear the people. They may revolt! Then what? Statesmen declare "another war means the end of civilization"! Barbarians will rule, and the powers of evil have full control.

Let us read verses 21 to 23 of Revelation 18. "And a mighty angel took up a stone like a great millstone, and cast it into the sea, saying, Thus with violence shall that great city Babylon be thrown down, and shall be found no more at all. And the voice of harpers, and musicians, and of pipers, and trumpeters, shall be heard no more at all in thee; and no craftsman, of whatsoever craft he be, shall be found any more in thee; and the sound of a millstone shall be heard no more at all in thee; and the light of a candle shall shine no more at all in thee; and the voice of the bridegroom and of the bride shall be heard no more at all in thee: for thy merchants were the great men of the earth; for by thy sorceries were all nations deceived." Surely a dark picture.

But civilization has been like a great millstone on the necks of the masses, to hold their desires in check. Fear of calling down upon their heads this awful power has caused men to follow the trail of popular standard. But when this power is cast down in the sea, when men cease to fear or have regard for any standard, then the world has turned to a state of anarchy, such as was before the flood. There will be no joy, but grief. Industry will be at a standstill. A dark time, when the state of holy matrimony will cease.

No wonder the Lord told us of these events to come and told us when we see "these things begin to come to pass, then look up" (Luke 21:28). The outlook from an earthly point of view is hopeless; there is need to look to heaven, God Himself, and His Word for hope.

We are given a ray of hope, pictured in the great metallic image of Daniel 2. Our civilization is a product of the past. The four great empires are well represented in a civilization of today. It must fall.

In Revelation 17:12 we read, "And the ten horns which thou sawest are ten kings, which have received no kingdom as yet; but receive power as kings one hour with the beast. These have one mind, and shall give their power and strength unto the beast. These (ten kings) shall make war with the Lamb, and the Lamb shall overcome them: for he is Lord of lords, and King of kings: and they that are with him are called, and chosen, and faithful."

For years we as a church have taught we were in the "days of these kings" (Dan. 2:44), starting with the breaking of the Roman power by the Vandals of the North. Have we been too hasty? Rome was not divided into ten kingdoms. Greece was after the death of Alexander the Great. But the divisions of Greece could not be the ones referred to, for then God's kingdom would have been in power when Jesus was born, and not Rome. Perhaps the mistake has been in overlooking the feet of the image, part iron and clay, representing autocratic and democratic forms of government (which existed longer than man expected); then was to follow a dictator form of government, when ten dictators will rule the world who agree ("have one mind") in opposing Christ.

Such seems to be the trend of the dictators' minds today. Russia is a hotbed of atheism. Germany, under the hand of Hitler, demands all Protestant ministers to swear allegiance to Hitler. His oppression of both the Jews and Catholics is well known. He is turning Germany back to

Please turn to Page Seven

Priests and Levites In Type and Antitype

By Emma C. Railsback

UNDER the old covenant Moses was a type of God, Aaron a type of Christ, Aaron's sons a type of the church, and the Levites a type of Israel in the future kingdom of God.

In calling Moses and Aaron to lead Israel out of Egyptian bondage, God instructed Moses that Aaron should be his spokesman unto the people, and that he should be to Aaron instead of God (Ex. 4:16). Jesus came into the world to be God's spokesman to the people, to reveal Him to lost humanity; not to do His own will, but the will of Him that sent Him. Aaron the high priest, under the old covenant, entered the most holy place, with the blood of bulls and goats, once a year to make atonement for himself and for his people Israel. Christ, the high priest of the new covenant, entered into the holy of holies with His own blood, once for all, having obtained eternal redemption for sin. Aaron's sons served in the holy place and they alone could offer sacrifices to Jehovah. The church has entered the holy place by the blood of Christ, and she is offering herself a living sacrifice unto God in the service she performs.

The Levites were given to Aaron and his sons to assist in the tabernacle service. The consecration service for Aaron and his sons was very different from that to which the Levites must comply. Leviticus 8 gives an account of the consecration service for the priests, and Numbers 8:6-22 gives that for the Levites.

While still in Egypt, about two months before God entered into covenant relationship with Israel at Sinai, He made special provision for the salvation of the first-born of Israel. All must enter through the blood-sprinkled door and remain inside until the death angel had completed his work, until the day of deliverance. God has also made special provision for the salvation of the antitypical first-born, the church. They, too, must enter through the blood-sprinkled door (go through the typical death, burial, and resurrection), and they must remain therein until the great day of deliverance.

Then, too, before God entered into covenant relationship with Israel, they were all baptized unto Moses in the cloud and in the sea (1 Cor. 10:1, 2). Under the new covenant Israel will be baptized unto Christ; she will be sprinkled with clean water (Ezek. 36:25); she will have all her filth washed away, purged by the spirit of judgment and the spirit of burning (Isa. 4:4). God "shall purify the sons of Levi, and purge them as gold and silver, that they may offer unto the Lord an offering in righteousness" (Mal. 3:3). And He "will take of them for priests and for Levites, saith the Lord" (Isa. 66:21). "But ye (mourners in Zion) shall be named the Priests of the Lord: men shall call you the Ministers of our God: ye shall eat the riches of the Gentiles, and in their glory shall ye boast yourselves."—Isaiah 61:6.

When the church passes through the veil, from the holy to the most holy, from mortality to immortality; when she becomes the first-born from the dead, made partaker of the divine nature, equal unto the angels, then mortal Israel will pass into the holy place in service to God; she will become the antitypical Levites. Christ will possess the kingdom as King of kings, the saints of the Most High as joint-heirs, the people of the saints of the Most High as mortal priests (Dan. 7:14, 18, 27).

The Death of Christ

By J. R. Norrie

WHAT has the death of Christ to do with the forgiveness of sins and the obtaining of eternal life? It does not look very plain on the surface, but a little patient searching of the Scriptures will, by the blessing of God, make it clear.

It has always been a puzzle to minds ignorant of God's wonderful plan how the death of an innocent man, who was put to death by the common consent of Jew and Gentile rulers as an evildoer, could bring pardon to sinners and deliverance from death. It was "unto the Jews a stumbling-block, and unto the Gentiles foolishness" (1 Cor. 1:23) that a man who could not save himself from death could yet save others, and that one who was himself punished for alleged blasphemy should be able to bring forgiveness to others.

But so it is, and it is only one of many instances where God has chosen "the foolish things of the world"—things which are reckoned foolish and weak in the eyes of men—to confound their wisdom, and carry out His gracious and marvelous designs. He uses despised and unlikely means to accomplish His purposes—means which men consider quite contemptible, and inadequate for the end in view. And He does this for the express purpose of showing men how mighty His power is, how supreme His wisdom is, and how great His love is—"that no flesh should glory in his presence," that no man should be able to measure himself against God, but be filled with wonder, love, and praise for His goodness and mercy (1 Cor. 1:26-31).

Here is the situation. Man inherits from his first parent Adam a legacy of death. Adam sinned, and incurred this penalty as threatened. All his descendants inherit the same sinful nature, and return to the dust. "By one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned."—Rom. 5:12. We cannot bring a clean thing out of an unclean, and so, all down the ages, men have gone on sinning and dying.

God foresaw this, and opened up a way by which men could be delivered from the power and penalty of sin, and become heirs of eternal life which Adam had forfeited. The first step was to send His own Son into the world to bring redemption and forgiveness to men. Before His birth it was said of Him, "Thou shalt call his name JESUS: for he shall save his people from their sins."—Matt. 1:21.

How was this to be done? By succeeding where every other man had failed. By perfect obedience to the will of God, so that there was no personal cause of death in Him. He was "holy, harmless, undefiled, separate from sinners" (Heb. 7:26). He did nothing worthy of death, and so He might have claimed exemption from the universal law of humanity to go down to the pit of corruption. But He did not seek exemption. He was obedient "unto death, even the death of the cross" (Phil. 2:8). So He made no resistance when He was "brought as a lamb to the slaughter, and as a sheep before her shearers is dumb, so he openeth not his mouth" (Isa. 53:7). He was unjustly put to a cruel and shameful death by wicked men who were enraged because He exposed their hypocrisy and disobedience. They denied that He was the Son of God, the promised Anointed One who should fulfill all that the prophets had spoken regarding the restoration of God's kingdom on the earth (Psalm 2:6-9; Isa. 9:6, 7; Ezek. 21:26, 27), "to make an end of sins, and to make reconciliation for iniquity, and to bring in everlasting righteousness" (Dan. 9:24). They rejected the holy and just One, desiring rather that a murderer should be spared, "and killed the Prince of life" (Acts 3:15).

But God was well pleased with His Son for His righteousness' sake, and raised Him up from among the dead ones on the third day, as Jesus had repeatedly told His disciples, and as the Psalmist had predicted (Matt. 16:21; Psalm 16:9, 10). By His resurrection from the dead, He was "declared to be the Son of God with power, according to the spirit of holiness" (Rom. 1:4) "no more to return to corruption" (Acts 13:34); for, having "the power of an endless life" (Heb. 7:16), "death hath no more dominion over him" (Rom. 6:9).

It was perfectly right and proper that God should annul the sentence of death passed upon His Son. To Him "belong the issues from death" (Psalm 68:20). Now death is the wages of sin, and the wages are due only to sinners. Therefore, since Jesus, the Son of God, was without sin, there was no reason in Himself why He should die: and if put to death, there was no reason why He should remain among the dead. So God was justified in raising Him again.

This is the next step, then, in the process by which pardon and eternal life are brought to men. And, observe, it is all God's doing. It did not originate with men, but "God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son" (John 3:16). What He did was to undo something men had done. He overruled the result of their folly and wickedness, and turned it into an instrument for blessing them. The One whom His own chosen people despised and rejected, God made the Author of eternal salvation to them. And the shameful death of Jesus of Nazareth, which they thought put an end to His claims and His troublesome exposures and reproofs, is the very means by which these claims have been ratified and perpetuated. "O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! how unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out."—Rom. 11:33.

Here, then, is one man who has attained to eternal life because of His obedience and holiness. He "who only hath immortality" (1 Tim. 6:16) has conferred this power upon His Son. "For as the Father hath life in himself; so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself."—John 5:26. "As the Father raiseth up the dead, and quickeneth them; even so the Son quickeneth whom he will."—John 5:21. This also is God's doing; man has no hand in it.

But there is still something to be explained. Christ says, "I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore."—Rev. 1:18. How can men become sharers of eternal life? They are all sinners, and cannot by anything they do escape the doom of death.

God again takes the initiative, and shows His wonderful grace, doing for us what we could not do for ourselves. He has made His own Son to be our righteousness. How can this be? God has told us how. Our sins will be forgiven for Christ's sake. The obedience of Christ will be reckoned as ours. His righteousness will be reckoned as ours. His death will be reckoned as ours, if we believe on Him. This is the simple and beautiful and truly divine plan by which God is at once just to His own law, which punishes sin with death and is "the justifier of him which believeth in Jesus" (Rom. 3:21-26), so that the believer can be redeemed from the law of sin and death.

In the very same way God dealt with Abraham long before Christ came. We read Abraham "believed in the Lord; and he counted it to him for righteousness" (Gen. 15:6; Rom. 4:20-25). God is graciously pleased to treat as righteous those who believe in His Son. He deals with them as if they were innocent, forgiving their sins for the sake of His beloved Son, who "gave himself for us, that he might redeem us from all iniquity" (Titus 2:14). "God was in Christ, reconciling the world unto himself, not imputing their trespasses unto them."—2 Cor. 5:19.

This is the simple philosophy of the plan of salvation. Justification from our sins through faith in Jesus Christ; redemption from the power and penalty of sin, through His blood shed for us. "God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life."—John 3:16. "These are written that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that believing ye might have life through his name."—John 20:31. "If thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved."—Rom. 10:9.

It is the happy privilege of men now to believe the message which Christ came preaching, and which He afterwards sent His apostles to proclaim to the ends of the earth, that men should repent of their sins and believe in the Lord Jesus Christ, obeying His will in all things with grateful hearts, so that when He returns from heaven to take His power and reign, they may, in the mercy of God, be accounted worthy of an abundant entrance into His kingdom, and praise Him who delivers us from the bondage of sin and death, and make us partakers of the divine nature to live evermore with Him (Acts 17:30, 31; 2 Peter 1:3-11).

Faith in the blessed work of our Redeemer produces love to Him for all He has done for us, and brings into operation the strongest motive power to keep His commands; "and his commandments are not grievous" (1 John 5:3). It is all by the favor of God. What we could not buy, or earn, or inherit from another; what we could not claim because of any merit or goodness in ourselves, God provides freely to all who accept His Son and the glad tidings concerning Him. "For the wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord."—Rom. 6:23. "Turn ye, turn ye from your evil ways; for why will ye die?"—Ezek. 33:11.

STOP! LOOK! AND LISTEN!

Continued from Page Five

the worship of the pagan gods of the past. While Benito Mussolini of Italy has allowed the Pope greater liberty than in the past sixty years, yet Il Duce always comes first.

Not only has Hitler declared himself absolute ruler of Germany since the death of President von Hindenburg, but when conducting the funeral of the late President he disregarded the Lutheran faith of von Hindenburg and consigned him to Valhalla, the old Norse pagan abode of the dead, where he is now supposed to be drinking and boasting of his many victories in war. Von Hindenburg was a great general, the hero of Germany, but he was not a hard drinker and bragging was foreign to him. So even if Hitler's decree was carried out, von Hindenburg would be forced to spend eternal life contrary to his desires in this life. What a blessing that he can rest in peace and not see the evil that is to come to the land he loved.

Engelbert Dollfuss, the little dictator of Austria, was not in line. He was a devout Catholic and would not be of "one mind" with Germany and Russia. They cried, "Dollfuss is dead! Hitler!" charges Il Duce.

When we are able to point out ten dictators, some greater in power than others, representing the ten toes, ten horns, ten kings, then we surely are in the "last days."

Bible students differ as to the length of this period. I do know the time will be short under such conditions.

But the true Christian has no cause to fear of present trouble or trouble to come. He has the assurance of protection. Like Israel of old, the Christian need stop! look! and listen! Heed the voice of Moses. "Fear ye not, stand still, and see the salvation of the Lord." We know the present systems have failed. They must go down. But the church is spared. "For God hath not appointed us to wrath, but to obtain salvation by our Lord Jesus Christ."—1 Thess. 5:9.

Then there is the glorious hope of the coming of Christ to establish the long-prayed for kingdom of God on earth, when Christ sits on David's throne: no hunger, no worry, no war, no sickness, no death, no tears; for "there shall be no more curse" (Rev. 22:3). May we, as we see these events so long foretold come to pass in our day, rejoice. Man's day is ended! Man's civilization is falling. Christ will soon come. Even so, come, Lord Jesus.

CHRIST'S COMING AND HUMAN DESTINY

SOME one has wisely said: "Man originated in dust, and his vaunted achievements are to end in ashes." Yes, further, he himself becomes partaker of their ruin. Old Nebuchadnezzar's is not to be compared with the complacent attitude with which men entertain their so-called "great accomplishments."

We sometimes hear this: "Do you mean to tell us that the Lord is coming back to this earth for the purpose of destroying its present form and development?"

One does not have to travel so very far to hear this. Never before in the world has man reached such mighty accomplishments in every department of the activities of life. Every indication points to still greater discoveries and victories in the mechanical world and scientific fields in the near future.

Will Jesus come and ruthlessly stop this grand development and destroy its already mighty attainments? Without any hesitancy we must say, He will do that very thing. That is just what He intends to do.

Do we not all remember the childhood days when we had our building blocks? What skill was shown! How we as children wanted to preserve what we had built!

Now and again we got our building in the way of the parents, and what happened? Without any question, our little building was demolished. Why? To make room for greater and weightier matters.

For six thousand years men have been piling up building blocks. They have been playing with cob houses. And they are all carried away with it! They have lost their heads over their own work. Their imaginations have tumbled over themselves in Niagara fashion. But these same men have built right on God's field. God has operated on this field, too. He has permitted them to play all this time; but the time is near when He will absolutely sweep away their cob houses and playthings. He will, however, replace them with His own works, both eternal and marvelous.

What is the architecture, the engineering, and the art of today as compared with the eternal things of the eternal God?

We will see ashes enough then to sink a thousand worlds like this; but out of them will rise a new world, beautiful and wonderful. Oh, to be there!

The Prophet, however, has another thought in view when he exclaims, "To appoint unto them that mourn in Zion, to give unto them beauty for ashes." The gaiety of this world is not so universal as it appears. It is but the thinnest veneer that covers a great mass of sorrow, disappointment, and blighted hopes. We live a little while, animated with life's problems, striving after its blessings; and, amid the grievings of our loved, lie down to rest in the dust of earth. Ashes is written upon our hopes, our joys, our anticipations. Often fond memories of the past come flitting to our hearts; with pleasure we entertain them, but are soon brought rudely to the recollection that they are but ashes. Earth's clods cover the tenderest memories of our lives, our sweetest recollections.

But hear the Prophet's voice ringing down the ages: "Beauty for ashes, joy for mourning, praise for heaviness." Out of the ashes of human failure and sorrow God shall reconstruct this world and spread over its broad area His surpassingly beautiful kingdom. No more mourning, no more heaviness. Love shall reign supreme, and peace brood over all. As we sit in the ashes of today, let us be comforted in contemplating the beauty of tomorrow.—L. R. Jones in The Messiah's Advocate.

THE WONDER OF THE BOOK

Continued from Front Page

woman here could mention two. Their training, as Bishop Westcott once said, was exclusively oral, and they had a disinclination for literary work. Not only so, but their Master was not a writer. Jesus never wrote a line for publication, so far as we know, and the idea of their writing an additional or supplementary Bible would never seem to have entered the mind of His disciples. They would doubtless have sprung back with horror at the very idea of such a thing, and for fifty years after Jesus was born there was probably not a line of the New Testament written. But then, by the mystic suggestion and overruling design of the Almighty Spirit, without any concerted collaboration or unity of plan, fragment by fragment, here a little letter, there a biography, the New Testament grew. But remember; there was no prearrangement, no plan. It was not as if Matthew and Mark and Luke and John came together in committee, and after solemn conference and seeking for the leading of the Spirit, Matthew undertook to write of Christ as the King, and Mark said, "I would like for my part to write of Him as the Worker," and Luke said, "And I think I will undertake to delineate Him as the Man," and then John said, "Well, I will crown it by writing of Him as the Son of God!" It was not as if Paul met James one day, and after talking and praying about it, Paul agreed to write of the dogmatic, and James of the practical aspects of Christianity. Nothing of the sort. There is no trace of such a thing. They simply wrote as they were moved, to meet some passing need, to express some earnest longing, to teach some glorious truth, by a letter, or a treatise, or a memoir; and so this composite of fragmentary memoirs and disconnected letters came into this miraculous unit that we call the New Testament. Yes! The Book is marvelous; it is transcendental; it is altogether unexplainable. It is the miracle of literature in its formation.

Another thing: We talk of this Bible as a Book. We seldom or never think of it as a Library. Very few of us, save those who have studied the matter, ever think of this Book as a Library consisting of sixty-six separate volumes, written by between thirty and forty different authors, in three different languages, upon totally different topics and under extraordinarily different circumstances. One author wrote history; another, biography; another, about sanitary science and hygiene; one wrote on theology; another wrote poetry; another, prophecy; some wrote on philosophy and jurisprudence; others, on genealogy and ethnology; and some on stories of adventure and travel of romantic interest. Why, if these sixty-six books were printed separately, in large-sized print and heavy paper, and bound in morocco, I doubt if they could all stand on that table! And yet here we have them all, the whole sixty-six volumes, in a little book that a child can carry in its little hand. And the strangest thing of all is, that though their subjects are so diverse and so difficult, the most difficult and abstruse of all conceivable subjects, though there was no possibility of anything like concerted action or transfer of literary responsibility, for it was impossible for the man who wrote the first pages to have had the slightest knowledge what the men would write about who wrote one thousand, five hundred years after he was born; yet this miscellaneous cento or collection of heterogeneous writings is not only unified by the binder in one book, but so unified by God the Author, that no one ever thinks of it today as anything else than One Book! And One Book it is, the miracle of all literary unity.

Again, it is a wonder that that Book is here today. I say it is a wonder that we have a Bible at all when we think of its age. When we compare the Bible as a book with any other book in this respect it is a perfect wonder. I will tell you why. You all know that the greatest test of literature is time. Do you know of any book that is read by anyone today to speak of, that was written one thousand years ago? Books that were the rage a few years ago are forgotten today. Whoever thinks nowadays of reading Robert Ellesmere, or asks at a bookstore for Rider Haggard's She? Why, poor David Harum is almost unsalable, and we will soon hear nothing of The Rosary. These books were born, were boomed, and died. The cold hand of oblivion is laid upon them (Heb. 8:13). Their force is spent. Their power is gone. They were literary skyrocket; they are like "ta ra ra boom de aye." Where is the book, after all, that is five hundred years old, and read by the masses nowadays; for, as we said, a book that is one thousand, or two thousand, or three thousand years old is read by nobody. Horace and Homer may be studied by students of the classics, and schoolboys may have Virgil and Xenophon thrashed into them, but whoever thinks of reading them? They are dead books in dead languages. For you can put it down for a certainty that the older a book is the smaller is its chance of surviving, or being read by people of diverse nationalities. Another thing, no book has had much chance of being circulated widely amongst a people from which it did not originate. No book, for instance, written by a Spaniard has much chance of being read by Germans. German works are read by Germans; English works by Englishmen. I know that I never could enjoy Old Mortality, for I am not a Scott. What book do you know of, with a few great exceptions, such as Dante, Cervantes, Dumas, Goethe, Shakespeare, that has been able to overleap the bounds of nationality; and as to Turkey, India, or Mexico, or Brazil, what man out of a hundred could tell you whether they had any authors, or if they had, the name of one of their works? But the marvelous thing about the Bible is, that it is the only book in the world that has not only overleaped the barrier of time, but it is the only book in the world that has been able to overleap the barrier of nationality. It was written largely in a dead language, for the Hebrew language is not a language that is either spoken or written today; and yet that Book, written in a dead language, written by men who died two thousand or three thousand years ago, is not only living today, but it is the most widely circulated book in the world.

Surely this is another marvelous thing. The Old Book is easily the best seller of the day. A leading bookseller was asked what book had the largest circulation. He did not mention the most recent novel or the latest scientific work. He said that the book which outsells all the other books in the world was the book called the Bible. Other books compute their circulation by thousands; the Bible by millions. And yet the man on the street never thinks of this book as a book that was written in a dead language over two or three thousand years ago.

Another marvelous thing about this book is that it is the only book in the world read by all classes and all sorts of people. You know very well that literary people rarely read a child's book, and children would not read books of philosophy and science even if they could. If a book is philosophical and scientific it commands the attention of literary people, and if it is a child's book it is read in the nursery. A wonderful thing it is to think that here is one book that differs from all others; a book that is read to the little child and read by the old man as he trembles on the brink of the grave. Years ago I heard the nurse reading a story to my child, and I said to her: "What is that you are reading to the little one?" "I am reading the story of Joseph in the Bible," she answered. And the little child, in excitement, cried, "Please don't stop her, please," as she listened with delighted interest to the reading of a book that was written in Hebrew probably three thousand, five hundred years ago. And not far away from the room where the little child was listening, there sat one of the noblest of modern minds, one of the greatest of modern scientists, our foremost Canadian scholar, the great Sir William Dawson, President of McGill College, Montreal, reading with profound devotion and a higher delight the pages of that same marvelous Book. Here is a phenomenon. One of the ablest of modern scientists delights in the reading of a book which is the joy of a little child in the nursery! Verily it is without a parallel in literature. Our boys and girls read and study it in myriads of homes and Sunday schools, and great scholars like Newton and Herschel and Faraday and Brewster, and great statesmen like Gladstone and Lincoln; and great soldiers like Gustavus Adolphus and Gordon and Stonewall Jackson, have taken this book as the joy and the guide of their lives.

Part Two next week

Abreast of the Times

Thousands Face Starvation

"And there shall be famines . . . in divers places. All these are the beginning of sorrows."—Matt. 24:7, 8.

SHANGHAI, China, Aug. 9.—While the American Government is rejoicing in the "success of its crop restriction plan" half a million people in China are faced by starvation due to the drought! It is said that central China is suffering from the most severe drought it has experienced in more than fifty years, and that more than 500,000 men, women, and children are practically without food or water.

It is further stated that those living in this region represent but a small proportion of the "literally millions throughout China afflicted in varying degrees." The loss of life already has been enormous. With temperatures throughout the country ranging from 115 to 120, and no rain in many localities since June, the suffering is great and widespread.

As has been noted in these columns in the past, the drought this year has been practically universal, scarcely any country having escaped from the burning heat and rainless condition that has prevailed. At our recent conference an observant student of prophecy was heard to remark: "It would take a good deal to convince me that the world-wide drought is not of divine origin!"

Who dares say his conclusion was not right?

Gunmen Have Weak Hearts

"A sound heart is the life of the flesh: but envy the rottenness of the bones."—Proverbs 14:30.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—"Softening of the myocardium!" Such was the decision reached by physicians who probed the bullet-riddled bodies of scores of notorious gunmen who came to their deaths while engaged in criminal activities. Explanation being in order as to the meaning of this medical phrase it may be said that it signifies that the hearts of these bandits and murderers had been weakened by high living and debauchery. This descriptive notation was entered officially in the records of the doctors who performed post-mortems on the bodies of criminals who were killed by the police, or by their personal enemies.

John J. Butler, chief coroner's clerk, said that almost without exception the hearts of criminals are found to be affected in this way. Sin brings its own punishment. It saps the body of its vitality, deadens the nervous system, and undermines the health generally.

Moved by envy of the wealthy and by a desire to gain riches quickly and without work to gratify their lustful cravings, these criminals live in a state of constant nervous tension through fear of the police and also of their fellow lawbreakers with whom they carry on almost unending warfare. The money they secure is promptly spent in "riotous living" which contributes to the weakening of the heart and other vital organs. No! A life of crime does not pay!

Jews Outlast Their Enemies

"I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee."—Genesis 12:3.

GENEVA, Aug. 20.—Bitterly denouncing the Hitler regime in Germany for its anti-Semitic policy, Dr. Nahum Goldman, president of the committee of Jewish delegations now in session here, declared tonight that the Jews had known more powerful enemies than the Germans in the past, and have "always outlasted them."

Realizing that the economic and commercial boycott was the most effective weapon they could turn upon their foes, Dr. Goldman announced that the boycott which was put into operation against Germany last spring would be continued until Jewish rights in Germany were fully restored. "The anti-German boycott," he said, "is the spontaneous reaction of mortified Jewish self-esteem, and the masters of the Third Reich, who always have the words, 'honor, dignity, and self-respect' on their tongues, should be the last to take exception to our answer to their challenge."

The speaker recommended that an effort should be made to secure proper guarantees for Jews whose economic life was being crushed by the economic policy of Soviet Russia. The speaker further warned his compatriots not to delude themselves with regard to their present situation throughout the world, asserting that the Jewish outlook was exceedingly dark, with their legal and civil status shattered in many countries. "The masses are impoverished," he said, "and the spiritual resistance of the great majority of Jews is impaired. We must engage in a new struggle for recognition and realization of the most elementary equality rights. That we should have to fight for these things in the twentieth century," he declared, "is no claim for glory for the level of our century."

While admitting that the general outlook was somber, Dr. Goldman saw one promising ray of hope in the return of the Jews to Judaism which, he said, had a "wonderful rejuvenation" as witnessed in the national home in Palestine.

Another speaker who appeared before the conference, Andre Spire of Paris, said that in addition to the persecution suffered by the Jews in Germany, anti-Semitism was increasing in Poland, Rumania, and Austria, and that "even America was not exempt from the contagion." He agreed with Dr. Goldman in the latter's assertion that antagonism to the Jews was developing in Central and South American countries also. Spire insisted that a world Jewish conference must be called to meet in 1935.

Berean Department

ARLEN MARSH, EDITOR

Jesus of Nazareth

GREATNESS has often sprung from obscurity. The very germs of genius and wisdom have many times grown and developed from neglected soil. The mental and moral forces that have moved the world in every age have many times found a birthplace in the lowliest dwellings of men. From the humblest avocations of life, from the farm and workshop, have developed men who were masters in their particular field of endeavor. But what of Jesus of Nazareth? What is the record of His birth? And what are the prophecies made concerning His future?

Put the history of His birth beside that of the predictions of His future reign; and the resulting comparison will be staggering. Jesus was born a poor child of poor parents, in the small town of Bethlehem. All the pomp common to the birth of royalty was wanting. There were no conveniences, not attendants, and His birthplace was that of a manger. A child born under such conditions today would no doubt be classed as a beggar, yet Christ is destined to some day rule this world.

In His public life He was an unpretentious, unostentatious person, eating with the publicans and sinners, visiting the humble home of Mary and Martha, going about doing good, healing the sick, cleansing the lepers, and casting out devils.

This humble man of sorrows is the Father's "firstborn, higher than the kings of the earth," who "will save the children of the needy, and break in pieces the oppressor," "whose dominion shall be from sea to sea, and from the river unto the ends of the earth," and whom "all nations shall serve."

During His brief life on earth there were preludes of His future greatness, but the great masses of the people failed to recognize them, and, as a result, rejected their own king.

Thus the meek things, the foolish and despised, of whom the world was not worthy, will be strong enough to take and possess the kingdom forever and ever.—Bradley Crundwell, Los Angeles, Calif.

You Figure It Out

"You have made," observed a writer from the Pacific Coast in a letter to the editor, "certain statements in the columns of THE HERALD concerning Modernism which have led to the criticism that you are teaching (it)."

"I've always thought," said a church member from Indiana, referring to the editor, "that he was quite conservative."

"His articles are a disgrace to THE HERALD," was the opinion of an Illinois reader concerning the editor. "He doesn't know what he's talking about."

"I find that the articles of (the editor) try to solve for us . . . difficulties—everyday religion. Every preacher should read his articles." This from Canada.

In reference to the editor's observations on youth and its position in the church: "Is it the most diplomatic thing to say too much about it?" And the letter indicated a considerable amount of censure had been hurled at the editor's head in the writer's hearing.

"Your article called 'Youth' . . . was surely good, but some of our leaders here just simply cannot see that idea at all, and consequently the church here has dwindled down to a very small number, principally older people." This, too, from the Pacific Coast.

The voice of the people seems a trifle confusing.

Blanchard, Michigan

THE Blanchard, Michigan, Berean Society met July 2, 1934, to elect officers. The meeting was opened by Elder Cecil Smead. Twelve were present.

The officers are: President, June De Witt; Vice President, Inez Sheets; Secretary-Treasurer, Frances Sheets. It was agreed to hold office three months and to meet at a different place every week at eight o'clock.

Elder Cecil Smead was appointed teacher; June De Witt, assistant teacher.

An offering is taken the first Friday of every month.

Beatrice Bush and Winifred Reynolds were appointed for the Fruit and Flower Committee. Ruth Anne Robinson was appointed to the Literature Department.

Meetings have been held unofficially since last winter.

On July 27 we studied about the "Heir of the Kingdom." Eighteen were present. Inez Sheets taught the lesson because Elder Cecil Smead was attending the conference at Oregon, Illinois.

Our total membership is seventeen.

Frances Sheets, Secretary.

Bible Study

BIBLE study ever has been and always must be the keynote of a Christian's life. He is no true follower of the Messiah who accepts at its face value the teaching of any minister or leader, no matter how experienced. Human beings are not infallible, and only a careful check of the Scriptures can indicate whether or not the doctrines of some particular teacher are correct.

To the end of providing an outline check upon such teaching the Berean lesson books were published. They provide the necessary references to study any essential subject of the Bible; the student is left to his own resources to determine precisely what those references signify.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"The service of the house of the Lord was set in order. And Hezekiah rejoiced, and all the people."

GOOD KING HEZEKIAH

NOT many of us like to look at the same pictures all of the time, do we? We grow weary of them. We get tired of reading the same books, too. When we go back to school in September, we go into a new room, another grade, and we use new books. We have new surroundings in most cases.

Do you know that the Bible, the same old Book, always has new pictures for us? It's different from other books in that way. When we are small it has one kind of pictures; as we grow older the pictures change for us. We are never too young to enjoy the Bible; never too old to see some beauty in it; never too great but that we need its wise counsel.

Now today we have a new picture, and it's a beautiful one, too. I was afraid you'd grow weary of the pictures we've been having, showing the wicked kings leading the people of Israel and Judah off into sin. They were dark and dismal pictures, to be sure.

We turn over the pages of God's holy Book, and we find a bright and attractive picture. A good king ascended the throne of Judah, and he was only a young man—twenty-five years old, in fact. He reigned on the throne twenty-nine years. How old did that make him when he died? Can you add those two numbers quickly in your heads?

Let's look at the picture and see what makes it so bright. Look in 2 Chronicles 29, verse 2. That's the beginning of it, and "doing right" always brings before our minds bright colors, such as sky blue, bright pink, and royal purple. Did you ever think of it in that way?

Read on and see what some of the things were that the king did "which was right in the sight of the Lord." O yes, he opened the doors of the house of the Lord! We'll draw a tabernacle then and paint it in beautiful colors.

You remember how the kings that came before Hezekiah had taught the people to worship idols. They had fixed up their idols in beautiful groves and had forgotten all about their temple.

How would you feel if some day you should wake up and realize you had let your church get all broken down and the paint all off? Most ashamed, wouldn't you? And I think the children of Israel were ashamed, too. Don't you?

Then Hezekiah told them to polish up the lamps, brighten the trimmings on the altar, brush up the floors, and offer their offerings again. It must have made the temple look like a different place.

Did any of you ever help Mother or Father clean the church, or go with them to do it? You know, we can all help from the tiniest tot up, by being sure our shoes are clean before we enter; never throwing papers on the floor; and never, never chewing gum in church.

Oh, there are so many ways to keep God's house nice! Being very quiet all the time we are in it is one very good way, also. Let's think of these things the very next time we go to church and every time after that. Shall we?

Reading on farther we see that they polished up their trumpets, also. They practiced their music; "and they sang praises with gladness; and they bowed their heads and worshipped." How many of you can find those very words?

Then they brought offerings to God's house. Do we bring offerings today to God's house? What do you bring? Do you bring your offering gladly and willingly? Do you try to bring as much as you can, using just a very little for yourself and your "sweet tooth" and saving the most for God?

Now read over in chapter 30, and see what else they did. It says that Hezekiah bowed his head and prayed to God to forgive the people of their great sin. Did God hear that prayer? Can you find the verse that says He did?

Do you think the people got peeved at Hezekiah because he wanted them to do the things that were right? Do you think they were stubborn and stayed at home? Look at verses 25 to 27.

There was great joy, it says, in Jerusalem. They had a better time serving God with Hezekiah leading them than they had had following after all those other wicked kings. Of that we are sure.

The Sons and Daughters of the King Club has two honor members to report this week. Jeannette Siple of Grand Rapids, Michigan, and David Harrington of Alberta, Canada, have their membership cards filled, with a Bible seal on each date. This shows that they studied their lessons every week for three months.

David wrote me that he reads his Bible every day and that he and his daddy read it together on Sundays. You see, David cannot get to Sunday school as most of us can every Sunday. It's harder to stick to studying your lessons every week when you know you can't get to Sunday school. Jeannette is a good Bible student, as I found out at Illinois Bible School this year.

The Sunday School Lesson

FROM TRUTH SEEKERS' QUARTERLY

LESSON 11. — September 9, 1934

HEZEKIAH LEADS HIS PEOPLE BACK TO GOD

2 Chronicles 30

Devotional Reading: Psalm 72:1-6

GOLDEN TEXT

God is gracious and merciful.—2 Chronicles 30:9.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic: Hezekiah Leads His People Back to God.

Aim: God is always willing to forgive the sins of those who come to Him in true repentance.

Basic Truth: "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness."

I. Hezekiah Plans a Great Revival. (2 Chron. 30:1-5.) Hezekiah, as energetic as he was devout, as broad in his sympathy as he was in his understanding of the basic needs of his people, planned to extend the great revival he had carried on so successfully in Judah to the backsliders in northern Israel. No hint of personal ambition mars the record of Hezekiah's life. What he did he did for God, not for his own glory. He made no attempt to subdue the ten tribes to himself. He but sought to subdue them to God. The church today could accomplish great things for the Lord if it would subordinate all other efforts to the one great purpose of converting men and women to the gospel of the kingdom of God.

II. Hezekiah Sends an Urgent Invitation. (Vv. 6-9.) The invitation drawn up by the king and his counsellors was stated in plain and impressive terms. All who received it would know exactly the purpose of the gathering to be called in Jerusalem. The cause of the suffering in the northern kingdom was not evaded, nor the necessity for true repentance ignored. Hezekiah wanted all Israel to join in keeping the feast of the Passover, but to be benefited by it they must meet the spiritual condition prescribed by Jehovah.

III. The Great Revival Held. (V. 30.) In response to the king's earnest appeal the people turned their faces and their hearts once more toward God. Returning to Jerusalem in vast numbers from all parts of David's former kingdom, Israel once more found itself united in the presence of Jehovah her God before the temple which was consecrated for all time to His service. What rejoicing there must have been! And what rejoicing there will again be when the scattered people of Jacob are gathered again in Jerusalem to keep the feasts of the Lord as predicted by the prophets!

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"God is gracious and merciful."—2 Chronicles 30:9.

The words "gracious" and "merciful" are similar in meaning. It was not an uncommon thing for Israel to forget God and fail to do His will or worship Him. However, when a new king came into power, if he was a godly man, he immediately began a reform by leading the people back to God. Hezekiah was this kind of leader. Whenever the Israelites yielded themselves to their Maker and came back to serve Him, not a single time did He turn them away, but through His mercy received them, as it were, with open arms.

The expression, "His mercy endureth for ever," is found a number of times in the Bible, especially in the book of Psalms. That being the case then, we too share in God's mercy. If we did not it would be a sorry time for us, for so many come so far short of what the Father would have us be.—L. A. R.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Turn

—from your evil ways and God will receive you;

—to God, if you would have Him turn to you;

—to God, even though people "laugh you to scorn."

Turning to God. Sin separates from God. To turn to God means to turn away from that which separates from God, even sin. Sin must be acknowledged, even the secret faults (Psa. 19:12). If we confess our faults, He will forgive us our sins and cleanse us from all unrighteousness (1 John 1:7, 9). God is ever willing and ready to reason with us concerning our sins and promises that under His guidance they shall become as white as snow (Isa. 1:18). For seeking the Lord while He may be found and forsaking wicked ways and unrighteous thoughts, God bestows mercy and abundantly pardons (Isa. 55:6, 7).

Pardon Received. When Israel responded to the call of the king and came up to Jerusalem to offer their sacrifices and make atonement for their sins we read: "And the Lord hearkened to Hezekiah, and healed the people." That is, He pardoned everyone his sin (2 Chron. 30:18, 20). He forgave; He forgot. Their sins were removed "as far as the east is from the west, so far hath he removed our transgressions from us" (Psa. 103:12). Pardon from transgression is open to all. Christ Jesus our advocate, who is on the Father's right hand, is a propitiation for sins, and for His name's sake our sins are or can be forgiven (1 John 2:1, 2, 12). All who are burdened with sin are invited to come to Him. —C. E. R.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULTS

Godly Leaders in Civic Life

Isaiah said: "All we like sheep have gone astray." This is but one instance in which the people of the world are likened to sheep. Sheep are noted for following a leader. Advertisers know this, which accounts for the fact that leading people are paid to endorse articles. They know that many will follow, even if it is to their harm. The history of the loyalty or disloyalty of Israel is largely the history of their rulers. They followed their leader. The value of godly civil officers is hard to overestimate.

The influence of leadership is well illustrated in the person of Constantine, who claimed to have seen a fiery cross with this inscription above it: "In this sign conquer." The most sacred emblems of the church now became battle standards, and a military spirit entered the church and is still present. Constantine also called a church council to meet at Nicaea and then forced the Nicene Creed upon Christendom. Many of its errors are still accepted as of greater authority than the teachings of Christ. This is but one example of the influence of leaders, others may be cited.

We can now understand what Paul had in mind when he said: "Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil. For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places."—Eph. 6:11, 12. "I exhort therefore, that, first of all, supplications, prayers, intercessions, and giving of thanks, be made for all men; for kings, and for all that are in authority; that we may lead a quiet and peaceable life in all godliness and honesty."—1 Tim. 2:1, 2.—H. A. S.

PRIMARY

Topic: We Watch Hezekiah Prepare for a Feast.

We're going to visit Hezekiah, the king of Judah.

See all those messages and letters. Where do you suppose they're all going? To the people in Israel and Judah. Let's read one and see what it says.

It is a message from King Hezekiah. He wants all the people to worship God. You know they were worshipping idols when we visited with Amos.

Hezekiah wants them to get ready to have the feast of the Passover. (Explain this to the children, if they are not familiar with it.)

It is supposed to be held on the fourteenth day of the first month. But as we cannot get ready we will hold it on the fourteenth day of the second month.

We must stay and see whether the people do what the king has asked.

Indeed they do! See the crowds of people come for the feast, or to worship perhaps would express what they are doing better.

How happy they look! Fourteen days they stay. Many cattle and sheep are being used for the feast as sacrifices.

Of course, this pleases God. He wants them to worship and love Him. And I hope the people will follow this good King Hezekiah.

—V. C. T.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

STORM LAKE, IOWA

Sr. Anna Boyanovsky reports a very good attendance both at Sunday school and church services on the 19th. She announces that Sunday school and preaching services will be held on Sunday, Sept. 2, at the home of Carl Bjurklund near Storm Lake and on the 16th at her own home near Marathon, and extends a cordial invitation to all in the vicinity to meet with them.

SOUTH BEND, INDIANA

Sunday, Aug. 19, after a sermon on the forgiveness of sins, six young people presented themselves for baptism. In the afternoon six carloads motored to the Lake of the Woods, where the baptismal service was held.

It is occasional days like this that give us courage to press on in the Master's work and cause the heart to rejoice.

Sr. Lois Hunt deserves credit for giving "meat in due season," and we know she must rejoice exceedingly to see her works bear fruit.

Their names and addresses are as follows: Emma Jean VanCamp, 421 S. Eddy St.; Ethel, Mildred, Esther, and Marie Burk, all of 511 S. Eddy St.; and Leonard Lucy, 132 Charles St., Mishawaka, Ind.

We seek the Father's blessing on them as they walk the new life in Christ Jesus.

Floyd A. Stilson, Pastor.

EASTERN NEBRASKA CONFERENCE

The Forty-Seventh Annual Conference of the Church of God was held in the Florence Community Hall August 12 to 19, 1934. Bro. S. J. Lindsay of Oregon, Ill., and Almus Adams, state evangelist, were the speakers.

The Bible lessons were exceptionally well attended and were very instructive and much enjoyed, and the good sermons gave us the much needed meat in due season.

Bro. Wilson of Oregon gave a short talk which was enjoyed by all.

Letters were received from Sr. Inez Titus, Letcher, S. D., and Bro. R. E. Zeller, Hemmingford, Neb.

We were glad to have visitors from Hector, Minn.; St. Joseph, Mo.; Chicago, Ill.; Rochelle, Ill.; and Oregon, and hope they will all come again next year.

The officers for the coming year are as follows: President, Albert Harper; Vice President, Howard Appleby; Secretary-Treasurer, Mattie Gow; Corresponding Secretary, Doris White; Evangelist, Almus Adams.

Mattie Gow, Secretary.

WE APPRECIATE OUR FRIENDS

To the Church at Large:

We wish to express our sincerest appreciation of the many kind words of sympathy which have been extended to us in our illness. We have tried to keep our minds off the disappointment which we experienced in being unable to be with the brethren assembled in General Conference. So many have been the expressions of kindness and regard that the task of answering each individually has become well-nigh impossible, and so we use The Herald to express to all our appreciation. We look forward to that better day when sickness will not prevent our working for the Savior. Until then we are,

Your fellow servants,
The MacLeods.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

This finds us back home from our two weeks of vacation which were filled with lots of good things, including the opportunity of seeing many dear friends of the years gone by while at and near Oregon. The night spent at Dixon was made pleasant by a large number of the church family gathering for a scramble dinner in the basement. Quite a number of the Rockford church group also got together while we were there, adding much to the joy and fellowship of the occasion.

But though the trip with its many associations was thoroughly enjoyed, yet we were more than glad to get back home and at work again. And we are deeply grateful to our heavenly Father for His protecting and guiding care over us and over our home church group while we were gone. Some who were critically ill are much improved.

Another pleasure is that Sr. Mary A. Gesin of Illinois returned with us for a visit, and the church here is happy to welcome her. Also Bro. M. W. Lyon, pastor of our Cleveland church, is spending some days resting up and renewing old acquaintances in our Grand Rapids church family.

Bro. and Sr. William Hanson of near Caledonia who were called to St. Louis, Mo., on account of the serious illness of Mr. Hanson's father some weeks ago, have again been called to the same locality by the death of a sister.

Now that August is reaching its close and vacation times are about over, our group is preparing to settle into the steady activity of the fall season. Some definite, progressive work is being planned.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

ELDER J. H. SHELTON

Our beloved brother, Eld. J. H. Shelton, for many years an able defender of the truth in this region, has "gone to his long home," and "the way of all the earth." (1 Kings 2:1-4; Heb. 9:27, 28.) He died suddenly of heart failure at his home in Driggs, Ark., about six o'clock on the morning of July 3, 1934. He was held in the highest esteem in the community in which he lived, and will be greatly missed by the Church of God which he so faithfully served.

Bro. R. A. Humphreys, who provided us with the information on which this obituary is based, referring to Bro. Shelton's plans for future labor, asks pathetically now that he is gone, "Who will go for us?" or say, "Here am I, send me?" Then in answer to his question he expresses the hope that Bro. E. O. Stewart of Sweetwater, Texas, is the most "suitable man to take Bro. Shelton's place" in the meeting which they had intended to hold under the leadership of the one who now sleeps in Jesus.

May the comfort of faith and the knowledge of a life well spent in the Master's service, together with the assurance of a glad reunion in the future, relieve in a measure the sorrow the brethren everywhere feel at the loss they have sustained.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Luella Caples; Harry Goekler (for others); Fred Smith; Anna Boyanovsky; John O. Conrad; Leroy Hiott; Lola Clark; Mrs. Maurice Guest; Mrs. H. H. Kent.

VIRGINIA CONFERENCE

The Virginia Bible School is under full headway at this time. Our banner day for attendance was reached Tuesday, Aug. 21, exceeding by four all previous records in class attendance.

Bro. Gordon's classes are creating much interest both with the adults and young people.

Sr. Thayer's class of children is the largest that it has been during her four years of experience in Virginia.

Sr. Kincheloe is presenting some very interesting lessons to her intermediate class, giving them lessons leading up to and including the tabernacle service as it is given in the Old Testament scriptures.

A more complete report will possibly be given later.

V. Earl Thayer.

SOUTH CAROLINA

The Church of God of the Abrahamic Faith at Guthrie Grove, S. C., began their Annual August Meeting on Sunday morning, Aug. 5, at eleven o'clock, with a sermon by the pastor, Bro. M. O. Williamson. On Sunday night Bro. J. H. Anderson of Michigantown, Ind., began a series of lectures on "The Bible and Nature in Harmony." These lectures were very timely messages and were enjoyed by everyone present, if good attendance is to be considered as evidence, for the house was filled to seating capacity each evening; and to the public is due our sincere thanks for the splendid attention that was manifest throughout the meeting.

Before the meeting closed on Wednesday night, Aug. 15, there were eight candidates that presented themselves for baptism into Christ, thereby becoming "Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise" (Gal. 3:27-29).

And now may I introduce to the "household of faith" (Gal. 6:10) "and of the household of God" (Eph. 2:19) Brothers Truman Durham, Alvin Mills, Lewey Hammond, and Bro. Author Garrett (by letter); also Sisters Lucile Jewel, Geneva Garrett, Lula Shaw, Eunice Hammond, and Bera Curbie.

The writer exhorts each one of these to apply 1 Corinthians 15:58 to his daily life in order to qualify him for a crown of righteousness that is to be given unto all them that love Christ's appearing (2 Tim. 4:8).

We were glad to have with us again this year as visiting brethren and sisters: Elder and Sr. S. W. Hiott and son S. W., Jr., of Walterboro, S. C.; Sr. Mary B. Goddard and daughter Edith, Sr. Othello Jones and children of Oklahoma City, Okla.; together with a number of visiting brethren and friends from North Carolina.

I believe I can truthfully say we have just closed one of the most successful meetings that we have had the pleasure of attending in several years.

A. W. McCoy.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO DOLLAR-A-MONTH CLUB

Eva L. Page; Mary Calkins; Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Railsback; Ethel Swartz ($10); Lois Hunt; Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Lansbery; Mrs. D. W. Brown; Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Netts ($5); Maybelle Hanson.

"THE PATHWAY OF SALVATION"

The above appears as the title of a new 16-page booklet by Elder J. H. Anderson, Michigantown, Ind. The work comprises a series of fourteen lessons on fundamentals prepared for Bible class work. The scope is sufficiently wide to cover the major truths which are generally emphasized by the Church of God, and would be found exceedingly profitable by young people and adult Bible classes everywhere. Among the subjects treated are "The Bible," "What Is Man?" "The Resurrection," "The Coming of Christ," "The Gospel," etc. This excellent series of outline lessons may be secured at 10 cents per copy by addressing the author, J. H. Anderson, Michigantown, Ind.

THE GREAT SABBATH

"The Great Sabbath, or What Jesus Will Do When He Comes and Restitution Begins" is the title of a new and interesting tract of 28 pages by Elder J. H. Anderson. This excellent little work presents the Sabbath question from a new and refreshing viewpoint. For sale by the author, Elder J. H. Anderson, Michigantown, Ind., or J. H. Stepp, Dana, North Carolina, at Fifteen Cents per copy, postpaid.

Please send all remittances by postal money order rather than by personal checks, as we are compelled to pay a high rate of exchange to get checks cashed.

"THE HEBREW PEOPLE"

The new Junior Berean Book, "The Hebrew People," is now ready for distribution. The price is 30 cents for single copies; 27 cents each for 5 to 25 copies; 25 cents each for 25 or more copies. This book contains an illustration of the finding of the baby Moses.

Send all orders to National BEREAN Society, Oregon, Illinois.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by
National Bible Institution
Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents Sample copy, Free.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

The RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: the near return of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church to be joint heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38. and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

BETWEEN YOU AND ME—

In another column is an encouraging report from South Carolina, introducing eight new brothers and sisters to the household of faith. We rejoice that they have availed themselves of the opportunity to lay hold on eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord. May the Father's blessing attend them.

We rejoice with the pastor and congregation of the church at South Bend, Ind., in the accession to their numbers of the six young people who were baptized recently. May God lead them into lives of usefulness and keep them true to the Master until He comes.

We are now engaged in the preparation of copy for the next issue of the Truth Seekers' Sunday School Quarterly. This issue will complete Volume VIII. Judging from the many letters we receive regarding this work it is as greatly appreciated as any other service rendered to the Church of God by the National Bible Institution.

Bro. and Sr. Paul C. Johnson of Oregon, Ill., were in attendance at the closing days of the Iowa Conference. While in Iowa they will make a short visit at the home of Bro. Johnson's father near Sac City.

Do not fail to read the thought-provoking article by Sr. Emma C. Railsback on page 5. Her conclusions are well taken and distinguish clearly the difference between the position of the church and Israel in the kingdom.

Sunday, Aug. 19, Bro. and Sr. C. E. Lapp of Ripley, Ill., were the guests of Pastor Harvey U. Krogh, Jr., at the Plum River (Ill.) Church. Bro. Lapp filled the pulpit in the evening.

Among the early orders that have reached us for the next issue of the Truth Seekers' Quarterly is that of a Baptist Sunday school that has been using our quarterly for more than a year and finding it very satisfactory.

The folder which was recently purchased for the printing department is now installed and operating satisfactorily. This machine will make possible the folding of The Restitution Herald and the Truth Seekers' Quarterly without employing extra help in the office and thus assist in reducing expenses. This equipment, which has been needed for years, was secured at a very low price, in fact at a fraction of the cost of a new machine, but is doing the work as well as would a more recent model.

Fifteen Weeks for Fifty Cents—

Simply fill in this blank and return it to us accompanied by 50 cents for each one to whom you wish THE RESTITUTION HERALD sent for the next fifteen weeks and we will provide them with splendid inspirational reading, prophetic information, and comforting assurances of the Children of God for the summer's reading.

GENTLEMEN:

Please send THE RESTITUTION HERALD to each of the following for 15 weeks. I inclose 50 cents for each subscription.

Sender's Name

Address

New subscriber for 15 weeks:

Name

St. and No.

City State

Additional names may be submitted on another sheet.

THE DESTINY OF THE WICKED

"These shall go away into everlasting punishment."—Matt. 25:46. "Who shall be punished with everlasting destruction."—2 Thess. 1:9. "He will burn up the chaff with unquenchable fire."—Matt. 3:12.

THE doctrine of the Bible with respect to the end of the wicked is entirely at variance with the teachings of the religious sects of the present day. And although views are held and taught by them widely differing from each other, yet none will pass the scrutiny of the living Word. The "eternal torment" theory of some is too absurd, unjust, revolting, and abhorrent a doctrine to emanate from a God whose name is Love, and therefore, cannot be found in His revealed will—while on the other hand the doctrine of "universal salvation," as embraced and taught by others, is opposed to the justice of that God, "who will render to every man according to his deeds" (Rom. 2:6).

It might not be improper to inquire, Who are the wicked? And here again we shall need the light of the divine Word in order to answer the inquiry aright. The world at large is divided by theologians into two classes only—the righteous and the wicked. The Scriptures, however, limit this division to those who are living during times of knowledge, or under law. Those who hear, understand, believe, and obey the revealed law are the righteous; while those who disobey the truth, or close their eyes and ears lest they should discover the light, are the wicked. But those who have not been called to a participation in the glory of God's kingdom by the gospel, as the heathen, or those who are incapable of understanding the call, as infants, cannot properly be denominated either righteous or wicked. Being subject to no law except that of their own nature, they cannot possibly be either saved or condemned by the gospel. Hence, there is a vast difference between the wilful neglecter, perverter, or breaker of revealed law, and one who sins not knowing the law. The former class are styled "the wicked," or "unrighteous." Now let us inquire as to their destiny.

It is the declaration of the Bible that "though hand join in hand, the wicked shall not be unpunished" (Prov. 11:21); that "the wicked are reserved to the day of destruction" (Job 21:30); that their hope or expectation "shall perish" (Prov. 10:28); that they "shall not inhabit the earth" (v. 30), but "shall be cut off" (Psalms 37:9); "shall not be," or exist (v. 10); "shall perish" and "consume" (v. 20); and "as wax melteth before the fire, so shall the wicked perish at the presence of God." The judgments of God are sure to overtake the sinner, either in the present life, or in the future. Sacred history informs us of severe judgments inflicted upon the wicked in different ages of the world, corroborating the testimony of the Apostle Peter that "the Lord knoweth how . . . to reserve the unjust unto the day of judgment to be punished" (2 Peter 2:9). Witness the destruction of the antediluvians who despised the warning voice of Noah; the overthrow of Sodom and Gomorrah; the sudden engulfing of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram for the sin of rebellion; the fall of unbelieving Israel in the wilderness; and the judgments of God which were manifested at various times on individuals and nations, as recorded on the sacred page.

The attention of the reader is invited to the following passages, culled from the Scriptures of truth, in relation to this subject:

I. The wicked will be raised from the dead to be judged and punished.—Job 21:30; Dan. 12:2; John 5:29; Acts 24:15; Matt. 25:46.

II. The punishment will be destruction.—2 Thess. 1:7-9; Phil. 3:19; 2 Peter 3:7; Heb. 10:26, 27; Job 31:3.

III. In Gehenna-fire, called the second death.—Rev. 21:8; 20:14, 15; Mal. 4:1, 3; Matt. 3:12; 13:30, 40-42; Heb. 6:6-8.

IV. And thus they are represented as lost, perished, or destroyed.—Luke 13:3, 5; 1 Cor. 1:18; 2 Cor. 2:15, 16; 4:3; 2 Peter 2:12, 17, 20; Jude 12-15.—An old Church of God tract.

IN telling of his work in Africa, a missionary once said in reply to the inquiry, "Do you like this work?" "No; my wife and I do not like dirt. We do not like association with ignorant, filthy, brutish people. But is a man to do nothing for Christ he does not like? God pity him, if not. Liking or disliking has nothing to do with it. We have orders to go, and we go. Love, the love of Christ, constrains us."—Sunday School Times.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By J. H. Williams

WHAT a beautiful picture our heavenly Father has given us through Isaiah the Prophet of the kingdom of Christ. We find the beginning of the picture in Isaiah 32:1. "Behold, a king shall reign in righteousness, and princes shall rule in judgment." And again, chapter 29:18: "And in that day shall the deaf hear the words of the book, and the eyes of the blind shall see out of obscurity, and out of darkness."

And another corner of the picture, chapter 35:1: "The wilderness and the solitary place shall be glad for them; and the desert shall rejoice, and blossom as the rose." Read the entire chapter to get the beauty of the picture impressed on your mind. Then turn to the sixty-fifth chapter and seventeenth verse and read carefully to the end of the chapter, and there we find such a wonderful change in the order of things that it is hard for the finite mind to comprehend the meaning of it all.

Are we ready for the Lord to come and start the work on the picture? Are we anxious to hear the trump of God that will herald the coming of our Savior? When we pray; "Thy kingdom come," do we mean it from the heart? Or would we rather He would delay His coming? I wonder.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 23

OREGON, ILLINOIS, SEPTEMBER 4, 1934

NUMBER 49

THE JUDGMENT

By S. G. Elton

THE subject assigned to me, "The Judgment," is too large to be covered in a few minutes of time allotted to my views regarding it. This paper will follow the outline set in the pamphlet "Some Things for Which We Stand." (The text of this tract was published in THE RESTITUTION HERALD of February 27, 1934.—Editor.)

While God is the Judge of all the earth, after the Son had proved His ability to do the will of the Father, God committed all judgment unto the Son, with the privilege of quickening whomsoever He willed.

Paul, in Romans 2:12-16, makes it clear who the objects of His judgment will be: "For as many as have sinned without law shall also perish without law: and as many as have sinned in the law shall be judged by the law; . . . in the day when God shall judge the secrets of men by Jesus Christ according to my gospel," that is, the gospel that Paul was authorized to proclaim, viz., the things pertaining to the kingdom of God.

Inasmuch as the promises made to Abraham and his seed, and the law of Moses, pertain exclusively to the kingdom of God, I am inclined to think that all that have been circumcised under the covenant made with Abraham and have sinned will also be subject to the judgment of Christ.

In Hebrews 10:26 Paul plainly states that "if we sin wilfully after that we have received the knowledge of the truth, there remaineth no more sacrifice for sins, but a certain fearful looking for of judgment and fiery indignation, which shall devour the adversaries." Peter confirms the statement of Paul in 2 Peter 2:20: "For if after they have escaped the pollutions of the world through the knowledge of the Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, they are again entangled therein, and overcome, the latter end is worse with them than the beginning. For it had been better for them not to have known the way of righteousness, than, after they have known it, to turn from the holy commandment delivered unto them."

Originally presented as a paper before one of the Southern California quarterly conferences, Mr. Elton's article is here given as nearly as possible in the language of the author, some revision being necessary in view of its first purpose.

We have a beautiful exposition of Christ's judgment in the parable of the pounds found in Luke 19:12-27. A nobleman preparing to take a long journey to a far country for the purpose of obtaining a kingship called in his servants and delivered to them his possessions and funds sufficient to carry on his business during his absence. After his departure, his citizens that disliked him sent a protest against his appointment. Having obtained the kingship, he returned and called in his servants to render their reports. The first rendered a very satisfactory account of gain for his lord, for which he was highly commended and given a promotion; the second, under less favorable conditions, had made a remarkable gain, for which he was commended and promoted; likewise the others had proved their worth till the tenth servant was reached, and he reported no gain at all simply because he had no confidence nor faith in his lord, for which he was deprived of the opportunity of longer serving his lord. Those citizens that opposed the lord's rule were ordered to be slain before him. Please note the difference between the servants and citizens: the servants enjoyed a more intimate relationship with their lord than the citizens did.

In Romans 8:16 we read: "The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God, and if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ; if so be that we suffer with him, that we may be also glorified together." In 2 Thessalonians 1:4 we find Paul commending the church for their faith and patience in all the persecutions and tribulations that they endured, "which is a manifest token of the righteous judgment of God, that ye may be counted worthy of the kingdom of God, for which ye also suffer: seeing it is a righteous thing with God to recompense tribulation to them that trouble you; and to you who are troubled rest with us, when the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with his mighty

Please turn to Page Nine

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879.

G. Eldred Marsh, Editor

Two Dollars per Year

Paul C. Johnson, Associate Editor

"If I may but touch his garment, I shall be whole."—Matthew 9:21.

CHRIST THE HEALER

At even, ere the sun was set,
The sick, O Lord, around Thee lay;
Oh, in what divers pains they met!
Oh, with what joy they went away!

Thy touch hath still its ancient power;
No word from Thee can fruitless fall;
Hear, in this solemn evening hour,
And in Thy mercy heal us all.

—Canon Twells.

RADIO FORTUNE TELLERS

AS early as in the days of John it was said that "many deceivers are entered into the world," and since that time the annual yield of false prophets has been increasing with astonishing rapidity. Widespread distress and perplexity are always accompanied by an increase in the number of fortune tellers who batten on the anxieties and ignorance of the masses. Not knowing where to look for relief, the suffering people "seek unto them that have familiar spirits, and unto wizards that peep, and that mutter," and sacrifice their few remaining dollars in a vain attempt to draw aside the curtain that hides the future from human sight.

Among the latest devices employed by these gross pretenders to supernatural power is the radio. During the past year or more a number of men calling themselves "seers," "astrologers," etc., have been broadcasting their fraudulent claims and enticing thousands to send them money under various disguises which would not bring them into direct contact with the law.

Many, if not all, of the "miraculous" (?) answers to questions propounded to them, it is said, were accomplished by the simple method of the "seer" or "astrologer" writing both the question and the answer! He would read over the radio what purported to be a letter from one who desired advice or information on some perplexing matter, and then he would answer the question in a way that seemed to indicate that he possessed remarkable hidden knowledge concerning both the present and the future.

When it came to responding to actual letters that reached him from questioning hearers, it was done by mail, and the answers couched in the broadest and most indefinite terms that might mean almost anything, but which in reality meant nothing.

Lucille Hecht, who prepared the manuscripts for a radio fortune teller to read over the air, declares in the July Real America that her employer's "fundamental philosophy" may be expressed in these words: "Tell them what they want to hear and they'll believe it!" Illustrating the method "Kober" employed, she said his instructions were to this effect: "If they ask, 'Will I succeed in my chosen work?' answer, 'Yes. I certainly believe that you will.' Of course, always dress up your answers in a good-sized paragraph. We've got to give them their money's worth. . . . String your letter out into, 'You'll succeed if you make the most of the brilliant abilities with which you are endowed,' etc."

Another more or less modern form of fortune telling is that by the use of the ouija board. This simple little instrument is often found for sale in toy shops, but is received seriously and believed in firmly by thousands of people as a revealer of secrets. Quite recently it was the avowed cause of the murder of a father by a daughter, the latter declaring when the crime was discovered that she had been "ordered" by the ouija board to kill her parent on behalf of her mother.

Spiritualism received a great impetus at the time of the World War. Sorrowing ones wanted to hear from their loved ones who had lost their lives in the conflict, and conscienceless "mediums" were quick to avail themselves of the opportunity to reap a rich harvest by delivering silly and meaningless "messages" which purported to come from the spirit world.

All of these pretenders base their deceptions on the idea that the messages they deliver are transmitted to them by the immortal "spirit" of some departed friend. In this claim they exalt the father of all lies (John 8:44), who uttered the first and most repulsive and blasphemous falsehood of history, "Ye shall not surely die," in direct contradiction to God's positive declaration addressed to Adam, "In the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die" (Gen. 3:4; 2:17). The fact that they are taught of the devil, believing the serpent rather than God, should place them forever beyond the power to interest or to influence the Christian.

Unanswered Prayer

By Norman John MacLeod

"Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God."—Phil. 4:6.

AS we were riding in a street car one day a woman boarded the car with her family. She was one of those who appear to be struggling against poverty; in slang phrase: "Run down at the heels." Her dress, though neat, appeared to have been worn several seasons. She was as one who endures hardship without flinching. With her were her six children who swarmed around her, and centered their attention on pressing as close to her as possible. She seemed worn out by attending to her brood. But still, withal, she had an air of contentment as of one who has drunk deep of the trials of life, and has tasted also of its supreme sweetnesses. Hers was a serenity born of self-sacrifice.

Sitting next to us was another woman who was in the opposite condition from the other. She had money, ease, all the comforts afforded by a large income, and all that those things imply. She was well kempt, with the air of one who enjoys all the luxuries which give grace to personality. Yet she was lonely, dissatisfied with life, and possessed with the nervousness of a restless, longing heart that could not be filled. She had no children. She remarked to us how strange life was: she who was able financially to care for children had none and longed most earnestly for them; while this other woman had children and to spare, with all the evidences of poverty. Why was it? The cravings of the heart for children from the Lord had been denied the one, while children with more or less of poverty was the lot of the other. Yet the former was dissatisfied with the life, the latter content though weary. We were reminded of another case better known to Bible students.

Abraham and Sarah were both old. God had promised them an heir. Surely they could count on the promise of God! They had left home, friends, relatives, and all things held dear, to go out into a strange land. Surely now God would send an heir! God had told Abraham that Eleazer of Damascus should not be the heir, but another by blood. Then, out of Sarah's impatience at the slowness of God, Ishmael was born. Impatience was in the heart of the "mother of many nations"! God did not move fast enough for her! Surely if He waited so long He could not perform the thing that He had promised! Then came a day when Abraham talked with God. Abraham uttered a prayer from the depths of his yearning heart. God was promising him an heir. Great were the things that God set before the "Father of the Faithful"! What was the prayer? "Oh, that Ishmael might live before thee!" You have given me a son, a dear son, a son of my old age; let him be the promised heir; let him live before Thee! Was the prayer heard? Was the prayer answered? Yes, but not according to the request of Abraham! Why did God not listen to a plea from the depths of the being of that faithful old man?

Down the centuries we come to the promised seed of the line of Abraham. Jesus, the long-promised ruler, redeemer, heir to all things, has come to earth. He is in the Garden of Gethsemane, praying. No prayer on record touches our hearts so much with earnestness, with devotion, with longing. It tears at our hearts even yet as we read it. Here is the beloved Son pouring out His very being in a plea to escape from the tortures of the morrow. His heart is torn on the thoughts of the agony He must endure. Three times does He ask that the cup of pain be removed. Has the Lord changed? Has God forsaken Him? Does He no longer answer the beloved Son? Is the Son no longer pleasing to His heavenly Father? The Son has said that He has finished the work given Him to perform. Jesus has said while by the tomb of Lazarus that God always has heard His prayers. Why is the petition refused? Why does the Father turn a deaf ear to such pleadings? They are not in accord with the plans of God.

The prayer of faithful Abraham was refused because it was not in accord with the plans of God. In Isaac was to come the seed that had been promised. Not in Eleazer of Damascus! Not in the nephew, Lot! Not even in the son of the bondwoman, Ishmael! But in the true heir, the rightful heir according to the great plan of the Creator. No prayers could alter the plan of the ages even though uttered by the Father of the Faithful. No petition, however earnest, could set aside the things which God had in store for His faithful servant. And how much more was the reward! Then what of the faithful child of promise? The heartfelt prayer of even the Messiah could not change the plans which God had for Him. Perfection could come only

Thy Word

Thy Word, a lamp indeed
Unto my stumbling feet.
It standeth very sure,
And every day more sweet.

Thy Word Thou givest me;
'Tis grace beyond compare;
'Tis wisdom, knowledge, all
The sinner needs is there.

Thy Word the saint shall feed
With manna day by day,
And honey in the comb;
His needs supply for aye.

Thy Word it standeth sure,
A rock in time of storm;
Protecting all Thy sheep
Until the morning's dawn.
—Bertrice Covell Smith.

through the sufferings of the cross. He had lived a pure, blameless, holy life. Now to crown that great achievement He was to die the death that should redeem His brethren from the power of death. The agonized prayer in the garden, even by the beloved Son, could not change the plans of God! God had sworn to Abraham that those things should be fulfilled! They could not be changed even by the prayer of the most righteous man who had ever lived!

As we turn from these two incidents for a moment they seem almost to mock us. For were not prayers of much less apparent importance answered very quickly? Were not seemingly trivial things granted at other times? We see Hezekiah, the good king of Judah, who has committed a blunder in harboring the ambassadors from Babylon, told that he must die. In his fear of death he turns to the Lord and prays in piteous tones for longer life. Surely all men must die! What does it matter how few or many years may come and go? What of importance can it be in the plans of God that such a man—scarce indeed in the annals of the history of the two kingdoms of Israel—would live longer in the land and enjoy the pleasure of power in ruling God's people? Yet his petition is granted. God gives him fifteen years more of life! (Attested by a miracle that cannot be explained by all the scientists of all the ages.) On another occasion Elisha calls the wrath of God down upon some little children who make fun of him. Why should God grant such a petition when the heartfelt longings uttered in prayer should not be granted? These questions we cannot entirely answer, but we can find some things in the prayers of the Bible that will give us a clue to the puzzle of unanswered prayers.

Nothing can be more dangerous to spiritual life than unanswered prayers. They leave the Christian with a feeling of futility in his relationship to God. Either God, he argues, does not care what happens, or is bound by laws as some of our so-called "scientific" friends tell us, or, because God is unchanging, prayer is of no avail.

We have already noticed that one reason that the prayers of Abraham and of Christ could not be granted was that they were not in accord with God's plans. We make our own plans and change them to suit our whims or circumstances over which we have no control. We cannot see far enough ahead to tell just what would be of benefit to us. In fact we are warned by James not to make our plans too definite, because we do not have control of affairs of this world (James 4:13ff).

A prayer must be made in accord with God's will. Jesus, when He prayed in the garden, added a sentence of submission that should be an example of all prayer in which we request some very definite thing. We ask God to grant it, if it be His will. From this we see a phase of prayer that is often obscured. One of the chief purposes of prayer is for attuning ourselves to God's ways. Often we hear somebody say that he is going to pray for another so that God will turn him from his evil ways: often he might better say turn him to his own way of thinking. Rather, should it not be that we should pray for the grace to submit our own ways to God, so that we might be able to draw our brother to us more easily and in thus doing draw him to God? If we are trying to "set our brother right" in the ordinary understanding of the process we will usually obtain small results. But if we try to make our ways attractive to him because they are attuned to the ways of God, then we will be much more successful in bringing him to Jesus. If we examine the Lord's Prayer, after the manner of the early church minister, John Chrysostum, we will see that it is a prayer of submission to God. For example he says that because we pray: "Thy kingdom come," it will not come any sooner. God has His own time at which He will set Christ on the throne of David. All our requests would be in vain. Why pray that, then? Simply because we wish to put ourselves in the frame of mind that we desire the coming of that great day: we are longing for it to come. And so on, could we discuss each item in that wonderful prayer. Instead of God taking the bitter cup of agony away from Jesus, He gave Him strength to endure the trials. On Jesus' part: submission; on God's part: the gift of strength! Answer, but not in the way it was asked!

A prayer must be made according to faith, "nothing wavering." If we make a prayer to God in doubt and fear of consequences, the prayer will not be granted. If we have that explicit faith in God which should be that of the Christian, we will not be asking concerning the trivial things of life. Complete faith will tell us that God will take care of us if we are His. Complete faith will lift us above those things into the realm of the things of God's eternal kingdom. What should be the substance of our prayers? Should we ask for wealth? Should we ask for worldly power? What is the history of answered prayer? When Solomon asked for wisdom he got it, and wealth in addition. Should we not ask for wisdom in dealing with the problems of life? Should we not seek to know the things that God has set for us to learn? Study and prayer go hand in hand. Laziness will not be rewarded, whether in the world or in the church.

A prayer should be made in a humble spirit. As is illustrated by Jesus in His parable of the Pharisee and the publican who went to pray, we should acknowledge our unworthiness. This should be no hollow sham either, but true, humble, abject realization of our shortcomings. The plea, "God be merciful to me a sinner," might well be the sentiment of all of us when we pray.

How often in our prayers we overlook a very important item, namely, thanksgiving. In Philippians 4:6 we read: "Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God." David's remarkable prayer, recorded in 2 Samuel 7, has as its entire subject thanksgiving. In his hour of great exaltation David did not forget God! In our hour of need we go to God in prayer. But when we are especially happy and God has granted a great blessing, we often forget the Source of all good gifts.

The prayer of gratitude, the prayer of submission, the prayer of faith, the prayer in humility—these are prayers that will be answered. The prayer that runs across the plans of God, that lacks the faith that makes it right, that is spoken in pride, that fails to turn in gratefulness to God—those will remain the unanswered prayers.

The Wonder of the Book

PART TWO

ANOTHER wonderful thing is that this Book was not written in Athens, the seat of learning in Greece, nor in Alexandria in Egypt. It was not written by men who received their inspiration from the ancient sources of wisdom. It was written by men who lived in Palestine, in Nazareth, in Galilee. Many of the writers were what we would call illiterate. Not only were they not university men, or scholars, or original thinkers; they could not speak their own language properly. There is a strong probability that neither John nor Peter could speak grammatically. You remember Peter was trapped because his dialect betrayed him. He spoke like a Galilean. Did you ever hear a man from Yorkshire or Somersetshire talking? Did you ever hear the brogue of an Irishman from Galway? It was like that with Peter and John. (Matt. 26:73; Acts 2:7; 4:13.) They were uneducated men. And many of the men who wrote the Bible were men of that character. One was a farm hand. Another was a shepherd. They were men of no literary reputation. And yet from men of that type educationally has come a book that God in His mysterious power has so divested of all provincialism that it has become the standard of the language of the most literary nations of the world. And not only so. It is a book that has gone to the North and South and East and West. It is the strongest factor in modern life today, and yet it is of the ancient world. It is the most potent factor in the influence of the great nations of the progressive West, and yet it proceeded from the narrowest and most conservative people of the unprogressive East. All its authors were Jews, and the Jews, by instinct and tradition, by education and sentiment, were the narrowest of all narrow people. The Jew was not only narrow; he had no interest in other nations. You know what a time it took to get the idea into Peter's head that he ought to have an interest in the salvation of the Gentiles of the outside world (Acts 10:14; Gal. 2:11-14). A miracle of special revelation only did it. How do you explain, then, the fact that these ignorant men, those most uncosmopolitan men, with all their provincialism, and exclusiveness, and insularity, were enabled to write a book which has become not only the Book of the Jews, but the Book of all men, and The Book of the world today? It is for only one tongue, and that is, the world's. It is for universal man as man. It is the proud boast of the Church of Rome today that it has but one language, and that a dead language, the Latin. But the Bible Society has a prouder boast. It is its boast that it has printed the Bible in over five hundred living languages; that it is giving the living Word to every nation under heaven, that they may hear in their own tongue the wonderful works of God. Yes, God has so overruled the history of His world that there has been born a society which has reestablished the miracle of Pentecost. It is truly a miracle. It is a wonder to think that an old Hebrew book, written by a lot of Jews, has in God's mystic Providence been so divested of all orientalism and Judaism, and rabbinism, that the millions upon millions of boys and girls and men and women who read it never think of it as the writing of Hebrews or the language of an ancient and oriental race. To them they are simply the words of their own dear mother tongue. It is the English Bible; the best that our literature can give in simple, noble prose, as Frederick Harrison once said in a lecture at Oxford. And yet, wonderful to think of, the German never thinks of it in any other way. To him it is the German Bible.

Another wonderful thing about the Bible is that it is almost the only book in the world that has stood ages of ferocious and incessant persecution. Century after century men have tried to burn it and to bury it. Crusade after crusade has been organized to extirpate it. Kings of the earth set themselves, and rulers of the church took counsel together to destroy it from off the face of the earth. Diocletian, the Roman emperor, in 303, inaugurated the most terrific onslaught that the world has known upon a book. Every Bible, almost, was destroyed, myriads of Christians perished, and a column of triumph was erected over an exterminated Bible with the inscription: "Extincto nomine Christianorum" (The name of the Christians has been extinguished). And yet, not many years after, the Bible came forth, as Noah from the ark, to repopulate the earth, and in the year 325 Constantine enthroned the Bible as the Infallible Judge of Truth in the first General Council. Then followed the prolonged persecution of medievalism. You all know how the Church of Rome denied the Scriptures to the people. The Church of Rome never trusted the people with the Bible. For ages it was practically an unknown book. Even Luther was a grown-up man when he said that he had never seen a Bible in his life. No jailer ever kept a prisoner closer than the Church of Rome has kept the Bible from the people. Not only so. In consequence of edicts of councils, and bans, and bulls of popes, Bibles were burned and Bible readers sent by the Inquisition to rack and flame. Many of us have seen the very spot in old London where baskets full of English Testaments were burned with great display by the order of Rome.

Yet perhaps the worst persecution of all has been during the last one hundred and fifty years. The bitterest foes of the Bible, curiously enough, were men who claimed liberty of thought, and Bolingbroke and Hume and Voltaire seemed so confident of the extermination of the Bible, that the Frenchman declared that a hundred years after his day not a Bible would be found save as an antiquarian curiosity. Then came the German rationalistic host, with the fiercest and deadliest of all the attacks. Baur and Strauss and the Tübingen School took up the cry of the children of Edom: "Down with it, down with it, even to the ground." But He that sitteth in His silent heaven laughed, and Jehovah had them in derision. For here it is today, and stronger than ever. It stands, and it will stand. The adversaries have done their worst. They have charged their heaviest charge. They have fired their deadliest volley. Whatever unexpected adversaries appear in the future, no more destructive trios than Julian and Celsus and Porphyry, than Voltaire and Strauss and Renan, than Eichborn, Wellhausen, and Kuenen, will ever be confederate against it. Yet, in spite of these age-long persecutions, the Word of the Lord is having free course, and is being glorified. It is being circulated at the rate of about twenty-five million copies a year, in over five hundred languages of the globe. It has an influence it never possessed before. Verily as we think of it we may challenge our proud age with the challenge of Moses, and cry: "Ask now of the days that are past, which were before thee, since the day that God created man upon the earth, and ask from the one side of heaven unto the other, whether there hath been any such thing as this great thing is, or hath been heard like it?"

But before I close I would like to briefly refer to five other things that are to my mind the crowning wonders of the Book.

There is, first of all, what we might call its self-authenticatingness. You need no historical critic or university professor to prove that the Bible is God's own Word. (God) is the Author and Giver of that conviction. If you will hear the accents of His voice you will be assured beyond all possibility of argument that this book is God's own Word. Men have come, and still come, to unsettle and destroy. The Spirit of Christ comes to validate and confirm with a divine conviction and a divine certainty that is incommunicable by mere reason, and is impervious to the assaults of doubt. You have perhaps heard Spurgeon's famous story of the poor woman who was confronted by a modern agnostic, and asked, "What are you reading?" "I am reading the Word of God." "The Word of God? Who told you that?" "He told me so Himself." "Told you so? Why, how can you prove that?" Looking skyward, the poor soul said: "Can you prove to me that there is a sun in the sky?" "Why, of course; the best proof is that it warms me, and I can see its light." "That's it!" was her joyous reply. "The best proof that this Book is the Word of God is that it warms and lights my soul." (Read 1 Cor. 2:12.) You cannot explain this. But it is a fact deep and real.

Another wonder of the Bible is its inexhaustibility. It is like a seed. You can tell how many acorns are on an oak, but you cannot tell how many oaks there are in an acorn. The tree that grows from a seed produces in turn the seeds of other trees; each tree contains a thousand seeds; each seed the germ of a thousand trees. Its depth is infinite; its height is infinite. Millions of readers and writers, age after age, have dug in this unfathomable mine, and its depths are still unexhausted. Age after age it has generated, with ever-increasing creative power, ideas and plans, and schemes, and themes, and books. Yes, books; and in many cases books that are the only literature of the nation. The greatest minds have been its expositors. Myriads of students have studied it daily, and its readers from day to day can be numbered by millions. The volumes that have been written on single chapters or even pages would fill the shelves of many a library, and today they are as fresh, as fertile, as inexhaustible, as the day they were first written. The treasures yet to be found are as the stars of the sky in infinity of multitude.

Another wonder is its non-improvableness. You cannot gild gold. You cannot paint rubies. You cannot brighten diamonds. And no artist can touch with final touch this finished Word of God. This proud-pinnacled century can add nothing to it. It stands as the sun in the sky. If the greatest Bible lovers of the last century, like Irving, and Gladstone, and Spurgeon, and Parker, had attempted to improve it, their work would have been a patch and a disfigurement. It has the Glory of God.

Its irresistible authoritativeness. This is another wonder. It breaks upon you as a voice from heaven. Five hundred times in the Pentateuch it prefaces or concludes its declarations with the sublime assertions, "The Lord said," or "The Lord spake"! Three hundred times again in the following books it does the same, and in the prophetic, twelve hundred times with such expressions as: "Hear the word of the Lord," or "Thus saith the Lord." No other book dares thus to address itself to the universal conscience of man as man. No other speaks with such binding claim, or presumes to command the obedience of mankind. While all the books of the Bible are not equal in grandeur of revelation or of spiritual value, or ethical importance, there is throughout an equality of inspiration and finality of authoritativeness. The strange thing is that men in every age and clime acknowledge it. They know that the book speaks to their inner consciousness with an authority like the authority of God Himself.

Another wonder is what might be called its perpetual re-inspiration. Men think of the Bible as a book that was inspired. But the wonder of the Bible is that it is inspired. From the far-distant heights of time it comes sweeping into the hearts of men today, and the same breath of God that breathed into it its mystic life makes it live and energize again today. It is the living Word, vital with the life of the living God who gave it and gives it living power. The twenty-third Psalm was inspired, but again and again today, as it is whispered in the hush of the death-chamber, or read with the hidden cry, "Open thou mine eyes that I may behold wondrous things out of thy law," it is re-inspired, and the Spirit makes it live once more. For this is the most remarkable and unique feature of the Bible. I feel that it is mine. Its promises are mine. As I read the one hundred and third Psalm, it is not ancient Hebrew, it is present-day power; and I, a living soul, overwhelmed with gratitude, cry out: "Bless the Lord, O my soul." The other day I took up this dear old Bible that my mother gave me, and I noted a verse in Genesis with a date written on

Please turn to Back Page

Amos and the Modern World

PERHAPS one reason why I like the stern old farmer-prophet, Amos, of Tekoa, is that I have seen the conditions he pictured and the fulfillment of the principles he laid down. It was my grisly lot, as a war correspondent, to go through four major national revolutions—in Russia, Egypt, Turkey, and China. I have seen the high brought low, and have given food to impoverished generals and aristocrats who had shortly before dwelt in palaces, lording it over the peasantry. I have seen a ranking ambassador reduced to such dire poverty that in the capital where he once led in magnificent display he later lived in a single room, supported by his wife's labors.

With my own eyes I saw the rise of the world tide that is now sweeping the whole earth, menacing the old order of privilege. I utterly disapprove of both Communism and Fascism; but I see no workable substitute for them except a Christian democracy, wherein all men will seek first the welfare of the whole body, under the impulsion of divine law and Christian love. I could join Amos in his denunciations of self-indulgent privilege and power; and, like him, point to an overruling God, whose nature is both justice and love, and who always, ultimately, has His way.

All the isolated outbreaks in the world today fit into one pattern, be they national overturns or local strikes. They are violent efforts to achieve social justice, and to end manifold oppressions. Their result, ultimately, will either be universal chaos or an intelligent establishment of a brotherly order of society, wherein the strong no longer make the weak to suffer. As I have often said, there is nothing wrong with the nation today that cannot be made right by the Christian religion and the orderly processes of constitutional democracy. But many blind eyes will have to be opened to the real state of affairs, and to the irresistible trend of world currents, before this can be achieved.

THE PERPENDICULAR PILLAR

Even while the universal mass movement toward a more altruistic and equitable order of life was under way overseas, we in this western world were witnessing a strange outburst of the contrary spirit. Following the war came the two decades of "self-expression," "personal liberty," and unbridled egotism. The perpendicular pronoun became the pillar of Baal, at which old and young worshiped. "I want to do it," was exalted as the adequate reason for an orgy of pagan luxury, self-indulgence, and carnality.

Foolish professors in many colleges—women's colleges especially—and a whole tribe of writers, recklessly threw

William T. Ellis, a former war correspondent, analyzes world conditions and compares them with the state of society in the days of Amos. He can see no practical solution of our problems except in a revival of true Christian democracy. The author should go a step further, and observe that only the coming of the Lord and the establishment of His kingdom can bring about lasting recovery. On the whole, however, his article is worthy of thoughtful consideration. We are indebted to Bro. Arthur Gilbey, Thorold, Ont., for its appearance in these columns.

themselves into the crusade for unrestrained individualism, and for the flouting of all the accepted verities of custom and religion. Young women, thinking they were "modern," revived the ancient oriental practices, which were in vogue at Ur of the Chaldees six thousand years ago, of painting their lips and cheeks and eyebrows and finger-nails. Chastity, in certain circles, became a despised word. Night clubs grew in popularity, as in shamelessness. Nudity cavorted at the Chicago Fair. Divorce, with these "emancipated" selfists, became no longer a disgrace, but an accepted convenience. Working girls denied themselves food in order to indulge in the latest fashions of the idle rich. Cocktails became as common as tea. Ego was the only god worshiped; while He who sitteth in the heavens laughed.

AFTERWARD — THE DEPRESSION

What happened was all chartered by lonely old Amos. Repudiated moral laws exacted their toll. The Depression came like a holocaust, caused directly and wholly by stupid, blind selfishness. The Great Schoolmaster took the disobedient pupils into the woodshed for a chastening. Whether the lesson was learned, remains to be seen. We had been saying, "Every man for himself, and the devil take the hindmost." But the devil gets the foremost in that procession. Just as we call the self-indulgent child "spoiled"—a bad egg—so we discovered that retribution had come, both in the fate and in the character of the reckless self-pleasers.

After only a year, Hitler found his Nazis rotten at the top—morally, as well as politically, rotten. Their shameless self-indulgence had degenerated into the bestial habits of the ancient cities which the fire of God's wrath had destroyed. Moral decay always follows unbridled self-pleasing. The pattern outlined by Amos proved true in Germany, as everywhere. Society always decays at the top; the saving health of the body politic has ever been the sturdy morality, integrity, and religion of the plain people.

The news columns have told, by reports of official records, of the shameless greed and predatory criminality of eminent men who once had been regarded as leaders in the business world. Not a line has been lacking to fulfill the Amos picture.

Many persons—especially the rich and powerful—are worried over current manifestations of radicalism. The greater concern, in the light of history, should be over the callous, blind selfishness of entrenched wealth, which stops at no measure to retain its unearned privileges. Why cannot the financial magnates, whose vast fortunes have certainly not brought them happiness, understand the real prosperity that resides in the common welfare of the whole body of society? Really, the stupidity of the rich exceeds their wickedness. Small wonder that Amos heaped scorn upon these blind flouters of righteousness.

THE INNER WORM

Like a worm that eats the heart of supporting timbers, the real evil of the conditions portrayed by the old Hebrew prophet is the spiritual blindness of those who have ransacked the world for means of catering to their own fleshly desires. Worse than the deterioration and disintegration of self-indulgence is its violation of both the letter and the spirit of revealed religion. It is utter defiance of the clear teachings of both the Old and New Testaments. It directly counters everything that Jesus stood for. It is the supreme heresy. The "mark of the beast" is Number One.

Over and over again, Jesus said that no man liveth to himself; that self must be denied, and life laid down. One picturesque phrase portrayed the Savior as having "emptied himself"—there was no self-indulgence in Him. His platform was that He had come, "not to be ministered unto, but to minister." All of His words and life were gathered up into the supreme symbolism of the cross. In theory, if not in reality, the cross is the trademark of Christianity. And it signifies forever the disciplined, surrendered life. Only reined souls reign.

Our greatest present need is for an Amos, a Savonarola, a St. Francis, a Luther, a Knox, a Wesley, to call in trumpet tones our times to a realization of true welfare. The Methodist movement among the common people saved England from revolution. Only applied Christianity can make a success of the New Deal and the New Day, and all the other formulas for a fairer world. So great is the end sought—the transformation of the entire social order—that it must have an adequate power behind it; and there is no other power in sight than the dynamic of religion. A great surge of Christian awakening would deliver our world; for Christ is still sufficient to save.—The Advertiser.

An Appalling Fact

RECENTLY I heard a clergyman in Chicago make the astonishing statement that "there were in Chicago 750,000 children and youths, without religious instruction of any kind, either Protestant, Catholic, or Jewish." This would be astonishing to many.

In The Homeletic Review for June, I find another statement along the same line, but giving the figures for the entire nation: "The appalling fact in America today to me is that eight million of our children are now receiving absolutely no religious instruction, Protestant or Catholic. One third of our childhood is Christless. One third of the generation upon which we are to found the hope of tomorrow is unapproached for religion. The other two thirds are poorly enough made ready by the slight religious attention we give to preserve the two thirds proportion. The first and greatest duty of the church is to conserve its childhood."

We have in this country many people who will go far and seek long to get some startling facts. They will not need to seek further—if they will but consider these two statements. As the author in The Homeletic Review, Dr. Merton S. Rice, has well observed: "There are a great many things which carry alarm for the student of conditions as they are in society today. He who seeks startling human facts will not have far to go. But the most significant startle I have felt in any news I have read for a long time came to me recently with a report issued by the Sunday school board of our church."

If it is true, as stated in this article, that "82 per cent of the church membership of today came in through the doors of our Sunday schools," what care we should be taking that the children of the various communities we happen to be living in should be in the Sunday school!

But—and here is the startlingly sad fact—very few of the scholars in the Sunday schools of the land ever unite with the churches in which they have attended the schools. "There is, however, attendant blame, and severe charge to lay against us, when we find more, that only a scant 15 per cent of the pupils of our Sunday schools ever unite with the church; 82 per cent of what we now have have come from but 15 per cent of the schools where the children were within our reach. If we saved the loss of that 85 per cent of our Sunday schools, we would increase our churches 467 per cent—an increase quite within reason."

I would not minimize in the least the fine work being done by our public schools. May God bless our great free schools. But our radical swing to unlicensed liberty has hushed the voice of the majority in our Republic as to religion. The minority sit regnant, and boastfully so, in the fact that we dare not, in the schools we have founded and support, lift our voices in religion. Hence we turn to the church in its own direct activity for response. When we enter this realm of training in the moral and religious fiber of life, we are confronted with the fact that we are doing what we alone can do in a sadly imperfect way.

Old John Terbonius always appeared before the boys in his class with uncovered head. He kept within himself as their teacher an evident sense of awe. It was impressive, for he stood as in the presence of tomorrow when tomorrow was impressionable. He used to say: "Who can tell what may rise up among these youths? There may be among them those who shall become learned doctors, sage legislators, nay, princes of the empire." And even as he spoke thus, there sat before him in that little class that then-unnnoticed boy who was to become a character to shake the world, for John Trebonius was even then teaching Martin Luther.

These things being true, how important that we who are posing before the oncoming generation as examples of what Christian life and teaching are, or should be, not only should take pains to give them what they need in the way of secular instruction, fitting them for the life that now is, but should all see to it that they receive the teaching that will mean "instruction in righteousness"—thus fitting them for the life "which is to come."

If it is true that the children and youth of today are the citizens and rulers of tomorrow, what an opportunity and responsibility rests upon the church of today, and how can it expect to hear from the coming One the "well done" unless, like Abraham of old, it sees to it that the children in the household are taught to "keep the way of the Lord, to do justice and judgment."—A. E. Bloom in The World's Crisis.

PREACH the truth and trust God for the outcome. Even the world hates a coward. When parents do not obey God how can they expect their children to obey them? God's people have largely withdrawn from the fire. They do not enjoy being burnt out. Many a religious nest needs renovating, disinfecting, fumigating.—Bartleman.

THE JUDGMENT

Continued from Front Page

angels, in flaming fire taking vengeance on them that know not God, and that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ: who shall be punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord, and from the glory of his power."

It is important that we should know who are engaged in troubling the churches of God in which Paul and others are so deeply interested, and who will be the objects of everlasting destruction in the day of God's wrath. In 1 Thessalonians 2:14, Paul states, "For ye, brethren, became followers of the churches of God which in Judæa are in Christ Jesus: for ye also have suffered like things of your own countrymen, even as they have of the Jews: who both killed the Lord Jesus, and their own prophets, and have persecuted us: and they please not God, and are contrary to all men: forbidding us to speak to the Gentiles that they might be saved. . . Wherefore we would have come unto you, even I Paul, once and again; but Satan hindered us."

Yes, Paul has identified the guilty party at last. In the eighth chapter of the Gospel of John we find Jesus identifying the same party in the forty-fourth verse: "Ye are of your father the devil, and the lusts of your father ye will do. He was a murderer from the beginning, and abode not in the truth, because there is no truth in him." Now we have the testimony of the two most reliable witnesses as to the source of all tribulation which the world has suffered from the beginning of the race of men.

In Revelation 20:1, 2 we read that the angel that came down from heaven "laid hold on the dragon, that old serpent, which is the Devil, and Satan," four names used by the inspired writers to describe evil. It was men, Israelites, that Jesus contended with; it was citizens of Thessalonica that persecuted the church at that place, and not the supernatural creature of popular tradition.

The first mention of the serpent is found in Genesis 3:1, and the location was in the Garden of Eden, and the only man existing at that time was Adam, who, with his wife Eve, occupied a position in the garden, where they were given the liberty to eat of the fruit of every tree except the tree of the knowledge of good and evil. It was then that Adam's mind became vain, and the title of the serpent was applied to him.

We will omit what transpired in the garden till the Lord God found Adam and Eve and inquired, "Hast thou eaten of the tree, whereof I commanded thee that thou shouldest not eat?" The man said, "The woman whom thou gavest to be with me, she gave me of the tree, and I did eat. And the Lord God said unto the woman, What is this that thou hast done? And the woman said, The serpent beguiled me, and I did eat. And the Lord God said unto the serpent, Because thou hast done this, thou art cursed above all cattle, and above every beast of the field; upon thy belly shalt thou go, and dust shalt thou eat all the days of thy life." "Because thou hast done this." What? Beguiled the woman, uttered a lie, and become the exponent of evil. "And I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed; it shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel." Instead of this being a promise of hope for the woman, it is a positive threat of extinction for the serpent and his seed, a threat which will be carried out when the seed of the woman, the Lord Jesus Christ, will be revealed from heaven with His mighty angels.

Man frequently expresses wonder as to why God has permitted evil to prevail for nearly six thousand years. It has been because without evil we would not have known good; without suffering there would be no glory; without death, no striving for life; without sin, no salvation; without a curse there could be no blessing. "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose." What if God, willing to show His wrath and to make His power known, endured with much long-suffering the vessels of wrath, that He might make known the riches of His glory on the vessels of mercy, which He has prepared unto glory?

Abreast of the Times

Cardinal Defends the Jews

"Thus saith the Lord of hosts; . . . He that toucheth you toucheth the apple of his eye."—Zech. 2:8.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—According to the Jewish Telegraphic Agency, Cardinal Michael Faulhaber, Archbishop of Munich, in a speech vigorously denounced the Nazi anti-Jewish policy. "No Catholic ever agreed to the persecution of the Jews in Germany," he said. "God always punishes the persecutors of the Jews. Persecution will never eradicate the ancient Jewish people, which has been suffering and which always suffers because of its deep devotion to religion. Let us Catholics," he continued, "take an example from the Jews and honor them because they gave the world the best gift, which is the Bible (Rom. 3:1, 2). Catholics, educate your brothers that racial hatred is the wildest poison in our life," the Cardinal concluded.

Such utterances as these are somewhat difficult to harmonize with the idea that the Antichrist is the Pope of the Roman Catholic Church, for the Scriptures warn us that the man of sin is to be distinguished for his bitter opposition to the God of his Jewish "fathers" (Dan. 11:36, 37), and in fact, that he will be the relentless foe of all religion (2 Thess. 2:4).

German Youth Fights Christianity

"His citizens hated him, . . . saying, We will not have this man to reign over us."—Luke 19:14.

BERLIN, Germany, Aug. 22.—Roman Catholics and some Protestant groups are considerably agitated over an outbreak of anti-Christian propaganda which has its center in the German youth movement. August Hoppe, of the Hitler youth press department, declared recently in the periodical Nordland that "the time has come to take up the fight against Christianity. Germans must and shall realize that their conversion to Christianity was a crime against the race and the people which put them completely at the mercy of powers outside the State."

Commenting on Hoppe's statement, the Catholic paper, Kirchenblatt, asked "the responsible authorities of the State how these utterances of the Hitler youth authorities can possibly be reconciled with the assurances to positive Christianity recently emphasized by an authoritative voice," a reference, no doubt, to Chancellor Hitler's avowal at Hamburg recently that "positive Christianity" would be defended in Germany.

The Nordland article called upon Germans to "liberate yourselves from the cultures of alien priests who want to make you the booty of the Jews. Discard the last messages of Christian training," he urged, and "abandon the Jewish-Christian conception of sin, pity, and loving the enemy." He called for hardness on the part of the German people, saying, "Pity and mercy be damned. Praise that which steels. Christianity's totality claim is a thing of the past," he asserted.

Anti-Christian propaganda is sweeping the world of youth everywhere in these days, and a carefully planned campaign should be launched by the Church of God to protect our own young people and the young people of our church communities from the sophistic arguments presented by these detractors of Christianity.

Rabbi Wise Warns Against Nazis

"I have set thee a watchman unto the house of Israel; therefore thou shalt . . . warn them from me."

GENEVA, Aug. 21.—In a plea to the Jews to stand and fight together, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of New York warned the World Jewish Conference now in session here that no compromise with the Nazi Government of Germany, regardless of the terms Chancellor Hitler may offer, can be considered. The boycott against Germany will not be abandoned, he declared, until that country repeals every law or practice "violating human freedom, political equality, and the ideals of civilization."

The rabbi protested what he described as a breach of the boycott by the Jews in Palestine, "a breach which continues to be ever widened. Jews who fail to cooperate in the boycott show the deepest lack of faith. To die at the hands of Nazism is cruel," he asserted. "To survive by its grace would be ten times worse. This trafficking of Jewish Palestine with Nazi Germany must cease at once. There is something worse than entering Zion with bowed heads and that is with unclean hands. If the Jews wish to remain a people," he said, "they must awake and arise, taking counsel to stand together against their foes."

Earlier in the day Jacob Lestchinsky declared that 60,000 Jews left Germany in 1933 and that the first six months of this year saw another 10,000 go. But, he said, those remaining are in serious straits since they have no refuge in central Europe. "Jewish youth has no prospects in any central European country," he continued, adding that state employment is refused Jews in Poland, Rumania, Lithuania, and Latvia. "Palestine offers the only salvation to Jews who would emigrate," he concluded.

Driven by the bitter anti-Semitic spirit that is now sweeping the world to flee for their lives and seek homes other than in so-called Christian countries, and finding all avenues of escape barred, all doors closed to them, save only that which leads back to the land of their fathers, day by day the Jewish people are being forced into the pathway mapped out for them by Jehovah of old, and are seeking refuge, and finding it, among the fruitful hills and valleys of Palestine, even as God had said should be the case in the closing days of Gentile times.

Berean Department

ARLEN MARSH, EDITOR

Wanted: Servants

No doubt a large number of our young people graduated from high school or college this year and are now in that huge class of people who are looking for work. Perhaps you have trudged from office to office and scanned the want ad department of the newspapers, or listed your name with some employment bureau, all to no avail.

Perhaps you were fortunate enough to gain an interview with an employer only to find that you could not qualify for the position. Probably you met this accusation: "You are too young," or, "You are too inexperienced," which may have been the truth or merely an employer's excuse.

But, friends, there is One who has work for all and who asks no question as to age, education, or experience. No one is too young or too old, no preference is given the highly educated or the well dressed. All have an equal chance regardless of outward appearance and circumstance. And He is willing for us to commence work at any time. He doesn't keep putting us off, saying, "If anything opens up, I'll notify you."

Various positions in the business world call for varying requirements. But certain things are required of every employee. He must be loyal to his firm, trustworthy, faithful, willing and ready to receive and obey orders. And these are the things that Jesus expects of those who are His.

He expects us to be loyal to Him, for He said, "No man can serve two masters." No man can serve God and sin. The wages of sin is death, and know ye not that to whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey his servants ye are?

He expects us to faithfully use the talents that have been given unto us. He expects us to use wisely the money He has given unto us. And He rightfully expects that our time will not be wasted, but will be used to help further His cause. For "it is required in stewards, that a man be found faithful."

Christ further said whosoever will be chief among you, let him be servant of all. The best way of serving Christ, then, is serve our fellow man. It is the little things we can do which are so often overlooked or counted as inconsequential which really make us good servants. We are to serve willingly from the heart "as to the Lord, and not to men." Not for the praise we shall receive from man, but "knowing that whatsoever good thing (small or great) any man doeth, the same shall he receive of the Lord."

Therefore, "be ye stedfast, unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labour is not in vain in the Lord."

Young people, I appeal unto you to cease serving sin, for the wages of sin are death. Accept Christ's invitation to work for Him, for truly servants are wanted. The gift of God to His Son's servants is eternal life.—Miss Lucille Le Crone, pastor community church, Helena, Okla.

The High Calling

"And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose."—Romans 8:28.

PAUL is speaking of those who are "called out" by the gospel, called out of darkness into God's marvelous light. They are living by faith, looking forward unto the wonderful promises made by God through His Son.

In 1 Thessalonians 2:12 we are exhorted to walk worthy of God, who hath called us unto His kingdom and glory. His calling is a special one, and God has made exceeding great and precious promises to those that prove faithful (2 Peter 1:4).

Things do not happen by accident or chance in God's plan, for He is working through His "called out" ones. In 2 Timothy 1:9 Paul tells us that God hath called us with a holy calling, not according to our works, but according to His own purpose and grace, which was given us in Christ Jesus before the world began.

The story of Joseph and Jacob is an example of this truth. Joseph was sold into bondage, and Jacob suffered for many years by the loss of his son. But God took this means to make Joseph ruler of Egypt and savior of his sorrowing father and his household.

Peter's exhortation should be heeded by every Christian: "Wherefore the rather, brethren, give diligence to make your calling and election sure: for if ye do these things, ye shall never fall: for so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ."—2 Peter 1:10, 11.—Miss Charlotte Rahn, Los Angeles, California.

On Modernism

No more deadly enemy of the church exists than the puerile doctrines being circulated under the euphemistic title "Modernism." The Psalmist, long centuries before the German schools began their destructive work against the Bible under the guise of "truthfulness," wrote definitely, "The fool hath said in his heart, There is no God," and this is, in practicality, the teaching of the self-styled Modernists.

Actual unbelief can be combated. Atheism can be understood, if not condoned. But modern agnosticism, working with the benefit of the name Christian, is not to be comprehended. God becomes a Power, not a Person; the Bible becomes a book, not a gospel; and the Christ is made to seem a simple human being. These are the things which undermine the church. These things must be overcome.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"Shew me thy ways, O Lord; teach me thy paths."

LOVING GOD WITH THE WHOLE HEART

ALL of you girls and boys who read this page have many friends, I'm sure. Some of your friends are closer to you than others. Some are more loving and thoughtful than others. And some are friends only in name.

Suppose one of your friends should say to you day after day that he loved you and that he wanted to do something nice for you whenever he could. Suppose you told that friend all of your secrets and all of your hopes and all of your plans.

One day you found out that that friend had talked about you to some one else, had told your secrets to others, and had laughed at the things you had confided in him. You'd be pretty angry at him, wouldn't you? You'd say he was a false friend, and you'd not want to have anything more to do with him.

Do you know that the children of Israel did just that way with God? They pretended to love God more than anyone else. They promised to serve Him only and always.

And God confided in them His plans and His hopes for them. God told them that they were very special friends of His. He asked them to do some things for Him, too.

Then these Israelites turned their backs on God. They had pretended to be His people, but they didn't really mean it. They did a few things for God, but it was all done merely for show. Their hearts were not in what they did.

With a friend like that we would just be finished. For that would be a false friend, and one not worth having at all. But God isn't like us; if He were He wouldn't be God.

You know, there are ways that we can be false friends to God, too. We can pretend to love and honor Him by going to Sunday school. But suppose we go just because we think we have to go. We do not think of what we learn from one Sunday to the next. Or we do not stand up for God when some one makes fun of Him.

It's pretty easy to fall into the habit of doing some of these things. Especially is it easy when so many around us are doing those very things. We want so much to be like the crowd about us.

And that was the trouble with the children of Israel. They wanted to be like the nations around them, who worshiped idols and did not know about God and His great love. They were false to their very best Friend.

But this Friend's heart ached for the Israelites. He wanted to bring them back to love Him once more. He wanted them to honor Him and serve Him.

And so He sent a man named Isaiah to talk to them and try to get them to repent of their doings. Do you know where Isaiah's home was, and who was king when he spoke for God to Israel? Look at Isaiah 1:1. That will tell you.

The first chapter is a sad, sad chapter. But look over at the next page, the second chapter. There Isaiah tells of a time when the people will no longer worship idols. They will all want to go up to the Lord's house and worship Him.

Do you know who it is that will get Israel to return to God? Who it is that will teach the people about God's love? Who it is that will bring Israel and God together once more?

Yes, it's Jesus our Savior, the Son of God. And Isaiah speaks of Him on almost every page of his book. Read those beautiful words in chapter 9, verses 5, 6. Also, look in chapter 11, and see what he says there about Jesus.

The thirty-fifth chapter tells us about the time when Jesus shall be King over Israel and over the whole earth as well. Be sure and learn a verse or two from Isaiah's book during the week. I just can't pick out the nicest verse; there are so many of them.

Isn't our God a wonderful God? And isn't His Son Jesus just the very best Friend we can have? Let's be true to both of them every day of our lives.

"Lift up, my soul, thy praises,
For God is on His throne,
Above all earthly kingdoms
He reigns in power alone!
The Lord of all the nations,
Eternal King of all,
To even me He listens;
And hears me when I call.

"Lift up, my soul, thy praises,
That such a Friend is thine;
And sing a song of gladness
For all His love divine!
My Lord, my King, my Savior,
My ever-present Friend,
I'll love Thee and I'll praise Thee,
With joy that knows no end."

The Sunday School Lesson

FROM TRUTH SEEKERS' QUARTERLY

LESSON 12. — September 16, 1934

ISAIAH CONTRASTS FALSE AND TRUE

Isaiah 1:1-31

Devotional Reading: John 4:20-24

GOLDEN TEXT

Who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord? or who shall stand in his holy place? He that hath clean hands, and a pure heart.—Psalm 24:3, 4.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic: Isaiah Contrasts False and True Worship.

Aim: Worship acceptable to God comes only from a pure heart.

Basic Truth: "The true worshippers shall worship the Father in spirit and in truth: for the Father seeketh such to worship him."—John 4:23.

I. Unacceptable Worship. (Isa. 1:10-14.) The worship of God is a privilege, not an obligation. It is the outpouring of a thankful heart before God. Only those who know that they have met the conditions of adoption into the divine family, the church, can engage in the true worship of the heavenly Father. The Psalmist asks, "Who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord? or who shall stand in his holy place?" and answers his own question by saying, "He that hath clean hands, and a pure heart." Psa. 24:3, 4. Worship implies close harmony with God, a full appreciation of His goodness, and only the pure in heart will find themselves in that depth of fellowship.

II. Unanswered Prayer. (V. 15.) The prayer of faith is always heard and always answered, for there can be no real faith that is unaccompanied by faithful works (Jas. 2:26). The one who earnestly endeavors to present his body a living sacrifice to God, i. e., the one who strives to serve God through the service of his fellow men, using the strength and the ability God has given him for others, will always be heard when he comes to God in prayer. But sin separates men from God so that He "will not hear" when they voice their cries to Him (Isa. 59:1, 2).

III. Conditions of Divine Pardon. (Vv. 16-20.) Isaiah does not attempt to enumerate all that one must do to carry out God's will, he simply suggests the principle that covers the entire matter of obedience. Purity of heart is the first requirement. When once the heart is cleansed from all iniquity, out of it will naturally flow those deeds of benevolence which Jesus said marked one as a child of God (Matt. 5:44, 45). The one whose heart is purified will not only obtain pardon for his sins, but will continue to live under the blessing of the heavenly Father.

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"Who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord? or who shall stand in his holy place? He that hath clean hands, and a pure heart."
—Psalm 24:3, 4.

This hill is the mountain of Zion, south of Moriah, and this whole Psalm relates to the entrance up to Zion. "Holy" means "separated," or set apart for God. Who shall enter these places? The answer comes in the last line, "He that hath clean hands, and a pure heart." To have clean hands, means much more than that they have recently been washed with soap and water. Read the whole fifteenth Psalm for a description of one who has clean hands.

A pure heart is righteousness, which is the gift of God. No man can be righteous of himself. It is imputed to him by God. The last part of the fourth verse also describes the person with clean hands and a pure heart. "Who hath not lifted up his soul unto vanity, nor sworn deceitfully. He shall receive the blessing from the Lord."—L. A. R.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

False Worship

- is never acceptable to God;
- is a form of iniquity;
- is inspired of Satan;
- appeals to the lusts of the flesh;
- is patterned after true worship.

Vain Oblations. The sacrifices of Israel had become mere services of formality. Their worship was one of formalism, void of the spirit of God. Formalism in worship is generally cold and lacks that spiritual life so essential to true worship (John 4:23). Hypocrisy usually sleeps under formalism. Israel's formalistic worship was also hypocritical. "The Lord shall have no joy in" them, "for every one is an hypocrite and an evildoer."—Isa. 9:17. Offerings apart from obedience are classed as "vain oblations." "To obey is better than sacrifice."—1 Sam. 15:22. The Sabbaths that God had consecrated and set aside for their benefit and worship days became abominations. It perhaps can best be stated in the words of Solomon, "The sacrifice of the wicked is an abomination to the Lord."—Prov. 15:8. The same type of worship, that is, formalism and sacrifices of the wicked, is as repugnant to God today as it was in Isaiah's time.

Blessings Dependent. Israel's blessings were conditional. "If ye be willing and obedient, ye shall eat the good of the land." Haggai decried their sin in his letter. The windows of heaven were closed because they failed to bring in their tithes. They were living in their ceiled houses and God's house was desolate. Blessings were withheld. Read Haggai 1. Malachi 3 reveals a somewhat similar condition.—C. E. R.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULTS

The Nature of True Worship

The ancient form of worship was a bowing down before an image in veneration and awe. A Christian should have much the same consuming veneration for the Creator of the universe but this in itself does not constitute true worship unless it is accompanied with belief in God and strict adherence to His commands (Heb. 11:6; Mark 7:6-9).

It is evident that much of the worship of God today is in vain. Men are still following tradition and the lie of the serpent in the garden. The serpent said, "Thou shalt not surely die," and tradition teaches that men do not really die but go to heaven. Jesus told His followers, as well as the Jews, that He was going to heaven but added: "Whither I go, ye cannot come."—John 13:33. God said that "the dead know not any thing" (Ecl. 9:5) but tradition teaches that they are more alive than ever and are possessed of greater knowledge. Men teach that the dead are praising God. But the Bible says that "the dead praise not the Lord, neither any that go down into silence" (Psalm 115:17). Tradition teaches that at death good men go to one place and the bad to another but the Bible teaches plainly that "all go unto one place; all are of the dust, and all turn to dust again" (Ecl. 3:20). Men teach that the wicked will be punished with eternal torment but God has stated that they shall be "burned up" and that "neither root nor branch" shall be left (Mal. 4:1-3; Psalm 37:20). Some teach that all will be saved but Jesus said: "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven."—Matt. 7:21.—H. A. S.

PRIMARY

Topic: We Hear Isaiah Talk to Judah.

Last week we had the privilege of seeing a great religious service. We were so pleased with what we saw, and the people seemed so happy, that we felt sure they would always want to worship God.

But there seems to be something wrong with that service. We must ask Isaiah what is wrong.

Isaiah, speaking by God's directions, says, "These people are worshipping here in Jerusalem. They're going through all those services, one after another. They seem to be doing it, not that they are worshipping God, but from force of habit. They do it year after year at a certain time."

Who asked, "But isn't that all right?" Yes, it is, if deep down in their hearts they really and truly mean their love for God.

But how do we know they don't? By the things they do. They are very cruel to the people. They are not good to those who have no father. They forget to help the widows. They seem to forget to do kindness.

I hope each one will remember how Isaiah said God felt when the people of Judah just pretended to worship Him. Let's see if we are doing our part the right or wrong way.

—V. C. T.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

As the fall session of the California Conference of the Churches of God will convene on Rally Day, the first Sunday in October, features appropriate to that day will occupy the center of attention. Though definite plans have not been completed, we feel sure that those who will be able to attend will find their time most profitably spent. Sr. Kauffman, our delegate to the General Conference, will give a full report of her activities and the activities of the conference in general. Further details will appear later.

Norman John MacLeod, Pres.,
California Conference of the Churches of God.

NEBRASKA CONFERENCE

The Nebraska State Conference of the Church of God convened at Holbrook from August 19 to 26 inclusive. Bro. F. L. Austin of Chicago was the principal speaker. The days were crowded with the good things of God's Word brought out by Bro. Austin in his afternoon Bible lessons and evening sermons. He was assisted by Bro. E. E. Giesler of Moorefield and Bro. Roscoe Story of Holbrook, who very ably conducted the morning services. The Nebraska brethren greatly missed the services of Bro. and Sr. Grover Gordon, and yet we rejoice that they were able to attend and assist at the Virginia Conference.

We were indeed thankful for the manifestation of faith on Sunday, when nine were baptized into the all-saving name of Jesus. Those nine are: Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hammond of Cambridge; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hammond of Cambridge; Ruth and Ruby Knosp of Cambridge; Ardys Johnson of Bartley; and June and Edward Gordon of Cambridge. They were extended the right hand of fellowship and received into the local church at Holbrook at the close of the conference.

We were also thankful for the cool weather we enjoyed throughout the conference.

At the business meeting the following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Roscoe Story; Vice President, Lula Johnson; Secretary, Ruth Knosp; Treasurer, Clyde Long; Corresponding Secretary, Eva Phelps.

The people of Nebraska feel that they have just closed one of the most successful and beneficial conferences that they have ever experienced. The feeling of Christian fellowship and the joy that comes from such association were very evident. May that spirit of harmony continue throughout the years to come in our prayer.

Carol Wilson, Secretary.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO N. B. I.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Harman	5.00
J. W. Sweet	1.50
Ontario	4.00
Leonard Young	5.00
Maurertown, Va., Sunday School	8.34
Burr Oak, Ind., Sunday School	5.00
Burr Oak, Ind., Church of God	5.00
Leila E. Whitehead	50.50
A Friend	1.00

IOWA STATE CONFERENCE

The Forty-Seventh Annual Conference of the Church of God met on the campgrounds in Waterloo, Iowa, August 21 to 26.

The meeting was opened Tuesday evening by one of Bro. J. W. Williams' good sermons, "Let Us See Jesus," commending all to think of this throughout the week, that all might know Him better.

The attendance was good considering the difficult times that have their effect on all. One hundred seven partook of the noonday meal Sunday. The best of all was the spiritual attitude manifest throughout the meeting.

The teachers and speakers were Bros. J. W. Williams, L. E. Conner, C. E. Lapp, H. S. Hunt, O. J. Allard, C. W. Howe, and A. M. Jones; and Srs. Alta King, Adelle Howe, and Doris Cronbaugh. All classes were eager to learn more of the precious truths.

While different views were expressed, much good came from them, and led to greater harmony and a better knowledge of the Scriptures.

The primary class enjoyed their lessons about "The Creation," drawing pictures of the different things created each day, taught by Srs. Adelle Howe and Doris Cronbaugh.

The juniors received thoughts from Bros. A. M. Jones and H. S. Hunt, using Bible characters as types of Christ; and they received lessons about Israel by Sr. Alta King.

The young folk of teen age were especially interested in the teachings of the Bible upon the subjects of creation, harmonizing them with true science and evolution of the earth and of mankind, led by Bro. Conner. Bro. C. E. Lapp considered with them the second advent of Jesus and conditions prior to it: the perilous times of last days in 2 Timothy 3, the falling away in 2 Thessalonians 2, the resurrection in 1 Corinthians 15:51-58 and 1 Thessalonians 4:13-18. Bro. C. W. Howe gave them an insight of the prophecies concerning topographical changes in Palestine, giving both literal and figurative interpretation; also concerning the removal of blindness and sin from all nations through Christ's work in the kingdom of God.

Bro. Williams presented the adult class a chart outline of study in regard to the image of gold set up by Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon. This is a large outline and has taken much deep study to make it so. This class was much benefited by the study of the eighth chapter of Romans led by Bro. Conner.

Some sermon subjects were, "The Love of God," "God's Eternal Purpose," and "Baptism."

We were very glad to have with us several brethren from Illinois: Austin Railton, Bro. and Sr. Paul Johnson and daughter Louise Mae, Bro. and Sr. L. E. Conner, and Bro. and Sr. C. E. Lapp; also a number from Nebraska: Bro. and Sr. J. M. Prime and Ann Patrice, and Lillian King; and several other friends. Come again!

We were made happy by the addition of Wilma Williams and Evelyn Cronbaugh to the body of Christ, made manifest by baptism Sunday afternoon. After this the Communion service was held.

The following delegates of young people were present throughout the week from different congregations: Evelyn Cronbaugh of Belle Plaine, Junior Williams of Gladbrook, and Edward Sealine of Stanhope. They appreciated this very much, and it was a week in their life long to be remembered.

The result of the election of officers was as follows: Bro. H. S. Hunt, President, Clarks-ville; Bro. A. M. Jones, Vice President, Eagle Grove; Sr. J. M. Kiger, Recording Secretary, Marengo; Sr. Esther Sealine, Corresponding Secretary, Stanhope; Sr. W. H. Allard, Treasurer, Cedar Falls.

One thought of the week: "Oh that men would praise the Lord for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men."—Psalm 107:15, 21, 31.

Esther Sealine, Cor. Sec.

BLANCHARD, MICHIGAN

September 9, the second Sunday in September, will be a big Rally Day for the Church of God and the Missions. We plan to meet on that day both morning and afternoon in the open air tabernacle at the First Lake, Six Lakes. Basket dinner will be served. Several are to be baptized, and Communion will be observed. Everybody is welcome.

Plans are now being made for the Fall Conference of the Michigan Churches of God to be held in Blanchard. It is also the twentieth anniversary of the building of the splendid church edifice. It is planned to hold this meeting during the entire last week of September. The speaker will be announced later. Your cooperation is sought to make this anniversary-conference a success.

The Blanchard folks enjoyed a treat during the pastor's absence at General Conference, when the young people of the Advent Christian Church led by Elder Allen and Mrs. Garbo took charge of the services. Especially did the Blanchard folks appreciate the enthusiasm of the young people.

Our own young people have been carrying on nobly the midweek Berean meetings and choir. We note with joy their splendid spirit and want to give them a good share of the credit for the success of the work here.

Cecil Smead, Pastor.

REPORT: JULY 25 TO SEPTEMBER 1

Sermons and Bible lessons: Brumfield, Ky., 2; Dana, N. C., 12; Guthrie Grove, S. C., 13; Blush, Mo., 13; near Lockwood, Mo., 2; St. Louis, Mo., 1; total, 43. Baptisms, Dana, 8; Guthrie Grove, 8; Blush, 9; near Lockwood, 5; total, 30. Five of those that were baptized at Blush came from near Lockwood, 285 miles, to obey in baptism and have me go to their home to baptize five others that could not make the journey to Blush. We now have a nice class twelve miles north of Lockwood. The grandfather of those that were baptized from Lockwood was one of the pioneer preachers of the Church of God. There are five sons, all living in the truth, living in this section. Those that were baptized are the sons and daughters of these sons and are well versed in the gospel. I hope the Lord will open the way for me to visit this place again. Mark 16:15, 16; Matt. 24:14.

J. H. Anderson.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO DOLLAR-A-MONTH CLUB

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Starbuck; Marian R. Richards; Mr. and Mrs. M. Fetters; Mr. and Mrs. Delos Andrew; Grand Rapids, Mich., Sunday School ($3); Silas M. Claypool,

MISSOURI

BETWEEN YOU AND ME—

I must tell you of the wonderful meetings we have attended this summer during the month of August. Saturday, Aug. 18, there were five, including the writer, that motored down to the Blush Church near Fredericktown, a distance of about three hundred miles, to attend the meeting over the third and fourth Sundays. It was a splendid meeting. The attendance was good and the services very interesting. The speakers were Bro. J. H. Anderson and Bro. S. J. Lindsay.

When Bro. Anderson extended the invitation Tuesday evening, Aug. 21, there were eight young people came forward and demanded baptism. Later during the week, at the close of one of Bro. Anderson's sermons, one other came forward, making the total number of nine.

On the following Sunday morning, Aug. 26, the crowd gathered near the water's edge as the candidates were buried in the waters of baptism by Bro. Anderson. The ones baptized into the all-saving name of Jesus Christ are as follows: Howard Couch, Lorene Couch, Hazel Wagganer, and Violet Wagganer, all living near the church; Albert Fyfe, Johnnie Fyfe, Norman Fyfe, Edna Fyfe, and Ethel Fyfe, all of Lockwood, Mo. Following the baptismal services, Communion was held at the Blush Church. The meeting came to a close that evening. We enjoyed our trip a great deal and are very glad to know the members of our faith there.

On returning home Monday, Aug. 27, Bro. Anderson came with us. He was accompanied by his son and daughter. Bro. Anderson held a meeting two evenings at the Cedarville Church. The meeting began Monday evening. There was a fair-sized crowd and all seemed very interested. That evening Bro. Anderson spoke on "The Second Coming of Christ." At the close of the services there were five came forward and accepted Jesus as their Savior.

Tuesday evening all of the members of this faith near here gathered at the home of Bro. John Fyfe for the midday meal and ice cream. Tuesday afternoon the baptismal services were held at Cedar Creek, a short distance from the church. Those that took on Christ by baptism are as follows: Jessie Fyfe, Benjamin Fyfe, and Julia Fyfe, all of Lockwood; Mrs. Sarah Jane Pirtle and Emily Fyfe, both of Jerico Springs. Following the baptizing, Communion was held at the John Fyfe home.

Tuesday evening the services were concerning "Jesus and Joseph." The crowd was larger than the preceding night.

Bro. Anderson left us early Wednesday morning, but we hope that some day he will come again.

Ethel Fyfe.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

Good attendance greeted our first Sunday back home. Being the last Sunday for us to have no evening meeting at our own church, we accepted an invitation to speak at the Congregational Church in Moline. Several of our people went along, including the male quartet. Bro. Lyon rendered much appreciated solos both morning and evening. On Tuesday he started in the direction of his home work at Cleveland, Ohio.

Bro. Hopkins and family are pained by the death of his father. They are planning to go for the funeral at Fremont September 1.

Sr. Herman Hilliker is improving since undergoing an operation.

The adult class of the Bereans has just completed its study of Revelation, and is now beginning a series of lessons on the tabernacle. We plan to build a model as we study.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

Sr. Ruth Sheets, wife of Elder Harry A. Sheets of Woodstock, Va., was operated upon in the Winchester hospital on August 28 for the removal of a bone growth that interfered with the free action of the hip joint and that has caused her a great deal of pain during recent months. In a letter from Bro. Sheets written immediately after the operation he reported her condition was good and promised speedy recovery. We pray that such may be the case.

Since the first of June Bro. S. J. Lindsay has taught or preached at seventy services. What a splendid period of rest he has had during his vacation! The church at Oregon was glad to welcome him at the services last Sunday, where he assisted at the table of the Lord. Bro. and Sr. Lindsay expect to leave next Thursday on their journey westward, stopping off at various points along the way before reaching the field of labor in Tempe, Ariz.

Among the interesting and encouraging comments heard at General Conference was the statement made by a national officer of another denomination to the effect that our little paper was in his estimation the best Adventist paper published.

We learn with much sorrow of the death of the wife of Bro. J. H. Andrews of Virginia. Sr. Andrews has been ill for years and her passing has long been anticipated, but nevertheless it comes as a shock to her many friends everywhere. Bro. Andrews was for some time President of the Virginia Conference and the sympathy of the entire brotherhood is extended to him in his loss. Full obituary will probably reach us soon.

Bro. L. E. Conner, President of the General Conference, appeared recently as guest speaker at the Midwestern Advent Christian camp meeting held near Bloomington, Ill. The gathering was well attended and much interest shown throughout. Special emphasis was placed on work among young people, many of whom were present. Ministerial meetings were held each day. Bro. Conner reports that he enjoyed his stay among our Adventist brethren, and that he was most graciously received by them.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Leonard Young; A. J. Eychaner; Esta Starbuck; Anna D. Springer; S. J. Lindsay; Carol Wilson; Charles Lindsay; Mrs. H. A. Updike; Mrs. Melvin Burnett; Thomas Davis; Jesse Harrold; C. N. Adams; Mrs. C. L. McCallister (for self and another); Beulah B. Harris (for another); H. W. Patterson (for another).

Fifteen Weeks for Fifty Cents—

Simply fill in this blank and return it to us accompanied by 50 cents for each one to whom you wish THE RESTITUTION HERALD sent for the next fifteen weeks and we will provide them with splendid inspirational reading, prophetic information, and comforting assurances of the Children of God for their profitable reading.

GENTLEMEN:

Please send THE RESTITUTION HERALD to each of the following for 15 weeks. I inclose 50 cents for each subscription.

Sender's Name

Address

New subscriber for 15 weeks:

Name

St. and No.

City State

Additional names may be submitted on another sheet.

THE WONDER OF THE BOOK

Continued from Page Six

the margin. There floated back upon my mind a time, some years ago, when I was in great trouble. I had to leave my dear wife and children, and to travel in quest of health in distant lands; and my heart within me was sad, and one day, opening my Bible at random, as men say, my eye caught these words in Genesis 28:15: "Behold, I am with thee, and will keep thee in all places whither thou goest, and will bring thee again into this land." Shall I ever forget the flash of comfort that swept over my soul as I read that verse! All the exegetes and critics in the world could never persuade my soul that that was a mere echo of some far-off relic of a Babylonian legend, or of an oriental myth. No, no! That was a message to me. It came straight down to me. It swept into my soul as a voice from heaven. It lifted me up, and no man will ever shake me out of the conviction that that message that day was God's own word to me, inspiring because inspired, inspired because inspiring.

But the final wonder of the Book is Christ. He is its fullness, its center, its fascination. It is all about Jesus! Old Testament and New Testament alike tell of Jesus, the great Fact of history, the great Force of history, the great Future of history; for of this Book it can be said: "The glory of God doth lighten it, and the Lamb is the light thereof." And as long as men live upon the face of this globe the Book that tells of that Supreme Personality, the Center of a world's desire, Jesus; Jesus, the arch of the span of history, the keystone of the arch of prophecy; Jesus, the Revealed, the Redeeming, the Risen, the Reigning, the Returning Lord; Jesus, the Desire of all nations; so long will this Book draw men's hearts like a magnet, and men will stand by it, and live for it, and die for it.

And as I close, let me say this one word more. O, do not think and do not say, as I have heard men say they think, that we ought to read this Book as we read any other book; we ought to study it and analyze it just as we do any textbook in literature or science. No, no! When you come to this Book, come to it with awe. Read it with reverence. Regard it with a most sacred attention. "Put off thy shoes from off thy feet, for the ground whereon thou standest is holy ground!" Never, never, compare this Book with other books. Comparison is dangerous. They are of earth. This is from heaven. O, do not think and do not say that this Book only contains the word of God! It is the Word of God. Think not of it as a good book, or even the better book, but lift it in heart and mind and faith and love far, far above all, and ever regard it, not as the word of man, but as it is in truth, the Word of God; nay, more, as the living Word of the living God: supernatural in origin, eternal in duration; inexpressible in value; infinite in scope; divine in authorship; human in penmanship; regenerative in power; infallible in authority; universal in interest; personal in application; inspired in totality.

—Dyson Hague.

WORKERS WITH GOD

THE church needs a new note. Not what man can do with God, but what God can do with man. The resources of God are as great as they ever have been. Man has used his own resources only to fail. Every human effort expended has failed to meet the crisis of today, but divine power is inexhaustible.

"I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me" is an affirmation we need to realize just now. Courage, faith, and hope go together. A soul who puts his life into God's hands without reserve can and will find God's power his power.

The present day is looking and waiting for the man who is willing to be an instrument in the hand of the Almighty. The enlistment office of the Most High is open for business. He only need apply who can say earnestly, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?"

Many are saying, "Have we not prophesied in thy name?" and the reply is still pertinent, "I never knew you; depart from Me, ye that work iniquity."

"Doing God's will" is not synonymous with mere activity. The Christian who is substituting work without worship is failing sadly. It is not enough merely to keep active. The God-honored man must do the will of God; "ye cannot serve God and mammon."

Consecration means more than motion; it means "doing the will of God." We have been told if we lack wisdom we must ask for it. Prayer is not an alternative in duty, it is a matter of divine direction. The man who waits before God for orders is the man who does God's will.

An Achan in the camp may appropriate with dexterity his Babylonish garment, but if his act is disobedience, his energy will prove fatal today as it proved thousands of years ago. The pretender may go through the motions of prayer, and set up his own standard, but God frowns, and his task means failure and destruction.

"There went with him a band of men whose hearts God had touched." This is the power God has and will use. We must "wait before him" and then go. "All power" is still with Christ. Are we willing to be used by God, or are we striving to use God? "Bring ye all the tithes unto the storehouse and prove Me herewith," saith God, "Will I not open the windows of heaven and pour out the blessing?"

Times of depression have ever sent men back to God. They will today. God is waiting to bless and that abundantly. Are we willing to let Him have His way with our whole beings? If so, the times of refreshing cannot be withheld by the prince of evil and all his hosts.

"Speak unto the children of Israel that they go forward." "Here am I, send me."—Bible Faith Mission Standard.

— "IMAGININGS are the architects of life."

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 23

OREGON, ILLINOIS, SEPTEMBER 11, 1934

NUMBER 50

The Purpose of the Holy Spirit

By Norman John MacLeod

NOT long ago a woman told us of a meeting which she attended where she had never seen the "power" so strong: there were fifteen people down on the floor at one time! Certainly that was a remarkable manifestation, she thought, for people were shouting and yelling at the top of their voices in glory to God. This leads us to wonder what the purpose of the Spirit of God is in the world. Is it to heal the sick? Those sick which were healed by our Savior died. Was it to raise the dead? Those who were resurrected by Christ died again, to say nothing of the boy whom Elijah revived, and the man whom the Apostle Paul restored to life after he had fallen out of the window. Was it to speak to others in foreign languages? If so, often the "foreign tongue" is never attended by anybody, and those who speak in those "tongues" do not understand what they are saying; and even if they did what have they accomplished? Certainly if the Apostle Paul could see the demonstration of fifteen people rolling on the floor, and the whole congregation shouting at once he would repeat what he said to the Corinthians: "God is not the author of confusion, but of peace, as in all churches of the saints."—1 Cor. 14:33.

Let us notice what the purpose of the gift of the Holy Spirit was. In Genesis 1:2 we read: "And the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters." For what purpose? To bring the things that are, out of the things that were not. When the Spirit of God was with Moses to bring destruction upon the Egyptians and favor to the children of Israel, was it for the purpose of multiplying frogs, flies, and lice in the land of Egypt? Was it for the purpose merely of saving the children of Israel, or of destroying and hurting the Egyptians? God could have taken the children of Israel out of Egypt, as He phrased it to Moses, "on eagles' wings," if He had cared to. No, it was for the purpose of testifying to the children of Israel and to us,

"And he said unto them, It is not for you to know the times or the seasons, which the Father hath put in his own power. But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you: and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judaea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth."

His power and His might. It was for the purpose of testing the faith of the children of Israel, and for us who need that consolation in these latter days on the earth. It was the witness, the testimony of the power which God could use. When Aaron's rod budded, was it for the purpose of growing a new plant? for the purpose of producing a new species of fruit? for the purpose even of showing that the thing could be done by God? No! God was witnessing to the rebellious house of Israel that He had chosen Aaron as the high priest, and Moses as the leader of Israel, and not some of the rebels. It was to tell us that "rebellion is as the sin of witchcraft, and stubbornness is as iniquity and idolatry" (1 Sam. 15:23). When Samson came to Lehi, and "the Philistines shouted against him: . . . the Spirit of the Lord came mightily upon him, and the cords that were upon his arms became as flax that was burnt with fire, and his bands loosed from off his hands. And he found a new jawbone of an ass, and put forth his hand, and took it, and slew a thousand men therewith" (Judges 15:14, 15). Why did the Spirit of God lead him to do such a thing? Was God merely showing that He could make a strong man? Was He merely wishing to get "vengeance" upon the Philistines? Surely God could have destroyed the Philistines in a much simpler way than by having them slain in such a fashion! But to teach the children of Israel obedience to His will, were these things manifested in Samson; to teach them that they were in His power, to teach them that they were to depend upon Him, He gave them a leader of strength. So are all of the Old Testament miracles: the giving of the manna was to teach the people of Israel "that man doth not live by bread only, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of the Lord doth man live"; such also was the purpose in sending fire down from heaven to burn the offering which Elijah offered, to lead (Please turn to Back Page)

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879.

G. Eldred Marsh, Editor

Two Dollars per Year

Paul C. Johnson, Associate Editor

"Truly our fellowship is with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ. . . . If we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin."

CLOSE TO THEE

Thou, my everlasting portion,
More than friend or life to me;
All along my pilgrim journey,
Savior, let me walk with Thee.

Nor for ease or worldly pleasure,
Nor for fame my prayer shall be;
Gladly will I toil and suffer,
Only let me walk with Thee.

Lead me through the vale of shadows,
Bear me o'er life's fitful sea;
Then the gate of life eternal
May I enter, Lord, with Thee.

—Fannie J. Crosby.

THE BLESSED LIFE

WRITING half a century ago, Dr. F. B. Meyer of England said that "there is a Christian life, which, in comparison with that experienced by the majority of Christians, is as summer to winter, or, as the mature fruitfulness of a golden autumn to the struggling promise of a cold and wet spring. It is such a life as . . . the Apostle John was living when he wrote his Epistles."

How true this is! One of my great regrets as a young man was my inability to see in many around me a reflection of the joy I myself experienced in those days in close fellowship with God. To me God was very real. His presence in my life assumed the proportions of a tangible power. He was my daily Companion and constant Friend. He supplied my every need for a congenial associate and proved a never-failing Fountain of pleasure.

But how few of my human acquaintances seemed to know God in that way! The great majority of them apparently looked upon the blessed Lord almost as an abstraction. He was an intangible, invisible Force whose authority must be recognized, but in whose fellowship they found no real and joyful satisfaction.

As the years have brought their meed of experience I have come to understand that the necessary responsibilities of practical everyday living have a tendency to distract one's attention from quiet meditation and deep communion with God which are so necessary to the living of the Blessed Life of which Dr. Meyer speaks. We cannot always live on the Mount of Transfiguration, face to face with the glorified Savior of men. We must spend the greater part of our lives down in the valley where men struggle blindly in the darkness with the forces of evil on every side, where almost every influence strives to drag us lower into the shadows and to hamper our upward struggles toward the Light which we know still shines above the clouds!

Yet here is where our Lord has placed us! Here among the shadows of the valley where men labor and suffer and die! Here it is that our mission lies! Our task is here! With faces still reflecting a little of the glory that lighted them on the mount we lean sympathetically over the bowed and sorrowing forms of those who have never known the joy of Christ's presence in their lives, and strive with the gospel to bring a trace of the gladness we feel into their hopelessness and despair. Such is our task. Such is our duty.

With our Lord we may sometimes draw away from the importunities of the needy multitude and again approach the mountain heights of glory. But our withdrawal must be brief. The darkness of the valley calls. The needs of sin-suffering men demand our attention. We "must preach the kingdom of God to other cities also, for therefore (are we) sent!"

And who knows? Perhaps in this very service of love we will find the greatest joy we have ever known—the joy of suffering with Christ on behalf of men! This thought may serve to lift us out of our present surroundings, out of our Gethsemane of renunciation and sacrifice, and bring us closer to our blessed Lord than we have ever been before. Jesus, no doubt, caught an inspiring vision out there under the stars in the garden alone with God—a vision of future glory and reward. Perhaps it was there that He came to despise the pain, the shame, and the ignominy of the cross whose shadow already darkened His pathway, and to rejoice in the joy that was set before Him!

Soon we, too, shall be called into the glory of immortality and kingship with our Lord, and then our joy of fellowship will be complete. God hasten the day!

Are Natural Laws True?

PROBABLY no one item of disillusionment about modern science comes with more surprise to its popular devotees than the astonishing assertion that no natural laws are true. This statement, from one point of view, is itself entirely erroneous; from another, absolutely true. For truth itself is of two very distinct varieties, and both of them are often indiscriminately confused in scientific discussions. First, a natural law is true, as we said before, when it is logically self-consistent, or not openly self-contradictory, and does not contradict other laws. But, secondly, it also claims to be true in the sense that the motions of objects that it describes are exactly, always, and everywhere just as it says they are. It is this latter sense of truth that interests us; for if natural laws are always true in this sense, then prayer for any change in the order of nature different from that predetermined by the primary natural law, or principle of casuality and uniformity, must be useless.

Are natural laws as descriptions true? That depends upon what the descriptions apply to, or what moves. The faithful layman who adores science, and sets it above his God, never for a moment suspects aught but that natural laws describe natural, perceivable, palpable, tangible, well-known actual bodies, like falling stones, the earth, moon, etc. As a matter of cold disillusionment, he must be informed that natural laws never apply to such bodies. The natural laws of the scientist apply to, or describe, only ideal motions of ideal bodies. The bodies are always mathematical points, having neither length, breadth, nor thickness; the paths of their motions are always lines having length, but no breadth or thickness. Such things are ideas, mere figments of constructive imagination. The world governed by natural laws is an imaginary world, one existing only in the minds of scientific thinkers. In "reality" there is no such world. But all our praying is done in an actual world! Therefore, since natural laws hold in one world, and praying is done in another world, the two cannot possibly conflict. Such a supposition is unthinkable.

II

But surely natural laws hold, at least approximately, for our own world. Did not Galileo "discover" terrestrial gravity, or a law which states that free-falling bodies near the earth accelerate their velocities 32.2 feet per second, as every high school boy knows? He did. And no free-falling stone, for example, accelerates at that rate. But if the falling stone is at the sea level, if it is at the equator, if it is in a vacuum, if internal stresses in stone and earth are removed, if the earth does not move up to meet the stone, if every other particle of matter in the universe except earth and stone is annihilated, then perhaps the law is true. But, as a matter of fact, every stone, every apple, every raindrop and snowflake falls with an acceleration all its own, and unlike any other thing in all the world. Every individual event, as Prof. B. P. Bowne says, is a special creation. In a sense, there is no natural law in the actual world.

But the deviation from law in any particular case is almost nothing! It is entirely negligible. Not at all. For within that large or small deviation we find all the freedom that we need for God's control of every natural event (E. A. Singer, Mind As Behavior, pp. 291, 292). For within that unexplored, and unexplorable, territory within that slight deviation of event from the law, lie the forces which decide whether an event will occur or not, because the world we live in is not made up of harmoniously working "natural forces," but of forces at constant and continual war with each other. The force of "capillary attraction" raises spring sap in trees, and the "force of gravity" pulls it down; the tides, pulled by the moon, lift up their mighty crests, and the earth drags them down; the moon, driven by centrifugal force, endeavors with all its might to fly off in a straight line, and "gravitation" draws it in toward the earth so that its path is a circle. Everywhere in all our actual world, force battles force; combinations of power form vast leagues against leagues of other powers, and they carry on a colossal warfare always and everywhere throughout the entire universe. "Life is one continual battle, never ended, never done!" is true of the tiniest amoeba and of the universe itself.

But in the battle of such gigantic forces, how can puny

Please turn to Page Nine

ANSWER THESE AFTER YOU HAVE READ THIS PAGE

1. Are city traffic laws always obeyed? Why not? Who disobeys? Why can people disobey laws?
2. Can legislatures change civil laws? Why? If men make "natural laws," cannot men change them? Do they not change them? Can they not disobey them? Suspend them? Overcome them? Does not every one of man's works suspend some natural laws, or natural forces, from operating?
3. Do natural forces operate in harmony always? Or do some work against others? What is a "war of the elements"? In such a war, who decides the victory?
4. Does any known natural law describe absolutely the motions it pretends to describe?
5. Is it irrational to pray for rain (Gen. 2:5; James 5:17, 18)? If rains are determined absolutely by mechanical causes, why can we not predict when rain will come? If it is because we do not know all the causes of rain, may not God's power be amongst those causes? Could His power be decisive, and yet so small that no scientific instrument could detect it?

Practical Lessons From Gideon's Experience

WHEN God chose Gideon to deliver Israel, He said to him, "Go in this thy might, and save Israel from the hand of Midian: have not I sent thee?" The reply of Gideon was, "Oh, Lord, wherewith shall I save Israel? behold, my family is the poorest in Manasseh, and I am the least in my father's house."

Men would have looked among the rich and influential for a leader. They judge by outward appearance. God looks upon the heart. He knows the character and possibilities of men. When He chose the shepherd lad to be king, He chose the greatest of Israel's leaders, David. When He sent His Son into the world, He selected an obscure family of the despised village of Nazareth to be intrusted with His care! When Jesus chose His apostles, He called them from the common and ordinary walks of life.

Paul, writing to the Corinthians, said: "For behold your calling, brethren, that not many wise after the flesh, not many mighty, not many noble, are called: but God chose the foolish things of the world, that he might put to shame them that are wise; and God chose the weak things of the world, that he might put to shame the things that are strong; and the base things of the world, and the things that are despised, did God choose, yea and the things that are not, that he might bring to nought the things that are: that no flesh should glory before God."

Doubtless, Gideon was a man physically fit for the work he was called to do. He could endure the hardships of a military campaign. He also had mental ability, which is shown in his natural shrewdness, his sound judgment and quick discernment. He had the ability to use the resources at hand to the best possible advantage. But his preeminent qualifications were his religious qualities.

When the angel appeared to him, he was in deep sorrow for the sins of the land. He felt that God had forsaken Israel, and delivered them into the hand of Midian, because of their sins (Judg. 6:13). His zeal for Jehovah is shown in the fact that he broke down "the altar of Baal, and cut down the Asherah that is by it." This was his father's altar. When called to serve Jehovah, he was ready to obey the summons. The only objection he had to offer was his own unworthiness. He was ready to make any sacrifice.

His chief characteristic was his faith in God. Most of us would have been afraid to lead an army of only thirty-two thousand men against the great host of the invaders. When God reduced his army to only three hundred, most of us would have given up the contest. But Gideon with God goes to battle, and expects to win because of his faith in God's promises!

What a lesson this should be to us to trust God! What a comfort to us to know that God can use us even though our station in life is a humble one! What a joy to us to know that God does not judge us by the standards of men, but by our faith and character, and that if we are on His side great victories shall be won!

God could not use the faint-hearted and cowardly. He commanded Gideon to proclaim to the people, "Whosoever is fearful and trembling, let him return and depart from mount Gilead." The character of the battle was to be such that only the bravest soldiers could participate. A few cowardly soldiers would demoralize the whole army and invite defeat. Fear is as contagious as courage.

One of the great handicaps of the church today is the fear of the difficulties of standing on the Lord's side. Christians are afraid "to contend earnestly for the faith . . . once . . . delivered unto the saints." The sneer of the Modernist, the contempt of the worldly, the hatred of the sectarian, the indifference of church members, all conspire to make it hard to stand for the simple gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ. The effort to make the ministry more lucrative and attractive has invited into the pulpit men who desire to compromise and conciliate, until few dare raise their voices against worldliness and the infidelity of the Modernists.

Oh, how we need leaders like Gideon and Saul of Tarsus, men who dare forget the emoluments of the world and the plaudits of men for the sake of Christ and the salvation of the lost! Some one should cry out again: "Howbeit what things were gain to me, these have I counted loss for Christ. Yea verily, and I count all things to be loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord: for whom I suffered the loss of all things, and do count them but refuse, that I may gain Christ, and be found in him."

God could not use those who were self-confident in the army of Gideon, because they would not recognize that God was the Giver of victory. They would say, "By our own might have we done this." God was laying a foundation for their faith in Him.

God cannot use in His church those who are boastful, and take pride in their own accomplishments. The Christian needs to remember that he cannot correctly represent nor serve God until he recognizes Him as the Creator, Preserver, Redeemer, and Giver of every good and perfect gift. Let us walk humbly before God.

God could not use the soldiers in Gideon's army who put their own ease and self-gratification before duty. When Gideon brought them to the water, all but three hundred had time to lie down and drink. Before them was the camp of the enemy. Their homes, their wives and little ones were in danger; Israel and the religion of God were to be defended. Three hundred of them were so eager for the fray that they did not stop to drink, but hastened to the defense of Israel. By the hands of these valiant men God was to give the victory.

There never has been a time in the history of the church when there was a greater need for such consecration to Christ. The church is at ease. We are seeking our own pleasure and comfort. The church is languishing, our missionaries are being recalled, our colleges are dying, the heathen population of the world is rapidly increasing, all because Christians are at ease in Zion.

When Jesus left the world He said to eleven men: "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature." With utter abandonment they gave themselves to the task. Their success was the marvel of the world then, and is yet today. After nineteen centuries, with millions of professed Christians, the church is unable to cope with Modernism and heathenism. The foes of Christianity are multiplying in number and in power, until the world is asking, "Has Christianity failed?"

Please turn to Page Eight

Essential Truths

"JUST what do you believe to be the essential truths of the Bible?"

It was rather a searching question that John Almen asked his friend, Peter Everready, as they were discussing some of the more simple facts of the gospel. In answer Mr. Everready took from his pocket a single page tract, published by the National Bible Institution of Oregon, Ill., and which bore the title, Essential Truths, and handed it to his friend.

"This says," commented Mr. Almen, glancing at the opening paragraph, "that 'the Scriptures teach ——' and then follows with a long list of subjects, each of which is accompanied with Bible references. Now what I want to know is this: Is it really necessary for one to know all these things listed here before he is baptized? Would it not serve the purpose," he continued, "for one to simply pray for forgiveness and confess his faith in Christ, and then be baptized? I can't see the necessity of going into all of these matters mentioned here. Of course," he added, "if one had the time and was inclined to do so he might study these things after he was baptized, but why do it before? Why not just believe in Christ as your personal Savior and let it go at that?"

"Faith in Christ," responded Mr. Everready, "is, indeed, of first importance. It may be called the first of the essentials from the standpoint of importance. But just what does it mean to believe in Christ as your personal Savior? From what are you expecting Him to save you? And, further, can one really exercise faith in a person of whom he knows little or nothing?"

"I suppose," said Mr. Almen, "that it would be necessary for one to know something more about the Savior than just the facts that He once lived and died and rose again. One should, of course, understand something of His teaching, because that would probably reveal what Jesus was and is, and why one should believe in Him," he acknowledged candidly.

"Do you recall any scripture, John," asked Mr. Everready, "that plainly states what the early church taught and what the people believed before they were baptized?"

After a moment's pondering his friend replied: "Yes, I seem to remember a passage that tells about one of the disciples going to some city and preaching Christ, but I can't say just now where the text is to be found."

"Probably you are thinking of Philip's journey to Samaria, which followed the death of Stephen," Mr. Everready suggested. "In the eighth chapter of Acts and the fifth verse we are told that 'Philip went down to the city of Samaria, and preached Christ unto them.'"

"Yes, I think that is the passage I have in mind," said Mr. Almen. Then looking more carefully at the tract in his hand he remarked:

"Now here it says that 'the Scriptures teach that the kingdom of God will be established in the earth.' What has that to do with the saving power of Christ? Why does one need to know about the kingdom of God on the earth before he is a suitable candidate for baptism?"

"Again," replied Mr. Everready, "let me repeat the question I asked a moment ago, putting it in a little different form: What does one believe when he believes in Christ? And please remember, we must have a Bible answer to the question."

"I have never studied the matter from just that angle," said Mr. Almen thoughtfully. "But what do you think the Bible teaches on that point?"

"We need not go beyond the chapter from which we have just read to find the answer, the one that tells about Philip going down to Samaria and preaching Christ," his friend responded. "In the twelfth verse of this chapter we are told exactly what the people who heard Philip preaching Christ came to believe. Let us turn and read it from the Bible. 'When they believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized, both men and women.'"

"There is the answer to our question in a nutshell. To believe in Christ is to believe the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ. And we notice that this understanding and belief did not follow, but preceded, their baptism."

"Yes, I must agree that that was the case," confessed Mr. Almen. "And, further, the entire statement is made so clearly and positively that it cannot easily be misunderstood. I am beginning to believe that you are right in this matter, Peter, and I intend to look up all the references concerning the kingdom of God as they are given here, and find out if I can what the kingdom really is and what it has to do with salvation. I'll see you again in a few days and we'll talk these things over more fully."

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE CHINA INLAND MISSION

By R. H. Judd

China's Millions for August, 1934, carried an editorial, "Suffering—Now and Through Eternity," that must surely stir the heart of every Christian who reads it.

Is it true, or is it not true, that the God whom Paul calls the God and "Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of mercies, and the God of all comfort," will raise men and women from the dead for the express purpose of inflicting endless suffering upon them because "they have never had a chance to hear"? Is it true that "their present distress is not to be compared to that involved in a Christless eternity"? If such a doctrine were true, and truly believed, the delicate balance of reason would snap, and our asylums and our homes would become filled with raving humanity—the world gone mad.

Twelve years ago the writer addressed "An Open Letter to the China Inland Mission" challenging this terrible doctrine. Objections to it have been many, so much so that in not a few instances the promise was made to cease circulation provided its unscripturalness could be proved. Though widely circulated among officials and friends of the Mission, not one single attempt has been made to do so. On the other hand, numbers of eminent men in Christian service were profoundly impressed by its frankness and fairness and the scriptural and logical character of its statements. Among these I may name the late Henry O'Brien, Esq., recent member of the North American Council, and the late Canon Osbourne Troop, both aged and respected men of wide experience. Their correspondence and that of others equally well known is still in my files.

But it is not men's names, however great, that will settle this question. It can only be conclusively settled by the plain Word of the living God. Some passages may be difficult of explanation, but it is not upon such that vital truths are to be built. These may be, and indeed can be, brought into harmony with the plain. But I submit in all frankness that the clear emphatic statement of John 3:16 can never be logically brought into line with the doctrine of endless conscious suffering. That doctrine can never, never result to good purpose or to the glory of God. The very nature of it prohibits such a possibility. For cruel vindictiveness there is nothing in all the dark places of heathendom to equal it.

"Except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish" (Luke 13:3, 5), is language that admits of no dubiety as to its meaning, backed as it is by vivid and forceful illustration.

That that doctrine for which the China Inland Mission stands pledged has during past ages been the predominant cause of atheism and infidelity is a fact that cannot be denied.

The high Christian tone of the majority of the members of the Mission has without doubt induced many to accept the teaching of the Mission without question; and again and again this has been the excuse offered to the writer by even prominent evangelists. That some of the members of the North American Council do not believe this terrible doctrine, there is abundant evidence.

In view, therefore, of the foregoing facts, may I once more make urgent appeal to the China Inland Mission to "cease to do evil" by casting a slander on "the Father of mercies" who is "the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ," and that they eliminate this terrible doctrine from the articles of their faith.

I being the eldest son of one of the pioneer members of the Mission, and being even now related to it by ties of blood and friendship, my interest in it is by no means small; and the issues involved are surely worth the time and sacrifice expended.

"For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life."—John 3:16.

"The wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord."—Romans 6:23.

MICAHIAH, THE ONLY TRUE PROPHET

By J. G. Haupt

THE International Sunday School lesson for July 29 was unique and sad. Micaiah was the only prophet of God, while four hundred false prophets led the rulers and people of what remained of the Holy Land. A prophet was a preacher or teacher, and when there was only one true preacher to four hundred false ones the spiritual life of the land was sad indeed.

The world has not changed greatly. The Apostles Paul, Peter, and other men of God gave us God's church, the church of God, after the resurrection of the crucified Messiah. There are now as many as four hundred sects scattered through the world among men and women who name Christ and God, but whose teachings are foreign to the words of the holy apostles.

A few hundred years ago Spain produced one valiant apostle who was burned alive in Geneva, Switzerland, by a man who was offended by the truths that had been bravely taught by the man of God. The false teachings have moved on just the same.

God's church is found here and there, but generally small and with indifferent influence. Trustful disciples profess the second coming of the Messiah to be near at hand. Only a miracle, I fear, could bring Him to us safe and sound in the midst of a wild clash of opinions. But remember He is immortal now and no one can kill Him. But let us continue to pray, "Come quickly, Lord, the world needs Thee."

IS LIFE WORTH WHILE?

By D. G. Harvey

"Thou hast granted me life and favour, and thy visitation hath preserved my spirit."—Job 10:12.

WHAT Job was moved to say some thirty-five hundred years ago could be truthfully said by every man and woman who has ever lived. Life is a fact, a possession; it is ours to have and to hold with all the attendant opportunities and responsibilities. The all-important question with which we are confronted is, What are we going to do about it? or, What is my life? In these days when many are terminating life by the gun, rope, or poison method, we may be moved to raise the question, Is life worth while?

In answer may I suggest it may or may not be, and the entire matter of its worth whileness or failure rests in your hands and mine. It is indeed a very fitting time for each of us to pray as did David, "So teach us to number our days, that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom."

Bible history presents to us a character in the person of a king whose great conception of the purpose of life was self-exaltation. Solomon, who was possessed of great wisdom and much wealth, sought to find true success in life by the process of self-gratification. He boasted: " whatsoever mine eyes desired I kept not from them."—Ecl. 2:10. But at the conclusion of his experiment he declared that there is no profit in life and all is "vanity and vexation of spirit" (Ecl. 2:26).

As the years swiftly pass, another character is presented who had a peculiar experience on the highway between Jerusalem and Damascus, who lifted his blind eyes to heaven with the question, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" Not, What wilt Thou have me to get? but, What wilt Thou have me to do? Immediately, under the inspiring influence of divine leadership, he started on a mission of service to God and humanity. Forgetting himself, his own personal interests and feelings, he carried to struggling men and women the mighty transforming influence of the gospel of hope and salvation. His was a life of persecution, suffering, and self-denial; yet as the twilight settled upon him he wrote so triumphantly, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith: henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day: and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing."—2 Tim. 4:7, 8.

The men considered are typical of two classes that have come down through the ages and flourish in our present day: the folks that think only of self and live to get, and those who forget self and live to serve. The final testimony of each is ever the same.

The man or woman who lives only for self finds life empty and profitless, while those who can see beyond the narrow horizon of self to the blessings of service find joy unspeakable (1 Peter 1:8). "And the peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus."—Phil. 4:7. To them life is worth while.

God has granted us life and favor; may we not misuse so great a blessing. When He comes may we be found worthy of that greater gift, eternal life (Rom. 6:23).

—0—

THE BULLETIN BOARD AS A WAYSIDE PULPIT

A GREAT many of our churches now have bulletin boards of ample dimensions and with adjustable letters. Hence it becomes a real publicity item to inquire how they may be used effectively and at the same time worthily.

Regarding the problem negatively, it may be stated that the most ineffective way to use them is to announce merely service hours and sermon subjects. The passing throng is so used to that sort of display that it attracts scarcely any attention. The essence of good advertising is "repetition with variety." It is well for pastors and laymen to remember that when they plan any publicity for their church services.

Another negative approach to the matter regards the most of the "Bulletin Board Bull's Eyes" offered by the magazines as philosophy rather than religion. There is a flippancy which is undignified. Positive messages are sacrificed to secure striking epigrams. Most of our pastors have found that it takes much winnowing of chaff to secure a small measure of good grain.

There are those who feel that no message is good for the bulletin board, which cannot be read "as one runs." That is the basis of the poster services now offered by several firms. We agree with the position and find most of the posters strikingly and evangelically effective. Color and form attract the eye and impress the mind.

For the bulletin board, however, we feel that something more is needed. He who runs may read the merchant's sign above the door, or his flashing electric device. His window display, on the other hand, is designed to attract toward "window shopping"—a pause, a tarrying to consider details. It is thus we could regard the bulletin board. Placed where those who pass the church can easily read it by stopping a moment, its messages ought to invite to a brief pause, a careful reading, a minute of pondering. The riders on trolleys, busses, trucks, and autos do not read the merchant's window cards; pedestrians do.

The bulletin board standing flush with the pavement before our Weehawken church has taught this lesson and confirmed our conviction. Messages of fair length, changed frequently during the week, have caught the eye of those who pass. Often we have found three or four people at once pausing before the board. Sometimes we have seen persons glance at the board, almost pass by, and then turn to read the message fully.—Charles K. Fegley in The National Lutheran.

PRACTICAL LESSONS FROM GIDEON'S EXPERIENCE

Continued from Page Five

It is high time for those who still love the Lord to break down the altars erected to human wisdom; to cease worshipping the prowess of men; to turn from the work of men's hands, human organizations and methods; to awake from the lethargy of indifference, and hasten to the conflict, for the battle is the Lord's. We need to hear again the words of Jesus: "If any man would come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me."

Gideon stood with God, and shared with Him the glory and the joy of victory. Gideon's share in the victory was not due to his might or prowess, but to the fact that he was on the Lord's side.

The outlook may be gloomy, but ultimately right and truth shall prevail. Christians should ever bear this in mind. It is our duty to discover the right and contend earnestly for it. The Lord shall triumph! If we are on His side, we shall share the joy of victory! The essential thing is that we shall be on His side.

Oftentimes ministers of the gospel have made it appear that the Lord needs us. Men have been made to feel that their presence in the church added great dignity and influence to the kingdom of God. Their coming is heralded abroad, and great obeisance is rendered unto them. How absurd it all is! God does not need us, but we need Him tremendously!

The church is the ark of safety to which we flee for protection from "the wrath to come." Outside of it, we are lost in sin and sold to death. We are without God and without hope! Our salvation lies in the fact that the blood of Jesus Christ atones for our sins, and that through our acceptance of Him God will forgive us. He not only forgives us, but adds those who are being saved (Acts 2:47) to His church, the body of Christ.

We are not worthy of membership in the body of Christ. We do not deserve the blessings that shall come to the church of Christ. We cannot merit the triumph that the church shall enjoy. The church of Christ shall be triumphant over death and the grave, not because of its learning or wealth or worldly recognition, but because Christ has "conquered death, and brought life and immortality to light." "Because I live, ye shall live also."—John 14:19. "For by grace have ye been saved through faith; and that not of yourselves, it is the gift of God; not of works, that no man should glory."—Eph. 2:8, 9.

What we need to learn most of all in this age of egotism and self-confidence is the fact that we are utterly helpless, absolutely unworthy, and entirely dependent upon God for salvation. Without Him we can do nothing! With Him we can surmount all obstacles, conquer all enemies, fight the good fight, finish the course, keep the faith, and win the crown of righteousness.

Let us be sure we are on the Lord's side.—Standard Bible Teacher, copyrighted; reprinted by permission.

A GREAT PROPHETICAL PRAYER MEETING

THERE is prophesied in the Bible a great prayer meeting that is to exceed anything of its nature the world has ever seen. Each of us may have a part in that meeting, and each must decide for himself if he will attend. The road is easy and the path is plainly marked. Those who never prayed before will earnestly pray at this time. It is better that we realize now why we should pray instead of waiting until a more convenient time. It is claimed that ninety per cent of the deathbed confessions are not genuine. That is proved by the fact that nine out of ten who recanted from what they thought their deathbed, and who had promised God their life should He spare it, went back to sin.

Jesus set an example for prayer which should be our example today as never before. He went away alone many times to pray. He did not need to pray the same as we do, for He needed not to pray for forgiveness for sin, but to bear the heavy load of sin for us. One of the most touching prayers He made is recorded in Matthew 23:37, where we find these words: "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, thou that killest the prophets and stonest them which are sent unto thee, how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not!"—He felt the load of the city, and tried to rescue it, but they would not let Him. How many times He went alone to the Mount of Olives to intercede on our behalf. Shall we let Him have done it in vain? Even when He was crucified He prayed that the Father would forgive them for crucifying their King. Did you ever pray for your enemies? Did you?

If Christ felt the necessity for secret prayer, is it less necessary for us today when Satan is going about as a roaring lion trying to deceive the very elect? If the devil is come down as an angel of light, as we read in the Bible, shall we not earnestly pray for light so we will not be drawn away?

Do you think the time is past that is given in Acts 20, when men will try to draw away members to themselves? When they will try to destroy even the Church of God by their subtle ways? Is it not high time for us to pray more earnestly, if possible, than we ever prayed, that we be not drawn away by the wiles of the devil?

In Galatians 1:17 we find Paul going alone into Arabia, and I feel sure for the intention to commune with God, for he says he did not confer with flesh and blood. The Church of God has no human head, and believes in going directly to the throne of grace for help, and as evil men are waxing worse and worse, we believe we should spend more time with God in prayer. Prayer is that mighty weapon that removes mountains, and does that which the human is unable to do. It is always ready, but too often a rusty sword in the home.

Jesus said we should pray for workers in the harvest field. It is not enough that we should covenant with God to help financially, for our duty is only done when we do all we can financially, pray earnestly, and do all the personal work we can. Many are unable to help financially, but God is just as willing to help speed the work in answer to the prayers of those who are unable to do more. Your prayers are needed today, and will you withhold them?

Are you going to attend that great prayer meeting that we read about in Revelation 6:16, 17, when they pray for the rocks and mountains to fall on them to hide them from the face of Christ? It is the person who goes often to the throne of grace now that will be able to stand then, and say, "This is our God; we have waited for him, and he will save us." Every nation on earth today is rocked as by a great earthquake, and nothing is sure except the soon coming of Christ, and His rule will be just and peaceful.

—A. S. Christenson in The Bible Advocate.

ARE NATURAL LAWS TRUE?

Continued from Page Three

man expect to have his way by prayer? Through God's acting at the critical moments when infinite forces are poised in crises; at instants when the slightest imaginable force, acting either one way or the other, decides the issue. Like a billiard ball poised on a razor edge, natural events hang suspended an instant. A force far too small for any scientific instrument to discover decides the issue. A rain-drop, moved out of its course by an infinitesimal force, ends in the Atlantic Ocean instead of the Pacific; an avalanche hangs so perilously suspended by friction; an avalanche hangs so perilously suspended by friction; an avalanche hangs so perilously suspended by friction, that it may be disturbed by the sound of a voice, and come crashing down upon the village, or, undisturbed, it may thaw in the sun and water the plain below so that prosperity comes in its train; a tide drawn up by the moon and down by the earth may rise an inch, go over the sea wall, and devastate an entire city. The illustrations are endless in number in which God, undetected and undetectable by science, may determine the issues, and that without disturbing one actual, approximate natural law, or interfering a hair's breadth with what actual uniformity there really is in nature.

But these are all catastrophic events. Does God not work in the regular order of nature? Can He not, for example, send rain (Gen. 2:5)? Are the Roman Catholics, the Anglicans, and the Episcopalians wrong when they pray out of their prayer books for rain? "They are hopelessly and benightedly superstitious," replied certain illuminated religious leaders last summer in a prominent religious journal which stands for progressive ideas. One noted clergyman grew remarkably irritated about the matter. "Of course, prayer does not affect the weather," he asserted with all the finality of a medievalist. "No imaginable connection exists that I can think of between a man's inward, spiritual attitude and a rainstorm," he adds, forgetting, as such naturalists usually do, that God is the connecting agent. But he is particularly irritated and hurt by even the presumption that God answers prayers for weather. "The crude, obsolete supernaturalism which prays for rain is a standing reproach to our religion, and will be taken by many an intelligent mind as an excuse for saying: 'Almost thou persuadest me to become an atheist.'" And more in the same spirit. To such a "reverend" gentleman, posing as leader of the blind, one would like to suggest readings in not only the idealistic philosophers from Plato down to the present, but also a whole, new, up-to-date school of scientists following Hume, 1739, and Kant, 1781. The difficulty with "Modernists" is their antiquated notions about science, and with religious "progressives," their extreme "conservatism" in philosophy, and with "liberals," their utter lack of "free thinking."

III

ASSUMING for the moment that God is a person, and that we pray to Him for rain, can He send it? If not, then natural law or natural force or uniformity, or whatever prevents Him, is greater than He is, and He is not God. If He is God, supreme, a being endowed with adequate power for all His purposes, then He can use rain or drought as means to His purposes. Can we human beings, unlike the clergyman quoted above who confesses that he cannot see how prayer can bring rain—can we see how God may send rain? Very easily. Every rainstorm goes through a preliminary period when the temperature falls to a dew-point at which, for an instant, certain forces tend to hold the water in solution, and certain others tend to precipitate it upon the earth. Imagine a giant hand squeezing the clouds like a wet sponge. In that situation a moment would occur when all the forces acting would be in equilibrium. Then the slightest possible force, acting one way or the other, would bring rain or no rain. How many times does it almost rain, and yet does not? Here, then, in every storm is a poised, balanced, equilibrated situation in which God may act for or against rain, and no scientist and no "Modernist," both determined to save dogmatic mechanism at the cost of prayer and of God's adequate power, would ever, by their instruments or by their senses, without knowledge, reason, and open-minded, progressive, liberal thinking, discover the possibility of His presence and work in the natural phenomenon. Our conclusion is clear-cut. God may indeed, without working a miracle, regularly and specifically send rain. It is entirely rational, scientific, liberal-minded, and, what is more, sensible and religious to believe that He can, if He will, send rain simply and solely because some one, or many, of His children ask it of Him. It may require some study, some thinking, reflection, and meditation to arrive at such faith, but it can be done by those endowed with vigorous minds. Ministers of the gospel who should be the religious instructors of scientists and philosophers should think such things through.—Arthur Holmes in The Lookout.

Abreast of the Times

Hopes for World Federation

"Yea, all kings shall fall down before him: all nations shall serve him."—Psalm 72:11.

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Sept. 2.—Addressing an audience made up largely of millionaires and society leaders at the Parrish Art Museum today, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, declared that a nation is no longer the world's ideal political unit. "Joint action and responsibility in all that concerns every nation, with separate organization and responsibility for that which concerns but a single nation, is the ideal now to be achieved."

He stated that unemployment, and the difficult problem of balancing consumption and production, have often been faced before, and it amazed him "how little man seems able to learn from the experience of those who have preceded him on this earth.

"We must find how to apply," he said, "to the unorganized political and economic world of today those wise and far-reaching principles which Hamilton and Madison wrote into the Constitution of the United States. The world is waiting for a new application of the federal principle. The whole theory of a world of armed and jealous nations taking but most casual cognizance of their literally colossal joint and common interests must be given up forever," he declared. "There will be no permanent prosperity for any nation, and no lasting peace, until this is done."

The world federation of nations is just in the offing! It will soon be revealed and established throughout the length and breadth of the earth! But it will not come through man-made treaties, nor by the education of the masses to a sense of universal brotherhood. The federation of the nations will only come when the King of Righteousness and the Prince of Peace returns and takes the throne, the scepter, and the power of rulership over all nations!

An Opera on Hell

"Thou sufferest that woman . . . which calleth herself a prophetess, to teach."—Rev. 2:20.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Perched on a grand piano with her silk-stockinged legs swinging back and forth, Aimee Semple McPherson, California evangelist, described to newspaper correspondents her plans for a new opera, which, said the evangelist, is to be based on the parable of the rich man and Lazarus.

According to the press Mrs. McPherson "intimated that she would show the souls of poor men being snatched away to heaven by angels, and rich men treading a ceaseless round of labor on torturing treadmills." In addition to these pleasing and distressing scenes the opera will provide an argument between a rich man and death.

It is not surprising that the world is turning away from religion in disgust when professed leaders conduct themselves in such a manner as to bring reproach and ridicule upon it! And how sad it is that when men are hungering and thirsting for the God of love and of mercy He should still be painted in the false colors of a demon, who consigns the major portion of His ignorant creatures into a hell of never-ending fire!

Blinding Light Ray Perfected

"I saw in the way a light from heaven, above the brightness of the sun."—Acts 26:13.

PARIS, France, Sept. 2.—The invention of a new and powerful "light ray," capable of blinding airplane pilots at long range, was reported by the Paris Midi today. According to this newspaper the light ray was planned to be of one million candle power, but an experimental apparatus was constructed of but 150,000 candle power which was capable of blinding flyers a mile away. It is said the invention was offered to the French Government by a German inventor who had been forced to flee from his native land by the Hitler persecution.

The Midi further declared that continued experiments had shown that the beam could protect whole cities by blinding the pilots of bombing planes and causing them to be hurled to the ground.

The light that shone around Paul on the road to Damascus, blinding his eyes and the eyes of those who were with him, will never be equaled by human invention, but it will be manifest in killing power when the Lord returns in glory. For "then shall that Wicked be revealed, whom the Lord shall consume with the spirit of his mouth, and shall destroy with the brightness of his coming" (2 Thess. 2:8).

65,000 Jews Flee Germany

"They shall bring all your brethren for an offering unto the Lord."—Isa. 66:20.

BERLIN, Germany, Aug. 31.—The official Nazi press for the first time today reported the number of Jews which have fled from Germany under the present Government. It states that 65,000 Jews have emigrated since January 30, 1933. Their destination is given as follows: France, 21,000; Palestine, 10,000; Poland, 8,000; Czechoslovakia, 4,000; United States, the Netherlands, Switzerland, and the Scandinavian Peninsula, 3,000 each; England and Belgium, 2,000 each; various other countries, 6,000.

NUREMBERG, Germany, Sept. 6.—Addressing the sixth annual congress of the National Socialist Party here today, Chancellor Hitler charged the Jews with causing a "completely inconsistent attitude toward cultural problems" in Germany.

Berean Department

ARLEN MARSH, EDITOR

Youth and Experience

WE READ in the Scriptures that Rehoboam called in the elder statesmen of his time and consulted them. After which he called in the younger men of his time and consulted them. After which he fell into evil ways by following the advice of the latter. What he really wanted, like most of us, was to be advised in his own way of thinking. We all know the evil results.

On the other hand, perhaps the outstanding king of Judah, Josiah, came to the throne of that benighted kingdom when but eight years of age. "And he walked in the ways of David his father, and turned neither to the right nor to the left; for while he was yet young, he began to seek after the God of David his father." His was an outstanding piece of work: he cut down the groves dedicated to idol worship; he removed the images that had been set up throughout the land; he removed the idols in the temple of God; and perhaps the crowning achievement of all, gave to mankind the restored Book of the Law, which was accidentally found in the rubbish-laden temple.

About twenty years ago we made our first attempt at "sermonizing." We chose as our text that portion of Scripture which reads: "Let no man despise thy youth"; we developed it with all the ardor of youthful enthusiasm; we felt within ourselves (perish the thought) that we had done very well; we were in the mood to receive congratulations from those of the congregation who had surrounded us from our youth up. To our surprise one elderly sister, a relative, accosted us with words to this effect: "You did not finish quoting the text that you used for your sermon: 'Let no man despise thy youth; but be thou an example of the believers, in word, in conversation, in charity, in spirit, in faith, in purity.'" We were somewhat taken aback, but after due meditation felt the justice of the remarks. For after all is it not the part of youth to show unbounded enthusiasm coupled with those virtues which the Apostle mentions? Here were we in the midst of people, the great majority of whom were much older, people who had taught us all that we knew about the Scriptures. How could we teach those people anything? By example only! A young person who is living according to those instructions need not fear that he will lead the church far off the beaten path.

Youth which appreciates the experience of its elders without getting into the many pitfalls that have cumbered the path of those people when they were young is the kind of youth that is needed in any organization. The problem with those of more mature years is to realize that young people grow up; that they cease to be "callow" at some age or another. How is youth to gain the much needed experience except by the same trial and error method by which the older ones learned? When we graduated from university and went out to get our first position as a public school teacher we were told that we would find that we were not wanted until we had had experience. Then when we had had experience we were told that now we must have more pay according to salary schedules that were in effect, and that the administrators wanted inexperienced teachers because they could get them more cheaply. Such is the conflict between Youth and Experience: a conflict which should never enter into the precincts of the church. It is just as some women resent the statement in the Scriptures that they should be subject to their husbands. But as somebody has put it, if the husband fulfills the requirements of the Scriptures, the wife need never fear submitting herself to him. If the youth of the church fits the requirements set down by the Apostle in writing to Timothy, then we know that the business of our church and Berean societies is in the hands of those who can well administer those things. If Experience on the other hand views with moderation and appreciation the work that the youth of the church is attempting (not without error), and gives all the encouragement of careful, charitable criticism, then Youth never need fear the encumbering hand of Decrepit Age.—Norman John MacLeod, pastor Los Angeles Church of God.

Indiana State Berean Report

THE Indiana State Berean business meeting was held July 11, 1934.

The classes reported as follows: Bremen—seniors, 45 meetings, enrollment of 23, and average attendance of 18; juniors, 45 meetings, enrollment of 12, and average attendance of 7. Burr Oak—seniors, 30 meetings, enrollment 19, average attendance 9; juniors, 11 meetings, enrollment 8, average attendance 5. South Bend—adult, 30 meetings, enrollment 9, average attendance 5; seniors, 30 meetings, average attendance 11. Kokomo—adults, enrollment 16, average attendance 9; seniors, enrollment 10, average attendance 8.

Bro. Siple of Grand Rapids gave us a short talk, stressing the benefits of Berean work. He stated that it developed Bible knowledge and self-confidence in the individual, thus strengthening the church body; that it brought the resident minister and members in closer contact; and that it prepared prospects for the evangelists in isolated communities.

The old Board, consisting of Mrs. Pearl Zechiel, President; Mrs. Lulu Stilson, Vice President; Edgar Harvey, Secretary; and Mrs. Martha Senff, Treasurer, was re-elected.

Sr. Zechiel was chosen as a special delegate to the national Berean meeting.—Edgar Harvey, Secretary.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"Trust in the Lord, and do good; so shalt thou dwell in the land."—Psalm 37:3.

ISAIAH ADVISES KINGS

HOW would you like to be the one who should tell our President what he ought to do under certain conditions? If you were, wouldn't you feel rather important to be able to advise such a great person? You would want to be very sure that your advice was good and that your plans, if followed, would be the very best for our whole country.

The man about whom we studied last week advised kings. In fact, most of his life was spent with rulers, as he was the special spokesman to four of them.

We know that the advice Isaiah gave these kings was the very best advice it was possible to give, because he got it from the Ruler of the universe. Yes, God Himself put the words in Isaiah's mind, and Isaiah told them to the kings.

They should have prospered and conquered all their enemies, we think. They should have been safer and happier than any other nation on earth. But, sad to say, they didn't always take Isaiah's advice.

The children of Israel were in trouble and did not know which way to turn. The cruel Assyrians, whom they feared so terribly, were camped near by. They expected to be carried captive or slain, every one of them.

Some of their leaders wanted to run to Egypt for help. Just think of the people of God, His own nation whom He had done everything for, turning away from Him when they were in need!

If some one had helped you every time you needed help in the past, that would be the one you would ask again. Wouldn't it? You would be very sure such a friend would not fail you. You would know he could clear the way for you and quiet all your fears.

And that is just the way it was with God. He was the very best friend the children of Israel could have had. He loved them and wanted to keep them close to Him. He forgave them when they wandered away and begged them to return.

Even though they disobeyed His first and greatest command, to have no other gods before Him, yet He was ready and waiting to receive them. All they needed to do was to destroy their idols and turn to the living God, who was able to help them, no matter how great their need.

In the second book of Kings, chapter 19, you will find the prayer Hezekiah offered to the Lord when he didn't know how to proceed. Notice verse 19. King Hezekiah loved God with a true heart and gave Him the praise for all the good that came to him and to his nation.

Did God hear and answer his prayer? Read the next verse and see. Then turn to Isaiah's book, chapter 37, and find out how He saved them.

And when you are older and study ancient history, you will read this very story in your history book. You will know that it was the God of the Israelites who sent that terrible plague upon the Assyrian soldiers. And in that way He delivered His people.

If our leaders today would turn to God when they do not know what to do, would He help them as He did Hezekiah? Would He find men like Isaiah to tell them what to do?

When we need help, no matter how great or how small we are, will the same God of the Israelites hear us, if we call to Him? Will He show us what to do, as He did His people in days of old? Are you sure? Have you tried it?

You know, God talks to us today through His Book, the Bible. By reading its pages we learn just what He wants us to do, even though we may not be rulers or presidents. God watches over all His children, from the tiniest to the greatest.

Sometimes His children do not listen, and then they have to be punished, as Israel had to be. Afterwards they realize how much better it would have been for them if they had obeyed God in the beginning.

We talk to God through prayer. And if we call upon Him for help, He is just as ready to help us as He was to help Hezekiah. Do any of you know a verse which tells you that? Can you find it quickly?

How glad we ought to be that we have such a wonderful Friend! How happy to know He is always ready to help us!

"Can a little child like me
Thank the Father fittingly?
Yes, oh yes, be good and true,
Faithful, kind, in all I do;
Love the Lord and do my part;
Learn to say with all my heart—
Father, I thank Thee,
Father, I thank Thee,
Father in heaven, I thank Thee."

The Sunday School Lesson

FROM TRUTH SEEKERS' QUARTERLY

LESSON 13. — September 23, 1934

ISAIAH COUNSELS RULERS

Isaiah 7, 31, 36, and 37

Devotional Reading: Psalm 21:1-7

GOLDEN TEXT

Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee: because he trusteth in thee.—Isaiah 26:3.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic: Isaiah Counsels Rulers.

Aim: To teach reliance on God.

Basic Truth: "Jehovah bringeth the counsel of the nations to nought; he maketh the thoughts of the peoples to be of no effect."

I. Attempting to Resist God. (Isa. 31:1-3.) Isaiah, speaking by inspiration of God, rightly insists that all the armies of Egypt, however well equipped with the implements of warfare they may be, cannot defeat the purposes of the God of Israel. When His people have forsaken Him and turned to the governments of men to help them resist the punishment God is bringing upon them for their sin, their efforts can end in nothing short of failure. The nations are now passing through a period of distress brought upon them by their selfishness and greed. They are being punished for their sin. When the time comes for God to destroy such rebellious nations utterly all the armies they can assemble will not be able to defeat His purpose.

II. Conditions of Pardon. (Vv. 4-9.) Israel had revolted against God. The entire nation and its rulers had rebelled against Him. The people were brought under subjection by Assyria. When they grew weary of the sufferings they had so richly merited they pleaded with God to deliver them (Isa. 37:1-4, 14-20). The Lord heard their cries and promised them deliverance on the condition that they return to Him in repentance and obedience. He declared that everyone must cast away his idols, and then the Assyrian should be overthrown by the Almighty. God always demands repentance on the part of sinners before He will grant them pardon. He provides a means whereby men may escape the results of their own iniquity, but they must indicate their appreciation of God's grace by turning from sin.

III. An Invincible Defender. (Isa. 37:36, 37.) The vast army of 185,000 well equipped soldiers which Sennacherib had brought against Jerusalem was sufficient to accomplish the overthrow of the city beyond a doubt. But while the human defenders of Jerusalem slept the One whose eye is never closed to the needs of His people and to the dangers that threaten them came to their defense, and "The horse and his rider, unsnoted by the sword, Melted like snow at the glance of the Lord!"

THE GOLDEN TEXT

"Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee: because he trusteth in thee."—Isa. 26:3.

The person whose mind is constantly on the Father will not have time nor room to be thinking of wars or trouble with other people. He will be in perfect harmony with those about him. Trust in the Lord that thou mayest have peace.

Job said, "Though he slay me, yet will I trust in him."—13:15. David said, "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me." What perfect peace David must have had.

"Humble yourselves therefore under the mighty hand of God, that he may exalt you in due time: casting all your care upon him, for he careth for you."—1 Peter 5:6, 7. If we do this I see no reason why we should not have that perfect peace.—L. A. R.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Rulers

- are not a terror to good works, but to the evil;
- should be prayed for;
- when righteous are a blessing to their people;
- hearts are "in the hand of the Lord";
- that pervert judgment will be cursed.

Righteous Rulers. "When the righteous are in authority, the people rejoice: but when the wicked beareth rule, the people mourn."—Prov. 29:2. It appears from Scripture that these righteous rulers are set in authority by the decree of the heavenly Father. "By me kings reign, and princes decree justice. By me princes rule, and nobles, even all the judges of the earth."—Prov. 8:15, 16. Their work would be made much lighter if righteous people would uphold them and do as admonished in 1 Timothy 2:1, 2, where we are admonished to offer prayers for all that are in authority, that we may lead a quiet and peaceful life. Again, it would be much easier for the rulers and an inducement as well if people not only observed the laws but encouraged observance. Indifference to or disrespect for the laws of a nation is bound to create a reign of lawlessness. Peter directs our attention in this respect: "Submit yourselves to every ordinance of man for the Lord's sake."—1 Peter 2:13, 14.

Wicked Rulers. "If a ruler hearken to lies, all his servants are wicked."—Prov. 29:12. The history of nations confirms this statement. When Israel had a righteous ruler, the people were turned to God; when a wicked king reigned, the people forsook God. Such kings will be struck through in the day of the Lord's wrath (Psa. 110:5). Those who pervert judgment will be dealt with accordingly. —C. E. R.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULTS

Recognizing God in National Affairs

Every nation which claims to be Christian must recognize God in all of its dealings. Our nation attempts this. "In God we trust" is printed on our money, Congress is opened with prayer, a national day of thanksgiving is proclaimed by our President each year, and many times during the past our national leaders have urged the people to return to God and His righteousness.

In Matthew 25 Jesus pictured the time when He would sit upon the throne of His glory and gather the nations before Him for judgment. The righteous nations are granted the privilege of continuing, while the goat nations are condemned to "everlasting punishment." It seems evident that this judgment is based upon the treatment of Israel. The "sheep" nations are those who have treated Israel as God's chosen people. See Genesis 12:3.

John, on the Isle of Patmos, was privileged in prophecy to hear the angel proclaim: "The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever."—Rev. 11:15. In that day it will come to pass that "many people and strong nations shall come to seek the Lord of hosts in Jerusalem, and to pray before the Lord. Thus saith the Lord of hosts; In those days it shall come to pass, that ten men shall take hold out of all languages of the nations, even shall take hold of the skirt of him that is a Jew, saying, We will go with you: for we have heard that God is with you."—Zech. 8:22, 23; 14:16-19.

All nations must learn to recognize God. Nebuchadnezzar was forced to learn this lesson. When his ordeal was over he was willing to say: "I know that the most high God ruleth in the kingdom of men and giveth it to whomsoever he will."—H. A. S.

PRIMARY

Topic: We Listen Again to Isaiah.

We are going to spend another day with Isaiah. When he talks it seems we can close our eyes, and the most wonderful pictures come to our minds.

The picture we see today as Isaiah talks is not such a pleasant one. We see great kings, with great armies, their hundreds and hundreds of horses and chariots. They seem to think that because they have great armies they have nothing to fear.

Farther and farther they leave God and forget that He is stronger than all their great armies.

Isaiah says that if we go into the camp of the Assyrians we will see who is strong. The Assyrians are trying to capture Jerusalem.

It's night. The Assyrians are asleep. The angel of the Lord appears. He slays (kills) 185,000 that are in camp.

In the morning there lie all the dead men. The king turns back and goes to live in Nineveh.

Has his strong army helped him when God has not wanted him to go into Jerusalem? No indeed.

Now think, can any harm come to us if God is caring for us?—V. C. T.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

MINNESOTA CONFERENCE

The Fall Conference of the Churches of God in Minnesota will convene September 21 to 23, inclusive, with the church at Mora. All are welcome and a good attendance is desired.

At the June Conference in St. Cloud the following officers were elected: President, John Denchfield; Vice President, Adna Hoskins; Secretary, Mrs. Mae Randall; Treasurer, Mrs. Ruth Hoskins. Elder F. L. Austin was guest speaker and his fine discourses and Bible study classes were much enjoyed.

The license to preach which had been granted to Fred Daubanton, Sr., was called in and revoked.

A shadow was cast over the meetings by the recent death of Bro. Thomas Savage and the illness of Sr. Savage. However, we are glad to report Sr. Savage much improved in health following an operation she had to undergo.

Mae Randall, Secretary.

MICHIGAN FALL CONFERENCE

You are cordially invited to attend the Michigan Fall Conference to be held at Blanchard, September 25 to 30. Come Tuesday and stay the whole week or come when you can and stay as long as you can.

Bro. Sydney E. Magaw, of the Brush Creek Church in Ohio, is to be our evangelistic speaker. Some of his sermon subjects are as follows: "Ancient Landmarks of the Church of God," "When the Golden Bowl Is Broken," "Faith of Our Fathers," "The Rapture and the Glorious Return," "Preparation for the Wedding." Bro. Magaw is bringing along a very interesting chart to use in some of these sermons.

We are hoping that a large number of Michigan folks will be present. It is the Blanchard church birthday anniversary.

C. A. Smead, Pastor,
Blanchard, Michigan

DELTA, OHIO

On July 15, Bro. S. J. Lindsay of Tempe, Ariz., began a series of meetings at Delta, lasting over the following Sunday. Although the weather was almost unbearable the attendance and attention were good.

In the afternoons Bible lessons were held in the various homes with good attendance and interest.

One baptism, Bro. Ira Krauss of Swanton, Ohio, was a visible result of the meeting. Four of Bro. Krauss' children had been baptized by Bro. Lindsay previously.

All were sorry to have the meetings come to a close, knowing it would be a year at least before we could have Bro. Lindsay with us again.

Mrs. Roscoe Dunbar.

HERALD RECEIPTS

D. W. Kirkpatrick; Ida M. Shepard; Mrs. R. P. Story (for others); F. L. Austin (for another); Mrs. Wallace Pearce; Mrs. O. L. Miller; Conrad Dickel (for another); Mrs. A. P. Leamon (for self and another); Lawrence A. Chaplin; Mrs. Frank Moran; Mrs. Roscoe F. Dunbar; Mary E. Staley; Mrs. Mandes Reed (for self and another).

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

Four consecutive days of rain have very definitely put an end to dry weather here. On September 2 the continuous downpour caused the smallest Sunday school at our church that the writer has ever seen—106. But how thankful we are for the moisture.

Sr. Mary A. Gesin, who has been our guest for nearly three weeks, is returning this week to her home in Illinois. The church and all of us here have enjoyed her visit very much and are happy that she is steadily regaining normal strength.

Our fall program of activity is now in progress and we pray that God may direct the work daily.

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

REYNOLDS - KROGH

In a beautiful and impressive service conducted by their former pastor, F. L. Austin, Bro. Harvey U. Krogh, Jr., pastor of the Church of God near Mt. Carroll, Ill., and Sr. Mary A. Reynolds, Secretary of the Oregon, Ill., Sunday school, were united in marriage Tuesday evening, Sept. 4, 1934.

The bride, who was charmingly attired in white, was accompanied by her sister, Miss Iva Reynolds, as bridesmaid, and a brother-in-law of the bride, Mr. Leland Rittenhouse, served the groom as best man.

Following the ceremony, which took place in the church at Oregon, the young people and their friends who had witnessed the marriage drove to the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Reynolds, a few miles west of the city, where a reception was held. Immediately thereafter Mr. and Mrs. Krogh started for Ripley, Ill., where they will remain over Sunday as the guests of Pastor and Mrs. C. E. Lapp. They expect to return to their charge at Plum River early next week. They will make their home at Pearl City, Ill.

The prayers and well-wishes of the entire brotherhood go out to these splendid young people who have so happily united their hearts and lives in the service of God.

MABLE TOMPKIN ANDREWS

Mable Tompkin Andrews was born March 30, 1896, and departed from this life August 24, 1934. She is survived by her husband, J. H. Andrews, and four children: Harold, Malcolm, Garland, and Elaine. Two sisters, Mrs. William Burke and Mrs. Roy Rinker, also survive.

Sr. Andrews became a member of the Church of God about twelve years ago, being baptized by Elder N. H. Geiselman. She remained a devoted and faithful member until her death, abiding in the hope of Christ's soon return and the power of His resurrection.

Funeral services were conducted by the writer with Bro. Gordon assisting. Words of comfort were spoken from many passages of the Scripture which refer to the resurrection. By Sr. Andrews' request the scriptures found in Job 19:25 and 26 were especially referred to.

We laid her away to rest in the Woodstock Cemetery to await the call of the Master, who is the resurrection and the life.

V. Earl Thayer.

A PARTIAL LIST OF OUR PUBLICATIONS

GROUP 1. One and two page tracts listed in Group No. 1 will be sent postpaid to any address for 10 cents per dozen, or 30 cents per hundred.

Baptist Confession of Faith of 1660

Essential Truths

God's Promises, by Anna E. Drew

Obedience (Baptism), by F. E. Siple

Resurrection, The, by S. J. Lindsay

Reasons Why, The

GROUP 2. Four page tracts listed in Group No. 2 will be sent postpaid to any address for 10 cents per dozen, or 60 cents per hundred.

Diabolus, the Antigod, by J. G. Haupt

Did Christ Preexist? by H. B. Hathaway

Did Christ Preexist? by R. H. Judd

Immortality of the Human Soul, by S. T. Shirley Immortality, Well Known Men on

Life! Life! Eternal Life! by R. H. Judd

Shall Never Die, by F. E. Siple

Soul, A Study of the Word

Thief on the Cross, The, by F. E. Siple

What Is a Christian? by J. W. Williams

What Must I Do to Be Saved? by J. F. Waggoner

Who Owns the Wool? by J. B. Gambrell

GROUP 3. The following six page tracts will be sent postpaid to any address for 15 cents per dozen, or 90 cents per hundred.

Coming of Christ, The, by Rufus A. Curtis

What Do the Scriptures Teach? by R. H. Judd

GROUP 4. The following eight page tracts will be sent postpaid to any address for 20 cents per dozen or $1.20 per hundred.

Baptism, by S. J. Lindsay

Hell—What Is It?

Rich Man and Lazarus, The, by F. E. Siple

GROUP 5. The following twelve to sixteen page tracts will be sent postpaid to any address for 4 cents each; 25 cents per dozen; or $1.75 per hundred.

God: Did Christ Create the Heaven and the Earth? by R. H. Judd

Rich Man and Lazarus, The, by J. H. Anderson

GROUP 6. The tracts listed in Group No. 6 will be sent postpaid to any address for the prices named below.

First Resurrection, The (20 pages), by Wm. Leask. Each 5 cents; 50 cents per dozen; $3.00 per hundred.

Where Are the Dead? (36 pages), by L. S. Bronson. Each 5 cents; 50 cents per dozen; $4.00 per hundred.

A Letter to a Friend on the Covenants of Promise (32 pages), by Mrs. C. C. Woodruff. Each 10 cents; $1.00 per dozen; $6.00 per hundred.

Present Conditions in the Light of Prophecy (24 pages), by J. H. Anderson. Each 10 cents; $1.20 per dozen; $10.00 per hundred.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by National Bible Institution Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. Sample copy, Free.

Receipts.—The change of date on your address label is your receipt. If date is not changed in two weeks after payment of subscription, please notify this office.

Change of Address.—When ordering change of address be sure to send us both old and new addresses.

The RESTITUTION HERALD advocates: the near return of Christ, Acts 1:11, and life only through Him, Col. 3:3; the literal resurrection of the dead, John 5:28; the immortalization of those in Christ, 1 Cor. 15:53, 54; the final restoration of Israel as the kingdom of God under the kingship of Christ, Luke 1:32, the church to be joint heirs with Him, Rom. 8:17, and Israel to be made head over Gentile nations, Isa. 60:13; the "restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began", Acts 3:21. It also firmly advocates repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, Acts 2:38, and a consecrated life as essential to salvation.

"THE HEBREW PEOPLE"

The new Junior Berean Book, "The Hebrew People," is now ready for distribution. The price is 30 cents for single copies; 27 cents each for 5 to 25 copies; 25 cents each for 25 or more copies. This book contains an illustration of the finding of the baby Moses.

Send all orders to National BEREAN Society, Oregon, Illinois.

Please send all remittances by postal money order rather than by personal checks, as we are compelled to pay a high rate of exchange to get checks cashed.

FIFTEEN TRACTS FOR A DIME

In order that we may help you in the distribution of Tracts, we are offering for a limited time to send postpaid to any address a splendid assortment of fifteen of our most popular Bible Tracts for Ten Cents. This sample packet will enable you to select such Tracts as are best suited to the needs of your community and order them in quantities for widespread distribution.

You need not write a letter; just fill in the attached blank, place it in an envelope with five two-cent stamps, and address it to the NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION Oregon, Illinois

Date

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION Oregon, Illinois

Gentlemen: Inclosed find ten cents in United States postage stamps for which please send me a sample packet of assorted tracts.

Name

St. or RFD.

City or Town

State

BETWEEN YOU AND ME—

Beginning in this issue and continuing from time to time as space permits will appear a series of short doctrinal articles by the editor. These articles without exception will be based on some of the many splendid tracts issued by the National Bible Institution, and are designed to arouse interest in tract distribution. The widespread use of tracts will greatly increase interest in local church work and provide a point of contact between the believer and the one he is attempting to interest.

Do not overlook our new special tract offer! For ten cents in stamps we will send you fifteen splendid tracts, all different.

We will be glad to supply any church or Sunday school with informative material to aid them in presenting the interests of Golden Rule Home to their congregations on Golden Rule Home Sunday, which is again set for the first Sunday in October. More about this matter in our next issue.

Sr. Levi Mick, the efficient matron of Golden Rule Home, returned to her duties at Oregon last Saturday after several weeks spent in Warsaw, Ind. During her absence her father, past ninety years of age, died, and Mr. Mick joined his wife in Indiana for the funeral. Both, however, are back in Oregon getting things in readiness around the Home for the forthcoming winter.

Sr. Jessie M. B. Kauffman, physical culture director of the Y. W. C. A. at Riverside, Calif., suggests that groups of young people who frequently require new and interesting material for entertainments suitable for their work, write to the Church Recreation Service, 510 Wellington Ave., Delaware, Ohio. This company specializes in this sort of material.

The office was pleased to receive a short call from our former editor, Bro. F. L. Austin of Chicago. He reports a very good meeting was enjoyed at the Nebraska State Conference in Holbrook.

The uncertainty of life was vividly suggested by the disaster that overtook the liner Morro Castle off New York Harbor last Saturday. The strongest machines man can construct cannot stay the approach of death. It is wise to be always prepared, either for the coming of the "last enemy" or the advent of our Lord.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO DOLLAR-A-MONTH CLUB

Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Kirkpatrick ($4); Mr. and Mrs. Paul C. Johnson; Lillian A. Greiner ($2); Ella M. Siple; Mrs. A. M. Siple; Albert Siple; Eva L. Page; Jessie M. B. Kauffman; Helen M. Chisholm; Eva H. M. Fletcher; Anna Mae Bottolfs.

Fifteen Weeks for Fifty Cents—

Simply fill in this blank and return it to us accompanied by 50 cents for each one to whom you wish THE RESTITUTION HERALD sent for the next fifteen weeks and we will provide them with splendid inspirational reading, prophetic information, and comforting assurances of the Children of God for their profitable reading.

GENTLEMEN:

Please send THE RESTITUTION HERALD to each of the following for 15 weeks. I inclose 50 cents for each subscription.

Sender's Name

Address

New subscriber for 15 weeks:

Name

St. and No.

City State

Additional names may be submitted on another sheet.

THE PURPOSE OF THE HOLY SPIRIT

Continued from Front Page

the people to God; such was the power and gift of prophecy, to show that God rules in the world and all is done according to His plan and purpose.

But strange to say, when we come to the miracles wrought by Christ and the apostles, men begin to lose sight of the purpose of those manifestations. They seem to feel that the purpose of the power of healing was given for the mere healing of men. If that were so, then none of the apostles or their friends would have been sick and would still be with us: but they died later, as we all know. They seem to feel that the purpose of the resurrection of Lazarus was that he might be restored to life. Undoubtedly that entered into it, but was not the chief purpose of the miracle. If that were so, then the "resurrection is already past." They seem to feel that the purpose of the power of prophecy was that men might know all things that should come to pass. God does not wish us to know in detail the things that shall come to pass on the earth: if He did He would tell us in plain words the things that shall happen. But instead the prophecies of the great men of old are veiled in mystery and dark sayings. The purpose of prophecy is to give us faith, and to buoy us up in the knowledge that the things of God are certain and sure; to lead us to study more deeply, and possibly to give us certain entertainment in our hours of leisure. Jesus did not calm the storm so that there would be no more storms on the Sea of Galilee, but to demonstrate the fact that He had power from God; such were all His miracles of feeding thousands of people from a small amount of food, of walking on the water, of turning water into wine, of healing the sick and raising the dead. If we bear in mind the purpose of those miracles we immediately have a different feeling toward them, than if we lose sight of those purposes. Knowing that God is a God of mercy and of great tenderness toward His people, we often let our hearts' desires for healing for some faithful servant of God overrule our better judgment and understanding of the plans of God.

Not long ago a certain minister remarked that it was wonderful to receive the power of the Holy Spirit, for then one did not need to spend a lot of time in preparing sermons: the Holy Spirit would put words into his mouth. Far be it from us to say that God will not put words into the mouths of His ministers: perhaps God will manifest His power in such fashion. The best speakers, however, appear to be those who spend hours studying the Word of God and allied works; who are not afraid to study and delve into the secret things of God, and dig out of His Word the real treasures hidden there. Perhaps that person was just a little bit too lazy to study as he should. Why were words to be put into the mouth of the Apostle Paul? Because he was given a special mission to spread the gospel to the Gentile world; he was to testify before kings and rulers; just the proper words were to be used. But did the Apostle study? He it was who told Timothy to "study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." And undoubtedly he had studied when he had been to the Pharisaical school under the instruction of Gamaliel.

Many are the sick among us: our loved ones suffer with the ungodly and the sinner. Why should it be so? From wondering, we find that in the Scriptures it speaks of Christ working miracles of healing. From that we turn to further scriptures where the power of healing was a common one given to the apostles. Then, why cannot the Christian of the present day do those healings also? And from that we come to assume that either we lack faith to do those miracles, or that we can do them if we only put ourselves in the right frame of mind. But God has not promised those things to us now. If the purpose of the power of healing were merely to heal the members of the church, then Apostle Paul was negligent of duty in not healing his friend whom he "left at Miletus sick."

On the other hand the conditions of perfect health, of life in Christ, of perfect understanding of the things of God, or of any other thing in store for the Christian are rather a promise of the age to come, than a thing of the present. "When we shall see the king in his beauty" is the time when "the inhabitant shall not say, I am sick." When Christ shall return from "heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God" is the time that men shall be raised from the dead to immortality in Christ's kingdom. When a king shall reign in righteousness and princes shall rule in judgment is the time when we can look for real justice in the courts of the land, a thing which all the reforms of politicians and lawyers cannot accomplish even in this broad land of liberty. Even complete understanding of the ways of God to man cannot be had in this life: "Now we see through a glass, darkly; but then face to face: now I know in part; but then shall I know even as also I am known." Health, love, peace, happiness, truth, understanding, justice, mercy: these are the things for which we long, that are blessings of the kingdom of God and of His Christ.

Then the voice of prophecy comes whispering in our ear that the coming of our Lord and Savior is not far away. The blessed Holy Spirit spoke to men of old and told them what was going to happen in our day; told them of the times of distress and suffering that should envelop the world before the coming of the Lord from heaven—even calling it the great and terrible day of the Lord; told them of blessings unnumbered yet to come—blessings that even in our periods of most vivid imagination we cannot comprehend. The Holy Spirit in that blessed age to come will be working in the world to bring all things into subjection to Christ and His saints; to make all things new; to rid this earth of all that doth offend and all that is now so vile and imperfect; to bring back to us our loved ones; and to bring us all to the throne of God for His name's glory and honor in Christ Jesus. May this be the lot of all of us in that time to come! Then will the Holy Spirit have its full working; then will the Holy Spirit complete its purpose in the church and in the world.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 23

OREGON, ILLINOIS, SEPTEMBER 18, 1934

NUMBER 51

JEHOVAH IS ONE GOD

By Arlen Marsh

THE first and greatest of all the commandments is that found in Exodus 20:3: "Thou shalt have no other gods before me." It is true that Jesus the Christ left behind Him the assertion that the "first and great commandment" is, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind"; but the essence of the one is the essence of the other, and no essential difference can be drawn between them.

There is no doubt that, if the Messiah's version of the command be perfectly observed, the Mosaic version will be equally well kept; for love of the sort invited by Jesus could involve no half-hearted, temperamental, part-time worship. The Deity is, according to both Old and New Testament texts, to be venerated above all other things in heaven and in earth.

If the greatest of all the biblical laws is to create no other gods before Jehovah, so indicating a surpassing love for the one true Deity, it is obvious that salvation depends as much upon a right conception of God as upon baptism, belief in Jesus as God's Son and the Messiah, and all the other great truths taught by the Christ and His apostles.

If any one other or several others are erected in the human mind as being on an equality with Jehovah, nothing less than a violation of that first and great commandment has occurred. Jehovah stands alone. Jehovah is one God. Even David, who was sufficiently well acquainted with Jehovah to be called scripturally "a man after God's own heart," sang to his Deity, "Thou art God alone." And no matter who or what is contemplated by the faulty intelligence of man to be on a level with the God who is alone, the act of placing that individual or thing on a pedestal and calling it eternally divine is directly contrary to the most ancient of God's laws.

Not even Jesus Himself, who substantiated His claim to being the Son of God by a multitude of evidences, ever intimated that He was ever to be placed in the same category as God. In fact, it was the Christ's firm conviction that His Father was greater than He; and in no case did He reverse this opinion following His resurrection. Yet it is certain that, if any person or thing existing in the universe were ever to be equal with God, Jesus would be that one.

The Messiah, it is true, did affirm that He and His Father were one; but He urged His disciples to be one with Him (that is, Jesus) as He was one with God. At no time in His teaching did Jesus hold out the hope of the apostles or disciples becoming equal with God; yet, if the geometric axiom be true that things equal to the same thing are equal to each other, and if Jesus and God actually were on an equality, this exhortation implied a parity between God and the Christ's disciples. They were to be equal—one—with Jesus; He was equal—one—with God; ergo, the disciples and God were to be equal—one.

The only way, either scripturally or logically, that this statement of the Christ can be interpreted is to accept it as meaning that Jesus and His Father were one in purpose, desire, and thought, and that Jesus wanted His disciples to be one with Him and God in precisely the same way. No other significance can reasonably be attached to it.

To place Jesus on a level with God because He declared His Father and He were one would be to make Jesus also God. To place Jesus on such a level logically would necessitate placing His disciples, who were to be one with Him, on a level with God—would be to make them God. In short, to consider any person, regardless of who he may be or may have been or may become, as being on a parity in any way with Jehovah would be to violate the commandment that the inspired Son of God deemed the greatest of all laws. And, since belief in God hinges upon a proper conception of the Deity, since Christians are expected to give reverence to Jehovah only, such a violation would undoubtedly cost the most earnest advocate of other phases of the Christian teaching the life for which he now is working.

Obedience to God is the Christian's only duty. Baptism, repentance, belief in the mortality of man, living as nearly as possible in conformity with God's will, are all important. But if the one command to put no other gods before Jehovah, to make no other gods to worship, is disobeyed, obedience to all other commands, however careful, is of no avail. Death is the result of sin, and sin is the transgression of the law.

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879.

G. Eldred Marsh, Editor

Two Dollars per Year

Paul C. Johnson, Associate Editor

"Thus saith the Lord; I remember thee, the kindness of thy youth, the love of thine espousals."—Jeremiah 2:2.

I REMEMBER THEE

My Lord, dost Thou indeed remember me,
 Just me, the least and last?
 With all the names of Thy redeemed,
 And all Thy angels, has it seemed
 As though my name might perhaps be overpassed;
 Yet here I find Thy word of tenderest grace,
 True for this moment, perfect for my case,—
 "Thus saith Jehovah, I remember thee!"

My Lord, art Thou indeed remembering me,
 Then let me not forget!
 Oh, be Thy kindness all the way,
 Thy everlasting love today,
 In sweet perpetual remembrance set
 Before my view, to fill my marveling gaze,
 And stir my love, and lift my life to praise,
 Because Thou sayest, "I remember thee!"
 —Frances Ridley Havergal.

will listen to any carefully thought out plan, we should address our extremely timely message to them.

In our application of the principle of literal interpretation to the Scriptures we have taken away from religion much of the mysticism that was once associated with it, and brought it within the mental grasp of the educated thinker of today. In thus reducing the unnatural to the minimum we have not discarded a single Bible text. In fact, we have returned to the original meaning of the sacred writers.

When the Bible speaks of the earth, we believe it means the earth! And so we say in the words of our Lord, "The meek shall inherit the earth!" We do not go beyond that point.

Understanding that the literal earth is to be the eternal home of the redeemed, we talk much about past, present, and future happenings here. We have little to say about heaven, except as it enters into consideration as the abode of God and the angels, and, for a limited time only, of Jesus Christ our Lord.

The problems of earth are the problems of the saints of God. For conditions here are to be righted, they must be righted, before this earth becomes a fit home for a super-race of deathless men.

We speak biblically of "reclamation projects" by which the desert shall be made to "rejoice, and blossom as the rose," and of nations, under the personal guidance of the Prince of peace, literally beating their "swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruninghooks." All these things we expect to see take place among the nations of earth.

We point to Jerusalem (and we do not mean heaven), and say, "This is to be the city of the great King! Here will He reign in power and great glory over all the nations of men for their blessing—for their good! From out this City of Peace shall go forth a new universal system of laws, to be known as "The Law of the Lord," and the enforcement (for it will be enforced, as indicated in Zechariah 14:17) of that law shall result in world-wide prosperity and security.

A religion that is as obviously practical as this has a real appeal to the minds of thoughtful men and women. While it is not without its supernatural features, it speaks in terms that reach the understanding and arouse the sympathetic interest of the most practical people of the time.

THE GOSPEL FOR THE PRESENT AGE

WE are living in an age of extremes, an age of thoughtfulness and of thoughtlessness; of concern and of unconcern; of seriousness and of frivolity. These contradictory conditions should be taken into account as the Church of God plans its general program of local and national advancement.

It is almost useless for us to address our message to the thoughtless, the unconcerned, and the frivolous. They would turn from it in careless derision and indifference. But there is a large and growing class of men and women who realize the momentous events that are taking place in the world, and who appreciate the threatening possibilities of the future. This is the group to which we should make our most earnest appeal. They are already alert, open-eyed, and attentive-eared. They await the announcement of any logical solution of humanity's problems that seems to hold out the promise of deliverance and salvation.

The Church of God is fortunately placed in these days. It has a logical, scientific, as well as biblical, program of recovery to present to the world. As only the thoughtful

THE LORD'S COMING

THE second coming of our Lord is inwrought with the entire fabric, the construction and essential constitution of the whole Bible. His coming is one of the most important doctrines revealed in the Holy Word. His coming will be one of the most momentous events in the history of our planet and our race.

The other day while reading over the poem here cited, I thought about a remark I heard a brother minister make at a ministerial meeting not long ago. The ministers of the different denominations were freely discussing a carefully prepared paper which had just been read by one of the members. A Baptist brother, whom I esteem highly, arose and said, "Brethren, the second coming of Christ is the key to the Scriptures. It is the objective point to which all God's past and present operations are tending. It is the crowning fact in His redemptive work. It is the truth that stands out preeminently in the Word. Some truths will never be clearly understood unless they are looked at in the light of the second coming of Christ. Brethren, if you deny or ignore the imminent, personal coming of Christ there is very little good to come from a discussion of the subject before us." It is true that many words have been wasted in useless discussion because the great truth has not been realized that the second coming of Christ is indeed the key to the Scriptures. It is absolutely a climatic necessity to Bible types, ordinances, promises, doctrines, and exhortations.

One writer has told of the contradictory impressions made upon those who view the wonderful frescoes of Giotto in the basilica in Assisi when seen under different conditions. Upon a certain dark, dull, cloudy day a great art critic went to inspect these noted paintings. The only light he had by which to investigate them was a small lamp with a reflector, and the best he could do was simply to turn the light upon separated details of the great pictures. It was a long ways from satisfactory. He saw an arm, or a hand, or a head, as the case might be; but he could not put it all together. He had a very poor impression of what the frescoes really were. However, the next day the sun shone out, the day was bright and clear and beautiful, and then when he went into the basilica, what a vision of beauty burst upon his view! How distinctly the frescoes appeared! He could now see the purpose of the artist. He could now get a general view of the whole thing. Beloved, is it not even so with the great truths of the Word of God? We often look at these separated, detached truths and fail to see their full beauty. We do not grasp the whole plan of God. We fail to see the proper relation of the different truths to each other because we do not look at them in the light of the Lord's coming. . . .

THE TYPES OF THE BIBLE

In the Bible we have many beautiful types. The larger part of these types cannot be clearly understood or fully appreciated apart from the realization of our Lord's second advent. Most of the Old Testament characters which typify Christ do so as truly in His triumph as in His humiliation. Think of Isaac. The resurrection of Christ is as truly taught as is the sacrificial offering up of Christ upon the cross, by a memorable experience in the life of Isaac (Heb. 11:17-19). The resurrection of Christ is many times coupled with His second advent. It is the risen, living Son of God who is to return to give to His children the promised inheritance.

Melchizedek is a great Old Testament type. He was a king as well as a priest. He is clearly a type of Christ. It is written in the 110th Psalm: "The Lord hath sworn, and will not repent, Thou art a priest for ever after the order of Melchizedek." But Jesus is as truly a king as a priest, and the Bible is clear in its teaching that it is when He shall come again that He shall exercise authority.

The bride is another Bible type. This type is seen in various passages in the Old Testament, but reaches its perfection in the New Testament. No one who is at all acquainted with the New Testament will dispute that the church is the bride and that Jesus Christ is the heavenly Bridegroom. It is when Christ comes in triumph (Rev. 19:7, 8) that the marriage is to take place.

"Let us be glad and rejoice, and give honour to him: for the marriage of the Lamb is come, and his wife hath made herself ready."

THE ORDINANCES OF THE BIBLE

The ordinances of the Bible cannot be appreciated as they should apart from the truth of the Lord's coming. Baptism is not appreciated in its fullness unless viewed in the light of the Lord's coming. We are not only buried with Christ in baptism, but also risen with Him. "Buried

Looking for the Savior

Each morning when I wake from sleep,
O teach me, Lord, to say:
"I know that Thou art coming soon,
And this may be the day!
Then help me, Savior, by Thy grace
To live this day for Thee,
That I may look for Thee with joy
And long Thy face to see."

I should not like Him, when He comes,
A wandering lamb to find;
If I were idle, selfish, proud,
Untruthful, or unkind,
How I should try to hide my face,
And from His presence flee;
I should not look for Him with joy,
Or long His face to see.

Lord Jesus, as the years go by
And Thine own "day" draws near,
Oh, make me know that I am Thine,
For then I need not fear.
If I am cleansed and kept from sin,
From Satan's power set free,
Then I may look for Thee with joy
And long Thy face to see.

—Selected.

with him in baptism, wherein also ye are risen with him through the faith of the operation of God, who hath raised him from the dead."—Col. 2:12. This thought is carried into the next chapter, and linked up with the thought of the return of Christ. The first few verses of the next chapter tell us that we who are dead to self and risen with Christ do set our affections on things above and wait for Christ to return.

"When Christ, who is our life, shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory."

The Lord's Supper, the Communion service, is not valued at its true worth when viewed apart from the second coming of Christ. Let those who ignore or minimize the atonement remember that this sacrament points back to Calvary. The bread tells of our Lord's crucified body. The wine speaks of His blood, which is the seal of the covenant. But there is also a forward look to this ordinance. This is the horizon of the Lord's table: "Till he come."—1 Cor. 11:26. At the Lord's table we are on resurrection ground; judgment behind us, glory before us.

"For as oft as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye do shew the Lord's death till he come."

Public worship is classed by some people with the ordinance. In the Bible the necessity of public worship is presented in connection with the truth of the Lord's return (Heb. 10:24, 25). The motive by which Christians are urged to assemble together is the fact that the Lord is coming a second time. Doubtless there would be fewer people absenting themselves from the house of God and the worship of God if they seriously considered the truth that the Lord Jesus Christ might come upon the day of worship.

"Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another: and so much the more as ye see the day approaching . . . For yet a little while, and he that shall come will come, and will not tarry."

THE PROMISES OF THE BIBLE

We do not say that the promises of God have nothing to do with the present. We do affirm that some of the greatest promises of the Word cannot be fulfilled apart from the second advent of the Son of God. Take the promise of victory over the devil. Our hearts sicken as we view the awful work of the evil one. Yet, thank God, we know that the devil is to be overthrown, destroyed. Let us read

Please turn to Back Page

What Must I Do to Be Saved?

"YOUR little tract was right, Peter," said John Almen as he greeted his friend Peter Everready a week after they had had their conversation on "Essential Truths."

"I went home that night and got out my Bible and looked up every one of those references that were given in the tract, not only the ones that had to do with the kingdom on the earth, but those that tell about the coming of Christ, the return of the Jews to Palestine, eternal life in Christ, and all the others. I tell you, my friend," he went on, "that is a small sheet but it is full of wonderful ideas, most of which were new to me."

"I'm glad you found it interesting, John," said his friend. "I have another small four-page folder that I would like to have you look over if you care to do so. It was written by one of the most thorough Bible students of the past century, J. F. Waggoner, and has been put out in many editions by the National Bible Institution of Oregon, Illinois."

Accepting the tract, Mr. Almen read the heading aloud: "What Must I Do to Be Saved?"

"That surely is an important question, and one that is beginning to interest me far more than it ever did before," he remarked. "Nothing could be more important than eternal salvation, and I, for one, am anxious to learn what I must know and do in order that I may be saved."

"A most commendable ambition, John," asserted Mr. Everready. "Notice the brief but clear answer that is given at the top of the page: 'Believe, Repent, Be Baptized, and Then Lead a Holy Life.' Such is the substance of Mr. Waggoner's answer. And each statement is supported by Bible texts so that there can be no doubt about their truth and authority."

"Yes," responded Mr. Almen thoughtfully, "and then the writer asks another question that covers the whole matter we have been discussing: 'But what must one believe?'"

"That reminds us of what we were talking about last week," remarked Mr. Everready, "for Mr. Waggoner says that in order to be saved we must believe the gospel, which he defines scripturally as 'good news about God's kingdom that is to be set up on the earth when Christ comes.' This, he says, is what Jesus preached when He was on earth, and in support of his assertion calls attention to Matthew 4:23; 25:31-40; Mark 1:14; and Luke 8:1."

"I will be glad, indeed, to continue my study of the way of salvation as this little guide suggests," said Mr. Almen. "But if what this author says is true, that is, that the future home of the saints is to be in the kingdom of God on the earth after Jesus comes, does it not nullify the expectation many good people entertain that heaven is to be their home and that their spirits go there at death?"

"Yes, the hope that Jesus held out to His followers in the Sermon on the Mount (Matt. 5:5) is undoubtedly quite different from that which many believe concerning the location of the home of the redeemed," agreed Mr. Everready. "But we will speak of that at another time," he concluded.

Measuring the Results of Education

By Norman John MacLeod

A REAL EDUCATION is the thing we all desire. True learning is sought by us when we attempt to live the life of the Christian; when we study God's Word to show ourselves approved; when we endeavor to deal as we should with our fellow men. Education is a thing of the heart and not of the book. Some of the most dangerous people are those who have had a book learning without a true education of the heart. The learning which is received at school is merely a beginning: hence, graduation exercises are called "Commencement." Education never hurt anybody; it might do some people very little good. If you put a ten thousand dollar education in a five cent mind, you still would have a five cent mind. A ten thousand dollar mind without an education is better than a five cent mind with a ten thousand dollar education. But if you put a ten thousand dollar education on a ten thousand dollar mind the benefit is in geometric ratio. That is in accord with the meaning of the word "education," which comes from two Latin words meaning "to lead out." You cannot pump water out of a dry well. You cannot "lead out" a mind that is not there!

How can the educator find out what is being accomplished by his teaching? In the field of secular education that is a difficult problem. To find out just how much mathematics has been absorbed into the mind of the learner in the various grades of school, tests have been devised which determine just how much is there. Even that, though apparently simple, is extremely difficult. In olden days the student was required to memorize various formulae, and was supposed by that method to learn mathematics. Did it improve his character? How much history has the student acquired? The tester devises a list of dates and events which he thinks should be in the mind of each student that has taken the course. But history is not made of dates and events: history is the living past from which we learn to understand the present. History is the racial memory. Does memorizing a list of dates and events improve the character of the learner? How much chemistry has the student learned? Again the tester has devised means of testing facts learned. And so might we list each and every subject. How do we know how much of those things have been learned? By testing! What does a test test? A certain psychologist said that "an examination tested the student's ability to keep his head under the most adverse circumstances." And we know that he spoke truth. Why do so many students hate history? Because they did not learn the true living thing that is history: they did not

"Education is a thing of the heart and not of the book" is the conclusion of the pastor of the Los Angeles Church of God. Religious education is weighed in the balances of common sense and found wanting.

study history, but "chronology." They absorbed the driest thing that can be found in the field of past events: the skeleton of the subject that really lives. Why do people dislike English? Because they have tried to learn it by examining its framework, oblivious to the fact that "literature is life." Education cannot be acquired by such methods! It never was, nor ever shall be! Similarly, when a teacher goes to school and learns methods, he has not learned to be a teacher. Methods are to teaching what chronology is to history; what parsing verbs is to Greek; what learning atomic weights is to chemistry; and what mathematical formulae are to the real science of mathematics. Only inspirational teaching is real teaching. Only that spark of enthusiasm that is imparted by the teacher to the student that leads the latter into study can be called teaching. When we first taught in training school we felt quite proud of ourself at the lesson we had taught: when we finished the lesson, the supervisor told us that the children learned in spite of us. And that is what happens in most teaching. Most parents and religious teachers think they are doing well if they take care of a few children, say five to ten: the public school teacher is given up to fifty students and is asked to teach them. If the students learn it is by accident or their own desire. Measuring the results of teaching is most discouraging to the teacher: for mass education is mostly a myth. Character education is absolutely out of the question. In fact most of the time of the public school teacher is consumed in trying to manage incorrigible students that have been forced into school by compulsory education laws. And the public is fooled into believing that they are improving the schools in increasing them in size! The reason that public schools have deteriorated is that they have increased in size so rapidly that no teacher can even get acquainted with the students, let alone enter into their lives. The Dean of the University of California compared that institution to the Shredded Wheat factory in Oakland in the following manner: He said that wheat comes into the factory at one door and shredded wheat goes out at another, and a prominent sign says: "Not touched by human hands." In such an institution as the University of California classes of five hundred and even one thousand or more are not uncommon. We attended one "class" of fourteen hundred students! No teacher can really teach such a class!

How are we to measure the results of religious education? If the problem of teaching and its measurement are well nigh impossible in many of the common school subjects, we can see that the possibility of measuring religious education is well nigh superhuman. How far has the Sermon on the Mount sunk into the hearts of our students? We cannot even know our own intents and thoughts at times. We cannot count on ourselves to do the things that we wish to do. The Apostle Paul has stated that vividly: "For that which I do I allow not: for what I would, that do I not; but what I hate, that do I."—Romans 7:15. If the Apostle Paul did many things which he knew were wrong, and left undone the things that he should have done, how can we sit down with "measuring stick" and say that so much character education has been achieved? Every device that has been created by the world at large for the improvement of teaching should be made available to the religious teacher. So much lost motion is found in any teaching: the effort of methods is to systematize instruction and make it more effective. How can we measure inspirational teaching? The best teachers seldom make their methods apparent. So skillful are they in handling the teaching situation that the method is hidden. They work according to the old saying: "True art conceals art." If a sermon is constructed so that the outline is more apparent than the subject matter, the sermon is not pleasant to attend: it will be dry and uninteresting. Just so with teaching: if the methods are too apparent, the teaching will be dry and uninteresting.

When we look back over our career at school we will find that we received our "education" from one or two teachers: the rest of the so-called teachers whose classes we attended did not register. Why? Because only a few out of the group have really learned to teach. When they are going to school to take up higher education, at least there are two ways of advising students: choose what occupation you wish to follow and then go to the school where the best teachers are in that line; the other better way is to select the teachers which are nearest at hand that are good teachers, and then follow the line that they teach. So in religious education: the inspirational teacher is the one that will function to bring us to a better Christian life. Facts can be learned from a book: we do not need a teacher to teach facts. An outline can be mastered without an instructor. But to receive an education we must have a teacher who teaches life, who teaches the love of learning, of wisdom, of character.

We hear much said to decry "higher education": the only thing the matter with higher education is that there are not enough people go into it, and those that do do not give heed to it. They attend college or university for the social life, or as one woman expressed it, "to get the college face."

The religious teacher can teach without attending school a day in his life: he can train the student in the fundamental doctrines of the Scriptures; he can teach the great outstanding texts of the Word; he can teach the stories of all the great worthies of the Bible. But those children will not be educated unless the teacher has had an understanding of the real problems of life that are in the Scriptures, and is able to weave them into the lives of his students.

The best teacher will be helped by an understanding of the methods to be used in handling that class. To understand the psychology of the particular age with which he is dealing will certainly never hurt anybody. He may be a very good teacher without such study. But how much better he will be able to handle those students if he understands their mental level. It is fine, for instance, to teach the small child of the baby Jesus, or the baby Moses in the bull-rushes, or the tender love of Jesus for little children. But if you try to teach an adolescent boy such things he will think they are "sissified," and that is why many of our older students lose interest. Such problems as those set forth in the moral level of the problem with which Joseph was confronted in the house of Potiphar will appeal to the older adolescent boy; or the honesty question in the story of Jacob; or the leadership problems of the life of Moses; or the demand for self-denial in following the example of the life of Christ. If you speak of social justice to the child under fifteen you are not likely to get his attention: what does he know of any kind of justice, let alone the problems of one of the most intricate of all social questions? But if we understand that hero-worship belongs to the boy of one age, and character analysis is beyond his comprehension, then we can understand better what to teach. One of the greatest tragedies of religious education is the attempt of teachers to get children of immature age to answer abstract questions that can scarcely be comprehended by adults of years of experience. A common matter of knowledge among teachers is that an early adolescent usually cannot tell why the moon, a penny, and a cart wheel are alike. They have not yet come to the age where they can go through the process of what is known as "abstraction." How, then, can they comprehend such things as justice, sin, righteousness, and even God Himself, if they are not presented to them in a concrete way? How can they comprehend the terrible nature of sin, when they have not had direct contact with its devastating results? Until such ideas can be comprehended it is futile to ask children questions that involve them without basing them on some experience within the range of the students.

At a recent meeting of religious educators in southern California one of the most prominent of their number told them in plain English that they were not functioning! He said that there was no difference between the students under their instruction and the rest of the world. Religious education was for the most part lost motion, he said. Perhaps his indictment was too severe; purposely so, for he wished to stir his hearers to greater efforts. But why should a Sunday school teacher not avail himself of every possible bit of help that can be acquired, whether it be from the Bible or the school teacher? Anything that will help to improve the tone of any kind of teaching should be grasped with all the zest of one who is doing his utmost to carry on the work of God. If the public school teachers have found something of value, let us adapt it to our needs. If they give us an example of what not to do, let us avoid it as if it were poison. But let us not feel but that real education is the thing for which we are all striving.

Did Christ Preexist?

By R. H. Judd

“And now, O Father, glorify thou me with thine own self with the glory which I had with thee before the world was.”—John 17:5.

HOW frequently we are enjoined to meditate on God's Word. When King David of Israel says, in his incomparable Book of Psalms, “I remember thee upon my bed, and meditate on thee in the night watches,” he surely touches a cord of deeply human interest. Personally, I must confess that many of the most helpful thoughts have come to me as I have in this manner sought to follow out my studies in God's Word, and the thoughts I now wish to express were obtained along these very lines.

It is not, dear friends, the amount of reading which we cover that we receive abiding benefit from, but only that which we have read with an understanding heart is of real service in our spiritual life, to ourselves and to others.

Many have sought an explanation of the words contained in John 17:5, and perhaps most of them have given us something that is helpful; but not one of them, so far as I am able to recollect, endeavors to explain the passage by direct appeal to the surrounding context. Generally speaking, I think we may safely say that no matter what the subject may be, the elucidation that is most likely to give the desired heartfelt assurance that it is the correct one, is almost invariably based upon a consideration of the setting of the passage. The writer feels that these remarks eminently apply to John 17:5. The verse is widely quoted by believers in the preexistence of our Savior before His birth in Bethlehem of Judæa, and is regarded as conclusive proof of their belief. But no essential point is really proved until that position has been reached which demonstrates without doubt that no other hypothesis will so well fit the conditions. The writer believes that the main question of the preexistence of Christ can be thus demonstrated to be unscriptural, also unsound from a logical point of view. With that accomplished, the necessity for seeking an exegesis of our text would be automatically done away, so far as it affects that issue. The passage, however, remains; and in view of the remarks just made, the inevitable and only possible conclusion remaining is that there must be some other exegesis of the passage.

An examination will at least be of interest, and possibly informative also, and this may perhaps best be accomplished through inquiry.

1. What was Christ's prayer in this verse?

Ans. “And now, O Father, glorify thou me with thine own self with the glory which I had with thee before the world was.”

2. Did not Christ pray for the glory now, that He had with the Father before the world was?

Ans. Yes, He wanted that glory (whatever it was) then.

3. Did He get it in answer to prayer?

Ans. Yes. See verse 22, “The glory which thou hast given (R. V.) me I have given unto them.” Then the ideas we have held of the glory that He had with the Father before the foundation of the world must surely be mistaken, for the disciples have the same given to them.

4. What then was the glory which the mind of Christ was so centered upon obtaining?

Ans. Going back to the early verses of the chapter we find that the whole subject matter of His prayer is prayer not for Himself, but for His followers; viz., those “which thou hast given me.” See verses 6, 9, 24. The passing of life to succeeding generations was the crowning glory of God's gifts to mankind—indeed, of all life, and no people on this earth realized this as did the Jew. “Be fruitful, and multiply” was the command, and, “Happy is he who hath his quiver full of them,” is King David's comment upon the same subject. The crown of “glory” is the crown of “life.” In John 17:10 Christ said, “I am glorified in them.” Do you catch the thought? Paul said of the Thessalonian Christians, “Ye are our glory.”

Now for the next question; then surely your heart will burn within you at the wondrous news God's Word reveals.

5. When was this “glory” given to Him—the glory of the seed that shall serve Him, and be accounted to the Lord for a generation?

Ans. See Ephesians 1:4, 5. “According as he (God) hath chosen us in him (Christ) before the foundation of the world, . . . having predestinated us unto the adoption of children by Jesus Christ to himself, according to the good pleasure of his will.”

Then it is true that Christ had glory with the Father before the foundation of the world? Our Savior knew the Scriptures as no man ever knew them before or since, and He knew, even better than Paul, “what were the riches of the glory of his inheritance in the saints.” That was the glory Christ had with the Father before the world was—the glory of giving life, ETERNAL LIFE, “to as many as thou hast given him”; and in that same sense, God, who cannot lie, promised Paul eternal life before the world began.

To epitomize the foregoing:

We have shown that “the glory” promised Christ was the glory of His inheritance in the saints; or in other words, as we have also shown, that He was to have the joy all creation shares in giving life to others. But in contrast to them the life He gives is eternal life—"length of days for ever and ever," even as His Father had promised Him.

Is it not clear therefore that if the saints are themselves "the glory" referred to (and there would seem to be no question of that) then they also must have preexisted for Him to have had "glory with the Father before the world was"?

That the saints preexisted, none of our readers will admit. Therefore, the only conclusion possible is that as the saints were "foreordained before the foundation of the world," so also was Christ. If they did not preexist He did not either. The verse thus considered with the context actually disproves the preexistence theory.

"Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word." In these words we see the fulfillment of Christ's words, "The glory which thou hast given me I have given them."

Jonah: the Test-Book

By Alice B. Curtis

IT is probable that the book of Jonah is the most abused and ridiculed book in the Bible. Critics like to hold it up to ridicule because of the miracle recorded therein of Jonah and the great fish. These critics may not have read Matthew 19:26, where Jesus says, "With God all things are possible"; or Psalm 33:9, where, in speaking of creation, the Psalmist says, "He spake, and it was done."

Jonah may well be called a test-book; a person may say, "I believe most of the Bible, and what difference does it make if I do not believe the book of Jonah?" It makes all the difference in the world, for if one does not believe this book, he does not believe the words of Jesus recorded in Matthew 12:40: "For as Jonas was three days and three nights in the whale's belly; so shall the Son of man be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth." Thus Jesus verifies the very miracle that Modernists and rationalists today would discredit.

We know from 2 Timothy 3:16 that "all scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness." So let us be careful how we treat this book, as well as the rest of the Bible.

Jonah was one of the most ancient prophets, living in the year 862 B. C. His book is an autobiography and very brief, consisting of but four chapters; but it is filled with information for us.

We would naturally expect Jonah to run into difficulty when he did not obey God's command to go to Nineveh and warn the inhabitants that unless they repented they would be destroyed in forty days. Nineveh, the capital of Assyria, was not far distant from Babylon and worshiped the same idols as were worshiped in Babylon.

Now although Jonah feared God, as he says in chapter 1:9, yet he fled from His presence, going on board a ship at Joppa to go to Tarshish. Soon a mighty tempest arose that threatened the loss of the ship and all on board. At Jonah's request he was thrown overboard, and he was swallowed by the great fish God had prepared. While three days and three nights in this temporary prison Jonah prayed earnestly and was heard by God, who delivered him. A second opportunity was given Jonah to make good, and this time he went and preached to the people of Nineveh.

Jonah probably did not fear that these people would harm him, for they would know from his garments that he was a prophet; and, as Palestine was not a great distance from Nineveh, its people had doubtless heard of the judgments God had brought upon the ancient cities of the plain centuries before, raining fire and brimstone upon them for their sins.

The result of Jonah's preaching was wonderful: from the king on his throne to the lowliest subject, repentance was complete. The king, who is thought to have been Pul, ordered that everyone don the garb of mourning, and that man and beast should refrain from food and drink. And because of their repentance God did not destroy the city at that time. But instead of being pleased at the results of his preaching, Jonah became very angry, even entreating God to take away his life from him.

In verse 2, chapter 4, we learn the reason of Jonah's displeasure. He says, "O Lord, was not this my saying, when I was yet in my country? Therefore I fled before unto Tarshish: for I knew that thou art a gracious God, and merciful, slow to anger, and of great kindness, and repentest thee of the evil."

We can understand something of Jonah's humiliation at the way events resulted in Nineveh; for, because of the sincere repentance of the city the destruction Jonah had foretold was averted; and he might be classed with the false prophets, and to rest under that stigma was well nigh unendurable.

God understood clearly Jonah's point of view and was very patient with him. He made Jonah see that it was not in keeping with the character of a loving and merciful Creator to destroy a people who had shown sincere repentance, especially since there were in the city 120,000 persons too young to be held accountable for their acts, besides much cattle. A conservative estimate for the entire population of Nineveh in Jonah's time would be 600,000. Though Jonah's reputation as a prophet may have been ruined, it was lost in a noble cause.

How fortunate it was for Jonah and the Ninevites, and how very thankful we should be, that God is slow to anger and very merciful. Otherwise, there would be no fresh opportunities given to us when we disobey to turn to God and be forgiven.

In Matthew 12:41 Jesus told the Pharisees that the men of Nineveh "shall rise in judgment with this generation, and shall condemn it: because they repented at the preaching of Jonas; and, behold, a greater than Jonas is here." Also, in Matthew 11:21, He upbraided the cities in which most of His mighty works had been done, saying that "if the mighty works, which were done in you, had been done in Tyre and Sidon, they would have repented long ago in sackcloth and ashes," and "Sodom . . . would have remained until this day."

What would Jesus say to the wicked, faithless people of today who have the most wonderful opportunities to know God's Word, and yet treat it with utter indifference and contempt? Not content with spurning the Bible themselves, many are trying to destroy the faith and hope of others. Now is the time for every Christian to stand fast for the truth, to be courageous, and labor incessantly to spread the gospel to a sinful world that is fast approaching trouble such as it has never known.

"Oh, why wilt thou so long delay,
And spurn the mercy of the Lord?
Sinner, while it is called today,
Obey the reconciling Word."

—0—

STAGNANT CHURCHES

MR. SPURGEON once said that some churches reminded him of a child's rocking horse—there was plenty of motion, but no progress. The figure is certainly apt. A church goes through its motions, develops certain forms and degrees of activity, keeps its members more or less busy with various plans and schemes of work, and—gets nowhere in particular and makes no advance worth recording. Recall the reports frequently heard at associational and other annual gatherings. After twelve months of work the church has just about held its own with respect to its membership, its scale of missionary and benevolent contributions, its Sunday school enrollment and attendance. The story does not differ materially from year to year. As it was last year, it is this year, and bids fair to be next year, world without end, amen! It is surprising to note the complacency with which the church regards this condition of affairs; how contented it seems to be simply a defending garrison whose chief business is to keep the fort from being captured, rather than an invading army sent forth for the conquering of territories yet unwon to the King.

—Watchman-Examiner.

THE GOODNESS AND SEVERITY OF GOD

By Lydia Railsback

"The Lord is good to all" (Psalm 145:9) and "our God is a consuming fire" (Hebrews 12:29).

QUITE a contrast, but our God, the creator of the universe (Gen. 1:1), the one on whom humanity must depend for everything (Acts 17:28), the giver of every good and perfect gift (Jas. 1:17), is a God of love (1 John 4:8) and peace (1 Cor. 14:33), and "his mercy endureth for ever" (Psa. 107:7). Though He is all this, He is even more; "he is the Rock, his work is perfect: for all his ways are judgment: a God of truth and without iniquity, just and right is he" (Deut. 32:4), "and his ways past finding out" (Rom. 11:33).

Whatever God does is just and right, and though many times we do not understand, we must not criticise nor condemn. He always has done the right thing, and always will do what is best for mankind. We must remember that our God is a jealous God (Ex. 20:5); and "vengeance is mine; I will repay, saith the Lord" (Rom. 12:19).

When the first pair was placed in that beautiful Garden of Eden, God's goodness made everything pleasant for them, but when they disobeyed, they fell and God was just severe enough that He drove them out of the Garden; but even that was a kindness, for had they partaken of the tree of life after sinning, it looks like they would have lived forever in sin; but as in all other cases God in His goodness has provided something better.

Coming down to the time of Noah, when wickedness was running rampant in the world, God did the very best thing that could have been done. Though this seems severe indeed to us, we must remember that "his work is perfect" and that He is just and right. In our own experience, many of us, no doubt, have seen instances where a strong hand and severe punishment would have worked a far greater good to the one receiving it than would have loving words and neglected correction; and our judgment is nothing compared to that of the Father.

When Saul was sent by God to destroy the Amalekites (1 Sam. 15:3), he was told to destroy not only men, but women and children, even the babies; this seems heartless indeed, but God did right, He knew what was best and acted accordingly.

God in His goodness sent His Son into the world that those who believe on Him might have life; but to the unbeliever or sinner Christ came in vain, for "the wages of sin is death" (Rom. 6:23). "It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God."—Heb. 10:31. We must either seek life by living for Him, or accept death as the result of sin. Choose ye this day which destiny shall be yours.

Abreast of the Times

Spiritual Recovery Campaign

"Return, ye backsliding children, and I will heal your backslidings."—Jer. 3:22.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—A nation-wide campaign for spiritual recovery has been planned by leading representatives of Catholic, Protestant, and Jewish faiths. The group in charge of the effort is known as "The National Committee for Religious and Welfare Recovery." An effort will be made to secure the cooperation not only of the churches and synagogues of the country, but of the secular magazines, newspapers, radio, newsreels, commercial and athletic clubs, and other organizations in the furtherance of its program. The Committee called attention to the address President Roosevelt made last December before the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

According to The Literary Digest the Chief Executive declared at that time that the Government is "seeking through social and economic means the same goal which the churches are seeking through social and spiritual means," and that "the great objective which Church and State are both demanding is a 'more abundant life.'" The nation must seek a "prosperity built on spiritual and social values. . . . State and Church are rightly united in a common cause."

Much suggested by this well-meaning committee is highly commendatory, but that it will accomplish its purpose is to be seriously doubted. Much confusion exists as to just what constitutes "spiritual recovery." Does it merely mean the development of loftier ideals of life and service, based on human conceptions of what is good for mankind, or is "spiritual recovery" to be understood as an actual getting back to God and to the source of all spiritual knowledge, the Bible, in fullness of faith? If the latter is the definition adopted, then we can anticipate its coming only with the return of our blessed Lord, for up to that time the general tendency is to be away from God and His right to rule over the children of men.

Strikes, or Civil War?

"There be debates, envyings, wraths, strifes, backbitings, whisperings, swellings, tumults."—2 Cor. 12:20.

SAYLESVILLE, R. I., Sept. 12.—Ten shot and hundreds injured in a battle between striking textile workers and Rhode Island state troops marked the further progress of the nation-wide struggle between employers and employees in the textile industry today. The strike situation in various parts of the country is rapidly taking on the appearance and dimensions of civil war. Regardless of the right or wrong on either side the results are menacing the peace of the entire nation.

In several localities the strikers are arming themselves to resist the peace (?) officers and the National Guard, which has been called out to protect the workers who decline to go on strike from the violence of the strikers and to prevent sabotage.

Efforts by Governmental agencies to arbitrate the dispute have utterly failed, and the board has withdrawn from it for the time at least. What the outcome will be cannot now be foreseen. This one fact, however, is apparent. We may say of both striker and manufacturer that "God is not in all his thoughts." They are not taking the "Lord of sabaoth" (James 5:4), the Lord of armies, into consideration. But the time will come in which they will be faced with the necessity of doing so, for Jehovah has not closed His ears to the cries of the needy, and "will speedily avenge their cause."

All right cannot be on the side of the union workers, nor on the side of the employers of labor. But it seems to go beyond the power of men to determine wherein the right and the wrong actually lie.

Jewish Persecution in Mexico

"We are become a reproach to our neighbours, a scorn and derision to them that are round about us."—Psa. 79:4.

MEXICO CITY, Mexico, Aug. 23.—The legions of the colored shirts continue to multiply. The latest group brought to our attention are the "Gold Shirts" of Mexico, an anti-Jewish organization whose avowed purpose is much the same as that of the Brown Shirts of Germany and the Silver Shirts of the United States, that of discrediting the Jews and barring them from public office and, as far as possible, from professional and business life.

Attention was called at the recent Jewish World Conference in Geneva to the growing antagonism to the Jews throughout the world. Today Bernard S. Deutsch, President of the New York Board of Aldermen, was visited at his hotel in this city and severely censured for discussing the anti-Jewish movement in Mexico. He was told that he was "meddling in the internal affairs of Mexico."

The visit was the result of a published interview in which Mr. Deutsch was credited with the statement that he had been informed that the Mexican Government was taking no part in anti-Semitic activities. The alderman informed his visitors that the statement he had issued had been suggested by a high Mexican official.

In connection with the thought of Mr. Deutsch's position in the civic affairs of New York City it is interesting to note that there are living in that city today some 1,765,000 Jews, or that nearly one third of its population is of that race. In fact, there are more Jews in New York City than lived in Jerusalem at any one time in its history.

Berean Department

ARLEN MARSH, EDITOR

Illinois Berean Conference

THE annual business meeting of the Illinois State Berean Society was held at Oregon, Illinois, on August 11, 1934. The Secretary's and Treasurer's reports were read and approved. The Treasurer's report showed a balance on hand of $51.83. Local reports were read. The most of these showed a slight decrease in membership and attendance. Two societies, Ripley and Eldorado, had been discontinued. One new society (Marshall) had been organized.

It was moved, seconded, and carried that the incoming President appoint a committee to confer with the Illinois State Conference Board as to the best time of holding the next Illinois Berean Conference, with a view to interfering as little as possible with the regular state conference schedule.

It was moved, seconded, and carried that the Illinois State Berean Society donate $25.00 to Sr. Orpha Sanford for relief work. It was also moved, seconded, and carried that the Illinois State Berean Society donate $20.00 to pay on the note on the dormitory.

The officers for the following year are: President, Harry Goekler, Marshall; 1st Vice President, Harvey Krogh, Pearl City; 2nd Vice President, Mrs. Louise Lapp, Ripley; Secretary, Mrs. Mary Krogh, Pearl City; Treasurer, Mrs. Mildred Somers, 1807 Ridge Ave., Rockford.

—Edna H. Wood, Retiring Secretary.

Iowa Berean Day

THE annual meeting of the Iowa Bereans was August 23, 1934. A business meeting was held in the morning. Officers were elected and reports from local Bereans were accepted. The program given in the afternoon was composed of recitations, songs, drills, and a promotion exercise. This promotion exercise promoted our Cradle Roll Bereans who had reached the age of six to the junior Berean class.

The officers elected for the coming year are as follows: Ronald Howe, Waterloo, President; Kenneth Starbuck, Grinnell, Vice President; Doris Cronbaugh, Belle Plaine, Secretary; Esther Sealine, Stanhope, Treasurer.

Esther Sealine, Treasurer.

The Grand Rapids Berean Society

WHILE our Berean organization at Grand Rapids is far from perfect, yet it has been adapted to our local conditions as best we have been able, and it accomplishes much good.

The whole group meets in the church auditorium for opening exercises, and then the classes retire to their several classrooms for the lesson period. We have in all six classes or divisions. Naming them from the youngest, we have a primary department for children five years old and under—the pre-school age. The next class runs to eight years of age; then one from nine to eleven, one from twelve to fifteen; and above that come the senior young people and the adult divisions.

It is the attempt of the Superintendent of Bereans (who by virtue of his office becomes a member of the church Board) to see that each class or division has a teacher who is properly qualified for dealing with that particular age. And the Superintendent counsels with each teacher as to the most desirable and beneficial line of lessons for his class. As far as possible the books published by the National Berean Society are used in the classes, although some of our classes use other lessons and materials. The adult class has proved to be the largest class year after year. It is completing at this time a series of studies in Revelation, and planning a series of tabernacle studies for this fall and winter. The pastor is the teacher of this class.

Not a great deal of stress is laid on social activity in our Berean work. Perhaps one reason for this is that we have other departments of our church work that take care of the social life. However, there are some of the Berean teachers who do develop social activity. For example, the teacher of the girls from twelve to fifteen has them come to church in time for a potluck supper before Berean every two weeks, and they spend some time in sewing on clothes for themselves, the teacher helping them on things which they do not understand.

Our Berean society meets on Thursday night of each week, at 7:30. The session is one hour long and closes promptly at 8:30, with all classes assembling in the auditorium for the report of the Secretary. A closing hymn is sung and the Berean benediction repeated by all.

In our local work we have found it best not to charge members regular dues, but to take a collection in each class. We pay dues from our treasury, however, to the state and national societies on the basis of a stated amount per person, the average attendance for the quarter being used.

We have found our Berean work to be the most valuable opportunity of the week for teaching the truth of the gospel as we see it to those who are interested.

The only improvement the writer would suggest at this time would be that each department have a teacher who would spend much time in thought and prayer for the welfare of his class and do much work in preparation for each week's meeting. Berean work is a wonderful opportunity and no one can take it too seriously and too prayerfully.

Devotion to the task accomplishes more than any other single factor in bringing results, and without results, or works, faith is dead.—F. E. Siple.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"The Lord is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? the Lord is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid?"

FIGHTING THE BATTLES OF LIFE WITH GOD AS OUR LEADER

FOR the past three months we have been studying a very interesting history. As we have turned the pages of our history book—the Bible—we have learned many things about God and His people, Israel. We have discovered some new things and rediscovered some old.

At the top of the list of facts we have learned about God let us put His love and loyalty. Those are two traits that we all desire to have. For without love and loyalty we would have no friends worthy of the name. We must love others if we would have them love us, and a friend who is a real friend is loyal and true as long as life lasts.

But God's love and loyalty are so much higher and truer and nobler than ours that we can hardly realize their fullness. God's love does not extend only to His friends, but it goes out to those who are indifferent and even hateful toward Him. And His loyalty stands just as firm always.

You know how the Hebrews, or Israelites, God's own people, wavered in their love toward Him. How they left Him and wandered off after idols even though God had cared for them better than an earthly father could. How they forgot His commands, when they had declared they would always remember to do what He asked. But God remained the same loving Father toward them at all times.

God is the same toward us, no matter how far we stray away from Him. He is always waiting to welcome us back, just as He did His people of old. Could we choose a better leader to follow in our battles of life? Could we find one more loyal and true than He is?

The children of Israel fought real battles with flesh and blood enemies. For they were surrounded with nations who did not know God and who were jealous because God had given them such a beautiful home. These nations worshiped idols, as you all know, but God had warned His people that they would meet just such enemies. Because of His love for them He told them ahead of time just what to expect.

To add to all this God also sent many brave and faithful men to lead His people, men who spoke for Him in times of danger or great need. Let us notice the qualities of some of these messengers or prophets of God.

Here we have Elijah, and the first thing we think of in connection with him is his faith in God. Then we see Elisha following after, with his wonderful sympathy for all suffering people. Two more fine qualities we would like to possess ourselves!

There goes Micaiah with his fearless truthfulness, and Amos showing justice to all. Hosea's mercy is something like God's mercy, isn't it? And Hezekiah's righteousness did more for his people than all the armies Israel ever organized.

Now let's take each of these qualities, beginning with the two greatest qualities of God, and think of them as the implements of a soldier. For we are all soldiers and must fight battles every day of our lives. Even though we cannot see our enemies as Israel saw the Assyrians, yet they are just as real and just as dangerous.

With Elijah's trust in God, or faith, we have a shield against all harm that can come to us. Faith makes us realize that whatever happens God is still our loving and loyal Friend and Leader.

With a firm determination to be truthful we can have the courage of Micaiah, even before great and important people. With the righteousness that Christ, our Captain, gives us we may even lead those about us back to God, just as Hezekiah did. And with Elisha's sympathy our hearts cannot help but be filled with love toward all.

Now turn to Ephesians 6:11-17, and see what is the Christian's most important weapon of warfare, his sword. Why, it's the Bible, isn't it? The better a soldier knows how to use his sword, the more successful fighter he will be, of course. And the better a Christian knows his Bible, the more successful Christian he will be. Let's be glad then that we have the opportunity of learning all we can about the "sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God."

Here is a table you will find a great help in your Bible study. Copy it in your notebook:

KINGS	PROPHETS	QUALITIES
Jeroboam	Ahijah	Obedience
Asa	Azariah	Right-doing
Ahab	Elijah	Faith
Jehoshaphat	Micaiah	Honesty
Joash	Amos	Justice
Hezekiah	Hosea	Love
Uzziah	Isaiah	Sincerity
Hezekiah	Isaiah	Worship

The Sunday School Lesson

FROM TRUTH SEEKERS' QUARTERLY

LESSON 14. — September 30, 1934

REVIEW: GOD IN HEBREW HISTORY

Devotional Reading: Hebrews 11:32-40

GOLDEN TEXT

Thy kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and thy dominion endureth throughout all generations.—Psalm 145:13.

Lesson I. 1 Kings 11:26-39.

Topic: Ahijah and the Divided Kingdom.

Summary: The Prophet Ahijah was sent to Jeroboam, an officer of King Solomon, to tell him that the kingdom of Israel was to be divided because of the disobedience and idolatry of her kings and people, and that ten of the twelve tribes were to be given to him. The Lord made the continuance of the kingdom conditional upon Jeroboam's faithfulness in the keeping of God's law. This Jeroboam failed to do, and the kingdom was given to another shortly after his death.

Lesson II. 2 Chronicles 14 to 16.

Topic: Asa Relies on God.

Summary: Asa by the blessing of God had defeated the Ethiopians and on his return to Jerusalem with much spoil he was met by the Prophet Azariah with an encouraging message from God. Having recalled that as long as Israel obeyed God the nation had been wonderfully blessed, the Prophet said, "Be ye strong therefore, . . . for your work shall be rewarded." Large numbers of men from the northern tribes joined Asa when they saw how the Lord had blessed him. The king was encouraged to carry on his work of eradicating idolatry.

Lesson III. 1 Kings 17:1-24; 19:1-8.

Topic: God Cares for Elijah.

Summary: Elijah predicts the coming of a prolonged drought to Israel, and is then commanded to go into the wilderness and hide near the Brook Cherith, where God provides ravens to feed him. In the intervening chapter the test of the prophets of Baal is made and the Prophet forced to flee for his life to Beersheba, where he is again cared for by the Lord.

Lesson IV. 1 Kings 19:9-18.

Topic: Elijah Hears God's Voice.

Summary: Discouraged by the idolatry of Israel, and believing himself to be the only one remaining faithful to the Lord, Elijah flees to Sinai and hides in a cave. God calls him to witness three manifestations of divine power, a great wind, an earthquake, and a fire, and then speaks to him in a "still small voice." The Prophet is ordered back to his duty in Israel and encouraged with the assurance that there are still seven thousand men who have not bowed before Baal in worship.

Lesson V. 1 Kings 22.

Topic: Micaiah Speaks the Truth.

Summary: After three years of peace King Ahab of Israel and King Jehoshaphat of Judah agreed to make war on Syria to retake territory which Benhadad of Syria had promised to restore. At the request of Jehoshaphat Ahab called in his prophets to inquire as to the outcome. The entire 400 assured him of complete success in the venture. The king of Judah asked that a "prophet of the Lord" be inquired of. Micaiah responded, and assured the two kings of their eventual defeat and of the death of Ahab.

Lesson VI. 2 Kings 4:1-44.

Topic: Elisha Helps the Needy.

Summary: A widow whose sons were threatened with slavery for debt appealed to Elisha for help. He directed her to borrow many vessels and to fill them from the single vessel of oil which she possessed, and sell the miraculously given supply to meet the debt. A man brought an offering of the first fruits and gave it to Elisha, and it was increased sufficiently to feed one hundred men.

Lesson VII. Amos 5 and 7.

Topic: Amos Pleads for Justice.

Summary: Amos denounces the rulers of Israel for their oppression of the poor, the bribery and the perversion of justice they permit or exhibit. He declares that the formal acts of worship are abhorrent to God, and the only hope they have for life is to repent and reestablish true justice throughout the land.

Lesson VIII. Amos 6:1-7, 11-14.

Topic: Amos Denounces Self-Indulgence.

Summary: Amos denounces the nobles of the northern kingdom for their pride and arrogance. He calls attention to their selfish and luxurious manner of living, and declares that they have no sympathy for their poorer fellow countrymen. He also mentions the drunken feasts in which they engage, and warns them that they will be the first to be carried away into captivity when the Lord brings the Assyrians upon them in punishment.

Lesson IX. Hosea 6, 11, 14.

Topic: Hosea Preaches God's Love.

Summary: Hosea describes Israel as the child of God whom He has loved and cared for from the beginning. He asserts that God regrets the necessity of inflicting punishment upon His people, and predicts that when they repent they will be fully restored to divine favor and blessing.

Lesson X. Micah 2 to 4 and 6:1-12.

Topic: Micah Champions the Oppressed.

Summary: Micah, speaking by inspiration of God, denounces all forms of dishonesty, especially that which leads to the oppression and robbery of the poor by the rich. He assures the latter that no sacrifice can win the approval of God so long as they continue to follow their sinful course.

Lesson XI. 2 Chronicles 30.

Topic: Hezekiah Leads His People Back to God.

Summary: Following a successful attempt to overthrow idolatry and bring back his own people in Judah to God, Hezekiah extended an urgent invitation to the ten tribes, who for about 250 years had not worshiped in Jerusalem, to come and keep the Passover with them in the temple of the Lord. The invitation was accepted by vast throngs, and "a very great congregation" met in repentance and worship before the God of their fathers.

Lesson XII. Isaiah 1:1-31.

Topic: Isaiah Contrasts False and True Worship.

Summary: God warned sinful Israel that the sacrifices they offered and the formal services in which they engaged were an abomination to Him, and commanded them to refrain from making them. He said He would not hear their prayers under such conditions. Their hearts must first be cleansed from sin before He would again welcome their worship. But when they came to Him in true repentance He would wash away their iniquity and restore them to favor.

Lesson XIII. Isaiah 7, 31, 36, and 37.

Topic: Isaiah Counsels Rulers.

Summary: Isaiah pronounced a woe upon those who would go down to Egypt for help to evade the punishment which God was about to bring upon them, and warned them that such an effort would end in failure. Later he assured the people that Jehovah would defend Jerusalem. This promise was kept when God destroyed the Assyrian host which came against the city.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

1. Idolatrous worship proved Israel's undoing.
2. The Lord is near unto all that call upon Him.
3. God's care is sufficient for every emergency.
4. God speaks only to those who are listening for Him.
5. Truth is priceless even though it is not popular.
6. The hour of need is the time to help.
7. Justice demands that the heart be considered in our judgments.
8. Worldliness is alluring, deceptive, destructive, and prevents transformation.
9. Love worketh no ill, thinketh no evil, endureth all things.
10. Have we any evidence we can bring forth to testify against God as a reason for our neglect?
11. Return to God, making restitution for your sins, and God will receive you.
12. False worship appeals to the lusts of the flesh and is inspired of Satan. —C. E. R.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

ROCKFORD, ILLINOIS

The Anniversary Service of the Rockford Berean Society will be held Friday evening, Sept. 28, at the W. C. T. U. Hall, 1904 North Main Street. This is the eighth anniversary of the society. Supper will be served at 6:30. Everyone is welcome. Bring sandwiches and a dish to pass and dishes and silver for your own family. A special service will be held at 7:45.

RIPLEY, ILLINOIS

After a full month of conferences and the Eldorado and St. Louis appointments, the pastor and his wife are at home once more. With renewed determination we are looking forward to the work. The church is laying plans for a fall meeting instead of one in the spring as we have been having for the past two years. Those at the head of the Sunday school are beginning to think of plans for our coming Rally Day to be some time in October.

We had the pleasure of having Bro. and Sr. Harvey Krogh, Jr., with us over the week-end. Sunday evening, Bro. Krogh spoke to a comfortably filled house on the subject, "Do You Love People?" Everyone joins in wishing them a long and happy married life with God's blessing.

The church enjoyed a male quartet Sunday morning and evening. They were brothers, James McClain, Harvey Krogh, Gerald Cooper, and Francis Burnett. It was inspiring to hear these splendid young men using their talent for the Lord. Bro. McClain is one of our new members, and formerly sang over the radio from WLS.

Sr. Margaret Cooper left Tuesday for Macomb, where she will attend the State Normal School. The church will miss her at the services very much. Bro. Gerald Cooper is filling the pulpit here on the first Sunday of the month during the pastor's absence.

On September 9, the Ripley Sunday school had an attendance of 65 and a collection of over $6. Believe it or not!

C. E. Lapp, Pastor.

RALLY DAY AT SOUTH BEND

South Bend, Ind., will hold its Rally Day on October 7, at the Y. M. C. A. on the corner of Main and Wayne Streets. Sunday school will be at 10:00; sermon at 11:00. A picnic dinner will be held at the park.

We invite you to join us for the day for our mutual benefit.

F. A. Stilson, Pastor.

REESE - STILSON

On Sunday morning, Sept. 9, 1934, we were privileged to join as life companions our son Arthur and Miss Helen I. Reese.

Helen is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Reese of near North Salem Church, a family we have known for many years, Helen's Grandmother Reese being a member of the church.

Arthur is the last of our children to make this venture, which led his mother to make the remark, "Now we are back where we started." But on second thought, "We haven't lost any, but gained three," she said.

They are at home at 521 St. Joseph St., South Bend, Ind.

May the Lord bless them richly in all good things.

F. A. Stilson.

ARKANSAS CITY, KANSAS

There will be a week's meeting at the Church of God, 706 North A Street, in Arkansas City, Kan., beginning September 23 and ending September 30.

Sr. Lucille LeCrone will be the speaker, assisted by local talent, in the week's services.

An urgent invitation is extended to our church people. Try to make a special effort to attend these services.

If you have never heard Sr. LeCrone speak, come and hear her. She will have a message for you that will reach your heart and strengthen you for the coming days.

Mrs. A. J. Chaplin, Secretary.

FLORESVILLE, TEXAS

We are indeed glad to report the meeting which Bro. T. A. Drinkard closed Sunday night, Sept. 2, nine miles east of Floresville. Although this is an entirely new field, he had good attendance and fine interest. Two put on Christ, they being Bro. and Sr. J. B. Dismukes. I truly believe that seed has been sown that will be harvested later. There are opportunities and responsibilities in these new fields for the people of the Church of God.

Though very few in number, we have been inspired to meet together each Sunday to study God's Word that we may press onward, as never before, toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God that is in Christ Jesus. We are also looking forward to Bro. Drinkard's return for another meeting in the not too distant future.

Mrs. S. P. Dismukes.

ST. CLOUD, MINNESOTA

Vacation time found us with a few days at Graytown, Wis., holding services. We began August 21 and closed Sunday, August 26. We were just getting started and then we had to close, with interest increasing. These good people have a splendid Bible school, with Bro. Ora Hillman Superintendent. It is a joy to fellowship with God's children and we do appreciate their hospitality.

Sunday, Sept. 9, our local church reported 79 at Bible school, 19 in the adult class. Sr. T. M. Savage, Sr., has been with us and is looking better. Prayer meetings keep interesting. Each week the leader appoints the leader for the next service. The Ladies' Aid gave a shower (looked more like a downpour) to Sr. Walter Skinner for the needs of a beautiful baby boy that was left on a neighbor's doorstep. They plan to adopt the child, and we are happy that this one that was cast off by its parents will have a Christian home.

Bro. Denchfield gave two splendid sermons the Sunday we were away. One was "The Church of Tomorrow."

Services are well attended. These are blessings that a pastor enjoys, though the task sometimes is difficult.

Our prayer is that all members of the body of Christ will remain faithful until He will come to receive us unto Himself.

A. E. Hoskins, Pastor.

CONTRIBUTORS TO DOLLAR-A-MONTH CLUB

Amy L. Young ($10); Maybelle Hanson; Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Krogh, Jr. ($2); Mr. and Mrs. M. Fetters; Mary Calkins; Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Railsback; Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Moore; G. Long ($2).

MICHIGAN CONFERENCE

The Fall Conference is to be held at Blanchard, September 25 to 30, inclusive. Bro. Sydney Magaw of Ohio will be the speaker. Bro. Magaw has done some excellent work in this state in the past, and we can assure you some real inspiring sermons. Come, let us make this a week of worship together!

William Hanson, President.

BLANCHARD, MICHIGAN

It had been raining nearly a week, but Sunday morning, Sept. 9, dawned bright and warm, the Lord's welcome to us at the open-air meeting at Six Lakes. There were present brethren and friends from the Gospel Missions, the Blanchard church, and the Advent Christian Church in Sylvester. It was an inspiring day. Three young people were baptized, Lorna Frase, David Frase, and Glen Scott, all of Blanchard. The last named is a living witness of answer to prayer, for he was lying at the very door of death last spring. He had been earnestly desirous of consecrating himself to the Lord in baptism. The Lord preserved him.

Remember the Michigan Fall Conference to be held here September 25 to 31, with Bro. S. E. Magaw as speaker.

C. A. Smead, Pastor.

GRAYTOWN, WISCONSIN

A joyful meeting was held at Graytown, beginning Tuesday evening, Aug. 21, continuing over Sunday, when Bro. A. E. Hoskins, wife, and two daughters came from St. Cloud, Minn. We were very glad to have Bro. Hoskins with us again; also, glad to meet Sr. Hoskins and the girls and have them visit in our homes.

Bro. Hoskins gave us some wonderful sermons; each sermon was filled with a feast of spiritual food, which is very needful in these last days. We feel the Lord has greatly blessed us with those wonderful truths Bro. Hoskins presented to us.

We wish to extend our thanks to Carol for her service at the piano which added greatly to these meetings.

May God bless our efforts; and we pray that all may remain faithful until Jesus comes. We are looking forward to the time when we will be able to have these dear ones with us again. Welcome, come again.

Mrs. Edwin Engebretson.

THOUSANDS NEED THE RESTITUTION HERALD

There are thousands of people who are interested in the great truths taught by this journal, particularly those pertaining to prophecy and the coming of our Lord. Strangers to our work into whose hands The Herald has come declare it to be the best paper published along these lines. Bible students who with us are following the development of events that point to the fulfillment of Christian hopes in the advent of Jesus—are anxious to keep abreast of the times in everything pertaining to the progress of these things. The Restitution Herald is acknowledgedly the best aid they can secure. What will YOU do to bring our paper to the attention of others that they may enjoy it with you? We will be glad to send sample copies to all interested ones.

FONTHILL - NIAGARA FALLS DISTRICT

The following items are taken from the "Church of God Messenger," the interesting little local bulletin issued biweekly by Pastor C. E. Randall.

The services at Niagara Falls on a recent Sunday were in charge of the Truth Seekers' Sunday School Class of Fonthill. This is an energetic class made up of young people, and taught by the pastor.

A baptismal service was to be held soon at the Falls church, and we await with interest a full report.

Mr. and Mrs. William Platts, who have been spending some time in northern Ontario, have returned to their home near Fonthill.

On Monday night a large number of the Fonthill church gathered in the church basement for a social evening in honor of Bro. and Sr. Gordon and Bro. and Sr. Meyerhoeffer of Nebraska. A most delightful and entertaining program was rendered. The Fonthill church can boast of some very gifted talent. On Wednesday night the Falls brethren had a get-together at the Moreland home for the same purpose. While we were unable to be present due to a regular meeting at Welland, reports indicate a very pleasant time was enjoyed by all. Here, too, talent was brought into play and was not found lacking.

The past week (Sept. 1-7) Bro. and Sr. Gordon and Bro. and Sr. Meyerhoeffer have been visiting members of the two churches. Bro. Gordon occupied the pulpits at Fonthill and the Falls. This was his first appearance here since he left the pastorates. They left Friday morning on their homeward journey.

HERALD RECEIPTS

Mrs. Allen Johnson; Mrs. Thomas Lewis; C. H. Belshaw; A Sister (for others); Otto E. Dick; Mrs. Lottie Pickrel (for another); R. A. Humphreys (for self and others).

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

Published by
National Bible Institution
Oregon, Illinois

Subscription Rates.—51 issues per annum, $2.00; 6 months, $1.00; 3 months, 50 cents. Sample copy, Free.

FIFTEEN TRACTS FOR A DIME

In order that we may help you in the distribution of Tracts, we are offering for a limited time to send postpaid to any address a splendid assortment of fifteen of our most popular Bible Tracts for Ten Cents. This sample packet will enable you to select such Tracts as are best suited to the needs of your community and order them in quantities for widespread distribution.

You need not write a letter; just fill in the attached blank, place it in an envelope with five two-cent stamps, and address it to the

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
Oregon, Illinois

Date

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
Oregon, Illinois

Gentlemen: Inclosed find ten cents in United States postage stamps for which please send me a sample packet of assorted tracts.

Name

St. or RFD.

City or Town

State

KOKOMO, INDIANA

The annual business meeting of the Church of God of Kokomo was held September 2 in the church basement.

It was decided to carry on the work as in the past year and continue the Welfare Department to assist the needy in this time of distress.

Election of officers for the year of 1934-35 resulted as follows: Elders—O. J. Parker, D. G. Harvey; Senior Deacons—Edgar Harvey, Bert Maroney; Junior Deacons—Leon Thomas, Robert Harvey; Deaconesses—Martha Parker, Vada Harvey; Trustees—Leon Thomas, Bert Maroney, Robert Harvey; Treasurer—Martha Parker; Secretary—Helen Harvey; Co-Pastors—O. J. Parker, D. G. Harvey; Helen Harvey, Secretary.

Sunday, Sept. 9, the Kokomo Church of God held its third annual Homecoming and Rally Day. While the attendance was not so large as in former years (for many of the brethren were unable to attend), we feel strengthened to carry on the work by the splendid cooperation of the local membership.

After the morning services we gathered at the water to witness the baptism of Mrs. Ethel Hunt by Bro. O. J. Parker. Sr. Hunt, an interested attendant of our Berean classes, requested baptism at the last Friday night class. We have watched Ethel grow into young womanhood and rejoice that she has taken this all-important step, and pray the Father's blessing as she continues to walk "in newness of life."

At the noon hour a number of brethren and friends gathered in the church basement to enjoy a most bountiful basket dinner the ladies had prepared. Surely the Father has blessed us in temporal things, also, and provided for all our needs in this life.

After the children's program of recitations, music, and songs, Bro. Vaughn Long of the Roll church, the visiting speaker, gave us an interesting sermon on the soon coming of Christ, pointing out the many prophecies that have become history in recent years.

Out-of-town visitors were: Bro. and Sr. D. Hatten and daughters of Culver, Bros. Vaughn and Clayton Long of Hartford City, Sr. Lucy Chase and Mr. Luce of Elwood.

The evening sermon by Bro. O. J. Parker on "Sin" was greatly enjoyed by all in attendance.

We, like the Psalmist David, are moved to say, "Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity!"
D. G. Harvey.

BETWEEN YOU AND ME—

Fall conferences are now in order. The Minnesota brethren will meet at Mora, September 21, 22, and 23, and the Michigan churches will convene at Blanchard from September 25 to 31. Pray for their success.

Mrs. Olive Wood of Golden Rule Home is spending a short time with relatives near Aurora, Ill.

What are your plans for Rally Day? Is there any way in which the National Bible Institution can help you in making the day a success? Write us concerning your needs.

We note with pleasure that Sr. Alta King, Cedar Falls, Iowa, has been appointed Assistant Editor of The Gospel Trumpet, published at Blackwell, Okla., by the Arkansas-Oklahoma Conference. Sr. King has written extensively for The Restitution Herald in the past, and is well qualified to aid in the supervision of The Trumpet.

The Central Advent Christian Mission Bulletin, reporting the conference held at Lake Bloomington in central Illinois a short time ago, says, "We greatly enjoyed the fellowship and messages of Bro. L. E. Conner, President of the General Conference of the Church of God in Christ Jesus." The Bulletin also says that the work of the Advent Christian Church in South Bend, Ind., is to be transferred to the Church of God, "which has a good work there." Bro. F. A. Stilson is pastor of the South Bend church.

Monday, Sept. 17, our beloved "Father in the Faith"—and in the ministry—A. J. Eychaner, Cedar Falls, Iowa, reached the ninety-second milestone in the long journey of his useful life. There have been very few men who have contributed more by individual effort or by material support to the cause of the gospel than has this aged man of God. May the heavenly Father continue to bless him abundantly until the Master comes.

A letter from R. A. Humphreys, Bear, Ark., reports briefly that a series of meetings conducted by E. O. Stewart which began at Bear September 4 and closed September 9 resulted in four baptisms.

We are glad to welcome into the brotherhood at large the three young people who were recently baptized in Michigan, and pray that their Christian life may be long and fruitful.

"I would rather do without all the other papers we take than to do without The Herald," writes Sr. Allen Johnson of Freedom, Neb. "I can find no fault with it unless that there isn't enough of it." We thank you, Sr. Johnson, in the name of our contributors.

Pastor Harvey U. Krogh, Jr., and his wife visited the office the early part of last week on their way home from their wedding journey to central Illinois. Bro. Krogh preached at Ripley, Ill., during his stop there to a large and attentive audience. Bro. C. E. Lapp, pastor of the church, is doing a splendid work in that rural community.

Please remember "Golden Rule Home Sunday" falls this year on October 7. The Home is in need of a new vacuum cleaner, and we suggest that where it is possible an offering might be taken to help supply this lack. Complete information concerning Golden Rule Home will be gladly provided free by this office to any church, Sunday school, Berean society, or individual who wishes to observe "Golden Rule Home Sunday."

Anyone in doubt of God's willingness to hear and answer prayer on behalf of the sick is invited to write to Pastor A. E. Hoskins, 615 23rd Ave., North, St. Cloud Minn., who says he will be glad to send proof of such gracious responses to human needs, giving the names and addresses of some who have received again the blessing of health in answer to prayer who have come under his own observation.

THE LORD'S COMING

Continued from Page Four

that first great promise of the Bible, recorded in Genesis 3:15.

"And I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed; it shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel."

Here is a promise of the ultimate triumph of the Lord Jesus Christ over the devil and all his works (Rom. 16:20; Heb. 2:14; 1 John 3:8). The God of peace is to bruise Satan under our feet shortly. This will be at His (Christ's) second advent. Satan bruised the heel of Jesus Christ at the crucifixion; Christ is to crush the devil's head at His second coming.

Consider the beautiful promise that the whole creation shall be delivered from the bondage of corruption. The earth is now under a curse. The ban is soon to be lifted, thank God. When is the promise to be realized? The passage in Romans 8:17-25 with the references thereto make it plain that this is to be at the coming of our Lord.

"The creation is on the tiptoe of expectation waiting for the manifestation of the sons of God—the creation itself shall be delivered from the bondage of corruption into the liberty of the glory of the sons of God."

The promise of satisfaction looks forward to the second coming of Christ for its realization. This is not the day of perfect satisfaction. "He that loveth silver shall not be satisfied with silver." "The eye is not satisfied with seeing, nor the ear filled with hearing." Eccl. 1:8; 4:8; 5:10. There is a present satisfaction in Christ, but the time when every desire of the life will be completely satisfied is at the coming of the Lord. Read Psalm 91:16; 17:15.

"With long life (eternal life) will I satisfy him, and shew him my salvation."

"I shall be satisfied, when I awake, with thy likeness."

THE DOCTRINES OF THE BIBLE

The resurrection of the dead in Christ is distinctly referred to the time when "the Lord himself shall descend from heaven," when "the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible" (1 Thess. 4:16; 1 Cor. 15:52). Without the second coming of Christ there never will be a resurrection of the dead in Christ. Apart from the coming of Christ the resurrection is a meaningless doctrine. His coming is the key to the situation. 1 Cor. 15:22, 23.

"For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive. But every man in his own order: Christ the firstfruits; afterward they that are Christ's at his coming."

The translation and transfiguration of the living is to take place when Christ shall come (1 Cor. 15:51, 52; 1 Thess. 4:15). Generally speaking, we agree to the truth of the common saying, "One thing is certain, and that is death." Yet it would be more in keeping with the teaching of the Word to say, Nothing is more uncertain than death. It is absolutely sure that when Christ comes there is to be living upon earth a generation of believers who will never die but be changed and immortalized without passing through death.

Rewards are to be bestowed at the coming of our Lord. A truth that needs to be often repeated is this: We are saved by faith, but rewarded according to our works. Believers are saved without good works of any sort; but saved that they may do good works of every sort. Faith produces works. No loving service, no deed of kindness actuated by the indwelling Christ, will go unrewarded. The one point that we want to note about the doctrine of rewards is that the rewards are to be bestowed at the coming of our Lord. Paul has not received his reward. Abraham has not received his reward. No ransomed soul has yet received his reward. Rewards are given by our Lord at His return. Matt. 16:27; Rev. 22:12.

"For the Son of man shall come in the glory of his Father with his angels; and then he shall reward every man according to his works."

"And, behold, I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to give every man according as his work shall be."

THE EXHORTATIONS OF THE BIBLE

Those who talk about the return of the Lord being an impracticable doctrine make a great mistake. The greatest exhortations of the New Testament hinge upon the second coming of Christ. This is the mighty fulcrum over which the apostles would move the world. For instance, the second coming of Christ is used as a motive to incite us to abide in Christ. There may be an "imitation of Christ" without a Christian life; the Christian abides in Christ as the branch abides in the vine. Let us read 1 John 2:28 and see by what motive we are urged to abide in Christ.

"And now, little children, abide in him; that, when he shall appear, we may have confidence, and not be ashamed before him at his coming."

The great biblical incentive to holiness is the second coming of Christ. It is true that one may preach holiness of life without any reference to our Lord's coming, but to preach the doctrine as the Bible presents it is to preach it in connection with the doctrine of the imminent coming of Christ. His coming is set forth as the great incentive to a holy life (Titus 2:11-14; 2 Peter 3:11-14). We must be living holy lives in order to be ready to meet Him at His coming.

"Seeing then that all these things shall be dissolved, what manner of persons ought ye to be in all holy conversation and godliness, looking for and hasting unto the coming of the day of God?"

We are constantly exhorted to be diligent in service because the coming of the Lord draweth nigh. See Matt. 24:42-51; 25:14-40; 1 Thess. 2:19, 20; 2 Tim. 4:1-5; 1 Peter 5:2-4. He is surely coming. Will He find us faithful in service? He is coming soon. Shall we be idle? Shall we not deny self and continue the work of seeking the lost and bringing them to the Christ who is mighty to save? The season of rescue will soon be o'er. It will be closed when He comes. Listen to His command:

"Occupy till I come."—W. S. Bowden in The Pentecostal Herald; selected by R. A. Curtis.

THE RESTITUTION HERALD

VOLUME 23

OREGON, ILLINOIS, SEPTEMBER 25, 1934

NUMBER 52

HOW MUCH DO YOU BELIEVE?

A Letter to a Friend

DEAR FRIEND: You probably often wonder at our apparent unwillingness to join heartily in your many endeavors for good. Have you, however, given the matter any serious consideration? We are, after all, human like yourself, and naturally desire community of fellowship in our relationship with those around us. Not only so; it is not infrequently the case that our social and financial interests are adversely affected by absenting ourselves from your religious assemblies. These things being so, it must be apparent to you that very cogent reasons underlie our actions. The statement so often made by you that the majority of "good people" differ from us is no proof that the truth lies with the majority. Indeed, anyone at all conversant with Bible incident cannot but be aware of the fact that there the exact opposite obtains all through Bible history. The very names so familiar to us in the sacred record bear ample evidence that minorities, and not majorities, were most generally in line with the truth.

When we find that you exhibit an unaccountable indefiniteness regarding the fundamental truths of God's holy Word, and that you do not consider that it "really matters what a man's belief may be," so long as he is morally good and active in doing good works, we cannot but take issue with you. We feel that a man cannot really believe in the Lord Jesus Christ and at the same time make of little account, and in fact repudiate, the most solemn teachings of our Lord. We are very much inclined to ask, "How much do you believe in Him?" Examination proves it to be very little, a belief that does not go very deep, and for which no reason can be produced, and no proof is forthcoming.

Take for instance your doctrine of the Trinity. Where can you find any sanction in the Bible for such an extraordinary belief? We challenge you to bring forth one single statement of the Lord Jesus that can honestly be quoted in support. You may perhaps quote, as many do, "I and my Father are one"; but two certainly never made a trinity; and if that verse really means what you say (which we deny), then to introduce a third person would unquestionably tend to destroy the oneness named. The plain unequivocal statements of the Lord Jesus were that God was His God, and that He was "come in His Father's name." He Himself asked the question, "How can ye believe, which receive honour one of another, and seek not the honour that cometh from God only?" He always made a distinction between Himself and God, for did He not say, "My doctrine is not Mine, but His that sent Me"? You see at the very outset we find that we do not worship the same God. The doctrine of the Trinity is borrowed from the heathen world. The God of the Bible is one God. Paul said, "To us there is but one God." To you these things are not essential—they do not matter—but we feel them to be vital. We believe the Lord Jesus is the Son of God; He Himself claimed no more, and we cannot harmonize your teaching with either the Bible or common sense. A person cannot be God and the Son of God.

We believe the gospel (or good news) to be a very different matter from what you teach. We believe it is a message from God to mortal, perishing man, who through sin comes under the power of death. We believe with Paul that "death reigns," and that the gospel of Jesus Christ is God's remedy for the misery of sin and the terrible reality of death. We believe death to be the "wages of sin"—its end and its finish—for "sin, when it is finished, bringeth forth death"; "the end of these things is death." We believe in the awful reality of death; hence, we are forced to believe also in the sublime truth of "the resurrection from the dead." You, on the other hand, say "there is no death—there are no dead"; that Christ came to save immortal (never-dying) souls from an eternity of torment. You say all men are immortal, whereas the Bible declares that all men must perish unless they believe on the only begotten Son of God.

When pressed about these things you charge us with having our eyes fixed on the future, and having regard only for that which is to come. But in so doing you close your eyes to facts. Sin and death are ever present with us. It is sin that mars this otherwise beautiful world! It is death that robs us of the fruits of our labors, and tears from us with ruthless hands those (Please turn to Page Nine)

EDITORIAL

The Restitution Herald was entered as second class matter, October 16, 1911, at the Post Office at Oregon, Ill., under act of March, 1879.

G. Eldred Marsh, Editor

Two Dollars per Year

Paul C. Johnson, Associate Editor

"Rejoice in the Lord alway: and again I say, Rejoice. . . . The Lord is at hand."—Phil. 4:4, 5.

THE EDITOR'S PRAYER

MOST gracious heavenly Father, Thou who hast filled our lives with every good thing, both temporal and spiritual, we lift our hearts unto Thee in gratitude and praise. We are deeply conscious that it has only been by signal blessings from Thy hand continually bestowed upon us Thy children that THE RESTITUTION HERALD has been able to carry its weekly messages of good cheer into our many homes. As we approach the beginning of a new year in Thy service we humbly pray that under Thy leadership the paper may continue to merit Thy favor and be used of Thee as a channel of spiritual comfort and of prophetic enlightenment for the upbuilding of Thy people and the advancement of Thy cause among men. To this end we rededicate to Thee this day THE RESTITUTION HERALD and the hearts of those who shape its policy. Amen.

—0—

TWENTY-THREE YEARS OF SERVICE

WITH this issue we bring to a close the twenty-third volume of THE RESTITUTION HERALD. Thus far our little paper has had a long, a vigorous, and, we trust, a useful life. Since its first appearance under the able editorial supervision of Elder S. J. Lindsay nearly a quarter of a century ago it has received the support of the brotherhood at large to a gratifying extent, and has become a beloved member of many of our Church of God families.

In the passage of the years many and great have been the changes that have occurred in the world from a political, economic, and social standpoint. Even the general attitude of mankind toward religion in all its phases seems to have altered radically in the comparatively brief span of the paper's existence. But the basic teaching of our journal remains just what it was at the beginning, and the editorial policy has not been revised. We have had a definite aim before us, that of presenting the gospel of the kingdom of God in simple language, and this aim we have consistently tried to attain.

These facts speak well for the solidity of the foundation upon which THE RESTITUTION HERALD was built in the beginning, and indicate a steadfastness of faith on the part of the church that is most encouraging. May God continue to use these columns as a channel of spiritual blessing and of prophetic enlightenment until the Lord comes.

EDITORIAL CHANGE CONTEMPLATED

IN the opposite column attention is directed to the closing of the present volume of THE RESTITUTION HERALD, and to the significant fact that no vital change in either its editorial policy or its doctrinal standard has been found necessary during the twenty-three years of its publication. Other changes have taken place, however, each of which we believe has resulted in the improvement of the paper. For instance, with the first issue of Volume 16, which came out on October 5, 1926, the form of the paper was changed from eight pages to the present sixteen-page size. This allowed a more effective arrangement of the various departments. Another popular department was added by Sr. Mary A. Gesin, while she was Associate Editor, the short news portion appearing each week under the title: "Between You and Me," and about a year ago "Abreast of the Times," a world news feature, was introduced and has met with general approval.

With the first issue of Volume 24 we are entering upon a change of a more or less experimental nature, the continuance of which will depend upon the approval or disapproval of our readers. Instead of the short editorial articles appearing as they have in the past on a page set apart for that purpose, the Editor purposes for a time to give his attention to the preparation of somewhat more elaborate doctrinal and prophetic studies which will appear in the regular columns of the paper. He will, however, continue his comments on current events under the heading, "Abreast of the Times."

This change in arrangement and method, it is thought, will allow of greater freedom of expression due to the fact that the space heretofore assigned to editorial writings has been limited to a given number of lines.

Another thing that has prompted the change is that experience has shown that for some unknown cause the articles designated Editorials are frequently not read. Newspaper publishers of all kinds know this to be true, and the consequence is that a number of our better magazines and religious contemporaries have already made the change we ourselves are contemplating.

After the new plan has been tried out for a few weeks we shall welcome comments from our readers as to their approval or disapproval of the change. Our one purpose with THE RESTITUTION HERALD is to make it acceptable to God and helpful to our readers.

His Work Before Him

By Norman John MacLeod

FOR centuries the church had forgotten the promise upon which its life had depended formerly: the return of Jesus from heaven. It "spiritualized" the statement of Acts 1:11 that He should "come in like manner" as He had gone into heaven. It had come to believe only that Christ came to each one at death. When the idea of the return of Christ was revived in more recent years, the church became divided quickly into two groups: "millennialists" and "non-millennialists." Happily the latter group is becoming fewer all the time, till the bulk of the church world accepts some form of millennium: just where, and when, and how, and why Christ will reign is not always clear. But now the former group is divided into two groups.

There are those of the millennialists who think that the reign of Christ will be preceded by moral, social, and political "uplift" which will gradually usher in the reign of Christ. Such people are called "post-millennialists" as opposed to "pre-millennialists," because they believe that the millennium will not come until after the world has been brought into subjection to the church. Such an idea has certain implications to be examined.

UPLIFTED POLITICS

First of all, post-millennialism necessitates the reform of the world by men. Men must be brought up to that high level of idea and conduct that will be acceptable to God. Under such conditions many things commonly thought to be the work of the world become the work of the church.

Under the banner of post-millennialism the church becomes a social organization. Not long ago a woman asked us if we thought that the church should be a religious organization! She felt that it should not be, that it was entirely social in its purpose. She thought that religion had no place in the church. And the idea that the world must be "uplifted" accords with that idea nicely. Improving the social and moral tone of mankind is the definite work of the church if such ideals are held. The church should then install its best equipment for taking care of the people socially so that they will not seek entertainment in immoral places. If any care to dance they should be invited into the church to do so; if they play cards, let them do it in the church parlors. That is the implication. And, furthermore, it is the thing that is being done in many large churches. A large church without a gymnasium is one that is behind the times. More attention is given often to the ball games between church teams than to the preaching of the gospel.

"Behold, the Lord hath proclaimed unto the end of the world, Say ye to the daughter of Zion, Behold, thy salvation cometh; behold, his reward is with him, and his work before him."—
Isaiah 62:11.

If we believe that world "uplift" is necessary before the coming of Christ, then politics becomes the business of the church. The church under such a regime must go into politics, and politics must be brought into the church. Within the last few weeks a prominent minister and religious educator resigned his position to enter the race for Congress. He feels that it is his duty to improve the moral tone of that body. If he is elected what will he do? For every minister in Congress trying to right the moral situation, there will be at least a dozen others with no such ideals. They are there to serve the interests of the organizations that elected them: there are in Congress "oil" Congressmen, "lumber" Congressmen, and "sugar" Congressmen. How will he cope with such a situation when he will be definitely in the minority? Not that there is no good in these institutions: these statements are mild in comparison to some of those of authorities on political things. An article in the Harvard Law Review some time ago recommended the abolition of the United States Senate because it had outlived its usefulness; it was merely a hindrance to the cause of good government. The program of the post-millennialists requires that these institutions be purified. The ballot box and the legislature are the means whereby those people think that "everlasting righteousness" is to be brought in. If the work of world reform becomes the work of the church, then the church is failing most miserably.

FABLE OF PEACE

Following from the above another implication is that the coming of the Savior must be many years away, possibly centuries. If world reform must be accomplished there is such a tremendous amount of work to be done that mankind seems to be at a standstill. Everywhere are indications of moral, social, political, economic, and religious reform movements breaking down. Those who thought that prohibition had been accomplished received a setback when the United States went "wet." Everywhere is disorder, distress, and relapse into corruption. The cause of universal peace for which many are working is farther away than ever. Japan has already precipitated what she calls "the crisis of 1935" by refusing to submit to the treaties of the Washington Conference. France and Germany will not disband their armies; Great Britain, the United States, and Japan will not scrap their navies; Russia will not do away with her airplanes. Hence, disarmament falls to the ground. Professor H. A. Gibbons in the foreword to his book, The New Map of Asia (Please turn to Back Page)

The God of the Living

By David L. Norrie, M. A.

EVERY reader of the Gospels must have marveled at the wisdom and power with which Christ replied to the Sadducees, when they disputed with Him about the resurrection of the dead. Acknowledging as they did only the writings of Moses as being binding authority, Christ found in the book of Exodus a proof of the resurrection which was so conclusive that, in the simple words of Scripture, the Sadducees were put to silence, and after that they durst not ask Him any question at all.

The following is Christ's argument: "As touching the dead, that they rise, have ye not read in the book of Moses, in the place concerning the bush, how God spake unto him, saying, I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob? He is not the God of the dead, but of the living: for all live unto him." Matt. 22:31, 32; Mark 12:26, 27; Luke 20:37, 38.

Now these words, "God is not the God of the dead, but of the living," are commonly taken apart from their context to prove that the dead are truly alive, and that in fact "there is no death." For our own part we accept in all its simplicity the scriptural doctrine that "man dieth" (Job 14:10), for "in Adam all die" (1 Cor. 15:22); and hence, we believe literally the statement in Genesis 25:8 that Abraham died.

But here is the difficulty. In the time of Moses, four hundred years after we had supposed Abraham to be dead, God, who is undoubtedly the God only of the living, calls Himself the God of Abraham. This is taken to be a conclusive proof that Abraham was living four hundred years after he was reported to be dead. And that being so, the assurance that all the dead are really alive seems to follow inevitably.

But it is time now for us on our part to put in a difficulty. If no one really dies, what was all the discussion about between Christ and the Sadducees? It certainly had to do with the dead. Christ was not discussing a question about living people; for He began by saying, "But as touching the dead." Neither were the Sadducees wanting information about the living; for the whole discussion started by their saying, "Master, Moses said, If a man die." Now, if no one really dies, why did not Christ nip their error in the bud, and tell them there was no such thing as death? On the contrary, it is evident that both Christ and the Sadducees accepted the fact of death. And that being taken for granted, the only question between them was "touching the RESURRECTION OF the dead."

The Scriptures do not regard death as a transition from one life to another, but as an actual cessation of life. The Bible recognizes two classes, the living and the dead. Solomon distinguishes between them; for he says, "The living know that they shall die: but the dead know not any thing."—Ecl. 9:5. Angels from heaven recognize the distinction, for "Why seek ye the living among the dead?" was the question they put to the women in Luke 24:5. The Apostle Paul also sets off the distinction between the two classes sharply and clearly, when he is writing of what will take place at the coming of the Lord (1 Thess. 4:16-18). He does not say that those living in heaven and those living on earth will then be united. He says, "The dead in Christ shall rise first: then we which are alive . . . shall be caught up together with them . . . to meet the Lord." And lastly Christ Himself emphatically recognizes the contrast when He says of Himself, "I am he that liveth, and was dead."—Rev. 1:18.

Modern religious teachers ignore this distinction, and find room in their theology for only one class—the living. For all are living, they say, either on earth or somewhere else. The following paragraph from the Christian World for August 23, 1900, puts the matter clearly enough:

"The Vicar of Wembley amazed Mr. George William Timms, a parishioner, by threatening to withdraw the 'permit to erect' a tombstone to his father unless the word 'died' were erased. The Vicar wrote: 'I cannot allow a lie to be placed upon a tombstone, however much this fact may have been ignored in the past. I will, however, accept any of the following terms, viz., 'departed this life,' 'passed away,' 'entered into rest.' You will now, I hope, appreciate my objection, and realize how false the word 'died' is in the light of the Christian teaching of immortality.'"

Personally I am not concerned with mere words; for a rose by any other name will smell as sweet; and death, however differently it may be spelled, will still remain the same dreadful reality. Men may abolish the word "death" from their vocabulary, but they cannot abolish the fact of death from their experience. Births they may prevent; marriages they may forbid; but until the Lord comes the registration of deaths will go on. Thank God for the hope of a time when "death shall be no more" (Rev. 21:4, R. V.). But meantime death reigns; and that being so, we prefer to keep to the words of the Lord, which are "pure words: as silver tried in a furnace of earth, purified seven times" (Psalm 12:6). The words "die," "death," "dead," etc., occur in the Bible about twelve hundred times; and it is a noteworthy fact that the doctrine of the vicar just referred to can be expressed, not in the language of God, whose words are true, but in the language of him who was the first "liar," and "abode not in the truth" (John 8:44); for it was Satan who first said, "Ye shall not surely die" (Gen. 3:4). Satan's doctrine, however, as events proved, was in word only, not in power. For the fact is put on record that Adam died (Gen. 5:5). And the same Word also states that death passed upon all men (Rom. 5:12). And however men may seek to conceal or ignore the fact, it is still "appointed unto men once to die" (Heb. 9:27).

Now, as far back as the days of Job the question was asked, "If a man die, shall he live again?"—Job 14:14. And this was the real subject of controversy between Christ and the Sadducees. In itself the question, being a scriptural one, is also a natural and reasonable one. But the modern question, "If a man die, is he really dead?" is absolutely foolish in the light of Scripture. Vain philosophy speaks about the survival, that is, the living on, of the soul, in death. The apostles preached "Jesus, and the resurrection" (Acts 17:18; 4:2). When Paul, by request of the Epicurean and the Stoic philosophers, made a public statement of his doctrine on Mars' Hill they listened patiently for awhile. But "when they heard of the resurrection of the dead, some mocked" (Acts 17:32). If he had reasoned in favor of the immortality of the soul they might have admired his intellectual gifts and ranked him with Plato himself. But he spoke of the resurrection of the dead, a doctrine both foolish and incredible to the world's philosophy. And so they mocked the great Apostle, and called him a "babbling." For as the Jews required a sign, so the Greeks sought after wisdom. And as it was then, so it is today.

If we on our part emphasize the doctrine of the resurrection, it is simply because the Scriptures emphasize it as being absolutely indispensable if the dead are ever to live again. It is an integral part of the gospel that "Christ rose again" (see 1 Cor. 15:1-4). And if we compare these two passages—"Jesus died and rose again" (1 Thess. 4:14); "Christ died and lived again" (Rom. 14:9, R. V.), we are inevitably forced to the conclusion that He lived again when He rose again. In His case therefore we have a practical answer to the question, "If a man die, shall he live again?" The answer is, "Yes"; and if the question be put next, "When shall he live again?" the answer is, "At the resurrection." No wonder then that Paul says, "If there be no resurrection of the dead, then . . . they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished."—1 Cor. 15:13-18. But popular teaching today, as it ignores death, ignores also, as an inevitable result, this fundamental doctrine of the resurrection of the dead, because it sees no necessity for it. They sing in the churches:

"There is a happy land far, far away,
Where saints in glory stand."

But these saints are in reality still lying in their graves, not standing in heaven. The word "resurrection" in the original means a "standing up again," and if the dead saints are standing now, what need of a future standing up again? If they are standing they must have feet; if they are singing they must have lips and mouths; if they are beholding the King they must have eyes. In fact they must have a new and glorified body already. What then is the use of a future resurrection? Well might Tyndale the Reformer write: "In putting departed souls in heaven, hell, and purgatory, you destroy the arguments wherewith Christ and Paul prove the resurrection. . . . If the souls be in heaven, tell me why they be not in as good case as the angels be? And then what cause (need) is there of the resurrection?"

I have dwelt on this at some length in order to prepare the way for a proper understanding of Christ's answer to the Sadducees.

The question was—Is there to be a resurrection? The Sadducees said, "No," and they thought to ridicule the doctrine by a fanciful tale about a woman who had seven husbands. Now Christ proves that the dead must be raised by taking three actual cases of dead men, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. He is not going to prove that they are living, for they were admittedly dead. If they were actually living, it would be no use whatever to take them for the purpose of discussion. For the question was not about living people, but about dead people. If Abraham was alive where was he? Why did he not put in an appearance, and stop this useless discussion which was proceeding on the assumption that he was dead? Why did not some one cry out, "Abraham is living, and does not need a resurrection from the dead?" How the whole crowd would have jeered had anyone dared to suggest that Abraham was not dead. Why, he had been dead nearly two thousand years. The Scriptures had chronicled the fact that Abraham died (Gen. 25:8). Without a thought of any possible contradiction the Jews had accepted the fact, and had already on one occasion said to Christ, "Abraham is dead, . . . and the prophets are dead."—John 8:52, 53. Yes, Abraham was most certainly dead, and I repeat again that the only question before Christ and the Sadducees was this—Will Abraham ever be raised from the dead? In other words, will he ever live again?

The Sadducees saw the point of Christ's argument at once, and were convinced by it that the dead must be raised. But most modern readers, being unfortunately blinded by preconceived ideas, draw an entirely different conclusion from Christ's argument. According to them Christ proves that the dead are really alive. But such an admission by Christ, so far from silencing the Sadducees, would have delighted them beyond measure; for they would have triumphantly retorted, "Well then, if there are no people really dead, there cannot be such a thing as a resurrection of the dead." The fact is, however, that the Sadducees were convinced of the necessity of resurrection; and we, too, if we would read the passage aright, must keep in mind that we are expecting to find in it a proof of this one thing, that the dead shall be raised.

Christ does not use many words; but the argument is simply overwhelming in its power. And this is the argument:

When God spoke to Moses, He called Himself the God of Abraham.

And this simple statement Christ takes to be a sufficient proof that Abraham shall be raised from the dead.

Abraham we know has been dead now for about four thousand years. We know further that the dead will remain dead till the resurrection of the dead. And if there should be no resurrection of the dead, we have Paul's authority for saying that in that case Abraham is perished. But if Abraham is forever perished, how could God call Himself Abraham's God? It is evident that God must raise Abraham from the dead in order to make good His word.

God has decreed that Abraham shall rise. He sees the end from the beginning, and "he calleth those things which be not as though they were" (Rom. 4:17), when He has determined that they shall be. And if, therefore, He speaks of Abraham as living, even when Abraham is dead, it must be because He has determined that Abraham shall rise again from the dead.

Two scriptural illustrations are all that are needed to confirm this exposition. To Abraham himself God once said, "A father of many nations have I made thee."—Gen.

17:5. We are justified in understanding this to mean, "I have purposed to make thee, and will yet make thee, a father of many nations."

Again, "Unto thy seed have I given this land."—Gen. 15:18. This undoubtedly means, "I have purposed to give, and will most surely give, this land unto thy seed."

Now the brief statement which God made to Moses at the bush may be amplified as follows: "I am the God of the living; and therefore I am Abraham's God; for I have raised Abraham to life again." And the only possible meaning, according to the exposition of Christ Himself, is—"I have purposed to raise Abraham from the dead and make him live again, and I will surely do so."

Thus the grand result of Christ's argument with the Sadducees is to magnify the Word of God. "Hath he said, and shall he not do it? or hath he spoken, and shall he not make it good?"—Num. 23:19.

THE REASONS WHY

"GOOD evening, Peter," said John Almen, greeting his friend on the doorstep of his home. "I've been looking forward to your call tonight with a great deal of interest. You see, I have never really studied the Bible before, and now with the help of the little folders you have provided as guides I am becoming more interested in the Scriptures than I ever dreamed would be the case."

"I am glad to know that," responded Mr. Everready, accepting the chair his friend offered. "I, too, have anticipated this hour of study with you with much pleasure. It isn't often," he continued, "that I find a man that is anxious to search the Scriptures, as did the noble Bereans of Paul's day, that he may test his religious ideas by the infallible Word of God."

"Well," said Mr. Almen, "I believe we left off our conversation last week with the question of the saints going to heaven at death not completely settled, did we not? Have you anything further to offer on that subject?"

"Yes, John," his friend answered, "I have here another little tract issued by the National Bible Institution of Oregon, Illinois, which I believe answers that question very satisfactorily, although exceedingly briefly. The tract is simply headed, The Reasons Why. Here is a copy for you to look over."

Taking the two-page leaflet, Mr. Almen read its opening sentence aloud: "The reasons why we should believe that the righteous receive their reward on the earth at the resurrection of the just rather than in heaven at death, are . . ."

He paused in his reading as though surprised at the next statement on which his eyes fell.

"Why," he said in great astonishment, "it says here that 'no man hath ascended up to heaven' except Christ!

Can that be true, Peter?"

"Perhaps we had better turn to the third chapter of John's Gospel—that is the chapter, you know, that contains the 'Golden Text of the Bible,' beginning, 'For God so loved the world.' We will read the thirteenth verse of that chapter carefully."

Mr. Almen opened to the passage cited and slowly read: "And no man hath ascended up to heaven, but he that came down from heaven, even the Son of man which is in heaven."

He glanced up from the book with amazement. "Peter," he cried, "I never knew that verse was in the Bible, and I've read the next three verses hundreds of times, no doubt, since childhood! How could I have overlooked so plain a statement as that for all these years? I don't understand it!"

"We will read this little outline through to the end; it won't take long," said Mr. Everready.

Slowly the two friends followed the twelve reasons suggested in the tiny sheet as to why one should believe that the righteous do not go to heaven at death, but rather are to receive their reward on the earth when Jesus comes. When they had finished the reading and traced out the references given, Mr. Almen looked at Peter Everready with increased perplexity and exclaimed:

"I am greatly amazed, Peter, I am really astonished at my blindness to these plain truths! Why did I not see them before? They were all here in the Bible waiting for me to read them, yet I would have missed every one of them if you had not given me this splendid little tract. How glad I am that you brought it to me. Now I, too, will wait for God's Son from heaven (1 Thess. 1:10), rather than vainly expecting to meet Him in heaven when I die!"

What We Believe

WE believe in one God, Creator of all things; and in Jesus Christ His only begotten Son, who came into the world "to seek and to save that which was lost"; and in that Holy Spirit, that divine Agent employed by the Father and the Son in the regeneration, sanctification, and guidance of all believers; and in the Bible, as an inspired revelation from God, reasonable and reliable in all of its practical, doctrinal, and prophetic utterances. We believe that in the Bible are to be found clear and conclusive statements of all the necessary facts of human redemption, and that when these facts are arranged in consecutive order they warrant the following conclusions:

1. That man was created a mortal and moral being; that he was placed under divine law for the development of character; that he disobeyed, became a transgressor of the law, and thereby forfeited his right to immortality and to moral perfection. Man was created in the "image of God" (Gen. 1:26, 27); of the "dust of the ground" (Gen. 2:7). Because of Adam's disobedience he (and his posterity) was placed under the sentence of death, and driven from the garden and denied the right to the "tree of life," continued access to which would have made him an immortal sinner. See Genesis 3:22-24.

2. That the penalty of sin is death, and that the probable reason for the delay of Adam's and Eve's execution is explained in their slain animal substitutes. Thus the race would be perpetuated, and man's deliverance from sin and death provided for by the Lord. In this provision may be seen the hope that eternal life and moral excellence of character would be offered to mankind through the mercy and grace of God (Gen. 3:15; Titus 1:2).

3. About four hundred years after the last prophets of Israel and Judah had recorded their predictions of a coming Redeemer, Jesus was born into our world as man's Savior, Priest, and coming King. See Matt. 1:21; 2:2; Heb. 5:5-10; Luke 1:31-33.

4. That the public ministry of Jesus was marked by the highest standard of moral conduct, and that His teaching and preaching have since then become supreme in matters of faith and ethics among His true followers. See Heb. 7:26, 27; Matt. 28:20; 1 Peter 2:21, 22.

5. That the purpose of Christ's death on the cross was to make an all-sufficient and permanent atonement for sin. This final settlement of the sin question opened the way for lost men to seek and find pardon of sins, and also to be admitted as children into the family of God. See Matt. 26:28; Heb. 10:12; Eph. 2:19.

In order that we may understand them better, and perhaps appreciate them more, we are publishing this article from the Present Truth Messenger, which gives a comprehensive statement of Advent Christian teachings. The difference between the Advent Christians and our own body is observed more in the omissions we notice than in their declarations of faith, no mention being made of the return of Israel and Christ's rulership over living mortal nations after His return.—Editor.

6. As a memorial of Christ's conclusive atonement on the cross, we observe the sacrament of the Lord's Supper. We also believe in the ordinance of baptism, and administer the same to penitent believers, by immersion only. See Matt. 26:20-30; Rom. 6:3-6.

As a day of rest and worship, we observe the first day of the week, because we believe it to be a fitting memorial of Christ's victory over death and the grave, and that it is the "Lord's day" of the new covenant. See Acts 20:7; Mark 16:2-6; Rev. 1:10.

7. That the literal resurrection of Christ from the dead is God's pledge to His people that death is to be eliminated by resurrection life, and that immortality is inseparably associated with the destruction of death and the grave. See 1 Cor. 15:26, 53-55; Hosea 13:14; John 5:28, 29. The living and the dead are to be judged by Christ at "his appearing and his kingdom" (2 Tim. 4:1; Acts 17:31).

8. That in the experience of death all consciousness ceases, and that it shall remain so, until the voice of Christ breaks that silence at His second coming. The grave is nature's quiet resting place for the dead, the little house where the weary pilgrim must tarry for a night, that his flesh may rest in hope of that brighter and better day when he shall be transformed in a moment, and then translated into the everlasting kingdom of Jesus Christ. See Job 14:10-15; 19:25-27; Eccl. 9:5, 6; John 11:11-15; 1 Thess. 4:13, 17.

9. That immortality is not native to man, but that it may be sought and obtained as the free gift of God through Jesus Christ our Lord. Nowhere in the Scriptures is it affirmed that the human soul is immortal or indestructible; but on the contrary, it is stated that the soul can die, perish, be destroyed. "The soul that sinneth, it shall die"; "fear him which is able to destroy both soul and body in hell."—Ezek. 18:4; Matt. 10:28. John, who thought and wrote clearly on the subject of eternal life, gives us his conclusions in these words: "And this is the record, that God hath given to us eternal life, and this life is in his Son. He that hath the Son hath life; and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life."—1 John 5:11, 12. See Romans 2:7.

10. That Christ will return to this world visibly, personally, and gloriously. That the work to be accomplished at His second advent is not to be done by an angel, or by the Holy Spirit, or by organized Christianity, but by Christ Himself. His promise reads: "I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also"; and His declaration is: "Hereafter shall ye see the Son of man sitting on the right hand of power, and coming in the clouds of heaven" (John 14:3; Matt. 26:64). "The Lord himself shall descend from heaven."—1 Thess. 4:16.

11. That the earth is to be delivered from its bondage, and freed from its age-long burden of sin; after which it shall become the final and everlasting abode of the redeemed of all nations. See Isa. 65:17; 2 Peter 3:13; Rev.

21:1; Dan. 7:27; Matt. 5:5; Rom. 4:13.

12. That almost all of the signs which are recorded in the Scriptures as warning signals of the approaching advent of Christ have already appeared; therefore, we believe that the "kingdoms of this world" are soon to become the "kingdoms of . . . Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever." See Matt. 24:37-39; Luke 21:25-27; 2 Thess. 2:1-4; James 5:1-8; 2 Tim. 3:1-5; Dan. 2:44; 7:27; Rev. 11:15.—L. D. Buro.

"HEAR YE HIM"

THE importance of taking heed to the language of inspiration in reference to our duty in these last days brings to our minds the words of Moses when speaking of Christ, "And it shall come to pass, that every soul, which will not hear that prophet, shall be destroyed from among the people."—Acts 3:23. Those who are engaged in warning the world of the coming of Christ and the end of the present age are aware that the idea is prevalent among a large class of the people that it makes no difference about taking heed to the warning given us in regard to a preparation for that greatest of all events—the coming of Christ. Thousands of people at the present time who feel that Christ is their Savior and Redeemer turn with scorn and almost contempt from him who may dare to tell them the signs of the times proclaim His coming very near. Should these few lines meet the eye of any such, Oh! let me beseech them to give this subject as careful a study as they hope for the gift of eternal life at the coming of our Savior. The language of that Prophet speaks to us today in words of warning, and bids us watch and pray always, that we "may be accounted worthy to escape all these things that shall come to pass, and to stand before the Son of man."

The New Testament Scriptures abound with words of warning and counsel to those living in the time of the end. The Apostle Paul, writing to the Thessalonian church, says: "But ye, brethren, are not in darkness that that day should overtake you as a thief. Ye are all the children of the . . . day: we are not of the night, nor of darkness. Therefore let us not sleep, as do others; but let us watch and be sober."—1 Thess. 5:4-6. What a beautiful exhortation to watchfulness the Apostle here gives us! While we here learn our duty as we approach the end, we also learn that there will be some who will not watch, notwithstanding the most earnest appeals are made to them to heed the warning cry, "Behold, the bridegroom cometh; go ye out to meet him." This warning cry is now being given; the trumpet has uttered its sound of alarm through the hills and valleys of the earth.

Many professors of religion try to console themselves with the idea that it is unnecessary to trouble themselves about the coming of Christ, and, as a consequence, refuse to try to learn anything that the Scriptures teach in reference to His coming. If this be true, many of the most solemn warnings ever given to man become as idle words. I will quote the words of our Savior to prove that there is a great difference between those who watch and love His appearing and those who do not. "Blessed are those servants whom the lord when he cometh shall find watching: verily I say unto you, that he shall gird himself, and make them to sit down to meat, and will come forth and serve them. . . . But and if that servant say in his heart, My lord delayeth his coming (as many are saying now); and shall begin to beat the menservants and the maidens, and to eat and drink, and to be drunken; the lord of that servant will come in a day when he looketh not for him, and at an hour when he is not aware, and will cut him in sunder, and will appoint him his portion with the unbelievers."—Luke 12:37, 45, 46. Here we have the unmistakable words of the Son of God that there is a great difference between those who watch and those who do not. Upon the mountain of transfiguration the voice of God was heard, saying, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased; hear ye him."—Matt. 17:5. Will we today obey this command of God and harken unto His Son, the prophet of whom Moses spake? Oh, let us all give more earnest heed to these things, become more watchful, more prayerful, and more determined to harken unto the words of our Savior in regard to our duty than heretofore!

Every age has had its message from God that was applicable to its people. "God, who at sundry times and in divers manners spake in time past unto the fathers by the prophets, hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son, whom he hath appointed heir of all things."—Heb. 1:1, 2. I believe that we will be held responsible for the manner in which we receive or treat present truth, meat in due season. Vain will be our efforts to gain an inheritance in the coming kingdom of glory if we set at naught the words our Savior designed especially for the last generation of men in the present age. Jesus Christ, being the resurrection and the life, by whom and through whom we hope to gain an abundant entrance into the everlasting kingdom, has not left us in darkness in regard to our duty.

in these last days. For many centuries the student of prophecy might know almost His exact position in the world's history, and His nearness to the great and terrible day of the Lord. The rise and fall of mighty empires in exact accordance with the decrees of heaven has ever been a faithful chart to God's people, even as a light shining in a dark place until the day dawn and the Day Star arise. God will bless those who obey Him. "And shewing mercy unto thousands of them that love me, and keep my commandments."—Ex. 20:6.

In these times, when the signs of the coming of our great Life-Giver are greatly increasing around us, when the wheat and the tares are fast ripening for the great harvest of the earth, it is especially important that we give most earnest heed to these things. After having given us many signs whereby we might know that the kingdom of God is nigh at hand, our Savior, ever mindful of His followers, gives this timely advice: "And take heed to yourselves, lest at any time your hearts be overcharged with surfeiting, and drunkenness, and cares of this life, and so that day come upon you unawares. For as a snare shall it come on all them that dwell on the face of the whole earth."—Luke 21:34, 35.

Again He says: "Watch!" Shall we understand our Savior to mean that we should watch for His coming when we can, as some tell us, know nothing about it? Perish the thought. This scripture is designed for those who are waiting in this earthly tabernacle for the chief Shepherd to appear, that they may receive a crown of righteousness that fadeth not away. The Scriptures of truth abound with words of counsel and comfort to those who have gone forth to meet the Bridegroom. While iniquity abounds on every side, the love of many is growing cold; while temptations are besetting us on every hand to draw us away from our duty as that day rapidly approaches, our Savior again enjoins us to "watch ye therefore, and pray always, that ye may be accounted worthy to escape all these things that shall come to pass, and to stand before the Son of man."

Brethren, believing as we do that the day of His coming hasteth greatly, let us ever be willing to harken unto the Prophet in reference to our present duty, lest in the great day of His coming we be destroyed from among the people.—H. R. Perine in The Bible Advocate.

HOW MUCH DO YOU BELIEVE?

Continued from Front Page

we love most. By your tradition you make void the sayings of Christ, and put yourselves outside of many of His most precious promises. Listen: "But they which shall be accounted worthy to obtain that world (you see Christ thought a good deal of the future, and you will find the future looms largely in the sacred writings), and the resurrection from the dead (note that), neither marry, nor are given in marriage: neither can they die any more . . .

being the children of the resurrection." If "there are no dead" there can be no "resurrection from the dead"; and this teaching of Christ does not apply in your case. By your own confession you do not (in this) believe in the Lord Jesus Christ.

So small is your belief in the Lord Jesus Christ, and so little do you regard His example and precept, that you designate as non-essential the confession of faith by baptism. Surely actions speak louder than words, and we feel compelled to ask once more, "How much do you believe on the Lord Jesus Christ?" Paul says, "Buried with him by baptism," yet you affirm, "Sprinkling will do"; nor does it matter according to your way of thinking whether the Lord's command is honored or not! We look for a new heaven and a new earth wherein dwelleth righteousness, and we pray daily that God's kingdom may come, and His will be done on earth even as it is done in heaven. We thank God for all the blessings we have now, and bless Him for the promise that we shall reign with Christ on the earth; we can therefore see some consistency in the training which we are each undergoing that we may take part in the "wonders of the age to come" and the glories that God has in store, of which we are now getting the earnest; for where sin abounded grace shall much more abound, and the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord as the waters cover the sea.

How different — how very different — are your hopes from ours! We look forward to the time when death, "the last enemy," shall be destroyed. You deny the reality of death. Death is no enemy to you, for it does not exist, and it cannot therefore be "the wages of sin." By so believing you make void the Word of God; you shut yourselves out of the wondrous plan of salvation and, yes, and you make God a liar. Oh, how awful the thought! Paul must have felt the awfulness of it, for he said, "Let God be true, and every man a liar." With you sin and evil are never eliminated from the universe of God: sin is never conquered, but men, women, and children must suffer indescribable horrors to untold ages.

We might continue much longer pointing out how totally at variance are your views with plain Bible statement, and how you do not hesitate to use the very language of Scripture in denying its most positive assertions. Again, we cannot refrain from asking, "How much do you believe on the Lord Jesus Christ?" For reply you say, "Better men than you hold the views to which you so strongly object." Truly so. Cornelius, in some respects, is a splendid case in point; yet a message was required to be sent that he might hear words whereby he "might be saved," even though he was "a devout man, and prayed to God always." The church today would have made him a member without a question, and would probably have drawn preferential comparisons between him and St. Paul, who so frequently "contended earnestly" in the synagogues and market places, and turned the world upside down.

Yours faithfully,

R. H. Judd.

Abreast of the Times

"Murder Will Out!"

"Be sure your sin will find you out."—Num. 32:23.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—As we go to press the solution of the infamous Lindbergh baby kidnaping and murder case appears to be at last achieved. Numerous arrests have been made, an outstanding one among them being that of Bernard Richard Hauptmann, a German who is said to have entered the country illegally some years ago. More than $13,000 of the ransom money, the bills of which had been recorded by number before delivery, was found buried under the floor and hidden in a window ledge of this man's garage in the rear of his home in this city.

After two and a half years of continuous endeavor, during which time they suffered many disappointments, the combined police forces of New Jersey and New York, aided and advised by United States Department of Justice operatives, seem now to have completed their difficult task.

What a lesson this provides for those who contemplate engaging in a life of crime! Even if a criminal escapes immediate punishment for his wrongdoing, or should he never be apprehended, he lives in a constant state of dread, with fear dogging his footsteps, and danger lurking at every turn in the road! No! Crime does not pay!

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 20.—A tiny blood-stained handkerchief, bearing the initial "D," a small hairpin, and dark stains upon the pavement of a street at the edge of the city told the mute story of the kidnaping or murder of little six-year-old Dorothy Distelhurst, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Distelhurst, who disappeared yesterday afternoon while on her way home from school. The One who so tenderly said, "Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not," will not only avenge these little ones, but when He comes He will remove the dangers that threaten today, and make their paths straight and safe, "for the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea" (Isa. 11:6-9).

Nazis Abolish Free Religion

"Ye worship ye know not what: we know what we worship: for salvation is of the Jews."—John 4:22.

BERLIN, Germany, Sept. 19.—The Nazis today confirmed the fears of their opponents that they are determined to dominate not only the political and social life of Germany, but its religious life as well, when a statement was made by Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller in an address at the Hannover City Hall to the effect that the Government has decided to strenuously oppose any attempt on the part of the dissatisfied pastors to set up independent churches. He declared that the pastors will be expected to become Nazis or resign.

"Everyone should be forced into the Nazi ranks, even though he does not quite understand National Socialism," the Reichsbishop said. "And the same should be demanded of the pastors. If they are not able to live up to this, then they should go."

According to special dispatches to The Chicago Tribune, the decision to oppose formation of free churches similar to those in the United States was made at the recent party congress at Nuremberg, the Bavarian Minister of the Interior revealed. The Department of the Interior is preparing laws which will prohibit resignations from church membership during the next three years. Such action will, of course, keep the Government's religious opposers under the immediate control of the State church for that period.

To further intensify the situation, it is reported from Wurttemberg that 90 per cent of that district's clergy have notified Dr. August Jaeger, Nazi Commissioner for Protestant Churches in Prussia, that they will disregard his instructions not to recognize Teophil Wurm, Mueller opponent, as their bishop. Bishop Wurm was suspended last week.

Hinting at even more high-handed methods to be invoked to put down religious rebellion in the country, Reichsbishop Mueller warned his hearers that "if the church is not able to swing into line, thus creating unrest, then it is up to the State to see that unrest is quelled."

It will be a bitter pill for the German leaders to swallow in the future when they will be compelled to acknowledge that not only spiritual but political "salvation is of the Jews"!

The Constitution

"Tell me, art thou a Roman? He said, Yea."—Acts 22:27.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 17.—The Constitution of the United States celebrated its 147th anniversary today, in the midst of great political reverberations. The original document reposes in the Library of Congress, but thousands of copies were withdrawn from their dusty hiding places and brought to the attention of the public.

The Christian in this country has much more cause to rejoice in his American citizenship than did Paul in the fact that he was a Roman. "The Bill of Rights," which constitutes the first ten amendments to the Constitution, in itself gives the follower of the Lord several reasons for thanking God that he lives under the protection of the Stars and Stripes; and his constant enjoyment of religious liberty, which so many people in these days do not possess, should prompt him, in harmony with Paul's admonition, to make "supplications, prayers, intercessions, and giving of thanks, . . . for all that are in authority" (1 Tim. 2:1-3).

Berean Department

ARLEN MARSH, EDITOR

"I Do Not Think ——"

"I do not think about tithing as many do. It really makes me tired to hear them fuss so about giving a tenth.

"As I see it, they are giving nothing when they turn over a tenth to the Lord—that is His. They are giving when they add to the tenth (the good measure of Luke 6) that which is added when it is pressed down, shaken together, and running over: that is the Christian's part, as the Lord has prospered."

A note like this accompanied a recent donation to the church. The donation itself was considerably over the tithe of the donor's income, and the income had been for something more than a year less than fifty per cent of what it normally had been.

It is an empty plea made by those wishing to salve their own irritated consciences that the tithe was required by the Mosaic law and is, consequently, not binding upon the Christian. For the tithe came into being centuries, uncounted centuries, before Moses led Israel out of Egypt. Even the half-savage tribes of the Mesopotamian deserts clung to the idea that their gods of stone and wood were worth at least one tenth of their individual incomes—an idea which modern Christians are unwilling to consider in regard to their, the only true God.

Something over four hundred years before the Mosaic law found place on the statute books of Israel Abraham gave tithes to God through Melchizedek the priest. So the returning of a tenth of one's income to God as His rightful property can hardly be said to have had its origin in the code laid down by Moses under divine direction.

The tenth belongs to God. It no more is man's property than the houses that he rents, the street cars that he rides, the stars above his head. The tenth belongs to God.

The question asked by God through Malachi did not infer the tithe paid by Israel was a gift. "Will a man rob God? Yet ye have robbed me. But ye say, Wherein have we robbed thee? In tithes and offerings." Robbery is not committed by the withholding of a gift. Robbery is committed by the taking of something that rightfully is the possession of another.

Jesus' dictum was, "Give, and it shall be given unto you; good measure, pressed down, and shaken together, and running over, shall men give into your bosom. For with the same measure that ye mete withal it shall be measured to you again."

The Christ did not here say that tithing entitled one to laud himself to God and men. The Christ taught precisely what God had taught through Malachi four centuries before: "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it." God gave no excuse for self-praise by the Israelites when they did return their tithes to Him; God remarked merely on the blessings, material and spiritual, that would accrue to them when the tithes were paid.

Jehovah is worthy of an incalculable amount. Jehovah receives an infinitesimal amount. He requires but one cent of every dime, and the Christians who owe their lives to Him and praise themselves for being righteous are unwilling to grant Him even that. It will be a sorrowful day for the majority of church members if God fulfills His promise—as He will—and gives to every self-styled Christian the reward for which that man has paid.

"Ye have wearied the Lord with your words." The making of excuses for not paying to the church that which is its due is no less wearisome to God than the making of excuses for adultery, idolatry, and murder. Robbing Jehovah of the tenth that He ever has claimed is as evil as robbing men of their silverware and money.

No man can give to God. Nothing in the universe does not already belong to God. Men are too much inclined to deify themselves and to lay claim to the creation which they have had no hand in making. Men can return to God a portion of what God has given them, but they can do no more. And they refuse to give a tenth, displaying by their action their true conception of how much God is worth.

"Ye have said, It is vain to serve God: and what profit is it that we have kept his ordinance, and that we have walked mournfully before the Lord of hosts?" Such is the excuse of the non-tither. There is, he says, no requirement to tithe, and there is no profit in tithing; and he mourns in all truth at the thought of seeing one dollar out of every ten he makes go into the treasury of God.

If, as the Messiah said, "every tree is known by his own fruit," the Christians who prove themselves to hold God in high reverence are few indeed. Service by word is easy; but service by action is hard. Men are the stewards, the watchmen, the administrators of God's estate; and their service to Him will be the basis upon which they are judged. Christianity is expensive, financially and otherwise; but its rewards are fully commensurate with its expense.

"We had 50 at Berean two weeks ago and 55 last Wednesday night. More adults are becoming interested." This is the latest report from the Secretary of the Marshall, Illinois, Berean Society, organized in the spring of the present year. Their attendance is constantly increasing, generally being well above the actual enrollment. Meetings are held in a country church reached by dirt roads.

THE CHILDREN'S PAGE

PREPARED BY MARY A. GESIN

"This is my commandment, That ye love one another, as I have loved you."

YOUR VERY BEST FRIEND

WITH the first Sunday in October our Sunday school lessons begin a new series, a study of the Christian and his way of living. Though it seems to be rather removed from the study of the Israelites, which we have just completed, yet there is not such a great difference as appears at first glance.

You know Paul, the Apostle, says that all these things happened to them for examples to us. So what we have learned about the Israelites will not be merely so much history. But if we are wise, we will learn from their mistakes and profit from their right doings.

The very first lesson uses a rather long word for some of us younger boys and girls to understand—the word "fellowship." Let's see if we can make it plain. You know, we understand the meaning of the things of God, or the spiritual things, as the older ones call them, by comparing them with the things about us, or the natural things. Fellowship—what is it?

This past month I had the happy opportunity of visiting the largest Sunday school of all of our churches. It was at Grand Rapids, Michigan. Well, of course, you know that in a large school like that there would be very many whom I would not know and who would not know me. But did I feel like a stranger? Why, no, not at all! I felt just like one of them after I had been there a couple of weeks.

We were all worshipping the same God, endeavoring to follow the same Savior, studying the same Bible, and trying to do our little part to tell others about God's love. They took me in as one of them. Well, that's fellowship!

Now, fellowship with Christ is something like that, only of course a little more difficult to understand, because we can't actually see Christ at our side helping us the way He really does.

We can see our friends, and we know they are ready to help us whenever we need them. They stand by us; they share our joys; they lessen our sorrows. Jesus our Savior does all of that and more for us if we will only let Him.

When some one we admire very much chooses us for his best friend, how proud and happy we are! Jesus says, "Ye have not chosen me, but I have chosen you." How fine to be chosen by Him to be His friend! He then becomes our very best Friend. Thus we have "fellowship" with Him.

Your best friend in this world is the one you tell your inmost secrets to, the one on whom you depend the most, the one you would like to imitate in everything. Jesus, as your very best Friend, comes even closer than that. For He never fails; He has all the power and love and goodness of God. And whom could we choose that would be finer to imitate?

You know how quickly we grow to be like those with whom we associate. We get so accustomed to their way of doing things that soon we are doing things just the way they do. How careful, then, we should be to choose those who will inspire us to better things, who will cause us to desire to do our best always, whose example it will be well for us to copy.

And Jesus is just the one for us to choose in that respect, too. In His life He set for us the perfect example, and He left instructions in His Book so that we can follow Him. As we go on in our quarter's study we will learn more and more about Him and His way of doing things. Then perhaps we will find closer fellowship with Him than we now enjoy.

There are twelve letters in the words "the Christian." All of you girls and boys who read this page and would like to do so, choose a Bible verse to represent each letter. Thus, for this lesson take the letter T and pick out a verse beginning with that letter which gives the thought of the lesson of fellowship or friendship with Christ. Arrange these verses as artistically as you like, doing one each week. At the end of lesson twelve—well, we'll tell you that later.

And now another thing I want to tell you about that Sunday school I visited. The second Sunday I was there was the last Sunday of vacation. And though there were over one hundred present, there were one hundred less present than usual, because so many weren't home from their trips. Why, most of us wouldn't have anyone present at that figure; in fact, we'd be minus. The next Sunday there were one hundred fifty more. Many of the scholars, their pastor told me, had brought their fathers and mothers into the church. A little child often leads us older ones.

It was nice, though, to get back to my own school and class at Oregon. And so whether we belong to a large Sunday school, or a small one, or one just in our own home, we have the same God who loves us, the same Jesus for our very best Friend, the same Bible to study and obey. And that again is "fellowship."

The Sunday School Lesson

FROM TRUTH SEEKERS' QUARTERLY

LESSON 1.—October 7, 1934

FELLOWSHIP WITH CHRIST

John 15

Devotional Reading: Matthew 4:18-25

GOLDEN TEXT

Abide in me, and I in you. As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine; no more can ye, except ye abide in me.—John 15:4.

A STUDY OF THE SUBJECT

Topic: Fellowship With Christ.

Aim: Real friendship with Christ may be enjoyed by those who love and obey Him.

Basic Truth: "That they all may be one; as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us."—John 17:21.

I. The Vine, the Branches, and the Husbandman. (Vv. 1-8.) Three elements enter into this lesson: the vine, the branches, and the husbandman. The fruitage of the vine and branches depends first upon the care over them by the husbandman, God. Jesus, the vine, always acknowledged that without God He could do nothing, that God was the source of all His power. Nor could Jesus, the vine, bear fruit without the branches, His disciples, or "friends," who labor intelligently in harmony with Him. Nor, in turn, can the branches produce fruitage of themselves. They must remain attached to the vine, for it is from Christ that they derive their entire strength. A fruitless branch hinders the development of other branches, and for their sakes must be cut off.

II. The Proof of Love. (Vv. 9-13.) In this sermon Jesus is addressing human beings and He speaks in terms that they can understand. He declares that the greatest proof of human love is for a man to "lay down his life for his friends." He does not mention here the evidence of the greater love which He is about to exemplify by laying down His life for His enemies! That sort of love is divine and exceeds the ability of the natural man to experience. And yet it is a love that can be developed even in us if we remain in close contact with the true vine, Jesus Christ.

III. The Proof of Friendship. (Vv. 14-16.) As the proof of love is willingness to give one's life for a friend, so the evidence of friendship is service. In our relation to Christ the proof of our friendship with Him is our manifest willingness to do the things He requires of us. The Master has a great task to perform and asks us to assist Him. He instructs us fully in our duties and explains the purpose behind them, and then sends us forth to "bear much fruit." Every gift and blessing He bestows upon us is for the purpose of better fitting us to help in the salvation of others. Even the promise to answer prayer is connected with this same divine object, the salvation of those out of Christ.

GOLDEN TEXT

"Abide in me, and I in you. As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine; no more can ye, except ye abide in me."—John 15:4.

A beautiful illustration of Christ and His followers. If a branch be severed from the vine, it cannot even live, much less could it bear fruit. It withers away and becomes perfectly useless, but as long as it receives strength and vitality from the parent vine it remains alive and useful in that it produces its fruit in abundance.

Christ is the vine, Christians are the branches. Each Christian must live close to Christ to receive the nourishment, as it were, that is required for him to live and grow in Christian service. But the Christian that gives up Christ and tries to live without Him soon becomes a dead branch and is no longer Christian. Live close to Him and be a fruit-bearing branch.—L. A. R.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS

Christ

- is the Source of life;
- and His Word makes us clean;
- laid down His life for His friends;
- abides in those who abide in Him;
- brings abiding joy to His followers.

Two Vines

1. Christ Vine. Christ is the true Vine. It is only when we are attached to Him that we produce fruit. We are told that the one in Christ "bringeth forth much fruit." We cannot remain in Him and not bring forth fruit. As soon as we fail to produce we are severed off. There is a very unusual thing about this Vine and branches. It never produces bad fruit. All of its fruit is good. The kind of fruit produced is not given in our lesson, but we have a description of it in Galatians 5: 22-26. It is a kind that is readily discerned and known. "Wherefore by their fruits ye shall know them."—Matt. 7:20. It is this visible fruit that makes the branches living epistles "known and read of all men" (2 Cor. 3:1-3).

2. Earth Vine. This is a different kind of a vine from the first one mentioned. It is a fruit-bearing vine as well as the Christ Vine. Its vintage, however, is the opposite of that produced on the other Vine and is described as the "works of the flesh" in Galatians 5:19-21. This vine at present is the larger of the two because all those not connected with the Christ Vine are branches of this vine. The grapes of this vine will soon be harvested and cast "into the great winepress of the wrath of God" (Rev. 14:14-20; Joel 3:13).—C. E. R.

INTERMEDIATE CLASS

Your Very Best Friend

From the history of the kings and prophets of Israel and Judah we go to the study of the Christian. But it is not such a long jump as would appear, for all that happened to Israel happened for our good (1 Cor. 10:11). In our first lesson of this quarter we discover the benefit to be derived from friendship with the One who is our best Friend.

Some of the beauties of a close friendship are disclosed in the story of that great friendship of the Old Testament—David and Jonathan. 1 Samuel 18:1 introduces the story, which continues through several chapters. Though Jonathan was the king's son, he was not envious of David, who had been chosen to succeed Saul. Years later David repaid Jonathan in a most loyal and tender manner (2 Sam. 9). The friendships of this life are given us that we may appreciate the more our relationship with Christ. Friendship with a noble character causes us to endeavor to emulate the fine traits of our friend. The reverse also being true, let us choose our friends carefully. Discuss this point fully in class.

Companionship with Christ brings its rewards in the way of ennobling our characters, and it also entails an obligation—doing His commandments. True friendship calls for service on the part of both. Make a list of the benefits we derive from fellowship with Christ and another showing our obligations to Him.

"There is a friend that sticketh closer than a brother."—M. G.

PRIMARY CLASS

Topic: A Tree That Bears Fruit.

Today we are going to draw a tree. I think a large fruit tree will do. Put fruit on all the branches but one. Color your leaves, tree, and fruit. Color your one branch a dark brown.

Now let's talk about our tree. You may each one tell about the fruit on your tree. Now let's decide what you think we should do about the tree that does not have any fruit. Yes, we all agreed that as it was of no value we should cut it off.

Again, let's make another tree. Draw it just like the first one. On the trunk of this tree print the word "JESUS." On the branches of this tree let's write the things we can do that will make the branches bear fruit for Jesus. Here's one to start the first branch. "Tell other boys and girls to come to Sunday school to learn about Jesus." You and your teacher name the other branches.

Now we'll put that dark brown branch on this tree to make us remember that there can be dead branches in Jesus' tree, also. Here's a fine verse from the Bible about this story. Jesus said it. "I am the vine, ye are the branches." We will write this verse below the second tree. We must learn it, too.

We will make the third tree now. It is to be our class tree. On the trunk write the name of your class. On the branches write your names. We hope to have no dead branches on this tree.—V. C. T.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

A GREAT DAY AT NIAGARA FALLS

A very pleasant surprise was ours last Sunday, when twenty young people of the "Truth Seekers' Class" of the Fonthill, Ont., church paid a visit to the Niagara Falls, N. Y., congregation, and provided a very beautiful and uplifting program consisting of various musical numbers which were well rendered by the young people, and several addresses which were of much interest.

I would like to list the entire program, but not wishing to encroach on the Editor's liberality, I shall simply have to be satisfied with recording a few of its very helpful numbers.

Among the musical numbers presented were the following: a solo, "Face to Face"; a song by fifteen girls, "Choose Him Today"; a sextet of young men gave "Have Thine Own Way, Lord"; a quartet of girls, "There's an Eye Watching You"; and another solo, "Keep On Believing."

Miss Marian McClellan acted as chairman, presenting the various participants in the musical part of the program, and also the speakers, who gave short but thoughtfully prepared addresses on "The Blessing of Doing," "The Blessing of Prayer," and "The Blessing of Choosing." Miss Margaret Shute deserves much credit for the splendid manner in which she accompanied the singers in their solo and chorus numbers.

And now, Mr. Editor, that was not the only surprise we had! At the close of the program our pastor, C. E. Randall, asked the congregation to be patient for a little while longer as we were now to witness a baptismal service.

He gave a short and impressive talk on the meaning and importance of baptism, and then led two young girls into the water and baptized them into the saving name of Christ. How it rejoiced the heart of their grandfather, William Moore, whose Christian influence and teaching caused them to ask to be baptized. They have been members of the Sunday school class taught by Sr. Mina Crosby.

Thus ended one of the grandest and most uplifting gatherings it has been my privilege to attend.

George T. Rennard.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

It does one's heart good to feel and see the old spirit and enthusiasm prevail again now that the summer is over and people are settled down for the school year. Attendance at Sunday school has been running well over 250, and will soon reach the 300 mark again, we are quite sure.

Automobile mishaps of one kind and another have recently caused several injuries among our people. The small son of Bro. and Sr. Howard King while on his bicycle found that automobiles were hard to knock off the road, but after a few days in the hospital he was back on his "bike." Bro. Joe Baker unfortunately ran into one of our Sunday school young men, Roger Miller, and mother while they were walking on a dark road. Roger's leg was broken and both sustained severe bruises. Also the Cozzens girl and mother were injured in a collision. What an uncertain world in which we live!

And how much we all need the Rock of Safety and the Great Physician!

F. E. Siple, Pastor.

FROM AN ISOLATED SISTER

Sr. Clara L. VeNard of Sherrard, Ill., writes appreciatively of The Herald, and says, "We have none of our own church folk any place around here, so it is perhaps not remarkable that we sometimes get discouraged and prone to feel sorry for ourselves (which is always bad for us). Those who live where they can attend church regularly probably do not realize what a blessed privilege they have. All my life it has been my highest ambition to be able to do that, but I have not done so. Maybe, however, we can keep a feeble light shining in our little corner."

Brethren who have a church of your own faith a few blocks from your homes and service each Sunday, together with Sunday school, prayer meetings, and Berean services in between, did you ever stop to thank God for these opportunities and privileges you enjoy which so many others of like precious faith do not?

OUR TRIP EAST

On August 4 Bro. and Sr. C. R. Meyerhoffer, my wife, and I started on our way to attend and work with the Virginia Conference at Maurertown.

En route we stopped off at Oregon, Ill., and enjoyed the General Conference, meeting many old friends and making new acquaintances. Leaving there on the last Sunday afternoon, we drove as far as Sr. Hatch's home at Harvey, Ill., staying overnight and visiting with our good friend Paul. Bro. Sydney Magaw came with us from Oregon, and from Harvey he took us to his home at Tippecanoe City, Ohio. On Monday evening, Aug. 13, we enjoyed having the privilege of speaking at the Brush Creek Church, where I had preached my first sermon a little over five years ago.

Tuesday found us headed toward Maurertown, where we arrived the morning conference began, having stayed overnight at the home of Bro. A. C. Boyer.

Our work in the conference was enjoyable to us, and we were royally entertained all of the time we were there. We hope and trust that we may have left some thoughts and impressions which will be profitable to the brethren and will bring glory and praise to God and His Son.

Monday, Aug. 27, we drove to Washington, D. C., where Bro. Lacey Compton kindly guided us to the places of most interest. That night we spent at the home of Bro. Otis Rite-nour, who also showed us the capital city by night. We then turned our course toward Niagara Falls and Fonthill, where we formerly labored. There we enjoyed seeing and visiting our good friends again. Each church gave a reception for us where we were well entertained, and they were evenings that will long be remembered by us.

We started on our homeward journey Friday, Sept. 7, again stopping off with Bro. Paul Hatch, who went to the Century of Progress with us and acted as our guide, a good one, too. We arrived home September 11, having made a trip of about four thousand miles besides the driving which was done at the various places where we stopped.

All in all, it was a most enjoyable trip and one long to be remembered. We feel very thankful to the Virginia brethren who made it possible and hope they feel as well repaid as we do.

Grover Gordon.

MISSIONARY WORK IN TEXAS

I am very happy to say that I conducted a series of meetings at Valley View Schoolhouse northeast of Stanton, Texas, beginning July 21 and closing July 29. While there were no visible results, yet the truth-seed was sown, and it will yet bring forth fruit in the days to come. It is a new field, though Bro. Glenden-ing is living there. He has been there a short time, but it was the first time a meeting was ever held there.

On July 30 and 31 and August 1, I held a discussion with one Mr. Johnson of the Church of Christ in Stanton, Texas, as to whether the kingdom of God was established on the first Pentecost after the resurrection of Christ or whether it will be established when Jesus returns the second time, and also whether man was wholly mortal, or partly mortal and partly immortal. It was a very pleasant discussion, and I look forward to some good result-ing therefrom.

It was a great joy to me to meet with the brethren near Westbrook, Texas, on August 5. Here is where I preached many years ago when a young man. Not many of the brethren of those days are living now; they are sleeping in the city of the dead waiting for the Master's return. While there, I had a short visit with Sr. W. G. Sweatt, who is very much heartbroken over Bro. Sweatt's death of a few months ago. I want you to write her a cheering letter. Mighty hard, brethren, to see these dear soldiers of the cross falling one by one; but thank God the glad day is breaking just ahead.

The younger members must take up the responsibility. Not only this, but the truth must be preached in new places. Others must be brought into the work. This is God's plan. Truth never was very popular, but seed sown will bring forth fruit, as seen by this letter from a brother in Texas who writes in part, "I would like to keep in touch with you and would be glad to have you come and hold us a meeting, . . . for you have sown seed here that needs you to cultivate."

A sister in Illinois writes these inspiring words, "Dear Bro. Drinkard: I saw your appeal in The Herald. . . . I am sending a small amount and hope all that hear your appeal will do the same, as the gospel must be preached to all nations. Hoping the Master will crown your efforts." Yes, sister, the Lord is crowning our efforts. At this writing the writer is in a very fine meeting about forty miles southeast of San Antonio, Texas. This is a new place, and people are rejoicing in the message of the gospel. Your help is gladly received for the work. Here is a letter from another sister in Illinois who says, "Dear Bro. Drinkard: Having read your appeal for funds to carry the gospel message to others, am enclosing my little mite to help. Wishing for you the best of success, and praying that God will bless your efforts, and that souls will be saved." Such inspiring letters urge us to greater effort, and the work is going right ahead as the Lord opens the way and the hearts of our brethren to the necessity of supporting the work. I have received about enough so far to cover the expenses to date.

Do you want to see the work go forward in this state? If so, write and send me whatever you can contribute.

We realize that serious times are here, but God says this, "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations." Are we under this commission? I submit that the church of God of the New Testament is under this commission, and will be held to strict account when she comes to the final reckoning for what she has done. She is under obligation to see that the gospel is sent into new fields, regardless of hard times. We talk about hard times, and about our financial condition. No one who has a salary can really say that he is in hard circumstances now. I forget for the moment about my own condition when I look out upon the field that is undeveloped, and see the crying need of the gospel. The nearness of the coming of Jesus Christ should inspire your hearts to give more than you ever did in your life toward the preaching of the gospel. If we will not be faithful to our God with our small means, would we be more faithful with much?

I earnestly appeal to you in the name of Jesus Christ to give to this effort and help build up the work in the great state of Texas, thereby encouraging others to greater service for the Master. Brethren and sisters here and there are becoming interested in this movement, and are giving of their means to the end that good will result. In conclusion I want to read the advice which God gives, saying, "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. . . . Honour the Lord with thy substance, and with the firstfruits of all thine increase: so shall thy barns be filled with plenty."—Prov. 3:5, 8, 10. This principle has held true in every age: the people of God are required to serve Him first. Jesus Himself taught it by saying, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." Let God be first, and you will be blessed beyond your fondest expectation.

May I hear from you real soon? I solicit your advice and counsel and cooperation in this gospel work.
T. A. Drinkard,
Handley, Texas.

EMMA ALICE SEYMORE

Emma Alice Bowman was born near Forreston, Ill., June 13, 1868. In 1870 she left Illinois, moving to Creston, Union County, Iowa, Wheeler Grove, Iowa, and Lewis, Iowa,

FIFTEEN TRACTS FOR A DIME

In order that we may help you in the distribution of Tracts, we are offering for a limited time to send postpaid to any address a splendid assortment of fifteen of our most popular Bible Tracts for Ten Cents. This sample packet will enable you to select such Tracts as are best suited to the needs of your community and order them in quantities for widespread distribution.

You need not write a letter; just fill in the attached blank, place it in an envelope with five two-cent stamps, and address it to the
NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
Oregon, Illinois

Date

NATIONAL BIBLE INSTITUTION
Oregon, Illinois

Gentlemen: Inclosed find ten cents in United States postage stamps for which please send me a sample packet of assorted tracts.

Name

St. or RFD.

City or Town

State

in which her girlhood days were spent.

She was united in marriage at Sterling, Ill., with Fred H. Seymore of Tampico, Ill., December 9, 1886, all her married life being spent here.

To this union three daughters, Daisy Nokes of Culver City, Calif., Ethel Whitmer of Madison, Wis., and Vera Lewis of Tampico, were born.

She was baptized September 26, 1920, into the all-saving name of Jesus Christ, from which time she clung closely to the saving faith of the gospel, a firm believer in the soon coming of the Lord and His kingdom, the resurrection of the dead, and kindred truths, when she would arise to meet her Lord, her loved ones, friends, and neighbors who had shared with her that blessed hope which she held so dear in life.

She leaves to mourn her loss, her husband; her three daughters above named, and their families; one brother, Sampson Bowman of Carson, Iowa; and one sister, Mrs. Anna Smith, Wahepton, N. D.

The large audience of neighbors and friends that assembled for the funeral services, and the profusion of beautiful floral pieces, gave evidence of the high esteem in which Sr. Seymore was held in the community in which she lived and labored.

We laid her to rest in the beautiful but silent city of the dead in Tampico to await the return of our Lord whom she worshiped and served.
L. E. Conner.

BETWEEN YOU AND ME—

Orders are coming in in goodly number for the ten-cent packets of tracts which we are now offering. Have you ordered a trial supply?

A beautiful poem, composed by Edith Andrew Burchell, a grand niece of Bro. A. J. Eychaner, in commemoration of his ninety-second birthday, was received by the editor and is deeply appreciated. All who have known our revered brother have reason to love him.

Bro. and Sr. Harvey Krogh, Jr., report an attendance of between 25 and 30 at Burr Oak, Ind., where Bro. Krogh conducted services morning and evening on Sunday, Sept. 16. "The spiritual atmosphere," says Bro. Krogh, "was excellent."

In connection with the coming Sunday school lessons, why not use "God's Kingdom," a book of exhaustive outline studies of Jesus' teachings concerning Himself and His kingdom? Single copies 25 cents. Order from the National Berean Society, Oregon, Ill. Price lists of all publications on request.

Sunday, Oct. 7, the church at Dixon, Ill., will celebrate the eighth anniversary of the dedication of its new building and at the same time observe Golden Rule Home Sunday. The congregation is planning a great homecoming of members from a distance, and visitors from near by sister churches are also expected.

In a letter from Elder Harry A. Sheets, Maurertown, Va., comes the welcome news that Sr. Sheets has now returned to their home after her operation in Winchester, and is apparently on the highroad to complete recovery.

Sunday school teachers' meetings are again in order. Several of our schools have resumed the regular monthly meetings of their working forces which were interrupted by the vacation and conference periods. A teachers' training class is a profitable feature in any Sunday school program.

The Golden Rule Church of God, Cleveland, Ohio, resumed evening services on the second Sunday in the present month. This reminds us, preaching brethren, that it is time for us to make our pastoral plans for the fall and winter. How would you like to announce topics a few weeks ahead through The Herald? Perhaps brethren within driving distance would make an effort to attend and hear some particular subject in which they were interested discussed. We will be glad to cooperate with you in this way.

Word of the death of Mrs. Amos Osborn, a member of the Burr Oak, Ind., church, has reached the office. Bro. J. H. Anderson was to conduct the services. Further particulars doubtless will appear later.

Have you solicited that new subscription for The Herald you had intended to get? You will be doing a favor to the one you induce to subscribe, we are sure you will agree.

Sr. Mary A. Gesin has consented to write an article to appear in the near future that should be of special interest to our public school teachers, as it will have to do with the possibility of making a lasting and favorable spiritual impression on the minds of boys and girls in the classroom. Watch for Sr. Gesin's article.

The church and Sunday school at Oregon, Ill., will hold its annual Rally Day on the first Sunday in October. The Bereans have been carrying on a Rally Month program throughout September that has proved something of a success.

From a most interesting letter from a new reader in Kansas City, Mo., we quote the following: "If all of your doctrinal positions are as scriptural as those I have seen in the literature you have sent me, I will say that your teaching on doctrine is wonderful!" To cling close to the Bible is our earnest purpose. May God help us to do so.

Again we are completing a volume of The Herald with a full 52 numbers! Until three years ago it had been the custom to omit one issue, generally during conference time, but by a little extra effort on the part of all of our workers we have carried through the last three volumes without missing a single number.

The Editor joins in the rejoicing experienced by Bro. William Moore of Niagara Falls, N. Y., over the baptism of his granddaughters. May the fervent spirit of love for God which we know overflows in the heart of their grandfather enter and abide in their own hearts forever.

Elder Harry A. Sheets, who for several years has prepared such excellent material for the Young People and Adult section of the Truth Seekers' Quarterly, owing to the illness of his wife was unable to get his copy to us in time for publication in the forthcoming edition, and his work was hastily taken over by the Editor. We trust that Bro. Sheets will appear again in the Truth Seeker for the first quarter of 1935.

HIS WORK BEFORE HIM

Continued from Page Three

(published in 1920), says: "This afternoon I saw two German delegates, followed by a long line of plenipotentiaries of the allied and associated Powers, sign the Treaty of Versailles. The ceremony in the Hall of Mirrors, to which the world has been looking forward eagerly since the armistice of November 11, thrilled neither participants nor spectators. Cannon were booming to announce the end of the war and the birth of the League of Nations. But the war was not ended. The League of Nations was not born. The signers knew that the document over which they bent was not the chart of a durable world peace. That is why they were indifferent. Their apathy was communicated to us who looked on." Force alone can ratify the Treaty of Versailles: and force is not peace, universal and eternal, but war. "We are nearer war today than at any time since 1914" is the statement on the lips of almost every statesman of the great Powers.

JESUS AND POST-MILLENNIALISM

If the coming of the Lord is so many years away as the foregoing would teach, then many texts of Scripture must be discarded or altered. Hence arises the ultra-Modernist school which attempts to disprove inspiration, and to show that no "educated" person could accept the Bible at face value. To believe that the coming of the Lord is near, they think to be only "the naive belief held by the apostles, who could not believe that their great leader had been taken away from them for long." From that they conclude that the Old Testament prophecies were written after the events of which they told. Destructive "higher" criticism is in accord with the teachings of post-millennialism. The next step is to deny the sonship of Jesus: they look upon Him as merely a great religious teacher and reformer. All this fulfills the statement so often quoted: "Having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof."

In the parable concerning the harvest (Matt. 13:24ff) Jesus did not teach post-millennialism. The wheat and tares grew together until the harvest: only then should they be gathered out. The evils of this world are to be removed only at the coming of Christ.

THE OTHER VIEW

When we look for Christ to come to set up His kingdom and to follow that by setting all things in order on the earth, then quite a different picture presents itself. World reform is not primarily the work of the church. Jesus in His Great Commission to His followers did not tell them to go into the world to reform it; to set up righteous governments in the world; to see that every downtrodden person received justice; to bring in everlasting peace! No! Those men were told to go into the world to "preach the gospel." The good news that some day God will set up a kingdom on earth wherein there will be righteousness, peace, and justice, is what He commanded to be preached, not the news of the latest political squabble, of the latest baseball game, of the latest social reform! The church becomes a religious organization under such a plan. Politics has no place in the pulpit except to act as a guidepost to the Christian in a confused world. Social, economic, and moral uplift becomes a by-product of the church rather than its chief objective. Then, greatest blessing of all, under such a regime the coming of the Lord is nearer "than when we supposed." The world of turmoil and confusion about us takes on a new meaning. All of these things are but harbingers of a better day. War and tumult; crime, poverty, and oppression; immorality and violence, but wait the great day when our Lord shall be revealed. In fact, the greater the time of stress and strain, the more we can look for things to come to a head, for our Lord to return.

Instead of having to delete portions of Scripture to fit our ideas, furthermore, we accept them as they are. By map and history proof can be presented that conditions are in a position of uncertainty the like of which has never been before. In speaking to a non-religious group not long ago concerning the Mussolini-Hitler conference we predicted that there would be turmoil and perhaps war in Central Europe centering about Austria. We did not know at that time how near were the stirring events which took place there. Three forces are at work to upset the peace of that now forlorn nation: Naziism, Fascism, and Bolshevism. Those three parties are contending for dominance in Austria, for it is the key to the Balkan Peninsula. A war involving any one of those three forces is likely to be a world war. And more trouble is in store for that unfortunate country! The Bible tells of those very things! Which leads to another conclusion.

THE SECOND ADVENT

God is a God of miraculous power. Inspiration is written on every page of His Word. It brings to mankind the great message that the entire world is waiting for, of the greatest event of all the ages: the second advent. Christ takes on the aspect of the all-powerful ruler, as well as the role of reformer and teacher. He is the Son of God, the promised Messiah, the future ruler of the world. Instead of coming to a world already made new by the "efforts of sinful men," He shall come with His work before Him.

When Jesus comes to set up His kingdom, "his work is before him." He will work with the power of the Holy Spirit to make all things new. Then will peace increase (Isa. 9:7); then will justice come in ((Isa. 32:1); then will prosperity everlasting be the condition of the economic world (Isa. 65:21-23); and even sickness shall be done away (Isa. 33:24). The work of the Lord is before Him. For those things do His people long. For those things do they hope. For those things do they look with longing eyes, knowing that man cannot bring them to pass. When we know that resurrection and restitution wait upon the return of the Lord, then can we pray from the heart, "Thy kingdom come."